PREFACE

Siva-Mahimnah Stotram or the Hymn on the Greatness of Siva is considered by many to be the best of all the hymns found in Sanskrit literature. Sri Ramakrishna once went into Samadhi while repeating it. It is grand in conception, sublime in diction, and uplifting in its influence. Some of the verses may fail to appeal to the modern people, but their cumulative effect on the mind of the readers is none the less. The very recital of this beautiful hymn raises one to a higher plane of existence. There are many persons who repeat it daily, though not fully understanding it, yet they derive immense benefit. It goes without saying that persons who recite it after knowing its meaning will have more spiritual advantage. For the benefit of those English-knowing people who have no deep knowledge of Sanskrit, we give this English translation.

Nobody knows definitely who is the author of this book. There is a legendary story that one Pushpadanta composed it to please Siva whose wrath he incurred by treading on the flowers which were left after worshipping the Great Deity. The Verse No.37 supports this legend. It might be that some devotee of Siva wrote this hymn under this pseudonym. This is quite in keeping with the Indian spirit which makes a man shrink from the idea of seeing his name blazoned before the public. Whoever may be the author, doubtless he is immortalized in this hymn and will receive silent homage from the devotees of the Lord for all time to come.

 others do not fully know the greatness of Siva.

Brahma and others are inadequate for Thee. And if¹ all remain unblamable by praising Thee according to their intellectual powers, then even this attempt on my part to compose a hymn is free from any blemish.

5 Can be ... whom?—i.e. the Absolute can never be the object of perception.

3. O Brahman! Does the praise of even Brihaspati cause any wonderment to Thee who art the author of nectarlike sweet Vedas? O Destroyer of Tripura, the¹ thought that by praising Thy glories I shall purify my speech has prompted me to undertake this work.

4. O Giver of boons, in refutation of Thy Divinity which is described by the three Vedas, which creates, preserves, and destroys the world, and which is divided into three¹ bodies according to the different² qualities, some³ thick-headed persons offer arguments, which are pleasing to the ignorant but (in reality) hateful.⁴

1 Three bodies—namely, Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva.

2 Different qualities—namely, Sattva, Rajas, and Tamas.

3 Some—referring to the Mimamakas who maintain that God has no form and is not the cause of the creation, preservation, and destruction of the world.

4 Hateful—because their views go against the Vedas.

¹ To fulfil etc.—When a man does anything, he has a definite purpose; he can work because he has a physical body; and while making anything he needs body, with what instruments, support, and materials does that creator indeed create the three worlds?—this kind of vain argumentation with regard to Thee whose Divine nature is beyond the reach of intellect makes the perverted¹ vociferous to the delusion of mankind.

Ignorant people want to see these conditions fulfilled in God's act of creation. But such expectations are idle, for God is God—He cannot be judged by any human standard.

8. O Giver of boons, a great bull,¹ a wooden club, an axe, a tiger-skin, ashes, a human skull and the like—these are Thy sole possessions, though² by the mere casting of eyes Thou gave to gods great treasures which they enjoy. Indeed,³ the mirage of sense-objects cannot delude one whose delight is in the Self.

1 Bull etc.—Bull is used for riding. The club and the axe serve as weapons. Tiger-skin is the substitute for cloth. Ashes are used for besmearing the body with. Snakes are a sort of ornaments to His body. Human skulls serve the purpose of drinking cups.

2 Though etc.—His style of living is abjectly poor, though at His mere wish gods possess infinite treasures.

3 Indeed etc.—The reason why He lives so poorly is that sense-objects have no attraction for one whose delight is in the Self the whole universe is eternal, while others¹ say that all is transitory. Yet others² maintain that all these are eternal and non-eternal—having different characteristics. Bewildered,³ as it were, by them I do not feel ashamed to praise Thee. Indeed this garrulity indicates my audacity⁴.

2 Others ... non-eternal—The Naiyayikas say that ether etc. are permanent; the jar etc. non-permanent.

1 Brahma etc.—Referring to the story that Brahma and Vishnu once quarrelled between themselves as to who was greater. God Siva then appeared before them in the form of a column of fire. Brahma and Vishnu tried to measure the body of Siva to prove their respective supremacy, but both failed. At this in all humility they began to praise Siva who, being pleased with their prayer, revealed Himself to them

11. O Destroyer of Tripura, that the ten-headed Ravana, after¹ ridding the three worlds of any trace of enemies, remained with arms eager for (fresh) war is due to the fact of his having great devotion to Thee—devotion which² prompted him to offer his heads as lotuses to Thy feet.

1 After ... war—This indicates his great prowess.

2 Which prompted etc.—There is a story that Ravana while worshipping Siva cut off one by one his nine heads and offered them to the feet of the Lord as substitutes for lotuses. And while he was about to cut off his last head, Siva appeared before him and offered boons. Ravana prayed for the restoration of his nine heads and invincibility in war, which were granted.

12. When Ravana¹ extended the valour of his arms—whose strength was obtained by worshipping Thee—to Kailasa, Thy abode, Thou moved the tip of Thy toe, and he did not get a resting place even in the nether world. Verily, when affluent, the wicked becomes deluded².

¹ Ravana etc—Ravana thought that instead of going to Kailasa every day for the worship of Siva, he would pull down Kailasa and place that in his kingdom. When he attempted that, Parvati, the consort of Siva, became alarmed. At this Siva moved the tip of His toe, and Ravana was thrown away from heaven to the nether world. Even there his stay would have been impossible had not Siva taken pity on him and lifted him up.

15. O Lord, the god of love whose arrows do not fail anywhere in the world of gods, demons, and men but are always successful, became¹ simply an object of memory by looking² upon Thee as an ordinary god. For an insult to the self-controlled does not conduce to good.

1 Became ... memory—i.e. was dead.

2 Looking ... god.—The great God Siva was day and night in meditation. But gods wanted that a son should be born to Him to lead them in battle against the demon Taraka. They sought the help of Kama, the god of love. Kama, conceited at his success everywhere, tried to spread his influence even over Siva, by throwing an arrow of passion. Siva, angry at being disturbed in meditation, burnt Kama to ashes with the fire of His third eye.

Thy feet; this great devotion transformed into a discus is alert in protecting the three worlds.

Therefore knowing Thee to be the giver of fruits and putting faith in the Vedas, people become resolute about the performance of sacrificial rites.

ध्रुवं कर्तुः श्रद्धाविधुरमभिचाराय हि मखाः ॥ २१ ॥

1 The sacrifice etc.—Sacrificial rite is an action and every action is subject to origin and destruction. Now how can a sacrificial rite bear fruit in some other time or region after the action of sacrifice has been destroyed? Some say that the sacrificial rite produces, before destruction, some effect called Apurva, which bears result in the future. In refuting this theory of the Mimamsakas, the author says that it is the Lord who gives fruits to the sacrificer, though the sacrificial rite may have an end.

2 When etc.—i.e. it never does.

3 If not etc.—because the Lord is the giver of fruits.

O Destroyer of Tripura, O Giver of boons, even on seeing in front the god of love, bow in hand, burnt like a piece of straw in a trice by Thee, if Parvati¹, proud of her beauty, thinks that Thou art under her fascination, because² she was allowed to occupy half of Thy body on account of her austerities, ah, surely the young women are under delusion.

1 Parvati—Consort of Siva.

2 Because etc.—Parvati performed much austerity to get the love of Siva. Taking pity at her suffering Siva allowed her to become a part of His body. But forgetting this act of pity on the part of Siva, Parvati might think, like ordinary women, that she got this favour because of her fascinating beauty. In that case she is wrong, as indicated by Siva's burning the god of love. See Sloka 15, note 2.

31. O Giver of boons, where is my ill-developed mind subject to misery¹ and where is Thy Divinity—eternal and possessing infinite virtues? Though terror-stricken because of this, I am forced² by my devotion to offer this hymn at Thy feet.

Lord Siva has universal appeal in India. From the snow-capped Himalayas in the north to the ocean-washed shores of the south, He has been worshipped through the ages, by the householders as well as sannyasins as the Lord of the animate and the inanimate. His fame as easy-to-be pleased God and also giver of boons, has naturally prompted poets and devotees to compose and sing hymns in His glory.

Siva-Mahimnah Stotram or the Hymn on the Greatness of Siva is considered as one of the best hymns in Sanskrit literature. It is grand in conception, sublime in diction, and uplifting in its influence. It goes without saying that persons who recite it after knowing its meaning will have great spiritual benefit.
