उपभोक्ष्ये त्वहं दत्तं भागं पित्रा महात्मना ॥ २६ ॥

“Taking up my abode in the Daṇḍaka forest, O gentle brother, I for my part shall enjoy the share allotted to me by our high-souled father for fourteen years. (26)

यदब्रवीन्मां नरलोकसत्कृतः
पिता महात्मा विबुधाधिपोपमः।
तदेव मन्ये परमात्मनो हितं
न सर्वलोकेश्वरभावमव्ययम् ॥ २७ ॥

“I consider that alone to be supremely good for me, which our high-souled father, who is respected by the world of human beings and is a compeer of Indra, the ruler of gods, has enjoined upon me, and not the state of Brahmā (the lord of all the worlds), which knows no decay.” (27)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे

एकाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०१ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and one in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्व्यधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CII

Bharata tells Śrī Rāma that, having been deprived of the privilege of serving his elder brother, he will have nothing to do with sovereignty and requests him to offer water to the spirit of his deceased father, who died with the thought of Śrī Rāma alone foremost in his mind, and further implores him to get himself consecrated for the sovereignty of Ayodhyā, the obsequies of their imperial father having been duly performed by the two brothers, Bharata and Śatrughna, at Ayodhyā

रामस्य वचनं श्रुत्वा भरतः प्रत्युवाच ह।
किं मे धर्माद् विहीनस्य राजधर्मः करिष्यति ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the exhortation of Śrī Rāma, Bharata, it is said, replied as follows : "How will the code of conduct prescribed for a king avail me, who stand outside the range of that code (disqualified as I am for sovereignty, being a younger issue of the king-emperor)? (1)

शाश्वतोऽयं सदा धर्मः स्थितोऽस्मासु नरर्षभ।
ज्येष्ठे पुत्रे स्थिते राजा न कनीयान् भवेन्नृपः ॥ २ ॥

"This has ever been the perpetual law amongst us (the Kṣatriyas of the solar dynasty), O jewel among men, that so long as the eldest prince is alive, a younger one can never be king. (2)

स समृद्धां मया सार्धमयोध्यां गच्छ राघव।
अभिषेचय चात्मानं कुलस्यास्य भवाय नः ॥ ३ ॥

"Therefore, return with me to the affluent city of Ayodhyā, O scion of Raghu, and get yourself consecrated for the kingship for the continuance of this race of ours. (3)

राजानं मानुषं प्राहुर्देवत्वे सम्मतो मम।
यस्य धर्मार्थसहितं वृत्तमाहुरमानुषम् ॥ ४ ॥

"The king, whom the common people speak of as a human being and yet whose conduct, which goes hand in hand with righteousness and worldly prosperity, they declare as superhuman, is esteemed by me as verging on divinity. (4)

केकयस्थे च मयि तु त्वयि चारण्यमाश्रिते।
धीमान् स्वर्गं गतो राजा यायजूकः सतां मतः ॥ ५ ॥

"While I was away to the kingdom of Kekaya and you had proceeded to the forest, the sagacious king, who was given to the performance of sacrifices and was esteemed by the virtuous, ascended to heaven. (5)

निष्क्रान्तमात्रे भवति सहसीते सलक्ष्मणे।
दुःखशोकाभिभूतस्तु राजा त्रिदिवमभ्यगात् ॥ ६ ॥

"Accompanied by Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa, you had just gone out of Ayodhyā when, overwhelmed with sorrow and grief, the king departed for heaven. (6)

उत्तिष्ठ पुरुषव्याघ्र क्रियतामुदकं पितुः।
अहं चायं च शत्रुघ्नः पूर्वमेव कृतोदकौ ॥ ७ ॥

"Get up, O tiger among men! Let water be offered to the spirit of our deceased father. Śatrughna standing here and myself too have already offered water to him. (7)

प्रियेण किल दत्तं हि पितृलोकेषु राघव।
अक्षयं भवतीत्याहुर्भवांश्चैव पितुः प्रियः ॥ ८ ॥

"For, the knowers of Truth declare that water etc., offered by a beloved son surely becomes inexhaustible in the realm of manes, O scion of Raghu; and you are undoubtedly the beloved of our deceased father. (8)

त्वामेव शोचंस्तव दर्शनेप्सु- स्त्वय्येव सक्तामनिवर्त्य बुद्धिम्।

त्वया विहीनस्तव शोकरुग्ण-

स्त्वां संस्मरन्नेव गतः पिता ते ॥ ९ ॥

“Bereft of you and stricken with grief caused by separation from you and unable to divert his mind, which was solely attached to you alone, our father departed from this world grieving only for you, longing for your sight and fondly remembering you alone.” (9)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे द्व्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०२ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and two in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CIII

Fallen into a swoon to hear of his father's ascent to heaven and brought back to consciousness by Bharata and others, who sprinkle water on him and employ other such devices, Śrī Rāma laments in various ways. Comforted by Bharata and having in his turn consoled Sītā and repairing to the bank of the Gaṅgā, nay, offering water and balls of cooked food to the spirit of his departed father, he returns to his hut. Hearing their cry of distress, the troops approach them and are greeted by Śrī Rāma according to their rank

तां श्रुत्वा करुणां वाचं पितुर्मरणसंहिताम् ।
राघवो भरतेनोक्तां बभूव गतचेतनः ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the pathetic news relating to the death of his father, King Daśaratha, told by Bharata, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, fainted there. (1)

तं तु वज्रमिवोत्सृष्टमाहवे दानवारिणा ।
वाग्वज्रं भरतेनोक्तममनोज्ञं परंतपः ॥ २ ॥
प्रगृह्य रामो बाहू वै पुष्पिताङ्ग इव द्रुमः ।
वने परशुना कृत्तस्तथा भुवि पपात ह ॥ ३ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid unpleasant and heart-rending news broken by Bharata, which was piercing like a thunderbolt discharged by Indra, the enemy of demons, on a field of battle, and raising his arms, Śrī Rāma, the scorcher of his enemies, for his part actually sank to the ground precisely like a tree with boughs full of blossom felled down with an axe in a forest : so it is said. (2-3)

तथा हि पतितं रामं जगत्यां जगतीपतिम् ।
कूलघातपरिश्रान्तं प्रसुप्तमिव कुञ्जरम् ॥ ४ ॥

भ्रातरस्ते महेष्वासं सर्वतः शोककर्शितम् ।
रुदन्तः सह वैदेह्या सिषिचुः सलिलेन वै ॥ ५ ॥

Weeping with Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, his celebrated brothers, Bharata, Lakṣmaṇa and Śatrughna, promptly sprinkled water all over Śrī Rāma, the ruler of the earth and the wielder of a mighty bow, fallen on the ground, as aforesaid, blasted with grief, like an elephant exhausted by striking with his tusks against a river bank and lying fast asleep due to fatigue. (4-5)

स तु संज्ञां पुनर्लब्ध्वा नेत्राभ्यामश्रुमुत्सृजन् ।
उपाक्रामत काकुत्स्थः कृपणं बहु भाषितुम् ॥ ६ ॥

Shortly regaining his consciousness, the aforesaid Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha, for his part, began piteously to wail, dropping tears from his eyes. (6)

स रामः स्वर्गतं श्रुत्वा पितरं पृथिवीपतिम् ।
उवाच भरतं वाक्यं धर्मात्मा धर्मसंहितम् ॥ ७ ॥

Hearing of the emperor, his father, having ascended to heaven, the celebrated

Śrī Rāma, whose mind was given to piety, addressed the following words, consistent with righteousness, to Bharata : (7)

किं करिष्याम्ययोध्यायां ताते दिष्टां गतिं गते ।
कस्तां राजवराद्धीनामयोध्यां पालयिष्यति ॥ ८ ॥

“Father having reached the end of his life (the destiny assigned by Providence), what shall I do at Ayodhyā? Who will look after the said city of Ayodhyā, bereft of Daśaratha, the foremost of kings? (8)

किं नु तस्य मया कार्यं दुर्जातेन महात्मनः ।
यो मृतो मम शोकेन स मया न च संस्कृतः ॥ ९ ॥

“What purpose on earth of that high-souled monarch—who died of grief caused by separation from me, and who was not even cremated by me—was served by me, his hapless child? (9)

अहो भरत सिद्धार्थो येन राजा त्वयानघ ।
शत्रुघ्नेन च सर्वेषु प्रेतकृत्येषु सत्कृतः ॥ १० ॥

“Oh sinless Bharata, accomplished of purpose are you, by whom, as well as by Śatrughna the king was paid homage to in all obsequial rites! (10)

निष्प्रधानामनेकाग्रां नरेन्द्रेण विना कृताम् ।
निवृत्तवनवासोऽपि नायोध्यां गन्तुमुत्सहे ॥ ११ ॥

“Even when the term of my exile has expired, I shall have no heart to return to Ayodhyā, which has been rendered destitute of its ruler and is, therefore, without a leader and agitated. (11)

समाप्तवनवासं मामयोध्यायां परंतप ।
कोऽनुशासिष्यति पुनस्ताते लोकान्तरं गते ॥ १२ ॥

“Father having departed to the otherworld, O scorcher of enemies, who will give instructions to me hereafter about my duty when I am back in Ayodhyā, having completed the term of my exile in the forest? (12)

पुरा प्रेक्ष्य सुवृत्तं मां पिता यान्याह सान्त्वयन् ।
वाक्यानि तानि श्रोष्यामि कुतः कर्णसुखान्यहम् ॥ १३ ॥

“From whom shall I hear those words, pleasing to the ear, which father addressed to me in the past, speaking kindly to me, on seeing me of good conduct?” (13)

एवमुक्त्वाथ भरतं भार्यामभ्येत्य राघवः ।
उवाच शोकसंतप्तः पूर्णचन्द्रनिभाननाम् ॥ १४ ॥

Having spoken to Bharata as aforesaid and turning to his consort, whose countenance resembled the full moon, as well as to Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, who was tormented with grief, said to her : (14)

सीते मृतस्ते श्वशुरः पितृहीनोऽसि लक्ष्मण ।
भरतो दुःखमाचष्टे स्वर्गतिं पृथिवीपते ॥ १५ ॥

“Your father-in-law is no more, O Sītā ! You are fatherless, O Lakṣmaṇa ! Bharata sorrowfully relates the emperor’s ascent to heaven.” (15)

ततो बहुगुणं तेषां बाष्पं नेत्रेष्वजायत ।
तथा ब्रुवति काकुत्स्थे कुमारानां यशस्विनाम् ॥ १६ ॥

When Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha) spoke as above, copious tears welled up in consequence in the eyes of those illustrious princes. (16)

ततस्ते भ्रातरः सर्वे भृशमाश्वास्य दुःखितम् ।
अब्रुवज्जगतीभर्तुः क्रियतामुदकं पितुः ॥ १७ ॥

Having consoled their afflicted brother to the best of their ability, all the aforesaid brothers then said to him, “Let water be offered to the spirit of our imperial father.” (17)

सा सीता स्वर्गतिं श्रुत्वा श्वशुरं तं महानृपम् ।
नेत्राभ्यामश्रुपूर्णाभ्यां न शशाकेक्षितुं प्रियम् ॥ १८ ॥

Hearing of the celebrated emperor, her father-in-law, having ascended to heaven, the renowned Sītā with her eyes full of tears was not able to look at her beloved lord. (18)

सान्त्वयित्वा तु तां रामो रुदतीं जनकात्मजाम् ।
उवाच लक्ष्मणं तत्र दुःखितो दुःखितं वचः ॥ १९ ॥

Consoling the aforesaid Sītā (daughter of Janaka), who was weeping, the afflicted

Śrī Rāma for his part spoke as follows to the distressed Lakṣmaṇa on that very spot : (19)

आनयेद्भुदिपिण्याकं चीरमाहर चोत्तरम् ।
जलक्रियार्थं तातस्य गमिष्यामि महात्मनः ॥ २० ॥

“Bring the crushed pulp of Īṅgudī, a piece of bark for being wrapped about my lions and another for being used as an upper garment. I shall proceed to the river bank to perform the rite of offering water to the spirit of our high-souled father. (20)

सीता पुरस्ताद् व्रजतु त्वमेनामभितो व्रज ।
अहं पश्चाद् गमिष्यामि गतिर्होषा सुदारुणा ॥ २१ ॥

“Let Sītā walk ahead and follow you at her heels. I shall follow in the rear; for such is the most painful procedure employed on occasions of mourning.” (21)

ततो नित्यानुगस्तेषां विदितात्मा महामतिः ।
मृदुर्दान्तश्च कान्तश्च रामे च दृढभक्तिमान् ॥ २२ ॥
सुमन्त्रस्तैर्नृपसुतैः सार्धमाश्वास्य राघवम् ।
अवतारयदालम्ब्य नदीं मन्दाकिनीं शिवाम् ॥ २३ ॥

Consoling Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, alongwith those other princes, and holding the former by the hand, Sumantra, their hereditary servant—who had realized the Self, was possessed of great intelligence, gentle, self-controlled and glorious, and was full of unswerving devotion to Śrī Rāma—helped him descend to the blessed river, Mandākinī. (22-23)

ते सुतीर्था ततः कृच्छ्रदुपगम्य यशस्विनः ।
नदीं मन्दाकिनीं रम्यां सदा पुष्पितकाननाम् ॥ २४ ॥
शीघ्रस्त्रोतसमासाद्य तीर्थं शिवमकर्दमम् ।
सिषिचुस्तूदकं राज्ञे तत एतद् भवत्विति ॥ २५ ॥

Having reached with difficulty (because of their inability to walk, overwhelmed as they were with grief caused by their father's demise) the lovely and swift-flowing river Mandākinī—which was provided with easy descents for bathing purposes and was hemmed in with woodlands ever full of blossom—and, betaking themselves to a blessed descent free from mud, Śrī Rāma and others for their part offered water to the departed king, saying “Dear father, let this water reach you.” (24-25)

प्रगृह्य तु महीपालो जलापूरितमञ्जलिम् ।
दिशं याम्यामभिमुखो रुदन् वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ २६ ॥

Holding together, in the form of a hollow, his palms full of water, and standing with his face turned towards the southern quarter presided over by Yama, the god of death, Śrī Rāma, the ruler of the earth, for his part spoke weeping as follows : (26)

एतत् ते राजशार्दूल विमलं तोयमक्षयम् ।
पितृलोकगतस्याद्य महत्तमुपतिष्ठतु ॥ २७ ॥

“Let this limpid water offered by me today serve you, who have left for the world of manes, inexhaustibly, O tiger among kings !” (27)

ततो मन्दाकिनीतीरं प्रत्युत्तीर्य स राघवः ।
पितुश्चकार तेजस्वी निर्वापं भ्रातृभिः सह ॥ २८ ॥

Re-ascending to the bank of the Mandākinī the celebrated and glorious Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) then offered balls of food to his father alongwith his other three brothers. (28)

ऐङ्गुदं बदरैर्मिश्रं पिण्याकं दर्भसंस्तरे ।
न्यस्य रामः सुदुःखार्तो रुदन् वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ २९ ॥

Serving the crushed pulp of Īṅgudī fruit mixed with the pulp of plums on a mat of Kuśa grass, Śrī Rāma, who was sore stricken with agony, spoke weeping as follows : (29)

इदं भुङ्क्ष्व महाराज प्रीतो यदशना वयम् ।
यदन्नः पुरुषो भवति तदन्नास्तस्य देवताः ॥ ३० ॥

“Delightfully partake of this, which is our only food, O great monarch! Deties partake of the same food which a man worshipping them eats.” (30)

ततस्तेनैव मार्गेण प्रत्युत्तीर्य सरित्तटात् ।
आरुरोह नरव्याघ्रो रम्यसानुं महीधरम् ॥ ३१ ॥

Moving up from the river bank once more by the same route along which he had descended, Śrī Rāma, a tiger among men, then ascended the mountain Citrakūṭa, which was crowned with a lovely summit.

(31)

ततः पर्णकुटीद्वारमासाद्य जगतीपतिः ।
परिजग्राह पाणिभ्यामुभौ भरतलक्ष्मणौ ॥ ३२ ॥

Reaching the entrance of the hut of leafy twigs in which he dwelt, Śrī Rāma (the emperor) now clasped both Bharata and Lakṣmaṇa by his hands and wept loudly.

(32)

तेषां तु रुदतां शब्दात् प्रतिशब्दोऽभवद् गिरौ ।
भ्रातृणां सह वैदेह्या सिंहानां नर्दतामिव ॥ ३३ ॥

From the cry of those brothers with Sitā, a princess of the Videha kingdom, which resembled the noise of roaring lions, rose an echo in the mountain.

(33)

महाबलानां रुदतां कुर्वतामुदकं पितुः ।
विज्ञाय तुमुलं शब्दं त्रस्ता भरतसैनिकाः ॥ ३४ ॥
अब्रुवंश्चापि रामेण भरतः संगतो ध्रुवम् ।
तेषामेव महान् शब्दः शोचतां पितरं मृतम् ॥ ३५ ॥

The troops of Bharata got alarmed to hear the confused noise of the four exceptionally mighty brothers, who, they thought were crying while offering water to the spirit of their deceased father, and said to one another, "Surely Prince Bharata has met Śrī Rāma. This is undoubtedly the loud cry of those four brothers mourning for their deceased father."

(34-35) ..

अथ वाहान् परित्यज्य तं सर्वेऽभिमुखाः स्वनम् ।
अप्येकमनसो जग्मुर्यथास्थानं प्रधाविताः ॥ ३६ ॥

Leaving their conveyances, all troops without exception ran fast with an undivided mind to the place from which the sound was coming, with their faces turned towards that sound.

(36)

हयैरन्ये गजैरन्ये रथैरन्ये स्वलंकृतैः ।
सुकुमारास्तथैवान्ये पद्भिरेव नरा ययुः ॥ ३७ ॥

Some people, other than the troops, who were tender of body rode on horses, others on elephants and still others in chariots tastefully decorated; while still others went on foot alone.

(37)

अचिरप्रोषितं रामं चिरविप्रोषितं यथा ।
द्रष्टुकामो जनः सर्वो जगाम सहसाश्रमम् ॥ ३८ ॥

Eager to see Śrī Rāma, as though he had been away from his home, Ayodhyā, for a long time, although he had left his home not long before, all men rushed headlong to the hermitage of Śrī Rāma.

(38)

भ्रातृणां त्वरितास्ते तु द्रष्टुकामाः समागमम् ।
ययुर्बहुविधैर्यानेः खुरनेमिसमाकुलैः ॥ ३९ ॥

Keen to behold the meeting of the four brothers, they for their part hastily rode on hoofed animals and wheeled vehicles of various kinds.

(39)

सा भूमिर्बहुभिर्याने रथनेमिसमाहता ।
मुमोच तुमुलं शब्दं द्यौरिवाभ्रसमागमे ॥ ४० ॥

Run over by many animals and vehicles and consequently struck against by hoofs and felloes, that land of Citrakūṭa produced a tumultuous noise as heavens do during the gathering of clouds.

(40)

तेन वित्रासिता नागाः करेणुपरिवारिताः ।
आवासयन्तो गन्धेन जग्मुरन्यद्वनं ततः ॥ ४१ ॥

Terrified by that noise, wild elephants accompanied by female elephants migrated to another forest from that place, perfuming the quarters with the scent of their ichor.

(41)

वराहवृकसिंहाश्च महिषाः सृमरास्तथा ।
व्याघ्रगोकर्णगवया वित्रेसुः पृषतैः सह ॥ ४२ ॥

Boars, wolves and lions, buffaloes, Sṛmaras and Gokarṇas, two distinctive species of deer, as well as tigers and Gavayas alongwith spotted deer felt stricken with terror.

(42)

स्थाह्वहंसान्त्यूहाः प्लवाः कारण्डवाः परे ।
तथा पुंस्कोकिलाः क्रौञ्चा विसंज्ञा भेजिरे दिशः ॥ ४३ ॥

Cakrawākas, swans and waterfowl, Plavas (a kind of heron), Kāraṇḍavas (a sort of duck) and other aquatic birds, male cuckoos and cranes flew utterly confused in various directions. (43)

तेन शब्देन वित्रस्तैराकाशं पक्षिभिवृतम्।
मनुष्यैरावृता भूमिरुभयं प्रबभौ तदा ॥ ४४ ॥

The sky was screened with birds terrified by that sound, while the land was covered with men; and both looked most charming on that occasion. (44)

ततस्तं पुरुषव्याघ्रं यशस्विनमकल्मषम्।
आसीनं स्थण्डिले रामं ददर्श सहसा जनः ॥ ४५ ॥

All of a sudden people now beheld the illustrious and sinless Śrī Rāma, that tiger among men, sitting on the altar. (45)

विगर्हमाणः कैकेयीं मन्थरासहितामपि।
अभिगम्य जनो रामं बाष्पपूर्णमुखोऽभवत् ॥ ४६ ॥

Approaching Śrī Rāma, the people, who had been reproaching Kaikeyī, including Mantharā too, found their own face bathed in tears. (46)

तान् नरान् बाष्पपूर्णाक्षान् समीक्ष्याथ सुदुःखितान्।
पर्यष्वजत धर्मज्ञः पितृवन्मातृवच्च सः ॥ ४७ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे

त्र्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०३ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and three in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

Perceiving those men sore distressed with their eyes full of tears, Śrī Rāma, who knew what is right, presently embraced them like their father and mother. (47)

स तत्र कांश्चित् परिष्वजे नरान्
नराश्च केचित्तु तमभ्यवादयन्।

चकार सर्वान् सवयस्यबान्धवान्
यथार्हमासाद्य तदा नृपात्मजः ॥ ४८ ॥

Nay, he embraced some men who deserved it, while others on that spot hailed him. Approaching them on that occasion, the princes received them all including his friends and relations according to the rank of each. (48)

ततः स तेषां रुदतां महात्मनां
भुवं च खं चानुविनादयन् स्वनः।
गुहा गिरीणां च दिशश्च संततं
मृदङ्गघोषप्रतिमो विशुश्रुवे ॥ ४९ ॥

Making the earth and the heavens as well as the mountain caves and the quarters incessantly resound, the aforesaid cry of those wailing high-souled men was continuously heard far and wide like the sound of a clay tomtom. (49)

चतुरधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CIV

Accompanied by Kausalyā and others, Sage Vasiṣṭha proceeds to the hermitage of Śrī Rāma. Showing to her co-wives the lumps of the pulp of the ĩngudī fruit offered to the spirit of his deceased father by Śrī Rāma on blades of Kuśa grass placed with their ends pointing to the south along the bank of the Mandākinī on the way, Kausalyā grieves for her deceased husband. Reaching the hermitage, Kausalyā and others see the two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, fall at their feet. Kausalyā bewails the lot of Sītā when the latter falls at her feet. Bowing down at the feet of his preceptor, Śrī Rāma takes his seat. Accompanied by the counsellors, Bharata too sits nearby

वसिष्ठः पुरतः कृत्वा दारान् दशरथस्य च ।
अभिचक्राम तं देशं रामदर्शनतर्षितः ॥ १ ॥

Placing the widows of King Daśaratha in the forefront, Vasiṣṭha, who was feeling athirst for the sight of Śrī Rāma, proceeded to that region where Śrī Rāma was sojourning. (1)

राजपत्न्यश्च गच्छन्त्यो मन्दं मन्दाकिनीं प्रति ।
ददृशुस्तत्र तत् तीर्थं रामलक्ष्मणसेवितम् ॥ २ ॥

Making their way with slow paces towards the river Mandākinī the dowager queens saw there a descent (suitable for bathing etc.) to the river resorted to by Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa. (2)

कौसल्या बाष्पपूर्णेन मुखेन परिशुष्यता ।
सुमित्रामब्रवीद् दीनां याश्चान्या राजयोषितः ॥ ३ ॥

With a withering face bathed in tears, Kausalyā spoke as follows to the afflicted Sumitrā and the other queens that were present there : (3)

इदं तेषामनाथानां क्लिष्टमक्लिष्टकर्मणाम् ।
वने प्राक्कलनं तीर्थं ये ते निर्विषयीकृताः ॥ ४ ॥

“Here is the descent selected for the first time by those fatherless children, who have been expelled from their kingdom and who are now living a hard life in the forest, though unwearied in action. (4)

इतः सुमित्रे पुत्रस्ते सदा जलमतन्द्रितः ।
स्वयं हरति सौमित्रिर्मम पुत्रस्य कारणात् ॥ ५ ॥

“Along this route, O Sumitrā, does your elder son, Lakṣmaṇa, ever unweariedly fetch water himself for the sake of my son (his elder brother). (5)

जघन्यमपि ते पुत्रः कृतवान् न तु गर्हितः ।
भ्रातुर्यदर्थरहितं सर्वं तद् गर्हितं गुणैः ॥ ६ ॥

“Your son has not been subjected to any reproach, even though he has done menial service to his elder brother. All that which is devoid of use to one’s elder brother, who is held to be on a par with one’s father, is censured by men possessed of noble qualities. (6)

अद्यायमपि ते पुत्रः क्लेशानामतथोचितः ।
नीचानर्थसमाचारं सज्जं कर्म प्रमुञ्चतु ॥ ७ ॥

“Let this son of yours, too, who is undeserving of the hardships, which are being experienced by him, totally give up the work in hand whose execution is painful and fit for menials, now that his elder brother is soon returning to Ayodhyā.” (7)

दक्षिणाग्रेषु दर्भेषु सा दर्दश महीतले ।
पितुरिङ्गुदिपिण्याकं न्यस्तमायतलोचना ॥ ८ ॥

The large-eyed Kausalyā presently saw the crushed pulp of Īṅgudī fruits placed by Śrī Rāma on blades of Kuśa grass spread on the earth's surface with their ends pointing to the south as an offering intended for the gratification of his deceased father. (8)

तं भूमौ पितुरार्तेन न्यस्तं रामेण वीक्ष्य सा ।
उवाच देवी कौसल्या सर्वा दशरथस्त्रियः ॥ ९ ॥

Observing the said pulp placed on the ground by the afflicted Śrī Rāma for the gratification of his deceased father, the aforesaid Queen Kausalyā spoke as follows to all the other consorts of King Daśaratha : (9)

इदमिक्ष्वाकुनाथस्य राघवस्य महात्मनः ।
राघवेण पितुर्दत्तं पश्यतैतद् यथाविधि ॥ १० ॥

“Behold here this offering made in accordance with the scriptural ordinance by Rāma, a scion of Raghu, for the gratification of his high-souled father, the late King Daśaratha, also a scion of Raghu, the lord of the Ikṣvākus. (10)

तस्य देवसमानस्य पार्थिवस्य महात्मनः ।
नैतदौपधिकं मन्ये भुक्तभोगस्य भोजनम् ॥ ११ ॥

“I do not consider this food (viz., the pulp of the Īṅgudī-fruit) to be fit for the consumption of that high-souled monarch, who vied with gods and had enjoyed all the luxuries of life. (11)

चतुरन्तां महीं भुक्त्वा महेन्द्रसदृशो भुवि ।
कथमिङ्गुदिपिण्याकं स भुङ्क्ते वसुधाधिपः ॥ १२ ॥

“Having ruled over the globe bounded by the four oceans, how will the emperor, who was a compeer on earth of the great Indra, be able to partake of the crushed pulp of Īṅgudī fruits? (12)

अतो दुःखतरं लोके न किञ्चित् प्रतिभाति मे ।
यत्र रामः पितुर्दद्यादिङ्गुदीक्षोदमृद्धिमान् ॥ १३ ॥

“Nothing in the world appears more painful to me than the occasion when Rāma, who is full of riches of every description, should feel constrained to offer the crushed pulp of Īṅgudī fruits to the spirit of his deceased father. (13)

रामेणेङ्गुदिपिण्याकं पितुर्दत्तं समीक्ष्य मे ।
कथं दुःखेन हृदयं न स्फोटति सहस्रधा ॥ १४ ॥

“Why does my heart not get split into a thousand fragments through agony perceiving the crushed pulp of Īṅgudī fruits offered by Rāma to the spirit of his deceased father?” (14)

श्रुतिस्तु खल्वियं सत्या लौकिकी प्रतिभाति मे ।
यदन्नः पुरुषो भवति तदन्नास्तस्य देवताः ॥ १५ ॥

“The popular saying that the deities of a man partake of the same food on which a man subsists, appears undoubtedly true to us.” (15)

एवमार्ता सपत्यस्ता जग्मुराश्वास्य तां तदा ।
ददृशुश्चाश्रमे रामं स्वर्गच्युतमिवामरम् ॥ १६ ॥

Comforting the afflicted Kausalyā in the foregoing words on that occasion, her aforesaid co-wives departed with Kausalyā and beheld Śrī Rāma seated in his hermitage like an immortal fallen from heaven. (16)

तं भोगैः सम्परित्यक्तं रामं सम्प्रेक्ष्य मातरः ।
आर्ता मुमुचुरश्रूणि सस्वरं शोककर्षिताः ॥ १७ ॥

Distressed to observe the celebrated Śrī Rāma shorn of all luxuries, his mothers wept loudly, emaciated as they were through grief. (17)

तासां रामः समुत्थाय जग्राह चरणाम्बुजान् ।
मातृणां मनुजव्याघ्रः सर्वासां सत्यसंगरः ॥ १८ ॥

Duly rising from his seat, Śrī Rāma, a veritable tiger among men, who was true to his promise, clasped the lotus-like feet of all his aforesaid mothers. (18)

ताः पाणिभिः सुखस्पर्शैर्मृद्वङ्गलितलैः शुभैः ।
प्रममार्जू रजः पृष्ठाद् रामस्यायतलोचनाः ॥ १९ ॥

With their lovely hands, which were delightful to the touch and the base of whose fingers was exceptionally soft, those large-eyed ladies wiped the dust off Śrī Rāma's back. (19)

सौमित्रिरपि ताः सर्वा मातृः सम्प्रेक्ष्य दुःखिताः ।
अभ्यवादयदासक्तं शनै रामादनन्तरम् ॥ २० ॥

Distressed to perceive all the aforesaid mothers, Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) too fondly greeted them immediately after Śrī Rāma. (20)

यथा रामे तथा तस्मिन् सर्वा ववृतिरे स्त्रियः ।
वृत्तिं दशरथाज्जाते लक्ष्मणे शुभलक्षणे ॥ २१ ॥

All the ladies behaved towards the celebrated Lakṣmaṇa, sprung from the loins of Daśaratha, who was endowed with auspicious bodily marks, in the same way as they did towards Śrī Rāma. (21)

सीतापि चरणांस्तासामुपसंगृह्य दुःखिता ।
श्वश्रूणामश्रुपूर्णाक्षी सम्बभूवाग्रतः स्थिता ॥ २२ ॥

Holding firmly the feet of the said mothers-in-law, Sitā too stood agonized before them with her eyes full of tears. (22)

तां परिष्वज्य दुःखार्ता माता दुहितरं यथा ।
वनवासकृतां दीनां कौसल्या वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ २३ ॥

Embracing her, as a mother would embrace her own daughter, the sorrow-stricken Kausalyā spoke as follows to Sitā, who looked withered through exile in the forest : (23)

वैदेहराजन्यसुता स्नुषा दशरथस्य च ।
रामपत्नी कथं दुःखं सम्प्राप्ता विजने वने ॥ २४ ॥

"I wonder how the consort of Rāma, daughter of Janaka (a royal personage of the Videha clan) and daughter-in-law of Emperor Daśaratha, has undergone suffering in a lonely forest. (24)

पद्ममातपसंतप्तं परिक्लिष्टमिवोत्पलम् ।
काञ्चनं रजसा ध्वस्तं क्लिष्टं चन्द्रमिवाम्बुदैः ॥ २५ ॥
मुखं ते प्रेक्ष्य मां शोको दहत्यग्निरिवाश्रयम् ।
भृशं मनसि वैदेहि व्यसनारणिसम्भवः ॥ २६ ॥

"The fire of grief produced by the firewood of adversity and existing in my mind, O princess of the Videha kingdom, burns me to the core even as the element of fire consumes the very substance that sustains it, when I gaze on your countenance resembling a lotus scorched by the sun, a crushed lily, gold soiled with dust and the moon obscured by clouds." (25-26)

ब्रुवन्त्यामेवमार्तायां जनन्यां भरताग्रजः ।
पादावासाद्य जग्राह वसिष्ठस्य च राघवः ॥ २७ ॥

Reaching the feet of Vasiṣṭha, while his distressed mother was speaking as aforesaid, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, the elder brother of Bharata, clasped them. (27)

पुरोहितस्याग्निसमस्य तस्य वै
बृहस्पतेरिन्द्र इवामराधिपः ।
प्रगृह्य पादौ सुसमृद्धतेजसः
सहैव तेनोपविवेश राघवः ॥ २८ ॥

Holding the feet of the said priest—who was possessed of very great splendour and resembled the fire-god—even as Indra, the ruler of gods, would clasp the feet of Bṛhaspati, the preceptor of gods, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) took his seat with Vasiṣṭha himself. (28)

ततो जघन्यं सहितैः स्वमन्त्रिभिः
पुरप्रधानैश्च तथैव सैनिकैः ।
जनेन धर्मज्ञतमेन धर्मवा-
नुपोपविष्टो भरतस्तदाग्रजम् ॥ २९ ॥

Thereupon alongwith his friends, counsellors and the foremost of citizens as well as with the troops and men who knew best what is right, the celebrated Bharata, who was full of piety, sat down on that occasion close to his elder brother, Śrī Rāma, at his back. (29)

उपोपविष्टस्तु तदातिवीर्यवां- स्तपस्विवेषेण समीक्ष्य राघवम् ।
श्रिया ज्वलन्तं भरतः कृताञ्जलि-
र्यथा महेन्द्रः प्रयतः प्रजापतिम् ॥ ३० ॥

Perceiving Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, blazing with glory in the garb of an ascetic, Bharata, for his part, who was seated closeby at that time and was exceedingly powerful, folded his hands in the same way as the mighty Indra submissively would before Brahmā, the lord of created beings. (30)

किमेष वाक्यं भरतोऽद्य राघवं
प्रणम्य सत्कृत्य च साधु वक्ष्यति ।
इतीव तस्यार्यजनस्य तत्त्वतो
बभूव कौतूहलमुत्तमं तदा ॥ ३१ ॥

A great curiosity really arose at that moment in the mind of those worthies assembled there as to what submission yonder Bharata would now politely make

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे चतुरधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०४ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and four in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CV

Bharata implores Śrī Rāma to oblige him by accepting the throne of Ayodhya being offered by him to Śrī Rāma with the concurrence of Kaikeyī, even though bestowed on him by their deceased father. Consoling Bharata, who held himself responsible for Śrī Rāma's exile to the forest and was languishing with sorrow on that score, Śrī Rāma, however, tries to pacify him in various ways and urges him to shoulder the burden of rulership

ततः पुरुषसिंहानां वृत्तानां तैः सुहृद्गणैः ।
शोचतामेव रजनी दुःखेन व्यत्यवर्तत ॥ १ ॥

The night subsequently passed away in sorrow in the case of the said tigers among men, accompanied by those near and dear ones, while the former were grieving.

(1)

रजन्यां सुप्रभातायां भ्रातरस्ते सुहृद्वृत्ताः ।
मन्दाकिन्यां हुतं जप्यं कृत्वा राममुपागमन् ॥ २ ॥ after bowing low and paying his homage to Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, that day. (31)

स राघवः सत्यधृतिश्च लक्ष्मणो
महानुभावो भरतश्च धार्मिकः ।
वृत्ताः सुहृद्भिश्च विरेजिरेऽध्वरे
यथा सदस्यैः सहितास्त्रयोऽग्रयः ॥ ३२ ॥

Nay, surrounded by their near and dear ones, the celebrated Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, who was firmly devoted to truthfulness, and the noble-minded Lakṣmaṇa and the pious Bharata shone brightly on the sacrificial ground like the three sacrificial fires (known by the names of Gārhapatya, Āhavanīya and Dakṣiṇā) accompanied by the superintending priests. (32)

Having offered oblations into the sacred fire and muttered their prayers on the bank of the Mandākinī, when the night had been vividly relieved by dawn, the aforesaid brothers, accompanied by their near and dear ones, sought the presence of Śrī Rāma. (2)

तूष्णीं ते समुपासीना न कश्चित् किञ्चिदब्रवीत् ।
भरतस्तु सुहृन्मध्ये रामं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ३ ॥

They all sat down mute, none spoke anything. Bharata for his part made the following submission to Śrī Rāma in the midst of his near and dear ones : (3)

सान्त्विता मामिका माता दत्तं राज्यमिदं मम ।
तद् ददामि तवैवाहं भुङ्क्ष्व राज्यमकण्टकम् ॥ ४ ॥

“My mother Kaikeyī has been consoled by you and this kingdom of Ayodhyā bestowed on me. I hereby return it to your own self. Please enjoy it without impediment. (4)

महतेवाम्बुवेगेन भिन्नः सेतुर्जलागमे ।
दुरावरं त्वदन्येन राज्यखण्डमिदं महत् ॥ ५ ॥

“Just as a dam breached by a mighty onrush of water during the rains cannot be easily repaired, this large state of Ayodhyā cannot be easily held in one’s sway by anyone other than you. (5)

गतिं खर इवाश्वस्य तार्क्ष्यस्येव पतत्रिणः ।
अनुगन्तुं न शक्तिर्मे गतिं तव महीपते ॥ ६ ॥

“The power to emulate your ruling capacity does not lie in me, O ruler of the globe, any more than the power to emulate the gait of a horse in a donkey and the flight of Garuḍa, the carrier of Lord Viṣṇu, in a common bird. (6)

सुजीवं नित्यशस्तस्य यः परैरुपजीव्यते ।
राम तेन तु दुर्जीवं यः परानुपजीवति ॥ ७ ॥

“Know his life to be blessed from day to day, who is depended upon by others. Life is, however, dragged on with hardship by him who depends for his life upon others, O Rāma ! (7)

यथा तु रोपितो वृक्षः पुरुषेण विवर्धितः ।
ह्रस्वकेन दुरारोहो रूढस्कन्धो महाद्रुमः ॥ ८ ॥

“For example a tree planted and nurtured by a man develops in course of time into a mighty tree with a stout trunk, hard to scale for a dwarf. (8)

स यदा पुष्पितो भूत्वा फलानि न विदर्शयेत् ।
स तां नानुभवेत् प्रीतिं यस्य हेतोः प्ररोपितः ॥ ९ ॥

“But when, though laden with flowers,

it does not bear fruit, the man does not experience the same delight which he expected from it due to his failure to reach the consummation for which it was planted with effort. (9)

एषोपमा महाबाहो तदर्थं वेत्तुमर्हसि ।
यत्र त्वमस्मान् वृषभो भर्ता भृत्यान् न शाधि हि ॥ १० ॥

“This is only an analogy, O mighty-armed brother: be pleased to make out its meaning, since you, our supreme master, do not care to instruct us, your servants, on this occasion when it becomes you to protect us. (10)

श्रेणयस्त्वां महाराज पश्यन्त्वग्र्याश्च सर्वशः ।
प्रतपन्तमिवादित्यं राज्यस्थितमरिंदमम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Let the guilds of traders (of every class) and their leaders behold you, the subduer of enemies, seated on the throne like the sun blazing on all sides, O great king ! (11)

तथानुयाने काकुत्स्थ मत्ता नर्दन्तु कुञ्जराः ।
अन्तःपुरगता नार्यो नन्दन्तु सुसमाहिताः ॥ १२ ॥

“Likewise, let the elephants in rut trumpet in the course of your return journey to Ayodhyā and let the ladies living in the royal gynaeceum, fully collected in mind, rejoice to see you returned.” (12)

तस्य साध्वनुमन्यन्त नागरा विविधा जनाः ।
भरतस्य वचः श्रुत्वा रामं प्रत्यनुयाचतः ॥ १३ ॥

Hearing the submission of the celebrated Bharata, supplicating as aforesaid Śrī Rāma, the citizens of every class, assembled at Citrakūṭa, acclaimed it in the words “Well said !” (13)

तमेवं दुःखितं प्रेक्ष्य विलपन्तं यशस्विनम् ।
रामः कृतात्मा भरतं समाश्वासयदात्मवान् ॥ १४ ॥

Perceiving the said illustrious Bharata wailing as above, afflicted as he was, Śrī Rāma, who was self possessed and self-disciplined comforted him in the following words : (14)

नात्मनः कामकारो हि पुरुषोऽयमनीश्वरः ।

इतश्चेतरतश्चैनं कृतान्तः परिकर्षति ॥ १५ ॥

“Freedom of action does not belong to the embodied soul, since this soul is powerless (unlike God). Providence alone forcibly drags the soul hither and thither.

(15)

सर्वे क्षयान्ता निचयाः पतनान्ताः समुच्छ्रयाः ।

संयोगा विप्रयोगान्ता मरणान्तं च जीवितम् ॥ १६ ॥

“All accumulations end in attenuation; all elevations end in degradation; all unions end in separation; all life has its end in death.

(16)

यथा फलानां पक्वानां नान्यत्र पतनाद् भयम् ।

एवं नरस्य जातस्य नान्यत्र मरणाद् भयम् ॥ १७ ॥

“As no fear from any quarter other than a fall awaits ripe fruits, so no fear from any quarter other than death awaits a man come into the world.

(17)

यथाऽऽगारं दृढस्थूणं जीर्णं भूत्वोपसीदति ।

तथावसीदन्ति नरा जरामृत्युवशंगताः ॥ १८ ॥

“Even as a house though supported by stout pillars collapses on getting old, so men fallen into the clutches of old age and death breathe their last.

(18)

अत्येति रजनी या तु सा न प्रतिनिवर्तते ।

यात्येव यमुना पूर्णं समुद्रमुदकार्णवम् ॥ १९ ॥

“The night that passes away does not return in any case; the Yamunā (river) meets without fail the all-sufficient ocean, abounding in water.

(19)

अहोरात्राणि गच्छन्ति सर्वेषां प्राणिनामिह ।

आयूंषि क्षपयन्त्याशु ग्रीष्मे जलमिवांशवः ॥ २० ॥

“Passing days and nights quickly end the life-span of all living beings in this world, even as sunbeams suck up water in summer.

(20)

आत्मानमनुशोच त्वं किमन्यमनुशोचसि ।

आयुस्तु हीयते यस्य स्थितस्यास्य गतस्य च ॥ २१ ॥

“Grieve for yourself alone, why do you grieve for another? In fact, the life-span of each and every creature, whether staying at home or departed for another place, gets shortened every moment.

(21)

सहैव मृत्युर्व्रजति सह मृत्युर्निषीदति ।

गत्वा सुदीर्घमध्वानं सह मृत्युर्निवर्तते ॥ २२ ॥

“Death ever walks with us when we are walking and remains seated with us while we are sitting. Nay, having travelled a very long distance with us death returns with us on our return.

(22)

गात्रेषु वलयः प्राप्ताः श्वेताश्चैव शिरोरुहाः ।

जरया पुरुषो जीर्णः किं हि कृत्वा प्रभावयेत् ॥ २३ ॥

“When folds have appeared on the skin of the limbs and the hair have turned grey, by what expedient will a man, worn out with age, be able to control them? (23)

नन्दन्त्युदित आदित्ये नन्दन्त्यस्तमितेऽहनि ।

आत्मनो नावबुध्यन्ते मनुष्या जीवितक्षयम् ॥ २४ ॥

“Men rejoice when the sun has risen and also rejoice when the day has ended, but do not perceive the ebbing of their life.

(24)

हृष्यन्त्यृतुमुखं दृष्ट्वा नवं नवमिवागतम् ।

ऋतूनां परिवर्तेन प्राणिनां प्राणसंक्षयः ॥ २५ ॥

“People rejoice to see the approach of a season (say, the vernal season or the monsoon) as though it had appeared for the first time. But they forget that with a change of season comes about the gradual waning of life of living beings.

(25)

यथा काष्ठं च काष्ठं च समेयातां महार्णवे ।

समेत्य तु व्यपेयातां कालमासाद्य कंचन ॥ २६ ॥

एवं भार्याश्च पुत्राश्च ज्ञातयश्च वसूनि च ।

समेत्य व्यवधावन्ति ध्रुवो ह्येषां विनाभवः ॥ २७ ॥

“Even as two pieces of drift-wood come together on the surface of an ocean at a particular moment of time and, having come together in this way, drift apart on reaching a particular moment, so wives and sons as well as relations and riches part company after coming together; for inevitable is their separation. (26-27)

नात्र कश्चिद् यथाभावं प्राणी समतिवर्तते ।
तेन तस्मिन् न सामर्थ्यं प्रेतस्यास्यनुशोचतः ॥ २८ ॥

“No living being in this world can escape its destiny in the shape of birth and death when the time comes for it. Hence the power to avert his own death does not inhere in a man, even though mourning again and again for a dead person. (28)

यथा हि सार्थं गच्छन्तं ब्रूयात् कश्चित् पथि स्थितः ।
अहमप्यागमिष्यामि पृष्ठतो भवतामिति ॥ २९ ॥
एवं पूर्वैर्गतो मार्गः पितृपैतामहैर्धुवः ।
तमापन्नः कथं शोचेद् यस्य नास्ति व्यतिक्रमः ॥ ३० ॥

“How can he who has got on the inevitable path trodden by his forbears, viz., his father, grandfather and so on, and from which there is no escape—even as one standing on the roadside would cry to a group of travellers passing by, ‘I shall also follow at your heels (and would forthwith follow them), mourn for his parents and other departed relations? (29-30)

वयसः पतमानस्य स्रोतसो वानिवर्तिनः ।
आत्मा सुखे नियोक्तव्यः सुखभाजः प्रजाः स्मृताः ॥ ३१ ॥

“Foreseeing the inevitable end of one’s ebbing life, which does not return any more than a stream, one’s own self should be employed in a pursuit leading to blessedness; for living beings are declared as pursuing happiness. (31)

धर्मात्मा सुशुभैः कृत्स्नैः क्रतुभिश्चासदक्षिणैः ।
धूतपापो गतः स्वर्गं पिता नः पृथिवीपतिः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Our father, the king, the lord of the earth, was a virtuous person. He performed almost all extremely auspicious sacrifices and paid plentiful sacrificial fees to the officiating priests and Brahmins. All his sins were washed away and so he went to the heaven. (32)

भृत्यानां भरणात् सम्यक् प्रजानां परिपालनात् ।
अर्थादानाच्च धर्मेण पिता नस्त्रिदिवं गतः ॥ ३३ ॥

“On account of properly maintaining the servants, protecting and guarding the subjects and realising taxes in the manner prescribed by scriptures from them, our father has gone to the heaven. (33)

कर्मभिस्तु शुभैरिष्टैः क्रतुभिश्चासदक्षिणैः ।
स्वर्गं दशरथः प्राप्तः पिता नः पृथिवीपतिः ॥ ३४ ॥

“Our father, Daśaratha, the lord of the earth, has reached heaven on account of his performing all auspicious acts desirable, and performing many sacrifices involving heavy sacrificial fees. (34)

इष्ट्वा बहुविधैर्यज्ञैर्भोगांश्चावाप्य पुष्कलान् ।
उत्तमं चायुरासाद्य स्वर्गतः पृथिवीपतिः ॥ ३५ ॥

“Having propitiated the Yajñapuruṣa by performing different types of sacrifices, enjoying worldly pleasures in plenty and having lived a long and virtuous life, the lord of the earth has gone to the heaven. (35)

आयुरुत्तममासाद्य भोगानपि च राघवः ।
न स शोच्यः पिता तात स्वर्गतः सत्कृतः सताम् ॥ ३६ ॥

“Having obtained a long life and worldly luxuries, the father, from the Raghu dynasty, has gone to the heaven coveted and honoured by the virtuous people, O dear ! He is not at all to be lamented upon. (36)

स जीर्णमानुषं देहं परित्यज्य पिता हि नः ।
दैवीमृद्धिमनुप्राप्तो ब्रह्मलोकविहारिणीम् ॥ ३७ ॥

“Having shed his worn-out human frame, our father has surely attained celestial wealth in the form of an ethereal body etc., which enables him to sport even in the realm of Brahmā (the highest heaven). (37)

तं तु नैवंविधः कश्चित् प्राज्ञः शोचितुमर्हसि ।
त्वद्विधो मद्विधश्चापि श्रुतवान् बुद्धिमत्तरः ॥ ३८ ॥

“No highly wise, learned and exceptionally clever man, such as you and I are, ought to grieve for the emperor. (38)

एते बहुविधाः शोका विलापरुदिते तदा ।
वर्जनीया हि धीरेण सर्वावस्थासु धीमता ॥ ३९ ॥

“These manifold griefs as well as wailing and weeping should in that case undoubtedly be given up under all circumstances by a resolute man possessed of wisdom. (39)

स स्वस्थो भव मा शोको यात्वा चावस तां पुरीम् ।

तथा पित्रा नियुक्तोऽसि वशिना वदतां वर ॥ ४० ॥

“As such, be at ease; let not grief overpower you. And, returning home, dwell in that city of Ayodhyā. So have you been enjoined by father, a master of his will, O jewel among the eloquent ! (40)

यत्राहमपि तेनैव नियुक्तः पुण्यकर्मणा ।

तत्रैवाहं करिष्यामि पितुरार्यस्य शासनम् ॥ ४१ ॥

“I too shall do the bidding of our noble father continuing in that very place where I have been enjoined to stay by that emperor of virtuous deeds. (41)

न मया शासनं तस्य त्यक्तुं न्याय्यमरिदम् ।

स त्वयापि सदा मान्यः स वै बन्धुः स नः पिता ॥ ४२ ॥

“It is not justifiable on my part to flout his command, O subduer of foes ! He ever deserved to be honoured even by you, since he was our friend, he was our (very) father. (42)

तद् वचः पितुरेवाहं सम्मतं धर्मचारिणाम् ।

कर्मणा पालयिष्यामि वनवासेन राघव ॥ ४३ ॥

“Through my action in the shape of sojourning in the forest, O scion of Raghu, I shall obey that very command of my father, which is thought highly of by those practising virtue. (43)

धार्मिकेणानृशंसेन नरेण गुरुवर्तिना ।

भवितव्यं नरव्याघ्र परलोकं जिगीषता ॥ ४४ ॥

“A pious man seeking to conquer the other world, O tiger among men, ought to be kind-hearted and obedient to his elders, father and others. (44)

आत्मानमनुतिष्ठ त्वं स्वभावेन नरर्षभ ।

निशाम्य तु शुभं वृत्तं पितुर्दशरथस्य नः ॥ ४५ ॥

“Keeping in view the virtuous conduct of our father, King Daśaratha, O jewel among men, direct your thoughts only towards the welfare in the other world of your spirit in consonance with your pious nature.” (45)

इत्येवमुक्त्वा वचनं महात्मा

पितुर्निदेशप्रतिपालनार्थम् ।

यवीयसं

भ्रातरमर्थवच्च

प्रभुर्मुहूर्ताद् विरराम रामः ॥ ४६ ॥

Having tendered to his younger brother, Bharata, in about an hour, the aforesaid significant advice, urging him to carry out the behests of their father, the high-souled and almighty Śrī Rāma became silent. (46)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे

पञ्चाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०५ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and five in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षडधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CVI

Imploring Śrī Rāma with cogent reasons to accept the throne of Ayodhyā, Bharata takes a vow not to return to Ayodhyā but to continue in the forest in case Śrī Rāma does not grant his prayer. Mother Kausalyā and others too join Bharata and urge Śrī Rāma to grant his request when they find Śrī Rāma adamant in the matter and insistent on implementing the words of their deceased father

एवमुक्त्वा तु विरते रामे वचनमर्थवत् ।
ततो मन्दाकिनीतीरे रामं प्रकृतिवत्सलम् ॥ १ ॥
उवाच भरतश्चित्रं धार्मिको धार्मिकं वचः ।
को हि स्यादीदृशो लोके यादृशस्त्वमरिंदम ॥ २ ॥

When Śrī Rāma became silent after making a significant speech as aforesaid, the pious Bharata for his part now addressed to Śrī Rāma, who was so fond of his people, the following agreeable and righteous submission on the bank of the Mandākinī : “Indeed, who can there be in this world such as you are, O tamer of foes? (1-2)

न त्वां प्रव्यथयेद् दुःखं प्रीतिर्वा न प्रहर्षयेत् ।
सम्मतश्चापि वृद्धानां तांश्च पृच्छसि संशयान् ॥ ३ ॥

“Neither can sorrow torment you nor can joy exhilarate you. Though highly thought of by the elders, you nevertheless refer your doubts to them. (3)

यथा मृतस्तथा जीवन् यथासति तथा सति ।
यस्यैष बुद्धिलाभः स्यात् परितप्येत केन सः ॥ ४ ॥

“Wherefore should he grieve, he who has developed an attitude of mind by virtue of which, though living, he is as good as dead to the world and which makes him as indifferent to the existent as to the non-existent? (4)

परावरज्जो यश्च स्याद् यथा त्वं मनुजाधिप ।
स एव व्यसनं प्राप्य न विषीदितुमर्हति ॥ ५ ॥

“He who knows the Self as well as the non-Self as you do, O ruler of men, ought not to feel dejected even on meeting with adversity. (5)

अमरोपमसत्त्वस्त्वं महात्मा सत्यसंगरः ।
सर्वज्ञः सर्वदर्शी च बुद्धिमांश्चासि राघव ॥ ६ ॥

“Possessed of valour comparing with that of gods, and endowed with great fortitude, you are true to your promise, all-knowing, all-seeing and wise too, O scion of Raghu ! (6)

न त्वामेवंगुणैर्युक्तं प्रभवाभवकोविदम् ।
अविषह्यतमं दुःखमासादयितुमर्हति ॥ ७ ॥

“Even affliction, which is most unbearable for us, ought not to assail you, endowed as you are with such virtues and conversant with the origin and end of living beings. (7)

प्रोषिते मयि यत् पापं मात्रा मत्कारणात् कृतम् ।
क्षुद्रया तदनिष्टं मे प्रसीदतु भवान् मम ॥ ८ ॥

“The sinful deed in the shape of bringing about your exile which was perpetrated by my mean mother for my sake when I was away, was not to my liking. Therefore, be gracious to me. (8)

धर्मबन्धेन बद्धोऽस्मि तेनेमां नेह मातरम् ।
हन्मि तीव्रेण दण्डेन दण्डार्हा पापकारिणीम् ॥ ९ ॥

“I am bound by fetters of morality which forbid a warrior to lay his finger upon a woman; hence I do not kill on the spot with a severe punishment my mother of sinful deeds, who is deserving of punishment. (9)

कथं दशरथाज्जातः शुभाभिजनकर्मणः ।

जानन् धर्ममधर्मं च कुर्या कर्म जुगुप्सितम् ॥ १० ॥

How can I, sprung as I am from the loins of Daśaratha of noble birth and deeds, and knowing as I do right and wrong, perpetrate an odious act like killing my own mother? (10)

गुरुः क्रियावान् वृद्धश्च राजा प्रेतः पितेति च ।

तातं न परिगृह्णहं दैवतं चेति संसदि ॥ ११ ॥

“I do not wish to denounce my father in an open assembly because he had a number of sacrificial performances to his credit, was aged and worthy of respect, has joined the majority and was my father and a deity to me. (11)

को हि धर्मार्थयोर्हीनमीदृशं कर्म किल्बिषम् ।

स्त्रियः प्रियचिकीर्षुः सन् कुर्याद् धर्मज्ञ धर्मवित् ॥ १२ ॥

“Indeed, what man, who knows the principles of morality, would perpetrate such a sinful act, unproductive of religious merit and worldly prosperity, with intent to please a woman, O knower of what is right? (12)

अन्तकाले हि भूतानि मुह्यन्तीति पुरा श्रुतिः ।

राज्ञैवं कुर्वता लोके प्रत्यक्षा सा श्रुतिः कृता ॥ १३ ॥

“There is an old adage saying that living beings invariably get infatuated at the hour of death. That saying has been illustrated to the world by the king while acting as he has done. (13)

साध्वर्थमभिसंधाय क्रोधान्मोहाच्च साहसात् ।

तातस्य यदतिक्रान्तं प्रत्याहर्तु तद् भवान् ॥ १४ ॥

“Keeping in mind a noble purpose, nullify the transgression that has been committed by father for fear of wrath of Kaikeyī or through infatuation and precipitance. (14)

पितुर्हि समतिक्रान्तं पुत्रो यः साधु मन्यते ।

तदपत्यं मतं लोके विपरीतमतोऽन्यथा ॥ १५ ॥

“A son who mends the arrant transgression of his father is accounted a son in the real acceptance of the term* in the world; he who acts otherwise than this is quite the reverse of a son. (15)

तदपत्यं भवानस्तु मा भवान् दुष्कृतं पितुः ।

अति यत् तत् कृतं कर्म लोके धीरविगर्हितम् ॥ १६ ॥

“Therefore be you a true son; do not countenance the sinful act of our father by implementing his word. The act which has been perpetrated by him is in contravention of all principles of morality and is, therefore, utterly condemned in the world by the wise. (16)

कैकेयीं मां च तातं च सुहृदो बान्धवांश्च नः ।

पौरजानपदान् सर्वास्त्रातुं सर्वमिदं भवान् ॥ १७ ॥

“Be pleased to grant all this prayer of mine in order to save Kaikeyī, myself, father, nay, our friends and relations as well as all the citizens and people of the country-side. (17)

क्व चारण्यं क्व च क्षात्रं क्व जटाः क्व च पालनम् ।

ईदृशं व्याहतं कर्म न भवान् कर्तुमर्हति ॥ १८ ॥

“What congruity is there between forest life, on the one hand, and the duty of a Kṣatriya, on the other, between wearing matted locks on one’s head and protection of the people? You ought not to perpetrate such an incongruous act as may stand in the way of your discharging the duty of a Kṣatriya, viz., protection of the people. (18)

एष हि प्रथमो धर्मः क्षत्रियस्याभिषेचनम् ।

येन शक्यं महाप्राज्ञ प्रजानां परिपालनम् ॥ १९ ॥

“Indeed, it is the foremost duty of a Kṣatriya to get himself consecrated as a king, through which act alone it is possible to protect the people, O highly enlightened brother ! (19)

कश्च प्रत्यक्षमुत्सृज्य संशयस्थमलक्षणम् ।

आयतिस्थं चरेद् धर्मं क्षत्रबन्धुरनिश्चितम् ॥ २० ॥

* The word ‘अपत्यम्’ (Offspring) has been etymologically explained as meaning one who prevents his father from falling down into the depth of hell (‘पितुःपतनात्’).

“Nay, neglecting a duty yielding visible joy, what Kṣatriya esteemed by his race would practise a virtue which is of doubtful result, which does not promise happiness, which brings its reward in a future state only and which is undefined? (20)

अथ क्लेशजमेव त्वं धर्मं चरितुमिच्छसि।
धर्मेण चतुरो वर्णान् पालयन् क्लेशमाप्नुहि ॥ २१ ॥

“If you desire to pursue a virtue following from hardship alone, undergo suffering while protecting the four divisions of society by recourse to righteousness. (21)

चतुर्णामाश्रमाणां हि गार्हस्थ्यं श्रेष्ठमुत्तमम्।
आहुर्धर्मज्ञ धर्मज्ञास्तं कथं त्यक्तुमिच्छसि ॥ २२ ॥

“The knowers of what is right definitely declare the life of a householder to be the noblest and best of all the four stages of life, inasmuch as it is depended upon by all others; how then do you seek to abandon it, O knower of the principles of righteousness? (22)

श्रुतेन बालः स्थानेन जन्मना भवतो ह्यहम्।
स कथं पालयिष्यामि भूमिं भवति तिष्ठति ॥ २३ ॥

“I am decidedly junior to you in point of learning, rank and date of birth. As such how shall I be able to rule over the earth when you are present? (23)

हीनबुद्धिगुणो बालो हीनस्थानेन चाप्यहम्।
भवता च विनाभूतो न वर्तयितुमुत्सहे ॥ २४ ॥

“A mere child as I am, of poor understanding and virtues, and also placed in an inferior position as compared to you, I cannot even live without you, much less rule over the people. (24)

इदं निखिलमप्यग्र्यं राज्यं पित्र्यमकण्टकम्।
अनुशाधि स्वधर्मेण धर्मज्ञ सह बान्धवैः ॥ २५ ॥

“O knower of what is right, rule with your kinsmen over the whole of this foremost ancestral kingdom, without opposition, according to the code of conduct prescribed for you. (25)

इहैव त्वाभिषिञ्चन्तु सर्वाः प्रकृतयः सह।
ऋत्विजः सवसिष्ठाश्च मन्त्रविन्मन्त्रकोविदाः ॥ २६ ॥

“Let all the ministers as well as the priests including Vasiṣṭha, well-versed in sacred formulas, conjointly consecrate you as the king of Ayodhyā on this very spot, O knower of sacred texts ! (26)

अभिषिक्तस्त्वमस्माभिरयोध्यां पालने ब्रज।
विजित्य तरसा लोकान् मरुद्भिरिव वासवः ॥ २७ ॥

“Consecrated by us, as Indra by Maruts (the wind-gods), and having conquered the worlds by dint of your might, march you back to Ayodhyā in order to rule over it. (27)

ऋणानि त्रीण्यपाकुर्वन् दुर्हदः साधु निर्दहन्।
सुहृदस्तर्पयन् कामैस्त्वमेवात्रानुशाधि माम् ॥ २८ ॥

“Discharging the three obligations you owe to gods, Ṛṣis and manes severally by offering oblations, studying the Vedas and procreating children, completely destroying the foes and gratifying your near and dear ones through their desired objects, you instruct me at Ayodhyā itself.” (28)

अद्यार्यं मुदिताः सन्तु सुहृदस्तेऽभिषेचने।
अद्य भीताः पलायन्तु दुष्प्रदास्ते दिशो दश ॥ २९ ॥

“Let those who are friendly to you feel rejoiced today on your consecration as the king of Ayodhyā, O noble brother ! Let those who are inclined to cause pain to you run frightened in every direction today. (29)

आक्रोशं मम मातुश्च प्रमृज्य पुरुषर्षभ।
अद्य तत्रभवन्तं च पितरं रक्ष किल्बिषात् ॥ ३० ॥

“Wiping off the obloquy attaching to me as well as to my mother, O jewel among men, save our esteemed father as well from remorse today. (30)

शिरसा त्वाभियाचेऽहं कुरुष्व करुणां मयि।
बान्धवेषु च सर्वेषु भूतेष्विव महेश्वरः ॥ ३१ ॥

“I implore you with my head bent low: pray, take pity on me as well as on all your kinsfolk even as Lord Śiva, the Supreme Deity, does on all created beings. (31)

अथवा पृष्ठतः कृत्वा वनमेव भवानितः ।

गमिष्यति गमिष्यामि भवता सार्धमप्यहम् ॥ ३२ ॥

“Else, if setting aside my request, you proceed from this place to a forest alone, I too shall depart with you.” (32)

तथाभिरामो भरतेन ताम्यता

प्रसाद्यमानः शिरसा महीपतिः ।

न चैव चक्रे गमनाय सत्त्ववान्

मतिं पितुस्तद् वचने प्रतिष्ठितः ॥ ३३ ॥

Even while being propitiated as above with bowed head by Bharata, who was sinking in spirit, the graceful Śrī Rāma, the ruler of the globe, who had a strong will and clung fast to the word of his father giving consent to his exile, did not feel inclined to proceed to Ayodhyā. (33)

तदद्भुतं स्थैर्यमवेक्ष्य राघवे

समं जनो हर्षमवाप दुःखितः ।

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे षडधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०६ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and six in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्ताधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CVII

Śrī Rāma tries to impress upon Bharata, who believed that Daśaratha was prompted by lustful attachment to his mother in making over the kingdom to him, that Daśaratha was compelled to do so because, in the first place, he had promised to Kaikeyī's father while marrying her that the latter's son alone would succeed to the throne after Daśaratha's death, and secondly he was keen to repay the debt he owed to her for having come to his rescue in his encounter with the demons, and accordingly urges Bharata to assume the rulership of Ayodhyā

पुनरेवं ब्रुवाणं तं भरतं लक्ष्मणाग्रजः ।

प्रत्युवाच ततः श्रीमान् ज्ञातिमध्ये सुसत्कृतः ॥ १ ॥

न यात्ययोध्यामिति दुःखितोऽभवत्

स्थिरप्रतिज्ञत्वमवेक्ष्य हर्षितः ॥ ३४ ॥

Perceiving such wonderful firmness in Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, the people of Ayodhyā experienced joy and felt disconsolate at the same time. They were distressed to find that he was not going to Ayodhyā and felt rejoiced to note his firmness of resolve. (34)

तमृत्विजो नैगमयूथवल्लभा-

स्तथा विसंज्ञाश्रुकलाश्च मातरः ।

तथा ब्रुवाणं भरतं प्रतुष्टुवुः

प्रणम्य रामं च ययाचिरे सह ॥ ३५ ॥

The priests, the citizens and the leaders of different bodies of men as well as the mothers of Śrī Rāma and others, who had all been rendered senseless, as it were, and had tear-drops in their eyes, complimented Bharata, who was speaking in that strain, and bowing down low to Śrī Rāma, joined Bharata in his supplication to Śrī Rāma. (35)

Thereupon the glorious Śrī Rāma, eldest brother of Lakṣmaṇa, highly respected among his clansmen, replied to the said

Bharata, who was speaking again in that strain : (1)

उपपन्नमिदं वाक्यं यस्त्वमेवमभाषथाः ।
जातः पुत्रो दशरथात् कैकेय्यां राजसत्तमात् ॥ २ ॥

“The assertion that you—a son born of Daśaratha, the foremost of kings, through Kaikeyī—have made just now, as above, is reasonable. (2)

पुरा भ्रातः पिता नः स मातरं ते समुद्रहन् ।
मातामहे समाश्रौषीद् राज्यशुल्कमनुत्तमम् ॥ ३ ॥

“In the past, while marrying Kaikeyī your mother, O brother, our celebrated father promised to your maternal grandfather the kingdom of Ayodhyā in favour of her issue as the best price for the marriage. (3)

देवासुरे च संग्रामे जनयै तव पार्थिवः ।
सम्प्रहृष्टो ददौ राजा वरमाराधितः प्रभुः ॥ ४ ॥

“Nay, propitiated by standing him in goodstead in a conflict between the gods and the demons, and immensely delighted, the powerful king, who held sway over the entire globe, granted a boon to your mother. (4)

ततः सा सम्प्रतिश्राव्य तव माता यशस्विनी ।
अयाचत नरश्रेष्ठं द्वौ वरौ वरवर्णिनी ॥ ५ ॥
तव राज्यं नरव्याघ्र मम प्रव्राजनं तथा ।
तच्च राजा तथा तस्यै नियुक्तः प्रददौ वरम् ॥ ६ ॥

“Then, binding him with a solemn oath your aforesaid illustrious mother, who was endowed with an excellent complexion, sought the following two boons of Daśaratha, the foremost of men, viz., (1) rulership for you, O tiger among men, and (2) exile for me; and urged thus, the king granted the aforesaid boons to her. (5-6)

तेन पित्राहमप्यत्र नियुक्तः पुरुषर्षभ ।
चतुर्दश वने वासं वर्षाणि वरदानिकम् ॥ ७ ॥

“I, too, O jewel among men, have been enjoined by our aforesaid father to dwell here in the forest for fourteen years in consequence of the boon granted by our father to your mother. (7)

सोऽयं वनमिदं प्राप्तो निर्जनं लक्ष्मणान्वितः ।
सीतया चाप्रतिद्वन्द्वः सत्यवादे स्थितः पितुः ॥ ८ ॥

“As such I, who have no rival in this world and stand by the veracity of my father, have come to this lonely forest accompanied by Lakṣmaṇa and Sitā. (8)

भवानपि तथेत्येव पितरं सत्यवादिनम् ।
कर्तुमर्हसि राजेन्द्र क्षिप्रमेवाभिषिञ्चनात् ॥ ९ ॥

“You too, O ruler of kings, ought likewise, as enjoined by our father, to vindicate the truthfulness of our father by getting yourself consecrated on the throne of Ayodhyā immediately. (9)

ऋणान्मोचय राजानं मत्कृते भरत प्रभुम् ।
पितरं त्राहि धर्मज्ञ मातरं चाभिनन्दय ॥ १० ॥

“For my sake, O Bharata, exonerate the powerful king from the debt he owes to Kaikeyī. Save our father by redeeming his promise and delight your mother, O knower of what is right ! (10)

श्रूयते धीमता तात श्रुतिर्गीता यशस्विना ।
गयेन यजमानेन गयेष्वेव पितृन् प्रति ॥ ११ ॥
पुत्राग्नौ नरकाद् यस्मात् पितरं त्रायते सुतः ।
तस्मात् पुत्र इति प्रोक्तः पितृन् यः पाति सर्वतः ॥ १२ ॥

“The following utterance, which is held sacred as a Śruti text, is heard to have been addressed to the manes by the wise and illustrious king named Gaya, who is believed to have founded the city of Gayā, while performing sacrifices in the territory of Gaya (the region which is now covered by the district of Gayā) : ‘Since a son delivers his father from the hell named ‘Put’ he is designated as Putra. According to another interpretation, a son is he who protects his father in all possible ways. (11-12)

एष्टव्या बहवः पुत्रा गुणवन्तो बहुश्रुताः ।
तेषां वै समवेतानामपि कश्चिद् गयां व्रजेत् ॥ १३ ॥

“A number of sons, endowed with virtues and versed in many Śāstras, should be desired so that at least one of them may proceed to Gayā and perform Śrāddha there.”

(13)

एवं राजर्षयः सर्वे प्रतीता रघुनन्दन।

तस्मात् त्राहि नरश्रेष्ठ पितरं नरकात् प्रभो ॥ १४ ॥

“So did all royal sages believe, O powerful scion of Raghu ! Therefore, O jewel among men, protect your father from hell. (14)

अयोध्यां गच्छ भरत प्रकृतीरुपरञ्जय।

शत्रुघ्नसहितो वीर सह सर्वैर्द्विजातिभिः ॥ १५ ॥

“Accompanied by Śatrughna and together with all Brāhmaṇas return, O gallant Bharata, to Ayodhyā and protect the people.

(15)

प्रवेक्ष्ये दण्डकारण्यमहमप्यविलम्बयन्।

आभ्यां तु सहितो वीर वैदेह्या लक्ष्मणेन च ॥ १६ ॥

“I too, for my part, accompanied by these two, viz., Sitā, a princess of the Videha kingdom, and Lakṣmaṇa, shall enter the Daṇḍaka forest without tarrying here any longer. (16)

त्वं राजा भरत भव स्वयं नराणां

वन्यानामहमपि राजराणमृगाणाम्।

गच्छ त्वं पुरवरमद्य सम्प्रहृष्टः

संहृष्टस्त्वहमपि दण्डकान् प्रवेक्ष्ये ॥ १७ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे

सप्ताधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०७ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and seven in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CVIII

Bharata having been silenced by Śrī Rāma, an eminent sage, Jābāli by name, tries to persuade Śrī Rāma to accept the throne by advocating the theory of the Nāstikas (non-believers) with intent to arouse in him the lust of sovereignty

आश्वासयन्तं भरतं जाबालिर्बाह्वणोत्तमः।

उवाच रामं धर्मज्ञं धर्मापेतमिदं वचः ॥ १ ॥

To Śrī Rāma, the knower of what is

“Be you, O Bharata, the ruler of the people themselves. I too shall be the emperor of wild beasts. Return you, extremely delighted, to Ayodhyā, the foremost of cities, this very day and I too shall enter the Daṇḍaka forest highly rejoiced. (17)

छायां ते दिनकरभाः प्रबाधमानं

वर्षत्रं भरत करोतु मूर्ध्नि शीताम्।

एतेषामहमपि काननद्रुमाणां

छायां तामतिशयिनीं शनैः श्रयिष्ये ॥ १८ ॥

“Let the royal umbrella, O Bharata, repulsing the rays of the sun, spread a cool shade over your head. I too shall gradually seek that dense shade of these forest trees. (18)

शत्रुघ्नस्त्वतुलमतिस्तु ते सहायः

सौमित्रिर्मम विदितः प्रधानमित्रम्।

चत्वारस्तनयवरा वयं नरेन्द्रं

सत्यस्थं भरत चराम मा विषीद ॥ १९ ॥

“Let Śatrughna of peerless wisdom for his part be your assistant and the well-known Lakṣmaṇa, son of Sumitrā, be my chief friend. Let us, his four worthy sons, enable the king to adhere to truth. Do not feel dejected.” (19) right, who was comforting Bharata, Jābāli, a jewel among Brāhmaṇas, addressed the following words contrary to the Vedic religion :

(1)

साधु राघव मा भूत् ते बुद्धिरेवं निरर्थिका ।
प्राकृतस्य नरस्येव ह्यार्यबुद्धेस्तपस्विनः ॥ २ ॥

“You have spoken aright, O scion of Raghu; but such a vain resolution, akin to that of an ordinary man, ought not to have been made by you, who are endowed with a noble understanding and given to austerities. (2)

कः कस्य पुरुषो बन्धुः किमाप्यं कस्य केनचित् ।
एको हि जायते जन्तुरेक एव विनश्यति ॥ ३ ॥

“No man is the friend of anyone, nor is anything to be gained by anyone through anyone; for, alone is a creature born and alone does it perish. (3)

तस्मान्माता पिता चेति राम सज्जेत यो नरः ।
उन्मत्त इव स ज्ञेयो नास्ति कश्चिद्धि कस्यचित् ॥ ४ ॥

“Therefore, the man who feels attached to anyone believing that the latter is his mother or father, O Rāma, should be reckoned on a par with a madman; for none is related to another. (4)

यथा ग्रामान्तरं गच्छन् नरः कश्चिद् बहिर्वसेत् ।
उत्सृज्य च तमावासं प्रतिष्ठेतापरेऽहनि ॥ ५ ॥
एवमेव मनुष्याणां पिता माता गृहं वसु ।
आवासमात्रं काकुत्स्थ सज्जन्ते नात्र सज्जनाः ॥ ६ ॥

“As while journeying to another distant village a man stays abroad in the course of his journey and, leaving that resting place behind, proceeds further the next day, even so, to men a father, mother, home and wealth are only a temporary shelter, O Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha); the wise do not get attached to these. (5-6)

पित्र्यं राज्यं समुत्सृज्य स नार्हसि नरोत्तम ।
आस्थातुं कापथं दुःखं विषमं बहुकण्टकम् ॥ ७ ॥

“Relinquishing the kingdom of Ayodhyā, inherited from your father, O jewel among men, you as such ought not to tread the wrong path, which is painful, rugged and bristling with thorns. (7)

समृद्धायामयोध्यायामात्मानमभिषेचय ।
एकवेणीधरा हि त्वा नगरी सम्प्रतीक्षते ॥ ८ ॥

“Get yourself consecrated on the throne of the prosperous Ayodhyā; for the city eagerly awaits your return like a widow who wears a single braid of hair as a sign of mourning and desolation. (8)

राजभोगाननुभवन् महार्हान् पार्थिवात्मज ।
विहर त्वमयोध्यायां यथा शक्रस्त्रिविष्टपे ॥ ९ ॥

“Enjoying kingly delights of great value, O prince, sport you in Ayodhyā as Indra does in heaven. (9)

न ते कश्चिद् दशरथस्त्वं च तस्य च कश्चन ।
अन्यो राजा त्वमन्यस्तु तस्मात् कुरु यदुच्यते ॥ १० ॥

“Daśaratha was none to you nor were you related in anyway to him. The king was not you, while you are not the king Daśaratha; therefore do what is recommended to you. (10)

बीजमात्रं पिता जन्तोः शुक्रं शोणितमेव च ।
संयुक्तमृतुमन्मात्रा पुरुषस्येह जन्म तत् ॥ ११ ॥

“The father is only an efficient cause of a creature; it is only the sperm and the ovum conjointly retained by a prospective mother during the nights favourable for conception that constitute the material cause of a human being in this world. (11)

गतः स नृपतिस्तत्र गन्तव्यं यत्र तेन वै ।
प्रवृत्तिरेषा भूतानां त्वं तु मिथ्या विहन्यसे ॥ १२ ॥

“The aforesaid king has departed to the destination where he was bound to go, viz., back to the five elements, from which he had sprung up. Such is the natural way of created beings, while you are being harassed for no purpose.” (12)

अर्थधर्मपरा ये ये तांस्तान् शोचामि नेतरान् ।
ते हि दुःखमिह प्राप्य विनाशं प्रेत्य लेभिरे ॥ १३ ॥

“I bewail only those whosoever are devoted to wealth and religious merit, not others, who are devoted to sense-enjoyment alone; for having undergone suffering in this life for the sake of wealth and religious merit, they have met with extermination even after death. (13)

अष्टकापितृदेवत्यमित्ययं प्रसृतो जनः ।
अन्नस्योपद्रवं पश्य मृतो हि किमशिष्यति ॥ १४ ॥

“People here have taken to Śrāddha and other allied rites under the belief that Aṣṭakā, (a Śrāddha performed on the seventh, eighth and ninth days of the dark fortnights of the lunar months of Pauṣa, Māgha and Phālguna respectively) and other Śrāddhas are calculated to gratify the manes. Look at the wanton waste of food involved in these rites; for what will a dead man eat? (14)

यदि भुक्तमिहान्येन देहमन्यस्य गच्छति ।
दद्यात् प्रवसतां श्राद्धं न तत् पथ्यशनं भवेत् ॥ १५ ॥

“If the food eaten by one man here reaches the body of another in the other world, one might as well offer Śrāddha to those travelling from home; no provisions for journey should be necessary for them. (15)

दानसंवनना ह्येते ग्रन्था मेधाविभिः कृताः ।
यजस्व देहि दीक्षस्व तपस्तप्यस्व संत्यज ॥ १६ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डेऽष्टाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०८ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and eight in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

नवाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CIX

Jābāli explains the reasons for his advocating the theory of Nāstikas to Śrī Rāma, who exposes the hollowness of the ethics propounded by the sage, dubbing it as the very antithesis of Dharma

जाबालेस्तु वचः श्रुत्वा रामः सत्यपराक्रमः ।
उवाच परया सूक्त्या बुद्ध्याविप्रतिपन्नया ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the speech of Jābāli, Śrī Rāma, for his part, who was possessed of unfailing prowess, replied as follows in the commendable phraseology of the Vedas, armed as he was with a conviction opposed to Jābāli's point of view: (1)

“Enjoining us to worship gods, make gifts, get ourselves consecrated for a sacrificial performance, practise austerities and renounce our hearth and home, these books have been written by talented men with a view to exalting charity. (16)

स नास्ति परमित्येतत् कुरु बुद्धिं महामते ।
प्रत्यक्षं यत् तदातिष्ठ परोक्षं पृष्ठतः कुरु ॥ १७ ॥

“Having known this truth, O highly intelligent prince, arrive at the conclusion that there is nothing beyond this visible universe. Depend upon that which meets the eye; discard that which is outside the ken of your senses. (17)

सतां बुद्धिं पुरस्कृत्य सर्वलोकनिदर्शिनीम् ।
राज्यं स त्वं निगृहीष्व भरतेन प्रसादितः ॥ १८ ॥

“Respecting the judgment of the wise who believe that alone which meets the eye to be true—which serves as an authority for all men and propitiated by Bharata, accept you the kingdom.” (18)

भवान् मे प्रियकामार्थं वचनं यदिहोक्तवान् ।
अकार्यं कार्यसंकाशमपथ्यं पथ्य संनिभम् ॥ २ ॥

“The advice that you have tendered on this occasion in order to make available to me the pleasures of sense, which are agreeable to all, is not really worth following, although appearing as such, and is unwholesome, though appearing as wholesome. (2)

निर्मर्यादस्तु पुरुषः पापाचारसमन्वितः ।
मानं न लभते सत्सु भिन्नचारित्रदर्शनः ॥ ३ ॥

“A man who has transgressed the bounds of propriety and is characterized by a sinful conduct, and who is wedded to a moral philosophy different from the established ethical doctrines does not get recognition among the wise. (3)

कुलीनमकुलीनं वा वीरं पुरुषमानिनम् ।
चारित्रमेव व्याख्याति शुचिं वा यदि वाशुचिम् ॥ ४ ॥

“Conduct alone proclaims a man to be well-born or otherwise, gallant or only fancying himself to be gallant, honest or dishonest. (4)

अनार्यस्त्वार्य संस्थानः शौचाद्धीनस्तथा शुचिः ।
लक्षण्यवदलक्षण्यो दुःशीलः शीलवानिव ॥ ५ ॥

“One following the way of life propounded by you will be ignoble, though appearing as noble, will be accepted as clean, though devoid of cleanliness, would pass for one endowed with auspicious bodily marks, though lacking in such marks, will appear as possessed of an amiable disposition, though ill-mannered. (5)

अधर्म धर्मवेषेण यद्यहं लोकसंकरम् ।
अभिपत्ये शुभं हित्वा क्रियां विधिविवर्जिताम् ॥ ६ ॥

“If I embrace unrighteousness, cloaked in the garb of piety and leading to confusion or mixture of castes, I should be giving up the virtuous acts and taking to unauthorized action. (6)

कश्चेतयानः पुरुषः कार्याकार्यविचक्षणः ।
बहु मन्येत मां लोके दुर्वृत्तं लोकदूषणम् ॥ ७ ॥

“What sensible man capable of discerning what ought to be done and what ought not to be done would hold me in high esteem in the world, knowing me to be vile of conduct and a corrupter of the people? (7)

कस्य यास्याम्यहं वृत्तं केन वा स्वर्गमाप्नुयाम् ।
अनया वर्तमानोऽहं वृत्त्या हीनप्रतिज्ञया ॥ ८ ॥

कामवृत्तोऽन्वयं लोकः कृत्स्नः समुपवर्तते ।
यद्वृत्ताः सन्ति राजानस्तद्वृत्ताः सन्ति हि प्रजाः ॥ ९ ॥

“Conducting myself according to the mode of life recommended by you in which my vow of remaining in exile in woods for fourteen years has to be abandoned, whose way of life shall I follow as an ideal so that I may attain heaven, since you tell me my father was none to me? By following your advice, I will act according to my own inclination (disregarding the authority of the Śāstras) and, following my example, the whole of this world too is likely to turn licentious; for people follow the same way of life as kings do. (8-9)

सत्यमेवानृशंसं च राजवृत्तं सनातनम् ।
तस्मात् सत्यात्मकं राज्यं सत्ये लोकः प्रतिष्ठितः ॥ १० ॥

“Truthfulness alone, which is divorced from cruelty, is the eternal way of life prescribed for kings. Therefore, truthfulness is the soul of a kingdom; nay, the world itself is founded on truth. (10)

ऋषयश्चैव देवाश्च सत्यमेव हि मेनिरे ।
सत्यवादी हि लोकेऽस्मिन् परं गच्छति चाक्षयम् ॥ ११ ॥

“The seers of Vedic Mantras as well as gods have respected truthfulness alone. Indeed, a veracious man in this world attains the highest realm, which knows no decay. (11)

उद्विजन्ते यथा सर्पात्ररादनृतवादिनः ।
धर्मः सत्यपरो लोके मूलं सर्वस्य चोच्यते ॥ १२ ॥

“People turn away in fear from a man telling lies in the same way as they do from a serpent. Virtue has its culmination in truthfulness; nay, it is declared to be the root of all. (12)

सत्यमेवेश्वरो लोके सत्ये धर्मः सदाश्रितः ।
सत्यमूलानि सर्वाणि सत्यान्नास्ति परं पदम् ॥ १३ ॥

“Truth alone is God in the world, piety ever hinges on truth. All have their root in truth; there is no goal higher than truth. (13)

दत्तमिष्टं हुतं चैव तप्तानि च तपांसि च।

वेदाः सत्यप्रतिष्ठानास्तस्मात् सत्यपरो भवेत्॥ १४॥

“Charity, sacrificial performances, as well as offering oblations into the sacred fire, nay, austerities actually practised and the Vedas studied have their foundation on truth. Hence one should remain devoted to truth. (14)

एकः पालयते लोकमेकः पालयते कुलम्।

मज्जत्येको हि निरय एकः स्वर्गे महीयते॥ १५॥

“According to the degree of virtue and sin practised in one’s past lives one rules over the world, another simply supports one’s race alone; a third actually sinks into hell, and yet another is respected in heaven. (15)

सोऽहं पितुर्निदेशं तु किमर्थं नानुपालये।

सत्यप्रतिश्रवः सत्यं सत्येन समयीकृतम्॥ १६॥

“Wherefore, then, shall I, who know all this, not carry out the behest of my father, which was based on truth and solemnized through swearing by truth, true to my promise as I am? (16)

नैव लोभान्न मोहाद् वा न चाज्ञानात् तमोऽन्वितः।

सेतुं सत्यस्य भेत्स्यामि गुरोः सत्यप्रतिश्रवः॥ १७॥

“Neither from greed of sovereignty nor even from infatuation nor again from ignorance shall I, overpowered by obtuseness of understanding, violate the sanctity of my father’s pledge given to mother, Kaikeyī, true to my promise as I am. (17)

असत्यसंधस्य सतश्चलस्यास्थिरचेतसः।

नैव देवा न पितरः प्रतीच्छन्तीति नः श्रुतम्॥ १८॥

“It has been heard by us that neither gods nor even manes accept the offerings of a man who is not true to his promise, and has thus deviated from truth and is of irresolute mind. (18)

प्रत्यगात्ममिमं धर्मं सत्यं पश्याम्यहं ध्रुवम्।

भारः सत्पुरुषैश्च्रीर्णास्तदर्थमभिनन्द्यते॥ १९॥

“I recognize this virtue in the form of truthfulness as binding on all embodied beings and foremost. The burden in the form of matted locks has been made much of by good men; hence it is welcomed by me. (19)

क्षात्रं धर्ममहं त्यक्ष्ये ह्यधर्मं धर्मसंहितम्।

क्षुद्रैर्नृशंसैर्लुब्धैश्च सेवितं पापकर्मभिः॥ २०॥

“I shall certainly renounce the duty of a Kṣatriya (in the shape of assuming the rulership of Ayodhyā in violation of my father’s injunction) which consists mostly of unrighteousness, though seemingly attended with an iota of virtue and which is followed generally by petty, cruel and greedy men of sinful deeds. (20)

कायेन कुरुते पापं मनसा सम्प्रधार्य तत्।

अनृतं जिह्वया चाह त्रिविधं कर्म पातकम्॥ २१॥

“Having first resolved upon a sinful deed with the mind, a man speaks of his vile intention to his friends and associates with his tongue and then perpetrates it with his body with the help of others. In this way a sinful deed is accomplished in three ways, viz., by thought, word and deed. (21)

भूमिः कीर्तिर्यशो लक्ष्मीः पुरुषं प्रार्थयन्ति हि।

सत्यं समनुवर्तन्ते सत्यमेव भजेत् ततः॥ २२॥

“Land, renown, glory and fortune undoubtedly woo a man devoted to truth. The wise pursue truth, hence one should worship truth alone. (22)

श्रेष्ठं ह्यनार्यमेव स्याद् यद् भवानवधार्य माम्।

आह युक्तिकरैर्वाक्यैरिदं भद्रं कुरुष्व ह॥ २३॥

“What you have recommended to me after concluding it to be the best for me in so many logical words, viz., ‘this sovereignty is good for you, unhesitatingly accept it,’ must be unquestionably improper for me. (23)

कथं ह्यहं प्रतिज्ञाय वनवासमिमं गुरोः।

भरतस्य करिष्यामि वचो हित्वा गुरोर्वचः॥ २४॥

“Having actually given my word of honour to my father to remain in exile in the woods for fourteen years, as I am doing, how shall I comply with the prayer of Bharata, flouting the command of my father? (24)

स्थिरा मया प्रतिज्ञाता प्रतिज्ञा गुरुसंनिधौ।
प्रहृष्टमानसा देवी कैकेयी चाभवत् तदा ॥ २५ ॥

“A firm vow was taken by me in the presence of my father and Queen Kaikeyī felt highly delighted at heart to hear it at that moment. How can I now go back upon my word of honour and cause sorrow to her?(25)

वनवासं वसत्रेव शुचिर्नियतभोजनः।
मूलपुष्पफलैः पुण्यैः पितृन् देवांश्च तर्पयन् ॥ २६ ॥
संतुष्टपञ्चवर्गोऽहं लोकयात्रां प्रवाहये।

अकुहः श्रद्धानः सन् कार्याकार्यविचक्षणः ॥ २७ ॥

“Having controlled my diet and propitiating gods as well as manes by means of sacred roots, flowers and fruits while continuing to reside in the forest only and remaining pure of body and mind, with all the five senses fully sated, nay, free from all viles, devout and fully cognizant of what ought to be done and what ought not to be done, I propose to discharge my worldly obligations in the form of carrying out the behest of my father. (26-27)

कर्मभूमिमिमां प्राप्य कर्तव्यं कर्म यच्छुभम्।
अग्निर्वायुश्च सोमश्च कर्मणां फलभागिनः ॥ २८ ॥

“Having reached this terrestrial globe (the realm of action), virtuous action alone should be undertaken. The god of fire as well as the wind-god and the moon-god enjoy, in their respective realms, the fruit of their meritorious action. (28)

शतं क्रतूनामाहृत्य देवराट् त्रिदिवं गतः।
तपांस्युग्राणि चास्थाय दिवं प्राप्ता महर्षयः ॥ २९ ॥

“Indra, the ruler of gods, was able to attain the sovereignty of heaven only after performing a hundred sacrifices. The eminent seers of Vedic Mantras too ascended to the ethereal regions (the realms even higher than heaven) after practising rigorous austerities only.” (29)

अमृष्यमाणः पुनरुग्रतेजा
निशम्य तन्नास्तिकवाक्यहेतुम्।
अथाब्रवीत् तं नृपतेस्तनूजो
विगर्हमाणो वचनानि तस्य ॥ ३० ॥

Hearing the plea put forward by the aforesaid sage, Jābāli, in the form of a heretic utterance (denying the life beyond death) and resenting, nay, censuring his words, Śrī Rāma, son of King Daśaratha, who was endowed with a formidable spirit, forthwith spoke to him once again as follows : (30)

सत्यं च धर्मं च पराक्रमं च
भूतानुकम्पां प्रियवादितां च।
द्विजातिदेवातिथिपूजनं च
पन्थानमाहुस्त्रिदिवस्य सन्तः ॥ ३१ ॥

“The sages speak of truthfulness and piety and valour and compassion for created beings and polite speech and worship of Brāhmaṇas, gods and unexpected guests as a road to heaven. (31)

तेनैवमाज्ञाय यथावदर्थ-मेकोदयं सम्प्रतिपद्य विप्राः।
धर्मं चरन्तः सकलं यथावत्
कांक्षन्ति लोकागममप्रमत्ताः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Scrupulously and duly practising virtue in all its aspects, having in the first instance correctly understood its meaning through the aforesaid utterance of sages and reached complete unanimity on the point, Brāhmaṇas seek to attain realms of their choice. (32)

निन्दाम्यहं कर्म कृतं पितुस्तद्
यस्त्वामगृह्णाद् विषमस्थबुद्धिम्।
बुद्ध्यानयैवंविधया चरन्तं
सुनास्तिकं धर्मपथादपेतम् ॥ ३३ ॥

“I denounce the action mentioned below, of my father, who picked up as his counsellor-priest you, a staunch unbeliever, who has not only strayed away from the path of righteousness but whose mind is set on a wrong path opposed to the Vedic path, nay, who is moving about in the world with such an ideology conforming to the doctrine of the atheistic Cārvāka, who believes only in the world of senses, as has been set forth in your foregoing speech. (33)

यथा हि चोरः स तथा हि बुद्ध-

स्तथागतं नास्तिकमत्र विद्धि।

तस्माद्धि यः शक्यतमः प्रजानां

स नास्तिके नाभिमुखो बुधः स्यात् ॥ ३४ ॥

“It is a well-known fact that a follower of Buddha condemning the Vedas deserves to be punished precisely in the same way as a thief inasmuch as a heretic robs people of their faith; and know an unbeliever (a follower of the Cārvāka or materialistic school of philosophy) to be on a par with a Buddha. Therefore, among such unbelievers he who is most tameable should undoubtedly be so punished in the interest of the people; in no other case should a wise man even stand face to face with an unbeliever, but should shun him. (34)

त्वत्तो जनाः पूर्वतरे द्विजाश्च

शुभानि कर्माणि बहूनि चक्रुः।

छित्त्वा सदेमं च परं च लोकं

तस्माद् द्विजाः स्वस्ति कृतं हुतं च ॥ ३५ ॥

“Men that lived before you, as well as Brāhmaṇas ever performed numerous blessed deeds in obedience to the injunctions of the Vedas giving up all hopes of reward in this world as well as in the next. Hence following the injunctions of the Vedas, Brāhmaṇas pursue harmlessness, truthfulness and other virtues, perform noble deeds such as practice of austerities, making gifts, doing a good turn to others and so on and offer oblations into the sacred fire. (35)

धर्मे रताः सत्पुरुषैः समेता-

स्तेजस्विनो दानगुणप्रधानाः।

अहिंसका वीतमलाश्च लोके

भवन्ति पूज्या मुनयः प्रधानाः ॥ ३६ ॥

Foremost sages, like Vasiṣṭha, who are devoted to righteousness, remain in communion with good men, are endowed with spiritual glory, have the virtue of munificence predominant in them, practise harmlessness and are entirely free from impurity of all kinds become worthy of adoration in the world.” (36)

इति ब्रुवन्तं वचनं सरोषं

रामं महात्मानमदीनसत्त्वम्।

उवाच पथ्यं पुनरास्तिकं च

सत्यं वचः सानुनयं च विप्रः ॥ ३७ ॥

To the high-souled Śrī Rāma, who never felt dejected at heart and was speaking angrily as above, the Brāhmaṇa Jābāli now politely addressed the following wholesome and truthful words, which showed his belief in the authority of the Vedas, the otherworld and so on: (37)

न नास्तिकानां वचनं ब्रवीम्यहं

न नास्तिकोऽहं न च नास्ति किञ्चन।

समीक्ष्य कालं पुनरास्तिकोऽभवं

भवेय काले पुनरेव नास्तिकः ॥ ३८ ॥

“I do not as a rule repeat the words of unbelievers nor am I an unbeliever at heart nor is it a fact that nothing exists beyond this visible universe. Perceiving the time opportune for it, now that I find you bent on implementing the pledge given to your father, I have become a believer once more and to suit the exigencies of the moment, may again pose as an unbeliever when the time comes for it. (38)

स चापि कालोऽयमुपागतः शनै-

र्यथा मया नास्तिकवागुदीरिता।

निवर्तनार्थं तव राम कारणात्

प्रसादनार्थं च मयैतदीरितम् ॥ ३९ ॥

“That time too had now come when a heretical speech was slowly made by me in order to deflect you from your purpose of remaining in exile in the forest and also from another motive viz., to establish your reputation as a great believer by evoking your opposition to the heretical view. Again, | angry has this revised utterance been made in order to pacify you when I found you | by me, O Rāma !” (39)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे नवाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०९ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and nine in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

दशाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CX

Pacifying Śrī Rāma, who had got angry with Jābāli, Sage Vasiṣṭha urges him to get himself consecrated as king since from Ikṣwāku, the progenitor of his race, downward the eldest son alone had ascended the throne of Ayodhyā and because he was not only the eldest of his father's sons, but the ablest too

क्रुद्धमाज्ञाय रामं तु वसिष्ठः प्रत्युवाच ह।
जाबालिरपि जानीते लोकस्यास्य गतागतिम् ॥ १ ॥

Perceiving Śrī Rāma to be angry, Vasiṣṭha too pleaded with him (for Jābāli) as follows: “Jābāli also recognizes the departure of the human soul from this world and its return to the mortal plane. (1)

निवर्तयितुकामस्तु त्वामेतद् वाक्यमब्रवीत्।
इमां लोकसमुत्पत्तिं लोकनाथ निबोध मे ॥ २ ॥

He, however, spoke to you as aforesaid desirous as he was of persuading you to return to Ayodhyā. Pray, hear from me about the creation of worlds, O protector of the world ! (2)

सर्वं सलिलमेवासीत् पृथिवी तत्र निर्मिता।
ततः समभवद् ब्रह्मा स्वयंभूदैवतैः सह ॥ ३ ॥

“There was water alone in the beginning of creation, the earth was evolved in water. Next appeared the self-born Brahmā alongwith gods. (3)

स वराहस्ततो भूत्वा प्रोज्जहार वसुंधराम्।
असृजच्च जगत् सर्वं सह पुत्रैः कृतात्मभिः ॥ ४ ॥

“Appearing as the Divine Boar, Brahmā, who is the same as Viṣṇu, the Protector, then lifted the earth out of the water into which it had disappeared and in conjunction with his sons (Marīci and others), who had subdued their mind, evolved the whole universe. (4)

आकाशप्रभवो ब्रह्मा शाश्वतो नित्य अव्ययः।
तस्मान्मरीचिः संजज्ञे मरीचेः कश्यपः सुतः ॥ ५ ॥

“The eternal, everlasting and imperishable Brahmā sprang out of ether, which is no other than Brahma, the Absolute, from him came forth Marīci, and Kaśyapa was the son of Marīci. (5)

विवस्वान् कश्यपाज्जज्ञे मनुर्वैवस्वतः स्वयम्।
स तु प्रजापतिः पूर्वमिक्ष्वाकुस्तु मनोः सुतः ॥ ६ ॥

“Vivaswān, the sun-god, descended from Kaśyapa. Manu himself was the son of Vivaswān. Manu for his part was formerly a lord of creation, and Manu's son was Ikṣwāku. (6)

यस्येयं प्रथमं दत्ता समृद्धा मनुना मही।
तमिक्ष्वाकुमयोध्यायां राजानं विद्धि पूर्वकम् ॥ ७ ॥

“Know that Ikṣwāku to be the very first ruler of Ayodhyā, to whom this prosperous earth was entrusted for the first time by the said Manu. (7)

इक्ष्वाकोस्तु सुतः श्रीमान् कुक्षिरित्येव विश्रुतः ।
कुक्षेरथात्मजो वीरो विकुक्षिरुदपद्यत ॥ ८ ॥

“Ikṣwāku’s glorious son for his part became known simply by the name of Kuṁkṣi; and from the loins of Kuṁkṣi, O prince, sprang up gallant Vikuṁkṣi. (8)

विकुक्षेस्तु महातेजाः बाणः पुत्रः प्रतापवान् ।
बाणस्य च महाबाहुरनरण्यो महातपाः ॥ ९ ॥

“Vikuṁkṣi’s son, on the other hand, was the mighty Bāṇa, who was endowed with exceptional glory; and Bāṇa’s son was the mighty-armed Anarāṇya, who practised great austerities. (9)

नानावृष्टिर्बभूवास्मिन् न दुर्भिक्षः सतां वरे ।
अनरण्ये महाराजे तस्करो वापि कश्चन ॥ १० ॥

“So long as this Anarāṇya, who was a jewel among the virtuous, continued to be the Emperor, there was neither a drought nor famine nor was a thief to be seen in Ayodhyā. (10)

अनरण्यान्महाराज पृथू राजा बभूव ह ।
तस्मात् पृथोर्महातेजास्त्रिशङ्कुरुदपद्यत ॥ ११ ॥

“From the loins of Anarāṇya, O great king, they say, appeared King Pṛthu; from the said Pṛthu was descended Triśaṅku, who was possessed of great splendour. (11)

स सत्यवचनाद् वीरः सशरीरो दिवं गतः ।
त्रिशङ्कोरभवत् सूनुर्धुन्धुमारो महायशः ॥ १२ ॥

“Due to the unfailing vow of Viśwāmītra the aforesaid hero bodily ascended to heaven. Triśaṅku’s son was the highly illustrious Dhundhumāra. (12)

धुन्धुमारान्महातेजा युवनाश्रो व्यजायत ।
युवनाश्रुसुतः श्रीमान् मान्धाता समपद्यत ॥ १३ ॥

“From the loins of Dhundhumāra sprang up Yuvanāśwa, who was endowed with exceptional glory; the glorious Māndhātā was born as the son of Yuvanāśwa. (13)

मान्धातुस्तु महातेजाः सुसंधिरुदपद्यत ।
सुसंधेरपि पुत्रौ द्वौ ध्रुवसंधिः प्रसेनजित् ॥ १४ ॥

“Of Māndhātā, again, was born the highly glorious Susandhi; of Susandhi too there were two sons, Dhruvasandhi and Prasenajit. (14)

यशस्वी ध्रुवसंधेस्तु भरतो रिपुसूदनः ।
भरतात् तु महाबाहोरसितो नाम जायत ॥ १५ ॥
यस्यैते प्रतिराजान उदपद्यन्त शत्रवः ।
हैहयास्तालजङ्घाश्च शूराश्च शशबिन्दवः ॥ १६ ॥

“Bharata, for his part, a destroyer of foes, was the illustrious son of Dhruvasandhi; and of the mighty-armed Bharata was born one Asita by name, of whom the following tributary chiefs, viz., the rulers of the Haihayas and the Tālajāṅghas and the gallant ruler of the Śaśabindus, came to be the enemies. (15-16)

तांस्तु सर्वान् प्रतिव्यूह्य युद्धे राजा प्रवासितः ।
स च शैलवरे रम्ये बभूवाभिरतो मुनिः ॥ १७ ॥

“In spite of his having arrayed his army against all these, the king was routed and exiled. He, therefore, gladly took up his abode as an ascetic on a delightful and excellent mountain. (17)

द्वे चास्य भार्ये गर्भिण्यौ बभूवतुरिति श्रुतिः ।
तत्र चैका महाभागा भार्गवं देववर्चसम् ॥ १८ ॥
ववन्दे पद्मपत्राक्षी कांक्षिणी पुत्रमुत्तमम् ।
एका गर्भविनाशाय सपत्न्यै गरलं ददौ ॥ १९ ॥

“In course of time his two consorts came to be in the family way: so the tradition goes. Desiring to have an excellent son, one of them, who was highly fortunate and had eyes resembling the petals of a lotus, sought the presence of and bowed down to Sage Cyavana, son of Bhṛgu, who possessed the splendour of gods; while the other administered poison to her co-wife in order to destroy her foetus. (18-19)

भार्गवश्च्यवनो नाम हिमवन्तमुपाश्रितः ।
तमृषिं साभ्युपागम्य कालिन्दी त्वभ्यवादयत् ॥ २० ॥

“The sage named Cyavana, son of Bhṛgu, had betaken himself to the Himālayas.

Approaching that sage, the said Kālindī for her part greeted him. (20)

स तामभ्यवदत् प्रीतो वरेप्सुं पुत्रजन्मनि ।
पुत्रस्ते भविता देवि महात्मा लोकविश्रुतः ॥ २१ ॥
धार्मिकश्च सुभीमश्च वंशकर्तारिसूदनः ।
श्रुत्वा प्रदक्षिणं कृत्वा मुनिं तमनुमान्य च ॥ २२ ॥
पद्मपत्रसमानाक्षं पद्मगर्भसमप्रभम् ।
ततः सा गृहमागम्य पत्नी पुत्रमजायत ॥ २३ ॥

“Gratified to receive her respects, he said to the queen, who sought from him a boon ensuring the birth of a son to her, ‘A lofty minded son, widely known in the world, pious and most formidable, the founder of a dynasty and the destroyer of his foes, will be born to you, O queen!’ Hearing this benediction, and going round the sage clockwise as a mark of respect and taking leave of him, and then returning home, the queen brought forth a son who had lotus-like eyes and shone like Brahmā, the lotus-born. (21—23)

सपत्न्या तु गरस्तस्यै दत्तो गर्भजिघांसया ।
गरेण सह तेनैव तस्मात् स सगरोऽभवत् ॥ २४ ॥

“The boy was born alongwith that very poison that had actually been administered to the queen by her fellow-consort with the intention of destroying the foetus; hence he became known as Sagara (lit., with poison). (24)

स राजा सगरो नाम यः समुद्रमखानयत् ।
इष्ट्वा पर्वणि वेगेन त्रासयान इमाः प्रजाः ॥ २५ ॥

“King Sagara was he who, getting consecrated for a sacrifice on a full-moon day or new moon day, caused the ocean to be dug by his sons, sixteen thousand in number, causing fear to the people here by the speed of digging. (25)

असमञ्जस्तु पुत्रोऽभूत् सगरस्येति नः श्रुतम् ।
जीवन्नेव स पित्रा तु निरस्तः पापकर्मकृत् ॥ २६ ॥

“It has been heard by us that Sagara’s eldest son, really speaking, was Asamañja.

A perpetrator of sinful deeds as he was, he, however, was abandoned by his father, even when alive. (26)

अंशुमानपि पुत्रोऽभूदसमञ्जस्य वीर्यवान् ।
दिलीपोंऽशुमतः पुत्रो दिलीपस्य भगीरथः ॥ २७ ॥

“Amśumān, again, who was full of valour was the son of Asamañja. Dilipa was the son of Amśumān and Bhagīratha, of Dilipa. (27)

भगीरथात् ककुत्स्थश्च काकुत्स्था येन तु स्मृताः ।
ककुत्स्थस्य तु पुत्रोऽभूद् रघुर्येन तु राघवाः ॥ २८ ॥

“Again, from the loins of Bhagīratha appeared Kakutstha, after whose name his descendants came to be called, Kākutsthas, the scions of Kakutstha. And Kakutstha’s son was Raghu, after whom his descendants were known as Rāghavas, the scions of Raghu. (28)

रघोस्तु पुत्रस्तेजस्वी प्रवृद्धः पुरुषादकः ।
कल्माषपादः सौदास इत्येवं प्रथितो भुवि ॥ २९ ॥

“Raghu’s glorious son for his part came to be known on earth by the names of Pravṛddha, Puruṣādaka (lit., a man-eater or ogre), Kalmāṣapāda and Saudāsa. (29)

कल्माषपादपुत्रोऽभूच्छङ्खणस्त्विति नः श्रुतम् ।
यस्तु तद्वीर्यमासाद्य सहसैन्यो व्यनीनशत् ॥ ३० ॥

“It has been heard by us that Kalmāṣapāda’s son was Śaṅkhaṇa, who, even on attaining remarkable valour on the field of battle, perished, army and all, in an encounter.” (30)

शङ्खणस्य तु पुत्रोऽभूच्छूः श्रीमान् सुदर्शनः ।
सुदर्शनस्याग्निवर्णं अग्निवर्णस्य शीघ्रगः ॥ ३१ ॥

“The glorious Sudarśana for his part was the heroic son of Śaṅkhaṇa. Agnivarna was the son of Sudarśana and Śīghraga, of Agnivarna. (31)

शीघ्रगस्य मरुः पुत्रो मरोः पुत्रः प्रशुश्रुवः ।
प्रशुश्रुवस्य पुत्रोऽभूदम्बरीषो महामतिः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Maru was the son of Śīghraga and Maru’s son was Praśuśruva. The highly intelligent Ambariṣa was the son of Praśuśruva. (32)

अम्बरीषस्य पुत्रोऽभून्नहुषः सत्यविक्रमः ।
नहुषस्य च नाभागः पुत्रः परमधार्मिकः ॥ ३३ ॥

“Nahuṣa of unfailing prowess was the son of Ambariṣa, while Nābhāga was the supremely pious son of Nahuṣa. (33)

अजश्च सुव्रतश्चैव नाभागस्य सुतावुभौ ।
अजस्य चैव धर्मात्मा राजा दशरथः सुतः ॥ ३४ ॥

“Both Aja and Suvrata were the sons of Nābhāga and the pious King Daśaratha was the son of Aja. (34)

तस्य ज्येष्ठोऽसि दायादो राम इत्यभिविश्रुतः ।
तद् गृहाण स्वकं राज्यमवेक्षस्व जगत्प ॥ ३५ ॥

“You are his eldest son known all round by the name of Rāma; therefore, accept this kingdom of your own and look after the world, O protector of men ! (35)

इक्ष्वाकूणां हि सर्वेषां राजा भवति पूर्वजः ।
पूर्वजे नावरः पुत्रो ज्येष्ठो राजाभिषिच्यते ॥ ३६ ॥

“Among all the Ikṣvākus the eldest son undoubtedly becomes the ruler. While an elder son is present, a younger son is never consecrated as a king. The eldest alone is so consecrated. (36)

स राघवाणां कुलधर्ममात्मनः
सनातनं नाद्य विहन्तुमर्हसि ।
प्रभूतरत्नामनुशाधि मेदिनीं
प्रभूतराष्ट्रां पितृवन्महायशः ॥ ३७ ॥

“Being one of the Rāghavas, you as such ought not to violate today the time-honoured usage of Your House according to which the throne goes to the eldest son alone. Like your father, highly illustrious as You are, rule the earth abounding in precious stones and consisting of numerous dominions.” (37)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे

दशाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ ११० ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and ten in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकादशाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXI

Pleading the superiority of a teacher in comparison to one's parents, Sage Vasiṣṭha by virtue of his superiority and as a concession to Bharata, a dependant of Śrī Rāma, whose vow it has been to respect the feelings of his dependants, urges Śrī Rāma to grant the prayer of Bharata. Śrī Rāma, however, contends that one's parents are more worthy of respect even than one's teacher and is accordingly insistent on implementing the pledge already given by him to his father. Thus discomfited in argument, Bharata makes up his mind to undertake a fast unto death as a last resort to exert pressure on him. On Śrī Rāma's dubbing such a step as repugnant to the code of conduct prescribed for a Kṣatriya, Bharata requests his elder brother to allow him to remain in exile in the forest as the latter's proxy. Śrī Rāma, however, rules out this proposition also as something preposterous, saying that one's duty is entrusted to a proxy only on the former's incapacity, which could not be predicated of him, and reaffirms his decision to enter Ayodhyā only after fulfilling the pledge given to his father

वसिष्ठः स तदा राममुक्त्वा राजपुरोहितः ।
अब्रवीद् धर्मसंयुक्तं पुनरेवापरं वचः ॥ १ ॥

Having spoken to Śrī Rāma as aforesaid on that occasion, the said Vasiṣṭha, the family-priest of the king, addressed to him once more the following words in consonance with righteousness :

(1)

पुरुषस्येह जातस्य भवन्ति गुरवः सदा ।
आचार्यश्चैव काकुत्स्थ पिता माता च राघव ॥ २ ॥

"The preceptor, O scion of Kakutstha, as well as one's father and mother, O descendant of Raghu, ever come to be the adored of a man from the time he is born in this world.

(2)

पिता ह्येनं जनयति पुरुषं पुरुषर्षभ ।
प्रज्ञां ददाति चाचार्यस्तस्मात् स गुरुरुच्यते ॥ ३ ॥

"The father only procreates and the mother brings forth a human being, O jewel among men; the preceptor, on the other hand, bestows wisdom on him, hence he is spoken of as Guru (superior even to the parents).

(3)

स तेऽहं पितुराचार्यस्तव चैव परंतप ।
मम त्वं वचनं कुर्वन् नातिवर्तेः सतां गतिम् ॥ ४ ॥

"I, for my part, am the preceptor not only of your father but yours too, O chastiser of foes ! Doing my bidding, therefore, you will not be transgressing the path of the virtuous.

(4)

इमा हि ते परिषदो ज्ञातयश्च नृपास्तथा ।
एषु तात चरन् धर्मं नातिवर्तेः सतां गतिम् ॥ ५ ॥

"Here indeed are your subjects, kinsmen and tributary princes too. Discharging your duty by them, you will not be transgressing the path of the virtuous. (5)

वृद्धाया धर्मशीलाया मातुर्नार्हस्यवर्तितुम्।
अस्या हि वचनं कुर्वन् नातिवर्तेः सतां गतिम् ॥ ६ ॥

“You ought not to fail in your duty towards your aged mother, who is given to piety. Doing her bidding you will certainly not be transgressing the path of the virtuous. (6)

भरतस्य वचः कुर्वन् याचमानस्य राघव।
आत्मानं नातिवर्तेस्त्वं सत्यधर्मपराक्रम ॥ ७ ॥

“Granting the prayer of Bharata, who is supplicating you, you will not be overstepping your bounds, O scion of Raghu, who are ever united with truthfulness, piety and valour !” (7)

एवं मधुरमुक्तः स गुरुणा राघवः स्वयम्।
प्रत्युवाच समासीनं वसिष्ठं पुरुषर्षभः ॥ ८ ॥

Instructed thus in sweet words by his preceptor himself, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), a jewel among men, replied as follows to Vasiṣṭha, who was sitting at ease there : (8)

यन्मातापितरौ वृत्तं तनये कुरुतः सदा।
न सुप्रतिकरं तत् तु मात्रा पित्रा च यत्कृतम् ॥ ९ ॥
यथाशक्तिप्रदानेन स्वापनोच्छादनेन च।
नित्यं च प्रियवादेन तथा संवर्धनेन च ॥ १० ॥

“The service that the parents render to their son by giving him whatever they can, as well as by putting him to bed and rubbing his body with oil etc., nay, by speaking kindly to him every moment and, even so, by nourishing him, nay, whatever good is done by them cannot be easily requited. (9-10)

स हि राजा दशरथः पिता जनयिता मम।
आज्ञापयन्मां यत् तस्य न तन्मिथ्या भविष्यति ॥ ११ ॥

“Indeed that which the celebrated King Daśaratha, my father, who brought me into being, has asked me to do shall not prove untrue.” (11)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण भरतः प्रत्यनन्तरम्।
उवाच विपुलोरस्कः सूतं परमदुर्मनाः ॥ १२ ॥

When Śrī Rāma had spoken thus, Bharata for his part, who was distinguished by a broad chest, and felt extremely sad at heart, commanded as follows Sumantra, the charioteer, who stood nearest to him : (12)

इह तु स्थण्डिले शीघ्रं कुशानास्तर सारथे।
आर्यं प्रत्युपवेक्ष्यामि यावन्मे सम्प्रसीदति ॥ १३ ॥

“Speedily spread for your part blades of Kuśa grass on this piece of level ground, O charioteer ! I shall sit at the door of my elder brother in order to exert pressure on him until he gets fully propitiated and grants my request. (13)

निराहारो निरालोको धनहीनो यथा द्विजः।
शये पुरस्ताच्छालायां यावन्मां प्रतियास्यति ॥ १४ ॥

“Like a destitute Brāhmaṇa, who has been deprived of his fortune by a debtor, failing to repay the debt as stipulated, I shall remain lying down in front of Śrī Rāma’s hut without food or drink and depriving myself of light by covering my face until he returns to Ayodhyā as a concession to me.” (14)

स तु राममवेक्षन्तं सुमन्त्रं प्रेक्ष्य दुर्मनाः।
कुशोत्तरमुपस्थाप्य भूमावेवास्थितः स्वयम् ॥ १५ ॥

Perceiving Sumantra awaiting the pleasure of Śrī Rāma, Bharata for his part sat down disconsolate on the ground, spreading a mat of Kuśa grass with his own hands. (15)

तमुवाच महातेजा रामो राजर्षिसत्तमः।
किं मां भरत कुर्वाणं तात प्रत्युपवेक्ष्यसे ॥ १६ ॥

To him the highly glorious Śrī Rāma, the foremost of royal sages, said, “What wrong have I done to you, O Bharata, that you will sit at my door to exert pressure on me, my darling? (16)

ब्राह्मणो ह्येकपार्श्वेन नरान् रोद्धुमिहार्हति।
न तु मूर्धाभिषिक्तानां विधिः प्रत्युपवेशने ॥ १७ ॥

“A Brāhmaṇa alone ought to restrain people oppressing him by lying on one side at their door. Kṣatriyas, however, who are or deserve to be sprinkled with holy water on the head (when being installed as the head of a state) are not enjoined to sit at the door of anyone in this way. (17)

उत्तिष्ठ नरशार्दूल हित्वैतद् दारुणं व्रतम्।
पुरवर्यामितः क्षिप्रमयोध्यां याहि राघव॥ १८॥

“Get up, O tiger among men ! Giving up this terrible vow, return, O scion of Raghu, speedily to Ayodhyā, the foremost of cities, from this place.” (18)

आसीनस्त्वेव भरतः पौरजानपदं जनम्।
उवाच सर्वतः प्रेक्ष्य किमार्यं नानुशासथ॥ १९॥

Gazing on all sides, Bharata, even while sitting, said to the citizens as well as to the people of the countryside, “Wherefore do you not plead with my elder brother?” (19)

ते तदोचुर्महात्मानं पौरजानपदा जनाः।
काकुत्स्थमभिजानीमः सम्यग् वदति राघवः॥ २०॥

The people of the city as well as of the countryside then replied as follows to Bharata, an exalted soul : “We know full well that you, a scion of Raghu, speak aright to Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha. (20)

एषोऽपि हि महाभागः पितुर्वचसि तिष्ठति।
अत एव न शक्ताः स्मो व्यावर्तयितुमञ्जसा॥ २१॥

“This highly blessed prince, Śrī Rāma, too sincerely abides by the command of his father. For this very reason we are, truly speaking, not easily able to divert him from his purpose.” (21)

तेषामाज्ञाय वचनं रामो वचनमब्रवीत्।
एवं निबोध वचनं सुहृदां धर्मचक्षुषाम्॥ २२॥

Hearing their submission Śrī Rāma addressed the following words to Bharata : “Listen to the foregoing words of our friends, who have their eyes fixed on what is right. (22)

एतच्चैवोभयं श्रुत्वा सम्यक् सम्पश्य राघव।
उत्तिष्ठ त्वं महाबाहो मां च स्पृश तथोदकम्॥ २३॥

“Nay, hearing both these utterances (mine as well as that of these people) weigh them fully, O scion of Raghu. Get you up, O mighty-armed prince, and touch water in order to sip it as well as myself as an indication of your resolve to break the vow that you have just taken.” (23)

अथोत्थाय जलं स्पृष्ट्वा भरतो वाक्यमब्रवीत्।
शृण्वन्तु मे परिषदो मन्त्रिणः शृणुयुस्तथा॥ २४॥

Getting up immediately and touching water, Bharata spoke as follows : “Let all the members of this assembly hear me. Let the king’s counsellors too listen. (24)

न याचे पितरं राज्यं नानुशासामि मातरम्।
एवं परमधर्मज्ञं नानुजानामि राघवम्॥ २५॥

“I never begged sovereignty of my father nor did I instruct my mother to do it on my behalf. Nor did I approve of this step of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), viz., that he should go into exile for fourteen years, he knows best what is right. (25)

यदि त्ववश्यं वस्तव्यं कर्तव्यं च पितुर्वचः।
अहमेव निवत्स्यामि चतुर्दश वने समाः॥ २६॥

“If the behest of our father must be carried out and if one must live in the forest at all events, I myself shall do so for a period of fourteen years.” (26)

धर्मात्मा तस्य सत्येन भ्रातुर्वाक्येन विस्मितः।

उवाच रामः सम्प्रेक्ष्य पौरजानपदं जनम्॥ २७॥
विक्रीतमाहितं क्रीतं यत् पित्रा जीवता मम।

न तल्लोपयितुं शक्यं मया वा भरतेन वा॥ २८॥

Fixing his gaze on the citizens of Ayodhyā as well as on the people of the countryside, Śrī Rāma, whose mind is set on righteousness and who felt astonished at the sincere vow of his aforesaid brother, said “The sale, deposit or purchase effected by our father while alive cannot be nullified either by me or even by Bharata. (27-28)

उपाधिर्न मया कार्यो वनवासे जुगुप्सितः।
युक्तमुक्तं च कैकेय्या पित्रा मे सुकृतं कृतम्॥ २९॥

“No proxy should be sent by me into exile in the woods; for that would be a matter for reproach, since a proxy is allowed only in case the man replaced by him is unable to discharge the obligation imposed on him. The demand of Kaikeyī was but reasonable inasmuch as it was based firstly on the stipulation made by the king while marrying Kaikeyī that a son born to her alone would succeed him on the throne, and secondly on the debt the former owed to her for the invaluable service rendered by her on the field of battle; and only a virtuous act was done by our father in granting the boons asked by her. (29)

जानामि भरतं क्षान्तं गुरुसत्कारकारिणम्।
सर्वमेवात्र कल्याणं सत्यसंधे महात्मनि ॥ ३० ॥

“I know Bharata to be forgiving by nature and fond of paying respects to his elders.

Indeed, all will be well with this high-souled prince, who is true to his promise. (30)

अनेन धर्मशीलेन वनात् प्रत्यागतः पुनः।
भ्रात्रा सह भविष्यामि पृथिव्याः पतिरुत्तमः ॥ ३१ ॥

“When returned from the forest I shall indeed become the paramount ruler of the earth with this pious brother of mine. (31)

वृत्तो राजा हि कैकेय्या मया तद्वचनं कृतम्।
अनृतान्मोचयानेन पितरं तं महीपतिम् ॥ ३२ ॥

“As the king was solicited for a boon by Kaikeyī, his pledge given to her has been implemented by me by being in exile in the forest. Now, acquit the said king, our father, of the charge of falsehood by ruling over Ayodhyā and thereby discharging your part of the obligation.” (32)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे

एकादशाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १११ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and eleven in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वादशाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXII

Collected in the heavens to hear the dialogue of Bharata and Śrī Rāma, heavenly beings applaud the two brothers. Having decided upon his course of action, Śrī Rāma turns his face towards his hut; while pleading his inability to protect the kingdom, now that his attempts to take Śrī Rāma back to Ayodhyā had been frustrated, Bharata prays to Śrī Rāma for mercy once more. But when he comes to know that his elder brother cannot be made to swerve an inch from his vow, he places a new pair of wooden sandals decked with gold in front of his brother and requests him to place his feet on them. Readily acceding to his request, Śrī Rāma hands over the sandals to Bharata, who takes a vow before the former to enter the fire in case he did not return immediately on the expiry of his term of exile. Śrī Rāma confirms his vow and after embracing Bharata and Śatrughna and bidding good-bye to all with due respect according to the rank of each, enters his cottage

तमप्रतिमतेजोभ्यां भ्रातृभ्यां रोमहर्षणम् ।
विस्मिताः संगमं प्रेक्ष्य समुपेता महर्षयः ॥ १ ॥

The eminent sages who had assembled there were astonished to behold at close quarters that thrilling meeting of the two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Bharata, who were endowed with matchless glory. (1)

अन्तर्हिता मुनिगणाः स्थिताश्च परमर्षयः ।
तौ भ्रातरौ महाभागौ काकुत्स्थौ प्रशशंसिरे ॥ २ ॥

Hosts of sages who stood invisible in the air and most eminent Ṛṣis bodily present there applauded in the following words those two highly blessed brothers, Śrī Rāma and Bharata, the scions of Kakutstha : (2)

सदायौ राजपुत्रौ द्वौ धर्मज्ञौ धर्मविक्रमौ ।
श्रुत्वा वयं हि सम्भाषामुभयोः स्पृहयामहे ॥ ३ ॥

“Ever noble are the two princes, Śrī Rāma and Bharata, who not only know what is right but also tread the path of virtue. Indeed, having heard the dialogue of the two, we long to hear it again and again.” (3)

ततस्त्वृषिगणाः क्षिप्रं दशग्रीववधैषिणः ।
भरतं राजशार्दूलमित्यूचुः संगता वचः ॥ ४ ॥

Then the hosts of Ṛṣis for their part, who longed for the death of Rāvaṇa, hastily addressed with one voice the following exhortation to Bharata, a tiger among princes : (4)

कुले जात महाप्राज्ञ महावृत्त महायशः ।
ग्राह्यं रामस्य वाक्यं ते पितरं यद्यवेक्षसे ॥ ५ ॥

“O prince of high birth, nay, endowed with exceptional intelligence, distinguished by a noble conduct and enjoying great renown, the advice of Śrī Rāma ought to be accepted by you, if you have the least regard for your father. (5)

सदानृणमिमं रामं वयमिच्छामहे पितुः ।
अनृणत्वाच्च कैकेय्याः स्वर्गं दशरथो गतः ॥ ६ ॥

“We wish to see Śrī Rāma absolved forever from all obligations to his father; for due to his getting square with Kaikeyī as a result of Śrī Rāma’s having readily offered to be in exile, King Daśaratha has ascended to heaven.” (6)

एतावदुक्त्वा वचनं गन्धर्वाः समहर्षयः ।
राजर्षयश्चैव तथा सर्वे स्वां स्वां गतिं गताः ॥ ७ ॥

Having uttered these few words, the Gandharvas alongwith the eminent sages as well as the royal sages and all others went each his own way. (7)

ह्लादितस्तेन वाक्येन शुशुभे शुभदर्शनः ।
रामः संहृष्टवदनस्तानृषीनभ्यपूजयत् ॥ ८ ॥

Gladdened by this observation, Śrī Rāma of blessed appearance looked brighter. Nay, his face thrilled with joy, he duly extolled the aforesaid Ṛsis. (8)

त्रस्तगात्रस्तु भरतः स वाचा सज्जमानया ।
कृताञ्जलिरीदं वाक्यं राघवं पुनरब्रवीत् ॥ ९ ॥

The celebrated Bharata for his part, whose limbs were seized with a tremor, made the following submission to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) with folded hands in faltering accents : (9)

राम धर्ममिमं प्रेक्ष्य कुलधर्मानुसंततम् ।
कर्तुमर्हसि काकुत्स्थ मम मातुश्च याचनाम् ॥ १० ॥

“Fully considering, O Rāma, this sacred obligation of getting yourself consecrated for the rulership of Ayodhyā and protecting the people, which is also linked with our family usage, you ought to fulfil it, O scion of Kakutstha, and grant my prayer as well as that of your mother, Kausalyā. (10)

रक्षितुं सुमहद् राज्यमहमेकस्तु नोत्सहे ।
पौरजानपदांश्चापि रक्तान् रञ्जयितुं तदा ॥ ११ ॥

“I for my part cannot protect the vast dominion single-handed, nor can I please the citizens and the people of the countryside, so devoted to you. (11)

ज्ञातयश्चापि योधाश्च मित्राणि सुहृदश्च नः ।
त्वामेव हि प्रतीक्षन्ते पर्जन्यमिव कर्षकाः ॥ १२ ॥

“Indeed our kinsmen, nay, warriors, friends and relations too wait for you alone as cultivators do for the rumbling cloud. (12)

इदं राज्यं महाप्राज्ञं स्थापय प्रतिपद्य हि ।
शक्तिमान् स हि काकुत्स्थ लोकस्य परिपालने ॥ १३ ॥

“Accepting the kingdom, O highly intelligent brother, actually place it on a sound footing. Such as you are, you are capable of protecting the people on all sides, O scion of Kakutstha !” (13)

एवमुक्त्वापतद् भ्रातुः पादयोर्भरतस्तदा ।
भृशं सम्प्रार्थयामास राघवेऽतिप्रियं वदन् ॥ १४ ॥

Saying so, Bharata then fell at the feet of his elder brother and made a fervent appeal to him to accept the sovereignty, speaking in most endearing tones to Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu. (14)

तमङ्गे भ्रातरं कृत्वा रामो वचनमब्रवीत् ।
श्यामं नलिनपत्राक्षं मत्तहंसस्वरः स्वयम् ॥ १५ ॥

Placing on his lap the aforesaid brother, Bharata, who was dark-brown of complexion and had eyes resembling the petals of a lotus, Śrī Rāma, who was himself endowed with a voice resembling the cackling of a swan in rut, replied to him as follows : (15)

आगता त्वामियं बुद्धिः स्वजा वैनयिकी च या ।
भृशमुत्सहसे तात रक्षितुं पृथिवीमपि ॥ १६ ॥

“You can very well protect even the earth, to say nothing of Ayodhyā, through this innate wisdom in the shape of under-estimation of your worth born of humility, that has dawned on you, my darling ! (16)

अमात्यैश्च सुहृद्भिश्च बुद्धिमद्भिश्च मन्त्रिभिः ।
सर्वकार्याणि सम्पन्न्य महान्त्यपि हि कारय ॥ १७ ॥

“Nay, coolly deliberating with your ministers, friends and wise counsellors too, get through even your major concerns. (17)

लक्ष्मीश्चन्द्रादपेयाद् वा हिमवान् वा हिमं त्यजेत् ।
अतीयात् सागरो वेलं न प्रतिज्ञामहं पितुः ॥ १८ ॥

“Splendour would sooner depart from the moon, nay, the Himalaya mountain would sooner shed its snow and the ocean would sooner transgress its limits than I shall violate the plighted word of my father.” (18)

कामाद् वा तात लोभाद् वा मात्रा तुभ्यमिदं कृतम् ।
न तन्मनसि कर्तव्यं वर्तितव्यं च मातृवत् ॥ १९ ॥

“No matter whether all this was wrought by your mother in your interest from affection for you or from greed of sovereignty through your installation as Prince-Regent, my darling, it should not be taken to heart by you and you should behave towards her as towards a mother.” (19)

एवं ब्रुवाणं भरतः कौसल्यासुतमब्रवीत् ।
तेजसाऽऽदित्यसंकाशं प्रतिपच्चन्द्रदर्शनम् ॥ २० ॥

To Śrī Rāma, the son of Kausalyā—who was speaking as aforesaid, nay, who vied with the sun in glory, and who was pleasing to the sight as the new moon appearing on the first day of a bright fortnight—Bharata replied as follows : (20)
अधिरोहार्य पादाभ्यां पादुके हेमभूषिते ।
एते हि सर्वलोकस्य योगक्षेमं विधास्यतः ॥ २१ ॥

“Pray, stand with your feet on the pair of wooden sandals embellished with gold placed before you, O noble brother ! Surely these will supply the needs and ensure the safety of men.” (21)

सोऽधिरुह्य नरव्याघ्रः पादुके व्यवमुच्य च ।
प्रायच्छत् सुमहातेजा भरताय महात्मने ॥ २२ ॥

Placing his feet on the sandals and immediately leaving them, Śrī Rāma, a tiger among men, who was endowed with exceptional glory, gave them to the high-souled Bharata. (22)

स पादुके सम्प्रणम्य रामं वचनमब्रवीत् ।
चतुर्दश हि वर्षाणि जटाचीरधरो ह्रहम् ॥ २३ ॥

फलमूलाशनो वीर भवेयं रघुनन्दन ।
तवागमनमाकांक्षन् वसन् वै नगराद् बहिः ॥ २४ ॥
तव पादुकयोर्न्यस्य राज्यतन्त्रं परंतप ।
चतुर्दशे हि सम्पूर्णे वर्षेऽहनि रघूत्तम ॥ २५ ॥
न द्रक्ष्यामि यदि त्वां तु प्रवेक्ष्यामि हुताशनम् ।
तथेति च प्रतिज्ञाय तं परिष्वज्य सादरम् ॥ २६ ॥
शत्रुघ्नं च परिष्वज्य वचनं चेदमब्रवीत् ।
मातरं रक्ष कैकेयीं मा रोषं कुरु तां प्रति ॥ २७ ॥

Reverentially bowing down to the wooden sandals, he spoke as follows to Śrī Rāma : “Indeed, having relegated the burden of rulership to the wooden sandals, O gallant brother, I should like to live on fruits and roots alone for fourteen years, O delight of the Raghus, wearing matted locks on my head and the bark of trees on my person and actually dwelling outside the city, longing for your return to the capital, O scorcher of enemies ! If, however, when the fourteenth year of your exile has fully ended, O jewel among the Raghus, I do not see you returned to Ayodhyā, the following day, I for my part shall enter the fire once for all.” Giving his approval in the words “So be it !” and embracing Bharata with love, nay, embracing Śatrughna as well, Śrī Rāma spoke as follows : “Take care of mother Kaikeyī; be not angry with her.” (23—27)

मया च सीतया चैव शप्तोऽसि रघुनन्दन ।
इत्युक्त्वाश्रुपरीताक्षो भ्रातरं विससर्ज ह ॥ २८ ॥

“You are hereby adjured to do so by me as well as by Sītā, O delight of the Raghus !” Saying so, his eyes suffused with tears, Śrī Rāma bade good-bye to Bharata. (28)

स पादुके ते भरतः स्वलंकृते
महोज्ज्वले सम्प्रिगृह्य धर्मवित् ।
प्रदक्षिणं चैव चकार राघवं
चकार चैवोत्तमनागमूर्धनि ॥ २९ ॥

Receiving with reverence the aforesaid pair of exceedingly bright-ornate wooden sandals, the celebrated Bharata, who knew what is right, went clockwise round Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, and further placed the pair of sandals on the head of an excellent elephant. (29)

अथानुपूर्व्या प्रतिपूज्य तं जनं
गुरुंश्च मन्त्रीन् प्रकृतीस्तथानुजौ ।
व्यसर्जयद् राघववंशवर्धनः
स्थितः स्वधर्मे हिमवानिवाचलः ॥ ३० ॥

Then, paying respects in the order of precedence to all those men who had gathered there as well as to his preceptors, counsellors, subjects and two younger brothers, Bharata and Śatrughna, who were going to Ayodhyā, Śrī Rāma, the promoter of Raghu's race, who stood by his duty unshaken like the Himalaya mountain, bade them goodbye. (30)

तं मातरो बाष्पगृहीतकण्ठ्यो
दुःखेन नामन्त्रयितुं हि शेकुः ।
स चैव मातृरभिवाद्य सर्वा
रुदन् कुटीं स्वां प्रविवेश रामः ॥ ३१ ॥

His mothers, whose throat was choked with tears through agony, could not even speak to him. Greeting all his mothers, the celebrated Śrī Rāma too re-entered his hut weeping. (31)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे
द्वादशाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ ११२ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and twelve in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रयोदशाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXIII

Departed back for Ayodhyā alongwith Sage Vasiṣṭha and others, Bharata pays his respects on the way to Sage Bharadwāja and, apprising him of what had happened at Citrakūṭa and also of the pair of wooden sandals that he had received from Śrī Rāma as the latter's representative, and proceeding further, crosses the rivers Gaṅgā and Yamunā alongwith his followers. Departing from Śrīngaverapura, he catches sight of Ayodhyā and points out to Sumantra its gloomy appearance

ततः शिरसि कृत्वा तु पादुके भरतस्तदा । आरुरोह रथं हृष्टः शत्रुघ्नसहितस्तदा ॥ १ ॥

Then, placing the pair of wooden sandals on his head, Bharata for his part, full of joy and accompanied by Śatrughna, forthwith ascended the chariot. (1)

वसिष्ठो वामदेवश्च जाबालिश्च दृढव्रतः ।
अग्रतः प्रययुः सर्वे मन्त्रिणो मन्त्रपूजिताः ॥ २ ॥

The counsellors, Vasiṣṭha and Vāmadeva and Jābāli of steadfast vows and all others, adored for their sage counsel, travelled in the forefront. (2)

मन्दाकिनीं नदीं रम्यां प्राङ्मुखास्ते ययुस्तदा ।
प्रदक्षिणं च कुर्वाणाश्चित्रकूटं महागिरिम् ॥ ३ ॥

Keeping the lovely river Mandākinī and the great Citrakūṭa mountain to their right they then departed with their face turned towards the east. (3)

पश्यन् धातुसहस्राणि रम्याणि विविधानि च ।
प्रययौ तस्य पार्श्वेन ससैन्यो भरतस्तदा ॥ ४ ॥

Seeing on the way thousands of minerals of every description, which were charming too, Bharata, accompanied by his army, now proceeded along the (northern) side of the aforesaid mountain. (4)

अदूराच्चित्रकूटस्य ददर्श भरतस्तदा ।
आश्रमं यत्र स मुनिर्भरद्वाजः कृतालयः ॥ ५ ॥

Not far from Citrakūṭa. Bharata now beheld the hermitage in which Sage Bharadwāja had taken up his abode.* (5)

स तमाश्रममागम्य भरद्वाजस्य वीर्यवान् ।
अवतीर्य रथात् पादौ ववन्दे कुलनन्दनः ॥ ६ ॥

Reaching the said hermitage of Bharadwāja and alighting from his chariot, the valiant Bharata, the delight of his race, saluted the sage's feet. (6)

ततो हृष्टो भरद्वाजो भरतं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
अपि कृत्यं कृतं तात रामेण च समागतम् ॥ ७ ॥

Full of delight, Bharadwāja thereupon spoke to Bharata as follows : “Did you meet Śrī Rāma, my darling, and has your purpose been accomplished?” (7)

एवमुक्तः स तु ततो भरद्वाजेन धीमता ।
प्रत्युवाच भरद्वाजं भरतो धर्मवत्सलः ॥ ८ ॥

Questioned thus by the wise Bharadwāja, the celebrated Bharata for his part, who was lovingly devoted to righteousness, then replied to Bharadwāja as follows : (8)

स याच्यमानो गुरुणा मया च दृढविक्रमः ।
राघवः परमप्रीतो वसिष्ठं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ९ ॥

“Supremely delighted on being solicited by my preceptor and myself to return to Ayodhyā, the celebrated Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, of unrelenting prowess replied to Vasiṣṭha as follows : (9)

पितुः प्रतिज्ञां तामेव पालयिष्यामि तत्त्वतः ।
चतुर्दश हि वर्षाणि या प्रतिज्ञा पितुर्मम ॥ १० ॥

“I shall without doubt unequivocally implement that pledge of my father given to my mother Kaikeyī, which was to the effect that I should actually remain in exile for fourteen years.’ (10)

एवमुक्तो महाप्राज्ञो वसिष्ठः प्रत्युवाच ह ।
वाक्यज्ञो वाक्यकुशलं राघवं वचनं महत् ॥ ११ ॥

“Spoken to as aforesaid, the highly enlightened Vasiṣṭha, who knows how to speak, actually addressed the following momentous words to Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, who is an adept in expression : (11)

एते प्रयच्छ संहृष्टः पादुके हेमभूषिते ।
अयोध्यायां महाप्राज्ञ योगक्षेमकरो भव ॥ १२ ॥

“Full of great delight, please gift these wooden sandals decked with gold to Bharata. Existing in the form of these sandals, supply the needs of the people in Ayodhyā and safeguard their interests, O highly intelligent prince !’ (12)

एवमुक्तो वसिष्ठेन राघवः प्राङ्मुखः स्थितः ।
पादुके हेमविकृते मम राज्याय ते ददौ ॥ १३ ॥

“Requested in these words by Vasiṣṭha, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) stood on the sandals facing the east and allowed me to take the aforesaid pair of wooden sandals, adorned with gold, for carrying on the rule (on his behalf). (13)

निवृत्तोऽहमनुज्ञातो रामेण सुमहात्मना ।
अयोध्यामेव गच्छामि गृहीत्वा पादुके शुभे ॥ १४ ॥

* From the above verse it transpires that there existed in those times a hermitage of Sage Bharadwāja on the southern bank of the Yamunā as well, not far away from Citrakūṭa. The hermitage existing between the Gaṅgā and Yamunā rivers, where Śrī Rāma and his party halted and where Bharata and his entourage were sumptuously entertained appears to be different from that referred to here. The fact of Bharata and his followers having crossed the Yamunā after taking leave of Bharadwāja (mentioned in verse 21 below) seems to warrant this conclusion. The sage must in all probability have shifted since to the former place in order to keep himself in touch with what was going on at Citrakūṭa.

“Departed, as permitted by the exceptionally high-souled Śrī Rāma, I am returning to Ayodhyā itself taking the blessed pair of sandals with me.” (14)

एतच्छ्रुत्वा शुभं वाक्यं भरतस्य महात्मनः ।

भरद्वाजः शुभतरं मुनिर्वाक्यमुदाहरत् ॥ १५ ॥

Hearing this happy report of the high-souled Bharata, Sage Bharadwāja made the following reply, which was still more agreeable to hear : (15)

नैतच्चित्रं नरव्याघ्रे शीलवृत्तविदां वरे ।

यदार्यं त्वयि तिष्ठेत्तु निम्नोत्सृष्टमिवोदकम् ॥ १६ ॥

“It is no wonder that, even as water discharged from above collects into a depression, noble conduct for its part should find its place in you, a tiger among men and the foremost of those who know how to behave well and conduct themselves with propriety. (16)

अनृणः स महाबाहुः पिता दशरथस्तव ।

यस्य त्वमीदृशः पुत्रो धर्मात्मा धर्मवत्सलः ॥ १७ ॥

“Free from all debt is your mighty-armed father, the celebrated Daśaratha, of whom was born such a pious son as you, fondly devoted to virtue.” (17)

तमृषिं तु महाप्राज्ञमुक्तवाक्यं कृताञ्जलिः ।

आमन्त्रयितुमारेभे चरणावुपगृह्य च ॥ १८ ॥

Bharata for his part stood with folded hands before the highly wise Ṛṣi, Sage Bharadwāja, who had spoken as above, and clasping his feet, proceeded to take leave of him. (18)

ततः प्रदक्षिणं कृत्वा भरद्वाजं पुनः पुनः ।

भरतस्तु ययौ श्रीमानयोध्यां सह मन्त्रिभिः ॥ १९ ॥

Going clockwise round Bharadwāja as a mark of respect, again and again, the glorious Bharata for his part then left for Ayodhyā alongwith his counsellors. (19)

यानैश्च शकटैश्चैव हयैर्नागैश्च सा चमूः ।

पुनर्निवृत्ता विस्तीर्णा भरतस्यानुयायिनी ॥ २० ॥

That large army following Bharata returned along the same route on chariots and bullock-carts as well as on horseback and on the back of elephants. (20)

ततस्ते यमुनां दिव्यां नदीं तीर्त्वा मालिनीम् ।

ददृशुस्तां पुनः सर्वे गङ्गां शिवजलां नदीम् ॥ २१ ॥

Having crossed the divine river, Yamunā, adorned with a succession of waves, they all then beheld once more the river Gaṅgā, containing holy waters. (21)

तां रम्यजलसम्पूर्णां संतीर्य सहबान्धवः ।

शृङ्गवेरपुरं रम्यं प्रविवेश ससैनिकः ॥ २२ ॥

Having easily crossed with his kinsfolk the aforesaid river, which was brimful with delightful waters, Bharata, with his army men, duly entered the lovely town of Śrngaverapura. (22)

शृङ्गवेरपुराद् भूय अयोध्यां संददर्श ह ।

अयोध्यां तु तदा दृष्ट्वा पित्रा भ्रात्रा विवर्जिताम् ॥ २३ ॥

भरतो दुःखसंतप्तः सारथिं चेदमब्रवीत् ।

सारथे पश्य विध्वस्ता अयोध्या न प्रकाशते ॥ २४ ॥

निराकारा निरानन्दा दीना प्रतिहतस्वना ॥ २५ ॥

Proceeding from Śrngaverapura he vividly saw Ayodhyā once more: so the tradition goes. Seeing Ayodhyā deserted by his father and elder brother, Śrī Rāma, Bharata for his part felt sore stricken with agony at that moment and spoke as follows to the charioteer Sumantra : “Look, O charioteer ! Desolate and shorn of its grace, bereft of joy, wretched and lifeless, Ayodhyā does not look bright as before.” (23—25)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे त्रयोदशाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ ११३ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and thirteen in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्दशाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXIV

Vālmīki portrays the gloomy appearance of Ayodhyā with the help of a number of similes. Bharata enters his father's palace with a heavy heart, speaking to Sumantra about the sorry spectacle which Ayodhyā presented at the moment

स्निग्धगम्भीरघोषेण स्यन्दनेनोपयान् प्रभुः ।
अयोध्यां भरतः क्षिप्रं प्रविवेश महायशाः ॥ १ ॥

Journeying forth in a chariot which produced an agreeable deep sound, the powerful and highly illustrious Bharata duly entered Ayodhyā in no time. (1)

बिडालोलूकचरितामालीननरवारणाम् ।
तिमिराभ्याहतां कालीमप्रकाशां निशामिव ॥ २ ॥

Haunted by cats and owls, obscured by darkness and devoid of light, with the house doors of its men closed, the city presented the appearance of a dark night. (2)

राहुशत्रोः प्रियां पत्नीं श्रिया प्रज्वलितप्रभाम् ।
ग्रहेणाभ्युदितेनैकां रोहिणीमिव पीडिताम् ॥ ३ ॥

It looked desolate like Rohiṇī, the beloved consort of the moon-god (treated as an enemy by the demon Rāhu*), tormented in the form of her spouse whose better half she is by the planet Rāhu in the ascendant, though ordinarily invested with an exceedingly bright splendour by virtue of her glory. (3)

अल्पोष्णाक्षुब्धसलिलां घर्मतप्तविहंगमाम् ।
लीनमीनझषग्राहां कृशां गिरिनीमिव ॥ ४ ॥

It further looked attenuated like a mountain-stream whose scanty waters had become hot and agitated due to the rays of the sun, birds living in which were scorched

by the sun and whose fish, small and big, and alligators had disappeared into the mire. (4)

विधूमासिन्व हेमाभां शिखामग्रेः समुत्थिताम् ।
हविरभ्युक्षितां पश्चाच्छिखां विप्रलयं गताम् ॥ ५ ॥

It resembled a fully developed tongue of fire, devoid of smoke and bright as gold, later reduced to extinction when sprinkled all over with milk. (5)

विध्वस्तकवचां रुग्णगजवाजिरथध्वजाम् ।
हतप्रवीरामापत्रां चमूमिव महाहवे ॥ ६ ॥

It looked like an army which had met with reverses in a major conflict—whose armours had been shattered, whose ensigns borne on elephants, horses and chariots had been torn and whose foremost heroes had been killed. (6)

सफेनां सस्वनां भूत्वा सागरस्य समुत्थिताम् ।
प्रशान्तमारुतोद्भूतां जलोर्मिमिव निःस्वनाम् ॥ ७ ॥

It presented the appearance of an oceanic wave which, though tossed very high by a strong gale with foam and a roar, is rendered noiseless when stirred by a quiet wind. (7)

त्यक्तां यज्ञायुधैः सर्वैरभिरूपैश्च याजकैः ।
सुत्याकाले सुनिर्वृत्ते वेदिं गतरवामिव ॥ ८ ॥

It resembled an altar which, when the period of offering oblations into the sacred fire has completely expired, has been cleared

* The demon presiding over a planet of the same name figuring in Indian astronomy and identified by modern astronomy with the shadow of the earth cast on the orb of the moon during what is known as a lunar eclipse.

of all sacrificial implements and deserted by the learned priests, and where all sound has consequently ceased. (8)

गोष्ठमध्ये स्थितामार्तामचरन्तीं नवं तृणम्।
गोवृषेण परित्यक्तां गवां पत्नीमिवोत्सुकाम् ॥ १॥

It looked like a cow fit to be coveted by bulls and longing for copulation but bereft of an excellent bull and standing disconsolate in a cow-pen, refusing to feed on fresh grass. (9)

प्रभाकराद्यैः सुस्निग्धैः प्रज्वलद्भिरिवोत्तमैः।
वियुक्तां मणिभिर्जात्यैर्नवां मुक्तावलीमिव ॥ १० ॥

It further resembled a new necklace of pearls stripped of its highly polished, dazzling, excellent rubies and other gems of superior quality. (10)

सहसाचरितां स्थानान्महीं पुण्यक्षयाद् गताम्।
संहतद्युतिविस्तारां तारामिव दिवश्च्युताम् ॥ ११ ॥

Again, it presented the appearance of a meteor suddenly shifted from its position and fallen from the heavens, and consequently shorn of its expanse of light when descended on earth through exhaustion of its merit. (11)

पुष्पनद्धां वसन्तान्ते मत्तध्रमरशालिनीम्।
द्रुतदावाग्निविप्लुष्टां क्लान्तां वनलतामिव ॥ १२ ॥

It further looked blighted in appearance like a forest creeper laden with blossom at the close of spring and appearing lovely with drunken bees surrounding it but later on scorched by a raging wild fire. (12)

सम्पूढनिगमां सर्वा संक्षिप्तविपणापणाम्।
प्रच्छन्नशशिनक्षत्रां द्यामिवाम्बुधरैर्युताम् ॥ १३ ॥

The entire city with its trafficless streets and markets carrying on a dull business resembled a cloudy sky with the moon and other stars obscured. (13)

क्षीणपानोत्तमैर्भग्नैः शरावैरभिसंवृताम्।
हतशौण्डामिव ध्वस्तां पानभूमिमसंस्कृताम् ॥ १४ ॥

With its streets and lanes unswept and full of rubbish, Ayodhyā presented the appearance of a deserted and uncleaned tavern strewn with broken vessels devoid of any excellent liquor, the wine-drinkers having been killed. (14)

वृक्णभूमितलां निघ्नां वृक्णपात्रैः समावृताम्।
उपयुक्तोदकां भग्नां प्रपां निपतितामिव ॥ १५ ॥

Again it looked like a shed erected for storage and distribution of water, but now broken and collapsed with its platform razed and sunk, and covered with broken vessels, its water having been used up. (15)

विपुलां विततां चैव युक्तपाशां तरस्विनाम्।
भूमौ बाणैर्विनिष्कृतां पतितां ज्यामिवायुधात् ॥ १६ ॥

It further resembled a bow-string, broad and long (extended over the entire length of a bow) with a noose at both ends in order to fasten it to the bow, severed from the bow by the arrows of heroes and fallen to the ground. (16)

सहसा युद्धशौण्डेन हयारोहेण वाहिताम्।
निहतां प्रतिसैन्येन वडवामिव पातिताम् ॥ १७ ॥

It further resembled a mare spurred on precipitately by a horseman, skilled in warfare, and fallen down when killed by the opposite army. (17)

भरतस्तु रथस्थः सन् श्रीमान् दशरथात्मजः।
वाहयन्तं रथश्रेष्ठं सारथिं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ १८ ॥

Seated in his chariot, the glorious Bharata, son of Daśaratha, for his part, spoke as follows to the charioteer, Sumantra, who was driving the foremost of the king's chariot : (18)

किं नु खल्वद्य गम्भीरो मूर्च्छितो न निशाम्यते।
यथापुरमयोध्यायां गीतवादित्रनिःस्वनः ॥ १९ ॥

“How is it, I wonder, that the deep and resonant sound of vocal and instrumental music is not heard as before in Ayodhyā today? (19)

वारुणीमदगन्धश्च माल्यगन्धश्च मूर्च्छितः।
चन्दनागुरुगन्धश्च न प्रवाति समन्ततः ॥ २० ॥

“The intoxicating fragrance of spirituous liquor, the scent of flowers and the odour of sandalwood and aloewood, which once used to be spread on all sides, is not being wafted. (20)

यानप्रवरघोषश्च सुस्निग्धहयनिःस्वनः ।
प्रमत्तगजनादश्च महंश्च रथनिःस्वनः ॥ २१ ॥
नेदानीं श्रूयते पुर्यामस्यां रामे विवासिते ।
चन्दनागुरुगन्धांश्च महार्हाश्च वनस्रजः ॥ २२ ॥
गते रामे हि तरुणाः संतप्ता नोपभुञ्जते ।
बहिर्यात्रां न गच्छन्ति चित्रमाल्यधरा नराः ॥ २३ ॥

“Śrī Rāma having been sent into exile, neither the noise of the foremost of chariots nor the most delightful neighing of horses, neither the trumpeting of highly excited elephants nor the great noise of chariots is heard in this city now. Sore distressed on Śrī Rāma having departed from Ayodhyā, indeed, young men here no longer use the paste of aloewood and sandalwood nor costly garlands of sylvan flowers to cool their body with; nor do men go out for excursion wearing wreaths of various flowers. (21—23)

नोत्सवाः सम्प्रवर्तन्ते रामशोकार्दिते पुरे ।
सा हि नूनं मम भ्रात्रा पुरस्यास्य द्युतिर्गता ॥ २४ ॥

“Festivities no longer duly proceed in the capital, stricken, as it is, with grief caused by separation from Śrī Rāma; the former splendour of this city has, truly speaking, undoubtedly departed with my elder brother, Śrī Rāma. (24)

नहि राजत्ययोध्येयं सासारेवार्जुनी क्षपा ।
कदा नु खलु मे भ्राता महोत्सव इवागतः ॥ २५ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे चतुर्दशाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ ११४ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and fourteen in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

जनयिष्यत्ययोध्यायां हर्षं ग्रीष्म इवाम्बुदः ।
तरुणैश्चारुवेषैश्च नरैरुन्नतगामिभिः ॥ २६ ॥
सम्पतद्भिरयोध्यायां नाभिभान्ति महापथाः ।
इति ब्रुवन् सारथिना दुःखितो भरतस्तदा ॥ २७ ॥
अयोध्यां सम्प्रविश्यैव विवेश वसतिं पितुः ।
तेन हीनां नरेन्द्रेण सिंहहीनां गुहामिव ॥ २८ ॥

“This Ayodhyā, with tears flowing from the eyes of its citizens, does not look charming any more than the night of a bright fortnight, with a continuous shower. Oh, when will my elder brother, returned to Ayodhyā like a great festival, bring forth joy in Ayodhyā like a rainy cloud in summer? The highways no longer shine forth with youngmen, clad in an attractive garb and walking with a proud gait, pouring into Ayodhyā from outside.” Immediately on penetrating into the heart of Ayodhyā, Bharata, who was talking in the above strain with his charioteer, Sumantra, at that time, stricken as he was with agony, entered his father’s palace, which looked desolate like a cave without a lion, bereft as it was of that ruler of men. (25—28)

तदा तदन्तःपुरमुज्झितप्रभं
सुरैरिवोत्कृष्टमभास्करं दिनम् ।
निरीक्ष्य सर्वत्र विभक्तमात्मवान्
मुमोच बाष्पं भरतः सुदुःखितः ॥ २९ ॥

Sore distressed to gaze at that moment on the well-known gynaeceum—which, having shed its splendour, resembled a day without the sun, bewailed by gods*, and was untidy everywhere, Bharata, who though self-possessed, shed tears. (29)

* The commentators refer here to a story in the Purāṇas, according to which, in the course of the great conflict between gods and demons the former lost ground and the sun-god was thrown down by Rāhu. This was followed by a chaos in the universe, when there was no division of days and nights. The gods approached Brahmā, who appointed Sage Atri to officiate for the sun-god for a week. One of these days of chaos is referred to here as a day without the sun, deplored by gods.

पञ्चदशाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXV

Permitted by Vasiṣṭha and accompanied by Śatrughna and others, when the queens had entered the gynaeceum, Bharata proceeds to Nandigrāma and, installing the wooden sandals of Śrī Rāma on the royal seat, himself puts on the garb of an ascetic and carries on the rule under orders ascribed to the sandals, holding the royal umbrella over them

ततो निक्षिप्य मातृस्ता अयोध्यायां दृढव्रतः ।
भरतः शोकसंतप्तो गुरुनिदमथाब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Having brought his celebrated mothers back to Ayodhyā, Bharata of steadfast vows, sore stricken with grief as he was, then submitted to his preceptors (Vasiṣṭha, Vāmadeva and others) forthwith as follows :

नन्दिग्रामं गमिष्यामि सर्वानामन्त्रयेऽत्र वः ।
तत्र दुःखमिदं सर्वं सहिष्ये राघवं विना ॥ २ ॥

“I take leave of you all here: I shall at once proceed to Nandigrāma. Bereft of Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, I shall endure all this suffering there.

गतश्चाहो दिवं राजा वनस्थः स गुरुर्मम ।
रामं प्रतीक्षे राज्याय स हि राजा महायशः ॥ ३ ॥

“Alas, the king has ascended to heaven and that elder brother of mine has taken up his abode in the forest. I look forward to Śrī Rāma to take care of the kingdom; for he is the highly illustrious ruler of Ayodhyā.”

एतच्छ्रुत्वा शुभं वाक्यं भरतस्य महात्मनः ।
अब्रुवन् मन्त्रिणः सर्वे वसिष्ठश्च पुरोहितः ॥ ४ ॥

Hearing this blessed utterance of the high-souled Bharata, all his counsellors as well as Vasiṣṭha, the chief family-priest, replied as follows :

सुभृशं श्लाघनीयं च यदुक्तं भरत त्वया ।
वचनं भ्रातृवात्सल्यादनु रूपं तवैव तत् ॥ ५ ॥

“The statement that has been made by you through loving devotion to your elder brother is extremely laudable; nay, it is worthy of you alone.

नित्यं ते बन्धुलुब्धस्य तिष्ठतो भ्रातृसौहृदे ।
मार्गमार्थं प्रपन्नस्य नानुमन्येत कः पुमान् ॥ ६ ॥

“What man would not approve of the resolution of Your Royal Highness, who are ever covetous of the welfare of your kinsmen and are steadfast in your affection for your brothers, nay, who have taken to the noble path, the path of virtue?”

मन्त्रिणां वचनं श्रुत्वा यथाभिलषितं प्रियम् ।
अब्रवीत् सारथिं वाक्यं रथो मे युज्यतामिति ॥ ७ ॥

Hearing the agreeable reply of the counsellors, which was in consonance with his desire, Bharata spoke as follows to the charioteer, Sumantra : “Let my chariot be got ready !”

प्रहृष्टवदनः सर्वा मातृः समभिभाष्य च ।
आरुरोह रथं श्रीमान्शत्रुघ्नेन समन्वितः ॥ ८ ॥

Having spoken kindly with a most cheerful countenance, to all his mothers and accompanied by Śatrughna, the glorious prince got into the chariot.

आरुह्य तु रथं क्षिप्रं शत्रुघ्नभरतावुभौ ।
ययतुः परमप्रीतौ वृतौ मन्त्रिपुरोहितैः ॥ ९ ॥

Mounting the chariot, supremely delighted and surrounded by the counsellors and family priests, both Bharata and Śatrughna for their part quickly departed.

अग्रतो गुरवः सर्वे वसिष्ठप्रमुखा द्विजाः ।
प्रययुः प्राङ्मुखाः सर्वे नन्दिग्रामो यतो भवेत् ॥ १० ॥

All the preceptors, headed by Vasiṣṭha, and other Brāhmaṇas being in the forefront, all proceeded with their face turned eastward on the path by which Nandigrāma could be reached. (10)

बलं च तदनाहूतं गजाश्चरथसंकुलम्।
प्रययौ भरते याते सर्वे च पुरवासिनः॥ ११॥

When Bharata had left, the army too, full of elephants, horses and chariots, marched, though not called by Bharata, as well as the citizens. (11)

रथस्थः स तु धर्मात्मा भरतो भ्रातृवत्सलः।
नन्दिग्रामं ययौ तूर्णं शिरस्यादाय पादुके॥ १२॥

Seated in his chariot, the celebrated Bharata, for his part, whose mind was given to piety and who was so lovingly devoted to his elder brother, drove fast to Nandigrāma, taking the pair of wooden sandals on his head. (12)

भरतस्तु ततः क्षिप्रं नन्दिग्रामं प्रविश्य सः।
अवतीर्य रथात् तूर्णं गुरुनिदमभाषत॥ १३॥

Having speedily entered Nandigrāma and quickly alighting from his chariot, the said Bharata for his part then submitted to his preceptors as follows : (13)

एतद् राज्यं मम भ्रात्रा दत्तं संन्यासमुत्तमम्।
योगक्षेमवहे चेमे पादुके हेमभूषिते॥ १४॥

"This kingdom has been given to me by my elder brother, Śrī Rāma, as a foremost sacred trust, as well as these wooden sandals decked with gold, which will supply all our needs and bring security to us." (14)

भरतः शिरसा कृत्वा संन्यासं पादुके ततः।
अब्रवीद् दुःखसंतप्तः सर्वं प्रकृतिमण्डलम्॥ १५॥

Having dedicated the sacred trust to the pair of wooden sandals with his head bent low, Bharata, who was sore stricken with agony, then spoke as follows to the entire body of his ministers : (15)

छत्रं धारयत क्षिप्रमार्यपादाविमौ मतौ।
आभ्यां राज्ये स्थितो धर्मः पादुकाभ्यां गुरोर्मम॥ १६॥

"Hold the royal umbrella over these sandals; they are considered by me to be as good as the feet of my elder brother. By these wooden sandals of my elder brother will righteousness be established in the kingdom. (16)

भ्रात्रा तु मयि संन्यासो निक्षिप्तः सौहृदादयम्।
तमिमं पालयिष्यामि राघवागमनं प्रति॥ १७॥

"From affection alone has this sacred trust been committed to my charge by my elder brother. I shall keep this aforesaid trust till the return of Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu. (17)

क्षिप्रं संयोजयित्वा तु राघवस्य पुनः स्वयम्।
चरणौ तौ तु रामस्य द्रक्ष्यामि सहपादुकौ॥ १८॥

"Having undoubtedly restored these wooden sandals to Śrī Rāma's feet immediately on his return to the capital myself, I for my part shall behold those feet placed on the wooden sandals. (18)

ततो निक्षिप्तभारोऽहं राघवेण समागतः।
निवेद्य गुरवे राज्यं भजिष्ये गुरुवर्तिताम्॥ १९॥

"Having restored the kingdom to my elder brother, when re-united with Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, and thereby laid down the burden of responsibility, I shall then assume the role of a servant of my elder brother. (19)

राघवाय च संन्यासं दत्त्वेमे वरपादुके।
राज्यं चेदमयोध्यां च धूतपापो भवाम्यहम्॥ २०॥

"Nay, having given back to Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, this kingdom, held as a trust till then, as well as the city of Ayodhyā and the pair of excellent wooden sandals, I shall have shaken off the stigma of having been instrumental in bringing about the exile of my elder brother. (20)

अभिषिक्ते तु काकुत्स्थे प्रहृष्टमुदिते जने।
प्रीतिर्मम यशश्चैव भवेद् राज्याच्चतुर्गुणम्॥ २१॥

"After Śrī Rama, descendant of the Kakutstha lineage, is coronated on the throne and the subjects are blissfully happy, it will give me fourfold more fame and happiness than that from having obtained the kingdom.”

(21)

एवं तु विलपन् दीनो भरतः स महायशाः ।
नन्दिग्रामेऽकरोद् राज्यं दुःखितो मन्त्रिभिः सह ॥ २२ ॥

Lamenting this way the dispirited Bharata of great fame, even though sad, looked after the state administration alongwith the council of ministers from Nandigrāma. (22)

स वल्कलजटाधारी मुनिवेषधरः प्रभुः ।
नन्दिग्रामेऽवसद् धीरः ससैन्यो भरतस्तदा ॥ २३ ॥

Wearing the bark of trees on his person and matted locks on his head and thus assuming the garb of an ascetic, the said powerful and wise Bharata then lived at Nandigrāma with the army; (23)

रामागमनमाकांक्षन् भरतो भ्रातृवत्सलः ।
भ्रातृवचनकारी च प्रतिज्ञापारगस्तदा ।
पादुके त्वभिषिच्याथ नन्दिग्रामेऽवसत् तदा ॥ २४ ॥

Bharata, obedient to his elder brother, fulfiller of his vows, lover of his brothers, wishing always the return of Śrī Rāma, lived in Nandigrāma after coronating the wooden-sandals on the throne. (24)

सवालव्यजनं छत्रं धारयामास स स्वयम् ।
भरतः शासनं सर्वं पादुकाभ्यां निवेदयन् ॥ २५ ॥

Committing the whole administration to the care of the wooden sandals, the celebrated Bharata himself held the royal umbrella alongwith the Chowrie over them as a mark of respect. (25)

ततस्तु भरतः श्रीमानभिषिचार्यपादुके ।
तदधीनस्तदा राज्यं कारयामास सर्वदा ॥ २६ ॥

Having then consecrated the wooden sandals of his elder brother on the throne of Ayodhyā, the glorious Bharata for his part now carried on the rule, being always subordinate to them. (26)

तदा हि यत् कार्यमुपैति किञ्चि- दुपायनं चोपहृतं महार्हम् ।
स पादुकाभ्यां प्रथमं निवेद्य
चकार पश्चाद् भरतो यथावत् ॥ २७ ॥

Submitting in the first instance to the wooden sandals whatever affair of the State came up before him, nay, whatever highly valuable present was offered to the State, the said Bharata dealt with it in the proper way afterwards. (27)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे
पञ्चदशाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ ११५ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and fifteen in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षोडशाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXVI

Learning from outward signs that the ascetics who lived in the vicinity of Śrī Rāma were anxious to shift to some other forest, the latter asks them why they wished to leave the place. Being told in reply that they were being molested by Rākṣasas under the leadership of Khara, he gives his consent and, sending them away with great respect, retires to his own hermitage

प्रतियाते तु भरते वसन् रामस्तदा वने ।
लक्षयामास सोद्वेगमथौत्सुक्यं तपस्विनाम् ॥ १ ॥

Living in the forest when Bharata had returned to Ayodhyā, Śrī Rāma for his part forthwith noticed during that period anxiety accompanied by perturbation among the ascetics. (1)

ये तत्र चित्रकूटस्य पुरस्तात् तापसाश्रमे ।
राममाश्रित्य निरतास्तानलक्षयदुत्सुकान् ॥ २ ॥

He perceived the ascetics, who looked formerly quite pleased in that hermitage at Citrakūṭa, depending, as they did, on Śrī Rāma, anxious. (2)

नयनैर्भुकुटीभिश्च रामं निर्दिश्य शङ्किताः ।
अन्योन्यमुपजल्पन्तः शनैश्चकुर्मिथः कथाः ॥ ३ ॥

Making references to Śrī Rāma through the movements of their eyes and eyebrows and calling one another, full of misgiving, they whispered among themselves. (3)

तेषामौत्सुक्यमालक्ष्य रामस्त्वात्मनि शङ्कितः ।
कृताञ्जलिरुवाचेदमृषिं कुलपतिं ततः ॥ ४ ॥

Perceiving their anxiety, Śrī Rāma was filled with apprehension about himself and accordingly submitted with folded hands as follows to the Ṛṣi (a seer of Vedic Mantras) who presided over the hermitage : (4)

न कश्चिद् भगवन् किञ्चित् पूर्ववृत्तमिदं मयि ।
दृश्यते विकृतं येन विक्रियन्ते तपस्विनः ॥ ५ ॥

"I fear, O venerable sir, the conduct of my forefathers is not seen in me here, or there is some change for the worse in me, due to which the ascetics feel agitated. (5)

प्रमादाच्चरितं किञ्चित् कच्चिन्नावरजस्य मे ।
लक्ष्मणस्यर्षिभिर्दृष्टं नानुरूपं महात्मनः ॥ ६ ॥

"I hope no lapse, unbecoming of an exalted soul, on the part of my younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, has been detected by the sages. (6)

कच्चिच्छुश्रूषमाणा वः शुश्रूषणपरा मयि ।
प्रमदाभ्युचितां वृत्तिं सीता युक्तां न वर्तते ॥ ७ ॥

"While attending on you, Sītā, who remains solely devoted to my service, does not, I am afraid, follow the conduct wholly worthy of a young lady and showing due respect to you." (7)

अथर्षिर्जरया वृद्धस्तपसा च जरां गतः ।
वेपमान इवोवाच रामं भूतदयापरम् ॥ ८ ॥

The Ṛṣi, who was not only worn out from age but had also attained ripeness through askesis, replied as follows, as though quaking, to Śrī Rāma, who regarded compassion for created beings as the highest virtue : (8)

कुतः कल्याणसत्त्वायाः कल्याणाभिरतेः सदा ।
चलनं तात वैदेह्यास्तपस्विषु विशेषतः ॥ ९ ॥

"How can there be any aberration, my darling, on the part of Sītā, a princess of the Videha kingdom, who has a benign disposition and is ever devoted to goodness, particularly in her attitude towards ascetics? (9)

त्वन्निमित्तमिदं तावत् तापसान् प्रति वर्तते ।
रक्षोभ्यस्तेन संविद्याः कथयन्ति मिथः कथाः ॥ १० ॥

“This peril from the Rākṣasas threatens the ascetics because of you, who are kindly disposed to the latter. Alarmed by it, they hold conversation among themselves. (10)

रावणावरजः कश्चित् खरो नामेह राक्षसः ।
उत्पाट्य तापसान् सर्वाञ्जनस्थाननिवासिनः ॥ ११ ॥
धृष्टश्च जितकाशी च नृशंसः पुरुषादकः ।
अवलिप्तश्च पापश्च त्वां च तात न मृष्यते ॥ १२ ॥

“Having uprooted all the ascetics in Janasthāna (a portion of the Daṇḍaka forest), a man-eating Rākṣasa, Khara by name—who is a younger brother of Rāvaṇa and is presumptuous, victorious in battle, brutal, haughty and sinful—is intolerant of you too, my darling ! (11-12)

त्वं यदाप्रभृति ह्यस्मिन्नाश्रमे तात वर्तसे ।
तदाप्रभृति रक्षांसि विप्रकुर्वन्ति तापसान् ॥ १३ ॥

“Ever since, O darling, you are in this hermitage, the ogres continue to ill-treat the ascetics. (13)

दर्शयन्ति हि बीभत्सैः क्रूरैर्भीषणकैरपि ।
नानारूपैर्विरूपैश्च रूपैरसुखदर्शनैः ॥ १४ ॥

“They reveal themselves in diverse odious, savage, hideous and ugly forms, whose very sight brings sorrow in its wake. (14)

अप्रशस्तैरशुचिभिः सम्प्रयुज्य च तापसान् ।
प्रतिघ्नन्त्यपरान् क्षिप्रमनार्याः पुरतः स्थितान् ॥ १५ ॥

“Nay, forcibly bringing the ascetics into touch with forbidden and impure substances, the ignoble fellows quickly dispose of others standing in front of them. (15)

तेषु तेष्व्वाश्रमस्थानेष्वबुद्धमवलीय च ।
रमन्ते तापसांस्तत्र नाशयन्तोऽल्पचेतसः ॥ १६ ॥

“They incognito hide themselves in this hermitage and killing the dull-witted and unconscious ascetics, move about there in glee. (16)

अवक्षिपन्ति स्त्रुग्भाण्डानग्रीन् सिञ्चन्ति वारिणा ।
कलशांश्च प्रमर्दन्ति हवने समुपस्थिते ॥ १७ ॥

“When the time of pouring oblations into the sacred fire has approached, they fling away sacrificial vessels such as the ladle, sprinkle the fires with water and smash the water-pots. (17)

तैर्दुरात्मभिराविष्टानाश्रमान् प्रजिहासवः ।
गमनायान्यदेशस्य चोदयन्त्यृषयोऽद्य माम् ॥ १८ ॥

“Desirous of leaving for good the hermitages defiled by those evil-minded fellows, the sages urge me to shift to another region today. (18)

तत् पुरा राम शारीरीमुपहिंसां तपस्विषु ।
दर्शयन्ति हि दुष्टास्ते त्यक्ष्याम इममाश्रमम् ॥ १९ ॥

“Therefore, O Rāma, we shall certainly abandon this hermitage before those wicked fellows exhibit bodily violence towards the ascetics. (19)

बहुमूलफलं चित्रमविदूरादितो वनम् ।
अश्वस्याश्रममेवाहं श्रयिष्ये सगणः पुनः ॥ २० ॥

“I shall then resort with my followers to the hermitage of Sage Aśwa (lit., who does not lay by anything for the morrow), consisting of an excellent woodland abounding in roots and fruits, not very far from this place. (20)

खरस्त्वय्यपि चायुक्तं पुरा राम प्रवर्तते ।
सहास्माभिरितो गच्छ यदि बुद्धिः प्रवर्तते ॥ २१ ॥

“If your mind feels so inclined, O Rāma, depart from this place alongwith us before Khara proceeds unjustly with you as well, O Rāma ! (21)

सकलत्रस्य संदेहो नित्यं युक्तस्य राघव ।
समर्थस्यापि हि सतो वासो दुःखमिहाद्य ते ॥ २२ ॥

“Your continuance too at this place, O scion of Raghu, with your consort, although you are ever alert and even though you are powerful enough to put him down, is attended with peril and conducive to misery now.” (22)

इत्युक्तवन्तं रामस्तं राजपुत्रस्तपस्विनम् ।
न शशाकोत्तरैर्वाक्यैरवबद्धं समुत्सुकम् ॥ २३ ॥

Prince Rāma could not with counter-arguments check the said ascetic when he had spoken as above, impatient as he was to leave the place. (23)

अभिनन्द्य समापृच्छ्य समाधाय च राघवम्।
स जगामाश्रमं त्यक्त्वा कुलैः कुलपतिः सह ॥ २४ ॥

Extolling, duly taking leave of and consoling Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), the aforesaid leader of the sages departed with the hosts of sages, leaving the hermitage. (24)

रामः संसाध्य ऋषिगणमनुगमनाद्
देशात् तस्मात् कुलपतिमभिवाद्य ऋषिम्।
सम्यक्प्रीतैस्तैरनुमत उपदिष्टार्थः
पुण्यं वासाय स्वनिलयमुपसम्पदे ॥ २५ ॥

Seeing off the multitude of sages from that area by following them to a distance, and greeting the Ṛṣi who presided over the entire host, nay, instructed by the sages about his duty, Śrī Rāma, when permitted by them, who were highly pleased with him, returned to his sacred dwelling for rest. (25)

आश्रममृषिविरहितं प्रभुः
क्षणमपि न जहौ स राघवः।
राघवं हि सततमनुगता-
स्तापसाश्चार्षचरिते धृतगुणाः ॥ २६ ॥

The powerful Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, referred to above, did not leave the hermitage, now bereft of the sages, even for a moment; while the ascetics, who had fixed their mind on Śrī Rāma, who followed the conduct of sages, constantly followed Śrī Rāma, with their mind. (26)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे
षोडशाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ ११६ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and sixteen in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तदशाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXVII

Afraid of prolonging his stay at Citrakūṭa because of many handicaps, Śrī Rāma leaves that mountain and, reaching the hermitage of Sage Atri, greets the aforesaid Ṛṣi. Glorifying the ascetic life of his wife, Anasūyā, the sage urges Rāma to send his consort, Sitā, to her. Kindly receiving the princess, who greeted the venerable old lady on reaching her, as instructed by her husband, Anasūyā gives her instructions on the duties of a devoted wife

राघवस्त्वपयातेषु सर्वेष्वनुविचिन्तयन्।
न तत्रारोचयद् वासं कारणैर्बहुभिस्तदा ॥ १ ॥

Reflecting again and again, when all the ascetics had left, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, for his part did not like to continue his stay there any more for many reasons.

(1)

इह मे भरतो दृष्टो मातरश्च सनागराः।
सा च मे स्मृतिरन्वेति तान् नित्यमनुशोचतः ॥ २ ॥

“At this place was Bharata seen by me as well as my mothers with the people of Ayodhyā. Nay, that memory still haunts me, and I mourn for them daily. (2)

स्कन्धावारनिवेशेन तेन तस्य महात्मनः ।
हयहस्तिकरीषैश्च उपमर्दः कृतो भृशम् ॥ ३ ॥

“Moreover much impurity has been caused to the land by the dry dung of horses and elephants due to the camping, referred to above, of the army of that high-souled prince, Bharata. (3)

तस्मादन्यत्र गच्छाम इति संचिन्त्य राघवः ।
प्रातिष्ठत स वैदेह्या लक्ष्मणेन च संगतः ॥ ४ ॥

“We shall, therefore, move elsewhere !” Pondering thus, the celebrated Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, accompanied by Sītā, a princess of the Videha kingdom, and Lakṣmaṇa, departed from Citrakūṭa. (4)

सोऽत्रेराश्रममासाद्य तं ववन्दे महायशाः ।
तं चापि भगवानत्रिः पुत्रवत् प्रत्यपद्यत ॥ ५ ॥

Having reached the hermitage of Sage Atri, that highly illustrious prince saluted him; and the glorious Atri too received him as his own son. (5)

स्वयमातिथ्यमादिश्य सर्वमस्य सुसत्कृतम् ।
सौमित्रिं च महाभागं सीतां च समसान्वयत् ॥ ६ ॥

Having personally shown every hospitality with full honours to him, he comforted the highly blessed Lakṣmaṇa and Sītā too. (6)

पत्नीं च तामनुप्रासां वृद्धामामन्त्र्य सत्कृताम् ।
सान्त्वयामास धर्मज्ञः सर्वभूतहिते रतः ॥ ७ ॥
अनसूयां महाभागां तापसीं धर्मचारिणीम् ।
प्रतिगृह्णीष्व वैदेहीमब्रवीदृषिसत्तमः ॥ ८ ॥

Calling by name his aged and highly blessed wife, Anasūyā, who had reached his presence and was received with attentions by him, and who was given to austerities and the practice of virtue, Atri, the foremost of sages, who knew what is right and was devoted to the good of all created beings, spoke kindly to her, and said, “Welcome Sītā, a princess of the Videha kingdom.” (7-8)

रामाय चाचक्षे तां तापसीं धर्मचारिणीम् ।
दश वर्षाण्यनावृष्ट्या दग्धे लोके निरन्तरम् ॥ ९ ॥
यया मूलफले सृष्टे जाह्नवी च प्रवर्तिता ।
उग्रेण तपसा युक्ता नियमैश्चाप्यलंकृता ॥ १० ॥
दश वर्षसहस्राणि यया तप्तं महत् तपः ।
अनसूयाव्रतैस्तात प्रत्यूहाश्च निर्बहिताः ॥ ११ ॥
देवकार्यनिमित्तं च यया संत्वरमाणया ।
दशरात्रं कृता रात्रिः सेयं मातेव तेऽनघ ॥ १२ ॥

He further introduced to Śrī Rāma as follows the aforesaid lady, who was given to austerities and the practice of virtue : “Like a mother to you, O sinless prince, is this celebrated Anasūyā, distinguished by severe asceticism and adorned with sacred vows, by whom roots and fruits were produced and the river Gaṅgā, a foster-daughter of the royal king Jahnu, was made to flow close to my hermitage by virtue of her asceticism at a time when the world had been dried up by a drought continuing for ten years without break, nay, by whom great askesis were practised for ten thousand years and obstacles in the way of Ṛsis were done away with and by whom for the purpose* of gods in a great hurry ten nights were reduced to one night. (9—12)

तामिमां सर्वभूतानां नमस्कार्या तपस्विनीम् ।
अभिगच्छतु वैदेही वृद्धामक्रोधनां सदा ॥ १३ ॥

“Let Sītā, a princess of the Videha kingdom, meekly approach this celebrated

* We read in the Purāṇas how Sage Māṇḍavya once pronounced a curse against a hermitess, Śāṇḍili by name, who was a friend of Anasūyā, that she would be widowed one morning within the next ten days. The hermitess in her turn pronounced a counter-curse saying that there would be no dawn any more. Alarmed at this gods approached Anasūyā, who by virtue of her asceticism converted the period of ten nights into one and in this way averted the death of the hermitess’ husband and accomplished the purpose of gods.

and aged hermitess, who is worth saluting in the eyes of all created beings, and is ever free from anger.” (13)

एवं ब्रुवाणं तमृषिं तथेत्युक्त्वा स राघवः ।
सीतामालोक्य धर्मज्ञामिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १४ ॥

Saying “Amen!” to the aforesaid Rṣi, who was speaking in this strain and looking at Sītā, who knew what is right, the celebrated Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) addressed the following words to her : (14)

राजपुत्रि श्रुतं त्वेतन्मुनेरस्य समीरितम् ।
श्रेयोऽर्थमात्मनः शीघ्रमभिगच्छ तपस्विनीम् ॥ १५ ॥

“The foregoing utterance of this sage has surely been heard by you, O princess! For your own good, therefore, quickly approach the hermitess with reverence. (15)

अनसूयेति या लोके कर्मभिः ख्यातिमागता ।
तां शीघ्रमभिगच्छ त्वमभिगम्यां तपस्विनीम् ॥ १६ ॥

“Speedily seek you respectfully the ascetic lady, who is worth approaching with reverence and who has attained celebrity in the world through her actions under the name of Anasūyā (lit., free from jealousy).” (16)

सीता त्वेतद् वचः श्रुत्वा राघवस्य यशस्विनी ।
तामत्रिपत्नीं धर्मज्ञामभिचक्राम मैथिली ॥ १७ ॥
शिथिलां वलितां वृद्धां जरापाण्डुरमूर्धजाम् ।
सततं वेपमानाङ्गीं प्रवाते कदलीमिव ॥ १८ ॥

Hearing this exhortation of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), the illustrious Sītā, a princess of Mithilā, for her part proceeded to meet the celebrated and aged consort of Atri, who knew what is right, nay, who was feeble of body and wrinkled, with her hair turned grey due to old age, and whose frame constantly shook like a banana tree in a storm. (17-18)

तां तु सीता महाभागामनसूयां पतिव्रताम् ।
अभ्यवादयदव्यग्रा स्वं नाम समुदाहरत् ॥ १९ ॥

Sītā for her part calmly greeted the highly blessed Anasūyā, devoted to her husband, and duly uttered her own name by way of introduction. (19)

अभिवाद्य च वैदेही तापसीं तां दमान्विताम् ।
बद्धाञ्जलिपुटा हृष्टा पर्यपृच्छदनामयम् ॥ २० ॥

Nay, having greeted that hermitess, who was endowed with self-restraint, Sītā (a princess of the Videha kingdom), full of joy, enquired after her health with folded hands. (20)

ततः सीतां महाभागां दृष्ट्वा तां धर्मचारिणीम् ।
सान्त्वयन्त्यब्रवीद् वृद्धा दिष्ट्या धर्ममवेक्षसे ॥ २१ ॥

Seeing the highly blessed and celebrated Sītā, who was given to the practice of virtue, the old lady, thereupon, comfortingly said to her, “Luckily enough, you have your eyes fixed on righteousness. (21)

त्यक्त्वा ज्ञातिजनं सीते मानवृद्धिं च मानिनि ।
अवरुद्धं वने रामं दिष्ट्या त्वमनुगच्छसि ॥ २२ ॥

“Having forsaken your relations and given up your exaltation, O proud Sītā, I am glad, you are following your husband, Śrī Rāma, who has been exiled into the forest. (22)

नगरस्थो वनस्थो वा शुभो वा यदि वाशुभः ।
यासां स्त्रीणां प्रियो भर्ता तासां लोका महोदयाः ॥ २३ ॥

“Worlds that are attended with great prosperity await those women to whom their husband is dear, no matter whether he lives in a city or in a forest, whether he is propitious or adverse. (23)

दुःशीलः कामवृत्तो वा धनैर्वा परिवर्जितः ।
स्त्रीणामार्यस्वभावानां परमं दैवतं पतिः ॥ २४ ॥

“In the eyes of women who are blessed with a noble disposition the husband is the highest deity, no matter whether he is ill-mannered or licentious or entirely devoid of riches. (24)

नातो विशिष्टं पश्यामि बान्धवं विमृशन्त्यहम् ।
सर्वत्र योग्यं वैदेहि तपःकृतमिवाव्ययम् ॥ २५ ॥

“Though deeply pondering, I do not see for a woman a friend greater than the husband and more capable of yielding one’s desired object at all places like the imperishable fruit of one's austerities, O princess of the Videha kingdom ! (25)

न त्वेवमनुगच्छन्ति गुणदोषमसत्स्त्रियः ।
कामवक्तव्यहृदया भर्तृनाथाश्चरन्ति याः ॥ २६ ॥

“Those evil women, however, whose hearts are swayed by desire, nay, who lord it over their husband, having no sense of virtue and vice, and move about at will, do not follow him in the aforesaid manner. (26)

प्राप्नुवन्त्ययशश्चैव धर्मभ्रंशं च मैथिलि ।
अकार्यवशमापन्नाः स्त्रियो याः खलु तद्विधाः ॥ २७ ॥

“Indeed, fallen a prey to concupiscence, which is worth giving up, women who belong to that category, O princess of Mithilā, meet with a fall from virtue and also reap infamy. (27)

त्वद्विधास्तु गुणैर्युक्ता दृष्टलोकपरावराः ।
स्त्रियः स्वर्गे चरिष्यन्ति यथा पुण्यकृतस्तथा ॥ २८ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे सप्तदशाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ ११७ ॥

Thus end Canto One hundred and seventeen in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टादशाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXVIII

At the end of her dialogue with Sītā, Anasūyā requests her to ask a boon and, highly pleased with her, the hermitess bestows heavenly flowers and ornaments on her. Urged by Anasūyā, She relates to the hermitess the story of her marriage

सा त्वेवमुक्ता वैदेही त्वनसूयानसूयया ।
प्रतिपूज्य वचो मन्दं प्रवक्तुमुपचक्रमे ॥ १ ॥

Applauding her speech when instructed in the foregoing words by Anasūyā, Sītā, a princess of the Videha kingdom, for her part, who was free from the carping spirit, actually began slowly to reply as follows : (1)

नैतदाश्चर्यमार्यायां यन्मां त्वमनुभाषसे ।
विदितं तु ममाप्येतद् यथा नार्याः पतिर्गुरुः ॥ २ ॥

“Women like you, on the other hand, who are adorned with virtues like devotion to their husband and have discovered what is good and evil in the world, will hereafter dwell in heaven in the same way as those who have performed meritorious deeds. (28)

तदेवमेतं त्वमनुव्रता सती
पतिप्रधाना समयानुवर्तिनी ।
भव स्वभर्तुः सहधर्मचारिणी
यशश्च धर्मं च ततः समाप्स्यसि ॥ २९ ॥

“Therefore, remaining devoted to the service of this prince, nay, looking upon your husband as the foremost object of your worship and attending on him at the proper time, practise virtue in co-operation with your husband. Thereby you will easily attain fame as well as religious merit.” (29)

“This instruction which you have given to me is no matter for wonder on Your Holiness’ part. It is, however, already known to me as well how the husband is the adored of a matron. (2)

यद्यप्येष भवेद् भर्ता अनार्यो वृत्तिवर्जितः ।
अद्वैधमत्र वर्तव्यं यथाप्येष मया भवेत् ॥ ३ ॥

“Even if this husband of mine were ignoble and without any means of livelihood, I ought to have nonetheless conducted myself just in the same way without any hesitation or scruple towards him: this was my duty. (3)

किं पुनर्यो गुणश्लाघ्यः सानुक्रोशो जितेन्द्रियः ।
स्थिरानुरागो धर्मात्मा मातृवत्पितृवत्प्रियः ॥ ४ ॥

“How much more worthy of devotion then is he who is deserving of praise by virtue of his excellences and full of compassion, nay, who has controlled all his senses including the mind, the inner sense, who is constant in his love, whose mind is set on righteousness and who is loving both as a mother and father combined ! (4)

यां वृत्तिं वर्तते रामः कौसल्यायां महाबलः ।
तामेव नृपनारीणामन्यासामपि वर्तते ॥ ५ ॥

“Śrī Rāma, who is possessed of great might, conducted himself towards the other consorts of the king, his stepmothers, in the same way as he did towards Kausalyā, his own mother. (5)

सकृद् दृष्टास्वपि स्त्रीषु नृपेण नृपवत्सलः ।
मातृवद् वर्तते वीरो मानमुत्सृज्य धर्मवित् ॥ ६ ॥

“Giving up all self-esteem, the gallant prince, who was lovingly devoted to the king, his father, and knew what is right, conducted himself as he would towards his own mother, even towards the women who had been looked upon with love by the king but once. (6)

आगच्छन्त्याश्च विजनं वनमेवं भयावहम् ।
समाहितं हि मे श्वश्र्वा हृदये यत् स्थिरं मम ॥ ७ ॥

“Whatever was taught to me by my mother-in law while I was coming to the lonely forest, which is so frightful as well, stands inscribed on my heart. (7)

पाणिप्रदानकाले च यत् पुरा त्वग्निसंनिधौ ।
अनुशिष्टं जनन्या मे वाक्यं तदपि मे धृतम् ॥ ८ ॥

“Nay, that lesson too which was actually imparted to me in the past by my mother, while making over my hand to the bridegroom at the time of marriage in the presence of the sacred fire is still remembered by me. (8)

न विस्मृतं तु मे सर्वं वाक्यैः स्वैर्धर्मचारिणि ।
पतिशुश्रूषणान्नार्यास्तपो नान्यद् विधीयते ॥ ९ ॥

“All that teaching has actually been renewed in my mind by your teachings, O lady given to the practice of virtue! No askesis other than the service of one's husband is enjoined on a matron. (9)

सावित्री पतिशुश्रूषां कृत्वा स्वर्गे महीयते ।
तथावृत्तिश्च याता त्वं पतिशुश्रूषया दिवम् ॥ १० ॥

“Having rendered service to her husband all her life, Sāvitrī (the celebrated wife of Prince Satyavān) is now greatly respected in heaven; nay, conducting yourself in the same way, you too have virtually ascended to heaven through service to your husband. (10)

वरिष्ठा सर्वनारीणामेषा च दिवि देवता ।
रोहिणी न विना चन्द्रं मुहूर्तमपि दृश्यते ॥ ११ ॥

“By virtue of her devotion to her spouse, this Rohiṇī (the most favourite consort of the moon-god, presiding over a constellation of the same name), the most excellent of all women and now dwelling in heaven as a deity, is not seen in the heavens without the moon even for a while. (11)

एवंविधाश्च प्रवराः स्त्रियो भर्तृदृढव्रताः ।
देवलोके महीयन्ते पुण्येन स्वेन कर्मणा ॥ १२ ॥

“Nay, steadfast in their vow of fidelity to their husband, more such exalted women are highly respected in the realm of gods by virtue of their meritorious action.” (12)

ततोऽनसूया संहृष्टा श्रुत्वोक्तं सीतया वचः ।
शिरसाऽऽघ्राय चोवाच मैथिलीं हर्षयन्त्युत ॥ १३ ॥

Highly rejoiced to hear the reply made by Sītā, and smelling her head as a token of affection, Anasūyā thereupon said, cheering the princess of Mithilā at the same time : (13)

नियमैर्विविधैराप्तं तपो हि महदस्ति मे।
तत् संश्रित्य बलं सीते छन्दये त्वां शुचिव्रते ॥ १४ ॥

“Indeed there exists to my credit ample spiritual energy earned through religious observances of various kinds; banking on that energy, O Sītā of holy vows, I request you to ask a boon of me. (14)

उपपन्नं च युक्तं च वचनं तव मैथिलि।
प्रीता चास्म्युचितां सीते करवाणि प्रियं च किम् ॥ १५ ॥

“What you have said, O princess of Mithilā, is reasonable and just; and I am pleased to hear it. Tell me, O Sītā, what kindly act can I do for you?” (15)

तस्यास्तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा विस्मिता मन्दविस्मया।
कृतमित्यब्रवीत् सीता तपोबलसमन्विताम् ॥ १६ ॥

Astonished to hear the aforesaid utterance of Anasūyā, Sītā, gently smiling, replied to the lady, who was richly endowed with spiritual energy earned through askesis—“Everything stands already accomplished by Your Holiness’s grace alone.” (16)

सा त्वेवमुक्ता धर्मज्ञा तया प्रीततराभवत्।
सफलं च प्रहर्षं ते हन्त सीते करोम्यहम् ॥ १७ ॥

Spoken to in these words by Sītā, Anasūyā for her part who knew what is right felt all the more gratified and said, “Ha ha! I make your extreme gratification born of contentment fruitful by offering loving gifts to you. (17)

इदं दिव्यं वरं माल्यं वस्त्रमाभरणानि च।
अङ्गरागं च वैदेहि महार्हमनुलेपनम् ॥ १८ ॥

“Here are an excellent celestial garland, garment and ornaments, cosmetics and a precious unguent, O princess of the Videha kingdom ! (18)

मया दत्तमिदं सीते तव गात्राणि शोभयेत्।
अनुरूपमसंक्लिष्टं नित्यमेव भविष्यति ॥ १९ ॥

“Let this gift, bestowed by me, O Sītā, beautify your limbs. It will prove worthy of you and will remain intact for all time to come even after constant use. (19)

अङ्गरागेण दिव्येन लिप्ताङ्गी जनकात्मजे।
शोभयिष्यसि भर्तारं यथा श्रीर्विष्णुमव्ययम् ॥ २० ॥

“Your limbs smeared with the celestial cosmetic, O daughter of Janaka, you will adorn your husband as Lakṣmī (the goddess of fortune and beauty) does the imperishable Lord Viṣṇu.” (20)

सा वस्त्रमङ्गरागं च भूषणानि स्रजस्तथा।
मैथिली प्रतिजग्राह प्रीतिदानमनुत्तमम् ॥ २१ ॥

The aforesaid princess of Mithilā accepted the garment as well as the cosmetic, jewels and wreaths of flowers as an unsurpassed gift of love. (21)

प्रतिगृह्य च तत् सीता प्रीतिदानं यशस्विनी।
श्लिष्टाञ्जलिपुटा धीरा समुपास्त तपोधनाम् ॥ २२ ॥

Accepting that gift of love, the illustrious and wise Sītā remained sitting with folded hands by the side of that lady, whose sole wealth was her asceticism. (22)

तथा सीतामुपासीनामनसूया दृढव्रता।
वचनं प्रष्टुमारभे कथां कांचिदनुप्रियाम् ॥ २३ ॥

Anasūyā of steadfast vows next proceeded to speak as follows to Sītā, sitting beside her as aforesaid, in order to draw out from her a pleasing narrative : (23)

स्वयंवरे किल प्राप्ता त्वमनेन यशस्विना।
राघवेणेति मे सीते कथा श्रुतिमुपागता ॥ २४ ॥

“The story has actually reached my ears, O Sītā, that you were secured by this illustrious prince, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, in a bow-stringing event. (24)

तां कथां श्रोतुमिच्छामि विस्तरेण च मैथिलि।
यथाभूतं च कात्स्न्येन तन्मे त्वं वक्तुमर्हसि ॥ २५ ॥

“I long to hear that story in extenso too, O princess of Mithilā ! You should therefore tell me in full how it happened.” (25)

एवमुक्ता तु सा सीता तापसीं धर्मचारिणीम्।
श्रूयतामिति चोक्त्वा वै कथयामास तां कथाम् ॥ २६ ॥

Saying, "Be pleased to listen!" when requested in the foregoing words, the aforesaid Sitā, for her part, actually began as follows to narrate that story to the hermitess, who was given to the practice of virtue : (26)

मिथिलाधिपतिर्वीरो जनको नाम धर्मवित् ।
क्षत्रकर्मण्यभिरतो न्यायतः शास्ति मेदिनीम् ॥ २७ ॥

"The gallant king of Mithilā, Janaka by name, who knows what is right and is devoted to the duties of a Kṣatriya, rules over the earth with equity. (27)

तस्य लाङ्गलहस्तस्य कृषतः क्षेत्रमण्डलम् ।
अहं किलोत्थिता भित्त्वा जगतीं नृपतेः सुता ॥ २८ ॥

"While he was furrowing a plot of land (fit to serve as a sacrificial ground), plough in hand, I emerged, they say, breaking through the earth and came to be the king's daughter since that time. (28)

स मां दृष्ट्वा नरपतिर्मुष्टिविक्षेपतत्परः ।
पांसुगुण्ठितसर्वाङ्गीं विस्मितो जनकोऽभवत् ॥ २९ ॥

"The said King Janaka, who was diligently engaged in scattering handfuls of seeds (of annual plants), was astonished to behold me, all my limbs covered with dust. (29)

अनपत्येन च स्नेहादङ्गमारोप्य च स्वयम् ।
ममेयं तनयेत्युक्त्वा स्नेहो मयि निपातितः ॥ ३० ॥

"Nay, spontaneously lifting me up in his arms out of affection and saying 'This shall be my daughter!', since he had no issue then, love was bestowed lavishly by him on me. (30)

अन्तरिक्षे च वागुक्ता प्रतिमामानुषी किल ।
एवमेतन्नरपते धर्मेण तनया तव ॥ ३१ ॥

"A superhuman voice, they say, was also heard in the sky about me : 'Let it be so, O protector of men ! She will be your daughter from the moral point of view, indeed.' (31)

ततः प्रहृष्टो धर्मात्मा पिता मे मिथिलाधिपः । अवासो विपुलामृद्धिं मामवाप्य नराधिपः ॥ ३२ ॥

"My father, the ruler of Mithilā, whose mind is given to piety, felt highly rejoiced at that. Nay, the king attained a vast fortune on securing me (as his foster-daughter). (32)

दत्ता चास्मीष्टवहेव्यै ज्येष्ठायै पुण्यकर्मणे ।
तया सम्भाविता चास्मि स्निग्धया मातृसौहृदात् ॥ ३३ ॥

"I was further given over, like a coveted issue, to the seniormost queen, who was given to meritorious deeds; and I was brought up by that tender lady through motherly affection. (33)

पतिसंयोगसुलभं वयो दृष्ट्वा तु मे पिता ।
चिन्तामभ्यगमद् दीनो वित्तनाशादिवाधनः ॥ ३४ ॥

"Perceiving my age to be such when union with a husband can be easily had, my father for his part fell a prey to anxiety, feeling distressed as a destitute would through loss of fortune. (34)

सदृशाच्चापकृष्टाच्च लोके कन्यापिता जनात् ।
प्रधर्षणमवाप्नोति शक्रेणापि समो भुवि ॥ ३५ ॥

"The father of an unmarried girl, even though he is a compeer of Indra (the lord of paradise) on earth, suffers indignity in the world at the hands of a suitor's men, no matter if they are equal or even inferior in status to him. (35)

तां धर्षणामदूरस्थां संदृश्यात्मनि पार्थिवः ।
चिन्तार्णवगतः पारं नाससादाप्लवो यथा ॥ ३६ ॥

"Perceiving that indignity threatening him at no distant date, the king was plunged in a sea of anxiety and did not reach its end any more than a man without a bark would reach the end of a sea. (36)

अयोनिजां हि मां ज्ञात्वा नाध्यगच्छत् स चिन्तयन् ।
सदृशं चाभिरूपं च महीपालः पतिं मम ॥ ३७ ॥

"Knowing me, as he did, undoubtedly to be one not emerged from a mother's womb, the aforesaid king could not, even though reflecting, find out a befitting and worthy match for me. (37)

तस्य बुद्धिरियं जाता चिन्तयानस्य संततम्।
स्वयंवरं तनूजायाः करिष्यामीति धर्मतः ॥ ३८ ॥

“As he was constantly reflecting the idea struck his mind : According to the moral code prescribed for the Kṣatriyas, I shall so arrange that my daughter selects a match for herself of her own free will at an assembly of suitors. (38)

महायज्ञे तदा तस्य वरुणेन महात्मना।
दत्तं धनुर्वरं प्रीत्या तूणी चाक्षय्यसायकौ ॥ ३९ ॥

“At a great sacrifice (performed by Dakṣa, a lord of created beings, at the beginning of creation) an excellent bow capable of subduing the enemy as well as a pair of quivers containing an inexhaustible stock of arrows was bestowed with love by the high-souled Varuṇa (as an agent of gods as enjoined by Lord Śiva, whom the gods had approached for such a bow) upon the celebrated Devarāta (a forbear of King Janaka) at a time when the gods were oppressed by Lord Śiva, infuriated by the self-immolation of His divine Consort, Satī. (39)

असंचाल्यं मनुष्यैश्च यत्नेनापि च गौरवात्।
तत्र शक्ता नमयितुं स्वप्नेष्वपि नराधिपाः ॥ ४० ॥

“Nay, monarchs were not able even in their dreams to bend it, as it could not even be moved with effort by men because of its heavy weight. (40)

तद्धनुः प्राप्य मे पित्रा व्याहृतं सत्यवादिना।
समवाये नरेन्द्राणां पूर्वमामन्त्र्य पार्थिवान् ॥ ४१ ॥
इदं च धनुरुद्यम्य सज्यं यः कुरुते नरः।
तस्य मे दुहिता भार्या भविष्यति न संशयः ॥ ४२ ॥

“Having in the first instance invited rulers of the earth and then with reverence sought the aforesaid bow, it was announced by my father, who always spoke the truth, in an assembly of monarchs, that ‘my daughter shall come to be the wife of that man who, having lifted up this bow, forthwith strings it: there is no doubt about it.’ (41-42)

तच्च दृष्ट्वा धनुःश्रेष्ठं गौरवाद् गिरिसंनिभम्।
अभिवाद्य नृपा जग्मुश्शक्तास्तस्य तोलने ॥ ४३ ॥

“Beholding that jewel among bows, which to a great extent compared with a mountain in point of its weight, and saluting it, the rulers of men withdrew, unable as they were even to support it on their hands. (43)

सुदीर्घस्य तु कालस्य राघवोऽयं महाद्युतिः।
विश्वामित्रेण सहितो यज्ञं द्रष्टुं समागतः ॥ ४४ ॥

“After a sufficiently long time, however, Śrī Rāma, who is present here and who is possessed of great splendour, duly arrived at the scene, accompanied by Sage Viśwāmitra, to behold the bow-stringing event. (44)

लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा रामः सत्यपराक्रमः।
विश्वामित्रस्तु धर्मात्मा मम पित्रा सुपूजितः ॥ ४५ ॥

“Śrī Rāma, who is possessed of an unfailing prowess, alongwith his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, as well as Sage Viśwāmitra, whose mind is set on piety, was undoubtedly treated with great respect by my father. (45)

प्रोवाच पितरं तत्र राघवौ रामलक्ष्मणौ।
सुतौ दशरथस्येमौ धनुर्दर्शनकांक्षिणौ।
धनुर्दर्शय रामाय राजपुत्राय दैविकम् ॥ ४६ ॥

“Viśwāmitra on that occasion said to my father, ‘Here are the two sons of Daśaratha, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa by name, scions of Raghu, who are keen to behold the bow. Therefore, please show the celestial bow to Prince Rāma.’ (46)

इत्युक्तस्तेन विप्रेण तद् धनुः समुपानयत्।
तद् धनुर्दर्शयामास राजपुत्राय दैविकम् ॥ ४७ ॥

“Urged in these words by that Brāhmaṇa (Viśwāmitra), my father caused that bow to be duly brought to their presence and showed that celestial bow to the prince. (47)

निमेषान्तरमात्रेण तदानम्य महाबलः।
ज्यां समारोप्य झटिति पूरयामास वीर्यवान् ॥ ४८ ॥

“Bending it a little in a mere instant and fixing the string to it, the very mighty prince, who was full of valour, quickly drew it at full length. (48)

तेनापूरयता वेगान्मध्ये भग्नं द्विधा धनुः।
तस्य शब्दोऽभवद् भीमः पतितस्याशनेर्यथा ॥ ४९ ॥

“The bow was broken in two at the middle by Śrī Rāma while he was pulling it with force. A terrific sound like that of a thunderbolt falling on earth rose from it. (49)

ततोऽहं तत्र रामाय पित्रा सत्याभिसंधिना।
उद्यता दातुमुद्यम्य जलभाजनमुत्तमम् ॥ ५० ॥

“I was then kept by my father—who is true to his promise and had by his side an excellent vessel of water in order to wash the feet and hands of the bridegroom as a token of respect before giving me away to him in marriage—in readiness for being given away on that very spot to Śrī Rāma. (50)

दीयमानां न तु तदा प्रतिजग्राह राघवः।
अविज्ञाय पितुश्छन्दमयोध्याधिपतेः प्रभोः ॥ ५१ ॥

“Not knowing full well the mind of his father, the paramount ruler of Ayodhyā and his master, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, however, did not accept me as a bride while I was being offered in marriage. (51)

ततः श्वशुरमामन्त्र्य वृद्धं दशरथं नृपम्।
मम पित्रा त्वहं दत्तां रामाय विदितात्मने ॥ ५२ ॥

“Thereupon inviting to his capital my father-in-law, the aged King Daśaratha, I for my part was then given away in marriage to Śrī Rāma, who has realized the Self. (52)

मम चैवानुजा साध्वी ऊर्मिला शुभदर्शना।
भार्यार्थे लक्ष्मणस्यापि दत्ता पित्रा मम स्वयम् ॥ ५३ ॥

“My younger sister, the virtuous Ūrmilā of blessed appearance, was also given away by my father of his own accord to Lakṣmaṇa for being taken to wife. (53)

एवं दत्तास्मि रामाय तथा तस्मिन् स्वयंवरे।
अनुरक्तास्मि धर्मेण पतिं वीर्यवतां वरम् ॥ ५४ ॥

“Thus I was given away in marriage to Śrī Rāma in that wise on the aforesaid occasion of election of a bridegroom by myself. And since then I remain devoted with piety to my husband, the foremost of those who are possessed of valour.” (54)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डेऽष्टादशाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ ११८ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and eighteen in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXIX

Glorifying the evening shades, that had now fallen, Anasūyā sends away Sītā, decked with the ornaments bestowed on her by herself, to the presence of Śrī Rāma. To the latter, who was agreeably surprised to behold Sītā resplendent with heavenly jewels, she relates how she received the jewels as a loving gift from the hermitess. Accepting the hospitality of the hermits and staying with them for the night, Śrī Rāma asks leave of them in the morning to proceed further and, following the route shown by the hermits, the princely party enters the Daṇḍaka forest

अनसूया तु धर्मज्ञा श्रुत्वा तां महतीं कथाम् ।
पर्यष्वजत बाहुभ्यां शिरस्याघ्राय मैथिलीम् ॥ १ ॥

Hearing that great narrative and smelling the head of the princess of Mithilā as a token of affection, Anasūyā for her part, who knew what is right, folded her in her arms and said : (1)

व्यक्ताक्षरपदं चित्रं भाषितं मधुरं त्वया ।
यथा स्वयंवरं वृत्तं तत् सर्वं च श्रुतं मया ॥ २ ॥

“What you have said in distinct tones and words is surprising and sweet. The way in which your self-choice-marriage took place has also been fully heard by me. (2)

रमेयं कथया ते तु दृढं मधुरभाषिणि ।
रविरस्तं गतः श्रीमानुपोह्य रजनीं शुभाम् ॥ ३ ॥

“I would have been delighted much to hear more of your story, O sweet-speaking lady ! Ushering in the charming night, the glorious sun has, however, sunk below horizon. (3)

दिवसं परिकीर्णानामाहारार्थं पतत्रिणाम् ।
संध्याकाले निलीनानां निद्रार्थं श्रूयते ध्वनिः ॥ ४ ॥

“The noise is being heard of birds scattered about during the daytime in search of food and roosted in their nests at eventide for sleep. (4)

एते चाप्यभिषेकाद्रा मुनयः कलशोद्यताः ।
सहिता उपवर्तन्ते सलिलाप्लुतवल्कलाः ॥ ५ ॥

“These hermits too, wet after a bath and their coverings of bark too soaked with water, are returning in a body with uplifted vessels full of water. (5)

अग्निहोत्रे च ऋषिणा हुते च विधिपूर्वकम् ।
कपोताङ्गारुणो धूमो दृश्यते पवनोद्धतः ॥ ६ ॥

“The rite of offering oblations into the sacred fire having been performed by the sage Atri according to the scriptural ordinance, a column of smoke, dark-blue like a pigeon’s neck, raised by the wind, is seen over there. (6)

अल्पवर्णा हि तरवो घनीभूताः समन्ततः ।
विप्रकृष्टेन्द्रिये देशे न प्रकाशन्ति वै दिशः ॥ ७ ॥

“In the landscape remote from our eyes trees, though clothed with sparse leaves, indeed look dense all round with foliage, so that the quarters do not shine vividly. (7)

रजनीचरसत्त्वानि प्रचरन्ति समन्ततः ।
तपोवनमृगा ह्येते वेदितीर्थेषु शेरते ॥ ८ ॥

“Ogres, who range at night, are freely moving all round, while these deer of groves reserved for practising austerities are lying down on the sacred altars. (8)

सम्प्रवृत्ता निशा सीते नक्षत्रसमलंकृता ।
ज्योत्स्नाप्रावरणश्चन्द्रो दृश्यतेऽभ्युदितोऽम्बरे ॥ ९ ॥

“The night richly adorned with stars has fairly set in, O Sītā; the moon enveloped in moonlight is seen clearly risen in the sky. (9)

गम्यतामनुजानामि रामस्यानुचरी भव।
कथयन्त्या हि मधुरं त्वयाहमपि तोषिता ॥ १० ॥

“You may go now, I permit you to depart. Wait you as a maid-servant on Śrī Rāma. I too have undoubtedly been pleased by you, speaking as you did sweet words to me. (10)

अलंकुरु च तावत् त्वं प्रत्यक्षं मम मैथिलि।
प्रीतिं जनय मे वत्से दिव्यालंकारशोभिनी ॥ ११ ॥

“Adorn yourself in the meantime with the garment and ornaments gifted by me before my eyes, O princess of Mithilā ! Heightening the charm of the heavenly jewels with your personal charm, cause delight to me, my darling !” (11)

सा तदा समलंकृत्य सीता सुरसुतोपमा।
प्रणम्य शिरसा पादौ रामं त्वभिमुखी ययौ ॥ १२ ॥

Having duly adorned herself and saluting with reverence the feet of Anasūyā with her head bent low, Sītā for her part, who looked like a daughter of gods, went forward to meet Śrī Rāma on that occasion. (12)

तथा तु भूषितां सीतां ददर्श वदतां वरः।
राघवः प्रीतिदानेन तपस्विन्या जहर्ष च ॥ १३ ॥

Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, the foremost of speakers, for his part beheld Sītā adorned as aforesaid and felt delighted with the gift made out of love by the hermitess. (13)

न्यवेदयत् ततः सर्वं सीता रामाय मैथिली।
प्रीतिदानं तपस्विन्या वसनाभरणस्त्रजाम् ॥ १४ ॥

Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, then related to Śrī Rāma all about the loving gift made by the hermitess of a garment, ornaments and garland. (14)

प्रहृष्टस्त्वभवद् रामो लक्ष्मणश्च महारथः।
मैथिल्याः सत्क्रियां दृष्ट्वा मानुषेषु सुदुर्लभाम् ॥ १५ ॥

Śrī Rāma, for his part, as well as Lakṣmaṇa, the great chariot-warrior, felt highly rejoiced to see the reception of Sītā (the princess of Mithilā), which was extremely rare among human beings. (15)

ततः स शर्वरीं प्रीतः पुण्यां शशिनिभाननाम्।
अर्चितस्तापसैः सर्वैरुवास रघुनन्दनः ॥ १६ ॥

Beholding Sītā, whose countenance shone like the moon, consecrated by the sacred gift of the holy lady, the celebrated Śrī Rāma (the delight of the Raghus) who was received with honour by the hermits, then spent the night with all. (16)

तस्यां रात्र्यां व्यतीतायामभिषिच्य हुताग्निकान्।
आपृच्छेतां नरव्याघ्रौ तापसान् वनगोचरान् ॥ १७ ॥

Having finished their ablutions when that night had fully expired, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, who were tiger among men, took leave of the ascetics dwelling in the forest, who had just offered oblations into the sacred fire. (17)

तावूचुस्ते वनचरास्तापसा धर्मचारिणः।
वनस्य तस्य संचारं राक्षसैः समभिप्लुतम् ॥ १८ ॥

The aforesaid ascetics dwelling in the forest and practising virtue there told the two princes about the region of that forest infested by ogres. (18)

रक्षांसि पुरुषादानि नानारूपाणि राघव।
वसन्त्यस्मिन् महारण्ये व्यालाश्च रुधिराशनाः ॥ १९ ॥

“Ogres feeding upon the human flesh and appearing in various guises, as well as blood-sucking beasts of prey live in this great forest, O scion of Raghu !” (19)

उच्छिष्टं वा प्रमत्तं वा तापसं ब्रह्मचारिणम्।
अदन्त्यस्मिन् महारण्ये तान् निवारय राघव ॥ २० ॥

“They devour an ascetic or celibate who has not rinsed his mouth after partaking of some solid or liquid food or who is delinquent in this great forest; pray, ward them off, O scion of Raghu !” (20)

एष पन्था महर्षीणां फलान्याहरतां वने।
अनेन तु वनं दुर्गं गन्तुं राघव ते क्षमम् ॥ २१ ॥

“This is the path followed by eminent Ṛṣis gathering fruits in the forest. It would be advisable for you to make to the forest, which is difficult of access, by this path alone.” (21)

इतीरितः प्राञ्जलिभिस्तपस्विभि-

द्विजैः कृतस्वस्त्ययनः परंतपः।

वनं सभार्यः प्रविवेश राघवः

सलक्ष्मणः सूर्यं इवाभ्रमण्डलम् ॥ २२ ॥

Spoken to as above by the ascetics with folded hands as a gesture of supplication, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, the scorcher of his foes, when he had been presented by the Brāhmaṇas with flowers etc., accompanied by good wishes and benedictions, made his way into the heart of the forest alongwith his consort and Lakṣmaṇa, as the sun would penetrate a mass of clouds. (22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽयोध्याकाण्डे

एकोनविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ ११९ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and nineteen in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

॥ अयोध्याकाण्डं सम्पूर्णम् ॥

The End of Ayodhyākāṇḍa

श्रीसीतारामचन्द्राभ्यां नमः

श्रीमद्वाल्मीकीयरामायणम् अरण्यकाण्डम्

Śrīmad Vālmīki-Rāmāyaṇa

Book Three

(Aranyakāṇḍa)

प्रथमः सर्गः

Canto I

Reception of Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa and Sītā in the hermitages of sages

प्रविश्य तु महारण्यं दण्डकारण्यमात्मवान्।
रामो ददर्श दुर्धर्षस्तापसाश्रममण्डलम् ॥ १ ॥

Having entered the dense forest of Daṇḍaka, the self-controlled and unassailable Śrī Rāma saw a group of hermitages of sages. (1)

कुशचीरपरिक्षिप्तं ब्राह्म्या लक्ष्म्या समावृतम्।
यथा प्रदीप्तं दुर्दर्शं गगने सूर्यमण्डलम् ॥ २ ॥
शरण्यं सर्वभूतानां सुसम्मृष्टाजिरं सदा।
मृगैर्बहुभिराकीर्णं पक्षिसंघैः समावृतम् ॥ ३ ॥
पूजितं चोपनृत्तं च नित्यमप्सरसां गणैः।
विशालैरग्निशरणैः स्तुग्भाण्डैरजिनैः कुशैः ॥ ४ ॥
समिद्धिस्तोयकलशैः फलमूलैश्च शोभितम्।
आरण्यैश्च महावृक्षैः पुण्यैः स्वादुफलैर्वृतम् ॥ ५ ॥
बलिहोमार्चितं पुण्यं ब्रह्मघोषनिनादितम्।
पुष्पैश्चान्यैः परिक्षिप्तं पद्मिन्या च सपद्मया ॥ ६ ॥
फलमूलाशनैर्दानैश्चैरकृष्णाजिनाम्बरैः।
सूर्यवैश्वानरभैश्च पुराणैर्मुनिभिर्युतम् ॥ ७ ॥
पुण्यैश्च नियताहारैः शोभितं परमर्षिभिः।
तद् ब्रह्मभवनप्रख्यं ब्रह्मघोषनिनादितम् ॥ ८ ॥

With the sacred Kuśa grass and bark-garments scattered all around, nay, enveloped in grandeur of the knowledge of Brahma, looking like the dazzling orb of the sun in the sky, difficult to look at, the resort of all beings, with courtyards always well-swept, crowded with several wild beasts and swarmed with groups of birds, always revered and admired with dance by teams of celestial nymphs, decorated with large fire-sanctuaries, sacrificial utensils, skin-carpets, blades of the Kuśa grass and faggots, vessels of water and fruits and roots, surrounded by large sacred forest-trees having sweet fruits, worshipped with oblations and sacrifices, auspicious, resounding with the chanting of Vedic hymns, having ponds with lotuses and scattered all over with other flowers, inhabited by old sages of controlled senses, living on fruits and roots, wearing garments of bark and the skin of black antelopes and shining like the sun and fire, and graced by the greatest of sages auspicious and restrained in diet; it shone like the residence of Lord Brahmā resounding with the chanting to Vedic hymns.

(2—8)

ब्रह्मविद्धिर्महाभागैर्ब्राह्मणैरुपशोभितम् ।
तद् दृष्ट्वा राघवः श्रीमांस्तापसाश्रममण्डलम् ॥ ९ ॥
अभ्यगच्छन्महातेजा विज्यं कृत्वा महद् धनुः ।
दिव्यज्ञानोपपन्नास्ते रामं दृष्ट्वा महर्षयः ॥ १० ॥
अभिजग्मुस्तदा प्रीता वैदेहीं च यशस्विनीम् ।
ते तु सोममिवोद्यन्तं दृष्ट्वा वै धर्मचारिणम् ॥ ११ ॥
लक्ष्मणं चैव दृष्ट्वा तु वैदेहीं च यशस्विनीम् ।
मङ्गलानि प्रयुञ्जानाः प्रत्यगृह्णन् दृढव्रताः ॥ १२ ॥
रूपसंहननं लक्ष्मीं सौकुमार्यं सुवेषताम् ।
ददृशुर्विस्मिताकारा रामस्य वनवासिनः ॥ १३ ॥

Seeing that group of hermitages of sages, adorned with highly blessed Brāhmaṇas, knowers of Brahma, the glorious and highly lustrous Rāma removed the string of his great bow and entered into the hermitages. Then, beholding Rāma, those great sages possessed of divine knowledge approached him and the renowned Vaidehī with pleasure. They saw him given to the practice of virtue and charming like the rising moon and also Lakṣmaṇa and Vaidehī of renown and, being firm observers of vows, welcomed them performing auspicious rites. The forest-dwellers saw with amazement the handsome build of the body, grandeur, tenderness and ascetic dress of Rāma.
(9—13)

वैदेहीं लक्ष्मणं रामं नेत्रैरनिमिषैरिव ।
आश्चर्यभूतान् ददृशुः सर्वे ते वनवासिनः ॥ १४ ॥

All those forest dwellers saw Vaidehī, the princess of Videha country, Lakṣmaṇa and Rāma as a wonder with eyes as though steady.
(14)

अत्रैनं हि महाभागाः सर्वभूतहिते रताः ।
अतिथिं पर्णशालायां राघवं संन्यवेशयन् ॥ १५ ॥

Here, indeed, the highly fortunate sages, taking delight in the good of all beings, lodged the scion of Raghu as a guest in a hut made of leaves.
(15)

ततो रामस्य सत्कृत्य विधिना पावकोपमाः ।
आजहुस्ते महाभागाः सलिलं धर्मचारिणः ॥ १६ ॥
Then, honouring Rāma with traditional rites, the fire-like righteous sages of great fortune offered water.
(16)

मङ्गलानि प्रयुञ्जाना मुदा परमया युताः ।
मूलं पुष्पं फलं सर्वमाश्रमं च महात्मनः ॥ १७ ॥
निवेदयित्वा धर्मज्ञास्ते तु प्राञ्जलयोऽब्रुवन् ।
धर्मपालो जनस्यास्य शरण्यश्च महायशाः ॥ १८ ॥
पूजनीयश्च मान्यश्च राजा दण्डधरो गुरुः ।
इन्द्रस्यैव चतुर्भागः प्रजा रक्षति राघव ॥ १९ ॥

Performing auspicious rites with great delight the magnanimous sages offered roots, flowers, fruits and even the whole hermitage and those knowers of the righteous customs, with joined palms, said, “The king being the protector of righteousness and also the resort for these people, famous, revered and respectable holder of the staff of justice, worshipful and the fourth part of Indra himself, protects the subjects, O scion of Raghu !
(17—19)

राजा तस्माद्वरान् भोगान् रम्यान् भुङ्क्ते नमस्कृतः ।
ते वयं भवता रक्ष्या भवद्विषयवासिनः ।
नगरस्थो वनस्थो वा त्वं नो राजा जनेश्वरः ॥ २० ॥

“It is hence that the king, who is saluted by all, enjoys the foremost, delightful pleasures. We being the residents of your kingdom deserve protection by you. Whether staying in the city or in the forest, you, the lord of the people, are our king.
(20)

न्यस्तदण्डा वयं राजञ्जितक्रोधा जितेन्द्रियाः ।
रक्षणीयास्त्वया शश्वद् गर्भभूतास्तपोधनाः ॥ २१ ॥

“Having given up punishment, controlled anger and conquered the senses and having the wealth of asceticism, we should always be protected by you as a foetus by the mother.”
(21)

एवमुक्त्वा फलैर्मूलैः पुष्पैरन्यैश्च राघवम् ।
वन्यैश्च विविधाहारैः सलक्ष्मणमपूजयन् ॥ २२ ॥

Thus speaking, they entertained the scion of Raghu, Śrī Rāma and Sītā, together with Lakṣmaṇa, with fruits, roots, flowers and several other forest-products. (22)

तथान्ये तापसाः सिद्धा रामं वैश्वानरोपमाः ।

न्यायवृत्ता यथान्यायं तर्पयामासुरीश्वरम् ॥ २३ ॥

Similarly, other hermits, well-accomplished, comparable with fire and following a just tradition honoured Lord Rāma in accordance with the custom. (23)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे प्रथमः सर्गः ॥ १ ॥

Thus ends Canto One in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वितीयः सर्गः

Canto II

Virādhā's attack on Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa and Sītā in the forest

कृतातिथ्योऽथ रामस्तु सूर्यस्योदयनं प्रति ।
आमन्त्र्य स मुनीन् सर्वान् वनमेवान्वगाहत ॥ १ ॥

Then, Rāma after receiving the hospitality, took leave of all the sages at sunrise and plunged into the depths of the forest. (1)

नानामृगगणाकीर्णमृक्षशार्दूलसेवितम् ।
ध्वस्तवृक्षलतागुल्मं दुर्दर्शसलिलाशयम् ॥ २ ॥
निष्कूजमानशकुनिं झिल्लिकागणनादितम् ।
लक्ष्मणानुचरो रामो वनमध्यं ददर्श ह ॥ ३ ॥

Rāma, with Lakṣmaṇa as his follower, saw the heart of the forest crowded with herds of various deer, resorted to by boars and tigers; the shrubs, trees and creepers in which had been destroyed, the water-reservoirs in which were not visible, in which the birds were not singing and which was made noisy by swarms of crickets. (2-3)

सीतया सह काकुत्स्थस्तस्मिन् घोरमृगायुते ।
ददर्श गिरिशृङ्गाभं पुरुषादं महास्वनम् ॥ ४ ॥
गभीराक्षं महावक्त्रं विकटं विकटोदरम् ।
बीभत्सं विषमं दीर्घं विकृतं घोरदर्शनम् ॥ ५ ॥
वसानं चर्म वैयाघ्रं वसार्द्रं रुधिरोक्षितम् ।
त्रासनं सर्वभूतानां व्यादितास्यमिवान्तकम् ॥ ६ ॥
त्रीन् सिंहांश्चतुरो व्याघ्रान् द्वौ वृकौ पृषतान् दश ।
सविषाणं वसादिग्धं गजस्य च शिरो महत् ॥ ७ ॥

अवसज्यायसे शूले विनदन्तं महास्वनम् ।
स रामं लक्ष्मणं चैव सीतां दृष्ट्वा च मैथिलीम् ।
अभ्यधावत् सुसंकुब्धः प्रजाः काल इवान्तकः ॥ ८ ॥
स कृत्वा भैरवं नादं चालयन्निव मेदिनीम् ॥ ९ ॥
अङ्गेनादाय वैदेहीमपक्रम्य तदाब्रवीत् ।
युवां जटाचीरधरौ सभार्यौ क्षीणजीवितौ ॥ १० ॥
प्रविष्टौ दण्डकारण्यं शरचापासिपाणिनौ ।
कथं तापसयोर्वा च वासः प्रमदया सह ॥ ११ ॥

Rāma (a descendant of Kakutstha) together with Sītā saw in that forest, full of wild animals, a dreadful man-eating ogre of terrific voice, looking like a mountain-peak, having deep eyes, a huge mouth, a fierce belly, despicable, uneven, tall, abnormal, presenting a terrible sight, wearing a tiger's skin wet with fat and sprinkled with blood, molesting all beings, resembling the god of death with his mouth wide open, tying three lions, four tigers, two wolves, ten spotted deer and the big head of an elephant with tusks, and wet with fat, to an iron lance, and roaring in a terrific voice. He saw Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa and also Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, and attacked them with great anger as Kāla, the destroyer of people, attacks them. He made a terrific sound as though making the earth tremble, took the princess of Videha country, Sītā, in his arms, went afar and then said, “You two having matted hair and wearing a bark-garment, and still having a wife with you, with your life coming to an end, have entered the Daṇḍaka forest, taking arrows, bow and sword in your hands. Again, how are you two ascetics staying with a woman? (4—11)

अधर्मचारिणौ पापौ कौ युवां मुनिदूषकौ ।
अहं वनमिदं दुर्गं विराधो नाम राक्षसः ॥ १२ ॥
चरामि सायुधो नित्यमृषिमांसानि भक्षयन् ।
इयं नारी वरारोहा मम भार्या भविष्यति ॥ १३ ॥
युवयोः पापयोश्चाहं पास्यामि रुधिरं मृधे ।
तस्यैवं ब्रुवतो दुष्टं विराधस्य दुरात्मनः ॥ १४ ॥
श्रुत्वा सगर्वितं वाक्यं सम्भ्रान्ता जनकात्मजा ।
सीता प्रवेपितोद्वेगात् प्रवाते कदली यथा ॥ १५ ॥

“Who are you two sinners, doing unrighteous deeds, bringing a blot upon the sages? Armed with weapons, I, an ogre named Virādha, always wander in this forest, which is difficult of access, eating the flesh of sages. This beautiful lady will become my wife and I shall drink the blood of you two sinners on the battlefield.” Hearing thus the wicked and boastful speech of that wicked Virādha, the overawed Sītā, the daughter of Janaka, trembled with fear as does a plantain tree in a storm. (12—15)

तां दृष्ट्वा राघवः सीतां विराधाङ्गतां शुभाम् ।
अब्रवील्लक्ष्मणं वाक्यं मुखेन परिशुष्यता ॥ १६ ॥

Beholding that auspicious Sītā in the lap of Virādha, Rāma (a scion of Raghu) said to Lakṣmaṇa with his mouth getting parched : (16)

पश्य सौम्य नरेन्द्रस्य जनकस्यात्मसम्भवाम् ।
मम भार्या शुभाचारां विराधाङ्गे प्रवेशिताम् ॥ १७ ॥
अत्यन्तसुखसंवृद्धां राजपुत्रीं यशस्विनीम् ।
यदभिप्रेतमस्मासु प्रियं वरवृत्तं च यत् ॥ १८ ॥
कैकेय्यास्तु सुसंवृत्तं क्षिप्रमद्यैव लक्ष्मण ।
या न तुष्यति राज्येन पुत्रार्थे दीर्घदर्शिनी ॥ १९ ॥
ययाहं सर्वभूतानां प्रियः प्रस्थापितो वनम् ।
अद्येदानीं सकामा सा या माता मध्यमा मम ॥ २० ॥

“Oh dear ! see this daughter of King Janaka, my wife of good conduct, brought up in great prosperity, a princess of renown, having passed into the lap of Virādha. What the far-sighted Kaikeyī—who was not satisfied with the kingdom for her son, who has sent me, liked by all beings, to the forest—had fondly cherished regarding us, that for which she had asked for two boons has well happened quickly, today only, O Lakṣmaṇa ! Today, know, that mother of mine, Kaikeyī, has her desire fulfilled. (17—20)

परस्पर्शात् तु वैदेह्या न दुःखतरमस्ति मे ।
पितुर्विनाशात् सौमित्रे स्वराज्यहरणात् तथा ॥ २१ ॥

“There is nothing more sorrowful to me than the princess of the Videha country being touched by another, which is more painful even than the death of my father and the loss of my kingdom, O son of Sumitrā”. (21)

इति ब्रुवति काकुत्स्थे बाष्पशोकपरिप्लुतः ।
अब्रवील्लक्ष्मणः क्रुद्धो रुद्धो नाग इव श्वसन् ॥ २२ ॥

While the descendant of Kakutstha, Rāma, was thus speaking, shedding tears of sorrow, Lakṣmaṇa getting angry and hissing like an impeded cobra, said: (22)

अनाथ इव भूतानां नाथस्त्वं वासवोपमः ।
मया प्रेष्येण काकुत्स्थ किमर्थं परितप्यसे ॥ २३ ॥

“Why are you, the lord of all beings like Indra, with a servant like me, grieving like an orphan, O descendant of Kakutstha? (23)

शरेण निहतस्याद्य मया क्रुद्धेन रक्षसः ।
विराधस्य गतासोर्हि मही पास्यति शोणितम् ॥ २४ ॥

“Today, the earth will drink the blood of Virādha, the ogre, losing his life when killed by my angry self with an arrow. (24)

राज्यकामे मम क्रोधो भरते यो बभूव ह ।
तं विराधे विमोक्ष्यामि वज्री वज्रमिवाचले ॥ २५ ॥

My anger, which was directed against Bharata, having the desire for kingdom, now I shall ventilate against Virādha as did the wielder of the thunderbolt, discharge the thunderbolt against a mountain. (25)

मम भुजबलवेगवेगितः
पततु शरोऽस्य महान् महोरसि ।
व्यपनयतु तनोश्च जीवितं
पततु ततश्च महीं विघूर्णितः ॥ २६ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे द्वितीयः सर्गः ॥ २ ॥

Thus ends Canto Two in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

तृतीयः सर्गः

Canto III

Conversation between Rāma and Virādha; Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa strike at him; he goes with them to another forest

अथोवाच पुनर्वाक्यं विराधः पूरयन् वनम् ।
पृच्छतो मम हि ब्रूतं कौ युवां क्व गमिष्यथः ॥ १ ॥

Then, Virādha again said filling the forest with his voice, “While I am asking you, tell me, who are you two and where will you go?” (1)

तमुवाच ततो रामो राक्षसं ज्वलिताननम् ।
पृच्छन्तं सुमहातेजा इक्ष्वाकुकुलमात्मनः ॥ २ ॥
क्षत्रियौ वृत्तसम्पन्नौ विद्धि नौ वनगोचरौ ।
त्वां तु वेदितुमिच्छावः कस्त्वं चरसि दण्डकान् ॥ ३ ॥

Then, Rāma of extraordinary lustre spoke of his own Ikṣwāku dynasty to that demon of flaming mouth, who was inquiring, “Know us two to be Kṣatriyas of character, who have come to the forest. For our part, we want to know you—who are you wandering in the Daṇḍaka forest?” (2-3)

तमुवाच विराधस्तु रामं सत्यपराक्रमम् ।
हन्त वक्ष्यामि ते राजन् निबोध मम राघव ॥ ४ ॥

Virādha for his part said to Rāma of unfailing valour : “Ah ! O king ! I shall tell you. Listen to me, O scion of Raghu ! (4)

पुत्रः किल जवस्याहं माता मम शतहृदा ।
विराध इति मामाहुः पृथिव्यां सर्वराक्षसाः ॥ ५ ॥

“They say that I am the son of Java;

“Let the great arrow getting impulse from the force exerted by the strength of my arms fall on his huge breast and take away the life from the body and then let him fall down on the earth whirling round.” (26)

my mother is Śatahradā; all the ogres on earth call me ‘Virādha’. (5)

तपसा चाभिसम्प्राप्ता ब्रह्मणो हि प्रसादजा ।
शस्त्रेणावध्यता लोकेऽच्छेद्याभेद्यत्वमेव च ॥ ६ ॥

“I have attained, through penance, protection from being killed in the world by a weapon, from being cut or broken, by the grace of Lord Brahmā. (6)

उत्सृज्य प्रमदामेनामनपेक्षौ यथागतम् ।
त्वरमाणौ पलायेथां न वां जीवितमाददे ॥ ७ ॥

“Run away with haste as you have come, giving up this lady without any expectation; I shall not take your life.” (7)

तं रामः प्रत्युवाचेदं कोपसंरक्तलोचनः ।
राक्षसं विकृताकारं विराधं पापचेतसम् ॥ ८ ॥

Rāma, with his eyes blood-red from anger, replied thus to that ogre, Virādha, of ugly form and sinful mind : (8)

क्षुद्र धिक् त्वां तु हीनार्थं मृत्युमन्वेषसे ध्रुवम् ।
रणे प्राप्स्यसि संतिष्ठ न मे जीवन् विमोक्ष्यसे ॥ ९ ॥

“O petty fellow, fie upon you of vile purpose ! You are certainly seeking death. Wait, you will get it on the battlefield. You will not be left alive by me.” (9)

ततः सज्यं धनुः कृत्वा रामः सुनिशितान् शरान् ।
सुशीघ्रमभिसंधाय राक्षसं निजघान ह ॥ १० ॥

Then promptly stringing his bow and fitting very sharp arrows to it, Rāma struck at the ogre. (10)

धनुषा ज्यागुणवता सप्त बाणान् मुमोच ह ।
रुक्मपुङ्गवान् महावेगान् सुपर्णानिलतुल्यगान् ॥ ११ ॥

He discharged, they say, seven arrows with golden feathers, of terrific speed, equal to that of Garuḍa and the wind, with his bow fitted with the string. (11)

ते शरीरं विराधस्य भित्त्वा बर्हिणवाससः ।
निपेतुः शोणितादिग्धा धरण्यां पावकोपमाः ॥ १२ ॥

Decorated with peacock feathers, they pierced the body of Virādhā who fell on the earth drenched with blood and looking like fire. (12)

स विद्धो न्यस्य वैदेहीं शूलमुद्यम्य राक्षसः ।
अभ्यद्रवत् सुसंकुद्धस्तदा रामं सलक्ष्मणम् ॥ १३ ॥

When hurt, that ogre put down the princess of the Videha territory and, then, holding up the lance, ran in great fury towards Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa. (13)

स विनद्य महानादं शूलं शक्रध्वजोपमम् ।
प्रगृह्याशोभत तदा व्यात्तानन इवान्तकः ॥ १४ ॥

Making a great roar and holding the lance resembling the banner of Indra, he then appeared like the god of Death with open mouth. (14)

अथ तौ भ्रातरौ दीप्तं शरवर्षं ववर्षतुः ।
विराधे राक्षसे तस्मिन् कालान्तकयमोपमे ॥ १५ ॥

Then, those two brothers rained a shining shower of arrows on that ogre, Virādhā, who looked like the Time-Spirit, death and Yama. (15)

स प्रहस्य महारौद्रः स्थित्वाजुम्भत राक्षसः ।
जृम्भमाणस्य ते बाणाः कायान्निष्येतुराशुगाः ॥ १६ ॥

That most terrible ogre laughed, stopped and yawned. While he was yawning, those speedy arrows fell down from his body. (16)

स्पर्शात् तु वरदानेन प्राणान् संरोध्य राक्षसः ।
विराधः शूलमुद्यम्य राघवावभ्यधावत ॥ १७ ॥

By virtue of the boon, the ogre Virādhā held up the vital airs and, lifting up the lance, attacked the two scions of Raghu. (17)

तच्छूलं वज्रसंकाशं गगने ज्वलनोपमम् ।
द्वाभ्यां शराभ्यां चिच्छेद रामः शस्त्रभृतां वरः ॥ १८ ॥

Rāma, the foremost of warriors, broke with two arrows that lance looking like the thunderbolt and a fire while still in the air. (18)

तद् रामविशिखैश्छिन्नं शूलं तस्यापतद् भुवि ।
पपाताशनिना छिन्नं मेरोरिव शिलातलम् ॥ १९ ॥

That lance of his, broken by the arrows of Rāma, fell on the earth like the rocky ledge of Mount Meru split by the thunderbolt. (19)

तौ खड्गौ क्षिप्रमुद्यम्य कृष्णसर्पाविवोद्यतौ ।
तूर्णमापेततुस्तस्य तदा प्रहरतां बलात् ॥ २० ॥

They two raised their swords like two black snakes getting up, and quickly fell upon him and then struck him with force. (20)

स वध्यमानः सुभृशं भुजाभ्यां परिगृह्य तौ ।
अप्रकम्प्यौ नरव्याघ्रौ रौद्रः प्रस्थातुमैच्छत ॥ २१ ॥

That terrible one, being violently hurt, took those two unshakable tiger-men by the arms and wanted to move. (21)

तस्याभिप्रायमाज्ञाय रामो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ।
वहत्वयमलं तावत् पथानेन तु राक्षसः ॥ २२ ॥
यथा चेच्छति सौमित्रे तथा वहतु राक्षसः ।
अयमेव हि नः पन्था येन याति निशाचरः ॥ २३ ॥

Reading his mind, Rāma said to Lakṣmaṇa—"Let this ogre gladly carry us by this way, O son of Sumitrā ! Let the ogre carry us as he will. Indeed this is the path of ours by which the night-wanderer is going." (22-23)

स तु स्वबलवीर्येण समुत्क्षिप्य निशाचरः ।
बालाविव स्कन्धगतौ चकारातिबलोद्धतः ॥ २४ ॥

That night-wanderer, for his part, proud of his great strength, lifted them up by dint of his sturdiness and energy like two children and placed them on his shoulders. (24)

तावारोप्य ततः स्कन्धं राघवौ रजनीचरः ।

विराधो विनदन् घोरं जगामाभिमुखो वनम् ॥ २५ ॥

Then placing those two scions of Raghu on his shoulders, that night-wanderer, Virāḍha, proceeded towards the forest roaring fiercely. (25)

वनं महामेघनिभं प्रविष्टो

द्रुमैर्महद्भिर्विविधैरुपेतम् ।

नानाविधैः पक्षिकुलैर्विचित्रं

शिवायुतं व्यालमृगैर्विकीर्णम् ॥ २६ ॥

He entered the forest looking like a huge cloud, containing big trees of many species, adorned with flocks of birds of various kinds, having jackals and thronged with beasts of prey. (26)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे तृतीयः सर्गः ॥ ३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Three in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्थः सर्गः

Canto IV

Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa kill Virāḍha

हियमाणौ तु काकुत्स्थौ दृष्ट्वा सीता रघूत्तमौ ।
उच्चैः स्वरेण चुक्रोश प्रगृह्य सुमहाभुजौ ॥ १ ॥

Seeing the descendants of Kakutstha, the foremost of Raghu's race, possessed of very powerful arms, (Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa) being forcibly taken away, Sitā, however, cried in a loud voice : (1)

एष दाशरथी रामः सत्यवाञ्छीलवान् शुचिः ।
रक्षसा रौद्ररूपेण ह्रियते सहलक्ष्मणः ॥ २ ॥

"This Rāma, son of Daśaratha, truthful, well-behaved and pious, is being taken away together with Lakṣmaṇa by an ogre of terrible form. (2)

मामृक्षा भक्षयिष्यन्ति शार्दूलद्वीपिनस्तथा ।
मां हरोत्सृज काकुत्स्थौ नमस्ते राक्षसोत्तम ॥ ३ ॥

"O jewel among ogres, hail to you ! Take me away. Bears will eat me up and so will tigers and panthers. Release the descendants of Kakutstha." (3)

तस्यास्तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा वैदेह्या रामलक्ष्मणौ ।
वेगं प्रचक्रतुर्वीरौ वधे तस्य दुरात्मनः ॥ ४ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid appeal of that princess of Videha territory, the heroic Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa made haste in killing the wicked ogre. (4)

तस्य रौद्रस्य सौमित्रिः सव्यं बाहुं बभञ्ज ह ।
रामस्तु दक्षिणं बाहुं तरसा तस्य रक्षसः ॥ ५ ॥

The son of Sumitrā broke the left arm of that terrible one and Rāma for his part the right arm of the said ogre with expedition. (5)

स भग्नबाहुः संविग्रः पपाताशु विमूर्च्छितः ।
धरण्यां मेघसंकाशो वज्रभिन्न इवाचलः ॥ ६ ॥

He with his arms broken, and frightened fell quickly on the ground in swoon looking like a cloud or a mountain rent asunder by lightning. (6)

मुष्टिभिर्बाहुभिः पद्भिः सूदयन्तौ तु राक्षसम् ।
उद्यम्योद्यम्य चाप्येनं स्थण्डिले निष्पिपेषतुः ॥ ७ ॥

Those two, while beating the ogre with their fists, arms and kicks, also crushed him on the ground, lifting him again and again. (7)

स विद्धौ बहुभिर्बाणैः खड्गाभ्यां च परिक्षतः ।
निष्पिष्टो बहुधा भूमौ न ममार स राक्षसः ॥ ८ ॥

Though pierced with many arrows and injured with two swords and crushed several times on the ground, that ogre did not die. (8)

तं प्रेक्ष्य रामः सुभृशमवध्यमचलोपमम् ।
भयेष्वभयदः श्रीमानिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ९ ॥

Seeing him very much incapable of being killed and looking like a mountain, the glorious Rāma, who gave protection in danger, spoke these words to Lakṣmaṇa : (9)

तपसा पुरुषव्याघ्र राक्षसोऽयं न शक्यते ।
शस्त्रेण युधि निर्जेतुं राक्षसं निखनावहे ॥ १० ॥

“O tiger-man, by virtue of his penance this ogre cannot be conquered in battle with a weapon. We two shall bury him in a pit. (10)

कुञ्जरस्येव रौद्रस्य राक्षसस्यास्य लक्ष्मण ।
वनेऽस्मिन् सुमहच्छ्वभ्रं खन्यतां रौद्रवर्चसः ॥ ११ ॥

“O Lakṣmaṇa, dig a very big pit in this forest for this terrible ogre of fierce lustre, looking like an elephant.” (11)

इत्युक्त्वा लक्ष्मणं रामः प्रदरः खन्यतामिति ।
तस्थौ विराधमाक्रम्य कण्ठे पादेन वीर्यवान् ॥ १२ ॥

Thus telling Lakṣmaṇa to dig a pit, the valorous Rāma stood stamping his foot on the neck of Virādhā. (12)

तच्छ्रुत्वा राघवेणोक्तं राक्षसः प्रश्रितं वचः ।
इदं प्रोवाच काकुत्स्थं विराधः पुरुषर्षभम् ॥ १३ ॥

Hearing the command given by the scion of Raghu, the ogre Virādhā made this polite submission to the descendant of Kakutstha, the best among men : (13)

हतोऽहं पुरुषव्याघ्र शक्रतुल्यबलेन वै ।
मया तु पूर्वं त्वं मोहान्न ज्ञातः पुरुषर्षभ ॥ १४ ॥

“O tiger-man, I stand killed by you, equal in strength to Indra. However, O jewel among men, earlier due to delusion you were not recognized by me. (14)

कौसल्या सुप्रजास्तात रामस्त्वं विदितो मया ।
वैदेही च महाभागा लक्ष्मणश्च महायशाः ॥ १५ ॥

“O dear, Kausalyā is possessed of good progeny in you. You are known by me as Rāma, as also the princess of Videha territory, who is very fortunate, and Lakṣmaṇa, who is very well-known. (15)

अभिशापादहं घोरां प्रविष्टो राक्षसीं तनुम् ।
तुम्बुरुर्नाम गन्धर्वः शप्तो वैश्रवणेन हि ॥ १६ ॥

“Indeed, I am a Gandharva named Tumburu, cursed by Kubera. Due to the curse I entered the fierce form of an ogre. (16)

प्रसाद्यमानश्च मया सोऽब्रवीन्मां महायशाः ।
यदा दाशरथी रामस्त्वां वधिष्यति संयुगे ॥ १७ ॥
तदा प्रकृतिमापन्नो भवान् स्वर्गं गमिष्यति ।
अनुपस्थीयमानो मां स क्रुद्धो व्याजहार ह ॥ १८ ॥

“When requested for grace by me, he, possessed of great fame, said to me, ‘When Rāma, son of Daśaratha, will kill you in battle, then regaining your pristine state you will go to paradise.’ He, not being attended upon by me, angrily addressed me thus. (17-18)

इति वैश्रवणो राजा रम्भासक्तमुवाच ह ।
तव प्रसादान्मुक्तोऽहमभिशापात् सुदारुणात् ॥ १९ ॥

‘King Kubera spoke thus to me, who was attached to Rambhā. With your grace I stand freed from a very terrible curse. (19)

भुवनं स्वं गमिष्यामि स्वस्ति वोऽस्तु परंतप ।
इतो वसति धर्मात्मा शरभङ्गः प्रतापवान् ॥ २० ॥
अध्यर्धयोजने तात महर्षिः सूर्यसंनिभः ।
तं क्षिप्रमभिगच्छ त्वं स ते श्रेयोऽभिधास्यति ॥ २१ ॥

“I shall go to my own realm, O tormentor of foes, good luck be to you. There lives the righteous and powerful great sage Śarabhaṅga, effulgent like the sun—just a Yojana and a half from here. Go quickly to him. He will give you good advice. (20-21)

अवटे चापि मां राम निक्षिप्य कुशली ब्रज ।
रक्षसां गतसत्त्वानामेष धर्मः सनातनः ॥ २२ ॥

अवटे ये निधीयन्ते तेषां लोकाः सनातनाः ।
 एवमुक्त्वा तु काकुत्स्थं विराधः शरपीडितः ॥ २३ ॥
 बभूव स्वर्गसम्प्राप्तो न्यस्तदेहो महाबलः ।
 तच्छ्रुत्वा राघवो वाक्यं लक्ष्मणं व्यादिदेश ह ॥ २४ ॥
 कुञ्जरस्येव रौद्रस्य राक्षसस्यास्य लक्ष्मण ।
 वनेऽस्मिन्सुमहान् श्वभ्रः खन्यतां रौद्रकर्मणः ॥ २५ ॥

Go happily, throwing me into the pit. This is the time-honoured practice for the dead ogres. Eternal worlds exist for them who are interred in a pit.” Thus saying to the descendant of Kakutstha, the mighty Virādha, for his part, being tormented by arrows, left his body and reached heaven. Hearing that speech Rāma said to Lakṣmaṇa: “O Lakṣmaṇa, dig a very big pit in this forest for this dreadful ogre of fierce activities like an elephant.” (22—25)

इत्युक्त्वा लक्ष्मणं रामः प्रदरः खन्यतामिति ।
 तस्थौ विराधमाक्रम्य कण्ठे पादेन वीर्यवान् ॥ २६ ॥

Thus telling Lakṣmaṇa to dig a pit, the valorous Rāma stood laying his foot on the neck of Virādha. (26)

ततः खनित्रमादाय लक्ष्मणः श्वभ्रमुत्तमम् ।
 अखनत् पार्श्वतस्तस्य विराधस्य महात्मनः ॥ २७ ॥

Then taking the pick, Lakṣmaṇa dug an excellent pit by the side of that high-souled Virādha. (27)

तं मुक्तकण्ठमुत्क्षिप्य शङ्कुकर्णं महास्वनम् ।
 विराधं प्राक्षिपच्छ्वभ्रे नदन्तं भैरवस्वनम् ॥ २८ ॥

Lifting up Virādha, who was possessed of spike-like ears and a sonorous voice, Śrī Rāma threw him into the pit while he was crying in a fearful voice. (28)

तमाहवे दारुणमाशुविक्रमौ
 स्थिरावुभौ संयति रामलक्ष्मणौ ।
 मुदान्वितौ चिक्षिपतुर्भयावहं
 नदन्तमुत्क्षिप्य बलेन राक्षसम् ॥ २९ ॥

Full of joy, Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa of quick valour, both firm on the battlefield, threw that fierce, frightening and roaring demon into the pit after lifting him up with force. (29)

अवध्यतां प्रेक्ष्य महासुरस्य तौ
 शितेन शस्त्रेण तदा नरर्षभौ ।
 समर्थं चात्यर्थविशारदावुभौ
 बिले विराधस्य वधं प्रचक्रतुः ॥ ३० ॥

Having realized that the great demon could not be killed with a sharp weapon both those foremost men, highly skilled, then killed Virādha burying him in a pit with full justification. (30)

स्वयं विराधेन हि मृत्युमात्मनः
 प्रसह्य रामेण यथार्थमीप्सितः ।
 निवेदितः काननचारिणा स्वयं
 न मे वधः शस्त्रकृतो भवेदिति ॥ ३१ ॥

In fact, Virādha himself had desired his own forcible death from Rāma. Hence the forest-wanderer himself said, “My death cannot happen with a weapon.” (31)

तदेव रामेण निशम्य भाषितं
 कृता मतिस्तस्य बिलप्रवेशने ।
 बिलं च तेनातिबलेन रक्षसा
 प्रवेश्यमानेन वनं विनादितम् ॥ ३२ ॥

Having heard this very speech, Rāma made up his mind to throw him into a pit and while that mighty ogre was being thrown into the pit he made the forest resound. (32)

प्रहृष्टरूपाविव रामलक्ष्मणौ
 विराधमुर्व्यां प्रदरे निपात्य तम् ।
 ननन्दतुर्वीतभयौ महावने
 शिलाभिरन्तर्दधतुश्च राक्षसम् ॥ ३३ ॥

Appearing as though pleased on having thrown that Virādha into a pit in the earth, Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa rejoiced in the great forest, their fear being removed, and covered the ogre with rocks. (33)

ततस्तु तौ काञ्चनचित्रकार्मुकौ
 निहत्य रक्षः परिगृह्य मैथिलीम् ।
 विजहतुस्तौ मुदितौ महावने
 दिवि स्थितौ चन्द्रदिवाकराविव ॥ ३४ ॥

And then, having killed the ogre and received Maithilī, those two princes, | moved about in the great forest, like the possessed of lovely golden bows, happily | moon and the sun in the sky. (34)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे चतुर्थः सर्गः ॥ ४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Four in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चमः सर्गः

Canto V

Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa and Sītā visit the hermitage of Śārabhaṅga, see the deities, and are honoured by the sage. Sage Śārabhaṅga ascends to Brahmāloka

हत्वा तु तं भीमबलं विराधं राक्षसं वने ।
ततः सीतां परिष्वज्य समाश्वस्य च वीर्यवान् ॥ १ ॥
अब्रवीद् भ्रातरं रामो लक्ष्मणं दीप्ततेजसम् ।
कष्टं वनमिदं दुर्गं न च स्मो वनगोचराः ॥ २ ॥

Killing in the forest that ogre Virādha of terrible might and then embracing and consoling Sītā, the heroic Rāma spoke to brother Lakṣmaṇa of shining lustre—"This is a very dangerous forest, difficult of access, and we are not accustomed to it. (1-2)

अभिगच्छामहे शीघ्रं शरभङ्गं तपोधनम् ।
आश्रमं शरभङ्गस्य राघवोऽभिजगाम ह ॥ ३ ॥

"We will quickly visit the ascetic Śārabhaṅga." Rāghava then went towards the hermitage of Śārabhaṅga. (3)

तस्य देवप्रभावस्य तपसा भावितात्मनः ।
समीपे शरभङ्गस्य ददर्श महद्भुतम् ॥ ४ ॥

In the vicinity of the said Śārabhaṅga, possessing divine power and purified with penance, he saw a great wonder. (4)

विभ्राजमानं वपुषा सूर्यवैश्वानरप्रभम् ।
रथप्रवरमारूढमाकाशे विबुधानुगम् ॥ ५ ॥
असंस्पृशन्तं वसुधां ददर्श विबुधेश्वरम् ।
सम्प्रभाभरणं देवं विरजोऽम्बरधारिणम् ॥ ६ ॥
तद्विधैरेव बहुभिः पूज्यमानं महात्मभिः ।
हरितैर्वाजिभिर्व्युक्तमन्तरिक्षगतं रथम् ॥ ७ ॥
ददर्शादूरतस्तस्य तरुणादित्यसंनिभम् ।
पाण्डुराभ्रघनप्रख्यं चन्द्रमण्डलसंनिभम् ॥ ८ ॥

अपश्यद् विमलं छत्रं चित्रमाल्योपशोभितम् ।
चामरव्यजने चाग्र्ये रुक्मदण्डे महाधने ॥ ९ ॥
गृहीते वरनारीभ्यां धूयमाने च मूर्धनि ।
गन्धर्वामरसिद्धाश्च बहवः परमर्षयः ॥ १० ॥
अन्तरिक्षगतं देवं गीर्भिरग्र्याभिरैडयन् ।
सह सम्भाषमाणे तु शरभङ्गेन वासवे ॥ ११ ॥

He saw the lord of the gods, shining with his body, possessing a lustre like the sun and the fire, seated in a fine chariot in the sky not touching the earth, followed by gods, wearing shining ornaments and clean garments, being worshipped by many highsouled beings of the same type. Not far from him, he saw a chariot in the sky drawn by green horses, looking like the midday
sun. He saw an immaculate canopy resembling a white cloud and possessing the lustre of the orb of the moon and decorated with magnificent garlands. He also saw excellent and very precious whisks having gold handles, held by two beautiful women and being waved over the head.
Gandharvas, gods, Siddhas and many great sages praised the god in the sky with excellent verses, while Indra was conversing with Śārabhaṅga. (5—11)

दृष्ट्वा शतक्रतुं तत्र रामो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ।
रामोऽथ रथमुद्दिश्य भ्रातुर्दर्शयताद्भुतम् ॥ १२ ॥

Seeing Indra there, Rāma addressed

Lakṣmaṇa and then pointing to the chariot showed the wonder to his brother. (12)

अचिष्यन्तं श्रिया जुष्टमद्भुतं पश्य लक्ष्मण।
प्रतपन्तमिवादित्यमन्तरिक्षगतं रथम् ॥ १३ ॥

“O Lakṣmaṇa, see in the sky the wonderful chariot possessed of lustre, attended by grandeur and glowing like the sun. (13)

ये हयाः पुरुहूतस्य पुरा शक्रस्य नः श्रुताः।
अन्तरिक्षगता दिव्यास्त इमे हरयो ध्रुवम् ॥ १४ ॥

“Indeed, here in the sky are those celestial horses of Indra—the horses of which we had heard so much earlier. (14)

इमे च पुरुषव्याघ्र ये तिष्ठन्त्यभितो दिशम्।
शतं शतं कुण्डलिनो युवानः खड्गपाणयः ॥ १५ ॥
विस्तीर्णविपुलोरस्काः परिघायतबाहवः।
शोणांशुवसनाः सर्वे व्याघ्रा इव दुरासदाः ॥ १६ ॥

“And O tiger-man, those who are standing all round in groups of hundreds— youngmen wearing earrings, holding swords in their hands, having very broad chests and large arms resembling iron clubs and wearing red garments—all are unassailable like tigers. (15-16)

उरोदेशेषु सर्वेषां हारा ज्वलनसंनिभाः।
रूपं बिभ्रति सौमित्रे पञ्चविंशतिवार्षिकम् ॥ १७ ॥

“At the breast-regions of all hang garlands bright as fire. O son of Sumitrā, all are possessed of a form aged twenty-five years. (17)

एतद्धि किल देवानां वयो भवति नित्यदा।
यथेमे पुरुषव्याघ्रा दृश्यन्ते प्रियदर्शनाः ॥ १८ ॥

“Indeed, they say this is the permanent age of gods, as these tiger-men of agreeable looks appear. (18)

इहैव सह वैदेह्या मुहूर्तं तिष्ठ लक्ष्मण।
यावज्जानाम्यहं व्यक्तं क एष द्युतिमान् रथे ॥ १९ ॥

“Lakṣmaṇa, stay here only awhile with Vaidehī till I find out clearly who this lustrous being in the chariot is.” (19)

तमेवमुक्त्वा सौमित्रिमिहैव स्थीयतामिति।
अभिचक्राम काकुत्स्थः शरभङ्गाश्रमं प्रति ॥ २० ॥

Thus telling the said Saumitri to stay there only, Kākutstha walked towards the hermitage of Śarabhaṅga. (20)

ततः समभिगच्छन्तं प्रेक्ष्य रामं शचीपतिः।
शरभङ्गमुज्जाप्य विबुधानिदमब्रवीत् ॥ २१ ॥

Then, seeing Rāma coming near, the husband of Śacī, Indra, took leave of Śarabhaṅga and said this to the gods: (21)

इहोपयात्यसौ रामो यावन्मां नाभिभाषते।
निष्ठां नयत तावत् तु ततो मां द्रष्टुमर्हति ॥ २२ ॥
जितवन्तं कृतार्थं हि तदाहमचिरादिमम्।
कर्म ह्यनेन कर्तव्यं महदन्यैः सुदुष्करम् ॥ २३ ॥

“Here comes this Rāma; before he speaks to me, make a move, let him not see me. Shortly when he has conquered Rāvaṇa and achieved his purpose, then I shall see him. For, he has to do a great deed which is very difficult to be done by others.” (22-23)

अथ वज्री तमामन्य मानयित्वा च तापसम्।
रथेन हययुक्तेन ययौ दिवमरिंदमः ॥ २४ ॥

Then having taken leave of and having honoured that ascetic, the wielder of the thunderbolt, a subduer of enemies, rose to heaven in his chariot drawn by horses. (24)

प्रयाते तु सहस्राक्षे राघवः सपरिच्छदः।
अग्निहोत्रमुपासीनं शरभङ्गमुपागमत् ॥ २५ ॥

When, however, the thousand-eyed one had left, Rāghava together with his followers approached Śarabhaṅga, who was worshipping the fire. (25)

तस्य पादौ च संगृह्य रामः सीता च लक्ष्मणः।
निषेदुस्तदनुज्ञाता लब्धवासा निमन्त्रिताः ॥ २६ ॥

Rāma, Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa touched his feet and sat down with his permission. He invited them to be his guests and gave them rooms to stay. (26)

ततः शक्रोपयानं तु पर्यपृच्छत्स राघवः ।
शरभङ्गश्च तत् सर्वं राघवाय न्यवेदयत् ॥ २७ ॥

Then Rāma, for his part, asked the purpose of Indra's visit and Śarabhaṅga related the whole thing to Rāghava. (27)

मामेष वरदो राम ब्रह्मलोकं निनीषति ।
जितमुग्रेण तपसा दुष्प्रापमकृतात्मभिः ॥ २८ ॥

"This bestower of boons, Indra, O Rāma, desires to take me to Brahmāloka, which has been won by me through severe penance and which is difficult to be attained by those who are not self-controlled. (28)

अहं ज्ञात्वा नरव्याघ्र वर्तमानमदूरतः ।
ब्रह्मलोकं न गच्छामि त्वामदृष्ट्वा प्रियातिथिम् ॥ २९ ॥

"O tiger-man, I, having known you to be present nearby, decided not to go to Brahmāloka without seeing you, my beloved guest. (29)

त्वयाहं पुरुषव्याघ्र धार्मिकेण महात्मना ।
समागम्य गमिष्यामि त्रिदिवं चावरं परम् ॥ ३० ॥
अक्षया नरशार्दूल जिता लोका मया शुभाः ।
ब्राह्मणाश्च नाकपृष्ठ्याश्च प्रतिगृहीष्व मामकान् ॥ ३१ ॥

"Having had a meeting with you, a high-souled prince of righteous nature, I shall go to the lower heaven and then to the higher. I have won, O tiger-man, auspicious and unending worlds—heavenly and those of Lord Brahmā; please accept all these my worlds." (30-31)

एवमुक्तो नरव्याघ्रः सर्वशास्त्रविशारदः ।
ऋषिणा शरभङ्गेन राघवो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ३२ ॥

When thus spoken to by Sage Śarabhaṅga, the tiger-man, Rāma, well-versed in all sciences—replied as follows: (32)

अहमेवाहरिष्यामि सर्वाल्लोकान् महामुने ।
आवासं त्वहमिच्छामि प्रदिष्टमिह कानने ॥ ३३ ॥

"O great sage, I shall myself bring all the worlds to you. However, I desire that a place of abode be pointed out to me in this forest." (33)

राघवेणैवमुक्तस्तु शक्रतुल्यबलेन वै ।
शरभङ्गो महाप्राज्ञः पुनरेवाब्रवीद् वचः ॥ ३४ ॥

Thus addressed by Rāghava, equal in might to Indra, the very wise Śarabhaṅga once again uttered the following words : (34)

इह राम महातेजाः सुतीक्ष्णो नाम धार्मिकः । वसत्यरण्ये नियतः स ते श्रेयो विधास्यति ॥ ३५ ॥

"Rāma, here in the forest dwells a righteous and self-restrained sage, named Sutikṣṇa, possessed of great lustre. He will do you good. (35)

सुतीक्ष्णमभिगच्छ त्वं शुचौ देशे तपस्विनम् ।
रमणीये वनोद्देशे स ते वासं विधास्यति ॥ ३६ ॥

"Approach you the ascetic Sutikṣṇa in that pious region. He will arrange for your residence in a charming region of the forest. (36)

इमां मन्दाकिनीं राम प्रतिस्रोतामनुव्रज ।
नदीं पुष्पोदुपवहां ततस्तत्र गमिष्यसि ॥ ३७ ॥

"Rāma, follow against the current this river Mandākinī carrying boats of flowers; then you will reach there. (37)

एष पन्था नरव्याघ्र मुहूर्तं पश्य तात माम् ।
यावज्जहामि गात्राणि जीर्णां त्वचमिवोरगः ॥ ३८ ॥

"This is the path, O tiger-man ! Dear, look at me for a while as I shed the old and worn-out limbs, just as a serpent casts off its slough." (38)

ततोऽग्निं स समाधाय हुत्वा चाज्येन मन्त्रवत् ।
शरभङ्गो महातेजाः प्रविवेश हुताशनम् ॥ ३९ ॥

Then, kindling the fire and pouring oblations of ghee with chants, that Śarabhaṅga of great lustre entered the fire. (39)

तस्य रोमाणि केशांश्च तदा वह्निर्महात्मनः ।
जीर्णां त्वचं तदस्थीनि यच्च मांसं च शोणितम् ॥ ४० ॥

Presently the fire burnt the hair on the body and head, old skin and bones and whatever flesh and blood that great soul had. (40)

स च पावकसंकाशः कुमारः समपद्यत ।
उत्थायाग्निचयात् तस्माच्छरभङ्गो व्यरोचत ॥ ४१ ॥

And he appeared as a boy glowing like fire. Rising from that heap of fire, Śarabhaṅga shone bright. (41)

स लोकानाहिताग्नीनामृषीणां च महात्मनाम् ।
देवानां च व्यतिक्रम्य ब्रह्मलोकं व्यरोहत ॥ ४२ ॥

He crossed the worlds of fireworshippers, high-souled sages and gods and rose to the Brahmaloка. (42)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे पञ्चमः सर्गः ॥ ५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Five in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic

षष्ठः सर्गः

Canto VI

The sages request Rāma for protection from the molestations of the ogres and Rāma assures them of it

शरभङ्गे दिवं प्राप्ते मुनिसङ्घाः समागताः ।
अभ्यगच्छन्त काकुत्स्थं रामं ज्वलिततेजसम् ॥ १ ॥

Śarabhaṅga having risen to heaven, the hosts of sages assembled there approached Kākutstha Rāma of burning lustre. (1)

वैखानसा वालखिल्याः सम्प्रक्षाला मरीचिपाः ।

अश्मकुट्टाश्च बहवः पत्राहाराश्च तापसाः ॥ २ ॥

दन्तोलूखलिनश्चैव तथैवोन्मज्जकाः परे ।

गात्रशय्या अशय्याश्च तथैवानवकाशिकाः ॥ ३ ॥

मुनयः सलिलाहारा वायुभक्षास्तथापरे ।

आकाशनिलयाश्चैव तथा स्थण्डिलशायिनः ॥ ४ ॥

तथोर्ध्ववासिनो दान्तास्तथाऽऽर्द्रपटवाससः ।

सजपाश्च तपोनिष्ठास्तथा पञ्चतपोऽन्विताः ॥ ५ ॥

सर्वे ब्राह्म्या श्रिया युक्ता दृढयोगसमाहिताः ।

शरभङ्गाश्रमे राममभिजग्मुश्च तापसाः ॥ ६ ॥

The Vaikhānasas (a class of ascetics born of the nails of Brahṁā), the Vālakhilyas (another class of sages born of Brahṁā's

स पुण्यकर्मा भुवने द्विजर्षभः
पितामहं सानुचरं ददर्श ह ।
पितामहश्चापि समीक्ष्य तं द्विजं
ननन्द सुस्वागतमित्युवाच ह ॥ ४३ ॥

That meritorious jewel among the twice-born, Śarabhaṅga, in the world saw the grandfather, Brahṁā, with his attendants;
the grandfather also was delighted to see that Brāhmaṇa and said "You are fully welcome." (43)

hair), sages who washed the utensils after their meals (keeping nothing for another time), those who lived on the sun's or moon's rays, those who powdered grains by stones, many ascetics living on leaves, those using teeth as the mortar and pestle, others doing penance in neck-deep water, those using limbs of the body alone for bed, those without bed, those enjoying no respite from their religious observances, sages living on water alone, others on air alone, those having sky as the only roof, those sleeping on the alter, those dwelling on high altitudes, those who controlled their senses, those who used to wear wet clothes, those doing Japa, those devoted to penance, those doing the penance of sitting in the middle of four fires, with the sun (the fifth) overhead, all possessed of Brahmic lustre, and with their mind concentrated through steadfast practice of yoga—these ascetics approached Rāma in the hermitage of Śarabhaṅga. (2—6)

अभिगम्य च धर्मज्ञा रामं धर्मभृतां वरम् ।

ऊचुः परमधर्मज्ञमृषिसङ्घाः समागताः ॥ ७ ॥

Having approached him, the assembled hosts of sages—the knowers of Dharma—said to Rāma, the best amongst the upholders of Dharma and the supreme knower of Dharma : (7)

त्वमिक्ष्वाकुकुलस्यास्य पृथिव्याश्च महारथः ।

प्रधानश्चापि नाथश्च देवानां मघवानिव ॥ ८ ॥

“You are a great car-warrior and the principal personality and master of this Ikṣvāku dynasty as well as of the earth, as Indra is of gods. (8)

विश्रुतस्त्रिषु लोकेषु यशसा विक्रमेण च ।

पितृव्रतत्वं सत्यं च त्वयि धर्मश्च पुष्कलः ॥ ९ ॥

“You are well-known in the three worlds by virtue of your fame and valour. In you abide filial devotion, truth and abundant virtue. (9)

त्वामासाद्य महात्मानं धर्मज्ञं धर्मवत्सलम् ।

अर्थित्वान्नाथ वक्ष्यामस्तच्च नः क्षन्तुमर्हसि ॥ १० ॥

“Having met you, the magnanimous knower of Dharma and lover of righteousness, we shall speak like a petitioner. You may please forgive us for this encroachment, O lord ! (10)

अधर्मः सुमहान् नाथ भवेत् तस्य तु भूपतेः ।

यो हरेद् बलिषड्भागं न च रक्षति पुत्रवत् ॥ ११ ॥

“It would be a great Adharma (failure in duty), O master, on the part of that king who would just take away the sixth part by way of land revenue and not protect his subjects like his own children. (11)

युञ्जानः स्वानिव प्राणान् प्राणैरिष्टान् सुतानिव ।

नित्ययुक्तः सदा रक्षन् सर्वान् विषयवासिनः ॥ १२ ॥

प्राप्नोति शाश्वतीं राम कीर्तिं स बहुवार्षिकीम् ।

ब्रह्मणः स्थानमासाद्य तत्र चापि महीयते ॥ १३ ॥

“Always attentively protecting all the people dwelling within the kingdom like his own life or like the sons who are dearer than life, keeping himself engaged, he attains, O Rāma, continuous fame lasting for many years and, having reached the realm of Brahmā, is honoured even there. (12-13)

यत् करोति परं धर्मं मुनिर्मूलफलाशनः ।

तत्र राज्ञश्चतुर्भागः प्रजा धर्मेण रक्षतः ॥ १४ ॥

“Whatever great Dharma a sage living on roots and fruits does, the fourth part of it goes to the king, who protects the people with Dharma. (14)

सोऽयं ब्राह्मणभूयिष्ठो वानप्रस्थगणो महान् ।

त्वन्नाथोऽनाथवद् राम राक्षसैर्हन्यते भृशम् ॥ १५ ॥

“This great multitude of forest-dwellers, mainly consisting of Brāhmaṇas and having you as their master, O Rāma, is being killed like the forlorn in large numbers by the ogres. (15)

एहि पश्य शरीराणि मुनीनां भावितात्मनाम् ।

हतानां राक्षसैर्घोरैर्बहूनां बहुधा वने ॥ १६ ॥

“Come, see the bodies of many pure minded sages killed by the terrible ogres in several ways in the forest. (16)

पम्पानदीनिवासानामनुमन्दाकिनीमपि ।

चित्रकूटालयानां च क्रियते कदनं महत् ॥ १७ ॥

“A great destruction is being wrought of the sages living along the Pampā river, and by the side of Mandākinī and also of those having their residence on Citrakūṭa. (17)

एवं वयं न मृष्यामो विप्रकारं तपस्विनाम् ।

क्रियमाणं वने घोरं रक्षोभिर्भीमकर्मभिः ॥ १८ ॥

“Thus we cannot brook the awful persecution to which ascetics in the forest are being subjected by the ogres of fierce activities. (18)

ततस्त्वां शरणार्थं च शरण्यं समुपस्थिताः ।

परिपालय नो राम वध्यमानान् निशाचरैः ॥ १९ ॥

“Hence we have come to you, who are a fit resort, for protection. Rāma, protect us; we are being killed by the ogres, the night-stalkers. (19)

परा त्वत्तो गतिर्वीर पृथिव्यां नोपपद्यते।
परिपालय नः सर्वान् राक्षसेभ्यो नृपात्मज ॥ २० ॥

“O brave prince, there can be no better help on earth than you. Protect us all from the ogres.” (20)

एतच्छ्रुत्वा तु काकुत्स्थस्तापसानां तपस्विनाम्।
इदं प्रोवाच धर्मात्मा सर्वानेव तपस्विनः ॥ २१ ॥

Hearing this from the ascetic sages, the righteous Kākutstha for his part addressed all the ascetics as follows: (21)

नैवमर्हथ मां वक्तुमाज्ञाप्योऽहं तपस्विनाम्।
केवलेन स्वकार्येण प्रवेष्टव्यं वनं मया ॥ २२ ॥
विप्रकारमपाक्रष्टुं राक्षसैर्भवतामिमम्।
पितुस्तु निर्देशकरः प्रविष्टोऽहमिदं वनम् ॥ २३ ॥

“You should not pray to me thus. I am at the service of the ascetics. I have to enter the forest not only for my own business, it is to stop this persecution of yours by the ogres that I have entered this forest in obedience to the command of my father. (22-23)

भवतामर्थसिद्ध्यर्थमागतोऽहं यदृच्छया।
तस्य मेऽयं वने वासो भविष्यति महाफलः ॥ २४ ॥

“By chance, I have come here to achieve your purpose. Thus getting the opportunity, this stay of mine in the forest is going to yield great results. (24)

तपस्विनां रणे शत्रून् हन्तुमिच्छामि राक्षसान्।
पश्यन्तु वीर्यमृषयः सभ्रातुर्मै तपोधनाः ॥ २५ ॥

“I desire to kill ogres, the enemies of ascetics, on the battlefield. Let the ascetic sages see my valour together with my brother’s.” (25)

दत्त्वा वरं चापि तपोधनानां
धर्मे धृतात्मा सह लक्ष्मणेन।
तपोधनैश्चापि सहाय्यदत्तः
सुतीक्ष्णमेवाभिजगाम वीरः ॥ २६ ॥

Giving an assurance to the ascetics, the righteous-minded hero, Śrī Rāma, the bestower of noble gifts, proceeded towards Sutikṣṇa alone, together with Lakṣmaṇa (and Sītā) as well as with all the ascetics. (26)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे षष्ठः सर्गः ॥ ६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Six in the Araṇyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तमः सर्गः

Canto VII

Rāma goes to Sutikṣṇa together with Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa and stays with him during the night

रामस्तु सहितो भ्रात्रा सीतया च परंतपः।
सुतीक्ष्णस्याश्रमपदं जगाम सह तैर्द्विजैः ॥ १ ॥

Rāma, the tormentor of foes, together with his brother and Sītā and also with the Brāhmaṇas, went to the site of Sutikṣṇa’s hermitage. (1)

स गत्वा दूरमध्वानं नदीस्तीर्त्वा बहूदकाः।
ददर्श विमलं शैलं महामेरुमिवोन्नतम् ॥ २ ॥

Going a long distance and crossing the rivers of deep waters he saw a bright mountain, high like the great Meru. (2)

ततस्तदिक्ष्वाकुवरौ सततं विविधैर्द्रुमैः।
काननं तौ विविशतुः सीतया सह राघवौ ॥ ३ ॥

Then those two Rāghavas, the best amongst the Ikṣvākus, together with Sītā, entered that forest full of a variety of trees. (3)

प्रविष्टस्तु वनं घोरं बहुपुष्पफलद्रुमम्।
ददर्शाश्रममेकान्ते चीरमालापरिष्कृतम् ॥ ४ ॥

Having entered the fearful forest having trees laden with flowers and fruits, he saw in one corner a hermitage decorated with bark-garments and garlands. (4)

तत्र तापसमासीनं मलपङ्कजधारिणम् ।
रामः सुतीक्ष्णं विधिवत् तपोधनमभाषत ॥ ५ ॥

Rāma spoke with due decorum to the ascetic, Sage Sutikṣṇa, sitting there in the posture of Padmāsana for purification : (5)

रामोऽहमस्मि भगवन् भवन्तं द्रष्टुमागतः ।
तन्माभिवद धर्मज्ञ महर्षे सत्यविक्रम ॥ ६ ॥

“Sir, I am Rāma, come to see you. Hence, O knower of Dharma, great sage of true spiritual might, please speak to me.” (6)

स निरीक्ष्य ततो धीरो रामं धर्मभृतां वरम् ।
समाश्लिष्य च बाहुभ्यामिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ७ ॥

That wise seer then saw Rāma, the best amongst the upholders of Dharma, folded him in his arms and addressed to him the following words : (7)

स्वागतं ते रघुश्रेष्ठ राम सत्यभृतां वर ।
आश्रमोऽयं त्वयाऽऽक्रान्तः सनाथ इव साम्प्रतम् ॥ ८ ॥

“Welcome to you, O Rāma, the foremost amongst the Raghus, the best amongst the upholders of truth. With your arrival this hermitage has now found its master, as it were. (8)

प्रतीक्षमाणस्त्वामेव नारोहेऽहं महायशः ।
देवलोकमितो वीर देहं त्यक्त्वा महीतले ॥ ९ ॥

“Awaiting you only, I am not ascending to the realm of gods from here, abandoning the body on the surface of the earth, O highly illustrious hero ! (9)

चित्रकूटमुपादाय राज्यभ्रष्टोऽसि मे श्रुतः ।
इहोपयातः काकुत्स्थ देवराजः शतक्रतुः ॥ १० ॥

“O Kākutsṥtha, Indra, the king of gods, had come here. I have heard that abandoning the kingdom you have come over to Citrakūṭa. (10)

उपागम्य च मे देवो महादेवः सुरेश्वरः ।
सर्वल्लोकाञ्जितानाह मम पुण्येन कर्मणा ॥ ११ ॥

तेषु देवर्षिजुष्टेषु जितेषु तपसा मया ।
मत्प्रसादात् सभार्यस्त्वं विहरस्व सलक्ष्मणः ॥ १२ ॥

“Coming to me, Indra, the great god, the king of gods, told me that I have won all the higher worlds through meritorious action. I urge you that, you may please rejoice in those worlds inhabited by divine sages, won by me, together with your wife and Lakṣmaṇa.” (11-12)

तमुग्रतपसं दीप्तं महर्षिं सत्यवादिनम् ।
प्रत्युवाचात्मवान् रामो ब्रह्माणमिव वासवः ॥ १३ ॥

The self-restrained Rāma replied to that great resplendent sage of austere penance, who had taken a vow to speak the truth, as Indra does to Brahmā : (13)

अहमेवाहरिष्यामि स्वयं लोकान् महामुने ।
आवासं त्वहमिच्छामि प्रदिष्टमिह कानने ॥ १४ ॥

“O great sage, I shall myself bring all the worlds within your reach. However, at this moment, I desire that a place for my abode in this forest be pointed out to me. (14)

भवान् सर्वत्र कुशलः सर्वभूतहिते रतः ।
आख्यातं शरभङ्गेन गौतमेन महात्मना ॥ १५ ॥

“The high-souled Śarabhaṅga of Gautama family told me that you are well-versed in all sciences and devoted to the good of all creatures.” (15)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण महर्षिलोकविश्रुतः ।
अब्रवीन्मधुरं वाक्यं हर्षेण महता युतः ॥ १६ ॥

Thus addressed by Rāma, the great sage, well-known in the world, uttered the following sweet words with great delight : (16)

अयमेवाश्रमो राम गुणवान् रम्यतामिति ।
ऋषिसंघानुचरितः सदा मूलफलैर्युतः ॥ १७ ॥

“Rāma, this very hermitage, frequented by multitudes of sages and always abounding in roots and fruits, is comfortable; you may please stay happily here. (17)

इममाश्रममागम्य मृगसंघा महीयसः ।
अहत्वा प्रतिगच्छन्ति लोभयित्वाकुतोभयाः ॥ १८ ॥

“Coming to this hermitage, large herds of deer roam everywhere; they return without harming anyone and having lured everyone with their beauty. (18)

नान्यो दोषो भवेदत्र मृगेभ्योऽन्यत्र विद्धि वै ।
तच्छ्रुत्वा वचनं तस्य महर्षेर्लक्ष्मणाग्रजः ॥ १९ ॥
उवाच वचनं धीरो विगृह्य सशरं धनुः ।
तानहं सुमहाभाग मृगसंघान् समागतान् ॥ २० ॥
ह्रन्यां निशितधारेण शरेणानतपर्वणा ।
भवांस्तत्राभिषज्येत किं स्यात् कृच्छ्रतरं ततः ॥ २१ ॥

“Rest assured that there will be no disturbance here except that from the frolicking deer.” Hearing that speech of the great sage, the valiant elder brother of Lakṣmaṇa uttered the following words picking up the bow with arrow: “O highly fortunate sage, if perchance I happen to kill those herds of deer collected here with an arrow of sharp edge, bent at the joint, you will be insulted thereby; what could be more painful than that? (19—21)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे सप्तमः सर्गः ॥ ७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seven in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टमः सर्गः

Canto VIII

In the morning Rāma, together with Lakṣmaṇa and Sītā, takes leave of Sutiḥṣṇa and departs

रामस्तु सहसौमित्रिः सुतीक्ष्णेनाभिपूजितः ।
परिणाम्य निशां तत्र प्रभाते प्रत्यबुध्यत ॥ १ ॥

Honoured by Sutiḥṣṇa, Rāma for his part together with Lakṣmaṇa passed the night there and got up in the morning. (1)

उत्थाय च यथाकालं राघवः सह सीतया ।
उपस्पृश्य सुशीतेन तोयेनोत्पलगन्धिना ॥ २ ॥

Getting up at the proper time, Rāma together with Sītā bathed in pleasantly cold water fragrant with the scent of lotuses. (2)

एतस्मिन्नाश्रमे वासं चिरं तु न समर्थये ।
तमेवमुक्त्वोपरमं रामः संध्यामुपागमत् ॥ २२ ॥

“Hence I don’t favour a long stay in this hermitage.” Saying thus to him, Rāma stopped short and left for the evening worship. (22)

अन्वास्य पश्चिमां संध्यां तत्र वासमकल्पयत् ।
सुतीक्ष्णस्याश्रमे रम्ये सीतया लक्ष्मणेन च ॥ २३ ॥

Having performed the evening worship, he took up his abode there in the charming hermitage of Sutiḥṣṇa, together with Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa. (23)

ततः शुभं तापसयोग्यमनं
स्वयं सुतीक्ष्णः पुरुषर्षभाभ्याम् ।
ताभ्यां सुसत्कृत्य ददौ महात्मा
संध्यानिवृत्तौ रजनीं समीक्ष्य ॥ २४ ॥

Then at the close of evening, seeing the nightfall, the high-souled Sutiḥṣṇa himself honoured those jewels among men and offered them pious food fit for ascetics. (24)

अथ तेऽग्निं सुरांश्चैव वैदेही रामलक्ष्मणौ ।
काल्यं विधिवदभ्यर्च्य तपस्विशरणे वने ॥ ३ ॥
उदयन्तं दिनकरं दृष्ट्वा विगतकल्मषाः ।
सुतीक्ष्णमभिगम्येदं श्लक्ष्णं वचनमब्रुवन् ॥ ४ ॥

Then they—Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa and Sītā—who were free from sins, worshipped in time the fire and other gods according to the rites, in the forest resorted to by ascetics and, having seen the rising sun and going to Sutiḥṣṇa, uttered the following sweet words: (3-4)

सुखोषिताः स्म भगवंस्त्वया पूज्येन पूजिताः ।
आपृच्छामः प्रयास्यामो मुनयस्त्वरयन्ति नः ॥ ५ ॥

“Sir, happily have we stayed, honoured by Your Holiness. We now take leave of you and shall depart. The sages are hastening us. (5)

त्वरामहे वयं द्रष्टुं कृत्स्नमाश्रममण्डलम् ।
ऋषीणां पुण्यशीलानां दण्डकारण्यवासिनाम् ॥ ६ ॥

“We shall hasten to see the whole circle of hermitages of the sages of meritorious deeds, staying in the Daṇḍaka forest. (6)

अभ्यनुज्ञातुमिच्छामः सहैभिर्मुनिपुंगवैः ।
धर्मनित्यैस्तपोदानैर्विशिखैरिव पावकैः ॥ ७ ॥

“We desire to take leave of you together with these jewels among foremost sages, always persistent in virtue and self-restraint through penance, looking like a fire without smoke. (7)

अविषह्यातपो यावत् सूर्यो नातिविराजते ।
आमर्गेणागतां लक्ष्मीं प्राप्येवान्वयवर्जितः ॥ ८ ॥
तावदिच्छामहे गन्तुमित्युक्त्वा चरणौ मुनेः ।
ववन्दे सहसौमित्रिः सीतया सह राघवः ॥ ९ ॥

“Before the sun starts shining brightly with unbearable heat, just as a man from a low family becomes unbearable after getting wealth earned through unfair means, we desire to go.” Saying this, Rāghava bowed down at the feet of the sage, together with Lakṣmaṇa and Sītā. (8-9)

तौ संस्पृशन्तौ चरणाबुत्थाप्य मुनिपुंगवः ।
गाढमाश्लिष्य सस्नेहमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १० ॥

The great sage lifted the two princes touching his feet and, closely embracing them, uttered these affectionate words : (10)

अरिष्टं गच्छ पन्थानं राम सौमित्रिणा सह ।
सीतया चानया सार्धं छाययेवानुवृत्तया ॥ ११ ॥

“Rāma, proceed on your journey devoid of any danger together with the son of Sumitrā and with Sītā, who is following you like a shadow. (11)

पश्याश्रमपदं रम्यं दण्डकारण्यवासिनाम् ।
एषां तपस्विनां वीर तपसा भावितात्मनाम् ॥ १२ ॥

“O hero, see the charming site of the hermitages of these ascetics, dwelling in the Daṇḍaka forest, their soul purified with penance. (12)

सुप्राज्यफलमूलानि पुष्पितानि वनानि च ।
प्रशस्तमृगयूथानि शान्तपक्षिगणानि च ॥ १३ ॥
फुल्लपङ्कजखण्डानि प्रसन्नसलिलानि च ।
कारण्डवविकीर्णानि तटाकानि सरांसि च ॥ १४ ॥
द्रक्ष्यसे दृष्टिरम्याणि गिरिप्रस्त्रवणानि च ।
रमणीयान्यरण्यानि मयूराभिरुतानि च ॥ १५ ॥

“You will see beautiful forests abounding in fruits and roots and full of flowers with excellent herds of deer and peaceful flocks of birds, lakes and ponds containing cluster of blossoming lotuses with crystal waters and thronged with water-fowls, springs on mountains, charming to the eye, and beautiful forests resounding with the noise of peacocks. (13—15)

गम्यतां वत्स सौमित्रे भवानपि च गच्छतु ।
आगन्तव्यं च ते दृष्ट्वा पुनरेवाश्रमं प्रति ॥ १६ ॥

“Go, dear Rāma; you too may go, O son of Sumitrā ! You should come back to this very hermitage after seeing these things.” (16)

एवमुक्तस्तथेत्युक्त्वा काकुत्स्थः सहलक्ष्मणः ।
प्रदक्षिणं मुनिं कृत्वा प्रस्थातुमुपचक्रमे ॥ १७ ॥

Thus addressed, Kākutstha, together with Lakṣmaṇa, said, “So be it !” and going round the sage keeping him to the right, started on his journey. (17)

ततः शुभतरे तूणी धनुषी चायतेक्षणा ।
ददौ सीता तयोर्भ्रात्रोः खड्गौ च विमलौ ततः ॥ १८ ॥

Then Sītā, possessed of large eyes, handed to those two brothers highly superb quivers, bows and polished swords. (18)

आबध्य च शुभे तूणी चापे चादाय सस्वने ।
निष्क्रान्तावाश्रमाद् गन्तुमुभौ तौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ १९ ॥

Both of them, Rāma as well as Lakṣmaṇa, fastened the beautiful quivers, took with a twang the bows and left the hermitage for proceeding on their journey.
(19)

शीघ्रं तौ रूपसम्पन्नावनुज्ञातौ महर्षिणा ।
प्रस्थितौ धृतचापासी सीतया सह राघवौ ॥ २० ॥
Permitted by the great sage and holding the bows and the swords, the two handsome Rāghavas started with Sitā.
(20)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डेऽष्टमः सर्गः ॥ ८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eight in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

नवमः सर्गः

Canto IX

Sitā requests Rāma not to kill innocent animals and to observe non-violence

सुतीक्ष्णेनाभ्यनुज्ञातं प्रस्थितं रघुनन्दनम् ।
हृद्यया स्निग्धया वाचा भर्तारमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Sitā spoke thus to her husband, the delight of Raghu, who had left with the permission of Sutikṣṇa, in the following charming and loving words : (1)

अधर्मं तु सुसूक्ष्मेण विधिना प्राप्यते महान् ।
निवृत्तेन च शक्योऽयं व्यसनात् कामजादिह ॥ २ ॥
त्रीण्येव व्यसनान्यत्र कामजानि भवन्त्युत ।
मिथ्यावाक्यं तु परमं तस्माद् गुरुतरावुभौ ॥ ३ ॥
परदाराभिगमनं विना वैरं च रौद्रता ।
मिथ्यावाक्यं न ते भूतं न भविष्यति राघव ॥ ४ ॥

“In a very subtle way, a great man is led to ‘Adharma’. If one keeps away from addictions born of desire, it can be avoided in this world. Indeed, the addiction born of desire in this world are only three in number: False speech is extremely bad; the other two are even worse than that—copulation with the wife of another and cruelty without enmity. A false statement you have never made nor will you ever make, O Rāghava !
(2—4)

कुतोऽभिलषणं स्त्रीणां पेषां धर्मनाशनम् ।
तव नास्ति मनुष्येन्द्र न चाभूत् ते कदाचन ॥ ५ ॥

“O ruler of men, how can there spring up in you the desire for others’ wives, that destroys Dharma? You have not got it, nor was it ever with you. (5)

मनस्यपि तथा राम न चैतद् विद्यते क्वचित् ।
स्वदारनिरतश्चैव नित्यमेव नृपात्मज ॥ ६ ॥

“Rāma, nowhere is it even in your mind. And you are always devoted to your own wife, O prince ! (6)

धर्मिष्ठः सत्यसंधश्च पितुर्निर्देशकारकः ।
त्वयि धर्मश्च सत्यं च त्वयि सर्वं प्रतिष्ठितम् ॥ ७ ॥

“Dharma and Truth—everything is well-established in you. You are the best observer of Dharma and true to your promise and obedient to your father. (7)

तच्च सर्वं महाबाहो शक्यं वोढुं जितेन्द्रियैः ।
तव वश्येन्द्रियत्वं च जानामि शुभदर्शन ॥ ८ ॥

“All these, O mighty-armed one, can be cherished by those who have conquered the senses; I know your control over the senses, O handsome prince ! (8)

तृतीयं यदिदं रौद्रं परप्राणाभिहिंसनम् ।
निर्वैरं क्रियते मोहात् तच्च ते समुपस्थितम् ॥ ९ ॥

“But the third terrible evil, viz., the taking of others’ lives, which is done without enmity due to ignorance, is facing you. (9)

प्रतिज्ञातस्त्वया वीर दण्डकारण्यवासिनाम् ।
ऋषीणां रक्षणार्थाय वधः संयति रक्षसाम् ॥ १० ॥

एतन्निमित्तं च वनं दण्डका इति विश्रुतम्।
प्रस्थितस्त्वं सह भ्रात्रा धृतबाणशरासनः ॥ ११ ॥

“O hero, you have undertaken a vow to kill the ogres on the battlefield for the protection of sages living in the Daṇḍaka forest; and for this very purpose you have set out with arrows and a bow towards the forest well-known as Daṇḍaka, with your brother. (10-11)

ततस्त्वां प्रस्थितं दृष्ट्वा मम चिन्ताकुलं मनः।
त्वद्वृत्तं चिन्तयन्त्या वै भवेन्निःश्रेयसं हितम् ॥ १२ ॥

“Hence, seeing you on your way to the Daṇḍaka, my mind is perturbed with anxiety, thinking of your imminent doings and of your highest well-being and worldly interests. (12)

नहि मे रोचते वीर गमनं दण्डकान् प्रति।
कारणं तत्र वक्ष्यामि वदन्त्याः श्रूयतां मम ॥ १३ ॥

“I do not like, O hero, your going towards the Daṇḍaka. I shall tell you the reason for that; while I speak of it, please listen. (13)

त्वं हि बाणधनुष्याणिभ्रात्रा सह वनं गतः।
दृष्ट्वा वनचरान् सर्वान् कच्चित् कुर्याः शरव्ययम् ॥ १४ ॥

“When you go to the forest with arrows and bow in hand together with your brother and see all kinds of animals in the forest, you may perhaps shoot an arrow somewhere. (14)

क्षत्रियाणामिह धनुर्हुताशस्येन्धनानि च।
समीपतः स्थितं तेजोबलमुच्छ्रयते भृशम् ॥ १५ ॥

“The bow and the fuel when placed near the warriors and a fire, respectively, greatly enhance their strength in this world. (15)

पुरा किल महाबाहो तपस्वी सत्यवान् शुचिः।
कस्मिंश्चिदभवत् पुण्ये वने रतमृगद्विजे ॥ १६ ॥

“They say, formerly, O mighty-armed prince, there was a truthful and pious ascetic in some holy forest, where animals and birds lived in joy. (16)

तस्यैव तपसो विघ्नं कर्तुमिन्द्रः शचीपतिः।
खड्गपाणि रथागच्छदाश्रमं भटरूपधृक् ॥ १७ ॥

“Then, only to create obstruction in his austerities, Indra, the lord of Śacī, in the guise of a soldier, came to the hermitage, sword in hand. (17)

तस्मिंस्तदाश्रमपदे निहितः खड्ग उत्तमः।
स न्यासविधिना दत्तः पुण्ये तपसि तिष्ठतः ॥ १८ ॥

“He kept the excellent sword in the precincts of his hermitage. It was given as a deposit to the sage, who was keeping himself busy with holy austerities. (18)

स तच्छस्त्रमनुप्राप्य न्यासरक्षणतत्परः।
वने तु विचरत्येव रक्षन् प्रत्ययमात्मनः ॥ १९ ॥

“Getting that weapon and being constantly mindful of guarding the deposit, he wandered even in the forest keeping the trust with him. (19)

यत्र गच्छत्युपादातुं मूलानि च फलानि च।
न विना याति तं खड्गं न्यासरक्षणतत्परः ॥ २० ॥

“Wherever he went even to bring roots and fruits, he would not go without that sword, being ever mindful of guarding the trust. (20)

नित्यं शस्त्रं परिवहन् क्रमेण स तपोधनः।
चकार रौद्रीं स्वां बुद्धिं त्यक्त्वा तपसि निश्चयम् ॥ २१ ॥

“Constantly carrying the weapon as he did, that ascetic’s mind turned cruel in course of time, giving up his determination to carry on his austerities. (21)

ततः स रौद्राभिरतः प्रमत्तोऽधर्मकर्षितः।
तस्य शस्त्रस्य संवासाज्जगाम नरकं मुनिः ॥ २२ ॥

“Then, while taking pleasure in cruelty due to the company of that weapon, the said sage became negligent, was led astray by ‘Adharma’ and descended into hell. (22)

एवमेतत् पुरावृत्तं शस्त्रसंयोगकारणम्।
अग्निं संयोगवद्धेतुः शस्त्रसंयोग उच्यते ॥ २३ ॥

“This is what happened in the past as a result of association with that weapon. Association with a weapon is said to be of the same consequence as is the association with fire. (23)

स्नेहाच्च बहुमानाच्च स्मारये त्वां तु शिक्षये।
न कथंचन सा कार्या गृहीतधनुषा त्वया ॥ २४ ॥
बुद्धिर्वैरं विना हन्तुं राक्षसान् दण्डकाश्रितान्।
अपराधं विना हन्तुं लोको वीर न मंस्यते ॥ २५ ॥

“Due to love and great respect I am making you acquainted with this and advising you that while taking the bow you should never take into your head to kill the ogres residing in Daṇḍaka without enmity. People do not commend killing without fault, O hero ! (24-25)

क्षत्रियाणां तु वीराणां वनेषु नियतात्मनाम्।
धनुषा कार्यमेतावदार्तानामभिरक्षणम् ॥ २६ ॥

“The function of the bow for self-restrained heroic Kṣatriyas is only this much, viz., protection of those who are suffering. (26)

क्व च शस्त्रं क्व च वनं क्व च क्षात्रं तपः क्व च।
व्याविद्धमिदमस्माभिर्देशधर्मस्तु पूज्यताम् ॥ २७ ॥

“What connection is there between a weapon and forest-life? What affinity is there between the duty of a Kṣatriya and asceticism? The two are contradictory. Let us respect the laws of the place. (27)

कदर्यकलुषा बुद्धिर्जायते शस्त्रसेवनात्।
पुनर्गत्वा त्वयोध्यायां क्षत्रधर्मं चरिष्यसि ॥ २८ ॥

“By use of arms the mind becomes contaminated with sin as in the case of unworthy men. After returning to Ayodhyā you can again follow the duty of a warrior. (28)

अक्षया तु भवेत् प्रीतिः श्वश्रूश्चशुरयोर्मम।
यदि राज्यं हि संन्यस्य भवेस्त्वं निरतो मुनिः ॥ २९ ॥

“It will bring endless joy to my mother-in-law and father-in-law if indeed after renouncing the kingdom you become a devoted sage. (29)

धर्मादर्थः प्रभवति धर्मात् प्रभवते सुखम्।
धर्मेण लभते सर्वं धर्मसारमिदं जगत् ॥ ३० ॥

“From Dharma follows wealth, from Dharma comes happiness, by recourse to Dharma one gets everything. This world has Dharma as its essence. (30)

आत्मानं नियमैस्तैस्तैः कर्षयित्वा प्रयत्नतः।
प्राप्यते निपुणैर्धर्मो न सुखाल्लभते सुखम् ॥ ३१ ॥

“The wise emaciate themselves with effort by imposing several restrictions on themselves and achieve Dharma. Dharma does not follow from merriment. (31)

नित्यं शुचिमतिः सौम्यं चर धर्मं तपोवने।
सर्वं तु विदितं तुभ्यं त्रैलोक्यामपि तत्त्वतः ॥ ३२ ॥

“With a pious mind, O gentle Rāma, always practise righteousness in the forest, suited for austerities. In fact, everything comprised in the three worlds is truly known to you. (32)

स्त्रीचापलादेतदुपाहृतं मे
धर्मं च वक्तुं तव कः समर्थः।

विचार्य बुद्ध्या तु सहानुजेन
यद् रोचते तत् कुरु माचरेण ॥ ३३ ॥

“I have said this just in consonance with the frivolity of a woman. Who is really capable of teaching Dharma to you? However, thinking over it by recourse to reason together with your younger brother, you may do whatever appeals to you. Let there be no delay.” (33)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे नवमः सर्गः ॥ ९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Nine in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

दशमः सर्गः

Canto X

Rāma expresses his firmness in keeping the vow of killing the ogres for the protection of sages

वाक्यमेतत् तु वैदेह्या व्याहृतं भर्तृभक्त्या ।
श्रुत्वा धर्मे स्थितो रामः प्रत्युवाचाथ जानकीम् ॥ १ ॥

Having heard these words uttered by Vaidehī, devoted to her husband, Rāma, firmly adhering to Dharma, then, replied to Jānakī :

हितमुक्तं त्वया देवि स्निग्धया सदृशं वचः ।
कुलं व्यपदिशन्त्या च धर्मज्ञे जनकात्मजे ॥ २ ॥

“O daughter of Janaka, knower of Dharma, O queen, you being affectionate, have given a wholesome advice, which is becoming of you, referring as it does to the duty of my race.

किं नु वक्ष्याम्यहं देवि त्वयैवोक्तमिदं वचः ।
क्षत्रियैर्धार्यते चापो नार्तशब्दो भवेदिति ॥ ३ ॥

“O queen, what shall I say? You yourself have stated that a bow is wielded by Kṣatriyas so that there should be no cry of the sufferers.

ते चार्ता दण्डकारण्ये मुनयः संशितव्रताः ।
मां सीते स्वयमागम्य शरण्यं शरणं गताः ॥ ४ ॥

“In the Daṇḍaka forest those suffering sages, with austere vows, themselves came to me, O Sītā, and resorted to me, knowing me capable to protect them.

वसन्तः कालकालेषु वने मूलफलाशनाः ।
न लभन्ते सुखं भीरु राक्षसैः क्रूरकर्मभिः ॥ ५ ॥

“Always dwelling in the forest, eating roots and fruits, they are not getting happiness, O timid one, due to ogres of cruel activities.

भक्ष्यन्ते राक्षसैर्भीमैर्नरमांसोपजीविभिः ।
ते भक्ष्यमाणा मुनयो दण्डकारण्यवासिनः ॥ ६ ॥
अस्मानभ्यवपद्येति मामूचुर्द्विजसत्तमाः ।
मया तु वचनं श्रुत्वा तेषामेवं मुखाच्च्युतम् ॥ ७ ॥

कृत्वा वचनशुश्रूषां वाक्यमेतदुदाहृतम् ।
प्रसीदन्तु भवन्तो मे ह्रीरेषा तु ममातुला ॥ ८ ॥
यदीदृशैरहं विप्रैरुपस्थेयैरुपस्थितः ।
किं करोमीति च मया व्याहृतं द्विजसन्धिधौ ॥ ९ ॥

“They are being eaten up by the terrible ogres living on human flesh. Being devoured by these, the sages dwelling in the Daṇḍaka forest, the best among the Brāhmaṇas, asked me to show favour to them. I, for my part, having heard the words that had escaped from their mouth and having shown the desire to listen to their speech, made the following statement: ‘Be you gracious to me. Indeed it is a great shame for me that I have been approached by such Brāhmaṇas as are worthy of being approached.’ I then asked the Brāhmaṇas as to what I should do.

सर्वैरेव समागम्य वागियं समुदाहृता ।
राक्षसैर्दण्डकारण्ये बहुभिः कामरूपिभिः ॥ १० ॥
अर्दिताः स्म भृशं राम भवान् नस्तत्र रक्षतु ।
होमकाले तु सम्प्राप्ते पर्वकालेषु चानघ ॥ ११ ॥
धर्षयन्ति सुदुर्धर्षा राक्षसाः पिशिताशनाः ।
राक्षसैर्धर्षितानां च तापसानां तपस्विनाम् ॥ १२ ॥
गतिं मृगयमाणानां भवान् नः परमा गतिः ।
कामं तपःप्रभावेण शक्ता हन्तुं निशाचरान् ॥ १३ ॥
चिरार्जितं न चेच्छामस्तपः खण्डयितुं वयम् ।
बहुविघ्नं तपो नित्यं दुश्चरं चैव राघव ॥ १४ ॥

“Coming together, all of them made the following submission : ‘We have been greatly tormented in the Daṇḍaka forest by many ogres assuming different forms according to their will. Rāma, you protect us from them. When the time comes for pouring oblations into the sacred fire and also on holy occasions, the flesh-eating, unassailable ogres attack us, O sinless one ! You are the greatest asylum for us poor ascetics, who are seeking an asylum, assailed as we are by the ogres. Although we are able to kill the night-wanderers by virtue of our austerities, we do not desire to waste the power accumulated by us for a long time. O Rāghava, austerities are beset with many obstacles and are always difficult to be performed. (10—14)

तेन शापं न मुञ्चामो भक्ष्यमाणाश्च राक्षसैः ।
तदर्द्यमानान् रक्षोभिर्दण्डकारण्यवासिभिः ॥ १५ ॥
रक्ष नस्त्वं सह भ्रात्रा त्वन्नाथा हि वयं वने ।
मया चैतद्वचः श्रुत्वा कात्स्न्येन परिपालनम् ॥ १६ ॥
ऋषीणां दण्डकारण्ये संश्रुतं जनकात्मजे ।
संश्रुत्य च न शक्ष्यामि जीवमानः प्रतिश्रवम् ॥ १७ ॥
मुनीनामन्यथा कर्तुं सत्यमिष्टं हि मे सदा ।
अप्यहं जीवितं जह्यां त्वां वा सीते सलक्ष्मणाम् ॥ १८ ॥
न तु प्रतिज्ञां संश्रुत्य ब्राह्मणेभ्यो विशेषतः ।
तदवश्यं मया कार्यमृषीणां परिपालनम् ॥ १९ ॥
अनुक्तेनापि वैदेहि प्रतिज्ञाय कथं पुनः ।
मम स्नेहाच्च सौहार्दादिदमुक्तं त्वया वचः ॥ २० ॥

“ ‘Therefore, though being eaten up by the ogres, we do not pronounce a curse. Hence, alongwith your brother, you protect us, oppressed as we are by ogres dwelling in the Daṇḍaka forest. For, you alone are our master in the forest.’ And having heard this speech, I promised complete protection to the sages living in the Daṇḍaka forest, O daughter of Janaka ! And having made a promise, I dare not, as long as I am alive, falsify the word given to the sages. For, truth is always dear to me. I can even give up my life for you, together with Lakṣmaṇa, but not my plighted word, given especially to the Brāhmaṇas. Therefore, O Vaidehī, I am compelled to protect the sages, even if I had not given the word, much more so when a vow has been taken. You have uttered these words due to your love and goodwill for me. (15—20)

परितुष्टोऽस्म्यहं सीते न ह्यनिष्टोऽनुशास्यते ।
सदृशं चानुरूपं च कुलस्य तव शोभने ।
सधर्मचारिणी मे त्वं प्राणेभ्योऽपि गरीयसी ॥ २१ ॥

“O Sītā, I am fully pleased. For, a person is never advised unless he is dear. And, it is becoming and proper not only for you but for your family too, O beautiful lady ! You are dearer to me even than life, being my companion in Dharma.” (21)

इत्येवमुक्त्वा वचनं महात्मा
सीतां प्रियां मैथिलराजपुत्रीम् ।
रामो धनुष्मान् सह लक्ष्मणेन
जगाम रम्याणि तपोवनानि ॥ २२ ॥

Having addressed these words to his beloved Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, the high-souled Rāma, the wielder of a bow, together with Lakṣmaṇa, proceeded to the charming groves inhabited by ascetics. (22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे दशमः सर्गः ॥ १० ॥

Thus ends Canto Ten in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकादशः सर्गः

Canto XI

The episode of Sage Māṇḍakaraṇi and the Pañcāpsara Lake. Rāma visits several hermitages and returns to Sūtīkṣṇa's hermitage.

From there he goes to the hermitage of Agastya

अग्रतः प्रययौ रामः सीता मध्ये सुशोभना ।
पृष्ठतस्तु धनुष्याणिर्लक्ष्मणोऽनुजगाम ह ॥ १ ॥

Rāma walked in the van, the most beautiful Sītā in the middle, and in the rear followed Lakṣmaṇa, bow in hand. (1)

तौ पश्यमानौ विविधान् शैलप्रस्थान् वनानि च ।
नदीश्च विविधा रम्या जग्मतुः सह सीतया ॥ २ ॥

They two, together with Sītā, went on seeing several mountain-peaks and forests, and several charming rivers. (2)

सारसांश्चक्रवाकांश्च नदीपुलिनचारिणः ।
सरांसि च सपद्मानि युतानि जलजैः खगैः ॥ ३ ॥
यूथबद्धांश्च पृषतान् मदोन्मत्तान् विषाणिनः ।
महिषांश्च वराहांश्च गजांश्च द्रुमवैरिणः ॥ ४ ॥

They further saw cranes and Cakravāka birds moving on river banks, lakes with lotuses and aquatic birds, spotted deer moving in herds, horned buffaloes in rut, boars and elephants, the destroyers of trees. (3-4)

ते गत्वा दूरमध्वानं लम्बमाने दिवाकरे ।
ददृशुः सहिता रम्यं तटाकं योजनायुतम् ॥ ५ ॥
पद्मपुष्करसम्बाधं गजयूथैरलंकृतम् ।
सारसैर्हंसकादम्बैः संकुलं जलजातिभिः ॥ ६ ॥

Covering a long distance, they sighted together, while the sun was going down, a beautiful lake with an area of a square Yojana, full of red and white lotuses, adorned with herds of elephants and crowded with cranes, flocks of swans and other aquatic creatures. (5-6)

प्रसन्नसलिले रम्ये तस्मिन् सरसि शुश्रुवे ।
गीतवादित्रनिर्घोषो न तु कश्चन दृश्यते ॥ ७ ॥

In that beautiful lake of clear water the sound of singing and musical instruments was heard, but nobody was to be seen. (7)

ततः कौतूहलाद् रामो लक्ष्मणश्च महारथः ।
मुनिं धर्मभृतं नाम प्रष्टुं समुपचक्रमे ॥ ८ ॥

Then, out of curiosity Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, the great car-warrior, proceeded to ask the sage named Dharmabhṛt, who accompanied them : (8)

इदमत्यद्भुतं श्रुत्वा सर्वेषां नो महामुने ।
कौतूहलं महज्जातं किमिदं साधु कथ्यताम् ॥ ९ ॥

“O great sage, hearing this most wonderful sound we are all seized with great curiosity. What is this? Pray, tell us in detail about it.” (9)

तेनैवमुक्तो धर्मात्मा राघवेण मुनिस्तदा ।
प्रभावं सरसः क्षिप्रमाख्यातुमुपचक्रमे ॥ १० ॥

Thus addressed by Rāghava, the righteous sage forthwith started speaking about the greatness of the lake : (10)

इदं पञ्चाप्सरो नाम तटाकं सार्वकालिकम् ।
निर्मितं तपसा राम मुनिना माण्डकर्णिना ॥ ११ ॥

“This is a lake named Pañcāpsara, ever full of water and created by Sage Māṇḍakaraṇi by dint of his ascetic power, O Rāma ! (11)

स हि तेपे तपस्तीव्रं माण्डकर्णिर्महामुनिः ।
दशवर्षसहस्राणि वायुभक्षो जलाशये ॥ १२ ॥

“That great Sage Māṇḍakaraṇi performed severe austerities in the lake living on air alone for ten thousand years. (12)

ततः प्रव्यथिताः सर्वे देवाः साग्निपुरोगमाः ।
अब्रुवन् वचनं सर्वे परस्परसमागताः ॥ १३ ॥

“Thereupon getting disquieted, all the gods, with the god of fire at the head, gathered together and all of them spoke as follows : (13)

अस्माकं कस्यचित् स्थानमेष प्रार्थयते मुनिः ।
इति संविग्रमनसः सर्वे तत्र दिवौकसः ॥ १४ ॥

“‘This sage is seeking the state of some one among us.’ Thus all the denizens of heaven felt disturbed in mind. (14)

ततः कर्तुं तपोविघ्नं सर्वदेवैर्नियोजिताः ।
प्रधानाप्सरसः पञ्च विद्युच्चलितवर्चसः ॥ १५ ॥

“Then, for causing interruption in his austerities, all the gods appointed five principal nymphs with bodies flashing like lightning. (15)

अप्सरोभिस्ततस्ताभिर्मुनिर्दृष्टपरावरः ।
नीतो मदनवश्यत्वं देवानां कार्यसिद्धये ॥ १६ ॥

“Now that sage, who had seen what is wholesome or otherwise in this world as well as in the other, was captured with love by those nymphs for accomplishing the work of gods. (16)

ताश्चैवाप्सरसः पञ्च मुनेः पत्नीत्वमागताः ।
तटाके निर्मितं तासां तस्मिन्नन्तर्हितं गृहम् ॥ १७ ॥

“The same five nymphs have become the wives of the sage. In the lake has been built a secret house for them. (17)

तत्रैवाप्सरसः पञ्च निवसन्त्यो यथासुखम् ।
रमयन्ति तपोयोगान्मुनिं यौवनमास्थितम् ॥ १८ ॥

“Dwelling happily in that very house, the five nymphs delight the sage, who has regained his youth, by virtue of his austerities. (18)

तासां संक्रीडमानानामेष वादित्रनिःस्वनः ।
श्रूयते भूषणोन्मिश्रो गीतशब्दो मनोहरः ॥ १९ ॥

“This is the sound of the musical instruments and the charming song of the nymphs sung while they are playing, mixed with the tinkling of ornaments, that is the sound being heard.” (19)

आश्चर्यमिति तस्यैतद् वचनं भावितात्मनः ।
राघवः प्रतिजग्राह सह भ्रात्रा महायशाः ॥ २० ॥

Rāghava of great renown together with his brother accepted the report of the pure-minded sage as a piece of wonder. (20)

एवं कथयमानः स ददर्शाश्रममण्डलम् ।
कुशचीरपरिक्षिप्तं ब्राह्म्या लक्ष्म्या समावृतम् ॥ २१ ॥

While speaking thus, he saw a group of hermitages enveloped in Brahmic grandeur with Kuśa grass and bark garments spread round about. (21)

प्रविश्य सह वैदेह्या लक्ष्मणेन च राघवः ।
तदा तस्मिन् स काकुत्स्थः श्रीमत्याश्रममण्डले ॥ २२ ॥

उषित्वा स सुखं तत्र पूज्यमानो महर्षिभिः ।
जगाम चाश्रमांस्तेषां पर्यायेण तपस्विनाम् ॥ २३ ॥

येषामुषितवान् पूर्वं सकाशे स महास्त्रवित् ।
क्वचित् परिदशान् मासानेकसंवत्सरं क्वचित् ॥ २४ ॥

क्वचिच्च चतुरो मासान् पञ्च षट् च परान् क्वचित् ।
अपरत्राधिकान् मासानध्यर्थमधिकं क्वचित् ॥ २५ ॥

त्रीन् मासानष्टमासांश्च राघवो न्यवसत् सुखम् ।
तत्र संवसतस्तस्य मुनीनामाश्रमेषु वै ॥ २६ ॥

रमतश्चानुकूल्येन ययुः संवत्सरा दश ।
परिसृत्य च धर्मज्ञो राघवः सह सीतया ॥ २७ ॥

सुतीक्ष्णस्याश्रमपदं पुनरेवाजगाम ह ।
स तमाश्रममागम्य मुनिभिः परिपूजितः ॥ २८ ॥

तत्रापि न्यवसद् रामः किञ्चित् कालमरिंदमः ।
अथाश्रमस्थो विनयात् कदाचित् तं महामुनिम् ॥ २९ ॥

उपासीनः स काकुत्स्थः सुतीक्ष्णमिदमब्रवीत् ।
अस्मिन्नरण्ये भगवन्नगस्त्यो मुनिसत्तमः ॥ ३० ॥

Rāghava together with Vaidehī and Lakṣmaṇa then entered that beautiful group of hermitages and staying there happily, being honoured by great sages, that descendant of Kakutstha visited one by one the hermitages of those sages with whom that knower of great weapons had previously stayed. Rāghava happily stayed somewhere for ten months, somewhere for a year, somewhere for four months, somewhere five, six and (even) more, elsewhere for more months, somewhere half a month more and in other hermitages for eight and three months. While he was thus staying in the hermitages of the sages and passing time happily and comfortably, ten years passed. Having thus wandered, Rāghava, the knower of Dharma, together with Sītā came again, they say, to the site of Sutikṣṇa's hermitage. Coming to that hermitage, and honoured by the sages, the said Rāma, the vanquisher of foes, stayed there also for some time. Then, while sitting in the hermitage modestly beside the great sage, the said Kākutstha on one occasion spoke as follows to Sutikṣṇa: "Sir, I have heard from those talking among themselves that Agastya, the foremost of sages, permanently dwells in this forest. However, due to the vastness of this forest, I do not know that place. (22—30)

वसतीति मया नित्यं कथाः कथयतां श्रुतम् ।
न तु जानामि तं देशं वनस्यास्य महत्तया ॥ ३१ ॥
कुत्राश्रमपदं रम्यं महर्षेस्तस्य धीमतः ।
प्रसादार्थं भगवतः सानुजः सह सीतया ॥ ३२ ॥
अगस्त्यमधिगच्छेयमभिवादयितुं मुनिम् ।
मनोरथो महानेष हृदि सम्परिवर्तते ॥ ३३ ॥
यदहं तं मुनिवरं शुश्रूषेयमपि स्वयम् ।
इति रामस्य स मुनिः श्रुत्वा धर्मात्मनो वचः ॥ ३४ ॥
सुतीक्ष्णः प्रत्युवाचेदं प्रीतो दशरथात्मजम् ।
अहमप्येतदेव त्वां वक्तुकामः सलक्ष्मणम् ॥ ३५ ॥
अगस्त्यमभिगच्छेति सीतया सह राघव ।
दिष्ट्या त्विदानीमर्थेऽस्मिन् स्वयमेव ब्रवीषि माम् ॥ ३६ ॥

"Where is the lovely site of the hermitage of that wise and eminent sage? There exists a great desire in my heart that I should get an opportunity to pay my obeisance to Sage Agastya alongwith my younger brother and Sītā for obtaining his grace, so that I may personally do some service also to that great sage." Pleased to hear this submission of the righteous Rāma, the aforesaid Sage Sutikṣṇa replied as follows to the son of Daśaratha: "I too wanted to tell you as well as Lakṣmaṇa the same thing, viz., that you should go to Agastya with Sītā, O Rāghava! It is good that you are speaking to me about it yourself. (31—36)

अयमाख्यामि ते राम यत्रागस्त्यो महामुनिः ।
योजनान्याश्रमात् तात याहि चत्वारि वै ततः ।
दक्षिणेन महान् श्रीमानगस्त्यभ्रातुराश्रमः ॥ ३७ ॥
स्थलीप्रायवनोद्देशे पिप्पलीवनशोभिते ।
बहुपुष्पफले रम्ये नानाविहगनादिते ॥ ३८ ॥

"I am just telling you, O Rāma, where the great Sage Agastya lives. Proceed, O dear son, southward to a distance of four Yojanas from this hermitage; there lies in a well-nigh flat portion of the forest the great and grand hermitage of Agastya's brother, adorned with a grove of Pippali (long pepper) trees, nay, having many flowers and fruits, and charming and resonant with the chirping of various birds. (37-38)

पद्मिन्यो विविधास्तत्र प्रसन्नसलिलाशयाः ।
हंसकारण्डवाकीर्णाश्चक्रवाकोपशोभिताः ॥ ३९ ॥

"There are several lotus-ponds and lakes with limpid water, crowded with swans and Kāraṇḍavas and adorned with Cakravāka birds. (39)

तत्रैकां रजनीं व्युष्य प्रभाते राम गम्यताम् ।
दक्षिणां दिशमास्थाय वनखण्डस्य पार्श्वतः ॥ ४० ॥

"Staying there for a night, Rāma, you may proceed in the morning in a southerly direction along side the grove. (40)

तत्रागस्त्याश्रमपदं गत्वा योजनमन्तरम् ।
रमणीये वनोद्देशे बहुपादपशोभिते ॥ ४१ ॥

"Covering a distance of eight miles you will reach the site of Agastya's hermitage in a delightful part of the forest, adorned with many trees. (41)

रंस्यते तत्र वैदेही लक्ष्मणश्च त्वया सह ।
स हि रम्यो वनोद्देशो बहुपादपसंयुतः ॥ ४२ ॥

"There Vaidehī and Lakṣmaṇa will dwell happily with you. For, that is a charming part of the forest with many trees. (42)

यदि बुद्धिः कृता द्रष्टुमगस्त्यं तं महामुनिम् ।
अद्यैव गमने बुद्धिं रोचयस्व महामते ॥ ४३ ॥

"If you have made up your mind to see that great sage, Agastya, O highly intelligent prince, decide to proceed this very day.” (43)

इति रामो मुनेः श्रुत्वा सह भ्रात्राभिवाद्य च ।
प्रतस्थेऽगस्त्यमुद्दिश्य सानुगः सह सीतया ॥ ४४ ॥

Hearing thus the sage's words and saluting him with his brother, Rāma set out with Lakṣmaṇa and Sitā to meet Agastya. (44)

पश्यन् वनानि चित्राणि पर्वतांश्चाभ्रसंनिभान् ।
सरांसि सरितश्चैव पथि मार्गवशानुगान् ॥ ४५ ॥
सुतीक्ष्णेनोपदिष्टेन गत्वा तेन पथा सुखम् ।
इदं परमसंहृष्टो वाक्यं लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ॥ ४६ ॥

Seeing varied forests and cloud-like mountains, lakes and rivers on the way, he proceeded happily along the path directed by Sutikṣṇa and, being supremely delighted, he spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa : (45-46)

एतदेवाश्रमपदं नूनं तस्य महात्मनः ।
अगस्त्यस्य मुनेर्भ्रातुर्दृश्यते पुण्यकर्मणः ॥ ४७ ॥

“Indeed this very place appears to be the site of the hermitage of that high-souled brother of Sage Agastya of holy deeds. (47)

यथा हीमे वनस्यास्य ज्ञाताः पथि सहस्रशः ।
संनताः फलभारेण पुष्पभारेण च द्रुमाः ॥ ४८ ॥

“As was pointed out by Sutikṣṇa, these thousands of trees of this forest are seen in the way bent down with their load of fruits and the mass of flowers. (48)

पिप्पलीनां च पक्वानां वनादस्मादुपागतः ।
गन्धोऽयं पवनोत्क्षिप्तः सहसा कटुकोदयः ॥ ४९ ॥

“This scent of the ripe Pippali fruits wafted by the breeze and coming from this forest is suddenly giving rise to a pungent taste. (49)

तत्र तत्र च दृश्यन्ते संक्षिप्ताः काष्ठसंचयाः ।
लूनाश्च परिदृश्यन्ते दर्भा वैदूर्यवर्चसः ॥ ५० ॥

“Here and there are seen collected heaps of wood and blades of Darbha grass, having the lustre of Vaidūrya (a cat's-eye gem) are seen cut. (50)

एतच्च वनमध्यस्थं कृष्णाभ्रशिखरोपमम् ।
पावकस्याश्रमस्थस्य धूमाग्रं सम्प्रदृश्यते ॥ ५१ ॥

“And here in the middle of the forest is vividly seen a column of smoke from the fire in the hermitage, looking like the top of a dark cloud. (51)

विविक्तेषु च तीर्थेषु कृतस्नाना द्विजातयः ।
पुष्पोपहारं कुर्वन्ति कुसुमैः स्वयमर्जितैः ॥ ५२ ॥

“Having had their bath in the holy waters, the Brāhmaṇas are giving offerings (to the gods) with the flowers collected by themselves. (52)

ततः सुतीक्ष्णवचनं यथा सौम्य मया श्रुतम् ।
अगस्त्यस्याश्रमो भ्रातुर्नूनमेष भविष्यति ॥ ५३ ॥
निगृह्य तरसा मृत्युं लोकानां हितकाम्यया ।
यस्य भ्रात्रा कृतेयं दिक्शरण्या पुण्यकर्मणा ॥ ५४ ॥

“Hence, O gentle Lakṣmaṇa, according to the description of Sutikṣṇa heard by me, surely this must be the hermitage of the brother of Agastya, by whose brother Agastya of holy deeds, with intent to do good to the people and controlling by his spiritual might death (in the form of the ogres Vātāpi and Ilvala), this (southern) quarter has been made habitable. (53-54)

इहैकदा किल क्रूरो वातापिरपि चेल्बलः ।
भ्रातरौ सहितावास्तां ब्राह्मणञ्चौ महासुरौ ॥ ५५ ॥

“Once, they say, here dwelt together two brothers—great ogres and killers of Brāhmaṇas—Vātāpi and also Ilvala. (55)

धारयन् ब्राह्मणं रूपमिल्बलः संस्कृतं वदन् ।
आमन्त्रयति विप्रान् स श्राद्धमुद्दिश्य निर्वृणः ॥ ५६ ॥

“Assuming the form of a Brāhmaṇa and speaking Sanskrit, that merciless Ilvala used to invite Brāhmaṇas for the sake of Śrāddha. (56)

भ्रातरं संस्कृतं कृत्वा ततस्तं मेषरूपिणम् ।
तान् द्विजान् भोजयामास श्राद्धदृष्टेन कर्मणा ॥ ५७ ॥

“Thereupon, cooking that brother of his, who used to take the form of a ram, he used to feed those Brāhmaṇas according to the injunctions laid down for Śrāddha. (57)

ततो भुक्तवतां तेषां विप्राणामित्वलोऽब्रवीत् ।

वातापे निष्क्रमस्वेति स्वरेण महता वदन् ॥ ५८ ॥

“Then, after those Brāhmaṇas had finished the dinner, Ilvala used to call out in a loud voice, “O Vātāpi, come out !” (58)

ततो भ्रातुर्वचः श्रुत्वा वातापिर्मेषवन्दन् ।

भित्त्वा भित्त्वा शरीराणि ब्राह्मणानां विनिष्पतत् ॥ ५९ ॥

“Now, hearing the voice of his brother, Vātāpi used to come out tearing the bodies of the Brāhmaṇas and bleating like a ram. (59)

ब्राह्मणानां सहस्राणि तैरेवं कामरूपिभिः ।

विनाशितानि संहत्य नित्यशः पिशिताशनैः ॥ ६० ॥

“Thus thousands of Brāhmaṇas were killed by those flesh-eaters always coming together and assuming forms at will. (60)

अगस्त्येन तदा देवैः प्रार्थितेन महर्षिणा ।

अनुभूय किल श्राद्धे भक्षितः स महासुरः ॥ ६१ ॥

“That time, they say, that great ogre was eaten up with taste by the great sage Agastya as requested by gods. (61)

ततः सम्पन्नमित्युक्त्वा दत्त्वा हस्तेऽवनेजनम् ।

भ्रातरं निष्क्रमस्वेति चेल्वलः समभाषत ॥ ६२ ॥

“Thereupon, saying ‘It is finished’ and offering water for washing the hands, Ilvala cried out to the brother : ‘Come out !’ (62)

स तदा भाषमाणं तु भ्रातरं विप्रघातिनम् ।

अब्रवीत् प्रहसन् धीमानगस्त्यो मुनिसत्तमः ॥ ६३ ॥

“Then, while he was addressing these words to his brother, the killer of Brāhmaṇas, that jewel among sages, the intelligent Agastya said laughingly : (63)

कुतो निष्क्रमितुं शक्तिर्मया जीर्णस्य रक्षसः ।

भ्रातुस्तु मेषरूपस्य गतस्य यमसादनम् ॥ ६४ ॥

“Where is the power to come out left in the ogre, your brother in the form of a ram, who stands digested by me and is gone to the abode of Yama?’ (64)

अथ तस्य वचः श्रुत्वा भ्रातुर्निधनसंश्रितम् ।

प्रधर्षयितुमारेभे मुनिं क्रोधान्निशाचरः ॥ ६५ ॥

“Thereupon, hearing his words declaring the death of his brother; the night-wanderer started assailing the sage in anger. (65)

सोऽभ्यद्रवद् द्विजेन्द्रं तं मुनिना दीप्ततेजसा ।

चक्षुषानलकल्पेन निर्दग्धो निधनं गतः ॥ ६६ ॥

“He attacked the Indra amongst the Brāhmaṇas and, being burnt with his fire-like glance by that sage of blazing lustre, he died. (66)

तस्यायमाश्रमो भ्रातुस्तटाकवनशोभितः ।

विप्राणुकम्पया येन कर्मदं दुष्करं कृतम् ॥ ६७ ॥

“This is the hermitage—beautified by lakes and forest—of the brother of that sage who did this difficult deed out of pity for the Brāhmaṇas.” (67)

एवं कथयमानस्य तस्य सौमित्रिणा सह ।

रामस्यास्तं गतः सूर्यः संध्याकालोऽभ्यवर्तत ॥ ६८ ॥

While the celebrated Rāma was thus talking to the son of Sumitrā, the sun set and the time of evening devotions arrived. (68)

उपास्य पश्चिमां संध्यां सह भ्रात्रा यथाविधि ।

प्रविवेशाश्रमपदं तमृषिं चाभ्यवादयत् ॥ ६९ ॥

Having performed his evening devotions according to scriptural ordinance together with his younger brother, he entered the site of the hermitage and greeted that sage. (69)

सम्यक्प्रतिगृहीतस्तु मुनिना तेन राघवः ।

न्यवसत् तां निशामेकां प्राश्य मूलफलानि च ॥ ७० ॥

Warmly received by the said sage, Rāghava stayed there that one night taking roots and fruits alone. (70)

तस्यां रात्र्यां व्यतीतायामुदिते रविमण्डले ।

भ्रातरं तमगस्त्यस्य आमन्त्रयत राघवः ॥ ७१ ॥

When the night had passed, Rāghava at sunrise took leave of that brother of Agastya with the following words : (71)

अभिवादये त्वां भगवन् सुखमस्युषितो निशाम् ।
आमन्त्रये त्वां गच्छामि गुरुं ते द्रष्टुमग्रजम् ॥ ७२ ॥

“I pay obeisance to you, sir; I have stayed happily for the night. I take leave of you. I am going to see your revered elder brother.” (72)

गम्यतामिति तेनोक्तो जगाम रघुनन्दनः ।
यथोद्दिष्टेन मार्गेण वनं तच्चावलोकयन् ॥ ७३ ॥

Spoken to by him in the words ‘You may go’, the delight of Raghu left along the path pointed out to him, seeing that forest. (73)

नीवारान् पनसान् सालान् वञ्जुलांस्तिनिशांस्तथा ।
चिरिबिल्वान् मधूकांश्च बिल्वानथ च तिन्दुकान् ॥ ७४ ॥
पुष्पितान् पुष्पिताग्राभिर्लताभिरुपशोभितान् ।
ददर्श रामः शतशस्तत्र कान्तारपादपान् ॥ ७५ ॥
हस्तिहस्तैर्विमृदितान् वानरैरुपशोभितान् ।
मत्तैः शकुनिसङ्घैश्च शतशः प्रतिनादितान् ॥ ७६ ॥

Rāma saw there hundreds of forest trees—Nivāra, Panasa, sāl and Vañjula, Tiniśa, Ciribilva, and Madhūka, Bilva and Tinduka too in flower and beautified by blossoming climbers, damaged by the trunks of elephants, adorned by monkeys and made resonant by the noise of flocks of birds in heat. (74—76)

ततोऽब्रवीत् समीपस्थं रामो राजीवलोचनः ।
पृष्ठतोऽनुगतं वीरं लक्ष्मणं लक्ष्मिवर्धनम् ॥ ७७ ॥

Then the lotus-eyed Rāma said to the heroic Lakṣmaṇa, who was closely following behind him and added to his glory : (77)

स्निग्धपत्रा यथा वृक्षा यथा क्षान्ता मृगद्विजाः ।
आश्रमो नातिदूरस्थो महर्षेर्भावितात्मनः ॥ ७८ ॥

“As (can be seen from the fact that) the trees are clothed with glossy leaves and the animals and birds are docile, the hermitage of that pure-souled great sage is not far. (78)

अगस्त्य इति विख्यातो लोके स्वेनैव कर्मणा ।
आश्रमो दृश्यते तस्य परिश्रान्तश्रमापहः ॥ ७९ ॥

प्राज्यधूमाकुलवनश्चीरमालापरिष्कृतः ।
प्रशान्तमृगयूथश्च नानाशकुनिनादितः ॥ ८० ॥

“The hermitage, relieving the fatigue of the tired, of him who has become famous in the world as Agastya by his own deed, is seen filling the forest with the smoke rising from oblations thrown into the sacred fire, adorned with bark-garments and garlands, containing very peaceful herds of deer and resounding with the cries of various birds. (79-80)

निगृह्य तरसा मृत्युं लोकानां हितकाम्यया ।
दक्षिणा दिक् कृता येन शरण्या पुण्यकर्मणा ॥ ८१ ॥
तस्येदमाश्रमपदं प्रभावाद् यस्य राक्षसैः ।
दिगियं दक्षिणा त्रासाद् दृश्यते नोपभुज्यते ॥ ८२ ॥

“This is the site of the hermitage of him who, having by his might controlled death and performing holy deeds, made the southern quarter habitable with intent to do good to the people, and through whose spiritual force this southern quarter is looked on with alarm by the ogres, and not enjoyed. (81-82)

यदाप्रभृति चाक्रान्ता दिगियं पुण्यकर्मणा ।
तदाप्रभृति निर्वेराः प्रशान्ता रजनीचराः ॥ ८३ ॥

“No sooner had this quarter been set foot on by this sage of holy deeds than the night-wanderers became extremely quiet and free from enmity. (83)

नाम्ना चेयं भगवतो दक्षिणा दिक्प्रदक्षिणा ।
प्रथिता त्रिषु लोकेषु दुर्धर्षा क्रूरकर्मभिः ॥ ८४ ॥

“This southern quarter has become well-known by the name of the revered sage as most safe and unassailable by people of cruel deeds. (84)

मार्गं निरोद्धुं सततं भास्करस्याचलोत्तमः ।
संदेशं पालयंस्तस्य विन्ध्यशैलो न वर्धते ॥ ८५ ॥

“Constantly obeying his command, the Vindhya mountain, the foremost of mountains, is not growing up to obstruct the path of the sun. (85)

अयं दीर्घायुषस्तस्य लोके विश्रुतकर्मणः ।
अगस्त्यस्याश्रमः श्रीमान् विनीतमृगसेवितः ॥ ८६ ॥

“This is the beautiful hermitage, the resort of tame animals, of that long-lived Agastya whose deeds are well-known in the world. (86)

एष लोकार्चितः साधुर्हिते नित्यं रतः सताम्।
अस्मानधिगतानेष श्रेयसा योजयिष्यति॥ ८७॥

“He is a saint adored by the people and always devoted to the good of the virtuous. He will endow us, who have come to him, with blessings. (87)

आराधयिष्याम्यत्राहमगस्त्यं तं महामुनिम्।
शेषं च वनवासस्य सौम्य वत्स्याम्यहं प्रभो॥ ८८॥

“Here I shall adore that great sage, Agastya, and stay for the rest of my period of exile in the forest, O gentle and powerful prince ! (88)

अत्र देवाः सगन्धर्वाः सिद्धाश्च परमर्षयः।
अगस्त्यं नियताहाराः सततं पर्युपासते॥ ८९॥

“Here gods and Gandharvas, Siddhas and the greatest sages always wait upon Agastya, living on a restricted diet. (89)

नात्र जीवेन्मृषावादी क्रूरो वा यदि वा शठः।
नृशंसः पापवृत्तो वा मुनिरेष तथाविधः॥ ९०॥

“This sage is such that a liar, or a cruel man, a knave, a wicked person or a sinner cannot live here. (90)

अत्र देवाश्च यक्षाश्च नागाश्च पतंगैः सह।
वसन्ति नियताहारा धर्ममाराधयिष्णवः॥ ९१॥

“Seeking to observe piety, gods as well as Yakṣas and Nāgas together with birds abide here with their diet controlled. (91)

अत्र सिद्धा महात्मानो विमानैः सूर्यसंनिभैः।
त्यक्त्वा देहान् नवैर्देहैः स्वर्याताः परमर्षयः॥ ९२॥

“Here exalted and realized souls and greatest sages endowed with new bodies have ascended to heaven in aerial cars bright as the sun, giving up their (worn-out) bodies. (92)

यक्षत्वममरत्वं च राज्यानि विविधानि च।
अत्र देवाः प्रयच्छन्ति भूतैराराधिताः शुभैः॥ ९३॥

“Adored by good people, gods confer Yakṣahood, divinity and different kingdoms on their worshippers here. (93)

आगताः स्माश्रमपदं सौमित्रे प्रविशाग्रतः।
निवेदयेह मां प्राप्तमृषये सह सीतया॥ ९४॥

“O son of Sumitrā we have reached the site of the hermitage. Go ahead and tell the sage that I have come here with Sitā.” (94)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे एकादशः सर्गः॥ ११॥

Thus ends Canto Eleven in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वादशः सर्गः

Canto XII

Rāma and others enter the hermitage of Agastya, enjoy his hospitality and receive divine missiles and weapons

स प्रविश्याश्रमपदं लक्ष्मणो राघवानुजः।
अगस्त्यशिष्यमासाद्य वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह॥ १॥

Entering the site of the hermitage and approaching a disciple of Agastya, that younger brother of Rāghava, Lakṣmaṇa, spoke as follows : (1)

राजा दशरथो नाम ज्येष्ठस्तस्य सुतो बली।
रामः प्राप्तो मुनिं द्रष्टुं भार्यया सह सीतया॥ २॥

“There was a king named Daśaratha. His mighty, eldest son, Rāma, has come with Sitā, his wife, to call on the sage. (2)

लक्ष्मणो नाम तस्याहं भ्राता त्ववरजो हितः ।
अनुकूलश्च भक्तश्च यदि ते श्रोत्रमागतः ॥ ३ ॥

“It is possible You may have heard the name. I am his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, rendering service to him, favourably disposed and devoted to him. (3)

ते वयं वनमत्युग्रं प्रविष्टाः पितृशासनात् ।
द्रष्टुमिच्छामहे सर्वे भगवन्तं निवेद्यताम् ॥ ४ ॥

“We have entered a very frightful forest at the command of our father and all of us desire to see the revered sage. May this please be reported to him.” (4)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा लक्ष्मणस्य तपोधनः ।
तथेत्युक्त्वाग्निशरणं प्रविवेश निवेदितुम् ॥ ५ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid words of the celebrated Lakṣmaṇa, the ascetic said, ‘Well’, and entered the fire-sanctuary to make a report. (5)

स प्रविश्य मुनिश्रेष्ठं तपसा दुष्प्रधर्षणम् ।
कृताञ्जलिरुवाचेदं रामागमनमञ्जसा ॥ ६ ॥
यथोक्तं लक्ष्मणेनैव शिष्योऽगस्त्यस्य सम्मतः ।
पुत्रौ दशरथस्येमौ रामो लक्ष्मण एव च ॥ ७ ॥
प्रविष्टावाश्रमपदं सीतया सह भार्यया ।
द्रष्टुं भवन्तमायातौ शुश्रूषार्थमरिंदमौ ॥ ८ ॥

Entering the sanctuary and joining his palms, that favourite disciple of Agastya reported at once the arrival of Rāma, exactly as requested by Lakṣmaṇa, to the foremost sage, unassailable through askesis : “The yonder two sons of Daśaratha, Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, have entered the site of our hermitage with Sītā, the former’s wife. Those vanquishers of foes have come to see you in order to be of some service to you. (6—8)

यदत्रानन्तरं तत् त्वमाज्ञापयितुमर्हसि ।
ततः शिष्यादुपश्रुत्य प्राप्तं रामं सलक्ष्मणम् ॥ ९ ॥
वैदेहीं च महाभागामिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ।
दिष्ट्या रामश्चिरस्याद्य द्रष्टुं मां समुपागतः ॥ १० ॥

“You may be pleased to order what to do next.” Then, hearing from his pupil that Rāma and Vaidehī of great fortune had arrived with Lakṣmaṇa, he spoke as follows : “It is good that after a long time today Śrī Rāma has come to see me. (9-10)

मनसा कांक्षितं ह्यस्य मयाप्यागमनं प्रति ।
गम्यतां सत्कृतो रामः सभार्यः सहलक्ष्मणः ॥ ११ ॥
प्रवेश्यतां समीपं मे किमसौ न प्रवेशितः ।
एवमुक्तस्तु मुनिना धर्मज्ञेन महात्मना ॥ १२ ॥
अभिवाद्याब्रवीच्छिष्यस्तथेति नियताञ्जलिः ।
तदा निष्क्रम्य सम्भ्रान्तः शिष्यो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ॥ १३ ॥
कोऽसौ रामो मुनिं द्रष्टुमेतु प्रविशतु स्वयम् ।
ततो गत्वाऽऽश्रमपदं शिष्येण सह लक्ष्मणः ॥ १४ ॥
दर्शयामास काकुत्स्थं सीतां च जनकात्मजाम् ।
तं शिष्यः प्रश्रितं वाक्यमगस्त्यवचनं ब्रुवन् ॥ १५ ॥
प्रावेशयद् यथान्यायं सत्कारार्हं सुसत्कृतम् ।
प्रविवेश ततो रामः सीतया सह लक्ष्मणः ॥ १६ ॥
प्रशान्तहरिणाकीर्णमाश्रमं ह्यवलोकयन् ।
स तत्र ब्रह्मणः स्थानमग्रेः स्थानं तथैव च ॥ १७ ॥
विष्णोः स्थानं महेन्द्रस्य स्थानं चैव विवस्वतः ।
सोमस्थानं भगस्थानं स्थानं कौबेरमेव च ॥ १८ ॥
धातुर्विधातुः स्थानं च वायोः स्थानं तथैव च ।
स्थानं च पाशहस्तस्य वरुणस्य महात्मनः ॥ १९ ॥
स्थानं तथैव गायत्र्या वसूनां स्थानमेव च ।
स्थानं च नागराजस्य गरुडस्थानमेव च ॥ २० ॥
कार्तिकेयस्य च स्थानं धर्मस्थानं च पश्यति ।
ततः शिष्यैः परिवृतो मुनिरप्यभिनिष्पतत् ॥ २१ ॥

“I too had longed in my mind for his arrival. You may go and escort Rāma respectfully together with his wife and Lakṣmaṇa in my presence. Wherefore was he not allowed to enter?” Thus told by the high-souled sage, the knower of Dharma, the pupil prostrated to him and said ‘Amen’ with joined palms. Then, hurriedly coming out, the pupil said to Lakṣmaṇa, “Who is that Rāma? Let him enter the Āśrama and go to see the sage. Let him enter the sanctuary.” Moving to the entrance of the hermitage with the pupil, Lakṣmaṇa showed to him Kākutstha and Sītā, the daughter of Janaka. Repeating the words of Agastya, the pupil modestly ushered him into the sanctuary with due respect and ceremony such as he deserved. Then Rāma with Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa actually entered the sanctuary, seeing the hermitage crowded with peaceful deer. He saw there the place assigned to Brahmā (the creator) and also the place of Śiva, the place of Viṣṇu, the place of the great Indra as also of Vivaswān (the sun-god), the place of Soma (the moon-god), the place of Bhaga and the place of Kubera (the deity presiding over the northern quarter), the place of Dhātā and Vidhātā and also the place of Vāyu (the wind-god) and the place of the high-souled Varuṇa distinguished by a noose in his hand, as also the place of Gāyatri (one of the consorts of Brahmā) and the place of the Vasus as well and the place of Vāsuki (the king of the Nāgas) and the place of Garuḍa (the king of birds), the place of Kārtikeya (the younger son of Lord Śiva) and the place of Dharma (the god of piety). Then, surrounded by his pupils, the sage also came forward. (11—21)

तं ददर्शाग्रतो रामो मुनीनां दीप्ततेजसाम् ।
अब्रवीद् वचनं वीरो लक्ष्मणं लक्ष्मिवर्धनम् ॥ २२ ॥

Śrī Rāma saw him at the head of the sages of bright lustre. The hero addressed the following words to Lakṣmaṇa of increasing grandeur : (22)

बहिर्लक्ष्मण निष्क्रामत्यगस्त्यो भगवानृषिः ।
औदार्येणावगच्छामि निधानं तपसामिमम् ॥ २३ ॥

“Lakṣmaṇa, the revered sage Agastya is coming out. From his magnanimity I am able to recognize this abode of askesis.” (23)

एवमुक्त्वा महाबाहुरगस्त्यं सूर्यवर्चसम् ।
जग्राहापततस्तस्य पादौ च रघुनन्दनः ॥ २४ ॥

Thus saying, the mighty-armed scion of Raghu met Agastya of sun-like lustre and touched his feet as he came. (24)

अभिवाद्य तु धर्मात्मा तस्थौ रामः कृताञ्जलिः ।
सीतया सह वैदेह्या तदा रामः सलक्ष्मणः ॥ २५ ॥

Having saluted him, the righteous Rāma stood with joined palms together with Sītā, the princess of Videha, and Lakṣmaṇa. (25)

प्रतिगृह्य च काकुत्स्थमर्चयित्वाऽऽसनोदकैः ।
कुशलप्रश्नमुक्त्वा च आस्यतामिति सोऽब्रवीत् ॥ २६ ॥

The sage welcomed Kākutstha, offered him a seat and water (to wash his hands and feet), inquired after his welfare and asked him to sit down. (26)

अग्निं हुत्वा प्रदायार्घ्यमतिथीन् प्रतिपूज्य च ।
वानप्रस्थेन धर्मेण स तेषां भोजनं ददौ ॥ २७ ॥

He first poured oblations into the sacred fire, then offered water to the guests, honoured them according to the code prescribed for anchorites and offered them meals. (27)

प्रथमं चोपविश्याथ धर्मज्ञो मुनिपुंगवः ।
उवाच राममासीनं प्राञ्जलिं धर्मकोविदम् ॥ २८ ॥

Sitting down himself first, the knower of Dharma, the foremost among sages, said to Śrī Rāma, who now sat with folded hands, well-versed as he was in the code of right conduct : (28)

अग्निं हुत्वा प्रदायार्घ्यमतिथिं प्रतिपूजयेत् ।
अन्यथा खलु काकुत्स्थ तपस्वी समुदाचरन् ।
दुःसाक्षीव परे लोके स्वानि मांसानि भक्षयेत् ॥ २९ ॥

“An ascetic should pour oblations into the sacred fire, offer water to a guest (to wash his hands) and honour him (in other ways). An ascetic behaving otherwise, O Kākutstha, will, like a false-witness, have to eat his own flesh in the other world. (29)

राजा सर्वस्य लोकस्य धर्मचारी महारथः ।
पूजनीयश्च मान्यश्च भवान् प्राप्तः प्रियातिथिः ॥ ३० ॥

“You, the king of the whole world, a righteous and great car-warrior, an adorable and respectable dear guest, have come.” (30)

एवमुक्त्वा फलैर्मूलैः पुष्पैश्चान्यैश्च राघवम्।
पूजयित्वा यथाकामं ततोऽगस्त्यस्तमब्रवीत्॥ ३१ ॥

Thus saying and entertaining Rāghava according to the latter's desire with fruits, roots, flowers and other things, Agastya then said to him : (31)

इदं दिव्यं महच्चापं हेमवज्रविभूषितम्।
वैष्णवं पुरुषव्याघ्र निर्मितं विश्वकर्मणा॥ ३२ ॥

“Here is a great divine bow of Viṣṇu ornamented with gold and diamonds and manufactured by Viśvakarmā, O tiger among men ! (32)

अमोघः सूर्यसंकाशो ब्रह्मदत्तः शरोत्तमः।
दत्तौ मम महेन्द्रेण तूणी चाक्षय्यसायकौ॥ ३३ ॥
सम्पूर्णौ निशितैर्बाणैर्ज्वलद्भिरिव पावकैः।
महाराजतकोशोऽयमसिर्हेमविभूषितः॥ ३४ ॥

“This jewel among arrows, never failing and bright as the sun, was given by Brahmā. Mahendra gave me two inexhaustible quivers full of sharp arrows burning like fire. This is a sword ornamented with gold and kept in a gold sheath. (33-34)

अनेन धनुषा राम हत्वा संख्ये महासुरान्।
आजहार श्रियं दीप्तां पुरा विष्णुर्दिवौकसाम्॥ ३५ ॥

“Formerly, O Rāma, Viṣṇu killed on the battlefield great demons with this bow and brought back to the denizens of heaven their bright splendour. (35)

तद्धनुस्तौ च तूणी च शरं खड्गं च मानद।
जयाय प्रतिगृह्णीष्व वज्रं वज्रधरो यथा॥ ३६ ॥

“O bestower of honour, accept for your victory that bow, those two quivers, the arrow and the sword, as Indra accepted the thunderbolt.” (36)

एवमुक्त्वा महातेजाः समस्तं तद्वरायुधम्।
दत्त्वा रामाय भगवानगस्त्यः पुनरब्रवीत्॥ ३७ ॥

Thus speaking and giving all that collection of foremost weapons to Rāma, the revered Agastya of great lustre said again : (37)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे द्वादशः सर्गः॥ १२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twelve in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रयोदशः सर्गः

Canto XIII

Agastya advises Rāma and others to stay in Pāñcavaṭī

राम प्रीतोऽस्मि भद्रं ते परितुष्टोऽस्मि लक्ष्मण।
अभिवादयितुं यन्मां प्राप्तौ स्थः सह सीतया॥ १ ॥

“Rāma, I am pleased with you. Luck be to you ! Lakṣmaṇa, I am fully satisfied that you two have come to greet me together with Sītā. (1)

अध्वश्रमेण वां खेदो बाधते प्रचुरश्रमः।
व्यक्तमुत्कण्ठते वापि मैथिली जनकात्मजा॥ २ ॥

“Fatigue due to exertion entailed by journey and marked by profuse perspiration is troubling you two and it is evident that the

Princess of Mithilā, daughter of Janaka, too longs for rest. (2)

एषा च सुकुमारी च खेदैश्च न विमानिता।
प्राज्यदोषं वनं प्राप्ता भर्तृस्नेहप्रचोदिता॥ ३ ॥

“She is tender and has never been tormented by fatigue before; she has come to the forest full of risks due to sheer love for her husband. (3)

यथैषा रमते राम इह सीता तथा कुरु।
दुष्करं कृतवत्येषा वने त्वामभिगच्छती॥ ४ ॥

“O Rāma, do that by which Sītā may this Sītā feels happy and comfortable here. Coming with you to the forest, she has done a difficult thing. (4)

एषा हि प्रकृतिः स्त्रीणामासृष्टे रघुनन्दन।
समस्थमनुरज्यन्ते विषमस्थं त्यजन्ति च॥५॥

“Ever since the dawn of creation, it has been the nature of women that they love a man only so long as he is in prosperity and give him up when he is in adversity. (5)

शतहृदानां लोलत्वं शस्त्राणां तीक्ष्णतां तथा।
गरुडानिलयोः शैघ्रमनुगच्छन्ति योषितः॥६॥

“Women follow the inconstancy of lightning, the sharpness of weapons and the speed of an eagle and wind. (6)

इयं तु भवतो भार्या दोषैरेतैर्विवर्जिता।
श्लाघ्या च व्यपदेश्या च यथा देवीष्वरुन्धती॥७॥

“This wife of yours, however, is entirely free from these blemishes and praiseworthy; and deserves to be reckoned among the divine ladies like Arundhati. (7)

अलंकृतोऽयं देशश्च यत्र सौमित्रिणा सह।
वैदेह्या चानया राम वत्स्यसि त्वमरिंदम॥८॥

“Nay, this region where you are going to stay, O Rāma, vanquisher of foes, together with the son of Sumitrā and this Sītā, stands graced today.” (8)

एवमुक्तस्तु मुनिना राघवः संयताञ्जलिः।
उवाच प्रश्रितं वाक्यमृषिं दीप्तमिवानलम्॥९॥

Thus spoken to by the sage, Rāghava, with folded hands, addressed the following polite words to the sage, who looked like a blazing fire : (9)

धन्योऽस्म्यनुगृहीतोऽस्मि यस्य मे मुनिपुंगवः।
गुणैः सभ्रातृभार्यस्य गुरुर्नः परितुष्यति॥१०॥

“Blessed and favoured am I, with whose virtues as well as with those of my brother and wife, you, the foremost of sages and our object of veneration, are fully pleased. (10)

किं तु व्यादिश मे देशं सोदकं बहुकाननम्।
यत्राश्रमपदं कृत्वा वसेयं निरतः सुखम्॥११॥

“But please tell me the region, abounding in water and forests, where I can happily and joyously stay, setting up a hermitage.” (11)

ततोऽब्रवीन्मुनिश्रेष्ठः श्रुत्वा रामस्य भाषितम्।
ध्यात्वा मुहूर्तं धर्मात्मा ततोवाच वचः शुभम्॥१२॥

Hearing the submission of Śrī Rāma, the righteous Agastya, the foremost of sages, meditated a while and then spoke the following auspicious words : (12)

इतो द्वियोजने तात बहुमूलफलोदकः।
देशो बहुमृगः श्रीमान् पञ्चवट्यभिविश्रुतः॥१३॥

“Two Yojanas (sixteen miles) from here, O dear one, is a splendid region abounding in roots, fruits and water, having many deer, and is known all round as Pañcavaṭi. (13)

तत्र गत्वाऽऽश्रमपदं कृत्वा सौमित्रिणा सह।
रमस्व त्वं पितुर्वाक्यं यथोक्तमनुपालयन्॥१४॥

“Going there with Lakṣmaṇa and setting up a hermitage, live you all happily fully obeying to the letter the command of your father. (14)

विदितो ह्येष वृत्तान्तो मम सर्वस्तवानघ।
तपसश्च प्रभावेण स्नेहाद् दशरथस्य च॥१५॥

“O sinless one, all this story of yours’ as well as that of Daśaratha (your father) is known to me through the power of my austerities and by virtue of my affection to you all. (15)

हृदयस्थं च ते च्छन्दो विज्ञातं तपसा मया।
इह वासं प्रतिज्ञाय मया सह तपोवने॥१६॥

“I have also come to know the purpose in your mind in inquiring of me a place suitable for your abode after having agreed to stay in this penance-grove with me. (16)

अतश्च त्वामहं ब्रूमि गच्छ पञ्चवटीमिति।
स हि रम्यो वनोद्देशो मैथिली तत्र रंस्यते॥१७॥

“It is, therefore, that I say to you : ‘Go to Pañcavaṭi’. For, that part of the forest is charming. The princess of Mithilā will rejoice there. (17)

स देशः श्लाघनीयश्च नातिदूरे च राघव।
गोदावर्याः समीपे च मैथिली तत्र रंस्यते ॥ १८ ॥

“That region is commendable and also not very far off from this place, O Rāghava, and stands near the Godāvārī. The princess of Mithilā will feel delighted there. (18)

प्राज्यमूलफलैश्चैव नानाद्विजगणैर्युतः।
विविक्तश्च महाबाहो पुण्यो रम्यस्तथैव च ॥ १९ ॥

“Having abundant roots and fruits and full of diverse flocks of birds. O mighty-armed one, it is solitary, holy and charming as well. (19)

भवानपि सदाचारः शक्तश्च परिरक्षणे।
अपि चात्र वसन् राम तापसान् पालयिष्यसि ॥ २० ॥

“You too are of good conduct and capable of protecting the weak. Nay, staying there, O Rāma, you will protect the ascetics. (20)

एतदालक्ष्यते वीर मधूकानां महावनम्।
उत्तरेणास्य गन्तव्यं न्यग्रोधमपि गच्छता ॥ २१ ॥

“O hero, here is seen the great forest of Madhūka trees; from there you have to proceed along the northern route leading to a banyan tree. (21)

ततः स्थलमुपारुह्य पर्वतस्याविदूरतः।
ख्यातः पञ्चवटीत्येव नित्यपुष्पितकाननः ॥ २२ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे त्रयोदशः सर्गः ॥ १३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirteen in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्दशः सर्गः

Canto XIV

Meeting with Jaṭāyu

अथ पञ्चवटीं गच्छन्नन्तरा रघुनन्दनः।
आससाद महाकायं गृध्रं भीमपराक्रमम् ॥ १ ॥

Now, while going to Pañcavaṭī, the scion of Raghu met on the way a vulture

“Then, moving up a plateau, will be reached by you not far away from a mountain, a region full of woodlands, ever laden with blossoms and known by the name of Pañcavaṭī.” (22)

अगस्त्येनैवमुक्तस्तु रामः सौमित्रिणा सह।
सत्कृत्यामन्त्रयामास तमृषिं सत्यवादिनम् ॥ २३ ॥

Thus spoken to by Agastya, Rāma together with the son of Sumitrā honoured and took leave of that sage, who always spoke the truth. (23)

तौ तु तेनाभ्यनुज्ञातौ कृतपादाभिवन्दनौ।
तमाश्रमं पञ्चवटीं जग्मतुः सह सीतया ॥ २४ ॥

Permitted by him and having bowed down at his feet in reverence, the two brothers moved with Sītā towards the Pañcavaṭī hermitage. (24)

गृहीतचापौ तु नराधिपात्मजौ
विषक्ततूणी समरेष्वकातरौ।
यथोपदिष्टेन पथा महर्षिणा
प्रजग्मतुः पञ्चवटीं समाहितौ ॥ २५ ॥

With their quivers fastened at the back and wielding their bows, the two princes, who were of concentrated mind and fearless in battle, proceeded to Pañcavaṭī along the path as directed by the great sage. (25)

with a gigantic body and possessed of terrific prowess. (1)

तं दृष्ट्वा तौ महाभागौ वनस्थं रामलक्ष्मणौ।
मेनाते राक्षसं पक्षिं ब्रुवाणौ को भवानिति ॥ २ ॥

Seeing him in the forest, those two highly blessed princes, Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, thought the bird to be an ogre and said to him, "Who are you?" (2)

ततो मधुरया वाचा सौम्यया प्रीणयन्निव ।
उवाच वत्स मां विद्धि वयस्यं पितुरात्मनः ॥ ३ ॥

Then, as though delighting them with a gentle and sweet speech, he said, "O dear son, know me to be a friend of your father." (3)

स तं पितृसखं मत्वा पूजयामास राघवः ।
स तस्य कुलमव्यग्रमथ पप्रच्छ नाम च ॥ ४ ॥

Believing him to be a friend of his father, the scion of Raghu honoured him and gently enquired his name and race. (4)

रामस्य वचनं श्रुत्वा कुलमात्मानमेव च ।
आचचक्षे द्विजस्तस्मै सर्वभूतसमुद्भवम् ॥ ५ ॥

Hearing the speech of Rāma, the bird told him about himself and his descent and the origin of all beings. (5)

पूर्वकाले महाबाहो ये प्रजापतयोऽभवन् ।
तान् मे निगदतः सर्वानादितः शृणु राघव ॥ ६ ॥

"O mighty-armed scion of Raghu, listen to me, while I am speaking from the beginning about all the lords of creation who existed in the past. (6)

कर्दमः प्रथमस्तेषां विकृतस्तदनन्तरम् ।
शेषश्च संश्रयश्चैव बहुपुत्रश्च वीर्यवान् ॥ ७ ॥
स्थाणुर्मरीचिरत्रिश्च क्रतुश्चैव महाबलः ।
पुलस्त्यश्चाङ्गिराश्चैव प्रचेताः पुलहस्तथा ॥ ८ ॥

"Kardama was the first of them; after him came Vikṛta, Śeṣa, Saṁśraya and the powerful Bahuputra and Sthāṇu, Marīci, Atri, the mighty Kratu, Pulastya, Aṅgirā, Pracetā and also Pulaha. (7-8)

दक्षो विवस्वानपरोऽरिष्टनेमिश्च राघव ।
कश्यपश्च महातेजास्तेषामासीच्च पश्चिमः ॥ ९ ॥

"Then came Dakṣa, Vivaswān and Ariṣṭanemi, O Rāghava, and the last one of great lustre amongst them was Kaśyapa. (9)

प्रजापतेस्तु दक्षस्य बभूवुरिति विश्रुताः ।
षष्टिर्दुहितरो राम यशस्विन्यो महायशः ॥ १० ॥

"Prajāpati Dakṣa had sixty well-known and illustrious daughters, O Rāma of great fame ! (10)

कश्यपः प्रतिजग्राह तासामष्टौ सुमध्यमाः ।
अदितिं च दितिं चैव दनूमपि च कालकाम् ॥ ११ ॥
ताम्रां क्रोधवशां चैव मनुं चाप्यनलामपि ।
तास्तु कन्यास्ततः प्रीतः कश्यपः पुनरब्रवीत् ॥ १२ ॥

"Kaśyapa married eight beautiful girls of them—Aditi and Diti, Danu and also Kālakā, Tāmrā and Krodhavaśā, Manu and also Analā. Then, pleased with them, Kaśyapa again said to those girls : (11-12)

पुत्रांस्त्रैलोक्यभर्तृन् वै जनयिष्यथ मत्समान् ।
अदितिस्तन्मना राम दितिश्च दनुरेव च ॥ १३ ॥
कालका च महाबाहो शेषास्त्वमनसोऽभवन् ।
अदित्यां जज्ञिरे देवास्त्रयस्त्रिंशदरिंदम ॥ १४ ॥
आदित्या वसवो रुद्रा अश्विनौ च परंतप ।
दितिस्त्वजनयत् पुत्रान् दैत्यांस्तात यशस्विनः ॥ १५ ॥

"‘You will give birth to sons like me, masters of the three worlds.’ O Rāma of mighty arms, Aditi, Diti, Danu and Kālakā were attentive, the rest were indifferent. "Of Aditi thirty-three gods were born, O vanquisher of foes—the twelve Ādityas, the eight Vasus, the eleven Rudras and the two Āświns, O tormentor of foes ! Diti for her part gave birth to the famous Daityas (demons), O dear one ! (13—15)

तेषामियं वसुमती पुराऽऽसीत् सवनार्णवा ।
दनुस्त्वजनयत् पुत्रमश्वग्रीवमरिंदम ॥ १६ ॥

"Formerly they owned all this earth with forests and oceans. Danu for her part bore a son, Āśwagrīva, O vanquisher of foes ! (16)

नरकं कालकं चैव कालकापि व्यजायत ।
क्रौञ्चीं भासीं तथा श्येनीं धृतराष्ट्रीं तथा शुकीम् ॥ १७ ॥
ताम्रा तु सुषुवे कन्याः पञ्चैता लोकविश्रुताः ।
उलूकाञ्जनयत् क्रौञ्ची भासी भासान् व्यजायत ॥ १८ ॥
श्येनी श्येनांश्च गृध्रांश्च व्यजायत सुतेजसः ।
धृतराष्ट्री तु हंसांश्च कलहंसाश्च सर्वशः ॥ १९ ॥

“Kālākā too gave birth to Naraka and also Kālaka. Tāmrā for her part bore the following five daughters well-known in the world—Krauñci, Bhāsī as also Śyenī, Dhṛtarāṣṭrī and Śukī. Krauñci gave birth to Ulūkas (owls), Bhāsī bore Bhāsas (a species of birds of prey), Śyenī gave birth to Śyenas (hawks) and vultures of bright lustre. Dhṛtarāṣṭrī for her part bore swans and Kalahansas of all types. (17—19)

चक्रवाकांश्च भद्रं ते विजज्ञे सापि भामिनी ।
शुकी नतां विजज्ञे तु नतायां विनता सुता ॥ २० ॥

“Luck be to you ! That lady also gave birth to Cakravāka birds. Śukī bore a daughter, Natā by name, and of Natā was born a daughter, Vinatā. (20)

दश क्रोधवशा राम विजज्ञेऽप्यात्मसंभवाः ।
मृगीं च मृगमन्दां च हरीं भद्रमदामपि ॥ २१ ॥
मातङ्गीमथ शार्दूलीं श्वेतां च सुरभीं तथा ।
सर्वलक्षणसम्पन्नां सुरसां कद्रुकामपि ॥ २२ ॥

“O Rāma, Krodhavaśā also bore ten daughters—Mṛgī and Mṛgamandā, Harī as also Bhadramadā, Mātangi and then Śārdūlī, Śwetā as also Surabhī, Surasā endowed with all auspicious characteristics and also Kadrū. (21-22)

अपत्यं तु मृगाः सर्वे मृग्या नरवरोत्तम ।
ऋक्षाश्च मृगमन्दायाः सृमराश्चमरास्तथा ॥ २३ ॥

“O jewel among the foremost of men, all the deer are the progeny of Mṛgī; Rkṣas (bears), Sṛmaras (a species of antelopes) and camaras (another species of antelopes), of Mṛgamandā. (23)

ततस्त्विरावतीं नाम जज्ञे भद्रमदा सुताम् ।
तस्यास्त्वैरावतः पुत्रो लोकनाथो महागजः ॥ २४ ॥

“Then Bhadramadā bore a daughter named Irāvati. The great elephant, Airāvata, coveted by the world, is her son. (24)

हर्याश्च हरयोऽपत्यं वानराश्च तपस्विनः ।
गोलाङ्गूलाश्च शार्दूली व्याघ्रांश्चाजनयत् सुतान् ॥ २५ ॥

“Lions and the poor monkeys and baboons are the progeny of Harī. Śārdūlī bore tigers as her sons. (25)

मातङ्ग्यास्त्वथ मातङ्गा अपत्यं मनुजर्षभ ।
दिशागजं तु काकुत्स्थ श्वेता व्यजनयत् सुतम् ॥ २६ ॥

“O jewel among men, the elephants are the progeny of Mātangi; O Kākutstha Śwetā bore a son, Diśāgaja (the elephant guarding the quarters). (26)

ततो दुहितरौ राम सुरभिर्द्वे व्यजायत ।
रोहिणीं नाम भद्रं ते गन्धर्वी च यशस्विनीम् ॥ २७ ॥

“Then, O Rāma, Surabhi bore two daughters named Rohiṇī and the famous Gandharvī. Luck be to you ! (27)

रोहिण्यजनयद् गावो गन्धर्वी वाजिनः सुतान् ।
सुरसाजनयन्नागान् राम कद्रुश्च पन्नगान् ॥ २८ ॥

“Rohiṇī gave birth to the bovine race and Gandharvī to the horses as her sons. Surasā bore the Nāgas and Kadrū the serpents, O Rāma ! (28)

मनुर्मनुष्याञ्जनयत् कश्यपस्य महात्मनः ।
ब्राह्मणान् क्षत्रियान् वैश्यान् शूद्रांश्च मनुजर्षभ ॥ २९ ॥

“Manu, wife of the high-souled Kaśyapa, gave birth to men—viz., Brāhmaṇas, Kṣatriyas, Vaiśyas and Śūdras, O jewel among men ! (29)

मुखतो ब्राह्मणा जाता उरसः क्षत्रियास्तथा ।
ऊरुभ्यां जज्ञिरे वैश्याः पद्भ्यां शूद्रा इति श्रुतिः ॥ ३० ॥

“Brāhmaṇas appeared from the mouth, the Kṣatriyas from the breast, the Vaiśyas from the thighs and the Śūdras from the feet—so says the Śruti text. (30)

सर्वान् पुण्यफलान् वृक्षाननलापि व्यजायत ।
विनता च शुकीपौत्री कद्रुश्च सुरसास्वसा ॥ ३१ ॥

“Analā also gave birth to all the trees of holy fruits; Vinatā was the grand-daughter of Śukī (the daughter of Tāmrā) and Kadrū was the sister of Surasā. (31)

कद्रूर्नागसहस्रं तु विजज्ञे धरणीधरान् ।
द्वौ पुत्रौ विनतायास्तु गरुडोऽरुण एव च ॥ ३२ ॥

“Kadrū bore a thousand Nāgas, the supporters of the earth. Garuḍa and Aruṇa are the two sons of Vinatā. (32)

तस्माज्जातोऽहमरुणात् सम्पातिश्च ममाग्रजः ।
जटायुरिति मां विद्धि श्येनीपुत्रमरिंदम ॥ ३३ ॥

“I came into being from the said Aruṇa, and also my elder brother, Sampāti. Know me to be Jaṭāyu, the son of Śyenī, O vanquisher of foes ! (33)

सोऽहं वाससहायस्ते भविष्यामि यदीच्छसि ।
इदं दुर्गं हि कान्तारं मृगराक्षससेवितम् ।
सीतां च तात रक्षिष्ये त्वयि याते सलक्ष्मणे ॥ ३४ ॥

“If you so desire, I shall be your assistant at your dwelling. For, this inaccessible forest is frequented by beasts and ogres; and, O dear one, when you go out with Lakṣmaṇa, I shall guard Sītā.” (34)

जटायुषं तु प्रतिपूज्य राघवो
मुदा परिष्वज्य च संनतोऽभवत् ।

पितुर्हि शुश्राव सखित्वमात्मवा-

ञ्जटायुषा संकथितं पुनः पुनः ॥ ३५ ॥

Rāghava honoured Jaṭāyu, embraced him with joy and bowed low to him; for, the self-restrained Rāma had heard about the vulture's friendship with his father Daśaratha, spoken of by Jaṭāyu again and again. (35)

स तत्र सीतां परिदाय मैथिलीं

सहैव तेनातिबलेन पक्षिणा ।

जगाम तां पञ्चवटीं सलक्ष्मणो

रिपून् दिधक्षज्जलभानिवानलः ॥ ३६ ॥

Entrusting Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, to the care of Jaṭāyu, he proceeded to the well-known Pañcavaṭī, together with the selfsame mighty bird and Lakṣmaṇa, seeking, as it were, to burn the enemy as fire would burn moths. (36)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे चतुर्दशः सर्गः ॥ १४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fourteen in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चदशः सर्गः

Canto XV

Rāma, Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa dwell in a cottage built by Lakṣmaṇa in Pañcavaṭī

ततः पञ्चवटीं गत्वा नानाव्यालमृगायुताम् ।
उवाच लक्ष्मणं रामो भ्रातरं दीप्ततेजसम् ॥ १ ॥

Then going to Pañcavaṭī full of various beasts of prey and deer, Rāma said to Lakṣmaṇa, his brother of bright lustre : (1)

आगताः स्म यथोद्दिष्टं यं देशं मुनिरब्रवीत् ।
अयं पञ्चवटीदेशः सौम्य पुष्पितकाननः ॥ २ ॥

“According to our plan we have come to the region of which the sage spoke to us. O gentle brother, this is the region of Pañcavaṭī with woodlands in blossom. (2)

सर्वतश्चार्यतां दृष्टिः कानने निपुणो ह्यसि ।
आश्रमः कतरस्मिन् नो देशे भवति सम्मतः ॥ ३ ॥

“Since you are a man of insight, cast a look all around in the forest: At which place will a hermitage be suitable for us? (3)

रमते यत्र वैदेही त्वमहं चैव लक्ष्मण ।
तादृशो दृश्यतां देशः संनिकृष्टजलाशयः ॥ ४ ॥
वनरामण्यकं यत्र जलरामण्यकं तथा ।
संनिकृष्टं च यस्मिंस्तु समित्पुष्पकुशोदकम् ॥ ५ ॥

“Look about for a site with a pool nearby, in which the princess of Videha, yourself and

I will feel delighted, where there is beauty of forest and beauty of water, and also in the vicinity of which there are firewood, flowers, the holy Kuśa grass and water.” (4-5)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण लक्ष्मणः संयताञ्जलिः ।
सीतासमक्षं काकुत्स्थमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ६ ॥

Thus addressed by Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa with folded hands spoke as follows to Kākutstha in the presence of Sītā : (6)

परवानस्मि काकुत्स्थ त्वयि वर्षशतं स्थिते ।
स्वयं तु रुचिरे देशे क्रियतामिति मां वद ॥ ७ ॥

“O Kākutstha, so long as you are present, say, a hundred years, I am a dependent only. Therefore, tell me of your own accord to erect a hut at a place which is agreeable to you.” (7)

सुप्रीतस्तेन वाक्येन लक्ष्मणस्य महाद्युतिः ।
विमृशन् रोचयामास देशं सर्वगुणान्वितम् ॥ ८ ॥

Very much pleased by this reply of Lakṣmaṇa and thinking for a while, Śrī Rāma of surpassing lustre, selected a spot, possessed of all good qualities. (8)

स तं रुचिरमाक्रम्य देशमाश्रमकर्मणि ।
हस्ते गृहीत्वा हस्तेन रामः सौमित्रिमब्रवीत् ॥ ९ ॥

He went to that spot selected for setting up a hermitage and clasping Lakṣmaṇa by the hand, Śrī Rāma said to the son of Sumitrā : (9)

अयं देशः समः श्रीमान् पुष्पितैस्तरुभिर्वृतः ।
इहाश्रमपदं रम्यं यथावत् कर्तुमर्हसि ॥ १० ॥

“This plot is even, grand and surrounded by trees in blossom. Here you ought duly to set up a beautiful hermitage. (10)

इयमादित्यसंकाशैः पद्मैः सुरभिगन्धिभिः ।
अदूरे दृश्यते रम्या पद्मिनी पद्मशोभिता ॥ ११ ॥

“Here is seen nearby a lake looking delightful with fragrant sun-like lotuses and further beautified by blue lotuses. (11)

यथाख्यातमगस्त्येन मुनिना भावितात्मना ।
इयं गोदावरी रम्या पुष्पितैस्तरुभिर्वृता ॥ १२ ॥

“As pointed out by sage Agastya, the pure-minded sage, this is the site of charming Godāvārī, hemmed with trees in blossom. (12)

हंसकारण्डवाकीर्णा चक्रवाकोपशोभिता ।
नातिदूरे न चासन्ने मृगयूथनिपीडिता ॥ १३ ॥

“Crowded with swans and Kāraṇḍava birds, beautified by Caravāka birds and stirred by herds of deer, it is neither very far nor very near. (13)

मयूरनादिता रम्याः प्रांशवो बहुकन्दराः ।
दृश्यन्ते गिरयः सौम्य फुल्लैस्तरुभिरावृताः ॥ १४ ॥

“Here are seen lofty and charming mountains made noisy by peacocks, having many caves and covered with trees, in blossom, O gentle Lakṣmaṇa ! (14)

सौवर्णे राजतैस्ताम्रैर्देशे देशे तथा शुभैः ।
गवाक्षिता इवाभान्ति गजाः परमभक्तिभिः ॥ १५ ॥

“Speckled here and there with shining golden, silvery and coppery minerals, they look like elephants decorated with exquisite coloured diagrams resembling latticed windows. (15)

सालैस्तालैस्तमालैश्च खजूरैः पनसैर्द्रुमैः ।
नीवारैस्तिनिशैश्चैव पुन्नागैश्चोपशोभिताः ॥ १६ ॥

चूतैरशोकैस्तिलकैः केतकैरपि चम्पकैः ।
पुष्पगुल्मलतोपेतैस्तैस्तैस्तरुभिरावृताः ॥ १७ ॥

स्यन्दनैश्चन्दनैर्नीपैः पर्णासैर्लकुचैरपि ।
धवाश्वकर्णखदिरैः शमीकिंशुकपाटलैः ॥ १८ ॥

“The mountains are graced with Sāl, palmyra, Tamāla, date, jack-fruit, Nivāra (watery Kadamba), Tiniśa and Punnāga trees and covered by mango, Aśoka, Tilaka, Ketaka, Campaka, Syandana, sandalwood, Nipa, Parnāsa, Lakuca, Dhava, Aśwakarna, Khadira, Śamī, Kimśuka and Pāṭala trees laden with blossoms and surrounded with shrubs and climbers. (16—18)

इदं पुण्यमिदं रम्यमिदं बहुमृगद्विजम् ।
इह वत्स्याम सौमित्रे सार्धमेतेन पक्षिणा ॥ १९ ॥

“This spot is holy, this is charming, this abounds in deer and birds, O son of Sumitrā !

We will stay here with this bird (Jaṭāyu).” (19)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण लक्ष्मणः परवीरहा ।
अचिरेणाश्रमं भ्रातुश्चकार सुमहाबलः ॥ २० ॥

Spoken to in these words by Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa, the slayer of hostile warriors, possessed as he was of extraordinary might, set up a hermitage for his brother without delay. (20)

पर्णशालां सुविपुलां तत्र संघातमृत्तिकाम् ।
सुस्तम्भां मस्करैर्दीर्घैः कृतवंशां सुशोभनाम् ॥ २१ ॥
शमीशाखाभिरास्तीर्य दृढपाशावपाशिताम् ।
कुशकाशशरैः पर्णैः सुपरिच्छादितां तथा ॥ २२ ॥
समीकृततलां रम्यां चकार सुमहाबलः ।
निवासं राघवस्यार्थे प्रेक्षणीयमनुत्तमम् ॥ २३ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa, who was possessed of extraordinary might, erected a lovely and excellent abode for Śrī Rāma in the shape of a very extensive hut with a wall of mud supported on good pillars and roofed with long bamboo sticks, and looking very attractive and charming, thatching it with boughs of a Śamī tree, fastened with strong cords and also well covered with blades of Kuśa and flowers of Kāśa grass and reeds and levelling the floor. (21—23)

स गत्वा लक्ष्मणः श्रीमान् नदीं गोदावरीं तदा ।
स्नात्वा पद्मानि चादाय सफलः पुनरागतः ॥ २४ ॥

The glorious Lakṣmaṇa forthwith went to the river Godāvarī, bathed in it and taking lotuses and fruits returned. (24)

ततः पुष्पबलिं कृत्वा शान्तिं च स यथाविधि ।
दर्शयामास रामाय तदाश्रमपदं कृतम् ॥ २५ ॥

Then, making a flower-offering and performing a propitiatory rite with due ceremony, he showed the hermitage, which he had duly set up, to Śrī Rāma. (25)

स तं दृष्ट्वा कृतं सौम्यमाश्रमं सह सीतया ।
राघवः पर्णशालायां हर्षमाहारयत् परम् ॥ २६ ॥

Seeing that delightful hermitage set up for him, the said Śrī Rāma with Sītā derived supreme joy in that cottage. (26)

सुसंहृष्टः परिष्वज्य बाहुभ्यां लक्ष्मणं तदा ।
अतिस्निग्धं च गाढं च वचनं चेदमब्रवीत् ॥ २७ ॥

Being supremely delighted and tightly clasping Lakṣmaṇa with his arms most affectionately, Śrī Rāma then spoke to him as follows : (27)

प्रीतोऽस्मि ते महत् कर्म त्वया कृतमिदं प्रभो ।
प्रदेयो यन्निमित्तं ते परिष्वङ्गो मया कृतः ॥ २८ ॥

“I am pleased with you. O powerful brother, you have accomplished this great work, as a reward for which I have given you a well-deserved embrace. (28)

भावज्ञेन कृतज्ञेन धर्मज्ञेन च लक्ष्मण ।
त्वया पुत्रेण धर्मात्मा न संवृत्तः पिता मम ॥ २९ ॥

“Lakṣmaṇa, with you as his son, knowing my feelings, grateful and a knower of what is right, my pious-minded father is not dead.” (29)

एवं लक्ष्मणमुक्त्वा तु राघवो लक्ष्मिवर्धनः ।
तस्मिन् देशे बहुफले न्यवसत् स सुखं सुखी ॥ ३० ॥

Having thus spoken to Lakṣmaṇa, the happy Rāghava, the promoter of others' grandeur, stayed in that region of abundant fruits happily. (30)

कञ्चित् कालं स धर्मात्मा सीतया लक्ष्मणेन च ।
अन्वास्यमानो न्यवसत् स्वर्गलोके यथामरः ॥ ३१ ॥

Attended upon by Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa, that righteous prince stayed for some period like a god in heaven. (31)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे पञ्चदशः सर्गः ॥ १५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifteen in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षोडशः सर्गः

Canto XVI

Lakṣmaṇa describes the early winter. Bath in Godāvarī

वसतस्तस्य तु सुखं राघवस्य महात्मनः ।
शरद्व्यपाये हेमन्त ऋतुरिष्टः प्रवर्तत ॥ १ ॥

While the magnanimous Rāghava was staying happily, the desired winter set in at the expiry of autumn. (1)

स कदाचित् प्रभातायां शर्वर्या रघुनन्दनः ।
प्रययावभिषेकार्थं रम्यां गोदावरीं नदीम् ॥ २ ॥

Once that delight of the Raghus, Śrī Rāma, at the break of day went to the beautiful Godāvarī river for a bath. (2)

प्रह्वः कलशहस्तस्तु सीतया सह वीर्यवान् ।
पृष्ठतोऽनुव्रजन् भ्राता सौमित्रिदिमब्रवीत् ॥ ३ ॥

Following at the heels of Śrī Rāma, his brave brother, the son of Sumitrā, alongwith Sitā, and with a vessel for water in his hand, spoke as follows : (3)

अयं स कालः सम्प्राप्तः प्रियो यस्ते प्रियंवद ।
अलंकृत इवाभाति येन संवत्सरः शुभः ॥ ४ ॥

"Now has arrived that season which is dear to you, O polite brother, with which the blessed year appears as though ornamented. (4)

नीहारपरुषो लोकः पृथिवी सस्यमालिनी ।
जलान्यनुपभोग्यानि सुभगो हव्यवाहनः ॥ ५ ॥

"The people feel dry with cold, the earth is rich with crops; the waters are unenjoyable, the fire is agreeable. (5)

नवाग्रयणपूजाभिरभ्यर्च्य पितृदेवताः ।
कृताग्रयणकाः काले सन्तो विगतकल्मषाः ॥ ६ ॥

"Having propitiated the manes and gods with offerings of the first fruits of the preceding harvest and partaken of them themselves, virtuous people have been rid of sin. (6)

प्राज्यकामा जनपदाः सम्पन्नतरगोरसाः ।
विचरन्ति महीपाला यात्रार्थं विजिगीषवः ॥ ७ ॥

"The people of the countryside have their desires for foodgrains abundantly fulfilled and have richer supply of cow's milk etc. The kings are moving on their expedition with the desire for conquest. (7)

सेवमाने दृढं सूर्ये दिशमन्तकसेविताम् ।
विहीनतिलकेव स्त्री नोत्तरा दिक् प्रकाशते ॥ ८ ॥

"As the sun firmly adheres to the quarter inhabited by the god of Death (viz., the south), the northern quarter looks no more charming than a lady without Tilaka (an auspicious mark on the forehead). (8)

प्रकृत्या हिमकोशाढ्यो दूरसूर्यश्च साम्प्रतम् ।
यथार्थनामा सुव्यक्तं हिमवान् हिमवान् गिरिः ॥ ९ ॥

"Rich in its treasure of snow by nature, and abounding in snow at present, the sun being away (in the southern hemisphere), the Himālaya mountain more perceptibly justifies its name. (9)

अत्यन्तसुखसंचारा मध्याह्ने स्पर्शतः सुखाः ।
दिवसाः सुभगादित्याश्छायासलिलदुर्भगाः ॥ १० ॥

"At noontide the days are exceedingly pleasant for a walk, and afford delight by the touch of the sun's rays; the sun is agreeable, while shade and water are disagreeable. (10)

मृदुसूर्याः सुनीहाराः पटुशीताः समारुताः ।
शून्यारण्या हिमध्वस्ता दिवसा भान्ति साम्प्रतम् ॥ ११ ॥

"With an unoppressive sun, beautiful thick fog, bitter cold and wind and desolate woodlands blighted by frost, the days look calm (devoid of activity and bustle). (11)

निवृत्ताकाशशयनाः पुष्यनीता हिमारुणाः ।
शीतवृद्धतरायामास्त्रियामा यान्ति साम्प्रतम् ॥ १२ ॥

"The nights now preclude repose in open air, are marked with the presence of the constellation known by the name of Puṣya, look dusty with frost, and become colder and longer. (12)

रविसंक्रान्तसौभाग्यस्तुषारारुणमण्डलः ।

निःश्वासान्ध इवादृशश्चन्द्रमा न प्रकाशते ॥ १३ ॥

“Having transferred her pleasantness to the sun, and with its orb looking reddish due to snow, the moon does not shine any more than a mirror soiled with exhalation. (13)

ज्योत्स्ना तुषारमलिना पौर्णमास्यां न राजते ।

सीतेव चातपश्यामा लक्ष्यते न च शोभते ॥ १४ ॥

“Even on a full-moon day the moonlight does not look bright, obscured as it is with frost even as Sītā appears tanned with the sun and does not look as attractive as earlier. (14)

प्रकृत्या शीतलस्पर्शो हिमविद्धश्च साम्प्रतम् ।

प्रवाति पश्चिमो वायुः काले द्विगुणशीतलः ॥ १५ ॥

“Cool to the touch by its very nature and now saturated with snow the westerly wind blows doubly cold in the morning. (15)

बाष्पच्छन्नान्यरण्यानि यवगोधूमवन्ति च ।

शोभन्तेऽभ्युदिते सूर्ये नदद्भिः क्रौञ्चसारसैः ॥ १६ ॥

“Shrouded in mist and rich with crops of barley and wheat, the woodlands look attractive at sunrise with noisy herons and cranes. (16)

खर्जूरपुष्पाकृतिभिः शिरोभिः पूर्णतण्डुलैः ।

शोभन्ते किञ्चिदालम्बाः शालयः कनकप्रभाः ॥ १७ ॥

“Wearing a golden lustre and slightly bent with their weight of corn, paddy crops look charming with their ears full of corn and resembling date flowers in appearance. (17)

मयूखैरुपसर्पद्भिर्हिमनीहारसंवृतैः ।

दूरमभ्युदितः सूर्यः शशाङ्क इव लक्ष्यते ॥ १८ ॥

“With its approaching rays wrapped in frost and fog, the sun, though risen high, looks like the moon. (18)

आग्राह्यवीर्यः पूर्वाह्ने मध्याह्ने स्पर्शतः सुखः ।

संरक्तः किञ्चिदापाण्डुरातपः शोभते क्षितौ ॥ १९ ॥

“With its glory faintly perceptible in the forenoon and agreeable to the touch at noon, the sunshine, which is partially bright red and partially pale, is spreading its charm on the earth. (19)

अवश्यायनिपातेन किञ्चित्प्रक्लिन्नशाद्वला ।

वनानां शोभते भूमिर्निविष्टतरुणातपा ॥ २० ॥

“With its grass slightly drenched with dew-drops, the land of the woods penetrated as it is with the morning sunshine, looks charming. (20)

स्पृशन् सुविपुलं शीतमुदकं द्विरदः सुखम् ।

अत्यन्ततृषितो वन्यः प्रतिसंहरते करम् ॥ २१ ॥

“Though touching for the sake of gratification the excessively cold water of a pool, the wild elephant, seized as it was with extreme thirst, withdraws its trunk (due to its cold touch). (21)

एते हि समुपासीना विहगा जलचारिणः ।

नावगाहन्ति सलिलमप्रगल्भा इवाहवम् ॥ २२ ॥

“Though standing very close to water, the aquatic birds do not actually dive into it even as the pusillanimous do not plunge into a fight though standing very close to the scene of fighting. (22)

अवश्यायतमो नद्धा नीहारतमसावृताः ।

प्रसुप्ता इव लक्ष्यन्ते विपुष्पा वनराजयः ॥ २३ ॥

“Covered with dewdrops and enveloped in darkness at night and shrouded in the dark occasioned by fog, the rows of forest trees bereft of their blossom appear as though buried in slumber. (23)

बाष्पसंछन्नसलिला रुतविज्ञेयसारसाः ।

हिमार्द्रवालुकैस्तीरैः सरितो भान्ति साम्प्रतम् ॥ २४ ॥

“With their water shrouded in mist and the cranes inhabiting them, discernible only by their cries, the streams are perceptible at this time only through their banks with their sands wet with frost. (24)

तुषारपतनाच्चैव मृदुत्वाद् भास्करस्य च ।

शैत्यादागाग्रस्थमपि प्रायेण रसवज्जलम् ॥ २५ ॥

“Due to cold occasioned by the fall of frost as also the mildness of the sun, the water even on mountain-tops is generally tasty. (25)

जराजर्जरितैः पत्रैः शीर्णकेसरकर्णिकैः ।
नालशेषा हिमध्वस्ता न भान्ति कमलाकराः ॥ २६ ॥

“With their lotuses worn out due to decay and their filaments and pericarps withered, the lotus-beds, blasted as they are by snow, are reduced to mere stalks and no longer look charming. (26)

अस्मिंस्तु पुरुषव्याघ्र काले दुःखसमन्वितः ।
तपश्चरति धर्मात्मा त्वद्भक्त्या भरतः पुरे ॥ २७ ॥

“At this time of the year, O tiger among men, the pious-minded Bharata, full of agony (caused by separation from you) is practising austerities in the city out of devotion to you. (27)

त्यक्त्वा राज्यं च मानं च भोगांश्च विविधान् बहून् ।
तपस्वी नियताहारः शेते शीते महीतले ॥ २८ ॥

“Giving up the sovereignty and honour as well as the manifold and diverse enjoyments and living on a restricted diet, the ascetic reposes on the cold surface of the earth. (28)

सोऽपि वेलामिमां नूनमभिषेकार्थमुद्यतः ।
वृतः प्रकृतिभिर्नित्यं प्रयाति सरयूं नदीम् ॥ २९ ॥

“Ready for a dip in the river, and followed by his ministers, he too without doubt walks to the Sarayū river daily at this hour. (29)

अत्यन्तसुखसंवृद्धः सुकुमारो हिमार्दितः ।
कथं त्वपररात्रेषु सरयूमवगाहते ॥ ३० ॥

“Tormented by cold, though brought up in the highest luxury and tender as he is, how indeed does he take a dip in the Sarayū during the last watch of the night? (30)

पद्मपत्रेक्षणः श्यामः श्रीमान् निरुदरो महान् ।
धर्मज्ञः सत्यवादी च ह्रीनिषेवी जितेन्द्रियः ॥ ३१ ॥
प्रियाभिभाषी मधुरो दीर्घबाहुरिंदमः ।
संत्यज्य विविधान् सौख्यानार्थं सर्वात्मनाश्रितः ॥ ३२ ॥

“With his eyes resembling the petals of a lotus, dark-brown of complexion, majestic, almost without a belly, a great knower of Dharma, truthful, bashful, master of his senses, polite of expression, amiable, long-armed, the subduer of enemies, he has given up the various pleasures and is devoted to you (his elder brother) with all his being. (31-32)

जितः स्वर्गस्तव भ्रात्रा भरतेन महात्मना ।
वनस्थमपि तापस्ये यस्त्वामनुविधीयते ॥ ३३ ॥

“Paradise has been conquered by your high-souled brother, Bharata, who is following you in your ascetic life, even though you are staying in the forest (away from him). (33)

न पित्र्यमनुवर्तन्ते मातृकं द्विपदा इति ।
ख्यातो लोकप्रवादोऽयं भरतेनान्यथा कृतः ॥ ३४ ॥

“The well-known popular saying that men follow the nature of their mother and not of their father has been belied by Bharata. (34)

भर्ता दशरथो यस्याः साधुश्च भरतः सुतः ।
कथं नु साम्बा कैकेयी तादृशी क्रूरदर्शिनी ॥ ३५ ॥

“How is it that mother Kaikeyī, whose husband was Daśaratha and whose son is the virtuous Bharata, wears such a cruel aspect?” (35)

इत्येवं लक्ष्मणे वाक्यं स्नेहाद् वदति धार्मिके ।
परिवादं जनन्यास्तमसहन् राघवोऽब्रवीत् ॥ ३६ ॥

Unable to endure such condemnation of his (step-) mother, while the righteous Lakṣmaṇa was speaking as above out of affection (for Śrī Rāma), Rāghava said : (36)

न तेऽम्बा मध्यमा तात गर्हितव्या कदाचन ।
तामेवेक्षाकुनाथस्य भरतस्य कथां कुरु ॥ ३७ ॥

“Dear brother, Kaikeyī, our second mother, should never be condemned by you. Speak exclusively about that Bharata, the king of the Ikṣvākus. (37)

निश्चितैव हि मे बुद्धिर्वनवासे दृढव्रता।
भरतस्नेहसंतप्ता बालिशीक्रियते पुनः ॥ ३८ ॥

“To be sure, my mind is intent on my vow of residing in the forest alone, and is of firm resolve; yet, being agonized by Bharata’s affection, it gets infatuated once more. (38)

संस्मराम्यस्य वाक्यानि प्रियाणि मधुराणि च।
हृद्यान्यमृतकल्पानि मनःप्रह्लादनानि च ॥ ३९ ॥

“I fully recollect his agreeable, sweet, affectionate, nectar-like and soul-ravishing words. (39)

कदा ह्यहं समेष्यामि भरतेन महात्मना।
शत्रुघ्नेन च वीरेण त्वया च रघुनन्दन ॥ ४० ॥

“When shall I actually be united with the high-souled Bharata, the heroic Śatrughna, together with you, O scion of Raghu?” (40)

इत्येवं विलपंस्तत्र प्राप्य गोदावरीं नदीम्।
चक्रेऽभिषेकं काकुत्स्थः सानुजः सह सीतया ॥ ४१ ॥

Discoursing thus on the aforesaid topic and reaching the river Godāvarī, Śrī Rāma with his younger brother and Sītā bathed in

it. (41)

तर्पयित्वाथ सलिलैस्तैः पितृन् दैवतानपि।
स्तुवन्ति स्मोदितं सूर्यं देवताश्च तथानघाः ॥ ४२ ॥

Having propitiated with those waters
the manes as well as the gods, the sinless trio then glorified the shining sun and the other gods as well. (42)

कृताभिषेकः स रराज रामः
सीताद्वितीयः सह लक्ष्मणेन।

कृताभिषेकस्त्वगराजपुत्र्या

रुद्रः सनन्दिर्भगवानिवेशः ॥ ४३ ॥

Having finished his bath, Śrī Rāma shone with Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa even as Lord Śiva (the Destroyer of the universe) with Nandī (His beloved associate) and Pārvatī (the Daughter of the lord of mountains) on having concluded His bath in the Gaṅgā. (43)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे षोडशः सर्गः ॥ १६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixteen in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तदशः सर्गः

Canto XVII

The arrival of Śūrpaṇakhā at the hermitage

कृताभिषेको रामस्तु सीता सौमित्रिरेव च।
तस्माद् गोदावरीतीरात् ततो जग्मुः स्वमाश्रमम् ॥ १ ॥

Having taken their bath, Rāma, Sītā and also Lakṣmaṇa then returned to their hermitage from the aforesaid bank of the Godāvarī. (1)

आश्रमं तमुपागम्य राघवः सहलक्ष्मणः।
कृत्वा पौर्वाह्निकं कर्म पर्णशालामुपागमत् ॥ २ ॥

Having reached that hermitage on performing the morning devotions, Rāghava with Lakṣmaṇa entered his hut thatched with leaves. (2)

उवास सुखितस्तत्र पूज्यमानो महर्षिभिः।
स रामः पर्णशालायामासीनः सह सीतया ॥ ३ ॥
विरराज महाबाहुश्चित्रया चन्द्रमा इव।
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा चकार विविधाः कथाः ॥ ४ ॥

Being honoured by great sages, he stayed happily there. Seated with Sītā in that hut thatched with leaves, the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma shone brightly like the moon accompanied with the constellation Citrā, and discussed various topics with his brother, Lakṣmaṇa. (3-4)

तदासीनस्य रामस्य कथासंसक्तचेतसः ।
तं देशं राक्षसी काचिदाजगाम यदृच्छया ॥ ५ ॥

While Śrī Rāma was seated there, his mind engrossed in talk, a certain ogress visited that region by chance. (5)

सा तु शूर्पणखा नाम दशग्रीवस्य रक्षसः ।
भगिनी राममासाद्य ददर्श त्रिदशोपमम् ॥ ६ ॥

Having arrived there, the aforesaid sister of the ogre Rāvaṇa, (who was endowed with ten heads), Śūrpaṇakhā (whose nails resembled a winnowing basket) beheld Śrī Rāma, who looked like a god. (6)

दीप्तास्यं च महाबाहुं पद्मपत्रायतेक्षणम् ।
गजविक्रान्तगमनं जटामण्डलधारिणम् ॥ ७ ॥
सुकुमारं महासत्त्वं पार्थिवव्यञ्जनान्वितम् ।
राममिन्दीवरश्यामं कन्दर्पसदृशप्रभम् ॥ ८ ॥
बभूवेन्द्रोपमं दृष्ट्वा राक्षसी काममोहिता ।
सुमुखं दुर्मुखी रामं वृत्तमध्यं महोदरी ॥ ९ ॥
विशालाक्षं विरूपाक्षी सुकेशं ताम्रमूर्धजा ।
प्रियरूपं विरूपा सा सुस्वरं भैरवस्वना ॥ १० ॥
तरुणं दारुणा वृद्धा दक्षिणं वामभाषिणी ।
न्यायवृत्तं सुदुर्वृत्ता प्रियमप्रियदर्शना ॥ ११ ॥
शरीरजसमाविष्टा राक्षसी राममब्रवीत् ।
जटी तापसवेषेण सभार्यः शरचापधृक् ॥ १२ ॥
आगतस्त्वमिमं देशं कथं राक्षससेवितम् ।
किमागमनकृत्यं ते तत्त्वमाख्यातुमर्हसि ॥ १३ ॥

Seeing Śrī Rāma with a radiant countenance, mighty arms, eyes large like the petals of a lotus, and a majestic gait like that of an elephant, wearing a rounded mass of matted hair, tender, yet possessed of extraordinary strength, endowed with the bodily marks of a monarch, cerulean like a blue lotus, having a splendour similar to that of Cupid and looking like Indra (the ruler of gods), the ogress got infatuated with love. Overcome with passion, the ogress, who had an ugly face, large belly, deformed eyes, coppery hair, was misshapen, had a frightful voice, was hard-hearted and aged, spoke adversely, was extremely vile of conduct and had a repelling aspect, spoke as follows to Śrī Rāma, who had a charming face, a slender waist, large eyes, beautiful locks, a pleasing aspect and a sweet voice, was youthful and candid, of right conduct and amiable : "Wearing matted locks and dressed in an ascetic garb, wielding a bow and arrows and accompanied with your wife, how have you come to this region frequented by ogres? What is the object of your visit? Be pleased to relate that." (7—13)

एवमुक्तस्तु राक्षस्या शूर्पणख्या परंतपः ।
ऋजुबुद्धितया सर्वमाख्यातुमुपचक्रमे ॥ १४ ॥

Thus spoken to by the ogress Śūrpaṇakhā, Śrī Rāma (the tormentor of foes) proceeded to narrate everything, possessed as he was of a guileless mind : (14)

आसीद् दशरथो नाम राजा त्रिदशविक्रमः ।
तस्याहमग्रजः पुत्रो रामो नाम जनैः श्रुतः ॥ १५ ॥

"There was a king named Daśaratha, possessing the prowess of gods. I am his eldest son, known among the people by the name of Rāma. (15)

भ्रातायं लक्ष्मणो नाम यवीयान् मामनुव्रतः ।
इयं भार्या च वैदेही मम सीतेति विश्रुता ॥ १६ ॥

"Here is my younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa by name, devoted to me, and here is my wife, the princess of Videha, known by the name of Sitā. (16)

नियोगात् तु नरेन्द्रस्य पितुर्मातुश्च यन्त्रितः ।
धर्मार्थं धर्मकांक्षी च वनं वस्तुमिहागतः ॥ १७ ॥

"Fettered by the command of my father, the king, and my mother (Kaikeyī), and seeking to discharge my sacred obligation to them and in order to practise virtue in the form of austerities, I have come to stay in this forest. (17)

त्वां तु वेदितुमिच्छामि कस्य त्वं कासि कस्य वा ।
त्वं हि तावन्मनोज्ञाङ्गी राक्षसी प्रतिभासि मे ॥ १८ ॥

"I, for my part, desire to know you. Whose daughter are you? What is your name and whose wife are you? Possessed as you are of charming limbs, you appear to me to be an ogress (capable of assuming any form at will) on the face of it. (18)

इह वा किंनिमित्तं त्वमागता ब्रूहि तत्त्वतः ।

साब्रवीद् वचनं श्रुत्वा राक्षसी मदनादिता ॥ १९ ॥

“Tell me truly what for you have come here.” Stricken with love to hear this, the ogress in question replied as follows : (19)

श्रूयतां राम तत्त्वार्थं वक्ष्यामि वचनं मम ।

अहं शूर्पणखा नाम राक्षसी कामरूपिणी ॥ २० ॥

“Hear my word, O Rāma ! I shall give out to you the real truth. I am an ogress, Śūrpaṇakhā by name, and capable of assuming any form at will. (20)

अरण्यं विचरामीदमेका सर्वभयंकरा ।

रावणो नाम मे भ्राता यदि ते श्रोत्रमागतः ॥ २१ ॥

“Causing fear to all, I haunt this forest alone. I have a brother, Rāvaṇa by name; I wonder if his name has ever reached your ears. (21)

वीरो विश्रवसः पुत्रो यदि ते श्रोत्रमागतः ।

प्रवृद्धनिद्रश्च सदा कुम्भकर्णो महाबलः ॥ २२ ॥

“He is a valiant son of Viśravā, if you have ever heard of him. The very mighty Kumbhakarna too, who is given to excessive sleep, is my brother. (22)

विभीषणस्तु धर्मात्मा न तु राक्षसचेष्टितः ।

प्रख्यातवीर्यो च रणे भ्रातरौ खरदूषणौ ॥ २३ ॥

“Vibhiṣaṇa, my third brother, for his part, is pious-minded; he has none of the activities of an ogre. Again, my other two brothers, Khara and Dūṣaṇa, are well-known for their valour on the battlefield. (23)

तानहं समतिक्रान्तां राम त्वापूर्वदर्शनात् ।

समुपेतास्मि भावेन भर्तारं पुरुषोत्तमम् ॥ २४ ॥

“I definitely surpass them all in point of valour, O Rāma ! Ever since I saw you for the first time, I have sought you, the foremost among men, as my husband in my mind. (24)

अहं प्रभावसम्पन्ना स्वच्छन्दबलगामिनी ।

चिराय भव भर्ता मे सीतया किं करिष्यसि ॥ २५ ॥

“I am richly endowed with power. I am able to range at will by dint of my strength. Therefore, be my husband for long. What can you hope to accomplish with Sitā as your partner? (25)

विकृता च विरूपा च न सेयं सदृशी तव ।

अहमेवानुरूपा ते भार्यारूपेण पश्य माम् ॥ २६ ॥

“Being deformed and ugly too, she is not worthy of you. I alone stand as a match for you. Look upon me as your wife. (26)

इमां विरूपामसतीं करालां निर्णतोदरीम् ।

अनेन सह ते भ्रात्रा भक्षयिष्यामि मानुषीम् ॥ २७ ॥

“Alongwith this brother of yours I shall devour this ugly, vile, hideous human lady with a sunken belly. (27)

ततः पर्वतशृङ्गाणि वनानि विविधानि च ।

पश्यन् सह मया कामी दण्डकान् विचरिष्यसि ॥ २८ ॥

“Then, beholding the peaks of mountains and forests of every description, you full of concupiscence will wander with me through the Daṇḍaka forest.” (28)

इत्येवमुक्तः काकुत्स्थः प्रहस्य मदिरेक्षणाम् ।

इदं वचनमारेभे वक्तुं वाक्यविशारदः ॥ २९ ॥

Spoken to in these words and laughing heartily, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha), who was an adept in expression, proceeded to reply as follows to that woman with love-intoxicated eyes : (29)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे सप्तदशः सर्गः ॥ १७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventeen in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टादशः सर्गः

Canto XVIII

Lakṣmaṇa lops the nose and ears of Śūrpaṇakhā

तां तु शूर्पणखां रामः कामपाशावपाशिताम् ।
स्वेच्छया श्लक्ष्णया वाचा स्मितपूर्वमथाब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

To the aforesaid Śūrpaṇakhā, bound by the cords of love, Śrī Rāma then spoke with a smile in sweet words as follows according to his own liking : (1)

कृतदारोऽस्मि भवति भार्येयं दयिता मम ।
त्वद्विधानां तु नारीणां सुदुःखा ससपत्नता ॥ २ ॥

“O lady, I am already married. Here is my beloved wife. For ladies like you the presence of a co-wife is most painful. (2)

अनुजस्त्वेष मे भ्राता शीलवान् प्रियदर्शनः ।
श्रीमानकृतदारश्च लक्ष्मणो नाम वीरवान् ॥ ३ ॥

“Of course, here is my younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa by name, of good conduct, lovely to look at, glorious and brave and has not got a wife with him. (3)

अपूर्वी भार्यया चार्थी तरुणः प्रियदर्शनः ।
अनुरूपश्च ते भर्ता रूपस्यास्य भविष्यति ॥ ४ ॥

“He is possessed of unique qualities, young and pleasing of aspect, and will prove to be a husband worthy of this comely form of yours if he seeks to obtain a wife. (4)

एनं भज विशालाक्षि भर्तारं भ्रातरं मम ।
असपत्ना वरारोहे मेरुमर्कप्रभा यथा ॥ ५ ॥

“Accept this brother of mine as your husband, O large eyed and charming lady, without a rival even as sunlight woos Mount Meru.” (5)

इति रामेण सा प्रोक्ता राक्षसी काममोहिता ।
विसृज्य रामं सहसा ततो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ॥ ६ ॥

Leaving Rāma, when spoken to in these words by Śrī Rāma, the aforesaid ogress, infatuated as she was through love, suddenly spoke to Lakṣmaṇa as follows : (6)

अस्य रूपस्य ते युक्ता भार्याहं वरवर्णिनी ।
मया सह सुखं सर्वान् दण्डकान् विचरिष्यसि ॥ ७ ॥

“Possessing as I do an excellent complexion, I shall be a wife worthy of this comely form of yours. You will happily wander through the entire range of the Daṇḍaka forest with me.” (7)

एवमुक्तस्तु सौमित्रि राक्षस्या वाक्यकोविदः ।
ततः शूर्पणखीं स्मित्वा लक्ष्मणो युक्तमब्रवीत् ॥ ८ ॥

Spoken to in these words by the ogress, Lakṣmaṇa, the son of Sumitrā, who was an adept in expression, smilingly made the following just reply to Śūrpaṇakhā : (8)

कथं दासस्य मे दासी भार्या भवितुमिच्छसि ।
सोऽहमार्येण परवान् भ्रात्रा कमलवर्णिनि ॥ ९ ॥

“How do you seek to turn a maid-servant by becoming a wife to me, a slave, possessing as you do the hue of a red lotus? I am only dependent on my worthy brother. (9)

समृद्धार्थस्य सिद्धार्था मुदितामलवर्णिनी ।
आर्यस्य त्वं विशालाक्षि भार्या भव यवीयसी ॥ १० ॥

“Become you, O large-eyed lady, a happy younger wife of spotless complexion of my elder brother, who is fully endowed with all riches, and be accomplished of purpose thereby. (10)

एतां विरूपामसतीं करालां निर्णतोदरीम् ।
भार्या वृद्धां परित्यज्य त्वामेवैष भजिष्यति ॥ ११ ॥

“Giving up for good this deformed, vile, hideous and aged wife with a sunken belly, he will accept you alone. (11)

को हि रूपमिदं श्रेष्ठं संत्यज्य वरवर्णिनि ।
मानुषीषु वरारोहे कुर्याद् भावं विचक्षणः ॥ १२ ॥

“Abandoning this excellent form of yours, what wise man indeed would fasten his love on human ladies, O charming lady with an excellent complexion?" (12)

इति सा लक्ष्मणेनोक्ता कराला निर्णतोदरी।

मन्यते तद्वचः सत्यं परिहासाविचक्षणा ॥ १३ ॥

Spoken to in these words by Lakṣmaṇa, that hideous woman with a prominent belly, who was too naive to catch the jest, took his words to be true. (13)

सा रामं पर्णशालायामुपविष्टं परंतपम्।

सीतया सह दुर्धर्ममब्रवीत् काममोहिता ॥ १४ ॥

Infatuated through love, she spoke once more to Rāma, the tormentor of his foes, who was hard to overpower, and was sitting in the hut thatched with leaves in the company of Sītā: (14)

इमां विरूपामसतीं करालां निर्णतोदरीम्।

वृद्धां भार्यामवष्टभ्य न मां त्वं बहु मन्यसे ॥ १५ ॥

"Clinging to this old, deformed, vile, hideous and aged wife with a sunken belly, you do not make much of me. (15)

अद्येमां भक्षयिष्यामि पश्यतस्तव मानुषीम्।

त्वया सह चरिष्यामि निःसपत्ना यथासुखम् ॥ १६ ॥

"Today I shall devour this human lady even while you are looking on. Having been rid of a rival, I shall roam with you at ease." (16)

इत्युक्त्वा मृगशावाक्षीमलातसदृशेक्षणा।

अभ्यगच्छत् सुसंकुद्धा महोल्का रोहिणीमिव ॥ १७ ॥

Saying so, the woman, whose eyes shone like live embers, highly enraged as she was, rushed upon the fawn-eyed Sītā, even as a large meteor would descend on the constellation known by the name of Rohiṇī. (17)

तां मृत्युपाशप्रतिमामापतन्तीं महाबलः।

विगृह्य रामः कुपितस्ततो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ॥ १८ ॥

Checking by his very menacing sound the woman, who was rushing towards Sītā like the noose of Death, Śrī Rāma, who was possessed of extraordinary might, now angrily said to Lakṣmaṇa : (18)

क्रूरैरनार्यैः सौमित्रे परिहासः कथंचन।

न कार्यः पश्य वैदेहीं कथंचित् सौम्य जीवतीम् ॥ १९ ॥

"You should in no case jest, O son of Sumitrā, with cruel and unworthy people. See the princess of Videha surviving with great difficulty (having narrowly escaped being devoured by the ogress), O gentle brother ! (19)

इमां विरूपामसतीमतिमत्तां महोदरीम्।

राक्षसीं पुरुषव्याघ्र विरूपयितुमर्हसि ॥ २० ॥

"You ought to mutilate, O tiger among men, this ugly, vile, highly wanton and big-bellied woman." (20)

इत्युक्तो लक्ष्मणस्तस्याः क्रुद्धो रामस्य पश्यतः।

उद्धृत्य खड्गं चिच्छेद कर्णनासे महाबलः ॥ २१ ॥

Drawing his sword, when spoken to in these words, the angry Lakṣmaṇa, who was possessed of great might, lopped off her ears and nose while Śrī Rāma looked on. (21)

निकृत्तकर्णनासा तु विस्वरं सा विनद्य च।

यथागतं प्रदुद्राव घोरा शूर्पणखा वनम् ॥ २२ ॥

With her ears and nose severed, that fierce Śūrpaṇakhā for her part ran away into the forest, as she had come, yelling dissonantly. (22)

सा विरूपा महाघोरा राक्षसी शोणितोक्षिता।

ननाद विविधान् नादान् यथा प्रावृषि तोयदः ॥ २३ ॥

Bathed in blood, that ugly and extraordinarily fierce ogress roared in various ways like a cloud in the monsoon. (23)

सा विक्षरन्ती रुधिरं बहुधा घोरदर्शना।

प्रगृह्य बाहू गर्जन्ती प्रविवेश महावनम् ॥ २४ ॥

Dropping profusely blood on the way, raising her arms and roaring in various ways, that woman of fierce looks entered the heart of the great forest. (24)

ततस्तु सा राक्षससङ्घसंवृतं

खरं जनस्थानगतं विरूपिता।

उपेत्य तं भ्रातरमुग्रतेजसं

पपात भूमौ गगनाद् यथाशनिः ॥ २५ ॥

Then, approaching her notorious brother, Khara of terrific energy, who lived in Janasthāna, surrounded by a multitude of ogres, that mutilated woman then dropped down on the ground like a bolt from the blue. (25)

ततः सभार्यं भयमोहमूर्च्छिता

सलक्ष्मणं राघवमागतं वनम्।

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डेऽष्टादशः सर्गः ॥ १८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighteen in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनविंशः सर्गः

Canto XIX

Khara sends fourteen ogres with her for despatching Rāma

तां तथा पतितां दृष्ट्वा विरूपां शोणितोक्षिताम्।
भगिनीं क्रोधसंतप्तः खरः पप्रच्छ राक्षसः ॥ १ ॥

Inflamed with anger to see his aforesaid sister fallen as she had done, mutilated and drenched in blood, the ogre Khara said : (1)

उत्तिष्ठ तावदाख्याहि प्रमोहं जहि सम्भ्रमम्।
व्यक्तमाख्याहि केन त्वमेवंरूपा विरूपिता ॥ २ ॥

“Get up, shake off your unconsciousness and fear and point out explicitly by whom you have been mutilated in this way. (2)

कः कृष्णसर्पमासीनमाशीविषमनागसम्।
तुदत्यभिसमापन्नमङ्गुल्यग्रेण लीलया ॥ ३ ॥

“Who has hit in sport with the tip of his finger a poisonous black serpent arrived in front and sitting harmlessly: (3)

कालपाशं समासज्य कण्ठे मोहान्न बुध्यते।
यस्त्वामद्य समासाद्य पीतवान् विषमुत्तमम् ॥ ४ ॥

“He who having assailed you has drunk up a most effective poison (in the form of mutilating you) is not conscious of his having fastened the noose of Death round his neck. (4)

विरूपणं चात्मनि शोणितोक्षिता

शशंस सर्वं भगिनी खरस्य सा ॥ २६ ॥

Overcome with a swoon through fear and drenched in blood, that sister of Khara then told him everything about Rāghava having arrived in the forest with his wife and Lakṣmaṇa and of her own mutilation. (26)

बलविक्रमसम्पन्ना कामगा कामरूपिणी।
इमामवस्थां नीता त्वं केनान्तकसमागता ॥ ५ ॥

“By whom were you approached and reduced to this state—you, who are richly endowed with strength and prowess, nay, moving at will, are capable of assuming any form you like and are a compeer of Death? (5)

देवगन्धर्वभूतानामृषीणां च महात्मनाम्।
कोऽयमेवं महावीर्यस्त्वां विरूपां चकार ह ॥ ६ ॥

“Possessed of extraordinary prowess among gods, Gandharvas (celestial musicians) and high-souled seers of Vedic Mantras, who is it that has actually mutilated you thus? (6)

नहि पश्याम्यहं लोके यः कुर्यान्मम विप्रियम्।
अमरेषु सहस्राक्षं महेन्द्रं पाकशासनम् ॥ ७ ॥

“Really I do not perceive in the world anyone who dare give offence to me—not even the mighty Indra, the thousand-eyed tamer of the demon Pāka. (7)

अद्याहं मार्गणैः प्राणानादास्ये जीवितान्तगैः।
सलिले क्षीरमासक्तं निष्पिबन्निव सारसः ॥ ८ ॥

“Today I shall take the offender’s life with my deadly arrows, even as a swan drains off the milk mixed up in water, while heartily drinking it. (8)

निहतस्य मया संख्ये शरसंकृत्तमर्मणः ।
सफेनं रुधिरं कस्य मेदिनी पातुमिच्छति ॥ १॥

“Whose foaming blood does the earth seek to suck when he has been slain by me on the battlefield, his vital parts having been cut through with my arrows? (9)

कस्य पत्ररथाः कायान्मांसमुत्कृत्य संगताः ।
प्रहृष्टा भक्षयिष्यन्ति निहतस्य मया रणे ॥ १० ॥

“Whose flesh will the birds, come together, most delightedly swallow tearing it off from his body when he has been killed by me on the battlefield? (10)

तं न देवा न गन्धर्वा न पिशाचा न राक्षसाः ।
मयापकृष्टं कृपणं शक्तास्त्रातुं महाहवे ॥ ११ ॥

“Neither gods nor Gandharvas, nor fiends nor ogres shall be able to save the wretch dragged by me on the battlefield. (11)

उपलभ्य शनैः संज्ञां तं मे शंसितुमर्हसि ।
येन त्वं दुर्विनीतेन वने विक्रम्य निर्जिता ॥ १२ ॥

“Gradually recovering consciousness, please tell me the name of the unruly fellow by whom you were assailed and subdued in the forest.” (12)

इति भ्रातुर्वचः श्रुत्वा क्रुद्धस्य च विशेषतः ।
ततः शूर्पणखा वाक्यं सबाष्पमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ १३ ॥

Hearing these words of her brother, Khara, especially when he was seized with fury, Śūrpaṇakhā now made the following reply with tears in her eyes : (13)

तरुणौ रूपसम्पन्नौ सुकुमारौ महाबलौ ।
पुण्डरीकविशालाक्षौ चीरकृष्णाजिनाम्बरौ ॥ १४ ॥
फलमूलाशनौ दान्तौ तापसौ ब्रह्मचारिणौ ।
पुत्रौ दशरथस्यास्तां भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ १५ ॥

“Young and richly endowed with comeliness, tender yet possessed of extraordinary might, having large lotus-like eyes and clad in the bark of trees and black antelope skin, living on fruits and roots, self-controlled, practising austerities and continence, there are two brothers, Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, sons of Daśaratha. (14-15)

गन्धर्वराजप्रतिमौ पार्थिवव्यञ्जनान्वितौ ।
देवौ वा दानवावेतौ न तर्कयितुमुत्सहे ॥ १६ ॥

“They look like the king of Gandharvas and are endowed with the bodily marks of kings. I am unable to guess whether they are gods or demons. (16)

तरुणी रूपसम्पन्ना सर्वाभरणभूषिता ।
दृष्टा तत्र मया नारी तयोर्मध्ये सुमध्यमा ॥ १७ ॥

“In their midst was seen by me there a young lady with a slender waist, richly endowed with bodily charm and adorned with all kinds of ornaments. (17)

ताभ्यामुभाभ्यां सम्भूय प्रमदामधिकृत्य ताम् ।
इमामवस्थां नीताहं यथानाथासती तथा ॥ १८ ॥

“I was reduced to this plight by both the aforesaid brothers together on account of that young lady, in the same way as an unprotected and vile woman would be. (18)

तस्याश्चानृजुवृत्तायास्तयोश्च हतयोरहम् ।
सफेनं पातुमिच्छामि रुधिरं रणमूर्धनि ॥ १९ ॥

“I long to drink the foaming blood of that woman of crooked ways as well as of those two brothers, killed in the van of a combat. (19)

एष मे प्रथमः कामः कृतस्तत्र त्वया भवेत् ।
तस्यास्तयोश्च रुधिरं पिबेयमहमाहवे ॥ २० ॥

“This foremost desire of mine may be accomplished by you there, viz., that I may drink on the battlefield the blood of that lady as well as of those two brothers.” (20)

इति तस्यां ब्रुवाणायां चतुर्दश महाबलान् ।
व्यादिदेश खरः क्रुद्धो राक्षसानन्तकोपमान् ॥ २१ ॥

Even while she was speaking thus, the infuriated Khara commanded (as follows) fourteen ogres, who were possessed of extraordinary might and resembled Death : (21)

मानुषौ शस्त्रसम्पन्नौ चीरकृष्णाजिनाम्बरौ ।
प्रविष्टौ दण्डकारण्यं घोरं प्रमदया सह ॥ २२ ॥

“Two human beings, fully equipped with arms, clad in bark and black antelope skin, and accompanied by a young woman, have entered the frightful Daṇḍaka forest. (22)

तौ हत्वा तां च दुर्वृत्तामुपावर्तितुमर्हथ ।
इयं च भगिनी तेषां रुधिरं मम पास्यति ॥ २३ ॥

“Having made short work of the two brothers, you should also kill that vile woman.
This sister of mine will drink their blood. (23)

मनोरथोऽयमिष्टोऽस्या भगिन्या मम राक्षसाः ।
शीघ्रं सम्पाद्यतां गत्वा तौ प्रमथ्य स्वतेजसा ॥ २४ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे एकोनविंशः सर्गः ॥ १९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Nineteen in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

विंशः सर्गः

Canto XX

Rāma kills the fourteen ogres

ततः शूर्पणखा घोरा राघवाश्रममागता ।
राक्षसानाचचक्षे तौ भ्रातरौ सह सीतया ॥ १ ॥

Having reached the hermitage of Rāghava, the dreadful Śūrpaṇakhā then pointed out to the ogres the two brothers with Sitā. (1)

ते रामं पर्णशालायामुपविष्टं महाबलम् ।
ददृशुः सीतया सार्धं लक्ष्मणेनापि सेवितम् ॥ २ ॥

They saw the exceptionally mighty Śrī Rāma seated with Sitā in his hut thatched with leaves and waited upon by Lakṣmaṇa. (2)

तां दृष्ट्वा राघवः श्रीमानागतांस्तांश्च राक्षसान् ।
अब्रवीद् भ्रातरं रामो लक्ष्मणं दीप्ततेजसम् ॥ ३ ॥

Seeing her as well as those ogres come, the glorious Rāma, a scion of Raghu,

“Proceeding quickly and killing those two brothers with your own might, accomplish this cherished longing of this sister of mine,
O ogres ! (24)

युष्माभिर्निहतौ दृष्ट्वा तावुभौ भ्रातरौ रणे ।
इयं प्रहृष्टा मुदिता रुधिरं युधि पास्यति ॥ २५ ॥

“Highly delighted to see those two brothers killed on the battlefield by you, this lady will drink their blood on the battlefield with joy.” (25)

इति प्रतिसमादिष्टा राक्षसास्ते चतुर्दश ।
तत्र जग्मुस्तया सार्धं घना वातेरिता इव ॥ २६ ॥

Commanded in these words by Khara, those fourteen ogres went there with her like clouds driven by a blast. (26) said to his brother, Lakṣmaṇa of resplendent

lustre: (3)

मुहूर्तं भव सौमित्रे सीतायाः प्रत्यनन्तरः ।
इमानस्या वधिष्यामि पदवीमागतानिह ॥ ४ ॥

“Remain, O son of Sumitrā, by the side of Sitā for a while. I shall make short work of these ogres, who have come here to back the ogress.” (4)

वाक्यमेतत् ततः श्रुत्वा रामस्य विदितात्मनः ।
तथेति लक्ष्मणो वाक्यं राघवस्य प्रपूजयन् ॥ ५ ॥

Hearing these words of Rāma, the knower of his own Self, and bowing his head to the utterance of Rāghava, Lakṣmaṇa said ‘Amen !’ (5)

राघवोऽपि महच्चापं चामीकरविभूषितम् ।
चकार सज्यं धर्मात्मा तानि रक्षांसि चाब्रवीत् ॥ ६ ॥

The pious-minded Rāghava too strung his mighty bow ornamented with gold and said to those ogres :

(6)

पुत्रौ दशरथस्यावां भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ।
प्रविष्टौ सीतया सार्धं दुश्चरं दण्डकावनम् ॥ ७ ॥

“We two brothers, Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, sons of Daśaratha, have entered with Sītā the forest of Daṇḍaka, which is difficult to pass through.

(7)

फलमूलाशनौ दान्तौ तापसौ ब्रह्मचारिणौ ।
वसन्तौ दण्डकारण्ये किमर्थमुपहिंसथ ॥ ८ ॥

“Why do you seek to injure us, who subsist on fruits and roots, are self-disciplined, practise austerities and continence and are living in the Daṇḍaka forest?

(8)

युष्मान् पापात्मकान् हन्तुं विप्रकारान् महाहवे ।
ऋषीणां तु नियोगेन सम्प्राप्तः सशरासनः ॥ ९ ॥

“Armed with a bow, I for my part have duly come here at the behest of sages to kill in a major conflict you, whose mind is given to sin and who have offended against the sages.

(9)

तिष्ठतैवात्र संतुष्टा नोपवर्तितुमर्हथ ।
यदि प्राणैरिहार्थो वो निवर्तध्वं निशाचराः ॥ १० ॥

“Halt where you stand, if you love war and you should not run away. If, however, you love your life, go back, O night-stalkers !”

(10)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा राक्षसास्ते चतुर्दश ।
ऊचुर्वाचं सुसंकुद्धा ब्रह्मघ्नाः शूलपाणयः ॥ ११ ॥
संरक्तनयना घोरा रामं संरक्तलोचनम् ।
परुषा मधुराभाषं हृष्टा दृष्टपराक्रमम् ॥ १२ ॥

Highly enraged and delighted (at the same time) to hear the aforesaid challenge of Śrī Rāma, those fourteen dreadful ogres, the slayers of Brāhmaṇas, who were armed with lances and had bloodshot eyes, spoke harshly as follows to Rāma, who had naturally deep red eyes, who always spoke sweet words and whose prowess had been seen by them :

(11-12)

क्रोधमुत्पाद्य नो भर्तुः खरस्य सुमहात्मनः ।
त्वमेव हास्यसे प्राणान् सद्योऽस्माभिर्हतो युधि ॥ १३ ॥

“Having provoked the anger of our extremely high-souled master, Khara, you will surely give up your ghost in no time, when struck by us on the battlefield. (13)

का हि ते शक्तिरेकस्य बहूनां रणमूर्धनि ।
अस्माकमग्रतः स्थातुं किं पुनर्योद्धुमाहवे ॥ १४ ॥

“Indeed what power have you to stand single-handed in front of us, who are so many, in the van of a fight, much less to give fight in a battle?

(14)

एभिर्बाहुप्रयुक्तैश्च परिधैः शूलपट्टिशैः ।
प्राणांस्त्यक्ष्यसि वीर्यं च धनुश्च करपीडितम् ॥ १५ ॥

“Under the pressure of these iron clubs, darts and Pattiśas (a kind of sharp-edged sword) hurled by our arms, you will give up the ghost, your valour too as well as the bow pressed in your hands.”

(15)

इत्येवमुक्त्वा संरब्धा राक्षसास्ते चतुर्दश ।
उद्यतायुधनिस्त्रिंशः राममेवाभिदुद्रुवुः ॥ १६ ॥

Saying so, those fourteen ogres ran in their zeal towards Rāma alone, their weapons, including swords, uplifted.

(16)

चिक्षिपुस्तानि शूलानि राघवं प्रति दुर्जयम् ।
तानि शूलानि काकुत्स्थः समस्तानि चतुर्दश ॥ १७ ॥
तावद्भिरिव चिच्छेद शरैः काञ्चनभूषितैः ।
ततः पश्चान्महातेजा नाराचान् सूर्यसंनिभान् ॥ १८ ॥

जग्राह परमकुद्धश्चतुर्दश शिलाशितान् ।
गृहीत्वा धनुरायम्य लक्ष्यानुद्दिश्य राक्षसान् ॥ १९ ॥
मुमोच राघवो बाणान् वज्रानिव शतक्रतुः ।
ते भित्त्वा रक्षसां वेगाद् वक्षांसि रुधिरप्लुताः ॥ २० ॥

विनिष्पेतुस्तदा भूमौ वल्मीकादिव पन्नगाः ।
तैर्भग्नहृदया भूमौ छिन्नमूला इव द्रुमाः ॥ २१ ॥
निपेतुः शोणितस्नाता विकृता विगतासवः ।
तान् भूमौ पतितान् दृष्ट्वा राक्षसी क्रोधमूर्छिता ॥ २२ ॥
उपगम्य खरं सा तु किञ्चित्संशुष्कशोणिता ।
पपात पुनरेवार्ता सनिर्यासेव वल्लरी ॥ २३ ॥

They threw those darts at Rāghava, who was difficult to conquer. Kākutstha cut them down like trees felled by lightning, and they fell like dead trees on the ground. Rākṣasī, who was exhausted by the fight, saw the news and wept like a string of beads.

They threw those darts at Rāghava, who was difficult to conquer. Kākutstha cut them down like trees felled by lightning, and they fell like dead trees on the ground.

down all those fourteen darts with as many arrows decked with gold. Possessed of tremendous energy and highly enraged, Śrī Rāma after that took out fourteen pointless arrows sharpened on a stone and shining brightly as the sun and, stretching his bow, discharged the arrows aiming them at the ogres as the target, as Indra would hurl thunderbolts. Having pierced the chests of the ogres and being soaked in blood, they then dashed against the ground like serpents rushing out of an ant-hill. With their hearts rent by them, and bathed in blood, the ogres fell down on the ground, maimed and dead, like uprooted trees. Blinded with rage to see them fallen on the ground and approaching Khara, that ogress, for her part, the blood on her person having now somewhat dried up, once again fell agonized like a climber with resin sticking to it. (17—23)

भ्रातुः समीपे शोकार्ता ससर्ज निनदं महत् ।
सस्वरं मुमुचे बाष्पं विवर्णवदना तदा ॥ २४ ॥
निपातितान् प्रेक्ष्य रणे तु राक्षसान्

प्रधाविता शूर्पणखा पुनस्ततः ।

वधं च तेषां निखिलेन रक्षसां

शशंस सर्व भगिनी खरस्य सा ॥ २५ ॥

Palefaced and stricken with grief, she raised a great alarm in the presence of her brother and shed tears accompanied with sobs. On seeing the ogres killed in battle, Śūrpaṇakhā for her part darted once more from that place and the said sister of Khara reported to him the wholesale destruction of all those ogres and everything connected with it. (24-25)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे विंशः सर्गः ॥ २० ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXI

Śūrpaṇakhā again goes to Khara

स पुनः पतितां दृष्ट्वा क्रोधाच्छूर्पणखां पुनः ।
उवाच व्यक्तया वाचा तामनर्थार्थमागताम् ॥ १ ॥

Seeing Śūrpaṇakhā, who had come to bring disaster to her brothers' family in her wake, fallen again, Khara spoke to her once more in anger in the following clear words :

(1)

मया त्विदानीं शूरास्ते राक्षसाः पिशिताशनाः ।
त्वत्प्रियार्थं विनिर्दिष्टाः किमर्थं रुद्यते पुनः ॥ २ ॥

"Those brave flesh-eating ogres have just now been despatched by me to oblige you. Why are you crying again? (2)

भक्ताश्चैवानुरक्ताश्च हिताश्च मम नित्यशः ।
हन्यमाना न हन्यन्ते न न कुर्युर्वचो मम ॥ ३ ॥

"They are devoted to me, attached to me and are ever friendly to me. They cannot be killed even though being attacked; nor is it possible that they will fail to do my bidding. (3)

किमेतच्छ्रोतुमिच्छामि कारणं यत्कृते पुनः ।
हा नाथेति विनर्दन्ती सर्पवच्चेष्टसे क्षितौ ॥ ४ ॥

"What is the reason on account of which you are tossing about on the ground like a serpent again, crying 'O lord !' I wish to hear this. (4)

अनाथवद् विलपसि किं नु नाथे मयि स्थिते ।
उत्तिष्ठोत्तिष्ठ मा मैवं वैक्लव्यं त्यज्यतामिति ॥ ५ ॥

"With me standing as your protector, why on earth should you wail like a forlorn creature? Get up. Rise. Don't, don't behave like this. Cease to be unnerved." (5)

इत्येवमुक्ता दुर्धर्षा खरेण परिसान्त्विता।
विमृज्य नयने सास्त्रे खरं भ्रातरमब्रवीत् ॥ ६ ॥

Feeling comforted in everyway when spoken to in these words by Khara, and rubbing her tearful eyes, the ogress (who was hard to placate) replied as follows to her brother Khara : (6)

अस्मीदानीमहं प्राप्ता हतश्रवणनासिका।
शोणितौघपरिक्लिन्ना त्वया च परिसान्त्विता ॥ ७ ॥

"I called on you a little while ago with my ears and nose lopped off, drenched in a stream of blood, and was fully consoled by you. (7)

प्रेषिताश्च त्वया शूरा राक्षसास्ते चतुर्दश।
निहन्तुं राघवं घोरं मत्प्रियार्थं सलक्ष्मणम् ॥ ८ ॥

"Nay, in order to make short work of the terrible Rāma, a scion of Raghu, with Lakṣmaṇa, his younger brother, and thereby to please me, those fourteen valiant ogres were despatched by you. (8)

ते तु रामेण सामर्षाः शूलपट्टिशपाणयः।
समरे निहताः सर्वे सायकैर्मर्मभेदिभिः ॥ ९ ॥

"Though full of indignation and armed with darts and Paṭṭiśas, they were all, however, killed in battle by Rāma with arrows piercing the vital parts. (9)

तान् भूमौ पतितान् दृष्ट्वा क्षणेनैव महाजवान्।
रामस्य च महत्कर्म महांस्त्रासोऽभवन्मम ॥ १० ॥

"Ever since I saw those ogres of great impetuosity fallen in an instant and witnessing the extraordinary exploit of Rāma, a great fear has seized me. (10)

सास्मि भीता समुद्विग्ना विषण्णा च निशाचर।
शरणं त्वां पुनः प्राप्ता सर्वतो भयदर्शिनी ॥ ११ ॥

"Dismayed, highly perturbed and dejected, and seeing fear on all sides, O night-stalker, I have sought you as my protector once more. (11)

विषादनक्राध्युषिते परित्रासोर्मिमालिनि।
किं मां न त्रायसे मग्नां विपुले शोकसागरे ॥ १२ ॥

"Why do you not rescue me, drowned as I am in a vast ocean of grief, infested with the crocodile of dejection and rough with billows of terror? (12)

एते च निहता भूमौ रामेण निशितैः शरैः।
ये च मे पदवीं प्राप्ता राक्षसाः पिशिताशनाः ॥ १३ ॥

"And those flesh-eating ogres who followed me are lying on the ground, killed by Rāma with exceptionally sharp arrows. (13)

मयि ते यद्यनुक्रोशो यदि रक्षःसु तेषु च।
रामेण यदि शक्तिस्ते तेजो वास्ति निशाचर ॥ १४ ॥
दण्डकारण्यनिलयं जहि राक्षसकण्टकम्।
यदि रामममित्रघ्नं न त्वमद्य वधिष्यसि ॥ १५ ॥
तव चैवाग्रतः प्राणांस्त्यक्ष्यामि निरपत्रपा।

बुद्ध्याहमनुपश्यामि न त्वं रामस्य संयुगे ॥ १६ ॥
स्थातुं प्रतिमुखे शक्तः सबलोऽपि महारणे।
शूरमानी न शूरस्त्वं मिथ्यारोपितविक्रमः ॥ १७ ॥

"If you have compassion for me and if you have mercy for those ogres, nay, if you have power or prowess to contend with Rāma, O prowler of the night, make short work of that thorn in the side of the ogres, who has taken up his abode in the Daṇḍaka forest. If, however, you do not kill Rāma, the slayer of his foes, today, I shall give up the ghost, already divested as I am of my honour (in the shape of my mutilated nose and ears). I can vividly see with the eye of my intuition that, even though followed by your army on the battlefield, you cannot stand in front of Rāma in a major combat. Even though you account yourself to be brave, you are not really valiant; you have falsely assumed that you are brave. (14—17)

अपयाहि जनस्थानात् त्वरितः सहबान्धवः।
जहि त्वं समरे मूढान्यथा तु कुलपांसन ॥ १८ ॥
मानुषौ तौ न शक्नोषि हन्तुं वै रामलक्ष्मणौ।
निःसत्त्वस्याल्पवीर्यस्य वासस्ते कीदृशस्त्वह ॥ १९ ॥

“Kill the two princes in a combat, or get away quickly with your kinsmen from Janasthāna, O fool ! If, on the other hand, O disgrace of your race, you cannot really dispose of those two human beings, Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, how shameful indeed is your residence in this forest, lacking in strength and scanty of valour, as you are!
(18-19)

रामतेजोऽभिभूतो हि त्वं क्षिप्रं विनशिष्यसि ।
स हि तेजःसमायुक्तो रामो दशरथात्मजः ॥ २० ॥
भ्राता चास्य महावीर्यो येन चास्मि विरूपिता ।
एवं विलप्य बहुशो राक्षसी प्रदरोदरी ॥ २१ ॥

भ्रातुः समीपे शोकार्ता नष्टसंज्ञा बभूव ह ।
कराभ्यामुदरं हत्वा रुरोद भृशदुःखिता ॥ २२ ॥

“Humbled by his energy, you will surely perish in no time. Richly endowed with energy is the aforesaid Rāma, son of Daśaratha, as also his brother, possessed of extraordinary prowess, by whom I stand mutilated.” Wailing in many ways as above, the ogress of sunken belly fell unconscious beside her brother, stricken with grief, so the tradition goes; and, beating her belly with her hands, highly afflicted as she was, burst into tears.
(20—22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे एकविंशः सर्गः ॥ २१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-one in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वाविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXII

Khara and Dūṣaṇa march towards Pañcavaṭī with an army of fourteen thousand ogres

एवमाधर्षितः शूरः शूर्पणख्या खरस्ततः ।
उवाच रक्षसां मध्ये खरः खरतरं वचः ॥ १ ॥

Thus reproached by Śūrpaṇakhā, the valiant and cruel Khara then uttered the following very sharp words in the midst of other ogres:
(1)

तवापमानप्रभवः क्रोधोऽयमतुलो मम ।
न शक्यते धारयितुं लवणाम्भ इवोल्बणम् ॥ २ ॥

“This immeasurable anger of mine, arising from your insult, cannot be held in check like a powerful wave of the ocean. (2)

न रामं गणये वीर्यान्मानुषं क्षीणजीवितम् ।
आत्मदुश्चरितैः प्राणान् हतो योऽद्य विमोक्ष्यते ॥ ३ ॥

“By virtue of my prowess I hold of no account the human Rāma, whose life is already worn away and who will be deprived of his life today, being killed by his own misdeeds.

(3)

बाष्पः संधार्यतामेष सम्भ्रमश्च विमुच्यताम् ।
अहं रामं सह भ्रात्रा नयामि यमसादनम् ॥ ४ ॥

“Restrain these tears and completely shed your fear. I am despatching Rāma with his brother to the abode of Yama. (4)

परश्वधहतस्याद्य मन्दप्राणस्य भूतले ।
रामस्य रुधिरं रक्तमुष्णं पास्यसि राक्षसि ॥ ५ ॥

“O ogress, you will drink today the red and hot blood of Rāma fallen on the ground, struck dead with my axe.”
(5)

सम्प्रहृष्टा वचः श्रुत्वा खरस्य वदनाच्च्युतम् ।
प्रशशंस पुनर्मौख्याद् भ्रातरं रक्षसां वरम् ॥ ६ ॥

Extremely delighted to hear the words fallen from the lips of Khara, she once again extolled in her folly her brother, a giant among ogres.
(6)

तया परुषितः पूर्वं पुनरेव प्रशंसितः ।
अब्रवीद् दूषणं नाम खरः सेनापतिं तदा ॥ ७ ॥

Snubbed in the first instance and then definitely praised by her, Khara now commanded his general, Dūṣaṇa by name in the following words : (7)

चतुर्दश सहस्राणि मम चित्तानुवर्तिनाम् ।
रक्षसां भीमवेगानां समरेष्वनिवर्तिनाम् ॥ ८ ॥
नीलजीमूतवर्णानां लोकहिंसाविहारिणाम् ।
सर्वोद्योगमुदीर्णानां रक्षसां सौम्य कारय ॥ ९ ॥

“O gentle one, get all the fourteen thousand ogres who follow my mind, who are possessed of terrible impetuosity, who never retreat from the fields of battle, who possess the hue of dark blue clouds, who divert themselves by indulging in carnage and are full of martial zeal, to exert in every way for war. (8-9)

उपस्थापय मे क्षिप्रं रथं सौम्य धनूषि च ।
शरांश्च चित्रान् खड्गांश्च शक्तीश्च विविधाः शिताः ॥ १० ॥

“Place before me quickly my chariot and bows, as well as my arrows, swords of diverse kinds and various sharp javelins, O gentle one ! (10)

अग्रे निर्यातुमिच्छामि पौलस्त्यानां महात्मनाम् ।
वधार्थं दुर्विनीतस्य रामस्य रणकोविद ॥ ११ ॥

“I wish to march at the head of the high-souled Paulastyas (ogres claiming their descent from Sage Pulastya) for the destruction of the haughty Rāma, O brother skilled in warfare !” (11)

इति तस्य ब्रुवाणस्य सूर्यवर्णं महारथम् ।
सदृशैः शबलैर्युक्तमाचचक्षेऽथ दूषणः ॥ १२ ॥

“Even while he was speaking as aforesaid, Dūṣaṇa presently announced to Khara the arrival of a huge chariot shining like the sun and drawn by excellent spotted horses. (12)

तं मेरुशिखराकारं तप्तकाञ्चनभूषणम् ।
हेमचक्रमसम्बाधं वैदूर्यमयकूबरम् ॥ १३ ॥

मत्स्यैः पुष्पैर्दुर्मैः शैलैश्चन्द्रसूर्यैश्च काञ्चनैः ।
माङ्गल्यैः पक्षिसङ्घैश्च ताराभिश्च समावृतम् ॥ १४ ॥
ध्वजनिस्त्रिशसम्पन्नं किंकिणीवरभूषितम् ।
सदश्वयुक्तं सोऽमर्षादारुहो खरस्तदा ॥ १५ ॥

The celebrated Khara then indignantly ascended the aforesaid spacious chariot resembling a peak of Mount Meru, decked with refined gold, furnished with golden wheels and a pole of cat's-eye jewels, and encompassed with decorative golden figures of alligators, flowers, trees, mountains, moons and suns, flocks of birds and stars, furnished with ensigns and swords etc., decorated with excellent small bells and drawn by high breed horses. (13—15)

खरस्तु तन्महत्सैन्यं रथचर्मायुधध्वजम् ।
निर्यातेत्यब्रवीत् प्रेक्ष्य दूषणः सर्वराक्षसान् ॥ १६ ॥

Keenly observing that mighty army equipped with chariots, shields, weapons and ensigns, Khara and Dūṣaṇa charged all the ogres to advance. (16)

ततस्तद् राक्षसं सैन्यं घोरचर्मायुधध्वजम् ।
निर्जगाम जनस्थानान्महानादं महाजवम् ॥ १७ ॥

Then that army of ogres, equipped with dreadful shields, weapons and ensigns, sallied forth from Janasthāna with a loud noise and great onrush. (17)

मुद्गरैः पट्टिशैः शूलैः सुतीक्ष्णैश्च परश्वधैः ।
खड्गैश्चक्रैश्च हस्तस्थैर्भ्राजमानैः सतोमरैः ॥ १८ ॥
शक्तिभिः परिघैर्घोरैरतिमात्रैश्च कार्मुकैः ।
गदासिमुसलैर्वज्रैर्गृहीतैर्भीमदर्शनैः ॥ १९ ॥
राक्षसानां सुघोराणां सहस्राणि चतुर्दश ।
निर्यातानि जनस्थानात् खरचित्तानुवर्तिनाम् ॥ २० ॥

With clubs, Paṭṭisās, darts, exceptionally sharp axes, glittering swords, discuses held in their hands alongwith iron clubs and also with javelins, fearful clubs tipped with iron and huge bows, maces, scimitars, Musalas and terrible-looking thunderbolts seized by them, all the fourteen thousand of the most dreadful ogres, who followed the mind of Khara, sallied forth from Janasthāna. (18—20)

तांस्तु निर्धावतो दृष्ट्वा राक्षसान् भीमदर्शनान् ।
खरस्याथ रथः किञ्चिज्जगाम तदनन्तरम् ॥ २१ ॥

Seeing those ogres of terrible aspect issuing forth, the chariot of Khara too followed closely after them. (21)

ततस्ताञ्छबलानश्वांस्तप्तकाञ्चनभूषितान् ।
खरस्य मतमाज्ञाय सारथिः पर्यचोदयत् ॥ २२ ॥

Reading the mind of Khara, the charioteer forthwith spurred on those spotted horses decorated with refined gold. (22)

संचोदितो रथः शीघ्रं खरस्य रिपुघातिनः ।
शब्देनापूरयामास दिशः सप्रदिशस्तथा ॥ २३ ॥

Urged on with speed, the chariot of Khara, the slayer of his foes, quickly filled with its sound the four quarters as well as the intermediate points of the compass. (23)

प्रवृद्धमन्युस्तु खरः खरस्वरो
रिपोर्वधार्थं त्वरितो यथान्तकः ।

अचूचुदत् सारथिमुन्नदन् पुन-
र्महाबलो मेघ इवाश्मवर्षवान् ॥ २४ ॥

With his indignation risen high and thundering like a cloud raining hail-stones, the very mighty Khara, who was seized with a flurry to kill the enemy and looked like Death, urged on his charioteer once more in a sharp tone. (24)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे द्वाविंशः सर्गः ॥ २२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-two in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रयोविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXIII

Evil omens to Khara. The army approaches Rāma's hermitage

तत्प्रयातं बलं घोरमशिवं शोणितोदकम् ।
अभ्यवर्षन्महाघोरस्तुमुलो गर्दभारुणः ॥ १ ॥

As the aforesaid dreadful army marched on, an exceptionally terrible cloud greyish in colour like a donkey showered inauspicious blood-red water. (1)

निपेतुस्तुरगास्तस्य रथयुक्ता महाजवाः ।
समे पुष्पचिते देशे राजमार्गे यदृच्छया ॥ २ ॥

The horses possessed of great speed yoked to his chariot fell down by accident on the highway on the level ground strewn with flowers. (2)

श्यामं रुधिरपर्यन्तं बभूव परिवेषणम् ।
अलातचक्रप्रतिमं प्रतिगृह्य दिवाकरम् ॥ ३ ॥

Round the sun there appeared a darkish red-edged halo looking like a revolving firebrand. (3)

ततो ध्वजमुपागम्य हेमदण्डं समुच्छ्रितम् ।
समाक्रम्य महाकायस्तस्थौ गृध्रः सुदारुणः ॥ ४ ॥

Approaching the standard raised high on a golden pole, a gigantic and most frightful vulture settled on it. (4)

जनस्थानसमीपे च समाक्रम्य खरस्वनाः ।
विस्वरान् विविधान् नादान् मांसादा मृगपक्षिणः ॥ ५ ॥
व्याजह्वरभिदीप्तायां दिशि वै भैरवस्वनम् ।

अशिवं यातुधानानां शिवा घोरा महास्वनाः ॥ ६ ॥

Reaching the precincts of Janasthāna, carnivorous beasts and birds uttering shrill cries raised various discordant notes and in the sun-lit quarter terrible jackals making a great noise uttered a frightful yell foreboding ill luck to the ogres. (5-6)

प्रभिन्नगजसंकाशास्तोयशोणितधारिणः ।
आकाशं तदनाकाशं चक्रुर्भीमाम्बुवाहकाः ॥ ७ ॥

Fearful clouds carrying blood in the form of water and looking like elephants in rut screened the heavens. (7)

बभूव तिमिरं घोरमुद्धतं रोमहर्षणम् ।
दिशो वा प्रदिशो वापि सुव्यक्तं न चकाशिरे ॥ ८ ॥

A fearful and thick darkness that caused the hair to stand prevailed. Neither the quarters nor the intermediate points were clearly discernible. (8)

क्षतजार्द्रसवर्णाभा संध्या कालं विना बभौ ।
खरं चाभिमुखं नेदुस्तदा घोरा मृगाः खगाः ॥ ९ ॥

Evening shades resembling a canopy drenched with blood fell before time and frightful beasts and birds cried at that time facing Khara. (9)

कङ्कगोमायुगृध्राश्च चुक्रुर्भयशंसिनः ।
नित्याशिवकरा युद्धे शिवा घोरनिदर्शनाः ॥ १० ॥
नेदुर्बलस्याभिमुखं ज्वालोद्गारिभिराननैः ।
कबन्धः परिधाभासो दृश्यते भास्कुरान्तिके ॥ ११ ॥

Foreboding danger, buzzards, jackals and vultures uttered shrill notes; and female jackals invariably bringing disaster in war and presenting a terrible aspect shrieked with their mouths vomiting flames. Again, a headless human figure resembling an iron club appeared near the sun. (10-11)

जग्राह सूर्यं स्वर्भानुरपर्वणि महाग्रहः ।
प्रवाति मारुतः शीघ्रं निष्प्रभोऽभूद् दिवाकरः ॥ १२ ॥

The great planet Rāhu (now identified with the shadow of the earth) obscured the sun even when there was no time for it; the wind blew violently and the sun became lustreless. (12)

उत्पेतुश्च विना रात्रिं ताराः खद्योतसप्रभाः ।
संलीनमीनविहगा नलिन्यः शुष्कपङ्कजाः ॥ १३ ॥

Stars flashing like fire-flies appeared even when there was no night. Lotus-ponds found their lotuses withered and their fishes and aquatic birds hidden in its depths. (13)

तस्मिन् क्षणे बभूवुश्च विना पुष्पफलैर्दुर्माः ।
उद्धतश्च विना वातं रेणुर्जलधरारुणः ॥ १४ ॥

At that moment, the trees were bereft of their blossom and fruit, and dust, greyish as the cloud, arose even without wind. (14)

चीचीकूचीति वाश्यन्त्यो बभूवुस्तत्र सारिकाः ।
उल्काश्चापि सनिर्घोषा निपेतुर्घोरदर्शनाः ॥ १५ ॥

Minas started warbling in that region and even meteors, presenting a terrible aspect, descended with a crash. (15)

प्रचचाल मही चापि सशैलवनकानना ।
खरस्य च रथस्थस्य नर्दमानस्य धीमतः ॥ १६ ॥
प्राकम्प्यत भुजः सव्यः स्वरश्चास्यावसज्जत ।
सास्त्रा सम्पद्यते दृष्टिः पश्यमानस्य सर्वतः ॥ १७ ॥

Nay, the earth with its mountains, forests and woodlands violently shook. Again, while the wise Khara was thundering in his chariot, his left arm throbbed violently and voice grew faint. While he was looking around, his vision got bedimmed with tears. (16-17)

ललाटे च रुजो जाता न च मोहान्त्र्यवर्तत ।
तान् समीक्ष्य महोत्पातानुत्थितान् रोमहर्षणान् ॥ १८ ॥
अब्रवीद् राक्षसान् सर्वान् प्रहसन् स खरस्तदा ।
महोत्पातानिमान् सर्वानुत्थितान् घोरदर्शनान् ॥ १९ ॥
न चिन्तयाम्यहं वीर्याद् बलवान् दुर्बलानिव ।
तारा अपि शरैस्तीक्ष्णैः पातयेयं नभस्तलात् ॥ २० ॥

A pain also arose in his forehead, yet he did not give up his folly. Observing those stunning evil portents of a stirring nature sprung up at that moment, and laughing loudly, the celebrated Khara said to all the ogres (constituting his army), "Banking on my strength I do not care for all these stupendous evil portents sprung up, even though they are terrible to look at, any more than a powerful man does for weaklings. With my sharp arrows I can even shoot down the stars from the heavens. (18—20)

मृत्युं मरणधर्मेण संकुद्धो योजयाम्यहम् ।
राघवं तं बलोत्सिक्तं भ्रातरं चापि लक्ष्मणम् ॥ २१ ॥

अहत्वा सायकैस्तीक्ष्णैर्नोपावर्तितुमुत्सहे ।
यन्निमित्तं तु रामस्य लक्ष्मणस्य विपर्ययः ॥ २२ ॥
सकामा भगिनी मेऽस्तु पीत्वा तु रुधिरं तयोः ।
न क्वचित् प्राप्तपूर्वो मे संयुगेषु पराजयः ॥ २३ ॥

“Highly enraged I shall invest Death himself with mortal nature. I dare not return without killing with my sharp arrows the celebrated Rāma, a scion of Raghu, proud of his strength, and his brother Lakṣmaṇa, too. “Let my sister, Śūrpaṇakhā, with reference to whom a wrong act has been done by Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, will have her desire fulfilled by drinking their blood. A defeat has never been faced by me on the fields of battle. (21—23)

युष्माकमेतत् प्रत्यक्षं नानृतं कथयाम्यहम् ।
देवराजमपि क्रुद्धो मत्तैरावतगामिनम् ॥ २४ ॥
वज्रहस्तं रणे हन्यां किं पुनस्तौ च मानवौ ।
सा तस्य गर्जितं श्रुत्वा राक्षसानां महाचमूः ॥ २५ ॥
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे मृत्युपाशावपाशिता ।
समेयुश्च महात्मानो युद्धदर्शनकाक्षिणः ॥ २६ ॥
ऋषयो देवगन्धर्वाः सिद्धाश्च सह चारणैः ।
समेत्य चोचुः सहितास्तेऽन्योन्यं पुण्यकर्मणः ॥ २७ ॥

“This is evident to you. I am not telling a lie. Enraged in battle I can make short work even of Indra, the lord of celestials, riding on the mad Airāvata, holding the thunderbolt in his hand, to say nothing of these two mortals.” Hearing his roar, that huge army of ogres, caught as it was in the noose of Death, derived joy that knew no parallel. Longing to witness the encounter, high-souled Ṛṣis (seers of Vedic Mantras), gods and Gandharvas (celestial musicians) as well as Siddhas (a class of demigods endowed with mystic powers from their very birth) alongwith Cāraṇas (celestial bards) assembled there and, meeting together, the aforesaid beings of meritorious deeds, who were friendly to all, spoke to one another as follows : (24—27)

स्वस्ति गोब्राह्मणेभ्यस्तु लोकानां ये च सम्मताः ।
जयतां राघवो युद्धे पौलस्त्यान् रजनीचरान् ॥ २८ ॥

चक्रहस्तो यथा विष्णुः सर्वानसुरसत्तमान् ।
एतच्चान्यच्च बहुशो ब्रुवाणाः परमर्षयः ॥ २९ ॥
जातकौतूहलास्तत्र विमानस्थाश्च देवताः ।
ददृशुर्वाहिनीं तेषां राक्षसानां गतायुषाम् ॥ ३० ॥

“May all be well with the cows and the Brāhmaṇas as well as with those who are highly esteemed by the people. Even as Lord Viṣṇu, holding the discus in His hand, conquered all the foremost of demons, may Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, conquer the ogres born in the line of Sage Pulastya.”

Speaking as aforesaid and saying many other such things, the greatest of Ṛṣis as well as gods seated in their aerial cars, in whom curiosity had sprung up, beheld there the army of those ogres, the sands of whose life had already run out. (28—30)

रथेन तु खरो वेगात् सैन्यस्याग्राद् विनिःसृतः ।
श्येनगामी पृथुग्रीवो यज्ञशत्रुर्विहंगमः ॥ ३१ ॥
दुर्जयः करवीराक्षः परुषः कालकार्मुकः ।
हेममाली महामाली सर्पास्यो रुधिराशनः ॥ ३२ ॥
द्वादशैते महावीर्याः प्रतस्थुरभितः खरम् ।
महाकपालः स्थूलाक्षः प्रमाथस्त्रिशिरास्तथा ।
चत्वार एते सेनाग्रे दूषणं पृष्ठतोऽन्वयुः ॥ ३३ ॥

Khara for his part hurriedly rode in his chariot beyond his army; while Śyenagāmī, Pṛthugrīva, Yajñaśātru, Vihangama, Durjaya, Karavīrākṣa, Paruṣa, Kālākārmuka, Hemamālī, Mahāmālī, Sarpāsya and Rudhirāśana—these twelve, who were possessed of great prowess, marched round about Khara. Mahākapāla, Sthūlākṣa, Pramatha and Triśīrā—these four followed at the heels of Dūṣaṇa at the head of the army. (31—33)

सा भीमवेगा समराभिकाक्षिणी
सुदारुणा राक्षसवीरसेना ।
तौ राजपुत्रौ सहसाभ्युपेता
माला ग्रहाणामिव चन्द्रसूर्यौ ॥ ३४ ॥

Eagerly seeking a combat, that most formidable army of Rākṣasa warriors, possessed as it was with terrible impetuosity, suddenly approached those two princes like a group of planets rushing towards the moon and the sun. (34)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे त्रयोविंशः सर्गः ॥ २३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-three in the Araṇyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्विंशः सर्गः

Canto XXIV

Good omens to Rāma. Rāma prepares for the fight

आश्रमं प्रतियाते तु खरे खरपराक्रमे।
तानेवौत्पातिकान् रामः सह भ्रात्रा ददर्श ह॥ १ ॥

When Khara of terrible prowess arrived at the hermitage, Rāma, they say, with his brother perceived the same evil portents. (1)

तानुत्पातान् महाघोरान् रामो दृष्ट्वात्यमर्षणः।
प्रजानामहितान् दृष्ट्वा वाक्यं लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत्॥ २ ॥

Filled with great indignation to see those most ominous portents, harmful to the people (viz., the Rākṣasas), Śrī Rāma said to Lakṣmaṇa: (2)

इमान् पश्य महाबाहो सर्वभूतापहारिणः।
समुत्थितान् महोत्पातान् संहर्तुं सर्वराक्षसान्॥ ३ ॥

“Behold, O mighty-armed brother, these evil portents of a major type, foreboding universal destruction, that have appeared for the destruction of all the ogres. (3)

अमी रुधिरधारास्तु विसृजन्ते खरस्वनाः।
व्योम्नि मेघा निवर्तन्ते परुषा गर्दभारुणाः॥ ४ ॥

“Those clouds, greyish like a donkey, which float in the heavens, are for their part raining torrents of blood with a violent crash. (4)

सधूमाश्च शराः सर्वे मम युद्धाभिनन्दिताः।
रुक्मपृष्ठानि चापानि विचेष्टन्ते विचक्षण॥ ५ ॥

“In reference to the smoke arising, as an evil portent all my arrows feel transported with joy at the prospect of a conflict, while my gold-plated bows too are bestirring, as it were, in their endeavour to get strung of themselves, O clever brother ! (5)

यादृशा इह कूजन्ति पक्षिणो वनचारिणः।
अग्रतो नोऽभयं प्राप्तं संशयो जीवितस्य च॥ ६ ॥

“The type of wild birds which are crying here proclaim that security stands ahead for us and risk of life for the ogres. (6)

सम्प्रहारस्तु सुमहान् भविष्यति न संशयः।
अयमाख्याति मे बाहुः स्फुरमाणो मुहुर्मुहुः॥ ७ ॥
संनिकर्षे तु नः शूर जयं शत्रोः पराजयम्।
सुप्रभं च प्रसन्नं च तव वक्त्रं हि लक्ष्यते॥ ८ ॥

“A very great conflict will take place : there is no doubt about it. Throbbing again and again, this right arm of mine foretells victory for us and defeat for the enemy in the immediate future. Moreover, your face is undoubtedly perceived to be extremely radiant and cheerful, O valiant brother ! (7-8)

उद्यतानां हि युद्धार्थं येषां भवति लक्ष्मण।
निष्प्रभं वदनं तेषां भवत्यायुः परिक्षयः॥ ९ ॥

“Loss of life surely awaits those, O Lakṣmaṇa, whose face is bereft of lustre at the time they are ready for a combat. (9)

रक्षसां नर्दतां घोरः श्रूयतेऽयं महाध्वनिः।
आहतानां च भेरीणां राक्षसैः क्रूरकर्मभिः॥ १० ॥

“Here is the terrible roar of the thundering ogres as also the crash of kettledrums beaten by the ogres of cruel deeds. (10)

अनागतविधानं तु कर्तव्यं शुभमिच्छता।
आपदं शङ्कमानेन पुरुषेण विपश्चिता ॥ ११ ॥

“A calamity that has not yet arrived must at all events be provided against by a wise man seeking his welfare and apprehending danger. (11)

तस्माद् गृहीत्वा वैदेहीं शरपाणिर्धनुर्धरः।
गुहामाश्रय शैलस्य दुर्गा पादपसंकुलाम् ॥ १२ ॥

“Therefore, taking Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) and carrying your bow, arrow in hand, take cover in a mountain cave, difficult of access and surrounded by trees. (12)

प्रतिकूलितुमिच्छामि न हि वाक्यमिदं त्वया।
शापितो मम पादाभ्यां गम्यतां वत्स मा चिरम् ॥ १३ ॥

“Surely I don’t want this command of mine to be opposed by you. Conjured by me in the name of my feet, let you be gone without delay, my darling ! (13)

त्वं हि शूरश्च बलवान् हन्या एतान् न संशयः।
स्वयं निहन्तुमिच्छामि सर्वानेव निशाचरान् ॥ १४ ॥

“You are valiant and mighty indeed and can kill these : there is no doubt about it. I, however, wish to kill all the ogres myself.” (14)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण लक्ष्मणः सह सीतया।
शरानादाय चापं च गुहां दुर्गा समाश्रयत् ॥ १५ ॥

Seizing his arrows and bow, when commanded thus by Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa with Sītā sought for protection a cave which was difficult of access. (15)

तस्मिन् प्रविष्टे तु गुहां लक्ष्मणे सह सीतया।
हन्त निर्युक्तमित्युक्त्वा रामः कवचमाविशत् ॥ १६ ॥

Saying “I am glad my command has been promptly carried out”, when the said Lakṣmaṇa had duly entered the cave with Sītā, Śrī Rāma for his part donned his coat of mail. (16)

स तेनाग्निनिकाशेन कवचेन विभूषितः।
बभूव रामस्तिमिरे महानग्निरिवोत्थितः ॥ १७ ॥

Highly adorned with that armour, resplendent as fire, Śrī Rāma looked like a great flame appeared suddenly in darkness. (17)

स चापमुद्यम्य महच्छरानादाय वीर्यवान्।
सम्बभूवास्थितस्तत्र ज्यास्वनैः पूरयन् दिशः ॥ १८ ॥

Lifting his great bow and picking up arrows, the valiant Śrī Rāma stood rooted there filling the quarters with the twangs of his bow-string. (18)

ततो देवाः सगन्धर्वाः सिद्धाश्च सह चारणैः।
समेयुश्च महात्मानो युद्धदर्शनकांक्षया ॥ १९ ॥

Then high-souled gods accompanied by Gandharvas, as well as Siddhas with Cāraṇas too gathered together with intent to witness the combat. (19)

ऋषयश्च महात्मानो लोके ब्रह्मर्षिसत्तमाः।
समेत्य चोचुः सहितास्तेऽन्योन्यं पुण्यकर्मणः ॥ २० ॥

Coming together, high-souled Ṛṣis too, as well as those recognized as the foremost of Brahman sages in the world, who had performed virtuous deeds, said to one another in a body : (20)

स्वस्ति गोब्राह्मणानां च लोकानां चेति संस्थिताः।
जयतां राघवो युद्धे पौलस्त्यान् रजनीचरान् ॥ २१ ॥
चक्रहस्तो यथा युद्धे सर्वानसुरपुंगवान्।
एवमुक्त्वा पुनः प्रोचुरालोक्य च परस्परम् ॥ २२ ॥

“Good luck to the cows and the Brāhmaṇas, as well as to people who are well-established ! May Rāghava conquer the night-stalkers, born in the line of Sage Pulastya, as did Viṣṇu, discus in hand, conquer the foremost of all demons on the battlefield”. Saying so and looking at one another, they exclaimed again : (21-22)

चतुर्दश सहस्राणि रक्षसां भीमकर्मणाम्।
एकश्च रामो धर्मात्मा कथं युद्धं भविष्यति ॥ २३ ॥

“Here are fourteen thousand ogres of terrible deeds, while the pious-minded Rāma is alone. How will there be a conflict under such circumstances?” (23)

इति राजर्षयः सिद्धाः सगणाश्च द्विजर्षभाः।
जातकौतूहलास्तस्थुर्विमानस्थाश्च देवताः ॥ २४ ॥

Speaking thus, royal sages and Siddhas accompanied by their entourage, as also gods, the foremost of Brāhmaṇas seated in their aerial cars stood filled with curiosity. (24)

आविष्टं तेजसा रामं संग्रामशिरसि स्थितम् ।
दृष्ट्वा सर्वाणि भूतानि भयाद् विव्यथिरे तदा ॥ २५ ॥

All living beings, who were ignorant of Śrī Rāma's greatness, felt stricken with fear at that time to behold Rāma invested with martial glory, standing in the van of fight. (25)

रूपमप्रतिमं तस्य रामस्याक्लिष्टकर्मणः ।
बभूव रूपं क्रुद्धस्य रुद्रस्येव महात्मनः ॥ २६ ॥

The peerless form of the celebrated Rāma, who was unwearied in action, resembled the form of the high-minded Rudra in fury. (26)

इति सम्भाष्यमाणे तु देवगन्धर्वचारणैः ।
ततो गम्भीरनिर्ह्रादं घोरचर्मायुधध्वजम् ॥ २७ ॥
अनीकं यातुधानानां समन्तात् प्रत्यपद्यत ।
वीरालापान् विसृजतामन्योन्यमभिगच्छताम् ॥ २८ ॥
चापानि विस्फारयतां जृम्भतां चाप्यभीक्ष्णशः ।
विप्रघुष्टस्वनानां च दुन्दुभींश्चापि निघ्नताम् ॥ २९ ॥
तेषां सुतुमुलः शब्दः पूरयामास तद् वनम् ।
तेन शब्देन विव्रस्ताः श्वापदा वनचारिणः ॥ ३० ॥
दुद्रुवुर्यत्र निःशब्दं पृष्ठतो नावलोकयन् ।
तच्चाानीकं महावेगं रामं समनुवर्तत ॥ ३१ ॥
धृतनानाप्रहरणं गम्भीरं सागरोपमम् ।
रामोऽपि चारयंश्चक्षुः सर्वतो रणपण्डितः ॥ ३२ ॥
ददर्श खरसैन्यं तद् युद्धायाभिमुखो गतः ।
वितत्य च धनुर्भीमं तूण्याश्चोद्धृत्य सायकान् ॥ ३३ ॥
क्रोधमाहारयत् तीव्रं वधार्थं सर्वरक्षसाम् ।
दुष्प्रेक्ष्यश्चाभवत् क्रुद्धो युगान्ताग्निरिव ज्वलन् ॥ ३४ ॥

While the foregoing words (vide verses 21—23) were being sympathetically uttered by the gods, Gandharvas and Cāraṇas, the army of the ogres, armed with fearful shields and weapons and distinguished by equally fearful ensigns, closed in on all sides, making a deep roar. The highly tumultuous noise of those ogres—who were uttering heroic slogans, approaching one another to give instructions in tactics of war, twanging their bows and bounding again and again in their drunkenness, making clamorous sounds and also beating their drums—filled that forest. Terribly frightened by that noise, the wild beasts of prey ran away to a far-off place where the sound could not be heard, and did not look behind. Nay, wielding various weapons, that army of great impetuosity, deep like the ocean, headed towards Rāma. Casting his eyes on all sides, and moving forward to give battle, Śrī Rāma too, who was skilled in warfare, surveyed that army of Khara. Nay, drawing at full length his terrible bow and pulling out arrows from his quiver, he summoned (to his aid) violent anger for the destruction of the ogres; and burning with anger, he was dreadful to look at like fire at the time of universal dissolution. (27—34)

तं दृष्ट्वा तेजसाऽऽविष्टं प्राव्यथन् वनदेवताः ।
तस्य रुष्टस्य रूपं तु रामस्य ददृशे तदा ।
दक्षस्येव क्रतुं हन्तुमुद्यतस्य पिनाकिनः ॥ ३५ ॥

Seeing him invested with martial glory, the sylvan deities felt sore distressed. The form of angry Śrī Rāma then looked like that of Lord Rudra (the Wielder of the Pināka bow) out to wreck the sacrificial performance of Dakṣa. (35)

तत्कार्मुकैराभरणै रथैश्च
तद्वर्मभिश्चाग्निसमानवर्णैः ।
बभूव सैन्यं पिशिताशनानां
सूर्योदये नीलमिवाभ्रजालम् ॥ ३६ ॥

With their bows, ornaments and chariots, as well as with their coats of mail shining like fire, the army of the flesh-eating ogres looked like a blue mass of clouds at sunrise. (36)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे चतुर्विंशः सर्गः ॥ २४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-four in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Rṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXV

The ogres attack Śrī Rāma, Rāma kills them all

अवष्टब्धधनुं रामं क्रुद्धं तं रिपुघातिनम् ।
ददर्शाश्रममागम्य खरः सह पुरःसरैः ॥ १ ॥

Reaching the hermitage, Khara with his attendants saw the celebrated Śrī Rāma, the slayer of his enemies, with the bow held tightly in anger. (1)

तं दृष्ट्वा सगुणं चापमुद्यम्य खरनिःस्वनम् ।
रामस्याभिमुखं सूतं चोद्यतामित्यचोदयत् ॥ २ ॥

Seeing him and lifting his bow, furnished with a string and making a sharp twang, he commanded the charioteer in the following words : "Let the chariot be driven in front of Rāma." (2)

स खरस्याज्ञया सूतस्तुरगान् समचोदयत् ।
यत्र रामो महाबाहुरेको धुन्वन् धनुः स्थितः ॥ ३ ॥

At the command of Khara the said charioteer goaded the horses on to where the mighty-armed Rāma stood alone tweaking his bow. (3)

तं तु निष्पतितं दृष्ट्वा सर्वतो रजनीचराः ।
मुञ्चमाना महानादं सचिवाः पर्यवारयन् ॥ ४ ॥

Seeing him arrived near Rāma and uttering a loud roar, his ogre companions, for their part, surrounded him on all sides.
(4)

स तेषां यातुधानानां मध्ये रथगतः खरः ।
बभूव मध्ये ताराणां लोहिताङ्ग इवोदितः ॥ ५ ॥

Seated in his chariot in the midst of those ogres, the celebrated Khara looked like the Mars risen in the midst of stars. (5)

ततः शरसहस्रेण राममप्रतिमौजसम् ।
अर्दयित्वा महानादं ननाद समरे खरः ॥ ६ ॥

Striking Śrī Rāma of incomparable vigour with a thousand arrows, Khara forthwith made a loud roar on the battlefield. (6)

ततस्तं भीमधन्वानं क्रुद्धाः सर्वे निशाचराः ।
रामं नानाविधैः शस्त्रैरभ्यवर्षन्त दुर्जयम् ॥ ७ ॥

Feeling enraged, all the night-stalkers assaulted with various kinds of weapons the celebrated Śrī Rāma, who was armed with a terrible bow and was hard to conquer.
(7)

मुद्गरैरायसैः शूलैः प्रासैः खड्गैः परश्वधैः ।
राक्षसाः समरे शूरं निजघ्नू रोषतत्पराः ॥ ८ ॥

Given up to fury, the ogres violently struck the hero on the battlefield, with clubs, iron pikes, barbed missiles, swords and axes. (8)

ते बलाहकसंकाशा महाकाया महाबलाः ।
अभ्यधावन्त काकुत्स्थं रथैर्वाजिभिरेव च ॥ ९ ॥

गजैः पर्वतकूटाभै रामं युद्धे जिघांसवः ।
ते रामे शरवर्षाणि व्यसृजन् रक्षसां गणाः ॥ १० ॥

शैलेन्द्रमिव धाराभिर्वर्षमाणा महाघनाः ।
सर्वैः परिवृतो रामो राक्षसैः क्रूरदर्शनैः ॥ ११ ॥

तिथिष्विव महादेवो वृतः पारिषदां गणैः ।
तानि मुक्तानि शस्त्राणि यातुधानैः स राघवः ॥ १२ ॥

प्रतिजग्राह विशिखैर्नद्योधानिव सागरः ।
स तैः प्रहरणैर्घोरैर्भिन्नगात्रो न विव्यथे ॥ १३ ॥

रामः प्रदीप्तैर्बहुभिर्वज्रैरिव महाचलः ।
स विद्धः क्षतजादिग्धः सर्वगात्रेषु राघवः ॥ १४ ॥

बभूव रामः संध्याभ्रैर्दिवाकर इवावृतः ।
विषेदुर्देवगन्धर्वाः सिद्धाश्च परमर्षयः ॥ १५ ॥

एकं सहस्रैर्बहुभिस्तदा दृष्ट्वा समावृतम् ।
ततो रामस्तु संक्रुद्धो मण्डलीकृतकार्मुकः ॥ १६ ॥

ससर्ज निशितान् बाणान् शतशोऽथ सहस्रशः ।
दुरावारान् दुर्विषहान् कालपाशोपमान् रणे ॥ १७ ॥

मुमोच लीलया कङ्कपत्रान् काञ्चनभूषणान् ।
ते शराः शत्रुसैन्येषु मुक्ता रामेण लीलया ॥ १८ ॥

आददू रक्षसां प्राणान् पाशाः कालकृता इव ।
भित्त्वा राक्षसदेहांतांस्ते शरा रुधिराप्नुताः ॥ १९ ॥

अन्तरिक्षगता रेजुर्दीप्ताग्निसमतेजसः ।
 असंख्येयास्तु रामस्य सायकाश्चापमण्डलात् ॥ २० ॥
 विनिष्येतुरतीवोग्रा रक्षःप्राणापहारिणः ।
 तैर्धनूंषि ध्वजाग्राणि चर्माणि कवचानि च ॥ २१ ॥
 बाहून् सहस्ताभरणानूरून् करिकरोपमान् ।
 चिच्छेद रामः समरे शतशोऽथ सहस्रशः ॥ २२ ॥

Riding in their chariots as well as on horseback, as also on elephants resembling mountain-peaks, the ogres, who were endowed with gigantic bodies and possessed of extraordinary might and looked like clouds, rushed on Śrī Rāma with intent to kill him in battle. Like huge clouds assailing Sumeru (the king of mountains) with torrents, those hordes of ogres rained showers of arrows on Śrī Rāma. Surrounded by all the ogres, who wore a cruel aspect, Rāma looked like Lord Mahādeva surrounded by hordes of his attendants on days bearing the name of Pradoṣa (and sacred to Śiva). By means of his arrows the celebrated Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, absorbed those weapons discharged by the ogres even as the ocean does the rushing waters of rivers. The said Śrī Rāma did not feel afflicted even with his limbs pierced by those terrible weapons any more than a huge mountain rent with many blazing thunderbolts. Pierced and besmeared with blood in all limbs the celebrated Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, looked like the sun screened by evening clouds. Gods and Gandharvas, Siddhas and great Ṛṣis felt dejected to behold him standing alone surrounded by many thousands at that time. With his bow bent to the shape of a circle (when drawn at full length), Śrī Rāma, for his part, who felt highly enraged on the battle-field, pulled out from his quiver hundreds and thousands of very sharp arrows, which were difficult to intercept and hard to endure and resembled the noose of Death in their action, and discharged in sport arrows tipped with gold.

Sportfully hurled on the enemy's ranks by Śrī Rāma, the aforesaid shafts took away the lives of the ogres like the nooses of Death. Having reached the air piercing through those bodies of the ogres, those arrows soaked in blood shone bright like kindled fire. Most formidable arrows without number flew from the circular bow of Śrī Rāma, taking away the lives of the ogres. With them Śrī Rāma split their bows, the tops of their ensigns, shields and coats of mail, arms adorned with ornaments for the hands and thighs resembling the trunks of elephants in their hundreds and thousands on the battlefield. (9—22)

हयान् काञ्चनसंनाहान् रथयुक्तान् ससारथीन् ।
 गजांश्च सगजारोहान् सहयान् सादिनस्तदा ॥ २३ ॥
 चिच्छिदुर्बिभिदुश्चैव रामबाणा गुणच्युताः ।
 पदातीन् समरे हत्वा ह्यनयद् यमसादनम् ॥ २४ ॥

The arrows of Śrī Rāma, released from his bow-string on that occasion, tore and pierced the horses though protected by golden armour, alongwith the chariots and the charioteers, the elephants with their riders and the horsemen with their horses; nay, killing the foot soldiers in the encounter, he firmly despatched them to the abode of Yama, the god of death. (23-24)

ततो नालीकनाराचैस्तीक्ष्णाग्रैश्च विकर्णिभिः ।
 भीममार्तस्वरं चक्रुश्छिद्यमाना निशाचराः ॥ २५ ॥

Being torn with his Nālikas (steel-pointed arrows), Nārācas (arrows wholly made of steel) and sharp-pointed Vikarṇis (barbed arrows), the ogres then raised a terrific piteous wail. (25)

तत्सैन्यं विविधैर्बाणैरदितं मर्मभेदिभिः ।
 न रामेण सुखं लेभे शुष्कं वनमिवाग्निना ॥ २६ ॥

Tormented by Śrī Rāma with arrows of various kinds piercing their vital parts, the said army was ill at ease like a dry forest oppressed by fire. (26)

केचिद् भीमबलाः शूराः प्रासान् शूलान् परश्वधान् ।
 चिक्षिपुः परमक्रुद्धा रामाय रजनीचराः ॥ २७ ॥

Extremely enraged, some gallant nightstalkers possessed of terrible might hurled at Śrī Rāma barbed missiles, iron pikes and axes. (27)

तेषां बाणैर्महाबाहुः शस्त्राण्यावार्य वीर्यवान् ।

जहार समरे प्राणांश्चिच्छेद च शिरोधरान् ॥ २८ ॥

Intercepting their weapons with his arrows, the valiant and mighty-armed Śrī Rāma severed their necks and took away their lives in the encounter. (28)

ते छिन्नशिरसः पेतुश्छिन्नचर्मशरासनाः ।

सुपर्णवातविक्षिप्ता जगत्यां पादपा यथा ॥ २९ ॥

With their heads lopped off and their shields and bows pierced, they toppled on the ground like trees (in the Nandana garden in heaven) knocked down by the blast raised by the flight of Garuḍa, the king of birds. (29)

अवशिष्टाश्च ये तत्र विषण्णास्ते निशाचराः ।

खरमेवाभ्यधावन्त शरणार्थ शराहताः ॥ ३० ॥

Wounded with the arrows and feeling dejected, those ogres who were left alive there, flew for protection towards Khara alone. (30)

तान् सर्वान् धनुरादाय समाश्वस्य च दूषणः ।

अभ्यधावत् सुसंकुब्धः क्रुद्धं क्रुद्ध इवान्तकः ॥ ३१ ॥

Consoling them all and taking his bow, Dūṣaṇa, who felt extremely enraged, rushed towards the infuriated Rāma like the angry Yama. (31)

निवृत्तास्तु पुनः सर्वे दूषणाश्रयनिर्भयाः ।

राममेवाभ्यधावन्त सालतालशिलायुधाः ॥ ३२ ॥

Rendered fearless by the backing of Dūṣaṇa, all returned once more and rushed towards Rāma alone using sal and palmyra trees and slabs of stone for weapons. (32)

शूलमुद्गरहस्ताश्च पाशहस्ता महाबलाः ।

सृजन्तः शरवर्षाणि शस्त्रवर्षाणि संयुगे ॥ ३३ ॥

द्रुमवर्षाणि मुञ्चन्तः शिलावर्षाणि राक्षसाः ।

तद् बभूवाद्वुतं युद्धं तुमुलं रोमहर्षणम् ॥ ३४ ॥

रामस्यास्य महाघोरं पुनस्तेषां च रक्षसाम् ।

ते समन्तादभिक्रुद्धा राघवं पुनरार्दयन् ॥ ३५ ॥

Nay, holding iron pikes and clubs as well as nooses in their hands, the ogres, who were possessed of great might, began to rain on the field of battle showers of arrows and weapons, as well as volleys of trees and slabs of stones. That encounter between the celebrated Śrī Rāma and the aforesaid ogres was indeed wonderful, tumultuous and most dreadful and caused one's hair to stand on end. Waving in wrath, they tormented Śrī Rāma once more on all sides. (33—35)

ततः सर्वा दिशो दृष्ट्वा प्रदिशश्च समावृताः ।

राक्षसैः सर्वतः प्राप्तेः शरवर्षाभिरावृतः ॥ ३६ ॥

स कृत्वा भैरवं नादमस्त्रं परमभास्वरम् ।

समयोजयद् गान्धर्वं राक्षसेषु महाबलः ॥ ३७ ॥

Seeing all the quarters as well as the intermediate points encompassed by the ogres arrived from all sides, and uttering a terrible roar, Śrī Rāma, who was now covered with showers of shafts and who was possessed of extraordinary might, discharged the most resplendent missile presided over by the Gandharvas against the ogres. (36-37)

ततः शरसहस्राणि निर्ययुश्चापमण्डलात् ।

सर्वा दश दिशो बाणैरापूर्यन्त समागतैः ॥ ३८ ॥

Then from his circular bow sped thousands of arrows. All the ten directions were fully covered by those arrows. (38)

नाददानं शरान् घोरान् विमुञ्चन्तं शरोत्तमान् ।

विकर्षमाणं पश्यन्ति राक्षसास्ते शरादिताः ॥ ३९ ॥

Tormented by the arrows, the said ogres did not perceive Śrī Rāma picking up the dreadful and excellent arrows or discharging them. They only saw him pulling his bow-string alone. (39)

शरान्धकारमाकाशमावृणोत् सदिवारम् ।

बभूवावस्थितो रामः प्रक्षिपन्निव तान् शरान् ॥ ४० ॥

The darkness spread by the arrows enveloped the sky including the sun. And Śrī Rāma simply stood sending forth those arrows as though mechanically. (40)

युगपत्पतमानैश्च युगपच्च हतैर्भृशम् ।
युगपत्पतितैश्चैव विकीर्णा वसुधाभवत् ॥ ४१ ॥

The earth was strewn in no time with the ogres hit hard by the arrows all at a time, toppling down all and fallen on the ground all at once. (41)

निहताः पतिताः क्षीणाश्छिन्ना भिन्ना विदारिताः ।

तत्र तत्र स्म दृश्यन्ते राक्षसास्ते सहस्रशः ॥ ४२ ॥

The ogres were seen in their thousands killed outright, struck down, exhausted, split into two, hacked to pieces and disembowelled here and there. (42)

सोष्णीषैरुत्तमाङ्गैश्च साङ्गदैर्बाहुभिस्तथा ।

ऊरुभिर्बाहुभिश्छिन्नैर्नानारूपैर्विभूषणैः ॥ ४३ ॥

हयैश्च द्विपमुख्यैश्च रथैर्भिन्नैरनेकशः ।

चामरव्यजनैश्छत्रैर्ध्वजैर्नानाविधैरपि ॥ ४४ ॥

रामेण बाणाभिहतैर्विच्छिन्नैः शूलपट्टिशैः ।

खड्गैः खण्डीकृतैः प्रासैर्विकीर्णैश्च परश्वधैः ॥ ४५ ॥

चूर्णिताभिः शिलाभिश्च शरैश्चित्रैरनेकशः ।

विच्छिन्नैः समरे भूमिर्विस्तीर्णाभूद् भयंकरा ॥ ४६ ॥

Thickly strewn with heads wrapped in turbans, as well as with arms adorned with armlets, nay, with severed thighs and arms, ornaments of various designs as also with horses, foremost elephants and chariots broken at many places, whisks, canopies and ensigns of various patterns, all struck down by the arrows of Śrī Rāma, iron pikes, scimitars and swords torn into pieces, barbed missiles shattered, axes scattered all over, slabs of stone reduced to powder and numerous arrows of various kinds torn into splinters, the earth looked ghastly. (43—46)

तान् दृष्ट्वा निहतान् सर्वे राक्षसाः परमातुराः ।

न तत्र चलितुं शक्ता रामं परपुरंजयम् ॥ ४७ ॥

Sore distressed to see them slain, all the surviving ogres were unable to advance towards Śrī Rāma, the conqueror of the enemy's citadels. (47)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे पञ्चविंशः सर्गः ॥ २५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-five in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षड्विंशः सर्गः

Canto XXVI

Rāma kills all the fourteen thousand ogres including Dūṣaṇa

दूषणस्तु स्वकं सैन्यं हन्यमानं विलोक्य च ।
संदिदेश महाबाहुर्भीमवेगान् दुरासदान् ॥ १ ॥
राक्षसान् पञ्चसाहस्रान् समरेष्वनिवर्तिनः ।
ते शूलैः पट्टिशैः खड्गैः शिलावर्षैर्दुमैरपि ॥ २ ॥
शरवर्षैरविच्छिन्नं ववर्षुस्तं समन्ततः ।
तद् द्रुमाणां शिलानां च वर्षं प्राणहरं महत् ॥ ३ ॥
प्रतिजग्राह धर्मात्मा राघवस्तीक्ष्णसायकैः ।
प्रतिगृह्य च तद् वर्षं निमीलित इवर्षभः ॥ ४ ॥
रामः क्रोधं परं लेभे वधार्थं सर्वरक्षसाम् ।
ततः क्रोधसमाविष्टः प्रदीप्त इव तेजसा ॥ ५ ॥

शरैरभ्यकिरत् सैन्यं सर्वतः सहदूषणम् ।
ततः सेनापतिः क्रुद्धो दूषणः शत्रुदूषणः ॥ ६ ॥
शरैरशनिकल्पैस्तं राघवं समवारयत् ।
ततो रामः सुसंकुब्धः क्षुरेणास्य महद् धनुः ॥ ७ ॥
चिच्छेद समरे वीरश्चतुर्भिश्चतुरो हयान् ।
हत्वा चाश्वान् शरैस्तीक्ष्णैरर्धचन्द्रेण सारथेः ॥ ८ ॥
शिरो जहार तद्रक्षस्त्रिभिर्विव्याध वक्षसि ।
स च्छिन्नधन्वा विरथो हताश्वो हतसारथिः ॥ ९ ॥
जग्राह गिरिशृङ्गाभं परिधं रोमहर्षणम् ।
वेष्टितं काञ्चनैः पट्टैर्देवसैन्याभिमर्दनम् ॥ १० ॥

आयसैः शङ्कुभिस्तीक्ष्णैः कीर्णं परवसोक्षितम् ।

वज्राशनिसमस्पर्शं परगोपुरदारणम् ॥ ११ ॥

Seeing his army being wiped out, the mighty-armed Dūṣaṇa urged five thousand ogres of terrible impetuosity, who were hard to approach and never turned their back on the battlefield, to march on. They incessantly assailed Rāma on all sides with iron pikes, scimitars, swords, showers of slabs of stone, as also with trees and volleys of arrows. The pious-minded Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) intercepted that great and deadly shower of trees and slabs of stone with his sharp arrows. Having intercepted that volley standing (fearlessly) like a bull with eyes closed, Śrī Rāma summoned extreme wrath for the extermination of all the ogres. Possessed by anger as though burning with glory, he thereupon covered on all sides the army including Dūṣaṇa, with his arrows. Getting angry, General Dūṣaṇa, the belittler of enemies, effectively intercepted the celebrated Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) with his arrows that vied with thunderbolts. Extremely enraged, the heroic Śrī Rāma then split his mighty bow with a razor-like arrow and with four other arrows pierced the four horses of his chariot. Nay, having killed the horses with his sharp arrows, he severed the head of Dūṣaṇa's charioteer with an arrow having a crescent-shaped head and with three more arrows pierced that ogre in the chest. With his bow broken, as well as horses and charioteer killed, Dūṣaṇa, who was now left without a chariot, seized an iron-capped club looking like a mountain-peak, which was plated with belts of gold, studded with sharp iron pikes and soaked with the fat of enemies, which was hard to the touch like a thunderbolt and caused the hair to stand on its end, and which was capable of crushing the celestial army and smashing the gates of the enemies' citadels.

(1—11)

तं महोरगसंकाशं प्रगृह्य परिघं रणे ।

दूषणोऽभ्यपतद् रामं क्रूरकर्मा निशाचरः ॥ १२ ॥

Tightly grasping that club, which appeared like a large serpent, Dūṣaṇa, an ogre of cruel deeds, rushed at Śrī Rāma on the field of battle.

(12)

तस्याभिपतमानस्य दूषणस्य च राघवः ।

द्वाभ्यां शराभ्यां चिच्छेद सहस्ताभरणौ भुजौ ॥ १३ ॥

While Dūṣaṇa was darting at him, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) lopped off with a pair of arrows both his arms with ornaments on the hands.

(13)

भ्रष्टस्तस्य महाकायः पपात रणमूर्धनि ।

परिघश्छिन्नहस्तस्य शक्रध्वज इवाग्रतः ॥ १४ ॥

Loosed from his grasp, the colossal club of Dūṣaṇa, whose arms had been severed (from his body), dropped in the van of the fight like a banner raised in honour of Indra.

(14)

कराभ्यां च विकीर्णाभ्यां पपात भुवि दूषणः ।

विषाणाभ्यां विशीर्णाभ्यां मनस्वीव महागजः ॥ १५ ॥

Alongwith his severed arms Dūṣaṇa fell on the ground like a proud lordly elephant with up-rooted tusks.

(15)

दृष्ट्वा तं पतितं भूमौ दूषणं निहतं रणे ।

साधु साध्विति काकुत्स्थं सर्वभूतान्यपूजयन् ॥ १६ ॥

Seeing the celebrated Dūṣaṇa killed in battle and fallen on the ground, all beings present there acclaimed Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha) saying "Well-done ! Bravo !"

(16)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे क्रुद्धास्त्रयः सेनाग्रयायिनः ।

संहत्याभ्यद्रवन् रामं मृत्युपाशावपाशिताः ॥ १७ ॥

महाकपालः स्थूलाक्षः प्रमाथी च महाबलः ।

महाकपालो विपुलं शूलमुद्यम्य राक्षसः ॥ १८ ॥

स्थूलाक्षः पट्टिशं गृह्य प्रमाथी च परश्वधम् ।

दृष्ट्वैवापततस्तास्तु राघवः सायकैः शितैः ॥ १९ ॥

तीक्ष्णाग्रैः प्रतिजग्राह सम्प्राप्तानतिथीनिव ।

महाकपालस्य शिरश्छिच्छेद रघुनन्दनः ॥ २० ॥

असंख्येयैस्तु बाणौघैः प्रमथ्य प्रमाथिनम् ।

स्थूलाक्षस्याक्षिणी स्थूले पूरयामास सायकैः ॥ २१ ॥

In the meanwhile, three generals (who marched in the van of the army)—Mahākāpāla, Sthūlākṣa and Pramāthī, who was possessed of great might—rushed towards Śrī Rāma together, bound as they were with the noose of Death, the ogre Mahākāpāla lifting a huge pike, Sthūlākṣa holding a scimitar and Pramāthī an axe. Seeing them approaching, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for his part greeted them with whetted and sharp-edged arrows as one would receive newcomers arrived in one's presence. Śrī Rāma (the delight of the Raghus) severed the head of Mahākāpāla, overpowered Pramāthī with innumerable volleys of arrows and filled the large eyes of Sthūlākṣa with arrows. (17—21)

स पपात हतो भूमौ विटपीव महाद्रुमः ।
दूषणस्यानुगान् पञ्चसाहस्रान् कुपितः क्षणात् ॥ २२ ॥
हत्वा तु पञ्चसाहस्रैरनयद् यमसादनम् ।
दूषणं निहतं श्रुत्वा तस्य चैव पदानुगान् ॥ २३ ॥
व्यादिदेश खरः क्रुद्धः सेनाध्यक्षान् महाबलान् ।
अयं विनिहतः संख्ये दूषणः सपदानुगः ॥ २४ ॥
महत्या सेनया सार्धं युद्ध्वा रामं कुमानुषम् ।
शस्त्रैर्नानाविधाकारैर्हनध्वं सर्वराक्षसाः ॥ २५ ॥

Having been killed, the trio dropped down on the ground like a large tree with branches. Striking the five thousand followers of Dūṣaṇa with an equal number of arrows, the angry Śrī Rāma for his part despatched them to the abode of death. Enraged to hear of Dūṣaṇa and of those following at his heels having been killed, Khara commanded the generals of his army, who were possessed of great might, as follows : “Here is Dūṣaṇa slain in battle as well as all those who followed at his heels. Giving battle to Rāma, the wretched human being, with your mighty army, let you all ogres kill him with the weapons of various shapes.” (22—25)

एवमुक्त्वा खरः क्रुद्धो राममेवाभिदुद्रुवे ।
श्येनगामी पृथुग्रीवो यज्ञशत्रुर्विहंगमः ॥ २६ ॥
दुर्जयः करवीराक्षः परुषः कालकार्मुकः ।
हेममाली महामाली सर्पास्यो रुधिराशनः ॥ २७ ॥

द्वादशैते महावीर्या बलाध्यक्षाः ससैनिकाः ।
राममेवाभ्यधावन्त विसृजन्तः शरोत्तमान् ॥ २८ ॥

Saying so, the angry Khara attacked Rāma at once. Nay, Śyenagāmī, Pṛthugrīva, Yajñaśatru, Vihaṅgama, Durjaya, Karavirākṣa, Paruṣa, Kālakārmuka, Hemamālī, Mahāmālī, Sarpāsya and Rudhirāśana—these twelve generals also, who were possessed of extraordinary prowess, together with the rank and file attacked Rāma together, discharging the best of arrows. (26—28)

ततः पावकसंकाशैर्हैमवज्रविभूषितैः ।
जघान शेषं तेजस्वी तस्य सैन्यस्य सायकैः ॥ २९ ॥

Then with his arrows encrusted with gold and diamonds, and shining like flames the glorious Rāma destroyed the remnant of Khara's army. (29)

ते रुक्मपुङ्ख विशिखाः सधूमा इव पावकाः ।
निजघ्नुस्तानि रक्षांसि वज्रा इव महाद्रुमान् ॥ ३० ॥

Those arrows with golden feathers, which shone like flames emitting smoke, made short work of those ogres even as thunderbolts destroy large trees. (30)

रक्षसां तु शतं रामः शतेनैकेन कर्णिना ।
सहस्रं तु सहस्रेण जघान रणमूर्धनि ॥ ३१ ॥

In the van of the fight Śrī Rāma despatched a hundred ogres with a hundred arrows and a thousand ogres with a thousand all at once. (31)

तैर्भिन्नवर्माभरणाश्छिन्नभिन्नशरासनाः ।
निपेतुः शोणितादिग्धा धरण्यां रजनीचराः ॥ ३२ ॥

With their coats of mail and ornaments shattered and bows split into two and broken and themselves besmeared with blood, the night-stalkers dropped on the ground. (32)

तैर्मुक्तकेशैः समरे पतितैः शोणितोक्षितैः ।
विस्तीर्णा वसुधा कृत्स्ना महावेदिः कुशैरिव ॥ ३३ ॥

Like a large sacrificial altar with blades of the sacred Kuśa grass, the whole area was completely strewn with the ogres fallen bathed in blood, with dishevelled hair on the battlefield. (33)

तत्क्षणे तु महाघोरं वनं निहतराक्षसम्।
बभूव निरयप्रख्यं मांसशोणितकर्दमम् ॥ ३४ ॥

Covered with corpses of the slain ogres, the forest, which had been rendered muddy with blood and flesh, appeared most ghastly like a veritable hell. (34)

चतुर्दशसहस्राणि रक्षसां भीमकर्मणाम्।
हतान्येकेन रामेण मानुषेण पदातिना ॥ ३५ ॥

Fourteen thousand ogres of terrible deeds were killed by Rāma, a human being, fighting on foot, single-handed. (35)

तस्य सैन्यस्य सर्वस्य खरः शेषो महारथः।
राक्षसस्त्रिशिराश्चैव रामश्च रिपुसूदनः ॥ ३६ ॥

Out of that entire army, the great car-warrior Khara as also the ogre Triśirā and (its exterminator) Śrī Rāma, the slayer of his foes, survived. (36)

शेषा हता महावीर्या राक्षसा रणमूर्धनि।
घोरा दुर्विषहाः सर्वे लक्ष्मणस्याग्रजेन ते ॥ ३७ ॥

The other ogres, who were well-known, possessed of great prowess, fierce and hard to encounter, were all killed by the elder brother of Lakṣmaṇa in the van of the fight. (37)

ततस्तु तद्धीमबलं महाहवे
समीक्ष्य रामेण हतं बलीयसा।
रथेन रामं महता खरस्ततः
समाससादेन्द्र इवोद्यताशनिः ॥ ३८ ॥

Then, perceiving that terrible army killed in a major conflict by Śrī Rāma, who proved superior in strength (when matched with the entire host), Khara then rode in a large chariot like Indra with his thunderbolt uplifted, and attacked Śrī Rāma from where he was. (38)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे षड्विंशः सर्गः ॥ २६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-six in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXVII

Rāma kills Triśirā

खरं तु रामाभिमुखं प्रयान्तं वाहिनीपतिः।
राक्षसस्त्रिशिरा नाम संनिपत्येदमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Approaching Khara who was marching to meet Śrī Rāma, his other general, the ogre Triśirā, for his part, spoke as follows :

(1)

मां नियोजय विक्रान्तं त्वं निवर्तस्व साहसात्।
पश्य रामं महाबाहुं संयुगे विनिपातितम् ॥ २ ॥

“Command me, your valiant general, to take the field and cease you from the daring act. See the mighty-armed Rāma thrown down in an encounter. (2)

प्रतिजानामि ते सत्यमायुधं चाहमालभे।
यथा रामं वधिष्यामि वधार्हं सर्वरक्षसाम् ॥ ३ ॥

“I take an unfailing vow before you and swear by my weapon that I shall surely kill Rāma, who deserves death at the hands of all the ogres. (3)

अहं वास्य रणे मृत्युरेष वा समरे मम।
विनिवर्त्य रणोत्साहं मुहूर्तं प्राश्रिको भव ॥ ४ ॥

“Either I shall prove to be his death on the battlefield or he will be my death in battle. Therefore, curbing your martial ardour stand aloof as a judge awhile. (4)

प्रहृष्टो वा हते रामे जनस्थानं प्रयास्यसि।
मयि वा निहते रामं संयुगाय प्रयास्यसि ॥ ५ ॥

“You will either return to Janasthāna highly delighted in the event of Rāma being killed by me or in the event of my being slain, you will march against Rāma for an engagement with him.” (5)

खरस्त्रिशिरसा तेन मृत्युलोभात् प्रसादितः।
गच्छ युध्येत्यनुज्ञातो राघवाभिमुखो ययौ ॥ ६ ॥

When Khara was won over by the said Triśirā due to his being covetous of death at the hands of Śrī Rāma, and Triśirā was granted leave in the words “Go, fight”, the latter proceeded towards Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu. (6)

त्रिशिरास्तु रथेनैव वाजियुक्तेन भास्वता।
अभ्यद्रवद् रणे रामं त्रिशृङ्ग इव पर्वतः ॥ ७ ॥

Triśirā, for his part, who with his three heads looked like a three-peaked mountain, drove in a glittering chariot drawn by horses against Śrī Rāma on the field of battle. (7)

शरधारासमूहान् स महामेघ इवोत्सृजन्।
व्यसृजत् सदृशं नादं जलार्द्रस्येव दुन्दुभेः ॥ ८ ॥

Pouring volleys of arrows like a huge cloud, he uttered a roar like the crash of a drum drenched with water. (8)

आगच्छन्तं त्रिशिरसं राक्षसं प्रेक्ष्य राघवः।
धनुषा प्रतिजग्राह विधुन्वन् सायकान् शितान् ॥ ९ ॥

Perceiving the ogre Triśirā coming, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), greeted him with his bow discharging sharp arrows. (9)

स सम्प्रहारस्तुमुलो रामत्रिशिरसोस्तदा।
सम्बभूवातिबलिनोः सिंहकुञ्जरयोरिव ॥ १० ॥

That clash between Śrī Rāma and Triśirā, who were both possessed of great might, raged fiercely at that time like the clash between a lion and an elephant. (10)

ततस्त्रिशिरसा बाणैर्ललाटे ताडितस्त्रिभिः।
अमर्षी कुपितो रामः संरब्ध इदमब्रवीत् ॥ ११ ॥

Feeling provoked and excited when hit by Triśirā with three arrows on the forehead, the indignant Śrī Rāma spoke as follows : (11)

अहो विक्रमशूरस्य राक्षसस्येदृशं बलम्।
पुष्पैरिव शरैर्योऽहं ललाटेऽस्मि परिक्षतः ॥ १२ ॥

“O ! Such is the strength of this ogre who is brave in launching an offensive, and by whom I have been struck on the forehead with arrows like flowers ! (12)

ममापि प्रतिगृह्णीष्व शरांश्चापगुणाच्च्युतान्।
एवमुक्त्वा सुसंरब्धः शरानाशीविषोपमान् ॥ १३ ॥
त्रिशिरो वक्षसि क्रुद्धो निजघान चतुर्दश।
चतुर्भिस्तुरगानस्य शरैः संनतपर्वभिः ॥ १४ ॥
न्यपातयत तेजस्वी चतुरस्तस्य वाजिनः।
अष्टभिः सायकैः सूतं रथोपस्थे न्यपातयत् ॥ १५ ॥

“Now receive the arrows shot from my bow-string too.” Saying so, Śrī Rāma, who was highly excited and enraged discharged fourteen serpent-like arrows on the chest of Triśirā. With four arrows having bent nodes, the glorious Śrī Rāma struck down the four swift-footed horses of his chariot, while with eight more arrows he knocked down the charioteer on his very seat in the chariot. (13—15)

रामश्चिच्छेद बाणेन ध्वजं चास्य समुच्छ्रितम्।
ततो हतरथात् तस्मादुत्पतन्तं निशाचरम् ॥ १६ ॥
चिच्छेद रामस्तं बाणैर्हृदये सोऽभवज्जडः।
सायकैश्चाप्रमेयात्मा सामर्षस्तस्य रक्षसः ॥ १७ ॥
शिरांस्यपातयत् त्रीणि वेगवद्विस्त्रिभिः शरैः।
स धूमशोणितोद्गारी रामबाणाभिपीडितः ॥ १८ ॥
न्यपतत् पतितैः पूर्वं समरस्थो निशाचरः।
हतशेषास्ततो भग्ना राक्षसाः खरसंश्रयाः ॥ १९ ॥
द्रवन्ति स्म न तिष्ठन्ति व्याघ्रत्रस्ता मृगा इव।
तान् खरो द्रवतो दृष्ट्वा निवर्त्य रुषितस्वरन्।
राममेवाभिदुद्राव राहुश्चन्द्रमसं यथा ॥ २० ॥

Śrī Rāma further broke his tall ensign with an arrow. Then he pierced with arrows the ogre himself in his heart while he was jumping from his shattered chariot, so that he became motionless. Nay, full of indignation, Śrī Rāma

(of immeasurable prowess) struck off the three heads of that ogre with three swift arrows. Spurting steaming blood when thus mortally hurt by the shafts of Rāma, that night-stalker fell down where he stood on the field of battle, joining the company of his heads already fallen. Feeling disheartened the surviving ogres, who had taken shelter under the banner of Khara, took to their heels and did not tarry any more than the deer scared away by a tiger. Enraged to see them running away, and rallying them, Khara hurriedly rushed towards Rāma alone as the planet Rāhu assails the moon. (16—20)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे सप्तविंशः सर्गः ॥ २७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-seven in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टाविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXVIII

Śrī Rāma's encounter with Khara

निहतं दूषणं दृष्ट्वा रणे त्रिशिरसा सह।
खरस्याप्यभवत् त्रासो दृष्ट्वा रामस्य विक्रमम् ॥ १ ॥

Seeing Dūṣaṇa killed in battle together with Trīśirā, fear entered the mind of Khara too when he witnessed the prowess of Śrī Rāma. (1)

स दृष्ट्वा राक्षसं सैन्यमविषह्यं महाबलम्।
हतमेकेन रामेण दूषणस्त्रिशिरा अपि ॥ २ ॥
तद्बलं हतभूयिष्ठं विमनाः प्रेक्ष्य राक्षसः।
आससाद खरो रामं नमुचिर्वासवं यथा ॥ ३ ॥

Bewildered to see the very mighty and irresistible army of ogres as also Dūṣaṇa and Trīśirā killed by Rāma single-handed, and also perceiving most of the troops wiped out, the ogre Khara attacked Śrī Rāma as did the demon Namuci attack Indra. (2-3)

विकृष्य बलवच्चापं नाराचान् रक्तभोजनान्।
खरश्चिक्षेप रामाय क्रुद्धानाशीविषानिव ॥ ४ ॥

Pulling at full length his mighty bow, Khara discharged at Śrī Rāma blood-sucking arrows known by the name of Nārācas and resembling angry serpents. (4)

ज्यां विधुन्वन् सुबहुशः शिक्षयास्त्राणि दर्शयन्।
चचार समरे मार्गान् शरै रथगतः खरः ॥ ५ ॥

Shaking the string of his bow in numerous ways and displaying (the use of) mystic missiles by virtue of his military practice, Khara in his chariot rode on the battlefield employing devices with his arrows. (5)

स सर्वाश्च दिशो बाणैः प्रदिशश्च महारथः।
पूरयामास तं दृष्ट्वा रामोऽपि सुमहद् धनुः ॥ ६ ॥

That great chariot-warrior filled all the quarters as also the intermediate points with arrows. Seeing him, Śrī Rāma also took up his very mighty bow. (6)

स सायकैर्दुर्विषहैर्विस्फुलिङ्गैरिवाग्निभिः।
नभश्चकाराविवरं पर्जन्य इव वृष्टिभिः ॥ ७ ॥

He covered the entire sky with his formidable arrows resembling sparks of fire as does the god of rain with showers. (7)

तद् बभूव शितैर्बाणैः खररामविसर्जितैः।
पर्याकाशमनाकाशं सर्वतः शरसंकुलम् ॥ ८ ॥

Thickly set with arrows on all sides because of the sharp arrows discharged both by Khara and Śrī Rāma, the sky round about them was left without any empty space. (8)

शरजालावृतः सूर्यो न तदा स्म प्रकाशते।
अन्योन्यवधसंरम्भादुभयोः सम्प्रयुध्यतोः ॥ ९ ॥

Screened by the network of arrows discharged by both the warriors, who were fiercely fighting in their zeal to kill each other, the sun was not visible at that time. (9)

ततो नालीकनाराचैस्तीक्ष्णाग्रैश्च विकर्णिभिः ।

आजघान रणे रामं तोत्रैरिव महाद्विपम् ॥ १० ॥

Then, like one striking a lordly elephant with a goad, Khara hit Śrī Rāma with arrows of various kinds such as, Nālikas, Nārācas and sharp-pointed Vikarṇis on the field of battle. (10)

तं रथस्थं धनुष्याणिं राक्षसं पर्यवस्थितम् ।

ददृशुः सर्वभूतानि पाशहस्तमिवान्तकम् ॥ ११ ॥

All created beings saw that ogre rooted firmly in his chariot, bow in hand, like Death himself with a noose in his hand. (11)

हन्तारं सर्वसैन्यस्य पौरुषे पर्यवस्थितम् ।

परिश्रान्तं महासत्त्वं मेने रामं खरस्तदा ॥ १२ ॥

At that time Khara thought Śrī Rāma, the destroyer of his entire army, who was possessed of great might and intent on heroism, to be dead tired. (12)

तं सिंहमिव विक्रान्तं सिंहविक्रान्तगामिनम् ।

दृष्ट्वा नोद्विजते रामः सिंहः क्षुद्रमृगं यथा ॥ १३ ॥

Śrī Rāma, however, did not feel perturbed in the least to see him bold as a lion and striding like one, any more than a lion would feel perturbed to see a small deer. (13)

ततः सूर्यनिकाशेन रथेन महता खरः ।

आससादाथ तं रामं पतङ्ग इव पावकम् ॥ १४ ॥

Then, in a large chariot blazing as the sun, Khara approached the celebrated Śrī Rāma even, as a moth would approach a fire. (14)

ततोऽस्य सशरं चापं मुष्टिदेशे महात्मनः ।

खरश्चिच्छेद रामस्य दर्शयन् हस्तलाघवम् ॥ १५ ॥

Thereupon, displaying his dexterity of hand, Khara split the bow along with the arrow near the fist of the high-souled Śrī Rāma. (15)

स पुनस्त्वपरान् सप्त शरानादाय मर्मणि ।

निजघान रणे क्रुद्धः शक्राशनिसमप्रभान् ॥ १६ ॥

Again, taking seven more arrows, shining brightly as the thunderbolt of Indra, Khara, for his part, angrily discharged them at the vital parts of Śrī Rāma on the battle field. (16)

ततः शरसहस्रेण राममप्रतिमौजसम् ।

अर्दयित्वा महानादं ननाद समरे खरः ॥ १७ ॥

Then, hurting Śrī Rāma of unparalleled prowess with a thousand arrows, Khara uttered a loud roar on the battlefield. (17)

ततस्तत्प्रहतं बाणैः खरमुक्तैः सुपर्वभिः ।

पपात कवचं भूमौ रामस्यादित्यवर्चसम् ॥ १८ ॥

Hit hard by the smooth-knobbed arrows discharged by Khara, the well-known armour of Śrī Rāma, bright like the sun, thereupon fell on the ground. (18)

स शरैरर्पितः क्रुद्धः सर्वगात्रेषु राघवः ।

रराज समरे रामो विधूमोऽग्निरिव ज्वलन् ॥ १९ ॥

Getting enraged when pierced with arrows all over his limbs, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) shone on the battlefield like a smokeless burning fire. (19)

ततो गम्भीरनिर्ह्रादं रामः शत्रुनिर्बहणः ।

चकारान्ताय स रिपोः सज्यमन्यन्महद्भुः ॥ २० ॥

Then Śrī Rāma, the exterminator of his foes, strung another mighty bow, which made a deep sound, to bring about the end of his enemy. (20)

सुमहद् वैष्णवं यत् तदतिसृष्टं महर्षिणा ।

वरं तद् धनुरुद्यम्य खरं समभिधावत ॥ २१ ॥

Raising that excellent and very mighty bow belonging to Lord Viṣṇu, that had been gifted by the eminent sage, Agastya, he darted towards Khara. (21)

ततः कनकपुङ्खैस्तु शरैः संनतपर्वभिः ।

चिच्छेद रामः संक्रुद्धः खरस्य समरे ध्वजम् ॥ २२ ॥

Then, highly enraged, Śrī Rāma cut down the ensign of Khara on the battle-field by means of gold-feathered arrows with level nodes. (22)

स दर्शनीयो बहुधा विच्छिन्नः काञ्चनो ध्वजः ।
जगाम धरणीं सूर्यो देवतानामिवाज्ञया ॥ २३ ॥

Split into many parts, that attractive gold ensign fell down on the earth like the sun at the command (imprecation) of gods. (23)

तं चतुर्भिः खरः क्रुद्धो रामं गात्रेषु मार्गणैः ।
विव्याध हृदि मर्मज्ञो मातङ्गमिव तोमरैः ॥ २४ ॥

With four arrows the angry Khara, who was aware of the vulnerable parts in a body, hit Rāma in his various limbs and particularly in his heart even as one would strike an elephant with javelins. (24)

स रामो बहुभिर्बाणैः खरकार्मुकनिःसृतैः ।
विद्धो रुधिरसिक्ताङ्गो बभूव रुषितो भृशम् ॥ २५ ॥

The aforesaid Śrī Rāma felt highly enraged when pierced with many arrows released from the bow of Khara and bathed in blood all over his body. (25)

स धनुर्धन्विनां श्रेष्ठः संगृह्य परमाहवे ।
मुमोच परमेष्वासः षट् शरानभिलक्षितान् ॥ २६ ॥

Grasping firmly his bow in that great battle, Śrī Rāma, the foremost of bowmen, who wielded a great bow, discharged six well-aimed arrows. (26)

शिरस्येकेन बाणेन द्वाभ्यां बाह्वोरथार्पयत् ।
त्रिभिश्चन्द्रार्धवक्त्रैश्च वक्षस्यभिजघान ह ॥ २७ ॥

They say he pierced Khara in the head with one arrow, with two more the arms, and with three crescent-headed arrows hit him hard in the chest. (27)

ततः पश्चान्महातेजा नाराचान् भास्करोपमान् ।
जघान राक्षसं क्रुद्धस्त्रयोदश शिलाशितान् ॥ २८ ॥

After that Śrī Rāma, who was exceptionally glorious, discharged at the ogre thirteen arrows whetted on the stone and blazing like the sun. (28)

रथस्य युगमेकेन चतुर्भिः शबलान् हयान् ।
षष्ठेन च शिरः संख्ये चिच्छेद खरसारथे ॥ २९ ॥

With one arrow he cut down the yoke of the chariot; with four, the spotted horses and with the sixth he cut off the head of Khara's charioteer on the battle-field. (29)

त्रिभिस्त्रिवेणून् बलवान् द्वाभ्यामक्षं महाबलः ।
द्वादशेन तु बाणेन खरस्य सशरं धनुः ॥ ३० ॥
छित्त्वा वज्रनिकाशेन राघवः प्रहसन्निव ।
त्रयोदशेनेन्द्रसमो बिभेद समरे खरम् ॥ ३१ ॥

Having cut down with three arrows the three shafts supporting the yoke, with two the axle and with the twelfth, which shone brightly like a thunderbolt, the bow and the arrow of Khara, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for his part, who was possessed of exceptional might and looked like Indra, pierced Khara in the heart as though laughing on the battle-field with the thirteenth.
(30-31)

प्रभग्रधन्वा विरथो हताश्वो हतसारथिः ।
गदापाणिरवप्लुत्य तस्थौ भूमौ खरस्तदा ॥ ३२ ॥

Then, jumping down, Khara, who was deprived of his chariot and had his bow shattered, horses killed and charioteer slain, stood on the ground mace in hand. (32)

तत् कर्म रामस्य महारथस्य
समेत्य देवाश्च महर्षयश्च ।
अपूजयन् प्राञ्जलयः प्रहृष्टा-
स्तदा विमानाग्रगताः समेताः ॥ ३३ ॥

Collecting in the fore-part of their aerial cars at that time, gods and eminent Ṛṣis too, who felt highly rejoiced, applauded in a body with joined palms that feat of Śrī Rāma, the great car-warrior. (33)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डेऽष्टाविंशः सर्गः ॥ २८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-eight in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनत्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXIX

Exchange of hot words between Khara and Śrī Rāma

खरं तु विरथं रामो गदापाणिमवस्थितम् ।
मृदुपूर्वं महातेजाः परुषं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Śrī Rāma, for his part, who was possessed of exceptional glory, addressed to Khara, who, having been deprived of his chariot, stood below, mace in hand, the following harsh words, though preceded by soft words: (1)

गजाश्वरथसम्बाधे बले महति तिष्ठता ।
कृतं ते दारुणं कर्म सर्वलोकजुगुप्सितम् ॥ २ ॥

“Presiding over a huge army crowded with elephants, horses and chariots, a ruthless course of action despised by all people has been adopted by you. (2)

उद्वेजनीयो भूतानां नृशंसः पापकर्मकृत् ।
त्रयाणामपि लोकानामीश्वरोऽपि न तिष्ठति ॥ ३ ॥

“He who oppresses all created beings, is hard-hearted and perpetrates sinful deeds does not survive, be he the ruler of all the three worlds. (3)

कर्म लोकविरुद्धं तु कुर्वाणं क्षणदाचर ।
तीक्ष्णं सर्वजनो हन्ति सर्पं दुष्टमिवागतम् ॥ ४ ॥

“Everyone, O night-stalker, injures him who adopts a severe course of action running counter to the interests of the people, as one strikes a wicked serpent arrived near. (4)

लोभात् पापानि कुर्वाणः कामाद् वा यो न बुध्यते ।
हृष्टः पश्यति तस्यान्तं ब्राह्मणी करकादिव ॥ ५ ॥

“He who does not awaken even though committing sins through greed or concupiscence, and feels delighted in doing so, sees with his own eyes the end of his sinful deeds alongwith his own as a Brāhmaṇī (a kind of venomless lizard) perceives its own end through the eating of hailstones. (5)

वसतो दण्डकारण्ये तापसान् धर्मचारिणः ।
किं नु हत्वा महाभागान् फलं प्राप्स्यसि राक्षस ॥ ६ ॥

“What reward on earth will you get by killing highly blessed ascetics living in the Daṇḍaka forest and practising virtue, O ogre ! (6)

न चिरं पापकर्माणः क्रूरा लोकजुगुप्सिताः ।
ऐश्वर्यं प्राप्य तिष्ठन्ति शीर्णमूला इव द्रुमाः ॥ ७ ॥

“Even on attaining lordship, cruel men perpetrating sinful deeds and despised by the people cannot live long any more than trees with rotten roots. (7)

अवश्यं लभते कर्ता फलं पापस्य कर्मणः ।
घोरं पर्यागते काले द्रुमः पुष्पमिवार्तवम् ॥ ८ ॥

“The perpetrator of a sinful deed inevitably reaps its terrible consequence when the time comes, even as a tree puts forth its blossom in the proper season. (8)

नचिरात् प्राप्यते लोके पापानां कर्मणां फलम् ।
सविषाणामिवान्नानां भुक्तानां क्षणदाचर ॥ ९ ॥

“The fruit of one’s sinful deeds, O night-stalker, is reaped not long after like that of poisoned foods eaten. (9)

पापमाचरतां घोरं लोकस्याप्रियमिच्छताम् ।
अहमासादितो राज्ञा प्राणान् हन्तुं निशाचर ॥ १० ॥

“I have been deputed by the king, my father, O night-stalker, to take the lives of those who commit terrible sins and wish evil to the people. (10)

अद्य भित्त्वा मया मुक्ताः शराः काञ्चनभूषणाः ।
विदार्यातिपतिष्यन्ति वल्मीकमिव पन्नगाः ॥ ११ ॥

“Penetrating through your body and rending the earth, the arrows decked with gold discharged by me today will reach beyond the earth to the subterranean regions like serpents entering the ant-hill. (11)

ये त्वया दण्डकारण्ये भक्षिता धर्मचारिणः ।
तानद्य निहतः संख्ये ससैन्योऽनुगमिष्यसि ॥ १२ ॥

“Killed in battle today, you will follow with your army those ascetics of pious deeds who have been eaten by you in the Daṇḍaka forest. (12)

अद्य त्वां निहतं बाणैः पश्यन्तु परमर्षयः ।
निरयस्थं विमानस्था ये त्वया निहताः पुरा ॥ १३ ॥

“Let those great sages who were killed by you in the past see you from their aerial cars killed with my arrows and rotting in hell. (13)

प्रहरस्व यथाकामं कुरु यत्नं कुलाधम ।
अद्य ते पातयिष्यामि शिरस्तालफलं यथा ॥ १४ ॥

“Strike as you will and do your best, O the disgrace of your race ! I shall this very day strike down your head like a palm fruit.” (14)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण क्रुद्धः संरक्तलोचनः ।
प्रत्युवाच ततो रामं प्रहसन् क्रोधमूर्च्छितः ॥ १५ ॥

Enraged when spoken to as aforesaid, and laughing heartily, Khara, who was beside himself with anger, then replied as follows with blood-red eyes to Śrī Rāma: (15)

प्राकृतान् राक्षसान् हत्वा युद्धे दशरथात्मज ।
आत्मना कथमात्मानमप्रशस्यं प्रशंससि ॥ १६ ॥

“Having killed ordinary ogres on the battle-field, O son of Daśaratha, how are you extolling yourself, though unworthy of praise? (16)

विक्रान्ता बलवन्तो वा ये भवन्ति नरर्षभाः ।
कथयन्ति न ते किञ्चित् तेजसा चातिगर्विताः ॥ १७ ॥

“Those jewels among men, who are brave or mighty, do not speak anything about themselves, puffed up with pride of valour. (17)

प्राकृतास्त्वकृतात्मानो लोके क्षत्रियपांसनाः ।
निरर्थकं विकथ्यन्ते यथा राम विकथ्यसे ॥ १८ ॥

“Only the vulgar, who have not subdued the self and are a disgrace to the Kṣatriyas in the world, brag in vain as you do, O Rāma ! (18)

कुलं व्यपदिशन् वीरः समरे कोऽभिधास्यति ।
मृत्युकाले तु सम्प्राप्ते स्वयमप्रस्तवे स्तवम् ॥ १९ ॥

“In the course of a battle when the hour of death is at hand what heroic man indeed will utter his own praise without any occasion for it, mentioning his own race? (19)

सर्वथा तु लघुत्वं ते कथ्यनेन विदर्शितम् ।
सुवर्णप्रतिरूपेण तस्मैनेव कुशाग्रिना ॥ २० ॥

“Through self-praise baseness alone has been exhibited by you in every way, as is done by brass (bearing the semblance of gold) when heated in fire lighted for the purpose of refining gold. (20)

न तु मामिह तिष्ठन्तं पश्यसि त्वं गदाधरम् ।
धराधरमिवाकम्प्यं पर्वतं धातुभिश्चितम् ॥ २१ ॥

“You do not see me wielding a mace and standing immovable like a principal mountain holding the earth in balance and enriched with minerals ! (21)

पर्याप्तोऽहं गदापाणिर्हन्तुं प्राणान् रणे तव ।
त्रयाणामपि लोकानां पाशहस्त इवान्तकः ॥ २२ ॥

“Like Yama (the god of death) standing noose in hand, I, who hold a mace in hand, am strong enough to take your life as also the life of the inhabitants of all the three worlds. (22)

कामं बह्वपि वक्तव्यं त्वयि वक्ष्यामि न त्वहम् ।
अस्तं प्राप्नोति सविता युद्धविघ्नस्ततो भवेत् ॥ २३ ॥

“Even though there is much to be said about you, I shall not speak more; for the sun is setting and interruption may be caused thereby in the combat. (23)

चतुर्दश सहस्राणि राक्षसानां हतानि ते ।
त्वद्विनाशात् करोम्यद्य तेषामश्रुप्रमार्जनम् ॥ २४ ॥

“Fourteen thousand ogres stand killed by you. By bringing about your destruction I shall avenge their death and wipe away the tears of their dear ones.” (24)

इत्युक्त्वा परमक्रुद्धः स गदां परमाङ्गदाम्।
खरश्चिक्षेप रामाय प्रदीप्तामशनिं यथा ॥ २५ ॥

Saying so and getting highly enraged, he hurled his mace adorned with excellent gold rings and resembling a blazing thunderbolt at Śrī Rāma. (25)

खरबाहुप्रमुक्ता सा प्रदीप्ता महती गदा।
भस्म वृक्षांश्च गुल्मांश्च कृत्वागात् तत्समीपतः ॥ २६ ॥

Reducing to ashes the intervening trees and shrubs, that huge and blazing mace released from the hands of Khara drew near Śrī Rāma. (26)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे एकोनत्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ २९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-nine in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXX

Rāma kills Khara. Gods and sages applaud Him

भित्त्वा तु तां गदां बाणै राघवो धर्मवत्सलः।
स्मयमान इदं वाक्यं संरब्धमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Having shattered that mace with arrows,
Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, for his part, who was fond of virtue, smilingly uttered the following furious words : (1)

एतत् ते बलसर्वस्वं दर्शितं राक्षसाधम।
शक्तिहीनतरो मत्तो वृथा त्वमुपगर्जसि ॥ २ ॥

“Is this the totality of your strength that you have exhibited, O vile ogre? Though much deficient in strength as compared to me, you brag in vain ! (2)

एषा बाणविनिर्भिन्ना गदा भूमितलं गता।
अभिधानप्रगल्भस्य तव प्रत्ययघातिनी ॥ ३ ॥

“Fallen to the ground when split into pieces by my arrows, this mace of yours, you being bold in braggadocio alone, has dashed to pieces the confidence reposed in it by you. (3)

तामापतन्तीं महतीं मृत्युपाशोपमां गदाम्।
अन्तरिक्षगतां रामश्चिच्छेद बहुधा शरैः ॥ २७ ॥

With his arrows Śrī Rāma split into pieces that huge mace, resembling the noose of Yama in its deadly action even as it came flying and while it was yet in the air. (27)

सा विशीर्णा शरैर्भिन्ना पपात धरणीतले।
गदा मन्त्रौषधिबलैर्व्यालीव विनिपातिता ॥ २८ ॥

Broken and smashed with the arrows, that mace fell on the ground like a female serpent thrown down by the power of charms and herbs. (28)

यत् त्वयोक्तं विनष्टानामिदमश्रुप्रमार्जनम्।
राक्षसानां करोमीति मिथ्या तदपि ते वचः ॥ ४ ॥

“Even the declaration that was made by you in the following words : ‘I hereby wipe away the tears of the relatives of the ogres killed in battle’ has proved false. (4)

नीचस्य क्षुद्रशीलस्य मिथ्यावृत्तस्य रक्षसः।
प्राणानपहरिष्यामि गरुत्मानमृतं यथा ॥ ५ ॥

“Even as Garuḍa, the king of birds, snatched away nectar from the custody of the gods in heaven, I shall take away the life of the vile ogre that you are, mean of nature and immoral of conduct. (5)

अद्य ते भिन्नकण्ठस्य फेनबुद्बुदभूषितम्।
विदारितस्य मदबाणैर्मही पास्यति शोणितम् ॥ ६ ॥

“The earth will quaff your blood enriched with foam and bubbles, when your throat has been pierced and your body torn with my shafts. (6)

पांसुरुषितसर्वाङ्गः स्वस्तन्यस्तभुजद्वयः ।
स्वप्स्यसे गां समाश्लिष्य दुर्लभां प्रमदामिव ॥ ७ ॥

“Closely embracing the earth like a young woman hard to win, you will lie asleep forever covered with dust all over the body, with both of your arms severed. (7)

प्रवृद्धनिद्रे शयिते त्वयि राक्षसपांसने ।
भविष्यन्ति शरण्यानां शरण्या दण्डका इमे ॥ ८ ॥

“When you, the disgrace of the ogres, are laid in protracted slumber, this Daṇḍaka forest will turn out to be a place of resort for sages, who afford shelter to all. (8)

जनस्थाने हतस्थाने तव राक्षस मच्छरैः ।
निर्भया विचरिष्यन्ति सर्वतो मुनयो वने ॥ ९ ॥

“When your abode in Janasthāna has been destroyed by my arrows, O ogre, ascetics will roam about fearlessly everywhere in the forest. (9)

अद्य विप्रसरिष्यन्ति राक्षस्यो हतबान्धवाः ।
बाष्पार्द्रवदना दीना भयादन्यभयावहाः ॥ १० ॥

“Ogresses who caused terror in others, will run away, afflicted through fear, from the Daṇḍaka forest today, their faces wet with tears, their kith and kin having been killed by me. (10)

अद्य शोकरसज्ञास्ता भविष्यन्ति निरर्थिकाः ।
अनुरूपकुलाः पत्यो यासां त्वं पतिरीदृशः ॥ ११ ॥

“Your wives, whose husband is of such immoral conduct as you and who are born of like families will taste the sentiment of pathos today, being deprived of all enjoyments coveted by all. (11)

नृशंसील क्षुद्रात्मन् नित्यं ब्राह्मणकण्टक ।
त्वत्कृते शङ्कितैरग्नौ मुनिभिः पात्यते हविः ॥ १२ ॥

“O ogre of cruel disposition and mean mentality, a standing thorn in the side of Brāhmaṇa, oblations are poured into the fire by ascetics full of apprehension on account of you.” (12)

तमेवमभिसंरब्धं ब्रुवाणं राघवं वने ।
खरो निर्भर्त्सयामास रोषात् खरतरस्वरः ॥ १३ ॥

Khara, whose voice waxed sterner due to wrath, censured in the following words Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, who was uttering such angry words in the forest : (13)

दृढं खल्ववलितोऽसि भयेष्वपि च निर्भयः ।
वाच्यावाच्यं ततो हि त्वं मृत्योर्वश्यो न बुध्यसे ॥ १४ ॥

कालपाशपरिक्षिप्ता भवन्ति पुरुषा हि ये ।
कार्याकार्यं न जानन्ति ते निरस्तषडिन्द्रियाः ॥ १५ ॥

“Surely you are excessively vainglorious and fearless even in the face of dangers. Evidently you are in the grip of death; that is why you cannot judge what should be spoken and what should not be spoken. Indeed men who are caught in the noose of Death can no longer distinguish what ought to be done and what ought not to be done, their senses and mind having been thrown out of order.” (14-15)

एवमुक्त्वा ततो रामं संरुध्य भृकुटिं ततः ।
स ददर्श महासालमविदूरे निशाचरः ॥ १६ ॥

रणे प्रहरणस्यार्थं सर्वतो ह्यवलोकयन् ।
स तमुत्पाटयामास संदष्टदशनच्छदम् ॥ १७ ॥

Speaking as aforesaid to Śrī Rāma and then knitting his eyebrows and further eagerly casting his eyes all round for some weapon to be used in the encounter, the said ogre saw a big sal tree not far off; and sharply biting his lips he uprooted it. (16-17)

तं समुत्क्षिप्य बाहुभ्यां विनर्दित्वा महाबलः ।
राममुद्दिश्य चिक्षेप हतस्त्वमिति चाब्रवीत् ॥ १८ ॥

Whirling it with his arms and loudly roaring, the ogre, who was possessed of extraordinary might, hurled it at Śrī Rāma and said, “You are killed.” (18)

तमापतन्तं बाणौघैश्छित्त्वा रामः प्रतापवान् ।
रोषमाहारयत् तीव्रं निहन्तुं समरे खरम् ॥ १९ ॥

Cutting down with his volleys of arrows the approaching tree, the glorious Śrī Rāma summoned violent anger to make short work of Khara in the battle. (19)

जातस्वेदस्ततो रामो रोषरक्तान्तलोचनः ।
निर्विभेद सहस्रेण बाणानां समरे खरम् ॥ २० ॥

Covered with perspiration due to anger and with the outer corners of his eyes reddened through anger, Śrī Rāma thereupon pierced Khara on the battlefield with a thousand arrows. (20)

तस्य बाणान्तराद् रक्तं बहु सुस्राव फेनिलम् ।
गिरेः प्रस्त्रवणस्येव धाराणां च परिस्रवः ॥ २१ ॥

Like the flow of torrents from Mount Prasravaṇa, copious foaming blood gushed forth from the cuts made in his body by the arrows. (21)

विकलः स कृतो बाणैः खरो रामेण संयुगे ।
मत्तो रुधिरगन्धेन तमेवाभ्यद्रवद् द्रुतम् ॥ २२ ॥

Rendered uneasy with his arrows by Śrī Rāma in battle, and maddened by the smell of blood indeed, Khara ran fast towards Śrī Rāma. (22)

तमापतन्तं संक्रुद्धं कृतास्त्रो रुधिराप्लुतम् ।
अपासर्पद् द्वित्रिपदं किञ्चित्त्वरितविक्रमः ॥ २३ ॥

Taking a bit hasty strides, Śrī Rāma, who was skilled in the use of missiles, retreated two or three steps in order to be able to strike Khara, who was rushing towards him, highly infuriated and bathed in blood. (23)

ततः पावकसंकाशं वधाय समरे शरम् ।
खरस्य रामो जग्राह ब्रह्मदण्डमिवापरम् ॥ २४ ॥

Then, for the destruction of Khara in battle, Śrī Rāma seized an arrow blazing like fire and looking like another rod of Brahmā, the creator. (24)

स तद् दत्तं मघवता सुरराजेन धीमता ।
संदधे च स धर्मात्मा मुमोच च खरं प्रति ॥ २५ ॥

Nay, the celebrated Śrī Rāma, whose mind was given to righteousness, fitted to his bow the said arrow gifted, through the medium of Sage Agastya, by the wise Indra, the ruler of gods, and discharged it towards Khara. (25)

स विमुक्तो महाबाणो निर्घातसमनिःस्वनः ।
रामेण धनुरायम्य खरस्योरसि चापतत् ॥ २६ ॥

Discharged with great vehemence by Śrī Rāma, stretching his bow, that mighty arrow hit the chest of Khara, making a thunder-like sound. (26)

स पपात खरो भूमौ दह्यमानः शराग्निना ।
रुद्रेणेव विनिर्दग्धः श्वेतारण्ये यथान्धकः ॥ २७ ॥

Being burnt by the fire of the arrow, the notorious Khara fell to the ground as did the demon Andhaka, entirely burnt by Lord Rudra (the god of destruction) in the Śweta forest. (27)

स वृत्र इव वज्रेण फेनेन नमुचिर्यथा ।
बलो वेन्द्राशनिहतो निपपात हतः खरः ॥ २८ ॥

Killed by Śrī Rāma with that arrow, as Vṛtra with a thunderbolt, Namuci with foam or Bala with a stroke of lightning by Indra, Khara fell down dead. (28)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे देवाश्चारणैः सह संगताः ।
दुन्दुभींश्चाभिनिघ्नन्तः पुष्पवर्ष समन्ततः ॥ २९ ॥

रामस्योपरि संहृष्टा ववर्षुर्विस्मितास्तदा ।
अर्धाधिकमुहूर्तेन रामेण निशितैः शरैः ॥ ३० ॥
चतुर्दश सहस्राणि रक्षसां कामरूपिणाम् ।
खरदूषणमुख्यानां निहतानि महामृधे ॥ ३१ ॥

In the meanwhile, united with the Cāraṇas (celestial bards) and loudly beating their large drums on all sides, gods, who felt greatly rejoiced and wonder-struck, rained a shower of flowers all round at that moment on Śrī Rāma. They said, 'In the course of an hour and a half fourteen thousand ogres, headed by Khara and Dūṣaṇa and capable of assuming any form at will, were got rid of with sharp arrows in a major operation. (29—31)

अहो बत महत्कर्म रामस्य विदितात्मनः ।
अहो वीर्यमहो दाढ्यं विष्णोरिव हि दृश्यते ॥ ३२ ॥

Ah, great indeed was the feat of Śrī

Rāma, the knower of the Self ! Wonderful is his prowess. Oh, his firmness too looks like that of Lord Viṣṇu !” (32)

इत्येवमुक्त्वा ते सर्वे ययुर्देवा यथागतम् ।
ततो राजर्षयः सर्वे संगताः परमर्षयः ॥ ३३ ॥
सभाज्य मुदिता रामं सागस्त्या इदमब्रुवन् ।
एतदर्थं महातेजा महेन्द्रः पाकशासनः ॥ ३४ ॥
शरभङ्गाश्रमं पुण्यमाजगाम पुरंदरः ।
आनीतस्त्वमिमं देशमुपायेन महर्षिभिः ॥ ३५ ॥
एषां वधार्थं शत्रूणां रक्षसां पापकर्मणाम् ।
तदिदं नः कृतं कार्यं त्वया दशरथात्मज ॥ ३६ ॥

Speaking as aforesaid, all those gods went as they had come. Hailing Śrī Rāma then, all the royal sages and great sages assembled, including Sage Agastya, who all felt rejoiced, spoke as follows : “For this very purpose of bringing about your sojourn in this area the great Indra, the subduer of the demon Pāka and the smasher of enemies’ fortresses, who is possessed of exceptional glory, visited the holy hermitage of Sage Śarabharṅga. You were brought to the region tactfully by great sages for compassing the extermination of their sworn enemies, the ogres of sinful deeds. This aforesaid purpose of ours has been accomplished by you O son of Daśaratha ! (33—36)

स्वधर्मं प्रचरिष्यन्ति दण्डकेषु महर्षयः ।
एतस्मिन्नन्तरे वीरो लक्ष्मणः सह सीतया ।
गिरिदुर्गाद् विनिष्क्रम्य संविवेशाश्रमे सुखी ॥ ३७ ॥
ततो रामस्तु विजयी पूज्यमानो महर्षिभिः ॥ ३८ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे त्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३० ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

प्रविवेशाश्रमं वीरो लक्ष्मणेनाभिपूजितः ।
तं दृष्ट्वा शत्रुहन्तारं महर्षीणां सुखावहम् ॥ ३९ ॥
बभूव हृष्टा वैदेही भर्तारं परिष्वजे ।
मुदा परमया युक्ता दृष्ट्वा रक्षोगणान् हतान् ।
रामं चैवाव्ययं दृष्ट्वा तुतोष जनकात्मजा ॥ ४० ॥

“The great sages will henceforward vigorously practise their devotions in the Daṇḍaka forest.” In the meantime, issuing forth from the mountain cavern, which was difficult of access, with Sītā, the valiant Lakṣmaṇa sat down in an easy posture in the hermitage. Being glorified by great sages and honoured in every way by Lakṣmaṇa, the victorious and heroic Śrī Rāma duly entered the hermitage. Seeing her husband, who had made short work of his enemies and brought happiness to the great sages, Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, felt rejoiced and embraced him. Nay, transported with supreme felicity to see the hordes of ogres killed, the daughter of Janaka, Sītā, felt gratified to find Śrī Rāma all well. (37—40)

ततस्तु तं राक्षससङ्घमर्दनं
सम्पूज्यमानं मुदितैर्महात्मभिः ।
पुनः परिष्वज्य मुदान्वितानना
बभूव हृष्टा जनकात्मजा तदा ॥ ४१ ॥

Then closely embracing once more that destroyer of the ogre-hordes, who was being highly extolled by exalted souls full of delight, the daughter of Janaka, Sītā, felt rejoiced, her countenance lit with joy. (41)

एकत्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXI

Rāvaṇa goes over to take away Sītā on the advice of Akampana and returns in deference to the advice of Mārīca

त्वरमाणस्ततो गत्वा जनस्थानादकम्पनः ।
प्रविश्य लङ्कां वेगेन रावणं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Then, proceeding in haste from Janasthāna and entering Laṅkā with speed the oge Akampana spoke as follows to Rāvaṇa : (1)

जनस्थानस्थिता राजन् राक्षसा बहवो हताः ।
खरश्च निहतः संख्ये कथंचिदहमागतः ॥ २ ॥

“O king, numerous ogres stationed in Janasthāna have been killed. Khara too is killed in battle. I have somehow contrived to come.” (2)

एवमुक्तो दशग्रीवः क्रुद्धः संरक्तलोचनः ।
अकम्पनमुवाचेदं निर्दहन्निव तेजसा ॥ ३ ॥

Enraged when spoken to as aforesaid, Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, with blood-red eyes spoke as follows to Akampana, as if he would consume him with his martial glory : (3)

केन भीमं जनस्थानं हतं मम परासुना ।
को हि सर्वेषु लोकेषु गतिं नाधिगमिष्यति ॥ ४ ॥

“By what man, whose life has virtually departed, has my Janasthāna, which was a source of terror to all, been devastated? Who dares antagonize me on pain of not getting shelter in all the worlds? (4)

न हि मे विप्रियं कृत्वा शक्यं मघवता सुखम् ।
प्राप्तुं वैश्रवणेनापि न यमेन च विष्णुना ॥ ५ ॥

“Giving offence to me no happiness can ever be found by Indra nor by Kubera (son of Sage Viśravā) nor by Yama (the god of death) nor even by Lord Viṣṇu (the Protector of the universe). (5)

कालस्य चाप्यहं कालो दहेयमपि पावकम् ।
मृत्युं मरणधर्मेण संयोजयितुमुत्सहे ॥ ६ ॥

“I am the death even of the time-spirit. I can burn even fire. I can invest Death with mortality. (6)

वातस्य तरसा वेगं निहन्तुमपि चोत्सहे ।
दहेयमपि संक्रुद्धस्तेजसाऽऽदित्यपावकौ ॥ ७ ॥

“When enraged, I can with my vigour arrest the speed even of wind and can burn with my fiery spirit the sun and the fire.” (7)

तथा क्रुद्धं दशग्रीवं कृताञ्जलिरकम्पनः ।
भयात् संदिग्धया वाचा रावणं याचतेऽभयम् ॥ ८ ॥

In a voice confused through fear Akampana with joined palms begged protection of Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, who angrily spoke as aforesaid. (8)

दशग्रीवोऽभयं तस्मै प्रददौ रक्षसां वरः ।
स विश्रब्धोऽब्रवीद् वाक्यमसंदिग्धमकम्पनः ॥ ९ ॥

Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster), the foremost of ogres, accordingly gave him an assurance of safety, whereupon the said Akampana confidently broke the following news in unambiguous terms : (9)

पुत्रो दशरथस्यास्ते सिंहसंहननो युवा ।
रामो नाम महास्कन्धो वृत्तायतमहाभुजः ॥ १० ॥
श्यामः पृथुयशाः श्रीमानतुल्यबलविक्रमः ।
हतस्तेन जनस्थाने खरश्च सहदूषणः ॥ ११ ॥

“There is a youthful son of Daśaratha, Rāma by name, well-built like a lion, broad-shouldered, with rounded long arms, dark-brown of hue, of wide renown, glorious and endowed with matchless strength and valour. By him even Khara, alongwith Dūṣaṇa, has been killed in the region known by the name of Janasthāna.” (10-11)

अकम्पनवचः श्रुत्वा रावणो राक्षसाधिपः ।
नागेन्द्र इव निःश्वस्य इदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १२ ॥

Hearing the report of Akampana, and hissing like a king-cobra, Rāvaṇa, the King of ogres, spoke as follows : (12)

स सुरेन्द्रेण संयुक्तो रामः सर्वामरैः सह ।
उपयातो जनस्थानं ब्रूहि कच्चिदकम्पन ॥ १३ ॥

“Speak, O Akampana, if that Rāma has come to Janasthāna accompanied by Indra (the ruler of gods) and all other gods.” (13)

रावणस्य पुनर्वाक्यं निशम्य तदकम्पनः ।
आचचक्षे बलं तस्य विक्रमं च महात्मनः ॥ १४ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid question of Rāvaṇa, Akampana once more described the strength and valour of that high-souled prince as follows : (14)

रामो नाम महातेजाः श्रेष्ठः सर्वधनुष्मताम् ।
दिव्यास्त्रगुणसम्पन्नः परं धर्मं गतो युधि ॥ १५ ॥

“Rāma is indeed possessed of exceptional glory, the foremost of all bowmen, and richly endowed with prominence attendant on skill in the use of celestial weapons and has reached the highest peak of valour in warfare. (15)

तस्यानुरूपो बलवान् रक्ताक्षो दुन्दुभिस्वनः ।
कनीयाँल्लक्ष्मणो भ्राता राकाशशिनिभाननः ॥ १६ ॥

“His younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, is his like in strength with reddish eyes, a voice resembling the sound of a large drum and a face shining bright as the full moon. (16)

स तेन सह संयुक्तः पावकेनानिलो यथा ।
श्रीमान् राजवरस्तेन जनस्थानं निपातितम् ॥ १७ ॥

“Conjoined with him, that brilliant jewel among princes, Rāma, resembles the wind united with fire; Janasthāna has been devastated by him alone. (17)

नैव देवा महात्मानो नात्र कार्या विचारणा ।
शरा रामेण तूत्सृष्टा रुक्मपुङ्गवः पतत्रिणः ॥ १८ ॥
सर्पाः पञ्चानना भूत्वा भक्षयन्ति स्म राक्षसान् ।
येन येन च गच्छन्ति राक्षसा भयकर्षिताः ॥ १९ ॥

तेन तेन स्म पश्यन्ति राममेवाग्रतः स्थितम् ।
इत्थं विनाशितं तेन जनस्थानं तवानघ ॥ २० ॥

“Certainly no high-minded gods have come with him: no anxiety should be harboured on this score. Turning into five-headed serpents, the golden-winged arrows provided with feathers of buzzards, discharged by Rāma, devoured the ogres. Whatever way the ogres, stricken with fear, went they beheld Rāma alone standing in front on that very way. In this manner, O sinless one, was your Janasthāna laid waste by him.” (18—20)

अकम्पनवचः श्रुत्वा रावणो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
गमिष्यामि जनस्थानं रामं हन्तुं सलक्ष्मणम् ॥ २१ ॥

Hearing the statement of Akampana Rāvaṇa replied as follows : “I shall proceed to Janasthāna to make short work of Rāma with Lakṣmaṇa.” (21)

अथैवमुक्ते वचने प्रोवाचेदमकम्पनः ।
शृणु राजन् यथावृत्तं रामस्य बलपौरुषम् ॥ २२ ॥

When these words were uttered by Rāvaṇa, Akampana spoke as follows: “Hear O king, of the might and valour of Rāma as it actually stands. (22)

असाध्यः कुपितो रामो विक्रमेण महायशाः ।
आपगायास्तु पूर्णाया वेगं परिहरेच्छ्रैः ॥ २३ ॥

सताराग्रहनक्षत्रं नभश्चाप्यवसादयेत् ।
असौ रामस्तु सीदन्तीं श्रीमानभ्युद्धरेन्महीम् ॥ २४ ॥

“When enraged, the highly illustrious Rāma is incapable of being tamed. He can with his arrows even stem the current of a flooded river, and pull down even the vault of heaven with its stars, planets and constellations. That glorious Rāma can even lift up the sinking earth. (23-24)

भित्त्वा वेलां समुद्रस्य लोकानाप्लावयेद् विभुः ।
वेगं वापि समुद्रस्य वायुं वा विधमेच्छ्रैः ॥ २५ ॥

“Breaking the limits of the ocean the powerful Rāma can deluge the worlds or even stem the tide of an ocean or scatter the wind with his arrows. (25)

संहृत्य वा पुनर्लोकान् विक्रमेण महायशः ।

शक्तः श्रेष्ठः स पुरुषः स्रष्टुं पुनरपि प्रजाः ॥ २६ ॥

“Or, again, dissolving the worlds by dint of his prowess, that highly illustrious and foremost man is capable of evolving the creation anew. (26)

नहि रामो दशग्रीव शक्यो जेतुं रणे त्वया ।

रक्षसां वापि लोकेन स्वर्गः पापजनैरिव ॥ २७ ॥

“Rāma, O Rāvaṇa, cannot in any case be conquered in battle by you, or even by the world of ogres any more than paradise can be won by sinful people. (27)

न तं वध्यमहं मन्ये सर्वैर्देवासुरैरपि ।

अयं तस्य वधोपायस्तन्ममैकमनाः शृणु ॥ २८ ॥

“I do not account him capable of being slain even by all the gods and demons taken together. The following is the only means of compassing his death. Hear of it from me with an undivided mind. (28)

भार्या तस्योत्तमा लोके सीता नाम सुमध्यमा ।

श्यामा समविभक्ताङ्गी स्त्रीरत्नं रत्नभूषिता ॥ २९ ॥

“His wife, Sītā by name, is the best woman in the world. Marked with a slender waist and well-proportioned limbs and adorned with jewels, she is in the full bloom of youth and the very jewel among women. (29)

नैव देवी न गन्धर्वी नाप्सरा न च पन्नगी ।

तुल्या सीमन्तिनी तस्या मानुषी तु कुतो भवेत् ॥ ३० ॥

“Certainly no Goddess, nor a Gandharva woman, nor a celestial nymph, nor a Nāga woman—in fact, no woman can be compared with her; how, then, can a human lady stand comparison with her? (30)

तस्यापहर भार्या त्वं तं प्रमथ्य महावने ।

सीतया रहितो रामो न चैव हि भविष्यति ॥ ३१ ॥

“Putting him off the scent in the great forest, take you away his wife by force. And bereft of Sītā, Rāma will no longer survive in any case.” (31)

अरोचयत तद्वाक्यं रावणो राक्षसाधिपः ।

चिन्तयित्वा महाबाहुरकम्पनमुवाच ह ॥ ३२ ॥

Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of the ogres, liked his suggestion. Pondering awhile, the mighty-armed ogre, so they say, spoke as follows to Akampana : (32)

बाढं कल्यं गमिष्यामि ह्येकः सारथिना सह ।

आनेष्यामि च वैदेहीमिमं हृष्टो महापुरीम् ॥ ३३ ॥

“All right ! Tomorrow morning I shall undoubtedly go alone with my charioteer and joyfully bring Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) to this great city.” (33)

तदेवमुक्त्वा प्रययौ खरयुक्तेन रावणः ।

रथेनादित्यवर्णेन दिशः सर्वाः प्रकाशयन् ॥ ३४ ॥

Speaking as aforesaid, Rāvaṇa sallied forth in a chariot bright as the sun and drawn by mules, illumining all the quarters. (34)

स रथो राक्षसेन्द्रस्य नक्षत्रपथगो महान् ।

चञ्चूर्यमाणः शुशुभे जलदे चन्द्रमा इव ॥ ३५ ॥

Coursing rapidly through the heavens (the path of the stars) that huge chariot of Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, shone like the moon behind a cloud. (35)

स दूरे चाश्रमं गत्वा ताटकेयमुपागमत् ।

मारीचेनार्चितो राजा भक्ष्यभोज्यैरमानुषैः ॥ ३६ ॥

Nay, reaching a hermitage in a distant place, he met Mārīca, the son of Tāṭakā. The king was entertained with foods worth masticating and those worth gulping, unknown to human beings. (36)

तं स्वयं पूजयित्वा तु आसनेनोदकेन च ।

अर्थोपहितया वाचा मारीचो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ३७ ॥

Honouring him personally by offering a seat and water (to wash his hands and feet and for rinsing his mouth with, Mārīca spoke to him as follows in words full of meaning: (37)

कच्चित् सकुशलं राजँल्लोकानां राक्षसाधिप ।

आशङ्के नाधिजाने त्वं यतस्तूर्णमुपागतः ॥ ३८ ॥

“I hope all is pretty well with the people in your kingdom, O monarch ! Since, however, you have approached me in haste

I am full of apprehension and do not anticipate that everything is quite well, O suzerain Lord of ogres.” (38)

एवमुक्तो महातेजा मारीचेन स रावणः ।

ततः पश्चादिदं वाक्यमब्रवीद् वाक्यकोविदः ॥ ३९ ॥

Spoken to in those words by Mārica the said Rāvaṇa, who was possessed of exceptional glory, and was adept in expression, then spoke as follows : (39)

आरक्षो मे हतस्तात रामेणाक्लिष्टकारिणा ।

जनस्थानमवध्यं तत् सर्वं युधि निपातितम् ॥ ४० ॥

“Khara and others (the soldiers guarding my frontiers) have been killed, O dear friend, by Rāma of unwearied action; nay, the entire colony of Janasthāna, which was hitherto incapable of being destroyed, has been exterminated in an encounter. (40)

तस्य मे कुरु साचिव्यं तस्य भार्यापहारणे ।

राक्षसेन्द्रवचः श्रुत्वा मारीचो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ४१ ॥

“Lend your co-operation to me as such in abducting his wife.” Hearing the request of Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, Mārica replied as follows : (41)

आख्याता केन वा सीता मित्ररूपेण शत्रुणा ।

त्वया राक्षसशार्दूल को न नन्दति नन्दितः ॥ ४२ ॥

“By what enemy, in the guise of a friend, has Sitā been mentioned to you as fit for abduction? Gladdened by you (through gifts etc.), O tiger among ogres, who does not rejoice in your welfare and wishes harm to you by putting you on the wrong track? (42)

सीतामिहानयस्वेति को ब्रवीति ब्रवीहि मे ।

रक्षोलोकस्य सर्वस्य कः शृङ्गं छेतुमिच्छति ॥ ४३ ॥

“Tell me, who says, ‘Bring Sitā to Laṅkā’? Who seeks to get rid of the top most figure of the ogre world? (43)

प्रोत्साहयति यश्च त्वां स च शत्रुरसंशयम् ।

आशीविषमुखाद् दंष्ट्रामुद्धर्तुं चेच्छति त्वया ॥ ४४ ॥

“Nay, whoever encourages you in this behalf is without doubt your enemy. Through you (as his tool) he desires to extract a fang from the jaws of a snake. (44)

कर्मणानेन केनासि कापथं प्रतिपादितः ।

सुखसुप्तस्य ते राजन् प्रहृतं केन मूर्धनि ॥ ४५ ॥

“By whom have you been led astray by suggesting to you this course of action? By whom, O king, has a blow been dealt on your head while you were lying asleep at ease? (45)

विशुद्धवंशाभिजनाग्रहस्त-

तेजोमदः संस्थितदोर्विषाणः ।

उदीक्षितुं रावण नेह युक्तः

स संयुगे राघवगन्धहस्ती ॥ ४६ ॥

“That elephant in rut (whose very scent scares away other elephants) in the form of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu)—whose birth in an immaculate lineage is his proboscis and whose glory is his temporal fluid, and whose shapely arms constitute his tusks—O Rāvaṇa, should not even be stared in the face in an encounter by you at this juncture. (46)

असौ रणान्तःस्थितिसंधिवालो

विदग्धरक्षोमृगहा नृसिंहः ।

सुप्तस्त्वया बोधयितुं न शक्यः

शराङ्गपूर्णो निशितासिदंष्ट्रः ॥ ४७ ॥

“That lion among men, whose presence in a field of battle constitutes his joints and hair, who kills animals in the form of ogres skilled in fighting, who is complete in point of his limbs in the form of arrows and whose sword constitutes his sharp teeth, dare not be aroused by you when asleep. (47)

चापापहारे

भुजवेगपङ्के

शरोर्मिमाळे

सुमहाहवौघे ।

न

रामपातालमुखेऽतिघोरे

प्रस्कन्दितुं राक्षसराज युक्तम् ॥ ४८ ॥

“It is not advisable for you, O king of ogres, to jump into the subterranean fire forming the most dreadful mouth of the fathomless ocean in the form of Rāma, which is infested with alligators in the form of his bow, whose bottom contains mire in the form of the might of his arms, which is rough with waves in the form of arrows and which contains waters in the form of a fierce battle. (48)

प्रसीद लङ्केश्वर राक्षसेन्द्र
लङ्कां प्रसन्नो भव साधु गच्छ।
त्वं स्वेषु दारेषु रमस्व नित्यं
रामः सभार्यो रमतां वनेषु ॥ ४९ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे एकत्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-one in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वात्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXII

Sūrpaṇakhā approaches Rāvaṇa in Laṅkā

ततः शूर्पणखा दृष्ट्वा सहस्राणि चतुर्दश।
हतान्येकेन रामेण रक्षसां भीमकर्मणाम् ॥ १ ॥
दूषणं च खरं चैव हतं त्रिशिरसं रणे।
दृष्ट्वा पुनर्महानादान् ननाद जलदोपमा ॥ २ ॥

Then, seeing fourteen thousand ogres of terrible deeds killed by Rāma single-handed and also perceiving Dūṣaṇa, Khara and Triśirā too killed in battle, Sūrpaṇakhā uttered loud roars like a cloud. (1-2)

सा दृष्ट्वा कर्म रामस्य कृतमन्यैः सुदुष्करम्।
जगाम परमोद्विग्ना लङ्कां रावणपालिताम् ॥ ३ ॥

Extremely perturbed to perceive the feat of Śrī Rāma, hard to accomplish for others, she proceeded to Laṅkā protected by Rāvaṇa. (3)

सा ददर्श विमानाग्रे रावणं दीप्ततेजसम्।
उपोपविष्टं सचिवैरुद्भिरिव वासवम् ॥ ४ ॥

She beheld Rāvaṇa of dazzling glory sitting on the top of his seven-storeyed palace, surrounded by his ministers as Indra

“Be pleased, O lord of Laṅkā and ruler of ogres ! Remain gratified and return safely to Laṅkā. Always revel in the midst of your own wives and let Rāma revel with his own wife in the woods.” (49)

एवमुक्तो दशग्रीवो मारीचेन स रावणः।
न्यवर्तत पुरीं लङ्कां विवेश च गृहोत्तमम् ॥ ५० ॥

Exhorted thus by Mārīca, Rāvaṇa, that ten-headed monster, returned to the city of Laṅkā and entered his excellent abode. (50)

by the wind-gods. (4)

आसीनं सूर्यसंकाशे काञ्चने परमासने।
रुक्मवेदिगतं प्राज्यं ज्वलन्तमिव पावकम् ॥ ५ ॥

He was seated on highly excellent golden throne, shining brightly as the sun and looked like a fire fed with abundant ghee and burning on a golden altar. (5)

देवगन्धर्वभूतानामृषीणां च महात्मनाम्।
अजेयं समरे घोरं व्यात्तानमिवान्तकम् ॥ ६ ॥

He was unconquerable in battle by gods, Gandharvas, genii and high-souled Ṛṣis and looked fierce like Death with mouth wide open. (6)

देवासुरविमर्देषु वज्राशनिकृतव्रणम्।
ऐरावतविषाणाग्रैरुत्कृष्टकिणवक्षसम् ॥ ७ ॥

He bore on his person scars of wounds caused by the thunderbolt and lightning in the course of conflicts between the gods and the demons and his chest was marked with callosities resulting from abrasions caused by the tusks of Airāvata. (7)

विंशदभुजं दशग्रीवं दर्शनीयपरिच्छदम्।
विशालवक्षसं वीरं राजलक्षणलक्षितम् ॥ ८ ॥

The hero had twenty arms, ten heads, attractive royal paraphernalia, a broad chest and was distinguished by bodily marks found on the person of a king. (8)

नद्धवैदूर्यसंकाशं तप्तकाञ्चनभूषणम्।
सुभुजं शुक्लदशनं महास्यं पर्वतोपमम् ॥ ९ ॥

He wore the hue of Vaidūryas (cat's-eye jewels) fastened on his person, was adorned with ornaments of refined gold, had shapely arms, white teeth, an enormous mouth and looked like a mountain. (9)

विष्णुचक्रनिपातैश्च शतशो देवसंयुगे।
अन्यैः शस्त्रैः प्रहारैश्च महायुद्धेषु ताडितम् ॥ १० ॥

He was struck hundreds of times during the wars with gods with the blows of Viṣṇu's discus as also with the strokes of other weapons in great conflicts. (10)

अहताङ्गैः समस्तैस्तं देवप्रहरणैस्तदा।
अक्षोभ्याणां समुद्राणां क्षोभणं क्षिप्रकारिणम् ॥ ११ ॥

With all his limbs that could not be injured even with the weapons of gods, he churned up the seas, which could not be churned up by others and was prompt in action. (11)

क्षेप्तारं पर्वताग्राणां सुराणां च प्रमर्दनम्।
उच्छेत्तारं च धर्माणां परदारभिमर्शनम् ॥ १२ ॥

He hurled peaks of mountains by way of missiles and crushed the gods. He uprooted the moral laws and enjoyed others' wives. (12)

सर्वदिव्यास्त्रयोक्तारं यज्ञविघ्नकरं सदा।
पुरीं भोगवतीं गत्वा पराजित्य च वासुकिम् ॥ १३ ॥
तक्षकस्य प्रियां भार्यां पराजित्य जहार यः।
कैलासं पर्वतं गत्वा विजित्य नरवाहनम् ॥ १४ ॥
विमानं पुष्पकं तस्य कामगं वै जहार यः।
वनं चैत्ररथं दिव्यं नलिनीं नन्दनं वनम् ॥ १५ ॥

विनाशयति यः क्रोधाद् देवोद्यानानि वीर्यवान्।
चन्द्रसूर्यौ महाभागावुत्तिष्ठन्तौ परंतपौ ॥ १६ ॥
निवारयति बाहुभ्यां यः शैलशिखरोपमः।
दशवर्षसहस्राणि तपस्तप्त्वा महावने ॥ १७ ॥
पुरा स्वयंभुवे धीरः शिरांस्युपजहार यः।
देवदानवगन्धर्वपिशाचपतगोरगैः ॥ १८ ॥
अभयं यस्य संग्रामे मृत्युतो मानुषादृते।
मन्त्रैरभिष्टुतं पुण्यमध्वरेषु द्विजातिभिः ॥ १९ ॥
हविर्धानेषु यः सोममुपहन्ति महाबलः।
प्राप्तयज्ञहरं दुष्टं ब्रह्मघ्नं क्रूरकारिणम् ॥ २० ॥
कर्कशं निरनुक्रोशं प्रजानामहिते रतम्।
रावणं सर्वभूतानां सर्वलोकभयावहम् ॥ २१ ॥
राक्षसी भ्रातरं क्रूरं सा ददर्श महाबलम्।
तं दिव्यवस्त्राभरणं दिव्यमाल्योपशोभितम् ॥ २२ ॥
आसने सूपविष्टं तं काले कालमिवोद्यतम्।
राक्षसेन्द्रं महाभागं पौलस्त्यकुलनन्दनम् ॥ २३ ॥
उपगम्याब्रवीद् वाक्यं राक्षसी भयविह्वला।
रावणं शत्रुहन्तारं मन्त्रिभिः परिवारितम् ॥ २४ ॥

He knew the use of all celestial missiles and even caused interruption in sacrifices. Proceeding to the city of Bhogavatī (the capital of the Nāgas), vanquishing Vāsukī (the ruler of the Nāgas) and routing Takṣaka (a leader of Nāgas), he took away the latter's dear wife. Reaching Mount Kailāsa and fully conquering Kubera (who usually moves on a palanquin carried by men), he took away his aerial car, Puṣpaka, which could go wherever its master liked, the valiant Rāvaṇa in his anger laid waste the celestial garden Caitraratha (of Kubera) and the lake Nalinī (situated in the centre of Caitraratha), the garden Nandana (of Indra, the lord of paradise) as well as the other gardens of gods. Resembling a mountain-peak in size, he intercepted with his arms the highly blessed moon and sun, the tormentors of their enemies, appearing at the horizon.

Having practised austerities in a large forest for ten thousand years, the strong-minded man offered to Brahmā (the self-born) in the remote past his ten heads by way of oblation at a sacrifice. As a result of this, immunity was secured by him on the battlefield from fear of death at the hands of gods, demons, Gandharvas, fiends, birds and serpents barring human beings. In the course of sacrifices that ogre of great might used to spill the holy Soma drink glorified through the chanting of sacred texts by Brāhmaṇas in sanctuaries where the Soma juice was extracted. The wicked fellow used to wreck sacrifices which had reached the stage of completion, killed Brāhmaṇas and perpetrated other cruel acts, was rough, pitiless and intent on doing harm to created beings. The said ogress saw her cruel brother, who was possessed of great might, made all living beings cry through his tyranny and persecution and was a source of terror to all the worlds. Approaching him, the celebrated and highly blessed Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, the delight of the race of Rākṣasas (the scions of Pulastya), the slayer of enemies—who was comfortably seated on his throne in celestial robes, adorned with celestial jewels, and decked with heavenly garlands, looked like Kāla (the all-destroying Time-Spirit active at the time of universal dissolution) and was surrounded by his counsellors—the ogress, Śūrpaṇakhā, who was overpowered with fear, proceeded to speak as follows:

(13—24)

तमब्रवीद् दीप्तविशाललोचनं

प्रदर्शयित्वा भयलोभमोहिता ।

सुदारुणं वाक्यमभीतचारिणी

महात्मना शूर्पणखा विरूपिता ॥ २५ ॥

Displaying her disfiguration, Śūrpaṇakhā, who stood bewildered with fear and covetousness for Śrī Rāma and who formerly roamed about fearlessly and had been mutilated by the high-souled Lakṣmaṇa, addressed to Rāvaṇa, who was possessed of large burning eyes, the following exceptionally harsh words. (25)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे द्वात्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-two in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रयस्त्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXIII

Śūrpaṇakhā twits Rāvaṇa

ततः शूर्पणखा दीना रावणं लोकरावणम् ।
अमात्यमध्ये संकुद्धा परुषं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Getting highly enraged, the afflicted Śūrpaṇakhā then addressed the following harsh words to Rāvaṇa, who made people cry by his tyranny and oppression, in the midst of his ministers : (1)

प्रमत्तः कामभोगेषु स्वैरवृत्तो निरङ्कुशः ।
समुत्पन्नं भयं घोरं बोद्धव्यं नावबुध्यसे ॥ २ ॥

“Being strongly attached to sense-enjoyments, licentious and unbridled, you do not perceive the frightful danger that has cropped up and which ought to be perceived.

(2)

सक्तं ग्राम्येषु भोगेषु कामवृत्तं महीपतिम् ।
लुब्धं न बहु मन्यन्ते श्मशानाग्निमिव प्रजाः ॥ ३ ॥

“The people do not hold in high esteem a rapacious monarch attached to vulgar sense-enjoyments and acting according to his will, any more than the fire in a crematorium. (3)

स्वयं कार्याणि यः काले नानुतिष्ठति पार्थिवः ।
स तु वै सह राज्येन तैश्च कार्यैर्विनश्यति ॥ ४ ॥

“That monarch who does not personally attend to his affairs gets ruined without doubt alongwith his kingdom as well as those affairs. (4)

अयुक्तचारं दुर्दर्शमस्वाधीनं नराधिपम् ।
वर्जयन्ति नरा दूरानदीपङ्कमिव द्विपाः ॥ ५ ॥

“People shun from a distance the king who has not appointed spies, is difficult to behold for his subjects and is not self-dependent, even as elephants shun the mud in a river. (5)

ये न रक्षन्ति विषयमस्वाधीनं नराधिपाः ।
ते न वृद्ध्या प्रकाशन्ते गिरयः सागरे यथा ॥ ६ ॥

“Those rulers of men who do not reclaim a territory which is no longer under their control, do not shine through prosperity any more than mountains submerged in an ocean. (6)

आत्मवद्भिर्विगृह्य त्वं देवगन्धर्वदानवैः ।
अयुक्तचारश्चपलः कथं राजा भविष्यसि ॥ ७ ॥

“Having entered into a conflict with gods, Gandharvas and demons, who are masters of their self and having not appointed spies, how can you hope to continue as a king, fickle as you are? (7)

त्वं तु बालस्वभावश्च बुद्धिहीनश्च राक्षसः ।
ज्ञातव्यं तन्न जानीषे कथं राजा भविष्यसि ॥ ८ ॥

“You are undoubtedly childish of disposition and devoid of intelligence and do not know what ought to be known, O ogre ! How then will you continue to be a king? (8)

येषां चाराश्च कोशश्च नयश्च जयतां वर ।
अस्वाधीना नरेन्द्राणां प्राकृतैस्ते जनैः समाः ॥ ९ ॥

“Those rulers of men whose spies and coffers and policy too are not under their control, O jewel among the victorious, are as good as laymen. (9)

यस्मात् पश्यन्ति दूरस्थान् सर्वानर्थान् नराधिपाः ।
चारेण तस्मादुच्यन्ते राजानो दीर्घचक्षुषः ॥ १० ॥

“Because rulers of men are able to perceive all remote things through their spies, hence they are called far-sighted. (10)

अयुक्तचारं मन्ये त्वां प्राकृतैः सचिवैर्युतः ।
स्वजनं च जनस्थानं निहतं नावबुध्यसे ॥ ११ ॥

“I firmly believe, you have not appointed spies in your kingdom, inasmuch as you being assisted by untutored counsellors do not know of your own people having been killed and the area inhabited by them devastated. (11)

चतुर्दश सहस्राणि रक्षसां भीमकर्मणाम् ।
हतान्येकेन रामेण खरश्च सहदूषणः ॥ १२ ॥

“Fourteen thousand ogres of terrible deeds as also Khara with Dūṣaṇa have been made short work of by Rāma single-handed. (12)

ऋषीणामभयं दत्तं कृतक्षेमाश्च दण्डकाः ।
धर्षितं च जनस्थानं रामेणाक्लिष्टकारिणा ॥ १३ ॥

“An assurance of safety has been vouchsafed to Ṛṣis (the seers of Vedic Mantras), the forest of Daṇḍaka has been rendered secure for them and Janasthāna devastated by Rāma of unwearied action. (13)

त्वं तु लुब्धः प्रमत्तश्च पराधीनश्च राक्षसः ।
विषये स्वे समुत्पन्नं यद् भयं नावबुध्यसे ॥ १४ ॥

“You, on the other hand, are avaricious, careless and a slave of passion inasmuch as you do not perceive the danger that has cropped up in your own territory, O ogre ! (14)

तीक्ष्णमल्पप्रदातारं प्रमत्तं गर्वितं शठम् ।
व्यसने सर्वभूतानि नाभिधावन्ति पार्थिवम् ॥ १५ ॥

“All beings decline to rush in succour of a monarch in distress who is severe, niggardly, careless, proud and deceitful. (15)

अतिमानिनमग्राह्यमात्मसम्भावितं नरम् ।
क्रोधनं व्यसने हन्ति स्वजनोऽपि नराधिपम् ॥ १६ ॥

“Even his own people kill in adversity a man or a ruler of men excessively vain, worth disowning and egotistic. (16)

नानुत्तिष्ठति कार्याणि भयेषु न बिभेति च ।
क्षिप्रं राज्याच्च्युतो दीनस्तृणैस्तुल्यो भवेदिह ॥ १७ ॥

“A king who does not perform his duties and is not apprehensive even in the face of dangers is soon deprived of his kingdom and reduced to a wretched condition, and becomes of no more worth than straw in this world. (17)

शुष्ककाष्ठैर्भवेत् कार्यं लोष्ठैरपि च पांसुभिः ।
न तु स्थानात् परिभ्रष्टैः कार्यं स्याद् वसुधाधिपैः ॥ १८ ॥

“Some purpose may be served by dry pieces of wood, even clods and dust, but no purpose can be served by monarchs fallen from their position. (18)

उपभुक्तं यथा वासः स्रजो वा मृदिता यथा ।
एवं राज्यात् परिभ्रष्टः समर्थोऽपि निरर्थकः ॥ १९ ॥

“Just as a used garment or a squeezed garland becomes useless for others, so even a powerful king deprived of his kingdom becomes useless. (19)

अप्रमत्तश्च यो राजा सर्वज्ञो विजितेन्द्रियः ।
कृतज्ञो धर्मशीलश्च स राजा तिष्ठते चिरम् ॥ २० ॥

“That king who is vigilant, knows everything about himself and his enemy, whose senses are fully controlled, who recognizes the services of others, and is pious by disposition continues on his throne for long. (20)

नयनाभ्यां प्रसुप्तो वा जागर्ति नयचक्षुषा ।
व्यक्तक्रोधप्रसादश्च स राजा पूज्यते जनैः ॥ २१ ॥

“That king who, though fast asleep with his eyes closed remains awake with his eye of prudence wide open and whose frown and favour are manifest in the form of punishment and reward is honoured by the people. (21)

त्वं तु रावण दुर्बुद्धिर्गुणैरैतैर्विवर्जितः ।
यस्य तेऽविदितश्चरै रक्षसां सुमहान् वधः ॥ २२ ॥

“You, however, O Rāvaṇa, are silly and utterly destitute of all these virtues inasmuch as the great slaughter of ogres has remained unknown to your spies. (22)

परावमन्ता विषयेषु सङ्गवान्
न देशकालप्रविभागतत्त्ववित् ।

अयुक्तबुद्धिर्गुणदोषनिश्चये
विपन्नराज्यो न चिराद् विपत्स्यसे ॥ २३ ॥

“Showing disrespect to others, full of attachment to the pleasures of sense, not knowing in reality the right division of time and place, and having never applied your mind to the task of determining the merits and demerits of a thing or proposition, you will find your sovereignty endangered and perish soon.” (23)

इति स्वदोषान् परिकीर्तितांस्तथा
समीक्ष्य बुद्ध्या क्षणदाचरेश्वरः ।

धनेन दर्पेण बलेन चान्वितो
विचिन्तयामास चिरं स रावणः ॥ २४ ॥

Examining with his mind his own weaknesses recounted by her, the celebrated Rāvaṇa, the lord of night-stalkers, possessed as he was of opulence, vanity and might, reflected for long. (24)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे त्रयस्त्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-three in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Rṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुस्त्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXIV

Śūrpaṇakhā instigates Rāvaṇa to abduct Sītā

ततः शूर्पणखां दृष्ट्वा ब्रुवन्तीं परुषं वचः ।
अमात्यमध्ये संक्रुद्धः परिप्रच्छ रावणः ॥ १ ॥

Highly enraged to see Śūrpaṇakhā speaking harsh words in the midst of ministers, Rāvaṇa then interrogated her as follows :

(1)

कश्च रामः कथं वीर्यः किं रूपः किं पराक्रमः ।
किमर्थं दण्डकारण्यं प्रविष्टश्च सुदुस्तरम् ॥ २ ॥

“Who is Rāma? What is his strength? What does he look like, and what is the measure of his prowess and what for has he penetrated into the forest of Daṇḍaka, which is exceedingly difficult to pass through?

(2)

आयुधं किं च रामस्य येन ते राक्षसा हताः ।
खरश्च निहतः संख्ये दूषणस्त्रिशिरास्तथा ॥ ३ ॥

“And what is the weapon in the possession of Rāma, with which those ogres have been killed by him as also Khara, Dūṣaṇa and Trīśirā on the battlefield? (3)

तत्त्वं ब्रूहि मनोज्ञाङ्गि केन त्वं च विरूपिता ।
इत्युक्ता राक्षसेन्द्रेण राक्षसी क्रोधमूर्च्छिता ॥ ४ ॥

ततो रामं यथान्यायमाख्यातुमुपचक्रमे ।
दीर्घबाहुर्विशालाक्षश्चीरकृष्णाजिनाम्बरः ॥ ५ ॥

कन्दर्पसमरूपश्च रामो दशरथात्मजः ।
शक्रचापनिभं चापं विकृष्य कनकाङ्गदम् ॥ ६ ॥

दीप्तान् क्षिपति नाराचान् सर्पानिव महाविषान् ।
नाददानं शरान् घोरान् विमुञ्चन्तं महाबलम् ॥ ७ ॥

न कार्मुकं विकर्षन्तं रामं पश्यामि संयुगे ।
हन्यमानं तु तत्सैन्यं पश्यामि शरवृष्टिभिः ॥ ८ ॥

इन्द्रेणोत्तमं सस्यमाहतं त्वशमवृष्टिभिः ।
रक्षसां भीमवीर्याणां सहस्राणि चतुर्दश ॥ ९ ॥

निहतानि शरैस्तीक्ष्णैस्तेनैकेन पदातिना ।
अर्धाधिकमुहूर्तेन खरश्च सहदूषणः ॥ १० ॥

“Also tell me in truth, O lady of captivating limbs, by whom were you deformed.” Overwhelmed with anger when questioned by the ruler of ogres in these words, the ogress then proceeded to portray Śrī Rāma correctly as follows : “Distinguished by long arms and large eyes and clad in the bark of trees and the skin of a black antelope, Rāma, son of Daśaratha, vies with the god of love in appearance. Stretching at full length his bow shining brightly like a rainbow and provided with rings of gold, he lets loose effulgent Nārācas (steel arrows) resembling highly venomous snakes. I could not perceive when Rāma of extraordinary might seized the dreadful arrows, when he pulled the bow at full length and when he discharged them on the battlefield. I only saw the army of the ogres being exterminated by the volleys of his arrows, just like an excellent crop destroyed by Indra (the god of rain) with showers of hailstones. “By him, fighting single-handed on foot, fourteen thousand ogres of terrible prowess as also Khara and Dūṣaṇa were killed with sharp arrows in the span of an hour and a half.

(4—10)

ऋषीणामभयं दत्तं कृतक्षेमाश्च दण्डकाः ॥ ११ ॥

“Nay, an assurance of safety was granted by him to the Ṛṣis (seers of Vedic Mantras) and the Daṇḍaka forest rendered secure for their habitation.

(11)

एका कथंचिन्मुक्ताहं परिभूय महात्मना ।
स्त्रीवधं शङ्कमानेन रामेण विदितात्मना ॥ १२ ॥

“I alone was spared somehow, after disgracing me in the form of mutilation, by the high-souled Rāma, who has realized the Self, afraid as he was of the sin of killing a woman.

(12)

भ्राता चास्य महातेजा गुणतस्तुल्यविक्रमः ।
अनुरक्तश्च भक्तश्च लक्ष्मणो नाम वीर्यवान् ॥ १३ ॥

“Nay, his mighty brother, Lakṣmaṇa by name, who is possessed of exceptional glory and equally valorous, is attached and devoted to him because of his (rare) virtues. (13)

अमर्षी दुर्जयो जेता विक्रान्तो बुद्धिमान् बली ।

रामस्य दक्षिणो बाहुनित्यं प्राणो बहिश्चरः ॥ १४ ॥

“Intolerant, hard to conquer, victorious in battle, heroic, talented and strong, he is always the right hand of Rāma, nay, his very life exteriorized. (14)

रामस्य तु विशालाक्षी पूर्णेन्दुसदृशानना ।

धर्मपत्नी प्रिया नित्यं भर्तुः प्रियहिते रता ॥ १५ ॥

“Rāma’s beloved wife, wedded according to religious rites, has large eyes and a countenance resembling the full moon. She is ever intent on doing what is pleasing and beneficial to her lord. (15)

सा सुकेशी सुनासोरूः सुरूपा च यशस्विनी ।

देवतेव वनस्यास्य राजते श्रीरिवापरा ॥ १६ ॥

“Having charming hair, a shapely nose and thighs and a comely appearance and illustrious as she is, she is, as it were, the presiding deity of this forest and shines like another Lakṣmī, the goddess of beauty and fortune. (16)

तप्तकाञ्चनवर्णाभा रक्ततुङ्गनखी शुभा ।

सीता नाम वरारोहा वैदेही तनुमध्यमा ॥ १७ ॥

नैव देवी न गन्धर्वी न यक्षी न च किंनरी ।

तथारूपा मया नारी दृष्टपूर्वा महीतले ॥ १८ ॥

“Possessing the hue and lustre of molten gold, prominent ruddy nails, shapely hips and a slender waist, the blessed lady is a daughter of Janaka (the ruler of the Videha territory), Sitā by name. No woman of such comeliness—neither a goddess, nor a Gandharva woman nor a Yakṣa woman nor again a Kinnara woman was seen by me on the earth’s surface ever before. (17-18)

यस्य सीता भवेद् भार्या यं च हृष्टा परिष्वजेत् ।

अभिजीवेत् स सर्वेषु लोकेष्वपि पुरंदरात् ॥ १९ ॥

“He with whom Sitā lives as a wife and whom she embraces with delight is sure to live more happily in all the worlds even than Indra. (19)

सा सुशीला वपुःश्लाघ्या रूपेणाप्रतिमा भुवि ।

तवानुरूपा भार्या सा त्वं च तस्याः पतिर्वरः ॥ २० ॥

“She is a woman of good disposition praiseworthy of form and peerless on earth in point of comeliness. She will be a consort worthy of you and you will be her excellent husband. (20)

तां तु विस्तीर्णजघनां पीनोत्तुङ्गपयोधराम् ।

भार्यार्थं तु तवानेतमुद्यताहं वराननाम् ॥ २१ ॥

विरूपितास्मि क्रूरेण लक्ष्मणेन महाभुज ।

तां तु दृष्ट्वाद्य वैदेहीं पूर्णचन्द्रनिभाननाम् ॥ २२ ॥

मन्मथस्य शराणां च त्वं विधेयो भविष्यसि ।

यदि तस्यामभिप्रायो भार्यात्वे तव जायते ।

शीघ्रमुद्ध्रियतां पादो जयार्थमिह दक्षिणः ॥ २३ ॥

“I for my part was intent on bringing that lady of broad hips and rounded and prominent breasts in order that she may be a wife to you; but I was deformed by the cruel Lakṣmaṇa. O mighty-armed brother ! Nay, if you behold today the aforesaid princess of the Videha territory with her face shining brightly as the full moon, you will undoubtedly become a target of the shafts of love. If your mind feels inclined to take her to wife, your right foot may soon be raised at this very place to conquer Rāma. (21—23)

रोचते यदि ते वाक्यं ममैतद् राक्षसेश्वर ।

क्रियतां निर्विशङ्केन वचनं मम रावण ॥ २४ ॥

“If this counsel of mine finds favour with you, let my advice be fearlessly followed by you, O Rāvaṇa, the lord of Rākṣasas ! (24)

विज्ञायैषामशक्तिं च क्रियतां च महाबल ।

सीता तवानवद्याङ्गी भार्यात्वे राक्षसेश्वर ॥ २५ ॥

“Realizing the weakness of these people, Rāma and others, and your own superior strength, O ruler of ogres, let Sitā of faultless limbs be taken to wife, O my brother of extraordinary might ! (25)

निशम्य रामेण शरैरजिह्वगै-
 र्हेताञ्जनस्थानगतान् निशाचरान् ।
 खरं च दृष्ट्वा निहतं च दूषणं
 त्वमद्य कृत्यं प्रतिपत्तुमर्हसि ॥ २६ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे चतुस्त्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-four in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चत्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXV

Rāvaṇa calls on Mārīca once more

ततः शूर्पणखावाक्यं तच्छ्रुत्वा रोमहर्षणम् ।
 सचिवानभ्यनुज्ञाय कार्यं बुद्ध्वा जगाम ह ॥ १ ॥

Hearing that nerve-racking report of Śūrpaṇakhā, nay, determining his duty and granting leave to disperse to his ministers, Rāvaṇa forthwith departed from his palace :
 so it is said. (1)

तत् कार्यमनुगम्यान्तर्यथावदुपलभ्य च ।
 दोषाणां च गुणानां च सम्प्रधार्य बलाबलम् ॥ २ ॥
 इति कर्तव्यमित्येव कृत्वा निश्चयमात्मनः ।
 स्थिरबुद्धिस्ततो रम्यां यानशालां जगाम ह ॥ ३ ॥

Pursuing that object in mind and viewing it properly, nay, fully weighing the merits and demerits of the question and ascertaining his own strength and weakness and finally making up his mind to launch on that undertaking of abducting Sītā positively, Rāvaṇa with a resolute mind next proceeded to his charming carriage-shed : so the tradition goes. (2-3)

यानशालां ततो गत्वा प्रच्छन्नं राक्षसाधिपः ।
 सूतं संचोदयामास रथः संयुज्यतामिति ॥ ४ ॥

Covertly reaching the carriage-shed,
 Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, commanded the charioteer in the following words : "Let my chariot be got ready." (4)

एवमुक्तः क्षणेनैव सारथिर्लघुविक्रमः ।
 रथं संयोजयामास तस्याभिमतमुत्तमम् ॥ ५ ॥

"Hearing of the night-stalkers stationed in Janasthāna having been killed with his straight-going arrows, and knowing Khara as well as Dūṣaṇa slain by Rāma, you ought to realize your duty today." (26)

Commanded thus, the charioteer, who took quick strides, got fully ready in a trice an excellent chariot liked by him. (5)

कामगं रथमास्थाय काञ्चनं रत्नभूषितम् ।
 पिशाचवदनैर्युक्तं खरैः कनकभूषणैः ॥ ६ ॥
 मेघप्रतिमनादेन स तेन धनदानुजः ।
 राक्षसाधिपतिः श्रीमान् ययौ नदनदीपतिम् ॥ ७ ॥

Mounting the golden car decked with jewels, which could go wherever one liked and was drawn by mules with heads resembling those of fiends, adorned with ornaments of gold and the glorious Rāvaṇa, a younger (half)-brother of Kubera, the lord of riches, and the suzerain lord of ogres, drove in that chariot, which made a sound like thunder towards the ocean (the lord of rivers and streams). (6-7)

स श्वेतवालव्यजनः श्वेतच्छत्रो दशाननः ।
 स्निग्धवैदूर्यसंकाशस्तप्तकाञ्चनभूषणः ॥ ८ ॥
 दशग्रीवो विंशतिभुजो दर्शनीयपरिच्छदः ।
 त्रिदशारिर्मुनीन्द्रघ्नो दशशीर्ष इवाद्रिद्राट् ॥ ९ ॥
 कामगं रथमास्थाय शुशुभे राक्षसाधिपः ।
 विद्युन्मण्डलवान् मेघः सबलाक इवाम्बरे ॥ १० ॥

Having taken his seat in that chariot, which could go wherever one liked, the ten-headed Rāvaṇa, the suzerain ruler of ogres, the avowed enemy of gods and the slayer of the foremost among ascetics—who was being fanned with a white whisk, and had a white canopy spread over him, who shone brightly like a glossy cat's-eye gem and was adorned with ornaments of refined gold, and who was distinguished by ten necks and twenty arms and attractive paraphernalia and looked like a great mountain with ten peaks—cast his splendour like a cloud in the sky encircled with lightning and accompanied by a flock of herons. (8—10)

सशैलसागरानूपं वीर्यवानवलोकयन् ।
नानापुष्पफलैर्वृक्षैरनुकीर्णं सहस्रशः ॥ ११ ॥

The mighty ogre moved on surveying the sea-coast crested with mountains and crowded with trees, thousands in number, bearing varieties of flowers and fruits. (11)

शीतमङ्गलतोयाभिः पद्मिनीभिः समन्ततः ।
विशालैराश्रमपदैर्वेदिमद्भिरलंकृतम् ॥ १२ ॥

The coast-line was adorned on all sides with lotus-ponds full of cool and auspicious water and with spacious grounds of hermitages scattered with sacrificial altars. (12)

कदल्यटविसंशोभं नारिकेलोपशोभितम् ।
सालैस्तालैस्तमालैश्च तरुभिश्च सुपुष्पितैः ॥ १३ ॥

It looked most charming with its plantain groves and was embellished with coconut, sāl, palmyra and Tamāla trees as also with other trees in full blossom. (13)

अत्यन्तनियताहारैः शोभितं परमर्षिभिः ।
नागैः सुपुणैर्गन्धर्वैः किंनरैश्च सहस्रशः ॥ १४ ॥

It was graced with foremost Ṛṣis (seers of Vedic Mantras), living on an exceedingly restricted diet, Nāgas (a species of semi-divine being having the head and trunk of a human being and the lower extremities of a serpent), Suparṇas (a class of bird-like beings of a semi divine character), Gandharvas and Kinnaras (another species of semi-divine beings having a human figure with the head of a horse) in thousands. (14)

जितकामैश्च सिद्धैश्च चारुणैश्चोपशोभितम् ।
आजैर्वैखानसैर्माषैर्वालखिल्यैर्मरीचिपैः ॥ १५ ॥

The coast-line was further graced by the presence of Siddhas, who had subdued their passion, and Cāraṇas, as well as by the mind born sons of Brahmā (the creator), Vaikhānasas (an order of ascetics born of Brahmā's nails¹ and endowed with the mystic power of assuming many forms), Māṣas (another class of ascetics), Vālakhilyas² (a special order of ascetics born of the hair of Brahmā and possessing the size of a human thumb), and Maricipas (another order of ascetics living on the sun's rays alone). (15)

दिव्याभरणमाल्याभिर्दिव्यरूपाभिरावृतम् ।
क्रीडारतविधिज्ञाभिरप्सरोभिः सहस्रशः ॥ १६ ॥

It was thronged in thousands with celestial nymphs adorned with heavenly jewels and garlands and endowed with ethereal forms and conversant with the technique of amorous sports and sexual enjoyment. (16)

सेवितं देवपत्नीभिः श्रीमतीभिरुपासितम् ।
देवदानवसङ्घैश्च चरितं त्वमृताशिभिः ॥ १७ ॥

Again it was resorted to and visited by graceful consorts of heavenly beings and frequented by hosts of gods and demons subsisting on nectar (the drink of heavenly beings). (17)

हंसक्रौञ्चप्लवाकीर्णं सारसैः सम्प्रसादितम् ।
वैदूर्यप्रस्तरं स्निग्धं सान्द्रं सागरतेजसा ॥ १८ ॥

The coast-line was crowded with swans, herons and frogs and graced with cranes. It was strewn with Vaidūrya-like stones of a dark hue and was alluvial and

1. Vide the Śruti text : ये नखास्ते वैखानसाः.

2. Vide the Śruti text : ये बालास्ते वालखिल्याः. The Vālakhilyās are said to walk in a procession in front of the chariot of the sun-god with their faces turned towards the sun-god in prayer.

cool due to the softening influence of the ocean. (18)

पाण्डुराणि विशालानि दिव्यमाल्ययुतानि च ।
तूर्यगीताभिजुष्टानि विमानानि समन्ततः ॥ १९ ॥
तपसा जितलोकानां कामगान्धिसम्पत्तन् ।
गन्धर्वाप्सरसश्चैव ददर्श धनदानुजः ॥ २० ॥

Driving at full speed through the air, Rāvaṇa (the younger half-brother of Kubera, the lord of riches) beheld on all sides spacious aerial cars of a whitish colour, festooned with celestial wreaths and enlivened by both instrumental and vocal music, belonging to those who had won the higher worlds by virtue of their austerities and coursing according to one's will, and also beheld Gandharvas and celestial nymphs. (19-20)

निर्यासरसमूलानां चन्दनानां सहस्रशः ।
वनानि पश्यन् सौम्यानि घ्राणतृप्तिकराणि च ॥ २१ ॥
अगुरुणां च मुख्यानां वनान्युपवनानि च ।
तक्कोलानां च जात्यानां फलिनां च सुगन्धिनाम् ॥ २२ ॥
पुष्पाणि च तमालस्य गुल्मानि मरिचस्य च ।
मुक्तानां च समूहानि शुष्यमाणानि तीरतः ॥ २३ ॥
शैलानि प्रवरांश्चैव प्रवालनिचयांस्तथा ।
काञ्चनानि च शृङ्गाणि राजतानि तथैव च ॥ २४ ॥
प्रस्त्रवाणि मनोज्ञानि प्रसन्नान्यद्भुतानि च ।
धनधान्योपपन्नानि स्त्रीरत्नैरावृतानि च ॥ २५ ॥
हस्त्यश्वरथगाढानि नगराणि विलोकयन् ।
तं समं सर्वतः स्निग्धं मृदुसंस्पर्शमारुतम् ॥ २६ ॥
अनूपे सिन्धुराजस्य ददर्श त्रिदिवोपमम् ।
तत्रापश्यत् स मेघाभं न्यग्रोधं मुनिभिर्वृतम् ॥ २७ ॥
समन्ताद् यस्य ताः शाखाः शतयोजनमायताः ।
यस्य हस्तिनमादाय महाकायं च कच्छपम् ॥ २८ ॥
भक्षार्थं गरुडः शाखामाजगाम महाबलः ।
तस्य तां सहसा शाखां भारेण पतगोत्तमः ॥ २९ ॥
सुपर्णः पर्णबहुलां बभञ्जाथ महाबलः ।
तत्र वैखानसा माषा वालखिल्या मरीचिपाः ॥ ३० ॥
आजा बभूवुर्धूम्राश्च संगताः परमर्षयः ।
तेषां दयार्थं गरुडस्तां शाखां शतयोजनाम् ॥ ३१ ॥
भग्नमादाय वेगेन तौ चोभौ गजकच्छपौ ।
एकपादेन धर्मात्मा भक्षयित्वा तदामिषम् ॥ ३२ ॥

निषादविषयं हत्वा शाखया पतगोत्तमः ।
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे मोक्षयित्वा महामुनीन् ॥ ३३ ॥

Nay, he proceeded further beholding delightful forests pleasing to the olfactory sense, of sandal-trees, whose roots exuded a sap in the form of resin, and also surveying forests of excellent Aguru trees and groves of fragrant Takkola trees of superior quality and laden with fruits, also the flowers of Tamāla trees and shrubs of pepper, nay, heaps of pearls getting dried up on the shore, rocks as also heaps of excellent coral and similarly peaks of gold as well as of silver, charming, crystal and wonderful caskets as also cities provided with wealth and food-grains, crowded with jewels of womanhood and thick with elephants, horses and chariots. He saw on the shore of the ocean a level piece of ground smooth on every side, fanned by breezes which were soft to the touch, and delightful as heaven. There he saw a banyan tree looking like a cloud and resorted to on all sides by ascetics, whose prominent branches extended up to a hundred Yojanas (800 miles) all round.

It was to a bough of this tree that Garuḍa (the king of birds and the carrier of Lord Viṣṇu), who was possessed of extraordinary might, flew taking (in his claws) an elephant and a gigantic tortoise for repast. With his enormous weight the very mighty Garuḍa, the foremost of birds, forthwith broke all of a sudden the bough which was thick with leaves. There, under that tree, were assembled foremost Ṛṣis (seers of Vedic Mantras) belonging to the categories of Vaikhānasas, Māṣas, Vāḷakhilyas, Marīcipas and Dhūmrās (who inhaled smoke while remaining suspended from the boughs of trees head downwards). Carrying with speed that broken bough, a hundred Yojanas long, as also the elephant and the tortoise both in one claw and eating up their flesh (in the air itself), nay, destroying with the bough the territory of the Niṣādas (who lived by hunting and fishery etc.) and delivering the eminent ascetics, Garuḍa (the foremost of birds), whose mind was set on righteousness, derived excessive joy beyond comparison. (21—33)

स तु तेन प्रहर्षेण द्विगुणीकृतविक्रमः ।
अमृतानयनार्थं वै चकार मतिमान् मतिम् ॥ ३४ ॥

Finding his prowess redoubled by that excessive joy, the talented Garuḍa for his part actually made up his mind to fetch nectar from heaven. (34)

अयोजालानि निर्मथ्य भित्त्वा रत्नगृहं वरम् ।
महेन्द्रभवनाद् गुप्तमाजहारामृतं ततः ॥ ३५ ॥

Crushing the iron lattice-work and demolishing the excellent jewelled safe, kept protected by that lattice-work, he then secretly bore away the nectar from the palace of the mighty Indra. (35)

तं महर्षिगणैर्जुष्टं सुपर्णकृतलक्षणम् ।
नाम्ना सुभद्रं न्यग्रोधं ददर्श धनदानुजः ॥ ३६ ॥

Rāvaṇa (a younger half-brother of Kubera) beheld that banyan tree, Subhadra by name, resorted to by hosts of eminent Ṛṣis (the seers of Vedic Mantras), and which retained a vestige of the havoc in the shape of destruction of a gigantic bough wrought by Garuḍa. (36)

तं तु गत्वा परं पारं समुद्रस्य नदीपतेः ।
ददर्शाश्रममेकान्ते पुण्ये रम्ये वनान्तरे ॥ ३७ ॥

Reaching that other shore of the ocean, the lord of rivers, Rāvaṇa beheld a hermitage in a lonely, holy and charming part of the forest. (37)

तत्र कृष्णाजिनधरं जटामण्डलधारिणम् ।
ददर्श नियताहारं मारीचं नाम राक्षसम् ॥ ३८ ॥

There he saw an ogre, Mārīca by name, clad in a black antelope-skin and wearing a coil of matted locks and living on a restricted diet. (38)

स रावणः समागम्य विधिवत् तेन रक्षसा ।
मारीचेनार्चितो राजा सर्वकामैरमानुषैः ॥ ३९ ॥

Meeting that ogre with due ceremony, the said King Rāvaṇa was entertained by Mārīca with all luxuries unknown to man. (39)

तं स्वयं पूजयित्वा च भोजनेनोदकेन च ।
अर्थोपहितया वाचा मारीचो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ४० ॥

Entertaining him personally with food and water, Mārīca spoke to him in the following meaningful words : (40)

कच्चित्ते कुशलं राजन् लङ्कायां राक्षसेश्वर ।
केनार्थेन पुनस्त्वं वै तूर्णमेव इहागतः ॥ ४१ ॥

"I hope, O king, all is well in your Laṅkā, O ruler of ogres ! With what object have you called here so quickly again?" (41)

एवमुक्तो महातेजा मारीचेन स रावणः ।
ततः पश्चादिदं वाक्यमब्रवीद् वाक्यकोविदः ॥ ४२ ॥

Questioned in these words by Mārīca, the celebrated Rāvaṇa, who was invested with extraordinary glory, and was a master of expression, then replied as follows : (42)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे पञ्चत्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-five in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षट्त्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXVI

Rāvaṇa tells Mārīca how he has been wronged by Rāma and asks for his help in taking away Sītā

मारीच श्रूयतां तात वचनं मम भाषतः ।
आर्तोऽस्मि मम चार्तस्य भवान् हि परमा गतिः ॥ १ ॥

“Mārīca dear, listen to my words even as I speak. I feel distressed and undoubtedly you are my supreme resort, afflicted as I am. (1)

जानीषे त्वं जनस्थानं भ्राता यत्र खरो मम ।
दूषणश्च महाबाहुः स्वसा शूर्पणखा च मे ॥ २ ॥
त्रिशिराश्च महाबाहू राक्षसः पिशिताशनः ।
अन्ये च बहवः शूरा लब्धलक्षा निशाचराः ॥ ३ ॥
वसन्ति मन्नियोगेन अधिवासं च राक्षसाः ।
बाधमाना महारण्ये मुनीन् ये धर्मचारिणः ॥ ४ ॥

“You know Janasthāna, where my brother, Khara, and the mighty-armed Dūṣaṇa as well as my sister Śūrpaṇakhā as also the mighty-armed Trīśirā, the flesh eating ogre, and many other valiant night-stalking ogres, who received encouragement in the form of victory in warfare, made their abode at my command, molesting ascetics who practised virtue in the great forest of Daṇḍaka. (2—4)

चतुर्दश सहस्राणि रक्षसां भीमकर्मणाम् ।
शूराणां लब्धलक्षाणां खरचित्तानुवर्तिनाम् ॥ ५ ॥

Fourteen thousand valiant ogres of terrible deeds, who received encouragement in warfare and followed the mind of Khara, lived there. (5)

ते त्विदानीं जनस्थाने वसमाना महाबलाः ।
सङ्गताः परमायत्ता रामेण सह संयुगे ॥ ६ ॥
नानाशास्त्रप्रहरणाः खरप्रमुखराक्षसाः ।
तेन संजातरोषेण रामेण रणमूर्धनि ॥ ७ ॥
अनुक्त्वा परुषं किञ्चिच्छ्रैर्व्यापारितं धनुः ।
चतुर्दश सहस्राणि रक्षसामुग्रतेजसाम् ॥ ८ ॥
निहतानि शरैर्दीप्तैर्मानुषेण पदातिना ।
खरश्च निहतः संख्ये दूषणश्च निपातितः ॥ ९ ॥

हत्वा त्रिशिरसं चापि निर्भया दण्डकाः कृताः ।
पित्रा निरस्तः क्रुद्धेन सभार्यः क्षीणजीवितः ॥ १० ॥
स हन्ता तस्य सैन्यस्य रामः क्षत्रियपांसनः ।
अशीलः कर्कशस्तीक्ष्णो मूर्खो लुब्धोऽजितेन्द्रियः ॥ ११ ॥
त्यक्तधर्मा त्वधर्मात्मा भूतानामहिते रतः ।
येन वैरं विनारण्ये सत्त्वमास्थाय केवलम् ॥ १२ ॥
कर्णनासापहारेण भगिनी मे विरूपिता ।
अस्य भार्या जनस्थानात् सीतां सुरसुतोपमाम् ॥ १३ ॥
आनयिष्यामि विक्रम्य सहायस्तत्र मे भव ।
त्वया ह्यहं सहायेन पार्श्वस्थेन महाबल ॥ १४ ॥
भ्रातृभिश्च सुरान् सर्वान् नाहमत्राभिचिन्तये ।
तत्सहायो भव त्वं मे समर्थो ह्यसि राक्षस ॥ १५ ॥

“Living in Janasthāna with Khara as their head, those exceptionally mighty ogres for their part, who were fully prepared, skilled as they were in the use of various weapons, came into a clash with Rāma on the battlefield. Without uttering any harsh word, the bow with arrows was made use of by Rāma, in whom anger had burst forth, in the van of the fight. Fourteen thousand ogres of terrific energy were made short work of by a human being, contending on foot, single-handed, with fiery arrows. Nay, Khara was slain by him on the battlefield and Dūṣaṇa too was killed; and, disposing of Trīśirā too, the forest of Daṇḍaka was rendered secure for the habitation of ascetics. Exiled alongwith his wife by his enraged father, the aforesaid Rāma, whose life has been spent and who has brought disgrace to the Kṣatriyas, is the slayer of that army. Ill-behaved, hard-hearted, fiery, stupid, avaricious and having no control over his senses, he has abandoned virtue, his mind being set on unrighteousness, and is intent on doing harm to all created beings. By use of might I shall bring from Janasthāna Sītā, resembling a daughter of gods, the wife of Rāma, by whom, relying on his physical strength alone, was my sister, Śūrpaṇakhā, deformed in the forest by depriving her of her ears and nose without any show of hostility. Be my helper in the said undertaking. Indeed, with you as my associate standing by my side here and backed by my brothers (Kumbhakarna and others), O exceptionally mighty ogre, I do not care a fig for all the gods. Therefore, be you my helper since you are powerful enough to help me. (6—15)

वीर्ये युद्धे च दर्पे च न ह्यस्ति सदृशस्तव ।
उपायतो महान् शूरो महामायाविशारदः ॥ १६ ॥

“Indeed, none is your equal in prowess, warfare and martial pride, an eminent hero as you are even in devising manoeuvres and an adept in major conjuring tricks. (16)

एतदर्थमहं प्राप्तस्त्वत्समीपं निशाचर ।
शृणु तत् कर्म साहाय्ये यत् कार्यं वचनान्मम ॥ १७ ॥

“With this object alone have I sought your presence, O night-stalker ! Hear now about that role which has to be played by you by way of help to me at my instance. (17)

सौवर्णस्त्वं मृगो भूत्वा चित्रो रजतबिन्दुभिः ।
आश्रमे तस्य रामस्य सीतायाः प्रमुखे चर ॥ १८ ॥

“Assuming the form of a golden deer freckled with silvery spots, roam you at the hermitage of the said Rāma before Sītā. (18)

त्वां तु निःसंशयं सीता दृष्ट्वा तु मृगरूपिणम् ।
गृह्यतामिति भर्तारं लक्ष्मणं चाभिधास्यति ॥ १९ ॥
ततस्तयोरपाये तु शून्ये सीतां यथासुखम् ।
निराबाधो हरिष्यामि राहुश्चन्द्रप्रभामिव ॥ २० ॥

“Beholding you in the form of a deer, Sītā for her part will undoubtedly say to her lord and Lakṣmaṇa, “Let it be captured.” When Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa go far away from their hermitage, then rid of all hindrance. I shall for my part bear Sītā away easily in solitude, as does Rāhu take away the splendour of the moon. (19-20)

ततः पश्चात् सुखं रामे भार्याहरणकश्चिते ।
विश्रब्धं प्रहरिष्यामि कृतार्थेनान्तरात्मना ॥ २१ ॥

“After that, with my inner mind satisfied as a result of my object having been accomplished I shall with ease confidently strike at Rāma emaciated through the abduction of his wife.” (21)

तस्य रामकथां श्रुत्वा मारीचस्य महात्मनः ।
शुष्कं समभवद् वक्त्रं परित्रस्तो बभूव च ॥ २२ ॥

On hearing the mention of Śrī Rāma, the mouth of that high-minded Mārīca was parched and he got alarmed. (22)

ओष्ठौ परिलिहन् शुष्कौ नेत्रैरनिमिषैरिव ।
मृतभूत इवार्तस्तु रावणं समुदैक्षत ॥ २३ ॥

Licking his dry lips, Mārīca, for his part, who looked like one dead, afflicted as he was, stared at Rāvaṇa with unwinking eyes. (23)

स रावणं त्रस्तविषण्णचेता
महावने रामपराक्रमज्ञः ।

कृताञ्जलिस्तत्त्वमुवाच वाक्यं
हितं च तस्मै हितमात्मनश्च ॥ २४ ॥

With a frightened and dejected mind and joined palms, Mārīca, who had come to know the prowess of Rāma in a great forest, addressed to Rāvaṇa the following truthful words, which were conducive to his good as well as to his own. (24)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे षट्त्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-six in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तत्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXVII

Mārīca tries to dissuade Rāvaṇa from his purpose

तच्छ्रुत्वा राक्षसेन्द्रस्य वाक्यं वाक्यविशारदः ।
प्रत्युवाच महातेजा मारीचो राक्षसेश्वरम् ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid proposal of Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, Mārīca, who was possessed of exceptional glory and was a master of expression, replied as follows to the king of Rākṣasas : (1)

सुलभाः पुरुषा राजन् सततं प्रियवादिनः ।
अप्रियस्य च पथ्यस्य वक्ता श्रोता च दुर्लभः ॥ २ ॥

“People speaking agreeable words are always easy to find. He, however, who speaks words which, though unpalatable, are yet wholesome, is difficult to find. (2)

न नूनं बुध्यसे रामं महावीर्यगुणोन्नतम् ।
अयुक्तचारश्चपलो महेन्द्रवरुणोपमम् ॥ ३ ॥

“Having not employed spies to find out the real state of affairs in your kingdom and being fidgety yourself, you surely do not know Rāma, who is elevated in point of excellences going together with exceptional valour and is a compeer of the mighty Indra and Varuṇa, the god of water. (3)

अपि स्वस्ति भवेत् तात सर्वेषामपि रक्षसाम् ।
अपि रामो न संक्रुद्धः कुर्याल्लोकानराक्षसान् ॥ ४ ॥

“May all be well with all the ogres, O dear Rāvaṇa! Let not the infuriated Rāma render the worlds empty of ogres. (4)

अपि ते जीवितान्ताय नोत्पन्ना जनकात्मजा ।
अपि सीतानिमित्तं च न भवेद् व्यसनं महत् ॥ ५ ॥

“Would that Sitā, the daughter of Janaka, were not born to compass the end of your life. Would that no great calamity befell you on account of Sitā. (5)

अपि त्वामीश्वरं प्राप्य कामवृत्तं निरङ्कुशम् ।
न विनश्येत् पुरी लङ्का त्वया सह सराक्षसा ॥ ६ ॥

“Would that, having obtained you, licentious and unbridled as you are, as its master, the city of Laṅkā did not perish alongwith you as also with the ogres inhabiting it. (6)

त्वद्विधः कामवृत्तो हि दुःशीलः पापमन्त्रितः ।
आत्मानं स्वजनं राष्ट्रं स राजा हन्ति दुर्मतिः ॥ ७ ॥

“A king who is licentious and evil minded, is of evil conduct and is counselled by sinful men surely ruins himself, his own kith and kin as well as his state. (7)

न च पित्रा परित्यक्तो नामर्यादः कथंचन ।
न लुब्धो न च दुःशीलो न च क्षत्रियपांसनः ॥ ८ ॥

“Rāma has not been disowned by his father nor has he transgressed the bounds of morality in anyway; nor is he greedy, nor of evil conduct, nor again has he brought disgrace to the Kṣatriyas. (8)

न च धर्मगुणैर्हीनः कौसल्यानन्दवर्धनः ।
न च तीक्ष्णो हि भूतानां सर्वभूतहिते रतः ॥ ९ ॥

“Nor is he devoid of piety and virtues, enhancing as he does the joy of Kausalyā, his mother. Nor again is he severe to living beings, devoted as he is to the good of all created beings. (9)

वञ्चितं पितरं दृष्ट्वा कैकेय्या सत्यवादिनम् ।
करिष्यामीति धर्मात्मा ततः प्रव्रजितो वनम् ॥ १० ॥

“Seeing his father, who always spoke the truth, hoodwinked by Kaikeyī (his stepmother), Rāma, whose mind is set on virtue, departed for the forest from Ayodhyā, saying ‘I will prove him to be truthful of speech.’ (10)

कैकेय्याः प्रियकामार्थं पितुर्दशरथस्य च ।
हित्वा राज्यं च भोगांश्च प्रविष्टो दण्डकावनम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Renouncing the throne of Ayodhyā as well as the enjoyments of sense, he penetrated into the forest of Daṇḍaka in order to accomplish the cherished desire of Kaikeyī as well as of King Daśaratha. (11)

न रामः कर्कशस्तात नाविद्वान् नाजितेन्द्रियः ।

अनृतं न श्रुतं चैव नैव त्वं वक्तुमर्हसि ॥ १२ ॥

“Nor is Rāma hard-hearted, O dear one, nor ignorant, nor are his senses unsubdued. Nor has any charge of falsehood been heard about him, nor ought you to level any such charge against him. (12)

रामो विग्रहवान् धर्मः साधुः सत्यपराक्रमः ।

राजा सर्वस्य लोकस्य देवानामिव वासवः ॥ १३ ॥

“Rāma is virtue incarnate, pious and of unfailing prowess. He is the ruler of the entire humanity even as Indra is the ruler of gods. (13)

कथं नु तस्य वैदेहीं रक्षितां स्वेन तेजसा ।

इच्छसे प्रसभं हर्तुं प्रभामिव विवस्वतः ॥ १४ ॥

“How I wonder do you intend to bear away by force his consort Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, protected by her own spiritual energy, any more than one can take away the brilliance of the sun? (14)

शरार्चिषमनाधृष्यं चापखड्गेन्धनं रणे ।

रामाग्निं सहसा दीप्तं न प्रवेष्टुं त्वमर्हसि ॥ १५ ॥

“You ought not precipitately to enter the inviolable fire blazing on a battlefield in the form of Rāma with arrows as its flames and the bow and sword as fuel. (15)

धनुर्व्यादितदीप्तास्यं शरार्चिषममर्षणम् ।

चापबाणधरं तीक्ष्णं शत्रुसेनापहारिणम् ॥ १६ ॥

राज्यं सुखं च संत्यज्य जीवितं चेष्टमात्मनः ।

नात्यासादयितुं तात रामान्तकमिहार्हसि ॥ १७ ॥

“Relinquishing for good your throne and happiness as well as your beloved life, O dear one, you ought not to meet at close quarters Death in the form of Rāma, with the bow as his wide open blazing mouth, the arrows as his rays, wearing a stern aspect in indignation and capable of wiping off the enemy's forces. (16-17)

अप्रमेयं हि तत्तेजो यस्य सा जनकात्मजा ।

न त्वं समर्थस्तां हर्तुं रामचापाश्रयां वने ॥ १८ ॥

“Immeasurable is the glory of the prince to whom that daughter of Janaka belongs. You are not capable of bearing her away, protected as she is in the forest by the bow of Rāma. (18)

तस्य वै नरसिंहस्य सिंहोरस्कस्य भामिनी ।

प्राणेष्व्योऽपि प्रियतरा भार्या नित्यमनुव्रता ॥ १९ ॥

“The young lady is the consort of that lion among men, who has a chest broad as the lion's, and is dearer to him than his very life and ever devoted to him. (19)

न सा धर्षयितुं शक्या मैथिल्योजस्विनः प्रिया ।

दीप्तस्येव हुताशस्य शिखा सीता सुमध्यमा ॥ २० ॥

“Sītā, that princess of Mithilā, who is distinguished by a slender waist, is the beloved wife of a powerful man and cannot be over-powered any more than the flame of a blazing fire. (20)

किमुद्यमं व्यर्थमिमं कृत्वा ते राक्षसाधिप ।

दृष्टश्चेत् त्वं रणे तेन तदन्तमुपजीवितम् ॥ २१ ॥

“What will be gained by you by entering on this futile endeavour, O suzerain lord of ogres? If you are ever seen by him on a field of battle, that will be the end of your life. (21)

जीवितं च सुखं चैव राज्यं चैव सुदुर्लभम् ।

यदीच्छसि चिरं भोक्तुं मा कृथा रामविप्रियम् ॥ २२ ॥

“If you wish to enjoy for long life and happiness as also the throne, which is extremely hard to win, pray, don't give offence to Rāma. (22)

स सर्वैः सचिवैः सार्धं विभीषणपुरस्कृतैः ।

मन्त्रयित्वा स धर्मिष्ठैः कृत्वा निश्चयमात्मनः ।

दोषाणां च गुणानां च सम्प्रधार्य बलाबलम् ॥ २३ ॥

आत्मनश्च बलं ज्ञात्वा राघवस्य च तत्त्वतः ।

हितं हि तव निश्चित्य क्षमं त्वं कर्तुमर्हसि ॥ २४ ॥

“Taking counsel with all your most virtuous ministers headed by Vibhīṣaṇa, and making up your mind, nay, weighing carefully the preponderance and otherwise of the merits and demerits of the proposition and judging aright your own strength as well as that of Rāma (a scion of Raghu), and ascertaining what is conducive to your good, you ought to do the proper thing. (23-24)

अहं तु मन्ये तव न क्षमं रणे

समागमं कोसलराजसूनुना।

इदं हि भूयः शृणु वाक्यमुत्तमं

क्षमं च युक्तं च निशाचराधिप ॥ २५ ॥

“I, for my part, do not deem fit your encounter on a field of battle with Rāma, the prince of Kosala. Listen once more. O suzerain lord of ogres, to my following most useful, appropriate and reasonable submission. (25)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे सप्तत्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-seven in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टात्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXVIII

Narrating his own experience of Śrī Rāma's prowess, Mārīca asks Rāvaṇa not to provoke Śrī Rāma

कदाचिदप्यहं वीर्यात् पर्यटन् पृथिवीमिमाम्।
बलं नागसहस्रस्य धारयन् पर्वतोपमः ॥ १ ॥
नीलजीमूतसंकाशस्तप्तकाञ्चनकुण्डलः ।
भयं लोकस्य जनयन् किरीटी परिघायुधः ॥ २ ॥
व्यचरन् दण्डकारण्यमृषिमांसानि भक्षयन्।
विश्वामित्रोऽथ धर्मात्मा मद्वित्रस्तो महामुनिः ॥ ३ ॥
स्वयं गत्वा दशरथं नरेन्द्रमिदमब्रवीत्।
अयं रक्षतु मां रामः पर्वकाले समाहितः ॥ ४ ॥

“Once while I was ranging this earth through pride of valour, looking like a mountain and possessing the might of a thousand elephants and the hue of a dark blue cloud, adorned with ear-rings of refined gold with a diadem on my head and an iron club in my hand, I roamed about in the Daṇḍaka forest eating the flesh of Ṛṣis (seers of Vedic Mantras) and causing terror in the hearts of men. Personally approaching Daśaratha, the great Sage Viśwāmitra, whose mind was set on righteousness, and who was greatly afraid of me, spoke to the king as follows: ‘Let this Rāma protect me at the time of a sacrifice, remaining vigilant all the time. (1—4)

मारीचान्मे भयं घोरं समुत्पन्नं नरेश्वर।
इत्येवमुक्तो धर्मात्मा राजा दशरथस्तदा ॥ ५ ॥
प्रत्युवाच महाभागं विश्वामित्रं महामुनिम्।
ऊनद्वादशवर्षोऽयमकृतास्त्रश्च राघवः ॥ ६ ॥

“‘A terrible calamity has arisen before me through Mārīca, O ruler of men !’ Solicited in the above words, on that occasion, King Daśaratha, whose mind was set on piety, replied as follows to the eminent and highly blessed Sage Viśwāmitra: ‘This scion of Raghu is less than twelve* years of age and has not yet practised archery. (5-6)

कामं तु मम तत् सैन्यं मया सह गमिष्यति।
बलेन चतुरङ्गेण स्वयमेत्य निशाचरम् ॥ ७ ॥

* In I. xx. 2 the age of Rāma at that time was declared by Daśaratha to be less than fifteen years. Mārīca, however, minimizes it here to impress upon Rāvaṇa the extraordinary might of Śrī Rāma even at that tender age.

वधिष्यामि मुनिश्रेष्ठ शत्रुं तव यथेप्सितम्।
एवमुक्तः स तु मुनी राजानमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ ८ ॥

“ ‘My distinguished army will no doubt gladly go with you. Personally reaching with my army consisting of four limbs (viz., elephants, cavalry, chariots and foot soldiers), I shall make short work of your enemy, the night-stalker, as desired by you, O jewel among ascetics!’ Reassured in these words, the aforesaid sage for his part replied to the king as follows: (7-8)

रामान्नान्यद् बलं लोके पर्याप्तं तस्य रक्षसः।
देवतानामपि भवान् समरेष्वभिपालकः ॥ ९ ॥

“ ‘No power in the world other than Śrī Rāma is adequate to meet that ogre, even though you have been the protector even of gods on the fields of battle. (9)

आसीत् तव कृतं कर्म त्रिलोकविदितं नृप।
काममस्ति महत् सैन्यं तिष्ठत्विह परंतप ॥ १० ॥

“ ‘The feat accomplished by you is known through all the three worlds, O protector of men! Even though there is a great army with you, let it remain here, O scorcher of your enemy! (10)

बालोऽप्येष महातेजाः समर्थस्तस्य निग्रेहे।
गमिष्ये राममादाय स्वस्ति तेऽस्तु परंतप ॥ ११ ॥

“ ‘Though still a boy, Śrī Rāma is endowed with great energy and is capable of subduing the ogre. I shall, therefore, depart taking him with me. May all be well with you, O tormentor of foes!’ (11)

इत्येवमुक्त्वा स मुनिस्तमादाय नृपात्मजम्।
जगाम परमप्रीतो विश्वामित्रः स्वमाश्रमम् ॥ १२ ॥

Saying so and taking the aforesaid prince with him, Viśwāmitra returned to his own hermitage, supremely gratified. (12)

तं तथा दण्डकारण्ये यज्ञमुद्दिश्य दीक्षितम्।
बभूवोपस्थितो रामश्चित्रं विस्फारयन् धनुः ॥ १३ ॥

“Twanging his wonderful bow, Śrī Rāma stood by the side of the sage, consecrated for a sacrifice in the Daṇḍaka forest as prearranged. (13)

अजातव्यञ्जनः श्रीमान् बालः श्यामः शुभेक्षणः।
एकवस्त्रधरो धन्वी शिखी कनकमालया ॥ १४ ॥
शोभयन् दण्डकारण्यं दीप्तेन स्वेन तेजसा।
अदृश्यत तदा रामो बालचन्द्र इवोदितः ॥ १५ ॥

“Illumining the Daṇḍaka forest with his refulgent splendour, the glorious Rāma—who was still a boy, in whom the marks of manhood (in the shape of moustaches etc.) had not yet appeared, dark-brown of complexion, with charming eyes and a single cloth wrapped about his loins as a token of celibacy, wielding a bow and wearing a tuft of hair on the crown of his head and adorned with a string of gold—looked at that time like the new moon just risen. (14-15)

ततोऽहं मेघसंकाशस्तप्तकाञ्चनकुण्डलः।
बली दत्तवरो दर्पादाजगामाश्रमान्तरम् ॥ १६ ॥

“At that time I—who looked like a cloud, and was adorned with ear-rings of refined gold, full of might and puffed up with arrogance, a boon having been conferred on me by Brahmā—reached the heart of the hermitage. (16)

तेन दृष्टः प्रविष्टोऽहं सहसैवोद्यतायुधः।
मां तु दृष्ट्वा धनुः सज्यमसम्भ्रान्तश्चकार ह ॥ १७ ॥

“The moment I entered the hermitage I was espied by him. Having suddenly lifted up his weapon on seeing me, he strung his bow calmly indeed. (17)

अवजानन्नहं मोहाद् बालोऽयमिति राघवम्।
विश्वामित्रस्य तां वेदिमभ्यधावं कृतत्वरः ॥ १८ ॥

“Disregarding Rāma (a scion of Raghu) through ignorance, thinking that he was a mere boy, I rushed with speed towards the well-known altar occupied by Viśwāmitra. (18)

तेन मुक्तस्ततो बाणः शितः शत्रुनिर्बहणः।
तेनाहं ताडितः क्षिप्तः समुद्रे शतयोजने ॥ १९ ॥

“By him was discharged at that time a sharp arrow capable of destroying the enemy. Struck by it I was cast into the sea which was a hundred Yojanas (800 miles) long.

(19)

नेच्छता तात मां हन्तुं तदा वीरेण रक्षितः ।

रामस्य शरवेगेन निरस्तो भ्रान्तचेतनः ॥ २० ॥

पातितोऽहं तदा तेन गम्भीरे सागराम्भसि ।

प्राप्य संज्ञां चिरात् तात लङ्कां प्रति गतः पुरीम् ॥ २१ ॥

“Spared on that occasion by the hero, who did not want to kill me, O dear one, and flung by the impetus of Rāma’s arrow at that moment, I was hurled by him into the deep waters, rendered unconscious. Regaining consciousness after a long time, I proceeded towards the city of Laṅkā, O dear one !

(20-21)

एवमस्मि तदा मुक्तः सहायास्ते निपातिताः ।

अकृतास्त्रेण रामेण बालेनाक्लिष्टकर्मणा ॥ २२ ॥

“In this way I was let go at that time, while my well-known companions were slain by the child Rāma of unwearied action, who had not yet practised archery.

(22)

तन्मया वार्यमाणस्तु यदि रामेण विग्रहम् ।

करिष्यस्यापदां घोरां क्षिप्रं प्राप्य न शिष्यसि ॥ २३ ॥

“If, therefore, you enter into hostilities with Rāma, though being dissuaded by me, you will soon meet with a terrible catastrophe, and shall not survive.

(23)

क्रीडारतिविधिज्ञानां समाजोत्सवदर्शिनाम् ।

रक्षसां चैव संतापमनर्थं चाहरिष्यसि ॥ २४ ॥

“Nay, you will also bring suffering and doom to the ogres, who know the technique of sports and enjoyment and are fond of enjoying social festivities.

(24)

हर्म्यप्रासादसम्बाधां नानारत्नविभूषिताम् ।

द्रक्ष्यसि त्वं पुरीं लङ्कां विनष्टां मैथिलीकृते ॥ २५ ॥

“You will see the city of Laṅkā, thick with mansions and palaces and adorned with jewels of every description, laid waste on account of Sītā, the princess of Mithilā.

(25)

अकुर्वन्तोऽपि पापानि शुचयः पापसंश्रयात् ।

परपापैर्विनश्यन्ति मत्स्या नागहृदे यथा ॥ २६ ॥

“Though not committing sins themselves, even innocent people perish because of others’ sins through contact with the sinful, even like the fish living in a snake-infested lake.

(26)

दिव्यचन्दनदिग्धाङ्गान् दिव्याभरणभूषितान् ।

द्रक्ष्यस्यभिहतान् भूमौ तव दोषात् तु राक्षसान् ॥ २७ ॥

“You will see ogres with their bodies besmeared with celestial sandal-paste as well as those adorned with heavenly ornaments, lying killed on the ground for your fault.

(27)

हृतदारान् सदारांश्च दश विद्रवतो दिशः ।

हतशेषानशरणान् द्रक्ष्यसि त्वं निशाचरान् ॥ २८ ॥

“You will also see night-stalkers, other than those killed in action, fleeing without a protector in all directions, their wives having been borne away, and others with their wives.

(28)

शरजालपरिक्षिप्तमग्निज्वालासमावृताम् ।

प्रदग्धभवनां लङ्कां द्रक्ष्यसि त्वमसंशयम् ॥ २९ ॥

“You will without doubt see Laṅkā screened with a network of arrows and surrounded with flames with its houses (consequently) reduced to ashes.

(29)

परदाराभिमर्शात् तु नान्यत् पापतरं महत् ।

प्रमदानां सहस्राणि तव राजन् परिग्रहे ॥ ३० ॥

“Surely there is no greater sin than consorting with another’s wife. There are thousands of young ladies in your gynaeceum, O king !

(30)

भव स्वदारनिरतः स्वकुलं रक्ष राक्षसान् ।

मानं वृद्धिं च राज्यं च जीवितं चेष्टमात्मनः ॥ ३१ ॥

“Remain devoted to your own wives and preserve your race, as well as the ogres, as also your honour, prosperity, kingdom and your dear life.

(31)

कलत्राणि च सौम्यानि मित्रवर्गं तथैव च ।

यदीच्छसि चिरं भोक्तुं मा कृथा रामविप्रियम् ॥ ३२ ॥

“Nay, if you wish to enjoy for long your charming wives as also the company of your friends, do not give offence to Rāma.

(32)

निवार्यमाणः सुहृदा मया भृशं
प्रसह्य सीतां यदि धर्षयिष्यसि।

गमिष्यसि क्षीणबलः सबान्धवो

यमक्षयं रामशरास्तजीवितः ॥ ३३ ॥

“If you forcibly take away Sitā, in spite of being repeatedly dissuaded by me—your disinterested friend—you will reach the abode of Death together with your kith and kin, your army being destroyed and your life being brought to an end by the arrows of Rāma. (33)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डेऽष्टात्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-eight in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनचत्वरिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXIX

Mārīca tries to bring Rāvaṇa round

एवमस्मि तदा मुक्तः कथंचित् तेन संयुगे।
इदानीमपि यद् वृत्तं तच्छृणुष्व यदुत्तरम् ॥ १ ॥

“As aforesaid, I was somehow let go by him in the encounter on that occasion. Now hear of that which happened latterly and which is something out of the common. (1)

राक्षसाभ्यामहं द्वाभ्यामनिर्विण्णस्तथाकृतः।
सहितो मृगरूपाभ्यां प्रविष्टो दण्डकावने ॥ २ ॥

“Never daunted, though dealt with in that way by Rāma, I penetrated deep into the Daṇḍaka forest accompanied by two ogres, who had assumed the form of deer. (2)

दीप्तजिह्वो महादंष्ट्रस्तीक्ष्णशृङ्गो महाबलः।
व्यचरन् दण्डकारण्यं मांसभक्षो महामृगः ॥ ३ ॥

“I ranged the Daṇḍaka forest in the form of a large carnivorous stag possessed of great strength with a flaming tongue, big teeth and pointed horns. (3)

अग्निहोत्रेषु तीर्थेषु चैत्यवृक्षेषु रावण।
अत्यन्तघोरो व्यचरंस्तापसांस्तान् प्रधर्षयन् ॥ ४ ॥
निहत्य दण्डकारण्ये तापसान् धर्मचारिणः।
रुधिराणि पिबंस्तेषां तन्मांसानि च भक्षयन् ॥ ५ ॥

“Looking most frightful and assaulting the ascetics in fire-sanctuaries, the descents of rivers and lakes etc., and under the shade of trees growing on holy spots, O Rāvaṇa, nay, quaffing the blood of ascetics practising virtue in the Daṇḍaka forest, and feeding on their flesh after killing them, I roamed at will. (4-5)

ऋषिमांसाशनः क्रूरस्त्रासयन् वनगोचरान्।
तदा रुधिरमत्तोऽहं व्यचरं दण्डकावनम् ॥ ६ ॥

“Living on the flesh of Ṛṣis (the seers of Vedic Mantras), cruel as I was, nay, causing fear to the denizens of the forest and drunk with their blood, I ranged the Daṇḍaka forest at that time. (6)

तदाहं दण्डकारण्ये विचरन् धर्मदूषकः।
आसादयं तदा रामं तापसं धर्ममाश्रितम् ॥ ७ ॥
वैदेहीं च महाभागां लक्ष्मणं च महारथम्।
तापसं नियताहारं सर्वभूतहिते रतम् ॥ ८ ॥

“Roaming about in the Daṇḍaka forest at that time offending against righteousness, I forthwith approached Rāma, who had adopted the course of conduct prescribed for ascetics, as well as the highly blessed Sitā (a princess of the Videha territory) and the great chariot-warrior, Lakṣmaṇa, who was practising austerities and living on a restricted diet, and was devoted to the good of all created beings. (7-8)

सोऽहं वनगतं रामं परिभूय महाबलम् ।
तापसोऽयमिति ज्ञात्वा पूर्ववैरमनुस्मरन् ॥ ९ ॥
अभ्यधावं सुसंकुद्धस्तीक्ष्णशृङ्गो मृगाकृतिः ।
जिघांसुरकृतप्रज्ञस्तं प्रहारमनुस्मरन् ॥ १० ॥

“Belittling Rāma, who had retired to the forest, even though he was possessed of great might, thinking that he was an ascetic only, and recalling my past enmity with him, I rushed towards him, highly enraged, in the form of a sharp-horned deer, thoughtlessly seeking to kill him, remembering as I did the blow dealt by him. (9-10)

तेन त्यक्तास्त्रयो बाणाः शिताः शत्रुनिर्बहणाः ।
विकृष्य सुमहच्चापं सुपर्णानिलतुल्यगाः ॥ ११ ॥

“Stretching at full length his very mighty bow, three sharp arrows—which were capable of putting an end to the enemy and which sped like Garuḍa, the king of birds and the carrier of Lord Viṣṇu, and the wind—were shot by him. (11)

ते बाणा वज्रसंकाशाः सुघोरा रक्तभोजनाः ।
आजग्मुः सहिताः सर्वे त्रयः संनतपर्वणः ॥ १२ ॥

“All those three most dreadful and flat-knobbed arrows, which shone brightly as lightning, and were fond of sucking blood—sped towards me together. (12)

पराक्रमज्ञो रामस्य शठो दृष्टभयः पुरा ।
समुत्क्रान्तस्ततो मुक्तस्तावुभौ राक्षसौ हतौ ॥ १३ ॥

“Knowing as I did the prowess of Rāma and having seen the peril to which I had exposed myself on a previous occasion, I slipped away, cunning as I was, and was thereby saved since the arrow of Rāma never hits a fugitive while both those ogres (my companions) were killed. (13)

शरेण मुक्तो रामस्य कथंचित् प्राप्य जीवितम् ।
इह प्रव्राजितो युक्तस्तापसोऽहं समाहितः ॥ १४ ॥

“Having somehow got back my life, being spared by the shaft of Rāma, I have been forced to turn a recluse here and, being calm and collected, have taken to the practice of yoga (concentration of mind), adopting an ascetic life. (14)

वृक्षे वृक्षे हि पश्यामि चीरकृष्णाजिनाम्बरम् ।
गृहीतधनुषं रामं पाशहस्तमिवान्तकम् ॥ १५ ॥

“In every tree I actually perceive Śrī Rāma clad in the bark of trees and the black antelope-skin, wielding a bow and resembling Death with a noose in his hand. (15)

अपि रामसहस्राणि भीतः पश्यामि रावण ।
रामभूतमिदं सर्वमरण्यं प्रतिभाति मे ॥ १६ ॥

“Being terrified, O Rāvaṇa, I even behold thousands of Rāma. Nay, to me the whole of this forest appears as having turned into Rāma. (16)

राममेव हि पश्यामि रहिते राक्षसेश्वर ।
दृष्ट्वा स्वप्नगतं राममुद्भ्रमामि विचेतनः ॥ १७ ॥

“Indeed, I perceive Rāma even in a solitary place, O lord of ogres ! Nay, beholding Rāma in a dream I get bewildered like one returned to waking life. (17)

रकारादीनि नामानि रामत्रस्तस्य रावण ।
रत्नानि च रथाश्चैव वित्रासं जनयन्ति मे ॥ १८ ॥

“Names beginning with the letter ‘R’ such as the word ‘Ratnas’ (jewels) and ‘Rathas’ (chariots) as well cause terror to me, afraid as I am of Rāma, O Rāvaṇa ! (18)

अहं तस्य प्रभावज्ञो न युद्धं तेन ते क्षमम् ।
बलिं वा नमुचिं वापि हन्याद्धि रघुनन्दनः ॥ १९ ॥

“I am aware of his power; an encounter with him is, therefore, not advisable for you. Rāma, the delight of the Raghus, can surely kill Bali and even Namuci. (19)

रणे रामेण युद्धस्व क्षमां वा कुरु रावण ।
न ते रामकथा कार्या यदि मां द्रष्टुमिच्छसि ॥ २० ॥

“Either contend with Rāma on a field of battle or bear with him, O Rāvaṇa ! In no case should a reference be made to Rāma in my presence, if you would see me alive.

(20)

बहवः साधवो लोके युक्ता धर्ममनुष्ठिताः ।
परेषामपराधेन विनष्टाः सपरिच्छदाः ॥ २१ ॥

“Many innocent souls of right conduct in the world, who practised virtue all their life, have perished with their associates for the fault of others.
(21)

सोऽहं परापराधेन विनश्येयं निशाचर ।
कुरु यत् ते क्षमं तत्त्वमहं त्वां नानुयामि वै ॥ २२ ॥

“As such I too am sure to perish for the fault of another (viz., yourself), O ranger of the night ! Therefore, do what is proper for you, I for my part am not going to follow you.
(22)

रामश्च हि महातेजा महासत्त्वो महाबलः ।
अपि राक्षसलोकस्य भवेदन्तकरोऽपि हि ॥ २३ ॥

“For, Rāma is possessed of extraordinary prowess, great intellectual calibre and inordinate strength. He can surely prove to be the exterminator of the entire world of ogres.

(23)

यदि शूर्पणखाहेतोर्जनस्थानगतः खरः ।
अतिवृत्तो हतः पूर्वं रामेणाक्लिष्टकर्मणा ।
अत्र ब्रूहि यथातत्त्वं को रामस्य व्यतिक्रमः ॥ २४ ॥

“If Khara, stationed in Janasthāna, who transgressed his limits on account of Śūrpaṇakhā, was killed in the past by Rāma, of unwearied action, tell me in truth, what was the fault of Rāma in this matter? (24)

इदं वचो बन्धुहितार्थिना मया
यथोच्यमानं यदि नाभिपत्स्यसे ।
सबान्धवस्त्यक्ष्यसि जीवितं रणे
हतोऽद्य रामेण शरैरजिह्मगैः ॥ २५ ॥

“If you do not accept this advice being tendered in right earnest by me, seeking the welfare of my relative in your person, you will, when pierced by Rāma with the straight-going arrows today, will give up the ghost with your kith and kin on the field of battle.”
(25)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे एकोनचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-nine in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XL

Rāvaṇa reproaches Mārīca and commands him to help him in his mission

मारीचस्य तु तद् वाक्यं क्षमं युक्तं च रावणः ।
उक्तो न प्रतिजग्राह मर्तुकाम इवौषधम् ॥ १ ॥

Though counselled by Mārīca, Rāvaṇa for his part did not accept that proper and reasonable advice of Mārīca, any more than a man courting death would accept a remedy.
(1)

तं पथ्यहितवक्तरं मारीचं राक्षसाधिपः ।
अब्रवीत् परुषं वाक्यमयुक्तं कालचोदितः ॥ २ ॥

Impelled by Death, Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, spoke the following harsh and ill-advised words to the said Mārīca, who had tendered a salutary and friendly advice to him :

(2)

दुष्कुलैतदयुक्तार्थं मारीच मयि कथ्यते ।
वाक्यं निष्फलमत्यर्थं बीजमुत्तमिवोषरे ॥ ३ ॥

“O Mārīca of ignoble descent, this ill-conceived advice, which is being tendered to me, is altogether fruitless like a seed sown in a barren soil.
(3)

त्वद्वाक्यैर्न तु मां शक्यं भेत्तुं रामस्य संयुगे।
मूर्खस्य पापशीलस्य मानुषस्य विशेषतः ॥ ४ ॥

“It is not possible by your words to deter me from my resolve to enter into hostility through abduction of Sitā with Rāma, who is stupid, addicted to sin and, above all, a human being. (4)

यस्यक्त्वा सुहृदो राज्यं मातरं पितरं तथा।
स्त्रीवाक्यं प्राकृतं श्रुत्वा वनमेकपदे गतः ॥ ५ ॥
अवश्यं तु मया तस्य संयुगे खरघातिनः।
प्राणैः प्रियतरा सीता हर्तव्या तव संनिधौ ॥ ६ ॥

“I need must at all events bear away in your presence Sitā, who is dearer than life to him who, having heard the valueless words of a woman (viz., his stepmother, Kaikeyi) departed at once for the forest, renouncing his near and dear ones, sovereignty and parents, and who killed Khara in battle. (5-6)
एवं मे निश्चिता बुद्धिर्हृदि मारीच विद्यते।
न व्यावर्तयितुं शक्या सेन्द्रैरपि सुरासुरैः ॥ ७ ॥

“This resolute determination exists in my mind, O Mārica ! It cannot be altered even by gods and demons including Indra, the lord of paradise. (7)

दोषं गुणं वा सम्पृष्टस्त्वमेवं वक्तुमर्हसि।
अपायं वा उपायं वा कार्यस्यास्य विनिश्चये ॥ ८ ॥
सम्पृष्टेन तु वक्तव्यं सचिवेन विपश्चिता।
उद्यताञ्जलिना राज्ञो य इच्छेद् भूतिमात्मनः ॥ ९ ॥

“When asked about the merits and demerits or about the means of accomplishing a thing or the risks involved in it, while finally deciding upon a particular course of action, you ought to have said like this. By a wise counsellor, who seeks his own prosperity from a king, counsel should be given with uplifted and joined palms only when he is duly asked for it. (8-9)

वाक्यमप्रतिकूलं तु मृदुपूर्वं शुभं हितम्।
उपचारेण वक्तव्यो युक्तं च वसुधाधिपः ॥ १० ॥

“A monarch should be spoken to in words which are not repugnant but pleasing, yet wholesome, and are uttered with politeness and in soft accents. (10)

सावमर्दं तु यद्वाक्यमथवा हितमुच्यते।
नाभिनन्देत तद् राजा मानार्थी मानवर्जितम् ॥ ११ ॥

“A king seeking honour would not welcome that counsel which is uttered in an insulting tone, and is lacking in respect, even though it is wholesome. (11)

पञ्च रूपाणि राजानो धारयन्त्यमितौजसः।
अग्रेरिन्द्रस्य सोमस्य यमस्य वरुणस्य च ॥ १२ ॥

“Kings possessed of unlimited prowess assume five roles, viz., those of the god of fire, Indra (the ruler of gods), the moon-god, Yama (the god of retribution) and Varuṇa (the god of water). (12)

औष्ण्यं तथा विक्रमं च सौम्यं दण्डं प्रसन्नताम्।
धारयन्ति महात्मानो राजानः क्षणदाचर ॥ १३ ॥
तस्मात् सर्वास्ववस्थासु मान्याः पूज्याश्च नित्यदा।
त्वं तु धर्ममविज्ञाय केवलं मोहमाश्रितः ॥ १४ ॥
अभ्यागतं तु दौरात्म्यात् परुषं वदसीदृशम्।
गुणदोषौ न पृच्छामि क्षेमं चात्मनि राक्षस ॥ १५ ॥

“High-souled kings, O prowler of the night, embody ardour and prowess, gentleness, violence and grace (the virtues of the above-noted deities) and are, therefore, worthy of honour and respect at all times. Not knowing your duty, you, on the other hand, have clung to infatuation alone and due to evil-mindedness address such harsh words to me, your guest ! I do not ask you about the merits and demerits of what I propose to do, nor what is advisable for me, O ogre ! (13-15)

मयोक्तमपि चैतावत् त्वां प्रत्यमितविक्रम।
अस्मिस्तु स भवान् कृत्ये साहाय्यं कर्तुमर्हसि ॥ १६ ॥

“On the other hand, my request to you is only this, O ogre of unlimited prowess: urged by me, you ought at all events to render help in this mission of abducting Sitā. (16)

शृणु तत्कर्म साहाय्ये यत्कार्यं वचनान्मम।
सौवर्णस्त्वं मृगो भूत्वा चित्रो रजतबिन्दुभिः ॥ १७ ॥

आश्रमे तस्य रामस्य सीतायाः प्रमुखे चर।
प्रलोभयित्वा वैदेहीं यथेष्टं गन्तुमर्हसि॥ १८ ॥

“Now hear of that role which has to be played by you by way of co-operation at my instance : turning into a golden deer freckled with silvery spots, roam you in the hermitage of the aforesaid Rāma, before the eyes of Sitā. Having cast your full charm on her, you may go wherever you please. (17-18)

त्वां हि मायामयं दृष्ट्वा काञ्चनं जातविस्मया।
आनयैनमिति क्षिप्रं रामं वक्ष्यति मैथिली॥ १९ ॥

“Wonder-struck to see you transformed into a golden deer by dint of Māyā (conjuring tricks), Sitā, a princess of Mithilā, will surely speak to Rāma at once : ‘Pray, fetch the deer for me.’ (19)

अपक्रान्ते च काकुत्स्थे दूरं गत्वाप्युदाहर।
हा सीते लक्ष्मणेत्येवं रामवाक्यानुरूपकम्॥ २० ॥

“Also moving to some distance, when Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha) is away from his hut, exclaim in a voice similar to Rāma’s, ‘Ah, Sitā, O Lakṣmaṇa !’ (20)

तच्छ्रुत्वा रामपदवीं सीतया च प्रचोदितः।
अनुगच्छति सम्भ्रान्तः सौमित्रिरपि सौहृदात्॥ २१ ॥

Hearing the call and importuned by Sitā, Lakṣmaṇa, son of Sumitrā, too will follow in the wake of Rāma in a flurry out of affection for his brother. (21)

अपक्रान्ते च काकुत्स्थे लक्ष्मणे च यथासुखम्।
आहरिष्यामि वैदेहीं सहस्राक्षः शचीमिव॥ २२ ॥

When Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha) and Lakṣmaṇa too are away from their cottage, I shall bear away Sitā, a princess of the Videha territory, with ease as Indra, the thousand-eyed god would take away Śacī, his own consort. (22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे चत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४० ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एवं कृत्वा त्विदं कार्यं यथेष्टं गच्छ राक्षस।
राज्यस्यार्धं प्रदास्यामि मारीच तव सुव्रत॥ २३ ॥

“Of course, having accomplished this work in this way, go wherever you please, O ogre ! I shall confer half of my kingdom on you, O Mārīca of noble vows ! (23)

गच्छ सौम्य शिवं मार्गं कार्यस्यास्य विवृद्धये।
अहं त्वानुगमिष्यामि सरथो दण्डकावनम्॥ २४ ॥

“Proceed on your auspicious journey, my good friend, for the accomplishment of this object. I shall follow at your heels in a chariot to the Daṇḍaka forest. (24)

प्राप्य सीतामयुद्धेन वञ्चयित्वा तु राघवम्।
लङ्कां प्रति गमिष्यामि कृतकार्यः सह त्वया॥ २५ ॥

“Having hoodwinked Rāma and won Sitā without any struggle, I shall for my part return to Laṅkā with you, my purpose being accomplished. (25)

नो चेत् करोषि मारीच हन्मि त्वामहमद्य वै।
एतत् कार्यमवश्यं मे बलादपि करिष्यसि।
राज्ञो विप्रतिकूलस्थो न जातु सुखमेधते॥ २६ ॥

“If you don’t do this, O Mārīca, I shall make short work of you this very day. You need must do this work of mine even perforce. None who stands directly opposed to a king can live happily. (26)

आसाद्य तं जीवितसंशयस्ते
मृत्युर्ध्रुवो ह्यद्य मया विरुध्यतः।
एतद् यथावत् परिगण्य बुद्ध्य
यदत्र पथ्यं कुरु तत्तथा त्वम्॥ २७ ॥

“Approaching Rāma, danger to life will be met by you; whereas death is certain for you this very day if you are at variance with me. Weighing this carefully in the scales of reason, do that which is wholesome for you on this point accordingly.” (27)

एकचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLI

Once more Mārīca tries to deter Rāvaṇa from his purpose by picturing to him the disastrous consequences of his action

आज्ञप्तो रावणेनेत्थं प्रतिकूलं च राजवत् ।
अब्रवीत् परुषं वाक्यं निःशङ्को राक्षसाधिपम् ॥ १ ॥

Commanded in the foregoing words by Rāvaṇa like a king to do a thing which was repugnant to him, Mārīca fearlessly spoke the following harsh words to Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres :

केनायमुपदिष्टस्ते विनाशः पापकर्मणा ।
सपुत्रस्य सराज्यस्य सामात्यस्य निशाचर ॥ २ ॥

“What man of sinful deeds has advised you this course of action, which spells your doom alongwith that of your sons, kingdom and ministers, O night-stalker?

कस्त्वया सुखिना राजन् नाभिनन्दति पापकृत् ।
केनेदमुपदिष्टं ते मृत्युद्वारमुपायतः ॥ ३ ॥

“Who is that man of sinful deeds, who does not rejoice with you while you are enjoying happiness, O king? By whom has this door to death been directed to you in the guise of an expedient, O king?

शत्रवस्तव सुव्यक्तं हीनवीर्या निशाचर ।
इच्छन्ति त्वां विनश्यन्तमुपरुद्धं बलीयसा ॥ ४ ॥

“Obviously enough, O ranger of the night, your enemies of meagre strength wish to see you besieged by a stronger power and meeting with your doom in consequence.

केनेदमुपदिष्टं ते क्षुद्रेणाहितबुद्धिना ।
यस्त्वामिच्छति नश्यन्तं स्वकृतेन निशाचर ॥ ५ ॥

“By what mean fellow of noxious designs has this course of action been urged on you? He wishes you to perish as a result of your own deeds, O prowler of the night !

वध्याः खलु न वध्यन्ते सचिवास्तव रावण ।
ये त्वामुत्पथमारूढं न निगृह्णन्ति सर्वशः ॥ ६ ॥

“Worthy of execution indeed are your ministers, O Rāvaṇa, who do not hold you back by every means even though seeing you having set your foot on a wrong path; yet they are not put to death by you. (6)

अमात्यैः कामवृत्तो हि राजा कापथमाश्रितः ।
निग्राह्यः सर्वथा सद्भिः स निग्राह्यो न गृह्यसे ॥ ७ ॥

“A licentious king, who has taken to evil ways, surely deserves to be checked in everyway by virtuous ministers. Though deserving to be so checked, you have, however, not been checked. (7)

धर्ममर्थं च कामं च यशश्च जयतां वर ।
स्वामिप्रसादात् सचिवाः प्राप्नुवन्ति निशाचर ॥ ८ ॥

“By the grace of their lord, O ranger of the night, ministers acquire religious merit, wealth and sensuous enjoyment as well as fame, O jewel among the victorious ! (8)

विपर्यये तु तत्सर्वं व्यर्थं भवति रावण ।
व्यसनं स्वामिवैगुण्यात् प्राप्नुवन्तीतरे जनाः ॥ ९ ॥

“In the reverse case, however, everything becomes useless, O Rāvaṇa ! Other people meet with adversity through the fault of a master. (9)

राजमूलो हि धर्मश्च यशश्च जयतां वर ।
तस्मात् सर्वास्ववस्थासु रक्षितव्या नराधिपाः ॥ १० ॥

“Virtue as well as fame have their root in a king, O jewel among the victorious ! Hence the rulers of men deserve to be protected under all circumstances. (10)

राज्यं पालयितुं शक्यं न तीक्ष्णेन निशाचर ।
न चातिप्रतिकूलेन नाविनीतेन राक्षस ॥ ११ ॥

“No state can be ruled by a king who is severe, nor by him who is most adversely disposed to the people, nor again by him who is boorish in his manners, O night-stalker ! (11)

ये तीक्ष्णमन्त्राः सचिवा भुज्यन्ते सह तेन वै ।
विषमेषु रथाः शीघ्रं मन्दसारथ्यो यथा ॥ १२ ॥

“Ministers who counsel violent measures surely reap suffering along with the counselled even as chariots driven by a dull-witted charioteer, coursing swiftly on uneven roads perish with the chariot. (12)

बहवः साधवो लोके युक्तधर्ममनुष्ठिताः ।
परेषामपराधेन विनष्टाः सपरिच्छदाः ॥ १३ ॥

“Many righteous souls in the world who have practised virtue enjoined on them have perished with their followers through the offence of others. (13)

स्वामिना प्रतिकूलेन प्रजास्तीक्ष्णेन रावण ।
रक्ष्यमाणा न वर्धन्ते मेषा गोमायुना यथा ॥ १४ ॥

“Being protected by a violent and adversely disposed master, O Rāvaṇa, people do not prosper any more than the rams protected by a jackal. (14)

अवश्यं विनशिष्यन्ति सर्वे रावण राक्षसाः ।
येषां त्वं कर्कशो राजा दुर्बुद्धिरजितेन्द्रियः ॥ १५ ॥

“The ogres, O Rāvaṇa, whose ruler are you, cruel, evil-minded and a slave to senses will all surely perish. (15)

तदिदं काकतालीयं घोरमासादितं मया ।
अत्र त्वं शोचनीयोऽसि ससैन्यो विनशिष्यसि ॥ १६ ॥

“Although this terrible and unforeseen calamity in the form of death at your hands has been met with by me, nevertheless on this score you alone deserve to be pitied and not I, inasmuch as you are going to meet your doom with your army. (16)

मां निहत्य तु रामोऽसावचिरात् त्वां वधिष्यति ।
अनेन कृतकृत्योऽस्मि म्रिये चाप्यरिणा हतः ॥ १७ ॥

“Having killed me, the aforesaid Rāma for his part will dispose you of before long I shall, however, feel accomplished of purpose through such death; for I would fain give up the ghost when killed by an enemy rather than be killed by you, my king. (17)

दर्शनादेव रामस्य हतं मामवधारय ।
आत्मानं च हतं विद्धि हत्वा सीतां सबान्धवम् ॥ १८ ॥

“Take me as killed at the very sight of Rāma and deem yourself as killed with your kith and kin as soon as you bear away Sītā. (18)

आनयिष्यसि चेत् सीतामाश्रमात् सहितो मया ।
नैव त्वमपि नाहं वै नैव लङ्का न राक्षसाः ॥ १९ ॥

“If, accompanied by me, you fetch Sītā from the hermitage, under no circumstance will you survive, nor I, nor even Laṅkā, your capital, nor the ogres. (19)

निवार्यमाणस्तु मया हितैषिणा
न मृष्यसे वाक्यमिदं निशाचर ।

परेतकल्पा हि गतायुषो नरा
हितं न गृह्णन्ति सुहृद्भिरिरितम् ॥ २० ॥

“You do not heed this counsel of mine, though being checked by me, your well-wisher, O ranger of the night ! For men whose span of life has come to an end and who are on the verge of death do not accept the salutary advice tendered by their selfless friends. (20)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे एकचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-one in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्विचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLII

Assuming the form of a golden deer, Mārīca reaches the hermitage of Rāma and is caught sight of by Sītā

एवमुक्त्वा तु परुषं मारीचो रावणं ततः ।
गच्छावेत्यब्रवीद् दीनो भयाद् रात्रिचरप्रभोः ॥ १ ॥

Having spoken such harsh words to Rāvaṇa, Mārīca, for his part, who felt afflicted through fear of the king of ogres, said, "Let us both depart. (1)

दृष्टश्चाहं पुनस्तेन शरचापासिधारिणा ।
मद्वधोद्यतशस्त्रेण निहतं जीवितं च मे ॥ २ ॥

"Nay, if I am seen again by Rāma, the wielder of arrows, a bow and a sword, with his weapon raised to make short work of me, my life is doomed. (2)

नहि रामं पराक्रम्य जीवन् प्रतिनिवर्तते ।
वर्तते प्रतिरूपोऽसौ यमदण्डहतस्य ते ॥ ३ ॥

"Showing valour against Rāma nobody can return alive. He is quite a match for you, who stand already killed by the rod of Death. (3)

किं नु कर्तुं मया शक्यमेवं त्वयि दुरात्मनि ।
एष गच्छाम्यहं तात स्वस्ति तेऽस्तु निशाचर ॥ ४ ॥

"When you are so evil-minded, what on earth can be done by me to check you? Here do I go, my dear Rāvaṇa ! May all be well with you, O prowler of the night !" (4)

प्रहृष्टस्त्वभवत् तेन वचनेन स राक्षसः ।
परिष्वज्य सुसंश्लिष्टमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ५ ॥

The ogre Rāvaṇa felt highly rejoiced at these words. Closely embracing Mārīca, he spoke to him as follows : (5)

एतच्छ्रौटीर्ययुक्तं ते मच्छन्दवशवर्तिनः ।
इदानीमसि मारीचः पूर्वमन्यो हि राक्षसः ॥ ६ ॥

"This utterance of yours is full of valour, since you now follow my mind. You are now the same Mārīca as you were before.

Heretofore some other unknown ogre possessed you. (6)

आरुह्यतामयं शीघ्रं खगो रत्नविभूषितः ।
मया सह रथो युक्तः पिशाचवदनैः खरैः ॥ ७ ॥

"Let this aerial car tastefully decorated with jewels and drawn by donkeys with the head of a goblin be mounted quickly by you with me. (7)

प्रलोभयित्वा वैदेहीं यथेष्टं गन्तुमर्हसि ।
तां शून्ये प्रसभं सीतामानयिष्यामि मैथिलीम् ॥ ८ ॥

"Having fascinated Sītā (the princess of the Videha territory), you may go wherever you please. At a time when there is none beside her, I shall forcibly fetch Sītā, the aforesaid princess of Mithilā." (8)

ततस्तथेत्युवाचैनं रावणं ताटकासुतः ।
ततो रावणमारीचौ विमानमिव तं रथम् ॥ ९ ॥

आरुह्याययतुः शीघ्रं तस्मादाश्रममण्डलात् ।
तथैव तत्र पश्यन्तौ पत्तनानि वनानि च ॥ १० ॥

गिरींश्च सरितः सर्वा राष्ट्राणि नगराणि च ।
समेत्य दण्डकारण्यं राघवस्याश्रमं ततः ॥ ११ ॥

ददर्श सहमारीचो रावणो राक्षसाधिपः ।
अवतीर्य रथात् तस्मात् ततः काञ्चनभूषणात् ॥ १२ ॥

हस्ते गृहीत्वा मारीचं रावणो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
एतद् रामाश्रमपदं दृश्यते कदलीवृतम् ॥ १३ ॥

Thereupon Mārīca (son of the ogress Tāṭakā) answered him saying, "Be it so !" Mounting the aforesaid chariot looking like an aerial car, Rāvaṇa and Mārīca then departed from the circumference of that hermitage. Beholding as before on the way towns and forests, mountains and all the rivers falling on the way, states and cities, both reached the Daṇḍaka forest together. Accompanied by Mārīca, Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, than beheld the hermitage of Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu. Descending from that chariot decked with gold and taking Mārica by the hand, Rāvaṇa spoke to him as follows : “Here is seen the site of Rāma’s hermitage, hemmed in with plantain trees. (9—13)

क्रियतां तत् सखे शीघ्रं यदर्थं वयमागताः ।
 स रावणवचः श्रुत्वा मारीचो राक्षसस्तदा ॥ १४ ॥
 मृगो भूत्वाऽऽश्रमद्वारि रामस्य विचचार ह ।
 स तु रूपं समास्थाय महद्द्भुतदर्शनम् ॥ १५ ॥
 मणिप्रवरशृङ्गाग्रः सितासितमुखाकृतिः ।
 रक्तपद्मोत्पलमुख इन्द्रनीलोत्पलश्रवाः ॥ १६ ॥
 किञ्चिदभ्युन्नतग्रीव इन्द्रनीलनिभोदरः ।
 मधूकनिभपार्श्वश्च कञ्जकिञ्जल्कसंनिभः ॥ १७ ॥
 वैदूर्यसंकाशखुरस्तनुजङ्घः सुसंहतः ।
 इन्द्रायुधसवर्णेन पुच्छेनोर्ध्वं विराजितः ॥ १८ ॥
 मनोहरस्निग्धवर्णो रत्नैर्नानाविधैर्वृतः ।
 क्षणेन राक्षसो जातो मृगः परमशोभनः ॥ १९ ॥

“Do that quickly, my friend, for which we have come.” Turning into a deer the moment he heard the request of Rāvaṇa, that ogre, Mārica, paced to and fro at the entrance of Śrī Rāma’s hermitage: so the tradition goes, Assuming a remarkable form presenting a wonderful sight, the aforesaid ogre for his part turned in an instant into a most attractive deer, with the tips of its horns bright as sapphire, its head partly white and partly dark, the upper part of its snout bearing the hue of a red lotus and the lower that of a blue lotus, its ears shining as sapphire and resembling a blue lotus, its neck slightly projecting upwards, its belly having the hue of a sapphire, its flanks pale as a Madhūka flower and the animal itself shining brightly like the filaments of a lotus, its hoofs resembling a cat’s-eye gem and body well-compacted with slender legs and looking splendid with its tail resembling the rainbow at the top and wearing a charming glossy skin freckled with a number of jewel-like spots. (14—19)

वनं प्रज्वलयन् रम्यं रामाश्रमपदं च तत् ।
 मनोहरं दर्शनीयं रूपं कृत्वा स राक्षसः ॥ २० ॥
 प्रलोभनार्थं वैदेह्या नानाधातुविचित्रितम् ।
 विचरन् गच्छते सम्यक् शाद्वलानि समन्ततः ॥ २१ ॥

Having assumed a soul-captivating and attractive form, coloured with various minerals in order to fascinate Sitā (a princess of the Videha territory), the aforesaid ogre began to move about with confidence, illumining that lovely forest and the site of Śrī Rāma’s hermitage and grazing heartily the green verdure. (20-21)

रौप्यैर्विन्दुशतैश्चित्रं भूत्वा च प्रियदर्शनः ।
 विटपीनां किसलयान् भक्षयन् विचचार ह ॥ २२ ॥

Putting on an enchanting appearance with hundreds of silvery spots and lovely to look at, the ogre strayed here and there nibbling the tender shoots of trees : so it is said. (22)

कदलीगृहकं गत्वा कर्णिकारानितस्ततः ।
 समाश्रयन् मन्दगतिं सीतासंदर्शनं ततः ॥ २३ ॥
 राजीवचित्रपृष्ठः स विरराज महामृगः ।
 रामाश्रमपदाभ्याशे विचचार यथासुखम् ॥ २४ ॥

Entering the plantain grove, and then the cluster of Karmikāra trees, and seeking to attract the full notice of Sitā, nay, adopting a tardy gait, that large stag with its back looking attractive like the filament of a lotus shone brightly and paced hither and thither complacently near the site of Śrī Rāma’s hermitage. (23-24)

पुनर्गत्वा निवृत्तश्च विचचार मृगोत्तमः ।
 गत्वा मुहूर्तं त्वरया पुनः प्रतिनिवर्तते ॥ २५ ॥

Having returned after disappearing awhile, that jewel among the deer roamed about on that very spot. Leaving the place for an hour or so, it came back again in haste. (25)

विक्रीडंश्च क्वचिद् भूमौ पुनरेव निषीदति ।
 आश्रमद्वारमागम्य मृगयूथानि गच्छति ॥ २६ ॥

Nay, playing about at one time, it sat down on the ground once more. And reaching the entrance of the hermitage, it joined the herds of deer. (26)

मृगयूथैरनुगतः पुनरेव निवर्तते ।
सीतादर्शनमाकांक्षन् राक्षसो मृगतां गतः ॥ २७ ॥

Keenly longing to attract the notice of Sītā, the ogre, who had converted into the form of a deer, returned once more, followed by herds of deer. (27)

परिभ्रमति चित्राणि मण्डलानि विनिष्पतन् ।
समुद्गीक्ष्य च सर्वे तं मृगा येऽन्ये वनेचराः ॥ २८ ॥
उपगम्य समाघ्राय विद्रवन्ति दिशो दश ।
राक्षसः सोऽपि तान् वन्यान् मृगान् मृगवधे रतः ॥ २९ ॥
प्रच्छादनार्थं भावस्य न भक्षयति संस्पृशन् ।
तस्मिन्नेव ततः काले वैदेही शुभलोचना ॥ ३० ॥
कुसुमापचये व्यग्रा पादपानत्यवर्तत ।
कर्णिकारानशोकांश्च चूतांश्च मदिरेक्षणा ॥ ३१ ॥
कुसुमान्यपचिन्वन्ती चचार रुचिरानना ।
अनर्हा वनवासस्य सा तं रत्नमयं मृगम् ॥ ३२ ॥
मुक्तामणिविचित्राङ्गं ददर्श परमाङ्गना ।
तं वै रुचिरदन्तोष्ठं रूप्यधातुतनूरुहम् ॥ ३३ ॥
विस्मयोत्फुल्लनयना सस्नेहं समुदैक्षत ।
स च तां रामदयितां पश्यन् मायामयो मृगः ॥ ३४ ॥
विचचार ततस्तत्र दीपयन्निव तद् वनम् ।
अदृष्टपूर्वं दृष्ट्वा तं नानारत्नमयं मृगम् ।
विस्मयं परमं सीता जगाम जनकात्मजा ॥ ३५ ॥

Nay, while coming near Sītā, he spun describing round a number of circles. Gazing on him from a distance, approaching him and snuffing him, all other deer that hunted that forest scattered in all directions. In order to hide his intention, that ogre, though fond of killing deer, would not devour those wild deer even though fully touching them. That very moment Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), who was possessed of lovely and bewitching eyes and a charming countenance and was intently plucking flowers, just appeared on this side of the Karṇikāra, Aśoka and mango trees and moved about plucking flowers. Unworthy of exile in the forest, that excellent lady sighted that jewel among antelopes, having its limbs freckled with pearl-like spots. With her eyes dilated through wonder, she fondly surveyed that deer with lovely teeth and jaws and hair shining like silver and other minerals. Looking on her beloved consort, Śrī Rāma, that illusory deer too presently roamed about on that spot, illumining that forest, as it were. Seeing that deer, the like of which had never been seen before, and which was made up of varied jewels, as it were, Sītā, Janaka's daughter, experienced great wonder. (28—35)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे द्विचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-two in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLIII

Rāma goes to hunt the deer at the persistent demand of Sītā

सा तं सम्प्रेक्ष्य सुश्रोणी कुसुमानि विचिन्वती ।
हेमराजतवर्णाभ्यां पार्श्वार्थ्यामुपशोभितम् ॥ १ ॥
प्रहृष्टा चानवद्याङ्गी मृष्टहाटकवर्णिनी ।
भर्तारमपि चक्रन्द लक्ष्मणं चैव सायुधम् ॥ २ ॥ adorned with flanks, presenting the hue of gold and silver, respectively, the comely Sītā, who was possessed of faultless limbs and the hue of burnished gold, and was eagerly plucking flowers, called to her husband as well as to Lakṣmaṇa with arms in the following words: (1-2)

Highly delighted to perceive the deer

आहूयाहूय च पुनस्तं मृगं साधु वीक्षते।
आगच्छागच्छ शीघ्रं वै आर्यपुत्र सहानुज॥ ३ ॥

“Come along, come soon, my lord, with your younger brother (Lakṣmaṇa) !”
Calling again and again as above, she looked intently on the deer once more. (3)

तावाहूतौ नरव्याघ्रौ वैदेह्या रामलक्ष्मणौ।
वीक्षमाणौ तु तं देशं तदा ददृशतुर्मृगम्॥ ४ ॥

Surveying that region when called by Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), those two tigers among men, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, for their part, presently beheld the deer. (4)

शङ्कमानस्तु तं दृष्ट्वा लक्ष्मणो वाक्यमब्रवीत्।
तमेवैनमहं मन्ये मारीचं राक्षसं मृगम्॥ ५ ॥

Seized with suspicion to see it, Lakṣmaṇa for his part observed as follows :
“I conclude this deer to be the same as that ogre, Mārīca. (5)

चरन्तो मृगयां हृष्टाः पापेनोपाधिना वने।
अनेन निहता राम राजानः कामरूपिणा॥ ६ ॥

“Hunting game in the forest with delight, many kings, O Rāma, have been killed by assuming a deceptive form by this sinful ogre, who is capable of assuming any form at will. (6)

अस्य मायाविदो माया मृगरूपमिदं कृतम्।
भानुमत् पुरुषव्याघ्र गन्धर्वपुरसंनिभम्॥ ७ ॥

“This effulgent form of a deer assumed by him, O tiger among men, is a hoax on the part of the ogre—who is well-versed in conjuring tricks—and is much like a magic show. (7)

मृगो ह्येवंविधो रत्नविचित्रो नास्ति राघव।
जगत्यां जगतीनाथ मायैषा हि न संशयः॥ ८ ॥

“To be sure, no such deer, freckled with jewel-like spots, exists on the face of the earth, O scion of Raghu ! It is surely a phantom, O ruler of the globe : there is no doubt about it.” (8)

एवं ब्रुवाणं काकुत्स्थं प्रतिवार्य शुचिस्मिता।
उवाच सीता संहृष्टा छद्मना हृत्चेतना॥ ९ ॥

Interrupting Lakṣmaṇa (a scion of Kakutstha), who was speaking in this strain, Sītā, who had been robbed of her faculty of judgment by the hoax practised by the ogre and who felt overjoyed at the prospect of laying her hands on the weird deer, spoke as follows with a bright smile playing on her lips : (9)

आर्यपुत्राभिरामोऽसौ मृगो हरति मे मनः।
आनयैनं महाबाहो क्रीडार्थं नो भविष्यति॥ १० ॥

“The yonder charming deer captivates my mind. Fetch it, O mighty-armed lord; it will serve as a means of diversion. (10)

इहाश्रमपदेऽस्माकं बहवः पुण्यदर्शनाः।
मृगाश्चरन्ति सहिताश्चमराः सूमरास्तथा॥ ११ ॥

ऋक्षाः पृषतसङ्गाश्च वानराः किन्नरास्तथा।
विहरन्ति महाबाहो रूपश्रेष्ठा महाबलाः॥ १२ ॥
न चान्यः सदृशो राजन् दृष्टः पूर्वं मृगो मया।
तेजसा क्षमया दीप्त्या यथायं मृगसत्तमः॥ १३ ॥

“On the grounds of this hermitage of ours range together numerous deer of hallowed appearance as well as Camaras and Śmaras (two distinct species of deer with white and dark hair respectively at the end of their tail) as also bears, herds of spotted deer, monkeys and Kinnaras (another species of deer), foremost in comeliness of form and possessed of great might. No other deer equal in agility, gentleness and splendour of this jewel among deer has ever been seen by me before, O prince ! (11—13)

नानावर्णविचित्राङ्गो रत्नभूतो ममाग्रतः।
द्योतयन् वनमव्यग्रं शोभते शशिसंनिभः॥ १४ ॥

“Shining brightly as the moon, and illumining the forest with its limbs diversified because of their varied colours, this jewel of a deer stands at ease before me spreading its charm all-round. (14)

अहो रूपमहो लक्ष्मीः स्वरसम्पच्च शोभना ।

मृगोऽद्भुतो विचित्राङ्गो हृदयं हरतीव मे ॥ १५ ॥

“Wonderful is its colour and marvellous its splendour. The richness of its sound is also lovely. Endowed with spotted limbs, this wonderful deer captivates my heart, as it were. (15)

यदि ग्रहणमभ्येति जीवन्नेव मृगस्तव ।

आश्चर्यभूतं भवति विस्मयं जनयिष्यति ॥ १६ ॥

“If the deer is caught by you alive, it will be a miraculous feat on your part and will cause wonder. (16)

समाप्तवनवासानां राज्यस्थानां च नः पुनः ।

अन्तःपुरे विभूषार्थो मृग एष भविष्यति ॥ १७ ॥

“When we have concluded the term of our exile and are installed on the throne again, this deer will serve as an adornment to our gynaeceum. (17)

भरतस्यार्यपुत्रस्य श्वश्रूणां मम च प्रभो ।

मृगरूपमिदं दिव्यं विस्मयं जनयिष्यति ॥ १८ ॥

“This weird and excellent deer will cause wonder, my lord, to Prince Bharata, to yourself, to my mothers-in-law as well as to myself. (18)

जीवन् यदि तेऽभ्येति ग्रहणं मृगसत्तमः ।

अजिनं नरशार्दूल रुचिरं तु भविष्यति ॥ १९ ॥

“If, on the other hand, the jewel among the deer does not allow itself to be captured by you alive, its skin itself will afford delight, O tiger among men ! (19)

निहतस्यास्य सत्त्वस्य जाम्बूनदमयत्वचि ।

शष्पबृत्त्यां विनीतायामिच्छाम्यहमुपासितुम् ॥ २० ॥

“When this animal has been killed by you, I long to sit with you on its golden skin spread on a mat of young grass. (20)

कामवृत्तमिदं रौद्रं स्त्रीणामसदृशं मतम् ।

वपुषा त्वस्य सत्त्वस्य विस्मयो जनितो मम ॥ २१ ॥

“This conduct of mine (in the shape of urging my husband to comply with my wishes), actuated as it is by desire, is indecorous and is deemed unworthy on the part of women. Curiosity has, however, been aroused in me by the weird form of this animal.” (21)

तेन काञ्चनरोम्णा तु मणिप्रवरशृङ्गिणा ।

तरुणादित्यवर्णेन नक्षत्रपथवर्चसा ॥ २२ ॥

बभूव राघवस्यापि मनो विस्मयमागतम् ।

इति सीतावचः श्रुत्वा दृष्ट्वा च मृगमद्भुतम् ॥ २३ ॥

लोभितस्तेन रूपेण सीतया च प्रचोदितः ।

उवाच राघवो हृष्टो भ्रातरं लक्ष्मणं वचः ॥ २४ ॥

The mind of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) too was, however, filled with curiosity by that deer with its golden coat and horns of sapphire, nay, shining like the rising sun and possessing the splendour of the starry region. Rejoiced to hear the aforesaid request of Sītā and beholding the wonderful deer, nay, allured by that weird form and importuned by Sītā, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, spoke to his brother, Lakṣmaṇa, in the following words : (22—24)

पश्य लक्ष्मण वैदेह्याः स्पृहामुल्लसितामिमाम् ।

रूपश्रेष्ठतया ह्येष मृगोऽद्य न भविष्यति ॥ २५ ॥

“Mark, O Lakṣmaṇa, this burning desire of Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory). Surely because of its surpassing beauty this deer will not survive today. (25)

न वने नन्दनोद्देशे न चैत्ररथसंश्रये ।

कुतः पृथिव्यां सौमित्रे योऽस्य कश्चित् समो मृगः ॥ २६ ॥

“No deer whatsoever which is similar to it exists in the grove bearing the appellation of Nandana, nor in that going by the name of Caitraratha; how then could it exist on the earth? (26)

प्रतिलोमानुलोमाश्च रुचिरा रोमराजयः ।

शोभन्ते मृगमाश्रित्य चित्राः कनकबिन्दुभिः ॥ २७ ॥

“The glossy rows of hair, both horizontal and vertical, and freckled with golden spots, look charming on the body of the deer. (27)

पश्यास्य जृम्भमाणस्य दीप्तामग्निशिखोपमाम् ।

जिह्वां मुखान्निःसरन्तीं मेघादिव शतहृदाम् ॥ २८ ॥

“Behold the tongue, burning like a flame, shooting forth from its mouth when it yawns, like a flash of lightning darting from a cloud. (28)

मसारगल्वर्कमुखः शङ्खमुक्तानिभोदरः ।
कस्य नामानिरूप्योऽसौ न मनो लोभयेन्मृगः ॥ २९ ॥

“With its mouth resembling a cup made of sapphire and its belly shining as a conch-shell or pearls, whose mind will that deer, which baffles description, not lure? (29)

कस्य रूपमिदं दृष्ट्वा जाम्बूनदमयप्रभम् ।
नानारत्नमयं दिव्यं न मनो विस्मयं व्रजेत् ॥ ३० ॥

“Whose mind will not be struck with wonder to behold this celestial beauty shedding a golden lustre and freckled with numerous jewel-like spots? (30)

मांसहेतोरपि मृगान् विहारार्थं च धन्विनः ।
घ्नन्ति लक्ष्मण राजानो मृगयायां महावने ॥ ३१ ॥

“Even for the sake of skin and for diversion kings wielding bows kill the deer in sport, O Lakṣmaṇa, in large forests. (31)

धनानि व्यवसायेन विचीयन्ते महावने ।
धातवो विविधाश्चापि मणिरत्नसुवर्णिनः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Through sporting enterprise treasures too are laid hands on in large forests in the form of minerals of various kinds comprising gems, precious stones and ores of gold. (32)

तत् सारमखिलं नृणां धनं निचयवर्धनम् ।
मनसा चिन्तितं सर्वं यथा शुक्रस्य लक्ष्मण ॥ ३३ ॥

“Swelling their coffers, such wealth is all valuable like all the objects of enjoyment brought into being by the very thought of one who has attained the realm of Brahmā, the creator, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (33)

अर्थी येनार्थकृत्येन संव्रजत्यविचारयन् ।
तमर्थमर्थशास्त्रज्ञाः प्राहुरर्थ्याः सुलक्ष्मण ॥ ३४ ॥

“People well-versed in economics and adept in producing wealth, O brother, endowed with auspicious bodily marks, speak of that alone as wealth (lit., an object of pursuit) which a seeker of wealth fondly pursues without premeditation, through endeavour calculated to achieve that object. (34)

एतस्य मृगरत्नस्य परार्थ्ये काञ्चनत्वचि ।
उपवेक्ष्यति वैदेही मया सह सुमध्यमा ॥ ३५ ॥

“Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, who is endowed with a slender waist, will sit with me on the most excellent golden skin of this jewel among the deer. (35)

न कादली न प्रियकी न प्रवेणी न चाविकी ।
भवेदेतस्य सदृशी स्पर्शेऽनेनेति मे मतिः ॥ ३६ ॥

“Neither the skin of a Kadālī (a species of deer distinguished by soft, fine, long and variegated hair, blue at the end) nor that of a Priyākī* (another species of antelope distinguished by a soft, long, sleek and thick coat) nor that of Praveṇa (a particular species of goats) nor that of a sheep can compare with it in softness of touch : such is my conclusion. (36)

एष चैव मृगः श्रीमान् यश्च दिव्यो नभश्चरः ।
उभावेतौ मृगौ दिव्यौ तारामृगमहीमृगौ ॥ ३७ ॥

“This splendid deer as well as its heavenly counterpart, bearing the name of Mṛga, which courses in the heavens—both these are divine deer, the one in the form of a star known by the name of Mṛga and the other moving on earth. (37)

यदि वायं तथा यन्मां भवेद् वदसि लक्ष्मण ।
मायैषा राक्षसस्येति कर्तव्योऽस्य वधो मया ॥ ३८ ॥

“If, O Lakṣmaṇa, this deer is such as you tell me, it must be put an end to because it is a phantom conjured up by an ogre. (38)

* We read in the lexicon known as Vaijayanti :

कदली तु बिले शेते मृदुसूक्ष्मोच्चकर्बुरैः । नीलाग्रैर्लोमभिर्युक्ता सा विंशत्यङ्गुलायता ।

प्रियकी लोमभिर्युक्ता मृदूच्चमसृणैर्धनैः ।

एतेन हि नृशंसेन मारीचेनाकृतात्मना।
वने विचरता पूर्वं हिंसिता मुनिपुंगवाः ॥ ३९ ॥

“Surely many jewels among ascetics have been killed in the past by this cruel Mārica of evil mind while roaming about in the forest. (39)

उत्थाय बहवोऽनेन मृगयायां जनाधिपाः।
निहताः परमेष्वासास्तस्माद् वध्यस्त्वयं मृगः ॥ ४० ॥

“Many monarchs wielding large bows have been killed by him, suddenly appearing in his real form; hence this deer deserves to be made short work of. (40)

पुरस्तादिह वातापिः परिभूय तपस्विनः।
उदरस्थो द्विजान् हन्ति स्वगर्भोऽश्वतरीमिव ॥ ४१ ॥

“Practising deception on ascetics in this forest in the past and entering their abdomen, the ogre Vātāpi used to kill Brāhmaṇas (by splitting open their bellies from within) as the embryo of a she-mule causes the death of the she-mule (in that it does not emerge from its womb unless the belly of the mother is cut open). (41)

स कदाचिच्चिराल्लोभादाससाद महामुनिम्।
अगस्त्यं तेजसा युक्तं भक्ष्यस्तस्य बभूव ह ॥ ४२ ॥

“After a long time, out of greed, they say, the ogre once met the eminent Sage Agastya, endowed with spiritual power, and entering his stomach by fraud was consumed by him as food. (42)

समुत्थाने च तद्रूपं कर्तुं कामं समीक्ष्य तम्।
उत्स्मयित्वा तु भगवान् वातापिमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ ४३ ॥

“Smiling to see him eager to resume his original form of an ogre at the conclusion of the Śrāddha ceremony, the revered sage spoke to Vātāpi as follows : (43)

त्वयाविगण्य वातापे परिभूताश्च तेजसा।
जीवल्लोके द्विजश्रेष्ठास्तस्मादसि जरां गतः ॥ ४४ ॥

“Not minding the consequences, O Vātāpi, the foremost of Brāhmaṇas in this world of mortals were made short work of by you through your might; hence by way of retribution for this sin you have been digested by me.’ (44)

तद् रक्षो न भवेदेव वातापिरिव लक्ष्मण।
मद्विधं योऽतिमन्येत धर्मनित्यं जितेन्द्रियम् ॥ ४५ ॥

“The yonder ogre too, who dares despise one like me, constantly devoted to virtue and a master of his senses, will cease to be as Vātāpi did, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (45)

भवेद्धतोऽयं वातापिरगस्त्येनेव मा गतः।
इह त्वं भव संनद्धो यन्त्रितो रक्ष मैथिलीम् ॥ ४६ ॥

“Having met me in a hostile manner, this ogre too is sure to be killed by me as Vātāpi by Agastya. Stay you protected with armour and, remaining confined to this place, guard Sītā (a princess of Mithilā). (46)

अस्यामायत्तमस्माकं यत् कृत्यं रघुनन्दन।
अहमेनं वधिष्यामि ग्रहीष्याम्यथवा मृगम् ॥ ४७ ॥

“Whatever is to be done by us hereafter depends on her, O delight of the race of Raghu ! I shall dispose of this deer or capture it alive. (47)

यावद् गच्छामि सौमित्रे मृगमानयितुं द्रुतम्।
पश्य लक्ष्मण वैदेह्या मृगत्वचि गतां स्पृहाम् ॥ ४८ ॥

“In the meantime, O darling of Sumitrā, I proceed apace to bring the deer. Mark, O Lakṣmaṇa, the craving of Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) directed towards the skin of this deer. (48)

त्वचा प्रधानया ह्येष मृगोऽद्य न भविष्यति।
अग्रमत्तेन ते भाव्यमाश्रमस्थेन सीतया ॥ ४९ ॥
यावत् पृषतमेकेन सायकेन निहन्यहम्।
हत्वैतच्चर्म चादाय शीघ्रमेष्यामि लक्ष्मण ॥ ५० ॥

“Indeed this deer will perish today because of its superb skin. You must remain wide awake in the hermitage with Sītā till I dispose of this spotted deer with a single arrow. Having made short work of it and taking its skin, I shall forthwith return, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (49-50)

प्रदक्षिणेनातिबलेन पक्षिणा
जटायुषा बुद्धिमता च लक्ष्मण ।
भवाप्रमत्तः प्रतिगृह्य मैथिलीं
प्रतिक्षणं सर्वत एव शङ्कितः ॥ ५१ ॥ “Keeping Sītā (a princess of Mithilā) by your side, O Lakṣmaṇa, remain vigilant every moment and full of apprehension from all quarters in the company of the wise bird Jaṭāyu, who is very powerful and possessed of great might.” (51)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे त्रिचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-three in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुश्चत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLIV

Rāma kills Mārīca and feels concerned to hear his call to Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa

तथा तु तं समादिश्य भ्रातरं रघुनन्दनः ।
बबन्थासिं महातेजा जाम्बूनदमयत्सरुम् ॥ १ ॥

Having duly cautioned as above his aforesaid brother, Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma (the delight of the Raghus), for his part, who was possessed of exceptional glory fastened to his girdle his sword with a golden hilt.

(1)

ततस्त्रिविनतं चापमादायात्मविभूषणम् ।
आबध्य च कलापौ द्वौ जगामोदग्रविक्रमः ॥ २ ॥

Then, seizing his triply-curved bow, which served as his adornment, and fastening two quivers, Śrī Rāma of terrific prowess sallied forth.

(2)

तं वन्यराजो राजेन्द्रमापतन्तं निरीक्ष्य वै ।
बभूवान्तर्हितस्त्रासात् पुनः संदर्शनेऽभवत् ॥ ३ ॥

Observing Śrī Rāma, the ruler of rulers, approaching, Mārīca, the foremost of deer, went out of sight awhile through fear and again came into full view.

(3)

बद्धासिर्धनुरादाय प्रदुद्राव यतो मृगः ।
तं स्म पश्यति रूपेण द्योतयन्तमिवाग्रतः ॥ ४ ॥
अवेक्ष्यावेक्ष्य धावन्तं धनुष्याणिर्महावने ।
अतिवृत्तमिवोत्पाताललोभयानं कदाचन ॥ ५ ॥

Taking his bow, with the sword fastened to his girdle, Śrī Rāma (the wielder of a bow) ran fast towards the spot where the deer stood and saw it radiating lustre as it were by its form in front of it. Looking back again and again it ran in the large forest. Now it slipped past after a leap and then tempted Śrī Rāma to catch hold of it by coming very near.

(4-5)

शङ्कितं तु समुद्भ्रान्तमुत्पतन्तमिवाम्बरम् ।
दृश्यमानमदृश्यं च वनोद्देशेषु केषुचित् ॥ ६ ॥
छिन्नाभ्रैरिव संवीतं शारदं चन्द्रमण्डलम् ।
मुहूर्तादेव ददृशे मुहुर्दूरात् प्रकाशते ॥ ७ ॥

Now it appeared seized with fear of being hurt by Śrī Rāma's arrow, utterly confused and leaping in the air; while at other times it disappeared into some depths of the forest like the orb of the autumnal moon screened by fragmented clouds. Just after a while it became visible at hand and again flashed into view at a distance the very next moment.

(6-7)

दर्शनादर्शनेनैव सोऽपाकर्षत राघवम् ।
स दूरमाश्रमस्यास्य मारीचो मृगतां गतः ॥ ८ ॥

Just by coming into view and going out of sight, that notorious Mārīca, who had assumed the form of a deer, bore Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, far away from his hermitage.

(8)

आसीत् कुब्धस्तु काकुत्स्थो विवशस्तेन मोहितः ।
अथावतस्थे सुश्रान्तश्छायामाश्रित्य शाद्वले ॥ १॥

Beguiled by him and feeling helpless, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha) for his part felt enraged and, seeking the shade of a tree, thoroughly exhausted as he was, stood at ease on a spot covered with velvety grass. (9)

स तमुन्मादयामास मृगरूपो निशाचरः ।
मृगैः परिवृतोऽथान्यैरदूरात् प्रत्यदृश्यत ॥ १० ॥

That ogre appearing in the form of a deer puzzled him. Surrounded by other deer, he presently came into view not far off. (10)

ग्रहीतुकामं दृष्ट्वा तं पुनरेवाभ्यधावत ।
तत्क्षणादेव संत्रासात् पुनरन्तर्हितोऽभवत् ॥ ११ ॥

Beholding Rāma eager to capture it, it took to flight once more and out of fright instantly went out of sight again. (11)

पुनरेव ततो दूराद् वृक्षखण्डाद् विनिःसृतः ।
दृष्ट्वा रामो महातेजास्तं हन्तुं कृतनिश्चयः ॥ १२ ॥

भूयस्तु शरमुद्धृत्य कुपितस्तत्र राघवः ।
सूर्यरश्मिप्रतीकाशं ज्वलन्तमरिमर्दनम् ॥ १३ ॥

संधाय सुदृढे चापे विकृष्य बलवद्बली ।
तमेव मृगमुद्दिश्य श्वसन्तमिव पन्नगम् ॥ १४ ॥

मुमोच ज्वलितं दीप्तमस्त्रं ब्रह्मविनिर्मितम् ।
शरीरं मृगरूपस्य विनिर्भिद्य शरोत्तमः ॥ १५ ॥

मारीचस्यैव हृदयं बिभेदाशनिसंनिभः ।
तालमात्रमथोत्प्लुत्य न्यपतत् स भृशातुरः ॥ १६ ॥

व्यनदद् भैरवं नादं धरण्यामल्पजीवितः ।
प्रियमाणस्तु मारीचो जहौ तां कृत्रिमां तनुम् ॥ १७ ॥

Then again it issued forth from a distant cluster of trees. Seeing the deer and pulling out with great fury a blazing arrow bright as a sunbeam and capable of destroying the enemy, nay, firmly setting it to the bow and aiming it at that very animal, drawing the bow with full force, the mighty Śrī Rāma, the celebrated scion of Raghu, for his part, who was endowed with extraordinary energy and had made up his mind to make short work of the deer, discharged in that forest that flaming and effulgent missile fashioned by Brahmā (the creator) and looking like a fiery serpent. Having thoroughly and deeply penetrated through the heart of the deer form, that excellent arrow, which shone brightly as lightning, pierced the heart of Mārīca himself. Bounding as high as a palmyra tree, the deer, which felt sore afflicted, fell down to the ground and uttered a terrific roar, its life being very short, while dying, however, Mārīca shed that assumed form. (12—17)

स्मृत्वा तद्वचनं रक्षो दध्यौ केन तु लक्ष्मणम् ।
इह प्रस्थापयेत् सीता तां शून्ये रावणो हरेत् ॥ १८ ॥

Recalling the instruction of Rāvaṇa, the ogre for his part reflected how Sītā should send away Lakṣmaṇa to that spot and how Rāvaṇa should bear her away in her isolation. (18)

स प्राप्तकालमाज्ञाय चकार च ततः स्वनम् ।
सदृशं राघवस्येव हा सीते लक्ष्मणेति च ॥ १९ ॥

Nay, perceiving what was opportune, the ogre forthwith uttered a cry precisely resembling the voice of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), saying “Alas Sītā ! Ah Lakṣmaṇa !” (19)

तेन मर्मणि निर्विद्धं शरेणानुपमेन हि ।
मृगरूपं तु तत् त्यक्त्वा राक्षसं रूपमास्थितः ॥ २० ॥

चक्रे स सुमहाकायं मारीचो जीवितं त्यजन् ।
तं दृष्ट्वा पतितं भूमौ राक्षसं भीमदर्शनम् ॥ २१ ॥

रामो रुधिरसिक्ताङ्गं चेष्टमानं महीतले ।
जगाम मनसा सीतां लक्ष्मणस्य वचः स्मरन् ॥ २२ ॥

Casting off the aforesaid form of a deer, deeply pierced in the vital parts by that peerless arrow, and taking on the form of an ogre, the said Mārīca, while giving up the ghost, revealed his gigantic body. Seeing that ogre of terrible aspect, fallen on the ground, writhing on the earth's surface, his limbs bathed in blood, Śrī Rāma mentally turned towards Sītā, recollecting the warning of Lakṣmaṇa. (20—22)

मारीचस्य तु मायैषा पूर्वोक्तं लक्ष्मणेन तु।
तत् तथा ह्यभवच्चाद्य मारीचोऽयं मया हतः ॥ २३ ॥

(He said to himself) : 'Indeed this was a conjuring trick played by Mārica, which had already been pointed out by Lakṣmaṇa. Indeed, what he said has come to be true and it is Mārica who has been killed by me today. (23)

हा सीते लक्ष्मणेत्येवमाक्रुश्य तु महास्वनम्।
ममार राक्षसः सोऽयं श्रुत्वा सीता कथं भवेत् ॥ २४ ॥

'Since this notorious ogre has breathed his last uttering a loud wail : 'Alas Sītā ! Ah Lakṣmaṇa !' how will Sītā feel on hearing it? (24)

लक्ष्मणश्च महाबाहुः कामवस्थां गमिष्यति।
इति संचिन्त्य धर्मात्मा रामो हृष्टतनूरुहः ॥ २५ ॥
'And what moods will the mighty armed

Lakṣmaṇa pass through?' Reflecting thus, Śrī Rāma, whose mind was set on virtue, found his hair standing on end (through apprehension about the future of Sītā). (25)

तत्र रामं भयं तीव्रमाविवेश विषादजम्।
राक्षसं मृगरूपं तं हत्वा श्रुत्वा च तत्स्वनम् ॥ २६ ॥

A poignant fear, born of dejection, seized Śrī Rāma on his having slain that ogre appearing in the form of a deer and hearing his cry. (26)

निहत्य पृषतं चान्यं मांसमादाय राघवः।
त्वरमाणो जनस्थानं ससाराभिमुखं तदा ॥ २७ ॥

Having made short work of that uncommon spotted deer and taking fruits etc., fit for the consumption of ascetics, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, then hastily proceeded towards his hermitage in Janasthāna. (27)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे चतुश्चत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-four in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLV

Lashed with castigating remarks, Lakṣmaṇa seeks the presence of Śrī Rāma

आर्तस्वरं तु तं भर्तुर्विज्ञाय सदृशं वने।
उवाच लक्ष्मणं सीता गच्छ जानीहि राघवम् ॥ १ ॥

Recognizing the piteous cry heard in the forest as akin to the voice of her lord, Sītā spoke to Lakṣmaṇa (as follows) : "Go and ascertain the truth about Śrī Rāma (the scion of Raghu). (1)

नहि मे जीवितं स्थाने हृदयं वावतिष्ठते।
क्रोशतः परमार्तस्य श्रुतः शब्दो मया भृशम् ॥ २ ॥

"Neither my life-breath nor my heart is functioning properly. I have heard the voice of someone like him crying for help at a high pitch in great distress. (2)

आक्रन्दमानं तु वने भ्रातरं त्रातुमर्हसि।
तं क्षिप्रमभिधाव त्वं भ्रातरं शरणैषिणम् ॥ ३ ॥
रक्षसां वशमापन्नं सिंहानामिव गोवृषम्।
न जगाम तथोक्तस्तु भ्रातुराज्ञाय शासनम् ॥ ४ ॥

"Surely, you ought to rescue your elder brother, crying piteously in the forest. Rush you at once to the side of your brother fallen into the hands of ogres as a bull into the clutches of lions and as such seeking your protection." Recalling as he did the command of his brother not to leave her alone, Lakṣmaṇa, however, did not stir even though urged in the foregoing words. (3-4)

तमुवाच ततस्तत्र क्षुभिता जनकात्मजा ।
सौमित्रे मित्ररूपेण भ्रातुस्त्वमसि शत्रुवत् ॥ ५ ॥
यस्त्वमस्यामवस्थायां भ्रातरं नाभिपद्यसे ।
इच्छसि त्वं विनश्यन्तं रामं लक्ष्मण मत्कृते ॥ ६ ॥

Getting upset thereby, Sītā (daughter of Janaka) spoke to him on that occasion as follows : “You are as it were an enemy of your brother in the guise of a friend, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), in that you do not rush to the help of your brother even in this predicament. For my sake, O Lakṣmaṇa, you wish Śrī Rāma to perish. (5-6)

लोभात्तु मत्कृते नूनं नानुगच्छसि राघवम् ।
व्यसनं ते प्रियं मन्ये स्नेहो भ्रातरि नास्ति ते ॥ ७ ॥

“Surely due to greed for me you do not follow Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu). I believe that your brother’s sad plight is dear to you and that there is no affection in you for him. (7)

तेन तिष्ठसि विस्त्रब्धं तमपश्यन् महाद्युतिम् ।
किं हि संशयमापन्ने तस्मिन्निह मया भवेत् ॥ ८ ॥
कर्तव्यमिह तिष्ठन्त्या यत्प्रधानस्त्वमागतः ।
एवं ब्रुवाणां वैदेहीं बाष्पशोकसमन्विताम् ॥ ९ ॥
अब्रवील्लक्ष्मणस्त्रस्तां सीतां मृगवधूमिव ।
पन्नगासुरगन्धर्वदेवदानवराक्षसैः ॥ १० ॥
अशक्यस्तव वैदेहि भर्ता जेतुं न संशयः ।
देवि देवमनुष्येषु गन्धर्वेषु पतत्रिषु ॥ ११ ॥
राक्षसेषु पिशाचेषु किन्नरेषु मृगेषु च ।
दानवेषु च घोरेषु न स विद्येत शोभने ॥ १२ ॥
यो रामं प्रतियुध्येत समरे वासवोपमम् ।
अवध्यः समरे रामो नैवं त्वं वक्तुमर्हसि ॥ १३ ॥

“That is why you stand unperturbed without seeing Śrī Rāma, who is possessed of extraordinary splendour. Indeed, what purpose will be served by me, remaining secure here when he, with whom as your leader you have come, has fallen into danger?” To Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory—who was full of tears and possessed with grief and felt frightened as a female deer, and who was speaking in the above strain—Lakṣmaṇa replied as follow :

“Your husband, O princess of the Videha kingdom, is unconquerable by Nāgas, demons, Gandharvas, gods, titans and ogres : there is no doubt about it. There exists none among gods and human beings, Gandharvas, birds, ogres, fiends, Kinnaras and wild beasts as well as among the terrible demons, O blessed lady, who can encounter in battle Śrī Rāma, who is equal to Indra. Nay, Śrī Rāma cannot be killed in an encounter. You ought not (therefore) to speak like that. (8—13)

न त्वामस्मिन् वने हातुमुत्सहे राघवं विना ।
अनिवार्यं बलं तस्य बलैर्बलवतामपि ॥ १४ ॥
त्रिभिर्लोकैः समुदितैः सेश्वरैः सामरैरपि ।
हृदयं निर्वृतं तेऽस्तु संतापस्त्यज्यतां तव ॥ १५ ॥

“I dare not leave you in the forest without Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu). His might cannot be repulsed even by the forces of mighty warriors nor even by the three worlds joined together including gods and the three lords of the universe, Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Śiva. Let your heart, therefore, be at ease and let all agony be shed by you. (14-15)

आगमिष्यति ते भर्ता शीघ्रं हत्वा मृगोत्तमम् ।
न स तस्य स्वरो व्यक्तं न कश्चिदपि दैवतः ॥ १६ ॥

Having killed the foremost of deer, your husband will soon return. Clearly it was not his voice, which was heard by us, nor was it the incorporeal voice of any deity. (16)

गन्धर्वनगरप्रख्या माया तस्य च रक्षसः ।
न्यासभूतासि वैदेहि न्यस्ता मयि महात्मना ॥ १७ ॥
रामेण त्वं वरारोहे न त्वां त्यक्तुमिहोत्सहे ।
कृतवैराश्च कल्याणि वयमेतैर्निशाचरैः ॥ १८ ॥
खरस्य निधने देवि जनस्थानवधं प्रति ।
राक्षसा विविधा वाचो व्याहरन्ति महावने ॥ १९ ॥
हिंसाविहारा वैदेहि न चिन्तयितुमर्हसि ।
लक्ष्मणेनैवमुक्ता तु क्रुद्धा संरक्तलोचना ॥ २० ॥
अब्रवीत् परुषं वाक्यं लक्ष्मणं सत्यवादिनम् ।
अनार्याकरुणारम्भ नृशंस कुलपांसन ॥ २१ ॥
अहं तव प्रियं मन्ये रामस्य व्यसनं महत् ।
रामस्य व्यसनं दृष्ट्वा तेनैतानि प्रभाषसे ॥ २२ ॥

It was surely a conjuring trick of that ogre and unreal like an imaginary city in the sky (visible due to some natural phenomenon). You are a sacred trust placed in my charge by the high-souled Śrī Rāma, O comely princess of the Videha territory. I dare not, therefore, leave you alone. On the score of extermination of the ogres' colony in Janasthāna at the time of Khara's death we have been made into enemies by these night-stalkers, O blessed lady ! Ogres who indulge in destruction of life as a recreation simulate diverse voices in the huge forest, O princess of the Videha kingdom ! You need not, therefore, feel anxious." Reassured in these words by Lakṣmaṇa, Sītā for her part addressed the following harsh words to Lakṣmaṇa, who had spoken the truth, her eyes turning blood-red through anger : "O ignoble and merciless Lakṣmaṇa of cruel deeds, O disgrace of your race, I believe Śrī Rāma's great adversity is dear to you. That is why you complacently utter such words even on seeing the distress of Śrī Rāma. (17—22)

नैव चित्रं सपत्नेषु पापं लक्ष्मण यद् भवेत् ।
त्वद्विधेषु नृशंसेषु नित्यं प्रच्छन्नचारिषु ॥ २३ ॥

"It is not at all strange, O Lakṣmaṇa, that a sinful propensity should exist in the mind of cruel enemies like you, ever moving in disguise. (23)

सुदुष्टस्त्वं वने राममेकमेकोऽनुगच्छसि ।
मम हेतोः प्रतिच्छन्नः प्रयुक्तो भरतेन वा ॥ २४ ॥

"With your motive cleverly concealed, you have followed in the forest Śrī Rāma, who was without a male companion, alone for my sake or because you were engaged by Bharata as his agent. (24)

तन्न सिध्यति सौमित्रे तवापि भरतस्य वा ।
कथमिन्दीवरश्यामं रामं पद्मनिभेक्षणम् ॥ २५ ॥
उपसंश्रित्य भर्तारं कामयेयं पृथग्जनम् ।
समक्षं तव सौमित्रे प्राणांस्त्यक्ष्याम्यसंशयम् ॥ २६ ॥

"But that object of yours or even of Bharata will not be accomplished, O son of Sumitrā ! Having served as my husband Śrī Rāma of lotus-like eyes and dark-brown as a blue lotus, how can I covet an ordinary man like you? I shall undoubtedly give up the ghost in your presence, O son of Sumitrā ! (25-26)

रामं विना क्षणमपि नैव जीवामि भूतले ।
इत्युक्तः परुषं वाक्यं सीतया रोमहर्षणम् ॥ २७ ॥
अब्रवील्लक्ष्मणः सीतां प्राञ्जलिः स जितेन्द्रियः ।
उत्तरं नोत्सहे वक्तुं दैवतं भवती मम ॥ २८ ॥

"I shall certainly not survive on the surface of the earth even for an instant without Śrī Rāma." Spoken to in these harsh words, which made one's hair stand on end, by Sītā, the celebrated Lakṣmaṇa, who had mastered his senses, replied with joined palms as follows : "I dare not make a reply to you, since you are a deity to me. (27-28)

वाक्यमप्रतिरूपं तु न चित्रं स्त्रीषु मैथिलि ।
स्वभावस्त्वेष नारीणामेषु लोकेषु दृश्यते ॥ २९ ॥

"It is no wonder at all for women to utter words which are not worthy of them, O princess of Mithilā ! For such is the nature of women, which is observed in these worlds. (29)

विमुक्तधर्माश्चपलास्तीक्ष्णा भेदकराः स्त्रियः ।
न सहे हीदृशं वाक्यं वैदेहि जनकात्मजे ॥ ३० ॥
श्रोत्रयोरुभयोर्मध्ये तप्तनाराचसंनिभम् ।
उपशृण्वन्तु मे सर्वे साक्षिणो हि वनेचराः ॥ ३१ ॥

"Women are generally such as have cast decorum to the winds, are fickle, hard-hearted and disposed to create discord. Surely I cannot put up, O princess of the Videha territory and daughter of Janaka, with such words as penetrate into both my ears like a heated steel arrow. Let all the denizens of the forest listen to my words as so many witnesses. (30-31)

न्यायवादी यथा वाक्यमुक्तोऽहं परुषं त्वया ।
धिक् त्वामद्य विनश्यन्तीं यन्मामेवं विशङ्कसे ॥ ३२ ॥

स्त्रीत्वाद् दुष्टस्वभावेन गुरुवाक्ये व्यवस्थितम् ।
गच्छामि यत्र काकुत्स्थः स्वस्ति तेऽस्तु वरानने ॥ ३३ ॥

“Since I, who have spoken what is right, have been castigated by you in harsh words, fie upon you, who are going to perish inasmuch as you distrust in this way, through feminine nature and a wicked disposition, me, who firmly abide by the words of my elder brother. I leave for the spot where Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha) is. May all be well with you, O lady of charming countenance ! (32-33)

रक्षन्तु त्वां विशालाक्षि समग्रा वनदेवताः ।
निमित्तानि हि घोराणि यानि प्रादुर्भवन्ति मे ।
अपि त्वां सह रामेण पश्येयं पुनरागतः ॥ ३४ ॥

“Let all the sylvan deities protect you, O large-eyed lady ! The fearful evil protents which appear before my eyes indeed make me doubtful whether when come back with Śrī Rāma, I shall be able to see you.” (34)

लक्ष्मणेनैवमुक्ता तु रुदती जनकात्मजा ।
प्रत्युवाच ततो वाक्यं तीव्रबाष्पपरिप्लुता ॥ ३५ ॥

Crying and bathed in a gushing stream of tears, when spoken to in these words, Sītā (the daughter of Janaka) forthwith replied as follows: (35)

गोदावरीं प्रवेक्ष्यामि हीना रामेण लक्ष्मण ।
आबन्धिष्येऽथवा त्यक्ष्ये विषमे देहमात्मनः ॥ ३६ ॥

“Bereft of Śrī Rāma, O Lakṣmaṇa, I shall take a plunge into the Godāvarī or hang myself or cast off my body by climbing up a precipice and falling from it. (36)

पिबामि वा विषं तीक्ष्णं प्रवेक्ष्यामि हुताशनम् ।
न त्वहं राघवादन्यं कदापि पुरुषं स्पृशे ॥ ३७ ॥

“Or I shall drink a strong poison or enter the fire. But I shall never touch any male other than Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu).” (37)

इति लक्ष्मणमाश्रुत्य सीता शोकसमन्विता ।
पाणिभ्यां रुदती दुःखादुदरं प्रजघान ह ॥ ३८ ॥

Having taken this vow before Lakṣmaṇa, Sītā, who was overwhelmed with grief, beat her abdomen with her hands, crying through agony: so the tradition goes. (38)

तामार्तरूपां विमना रुदन्तीं
सौमित्रिरालोक्य विशालनेत्राम् ।

आश्वासयामास न चैव भर्तु- स्तं भ्रातरं किञ्चिदुवाच सीता ॥ ३९ ॥

Depressed in spirit to perceive her weeping with a distressed air, Lakṣmaṇa, son of Sumitrā, consoled the large-eyed lady. Sītā, however, did not utter even a word to her aforesaid brother-in-law. (39)

ततस्तु सीतामभिवाद्य लक्ष्मणः
कृताञ्जलिः किञ्चिदभिप्रणम्य ।

अवेक्षमाणो बहुशः स मैथिलीं
जगाम रामस्य समीपमात्मवान् ॥ ४० ॥

Then, greeting Sītā with joined palms and respectfully bowing down a little, nay, looking at the princess of Mithilā again and again, the celebrated Lakṣmaṇa, who had mastered his self, sought the presence of Śrī Rāma. (40)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे पञ्चचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-five in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षट्चत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLVI

Rāvaṇa seeks the presence of Sītā in the guise of a recluse;

Sītā invites him to accept her hospitality

तया परुषमुक्तस्तु कुपितो राघवानुजः ।
स विकांक्षन् भृशं रामं प्रतस्थे नचिरादिव ॥ १ ॥

Enraged when spoken to in harsh words by Sītā, and ardently longing to meet Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa, the younger brother of Śrī Rāma, departed without delay as it were.

(1)

तदासाद्य दशग्रीवः क्षिप्रमन्तरमास्थितः ।
अभिचक्राम वैदेहीं परिव्राजकरूपधृक् ॥ २ ॥

Getting an opportunity to meet Sītā alone, provided by the departure of Lakṣmaṇa and availing himself of it, nay, assuming the form of a wandering anchorite, Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, quickly advanced towards Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory.

(2)

श्लक्ष्णकाषायसंवीतः शिखी छत्री उपानही ।
वामे चांसेऽवसज्याथ शुभे यष्टिकमण्डलू ॥ ३ ॥
परिव्राजकरूपेण वैदेहीमन्ववर्तत ।
तामाससादातिबलो भ्रातृभ्यां रहितां वने ॥ ४ ॥
रहितां सूर्यचन्द्राभ्यां संध्यामिव महत्तमः ।
तामपश्यत् ततो बालां राजपुत्रीं यशस्विनीम् ॥ ५ ॥
रोहिणीं शशिना हीनां ग्रहवद् भृशदारुणः ।
तमुग्रं पापकर्माणं जनस्थानगता हुमाः ॥ ६ ॥
संदृश्य न प्रकम्पन्ते न प्रवाति च मारुतः ।
शीघ्रस्त्रोताश्च तं दृष्ट्वा वीक्षन्तं रक्तलोचनम् ॥ ७ ॥
स्तिमितं गन्तुमारेभे भयाद् गोदावरी नदी ।
रामस्य त्वन्तरं प्रेप्सुर्दशग्रीवस्तदन्तरे ॥ ८ ॥
उपतस्थे च वैदेहीं भिक्षुरूपेण रावणः ।
अभव्यो भव्यरूपेण भर्तारमनुशोचतीम् ॥ ९ ॥
अभ्यवर्तत वैदेहीं चित्रामिव शनैश्चरः ।
सहसा भव्यरूपेण तृणैः कूप इवावृतः ॥ १० ॥
अतिष्ठत् प्रेक्ष्य वैदेहीं रामपत्नीं यशस्विनीम् ।
तिष्ठन् सम्प्रेक्ष्य च तदा पत्नीं रामस्य रावणः ॥ ११ ॥

शुभां रुचिरदन्तोष्ठीं पूर्णचन्द्रनिभाननाम् ।
आसीनां पर्णशालायां बाष्पशोकाभिपीडिताम् ॥ १२ ॥
स तां पद्मपलाशाक्षीं पीतकौशेयवासिनीम् ।
अभ्यगच्छत वैदेहीं हृष्टचेता निशाचरः ॥ १३ ॥

Appearing in the form of a wandering recluse, clad in a neat ochre-coloured garment, with a tuft of hair on the crown of his head and with shoes on, carrying an umbrella on the right shoulder and bearing a glossy staff and a bright Kamaṇḍalu (a vessel made of marine cocoanut shell for carrying water) on the left shoulder, he tried to humour Sītā, a princess of the Videha kingdom. Rāvaṇa, who was possessed of great might, approached her while she was bereft of the two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, even as thick darkness overtakes dusk, which is without the sun and the moon. The exceedingly cruel fellow then saw that illustrious and youthful princess in the same way as an unpropitious planet would frown at Rohiṇī (a consort of the moon-god and a constellation of that name) bereft of the moon. Perceiving that fierce ogre of sinful deeds, the trees existing in Janasthāna did not wave nor did the wind blow freely. Seeing the red-eyed monster looking intently on the river, the river Godāvarī too, which had a swift current, began to course slowly for fear of him. Seeking to obtain an opportunity when Śrī Rāma should be away from Sītā, Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, sought the presence of Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, in the guise of a wandering mendicant during the absence of Śrī Rāma. In a propitious garb the unpropitious Rāvaṇa approached Sītā, a princess of the Videha kingdom, who was then grieving for her husband, even as the planet Saturn would approach the constellation, Citrā. Looking intently at Sitā, a princess of the Videha territory, the illustrious consort of Śrī Rāma, Rāvaṇa suddenly stood before her in an auspicious garb and thereby resembling a well overgrown with blades of grass.

Standing delighted in mind to gaze at that moment on Sitā, a princess of the Videha kingdom, the blessed consort of Śrī Rāma—who had lovely teeth and lips, a countenance shining brightly as the full moon and eyes resembling the petals of a lotus, was clad in yellow silk—sitting in her hut of leaves tormented with grief and flooded with tears, the ogre, Rāvaṇa, drew near her.

(3—13)

दृष्ट्वा कामशराविद्धो ब्रह्मघोषमुदीरयन्।
अब्रवीत् प्रश्रितं वाक्यं रहिते राक्षसाधिपः ॥ १४ ॥

Pierced with the darts of Love to see her and chanting Vedic Mantras in order to impress on her that he was a Brāhmaṇa recluse, Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, proceeded to address polite words to her in that lonely place.

(14)

तामुत्तमां त्रिलोकानां पद्महीनामिव श्रियम्।
विभ्राजमानां वपुषा रावणः प्रशशंस ह ॥ १५ ॥

Rāvaṇa, they say, extolled that lady, who was the foremost among women in all the three worlds, and shone brightly with her body like Lakṣmī, the goddess of beauty and fortune, without a lotus, in the following words :

(15)

रौप्यकाञ्चनवर्णाभे पीतकौशेयवासिनि।
कमलानां शुभां मालां पद्मिनीव च बिभ्रती ॥ १६ ॥
ह्रीः श्रीः कीर्तिः शुभा लक्ष्मीरप्सरा वा शुभानने।
भूतिर्वा त्वं वरारोहे रतिर्वा स्वैरचारिणी ॥ १७ ॥

“O lady possessing the hue and splendour of silver and gold and clad in yellow silk, and having in your person a cluster of lotuses (in the guise of eyes, countenance, hands, feet and so on) like a lotus pond, are you Hṛī (the deity presiding over modesty), Śrī (the goddess of elegance), Kīrti (the deity presiding over fame), the blessed Lakṣmī (the goddess of fortune), or a celestial nymph or Bhūti (the goddess presiding over the mystic powers) or Rati (the consort of Love) acting according to her own inclinations, O lady with a charming countenance and other comely limbs?

(16-17)

समाः शिखरिणः स्निग्धाः पाण्डुरा दशनास्तव।

विशाले विमले नेत्रे रक्तान्ते कृष्णतारके ॥ १८ ॥

“How even smooth and white are your teeth with their surface resembling jasmine buds and how large and fair are your eyes red at the end with dark pupils.

(18)

विशालं जघनं पीनमूरु करिकरोपमौ।

एतावुपचितौ वृत्तौ संहतौ सम्प्रगल्भितौ ॥ १९ ॥

पीनोन्नतमुखौ कान्तौ स्निग्धतालफलोपमौ।

मणिप्रवेकाभरणौ रुचिरौ ते पयोधरौ ॥ २० ॥

“Broad and fleshy are your hips and thighs resembling the trunk of an elephant; and these breasts of yours are fully developed, round, joined together, and prominent with rounded and elevated teats, lovable and charming, resembling a pair of smooth palmyra fruits and adorned with strings of excellent gems.

(19-20)

चारुस्मिते चारुदति चारुनेत्रे विलासिनि।

मनो हरसि मे रामे नदीकूलमिवाम्भसा ॥ २१ ॥

“O playful and charming lady with sweet smiles, shapely teeth and lovely eyes, you steal away my heart even as a river washes away its banks with its current.

(21)

करान्तमितमध्यासि सुकेशे संहतस्तनि।

नैव देवी न गन्धर्वी न यक्षी न च किंनरी ॥ २२ ॥

नैवरूपा मया नारी दृष्टपूर्वा महीतले।

रूपमग्रं च लोकेषु सौकुमार्यं वयश्च ते ॥ २३ ॥

इह वासश्च कान्तरे चित्तमुन्माथयन्ति मे।

सा प्रतिक्राम भद्रं ते न त्वं वस्तुमिहार्हसि ॥ २४ ॥

“Your waist can be enclosed within the tips of one thumb and index finger, O lady with sleek hair and close breasts! Neither a goddess, nor a Gandharva lady, nor a Yakṣa woman nor a Kinnara girl nor a human lady of such passing comeliness was seen by me ever before on the face of the earth. Your comeliness, which is foremost in all the three worlds, as also your tenderness and youth, on the one hand, and your residence in this forest, on the other hand, agitate my mind. As such depart from this place, may prosperity attend on you ! You ought no longer to stay here.

(22—24)

राक्षसानामयं वासो घोराणां कामरूपिणाम् ।
प्रासादाग्राणि रम्याणि नगरोपवनानि च ॥ २५ ॥
सम्पन्नानि सुगन्धीनि युक्तान्याचरितुं त्वया ।
वरं माल्यं वरं गन्धं वरं वस्त्रं च शोभने ॥ २६ ॥
भर्तारं च वरं मन्ये त्वद्युक्तमसितेक्षणे ।
का त्वं भवसि रुद्राणां मरुतां वा शुचिस्मिते ॥ २७ ॥
वसूनां वा वरारोहे देवता प्रतिभासि मे ।
नेह गच्छन्ति गन्धर्वा न देवा न च किन्नराः ॥ २८ ॥

“This forest is the home of fierce ogres capable of assuming any form at will. The charming topmost storeys of palaces as well as prosperous cities and sweet-smelling gardens alone are fit to be occupied and frequented by you. I consider that garland as foremost, that fragrant substance as excellent and that article of wearing apparel as the best and also that husband as worth choosing, that is united with you, O charming lady with dark eyes! Who are you, O lady with bright smiles? To me you appear to be a goddess married to the (eleven) Rudras, the (forty-nine) wind-gods or the (eight) Vasus, O lady with charming limbs! Neither Gandharvas nor gods nor Kinnaras visit this forest.

(25—28)

राक्षसानामयं वासः कथं तु त्वमिहागता ।
इह शाखाग्रमृगाः सिंहा द्वीपिव्याघ्रमृगा वृकाः ॥ २९ ॥
ऋक्षास्तरक्षवः कङ्काः कथं तेभ्यो न बिभ्यसे ।
मदन्वितानां घोराणां कुञ्जराणां तरस्विनाम् ॥ ३० ॥

कथमेका महारण्ये न बिभेषि वरानने ।
कासि कस्य कुतश्च त्वं किं निमित्तं च दण्डकान् ॥ ३१ ॥
एका चरसि कल्याणि घोराण् राक्षससेवितान् ।
इति प्रशस्ता वैदेही रावणेन महात्मना ॥ ३२ ॥
द्विजातिवेषेण हि तं दृष्ट्वा रावणमागतम् ।
सर्वैरतिथिसत्कारैः पूजयामास मैथिली ॥ ३३ ॥

“This forest is the home of ogres. How did you come to this place at all? Here live monkeys, lions, leopards, tigers and deer, wolves, bears, hyenas and buzzards. How do you not feel afraid of them? How do you not feel afraid of dreadful elephants in rut and full of speed, though living alone in this huge forest, O lady with a charming countenance? Who are you? Whose consort are you and where do you hail from? And for what purpose do you range alone in the frightful Daṇḍaka forest frequented by ogres, O blessed one?” Eulogized as above by the swindler Rāvaṇa and actually seeing the aforesaid Rāvaṇa come in the garb of a Brāhmaṇa, Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, adored him with all honours due to an unexpected guest.

(29—33)

उपानीयासनं पूर्वं पाद्येनाभिनिमन्त्र्य च ।
अब्रवीत् सिद्धमित्येव तदा तं सौम्यदर्शनम् ॥ ३४ ॥

Having offered him a seat first and tended upon him with water to wash his feet with, she then said to Rāvaṇa of gentle aspect only this: “Cooked food is ready.”

(34)

द्विजातिवेषेण समीक्ष्य मैथिली
समागतं पात्रकुसुम्भधारिणम् ।
अशक्यमुदद्वेष्टुमुपायदर्शना-

त्र्यमन्त्रयद् ब्राह्मणवत् तथागतम् ॥ ३५ ॥

Perceiving him arrived without previous notice in the garb of a Brāhmaṇa, carrying a water-pot (made of marine cocoanut-shell) and clad in saffron-coloured robes and unworthy of neglect because of her having perceived the marks of a Brāhmaṇa on his person, Sītā invited him in the following words to dinner as a Brāhmaṇa since he had come dressed as such : (35)

इयं बृसी ब्राह्मण काममास्यता- मिदं च पाद्यं प्रतिगृह्यतामिति ।
इदं च सिद्धं वनजातमुत्तमं
त्वदर्थमव्यग्रमिहोपभुज्यताम् ॥ ३६ ॥

“Here is a seat of green grass, O Brāhmaṇa ! Let yourself be seated at will on it. Also let this water to wash your feet with be accepted. And here is excellent produce of the forest dressed for you. This may be partaken of by you on this spot at ease.” (36)

निमन्त्र्यमाणः प्रतिपूर्णभाषिणीं
नरेन्द्रपत्नीं प्रसमीक्ष्य मैथिलीम् ।
प्रसह्य तस्या हरणे दृढं मनः
समर्पयामास वधाय रावणः ॥ ३७ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे षट्चत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-six in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLVII

Sītā tells Rāvaṇa about herself and her husband and also the reason of their coming to the forest. Rāvaṇa expresses his desire to make her his principal queen. Sītā reproaches him

रावणेन तु वैदेही तदा पृष्टा जिहीर्षुणा ।
परिव्राजकरूपेण शशंसात्मानमात्मना ॥ १ ॥

Questioned by Rāvaṇa, who, though disguised as a wandering recluse, intended to carry her away, Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, for her part, spoke to him about herself of her own accord. (1)

ब्राह्मणश्चातिथिश्चैष अनुक्तो हि शपेत माम् ।
इति ध्यात्वा मुहूर्तं तु सीता वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ २ ॥

Reflecting awhile that, being a Brāhmaṇa and an unexpected guest, he might likely curse her if not told about herself,

Being invited to dine in the aforesaid words and closely observing Queen Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, who had uttered the full formula with which a guest is invited to dine, Rāvaṇa fully and resolutely made up his mind to carry her away by force and thereby to bring about his own death. (37)

ततः सुवेषं मृगयागतं पतिं
प्रतीक्षमाणा सहलक्ष्मणं तदा ।
निरीक्षमाणा हरितं ददर्श त-
न्महद् वनं नैव तु रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ ३८ ॥

Then, looking out for her neatly dressed husband—who had gone a hunting with Lakṣmaṇa—and casting her eyes round, Sītā only saw at that moment that vast green forest but not Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa. (38)

Sītā for her part spoke to him as follows : (2)

दुहिता जनकस्याहं मैथिलस्य महात्मनः ।
सीता नाम्नास्मि भद्रं ते रामस्य महिषी प्रिया ॥ ३ ॥

“A daughter of the high-souled Janaka, king of Mithilā, Sītā by name, I am the beloved consort of Śrī Rāma. May all be well with you ! (3)

उषित्वा द्वादश समा इक्ष्वाकूणां निवेशने ।
भुञ्जाना मानुषान् भोगान् सर्वकामसमृद्धिनी ॥ ४ ॥

“Having lived for twelve years in the palace of the kings of Ikṣvāku’s line, and enjoying the luxuries available to humankind, I lived in the midst of an abundance of all kinds of enjoyments. (4)

तत्र त्रयोदशे वर्षे राजाऽमन्त्रयत प्रभुः ।
अभिषेचयितुं रामं समेतो राजमन्त्रिभिः ॥ ५ ॥

“In the thirteenth year of my stay in that palace, the powerful monarch, my father-in-law, accompanied by his counsellors, decided to install Śrī Rāma as Prince Regent. (5)

तस्मिन् सम्प्रियमाणे तु राघवस्याभिषेचने ।
कैकेयी नाम भर्तारं ममार्या याचते वरम् ॥ ६ ॥

“While the aforesaid installation in the office of Prince Regent of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) was being arranged, my mother-in-law, Kaikeyī by name, asked a boon of her husband. (6)

परिगृह्य तु कैकेयी श्वशुरं सुकृतेन मे ।
मम प्रव्राजणं भर्तुर्भरतस्याभिषेचनम् ॥ ७ ॥
द्वावयाचत भर्तारं सत्यसंधं नृपोत्तमम् ।
नाद्य भोक्ष्ये न च स्वप्स्ये न पास्ये न कदाचन ॥ ८ ॥
एष मे जीवितस्यान्तो रामो यदभिषिच्यते ।
इति ब्रुवाणां कैकेयीं श्वशुरो मे स पार्थिवः ॥ ९ ॥
अयाचताथैरन्वर्थेन च याच्छां चकार सा ।

मम भर्ता महातेजा वयसा पञ्चविंशकः ॥ १० ॥
अष्टादश हि वर्षाणि मम जन्मनि गण्यते ।
रामेति प्रथितो लोके सत्यवान् शीलवान् शुचिः ॥ ११ ॥
विशालाक्षो महाबाहुः सर्वभूतहिते रतः ।
कामार्तश्च महाराजः पिता दशरथः स्वयम् ॥ १२ ॥
कैकेय्याः प्रियकामार्थं तं रामं नाभ्यषेचयत् ।
अभिषेकाय तु पितुः समीपं राममागतम् ॥ १३ ॥
कैकेयी मम भर्तारमित्युवाच द्रुतं वचः ।
तव पित्रा समाज्ञप्तं ममेदं शृणु राघव ॥ १४ ॥

“Binding my father-in-law with an oath in the name of virtue, Kaikeyī for her part asked of her lord, that jewel among kings, who was true to his promise, a couple of boons in the shape of exile of my husband and the installation as Prince Regent of Bharata, her own son, and added : “If Rāma is installed today, I shall neither eat nor sleep nor drink any longer. This event, viz., the installation of Rāma, will constitute the end of my life.” The said king, my father-in-law, sought to win over Kaikeyī, who was speaking in this strain, by means of things worth coveting and enjoying; she, however, did not grant his request. My husband, who is possessed of great energy, was over twenty-five years of age when he left for the forest, while my age at the time of our departure from Ayodhyā was calculated to be eighteen years from my birth. Known in the world by the name of Rāma, my husband is truthful, amiable of disposition and virtuous; is possessed of large eyes and mighty arms and devoted to the good of all created beings. Yet, in order to fulfil the cherished object of Kaikeyī’s desire, his father, the emperor, who was himself stricken with love (for her), did not install Śrī Rāma as Prince Regent. To Śrī Rāma, my husband, arrived in the presence of his father for getting installed (as Prince Regent), Kaikeyī for her part promptly spoke as follows : ‘Hear from me, O scion of Raghu, the following decree duly issued by your father :

(7—14)

भरताय प्रदातव्यमिदं राज्यमकण्टकम् ।
त्वया तु खलु वस्तव्यं नव वर्षाणि पञ्च च ॥ १५ ॥
वने प्रव्रज काकुत्स्थ पितरं मोचयानृतात् ।
तथेत्युवाच तां रामः कैकेयीमकुतोभयः ॥ १६ ॥
चकार तद्वचः श्रुत्वा भर्ता मम दृढव्रतः ।
दद्यान् प्रतिगृह्णीयात् सत्यं ब्रूयान् चानृतम् ॥ १७ ॥

“This kingdom has to be bestowed on Bharata without any hindrance and you at all events must dwell in the forest for nine years and five. Therefore, depart, O scion of Kakutstha, to the forest and save your father from the sin of falsehood. Hearing her command, my husband, Śrī Rāma, who had no fear from any quarter and is firm of vows, replied as follows : ‘Let it be so,’ and followed it. He would ever bestow and never accept a gift. He would ever speak the truth and never tell a lie. (15—17)

एतद् ब्राह्मण रामस्य व्रतं धृतमनुत्तमम्।
 तस्य भ्राता तु वैमात्रो लक्ष्मणो नाम वीर्यवान् ॥ १८ ॥
 रामस्य पुरुषव्याघ्रः सहायः समरेऽरिहा।
 स भ्राता लक्ष्मणो नाम ब्रह्मचारी दृढव्रतः ॥ १९ ॥
 अन्वगच्छद् धनुष्पाणिः प्रव्रजन्तं मया सह।
 जटी तापसरूपेण मया सह सहानुजः ॥ २० ॥
 प्रविष्टो दण्डकारण्यं धर्मनित्यो दृढव्रतः।
 ते वयं प्रच्युता राज्यात् कैकेय्यास्तु कृते त्रयः ॥ २१ ॥
 विचराम द्विजश्रेष्ठ वनं गम्भीरमोजसा।
 समाश्वस मुहूर्तं तु शक्यं वस्तुमिह त्वया ॥ २२ ॥

“Such, O Brāhmaṇa, is the unsurpassed vow held fast by Śrī Rāma. A powerful half-brother of his, Lakṣmaṇa by name, a tiger among men and the slayer of his foes on the battlefield, is the companion of Śrī Rāma. The aforesaid brother, Lakṣmaṇa by name, who is firm of vows and is practising continence, followed, bow in hand, Śrī Rāma, who was going into exile with me. Wearing matted locks, and accompanied by his aforesaid half-brother, Śrī Rāma, who is ever devoted to piety and firm of vows, penetrated in the form of an ascetic into the Daṇḍaka forest with me. Expelled from the kingdom on account of Kaikeyī, we, the aforesaid three, O jewel among the Brāhmaṇas, are ranging the dense forest banking on our own strength. Rest awhile if it is possible for you to stay here. (18—22)

आगमिष्यति मे भर्ता वन्यमादाय पुष्कलम्।
 रुरुन् गोधान् वराहांश्च हत्वाऽऽदायामिषं बहु ॥ २३ ॥

“Having killed Rurus (a species of deer), iguanas and boars (by way of sport), and taking all kinds of wild products fit for the consumption of ascetics in abundance for repast, my husband will come back very soon. (23)

स त्वं नाम च गोत्रं च कुलमाचक्ष्व तत्त्वतः।
 एकश्च दण्डकारण्ये किमर्थं चरसि द्विज ॥ २४ ॥

“Now please make known to me accurately your name as well as your family name and descent. Please also relate,

O Brāhmaṇa, what for you roam about in the Daṇḍaka forest alone.” (24)

एवं ब्रुवत्यां सीतायां रामपत्न्यां महाबलः।
 प्रत्युवाचोत्तरं तीव्रं रावणो राक्षसाधिपः ॥ २५ ॥

While Sītā, the consort of Śrī Rāma, was speaking as aforesaid, Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, who was possessed of great might, made the following sharp reply : (25)

येन वित्रासिता लोकाः सदेवासुरमानुषाः।
 अहं स रावणो नाम सीते रक्षोगणेश्वरः ॥ २६ ॥

“I am the celebrated ruler of the hordes of ogres, Rāvaṇa by name, by whom all people, including gods, demons and human beings, have been struck with terror, O Sītā ! (26)

त्वां तु काञ्चनवर्णाभां दृष्ट्वा कौशेयवासिनीम्।
 रतिं स्वकेषु दारेषु नाधिगच्छाम्यनिन्दिते ॥ २७ ॥

“Having seen you possessing the hue and brilliance of gold and clad in silk, I no longer find delight in my own consorts, O lady beyond reproach in point of comeliness of form ! (27)

बह्वीनामुत्तमस्त्रीणामाह्वानमितस्ततः।
 सर्वासामेव भद्रं ते ममाग्रमहिषी भव ॥ २८ ॥

“Become the foremost queen among all the numerous excellent women carried away from here and there by me. (28)

लङ्का नाम समुद्रस्य मध्ये मम महापुरी।
 सागरेण परिक्षिप्ता निविष्टा गिरिमूर्धनि ॥ २९ ॥

“My great capital, Laṅkā by name, is set in the midst of the sea, girt by the ocean and built on the summit of a hill. (29)

तत्र सीते मया सार्धं वनेषु विचरिष्यसि।
 न चास्य वनवासस्य स्पृहयिष्यसि भामिनि ॥ ३० ॥

“There you will roam about with me in woodlands and will never long for this sojourn in the forest, O youthful Sītā ! (30)

पञ्च दास्यः सहस्राणि सर्वाभरणभूषिताः।
 सीते परिचरिष्यन्ति भार्या भवसि मे यदि ॥ ३१ ॥

“Five thousand maid-servants decked with all kinds of ornaments will wait on you, if you choose to become my wife, O Sītā !”
(31)

रावणेनैवमुक्ता तु कुपिता जनकात्मजा ।
प्रत्युवाचानवद्याङ्गी तमनादृत्य राक्षसम् ॥ ३२ ॥

Enraged when spoken to as above by Rāvaṇa and disdaining that ogre, Sītā, daughter of Janaka, of faultless limbs for her part replied as follows: (32)

महागिरिमिवाकम्प्यं महेन्द्रसदृशं पतिम् ।
महोदधिमिवाक्षोभ्यमहं राममनुव्रता ॥ ३३ ॥

“I have taken a vow to follow the mind of Śrī Rāma, my husband, who is unshakable like a big mountain, who is a compeer of the mighty Indra, and who is imperturbable (calm) like the ocean. (33)

सर्वलक्षणसम्पन्नं न्यग्रोधपरिमण्डलम् ।
सत्यसंधं महाभागमहं राममनुव्रता ॥ ३४ ॥

“I have taken a vow to follow the wishes of the highly blessed Śrī Rāma, who is richly endowed with all auspicious bodily marks, who affords shelter to all like a banyan tree and who is true to his promise. (34)

महाबाहुं महोरस्कं सिंहविक्रान्तगामिनम् ।
नृसिंहं सिंहसंकाशमहं राममनुव्रता ॥ ३५ ॥

“I am devoted to the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma, a lion among men, who is distinguished by a broad chest, who walks with the proud gait of a lion and resembles a lion in prowess. (35)

पूर्णचन्द्राननं रामं राजवत्सं जितेन्द्रियम् ।
पृथुकीर्तिं महाबाहुमहं राममनुव्रता ॥ ३६ ॥

“I follow the vows of the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma, whose countenance resembles the full moon, who delights all, who is the foremost of kings, who has mastered his senses, and who is of wide renown. (36)

त्वं पुनर्जम्बुकः सिंहीं मामिहेच्छसि दुर्लभाम् ।
नाहं शक्या त्वया स्पष्टमादित्यस्य प्रभा यथा ॥ ३७ ॥

“Nevertheless, you, a jackal, covet me, a lioness, so hard to win here. I am unsusceptible of even being touched by you as the glow of the sun. (37)

पादपान् काञ्चनान् नूनं बहून् पश्यसि मन्दभाक् ।
राघवस्य प्रियां भार्या यस्त्वमिच्छसि राक्षस ॥ ३८ ॥

“Surely you behold numerous golden trees (a portentous spectacle beheld by men who are on the verge of death), O short-lived ogre—you who covet the beloved consort of Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu ! (38)

क्षुधितस्य च सिंहस्य मृगशत्रोस्तरस्विनः ।
आशीविषस्य वदनाद् दंष्ट्रामादातुमिच्छसि ॥ ३९ ॥
मन्दरं पर्वतश्रेष्ठं पाणिना हर्तुमिच्छसि ।
कालकूटं विषं पीत्वा स्वस्तिमान् गन्तुमिच्छसि ॥ ४० ॥
अक्षि सूच्या प्रमृजसि जिह्वा लेढि च क्षुरम् ।
राघवस्य प्रियां भार्यामधिगन्तुं त्वमिच्छसि ॥ ४१ ॥

“You seek to extract a tooth from the jaws of a hungry yet powerful lion, the avowed enemy of deer, or a fang from the jaws of a poisonous snake; nay, you seek to carry away in your hand Mount Mandara, the foremost of mountains, and desire to escape safely (even) after having drunk a deadly poison; nay, you rub your eyes with a needle and lick a razor with your tongue—you who seek to lay your hands on the beloved consort of Śrī Rāma. (39—41)

अवसज्य शिलां कण्ठे समुद्रं तर्तुमिच्छसि ।
सूर्याचन्द्रमसौ चोभौ पाणिभ्यां हर्तुमिच्छसि ॥ ४२ ॥
यो रामस्य प्रियां भार्या प्रधर्षयितुमिच्छसि ।
अग्निं प्रज्वलितं दृष्ट्वा वस्त्रेणाहर्तुमिच्छसि ॥ ४३ ॥
कल्याणवृत्तां यो भार्या रामस्याहर्तुमिच्छसि ।
अयोमुखानां शूलानामग्रे चरितुमिच्छसि ।
रामस्य सदृशीं भार्या योऽधिगन्तुं त्वमिच्छसि ॥ ४४ ॥

“You desire to cross a sea having tied a slab of stone to your neck and wish to snatch away the sun and the moon both with your hands—you who seek to bear away by force the beloved consort of Śrī Rāma ! Seeing a blazing fire, you desire to carry it away in a piece of cloth—you who seek to bear away Śrī Rāma's wife of virtuous conduct. Nay, you desire to tread on the heads of iron-tipped pikes—you who seek to lay your hands on the worthy consort of Śrī Rāma ! (42—44)

यदन्तरं सिंहसृगालयोर्वने
यदन्तरं स्यन्दनिकासमुद्रयोः ।
सुराग्र्यसौवीरकयोर्यदन्तरं
तदन्तरं दाशरथेस्तवैव च ॥ ४५ ॥

“The same disparity exists between Śrī Rāma (son of Daśaratha) and yourself as does between a lion and a jackal in a forest, between a sea and a brook, between nectar (the foremost of beverages) and Sauviraka (a sour and savoury drink prepared by dissolving powdered rye-seeds into water and preserving it for a day or two). (45)

यदन्तरं काञ्चनसीसलोहयो-
र्यदन्तरं चन्दनवारिपङ्क्तयोः ।
यदन्तरं हस्तिबिडालयोर्वने
तदन्तरं दाशरथेस्तवैव च ॥ ४६ ॥

“Nay, the same disparity exists between Śrī Rāma (son of Daśaratha) and you as does between gold and a base metal like lead, between sandal-paste and mud and between an elephant and a cat in a jungle. (46)

यदन्तरं वायसवैनतेययो-
र्यदन्तरं मदगुमयूरयोरपि ।
यदन्तरं हंसकगृध्रयोर्वने
तदन्तरं दाशरथेस्तवैव च ॥ ४७ ॥

“Again, the same disparity exists between you and Śrī Rāma (son of Daśaratha) as does between Garuḍa (son of Vinatā and the King of birds) and a crow, between a peacock and a diver bird, between a swan (which is believed to feed on pearls) and a vulture (which feeds on the rotten flesh of carcasses). (47)

तस्मिन् सहस्राक्षसमप्रभावे
रामे स्थिते कार्मुकबाणपाणौ ।
हृतापि तेऽहं न जरां गमिष्ये
आज्यं यथा मक्षिकयावगीर्णम् ॥ ४८ ॥

“So long as Śrī Rāma, whose might equals that of Indra (the thousand-eyed god), is alive holding a bow and an arrow in his hand, I shall not be retained by you, even though carried away by you, any more than ghee swallowed by a bee (which ultimately causes its death).” (48)

इतीव तद्वाक्यमदुष्टभावा
सुदुष्टमुक्त्वा रजनीचरं तम् ।
गात्रप्रकम्पाद् व्यथिता बभूव
वातोद्धता सा कदलीव तन्वी ॥ ४९ ॥

Having thus addressed the foregoing most pungent words to the said ranger of the night, the lean and thin Sītā, who harboured no vile motive towards him, felt afflicted due to a tremor in her body like a plantain tree shaken by a blast. (49)

तां वेपमानामुपलक्ष्य सीतां
स रावणो मृत्युसमप्रभावः ।
कुलं बलं नाम च कर्म चात्मनः
समाचक्षे भयकारणार्थम् ॥ ५० ॥

Perceiving Sītā shaking through uncertainty, the said Rāvaṇa, who was mighty as Death, proudly mentioned his own descent, strength, name and exploits in order to intimidate her. (50)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे सप्तचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-seven in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLVIII

Rāvaṇa boasts of his prowess and Sītā twits him sharp

एवं ब्रुवत्यां सीतायां संरब्धः परुषं वचः ।
ललाटे भ्रुकुटिं कृत्वा रावणः प्रत्युवाच ह ॥ १ ॥

Knitting his brows on his forehead while Sītā was speaking as aforesaid, Rāvaṇa felt provoked and replied in the following harsh words : so the tradition goes : (1)

भ्राता वैश्रवणस्याहं सापत्नो वरवर्णिनि ।
रावणो नाम भद्रं ते दशग्रीवः प्रतापवान् ॥ २ ॥
यस्य देवाः सगन्धर्वाः पिशाचपतगोरगाः ।
विद्रवन्ति सदा भीता मृत्योरिव सदा प्रजाः ॥ ३ ॥
येन वैश्रवणो भ्राता वैमात्राः कारणान्तरे ।
द्वन्द्वमासादितः क्रोधाद् रणे विक्रम्य निर्जितः ॥ ४ ॥

“Good luck to you, O lady of excellent complexion ! I am the glorious ten-headed half-brother of Kubera (son of Sage Viśravā), Rāvaṇa by name, from whom gods including Gandharvas, nay, fiends, birds and serpents ever flee in terror as created beings are always afraid of death, nay, provoked by whom to a conflict on some excuse, his half-brother, Kubera (son of Sage Viśravā) was assailed and utterly vanquished. (2—4)

मद्भयार्तः परित्यज्य स्वमधिष्ठानमृद्धिमत् ।
कैलासं पर्वतश्रेष्ठमध्यास्ते नरवाहनः ॥ ५ ॥

“Deserting for good his sumptuous abode, Laṅkā, stricken as he was with fear of me, Kubera (who is carried from place to place on a palanquin borne by human beings) dwells on the top of Kailāsa, the foremost of mountains. (5)

यस्य तत् पुष्पकं नाम विमानं कामगं शुभम् ।
वीर्यादावर्जितं भद्रे येन यामि विहायसम् ॥ ६ ॥

“His celebrated and beautiful aerial car, Puṣpaka by name, which can go wherever one likes, and in which I range the skies, was snatched by me by dint of my prowess,
O good lady ! (6)

मम संजातरोषस्य मुखं दृष्ट्वैव मैथिलि ।
विद्रवन्ति परित्रस्ताः सुराः शक्रपुरोगमाः ॥ ७ ॥

“Alarmed to see my very face when I am provoked to anger, gods headed by Indra take to flight, O princess of Mithilā ! (7)

यत्र तिष्ठाम्यहं तत्र मारुतो वाति शङ्कितः ।
तीव्रांशुः शिशिरांशुश्च भयात् सम्पद्यते दिवि ॥ ८ ॥

“Wheresoever I halt, the wind blows gently through apprehension and the sun with its fierce rays is transformed into the moon (because of its cool rays) in the heavens. (8)

निष्क्रम्यपत्रास्तरवो नद्यश्च स्तिमितोदकाः ।
भवन्ति यत्र तत्राहं तिष्ठामि च चरामि च ॥ ९ ॥

“Nay, wherever I stay and move, the trees find their leaves motionless and the rivers find their waters still. (9)

मम पारे समुद्रस्य लङ्का नाम पुरी शुभा ।
सम्पूर्णा राक्षसैर्घोरैर्यथेन्द्रस्यामरावती ॥ १० ॥

“Beyond the sea stands my beautiful capital, Laṅkā by name, vying with Amarāvati, the capital of Indra, and full of fierce ogres. (10)

प्राकारेण परिक्षिप्ता पाण्डुरेण विराजिता ।
हेमकक्ष्या पुरी रम्या वैदूर्यमयतोरणा ॥ ११ ॥

“Enclosed and beautified by a white enclosure wall, the city looks charming with the inner apartments of its houses built of gold and outer gates made of cat's-eye jewels. (11)

हस्त्यश्वरथसम्बाधा तूर्यनादविनादिता ।
सर्वकामफलैर्वृक्षैः संकुलोद्यानभूषिता ॥ १२ ॥

“The city is crowded with elephants, horses and chariots and rendered noisy by the sound of musical instruments of every description; nay, it abounds in trees yielding all kinds of coveted fruits and is beautified by gardens. (12)

तत्र त्वं वस हे सीते राजपुत्रि मया सह।
न स्मरिष्यसि नारीणां मानुषीणां मनस्विनि ॥ १३ ॥

“Dwell you there with me, O princess Sītā! There you will no longer remember mortal women, O proud lady! (13)

भुञ्जाना मानुषान् भोगान् दिव्यांश्च वरवर्णिनि।
न स्मरिष्यसि रामस्य मानुषस्य गतायुषः ॥ १४ ॥

“Enjoying human as well as celestial delights, you will no longer think of the mortal Rāma, whose life has now well-nigh departed, O lady of excellent complexion! (14)

स्थापयित्वा प्रियं पुत्रं राज्ये दशरथो नृपः।
मन्दवीर्यस्ततो ज्येष्ठः सुतः प्रस्थापितो वनम् ॥ १५ ॥
तेन किं भ्रष्टराज्येन रामेण गतचेतसा।
करिष्यसि विशालाक्षि तापसेन तपस्विना ॥ १६ ॥

“What use can you have for the aforesaid Rāma, an ascetic practising austerities, who has lost his sovereignty and consequently been deprived of his reasoning faculty, and who, possessed as he was of negligible prowess, though the eldest son of his father, was consequently sent into exile to the forest by King Daśaratha after installing on the throne as Prince Regent his pet son, Bharata, O large-eyed lady? (15-16)

रक्ष राक्षसभर्तारं कामय स्वयमागतम्।
न मन्मथशराविष्टं प्रत्याख्यातुं त्वमर्हसि ॥ १७ ॥

“Save the lord of ogres, i.e., myself, who has sought you in person, and love him. You ought not to spurn me, overpowered as I am by shafts of love. (17)

प्रत्याख्याय हि मां भीरु पश्चात्तापं गमिष्यसि।
चरणेनाभिहृत्येव पुरुरवसमुर्वशी ॥ १८ ॥

“Spurning me, O timid one, you will surely suffer contrition as did Urvaśī on having kicked King Purūravā. (18)

अङ्गुल्या न समो रामो मम युद्धे स मानुषः।
तव भाग्येन सम्प्राप्तं भजस्व वरवर्णिनि ॥ १९ ॥

“The mortal Rāma is not equal even to my finger on the field of battle. Therefore, accept me, who have sought you by your good luck, O lady with an excellent complexion! (19)

एवमुक्ता तु वैदेही क्रुद्धा संरक्तलोचना।
अब्रवीत् परुषं वाक्यं रहिते राक्षसाधिपम् ॥ २० ॥

Enraged when spoken to as aforesaid, Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, for her part with blood-red eyes addressed the following harsh words to Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, in that lonely place : (20)

कथं वैश्रवणं देवं सर्वदेवनमस्कृतम्।
भ्रातरं व्यपदिश्य त्वमशुभं कर्तुमिच्छसि ॥ २१ ॥

“How after calling god Kubera (son of Viśravā), who is hailed by all gods, your (half-) brother, do you seek to perpetrate a foul deed? (21)

अवश्यं विनशिष्यन्ति सर्वे रावण राक्षसाः।
येषां त्वं कर्कशो राजा दुर्बुद्धिरजितेन्द्रियः ॥ २२ ॥

“All ogres, O Rāvaṇa, will inevitably perish inasmuch as you, who are so hard-hearted and evil-minded and have not been able to subdue your senses, are their ruler. (22)

अपहृत्य शचीं भार्या शक्यमिन्द्रस्य जीवितुम्।
नहि रामस्य भार्या मामानीय स्वस्तिमान् भवेत् ॥ २३ ॥

“It may be possible to survive on abducting Śacī, the consort of Indra, the lord of paradise; but none can survive peacefully after carrying away me, the consort of Śrī Rāma. (23)

जीवेच्चिरं वज्रधरस्य पश्चा-
च्छचीं प्रधृष्याप्रतिरूपरूपाम्।
न मादृशीं राक्षस धर्षयित्वा
पीतामृतस्यापि तवास्ति मोक्षः ॥ २४ ॥

“Having laid one’s hands on Śacī, the consort of Indra, the wielder of the thunderbolt, of peerless beauty, one might survive long, but on treating with indignity a woman like me there is no escape from death for you even though you have quaffed the drink of immortality, O ogre ! (24)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डेऽष्टचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-eight in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto XLIX

Rāvaṇa takes away Sītā; Sītā wails and catches sight of Jaṭāyu

सीताया वचनं श्रुत्वा दशग्रीवः प्रतापवान् ।
हस्ते हस्तं समाहत्य चकार सुमहद् वपुः ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the rebuke of Sītā, and violently striking his hand against the other hand in anger, the mighty Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, revealed his gigantic form. (1)

स मैथिलीं पुनर्वाक्यं बभाषे वाक्यकोविदः ।
नोन्मत्तया श्रुतौ मन्ये मम वीर्यपराक्रमौ ॥ २ ॥

A master of expression, he once more addressed the following words to Sītā, the princess of Mithilā : "I believe my valour and prowess have not been heard of by you, insane as you are. (2)

उद्धेयं भुजाभ्यां तु मेदिनीमम्बरे स्थितः ।
आपिबेयं समुद्रं च मृत्युं हन्यां रणे स्थितः ॥ ३ ॥

"Standing in the air, I can actually lift up the earth with my hands, drink up the ocean on all sides and, stationed on a field of battle, can kill even Death. (3)

अर्कं तुद्यां शरैस्तीक्ष्णैर्विभिन्द्यां हि महीतलम् ।
कामरूपेण उन्मत्ते पश्य मां कामरूपिणम् ॥ ४ ॥

"With my sharp arrows I can torment the sun and cleave the surface of the earth. Look at me, who can take any form at will, O lady ! intoxicated with passion and pride of beauty !" (4)

एवमुक्तवतस्तस्य रावणस्य शिखिप्रभे ।
क्रुद्धस्य हरिपर्यन्ते रक्ते नेत्रे बभूवतुः ॥ ५ ॥

By the time he had spoken thus the eyes of the angry Rāvaṇa with dark corners turned red and began to burn as fire. (5)

सद्यः सौम्यं परित्यज्य तीक्ष्णरूपं स रावणः ।
स्वं रूपं कालरूपाभं भेजे वैश्रवणानुजः ॥ ६ ॥

Abandoning his benign aspect at once, the said Rāvaṇa, a younger (half-) brother of Kubera (son of Sage Viśravā), resumed his own native fierce form, resembling that of Death. (6)

संरक्तनयनः श्रीमांस्तप्तकाञ्चनभूषणः ।
क्रोधेन महताविष्टो नीलजीमूतसंनिभः ॥ ७ ॥

With blood-red eyes the glorious ogre, who was decked with ornaments of refined gold and seized with great anger, looked like a dark cloud. (7)

दशास्यो विंशतिभुजो बभूव क्षणदाचरः ।
स परिव्राजकच्छद्वा महाकायो विहाय तत् ॥ ८ ॥

Shaking off the aforesaid disguise of a wandering ascetic, the ranger of the night assumed a colossal form with ten heads and twenty arms. (8)

प्रतिपेदे स्वकं रूपं रावणो राक्षसाधिपः ।
रक्ताम्बरधरस्तस्थौ स्त्रीरत्नं प्रेक्ष्य मैथिलीम् ॥ ९ ॥

Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, resumed his native form and gazing on Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, a veritable jewel among women, stood clad in a red robe. (9)

स तामसितकेशान्तां भास्करस्य प्रभामिव ।
वसनाभरणोपेतां मैथिलीं रावणोऽब्रवीत् ॥ १० ॥

The said Rāvaṇa spoke as follows to that princess of Mithilā, who with her dark ends of hair was duly dressed and adorned with jewels and shone like the radiance of the sun : (10)

त्रिषु लोकेषु विख्यातं यदि भर्तारमिच्छसि ।
मामाश्रय वरारोहे तवाहं सदृशः पतिः ॥ ११ ॥

“If you desire a husband well-known throughout the three worlds (heaven, earth and the intermediate region), betake yourself to me, O lady with charming limbs ! I am a husband worthy of you. (11)

मां भजस्व चिराय त्वमहं श्लाघ्यः पतिस्तव ।
नैव चाहं क्वचिद् भद्रे करिष्ये तव विप्रियम् ॥ १२ ॥

“Serve me for a long time ! I am a husband worthy of praise for you. I shall certainly never do anything unpalatable to you, O good lady ! (12)

त्यज्यतां मानुषो भावो मयि भावः प्रणीयताम् ।
राज्याच्च्युतमसिद्भार्थं रामं परिमितायुषम् ॥ १३ ॥

कैर्गुणैरनुरक्तासि मूढे पण्डितमानिनि ।
यः स्त्रियो वचनाद् राज्यं विहाय ससुहृज्जनम् ॥ १४ ॥

अस्मिन् व्यालानुचरिते वने वसति दुर्मतिः ।
इत्युक्त्वा मैथिलीं वाक्यं प्रियार्हा प्रियवादिनीम् ॥ १५ ॥

अभिगम्य सुदुष्टात्मा राक्षसः काममोहितः ।
जग्राह रावणः सीतां बुधः खे रोहिणीमिव ॥ १६ ॥

“Let your affection for a human being be given up and let it be placed on me. Due to what virtues do you feel attached to the silly Rāma, who has been banished from his kingdom, nay, who has failed to achieve his object and whose days are numbered, O deluded woman accounting yourself wise, and who, having given up the throne of Ayodhyā as well as his kith and kin at the instance of a woman, is dwelling in this forest frequented by beasts of prey?” Having spoken as aforesaid to Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, who spoke kindly to all and deserved kind words from all, and approaching her, the ogre, Rāvaṇa, who was extremely vile of disposition and was infatuated with passion, caught hold of Sītā (who was like a mother to him) as Budha (the deity presiding over the planet Mercury and son of the moon-god) would seize Rohinī (the principal consort of the moon-god and the deity presiding over a constellation of that name). (13—16)

वामेन सीतां पद्माक्षीं मूर्धजेषु करेण सः ।
ऊर्वोस्तु दक्षिणेनैव परिजग्राह पाणिना ॥ १७ ॥

With his left hand he caught hold of the lotus-eyed Sītā by her locks, while with his right hand he clasped her by her thighs. (17)

तं दृष्ट्वा गिरिशृङ्गाभं तीक्ष्णदंष्ट्रं महाभुजम् ।
प्राद्ववन् मृत्युसंकाशं भयार्ता वनदेवताः ॥ १८ ॥

Stricken with fear to see him looking like a mountain-peak in stature and resembling Death himself, endowed as he was with sharp teeth and mighty arms, the sylvan deities ran away. (18)

स च मायामयो दिव्यः खरयुक्तः खरस्वनः ।
प्रत्यदृश्यत हेमाङ्गो रावणस्य महारथः ॥ १९ ॥

And there appeared close by at that very moment the well-known, enchanted, huge celestial car of Rāvaṇa, which was drawn by mules, made a jarring sound, and was made of gold. (19)

ततस्तां परुषैर्वाक्यैरभितर्ज्य महास्वनः ।
अंकेनादाय वैदेहीं रथमारोपयत् तदा ॥ २० ॥

Then, overawing Sītā, the princess of the Videha territory, with harsh words, and taking her in his arms, Rāvaṇa, who uttered a loud roar, forthwith placed her in the car. (20)

सा गृहीतातिचक्रोश रावणेन यशस्विनी ।
रामेति सीता दुःखार्ता रामं दूरं गतं वने ॥ २१ ॥

Stricken with agony when seized by Rāvaṇa, the illustrious and well-known Sītā cried at the top of her voice ‘O Rāma’, addressing Śrī Rāma, who had penetrated deep into the forest. (21)

तामकामां स कामार्तः पन्नगेन्द्रवधूमिव।
विचेष्टमानामादाय उत्पपाताथ रावणः ॥ २२ ॥

Taking Sitā, who had no desire to meet Rāvaṇa and who was wriggling like a consort of the king of Nāgas, the aforesaid Rāvaṇa, who was stricken with passion, presently rose to the skies in his aerial car. (22)

ततः सा राक्षसेन्द्रेण ह्रियमाणा विहायसा।
भृशं चुक्रोश मत्तेव भ्रान्तचित्ता यथातुरा ॥ २३ ॥

While being borne away through the air by Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, she then began to wail loudly as follows like one mad and injured, her mind distracted through grief : (23)

हा लक्ष्मण महाबाहो गुरुचित्तप्रसादक।
ह्रियमाणां न जानीषे रक्षसा कामरूपिणा ॥ २४ ॥

“O mighty-armed Lakṣmaṇa, O delighter of the mind of your elder brother, Śrī Rāma, you do not perceive me being carried away by an ogre, who is able to assume any form at will. (24)

जीवितं सुखमर्थं च धर्महेतोः परित्यजन्।
ह्रियमाणामधर्मेण मां राघव न पश्यसि ॥ २५ ॥

(Addressing Śrī Rāma) “even though you have fully renounced your happiness and whatever is solicited by all, nay, staked your very life, for the sake of virtue, O scion of Raghu, you are not able to see me being borne away unrighteously. (25)

ननु नामाविनीतानां विनेतासि परंतप।
कथमेवंविधं पापं न त्वं शाधि हि रावणम् ॥ २६ ॥

“Undoubtedly you are the tamer of the unruly, O scorcher of your enemies ! How, then, do you not punish Rāvaṇa, who is so sinful, (26)

न तु सद्योऽविनीतस्य दृश्यते कर्मणः फलम्।
कालोऽप्यङ्गीभवत्यत्र सस्यानामिव पक्तये ॥ २७ ॥

(Turning to Rāvaṇa, she continued :) “Of course, the fruit of the evil deed of an insolent man is not perceived immediately. Time as well plays a part in the fructification of an act, as it does in the ripening of foodgrains. (27)

त्वं कर्म कृतवानेतत् कालोपहतचेतनः।
जीवितान्तकरं घोरं रामाद् व्यसनमाप्नुहि ॥ २८ ॥

“Your understanding having been vitiated by an adverse fate, you have perpetrated this outrageous act. As such suffer terrible misfortune, which is sure to bring your life to an end, at the hands of Śrī Rāma. (28)

हन्तेदानीं सकामा तु कैकेयी बान्धवैः सह।
ह्रियेयं धर्मकामस्य धर्मपत्नी यशस्विनः ॥ २९ ॥

“Alas, Kaikeyī with her kith and kin has her desire fulfilled in that I, the lawful consort of an illustrious hero, who is covetous of virtue alone, am being borne away by a desperado. (29)

आमन्त्रये जनस्थाने कर्णिकारांश्च पुष्पितान्।
क्षिप्रं रामाय शंसध्वं सीतां हरति रावणः ॥ ३० ॥

“Nay, I pray to the Karṇikāra trees in blossom in Janasthāna in the following words: ‘Kindly tell Śrī Rāma promptly that Rāvaṇa is taking away Sitā.’ (30)

हंससारससंघुष्टां वन्दे गोदावरीं नदीम्।
क्षिप्रं रामाय शंस त्वं सीतां हरति रावणः ॥ ३१ ॥

“I salute the river Godāvarī made noisy by swans and cranes and pray to her as follows: ‘Please tell Śrī Rāma (when he comes to you) at once that Rāvaṇa is carrying away Sitā.’ (31)

दैवतानि च यान्यस्मिन् वने विविधपादपे।
नमस्करोम्यहं तेभ्यो भर्तुः शंसत मां हताम् ॥ ३२ ॥

“Nay I offer salutations to all those deities who dwell in this forest full of various trees, and pray to them : ‘(Kindly) speak to my husband of my having been borne away.’ (32)

यानि कानिचिदप्यत्र सत्त्वानि विविधानि च।
सर्वाणि शरणं यामि मृगपक्षिगणानि वै ॥ ३३ ॥
ह्रियमाणां प्रियां भर्तुः प्राणेभ्योऽपि गरीयसीम्।
विवशा ते हता सीता रावणेनेति शंसत ॥ ३४ ॥

I seek the protection of all the animals of different species, the herds of deer and the flocks of birds, which actually dwell in this forest, and pray : “Kindly tell my husband of his beloved spouse, more valuable to him than his very life, being borne away, and add the following : Your Sītā has been carried away by Rāvaṇa, helpless as she was. (33-34)

विदित्वा तु महाबाहुरमुत्रापि महाबलः ।
आनेष्यति पराक्रम्य वैवस्वतहतामपि ॥ ३५ ॥

“Taking recourse to his prowess on coming to know of my presence even in the other world, the mighty-armed prince, possessed as he is of great strength, will recover me even though carried away by Yama (son of the sun-god).” (35)

सा तदा करुणा वाचो विलपन्ती सुदुःखिता ।
वनस्पतिगतं गृध्रं ददर्शायतलोचना ॥ ३६ ॥

Uttering loud laments as aforesaid, sore distressed as she was, the large-eyed Sītā presently caught sight of the vulture, Jaṭāyu, perched on a tree. (36)

सा तमुद्गीक्ष्य सुश्रोणी रावणस्य वशंगता ।
समाक्रन्दद् भयपरा दुःखोपहतया गिरा ॥ ३७ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे एकोनपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ४९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-nine in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto L

Jaṭāyu tries to deter Rāvaṇa from his evil design and eventually challenges him to a duel

तं शब्दमवसुप्तस्तु जटायुरथ शुश्रुवे ।
निरैक्षद् रावणं क्षिप्रं वैदेहीं च ददर्श सः ॥ १ ॥

Jaṭāyu, for his part, who was lying fast asleep at that time, presently heard that call. He forthwith perceived Rāvaṇa and also saw Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory. (1)

Perceiving him, Sītā of comely limbs, who had given way to fear, fallen as she was into the clutches of Rāvaṇa, cried loudly in a voice choked with agony : (37)

जटायो पश्य मामार्य ह्रियमाणामनाथवत् ।
अनेन राक्षसेन्द्रेणाकरुणं पापकर्मणा ॥ ३८ ॥

“Look at me being ruthlessly borne away, like a woman bereft of her protector, by this Rāvaṇa, king of ogres, of sinful deeds, O noble Jaṭāyu ! (38)

नैष वारयितुं शक्यस्त्वया क्रूरो निशाचरः ।
सत्ववाञ्छितकाशी च सायुधश्चैव दुर्मतिः ॥ ३९ ॥

“This cruel prowler of the night is incapable of being stopped by you, mighty and proud of his victory, armed with weapons and evil-minded too as he is. (39)

रामाय तु यथातत्त्वं जटायो हरणं मम ।
लक्ष्मणाय च तत् सर्वमाख्यातव्यमशेषतः ॥ ४० ॥

“In any case, O Jaṭāyu, my abduction as well as all that is worth relating in that connection must be correctly reported by you to Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa in full.” (40)

ततः पर्वतशृङ्गाभस्तीक्ष्णतुण्डः खगोत्तमः ।
वनस्पतिगतः श्रीमान् व्याजहार शुभां गिरम् ॥ २ ॥

Continuing on the tree, the glorious Jaṭāyu, the foremost of birds, who looked like a mountain-peak and had a sharp bill, thereupon addressed the following wholesome words to Rāvaṇa : (2)

दशग्रीव स्थितो धर्मे पुराणे सत्यसंश्रयः ।
 भ्रातस्त्वं निन्दितं कर्म कर्तुं नार्हसि साम्प्रतम् ॥ ३ ॥
 जटायुर्नाम नाम्नाहं गृध्रराजो महाबलः ।
 राजा सर्वस्य लोकस्य महेन्द्रवरुणोपमः ॥ ४ ॥
 लोकानां च हिते युक्तो रामो दशरथात्मजः ।
 तस्यैषा लोकनाथस्य धर्मपत्नी यशस्विनी ॥ ५ ॥
 सीता नाम वरारोहा यां त्वं हर्तुमिहेच्छसि ।
 कथं राजा स्थितो धर्मे परदारान् परामृशेत् ॥ ६ ॥

“Rāvaṇa (who are endowed with ten heads), I am the well-known king of vultures, Jaṭāyu by name, possessed of great might, devoted to the eternal code of virtue and true to my promise. Brother, you ought not to perpetrate a reproachful act at least at this moment in my presence. Śrī Rāma, son of Daśaratha, is the ruler of the entire globe, vying with the mighty Indra and Varuṇa (the god presiding over the waters) and devoted to the welfare of all beings. This lady, whom you seek to bear away at this moment, is the illustrious and lawfully wedded wife of excellent limbs of the aforesaid protector of the world, Sitā by name. How dare a king, firm on virtue, lay his finger on another's consort? (3—6)

रक्षणीया विशेषेण राजदारा महाबल ।
 निवर्तय गतिं नीचां परदाराभिमर्शनात् ॥ ७ ॥

“The consorts of kings, O ogre of extraordinary might, are deserving of protection in a special degree. Therefore, avert a vile destiny which is sure to follow from the sin of laying one's finger on another's wife. (7)

न तत् समाचरेद् धीरो यत् परोऽस्य विगर्हयेत् ।
 यथाऽऽत्मनस्तथान्येषां दारा रक्ष्या विमर्शनात् ॥ ८ ॥

“A wise man should not deliberately do that on account of which others may revile him. The consorts of others should be protected from another's touch in the same way as one's own wife. (8)

अर्थ वा यदि वा कामं शिष्टाः शास्त्रेष्वनागतम् ।
 व्यवस्यन्त्यनुराजानं धर्मं पौलस्त्यनन्दन ॥ ९ ॥

“The cultured pursue wealth or sensuous enjoyment or even virtue not sanctioned in the scriptures following the example of a king, O delight of Pulastya's race ! (9)

राजा धर्मश्च कामश्च द्रव्याणां चोत्तमो निधिः ।
 धर्मः शुभं वा पापं वा राजमूलं प्रवर्तते ॥ १० ॥

“A king embodies virtue and sensuous enjoyment and is an excellent repertory of riches in that virtue; right conduct or sin has its root in a king and proceeds from him. (10)

पापस्वभावश्चपलः कथं त्वं रक्षसां वर ।
 ऐश्वर्यमभिसम्प्राप्तो विमानमिव दुष्कृती ॥ ११ ॥

“Though sinful of disposition and fickle, how have you stumbled upon lordship, O jewel among ogres, as a man of sinful deeds would come upon an aerial car (which as a rule is the lot of the virtuous alone)? (11)

कामस्वभावो यः सोऽसौ न शक्यस्तं प्रमार्जितुम् ।
 नहि दुष्टात्मनामार्यमावसत्यालये चिरम् ॥ १२ ॥

“The man, who is licentious by nature, is not able to get rid of such nature; for eminence does not abide for long in the house of the evil-minded. (12)

विषये वा पुरे वा ते यदा रामो महाबलः ।
 नापराध्यति धर्मात्मा कथं तस्यापराध्यसि ॥ १३ ॥

“When Śrī Rāma, who is possessed of extraordinary might and whose mind is set on virtue, does not commit any wrong in your territory or capital, why should you (take into your head to) wrong him? (13)

यदि शूर्पणखाहेतोर्जनस्थानगतः खरः ।
 अतिवृत्तो हतः पूर्वं रामेणाक्लिष्टकर्मणा ॥ १४ ॥
 अत्र ब्रूहि यथातत्त्वं को रामस्य व्यतिक्रमः ।
 यस्य त्वं लोकनाथस्य हृत्वा भार्या गमिष्यसि ॥ १५ ॥

“If Khara stationed in Janasthāna, who transgressed his limits in order to wipe the tears of Śūrpaṇakhā, was killed in action in the past by Śrī Rāma of unwearied action, tell me truly what the fault of Śrī Rāma was in this matter, for which you are bearing away the spouse of that ruler of the worlds? (14-15)

क्षिप्रं विसृज वैदेहीं मा त्वा घोरेण चक्षुषा।
दहेद् दहनभूतेन वृत्रमिन्द्राशनिर्यथा ॥ १६ ॥

“Release Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, at once. Let not Śrī Rāma consume you with his fearful eye converted into fire, as the thunderbolt of Indra consumed the demon, Vṛtra. (16)

सर्पमाशीविषं बद्ध्वा वस्त्रान्ते नावबुध्यसे।
ग्रीवायां प्रतिमुक्तं च कालपाशं न पश्यसि ॥ १७ ॥

“Though having tied a poisonous snake in the end of your cloth you are unconscious of it, and you do not perceive the noose of Death placed round your neck; (17)

स भारः सौम्य भर्तव्यो यो नरं नावसादयेत्।
तदन्नमपि भोक्तव्यं जीर्यते यदनामयम् ॥ १८ ॥

“That load alone, O gentle one, should be borne by a man, which may not oppress him. And that food alone should be eaten, which may be digested without giving rise to an ailment. (18)

यत् कृत्वा न भवेद् धर्मो न कीर्तिर्न यशो ध्रुवम्।
शरीरस्य भवेत् खेदः कस्तत् कर्म समाचरेत् ॥ १९ ॥

“Who will knowingly perform an act as a sequel to which follows neither religious merit, nor glory, nor lasting fame, but in whose wake ensues weariness of body? (19)

षष्टिवर्षसहस्राणि जातस्य मम रावण।
पितृपैतामहं राज्यं यथावदनुतिष्ठतः ॥ २० ॥

“Sixty thousand years have elapsed, O Rāvaṇa, ever since I was born, during which I have duly carried on the hereditary rulership of birds. (20)

वृद्धोऽहं त्वं युवा धन्वी सरथः कवची शरी।
न चाप्यादाय कुशली वैदेहीं मे गमिष्यसि ॥ २१ ॥

“I have grown old, while you are still young, and are armed with a bow and arrows, protected by an armour and mounted on a chariot. Nevertheless you shall not bear away Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, safely before my eyes. (21)

न शक्तस्त्वं बलाद्धर्तुं वैदेहीं मम पश्यतः।
हेतुभिर्न्यायसंयुक्तैर्धुवां वेदश्रुतीमिव ॥ २२ ॥

“You will not be able to carry away Sītā, a princess of the Videha kingdom, by force while I stand looking on, any more than one can alter an unalterable Vedic text by force of arguments consistent with logic. (22)

युध्यस्व यदि शूरोऽसि मुहूर्तं तिष्ठ रावण।
शयिष्यसे हतो भूमौ यथा पूर्वं खरस्तथा ॥ २३ ॥

“Fight with me if you are a hero; halt awhile, O Rāvaṇa ! Struck dead by me, you will lie on the ground as Khara did in the past. (23)

असकृत्संयुगे येन निहता दैत्यदानवाः।
न चिराच्चीरवासास्त्वां रामो युधि वधिष्यति ॥ २४ ॥

“Clad in the bark of trees, Śrī Rāma by whom Daityas and Dānavas have been slain on the battlefield more than once, will make short work of you before long. (24)

किं नु शक्यं मया कर्तुं गतौ दूरं नृपात्मजौ।
क्षिप्रं त्वं नश्यसे नीच तयोर्भीतो न संशयः ॥ २५ ॥

“What can be done by me when the two princes have gone afar? If I proceed to call them you will flee at once, afraid of them : there is no doubt about it, O vile ogre ! (25)

नहि मे जीवमानस्य नयिष्यसि शुभामिमाम्।
सीतां कमलपत्राक्षीं रामस्य महिषीं प्रियाम् ॥ २६ ॥

“So long as I breathe, you can on no account carry away this blessed lady, Sītā, the beloved consort of Śrī Rāma, whose eyes resemble the petals of a lotus. (26)

अवश्यं तु मया कार्यं प्रियं तस्य महात्मनः।
जीवितेनापि रामस्य तथा दशरथस्य च ॥ २७ ॥

“What is pleasing to him, the high-souled Śrī Rāma, as well as to the late King Daśaratha, needs must be done by me at all events even at the cost of my life. (27)

तिष्ठ तिष्ठ दशग्रीव मुहूर्तं पश्य रावण।
वृन्तादिव फलं त्वां तु पातयेयं रथोत्तमात्।
युद्धातिथ्यं प्रदास्यामि यथाप्राणं निशाचर ॥ २८ ॥

“Tarry, tarry awhile, O ten-headed monster! See, O Rāvaṇa, how I knock you down from the foremost of chariots on which you are mounted as one would dash down a fruit from its stalk. I shall offer hospitality to you on the battlefield according to my strength, O prowler of the night!” (28)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे पञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५० ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LI

Jaṭāyu's encounter with Rāvaṇa; Rāvaṇa kills Jaṭāyu

इत्युक्तः क्रोधताम्राक्षस्तमकाञ्चनकुण्डलः।
राक्षसेन्द्रोऽभिदुद्राव पतगेन्द्रममर्षणः ॥ १ ॥

When challenged in the aforesaid words, Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, who was adorned with ear-rings of refined gold, indignantly rushed towards Jaṭāyu, the king of winged creatures, his eyes red with anger. (1)

स सम्प्रहारस्तुमुलस्तयोस्तस्मिन् महामृधे।
बभूव वातोद्धृतयोर्मघघोर्गगने यथा ॥ २ ॥

The sustained exchange of blows which ensued between the two warriors (viz., Jaṭāyu and Rāvaṇa) in that great conflict was tumultuous like a clash between two clouds impelled by a blast in the sky. (2)

तद् बभूवाद्वुतं युद्धं गृधराक्षसयोस्तदा।
सपक्षयोर्माल्यवतोर्महापर्वतयोरिव ॥ ३ ॥

The said conflict between a vulture (Jaṭāyu) and an ogre (Rāvaṇa) at that time was astounding like the encounter of the two large mountains known by the name of Mālyavān (one situated in the Daṇḍakāraṇya near Kiṣkindhā and the other near Mount Meru) and endowed with wings. (3)

ततो नालीकनाराचैस्तीक्ष्णाग्रैश्च विकर्णिभिः।
अभ्यवर्षन्महाघोरैर्गृध्रराजं महाबलम् ॥ ४ ॥

Thereupon Rāvaṇa assailed the king of vultures, who was possessed of great might, with most terrible Nālikas, Nārācas and sharp-pointed Vikarṇis (three particular varieties of arrows). (4)

स तानि शरजालानि गृध्रः पत्ररथेश्वरः।
जटायुः प्रतिजग्राह रावणास्त्राणि संयुगे ॥ ५ ॥

In the encounter the celebrated vulture, Jaṭāyu, the king of winged creatures, put up with those volleys of arrows discharged by Rāvaṇa. (5)

तस्य तीक्ष्णनखाभ्यां तु चरणाभ्यां महाबलः।
चकार बहुधा गात्रे व्रणान् पतगसत्तमः ॥ ६ ॥

With his feet endowed with sharp talons, Jaṭāyu (the foremost of birds), for his part, who was possessed of great might, inflicted many wounds on the person of Rāvaṇa. (6)

अथ क्रोधाद् दशग्रीवो जग्राह दश मार्गणान्।
मृत्युदण्डनिभान् घोरान् शत्रोर्निधनकाक्षया ॥ ७ ॥

With intent to compass the death of his adversary, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) presently seized in anger ten dread arrows resembling the rod of Death. (7)

स तैर्बाणैर्महावीर्यः पूर्णमुक्तैरजिह्वगैः।
बिभेद निशितैस्तीक्ष्णैर्गृध्रं घोरैः शिलीमुखैः ॥ ८ ॥

Rāvaṇa, who was possessed of extraordinary prowess, pierced the vulture with those straight-going, sharp and terrible barbed arrows whetted on a stone and discharged with full force. (8)

स राक्षसरथे पश्यञ्जानकीं बाष्पलोचनाम्।
अचिन्तयित्वा बाणांस्तान् राक्षसं समभिद्रवत् ॥ १॥

Beholding Sītā (daughter of Janaka) in the ogre's chariot with tears in her eyes, and not minding those arrows, Jaṭāyu darted towards the ogre. (9)

ततोऽस्य सशरं चापं मुक्तामणिविभूषितम्।
चरणाभ्यां महातेजा बभञ्ज पतगोत्तमः ॥ १० ॥

Then Jaṭāyu (the foremost of birds), who was possessed of great energy, broke with his talons the bow, fitted with an arrow, of Rāvaṇa, artistically decked with pearls. (10)

ततोऽन्यद् धनुरादाय रावणः क्रोधमूर्च्छितः।
ववर्ष शरवर्षाणि शतशोऽथ सहस्रशः ॥ ११ ॥

Thereupon, seizing another bow, Rāvaṇa, who was beside himself with anger, rained showers of arrows in hundreds and thousands. (11)

शरैरावारितस्तस्य संयुगे पतगेश्वरः।
कुलायमभिसम्प्राप्तः पक्षिवच्च बभौ तदा ॥ १२ ॥

Enclosed by the arrows of Rāvaṇa on the field of battle at that time, Jaṭāyu (the king of birds) looked like a bird having found shelter in a nest. (12)

स तानि शरजालानि पक्षाभ्यां तु विधूय ह।
चरणाभ्यां महातेजा बभञ्जास्य महद् धनुः ॥ १३ ॥

Having shaken off that network of arrows with his wings, Jaṭāyu (who was endowed with great energy) for his part snapped the mighty bow of Rāvaṇa with his feet. (13)

तच्चाग्निसदृशं दीप्तं रावणस्य शरावरम्।
पक्षाभ्यां च महातेजा व्यधुनोत् पतगेश्वरः ॥ १४ ॥

The king of birds, who was endowed with great energy, also broke his coat of mail, blazing like fire. (14)

काञ्चनोरश्छदान् दिव्यान् पिशाचवदनान् खरान्।
तांश्चास्य जवसम्पन्नाञ्जघान समरे बली ॥ १५ ॥

The mighty bird further killed in the course of the encounter the celebrated swift-going heavenly mules of Rāvaṇa, endowed with the heads of fiends and protected by breast-plates of gold. (15)

अथ त्रिवेणुसम्पन्नं कामगं पावकार्चिषम्।
मणिसोपानचित्राङ्गं बभञ्ज च महारथम् ॥ १६ ॥

Jaṭāyu presently smashed the huge chariot as well (of Rāvaṇa) provided with a pole to which the yoke is fixed and flaming like fire, which could go wherever one liked and whose frame looked charming with its steps of gems. (16)

पूर्णचन्द्रप्रतीकाशं छत्रं च व्यजनैः सह।
पातयामास वेगेन ग्राहिभी राक्षसैः सह ॥ १७ ॥

Jaṭāyu also knocked down with vehemence the canopy (over the seat of Rāvaṇa) shining as the full moon, alongwith the whisks as also the ogres holding them. (17)

सारथेश्चास्य वेगेन तुण्डेन च महच्छिरः।
पुनर्व्यपहनच्छ्रीमान् पक्षिराजो महाबलः ॥ १८ ॥

Nay, the glorious Jaṭāyu (the king of birds), who was possessed of great might, then vehemently struck off with his bill the big head of the charioteer of Rāvaṇa. (18)

स भग्नधन्वा विरथो हताश्वो हतसारथिः।
अङ्केनादाय वैदेहीं पपात भुवि रावणः ॥ १९ ॥

Clasping in his arms Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), Rāvaṇa, whose bow had been broken, nay, who was left without a chariot and whose horses and charioteer had been killed—fell to the ground. (19)

दृष्ट्वा निपतितं भूमौ रावणं भग्नवाहनम्।
साधु साध्विति भूतानि गृधराजमपूजयन् ॥ २० ॥

Seeing Rāvaṇa dashed to the ground, his chariot smashed, all beings applauded the king of vultures in the words "Well done, bravo !" (20)

परिश्रान्तं तु तं दृष्ट्वा जरया पक्षियूथपम्।
उत्पपात पुनर्हृष्टो मैथिलीं गृह्य रावणः ॥ २१ ॥

Clasping the princess of Mithilā, Rāvaṇa, for his part—who felt rejoiced to see Jaṭāyu, the ruler of the feathered kingdom, exhausted due to age—rose once more to the heavens. (21)

तं प्रहृष्टं निधायाङ्गे रावणं जनकात्मजाम्।
गच्छन्तं खड्गशेषं च प्रणष्टहतसाधनम् ॥ २२ ॥
गृध्रराजः समुत्पत्य रावणं समभिद्रवत्।
समावार्य महातेजा जटायुरिदमब्रवीत् ॥ २३ ॥

Springing up on his wings, the king of vultures rushed towards Rāvaṇa, who was now on his move, highly rejoiced, clasping the daughter of Janaka in his arms, the sword alone being left with him, all his other implements of war destroyed. Intercepting Rāvaṇa, Jaṭāyu (who was—endowed with great energy) spoke as follows to Rāvaṇa : (22-23)

वज्रसंस्पर्शबाणस्य भार्या रामस्य रावण।
अल्पबुद्धे हरस्येनां वधाय खलु रक्षसाम् ॥ २४ ॥

“Surely it is for the destruction of ogres that you are carrying away this spouse of Śrī Rāma, whose arrows impinge on the body like the thunderbolt, O Rāvaṇa of meagre understanding ! (24)

समित्रबन्धुः सामात्यः सबलः सपरिच्छदः।
विषपानं पिबस्येतत् पिपासित इवोदकम् ॥ २५ ॥

“With your near and dear ones, ministers, army and retinue you are drinking this beverage mixed with poison (in the shape of princess Sītā) as a thirsty man would drink water. (25)

अनुबन्धमजानन्तः कर्मणामविचक्षणाः।
शीघ्रमेव विनश्यन्ति यथा त्वं विनशिष्यसि ॥ २६ ॥

“Not foreseeing the result of their evil acts, unwise men perish very soon as you are going to perish. (26)

बद्धस्त्वं कालपाशेन क्व गतस्तस्य मोक्ष्यसे।
वधाय बडिशं गृह्य सामिषं जलजो यथा ॥ २७ ॥

“Caught as you are in the noose of Death, where can you hope to be delivered from it, like the fish which has swallowed a hook alongwith the bait? (27)

नहि जातु दुराधर्षो काकुत्स्थौ तव रावण।
धर्षणं चाश्रमस्यास्य क्षमिष्येते तु राघवौ ॥ २८ ॥

“Nay, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, the two scions of Raghu, for their part, who are descended from the stock of Kakutstha, and are hard to overcome, will never on any account brook the violation of the sanctity of their hermitage. (28)

यथा त्वया कृतं कर्म भीरुणा लोकगर्हितम्।
तस्कराचरितो मार्गो नैष वीरनिषेवितः ॥ २९ ॥

“The way in which an act denounced by the world has been perpetrated by you, a coward that you are, is the path trodden by thieves; it is not the path followed by heroes. (29)

युद्ध्यस्व यदि शूरोऽसि मुहूर्तं तिष्ठ रावण।
शिष्यसे हतो भूमौ यथा भ्राता खरस्तथा ॥ ३० ॥

“Fight with me, if you are a hero and pause awhile, O Rāvaṇa ! Struck dead by me, you will lie on the ground in the same way as did your brother Khara. (30)

परेतकाले पुरुषो यत् कर्म प्रतिपद्यते।
विनाशायात्मनोऽधर्म्यं प्रतिपन्नोऽसि कर्म तत् ॥ ३१ ॥

“For your own destruction you have adopted such an unrighteous conduct as a man does at the hour of death. (31)

पापानुबन्धो वै यस्य कर्मणः को नु तत् पुमान्।
कुर्वीत लोकाधिपतिः स्वयंभूर्भगवानपि ॥ ३२ ॥

“What man on earth, be he even Lord Brahmā (the self-born) and the ruler of all the worlds, would undertake an action that results invariably in sin? (32)

एवमुक्त्वा शुभं वाक्यं जटायुस्तस्य रक्षसः।
निपपात भृशं पृष्ठे दशग्रीवस्य वीर्यवान् ॥ ३३ ॥

Uttering these wholesome words, the powerful Jaṭāyu swooped on the back of that ten-headed ogre. (33)

तं गृहीत्वा नखैस्तीक्ष्णैर्विददार समन्ततः ।
अधिरूढो गजारोहो यथा स्याद् दुष्टवारणम् ॥ ३४ ॥

Catching hold of the latter, he tore the ogre all over with his sharp talons as the rider of an elephant, mounted on it, would prick the elephant with his goad. (34)

विददार नखैरस्य तुण्डं पृष्ठे समर्पयन् ।
केशांश्चोत्पाटयामास नखपक्षमुखायुधः ॥ ३५ ॥

Plunging his beak into the ogre's back, Jaṭāyu (who had claws, wings and a bill for his weapons) tore him and pulled his hair with his talons. (35)

स तथा गृध्राजेन क्लिश्यमानो मुहुर्मुहुः ।
अमर्षस्फुरितोष्ठः सन् प्राकम्प्य च राक्षसः ॥ ३६ ॥

Nay, being tormented again and again by the king of vultures as aforesaid, the said ogre trembled with rage, his lips throbbing through indignation. (36)

सम्परिष्वज्य वैदेहीं वामेनाङ्गेन रावणः ।
तलेनाभिजघानार्तो जटायुं क्रोधमूर्च्छितः ॥ ३७ ॥

Pressing Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) tightly in his left lap, the afflicted Rāvaṇa, who was beside himself with rage, struck Jaṭāyu with the palm of his hand. (37)

जटायुस्तमतिक्रम्य तुण्डेनास्य खगाधिपः ।
वामबाहून् दश तदा व्यपाहरदरिंदमः ॥ ३८ ॥

Dodging that blow, Jaṭāyu, the king of birds, the chastiser of his foes, presently tore off his ten left arms with his beak. (38)

संछिन्नबाहोः सद्यो वै बाहवः सहसाभवन् ।
विषज्वालावलीयुक्ता वल्मीकादिव पन्नगाः ॥ ३९ ॥

Even though his ten arms had been severed, fresh arms sprang up all of a sudden even like serpents issuing from an ant-hill and emitting sprouts of poison. (39)

ततः क्रोधाद् दशग्रीवः सीतामुत्सृज्य वीर्यवान् ।
मुष्टिभ्यां चरणाभ्यां च गृध्राजमपोथयत् ॥ ४० ॥

Thereupon, letting alone Sītā, the powerful Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) angrily struck the king of vultures with his fists and feet. (40)

ततो मुहूर्तं संग्रामो बभूवातुलवीर्ययोः ।
राक्षसानां च मुख्यस्य पक्षिणां प्रवरस्य च ॥ ४१ ॥

Then, for an hour or so, a duel ensued between the two warriors of incomparable prowess, Rāvaṇa, the foremost of ogres and Jaṭāyu, the chief of vultures. (41)

तस्य व्यायच्छमानस्य रामस्यार्थं स रावणः ।
पक्षौ पादौ च पार्श्वौ च खड्गमुद्धृत्य सोऽच्छिनत् ॥ ४२ ॥

Again, unsheathing his sword, the said Rāvaṇa lopped off the wings, the feet and the flanks too of Jaṭāyu, who was contending in the cause of Śrī Rāma. (42)

स छिन्नपक्षः सहसा रक्षसा रौद्रकर्मणा ।
निपपात महागृध्रो धरण्यामल्पजीवितः ॥ ४३ ॥

With his wings sundered all at once by the ogre of fierce deeds, the great vulture, whose life was now of short duration, dropped down on the ground. (43)

तं दृष्ट्वा पतितं भूमौ क्षतजार्द्रं जटायुषम् ।
अभ्यधावत् वैदेही स्वबन्धुमिव दुःखिता ॥ ४४ ॥

Distressed to see Jaṭāyu fallen on the ground drenched with blood, Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, rushed towards him as towards one of her own kin. (44)

तं नीलजीमूतनिकाशकल्पं
सपाण्डुरोरस्कमुदारवीर्यम् ।

ददर्श लङ्काधिपतिः पृथिव्यां
जटायुषं शान्तमिवाग्निदावम् ॥ ४५ ॥

The said Rāvaṇa (the sovereign ruler of Lankā) beheld the celebrated Jaṭāyu of exalted prowess—who approached the splendour of a dark-blue cloud and was marked with a white breast—lying on the ground like an extinguished forest fire. (45)

ततस्तु तं पत्ररथं महीतले
निपातितं रावणवेगमर्दितम् ।

पुनश्च संगृह्य शशिप्रभानना
रुरोद सीता जनकात्मजा तदा ॥ ४६ ॥

Then, embracing the aforesaid bird, who had been fatally injured by the vehemence of Rāvaṇa and thrown on the ground, Sītā, daughter of Janaka, for her part, whose countenance shone like the moon, cried once more on that occasion.

(46)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे एकपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-one in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्विपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LII

Rāvaṇa carries away Sītā

सा तु ताराधिपमुखी रावणेन निरीक्ष्य तम्।
गृध्रराजं विनिहतं विललाप सुदुःखिता ॥ १ ॥

Sore distressed to perceive the aforesaid king of vultures mortally wounded by Rāvaṇa, Sītā, whose countenance resembled the full moon (the king of stars), for her part wailed as follows addressing Śrī Rāma : (1)

निमित्तं लक्षणं स्वप्नं शकुनिस्वरदर्शनम्।
अवश्यं सुखदुःखेषु नराणां परितृश्यते ॥ २ ॥

“Omens, dreams and the sight of the movement of birds and deer etc., to one’s left or right and the hearing of their cries are invariably found to foreshadow joy or sorrow in the case of human beings. (2)

न नूनं राम जानासि महद्व्यसनमात्मनः।
धावन्ति नूनं काकुत्स्थ मदर्थं मृगपक्षिणः ॥ ३ ॥

“Surely, O Rāma, you do not perceive the great calamity in the shape of my abduction which has befallen you, although deer and birds are moving in a direction foreboding evil in order to indicate my abduction, O scion of Kakutstha ! (3)

अयं हि कृपया राम मां त्रातुमिह संगतः।
शेते विनिहतो भूमौ ममाभाग्याद् विहंगमः ॥ ४ ॥

“Here lies on the ground, mortally wounded due to my misfortune, the bird, Jaṭāyu, who actually arrived here to rescue me out of compassion, O Rāma ! (4)

त्राहि मामद्य काकुत्स्थ लक्ष्मणेति वराङ्गना।
सुसन्त्रस्ता समाक्रन्दच्छृण्वतां तु यथान्तिके ॥ ५ ॥

“Deliver me today, O Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha, and Lakṣmaṇa !” So did Sītā (a lovely lady), who was greatly alarmed, cry bitterly at such a pitch that those listening at close quarters at least might hear her. (5)

तां क्लिष्टमाल्याभरणां विलपन्तीमनाथवत्।
अभ्यधावत वैदेहीं रावणो राक्षसाधिपः ॥ ६ ॥

Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, darted towards the aforesaid Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), whose garland and ornaments had been squeezed and who was wailing like a woman without her lord. (6)

तां लतामिव वेष्टन्तीमालिङ्गन्तीं महाद्रुमान्।
मुञ्च मुञ्चेति बहुशः प्राप तां राक्षसाधिपः ॥ ७ ॥

Rāvaṇa (the suzerain lord of ogres) approached the aforesaid Sītā—who was embracing huge trees like a climber entwining them—saying again and again, “Save, Save me, O trees ! (7)

क्रोशन्तीं राम रामेति रामेण रहितां वने।
जीवितान्ताय केशेषु जग्राहान्तकसंनिभः ॥ ८ ॥

For his destruction the ogre (who resembled Death) seized by the hair Sītā, who was crying “Rāma, O Rāma !” bereft as she was of Śrī Rāma in the forest. (8)

प्रधर्षितायां वैदेह्यां बभूव सचराचरम् ।
जगत् सर्वममर्यादं तमसान्धेन संवृतम् ॥ १॥

When Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, was assaulted in this way, the whole world including the animate and inanimate creation went out of order and was enveloped in thick darkness. (9)

न वाति मारुतस्तत्र निष्प्रभोऽभूद् दिवाकरः ।
दृष्ट्वा सीतां परामृष्टां देवो दिव्येन चक्षुषा ॥ १० ॥
कृतं कार्यमिति श्रीमान् व्याजहार पितामहः ।
प्रहृष्टा व्यथिताश्चासन् सर्वे ते परमर्षयः ॥ ११ ॥
दृष्ट्वा सीतां परामृष्टां दण्डकारण्यवासिनः ।
रावणस्य विनाशं च प्राप्तं बुद्ध्वा यदृच्छया ॥ १२ ॥

The wind did not blow at that moment and the sun grew lustreless. Perceiving by his divine eye Sītā, laid violent hands on by Rāvaṇa, the glorious Lord Brahmā (the grandfather of the entire creation) exclaimed: "Our purpose is accomplished!" Seeing Sītā seized by Rāvaṇa, all the great sages dwelling in the Daṇḍaka forest and mentioned before, felt agonized. They were also highly rejoiced to foresee the destruction of Rāvaṇa brought about as a matter of course. (10—12)

स तु तां राम रामेति रुदतीं लक्ष्मणेति च ।
जगामादाय चाकाशं रावणो राक्षसेश्वरः ॥ १३ ॥

Nay, laying hold of Sītā, who was crying "Rāma, O Rāma, O Lakṣmaṇa !" Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, rose to the skies. (13)

तप्ताभरणवर्णाङ्गी पीतकौशेयवासिनी ।
रराज राजपुत्री तु विद्युत्सौदामनी यथा ॥ १४ ॥

With her limbs possessing the hue of her ornaments of molten gold and clad in yellow silk, the princess for her part shone like lightning athwart a cloud. (14)

उद्धूतेन च वस्त्रेण तस्याः पीतेन रावणः ।
अधिकं परिबभ्राज गिरिदीप्त इवाग्निना ॥ १५ ॥

Because of her yellow garment being shaken violently by the wind, Rāvaṇa shone all the more brightly like a mountain illumined by a fire. (15)

तस्याः परमकल्याण्यास्ताम्राणि सुरभीणि च ।
पद्मपत्राणि वैदेह्या अभ्यकीर्यन्त रावणम् ॥ १६ ॥

The coppery and fragrant petals of lotuses dropping from the person of the aforesaid supremely blessed Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, covered Rāvaṇa. (16)

तस्याः कौशेयमुद्धूतमाकाशे कनकप्रभम् ।
बभौ चादित्यरागेण ताम्रमभ्रमिवातपे ॥ १७ ॥

Nay, shaken violently in the air, her silken garment possessing a golden hue, shone like a cloud rendered coppery by the sun's rays at dusk. (17)

तस्यास्तद् विमलं वक्त्रमाकाशे रावणाङ्गम् ।
न रराज विना रामं विनालमिव पङ्कजम् ॥ १८ ॥

Lying in the lap of Rāvaṇa in the air, that fair countenance of Sītā did not shine, bereft as it was of Śrī Rāma, any more than a lotus detached from its stalk. (18)

बभूव जलदं नीलं भित्त्वा चन्द्र इवोदितः ।
सुललाटं सुकेशान्तं पद्मगर्भाभमव्रणम् ॥ १९ ॥
शुक्लैः सुविमलैर्दन्तैः प्रभावद्विरलंकृतम् ।
तस्याः सुनयनं वक्त्रमाकाशे रावणाङ्गम् ॥ २० ॥

Marked with a fair brow, lovely locks and charming eyes and resembling the interior of a lotus in hue, nay, devoid of scars and adorned with white, entirely spotless and brilliant teeth, her countenance placed in the lap of Rāvaṇa in the air resembled the moon emerged after splitting a cloud. (19-20)

रुदितं व्यपमृष्टास्त्रं चन्द्रवत्प्रियदर्शनम् ।
सुनासं चारुताम्रोष्ठमाकाशे हाटकप्रभम् ॥ २१ ॥
राक्षसेन्द्रसमाधूतं तस्यास्तद् वदनं शुभम् ।
शुशुभे न विना रामं दिवा चन्द्र इवोदितः ॥ २२ ॥

Shaken with fear of Rāvaṇa (the ruler of ogres), that lovely face of Sītā—which had just burst into tears, although her tears had been wiped off, nay which was pleasing like the moon to look upon, was marked with a shapely nose and beautiful coppery lips and possessed a golden hue—did not look charming in the heavens in the absence of Śrī Rāma any more than the moon risen during the day. (21-22)

सा हेमवर्णा नीलाङ्गं मैथिली राक्षसाधिपम्।

शुशुभे काञ्चनी काञ्ची नीलं गजमिवाश्रिता ॥ २३ ॥

Confined in the lap of the dark-bodied Rāvaṇa (the suzerain lord of ogres), the said princess of Mithilā, who possessed a golden hue, shone brightly like a girth of gold round a dark-blue elephant. (23)

सा पद्मपीता हेमाभा रावणं जनकात्मजा।

विद्युद् घनमिवाविश्य शुशुभे तप्तभूषणा ॥ २४ ॥

Nearing Rāvaṇa's back, the said daughter of Janaka—who possessed a yellowish hue, resembling the filaments of a lotus, and was bright as gold, nay, who was adorned with jewels of refined gold—shone like lightning flashing athwart a cloud. (24)

तस्या भूषणघोषेण वैदेह्या राक्षसेश्वरः।

बभूव विमलो नीलः सघोष इव तोयदः ॥ २५ ॥

Due to the jingling of ornaments of the aforesaid Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) the king of ogres appeared like a clear dark-blue rumbling rain-cloud. (25)

उत्तमाङ्गच्युता तस्याः पुष्पवृष्टिः समन्ततः।

सीताया ह्रियमाणायाः पपात धरणीतले ॥ २६ ॥

While Sītā was being borne away, a shower of flowers dropped from her head, rained on all sides on the earth's surface. (26)

सा तु रावणवेगेन पुष्पवृष्टिः समन्ततः।

समाधूता दशग्रीवं पुनरेवाभ्यवर्तत ॥ २७ ॥

Raised on all sides by the tempest released by the vehemence of Rāvaṇa, however, the rain of blossoms covered the ten-headed monster once more. (27)

अभ्यवर्तत पुष्पाणां धारा वैश्रवणानुजम्।

नक्षत्रमाला विमला मेरुं नगमिवोन्नतम् ॥ २८ ॥

That shower of flowers descended on Rāvaṇa (a younger half-brother of Kubera) as does the immaculate belt of the lunar mansions descend on Mount Meru, the foremost of mountains. (28)

चरणानूपुरं भ्रष्टं वैदेह्या रत्नभूषितम्।

विद्युन्मण्डलसंकाशं पपात धरणीतले ॥ २९ ॥

A bejewelled anklet of gold, loosed from a foot of Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) and resembling a circular flash of lightning, dropped on the earth's surface. (29)

तरुप्रवालरक्ता सा नीलाङ्गं राक्षसेश्वरम्।

प्रशोभयत वैदेही गजं कक्ष्येव काञ्चनी ॥ ३० ॥

Ruddy like the shoots of certain trees, the aforesaid princess of the Videha kingdom adorned the dark-limbed king of ogres as a girth of gold would adorn an elephant. (30)

तां महोल्कामिवाकाशे दीप्यमानां स्वतेजसा।

जहाराकाशमाविश्य सीतां वैश्रवणानुजः ॥ ३१ ॥

Betaking himself to the heavens, the younger brother of Kubera, Rāvaṇa (son of Sage Viśravā), bore away the celebrated Sītā, who was blazing with her own effulgence as a big meteor in the heavens. (31)

तस्यास्तान्यग्रिवर्णानि भूषणानि महीतले।

सघोषाण्यवशीर्यन्त क्षीणास्तारा इवाम्बरात् ॥ ३२ ॥

The aforesaid jewels of Sītā, shining like fire, dropped on the earth's surface with a jingling sound like worn-away meteors falling from the firmament. (32)

तस्याः स्तनान्तराद् भ्रष्टो हारस्ताराधिपद्युतिः।

वैदेह्या निपतन् भाति गङ्गेव गगनच्युता ॥ ३३ ॥

Dissociated from the heart of the aforesaid princess of the Videha territory and dropping down, the necklace of pearls, which shone like the moon (the suzerain lord of stars) looked like the Gaṅgā descending from the heavens. (33)

उत्पातवाताभिरता नानाद्विजगणायुताः।

मा भैरिति विधूताग्रा व्याजहुरिव पादपाः ॥ ३४ ॥

Violently shaken by a portentous blast (released by the flight of Rāvaṇa) and inhabited by birds of every description, the trees with their topmost branches set into motion said (to Sītā) as it were : “Don’t be afraid !” (34)

नलिन्यो ध्वस्तकमलास्त्रस्तमीनजलेचराः ।

सखीमिव गतोत्साहां शोचन्तीव स्म मैथिलीम् ॥ ३५ ॥

With their faded lotuses and frightened fishes and other aquatic creatures, the lotus-ponds, as it were, felt sorry for the princess of Mithilā as for a dispirited friend. (35)

समन्तादभिसम्पत्य सिंहव्याघ्रमृगद्विजाः ।

अन्वधावंस्तदा रोषात् सीताच्छायानुगामिनः ॥ ३६ ॥

Collecting from all sides, lions, tigers, as well as other beasts and birds angrily rushed behind on that occasion following the shadow of Sītā. (36)

जलप्रपातास्त्रमुखाः शृङ्गैरुच्छ्रितबाहुभिः ।

सीतायां ह्रियमाणायां विक्रोशन्तीव पर्वताः ॥ ३७ ॥

While Sītā was being carried away by Rāvaṇa, mountains with their faces bathed in tears in the form of cataracts and with their arms uplifted in the form of peaks, screamed, as it were. (37)

ह्रियमाणां तु वैदेहीं दृष्ट्वा दीनो दिवाकरः ।

प्रविध्वस्तप्रभः श्रीमानासीत् पाण्डुरमण्डलः ॥ ३८ ॥

Seeing Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, being borne away by Rāvaṇa, the glorious sun itself felt wretched with its splendour totally eclipsed and its orb rendered pale. (38)

नास्ति धर्मः कुतः सत्यं नार्जवं नानृशंसता ।

यत्र रामस्य वैदेहीं सीतां हरति रावणः ॥ ३९ ॥

“Righteousness is extinct, how then could truth prevail? Guilelessness is no more, nor is there kindness, now that Rāvaṇa is carrying away Sītā, a princess of the Videha kingdom, and the consort of Śrī Rāma !” (39)

इति भूतानि सर्वाणि गणशः पर्यदेवयन् ।

वित्रस्तका दीनमुखा रुरुदुर्मृगपोतकाः ॥ ४० ॥

So did all living beings lament in multitudes. Even fawns shed tears with dejected looks, greatly alarmed. (40)

उद्वीक्ष्योद्वीक्ष्य नयनैर्भयादिव विलक्षणैः ।

सुप्रवेपितगात्राश्च बभूवुर्वनदेवताः ॥ ४१ ॥

विक्रोशन्तीं दृढं सीतां दृष्ट्वा दुःखं तथा गताम् ।

तां तु लक्ष्मण रामेति क्रोशन्तीं मधुरस्वराम् ॥ ४२ ॥

अवेक्षमाणां बहुशो वैदेहीं धरणीतलम् ।

स तामाकुलकेशान्तां विप्रमृष्टविशेषकाम् ।

जहारात्मविनाशाय दशग्रीवो मनस्विनीम् ॥ ४३ ॥

Seeing Sītā fallen in great distress as aforesaid and uttering a loud cry, and looking at her again and again with eyes shorn of their lustre, the deities presiding over the forest found their limbs seized with a violent tremor through fear of Rāvaṇa. To his own destruction Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster), however, carried away the aforesaid princess of the Videha territory, that strong-minded lady, who was crying in sweet accents : “Lakṣmaṇa, O Rāma !” and repeatedly looking towards the earth’s surface, whose hair had got dishevelled and whose auspicious mark on the forehead had effaced. (41—43)

ततस्तु सा चारुदती शुचिस्मिता

विनाकृता बन्धुजनेन मैथिली ।

अपश्यती राघवलक्ष्मणावुभौ

विवर्णवक्त्रा भयभारपीडिता ॥ ४४ ॥

Bereft of her own kin and failing to perceive both Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) and Lakṣmaṇa, the aforesaid princess of Mithilā for her part, who had beautiful teeth and was distinguished by a bright smile, was oppressed by the weight of fear and her face grew pale. (44)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे द्विपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-two in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LIII

Sītā reproaches Rāvaṇa

खमुत्पतन्तं तं दृष्ट्वा मैथिली जनकात्मजा ।
दुःखिता परमोद्विग्ना भये महति वर्तिनी ॥ १ ॥
रोषरोदनताम्राक्षी भीमाक्षं राक्षसाधिपम् ।
रुदती करुणं सीता ह्रियमाणा तमब्रवीत् ॥ २ ॥

Distressed and greatly alarmed to see the aforesaid Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, of fearful eyes rising to the heavens, Sītā, a princess of Mithilā and daughter of Janaka—who was involved in a great risk (of losing her honour and chastity) and whose eyes had grown red through indignation and weeping—spoke to him as follows, crying piteously while being borne away through the sky : (1-2)

न व्यपत्रपसे नीच कर्मणानेन रावण ।
ज्ञात्वा विरहितां यो मां चोरयित्वा पलायसे ॥ ३ ॥

“Do you not feel ashamed of this act, O vile Rāvaṇa—you, who, having stealthily abducted me, knowing me to be alone, are fleeing away like a coward? (3)

त्वयैव नूनं दुष्टात्मन् भीरुणा हर्तुमिच्छता ।
ममापवाहितो भर्ता मृगरूपेण मायया ॥ ४ ॥

“Seeking to abduct me, surely it was you alone, O evil-minded fellow, who caused my husband to be lured away by an ogre appearing in the disguise of a deer through a conjuring trick, timid as you are. (4)

यो हि मामुद्यतस्त्रातुं सोऽप्ययं विनिपातितः ।
गृध्रराजः पुराणोऽसौ श्वशुरस्य सखा मम ॥ ५ ॥

“Even the yonder aged Jaṭāyu, the king of vultures, a friend of my father-in-law, who actually strove to rescue me, lies killed there. (5)

परमं खलु ते वीर्यं दृश्यते राक्षसाधम ।
विश्राव्य नामधेयं हि युद्धे नास्मि जिता त्वया ॥ ६ ॥

“Indeed the highest valour is seen in you in that I have not been won by you in a combat with my husband even after disclosing your name, O vile ogre ! (6)

ईदृशं गर्हितं कर्म कथं कृत्वा न लज्जसे ।
स्त्रियाश्चाहरणं नीच रहिते च परस्य च ॥ ७ ॥

“How do you not feel ashamed even after perpetrating such a reproachful act as bearing away a woman, much more the wife of another, and that too in a lonely place where there is none to protect her? (7)

कथयिष्यन्ति लोकेषु पुरुषाः कर्म कुत्सितम् ।
सुनृशंसमधर्मिष्ठं तव शौटीर्यमानिनः ॥ ८ ॥

“People will proclaim throughout the worlds the aforesaid act of yours—even though you pride yourself on your valour—as reproachful, extremely cruel and most unrighteous. (8)

धिक् ते शौर्यं च सत्त्वं च यत्त्वया कथितं तदा ।
कुलाक्रोशकरं लोके धिक् ते चारित्रमीदृशम् ॥ ९ ॥

“Fie upon your valour and energy too, of which you spoke at that time. And accursed in the world is such conduct of yours, which brings reproach on your race! (9)

किं शक्यं कर्तुमेवं हि यज्जवेनैव धावसि ।
मुहूर्तमपि तिष्ठ त्वं न जीवन् प्रतियास्यसि ॥ १० ॥

“Of course, what can be done just at this moment when you are flying with such speed? Halt you but for an hour or so and you will not return alive. (10)

नहि चक्षुःपथं प्राप्य तयोः पार्थिवपुत्रयोः ।
ससैन्योऽपि समर्थस्त्वं मुहूर्तमपि जीवितुम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Having reached the range of sight of those two princes, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, you will surely not be able to survive even for an hour or so, no matter if you are followed by an army. (11)

न त्वं तयोः शरस्पर्शं सोढुं शक्तः कथंचन।
वने प्रज्वलितस्येव स्पर्शमग्नेर्विहंगमः ॥ १२ ॥

“You will in no way be able to bear the impact of their arrows any more than a bird is able to bear the impact of a blazing fire in a forest. (12)

साधु कृत्वाऽऽत्मनः पथ्यं साधु मां मुञ्च रावण।
मत्प्रधर्षणसंकुद्धो भ्रात्रा सह पतिर्मम ॥ १३ ॥
विधास्यति विनाशाय त्वं मां यदि न मुञ्चसि।
येन त्वं व्यवसायेन बलान्मां हर्तुमिच्छसि ॥ १४ ॥
व्यवसायस्तु ते नीच भविष्यति निरर्थकः।
नह्यहं तमपश्यन्ती भर्तारं विबुधोपमम् ॥ १५ ॥
उत्सहे शत्रुवशगा प्राणान् धारयितुं चिरम्।
न नूनं चात्मनः श्रेयः पथ्यं वा समवेक्षसे ॥ १६ ॥
मृत्युकाले यथा मर्त्यो विपरीतानि सेवते।
मुमूर्षूणां तु सर्वेषां यत् पथ्यं तन्न रोचते ॥ १७ ॥

“Therefore, duly considering your own welfare, you had better leave me alone, O Rāvaṇa ! Enraged by my abduction, my lord with his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, will strive for your destruction if you do not let me go. Your sinister purpose, for which you seek to bear me away by force, O mean fellow, will undoubtedly prove infructuous. For if, when fallen into the clutches of an enemy, I fail to behold my husband, who vies with gods, I shall not be able to sustain my life for long. Surely you do not look to your own immediate good or your lasting good and, even as a man who has reached the hour of death relishes objects which run counter to his interests, you also do the same. As a rule, that which is good for one’s health does not find favour with all those who are about to die. (13—17)

पश्यामीह हि कण्ठे त्वां कालपाशावपाशितम्।
यथा चास्मिन् भयस्थाने न बिभेषि निशाचर ॥ १८ ॥

“I know you to be caught in the noose of Death about your neck indeed, in that you do not feel diffident in embarking on this risky adventure of abducting the virtuous wife of a hero, O prowler of the night ! (18)

व्यक्तं हिरण्मयांस्त्वं हि सम्पश्यसि महीरुहान्।
नदीं वैतरणीं घोरां रुधिरौघविवाहिनीम् ॥ १९ ॥
खड्गपत्रवनं चैव भीमं पश्यसि रावण।
तप्तकाञ्चनपुष्पां च वैदूर्यप्रवरच्छदाम् ॥ २० ॥
द्रक्ष्यसे शाल्मलीं तीक्ष्णामायसैः कण्टकैश्चिताम्।
नहि त्वमीदृशं कृत्वा तस्यालीकं महात्मनः ॥ २१ ॥
धारितुं शक्यसि चिरं विषं पीत्वेव निर्घृण।
बद्धस्त्वं कालपाशेन दुर्निवारेण रावण ॥ २२ ॥

“Obviously you are vividly viewing trees as made of gold (an unmistakable sign of approaching death). Nay, you are going to see in the near future, O Rāvaṇa, the fearful river Vaitaraṇī, carrying a flood of blood in place of water as well as the dreadful grove known by the name of Asipatravana (a hell of this name depicted as consisting of a cluster of trees or shrubs with leaves sharp-edged as a sword) and will behold a dentate Śālmali (a silk-cotton tree) containing flowers of heated gold and leaves of excellent cat’s eye gems and bristling with thorns of steel. Having done such a grievous wrong to the high-souled Śrī Rāma, you shall not be able to survive long any more than on drinking poison, O merciless ogre ! You are caught in the noose of Death, which is difficult to repulse, O Rāvaṇa ! (19—22)

क्व गतो लप्स्यसे शर्म मम भर्तुर्महात्मनः।
निमेषान्तरमात्रेण विना भ्रातरमाहवे ॥ २३ ॥
राक्षसा निहता येन सहस्राणि चतुर्दश।
कथं स राघवो वीरः सर्वास्त्रकुशलो बली ॥ २४ ॥
न त्वां हन्याच्छरैस्तीक्ष्णैरिष्टभार्यापहारिणम्।
एतच्चान्यच्च परुषं वैदेही रावणाङ्गा।
भयशोकसमाविष्टा करुणं विललाप ह ॥ २५ ॥

“Transferred to which place will you get shelter from the rage of my high-minded husband? How will the aforesaid Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, a mighty hero, who is adept in the use of all mystic missiles, not despatch with sharp arrows you, who are carrying away his beloved spouse?” Having uttered these and many other harsh words, while still entrapped by Rāvaṇa, Sitā, a princess of the

Videha territory, who was fully possessed with fear and grief, wailed piteously: so the tradition goes. (23—25)

तदा भृशार्ता बहु चैव भाषिणीं
विलापपूर्वं करुणं च भामिनीम्।

जहार पापस्तरुणीं विचेष्टतीं
नृपात्मजामागतगात्रवेपथुः ॥ २६ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे त्रिपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-three in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुष्पञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LIV

Sītā throws her jewels and articles of wearing apparel in the midst of five monkeys; Reaching Laṅkā, Rāvaṇa keeps Sītā in his gynaeceum and sends eight ogres to Janasthāna for espionage

ह्रियमाणा तु वैदेही कंचिन्नाथमपश्यती।
ददर्श गिरिशृङ्गस्थान् पञ्च वानरपुङ्गवान् ॥ १ ॥

Not finding any saviour while being carried away by Rāvaṇa, Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, for her part caught sight of five Vānara (monkey) chiefs sitting on a mountain-peak. (1)

तेषां मध्ये विशालाक्षी कौशेयं कनकप्रभम्।
उत्तरीयं वरारोहा शुभान्याभरणानि च ॥ २ ॥
मुमोच यदि रामाय शंसेयुरिति भामिनी।
वस्त्रमुत्सृज्य तन्मध्ये निक्षिप्तं सहभूषणम् ॥ ३ ॥

The lovely lady with large eyes and other comely limbs took off from her person her silken upper garment, brilliant as gold, as well as her shining jewels. Having placed other articles of her wearing apparel in the said garment, the latter was dropped alongwith the jewels in the midst of the monkeys in the hope that they might break the news of her being carried away by Rāvaṇa to Śrī Rāma if he ever happened to meet them. (2-3)

The villain, however, continued to bear away the lovely and youthful princess, who was talking much in a pathetic tone in the wake of crying, sore distressed as she was, and was struggling hard all the time to get released, although a tremor ran through his limbs. (26)

सम्भ्रमात् तु दशग्रीवस्तत्कर्म च न बुद्धवान्।
पिङ्गाक्षास्तां विशालाक्षीं नेत्रैरनिमिषैरिव ॥ ४ ॥
विक्रोशन्तीं तदा सीतां ददृशुर्वानरोत्तमाः।
स च पम्पामतिक्रम्य लङ्कामभिमुखः पुरीम् ॥ ५ ॥
जगाम मैथिलीं गृह्य रुदतीं राक्षसेश्वरः।
तां जहार सुसंहृष्टो रावणो मृत्युमात्मनः ॥ ६ ॥
उत्सङ्गेनैव भुजगीं तीक्ष्णदंष्ट्रां महाविषाम्।
वनानि सरितः शैलान् सरांसि च विहायसा ॥ ७ ॥
स क्षिप्रं समतीयाय शरश्चापादिव च्युतः।
तिमिनक्रनिकेतं तु वरुणालयमक्षयम् ॥ ८ ॥
सरितां शरणं गत्वा समतीयाय सागरम्।
सम्भ्रमात् परिवृत्तोर्मी रुद्धमीनमहोरगः ॥ ९ ॥
वैदेह्यां ह्रियमाणायां बभूव वरुणालयः।
अन्तरिक्षगता वाचः समृजुश्चरणास्तदा ॥ १० ॥
एतदन्तो दशग्रीव इति सिद्धास्तथाब्रुवन्।
स तु सीतां विचेष्टन्तीमङ्केनादाय रावणः ॥ ११ ॥
प्रविवेश पुरीं लङ्कां रूपिणीं मृत्युमात्मनः।
सोऽभिगम्य पुरीं लङ्कां सुविभक्तमहापथाम् ॥ १२ ॥
संरूढकक्ष्यां बहुलां स्वमन्तःपुरमाविशत्।
तत्र तामसितापाङ्गीं शोकमोहसमन्विताम् ॥ १३ ॥

निदधे रावणः सीतां मयो मायामिवासुरीम्।
 अब्रवीच्च दशग्रीवः पिशाचीर्घोरदर्शनाः ॥ १४ ॥
 यथा नैनां पुमान् स्त्री वा सीतां पश्यत्यसम्मतः।
 मुक्तामणिसुवर्णानि वस्त्राण्याभरणानि च ॥ १५ ॥
 यद् यदिच्छेत् तदैवास्या देयं मच्छन्दतो यथा।
 या च वक्ष्यति वैदेहीं वचनं किञ्चिदप्रियम् ॥ १६ ॥
 अज्ञानाद् यदि वा ज्ञानान् तस्या जीवितं प्रियम्।
 तथोक्त्वा राक्षसीस्तास्तु राक्षसेन्द्रः प्रतापवान् ॥ १७ ॥
 निष्क्रम्यान्तःपुरात् तस्मात् किं कृत्यमिति चिन्तयन्।
 ददर्शाष्टौ महावीर्यान् राक्षसान् पिशिताशनान् ॥ १८ ॥

In his flurry, however, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) did not at all perceive the aforesaid act of Sītā. The tawny-eyed monkey chiefs then beheld with unwinking eyes as it were (through wonder and compassion) that large-eyed Sītā crying loudly. Having passed beyond the Pampā lake, that ruler of ogres proceeded with his face towards the city of Laṅkā, taking the princess of Mithilā, who continued to cry all the time. Extremely delighted, Rāvaṇa bore in his arms his own death in the form of Sītā as one would carry in one's arms a highly venomous female serpent with sharp fangs. Coursing through the air like an arrow shot from a bow, he quickly left clearly behind forests, rivers, mountains and lakes. Having reached the Indian ocean, the abode of Timis (a species of fish of an enormous size) and crocodiles, the seat of Varuṇa (the god of waters), which knows no depletion, and the resting-place of rivers, Rāvaṇa for his part passed clearly beyond it. While Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) was being carried away by Rāvaṇa, the ocean (the seat of Varuṇa) found its billows brought to a standstill and its fishes and large aquatic serpents rendered motionless due to fear of Rāvaṇa. At that moment Cāraṇas (the celestial bards) standing in the airspace uttered the following remark: "This act of bearing away Sītā marks the end of Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster." The Siddhas too spoke likewise.

Bearing in his arms Sītā, his death-incarnate, the said Rāvaṇa for his part entered the city of Laṅkā. Reaching the large city of Laṅkā, which contained well-ramified roads and whose gateways remained thronged with people, he entered his own gynaeceum. There Rāvaṇa lodged the celebrated Sītā, who was noted for the dark corners of her eyes and was seized with grief and infatuation—even as the demon Maya (the suzerain lord of Tripura) would shed his demoniac Māyā (conjuring trick). Nay, Rāvaṇa commanded fiendesses of terrible aspect as follows: "Take care that no unauthorized man or woman looks on Sītā. Pearls, gems and gold, articles of wearing apparel and ornaments—whatever she desires should be supplied to her that very moment in deference to my wishes according to her choice. Nay, I presume life is not dear to the ogress who utters any harsh word to her through ignorance or consciously." Having instructed the aforesaid ogresses accordingly and sallying forth from that gynaeceum contemplating as to what should be done next, the powerful Rāvaṇa (the king of ogres) for his part granted interview to eight exceptionally powerful flesh-eating ogres.

(4—18)

स तान् दृष्ट्वा महावीर्यो वरदानेन मोहितः।

उवाच तानिदं वाक्यं प्रशस्य बलवीर्यतः ॥ १९ ॥

Having met and extolled them on the score of their strength and prowess, and blinded by the boon he had received from Brahmā, the exceptionally powerful Rāvaṇa spoke to them as follows: (19)

नानाप्रहरणाः क्षिप्रमितो गच्छत सत्वराः।

जनस्थानं हतस्थानं भूतपूर्वं खरालयम् ॥ २० ॥

"Equipped with diverse weapons proceed at once from this place with all speed to Janasthāna, which was formerly the abode of Khara, but whose dwellings have since been laid waste by Rāma. (20)

तत्रास्यतां जनस्थाने शून्ये निहतराक्षसे।

पौरुषं बलमाश्रित्य त्रासमुत्सृज्य दूरतः ॥ २१ ॥

“Relying on your own manliness and strength and casting off fear at a distance, get yourself established in the said Janasthāna, which is now desolate, the ogres living there having been exterminated by Rāma. (21)

बहुसैन्यं महावीर्यं जनस्थाने निवेशितम्।

सदूषणखरं युद्धे निहतं रामसायकैः ॥ २२ ॥

“The very powerful and large army stationed in Janasthāna has been wiped out on the battlefield alongwith Dūṣaṇa and Khara by the arrows of Rāma. (22)

ततः क्रोधो ममापूर्वो धैर्यस्योपरि वर्धते।

वैरं च सुमहज्जातं रामं प्रति सुदारुणम् ॥ २३ ॥

“As a sequel to it a rage which was never known before has taken possession of me and is growing beyond the limits of forbearance. Nay, a very great and fierce enmity has since then been set up with Rāma. (23)

निर्यातयितुमिच्छामि तच्च वैरं महारिपोः।

नहि लप्स्याम्यहं निद्रामहत्वा संयुगे रिपुम् ॥ २४ ॥

“I wish to put an end to the enmity by being quits with my great enemy, Rāma, and I shall not get a wink of sleep till I have slain the enemy in battle. (24)

तं त्विदानीमहं हत्वा खरदूषणघातिनम्।

रामं शर्मोपलप्स्यामि धनं लब्ध्वेव निर्धनः ॥ २५ ॥

“I shall have peace of mind now only after killing the slayer of Khara and Dūṣaṇa, as a destitute would on obtaining wealth. (25)

जनस्थाने वसद्भिस्तु भवद्भी राममाश्रिता।

प्रवृत्तिरुपनेतव्या किं करोतीति तत्त्वतः ॥ २६ ॥

“Information bearing on Rāma as to what he is doing should be correctly made available to me by you while staying in Janasthāna. (26)

अप्रमादाच्च गन्तव्यं सर्वैरिव निशाचरैः।

कर्तव्यश्च सदा यत्नो राघवस्य वधं प्रति ॥ २७ ॥

“Journey should be undertaken by all the rangers of the night with vigilance and an endeavour should always be made for the destruction of Rāma. (27)

युस्माकं तु बलं ज्ञातं बहुशो रणमूर्धनि।

अतश्चास्मिञ्जनस्थाने मया यूयं निवेशिताः ॥ २८ ॥

“Your strength, of course, has been witnessed on many an occasion in the van of fight and hence you have been selected by me for being stationed in yonder Janasthāna.” (28)

ततः प्रियं वाक्यमुपेत्य राक्षसा

महार्थमष्टावभिवाद्य रावणम्।

विहाय लङ्कां सहिताः प्रतस्थिरे

यतो जनस्थानमलक्ष्यदर्शनाः ॥ २९ ॥

Receiving the command couched in endearing terms and full of deep meaning, nay, greeting Rāvaṇa and quitting Laṅkā, all the eight ogres thereupon set out towards the quarter in which lay Janasthāna, their body remaining invisible. (29)

ततस्तु सीतामुपलभ्य रावणः

सुसम्प्रहृष्टः परिगृह्य मैथिलीम्।

प्रसज्य रामेण च वैरमुत्तमं

बभूव मोहान्मुदितः स रावणः ॥ ३० ॥

Extremely rejoiced to secure Sitā, the princess of Mithilā, and having placed her within the four walls of his gynaeceum and having set up bitter enmity with Śrī Rāma, the aforesaid Rāvaṇa, for his part, who made people cry by his cruel deeds, felt happy through ignorance. (30)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे चतुष्पञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-four in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LV

Rāvaṇa shows his gynaeceum to Sītā and coaxes her to become his wife

संदिश्य राक्षसान् घोरां रावणोऽष्टौ महाबलान् ।

आत्मानं बुद्धिवैक्लव्यात् कृत्कृत्यममन्यत ॥ १ ॥

Having given instruction to the eight fierce ogres of inordinate strength to leave for Janasthāna, Rāvaṇa thought, due to perversity of intellect, that he had accomplished his object. (1)

स चिन्तयानो वैदेहीं कामबाणैः प्रपीडितः ।

प्रविवेश गृहं रम्यं सीतां द्रष्टुमभित्वरन् ॥ २ ॥

Thinking of Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), sore stricken as he was with darts of love, and being in a great hurry to see Sītā, he directly entered his delightful gynaeceum. (2)

स प्रविश्य तु तद्वेश्म रावणो राक्षसाधिपः ।

अपश्यद् राक्षसीमध्ये सीतां दुःखपरायणाम् ॥ ३ ॥

अश्रुपूर्णमुखीं दीनां शोकभारावपीडिताम् ।

वायुवेगैरिवाक्रान्तां मज्जन्तीं नावमर्णवे ॥ ४ ॥

मृगयूथपरिभ्रष्टां मृगीं श्वभरिवावृताम् ।

अधोगतमुखीं सीतां तामभ्येत्य निशाचरः ॥ ५ ॥

तां तु शोकवशाद् दीनामवशां राक्षसाधिपः ।

सबलाद् दर्शयामास गृहं देवगृहोपमम् ॥ ६ ॥

Having duly entered that palace, Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, for his part saw Sītā given over to woe in the mind of ogresses, her face bathed in tears, distressed as she was, nay, weighed down by the load of grief (she carried in her heart) and resembling a bark buffeted by blasts of wind and foundering in the ocean or a female deer strayed from the herd of deer and beset by hounds. Approaching the aforesaid Sītā, who sat with her face bent down (through humiliation and shame), afflicted as she was through grief, the night-stalker, Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, for his part, forcibly showed her, even though she was unwilling to see it, his palace resembling an abode of gods. (3—6)

हर्म्यप्रासादसम्बाधं स्त्रीसहस्रनिषेवितम् ।

नानापक्षिगणैर्जुष्टं नानारत्नसमन्वितम् ॥ ७ ॥

The palace was thickly set with mansions and seven-storeyed buildings, was occupied by thousands of women, inhabited by flocks of birds of every description and full of jewels of various kinds. (7)

दान्तकैस्तापनीयैश्च स्फाटिकै राजतैस्तथा ।

वज्रवैदूर्यचित्रैश्च स्तम्भैर्दृष्टिमनोरमैः ॥ ८ ॥

It was supported on pillars of ivory, gold, crystal and silver, and studded with diamonds and cat's-eye jewels and was pleasing to the sight as well as to the mind. (8)

दिव्यदुन्दुभिनिर्घोषं तप्तकाञ्चनभूषणम् ।

सोपानं काञ्चनं चित्रमारुरोह तया सह ॥ ९ ॥

The palace resounded with the crash of large kettledrums and was decked with ornaments of refined gold. (In order to show her the palace) he ascended with her the magnificent stairway of gold. (9)

दान्तका राजताश्चैव गवाक्षाः प्रियदर्शनाः ।

हेमजालावृताश्चासंस्तत्र प्रासादपङ्क्तयः ॥ १० ॥

Along the stairway there were air-holes of ivory as well as of silver and above them ranged rows of palaces pleasing to look at and covered with trellises of gold. (10)

सुधामणिविचित्राणि भूमिभागानि सर्वशः ।

दशग्रीवः स्वभवने प्रादर्शयत् मैथिलीम् ॥ ११ ॥

Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) showed Sītā (the princess of Mithilā) the floors in his palace paved with mortar and inlaid with gems and hence looking picturesque on all sides. (11)

दीर्घिकाः पुष्करिण्यश्च नानापुष्पसमावृताः ।

रावणो दर्शयामास सीतां शोकपरायणाम् ॥ १२ ॥

Rāvaṇa also showed Sītā, who was given over to grief, spacious wells with staircases and ponds hemmed in with flowers of various kinds. (12)

दर्शयित्वा तु वैदेहीं कृत्स्नं तद्भवनोत्तमम्।
उवाच वाक्यं पापात्मा सीतां लोभितुमिच्छया ॥ १३ ॥

Having shown Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) the whole of that excellent palace, Rāvaṇa (whose mind was set on sin) for his part spoke as follows to Sītā with intent to enamour her : (13)

दश राक्षसकोट्यश्च द्वाविंशतिरथापराः।
वर्जयित्वा जरावृद्धान् बालांश्च रजनीचरान् ॥ १४ ॥

“Barring the aged ones and infant rangers of the night, there are other ten and twenty-two crores of ogres in my kingdom. (14)

तेषां प्रभुरहं सीते सर्वेषां भीमकर्मणाम्।
सहस्रमेकमेकस्य मम कार्यपुरःसरम् ॥ १५ ॥

“I am the lord, O Sītā, of all the aforesaid ogres of terrible deeds. One thousand of them remain at my beck and call for doing my work alone. (15)

यदिदं राज्यतन्त्रं मे त्वयि सर्वं प्रतिष्ठितम्।
जीवितं च विशालाक्षि त्वं मे प्राणैर्गरीयसी ॥ १६ ॥

“The entire administration of this state of mine as well as my life, O large-eyed lady, stands consecrated to you. You are more valuable to me even than my life. (16)

बह्वीनामुत्तमस्त्रीणां मम योऽसौ परिग्रहः।
तासां त्वमीश्वरी सीते मम भार्या भव प्रिये ॥ १७ ॥

“Be my wife, O beloved Sītā, and as such the queen of all the numerous excellent women, who are my wives. (17)

साधु किं तेऽन्यथाबुद्ध्या रोचयस्व वचो मम।
भजस्व माभितप्तस्य प्रसादं कर्तुमर्हसि ॥ १८ ॥

“Accept my wholesome advice; what will you gain by thinking otherwise (fixing your mind on Rāma)? Therefore, look favourably on me; you ought to show grace to me, who am sore stricken with love. (18)

परिक्षिप्ता समुद्रेण लङ्केयं शतयोजना।
नेयं धर्षयितुं शक्या सेन्द्रैरपि सुरासुरैः ॥ १९ ॥

“This city of Laṅkā surrounded by the ocean, covers an area of eight hundred miles. It cannot be taken by storm even by gods and demons (taken together) including Indra, the ruler of gods. (19)

न देवेषु न यक्षेषु न गन्धर्वेषु नर्षिषु।
अहं पश्यामि लोकेषु यो मे वीर्यसमो भवेत् ॥ २० ॥

“I do not perceive in all the three worlds anyone, among the gods or the Yakṣas or the Gandharvas or the seers of Vedic Mantras, who may prove my equal in prowess. (20)

राज्यभ्रष्टेन दीनेन तापसेन पदातिना।
किं करिष्यसि रामेण मानुषेणाल्पतेजसा ॥ २१ ॥

“What will you do with the human Rāma of scant energy, who has been deprived of his sovereignty, is a pauper given to austerities and travels on foot? (21)

भजस्व सीते मामेव भर्ताहं सदृशस्तव।
यौवनं त्वध्रुवं भीरु रमस्वेह मया सह ॥ २२ ॥

“Accept me alone, O Sītā; I am a consort worthy of you. Youth is but fleeting, O timid lady; enjoy life with me here in Laṅkā. (22)

दर्शने मा कृथा बुद्धि राघवस्य वरानने।
कास्य शक्तिरिहागन्तुमपि सीते मनोरथैः ॥ २३ ॥

“Do not harbour even the thought of beholding again in this life Rāma, a scion of Raghu, O lady of charming countenance ! What power has he to reach this place even in thought, O Sītā? (23)

न शक्यो वायुराकाशे पाशैर्बद्धं महाजवः।
दीप्यमानस्य वाप्यग्नेर्गृहीतुं विमलाः शिखाः ॥ २४ ॥

“A very powerful wind cannot be bound with ropes in the sky nor can the smokeless flames of a blazing fire be seized. (24)

त्रयाणामपि लोकानां न तं पश्यामि शोभने।
विक्रमेण नयेद् यस्त्वां मद्बाहुपरिपालिताम् ॥ २५ ॥

“In all the three worlds, viz., heaven earth and the intermediate region, I do not perceive a man who may snatch by dint of prowess you, who are protected by my arms, O beautiful lady ! (25)

लङ्कायाः सुमहद्राज्यमिदं त्वमनुपालय।
त्वत्प्रेष्या मद्विधाश्चैव देवाश्चापि चराचरम्॥ २६ ॥

“Rule you over this vast dominion of Laṅkā. If you agree to this proposal of mine, those like me (viz., the ogres) as well as gods, nay, the entire mobile and immobile creation will automatically become your servants (inasmuch as they are all subservient to my will and I shall be at your beck and call). (26)

अभिषेकजलविलिन्ना तुष्टा च रमयस्व च।
दुष्कृतं यत्पुरा कर्म वनवासेन तद्गतम्॥ २७ ॥
यच्च ते सुकृतं कर्म तस्येह फलमाप्नुहि।
इह सर्वाणि माल्यानि दिव्यगन्धानि मैथिलि॥ २८ ॥
भूषणानि च मुख्यानि तानि सेव मया सह।
पुष्पकं नाम सुश्रोणि भ्रातुर्वैश्रवणस्य मे॥ २९ ॥
विमानं सूर्यसंकाशं तरसा निर्जितं रणे।
विशालं रमणीयं च तद्विमानं मनोजवम्॥ ३० ॥

“Nay,¹ drenched with the water meant for bath and gratified on being relieved from fatigue, afford delight to me. Whatever sinful act was done by you in the past has been exhausted through exile in the forest. And enjoy here the fruit of such meritorious acts as stand to your credit. Share with me all these garlands emitting a heavenly fragrance as well as the excellent ornaments that are available here, O princess of Mithilā. Moreover, there exists an aerial car, Puṣpaka by name, belonging to my (half-) brother, Kubera (son of Sage Viśravā), which shines brightly as the sun and was won by me in an encounter by sheer dint of superior strength, O lady of comely limbs ! Spacious and delightful, the said aerial car is swift as thought. (27—30)

तत्र सीते मया सार्धं विहरस्व यथासुखम्।
वदनं पद्मसंकाशं विमलं चारुदर्शनम्॥ ३१ ॥
शोकार्तं तु वरारोहे न भ्राजति वरानने।
एवं वदति तस्मिन् सा वस्त्रान्तेन वराङ्गना॥ ३२ ॥
पिधायेन्दुनिभं सीता मन्दमश्रूण्यवर्तयत्।
ध्यायन्तीं तामिवास्वस्थां सीतां चिन्ताहतप्रभाम्॥ ३३ ॥
उवाच वचनं वीरो रावणो रजनीचरः।
अलं व्रीडेन वैदेहि धर्मलोपकृतेन ते॥ ३४ ॥
आर्षोऽयं देवि निष्पन्दो यस्त्वामभिभविष्यति।
एतौ पादौ मया स्निग्धौ शिरोभिः परिपीडितौ॥ ३५ ॥

“Divert yourself with me in that car so long as it gratifies you, O Sītā ! Your flawless countenance, resembling a lotus and lovely to look at, does not look charming, oppressed as it is with grief, O lady with a beautiful face and other limbs !” Covering her moonlike face while Rāvaṇa was speaking thus, that lovely lady, Sītā, gently allowed her tears to flow. Rāvaṇa, the valiant prowler of the night, addressed the following words to the aforesaid Sītā, who was definitely ill at ease, her splendour having been bedimmed through anxiety, and was contemplating on Śrī Rāma: “Have done with bashfulness occasioned by transgression of the prescribed course of conduct in the shape of leaving one’s husband and accepting another. The tie of love which is going to be established with you by me, O queen, is permitted by the seers of Vedic Mantras, who allow marriage² by force, giving it the name of Rākṣasa-Vivāha. These tender soles of yours are being lovingly pressed with my heads. (31—35)

प्रसादं कुरु मे क्षिप्रं वश्यो दासोऽहमस्मि ते।
इमाः शून्या मया वाचः शुष्यमाणेन भाषिताः॥ ३६ ॥
न चापि रावणः काञ्चिन्मूर्ध्ना स्त्रीं प्रणमेत ह।
एवमुक्त्वा दशग्रीवो मैथिलीं जनकात्मजाम्।
कृतान्तवशमापन्नो ममेयमिति मन्यते॥ ३७ ॥

1. This shows that Sītā had not washed herself (ever since her abduction by Rāvaṇa).

2. Rāvaṇa is evidently trying here to twist the scriptural passages, which allow such marriages only in the case of virgins and not in the case of a married woman.

“Show your grace to me at once; I am your obedient servant. Let not these words uttered by me pining from love fall flat on your ears. It is well-known that Rāvaṇa never salutes any woman whatsoever with his head bent low.” Having spoken as aforesaid to Sītā (the princess of Mithilā), daughter of Janaka, Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, who had fallen a prey to Death, thought to himself, ‘She is now mine.’ (36-37)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे पञ्चपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-five in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षट्पञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LVI

Giving expression to her undivided love for Śrī Rāma, Sītā reproaches Rāvaṇa, whereupon under his orders ogresses take her to the Aśoka Garden and intimidate her

सा तथोक्ता तु वैदेही निर्भया शोककर्षिता ।
तृणमन्तरतः कृत्वा रावणं प्रत्यभाषत ॥ १ ॥

*Interposing a blade of grass between herself and Rāvaṇa when spoken to as aforesaid, Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), for her part, emaciated as she was through grief, fearlessly replied to Rāvaṇa as follows : (1)

राजा दशरथो नाम धर्मसेतुरिवाचलः ।
सत्यसंधः परिज्ञातो यस्य पुत्रः स राघवः ॥ २ ॥
रामो नाम स धर्मात्मा त्रिषु लोकेषु विश्रुतः ।
दीर्घबाहुर्विशालाक्षो दैवतं स पतिर्मम ॥ ३ ॥

“There was a king, Daśaratha by name, who was, as it were, an unflinching bulwark of righteousness, was true to his promise and well-known for these virtues all over the world, whose son is the celebrated scion of Raghu, Śrī Rāma by name. The latter, whose mind is set on virtue, is equally well-known in all three worlds, and is distinguished by long arms and large eyes. He is my husband, and the object of my adoration. (2-3)

इक्ष्वाकूणां कुले जातः सिंहस्कन्धो महाद्युतिः ।
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा यस्ते प्राणान् वधिष्यति ॥ ४ ॥

“Born in the line of Ikṣvākus, he has shoulders like those of a lion and is possessed of extraordinary splendour. It is he who, with his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, will put an end to your life. (4)

प्रत्यक्षं यद्यहं तस्य त्वया वै धर्षिता बलात् ।
शयिता त्वं हतः संख्ये जनस्थाने यथा खरः ॥ ५ ॥

“Had I been forcibly laid violent hands upon by you before his eyes, you would have surely lain on the ground, killed in battle by him as Khara in Janasthāna. (5)

य एते राक्षसाः प्रोक्ता घोररूपा महाबलाः ।
राघवे निर्विषाः सर्वे सुपर्णे पन्नगा यथा ॥ ६ ॥

“These ogres of grim visage and extraordinary might, who have just been commanded by you to proceed to Janasthāna will all become powerless in the presence of Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, as serpents turn venomless in the presence of Garuḍa of beautiful wings. (6)

* According to the Hindu etiquette a virtuous lady must not talk to a male stranger, much less to a sinner like Rāvaṇa, without a medium. Being forced to violate this rule at this emergency, Sītā takes recourse to this expedient.

तस्य ज्याविप्रमुक्तास्ते शराः काञ्चनभूषणाः ।
शरीरं विधमिष्यन्ति गङ्गाकूलमिवोर्मयः ॥ ७ ॥

“Shafts decked with gold, shot from his bow-string, will tear your body to pieces as the waters of the sacred Gaṅgā wear away its banks. (7)

असुरैर्वा सुरैर्वा त्वं यद्यवध्योऽसि रावण ।
उत्पाद्य सुमहद् वैरं जीवंस्तस्य न मोक्ष्यसे ॥ ८ ॥

“In case you cannot be killed by demons or, say, by gods (by virtue of the boon granted in your favour by Brahmā, the creator), O Rāvaṇa, you shall not be allowed to escape alive having set up bitter enmity, as you have done, with him. (8)

स ते जीवितशेषस्य राघवोऽन्तकरो बली ।
पशोर्यूपगतस्येव जीवितं तव दुर्लभम् ॥ ९ ॥

“That mighty scion of Raghu will put an end to the remnant of your life. Your life, like that of the animal tied to a sacrificial post, is now difficult to save. (9)

यदि पश्येत् स रामस्त्वां रोषदीप्तेन चक्षुषा ।
रक्षस्त्वमद्य निर्दग्धो यथा रुद्रेण मन्मथः ॥ १० ॥

“If the said Rāma were to regard you with an eye inflamed with anger, O ogre, you will be consumed that very moment as Love was by Lord Śiva (the Destroyer of the universe). (10)

यश्चन्द्रं नभसो भूमौ पातयेन्नाशयेत् वा ।
सागरं शोषयेद् वापि स सीतां मोचयेदिह ॥ ११ ॥

“He, who is able to bring the moon down to the earth or destroy it or again to dry up the ocean, is able (even) to be here and deliver Sītā. (11)

गतासुस्त्वं गतश्रीको गतसत्त्वो गतेन्द्रियः ।
लङ्का वैधव्यसंयुक्ता त्वत्कृतेन भविष्यति ॥ १२ ॥

“Your life has all but departed; your royal fortune too is gone; gone too is your strength and your organs of perception and action have also left you. Nay, Laṅkā too will be endowed with widowhood through your fault. (12)

न ते पापमिदं कर्म सुखोदकं भविष्यति ।
याहं नीता विनाभावं पतिपार्श्वान् त्वया बलात् ॥ १३ ॥

“This sinful act of yours will not result in happiness inasmuch as I have been forcibly weaned by you from the side of my husband. (13)

स हि देवरसंयुक्तो मम भर्ता महाद्युतिः ।
निर्भयो वीर्यमाश्रित्य शून्ये वसति दण्डके ॥ १४ ॥

“Actually depending on his own prowess and accompanied by my brother-in-law, the aforesaid husband of mine, possessed as he is of extraordinary splendour, lives fearlessly in the desolate Daṇḍaka forest, indeed. (14)

स ते वीर्यं बलं दर्पमुत्सेकं च तथाविधम् ।
अपनेष्यति गात्रेभ्यः शरवर्षेण संयुगे ॥ १५ ॥

“By the shower of his arrows on the battlefield he will squeeze out of your limbs your prowess, strength, arrogance and impropriety of conduct of aforesaid description. (15)

यदा विनाशो भूतानां दृश्यते कालचोदितः ।
तदा कार्ये प्रमाद्यन्ति नराः कालवशं गताः ॥ १६ ॥

“When the destruction of beings as ordained by the god of death is at hand, people under the sway of Death commit lapses in their duty. (16)

मां प्रधृष्य स ते कालः प्राप्तोऽयं राक्षसाधम ।
आत्मनो राक्षसानां च वधायान्तःपुरस्य च ॥ १७ ॥

“Death, O vile ogre, has arrived at your door consequent on your having laid violent hands upon me—for your own destruction as also the entire ogre race and of the inmates of your gynaeceum. (17)

न शक्या यज्ञमध्यस्था वेदिः स्त्रुग्भाण्डमण्डिता ।
द्विजातिमन्त्रसम्पूता चण्डालेनावमर्दितुम् ॥ १८ ॥

“An altar existing in the centre of a sacrificial pavilion, adorned with ladies for pouring ghee etc., on the sacred fire with and other sacrificial vessels and consecrated with the sacred texts uttered by Brāhmaṇas, cannot be trampled upon by a pariah. (18)

तथाहं धर्मनित्यस्य धर्मपत्नी दृढव्रता ।
त्वया स्पर्धुं न शक्याहं राक्षसाधम पापिना ॥ १९ ॥

“I, the lawful wife, firm of vows, of him who is constantly devoted to virtue, cannot likewise be laid hands upon by you, a sinner as you are, O vile ogre ! (19)

क्रीडन्ती राजहंसेन पद्मषण्डेषु नित्यशः ।
हंसी सा तृणमध्यस्थं कथं द्रक्ष्येत मद्गुक्म ॥ २० ॥

“How can a female swan, well-known for its rare virtues, and ever sporting with a male swan among tufts of lotuses, cast its wistful eyes on a diver bird standing in the midst of reeds? (20)

इदं शरीरं निःसंज्ञं बन्ध वा घातयस्व वा ।
नेदं शरीरं रक्ष्यं मे जीवितं वापि राक्षस ॥ २१ ॥

“Put this body, which is insentient by itself, in chains or cause it to be put to death, as you will. This body is not to be preserved by me, not even life, O ogre ! (21)

न तु शक्यमपक्रोशं पृथिव्यां दातुमात्मनः ।
एवमुक्त्वा तु वैदेही क्रोधात् सुपुरुषं वचः ॥ २२ ॥
रावणं जानकी तत्र पुनर्नोवाच किञ्चन ।
सीताया वचनं श्रुत्वा परुषं रोमहर्षणम् ॥ २३ ॥
प्रत्युवाच ततः सीतां भयसंदर्शनं वचः ।
शृणु मैथिलि मद्वाक्यं मासान् द्वादश भामिनि ॥ २४ ॥

“It is not possible for me to give a bad name to myself on earth.” Having spoken very harsh words as aforesaid in anger to Rāvaṇa, Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), daughter to King Janaka, for her part, said nothing further on that occasion. Hearing the harsh words of Sītā, which made his hair stand on their end, Rāvaṇa now made the following threatening reply to Sītā : “Hear my warning, O Princess of Mithilā : I allow you an interval of twelve months, O comely and youthful lady ! (22—24)

कालेनानेन नाभ्येषि यदि मां चारुहासिनि ।
ततस्त्वां प्रातराशार्थं सूदाश्लेत्स्यन्ति लेशशः ॥ २५ ॥

“If you do not yield voluntarily to me within this period, O lady of smiles with love, my cooks will then cut you into small pieces for my breakfast.” (25)

इत्युक्त्वा परुषं वाक्यं रावणः शत्रुरावणः ।
राक्षसीश्च ततः क्रुद्ध इदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ २६ ॥

Having given this stern warning to Sītā, Rāvaṇa, who made his enemies cry by his cruel actions, then angrily addressed the following words to the ogresses guarding Sītā : (26)

शीघ्रमेव हि राक्षस्यो विरूपा घोरदर्शनाः ।
दर्पमस्यापनेष्यन्तु मांसशोणितभोजनाः ॥ २७ ॥

“Take away without delay the vanity of this lady, O misshapen ogresses of terrible aspect, subsisting on flesh and blood !” (27)

वचनादेव तास्तस्य सुघोरा घोरदर्शनाः ।
कृतप्राञ्जलयो भूत्वा मैथिलीं पर्यवारयन् ॥ २८ ॥

Joining their palms at his very command, those ferocious ogresses of grim visage surrounded the princess of Mithilā. (28)

स ताः प्रोवाच राजासौ रावणो घोरदर्शनाः ।
प्रचल्य चरणोत्कर्षैर्दारयन्निव मेदिनीम् ॥ २९ ॥

Taking a few strides, the celebrated King Rāvaṇa, referred to above, spoke to those ogresses of terrifying looks as follows, rending the earth with his very footsteps, as it were : (29)

अशोकवनिकामध्ये मैथिली नीयतामिति ।
तत्रेयं रक्ष्यतां गूढं युष्माभिः परिवारिता ॥ ३० ॥

“Let the princess of Mithilā be taken to the heart of the Aśoka grove. Let her remain surrounded by you and guarded in a clandestine way. (30)

तत्रैनां तर्जनैर्घोरैः पुनः सान्त्वैश्च मैथिलीम् ।
आनयध्वं वशं सर्वा वन्यां गजवधूमिव ॥ ३१ ॥

“Win over, all of you, this princess of Mithilā there by recourse to fearful threats and again with conciliatory words as one would tame a wild she-elephant.” (31)

इति प्रतिसमादिष्टा राक्षस्यो रावणेन ताः ।
अशोकवनिकां जग्मुर्मैथिलीं परिगृह्य तु ॥ ३२ ॥

सर्वकामफलैर्वृक्षैर्नानापुष्पफलैर्वृताम् ।
सर्वकालमदैश्चापि द्विजैः समुपसेविताम् ॥ ३३ ॥

Taking the princess of Mithilā with them when commanded thus by Rāvaṇa, those ogresses for their part left for the Aśoka grove, encompassed with trees yielding all one's desires and laden with flowers and fruits of every description and inhabited by birds remaining in heat every moment. (32-33)

सा तु शोकपरीताङ्गी मैथिली जनकात्मजा ।
राक्षसीवशमापन्ना व्याघ्रीणां हरिणी यथा ॥ ३४ ॥

The aforesaid princess of Mithilā, Sītā, daughter of Janaka, however, found her limbs overpowered by grief. Fallen into the clutches of the ogresses, she was reduced to the plight of a female deer fallen into the clutches of tigresses. (34)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे षट्पञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-six in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

प्रक्षिप्तः सर्गः

An Interpolated Canto*

At the command of Brahmā (the creator), Indra, the ruler of gods, goes to Laṅkā with Nidrā and offers a heavenly menu in the form of milk boiled with rice and sugar to Sītā

प्रवेशितायां सीतायां लङ्कां प्रति पितामहः ।
तदा प्रोवाच देवेन्द्रं परितुष्टं शतक्रतुम् ॥ १ ॥

When Sītā had been brought into Laṅkā, Brahmā, the progenitor of the entire creation, presently instructed as follows Indra (who had performed in his previous existences a hundred Aśwamedha sacrifices as a condition precedent for Indrahood), the ruler of gods, who felt highly gratified to hear the news as the event, to his mind, had sealed the fate of Rāvaṇa. (1)

शोकेन महता ग्रस्ता मैथिली जनकात्मजा ।
न शर्म लभते भीरुः पाशबद्धा मृगी यथा ॥ ३५ ॥

Overwhelmed with excessive grief, the timid Sītā (a princess of Mithilā), daughter of Janaka, did not find peace of mind any more than a female deer caught in a snare. (35)

न विन्दते तत्र तु शर्म मैथिली
विरूपनेत्राभिरतीव तर्जिता ।
पतिं स्मरन्ती दयितं च देवरं
विचेतनाभूद् भयशोकपीडिता ॥ ३६ ॥

Threatened in an excessive measure by those misshapen ogresses of deformed eyes, the princess of Mithilā, however, did not find rest there. Remembering her beloved lord as well as her brother-in-law, Lakṣmaṇa, she lost her consciousness, oppressed as she was with fear and grief. (36)

त्रैलोक्यस्य हितार्थाय रक्षसामहिताय च ।
लङ्कां प्रवेशिता सीता रावणेन दुरात्मना ॥ २ ॥

"To the good of the three worlds and the detriment of ogres Sītā has been brought by the evil-minded Rāvaṇa into Laṅkā. (2)

पतिव्रता महाभागा नित्यं चैव सुखैधिता ।
अपश्यन्ती च भर्तारं पश्यन्ती राक्षसीजनम् ॥ ३ ॥
राक्षसीभिः परिवृता भर्तृदर्शनलालसा ।
निविष्टा हि पुरी लङ्का तीरे नदनदीपतेः ॥ ४ ॥

* This canto is believed by some to be an interpolation since it has not been commented upon by classical commentators. However, it is being included in this Volume since it serves as an interesting and fitting interlude to the main story.

“The highly blessed Sītā, who is pledged to the service of her lord and has ever been brought up in comfort, is now unable to see her husband and sees all around her ogresses alone, surrounded as she always is by them, and is eager to see her husband. The city of Laṅkā is located on the brink of the ocean (the lord of rivers and streams). (3-4)

कथं ज्ञास्यति तां रामस्तत्रस्थां तामनिन्दिताम् ।
दुःखं संचिन्तयन्ती सा बहुशः परिदुर्लभा ॥ ५ ॥

“How will Śrī Rāma come to know of that irreproachable lady being present there? Being very hard to find for her lord, she frequently remains brooding on her suffering. (5)

प्राणयात्रामकुर्वाणा प्राणांस्त्यक्ष्यत्यसंशयम् ।
स भूयः संशयो जातः सीतायाः प्राणसंक्षये ॥ ६ ॥

“Nay, failing to support her life by refusing any nourishment, she will undoubtedly give up the ghost. In the event of Sītā’s life coming to an end, doubt will arise again about the success of our plans. (6)

स त्वं शीघ्रमितो गत्वा सीतां पश्य शुभाननाम् ।
प्रविश्य नगरीं लङ्कां प्रयच्छ हविरुत्तमम् ॥ ७ ॥

“Therefore, departing from this place without delay and penetrating into the city of Laṅkā, see Sītā of charming countenance and offer to her the foremost food worth offering to the sacred fire in the shape of milk boiled with rice and sugar.” (7)

एवमुक्तोऽथ देवेन्द्रः पुरीं रावणपालिताम् ।
आगच्छन्निद्रया सार्धं भगवान् पाकशासनः ॥ ८ ॥
निद्रां चोवाच गच्छ त्वं राक्षसान् सम्प्रमोहय ।
सा तथोक्ता मघवता देवी परमहर्षिता ॥ ९ ॥
देवकार्यार्थसिद्ध्यर्थं प्रामोहयत राक्षसान् ।
एतस्मिन्नन्तरे देवः सहस्राक्षः शचीपतिः ॥ १० ॥
आससाद् वनस्थां तां वचनं चेदमब्रवीत् ।
देवराजोऽस्मि भद्रं ते इह चास्मि शुचिस्मिते ॥ ११ ॥

Commanded thus by Brahmā, the glorious Indra (the tamer of the demon Pāka), the ruler of gods, presently reached alongwith Nidrā (the deity presiding over sleep) the city of Laṅkā protected by Rāvaṇa, and commanded Nidrā as follows : “Depart you and stupefy the ogres by burying them in sleep.” Supremely gratified when instructed thus by Indra, the goddess of sleep stupefied the ogres in order to accomplish the object aimed at by gods. In the meanwhile, Indra, the consort of Śacī, the thousand-eyed god, approached Sītā, residing in the Aśoka grove and spoke to her as follows : “I am Indra, the ruler of gods, and am now here, O lady of bright smiles! May all be well with you ! (8—11)

अहं त्वां कार्यसिद्ध्यर्थं राघवस्य महात्मनः ।
साहाय्यं कल्पयिष्यामि मा शुचो जनकात्मजे ॥ १२ ॥

“I will render assistance to you in order to accomplish the object of the high-souled Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu). Pray, do not grieve, O daughter of Janaka ! (12)

मत्प्रसादात् समुद्रं स तरिष्यति बलैः सह ।
मयैवेह च राक्षस्यो मायया मोहिताः शुभे ॥ १३ ॥

“Through my goodwill he will be able to cross the ocean with his armed forces. Nay, by me alone have the ogresses been stupefied by dint of Māyā (my enchanting potency) here, O good lady ! (13)

तस्मादन्नमिदं सीते हविष्याननमहं स्वयम् ।
स त्वां संगृह्य वैदेहि आगतः सह निद्रया ॥ १४ ॥

“Therefore, procuring this food fit to be offered as an oblation to the sacred fire, I have personally come to you with Nidrā, O Sītā, princess of the Videha territory ! (14)

एतदत्स्यसि मद्भस्तान् त्वां बाधिष्यते शुभे ।
क्षुधा तृषा च रम्भोरु वर्षाणामयुतैरपि ॥ १५ ॥

“If you partake of this from my hand, O good lady, neither hunger nor thirst will trouble you, O lady with charming limbs, even for myriad of years.” (15)

एवमुक्ता तु देवेन्द्रमुवाच परिशङ्किता ।
कथं जानामि देवेन्द्रं त्वामिहस्थं शचीपतिम् ॥ १६ ॥

Full of misgiving, when requested as aforesaid by Indra, Sītā for her part replied as follows to Indra, the ruler of gods : “How can I know you to be the ruler of gods, the lord of Śacī, present here? (16)

देवलिङ्गानि दृष्टानि रामलक्ष्मणसंनिधौ ।
तानि दर्शय देवेन्द्र यदि त्वं देवराट् स्वयम् ॥ १७ ॥

“The distinguishing marks of gods have been seen by me in the presence of Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa. Kindly reveal them to me, O ruler of gods, if you are Indra (the king of gods) himself.” (17)

सीताया वचनं श्रुत्वा तथा चक्रे शचीपतिः ।
पृथिवीं नास्पृशत् पद्भ्यामनिमेषेक्षणानि च ॥ १८ ॥

Hearing the request of Sītā, Indra, the spouse of Śacī, did the same. He did not touch the ground with his feet and his eyes did not wink. (18)

अरजोऽम्बरधारी च नम्लानकुसुमस्तथा ।
तं ज्ञात्वा लक्ष्मणैः सीता वासवं परिहर्षिता ॥ १९ ॥
उवाच वाक्यं रुदती भगवन् राघवं प्रति ।
सह भ्रात्रा महाबाहुर्दिष्ट्या मे श्रुतिमागतः ॥ २० ॥

His clothes were free from dust and the flowers of his garland did not fade even after his very long journey. Greatly rejoiced to recognize him by his distinguishing marks to be no other than Indra, Sītā spoke as follows to Indra, shedding tears for Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu : “The mighty-armed prince, Śrī Rāma, with his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, has by good luck reached my ears in the form of their names. (19-20)

यथा मे श्वशुरो राजा यथा च मिथिलाधिपः ।
तथा त्वामद्य पश्यामि सनाथो मे पतिस्त्वया ॥ २१ ॥

“I view you today to be the same as my father-in-law, the late king of Ayodhyā and as my father the sovereign ruler of Mithilā. My lord, Śrī Rāma, has found a protector in you. (21)

तवाज्ञया च देवेन्द्र पयोभूतमिदं हविः ।
अशिष्यामि त्वया दत्तं रघूणां कुलवर्धनम् ॥ २२ ॥

“Nay, at your bidding, O ruler of gods, I shall partake of this food fit to be offered as an oblation to the sacred fire in the form of milk, boiled with rice and sugar, offered by you, which may prove to be the promoter of Raghu’s race.” (22)

इन्द्रहस्ताद् गृहीत्वा तत् पायसं सा शुचिस्मिता ।
न्यवेदयत भर्त्रे सा लक्ष्मणाय च मैथिली ॥ २३ ॥

Taking that preparation of milk and rice sweetened with sugar from the hands of Indra, that renowned princess of Mithilā of bright smiles mentally offered it to her husband and her brother-in-law, Lakṣmaṇa, in the following words : (23)

यदि जीवति मे भर्ता सह भ्रात्रा महाबलः ।
इदमस्तु तयोर्भक्त्या तदाश्नात् पायसं स्वयम् ॥ २४ ॥

“If my husband, who is possessed of extraordinary might, is yet alive with his younger brother, let this food offered with devotion by me conduce to their gratification.” Then she partook of it herself. (24)

इतीव तत् प्राश्य हविर्वरानना
जहौ क्षुधादुःखसमुद्भवं च तम् ।
इन्द्रात् प्रवृत्तिम् उपलभ्य जानकी
काकुत्स्थयोः प्रीतमना बभूव ॥ २५ ॥

Having thus partaken of that food fit to be offered as an oblation to the sacred fire, Sītā, the daughter of King Janaka, who was possessed of a charming countenance, bade adieu to the agony caused by the pangs of hunger and experienced by all hunger-stricken creatures, and felt delighted in mind to gather from Indra the news of Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, the two scions of Kakutstha. (25)

स चापि शक्रस्त्रिदिवालयं तदा
प्रीतो ययौ राघवकार्यसिद्धये ।
आमन्त्र्य सीतां स ततो महात्मा
जगाम निद्रासहितः स्वमालयम् ॥ २६ ॥

Taking leave of Sītā, the said celebrated and high-souled Indra too, accompanied by Nidrā, then joyously left forthwith for the heaven-world in order to accomplish the purpose of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) and reached his own abode in Amarāvati, the capital of heaven. (26)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे प्रक्षिप्तः सर्गः ॥

Thus ends the interpolated Canto in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LVII

While returning to his hermitage Śrī Rāma feels concerned to perceive ill omens and on meeting Lakṣmaṇa scolds him for leaving Sītā unprotected and feels apprehensive about Sītā's safety

राक्षसं मृगरूपेण चरन्तं कामरूपिणम्।
निहत्य रामो मारीचं तूर्णं पथि न्यवर्तत ॥ १ ॥

Having slain the ogre Mārīca, who was capable of changing his form at will, moving about in the form of a deer, Śrī Rāma quickly returned to the trodden path leading to his hermitage. (1)

तस्य संत्वरमाणस्य द्रष्टुकामस्य मैथिलीम्।
क्रूरस्वनोऽथ गोमायुर्विननादास्य पृष्ठतः ॥ २ ॥

While he was making all possible haste to return to the hermitage, eager as he was to see Sītā (a princess of Mithilā), a jackal uttering a fierce yell presently cried loudly at his back. (2)

स तस्य स्वरमाज्ञाय दारुणं रोमहर्षणम्।
चिन्तयामास गोमायोः स्वरेण परिशङ्कितः ॥ ३ ॥

Concluding the yell of that jackal, which made one's hair stand on end, to be of fearful consequence, Śrī Rāma, who was already seized with apprehension to hear Mārīca's voice in imitation of his own, became thoughtful. (3)

अशुभं बत मन्येऽहं गोमायुर्वाश्यते यथा।
स्वस्ति स्यादपि वैदेह्या राक्षसैर्भक्षणं विना ॥ ४ ॥

He said to himself 'From the way in which the jackal is yelling, alas, I apprehend some evil. Is all well with Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory)? Has she escaped being devoured by the ogres? (4)

मारीचेन तु विज्ञाय स्वरमालक्ष्य मामकम्।
विक्रुष्टं मृगरूपेण लक्ष्मणः शृणुयाद् यदि ॥ ५ ॥
स सौमित्रिः स्वरं श्रुत्वा तां च हित्वाथ मैथिलीम्।
तयैव प्रहितः क्षिप्रं मत्सकाशमिहैष्यति ॥ ६ ॥

'If Lakṣmaṇa happens to have heard the piteous wail, knowingly uttered in imitation of my voice by Mārīca, appearing in the disguise of a deer, then, hearing that voice and forthwith leaving the said Sītā (a princess of Mithilā), and sent by that very lady, the aforesaid son of Sumitrā will speedily seek my presence here. (5-6)

राक्षसैः सहितैर्नूनं सीताया ईप्सितो वधः।
काञ्चनश्च मृगो भूत्वा व्यपनीयाश्रमात्तु माम् ॥ ७ ॥
दूरं नीत्वाथ मारीचो राक्षसोऽभूच्छराहतः।
हा लक्ष्मण हतोऽस्मीति यद्वाक्यं व्याजहार ह ॥ ८ ॥
अपि स्वस्ति भवेद् द्वाभ्यां रहिताभ्यां मया वने।
जनस्थाननिमित्तं हि कृतवैरोऽस्मि राक्षसैः ॥ ९ ॥

'The destruction of Sītā is surely sought by the ogres joined together. From the way in which the ogre, Mārīca, appearing as a golden deer, nay, luring me away from my hermitage and taking me afar, uttered the cry, 'Alas, O Lakṣmaṇa, I am killed indeed !' when he was pierced with my arrow, I for my part am very doubtful that all is well with Sitā and Lakṣmaṇa, bereft of me in the forest; for, I stand antagonized by the ogres on the score of my having devastated their colony at Janasthāna. (7—9)

निमित्तानि च घोराणि दृश्यन्तेऽद्य बहूनि च ।
इत्येवं चिन्तयन् रामः श्रुत्वा गोमायुनिःस्वनम् ॥ १० ॥
निर्वर्तमानस्त्वरितो जगामाश्रममात्मवान् ।
आत्मनश्चापनयनं मृगरूपेण रक्षसा ॥ ११ ॥
आजगाम जनस्थानं राघवः परिशङ्कितः ।
तं दीनमानसं दीनमासेदुर्मृगपक्षिणः ॥ १२ ॥
सव्यं कृत्वा महात्मानं घोरांश्च समृजुः स्वरात् ।
तानि दृष्ट्वा निमित्तानि महाघोराणि राघवः ।
न्यवर्तताथ त्वरितो जवेनाश्रममात्मनः ॥ १३ ॥

‘Nay, many evil portents too of a fearful nature are seen by me today.’ Reflecting thus on hearing the cry of the jackal, and hastily retracing his steps, Śrī Rāma, the master of his Self, proceeded towards his hermitage. Reviewing with apprehension the event of his having been lured away by the ogre, Mārīca, appearing in the disguise of a deer, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, proceeded on his way back to Janasthāna. Śrī Rāma passed beasts and birds, who felt miserable and distressed in mind, keeping the high-souled prince to their left, and uttered fearful cries. Witnessing those exceedingly fearful portents and taking rapid strides, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, presently retraced his steps with expedition to his hermitage. (10—13)

ततो लक्ष्मणमायान्तं ददर्श विगतप्रभम् ।
ततोऽविदूरे रामेण समीपाय स लक्ष्मणः ॥ १४ ॥
विषण्णः सन् विषण्णेन दुःखितो दुःखभागिना ।
स जगर्हेऽथ तं भ्राता दृष्ट्वा लक्ष्मणमागतम् ॥ १५ ॥
विहाय सीतां विजने वने राक्षससेविते ।
गृहीत्वा च करं सव्यं लक्ष्मणं रघुनन्दनः ॥ १६ ॥
उवाच मथुरोदकमिदं परुषमार्तवत् ।
अहो लक्ष्मण गह्वं ते कृतं यत् त्वं विहाय ताम् ॥ १७ ॥
सीतामिहागतः सौम्य कच्चित् स्वस्ति भवेदिति ।
न मेऽस्ति संशयो वीर सर्वथा जनकात्मजा ॥ १८ ॥

विनष्टा भक्षिता वापि राक्षसैर्वनचारिभिः ।
अशुभान्येव भूयिष्ठं यथा प्रादुर्भवन्ति मे ॥ १९ ॥

In the meantime he espied Lakṣmaṇa approaching, his splendour entirely gone. Presently at no considerable distance the said Lakṣmaṇa, who was feeling despondent and afflicted, got united with Śrī Rāma, who too looked dejected and shared the agony of Lakṣmaṇa. Seeing Lakṣmaṇa come, having abandoned Sitā in a lonely forest frequented by ogres, the aforesaid brother, Śrī Rāma, forthwith proceeded to censure him. Taking hold of his left hand, Śrī Rāma (the delight of the Raghus), like one distressed, addressed to Lakṣmaṇa the following harsh words, though agreeable in consequence : “Ah Lakṣmaṇa, a reproachful act has been done by you in that you came away here leaving alone Sitā, who deserved protection, O gentle brother ! Can she be expected to be doing well? No, doubt lurks in my mind, O heroic brother, that the daughter of Janaka has at all events been removed out of sight or even devoured by ogres ranging in the forest, as is evident from the fact that evil portents alone appear before me in abundance. (14—19)

अपि लक्ष्मण सीतायाः सामग्र्यं प्राप्नुयामहे ।
जीवन्त्याः पुरुषव्याघ्र सुताया जनकस्य वै ॥ २० ॥

“Shall we actually be able to find, O Lakṣmaṇa, the entire being of Sitā, daughter of Janaka, continuing to live, O tiger among men? (20)

यथा वै मृगसंघाश्च गोमायुश्चैव भैरवम् ।
वाश्यन्ते शकुनाश्चापि प्रदीप्तामभितो दिशम् ।
अपि स्वस्ति भवेत् तस्या राजपुत्र्या महाबल ॥ २१ ॥

“Nay, from the way in which herds of deer as well as the jackal as also birds actually utter fierce cries facing the quarter brightened by the sun it is doubtful that all may be well with that princess, O brother, possessed of extraordinary might ! (21)

इदं हि रक्षो मृगसंनिकाशं
प्रलोभ्य मां दूरमनुप्रयातम् ।

हतं कथंचिन्महता श्रमेण
स राक्षसोऽभून्प्रियमाण एव ॥ २२ ॥

“This ogre, Mārīca, who, having seduced me, in a form closely resembling a deer, had gone far away, reappeared as an ogre only while dying when killed anyhow by me with great exertion. (22)

मनश्च मे दीनमिहाप्रहृष्टं
चक्षुश्च सव्यं कुरुते विकारम् ।

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे सप्तपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-seven in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LVIII

Indulging in various speculations about the fate of Sītā, Śrī Rāma with Lakṣmaṇa arrives at his hermitage and is pained not to find Sītā there

स दृष्ट्वा लक्ष्मणं दीनं शून्यं दशरथात्मजः ।
पर्यपृच्छत धर्मात्मा वैदेहीमागतं विना ॥ १ ॥

Seeing Lakṣmaṇa distressed and cheerless and arrived without Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), Śrī Rāma, son of Daśaratha, whose mind was set on virtue, anxiously questioned him as follows : (1)

प्रस्थितं दण्डकारण्यं या मामनुजगाम ह ।
क्व सा लक्ष्मण वैदेही यां हित्वा त्वमिहागतः ॥ २ ॥

“Where is that Sītā (a princess of the Videha kingdom) who actually followed me as I set out towards the Daṇḍaka forest, and leaving whom you have come hither? (2)

राज्यभ्रष्टस्य दीनस्य दण्डकान् परिधावतः ।
क्व सा दुःखसहाया मे वैदेही तनुमध्यमा ॥ ३ ॥

“Where is that Sītā (a princess of the Videha kingdom) of graceful limbs who shared my sufferings as I knocked about in the Daṇḍaka forest, deprived of my sovereignty and dispirited? (3)

असंशयं लक्ष्मण नास्ति सीता
हृता मृता वा पथि वर्तते वा ॥ २३ ॥

“My mind is distressed at this moment and not much rejoiced as my left eye is throbbing. Without doubt, O Lakṣmaṇa, Sītā is no more in the hermitage; she has either been borne away to some other place or is dead or is on the way to some unknown destination being forcibly carried away by someone.” (23)

यां विना नोत्सहे वीर मुहूर्तमपि जीवितुम् ।
क्व सा प्राणसहाया मे सीता सुरसुतोपमा ॥ ४ ॥

“Where is that Sītā, my life’s companion, who resembled a daughter of the gods and without whom, O heroic Lakṣmaṇa, I cannot live even for a while? (4)

पतित्वममराणां हि पृथिव्याश्चापि लक्ष्मण ।
विना तां तपनीयाभां नेच्छेयं जनकात्मजाम् ॥ ५ ॥

“Bereft of that daughter of Jahaka, who possessed the lustre of gold, I do not really seek even the lordship of gods, much less the sovereignty of the earth, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (5)

कच्चिज्जीवति वैदेही प्राणैः प्रियतरा मम ।
कच्चित् प्रव्राजन् वीर न मे मिथ्या भविष्यति ॥ ६ ॥

सीतानिमित्तं सौमित्रे मृते मयि गते त्वयि ।
कच्चित् सकामा कैकेयी सुखिता सा भविष्यति ॥ ७ ॥

“Is Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), who is dearer to me than life, still living? I hope my exile to the forest for a period of fourteen years will not be rendered void by my death due to separation from Sītā before the expiry of this period. I am sure Kaikeyī will have her desire fulfilled and feel gratified when I, O Lakṣmaṇa, son of Sumitrā, am dead because of my separation from Sītā and you return to Ayodhyā alone. (6-7)

सुपुत्रराज्यां सिद्धार्था मृतपुत्रा तपस्विनी।
उपस्थास्यति कौसल्या कच्चित् सौम्येन कैकयीम् ॥ ८ ॥

“Will my mother, the wretched Kausalyā with her son (myself) dead, wait with reverence on Kaikeyī, who is with her son by her side and also enjoying sovereignty, and has her object accomplished? (8)

यदि जीवति वैदेही गमिष्याम्याश्रमं पुनः।
संवृत्ता यदि वृत्ता सा प्राणास्त्यक्ष्यामि लक्ष्मण ॥ ९ ॥

“If Sītā (a princess of the Videha kingdom) is alive, I shall enter my hermitage once more. If, however, that lady of excellent conduct is dead and gone, I shall yield up my life, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (9)

यदि मामाश्रमगतं वैदेही नाभिभाषते।
पुरः प्रहसिता सीता विनशिष्यामि लक्ष्मण ॥ १० ॥

“If Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, does not speak to me with her smiling face before me, when I reach the hermitage, I shall perish. (10)

ब्रूहि लक्ष्मण वैदेही यदि जीवति वा न वा।
त्वयि प्रमत्ते रक्षोभिर्भक्षिता वा तपस्विनी ॥ ११ ॥

“Speak, O Lakṣmaṇa, if Sītā (a princess of the Videha kingdom) is still alive. And if not, has the poor lady been, on the other hand, devoured by ogres since you failed in your duty of protecting her? (11)

सुकुमारी च बाला च नित्यं चादुःखभागिनी।
मद्वियोगेन वैदेही व्यक्तं शोचति दुर्मनाः ॥ १२ ॥

“Tender and youthful, and having never experienced agony, Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) is evidently feeling disconsolate and grieving due to separation from me. (12)

सर्वथा रक्षसा तेन जिह्वेन सुदुरात्मना।
वदता लक्ष्मणेत्युच्चैस्तवापि जनितं भयम् ॥ १३ ॥

“Fear was in all probability incited even in you by that crooked and most evil-minded ogre, crying out ‘Lakṣmaṇa !’ (13)

श्रुतश्च मन्ये वैदेह्या स स्वरः सदृशो मम।
त्रस्तया प्रेषितस्त्वं च द्रष्टुं मां शीघ्रमागतः ॥ १४ ॥

“That cry for help, uttered in a voice resembling mine, was I believe heard by Sītā (a princess of the Videha kingdom) too. And sent by her, alarmed as she was, you came away with all speed to see me. (14)

सर्वथा तु कृतं कष्टं सीतामुत्सृजता वने।
प्रतिकर्तुं नृशंसानां रक्षसां दत्तमन्तरम् ॥ १५ ॥

“But an error, which was grievous in every respect, has been committed by you, leaving Sītā alone in the forest, inasmuch as an opportunity has been afforded thereby to the cruel ogres to retaliate. (15)

दुःखिताः खरघातेन राक्षसाः पिशिताशनाः।
तैः सीता निहता घोरैर्भविष्यति न संशयः ॥ १६ ॥

“The flesh-eating ogres were feeling aggrieved on account of the destruction of Khara; Sītā must have been slain by those fearful ogres : there is no doubt about it. (16)

अहोऽस्मि व्यसने मग्नः सर्वथा रिपुनाशन।
किं त्विदानीं करिष्यामि शङ्के प्राप्तव्यमीदृशम् ॥ १७ ॥

“Alas, I stand plunged in adversity in everyway, O exterminator of foes ! But what shall I do now to avert this tragedy? I fear such a calamity must be faced.” (17)

इति सीतां वरारोहां चिन्तयन्नेव राघवः।
आजगाम जनस्थानं त्वरया सहलक्ष्मणः ॥ १८ ॥

Thus thinking solely of Sītā of excellent limbs, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, hastened to his hermitage in Janasthāna with Lakṣmaṇa. (18)

विगर्हमाणोऽनुजमार्तरूपं
क्षुधाश्रमेणैव पिपासया च।
विनिःश्वसन् शुष्कमुखो विषण्णः
प्रतिश्रयं प्राप्य समीक्ष्य शून्यम् ॥ १९ ॥

Severely reproaching his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, who wore a distressed appearance, nay, heaving a deep breath, Śrī Rāma, whose mouth was parched from hunger, fatigue and thirst, grew despondent to perceive the site of his hermitage desolate on reaching it. (19)

स्वमाश्रमं स प्रविगाह्य वीरो
विहारदेशाननुसृत्य कांश्चित्।

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डेऽष्टपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-eight in the Aranyakāṇḍa the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LIX

Dialogue between Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa

अथाश्रमादुपावृत्तमन्तरा रघुनन्दनः ।
परिपप्रच्छ सौमित्रिं रामो दुःखादिदं वचः ॥ १ ॥

Earlier Śrī Rāma, the delight of the Raghus, painfully proceeded to put the following question to Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), returned from his hermitage, meeting him half way. (1)

तमुवाच किमर्थं त्वमागतोऽपास्य मैथिलीम् ।
यदा सा तव विश्वासाद् वने विरहिता मया ॥ २ ॥

Śrī Rāma said to him, "What for have you come leaving Sitā (the princess of Mithilā) alone, when she had been confided by me to your care in the forest? (2)

दृष्ट्वैवाभ्यागतं त्वां मे मैथिलीं त्यज्य लक्ष्मण ।
शङ्कमानं महत् पापं यत्सत्यं व्यथितं मनः ॥ ३ ॥

"Apprehending grave danger, my mind was forsooth filled with pain the moment I saw you come back leaving the princess of Mithilā alone, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (3)

स्फुरते नयनं सव्यं बाहुश्च हृदयं च मे ।
दृष्ट्वा लक्ष्मण दूरे त्वां सीताविरहितं पथि ॥ ४ ॥

"Seeing you alone, without Sitā, on the way

एतत्तदित्येव निवासभूमौ
प्रहृष्टरोमा व्यथितो बभूव ॥ २० ॥

Directly entering his own hermitage, nay, exploring some of Sitā's sporting grounds and saying to himself that it was the same place where she used to disport the aforesaid hero felt disquieted in his own abode, his hair standing on end through agony. (20)

at some distance, my left eye and arm as well as the heart began to throb, O Lakṣmaṇa !" (4)

एवमुक्तस्तु सौमित्रिर्लक्ष्मणः शुभलक्षणः ।
भूयो दुःखसमाविष्टो दुःखितं राममब्रवीत् ॥ ५ ॥

Twitted in these words, Lakṣmaṇa, son of Sumitrā, for his part, who was endowed with auspicious bodily marks, and was overcome with sorrow all the more, submitted as follows to the afflicted Śrī Rāma : (5)

न स्वयं कामकारेण तां त्यक्त्वाहमिहागतः ।
प्रचोदितस्तथैवोग्रैस्त्वत्सकाशमिहागतः ॥ ६ ॥

"I have not come here leaving her of myself voluntarily by action. I have sought your presence here only when urged by her in pungent words. (6)

आर्येणैव परिक्रुष्टं लक्ष्मणेति सुविस्वरम् ।
परित्राहीति यद्वाक्यं मैथिल्यास्तच्छ्रुतिं गतम् ॥ ७ ॥

(The fact is that) the shrill cry in the words "Lakṣmaṇa, protect me !" which was uttered in a voice resembling your's, as it were, reached the ears of Sitā, the princess of Mithilā, (7)

सा तमार्तस्वरं श्रुत्वा तव स्नेहेन मैथिली।
गच्छ गच्छेति मामाशु रुदती भयविक्लवा ॥ ८ ॥

“unnerved with fear to hear that plaintive cry and crying through affection for you, Sītā, a princess of Mithilā, urged me at once in the words “Go, depart!” (8)

प्रचोद्यमानेन मया गच्छेति बहुशस्तया।
प्रत्युक्ता मैथिली वाक्यमिदं तत् प्रत्ययान्वितम् ॥ ९ ॥

“By me, however, who was being repeatedly goaded by her to depart, Sītā (a princess of Mithilā) was answered in the following words calculated to inspire confidence in her: (9)

न तत् पश्याम्यहं रक्षो यदस्य भयमावहेत्।
निर्वृता भव नास्त्येतत् केनाप्येतदुदाहृतम् ॥ १० ॥

“I do not know of that ogre who could arouse fear in Śrī Rāma. Be at ease. It was not his cry; it was uttered by a stranger. (10)

विगर्हितं च नीचं च कथमार्योऽभिधास्यति।
त्राहीति वचनं सीते यस्त्रायेत् त्रिदशानपि ॥ ११ ॥

“How could my eldest brother, who can protect even the gods (who pass through only three stages in life, viz., childhood, adolescence and youth), O Sītā, utter the reproachful and mean words “Save me !”? (11)

किं निमित्तं तु केनापि भ्रातुरालम्ब्य मे स्वरम्।
विस्वरं व्याहृतं वाक्यं लक्ष्मण त्राहि मामिति ॥ १२ ॥

“In fact, imitating the voice of my eldest brother, Śrī Rāma, with some sinister motive, the words ‘Lakṣmaṇa, save me !’ were loudly uttered by a stranger. (12)

राक्षसेनेरितं वाक्यं त्रासात् त्राहीति शोभने।
न भवत्या व्यथा कार्या कुनारीजनसेविता ॥ १३ ॥

“The words ‘Save me’ were uttered through fear by the ogre himself, O good lady ! Hence no agony, which is harboured only by bad women, should be entertained by you. (13)

अलं विक्लवतां गन्तुं स्वस्था भव निरुत्सुका।
न चास्ति त्रिषु लोकेषु पुमान् यो राघवं रणे ॥ १४ ॥

जातो वा जायमानो वा संयुगे यः पराजयेत्।
अजेयो राघवो युद्धे देवैः शक्रपुरोगमैः ॥ १५ ॥

“You should not yield to nervousness. Be at ease and free from anxiety. There is no man born or going to be born in all the three worlds, who can vanquish Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) in an encounter. Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) cannot be conquered in battle even by gods headed by Indra. (14-15)

एवमुक्ता तु वैदेही परिमोहितचेतना।
उवाचाश्रूणि मुञ्चन्ती दारुणं मामिदं वचः ॥ १६ ॥

“Reassured in these words by me, Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) for her part, whose judgment was utterly clouded, addressed the following poignant words, shedding tears all the time : (16)

भावो मयि तवात्यर्थं पाप एव निवेशितः।
विनष्टे भ्रातरि प्राप्तुं न च त्वं मामवाप्स्यसे ॥ १७ ॥

“‘The grossly sinful intention of winning me when your eldest brother has been slain has definitely been cherished by you with regard to me; but you shall never secure me. (17)

संकेताद् भरतेन त्वं रामं समनुगच्छसि।
क्रोशन्तं हि यथात्यर्थं नैनमभ्यवपद्यसे ॥ १८ ॥

“‘You are closely following Śrī Rāma in pursuance of a pact entered into by you with Bharata in that you do not actually run to the side of Śrī Rāma, who is crying for your help at the top of his voice ! (18)

रिपुः प्रच्छन्नचारी त्वं मदर्थमनुगच्छसि।
राघवस्यान्तरं प्रेप्सुस्तथैनं नाभिपद्यसे ॥ १९ ॥

“‘An enemy of Śrī Rāma in disguise, you have been following him for my sake only, seeking an opportunity to harm him. Hence you do not run to his succour.’ (19)

एवमुक्तस्तु वैदेह्या संरब्धो रक्तलोचनः।
क्रोधात् प्रस्फुरमाणोष्ठ आश्रमादभिनिर्गतः ॥ २० ॥

“Waxing wroth, when accused thus by Sītā (a princess of the Videha kingdom), with eyes red and lips quivering from anger,

I for my part came away straight from the hermitage.” (20)

एवं ब्रुवाणं सौमित्रिं रामः संतापमोहितः ।
अब्रवीद् दुष्कृतं सौम्य तां विना त्वमिहागतः ॥ २१ ॥

Distracted with agony, Śrī Rāma replied as follows to Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) when he was speaking as aforesaid : “An unbecoming act has been done by you in that you came hither without her. (21)

जानन्नपि समर्थं मां रक्षसामपवारणे ।
अनेन क्रोधवाक्येन मैथिल्या निर्गतो भवान् ॥ २२ ॥

“Though knowing me to be capable of repulsing the ogres, you came away annoyed by this angry rebuke from Sītā (a princess of Mithilā) ! (22)

नहि ते परितुष्यामि त्यक्त्वा यदसि मैथिलीम् ।
क्रुद्धायाः परुषं श्रुत्वा स्त्रिया यत् त्वमिहागतः ॥ २३ ॥

“Surely I am not much pleased with you for the fact that you came hither leaving Sītā (a princess of Mithilā) and that too on hearing a harsh word uttered by an angry woman. (23)

सर्वथा त्वपनीतं ते सीतया यत् प्रचोदितः ।
क्रोधस्य वशमागम्य नाकरोः शासनं मम ॥ २४ ॥

“It was wholly unjustifiable on your part that, falling a prey to anger when goaded by Sītā to leave her, you did not carry out my behest. (24)

असौ हि राक्षसः शेते शरेणाभिहतो मया ।
मृगरूपेण येनाहमाश्रमादपवाहितः ॥ २५ ॥

“Indeed, the ogre by whom, disguised as a deer, I was lured away from our hermitage, lies there killed, being fatally wounded with an arrow aimed at by me. (25)

विकृष्य चापं परिधाय सायकं
सलीलबाणेन च ताडितो मया ।

मार्गी तनुं त्यज्य च विक्लवस्वरो

बभूव केयूरधरः स राक्षसः ॥ २६ ॥

“Giving up the form of a deer when struck by me with an arrow sportfully discharged after pulling my bow at full length and putting the arrow to it, the fellow appeared as an ogre adorned with armlets and emitting a cry of agony. (26)

शराहतेनैव तदार्तया गिरा
स्वरं ममालम्ब्य सुदूरमुश्रवम् ।

उदाहृतं तद् वचनं सुदारुणं
त्वमागतो येन विहाय मैथिलीम् ॥ २७ ॥

“Feigning my voice, that most poignant cry, which could be easily heard at a long distance, was uttered in plaintive tones by the ogre the moment he was hit with the shaft, led by which you came away leaving Sītā (the princess of Mithilā) alone. (27)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे

एकोनषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ५९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-nine in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षष्ठितमः सर्गः

Canto LX

Uttering a loud wail Śrī Rāma inquires of the trees the whereabouts of Sītā, cries like one distracted and looks about for her again and again

भृशमाव्रजमानस्य तस्याधो वामलोचनम् ।
प्रास्फुरच्चास्खलद् रामो वेपथुश्चास्य जायते ॥ १ ॥

While Śrī Rāma was returning to his hermitage, his lower left eyelid* violently throbbed again and again, he himself stumbled and a tremor ran through his limbs.

(1)

उपालक्ष्य निमित्तानि सोऽशुभानि मुहुर्मुहुः ।
अपि क्षेमं तु सीताया इति वै व्याजहार ह ॥ २ ॥

Observing the evil omens appearing again and again, he instinctively spoke as follows, so the tradition goes: "Is all well with Sītā?"

(2)

त्वरमाणो जगामाथ सीतादर्शनलालसः ।
शून्यमावसथं दृष्ट्वा बभूवोद्विग्नमानसः ॥ ३ ॥

Eager to see Sītā, he went with hasty steps, but he felt perturbed in mind to find the dwelling deserted.

(3)

उद्धमन्निव वेगेन विक्षिपन् रघुनन्दनः ।
तत्र तत्रोदजस्थानमभिवीक्ष्य समन्ततः ॥ ४ ॥
ददर्श पर्णशालां च सीतया रहितां तदा ।

श्रिया विरहितां ध्वस्तां हेमन्ते पद्मिनीमिव ॥ ५ ॥

Appearing on account of his speed as though he were flying and moving his hands etc., with impatience on his not finding Sītā anywhere, nay, closely examining the site of the hut made of leaves all over, on every side, Śrī Rāma (the delight of the Raghus) found the hut at the moment bereft of Sītā and resembling a lotus flower blighted and deprived of its charm in winter.

(4-5)

रुदन्तमिव वृक्षैश्च ग्लानपुष्पमृगद्विजम् ।
श्रिया विहीनं विध्वस्तं संत्यक्तं वनदैवतैः ॥ ६ ॥
विप्रकीर्णाजिनकुशं विप्रविद्धबृसीकटम् ।
दृष्ट्वा शून्योदजस्थानं विललाप पुनः पुनः ॥ ७ ॥

Seeing the site of the lonely hut desolate and shorn of its charm, deserted by the sylvan deities and crying as it were through its creaking trees, its flowers faded, deer and birds ill at ease, deerskin and blades of Kuśa grass scattered all around and seats of fresh grass and mats lying in disorder, he wailed again and again as follows :

(6-7)

हृता मृता वा नष्टा वा भक्षिता वा भविष्यति ।
निलीनाप्यथवा भीरुरथवा वनमाश्रिता ॥ ८ ॥

"The timid lady Sītā must have been carried away or devoured or is dead or lost in the way or she lies hidden somewhere out of fun or has entered the forest.

(8)

गता विचेतुं पुष्पाणि फलान्यपि च वा पुनः ।
अथवा पद्मिनीं याता जलार्थं वा नदीं गता ॥ ९ ॥

"Or she has gone out to pluck flowers or even fruits for that matter or has gone to the lotus pond for a bath or to the river to bring water."

(9)

यत्नान्मृगयमाणस्तु नाससाद वने प्रियाम् ।
शोकरक्तेक्षणः श्रीमानुन्मत्त इव लक्ष्यते ॥ १० ॥

Though looking about for her in that forest with effort, he did not find his darling. His eyes red through grief, the glorious one looked as though gone mad.

(10)

* We read in books on the science of omens 'अधोवामदृशः स्फूर्ती बह्वनिष्टं भजेत्पुमान्'.

"When a man's left lower eyelid throbs, he meets with grave danger."

प्रयाणकाले सखलनं करोतीष्टस्य भञ्जनम् ।

"The act of stumbling at the time of one's leaving a place is sure to shatter one's cherished purpose."

वृक्षाद् वृक्षं प्रधावन् स गिरींश्चापि नदीनदम्।

बभ्राम विलपन् रामः शोकपङ्कगवप्लुतः ॥ ११ ॥

Running fast from tree to tree the said Śrī Rāma roamed about along the slopes of mountains as well as on the banks of rivers and streams wailing and accosting trees as below, plunged as he was in an ocean of bog in the form of grief : (11)

अस्ति कच्चित्त्वया दृष्टा सा कदम्बप्रिया प्रिया।

कदम्ब यदि जानीषे शंस सीतां शुभाननाम् ॥ १२ ॥

“Was my celebrated darling, who is so fond of Kadamba flowers, seen by you, O Kadamba? If you know anything about Sītā of charming countenance, pray, tell me. (12)

स्निग्धपल्लवसंकाशां पीतकौशेयवासिनीम्।

शंसस्व यदि सा दृष्टा बिल्व बिल्वोपमस्तनी ॥ १३ ॥

“If Sītā, whose breasts resemble a Bilva fruit in shape, O Bilva, was seen by you, please tell me the whereabouts of that lady, who is tender as a soft shoot and is clad in yellow silk. (13)

अथवार्जुन शंस त्वं प्रियां तामर्जुनप्रियाम्।

जनकस्य सुता तन्वी यदि जीवति वा न वा ॥ १४ ॥

“Else, O Arjuna, give you me the news of my aforesaid darling, who is fond of Arjuna flowers. Tell me if the frail daughter of Janaka is still alive or not. (14)

ककुभः ककुभोरुं तां व्यक्तं जानाति मैथिलीम्।

लतापल्लवपुष्पाढ्यो भाति ह्येष वनस्पतिः ॥ १५ ॥

“The Kakubha tree evidently knows the aforesaid princess of Mithilā, whose thighs are smooth as the boughs of a Kakubha tree. Enriched with climbers, shoots and blossoms this tree looks charming indeed. (15)

भ्रमरैरुपगीतश्च यथा द्रुमवरो ह्यसि।

एष व्यक्तं विजानाति तिलकस्तिलकप्रियाम् ॥ १६ ॥

“As you are no doubt the foremost of trees, O Tilaka, whose praises are sung by bees humming close by, you the Tilaka tree, evidently know the truth about her,

who is fond of Tilaka flowers. (16)

अशोक शोकापनुद शोकोपहतचेतनम्।

त्वन्नामानं कुरु क्षिप्रं प्रियासंदर्शनेन माम् ॥ १७ ॥

“O Aśoka tree, the dispeller of grief by bringing my darling clearly to my view, make me, whose understanding has been clouded by grief, your namesake soon by ridding me of my grief. (17)

यदि ताल त्वया दृष्टा पक्वतालोपमस्तनी।

कथयस्व वरारोहां कारुण्यं यदि ते मयि ॥ १८ ॥

“O palmyra, if Sītā, whose breasts resemble a ripe palmyra fruit, has been seen by you, pray, give me the news about that lady of excellent limbs, if there is any compassion in your heart for me. (18)

यदि दृष्टा त्वया जम्बो जाम्बूनदसमप्रभा।

प्रियां यदि विजानासि निःशङ्कं कथयस्व मे ॥ १९ ॥

“If, O Jambu (a rose-apple tree), Sītā, who possesses the splendour of gold, has been seen by you or if you know the truth about my darling, pray, let me know without fear. (19)

अहो त्वं कर्णिकाराद्य पुष्पितः शोभसे भृशम्।

कर्णिकारप्रियां साध्वीं शंस दृष्टा यदि प्रिया ॥ २० ॥

“Laden with flowers, O Karṇikāra tree, you look most charming today. Tell me the whereabouts of the virtuous Sītā, who is fond of Karṇikāra flowers, if my darling has been seen by you.” (20)

चूतनीपमहासालान् पनसान् कुरवान् धवान्।

दाडिमानपि तान् गत्वा दृष्ट्वा रामो महायशाः ॥ २१ ॥

बकुलानथ पुन्नागांश्चन्दनान् केतकांस्तथा।

पृच्छन् रामो वने भ्रान्त उन्मत्त इव लक्ष्यते ॥ २२ ॥

Seeing the familiar mango and Nipa trees, gigantic sal trees, jack-fruit and Kurava and Dhava trees as also pomegranate trees, the highly illustrious Śrī Rāma went up to them. Nay, addressing questions to Bakula, Punnāga, sandalwood and Ketaka trees, while roaming about in the forest, Śrī Rāma looked hysterical, as it were. (21-22)

अथवा मृगशावाक्षीं मृग जानासि मैथिलीम्।
मृगविप्रेक्षणी कान्ता मृगीभिः सहिता भवेत्॥ २३ ॥

Addressing the animals of the forest, he said: "O deer, do you know of Sītā, a princess of Mithilā, whose eyes resemble those of a fawn? My darling, who glances round like a female deer, is likely to be with female deer. (23)

गज सा गजनासोरुर्यदि दृष्टा त्वया भवेत्।
तां मन्ये विदितां तुभ्यमाख्याहि वरवारण॥ २४ ॥

"O elephant, tell me if Sītā, whose thighs resemble the proboscis of an elephant (in their tapering shape), has been seen by you? I presume her to be known to you, O excellent elephant! (24)

शार्दूल यदि सा दृष्टा प्रिया चन्द्रनिभानना।
मैथिली मम विस्त्रब्धः कथयस्व न ते भयम्॥ २५ ॥

"Tell me without fear, O tiger, if that darling, the princess of Mithilā, who has a moon-like countenance, has been seen by you? There is no cause for fear to you. (25)

किं धावसि प्रिये नूनं दृष्टासि कमलेक्षणे।
वृक्षैराच्छाद्य चात्मानं किं मां न प्रतिभाषसे॥ २६ ॥

Imagining to see Sītā before him, he addresses her: "Why do you run, my darling? You have undoubtedly been seen by me, O lotus-eyed one ! Screening yourself behind the trees, why do you not answer me? (26)

तिष्ठ तिष्ठ वरारोहे न तेऽस्ति करुणा मयि।
नात्यर्थं हास्यशीलासि किमर्थं मामुपेक्षसे॥ २७ ॥

"Stay, tarry awhile, O Sītā with excellent limbs ! Is there no compassion in your heart for me? You are not excessively given to fun; why then do you disregard me? (27)

पीतकौशेयकेनासि सूचिता वरवर्णिनि।
धावन्त्यपि मया दृष्टा तिष्ठ यद्यस्ति सौहृदम्॥ २८ ॥

"You stand disclosed by your yellow silk garment, O lady with an excellent complexion! You have been seen by me even while running. Therefore, halt if there is any affection left in you for me. (28)

नैव सा नूनमथवा हिंसिता चारुहासिनी।
कृच्छ्रं प्राप्तं न मां नूनं यथोपेक्षितुमर्हति॥ २९ ॥

"Or, it was definitely not Sītā of charming smiles, who has most probably been killed; surely she could not have ignored me, fallen in adversity. (29)

व्यक्तं सा भक्षिता बाला राक्षसैः पिशिताशनैः।
विभज्याङ्गानि सर्वाणि मया विरहिता प्रिया॥ ३० ॥

"Bereft of me, my youthful darling has evidently been devoured by flesh-eating ogres, dividing all her limbs among themselves. (30)

नूनं तच्छुभदन्तोष्ठं सुनासं शुभकुण्डलम्।
पूर्णचन्द्रनिभं ग्रस्तं मुखं निष्प्रभतां गतम्॥ ३१ ॥

"Seized by the ogres, that face of Sītā, which was distinguished by charming teeth and lips and a shapely nose and adorned with beautiful earrings and resembled the full moon, must have surely been eclipsed. (31)

सा हि चम्पकवर्णाभा ग्रीवा ग्रैवेयकोचिता।
कोमला विलपन्त्यास्तु कान्ताया भक्षिता शुभा॥ ३२ ॥

"That lovely and delicate neck, possessing the hue and splendour of a Campaka flower and worthy of being adorned with a necklace, of my wailing darling has undoubtedly been devoured by the ogres. (32)

नूनं विक्षिप्यमाणौ तौ बाहू पल्लवकोमलौ।
भक्षितौ वेपमानाग्रौ सहस्ताभरणाङ्गदौ॥ ३३ ॥

"Being thrown restlessly, those arms of hers, tender as shoots and adorned with bracelets and armlets, with their fore parts trembling through fear have surely been eaten up. (33)

मया विरहिता बाला रक्षसां भक्षणाय वै।
सार्थेनेव परित्यक्ता भक्षिता बहुबान्धवा॥ ३४ ॥

"The youthful lady was left alone by me only for being eaten up by the ogres. Though having numerous kinsfolk, she has been devoured by the ogres like a women deserted by co-travellers. (34)

हा लक्ष्मण महाबाहो पश्यसे त्वं प्रियां क्वचित् ।
 हा प्रिये क्व गता भद्रे हा सीतेति पुनः पुनः ॥ ३५ ॥
 इत्येवं विलपन् रामः परिधावन् वनाद् वनम् ।
 क्वचिदुद्भ्रमते वेगात् क्वचिद् विभ्रमते बलात् ॥ ३६ ॥

“Ah, mighty-armed Lakṣmaṇa, do you perceive my darling anywhere? Ah Sītā, my darling, where have you gone, O blessed one?” Wailing in these words again and again and running about from grove to grove, Śrī Rāma now sprang up with impetuosity and now violently revolved like a whirlwind. (35-36)

क्वचिन्मत्त इवाभाति कान्तान्वेषणतत्परः ।
 स वनानि नदीः शैलान् गिरिप्रस्त्रवणानि च ।
 काननानि च वेगेन भ्रमत्यपरिसंस्थितः ॥ ३७ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे षष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६० ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXI

The quest of Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa for Sītā; not finding her,
 Śrī Rāma gets unnerved

दृष्ट्वाऽऽश्रमपदं शून्यं रामो दशरथात्मजः ।
 रहितां पर्णशालां च प्रविद्धान्यासनानि च ॥ १ ॥
 अदृष्ट्वा तत्र वैदेहीं संनिरीक्ष्य च सर्वशः ।
 उवाच रामः प्राकुश्य प्रगृह्य रुचिरौ भुजौ ॥ २ ॥

Seeing the site of the hermitage desolate, the hut made of leaves deserted and the grassy seats cast away, nay, fully casting his eyes all round and yet not finding Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) there, Śrī Rāma spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa, calling out Sītā at the top of his voice and lifting up his charming arms : (1-2)

क्व नु लक्ष्मण वैदेही कं वा देशमितो गता ।
 केनाहता वा सौमित्रे भक्षिता केन वा प्रिया ॥ ३ ॥

“Where on earth, O Lakṣmaṇa, could

Intent on finding out his darling, he now appeared as though drunk and (now) he would range with rapidity forests, rivers, mountains, cataracts falling from mountains and woodlands too, knowing no rest. (37)

तदा स गत्वा विपुलं महद् वनं
 परीत्य सर्वं त्वथ मैथिलीं प्रति ।

अनिच्छिताशः स चकार मार्गणे

पुनः प्रियायाः परमं परिश्रमम् ॥ ३८ ॥

Then entering the large and dense forest and forthwith ransacking it all with a view to tracing out Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, the aforesaid Śrī Rāma, who had not yet given up hope of finding out Sītā, once more put forth great exertion for tracing out his darling. (38)

Sītā, a princess of the Videha kingdom, be? Nay, to what territory has she gone from this place? Or, by whom, O darling of Sumitrā, has she been borne away or by whom has she been devoured? (3)

वृक्षेणावार्य यदि मां सीते हसितुमिच्छसि ।
 अलं ते हसितेनाद्य मां भजस्व सुदुःखितम् ॥ ४ ॥

(Addressing fantasy of Sītā, he continued) “If, hiding yourself behind a tree, O Sītā, you want to jest with me, have done with your jest today. Pray, betake yourself to me, sore distressed as I am. (4)

यैः परिक्रीडसे सीते विश्वस्तैर्मृगपोतकैः ।
 एते हीनास्त्वया सौम्ये ध्यायन्त्यस्त्राविलेक्षणाः ॥ ५ ॥

“Bereft of you, the fearless offsprings of deer with which you used to sport, O gentle Sītā, are thoughtful, their eyes bedimmed with tears. (5)

सीतया रहितोऽहं वै नहि जीवामि लक्ष्मण ।
वृतं शोकेन महता सीताहरणजेन माम् ॥ ६ ॥
परलोके महाराजो नूनं द्रक्ष्यति मे पिता ।
कथं प्रतिज्ञां संश्रुत्य मया त्वमभियोजितः ॥ ७ ॥
अपूरयित्वा तं कालं मत्सकाशमिहागतः ।
कामवृत्तमनार्यं वा मृषावादिनमेव च ॥ ८ ॥
धिक् त्वामिति परे लोके व्यक्तं वक्ष्यति मे पिता ।
विवशं शोकसंतप्तं दीनं भग्नमनोरथम् ॥ ९ ॥
मामिहोत्सृज्य करुणं कीर्तिर्नरमिवानृजुम् ।
क्व गच्छसि वरारोहे मा मोत्सृज सुमध्यमे ॥ १० ॥

“Deprived of Sītā I shall certainly not survive, O Lakṣmaṇa ! My father, the late emperor, will surely find me in the other world, overwhelmed as I am with excessive grief sprung from abduction of Sītā. ‘How, having plighted your word to remain in exile in the forest for fourteen years, when charged by me to do so, have you sought my presence here without completing the stipulated period of fourteen years? Fie upon you, who are licentious, ignoble as well as a liar.’ In the foregoing words will my father reproach me without doubt in the other world. Deserting at this place me, helpless, tormented with grief, afflicted and pitiable as I am, my aspirations shattered—even as a fair name forsakes a crooked man—where are you going, O lady with charming limbs? Pray, do not, O do not leave me, O lovely Sītā ! (6—10)

त्वया विरहितश्चाहं त्यक्ष्ये जीवितमात्मनः ।
इतीव विलपन् रामः सीतादर्शनलालसः ॥ ११ ॥
न ददर्श सुदुःखार्तो राघवो जनकात्मजाम् ।
अनासादयमानं तं सीतां शोकपरायणाम् ॥ १२ ॥
पङ्कमासाद्य विपुलं सीदन्तमिव कुञ्जरम् ।
लक्ष्मणो राममत्यर्थमुवाच हितकाम्यया ॥ १३ ॥

“Bereft of you I shall yield up my life.” Wailing as aforesaid, Śrī Rāma, who was longing for a sight of Sītā, felt sore stricken with agony. Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) could not, however, see Janaka’s daughter anywhere. To the said Śrī Rāma, who was given over to grief, unable as he was to find Sītā, and resembled an elephant feeling afflicted on getting stuck into a large stretch of marshy land, Lakṣmaṇa spoke as follows out of extreme solicitude for his welfare:

(11—13)

मा विषादं महाबुद्धे कुरु यत्नं मया सह ।
इदं गिरिवरं वीर बहुकन्दरशोभितम् ॥ १४ ॥

“Don’t give way to despondency, O prince possessed of great wisdom! Put forth endeavour with me. The yonder crown of mountains, O heroic prince, is adorned with many caves. (14)

प्रियकाननसंचारा वनोन्मत्ता च मैथिली ।
सा वनं वा प्रविष्टा स्यान्नलिनीं वा सुपुष्पिताम् ॥ १५ ॥
सरितं वापि सम्प्राप्ता मीनवञ्जलसेविताम् ।
वित्रासयितुकामा वा लीना स्यात् कानने क्वचित् ॥ १६ ॥
जिज्ञासमाना वैदेही त्वां मां च पुरुषर्षभ ।
तस्या ह्यन्वेषणे श्रीमन् क्षिप्रमेव यतावहे ॥ १७ ॥

“And Sītā, a princess of Mithilā, is fond of frequenting groves and is enraptured at the sight of a forest. As such she must have penetrated deep into the forest or dived into a lotus pond abounding in lotus flowers or may have reached a river teeming with fishes and cane. Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, may be hiding somewhere in a woodland with intent to alarm us and in order to test your and mine capacity to trace her out, O jewel among men ! Hence, O glorious prince, let us both strive to search for her at once. (15—17)

वनं सर्वं विचिनुवो यत्र सा जनकात्मजा ।
मन्यसे यदि काकुत्स्थ मा स्म शोके मनः कृथाः ॥ १८ ॥

“We shall explore the whole forest where the said daughter of Janaka is likely to be, if you deem fit, O scion of Kākutstha ! Pray, do not give over your mind to grief.”

(18)

एवमुक्तः स सौहार्दाल्लक्ष्मणेन समाहितः ।
सह सौमित्रिणा रामो विचेतुमुपचक्रमे ॥ १९ ॥

Getting composed when exhorted in these words by Lakṣmaṇa out of affection, Śrī Rāma with Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) proceeded to search for Sitā. (19)

तौ वनानि गिरींश्चैव सरितश्च सरांसि च ।
निखिलेन विचिन्वन्तौ सीतां दशरथात्मजौ ॥ २० ॥

Looking about for Sitā, the aforesaid two sons of Daśaratha fully explored forests as well as mountains, rivers and lakes too. (20)

तस्य शैलस्य सानूनि शिलाश्च शिखराणि च ।
निखिलेन विचिन्वन्तौ नैव तामभिजग्मतुः ॥ २१ ॥

Nay, even while ransacking the tablelands of the Prasravaṇa mountain as well as its rocks and peaks in their entirety, they did not meet her at all. (21)

विचित्य सर्वतः शैलं रामो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ।
नेह पश्यामि सौमित्रे वैदेहीं पर्वते शुभाम् ॥ २२ ॥

Having searched the mountain on all sides Śrī Rāma said to Lakṣmaṇa, "I do not behold, O darling of Sumitrā, the lovely Sitā (a princess of the Videha kingdom) on this mountain anywhere. (22)

ततो दुःखाभिसंतप्तो लक्ष्मणो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
विचरन् दण्डकारण्यं भ्रातरं दीप्ततेजसम् ॥ २३ ॥

Overwhelmed with agony, while ranging the forest of Daṇḍaka, Lakṣmaṇa thereupon submitted as follows to his eldest brother, Śrī Rāma, of flaming energy: (23)

प्राप्यसे त्वं महाप्राज्ञ मैथिलीं जनकात्मजाम् ।
यथा विष्णुर्महाबाहुर्बलिं बद्ध्वा महीमिमाम् ॥ २४ ॥

"You will recover Sitā (a princess of Mithilā), Janaka's daughter, O highly sagacious prince, even as the mighty-armed Lord Viṣṇu, in the form of the Divine Dwarf, got back this globe for his elder brother, Indra, after tying down Bali as a captive." (24)

एवमुक्तस्तु वीरेण लक्ष्मणेन स राघवः ।
उवाच दीनया वाचा दुःखाभिहतचेतनः ॥ २५ ॥

Consoled in these words by the gallant Lakṣmaṇa, the aforesaid Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for his part, whose understanding had been dulled by agony, replied in a piteous tone : (25)

वनं सुविचितं सर्वं पद्मिन्यः फुल्लपङ्कजाः ।
गिरिश्रायं महाप्राज्ञ बहुकन्दरनिर्झरः ।
नहि पश्यामि वैदेहीं प्राणेभ्योऽपि गरीयसीम् ॥ २६ ॥

"The entire forest has been fully explored as well as the lotus ponds with expanded lotuses. This mountain (Prasravaṇa) too, abounding in caves and cascades, has been thoroughly searched, O highly wise brother! But I do not find Sitā (a princess of the Videha territory), who is more valuable to me even than my life." (26)

एवं स विलपन् रामः सीताहरणकर्षितः ।
दीनः शोकसमाविष्टो मुहूर्तं विह्वलोऽभवत् ॥ २७ ॥

Wailing thus, Śrī Rāma, who looked emaciated due to agony caused by the abduction of Sitā and felt miserable, overwhelmed as he was with grief, was beside himself for a while. (27)

स विह्वलितसर्वाङ्गो गतबुद्धिर्विचेतनः ।
निषसादातुरो दीनो निःश्वस्याशीतमायतम् ॥ २८ ॥

Drawing hot and deep breaths, Śrī Rāma, whose all limbs had become out of control, nay, who had lost his reason and stood motionless, and who was feeling over-anxious and miserable, gave way to despondency. (28)

बहुशः स तु निःश्वस्य रामो राजीवलोचनः ।
हा प्रियेति विचुक्रोश बहुशो बाष्पगद्गदः ॥ २९ ॥

Sighing again and again, the aforesaid Śrī Rāma, for his part, who had lotus-like eyes and had his voice choked through tears, repeatedly cried out : "Ah, my darling !" (29)

तं सान्त्वयामास ततो लक्ष्मणः प्रियबान्धवम् ।
बहुप्रकारं शोकार्तः प्रश्रितः प्रश्रिताञ्जलिः ॥ ३० ॥

Thereupon Lakṣmaṇa, though himself stricken with grief, humbly comforted with folded hands in many ways his beloved kinsman, Śrī Rāma. (30)

अनादृत्य तु तद् वाक्यं लक्ष्मणोष्ठपुटच्युतम् ।
अपश्यंस्तां प्रियां सीतां प्राक्रोशत् स पुनः पुनः ॥ ३१ ॥

Turning a deaf ear to that submission, issued from the lips of Lakṣmaṇa, which looked like a cup of tender leaves, Śrī Rāma, however, continued to cry again and again, unable as he was to see his aforesaid darling, Sitā. (31)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे एकषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-one in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्विषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXII

Rāma's Lament

सीतामपश्यन् धर्मात्मा शोकोपहतचेतनः ।
विललाप महाबाहू रामः कमललोचनः ॥ १ ॥

Not perceiving Sitā, Śrī Rāma, whose mind was set on virtue, and who was distinguished by mighty arms and lotus-like eyes, began to wail, his understanding having been dulled by grief. (1)

पश्यन्निव च तां सीतामपश्यन्मन्मथार्दितः ।
उवाच राघवो वाक्यं विलापाश्रयदुर्वचम् ॥ २ ॥

As though seeing her, seized as he was with hallucination, though actually not seeing Sitā, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), who was tormented with love, uttered the following words, which could not be easily articulated due to his sobs: (2)

त्वमशोकस्य शाखाभिः पुष्पप्रियतरा प्रिये ।
आवृणोषि शरीरं ते मम शोकविवर्धनी ॥ ३ ॥

“Very fond of flowers, you are hiding your body behind the boughs of an Aśoka tree, thereby augmenting my grief all the more, my darling ! (3)

कदलीकाण्डसदृशौ कदल्या संवृतावुभौ ।
ऊरू पश्यामि ते देवि नासि शक्ता निगूहितुम् ॥ ४ ॥

“I descry, O queen, both your thighs, even though screened with the plantain tree, resembling as they do the stem of a plantain tree; you are no longer able to hide them from my view ! (4)

कर्णिकारवनं भद्रे हसन्ती देवि सेवसे ।
अलं ते परिहासेन मम बाधावहेन वै ॥ ५ ॥

“Jestingly you have taken cover in the grove of Karṇikāra trees, O blessed lady ! But have done with your jest, which is causing annoyance to me. (5)

विशेषेणाश्रमस्थाने हासोऽयं न प्रशस्यते ।
अवगच्छामि ते शीलं परिहासप्रियं प्रिये ॥ ६ ॥

“Such fun is not praiseworthy in a hermitage in particular, although I know your nature, which is fond of sport, O darling ! (6)

आगच्छ त्वं विशालाक्षि शून्योऽयमुटजस्तव ।
सुव्यक्तं राक्षसैः सीता भक्षिता वा हतापि वा ॥ ७ ॥

न हि सा विलपन्तं मामुपसम्प्रेति लक्ष्मण ।
एतानि मृगयूथानि साश्रुनेत्राणि लक्ष्मण ॥ ८ ॥

शंसन्तीव हि मे देवीं भक्षितां रजनीचरैः ।
हा ममार्ये क्व यातासि हा साध्वि वरवर्णिनि ॥ ९ ॥

“Return, O large-eyed one ! This hut of yours is desolate.” Getting disillusioned soon after, he said to Lakṣmaṇa: “Clearly enough, Sitā has either been devoured or borne away by ogres; for she does not hasten to me, O Lakṣmaṇa, even though I am wailing for her. These herds of deer with tearful eyes inform me, as it were, of my queen having actually been devoured by ogres, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (Addressing Sītā, he continued :) Ah my worthy queen, where have you gone? Ah, pious lady with excellent complexion ! (7—9)

हा सकामाद्य कैकेयी देवि मेऽद्य भविष्यति ।
सीतया सह निर्यातो विना सीतामुपागतः ॥ १० ॥
कथं नाम प्रवेक्ष्यामि शून्यमन्तःपुरं मम ।
निर्वीर्यं इति लोको मां निर्दयश्चेति वक्ष्यति ॥ ११ ॥

“Alas, my queen, Kaikeyī will have her desire fulfilled this day. Come away from Ayodhyā with Sītā and returned to Ayodhyā without Sītā, how, I wonder, shall I be able to enter my gynaeceum, which will be desolate now? People will brand me as powerless and merciless. (10-11)

कातरत्वं प्रकाशं हि सीतापनयनेन मे ।
निवृत्तवनवासश्च जनकं मिथिलाधिपम् ॥ १२ ॥
कुशलं परिपृच्छन्तं कथं शक्ष्ये निरीक्षितुम् ।
विदेहराजो नूनं मां दृष्ट्वा विरहितं तया ॥ १३ ॥
सुताविनाशसंतप्तो मोहस्य वशमेष्यति ।
अथवा न गमिष्यामि पुरीं भरतपालिताम् ॥ १४ ॥

“My cowardice too will be manifest through the abduction of Sītā. Again, how, when my exile is over, shall I stare Janaka, the suzerain lord of Mithilā, in the face as he lovingly inquires about my welfare? Agonized by the death of his daughter, on seeing me bereft of her, the ruler of the Videha kingdom will surely fall a prey to infatuation. “Or I shall never return to the city of Ayodhyā, being ruled over by Bharata. (12—14)

स्वर्गोऽपि हि तया हीनः शून्य एव मतो मम ।
तन्मामुत्सृज्य हि वने गच्छायोध्यापुरीं शुभाम् ॥ १५ ॥

“Devoid of her heaven too is deemed by me as desolate without doubt. Therefore, leaving me in the forest itself, O Lakṣmaṇa ! return alone to the lovely city of Ayodhyā. (15)

न त्वहं तां विना सीतां जीवेयं हि कथंचन ।
गाढमाश्लिष्य भरतो वाच्यो मद्वचनात् त्वया ॥ १६ ॥

“I for my part may not actually survive without the said Sītā in any case. Closely embracing Bharata, he should be spoken to by you in my name as follows : (16)

अनुज्ञातोऽसि रामेण पालयेति वसुंधराम् ।
अम्बा च मम कैकेयी सुमित्रा च त्वया विभो ॥ १७ ॥
कौसल्या च यथान्यायमभिवाद्या ममाज्ञया ।
रक्षणीया प्रयत्नेन भवता सूक्तचारिणा ॥ १८ ॥

“‘Rule over the earth. You have been permitted by Śrī Rāma to do so.’ Again, my brother, Kaikeyī, as well as Sumitrā as also Kausalyā should be properly greeted by you in obedience to my command, O powerful brother, and should be protected by you with diligence, following good counsel. (17-18)

सीतायाश्च विनाशोऽयं मम चामित्रसूदन ।
विस्तरेण जनन्या मे विनिवेद्यस्त्वया भवेत् ॥ १९ ॥

“The death of Sītā, which has already taken place, as also mine, which is going to happen very soon, should be reported in extenso to my mother, Kausalyā, by you O destroyer of foes !” (19)

इति विलपति राघवे तु दीने
वनमुपगम्य तया विना सुकेश्या ।
भयविकलमुखस्तु लक्ष्मणोऽपि
व्यथितमना भृशमातुरो बभूव ॥ २० ॥

While, having entered the forest, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) was wailing as aforesaid, feeling miserable in the absence of that lady of lovely locks, Lakṣmaṇa too for his part, whose countenance looked withered through fear, afflicted as he was in mind, grew extremely sick at heart. (20)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे द्विषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-two in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXIII

Śrī Rāma's Lament Continue

स राजपुत्रः प्रियया विहीनः
 शोकेन मोहेन च पीड्यमानः ।
 विषादयन् भ्रातरमार्तरूपो
 भूयो विषादं प्रविवेश तीव्रम् ॥ १ ॥

Filling his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, with despondency, the aforesaid prince, Śrī Rāma, who was being tormented with grief and infatuation, bereft as he was of his beloved consort and wore a distressed air, once more sank into the slough of acute despondency. (1)

स लक्ष्मणं शोकवशाभिपन्नं
 शोके निमग्नो विपुले तु रामः ।
 उवाच वाक्यं व्यसनानुरूप-
 मुष्णं विनिःश्वस्य रुदन् सशोकम् ॥ २ ॥

Drawing a hot and deep breath, and crying with grief, Śrī Rāma for his part, who was plunged in profound grief, addressed to Lakṣmaṇa, who had likewise fallen a prey to grief, the following words befitting the misfortune in the shape of his sister-in-law's abduction that had befallen him : (2)

न मद्विधो दुष्कृतकर्मकारी
 मन्ये द्वितीयोऽस्ति वसुंधरायाम् ।
 शोकानुशोको हि परम्पराया
 मामेति भिन्दन् हृदयं मनश्च ॥ ३ ॥

"I believe none else on earth has perpetrated sinful deeds as I have done, in that grief after grief is overtaking me in uninterrupted succession, breaking my heart and disturbing the mind. (3)

पूर्वं मया नूनमभीप्सितानि
 पापानि कर्माण्यसकृत्कृतानि ।
 तत्रायमद्यापतितो विपाको
 दुःखेन दुःखं यदहं विशामि ॥ ४ ॥

"Surely in my previous existences sinful deeds, fondly designed, were perpetrated by me more than once. The fruit of some of them has appeared suddenly before me today in that through one sorrow I pass to another. (4)

राज्यप्रणाशः स्वजनैर्वियोगः
 पितुर्विनाशो जननीवियोगः ।
 सर्वाणि मे लक्ष्मण शोकवेग-मापूरयन्ति प्रविचिन्तितानि ॥ ५ ॥

"The loss of sovereignty, separation from my kith and kin, the demise of my father, the parting from my mother, Kausalyā—all these, when pondered deeply over, aggravate the force of my grief, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (5)

सर्वं तु दुःखं मम लक्ष्मणेदं
 शान्तं शरीरे वनमेत्य क्लेशम् ।
 सीतावियोगात् पुनरप्युदीर्णं
 काष्ठैरिवाग्निः सहसोपदीप्तः ॥ ६ ॥

"All this agony, which was followed by bodily discomfort, O Lakṣmaṇa, on my reaching the forest had disappeared on account of Sītā's presence. It has flared up once more consequent on separation from Sītā even as a fire would burst into flames all of a sudden with the addition of pieces of firewood. (6)

सा नूनमार्या मम राक्षसेन
 ह्यभ्याहता खं समुपेत्य भीरुः ।
 अपस्वरं सुस्वरविप्रलापा
 भयेन विक्रन्दितवत्यभीक्ष्णम् ॥ ७ ॥

"On reaching the skies when actually carried away by force by an ogre through the air-space, that noble and timid consort of mine, who used to converse so sweetly, must have surely cried again and again in a dissonant voice from fear. (7)

तौ लोहितस्य प्रियदर्शनस्य
 सदोचितावुत्तमचन्दनस्य ।

वृत्तौ स्तनौ शोणितपङ्कदिधौ
नूनं प्रियाया मम नाभिपातः ॥ ८ ॥

“Those spherical breasts of my beloved spouse, which were ever worthy of being smeared with excellent red sandal-paste, so lovely to look at, must surely have been soiled with thickened blood (when put to the knife for being eaten up). Yet my accursed body does not fall to pieces ! (8)

तत् श्लक्ष्णसुव्यक्तमृदुप्रलापं
तस्या मुखं कुञ्चितकेशभारम् ।
रक्षोवशं नूनमुपागताया
न भ्राजते राहुमुखे यथेन्दुः ॥ ९ ॥

“That face—which uttered bland, very distinct and soft words and bore a mass of curly hair on its head—of Sītā, who has surely fallen into the clutches of ogres, no longer shines any more than the moon in the mouth of Rāhu (the deity presiding over a planet of the same name, which is now identified with the shadow of the earth falling on the orb of the moon). (9)

तां हारपाशस्य सदोचितान्तां
ग्रीवां प्रियाया मम सुव्रतायाः ।
रक्षांसि नूनं परिपीतवन्ति
शून्ये हि भित्त्वा रुधिराशनानि ॥ १० ॥

“Having cut open in a lonely place the shapely neck of my beloved spouse of noble vows—whose circumference ever deserved to be adorned with a beautiful string of pearls: ogres have surely, I presume, drunk to their heart’s content beverages in the shape of her blood. (10)

मया विहीना विजने वने सा
रक्षोभिराहत्य विकृष्यमाणा ।
नूनं विनादं कुररीव दीना
सा मुक्तवत्यायतकान्तनेत्रा ॥ ११ ॥

“Being dragged by ogres after surrounding her, bereft of me, in the lonely forest that lady of large and lovely eyes must have surely uttered a loud cry like a female osprey, afflicted as she was. (11)

अस्मिन् मया सार्धमुदारशीला
शिलातले पूर्वमुपोपविष्टा ।
कान्तस्मिता लक्ष्मण जातहासा
त्वामाह सीता बहुवाक्यजातम् ॥ १२ ॥

“Seated close to me by my side on this slab of rock and seized with laughter in the days gone by, Sītā, who was blessed with a generous disposition and had a lovely smile on her lips, talked to you of many things, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (12)

गोदावरीयं सरितां वरिष्ठा
प्रिया प्रियाया मम नित्यकालम् ।
अप्यत्र गच्छेदिति चिन्तयामि
नैकाकिनी याति हि सा कदाचित् ॥ १३ ॥

“This Godāvari, the foremost of rivers, has been the favourite resort of my darling at all times. I think she might have gone that side; but she never sought its bank alone. (13)

पद्मानना पद्मपलाशनेत्रा
पद्मानि वानेतुमभिप्रयाता ।
तदप्ययुक्तं नहि सा कदाचि-
न्मया विना गच्छति पङ्कजानि ॥ १४ ॥

“Possessed as she is of a lotus-like countenance and eyes resembling the petals of a lotus, she might have probably sallied forth to gather lotuses. That too, however, is absurd; for she would never approach lotuses without me. (14)

कामं त्विदं पुष्पितवृक्षषण्डं
नानाविधैः पक्षिगणैरुपेतम् ।
वनं प्रयाता नु तदप्ययुक्त-
मेकाकिनी सातिबिभेति भीरुः ॥ १५ ॥

“It is quite probable that she has left for the yonder forest containing clusters of trees in blossom and visited by flocks of birds of various species. That too, however, is improbable; for, the timid lady felt very much afraid when left alone. (15)

आदित्य भो लोककृताकृतज्ञ
लोकस्य सत्यानृतकर्मसाक्षिन् ।

मम प्रिया सा क्व गता हता वा

शंसस्व मे शोकहतस्य सर्वम् ॥ १६ ॥

(Addressing the sun-god) “O sun-god (son of Aditi), the knower of what has been done and what has not been done in the world and the witness of the good and evil deeds of the people, where has my darling, Sitā, gone or has been borne away? Pray, let me know everything, stricken with sorrow as I am. (16)

लोकेषु सर्वेषु न नास्ति किञ्चिद्

यत् ते न नित्यं विदितं भवेत् तत्।

शंसस्व वायो कुलपालिनीं तां

मृता हता वा पथि वर्तते वा ॥ १७ ॥

(Addressing the wind-god) “There is nothing, absolutely nothing, in all the worlds, which is not always known to you. Pray, give me news about Sitā—(that guardian angel of my race)—whether she is dead or has been borne away or is on her way to some unknown destination, having been carried away by some desperado.” (17)

इतीव तं शोकविधेयदेहं

रामं विसंज्ञं विलपन्तमेव।

उवाच सौमित्रिदीनसत्त्वो

न्याय्ये स्थितः कालयुतं च वाक्यम् ॥ १८ ॥

To Śrī Rāma, who had been deprived of his understanding, his body having been utterly overpowered by grief, even while he was wailing as aforesaid, Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) who was positive in spirit and ever stuck to the right path, tendered the following opportune advice: (18)

शोकं विसृज्याद्य धृतिं भजस्व

सोत्साहता चास्तु विमार्गणेऽस्याः।

उत्साहवन्तो हि नरा न लोके

सीदन्ति कर्मस्वतिदुष्करेषु ॥ १९ ॥

“Casting off grief, take heart now. And let vigorousness be brought to bear upon the quest for Sitā: for men who are full of vigour never lose heart even when engaged in pursuits which are most difficult to carry through.” (19)

इतीव

सौमित्रिमुदग्रपौरुषं

ब्रुवन्तमार्तो रघुवंशवर्धनः।

न चिन्तयामास धृतिं विमुक्तवान्

पुनश्च दुःखं महदभ्युपागमत् ॥ २० ॥

Śrī Rāma (the promoter of Raghu's race), who felt distressed due to the disappearance of Sitā, took no notice of Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), who was speaking as aforesaid and was possessed of great manliness, lost courage once for all and once more fell a prey to deep agony. (20)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे

त्रिषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-three in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुःषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXIV

Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa carry on the search for Sītā; Śrī Rāma gives vent to his grief over her disappearance; catching a hint from the deer, the two brothers proceed in a southerly direction; Śrī Rāma shows his anger towards the mountain; descrying the flowers dropped from the person of Sītā and particles of her ornaments as well as the vestiges of an encounter, Śrī Rāma ventilates his anger towards all the three worlds including gods

स दीनो दीनया वाचा लक्ष्मणं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
शीघ्रं लक्ष्मण जानीहि गत्वा गोदावरीं नदीम् ॥ १ ॥
अपि गोदावरीं सीता पद्मान्यानयितुं गता ।
एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण लक्ष्मणः पुनरेव हि ॥ २ ॥
नदीं गोदावरीं रम्यां जगाम लघुविक्रमः ।
तां लक्ष्मणस्तीर्थवतीं विचित्वा राममब्रवीत् ॥ ३ ॥

Feeling miserable, Śrī Rāma in piteous accents spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa :
“Proceeding apace to the Godāvarī river, O Lakṣmaṇa, find out if Sītā has repaired to the Godāvarī to gather lotuses.” Commanded thus by Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa for his part readily sought with quick paces once more the delightful Godāvarī river. Having explored the river, provided with many excellent descents, Lakṣmaṇa submitted as follows to Śrī Rāma : (1—3)

नैनां पश्यामि तीर्थेषु क्रोशतो न शृणोति मे ।
कं नु सा देशमापन्ना वैदेही क्लेशनाशिनी ॥ ४ ॥

“I did not find her at any of the many descents nor did she hear my crying even as I called her out by name. I wonder to what region Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), who used to drive away all agony by her very presence, has gone. (4)

नहि तं वेद्मि वै राम यत्र सा तनुमध्यमा ।
लक्ष्मणस्य वचः श्रुत्वा दीनः संतापमोहितः ॥ ५ ॥
रामः समभिक्राम स्वयं गोदावरीं नदीम् ।
स तामुपस्थितो रामः क्व सीतेत्येवमब्रवीत् ॥ ६ ॥

“I have no knowledge whatever of the region where that lady of slender waist may be, O Rāma.” Distressed to hear the report of Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma, who felt distracted through agony, himself sallied forth towards the Godāvarī river. Having reached the river, Śrī Rāma spoke to her as follows : “Where is Sītā?” (5-6)

भूतानि राक्षसेन्द्रेण वधार्येण हतामपि ।
न तां शशंसू रामाय तथा गोदावरी नदी ॥ ७ ॥

Even living beings (questioned by him before) did not report to Śrī Rāma about her having been borne away by Rāvaṇa, the king of ogres, who deserved death at his hands and so the river Godāvarī too kept mum on the point. (7)

ततः प्रचोदिता भूतैः शंस चास्मै प्रियामिति ।
न च सा ह्यवदत् सीतां पृष्टा रामेण शोचता ॥ ८ ॥

Thereupon the river was requested by the elements in the following words: “Pray, give him news about his beloved spouse.” Even though questioned by the grieving Śrī Rāma, the river, however, did not say anything about Sītā. (8)

रावणस्य च तद्रूपं कर्मापि च दुरात्मनः ।
ध्यात्वा भयात् तु वैदेहीं सा नदी न शशंस ह ॥ ९ ॥

Nay, recollecting that terrible form as well as the deed of the evil-minded Rāvaṇa, the said river for her part did not speak about Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) for fear of Rāvaṇa : so the tradition goes. (9)

निराशस्तु तथा नद्या सीताया दर्शने कृतः ।

उवाच रामः सौमित्रिं सीतादर्शनकर्षितः ॥ १० ॥

Disappointed by that river with regard to the sight of Sītā, Śrī Rāma for his part, who looked emaciated due to the disappearance of Sītā, spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) : (10)

एषा गोदावरी सौम्य किञ्चिन् प्रतिभाषते ।

किं नु लक्ष्मण वक्ष्यामि समेत्य जनकं वचः ॥ ११ ॥

मातरं चैव वैदेह्या विना तामहमप्रियम् ।

या मे राज्यविहीनस्य वने वन्येन जीवतः ॥ १२ ॥

सर्वं व्यपानयच्छोकं वैदेही क्व नु सा गता ।

ज्ञातिवर्गविहीनस्य वैदेहीमप्यपश्यतः ॥ १३ ॥

मन्ये दीर्घा भविष्यन्ति रात्रयो मम जाग्रतः ।

मन्दाकिनीं जनस्थानमिमं प्रस्त्रवणं गिरिम् ॥ १४ ॥

सर्वाण्यनुचरिष्यामि यदि सीता हि लभ्यते ।

एते महामृगा वीर मामीक्षन्ते पुनः पुनः ॥ १५ ॥

वक्तुकामा इह हि मे इङ्गितान्युपलक्ष्ये ।

तांस्तु दृष्ट्वा नरव्याघ्रो राघवः प्रत्युवाच ह ॥ १६ ॥

क्व सीतेति निरीक्षन् वै बाष्पसंरुद्धया गिरा ।

एवमुक्ता नरेन्द्रेण ते मृगाः सहसोत्थिताः ॥ १७ ॥

दक्षिणाभिमुखाः सर्वे दर्शयन्तो नभःस्थलम् ।

मैथिली ह्रियमाणा सा दिशं यामभ्यपद्यत ॥ १८ ॥

तेन मार्गेण गच्छन्तो निरीक्षन्ते नराधिपम् ।

येन मार्गं च भूमिं च निरीक्षन्ते स्म ते मृगाः ॥ १९ ॥

पुनर्नदन्तो गच्छन्ति लक्ष्मणेनोपलक्षिताः ।

तेषां वचनसर्वस्वं लक्षयामास चेङ्गितम् ॥ २० ॥

“This Godāvarī does not (choose to) make any reply to me, O gentle brother ! I wonder how I shall be able to break, O Lakṣmaṇa, the unpalatable news of Sītā’s death to King Janaka (my father in-law) on meeting him as well as the mother of Sītā (a Princess of the Videha kingdom), without Sītā? I wonder where has that princess of the Videha territory gone, who beguiled all my grief, deprived as I was of sovereignty and was living in the forest on the produce of the forest. I presume nights will be unusually long for me as I shall have to keep awake (during them) due to my not being able to see Sītā (a princess of the Videha kingdom) apart from the fact that I was already bereft of all my kinsfolk. Indeed, I shall attend (as a servant) on the Mandākinī, a river of that name in Janasthāna, on the tract known by the name of Janasthāna as well as on this Prasravaṇa hill if Sītā is found in any of these places. Actually desirous of speaking to me, these large deer, O heroic Lakṣmaṇa, look at me again and again on this spot. I observe indications to this effect in their glances.” Perceiving them eager to speak, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), a tiger among men, for his part, said to them, they say, in a voice choked with tears, “Where is Sītā?” and kept looking intently with a view to reading their mind through their eyes. Questioned thus by Śrī Rāma (a ruler of men), the aforesaid deer sprang on their feet all of a sudden and, pointing towards the vault of heaven with their eyes, all turned their heads towards the south thereby indicating that the princess had been borne away in a southerly direction by air. Moving in the direction in which the aforesaid Sītā (a princess of Mithilā) had left while being carried away by Rāvaṇa, they continued to look at Śrī Rāma (the suzerain lord of men). Since they cast their eyes towards the aerial route as also towards the ground and then moved along lowing, they were correctly understood by Lakṣmaṇa. The latter also understood their gesture, which conveyed everything that words could express. (11—20)

उवाच लक्ष्मणो धीमान् ज्येष्ठं भ्रातरमार्तवत् ।

क्व सीतेति त्वया पृष्टा यथेमे सहसोत्थिताः ॥ २१ ॥

दर्शयन्ति क्षितिं चैव दक्षिणां च दिशं मृगाः ।

साधु गच्छावहे देव दिशमेतां च नैर्ऋतीम् ॥ २२ ॥

Like one distressed, the wise Lakṣmaṇa submitted to his eldest brother, Śrī Rāma, as follows : “Inasmuch as, having sprung on their feet all at once when accosted by you in the words : ‘Where is Sītā?’ These deer pointed to the vault of heaven as well as to the southern quarter, we had better move in this south-westerly direction, which is presided over by ogres headed by Nirṛti, my lord ! (21-22)

यदि तस्यागमः कश्चिदार्या वा साथ लक्ष्यते ।
बाढमित्येव काकुत्स्थः प्रस्थितो दक्षिणां दिशम् ॥ २३ ॥
लक्ष्मणानुगतः श्रीमान् वीक्षमाणो वसुंधराम् ।
एवं सम्भाषमाणौ तावन्त्यो न्यं भ्रातरावुभौ ॥ २४ ॥
वसुंधरायां पतितपुष्पमार्गमपश्यताम् ।
पुष्पवृष्टिं निपतितां दृष्ट्वा रामो महीतले ॥ २५ ॥
उवाच लक्ष्मणं वीरो दुःखितो दुःखितं वचः ।
अभिजानामि पुष्पाणि तानीमानीह लक्ष्मण ॥ २६ ॥
अपि न दद्धानि वैदेह्या मया दत्तानि कानने ।
मन्ये सूर्यश्च वायुश्च मेदिनी च यशस्विनी ॥ २७ ॥
अभिरक्षन्ति पुष्पाणि प्रकुर्वन्तो मम प्रियम् ।
एवमुक्त्वा महाबाहुर्लक्ष्मणं पुरुषर्षभम् ॥ २८ ॥
उवाच रामो धर्मात्मा गिरिं प्रस्त्रवणाकुलम् ।
कच्चित् क्षितिभृतां नाथ दृष्ट्वा सर्वाङ्गसुन्दरी ॥ २९ ॥
रामा रम्ये वनोददेशे मया विरहिता त्वया ।
कुब्धोऽब्रवीद् गिरिं तत्र सिंहः क्षुद्रमृगं यथा ॥ ३० ॥
तां हेमवर्णां हेमाङ्गीं सीतां दर्शय पर्वत ।
यावत् सानूनि सर्वाणि न ते विध्वंसयाम्यहम् ॥ ३१ ॥

“Perchance some trace of Sītā may be found or that noble lady herself may come to our view.” Saying “All right !” and nothing more and gazing on the earth, the glorious Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha), followed by Lakṣmaṇa, set out in a southerly direction. Conversing with each other as aforesaid, both those brothers saw a track on the earth with flowers scattered on it. Seeing a shower of flowers fallen on the earth’s surface, the heroic Śrī Rāma, who was full of agony, spoke as follows to the afflicted Lakṣmaṇa : “I recognize these flowers. The flowers lying here, O Lakṣmaṇa, were given by me in the forest to Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) and tied by her on her hair. I believe the sun-god and the wind-god as well as the illustrious Mother Earth preserved the flowers from decay in order kindly to do what is pleasing to me.”

Having spoken as aforesaid to Lakṣmaṇa; the flower of men, the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma, whose mind was set on virtue, accosted the mountain, which was full of cascades (and hence known by the name of Prasravaṇa), as follows : “Was a young lady comely of every limb, bereft of me, seen by you in a delightful part of this forest, O lord of mountains?” Provoked to anger (on not getting an answer) Śrī Rāma on that spot challenged the mountain (in the following words) as a lion would a petty deer : “Show to me Sītā, possessing a golden hue and endowed with golden limbs, before I shatter all your crests, O mountain !” (23—31)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण पर्वतो मैथिलीं प्रति ।
दर्शयन्निव तां सीतां नादर्शयत राघवे ॥ ३२ ॥

Though seeming to reveal that princess of Mithilā (in the shape of some tokens) when threatened as aforesaid by Śrī Rāma, the mountain for its part did not actually show Sītā to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu). (32)

ततो दाशरथी राम उवाच च शिलोच्चयम् ।
मम बाणाग्निनिर्दग्धो भस्मीभूतो भविष्यसि ॥ ३३ ॥

Thereupon Śrī Rāma (son of Daśaratha) once more said to the rocky mass, “Consumed by the fire of my shafts you will be reduced to ashes in no time. (33)

असेव्यः सर्वतश्चैव निस्तृणद्रुमपल्लवः ।
इमां वा सरितं चाद्य शोषयिष्यामि लक्ष्मण ॥ ३४ ॥
यदि नाख्याति मे सीतामद्य चन्द्रनिभाननाम् ।
एवं प्ररुषितो रामो दिधक्षन्निव चक्षुषा ॥ ३५ ॥

“Nay, stripped of all grass, trees and leaves, you will become uninhabitable on all sides. Turning to Lakṣmaṇa, he continued: Nay, I shall even dry up this Godāvarī river today, O Lakṣmaṇa, if it does not tell me the whereabouts of Sītā of moon-like countenance.” Thus enraged Śrī Rāma looked at the river as though he would consume it with his fiery eye. (34-35)

ददर्श भूमौ निष्क्रान्तं राक्षसस्य पदं महत् ।
 त्रस्ताया रामकाक्षिण्याः प्रधावन्त्या इतस्ततः ॥ ३६ ॥
 राक्षसेनानुसृप्ताया वैदेह्याश्च पदानि तु ।
 स समीक्ष्य परिक्रान्तं सीताया राक्षसस्य च ॥ ३७ ॥
 भग्नं धनुश्च तूणी च विकीर्णं बहुधा रथम् ।
 सम्भ्रान्तहृदयो रामः शशंस भ्रातरं प्रियम् ॥ ३८ ॥

In the meantime he saw imprinted on the ground the enormous foot of an ogre. Nay, he also beheld the footprints of Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) running fast terrified hither and thither, when chased by the ogre, and longing to meet Śrī Rāma. Perplexed at heart to observe the foot-prints of Sītā as well as of an ogre as also a shattered bow and a quiver and a chariot thrown about in parts, Śrī Rāma spoke as follows to his beloved brother, Lakṣmaṇa: (36—38)

पश्य लक्ष्मण वैदेह्या कीर्णाः कनकबिन्दवः ।
 भूषणानां हि सौमित्रे माल्यानि विविधानि च ॥ ३९ ॥

“See, O Lakṣmaṇa, that particles of gold forming parts of ornaments of Sītā (a princess of the Videha kingdom) as also flowers of various kinds are lying scattered on the ground, O son of Sumitrā ! (39)

तप्तबिन्दुनिकाशैश्च चित्रैः क्षतजबिन्दुभिः ।
 आवृतं पश्य सौमित्रे सर्वतो धरणीतलम् ॥ ४० ॥

“Also behold, O darling of Sumitrā, the earth’s surface covered on all sides with drops of blood of a varying size, shining brightly like particles of gold. (40)

मन्ये लक्ष्मण वैदेही राक्षसैः कामरूपिभिः ।
 भित्त्वा भित्त्वा विभक्ता वा भक्षिता वा भविष्यति ॥ ४१ ॥

“I presume, O Lakṣmaṇa, that Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, was divided among themselves at this place by ogres capable of assuming any form at will after splitting her into pieces, and then devoured. (41)

तस्या निमित्तं सीताया द्वयोर्विवदमानयोः ।
 बभूव युद्धं सौमित्रे घोरं राक्षसयोरिह ॥ ४२ ॥

“At this place, O darling of Sumitrā, has ensued a terrible conflict between two ogres contending for the sake of the aforesaid Sītā. (42)

मुक्तामणिचितं चेदं रमणीयं विभूषितम् ।
 धरण्यां पतितं सौम्य कस्य भग्नं महद् धनुः ॥ ४३ ॥

“Here lies broken and fallen on the ground this lovely and large bow encrusted with pearls and gems and richly adorned, O gentle brother ! Whose may this be? (43)

राक्षसानामिदं वत्स सुराणामथवापि वा ।
 तरुणादित्यसंकाशं वैदूर्यगुलिकाचितम् ॥ ४४ ॥
 विशीर्णं पतितं भूमौ कवचं कस्य काञ्चनम् ।
 छत्रं शतशलाकं च दिव्यमाल्योपशोभितम् ॥ ४५ ॥
 भग्नदण्डमिदं सौम्य भूमौ कस्य निपातितम् ।
 काञ्चनोरश्छदाश्रेमे पिशाचवदनाः खराः ॥ ४६ ॥
 भीमरूपा महाकायाः कस्य वा निहता रणे ।

दीप्तपावकसंकाशो द्युतिमान् समरध्वजः ॥ ४७ ॥
 अपविद्धश्च भग्नश्च कस्य साङ्ग्रामिको रथः ।
 रथाक्षमात्रा विशिखास्तपनीयविभूषणाः ॥ ४८ ॥
 कस्येमे निहता बाणाः प्रकीर्णा घोरदर्शनाः ।
 शरावरौ शरैः पूर्णौ विध्वस्तौ पश्य लक्ष्मण ॥ ४९ ॥

“This belongs either to ogres or to gods, my darling ! Whose is this armour of gold, shining brightly as the morning sun and encrusted with cats’-eye gems and lying shattered on the ground? Again, whose is this canopy spread on a hundred ribs and adorned with celestial wreaths and dashed to the ground with its handle broken, O gentle brother? Nay, whose are these mules of grim aspect and gigantic bodies endowed with the heads of goblins and provided with breastplates of gold, lying slain on the battlefield? Whose may be this brilliant chariot of war, shining brightly as a flame and bearing a distinct ensign on the field of battle, lying overturned and broken? Whose are these shafts of terrifying appearance, thick and long as the axle of a chariot, lying broken and scattered with their heads detached? Also behold, O Lakṣmaṇa, a pair of quivers full of arrows lying smashed. (44—49)

प्रतोदाभीषुहस्तोऽयं कस्य वा सारथिर्हतः ।

पदवी पुरुषस्यैषा व्यक्तं कस्यापि रक्षसः ॥ ५० ॥

“And whose is this charioteer lying slain with the lash and reins still in his hands? Clearly these are the footprints of some male ogre. (50)

वैरं शतगुणं पश्य मम तैर्जीवितान्तकम् ।

सुघोरहृदयैः सौम्य राक्षसैः कामरूपिभिः ॥ ५१ ॥

“Know that my enmity with these ogres possessed of fierce heart and capable of assuming any form at will has been intensified a hundredfold and will end with their life only, O gentle brother ! (51)

हता मृता वा वैदेही भक्षिता वा तपस्विनी ।

न धर्मस्त्रायते सीतां ह्रियमाणां महावने ॥ ५२ ॥

“Poor Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) has been killed or devoured by ogres or is dead through agony of separation from me. Even virtue was not able to protect Sītā while she was being carried away by ogres in the great forest ! (52)

भक्षितायां हि वैदेह्यां हतायामपि लक्ष्मण ।

के हि लोके प्रियं कर्तुं शक्ताः सौम्य ममेश्वराः ॥ ५३ ॥

“When even Sītā (a princess of the Videha kingdom) has been devoured or borne away for that matter, what powerful beings in this world are really capable of rendering good offices to me, O gentle Lakṣmaṇa? (53)

कर्तारमपि लोकानां शूरं करुणवेदिनम् ।

अज्ञानादवमन्येरन् सर्वभूतानि लक्ष्मण ॥ ५४ ॥

“All living beings, O Lakṣmaṇa, would through ignorance of His power hold in contempt even Lord Śiva, the maker, protector and destroyer of the worlds, though valiant in the extreme, if He remains looking on with compassion without meddling with the affairs of the world. (54)

मृदुं लोकहिते युक्तं दान्तं करुणवेदिनम् ।

निर्वीर्यं इति मन्यन्ते नूनं मां त्रिदशेश्वराः ॥ ५५ ॥

“Surely the rulers of gods (such as Brahmā and Indra) take me—mild, intent on the welfare of the world, disciplined and compassionate of outlook as I am—to be powerless. (55)

मां प्राप्य हि गुणो दोषः संवृत्तः पश्य लक्ष्मण ।

अद्यैव सर्वभूतानां रक्षसामभवाय च ॥ ५६ ॥

संहृत्यैव शशिज्योत्स्नां महान् सूर्य इवोदितः ।

संहृत्यैव गुणान् सर्वान् मम तेजः प्रकाशते ॥ ५७ ॥

“See, O Lakṣmaṇa, how the aforesaid virtues have turned into vices on reaching me and how, having definitely thrown into the background all the aforesaid virtues, my glory shines forth this very day for the annihilation of all living beings including ogres, even as the exceptionally glorious sun risen at the time of universal dissolution blazes forth, decidedly eclipsing the moonshine. (56-57)

नैव यक्षा न गन्धर्वा न पिशाचा न राक्षसाः ।

किं नरा वा मनुष्या वा सुखं प्राप्स्यन्ति लक्ष्मण ॥ ५८ ॥

“Neither Yakṣas nor Gandharvas nor fiends nor ogres nor Kinnaras nor human beings will find happiness any longer, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (58)

ममास्त्रबाणसम्पूर्णमाकाशं पश्य लक्ष्मण ।

असम्पातं करिष्यामि ह्यद्य त्रैलोक्यचारिणाम् ॥ ५९ ॥

“Behold, O Lakṣmaṇa, the space filled before long with mystic missiles and arrows discharged by me. Today by filling the space with my arrows I will arrest the motion of all those moving about in all the three worlds. (59)

संनिरुद्धग्रहगणमावारितनिशाकरम् ।

विप्रगष्टानलमरुद्धास्करद्युतिसंवृतम् ॥ ६० ॥

विनिर्मथितशैलाग्रं शुष्यमाणजलाशयम् ।

ध्वस्तद्रुमलतागुल्मं विप्रणाशितसागरम् ॥ ६१ ॥

त्रैलोक्यं तु करिष्यामि संयुक्तं कालकर्मणा ।

न ते कुशलिनीं सीतां प्रदास्यन्ति ममेश्वराः ॥ ६२ ॥

अस्मिन् मुहूर्ते सौमित्रे मम द्रक्ष्यन्ति विक्रमम् ।

नाकाशमुत्पतिष्यन्ति सर्वभूतानि लक्ष्मण ॥ ६३ ॥

मम चापगुणोन्मुक्तैर्बाणजालैर्निरन्तरम् ।
 मर्दितं मम नाराचैर्ध्वस्तभ्रान्तमृगद्विजम् ॥ ६४ ॥
 समाकुलममर्यादं जगत् पश्याद्य लक्ष्मण ।
 आकर्णपूर्णैरिषुभिर्जीवलोकदुरावरैः ॥ ६५ ॥
 करिष्ये मैथिलीहेतोरपिशाचमराक्षसम् ।
 मम रोषप्रयुक्तानां विशिखानां बलं सुराः ॥ ६६ ॥
 द्रक्ष्यन्त्यद्य विमुक्तानाममर्षाद् दूरगामिनाम् ।
 नैव देवा न दैतेया न पिशाचा न राक्षसाः ॥ ६७ ॥
 भविष्यन्ति मम क्रोधात् त्रैलोक्ये विप्रणाशिते ।
 देवदानवयक्षाणां लोका ये रक्षसामपि ॥ ६८ ॥
 बहुधा निपतिष्यन्ति बाणौघैः शकलीकृताः ।
 निर्मर्यादानिमाँल्लोकान् करिष्याम्यद्य सायकैः ॥ ६९ ॥
 हतां मृतां वा सौमित्रे न दास्यन्ति ममेश्वराः ।
 तथारूपां हि वैदेहीं न दास्यन्ति यदि प्रियाम् ॥ ७० ॥
 नाशयामि जगत् सर्वं त्रैलोक्यं सचराचरम् ।
 यावद् दर्शनमस्या वै तापयामि च सायकैः ॥ ७१ ॥

“I will subject the three worlds (viz., heaven, earth and the intermediate region) to annihilation (the work of the Time-Spirit) with the result that the planets will be completely brought to a standstill, the moon will be veiled, the elements of fire and air will be annihilated and the brightness of the sun obscured; the crests of the mountains will be crushed, the seats of water (lakes and ponds etc.,) will get dry, trees, creepers and shrubs will be uprooted and the oceans drained. If those in authority, viz., gods, due to whose negligence my consort has been carried away by ogres, do not restore Sītā intact to me, they will witness my prowess this very hour, O darling of Sumitrā ! All feathered creatures, O Lakṣmaṇa, will no longer be able to fly in air-space, which will be rendered compact with the network of arrows shot from the string of my bow, O Lakṣmaṇa ! Behold the world crushed today, O Lakṣmaṇa, by my steel arrows and consequently greatly perplexed with all the bounds of propriety gone and all the beasts and birds destroyed or gone astray. With my arrows loosed from the sides of the ear with full force and as such difficult for the world of mortals to ward off, I shall rid the world of fiends and ogres for Sītā's sake. The gods will witness today the power of my headless shafts discharged in indignation and impelled by anger and covering a long range.

“When all the three worlds are annihilated through my anger, neither gods nor demons (the son of Diti) nor goblins nor ogres will survive. Torn to a number of pieces by the volley of my arrows, the worlds of gods, demons and Yakṣas as also those which are inhabited by ogres will collapse. With my arrows I will reduce these worlds to a state of utter confusion today if those in authority, viz., the gods in power, do not restore Sītā to me, no matter if she has been killed or is dead. If they do not hand over my beloved Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) in that very condition (to which she may have been reduced), I will annihilate the entire universe consisting of the three worlds and comprising both the animate and inanimate creation, and shall continue to scorch them with my arrows till I am able to see her.” (60—71)

इत्युक्त्वा क्रोधताम्राक्षः स्फुरमाणोष्ठसम्पुटः ।

वल्कलाजिनमाबद्ध्य जटाभारमबन्धयत् ॥ ७२ ॥

Having spoken thus and tightened his robes of the bark of trees and deerskin, Śrī Rāma knotted his head of matted hair, his eyes rendered coppery through anger and both his lips compressed and trembling.

(72)

तस्य क्रुद्धस्य रामस्य तथाभूतस्य धीमतः ।

त्रिपुरं जघ्नुषः पूर्वं रुद्रस्येव बभौ तनुः ॥ ७३ ॥

The personality of the aforesaid Śrī Rāma, who, though full of wisdom, looked so terrible, enraged as he was, shone like that of Lord Rudra, the god of destruction, bent upon in the former times on the destruction of the three cities (of gold, silver and steel in the sky, air and earth, built by the demon Maya).

(73)

लक्ष्मणादथ चादाय रामो निष्पीड्य कार्मुकम् ।
 शरमादाय संदीप्तं घोरमाशीविषोपमम् ॥ ७४ ॥
 संदधे धनुषि श्रीमान् रामः परपुरञ्जयः ।
 युगान्ताग्निरिव क्रुद्ध इदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ७५ ॥

Then, taking his bow from Lakṣmaṇa and holding it tightly with his fist and snatching from his quiver a dreadful and blazing shaft resembling a venomous serpent, the glorious Rāma, the conqueror of the enemies' stronghold, put it to his bow and, provoked to anger like the fire flaring up at the time of universal destruction, spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa : (74-75)

यथा जरा यथा मृत्युर्यथा कालो यथा विधिः ।
 नित्यं न प्रतिहन्यन्ते सर्वभूतेषु लक्ष्मण ।
 तथाहं क्रोधसंयुक्तो न निवार्योऽस्म्यसंशयम् ॥ ७६ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे चतुःषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-four in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXV

Lakṣmaṇa consoles Śrī Rāma

तप्यमानं तदा रामं सीताहरणकर्षितम् ।
 लोकानामभवे युक्तं सांवर्तकमिवानलम् ॥ १ ॥
 वीक्षमाणं धनुः सज्यं निःश्वसन्तं पुनः पुनः ।
 दग्धुकामं जगत् सर्वं युगान्ते च यथा हरम् ॥ २ ॥
 अदृष्टपूर्वं संक्रुद्धं दृष्ट्वा रामं स लक्ष्मणः ।
 अब्रवीत् प्राञ्जलिर्वाक्यं मुखेन परिशुष्यता ॥ ३ ॥

Perceiving Śrī Rāma suffering agony at that time, emaciated as he was due to abduction of Sītā, and intent on the annihilation of the worlds like the fire at the time of universal dissolution, nay, gazing on his stringed bow, sighing again and again, and desiring to consume the whole world like Lord Śiva (the Destroyer of the universe) at the end of the world-cycle, enraged as he was as never seen before, the aforesaid

“Even as old age, death, the Time-Spirit and destiny assailing all created beings cannot be warded off, O Lakṣmaṇa, so I, when filled with wrath am without doubt incapable of being repelled. (76)

पुरेव मे चारुदतीमनिन्दितां
 दिशन्ति सीतां यदि नाद्य मैथिलीम् ।

सदेवगन्धर्वमनुष्यपन्नगं

जगत् सशैलं परिवर्तयाम्यहम् ॥ ७७ ॥

“If gods do not restore to me this very day Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, who is possessed of charming teeth and is beyond reproach, as she was before, I will upset the whole world consisting of gods, Gandharvas, human beings and Nāgas, inclusive of mountains. (77)

Lakṣmaṇa submitted as follows with joined palms and lips getting parched : (1—3)

पुरा भूत्वा मृदुर्दान्तः सर्वभूतहिते रतः ।
 न क्रोधवशमापन्नः प्रकृतिं हातुमर्हसि ॥ ४ ॥

“Having been mild, disciplined and devoted to the good of all created beings before, you should not abandon your nature, now that you have fallen a prey to anger. (4)

चन्द्रे लक्ष्मीः प्रभा सूर्ये गतिर्वायौ भुवि क्षमा ।
 एतच्च नियतं नित्यं त्वयि चानुत्तमं यशः ॥ ५ ॥

“As loveliness dwells in the moon, brilliance in the sun, movement in the wind and forbearance in the earth, all these as also unsurpassed fame ever invariably dwell in you. (5)

एकस्य नापराधेन लोकान् हन्तुं त्वमर्हसि ।
 ननु जानामि कस्यायं भग्नः सांग्रामिको रथः ॥ ६ ॥
 केन वा कस्य वा हेतोः सयुगः सपरिच्छदः ।
 खुरनेमिक्षितश्चायं सिक्तो रुधिरबिन्दुभिः ॥ ७ ॥
 देशो निर्वृत्तसंग्रामः सुघोरः पार्थिवात्मज ।
 एकस्य तु विमर्दोऽयं न द्वयोर्वदतां वरः ॥ ८ ॥

“You ought not to annihilate the worlds for the offence of one individual. I shall surely try to ascertain whose is this chariot of war, and by whom and for what purpose it was broken with its yoke and external appendages such as a canopy and whisks. This piece of ground has been cleft by hoofs and fellows and sprinkled with drops of blood and presents a most horrid appearance, which leads me to think that a combat has taken place here, O prince ! But this has been the encounter of a single chariot-warrior, not of two, O jewel among the eloquent ! (6—8)

नहि वृत्तं हि पश्यामि बलस्य महतः पदम् ।
 नैकस्य तु कृते लोकान् विनाशयितुमर्हसि ॥ ९ ॥
 युक्तदण्डा हि मृदवः प्रशान्ता वसुधाधिपाः ।
 सदा त्वं सर्वभूतानां शरण्यः परमा गतिः ॥ १० ॥

“I do not actually perceive the footprints of a large army imprinted on this ground. And you ought not to annihilate the worlds on account of one man; for suzerain lords of the earth are just in their punishment, mild and very composed; while you are always fit to protect all created beings, nay, their supreme asylum. (9-10)

को नु दारप्रणाशं ते साधु मन्येत राघव ।
 सरितः सागराः शैला देवगन्धर्वदानवाः ॥ ११ ॥
 नालं ते विप्रियं कर्तुं दीक्षितस्येव साधवः ।
 येन राजन् हता सीता तमन्वेषितुमर्हसि ॥ १२ ॥
 मदद्वितीयो धनुष्याणिः सहायैः परमर्षिभिः ।
 समुद्रं वा विचेष्ट्यामः पर्वतांश्च वनानि च ॥ १३ ॥

गुहाश्च विविधा घोराः पद्मिन्यो विविधास्तथा ।
 देवगन्धर्वलोकांश्च विचेष्ट्यामः समाहिताः ॥ १४ ॥
 यावन्नाधिगमिष्यामस्तव भार्यापहारिणम् ।
 न चेत् साम्रा प्रदास्यन्ति पत्नीं ते त्रिदशेश्वराः ।
 कोसलेन्द्र ततः पश्चात् प्राप्तकालं करिष्यसि ॥ १५ ॥

“Who on earth would approve of the disappearance or destruction of your spouse? Even rivers, seas, mountains, gods, Gandharvas and demons have no power to give offence to you any more than the saintly priests officiating at a sacrifice to do anything distasteful to the man consecrated for a sacrificial performance. With me as your companion, and bow in hand, and with the greatest of sages as your helpers, you ought to seek out him by whom Sītā has been borne away. We shall explore the ocean as well as the mountains and forests as also the various fearful caves and the different lotus-ponds, and shall also steadfastly search the realms of gods and Gandharvas until we find the abductor of your consort. If the rulers of gods do not restore your spouse by peaceful means, you may then adopt a measure which is opportune, viz., coercion, O ruler of the kingdom of Kosala? (11—15)

शीलेन साम्रा विनयेन सीतां
 नयेन न प्राप्स्यसि चेन्नरेन्द्र ।
 ततः समुत्सादय हेमपुङ्खै-
 महेन्द्रवज्रप्रतिमैः शरौघैः ॥ १६ ॥

“If you do not recover Sītā through exemplary conduct, conciliation, modesty and prudence, then annihilate the worlds with volleys of golden-feathered arrows vying with the thunderbolt of the mighty Indra (the ruler of gods), O ruler of men ! (16)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे पञ्चषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-five in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षट्षष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXVI

Lakṣmaṇa seeks to inspire Śrī Rāma with courage

तं तथा शोकसंतप्तं विलपन्तमनाथवत् ।
मोहेन महता युक्तं परिद्वूनमचेतसम् ॥ १ ॥
ततः सौमित्रिराश्वस्य मुहूर्तादिव लक्ष्मणः ।
रामं सम्बोधयामास चरणौ चाभिपीडयन् ॥ २ ॥

Having comforted awhile Śrī Rāma, who was tormented as aforesaid with grief and was wailing like one without a protector, nay, who was seized with great infatuation and was feeling sorrowful and sick at heart, Lakṣmaṇa, son of Sumitrā, exhorted him in the following words, lovingly pressing his feet : (1-2)

महता तपसा चापि महता चापि कर्मणा ।
राज्ञा दशरथेनासील्लब्धोऽमृतमिवामरैः ॥ ३ ॥

“You were obtained by King Daśaratha (our father) by means of great austerities in the form of religious vows and fasts and great pious acts such as the performance of a Putreṣṭi sacrifice, as nectar was obtained by gods. (3)

तव चैव गुणैर्बद्धस्त्वद्वियोगान्महीपतिः ।
राजा देवत्वमापन्नो भरतस्य यथा श्रुतम् ॥ ४ ॥

“The king, who was the ruler of the entire globe, and was bound to this world by your virtues alone, attained the heavenly state due to separation from you, as was heard from the lips of Bharata. (4)

यदि दुःखमिदं प्राप्तं काकुत्स्थ न सहिष्यसे ।
प्राकृतश्चाल्पसत्त्वश्च इतरः कः सहिष्यति ॥ ५ ॥

“If, O scion of Kakutstha, you are not able to endure this suffering that has befallen you, what other man, who is of the common run and of meagre strength, will bear it? (5)

आश्वसिहि नरश्रेष्ठ प्राणिनः कस्य नापदः ।
संस्पृशन्त्यग्निवद् राजन् क्षणेन व्यपयान्ति च ॥ ६ ॥

Take heart, O flower of men ! What living being do calamities not visit? They impinge on a man like fire and recede in an instant. (6)

दुःखितो हि भवाँल्लोकांस्तेजसा यदि धक्ष्यते ।
आर्ताः प्रजा नरव्याघ्र क्व नु यास्यन्ति निर्वृतिम् ॥ ७ ॥

“If, when afflicted, you actually consume all the worlds with your heroic lustre, where will, O tiger among men, created beings in distress get relief? (7)

लोकस्वभाव एवैष ययातिर्नहुषात्मजः ।
गतः शक्रेण सालोक्यमनयस्तं समस्पृशत् ॥ ८ ॥

“This impact of suffering is but natural with human beings. King Yayāti, son of Nahuṣa, attained by his meritorious deeds residence in the same heaven with Indra (the lord of paradise); but even there misfortune in the shape of fall from heaven brought about by indiscretion visited him. (8)

महर्षिर्यो वसिष्ठस्तु यः पितुर्नः पुरोहितः ।
अह्ना पुत्रशतं जज्ञे तथैवास्य पुनर्हृतम् ॥ ९ ॥

“To Vasiṣṭha, who is an eminent seer of Vedic Mantras and who has been the family priest of our father (King Daśaratha), a hundred sons were born in the course of a day and again in the course of a day they were all killed by King Viśwāmītra. (9)

या चेयं जगतो माता सर्वलोकनमस्कृता ।
अस्याश्च चलनं भूमेर्दृश्यते कोसलेश्वर ॥ १० ॥

“Nay, volcanic convulsion is seen even on the surface of this Earth, who is the mother of the mobile creation and is greeted by all people. O lord of Kosala ! (10)

यौ धर्मौ जगतो नेत्रौ यत्र सर्वं प्रतिष्ठितम् ।
आदित्यचन्द्रौ ग्रहणमभ्युपेतौ महाबलौ ॥ ११ ॥

“Even the sun and the moon endowed with extraordinary might, which set virtue on foot by giving light and energy to the world and set the world going by providing a measure of time and on which everything in the world rest, have to suffer eclipse. (11)

सुमहान्त्यपि भूतानि देवाश्च पुरुषर्षभ ।
न दैवस्य प्रमुञ्चन्ति सर्वभूतानि देहिनः ॥ १२ ॥

“Even very great beings and gods are not immune from the control of fate, much less all embodied beings, O flower of men ! (12)

शक्रादिष्वपि देवेषु वर्तमानौ नयानयौ ।
श्रूयेते नरशार्दूल न त्वं शोचितुमर्हसि ॥ १३ ॥

“Righteousness and unrighteousness are known to yield their fruit in the shape of happiness and misery, even in the case of Indra and other gods, O tiger among men! You ought not, therefore, to grieve. (13)

मृतायामपि वैदेह्यां नष्टायामपि राघव ।
शोचितुं नार्हसे वीर यथान्यः प्राकृतस्तथा ॥ १४ ॥

“Even in the event of Sitā (a princess of the Videha territory) being dead or having disappeared as a result of being carried away by someone, O heroic Rāma (a scion of Raghu), you ought not to grieve in the same way as any other common man. (14)

त्वद्विधा नहि शोचन्ति सततं सर्वदर्शनाः ।
सुमहत्त्वपि कृच्छ्रेषु रामानिर्विण्णदर्शनाः ॥ १५ ॥

“People like you, who perceive everything with their intuitive eye, do not really give way to grief even in the face of the gravest perils, O Rāma, but ever remain undepressed in their outlook. (15)

तत्त्वतो हि नरश्रेष्ठ बुद्ध्या समनुचिन्तय ।
बुद्ध्या युक्ता महाप्राज्ञा विजानन्ति शुभाशुभे ॥ १६ ॥

“Discriminate between right and wrong in true perspective by recourse to reason. Endowed with reason, highly intelligent souls are correctly able to know what is good and evil, O jewel among men ! (16)

अदृष्टगुणदोषाणामध्रुवाणां तु कर्मणाम् ।
नान्तरेण क्रियां तेषां फलमिष्टं च वर्तते ॥ १७ ॥

“Actions, whose merits and demerits have not been perceived except through the scriptures and which are not everlasting, inasmuch as they cease after yielding their fruit, cannot be performed without individual effort. And once they are performed their welcome as well as unwelcome fruit is inevitable and must be reaped. (17)

मामेवं हि पुरा वीर त्वमेव बहुशोक्तवान् ।
अनुशिष्याद्धि को नु त्वामपि साक्षाद् बृहस्पतिः ॥ १८ ॥

“Indeed you alone have often instructed me accordingly in the past, O heroic brother ! In fact, who on earth can instruct you, be he Bṛhaspati, the preceptor of gods, himself. (18)

बुद्धिश्च ते महाप्राज्ञ देवैरपि दुरन्वया ।
शोकेनाभिप्रसुप्तं ते ज्ञानं सम्बोधयाम्यहम् ॥ १९ ॥

“Nay, your intelligence, O highly sagacious prince, cannot be fathomed even by gods. I simply try to awaken your wisdom, which has been dimmed, as it were, by grief. (19)

दिव्यं च मानुषं चैवमात्मनश्च पराक्रमम् ।
इक्ष्वाकुवृषभावेक्ष्य यतस्व द्विषतां वधे ॥ २० ॥

“Nay, bearing in mind your divine as well as human prowess, strive for the destruction of your enemies, O flower of the Ikṣvākus ! (20)

किं ते सर्वविनाशेन कृतेन पुरुषर्षभ ।
तमेव तु रिपुं पापं विज्ञायोद्धर्तुमर्हसि ॥ २१ ॥

“What object of yours will be achieved through universal destruction wrought by you? Therefore, finding out your sinful adversary, you ought to root him out alone. (21)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे षट्षष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-six in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तषष्ठितमः सर्गः

Canto LXVII

Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa meet Jaṭāyu and, embracing the vulture,
Śrī Rāma bursts into a wail

पूर्वजोऽप्युक्तमात्रस्तु लक्ष्मणेन सुभाषितम् ।
सारग्राही महासारं प्रतिजग्राह राघवः ॥ १ ॥
Though elder, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for his part, who was capable of picking up the best part of everything, accepted, when exhorted in the aforesaid words by Lakṣmaṇa, his beautifully-worded and highly valuable advice. (1)

स निगृह्य महाबाहुः प्रवृद्धं रोषमात्मनः ।
अवष्टभ्य धनुश्चित्रं रामो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ॥ २ ॥
Controlling his highly intensified anger and leaning on his wonderful bow, the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma spoke to Lakṣmaṇa as follows : (2)

किं करिष्यावहे वत्स क्व वा गच्छाव लक्ष्मण ।
केनोपायेन पश्यावः सीतामिह विचिन्तय ॥ ३ ॥
“What shall we do, my darling? And whither shall we go, O Lakṣmaṇa? By what expedient shall we be able to see Sītā in this forest? Ponder over this.” (3)

तं तथा परितापार्तं लक्ष्मणो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
इदमेव जनस्थानं त्वमन्वेषितुमर्हसि ॥ ४ ॥
राक्षसैर्बहुभिः कीर्णं नानाद्रुमलतायुतम् ।
सन्तीह गिरिदुर्गाणि निर्दराः कन्दराणि च ॥ ५ ॥
गुहाश्च विविधा घोरा नानामृगगणाकुलाः ।
आवासाः किंनराणां च गन्धर्वभवनानि च ॥ ६ ॥

To Śrī Rāma, who was stricken with agony as aforesaid, Lakṣmaṇa replied as follows: “You would do well to search this region of Janasthāna alone, which is full of numerous ogres and covered with trees and climbers of every description. There are many mountain-gorges, chasms and valleys, as well as fearful caves of various kinds crowded with herds of beasts of different species, nay, habitats of Kinnaras and dwellings of Gandharvas. (4—6)

तानि युक्तो मया सार्धं समन्वेषितुमर्हसि ।
त्वद्विधा बुद्धिसम्पन्ना महात्मानो नरर्षभाः ॥ ७ ॥
आपत्सु न प्रकम्पन्ते वायुवेगैरिवाचलाः ।
इत्युक्तस्तद् वनं सर्वं विचचार सलक्ष्मणः ॥ ८ ॥
कुब्धो रामः शरं घोरं संधाय धनुषि क्षुरम् ।
ततः पर्वतकूटाभं महाभागं द्विजोत्तमम् ॥ ९ ॥
ददर्श पतितं भूमौ क्षतजार्द्रं जटायुषम् ।
तं दृष्ट्वा गिरिशृङ्गाभं रामो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ॥ १० ॥

“You would do well to ransack these strenuously with me. Richly endowed with intelligence, high-souled jewels among men like you are never shaken by calamities any more than mountains by blasts.” Angrily setting to his bow a dreadful arrow known by the name of Kṣura (so-called because it was sharp-edged as a razor), when exhorted thus by Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma, accompanied by Lakṣmaṇa, ranged the whole of that forest. Thereupon he saw fallen on the ground, drenched with blood, the highly blessed Jaṭāyu, the foremost of birds, who looked like a mountain-peak. Seeing the vulture, which looked like a mountain-peak, Śrī Rāma spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa : (7—10)

अनेन सीता वैदेही भक्षिता नात्र संशयः ।
गृध्ररूपमिदं व्यक्तं रक्षो भ्रमति काननम् ॥ ११ ॥
“Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, has been devoured by this bird : there is no doubt about it. Evidently it is an ogre ranging the forest in the guise of a vulture. (11)
भक्षयित्वा विशालाक्षीमास्ते सीतां यथासुखम् ।
एनं वधिष्ये दीप्ताग्रैः शरैर्घोरैरजिह्वागैः ॥ १२ ॥

“Having eaten up the large-eyed Sītā, it is lying at ease. I shall make short work of it by means of straight-going dreaded arrows with fiery heads.” (12)

इत्युक्त्वाभ्यपतद् द्रष्टुं संधाय धनुषि क्षुरम्।
क्रुद्धो रामः समुद्रान्तां चालयन्निव मेदिनीम् ॥ १३ ॥

Saying so and angrily setting an arrow going by the name of Kṣura to his bow, Śrī Rāma rushed to see him, shaking as it were the whole earth bounded by the ocean. (13)

तं दीनदीनया वाचा सफेनं रुधिरं वमन्।
अभ्यभाषत पक्षी स रामं दशरथात्मजम् ॥ १४ ॥

Vomiting foaming blood, the aforesaid vulture submitted to the celebrated Śrī Rāma, son of Daśaratha, in most piteous accents as follows : (14)

यामोषधीमिवायुष्मन्नन्वेषसि महावने।
सा देवी मम च प्राणा रावणेनोभयं हृतम् ॥ १५ ॥

“That godly lady whom you are seeking in the great forest as one would a life-giving herb, as well as my life, both have been snatched away by Rāvaṇa, O child blessed with long life ! (15)

त्वया विरहिता देवी लक्ष्मणेन च राघव।
ह्रियमाणा मया दृष्टा रावणेन बलीयसा ॥ १६ ॥

“Bereft of you as well as of Lakṣmaṇa, O scion of Raghu, the queen was seen by me being carried away by Rāvaṇa of superior might. (16)

सीतामभ्यवपन्नोऽहं रावणश्च रणे प्रभो।
विध्वंसितरथच्छत्रः पतितो धरणीतले ॥ १७ ॥

“I flew to the succour of Sitā as soon as I heard her cry and in the course of the struggle that ensued with the powerful ogre, Rāvaṇa, my lord, fell down on the earth’s surface with his chariot and canopy shattered. (17)

एतदस्य धनुर्भग्नमेते चास्य शरास्तथा।
अयमस्य रणे राम भग्नः सांग्रामिको रथः ॥ १८ ॥

“Here is his broken bow and here are his arrows reduced to splinters. And here, O Rāma, is his chariot of war smashed by me in the contest. (18)

अयं तु सारथिस्तस्य मत्पक्षनिहतो भुवि।
परिश्रान्तस्य मे पक्षौ छित्त्वा खड्गेन रावणः ॥ १९ ॥

सीतामादाय वैदेहीमुत्पपात विहायसम्।
रक्षसा निहतं पूर्वं मां न हन्तुं त्वमर्हसि ॥ २० ॥

“Here, again, is his charioteer lying slain on the ground with the stroke of my wings. Severing with his sword both my wings, exhausted as I was, and taking Sitā the princess of the Videha kingdom, Rāvaṇa eventually flew in the air. You ought not to kill me, who stand already slain by the ogre.” (19-20)

रामस्तस्य तु विज्ञाय सीतासक्तां प्रियां कथाम्।
गृध्रराजं परिष्वज्य परित्यज्य महद् धनुः ॥ २१ ॥
निपपातावशो भूमौ रुरोद सहलक्ष्मणः।
द्विगुणीकृततापार्तो रामो धीरतरोऽपि सन् ॥ २२ ॥

Abandoning his mighty bow on coming to know his pleasing story, connected as it was with Sitā, and embracing Jaṭāyu, the king of vultures, Śrī Rāma for his part fell down to the ground, having lost control over his self. Nay, though very resolute, he cried with Lakṣmaṇa, afflicted as he was with double agony. (21-22)

एकमेकायने कृच्छ्रे निःश्वसन्तं मुहुर्महुः।
समीक्ष्य दुःखितो रामः सौमित्रिमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ २३ ॥

Distressed to perceive the vulture lying all by himself in a precarious condition on a narrow passage accessible to only one man, and drawing a deep breath again and again, Śrī Rāma spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa, son of Sumitrā : (23)

राज्यं भ्रष्टं वने वासः सीता नष्टा मृतो द्विजः।
ईदृशीयं ममालक्ष्मीर्दहेदपि हि पावकम् ॥ २४ ॥

“My sovereignty is lost, exile to the forest has been forced on me, Sitā too has disappeared and the bird, my great ally in the forest, has all but died. Such is my misfortune, which can surely consume even fire itself that consumes all. (24)

सम्पूर्णमपि चेदद्य प्रतरेयं महोदधिम्।
सोऽपि नूनं ममालक्ष्म्या विशुष्येत् सरितां पतिः ॥ २५ ॥

“Even if I were to cross the ocean full to the brim just to refresh myself and assuage my feelings today, even the ocean, the lord of rivers, will surely dry up due to my misfortune. (25)

नास्त्यभाग्यतरो लोके मत्तोऽस्मिन् स चराचरे ।

येनेयं महती प्राप्ता मया व्यसनवागुरा ॥ २६ ॥

“In this world comprising the animate and inanimate beings there is none more unlucky than myself, by whom this great trap in the shape of adversity has been found. (26)

अयं पितुर्वयस्यो मे गृध्रराजो महाबलः ।

शेते विनिहतो भूमौ मम भाग्यविपर्ययात् ॥ २७ ॥

“Due to adverseness of my fate alone this friend of my father, Jaṭāyu, the king of vultures, though possessed of extraordinary might, lies mortally wounded on the ground.” (27)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे सप्तषष्ठितमः सर्गः ॥ ६७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-seven in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टषष्ठितमः सर्गः

Canto LXVIII

Jaṭāyu gives up the ghost and is cremated by Śrī Rāma

रामः प्रेक्ष्य तु तं गृध्रं भुवि रौद्रेण पातितम् ।

सौमित्रिं मित्रसम्पन्नमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Perceiving the aforesaid vulture struck down on the earth by the fierce ogre, Rāvaṇa, Śrī Rāma for his part spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), who was richly endowed with a friendly spirit towards all : (1)

ममायं नूनमर्थेषु यतमानो विहंगमः ।

राक्षसेन हतः संख्ये प्राणांस्त्यजति मत्कृते ॥ २ ॥

“Mortally struck by the ogre in an encounter, while striving in my interests, this bird, Jaṭāyu, is surely giving up the ghost for my sake alone. (2)

इत्येवमुक्त्वा बहुशो राघवः सहलक्ष्मणः ।

जटायुषं च पस्पर्श पितृस्नेहं निदर्शयन् ॥ २८ ॥

Having spoken thus, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) with Lakṣmaṇa stroked Jaṭāyu again and again, showing filial affection to him. (28)

निकृत्तपक्षं

रुधिरावसिक्तं

तं गृध्रराजं परिगृह्य राघवः ।

क्व मैथिली प्राणसमा गतेति

विमुच्य वाचं निपपात भूमौ ॥ २९ ॥

Embracing the aforesaid king of vultures—whose wings had been lopped off and who was lying bathed in blood—and uttering the words “Where has the princess of Mithilā, who was dear to me as life, gone?” Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) sank down on the earth. (29)

अतिखिन्नः शरीरेऽस्मिन् प्राणो लक्ष्मण विद्यते ।

तथा स्वरविहीनोऽयं विक्लवं समुदीक्षते ॥ ३ ॥

“Life in this body of Jaṭāyu, O Lakṣmaṇa, is very faint. And he is getting speechless by degrees as he is gazing on us wildly. (3)

जटायो यदि शक्नोषि वाक्यं व्याहरितुं पुनः ।

सीतामाख्याहि भद्रं ते वधमाख्याहि चात्मनः ॥ ४ ॥

Turning towards Jaṭāyu, “Jaṭāyu, if you can utter a word again, speak something more about Sītā and also as to how you came to be killed. May all be well with you ! (4)

किं निमित्तो जहारार्या रावणस्तस्य किं मया ।

अपराधं तु यं दृष्ट्वा रावणेन हता प्रिया ॥ ५ ॥

“What for did Rāvaṇa bear away the noble lady and what offence was given to him by me, in consideration of which my darling was borne away by Rāvaṇa? (5)

कथं तच्चन्द्रसंकाशं मुखमासीन्मनोहरम् ।
सीतया कानि चोक्तानि तस्मिन् काले द्विजोत्तम ॥ ६ ॥

“How did that soul-captivating moon-like face appear and what words were uttered by Sītā at that moment, O jewel among birds? (6)

कथं वीर्यः कथं रूपः किं कर्मा स च राक्षसः ।
क्व चास्य भवनं तात ब्रूहि मे परिपृच्छतः ॥ ७ ॥

“How powerful is that ogre, how does he look and what are his doings? Also where is his home, dear uncle? Answer me as I question you.” (7)

तमुद्गीक्ष्य स धर्मात्मा विलपन्तमनाथवत् ।
वाचा विक्लवया राममिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ८ ॥

Fondly perceiving Śrī Rāma lamenting like one without a protector, Jaṭāyu, whose mind was set on virtue, replied to him in faltering accents as follows : (8)

सा हृता राक्षसेन्द्रेण रावणेन दुरात्मना ।
मायामास्थाय विपुलां वातदुर्दिनसंकुलाम् ॥ ९ ॥

“Falling back upon extensive conjuring tricks ushering a storm and cloudy weather, Sītā was borne away by the evil-minded Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres. (9)

परिक्लान्तस्य मे तात पक्षौ छित्त्वा निशाचरः ।
सीतामादाय वैदेहीं प्रयातो दक्षिणामुखः ॥ १० ॥

“Lopping off my wings, exhausted as I was, O dear one, and taking Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, the night-stalker departed with his face towards the south. (10)

उपरुध्यन्ति मे प्राणा दृष्टिर्भ्रमति राघव ।
पश्यामि वृक्षान् सौवर्णानुशीरकृतमूर्धजान् ॥ ११ ॥

“My senses are becoming dull and my vision is growing unsteady. I perceive the trees made of gold with hair resembling the Uśīra grass growing on their tops. (11)

येन याति मुहूर्तेन सीतामादाय रावणः ।
विप्रणष्टं धनं क्षिप्रं तत्त्वामी प्रतिपद्यते ॥ १२ ॥

“The owner of a treasure, wantonly lost during the hour in which Rāvaṇa departed taking Sītā, is able to recover it speedily. (12)

विन्दो नाम मुहूर्तोऽसौ न च काकुत्स्थ सोऽबुधत् ।
त्वत्प्रियां जानकीं हत्वा रावणो राक्षसेश्वरः ।
झषवद् बडिशं गृह्य क्षिप्रमेव विनश्यति ॥ १३ ॥

“It was an hour ‘Vinda’ by name. Rāvaṇa, however did not know it, O scion of Kakutstha! Having borne away your beloved spouse, Sītā (daughter of Janaka), Rāvaṇa, the king of ogres, will perish very soon as a fish on swallowing a hook. (13)

न च त्वया व्यथा कार्या जनकस्य सुतां प्रति ।
वैदेह्या रंस्यसे क्षिप्रं हत्वा तं रणमूर्धनि ॥ १४ ॥

“Nor should anxiety be felt by you on the score of Janaka’s daughter; for, having killed him soon in the van of fight, you will feel happy with Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory.” (14)

असम्पूढस्य गृध्रस्य रामं प्रत्यनुभाषतः ।
आस्यात् सुस्त्राव रुधिरं प्रियमाणस्य सामिषम् ॥ १५ ॥

While the vulture, who remained undeluded even though dying, was replying to Śrī Rāma, blood with pieces of flesh flowed from his mouth. (15)

पुत्रो विश्रवसः साक्षाद् भ्राता वैश्रवणस्य च ।
इत्युक्त्वा दुर्लभान् प्राणान् मुमोच पतगेश्वरः ॥ १६ ॥

“He (Rāvaṇa) is a son of Sage Viśravā himself and a half-brother of Kubera, the first-born son of Viśravā.” Saying so, Jaṭāyu, the king of birds, yielded up his life, which was difficult to retain. (16)

ब्रूहि ब्रूहीति रामस्य ब्रुवाणस्य कृताञ्जलेः ।
त्यक्त्वा शरीरं गृध्रस्य प्राणा जग्मुर्विहायसम् ॥ १७ ॥

In the presence of Śrī Rāma, who went on saying : “Speak, speak (further) !” with joined palms as a mark of respect to his father’s friend, the life-breath of the vulture rose to the skies leaving his body. (17)

स निक्षिप्य शिरौ भूमौ प्रसार्य चरणौ तथा ।
विक्षिप्य च शरीरं स्वं पपात धरणीतले ॥ १८ ॥

Dropping his head on the ground, nay, stretching his legs and throwing his bodyback,
Jaṭāyu sank on the earth's surface. (18)

तं गृध्रं प्रेक्ष्य ताम्राक्षं गतासुमचलोपमम् ।
रामः सुबहुभिर्दुःखैर्दीनः सौमित्रिमब्रवीत् ॥ १९ ॥

Gazing on the aforesaid vulture with coppery eyes, who looked like a mountain, his life having departed, Śrī Rāma, who was weighed down by numerous misfortunes, spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa, son of Sumitrā : (19)

बहूनि रक्षसां वासे वर्षाणि वसता सुखम् ।
अनेन दण्डकारण्ये विशीर्णमिह पक्षिणा ॥ २० ॥

“His body has been shed here by this bird, who lived happily in the Daṇḍaka forest, the home of ogres, for many years. (20)

अनेकवार्षिको यस्तु चिरकालसमुत्थितः ।
सोऽयमद्य हतः शेते कालो हि दुरतिक्रमः ॥ २१ ॥

“This vulture, for his part, who lived many years and thrived for a long period, is lying killed today. Indeed the Time-Spirit is difficult to overcome. (21)

पश्य लक्ष्मण गृध्रोऽयमुपकारी हतश्च मे ।
सीतामभ्यवपन्नो हि रावणेन वलीयसा ॥ २२ ॥

“Behold, O Lakṣmaṇa, how this vulture, who rendered good offices to me and rushed to the succour of Sītā, has actually been killed by Rāvaṇa of superior strength. (22)

गृध्राज्यं परित्यज्य पितृपैतामहं महत् ।
मम हेतोरयं प्राणान् मुमोच पतगेश्वरः ॥ २३ ॥

“Having renounced the mighty rulership of vultures, inherited by him from his forefathers, this king of birds has laid down his life for my sake ! (23)

सर्वत्र खलु दृश्यन्ते साधवो धर्मचारिणः ।
शूराः शरण्याः सौमित्रे तिर्यग्योनिगतेष्वपि ॥ २४ ॥

“Indeed pious and valiant souls practising virtue and worth approaching for protection are found everywhere—even amongst those belonging to the sub-human species, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) ! (24)

सीताहरणजं दुःखं न मे सौम्य तथागतम् ।
यथा विनाशो गृध्रस्य मत्कृते च परंतप ॥ २५ ॥

“Nay, agony caused by the abduction of Sītā does not pinch me so much, O gentle brother, as the death of this vulture and that too for my sake, O scorcher of foes ! (25)

राजा दशरथः श्रीमान् यथा मम महायशाः ।
पूजनीयश्च मान्यश्च तथायं पतगेश्वरः ॥ २६ ॥

“This ruler of the feathered kingdom is worthy of adoration and honour too in the same way as the glorious and highly illustrious
King Daśaratha, our own father. (26)

सौमित्रे हर काष्ठानि निर्मथिष्यामि पावकम् ।
गृध्राजं दिधक्ष्यामि मत्कृते निधनं गतम् ॥ २७ ॥

“Fetch logs of wood, O darling of Sumitrā, so that I shall produce fire by attrition, as I intend to cremate the king of vultures, who has suffered death for my sake. (27)

नाथं पतगलोकस्य चितिमारोपयाम्यहम् ।
इमं धक्ष्यामि सौमित्रे हतं रौद्रेण रक्षसा ॥ २८ ॥

“I will place the lord of the feathered kingdom on a funeral pile and will then set fire to this bird killed by the fierce ogre,
O darling of Sumitrā ! (28)

या गतिर्यज्ञशीलानामाहिताग्रेश्च या गतिः ।
अपरावर्तिनां या च या च भूमिप्रदायिनाम् ॥ २९ ॥

मया त्वं समनुज्ञातो गच्छ लोकाननुत्तमान् ।
गृध्राज महासत्त्व संस्कृतश्च मया व्रज ॥ ३० ॥

(Turning to the vulture,) “duly permitted by me, ascend you to unsurpassed realms,
O king of vultures of extraordinary energy !
Nay, cremated by me, attain the destiny which is the lot of those given to the performance of sacrifices and which is attained by him who has maintained the sacred fire all his life, nay, which is reserved for those who never retreat on the battle-field and which is intended for those who make gifts of land.” (29-30)

एवमुक्त्वा चितां दीप्तामारोप्य पतगेश्वरम्।
ददाह रामो धर्मात्मा स्वबन्धुमिव दुःखितः ॥ ३१ ॥

Saying so, and placing the king of winged creatures on the pyre, which was got ready in the meantime by Lakṣmaṇa and was then lighted, distressed though he was, Śrī Rāma, whose mind was set on virtue, cremated him as one would cremate one's own kinsman. (31)

रामोऽथ सहसौमित्रिर्वनं गत्वा स वीर्यवान्।
स्थूलान् हत्वा महारोहीननुतस्तार तं द्विजम् ॥ ३२ ॥

Repairing to the interior of the forest alongwith Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) and digging out bulky roots known by the name of Mahārohi, the powerful, Śrī Rāma, who then covered the ground with blades of the sacred Kuśa grass with a view to offering them to the spirit of the deceased bird. (32)

रोहिमांसानि चोद्धृत्य पेशीकृत्वा महायशाः।
शकुनाय ददौ रामो रम्ये हरितशाद्वले ॥ ३३ ॥

Nay, tearing off the pulp of the Mahārohi roots and kneading it into balls, the highly illustrious Śrī Rāma offered them to the soul of the cremated bird on the ground overspread with green Kuśa grass and lovely to look at. (33)

यत् तत् प्रेतस्य मर्त्यस्य कथयन्ति द्विजातयः।
तत् स्वर्गगमनं पित्र्यं तस्य रामो जजाप ह ॥ ३४ ॥

For the benefit of the bird Śrī Rāma also uttered, they say, in a low voice the body of those holy texts, sacred to the manes, which the Brāhmaṇas recommend as conducive to the ascent of the spirit of a deceased mortal to heaven. (34)

ततो गोदावरीं गत्वा नदीं नरवरात्मजौ।
उदकं चक्रतुस्तस्मै गृध्राजाय तावुभौ ॥ ३५ ॥

Repairing to the bank of the Godāvārī river, both the aforesaid sons of Daśaratha, the foremost of men, then proceeded to offer water to the spirit of the said king of vultures. (35)

शास्त्रदृष्टेन विधिना जलं गृध्राय राघवौ।
स्नात्वा तौ गृध्राजाय उदकं चक्रतुस्तदा ॥ ३६ ॥

Having first bathed in the river, those two scions of Raghu then offered water to the spirit of the king of vultures according to the ceremony found prescribed in the scriptures. (36)

स गृध्राजः कृतवान् यशस्करं
सुदुष्करं कर्म रणे निपातितः।
महर्षिकल्पेन च संस्कृतस्तदा
जगाम पुण्यां गतिमात्मनः शुभाम् ॥ ३७ ॥

Having in the first place accomplished a glorious deed (in the shape of staking his life to rescue Sītā from the clutches of Rāvaṇa, which was most difficult to accomplish, and secondly having been killed in action against Rāvaṇa and further cremated by Śrī Rāma, who was as good as an eminent seer of Vedic Mantras, the aforesaid king of vultures presently attained a holy destiny conducive to the blessedness of the soul. (37)

कृतोदकौ तावपि पक्षिसत्तमे
स्थिरां च बुद्धिं प्रणिधाय जग्मतुः।
प्रवेश्य सीताधिगमे ततो मनो
वनं सुरेन्द्राविव विष्णुवासवौ ॥ ३८ ॥

Having offered water to the bird and setting their mind fully at rest about the future of Jaṭāyu, the foremost of birds, nay, focussing their mind on the recovery of Sītā, the two princes thereupon proceeded on their journey to the forest like Lord Viṣṇu and Indra, the two rulers of gods. (38)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डेऽष्टषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-eight in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXIX

Lakṣmaṇa punishes Ayomukhī. Falling a prey to the grip of Kabandha, Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa give way to anxiety

कृत्वैवमुदकं तस्मै प्रस्थितौ राघवौ तदा ।
अवेक्षन्तौ वने सीतां जग्मतुः पश्चिमां दिशम् ॥ १ ॥

Set out on their journey after offering water to the spirit of the deceased Jaṭāyu, as aforesaid, and looking about for Sītā in the forest, the two scions of Raghu now proceeded in a south-westerly direction.

(1)

तां दिशं दक्षिणां गत्वा शरचापासिधारिणौ ।
अविप्रहतमैक्षाकौ पन्थानं प्रतिपेदतुः ॥ २ ॥
गुल्मैर्वृक्षैश्च बहुभिर्लताभिश्च प्रवेष्टितम् ।
आवृतं सर्वतो दुर्गं गहनं घोरदर्शनम् ॥ ३ ॥

Having moved in that south-westerly direction, the two scions of Ikṣvāku, who wielded a bow, a sword and arrows each, reached an untrodden track blocked with many shrubs, trees and creepers, covered on all sides, difficult to tread, impenetrable and dreadful to look at.

(2-3)

व्यतिक्रम्य तु वेगेन गृहीत्वा दक्षिणां दिशम् ।
सुभीमं तन्महारण्यं व्यतियातौ महाबलौ ॥ ४ ॥

Passing beyond it with speed and taking to a southerly direction, the two princes, who were possessed of great might, left that vast and most fearful forest behind.

(4)

ततः परं जनस्थानात् त्रिकोशं गम्य राघवौ ।
क्रौञ्चारण्यं विविशतुर्गहनं तौ महौजसौ ॥ ५ ॥
नानामेघघनप्रख्यं प्रहृष्टमिव सर्वतः ।
नानावर्णैः शुभैः पुष्पैर्मृगपक्षिगणैर्युतम् ॥ ६ ॥

Having covered a distance of two leagues beyond Janasthāna, those two scions of Raghu, who were endowed with great energy, penetrated into the dense Krauñca forest, which wore the hue of a mass of clouds and looked highly rejoiced on all sides, adorned as it was with beautiful flowers of various colours and inhabited by herds of beasts and flocks of birds. (5-6)

दिदृक्षमाणौ वैदेहीं तद् वनं तौ विचिक्व्यतुः ।
तत्र तत्रावतिष्ठन्तौ सीताहरणदुःखितौ ॥ ७ ॥

Eager to behold Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), they explored that forest, halting here and there when exhausted, distressed as they were due to the abduction of Sītā.

(7)

ततः पूर्वेण तौ गत्वा त्रिकोशं भ्रातरौ तदा ।
क्रौञ्चारण्यमतिक्रम्य मतङ्गाश्रममन्तरे ॥ ८ ॥
दृष्ट्वा तु तद् वनं घोरं बहुभीममृगद्विजम् ।
नानावृक्षसमाकीर्णं सर्वं गहनपादपम् ॥ ९ ॥
ददृशाते गिरौ तत्र दरीं दशरथात्मजौ ।
पातालसमगम्भीरां तमसा नित्यसंवृताम् ॥ १० ॥
आसाद्य च नरव्याघ्रौ दर्यास्तस्याविदूरतः ।
ददर्शतुर्महारूपां राक्षसीं विकृताननाम् ॥ ११ ॥
भयदामल्पसत्त्वानां बीभत्सां रौद्रदर्शनाम् ।
लम्बोदरीं तीक्ष्णादंष्ट्रां करालीं परुषत्वचम् ॥ १२ ॥
भक्षयन्तीं मृगान् भीमान् विकटां मुक्तमूर्धजाम् ।
अवेक्षतां तु तौ तत्र भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ १३ ॥

Then having travelled two leagues in an easterly direction and leaving the Krauñca forest behind, and seeing the hermitage of Sage Mataṅga midway, the aforesaid two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, for their part sighted the dreadful forest adjoining it, which was infested with many fearful beasts and birds and thickly set with trees of every description, and which was all full of dense clusters of trees. Reaching there a cave in the mountain, which was deep like Pātāla (the nethermost of the subterranean regions) and eternally enveloped in darkness, the two sons of Daśaratha, tigers among men, beheld not far from that cave an ogress of gigantic form and hideous appearance. The aforesaid two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, found her there to be a source of terror to men of deficient strength, loathsome and grim of aspect, with a protruding belly and sharp teeth and a hard skin, fierce and tall of stature, given to devouring fearful beasts, her hair dishevelled. (8—13)

सा समासाद्य तौ वीरौ व्रजन्तं भ्रातुरग्रतः ।

एहि रंस्यावहेत्युक्त्वा समालम्भत लक्ष्मणम् ॥ १४ ॥

Approaching the aforesaid heroes and saying to Lakṣmaṇa, who was walking ahead of his eldest brother, "Come, let us revel !" caught Lakṣmaṇa by the hand. (14)

उवाच चैनं वचनं सौमित्रमुपगुह्य च ।

अहं त्वयोमुखी नाम लाभस्ते त्वमसि प्रियः ॥ १५ ॥

Nay, embracing the darling of Sumitrā, she spoke to him as follows : "I am Ayomukhī by name and a veritable acquisition to you, while you are beloved of me. (15)

नाथ पर्वतदुर्गेषु नदीनां पुलिनेषु च ।

आयुश्चिरमिदं वीर त्वं मया सह रंस्यसे ॥ १६ ॥

"O valiant lord, you shall revel with me throughout this long life on mountain defiles and on the banks of rivers." (16)

एवमुक्तस्तु कुपितः खड्गमुद्धृत्य लक्ष्मणः ।

कर्णनासस्तनं तस्या निचकर्तारिसूदनः ॥ १७ ॥

Drawing his sword when spoken to as aforesaid, Lakṣmaṇa, the destroyer of his enemies, for his part, angrily cut off her ears, nose and breasts. (17)

कर्णनासे निकृत्ते तु विस्वरं विननाद सा ।

यथागतं प्रदुद्राव राक्षसी घोरदर्शना ॥ १८ ॥

Her ears and nose having been lopped off, the aforesaid ogress of grim visage for her part screamed loudly and ran away as she had come. (18)

तस्यां गतायां गहनं व्रजन्तौ वनमोजसा ।

आसेदतुरमित्रघ्नौ भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ १९ ॥

Marching forward vigorously when she had left, the two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, the slayers of their foes, reached an impenetrable forest. (19)

लक्ष्मणस्तु महातेजाः सत्त्ववाञ्छीलवाञ्छुचिः ।

अब्रवीत् प्राञ्जलिर्वाक्यं भ्रातरं दीप्ततेजसम् ॥ २० ॥

With joined palms Lakṣmaṇa, for his part, who was endowed with great energy, full of courage, possessed of good conduct and pious, submitted as follows to his eldest brother of fiery spirit : (20)

स्पन्दते मे दृढं बाहुरुद्विग्रमिव मे मनः ।

प्रायशश्चाप्यनिष्टानि निमित्तान्युपलक्षये ॥ २१ ॥

"My left arm is steadily throbbing, nay, my mind is feeling perturbed as it were, and I also behold mostly evil portents. (21)

तस्मात् सज्जीभवार्य त्वं कुरुष्व वचनं मम ।

ममैव हि निमित्तानि सद्यः शंसन्ति सम्भ्रमम् ॥ २२ ॥

"Therefore, follow my advice and get you ready to meet the impending peril, O noble brother ! The portents unmistakably and definitely betoken imminent danger to my mind. (22)

एष वञ्जुलको नाम पक्षी परमदारुणः ।

आवयोर्विजयं युद्धे शंसन्निव विनर्दति ॥ २३ ॥

"This most frightful bird, known by the name of Vañjulaka, is emitting a shrill cry, foretelling, as it were, victory for us in an encounter." (23)

तयोरन्वेषतोरेवं सर्वं तद् वनमोजसा ।

संजज्ञे विपुलः शब्दः प्रभञ्जन्निव तद् वनम् ॥ २४ ॥

While the two brothers were vigorously exploring the whole of that forest in this way, a loud noise arose, rending the aforesaid forest, as it were. (24)

संवेष्टितमिवात्यर्थं गहनं मातरिश्वना ।

वनस्य तस्य शब्दोऽभूद् वनमापूरयन्निव ॥ २५ ॥

The forest was enveloped, as it were, in a storm. From the heart of the forest there arose a sound, making the whole forest resound, as it were. (25)

तं शब्दं कांक्षमाणस्तु रामः खड्गी सहानुजः ।
ददर्श सुमहाकायं राक्षसं विपुलोरसम् ॥ २६ ॥

Seeking to find out the cause of that sound, sword in hand, Śrī Rāma for his part with his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, beheld an ogre of vast proportions and distinguished by a broad chest. (26)

आसेदतुश्च तद्रक्षस्तावुभौ प्रमुखे स्थितम् ।
विवृद्धमशिरोग्रीवं कबन्धमुदरेमुखम् ॥ २७ ॥

Both the princes approached that ogre stationed before them. Colossal in size, the ogre consisted of a mere trunk without a head or neck and having his mouth in the belly. (27)

रोमभिर्निशितैस्तीक्ष्णैर्महागिरिमिवोच्छ्रितम् ।
नीलमेघनिभं रौद्रं मेघस्तनितनिःस्वनम् ॥ २८ ॥

Covered with sharp bristling hair and tall as a big mountain, he possessed the hue of a blue cloud, was ferocious and had a voice resembling thunder. (28)

अग्निज्वालानिकाशेन ललाटस्थेन दीप्यता ।
महापक्षेण पिङ्गेन विपुलेनायतेन च ॥ २९ ॥
एकेनोरसि घोरेण नयनेन सुदर्शिना ।
महादंष्ट्रोपपन्नं तं लेलिहानं महामुखम् ॥ ३० ॥

Endowed with a single fearful reddish yet brown fiery eye, both long and wide and bright as a flame, located in a forehead in the centre of the chest, nay, furnished with long lashes and possessing a good vision, the ogre was licking again and again his enormous mouth set with big teeth. (29-30)

भक्षयन्तं महाघोरानृक्षसिंहमृगद्विजान् ।
घोरौ भुजौ विकुर्वाणमुभौ योजनमायतौ ॥ ३१ ॥
कराभ्यां विविधान् गृह्य ऋक्षान् पक्षिगणान् मृगान् ।
आकर्षन्तं विकर्षन्तमनेकान् मृगयूथपान् ॥ ३२ ॥

The ogre devoured the fiercest bears and lions as well as other beasts and birds. Stretching out both his frightful arms, each eight miles long, and seizing with his hands bears and other beasts and flocks of birds of various kinds, he drew towards himself many leaders of herds of deer and cast aside others. (31-32)

स्थितमावृत्य पन्थानं तयोर्भ्रात्रोः प्रपन्नयोः ।
अथ तं समतिक्रम्य क्रोशमात्रं ददर्शतुः ॥ ३३ ॥
महान्तं दारुणं भीमं कबन्धं भुजसंवृतम् ।
कबन्धमिव संस्थानादतिघोरप्रदर्शनम् ॥ ३४ ॥

The ogre was stationed blocking the way of the two brothers when they drew near him. Thereupon receding to a distance of two miles, the two brothers looked on the great ogre, Kabandha by name, who was cruel and terrible, a mere trunk, as it were, encircled with arms and most fearful to behold by his very constitution. (33-34)

स महाबाहुरत्यर्थं प्रसार्य विपुलौ भुजौ ।
जग्राह सहितावेव राघवौ पीडयन् बलात् ॥ ३५ ॥

Stretching his extensive arms at full length, the mighty-armed ogre forcibly seized the two scions of Raghu together, squeezing them with his grip. (35)

खड्गिनौ दृढधन्वानौ तिग्मतेजौ महाभुजौ ।
भ्रातरौ विवशं प्राप्तौ कृष्यमाणौ महाबलौ ॥ ३६ ॥

Though armed with swords and wielding strong bows, and possessed of great strength, the two mighty-armed brothers of fiery energy were reduced to a helpless plight when being pulled by the ogre. (36)

तत्र धैर्याच्च शूरस्तु राघवौ नैव विव्यथे ।
बाल्यादनाश्रयाच्चैव लक्ष्मणस्त्वभिविव्यथे ॥ ३७ ॥

Of them, by virtue of his firmness, the heroic Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for his part did not feel distressed at all. Due to his puerile nature and feeling of helplessness too, Lakṣmaṇa, however, completely gave himself up to agony. (37)

उवाच च विषण्णः सन् राघवं राघवानुजः ।
पश्य मां विवशं वीर राक्षसस्य वशंगतम् ॥ ३८ ॥

Nay, feeling despondent, Lakṣmaṇa, the younger brother of Śrī Rāma, submitted as follows to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) :

“Look at me helplessly fallen into the clutches of the ogre. (38)

मयैकेन तु निर्युक्तः परिमुच्यस्व राघव।
मां हि भूतबलिं दत्त्वा पलायस्व यथासुखम् ॥ ३९ ॥

“Having offered sacrifice to this ogre with me alone (as a victim), manage to escape from the clutches of this monster,
O scion of Raghu ! Offering me as a sacrifice to the devil in the form of this ogre run away at your convenience. (39)

अधिगन्तासि वैदेहीमचिरेणेति मे मतिः।
प्रतिलभ्य च काकुत्स्थ पितृपैतामहीं महीम् ॥ ४० ॥
तत्र मां राम राज्यस्थः स्मर्तुमर्हसि सर्वदा।
लक्ष्मणेनैवमुक्तस्तु रामः सौमित्रिमब्रवीत् ॥ ४१ ॥

“You will recover Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) before long: such is my conviction. Nay, getting back the rulership of the earth inherited from your forefathers, and installed on the throne, O Rāma, you should always remember me there.” Spoken to as aforesaid by Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma for his part replied to him as follows: (40-41)

मा स्म त्रासं वृथा वीर नहि त्वादृग् विषीदति।
एतस्मिन्नन्तरे क्रूरो भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ ४२ ॥
तावुवाच महाबाहुः कबन्धो दानवोत्तमः।
कौ युवां वृषभस्कन्धौ महाखड्गधनुर्धरौ ॥ ४३ ॥
घोरं देशमिमं प्राप्तौ दैवेन मम चाक्षुषौ।
वदतं कार्यमिह वां किमर्थं चागतौ युवाम् ॥ ४४ ॥

“Pray, do not give way to fear, O valiant Lakṣmaṇa ! A man like you would never feel dejected.” In the meanwhile the cruel and mighty-armed Kabandha, the foremost of demons, spoke as follows to the aforesaid two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa : “Who are you with shoulders like those of a bull and wielding large swords and bows? Having reached this dreadful region, you have fallen within the range of my sight by will of Providence. Reveal the purpose of your visit here and declare what for you have come here. (42—44)

इमं देशमनुप्राप्तौ क्षुधार्तस्येह तिष्ठतः।
सबाणचापखड्गौ च तीक्ष्णशृङ्गाविवर्षभौ ॥ ४५ ॥
मां तूर्णमनुसम्प्राप्तौ दुर्लभं जीवितं हि वाम्।
तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा कबन्धस्य दुरात्मनः ॥ ४६ ॥
उवाच लक्ष्मणं रामो मुखेन परिशुष्यता।
कृच्छ्रात् कृच्छ्रतरं प्राप्य दारुणं सत्यविक्रम ॥ ४७ ॥
व्यसनं जीवितान्ताय प्राप्तमप्राप्य तां प्रियाम्।
कालस्य सुमहद् वीर्यं सर्वभूतेषु लक्ष्मण ॥ ४८ ॥

“You have reached this region while I stood oppressed with hunger. Since, armed with bows, swords and arrows and as such appearing like a pair of bulls with pointed horns, you have speedily approached me, your life is now difficult to get back (now that it is my hands).” Hearing the aforesaid challenge of that evil-minded Kabandha, Śrī Rāma spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa, whose mouth was getting parched : “A calamity which threatens to terminate our life has befallen us without our being able to recover the aforesaid darling, while we had already suffered a terrible disaster in the shape of the loss of Sītā, which was more painful than the one we had already undergone in the shape of loss of sovereignty and exile to the forest, O Lakṣmaṇa of unfailing prowess ! Very great is the power of the Time-Spirit over all living beings, O
Lakṣmaṇa ! (45—48)

त्वां च मां च नरव्याघ्र व्यसनैः पश्य मोहितौ।
नहि भारोऽस्ति दैवस्य सर्वभूतेषु लक्ष्मण ॥ ४९ ॥

“Look at yourself and me too, O tiger among men, distracted by misfortunes. Surely the control of Destiny on all living beings, O Lakṣmaṇa, does not constitute a burden to it. (49)

शूराश्च बलवन्तश्च कृतास्त्राश्च रणाजिरे।
कालाभिपन्नाः सीदन्ति यथा बालुकसेतवः ॥ ५० ॥

“Caught in the grip of the Time-Spirit, even valiant and mighty souls, nay, even those who have practised archery on the field of battle perish like dams of sand.” (50)

इति ब्रुवाणो दृढसत्यविक्रमो
 महायशा दाशरथिः प्रतापवान् ।
 अवेक्ष्य सौमित्रिमुदग्रविक्रमः
 स्थिरां तदा स्वां मतिमात्मनाकरोत् ॥ ५१ ॥
 Looking at Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), who looked miserable, while speaking, as aforesaid, the highly illustrious and glorious Śrī Rāma (son of Daśaratha) who was possessed of unflinching and unfailing prowess and exalted valour, presently collected his mind by himself. (51)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे एकोनसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ६९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-nine in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXX

After deliberation with each other, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa sever the arms of Kabandha, who extends his welcome to them

तौ तु तत्र स्थितौ दृष्ट्वा भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ।
 बाहुपाशपरिक्षिप्तौ कबन्धो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Seeing the aforesaid two brothers, Śrī
 Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, standing there encircled by the cord of his arms, Kabandha for his part spoke as follows : (1)

तिष्ठतः किं नु मां दृष्ट्वा क्षुधार्तं क्षत्रियर्षभौ ।
 आहारार्थं तु संदिष्टौ दैवेन हतचेतनौ ॥ २ ॥

“With your wits come to an end, destined as you are by fate to serve as my food, why, I wonder, do you for your part stand motionless even on seeing me, oppressed with hunger, O jewels among Kṣatriyas?” (2)

तच्छ्रुत्वा लक्ष्मणो वाक्यं प्राप्तकालं हितं तदा ।
 उवाचार्तिसमापन्नो विक्रमे कृतनिश्चयः ॥ ३ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid question,
 Lakṣmaṇa, who was stricken with agony and had made up his mind to fall upon his prowess, presently tendered the following opportune and friendly advice to Śrī Rāma :
 (3)

त्वां च मां च पुरा तूर्णमादत्ते राक्षसाधमः ।
 तस्मादसिभ्यामस्याशु बाहू छिन्दावहे गुरू ॥ ४ ॥

“This vile ogre promptly caught hold of us at the very outset without any provocation from us, hence let us quickly cut off his vast arms with our swords. (4)

भीषणोऽयं महाकायो राक्षसा भुजविक्रमः ।
 लोकं ह्यतिजितं कृत्वा ह्यावां हन्तुमिहेच्छति ॥ ५ ॥

“This gigantic ogre, whose prowess, inasmuch as he is unarmed, resides in his arms alone, is frightful. Indeed, having thoroughly conquered the people, he actually seeks to make short work of us. (5)

निश्चेष्टानां वधो राजन् कुत्सितो जगतीपतेः ।
 क्रतुमध्योपनीतानां पशूनामिव राघव ॥ ६ ॥

“Like the slaughter of animals brought in the course of a sacrificial performance, killing those, who, being unarmed, are defenceless, is reproachful for a ruler of the earth, O royal scion of Raghu !” (6)

एतत् संजल्पितं श्रुत्वा तयोः क्रुद्धस्तु राक्षसः ।
 विदार्यास्यं ततो रौद्रं तौ भक्षयितुमारभत् ॥ ७ ॥

Enraged to hear this talk of the two princes and opening his fearful mouth wide, the ogre for his part now proceeded to devour them. (7)

ततस्तौ देशकालज्ञौ खड्गाभ्यामेव राघवौ ।
अच्छिन्दन्तां सुसंहृष्टौ बाहू तस्यांसदेशतः ॥ ८ ॥

Extremely delighted, those two scions of Raghu, who knew the proper place and time for an action, severed his arms from his shoulders with their swords alone. (8)

दक्षिणो दक्षिणं बाहुमसक्तमसिना ततः ।
चिच्छेद रामो वेगेन सव्यं वीरस्तु लक्ष्मणः ॥ ९ ॥

With alacrity Śrī Rāma, who stood to his right, severed his right arm with his sword vehemently without any obstruction, while the heroic Lakṣmaṇa, who stood to his left, cut off his left. (9)

स पपात महाबाहुश्छिन्नबाहुर्महास्वनः ।
खं च गां च दिशश्चैव नादयञ्जलदो यथा ॥ १० ॥

With his arms severed that mighty-armed ogre dropped down thundering like a cloud and making the heaven and earth as well as the quarters resound. (10)

स निकृत्तौ भुजौ दृष्ट्वा शोणितौघपरिप्लुतः ।
दीनः पप्रच्छ तौ वीरौ कौ युवामिति दानवः ॥ ११ ॥

Afflicted to behold his arms lopped off and bathed in a stream of blood, the aforesaid demon inquired of those heroes : “Who are you?” (11)

इति तस्य ब्रुवाणस्य लक्ष्मणः शुभलक्षणः ।
शशंस तस्य काकुत्स्थं कबन्धस्य महाबलः ॥ १२ ॥

While the said Kabandha was inquiring as above, Lakṣmaṇa, who was endowed with auspicious bodily marks and possessed of great might, introduced to him Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kākutstha, as below : (12)

अयमिक्ष्वाकुदायादो रामो नाम जनैः श्रुतः ।
तस्यैवावरजं विद्धि भ्रातरं मां च लक्ष्मणम् ॥ १३ ॥

“A son of Daśaratha (born in the line of Ikṣvāku), he is known by the people by the name of ‘Rāma’. And know me to be Lakṣmaṇa, a younger brother of the selfsame Śrī Rāma. (13)

मात्रा प्रतिहते राज्ये रामः प्रव्राजितो वनम् ।
मया सह चरत्येष भार्यया च महद् वनम् ॥ १४ ॥

“Exiled to the forest when his installation as Prince Regent on the throne of Ayodhyā had been interrupted by his step-mother, Kaikeyī, this Rāma continued to range the great forest of Daṇḍaka with his spouse and myself. (14)

अस्य देवप्रभावस्य वसतो विजने वने ।
रक्षसापहृता भार्या यामिच्छन्ताविहागतौ ॥ १५ ॥

“While this prince, mighty as a god, was dwelling in an uninhabited forest, his consort was carried away by an ogre; seeking her alone we have come hither. (15)

त्वं तु को वा किमर्थं वा कबन्धसदृशो वने ।
आस्येनोरसि दीमेन भग्नजङ्घो विचेष्टसे ॥ १६ ॥

“As for yourself, who are you and what for do you roll about in the forest like a headless trunk with your shanks broken and with a flaming mouth located in your breast (belly)?” (16)

एवमुक्तः कबन्धस्तु लक्ष्मणेनोत्तरं वचः ।
उवाच वचनं प्रीतस्तदिन्द्रवचनं स्मरन् ॥ १७ ॥

Rejoiced when spoken to in these excellent words by Lakṣmaṇa, Kabandha for his part made the following reply, recalling the assurance given to him by Indra as going to be detailed in the following canto : (17)

स्वागतं वां नरव्याघ्रौ दिष्ट्या पश्यामि वामहम् ।
दिष्ट्या चेमौ निकृत्तौ मे युवाभ्यां बाहुबन्धनौ ॥ १८ ॥

“Welcome to you, O tigers among men ! By stroke of good luck, I am able to behold you. And luckily enough for me these arms, which served as a halter to me, have been cut off by you. (18)

विरूपं यच्च मे रूपं प्राप्तं ह्यविनयाद् यथा ।
तन्मे शृणु नरव्याघ्र तत्त्वतः शंसतस्तव ॥ १९ ॥

“Now hear from me, even as I truthfully relate to you, O tiger among men, how and through what insolence this monstrous shape actually came to be acquired by me. (19)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे सप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७० ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXI

Kabandha narrates his story and gives assurance of help in the discovery of Sītā after his cremation

पुरा राम महाबाहो महाबलपराक्रमम् ।
रूपमासीन्ममाचिन्त्यं त्रिषु लोकेषु विश्रुतम् ॥ १ ॥
यथा सूर्यस्य सोमस्य शक्रस्य च यथा वपुः ।
सोऽहं रूपमिदं कृत्वा लोकवित्रासनं महत् ॥ २ ॥
ऋषीन् वनगतान् राम त्रासयामि ततस्ततः ।
ततः स्थूलशिरा नाम महर्षिः कोपितो मया ॥ ३ ॥

“In my former existence, O mighty-armed Rāma, my form was endowed with extraordinary might and prowess, possessed of inconceivable splendour and well-known through all the three worlds, resembled as it did the forms of the sun-god, the moon-god and Indra, the ruler of gods. Assuming this gigantic form of an ogre, which was a source of terror to the people, I used even then to move from place to place and frighten the Ṛṣis inhabiting the forest, O Rāma ! During that period an eminent Ṛṣi (a seer of Vedic Mantras), Sthūlaśirā by name, was provoked to anger by me. (1—3)

स चिन्वन् विविधं वन्यं रूपेणानेन धर्षितः ।
तेनाहमुक्तः प्रेक्ष्यैवं घोरशापाभिधायिना ॥ ४ ॥

“While gathering the produce of various kinds of the forest, he was on one occasion assailed by me in this very form. By the aforesaid Ṛṣi, who pronounced a terrible curse on me on perceiving me, I was spoken to in the following words : (4)

एतदेवं नृशंसं ते रूपमस्तु विगर्हितम् ।
स मया याचितः क्रुद्धः शापस्यान्तो भवेदिति ॥ ५ ॥

अभिशापकृतस्येति तेनेदं भाषितं वचः ।
यदा छित्त्वा भुजौ रामस्त्वां दहेद् विजने वने ॥ ६ ॥
तदा त्वं प्राप्स्यसे रूपं स्वमेव विपुलं शुभम् ।
श्रिया विराजितं पुत्रं दनोस्त्वं विद्धि लक्ष्मण ॥ ७ ॥

‘Let this very form, cruel and reprehensible as it is, be retained by you (forever).’ When the angry Ṛṣi was requested by me in following words: ‘Let there be an end to this curse called forth by my accursed behaviour’, the following reply was made by him to this request of mine: ‘When, having severed both your arms, Śrī Rāma cremates you in a lonely forest, then alone you will regain your own enormous and charming form adorned with splendour.’ Therefore, know me originally to be a son of Danu, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (5—7)

इन्द्रकोपादिदं रूपं प्राप्तमेवं रणाजिरे ।
अहं हि तपसोग्रेण पितामहमतोषयम् ॥ ८ ॥

“This monstrous form was acquired by me through the wrath of Indra (the ruler of gods) on a field of battle in the following way : “When endowed with the form of an ogre, I actually propitiated Brahmā (the progenitor of the entire creation) through my rigorous austerities, (8)

दीर्घमायुः स मे प्रादात् ततो मां विभ्रमोऽस्पृशत् ।
दीर्घमायुर्मया प्राप्तं किं मां शक्रः करिष्यति ॥ ९ ॥
इत्येवं बुद्धिमास्थाय रणे शक्रमधर्षयम् ।
तस्य बाहुप्रमुक्तेन वज्रेण शतपर्वणा ॥ १० ॥

सक्थिनी च शिरश्चैव शरीरे सम्प्रवेशितम्।
स मया याच्यमानः सन् नानयद् यमसादनम् ॥ ११ ॥

“The latter in his turn vouchsafed a long life to me. As a result of the aforesaid boon of longevity granted by Brahmā, pride took possession of me. I said to myself, ‘A long life has been secured by me, what harm will Indra (the avowed enemy of my race) do to me?’ Banking on this conviction I assailed Indra on a field of battle. By the thunderbolt of one hundred edges hurled by him, my thighs as well as my head was thrust into my body. Though as requested by me, he did not despatch me to the abode of Yama, the god of death. (9—11)

पितामहवचः सत्यं तदस्त्विति ममाब्रवीत्।
अनाहारः कथं शक्तो भग्नसक्थिशिरोमुखः ॥ १२ ॥
वज्रेणाभिहतः कालं सुदीर्घमपि जीवितुम्।
स एवमुक्तः शक्रो मे बाहू योजनमायतौ ॥ १३ ॥
तदा चास्यं च मे कुक्षौ तीक्ष्णदंष्ट्रमकल्पयत्।
सोऽहं भुजाभ्यां दीर्घाभ्यां संक्षिप्यास्मिन् वनेचरान् ॥ १४ ॥
सिंहद्वीपिमृगव्याघ्रान् भक्षयामि समन्ततः।
स तु मामब्रवीदिन्द्रो यदा रामः सलक्ष्मणः ॥ १५ ॥
छेत्यते समरे बाहू तदा स्वर्गं गमिष्यसि।
अनेन वपुषा तात वनेऽस्मिन् राजसत्तम ॥ १६ ॥
यद् यत् पश्यामि सर्वस्य ग्रहणं साधु रोचये।
अवश्यं ग्रहणं रामो मन्येऽहं समुपैष्यति ॥ १७ ॥

“He replied as follows to me, ‘Let that boon of Brahmā (granting you long life) prove true.’ ‘Struck by your thunderbolt I have been deprived of my thighs, head and mouth which have disappeared into my trunk; how then shall I be able to serve for a very long time even without subsistence?’ Questioned thus, Indra forthwith made my arms eight miles long and placed a mouth provided with sharp teeth in my belly. Throwing into my mouth with my exceptionally long arms, lions, leopards, deer and tigers roaming in the forest all around, I eat them up. The aforesaid Indra also said to me. ‘When Śrī Rāma, in conjunction with Lakṣmaṇa, severs your arms in an encounter, you will forthwith ascend to heaven’ I prefer to lay hold of with this body of every creature that I behold in this forest, O beloved Rāma, the foremost of kings; for I thought within myself: ‘Rāma will surely fall within my grip.’ (12—17)

इमां बुद्धिं पुरस्कृत्य देहन्यासकृतश्रमः।
स त्वं रामोऽसि भद्रं ते नाहमन्येन राघव ॥ १८ ॥
शक्यो हन्तुं यथा तत्त्वमेवमुक्तं महर्षिणा।
अहं हि मतिसाचिव्यं करिष्यामि नरर्षभ ॥ १९ ॥
मित्रं चैवोपदेक्ष्यामि युवाभ्यां संस्कृतोऽग्निना।
एवमुक्तस्तु धर्मात्मा दनुना तेन राघवः ॥ २० ॥
इदं जगाद वचनं लक्ष्मणस्य च पश्यतः।
रावणेन हृता भार्या सीता मम यशस्विनी ॥ २१ ॥
निष्क्रान्तस्य जनस्थानात् सह भ्रात्रा यथासुखम्।
नाममात्रं तु जानामि न रूपं तस्य रक्षसः ॥ २२ ॥

“Keeping this thought before me I have all along striven to cast off my unwieldy body by laying my hands on every living being in the hope that it might turn out to be Rāma. I am now convinced that you are the aforesaid Rāma. May prosperity attend on you ! For, I am not capable of being slain by anyone other than you, O scion of Raghu: this was truthfully declared by the great sage, Sthūlaśirā. When going to be consecrated with fire by you both, I will surely render help to you through my counsel and will also point out to you an ally, O jewel among men !” Spoken to as aforesaid by the demon, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, for his part, whose mind was set on virtue, replied to him as follows, while Lakṣmaṇa stood looking on : “Sītā, my illustrious spouse, was borne away at ease by Rāvaṇa at a time when I had gone out of Janasthāna with my younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa. I know the name only but not the look of the ogre. (18—22)

निवासं वा प्रभावं वा वयं तस्य न विद्महे।
शोकार्तानामनाथानामेवं विपरिधावताम् ॥ २३ ॥
कारुण्यं सदृशं कर्तुमुपकारेण वर्तताम्।
काष्ठान्यानीय भग्नानि काले शुष्काणि कुञ्जैः ॥ २४ ॥

धक्ष्यामस्त्वां वयं वीर श्वश्रे महति कल्पिते ।
स त्वं सीतां समाचक्ष्व येन वा यत्र वा हृता ॥ २५ ॥

“Nor are we aware of his home or even of his might. It is but becoming of you to show compassion to us, who are helplessly knocking about here and there in this way, stricken as we are with grief at the loss of Sītā, and behaving with benevolence towards all. Fetching dry logs of wood broken by elephants, we shall in course of time cremate you, o valiant ogre, after throwing you in an extensive pit dug by us. While being cremated by us as aforesaid, furnish to us detailed information about Sītā as to by whom she has been borne away and where she has been kept. (23—25)

कुरु कल्याणमत्यर्थं यदि जानासि तत्त्वतः ।
एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण वाक्यं दनुरनुत्तमम् ॥ २६ ॥
प्रोवाच कुशलो वक्ता वक्तामपि राघवम् ।
दिव्यमस्ति न मे ज्ञानं नाभिजानामि मैथिलीम् ॥ २७ ॥

“Render this great service to us if you know the thing correctly.” Requested in these words by Śrī Rāma, the demon for his part, who was an eloquent speaker, addressed the following most excellent reply to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), who too was an orator : “I have no divine knowledge, nor am I aware of Sītā, the princess of Mithilā. (26-27)

यस्तां वक्ष्यति तं वक्ष्ये दग्धः स्वं रूपमास्थितः ।
योऽभिजानाति तद्रक्षस्तद् वक्ष्ये राम तत्परम् ॥ २८ ॥

“Having got back my native form when cremated by you I shall point out to you him who will be able to give correct information about Sītā. After that alone I shall point out who is aware of that ogre, O Rāma ! (28)

अदग्धस्य हि विज्ञातुं शक्तिरस्ति न मे प्रभो ।
राक्षसं तु महावीर्यं सीता येन हृता तव ॥ २९ ॥

“The power does not lie in me, so long as I am not cremated, to know definitely anything about the ogre, possessed of great prowess, by whom your Sītā, has been borne away, my lord ! (29)

विज्ञानं हि महद् भ्रष्टं शापदोषेण राघव ।
स्वकृतेन मया प्राप्तं रूपं लोकविगर्हितम् ॥ ३० ॥

“My extraordinary supersensuous knowledge has indeed been interrupted by the detrimental effect of the curse pronounced on me, O scion of Raghu ! Because of my own doing again, has this form, condemned by the people, attained by me. (30)

किं तु यावन्न यात्यस्तं सविता श्रान्तवाहनः ।
तावन्मामवटे क्षिप्त्वा दह राम यथाविधि ॥ ३१ ॥

“But, throwing me into a pit, cremate me, O Rāma, in accordance with the scriptural ordinance before the sun sinks below horizon, his horses exhausted. (31)

दग्धस्त्वयाहमवटे न्यायेन रघुनन्दन ।
वक्ष्यामि तं महावीर यस्तं वेत्स्यति राक्षसम् ॥ ३२ ॥

“Cremated by you in a pit with due ceremony, O joy of the Raghus, I shall point out to you the individual, O great hero, who will know the whereabouts of the ogre. (32)

तेन सख्यं च कर्तव्यं न्याय्यवृत्तेन राघव ।
कल्पयिष्यति ते वीर साहाय्यं लघुविक्रम ॥ ३३ ॥

“An alliance should be made by you with that individual of righteous conduct, O scion of Raghu ! He will render help to you, O hero of quick steps ! (33)

नहि तस्यास्त्यविज्ञातं त्रिषु लोकेषु राघव ।
सर्वान् परिवृतो लोकान् पुरा वै कारणान्तरे ॥ ३४ ॥

“Nothing is really unknown to him in all the three worlds, O scion of Raghu; for, due to some reason he has actually travelled through all the worlds in the past.” (34)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे एकोनसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-one in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्विसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXII

Appearing in his ethereal form when cremated by Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, Kabandha counsels them to make an alliance with Sugrīva

एवमुक्तौ तु तौ वीरौ कबन्धेन नरेश्वरौ ।
गिरिप्रदरमासाद्य पावकं विससर्जतुः ॥ १ ॥

Taking Kabandha to the hollow of a mountain (and placing him on logs of wood piled in the hollow), those two valiant rulers of men, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, for their part, when spoken to as above by Kabandha, ignited a fire. (1)

लक्ष्मणस्तु महोल्काभिर्ज्वलिताभिः समन्ततः ।
चितामादीपयामास सा प्रज्ज्वाल सर्वतः ॥ २ ॥

With the aid of large burning brands, Lakṣmaṇa for his part lit the pyre on all sides and lo ! it began to burn fiercely all-round. (2)

तच्छरीरं कबन्धस्य घृतपिण्डोपमं महत् ।
मेदसा पच्यमानस्य मन्दं दहत पावकः ॥ ३ ॥

The fire slowly consumed the aforesaid body of Kabandha, which, while being cremated, looked like a huge lump of clarified butter, plump with fat as he was. (3)

सविधूय चितामाशु विधूमोऽग्निरिवोत्थितः ।
अरजे वाससी बिभ्रन्माल्यं दिव्यं महाबलः ॥ ४ ॥

Throwing about the pyre, the aforesaid Kabandha, who was possessed of great might, speedily rose like a smokeless flame, wearing a spotless pair of garments and a heavenly garland. (4)

ततश्चिताया वेगेन भास्वरो विरजाम्बरः ।
उत्पपाताशु संहृष्टः सर्वप्रत्यङ्गभूषणः ॥ ५ ॥

Full of brilliance, clad in spotless raiment, highly rejoiced and having all his limbs adorned with ornaments, he promptly flew from the pyre with impetuosity. (5)

विमाने भास्वरे तिष्ठन् हंसयुक्ते यशस्करे ।
प्रभया च महातेजा दिशो दश विराजयन् ॥ ६ ॥
सोऽन्तरिक्षगतो वाक्यं कबन्धो राममब्रवीत् ।
शृणु राघव तत्त्वेन यथा सीतामवाप्स्यसि ॥ ७ ॥

Taking his seat in a splendid aerial car, conferring glory on its occupant and drawn by swans, and illumining all the ten directions by his effulgence, the aforesaid Kabandha, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, spoke to Śrī Rāma as follows, while remaining in the air: "Hear, O scion of Raghu, how in reality you will be able to recover Sītā. (6-7)

राम षड् युक्तयो लोके याभिः सर्व विमृश्यते ।
परिमृष्टो दशान्तेन दशाभागेन सेव्यते ॥ ८ ॥

"There are six expedients by recourse to which everything can be had after due deliberation by monarchs in the worlds. One who is overtaken by the height of misfortune is served only by another who has met with a similar fate. (8)

दशाभागगतो हीनस्त्वं हि राम सलक्ष्मणः ।
यत्कृते व्यसनं प्राप्तं त्वया दारप्रधर्षणम् ॥ ९ ॥

"You alongwith Lakṣmaṇa are fallen in the height of adversity, deprived as you are of sovereignty and amenities of life. Because of this adverse fate, a misfortune in the shape of abduction of your wife (Sītā) has been suffered by you. (9)

तदवश्यं त्वया कार्यः स सुहृत् सुहृदां वर ।
अकृत्वा नहि ते सिद्धिमहं पश्यामि चिन्तयन् ॥ १० ॥

"Therefore, such an individual who has reached the culmination of adverse fate like you, must be made an ally, O jewel among the kind-hearted ! Even though reflecting, I do not anticipate success for you without having an ally. (10)

श्रूयतां राम वक्ष्यामि सुग्रीवो नाम वानरः ।
भ्रात्रा निरस्तः क्रुद्धेन वालिना शक्रसूनुना ॥ ११ ॥

"Listen, O Rāma ! I shall point out such an individual. There is a monkey (chief), Sugrīva by name, disowned by his enraged brother, Vālī, son of Indra. (11)

ऋष्यमूके गिरिवरे पम्पापर्यन्तशोभिते ।
निवसत्यात्मवान् वीरश्चतुर्भिः सह वानरैः ॥ १२ ॥

“With four other monkeys the high-minded hero lives on R̥ṣyamūka, the foremost of mountains, adorned with the catchment of the Pampā lake. (12)

वानरेन्द्रो महावीर्यस्तेजोवानमितप्रभः ।
सत्यसंधो विनीतश्च धृतिमान् मतिमान् महान् ॥ १३ ॥
दक्षः प्रगल्भो द्युतिमान् महाबलपराक्रमः ।
भ्रात्रा विवासितो वीर राज्यहेतोर्महात्मना ॥ १४ ॥

“That monkey-chief—who is possessed of extraordinary prowess, is full of energy and endowed with unbounded effulgence, true to his promise, cultured, resolute and highly talented, clever, intrepid, glorious and possessed of extraordinary might and valour—has been exiled by his high-minded brother for the sake of sovereignty. (13-14)

स ते सहायो मित्रं च सीतायाः परिमार्गणे ।
भविष्यति हि ते राम मा च शोके मनः कृथाः ॥ १५ ॥

“He will surely prove to be your helper in your quest for Sītā as well as your friend, O Rāma; therefore, do not give over your mind to grief. (15)

भवितव्यं हि तच्चापि न तच्छक्यमिहान्यथा ।
कर्तुमिक्ष्वाकुशार्दूल कालो हि दुरतिक्रमः ॥ १६ ॥

“That which is destined to happen in this world can never be altered in any case, O tiger among the Ikṣvākus ! For the Time-Spirit cannot be easily overstepped. (16)

गच्छ शीघ्रमितो वीर सुग्रीवं तं महाबलम् ।
वयस्यं तं कुरु क्षिप्रमितो गत्वाद्य राघव ॥ १७ ॥

“Depart with all speed from this place to the presence of the said Sugrīva, who is possessed of great might. Nay, departing from this place today, O heroic scion of Raghu, quickly make him your friend. (17)

अद्रोहाय समागम्य दीप्यमाने विभावसौ ।
न च ते सोऽवमन्तव्यः सुग्रीवो वानराधिपः ॥ १८ ॥

“Get united with him as a friend when a fire is blazing, with a view to remaining free from enmity ever afterwards. And the said chief of monkeys, Sugrīva, should never be disregarded by you. (18)

कृतज्ञः कामरूपी च सहायार्थी च वीर्यवान् ।
शक्तौ ह्यद्य युवां कर्तुं कार्यं तस्य चिकीर्षितम् ॥ १९ ॥

“He is grateful and capable of assuming any form at will; he seeks to get an ally and is powerful. And indeed you two are capable even now of accomplishing the purpose sought to be accomplished by him. (19)

कृतार्थो वाकृतार्थो वा तव कृत्यं करिष्यति ।
स ऋक्षरजसः पुत्रः पम्पामटति शङ्कितः ॥ २० ॥
भास्करस्यौरसः पुत्रो वालिना कृतकिल्बिषः ।
संनिधायायुधं क्षिप्रमृष्यमूकालयं कपिम् ॥ २१ ॥
कुरु राघव सत्येन वयस्यं वनचारिणम् ।
स हि स्थानानि कात्स्न्येन सर्वाणि कपिकुञ्जरः ॥ २२ ॥
नरमांसाशिनां लोके नैपुण्यादधिगच्छति ।
न तस्याविदितं लोके किञ्चिदस्ति हि राघव ॥ २३ ॥

“Irrespective of whether his object is accomplished or not, he will surely accomplish your purpose. Sprung from the loins of the sun-god, the aforesaid son of R̥kṣarāja’s consort, roams about on the brink of the Pampā lake, full of apprehension of an attack from Vālī, since he has entered into hostilities with his elder brother, Vālī. Laying aside your weapons as a token of your friendly attitude, quickly make the monkey-chief, who has taken up his abode on the R̥ṣyamūka hill and wanders in the forest, your friend on oath, O scion of Raghu ! Indeed that elephant among the monkeys thoroughly knows all the haunts of ogres (feeding on the human flesh) in the world by virtue of his cleverness. Really speaking, nothing is unknown to him in the world, O scion of Raghu ! (20—23)

यावत् सूर्यः प्रतपति सहस्रांशुः परंतप ।
स नदीर्विपुलान् शैलान् गिरिदुर्गाणि कन्दरान् ॥ २४ ॥
अन्विष्य वानरैः सार्धं पत्नीं तेऽधिगमिष्यति ।
वानरांश्च महाकायान् प्रेषयिष्यति राघव ॥ २५ ॥

दिशो विचेतुं तां सीतां त्वद्वियोगेन शोचतीम् ।
अन्वेष्यति वरारोहां मैथिलीं रावणालये ॥ २६ ॥

“Searching with the monkeys rivers, large mountains, crags and caves to the extent the thousand-rayed sun blazes forth, O scourge of enemies, he will trace out your spouse. Nay, he will send out monkeys of large proportions to scour the quarters and will seek for the aforesaid Sītā, (a princess of Mithilā) of excellent limbs, grieving through separation from you in the abode of Rāvaṇa. (24—26)

स मेरुशृङ्गाग्रगतामनिन्दितां
प्रविश्य पातालतलेऽपि वाश्रिताम् ।
प्लवङ्गमानामृषभस्तव प्रियां
निहत्य रक्षांसि पुनः प्रदास्यति ॥ २७ ॥

“Having entered his abode and exterminated the ogres, that jewel among monkeys will restore to you your beloved spouse, who is beyond reproach, even if she has reached the summit of Mount Meru or has found place in the depths of Pātāla (the nethermost subterranean region).” (27)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे त्रिसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-two in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXIII

Appearing in an ethereal form, Kabandha shows to Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa the way to Rṣyamūka Hill and the Pampā Lake and, giving them information about the grove of Sage Mataṅga and his hermitage, takes leave of them

दर्शयित्वा तु रामाय सीतायाः परिमार्गणे ।
वाक्यमन्वर्थमर्थज्ञः कबन्धः पुनरब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Having shown to Śrī Rāma the means of searching out Sītā, Kabandha, who knew the matter in hand, again spoke the following meaningful words : (1)

एष राम शिवः पन्था यत्रैते पुष्पिता द्रुमाः ।
प्रतीचीं दिशमाश्रित्य प्रकाशन्ते मनोरमाः ॥ २ ॥

“Going westward, this is the path propitious for you to reach Rṣyamūka, O Rāma, where these trees in blossom, so pleasing to the mind, appear. (2)

जम्बूप्रियालपनसा न्यग्रोधप्लक्षतिन्दुकाः ।
अश्वत्थाः कर्णिकाराश्च चूताश्चान्ये च पादपाः ॥ ३ ॥
धन्वना नागवृक्षाश्च तिलका नक्तमालकाः ।
नीलाशोकाः कदम्बाश्च करवीराश्च पुष्पिताः ॥ ४ ॥

अग्निमुख्या अशोकाश्च सुरक्ताः पारिभद्रकाः ।
तानारुह्याथवा भूमौ पातयित्वा च तान् बलात् ॥ ५ ॥
फलान्यमृतकल्पानि भक्षयित्वा गमिष्यथः ।
तदतिक्रम्य काकुत्स्थ वनं पुष्पितपादपम् ॥ ६ ॥
नन्दनप्रतिमं चान्यत् कुरवस्तूत्तरा इव ।
सर्वकालफला यत्र पादपा मधुरस्त्रवाः ॥ ७ ॥

“They are Jambū (rose-apple), Priyāla and jack-fruit trees, banyans, Plakṣas and Tindukas, peepul trees and Karṇikāras, mango and other trees too, Dhavas and Nāgakesara trees, Tilakas, Naktamālakas, blue Aśokas and Kadambas, blossomed Karaviras too, Agnimukhyas and Aśokas, red sandalwood trees and Mandāras. Climbing them or bending their branches by force to the ground, and partaking of their nectar-like fruits, you should march along. Passing beyond that forest with trees in blossom, O scion of Kākutstha, you will reach another woodland resembling the Nandana grove in paradise, the trees in which bear fruit during all the seasons and drip honey all the time as is the case with the territory of the Uttarakurus (one of the nine divisions of the world). (3—7)

सर्वे च ऋतवस्तत्र वने चैत्ररथे यथा ।
फलभारनतास्तत्र महाविटपधारिणः ॥ ८ ॥
शोभन्ते सर्वतस्तत्र मेघपर्वतसंनिभाः ।
तानारुह्याथवा भूमौ पातयित्वाथवा सुखम् ॥ ९ ॥
फलान्यमृतकल्पानि लक्ष्मणस्ते प्रदास्यति ।
चङ्क्रमन्तौ वरान् शैलान् शैलाच्छैलं वनाद् वनम् ॥ १० ॥
ततः पुष्करिणीं वीरौ पम्पां नाम गमिष्यथः ।
अशर्करामविभ्रंशां समतीर्थामशैवलाम् ॥ ११ ॥

“All the seasons are represented simultaneously in that woodland as in the Caitraratha grove (belonging to Kubera, the deity presiding over the northern quarter). Carrying large boughs, the trees in that forest ever remain bent under the weight of their fruits. Resembling clouds and mountains, they spread their charm on all sides in that forest. Climbing them or bending their branches to the ground at ease, Lakṣmaṇa will offer you their nectar-like fruits. Ranging over the loveliest mountains and wandering from hill to hill and from wood to wood, O valiant princes, you will then proceed to the lotus-pond, Pampā by name, which is free from gravel and has no slime etc., (which may cause one treading on them to slip), is provided with level banks and free from duck-weeds. (8—11)

राम संजातवालूकां कमलोत्पलशोभिताम् ।
तत्र हंसाः प्लवाः क्रौञ्चाः कुरराश्चैव राघव ॥ १२ ॥
वल्गुस्वरा निकूजन्ति पम्पासलिलगोचराः ।
नोद्विजन्ते नरान् दृष्ट्वा वधस्याकोविदाः शुभाः ॥ १३ ॥

“Its rocky bed causes sand to be formed on it and it remains ever adorned with lotuses and lilies, O Rāma ! Swimming on the water of Pampā, lovely swans, ducks, Krauñcas and ospreys call in sweet tones there, O scion of Raghu ! Having not known destruction before, they are not frightened to see human beings. (12-13)

घृतपिण्डोपमान् स्थूलांस्तान् द्विजान् भक्षयिष्यथः ।
रोहितान् वक्रतुण्डांश्च नलमीनांश्च राघव ॥ १४ ॥
पम्पायामिषुभिर्मत्स्यांस्तत्र राम वरान् हतान् ।
निस्त्वक्पक्षानयस्तप्तानकृशानैककण्टकान् ॥ १५ ॥
तव भक्त्या समायुक्तो लक्ष्मणः सम्प्रदास्यति ।
भृशं तान् खादतो मत्स्यान् पम्पायाः पुष्पसंचये ॥ १६ ॥
पद्मगन्धि शिवं वारि सुखशीतमनामयम् ।
उद्धृत्य स तदाक्लिष्टं रूष्यस्फटिकसंनिभम् ॥ १७ ॥
अथ पुष्करपर्णेन लक्ष्मणः पाययिष्यति ।
स्थूलान् गिरिगुहाशय्यान् वानरान् वनचारिणः ॥ १८ ॥
सायाह्ने विचरन् राम दर्शयिष्यति लक्ष्मणः ।
अपां लोभादुपावृत्तान् वृषभानिव नर्दतः ॥ १९ ॥
स्थूलान् पीतांश्च पम्पायां द्रक्ष्यसि त्वं नरोत्तम ।
सायाह्ने विचरन् राम विटपी माल्यधारिणः ॥ २० ॥
शिवोदकं च पम्पायां दृष्ट्वा शोकं विहास्यसि ।
सुमनोभिश्चितास्तत्र तिलका नक्तमालकाः ॥ २१ ॥
उत्पलानि च फुल्लानि पङ्कजानि च राघव ।
न तानि कश्चिन्माल्यानि तत्रारोपयिता नरः ॥ २२ ॥

“You two should feed there on the edge of the said Pampā, O scion of Raghu, those plump birds as well as the beautiful fishes well-known by the names of Rohita, Vakratuṇḍa and Nalamīna on fresh edibles (in the form of bulbs and roots) stripped of their rind and other coverings with the heads of your arrows with not a single thorn left in them and looking like balls of clarified butter and roasted on the steel heads of those very arrows, which Lakṣmaṇa, who is richly adorned with devotion, will lovingly offer you. Then, taking out in the leaves (formed into a hollow) of a lotus the delightful, pleasantly cool, wholesome and limpid water of the Pampā, fragrant with the scent of lotuses and sparkling like silver and crystal, the said Lakṣmaṇa will forthwith give it to you to drink while you are busy feeding again and again those fishes in the midst of the collection of flowers in the Pampā. Rambling at dusk, O

Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa will show you stout monkeys roaming in the forest and reposing in caves. You will see those stout monkeys arrived on the brink of the Pampā due to longing for water, and having drunk water, lowing like bulls, O jewel among men ! Beholding trees putting on blossom and the delightful water of the Pampā while roving at dusk, O Rāma, you will cast off grief. The Tilaka and Naktamāla trees in that forest are covered with blossom and the lotuses and lilies in the lake are expanded, O scion of Raghu ! The lake being beyond human reach, no man would ever venture to pluck and wear those flowers on his person.

(14—22)

न च वै म्लानतां यान्ति न च शीर्यन्ति राघव ।

मतङ्गशिष्यास्तत्रासन्नृषयः सुसमाहिताः ॥ २३ ॥

“The flowers in that region neither fade nor decay, O scion of Raghu ! Formerly there lived in that forest Ṛṣis (seers of Vedic Mantras) who were pupils of Sage Mataṅga and were highly composed. (23)

तेषां भाराभितप्तानां वन्यमाहरतां गुरोः ।

ये प्रपेतुर्महीं तूर्णं शरीरात् स्वेदबिन्दवः ॥ २४ ॥

तानि माल्यानि जातानि मुनीनां तपसा तदा ।

स्वेदबिन्दुसमुत्थानि न विनश्यन्ति राघव ॥ २५ ॥

“The drops of perspiration that fell down from their body to the ground when they felt oppressed with their load while bringing the produce of the forest for their teacher quickly turned into flowers by force of their austerities at that time. Sprung as they are of those drops of perspiration, they never die, O scion of Raghu !

(24-25)

तेषां गतानामद्यापि दृश्यते परिचारिणी ।

श्रमणी शबरी नाम काकुत्स्थ चिरजीविनी ॥ २६ ॥

“Even though they have departed for the higher worlds earned by virtue of their austerities, their female attendant, an ascetic woman, Śabarī by name, who is long lived, is still to be seen, O scion of Kākutstha !

(26)

त्वां तु धर्मे स्थिता नित्यं सर्वभूतनमस्कृतम् ।

दृष्ट्वा देवोपमं राम स्वर्गलोकं गमिष्यति ॥ २७ ॥

“The woman, who is ever devoted to virtue, will ascend to heaven (the realm of Brahmā) only after seeing you, who are greeted by the whole world, godlike as you are, O Rāma !

(27)

ततस्तद्राम पम्पायास्तीरमाश्रित्य पश्चिमम् ।

आश्रमस्थानमतुलं गुह्यं काकुत्स्थ पश्यसि ॥ २८ ॥

“After that, O Rāma, you will see the site of a well-known hermitage, the former abode of Mataṅga, now occupied by Śabarī, located on the western edge of Pampā, which is incomparable and hidden from public view, being inaccessible to man, O scion of Kākutstha !

(28)

न तत्राक्रमितुं नागाः शक्नुवन्ति तदाश्रमे ।

ऋषेस्तस्य मतङ्गस्य विधानात् तच्च काननम् ॥ २९ ॥

मतङ्गवनमित्येव विश्रुतं रघुनन्दन ।

तस्मिन् नन्दनसंकाशे देवारण्योपमे वने ॥ ३० ॥

नानाविहगसंकीर्णे रंस्यसे राम निर्वृतः ।

ऋष्यमूकस्तु पम्पायाः पुरस्तात् पुष्पितद्रुमः ॥ ३१ ॥

सुदुःखारोहणश्चैव शिशुनागाभिरक्षितः ।

उदारो ब्रह्मणा चैव पूर्वकालेऽभिनिर्मितः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Through the spiritual power of the aforesaid Sage Mataṅga (who cast off his body long ago) elephants, which abound in the forest round about the hermitage, are not able to intrude into that hermitage in that forest. The forest in question is widely known by the name of Mataṅgavana only (inasmuch as it is the haunt of elephants), O joy of the race of Raghu ! In that forest, resembling the Nandana grove in paradise and looking like a heavenly forest, crowded with birds of different species, you will enjoy life happily, O Rāma ! To the east of Pampā stands the munificent Ṛṣyamūka Hill, the trees on which are ever in blossom, nay which being steep and high is most difficult of ascent and is guarded on all sides by young elephants, and which was specially evolved by Brahmā (the creator) in the olden days.

(29—32)

शयानः पुरुषो राम तस्य शैलस्य मूर्धनि ।
यत् स्वप्नं लभते वित्तं तत् प्रबुद्धोऽधिगच्छति ॥ ३३ ॥

“A man who, reposing on the top of that mountain, lays his hands on a treasure in a dream, attains it even when awake (after sleep), O Rāma ! (33)

यस्त्वेनं विषमाचारः पापकर्माधिरोहति ।
तत्रैव प्रहरन्त्येनं सुप्तमादाय राक्षसाः ॥ ३४ ॥

“Seizing, on the other hand, even while he is asleep, him who climbs up this mountain though partial in his conduct and engaged in sinful acts, ogres strike him. (34)

तत्रापि शिशुनागानामाक्रन्दः श्रूयते महान् ।
क्रीडतां राम पम्पायां मतङ्गाश्रमवासिनाम् ॥ ३५ ॥

“The loud trumpeting of young elephants, inhabiting the forest surrounding the hermitage of Sage Mataṅga and disporting in the Pampā lake, O Rāma, is heard even on that mountain. (35)

सक्ता रुधिरधाराभिः संहत्य परमद्विपाः ।
प्रचरन्ति पृथक्क्रीर्णा मेघवर्णास्तरस्विनः ॥ ३६ ॥

“Wet with streams of reddish ichor, huge elephants possessing the dark hue of clouds and full of ardour roam there in a herd, remaining distinct from other herds. (36)

ते तत्र पीत्वा पानीयं विमलं चारु शोभनम् ।
अत्यन्तसुखसंस्पृशं सर्वगन्धसमन्वितम् ॥ ३७ ॥
निर्वृत्ताः संविगाहन्ते वनानि वनगोचराः ।
ऋक्षांश्च द्वीपिनश्चैव नीलकोमलकप्रभान् ॥ ३८ ॥

रुरुन्पेतानजयान् दृष्ट्वा शोकं प्रहास्यसि ।
राम तस्य तु शैलस्य महती शोभते गुहा ॥ ३९ ॥
शिलापिधाना काकुत्स्थ दुःखं चास्याः प्रवेशनम् ।
तस्या गुहायाः प्राग्द्वारे महान् शीतोदको ह्रदः ॥ ४० ॥
बहुमूलफलो रम्यो नानानगसमाकुलः ।

तस्यां वसति धर्मात्मा सुग्रीवः सह वानरैः ॥ ४१ ॥
कदाचिच्छिखरे तस्य पर्वतस्यापि तिष्ठति ।
कबन्धस्त्वनुशास्यैवं तावुभौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ ४२ ॥
स्त्रग्वी भास्करवर्णाभः खे व्यरोचत वीर्यवान् ।
तं तु खस्थं महाभागं तावुभौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ ४३ ॥

प्रस्थितौ त्वं व्रजस्वेति वाक्यमूचतुरन्तिके ।
गम्यतां कार्यसिद्ध्यर्थमिति तावब्रवीत् स च ॥ ४४ ॥

“Gratified after drinking the limpid, agreeable and lovely water of the lake, which is most delightful to touch and fragrant with all kinds of odours, the wild elephants penetrate into the woodlands again. Beholding the bears possessed of a blue and soft shining coat and leopards as well as the Rurus (a species of deer) unconquered by man and arrived near without fear, you will shed grief altogether. Spreading its charm on that mountain, O Rāma, there is a big cave which has its mouth blocked with a rock and as such is difficult to enter, O scion of Kakutstha ! At the eastern entrance of that cave there is a large lovely deep pool of cool water abounding in roots and fruits and surrounded by trees of various species. Sugrīva, whose mind is set on virtue, dwells in that cave with other monkeys. Sometimes he resides even on the top of that mountain.” Having instructed as aforesaid both the princes, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, the powerful Kabandha for his part, who was adorned with a garland and possessed a splendour resembling the sun’s, shone brightly in the air. To the highly blessed Kabandha, who remained standing in the air for sometime to take leave of the two princes, both the princes, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, for their part, already set out on their journey, spoke as follows standing near the ogre : “Depart you !” He too said to them, “Proceed on your journey for accomplishing your purpose.” (37—44)

सुप्रीतौ तावनुज्ञाप्य कबन्धः प्रस्थितस्तदा ॥ ४५ ॥

Taking leave of the two princes, who felt highly pleased, Kabandha departed forthwith. (45)

स तत् कबन्धः प्रतिपद्य रूपं
वृतः श्रिया भास्वरसर्वदेहः ।

निदर्शयन् राममवेक्ष्य खस्थः
सख्यं कुरुष्वेति तदाभ्युवाच ॥ ४६ ॥

Having regained his pristine form, and showing the path to the Ṛṣyamūka Hill, nay, gazing on Śrī Rāma, Kabandha, who was enveloped in glory and whose entire body was full of glow, presently said to Śrī Rāma, while remaining in the air, 'Do enter into an alliance with Sugrīva !' " (46)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे त्रिसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-three in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुःसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXIV

Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa visit the hermitage of Śabarī on the brink of the Pampā in the forest named Mataṅgavana, receive her hospitality and go round the forest with her. Casting her body into the sacred fire, Śabarī ascends to the heavenly world

तौ कबन्धेन तं मार्गं पम्पाया दर्शितं वने ।
आतस्थतुर्दिशं गृह्य प्रतीचीं नृवरात्मजौ ॥ १ ॥

Taking up the route through the forest to the Pampā lake, as shown by Kabandha, the aforesaid two sons of Daśaratha (the foremost among men) proceeded towards the west. (1)

तौ शैलेष्वाचितानेकान् क्षौद्रपुष्पफलद्रुमान् ।
वीक्षन्तौ जग्मतुर्द्रष्टुं सुग्रीवं रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ २ ॥

Gazing on the numerous trees collected in the form of a cluster on the mountain rocks and laden with flowers and fruits and dripping honey, the two princes, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, marched on their mission to see Sugrīva. (2)

कृत्वा तु शैलपृष्ठे तु तौ वासं रघुनन्दनौ ।
पम्पायाः पश्चिमं तीरं राघवावुपतस्थतुः ॥ ३ ॥

Staying for the night on a plateau, those two scions of Raghu, the delights of Raghu's race, for their part approached the western edge of Pampā. (3)

तौ पुष्करिण्याः पम्पायास्तीरमासाद्य पश्चिमम् ।
अपश्यतां ततस्तत्र शबर्या रम्यमाश्रमम् ॥ ४ ॥

Having reached the western brink of the lotus pond, Pampā, the two princes then sighted the lovely hermitage of Śabarī on the aforesaid brink of Pampā. (4)

तौ तमाश्रममासाद्य द्रुमैर्बहुभिरावृतम् ।
सुरम्यमभिवीक्षन्तौ शबरीमभ्युपेयतुः ॥ ५ ॥

Reaching that most delightful hermitage, hemmed in with many trees, and looking all-round, the two princes met Śabarī. (5)

तौ दृष्ट्वा तु तदा सिद्धा समुत्थाय कृताञ्जलिः ।
पादौ जग्राह रामस्य लक्ष्मणस्य च धीमतः ॥ ६ ॥
पाद्यमाचमनीयं च सर्वं प्रादाद् यथाविधि ।
तामुवाच ततो रामः श्रमणीं धर्मसंस्थिताम् ॥ ७ ॥

Rising respectfully with joined palms on seeing the two princes, Śabarī (who had attained perfection through Yoga or abstraction) for her part presently clasped the feet of Śrī Rāma and the prudent Lakṣmaṇa and offered her honoured guests with due ceremony water to bathe their feet and rinse their mouth with and every other form of hospitality. Śrī Rāma then spoke as follows to the aforesaid ascetic woman, who was intent upon virtue: (6-7)

कच्चित्ते निर्जिता विघ्नाः कच्चित्ते वर्धते तपः ।
कच्चित्ते नियतः कोप आहारश्च तपोधने ॥ ८ ॥

"Have all impediments to the practice of your austerities been thoroughly overcome by you? Is your asceticism steadily growing?

Has anger been fully controlled by you as well as your diet, O lady ! with asceticism alone as your wealth? (8)

कच्चित्ते नियमाः प्राप्ताः कच्चित्ते मनसः सुखम् ।

कच्चित्ते गुरुशुश्रूषा सफला चारुभाषिणि ॥ १ ॥

“Are all your religious vows fully observed and has satisfaction come to your mind? Has your attendance on your preceptor borne fruit, O lady of pleasing speech?” (9)

रामेण तापसी पृष्टा सा सिद्धा सिद्धसम्पत्ता ।

शशंस शबरी वृद्धा रामाय प्रत्यवस्थिता ॥ १० ॥

Stationed before Śrī Rāma when enquired as above by the latter, the aforesaid ascetic woman, the aged Śabarī, who had not only attained perfection through Yoga, but was esteemed by perfect souls, submitted as follows to Śrī Rāma : (10)

अद्य प्राप्ता तपःसिद्धिस्तव संदर्शनात्मया ।

अद्य मे सफलं जन्म गुरुवश्च सुपूजिताः ॥ ११ ॥

“Today has the fruition of my austerities been attained by me through your blessed sight. Today my birth as a human being has borne fruit and my elders have been duly adored. (11)

अद्य मे सफलं तप्तं स्वर्गश्चैव भविष्यति ।

त्वयि देववरे राम पूजिते पुरुषर्षभ ॥ १२ ॥

“My asceticism too has become fruitful today and the highest heaven too will definitely fall to my lot, now that you, the foremost of gods, have been worshipped by me, O Rāma, the flower of humanity. (12)

तवाहं चक्षुषा सौम्य पूता सौम्येन मानद ।

गमिष्याम्यक्षयाँल्लोकांस्त्वत्प्रसादादरिंदम ॥ १३ ॥

“Hallowed by your gracious look, O gentle one, bestowing honour on others, I shall by your grace ascend to realms knowing no decay, O subduer of foes ! (13)

चित्रकूटं त्वयि प्राप्ते विमानैरतुलप्रभैः ।

इतस्ते दिवमारूढा यानहं पर्यचारिषम् ॥ १४ ॥

“When you reached Citrakūṭa, the sages whom I served, viz., the pupils of Sage

Mataṅga, ascended to heaven from this place in aerial cars of incomparable splendour. (14)

तैश्चाहमुक्ता

धर्मज्ञैर्महाभागैर्महर्षिभिः ।

आगमिष्यति ते रामः सुपुण्यमिममाश्रमम् ॥ १५ ॥

“Nay, I was reassured in the following words by those eminent and highly blessed seers of Vedic Mantras, who knew what is right : ‘Śrī Rāma will visit this highly sacrosanct hermitage of yours. (15)

स ते प्रतिग्रीहतव्यः सौमित्रिसहितोऽतिथिः ।

तं च दृष्ट्वा वराँल्लोकानक्षयांस्त्वं गमिष्यसि ॥ १६ ॥

“‘Alongwith Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), Śrī Rāma should be hospitably received by you as a guest. Having seen him (before casting off your body) you will ascend to realms that know no decay.’ (16)

एवमुक्ता महाभागैस्तदाहं पुरुषर्षभ ।

मया तु संचितं वन्यं विविधं पुरुषर्षभ ॥ १७ ॥

तवार्थे पुरुषव्याघ्र पम्पायास्तीरसम्भवम् ।

एवमुक्तः स धर्मात्मा शबर्या शबरीमिदम् ॥ १८ ॥

राघवः प्राह विज्ञाने तां नित्यमबहिष्कृताम् ।

दनोः सकाशात् तत्त्वेन प्रभावं ते महात्मनाम् ॥ १९ ॥

श्रुतं प्रत्यक्षमिच्छामि संद्रष्टुं यदि मन्यसे ।

एतत्तु वचनं श्रुत्वा रामवक्त्रविनिःसृतम् ॥ २० ॥

शबरी दर्शयामास तावुभौ तद्वनं महत् ।

पश्य मेघघनप्रख्यं मृगपक्षिसमाकुलम् ॥ २१ ॥

मतङ्गवनमित्येव विश्रुतं रघुनन्दन ।

इह ते भावितात्मानो गुरवो मे महाद्युते ।

जुहवाञ्चक्रिरे नीडं मन्त्रवन्मन्त्रपूजितम् ॥ २२ ॥

“I was reassured by those highly blessed souls in these words on that occasion, O jewel among men ! Produce of the forest of every description growing on the brink of Pampā has, therefore, been gathered by me for you, O tiger among men, the flower of humanity !” Spoken to, as aforesaid, by Śabarī, the said Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), whose mind was set on virtue, lovingly spoke as follows to Śabarī, who had been eternally admitted into the portals of divine wisdom : “If you deem fit, I wish to perceive with my own eyes the glory of your high-souled preceptors, heard of by me of its true character from the demon Kabandha." Hearing these words issued from the lips of Śrī Rāma, Śabari for her part showed both the brothers round that vast forest, saying: "Behold the forest dark as a rainy cloud and thronged with beasts and birds and widely known by the name of Mataṅgavana only, O joy of the House of Raghu !" She said: "Here the aforesaid preceptors of mine, who had purified the soul by meditating on God, sacrificed their body consecrated by repeating the holy text of Gāyatrī while uttering the Mantra which are recited at the time of pouring oblations into the sacred fire, O prince endowed with great splendour ! (17—22)

इयं प्रत्यक्स्थली वेदी यत्र ते मे सुसत्कृताः ।
पुष्पोपहारं कुर्वन्ति श्रमादुद्वेपिभिः करैः ॥ २३ ॥

"This is the altar known by the name of Pratyaksthali, where the aforesaid Ṛṣis, highly adored by me, offered worship with flowers to the deities with their hands shaking due to exhaustion caused by old age, coupled with austerity of life. (23)

तेषां तपःप्रभावेण पश्याद्यापि रघूत्तम ।
द्योतयन्ती दिशः सर्वाः श्रिया वेद्यतुलप्रभा ॥ २४ ॥

"See how the altar retains its matchless effulgence even to this day, illumining all the quarters by its splendour through the power of their asceticism, O flower of Raghu's race ! (24)

अशक्नुवद्भिस्तैर्गन्तुमुपवासश्रमालसैः ।
चिन्तितेनागतान् पश्य समेतान् सप्त सागरान् ॥ २५ ॥

"Behold all the seven oceans encircling the earth drawn in a collective form to this spot by the very thought of those sages when they had grown feeble due to exhaustion occasioned by fasting and were consequently unable to undertake a journey to the seven oceans. (25)

कृताभिषेकैस्तैर्यस्ता वल्कलाः पादपेष्विव ।
अद्यापि न विशुष्यन्ति प्रदेशे रघुनन्दन ॥ २६ ॥

"The barks of trees (clothes) spread by them on the trees in this region, after they had finished their ablutions, have not dried up till today, O delight of the Raghus ! (26)

देवकार्याणि कुर्वद्भिर्यानीमानि कृतानि वै ।

पुष्पैः कुवलयैः सार्धं म्लानत्वं न तु यान्ति वै ॥ २७ ॥

"The garlands which were actually made by them with flowers interspersed with blue water-lilies while going through rites undertaken to propitiate the gods have not really faded till now. (27)

कृत्स्नं वनमिदं दृष्टं श्रोतव्यं च श्रुतं त्वया ।

तदिच्छाम्यभ्यनुज्ञाता त्यक्ष्याम्येतत् कलेवरम् ॥ २८ ॥

"The whole of this forest has been seen and what was worth hearing about it has been heard by you. I, therefore, wish that duly permitted by you, I may cast off this body. (28)

तेषामिच्छाम्यहं गन्तुं समीपं भावितात्मनाम् ।

मुनीनामाश्रमो येषामहं च परिचारिणी ॥ २९ ॥

"I long to approach those ascetics of purified mind to whom this hermitage belongs and whose servant I have been." (29)

धर्मिष्ठं तु वचः श्रुत्वा राघवः सहलक्ष्मणः ।

प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे आश्चर्यमिति चाब्रवीत् ॥ ३० ॥

Hearing the most pious submission of Śabari, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for his part together with Lakṣmaṇa experienced incomparable exultation and said, "Wonderful !" (30)

तामुवाच ततो रामः शबरीं संशितव्रताम् ।

अर्चितोऽहं त्वया भद्रे गच्छ कामं यथासुखम् ॥ ३१ ॥

Śrī Rāma then replied to the said Śabari of austere vows, "I have been duly honoured by you, O blessed lady ! Now depart happily at will." (31)

इत्येवमुक्ता जटिला चीरकृष्णाजिनाम्बरा ।

अनुज्ञाता तु रामेण हुत्वाऽऽत्मानं हुताशने ॥ ३२ ॥

ज्वलत्पावकसंकाशा स्वर्गमेव जगाम ह ।

दिव्याभरणसंयुक्ता दिव्यमाल्यानुलेपना ॥ ३३ ॥

दिव्याम्बरधरा तत्र बभूव प्रियदर्शना ।

विराजयन्ती तं देशं विद्युत्सौदामनी यथा ॥ ३४ ॥

Casting herself into the fire when spoken to as aforesaid and granted leave by Śrī Rāma, Śabārī, who wore matted locks on her head and was clad in the bark of trees and black deerskin before she leapt into the fire, rose to the highest heaven alone, looking, as she did, like a blazing fire : so the tradition goes. Adorned with celestial jewels and celestial garlands, daubed with heavenly sandal-paste and clad in heavenly raiment, she wore a pleasing aspect in that ethereal form, illumining that region like a streak of lightning flashing from a cloud. (32—34)

यत्र ते सुकृतात्मानो विहरन्ति महर्षयः ।
तत् पुण्यं शबरी स्थानं जगामात्मसमाधिना ॥ ३५ ॥

Through deep concentration of mind Śabārī attained that holy realm where those eminent Ṛṣis, whose mind was set on virtue, enjoyed life. (35)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे चतुःसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-four in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXV

Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa seek the brink of Pampā lake conversing together

दिवं तु तस्यां यातायां शबर्या स्वेन तेजसा ।
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा चिन्तयामास राघवः ॥ १ ॥

When, illumined by her own spiritual lustre, the aforesaid Śabārī had ascended to heaven, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for his part with his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, reflected on the spiritual might of the aforesaid Ṛṣis. (1)

चिन्तयित्वा तु धर्मात्मा प्रभावं तं महात्मनाम् ।
हितकारिणमेकाग्रं लक्ष्मणं राघवोऽब्रवीत् ॥ २ ॥

Pondering over that spiritual power of those high-souled Ṛṣis, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for his part whose mind was set on virtue, spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa of undivided mind, who always rendered good offices to him : (2)

दृष्टो मयाऽऽश्रमः सौम्य बह्वाश्रयः कृतात्मनाम् ।
विश्वस्तमृगशार्दूलो नानाविहगसेवितः ॥ ३ ॥

“The hermitage of the sages, who had subdued their mind through contemplation on God, which is full of many wonders and is inhabited by birds of different species and in which deer and tigers live confidently together, has been seen by me, O gentle brother ! (3)

सप्तानां च समुद्राणां तेषां तीर्थेषु लक्ष्मण ।
उपस्पृष्टं च विधिवत् पितरश्चापि तर्पिताः ॥ ४ ॥

“A bath has been taken with due ceremony in the sacred water of all the seven oceans girding the earth, drawn by them in a miniature form, O Lakṣmaṇa, and the manes too have been propitiated with offerings of water. (4)

प्रणष्टमशुभं यन्नः कल्याणं समुपस्थितम् ।
तेन त्वेतत् प्रहृष्टं मे मनो लक्ष्मण सम्प्रति ॥ ५ ॥

“Whatever evil Karma stood to our credit has been nullified and good fortune in the shape of a meeting with Sugriva and the consequent hope of recovering Sītā, is well within reach. Consequently this mind too of mine now feels highly rejoiced, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (5)

हृदये मे नरव्याघ्र शुभमाविर्भविष्यति ।
तदागच्छ गमिष्यावः पम्पां तां प्रियदर्शनाम् ॥ ६ ॥

“Joy occasioned by some welcome event will flash in my heart, O tiger among men ! Therefore, come, let us proceed to the celebrated Pampā lake, which is so pleasing to look at. (6)

ऋष्यमूको गिरिर्यत्र नातिदूरे प्रकाशते ।
यस्मिन् वसति धर्मात्मा सुग्रीवोऽशुमतः सुतः ॥ ७ ॥
नित्यं वालिभयात् त्रस्तश्चतुर्भिः सह वानरैः ।
अहं त्वरे च तं द्रष्टुं सुग्रीवं वानरर्षभम् ॥ ८ ॥
तदधीनं हि मे कार्यं सीतायाः परिमार्गणम् ।
इति ब्रुवाणं तं वीरं सौमित्रिरिदमब्रवीत् ॥ ९ ॥

“Not very far from it appears the R̥ṣyamūka Hill, on which dwells the high-souled Sugrīva, son of the sun-god, with four other monkeys, seized with constant dread of Vāli. And I am in a hurry to see the aforesaid Sugrīva, a flower of the monkey race. For my mission of seeking Sītā hinges on him.” Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) replied as follows to the aforesaid hero, Śrī Rāma, who was speaking as above : (7—9)

गच्छावस्त्वरितं तत्र ममापि त्वरते मनः ।
आश्रमात्तु ततस्तस्मान्निष्क्रम्य स विशाम्यतिः ॥ १० ॥
आजगाम ततः पम्यां लक्ष्मणेन सह प्रभुः ।
समीक्षमाणः पुष्याढ्यं सर्वतो विपुलद्रुमम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Let us repair thither quickly; my mind too is getting impatient to reach there.” Thereupon issuing from that hermitage, that powerful prince, the ruler of men, then arrived on the brink of Pampā with Lakṣmaṇa, surveying the forest, which consisted of big trees enriched with flowers on all sides. (10-11)

कोयष्टिभिश्चार्जुनकैः शतपत्रैश्च कीरकैः ।
एतैश्चान्यैश्च बहुभिर्नादितं तद् वनं महत् ॥ १२ ॥

That big forest was rendered noisy by lapwings and peacocks as well as by wood-peckers and parrots as also by many other birds. (12)

स रामो विविधान् वृक्षान् सरांसि विविधानि च ।
पश्यन् कामाभिसंतप्तो जगाम परमं हृदम् ॥ १३ ॥

Beholding trees of every description as well as lakes of various kinds, the aforesaid Śrī Rāma, who was tormented with pangs of love for Sītā, sought that excellent lake. (13)

स तामासाद्य वै रामो दूरात् पानीयवाहिनीम् ।
मतङ्गसरसं नाम हृदं समवगाहत ॥ १४ ॥

Having actually reached that lake, which drew its waters from afar, Śrī Rāma bathed in a pool forming part of Pampā, Mataṅgasara by name. (14)

तत्र जगमुरव्यग्रौ राघवौ हि समाहितौ ।
स तु शोकसमाविष्टो रामो दशरथात्मजः ॥ १५ ॥
विवेश नलिनीं रम्यां पंकजैश्च समावृताम् ।
तिलकाशोकपुंनागबकुलोद्वालकाशिनीम् ॥ १६ ॥

The two scions of Raghu reached there actually unruffled and composed. The celebrated Śrī Rāma, son of Daśaratha, however, was overwhelmed with grief (caused by separation from Sītā) when he entered the lotus-pond, which was covered with lotuses and appeared delightful. It looked charming with the Tilaka, Aśoka, Punnāga, Bakula and Uddāla trees by which it was surrounded. (15-16)

रम्योपवनसम्बाधां पद्मसम्पीडितोदकाम् ।
स्फटिकोपमतोयां तां श्लक्ष्णवालुकसंतताम् ॥ १७ ॥

It had become narrow on account of lovely groves that had encroached upon it; its crystalline water was fully covered with lotuses and its bed was spread over with soft sand. (17)

मत्स्यकच्छपसम्बाधां तीरस्थद्रुमशोभिताम् ।
सखीभिरिव संयुक्तां लताभिरनुवेष्टिताम् ॥ १८ ॥

It was crowded with alligators and turtles and adorned with the trees that stood on its margin. Surrounded with creepers, it looked as if united with its female companions. (18)

किंनरोरगगन्धर्वयक्षराक्षससेविताम् ।
नानाद्रुमलताकीर्णां शीतवारिनिधिं शुभाम् ॥ १९ ॥

Frequented by Kinnaras, Nāgas, Gandharvas, Yakṣas and ogres and hemmed in with trees and creepers of various kinds, it was a beautiful reservoir of cool water. (19)

पद्मसौगन्धिकैस्ताम्रां शुक्लां कुमुदमण्डलैः ।

नीलां कुवलयोद्घाटैर्बहुवर्णा कुथामिव ॥ २० ॥

Looking coppery with its rosy lotuses, white with its clusters of water-lilies and blue with its bunches of blue lotuses, it presented the appearance of a multi-coloured carpet. (20)

अरविन्दोत्पलवतीं पद्मसौगन्धिकायुताम् ।

पुष्पिताम्रवणोपेतां बर्हिणोद्घुष्टनादिताम् ॥ २१ ॥

Full of blue lotuses and water-lilies, it was adorned with white lotuses and 'Saugandhika' flowers, encompassed with mango groves in blossom and made noisy with the cries of peacocks. (21)

स तां दृष्ट्वा ततः पम्पां रामः सौमित्रिणा सह ।

विललाप च तेजस्वी रामो दशरथात्मजः ॥ २२ ॥

तिलकैर्बीजपूरैश्च वटैः शुक्लद्रुमैस्तथा ।

पुष्पितैः करवीरैश्च पुंनागैश्च सुपुष्पितैः ॥ २३ ॥

मालतीकुन्दगुल्मैश्च भण्डीरैर्निचुलैस्तथा ।

अशोकैः सप्तपर्णैश्च कतकैरतिमुक्तकैः ॥ २४ ॥

अन्यैश्च विविधैर्वृक्षैः प्रमदामिव शोभिताम् ।

अस्यास्तीरे तु पूर्वोक्तः पर्वतो धातुमण्डितः ॥ २५ ॥

ऋष्यमूक इति ख्यातश्चित्रपुष्पितपादपः ।

हरिऋक्षरजोनाम्नः पुत्रस्तस्य महात्मनः ॥ २६ ॥

अध्यास्ते तु महावीर्यः सुग्रीव इति विश्रुतः ।

सुग्रीवमभिगच्छ त्वं वानरेन्द्रं नरर्षभ ॥ २७ ॥

Seeing with Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) the aforesaid Pampā lake, which was adorned with Tilaka and Bijapūra, banyan and Śukla trees, as well as with the Karavīra trees in blossom and Punnāga trees in full blossom, nay, with shrubs of Mālātī and Kunda as well as with the Bhaṇḍīra and Nicula trees, the Aśoka, Saptaparnā, Kataka and Atimukta trees and other trees of different species, and looked like a decorated young lady, the glorious Śrī Rāma, son of Daśaratha,

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्येऽरण्यकाण्डे पञ्चसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-five in the Aranyakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Rṣi and the oldest epic.

wailed. On the brink of this lake stood the aforementioned mountain known by the name of Rṣyamūka, which was enriched with minerals of every description and crowned with various trees in blossom. The highly valiant monkey, widely known by the name of Sugrīva and a son of the high-souled Rkṣarajā, for his part, lived on this mountain. "Seek you the monkey-chief, Sugrīva, flower of humanity !" (22—27)

इत्युवाच पुनर्वाक्यं लक्ष्मणं सत्यविक्रमः ।

कथं मया विना सीतां शक्यं लक्ष्मण जीवितुम् ॥ २८ ॥

Thus spoke Śrī Rāma of unfailing prowess to Lakṣmaṇa, adding : "How will it be possible for me to live without Sītā, O Lakṣmaṇa?" (28)

इत्येवमुक्त्वा मदनाभिपीडितः

स लक्ष्मणं वाक्यमनन्यचेतनः ।

विवेश पम्पां नलिनीमनोरमां

तमुत्तमं शोकमुदीरयाणः ॥ २९ ॥

Having spoken in these words to Lakṣmaṇa and giving vent to that foremost grief of his, Śrī Rāma, who was deeply tormented with love and whose mind was exclusively fixed on her, entered Pampā, which ravished the soul by its lotuses. (29)

क्रमेण गत्वा प्रविलोकयन् वनं

ददर्श पम्पां शुभदर्शकाननाम् ।

अनेकनानाविधपक्षिसंकुलां

विवेश रामः सह लक्ष्मणेन ॥ ३० ॥

Proceeding by stages and gazing on the forest, Śrī Rāma beheld Pampā, surrounded with groves which were lovely to look at, and thronged with numerous birds of every description, and entered it with Lakṣmaṇa. (30)

श्रीसीतारामचन्द्राभ्यां नमः

श्रीमद्वाल्मीकीयरामायणम् किष्किन्धाकाण्डम्

प्रथमः सर्गः

Śrīmad Vālmīki-Rāmāyaṇa

[Book Four]

(Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa)

Canto I

When Śrī Rāma approached the Pampā lake, the sight of the lovely surroundings intensified his pangs of separation from Sītā. Put in mind of Sītā, he laments for her. Living with his ministers on the summit of the Rṣyamūka hill, Sugrīva catches sight of the two princes and gets alarmed

स तां पुष्करिणीं गत्वा पद्मोत्पलझषाकुलाम् ।
रामः सौमित्रिसहितो विललापाकुलेन्द्रियः ॥ १ ॥

Reaching alongwith Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) the aforesaid pond abounding in lotuses, lilies and fishes, Śrī Rāma, whose mind was troubled, burst into a wail. (1)

तत्र दृष्ट्वैव तां हर्षादिन्द्रियाणि चकम्पिरे ।
स कामवशमापन्नः सौमित्रिमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ २ ॥

Immediately on seeing the pond there the senses of Śrī Rāma felt excited through delight. Fallen a prey to love, he spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) : (2)

सौमित्रे शोभते पम्पा वैदूर्यविमलोदका ।
फुल्लपद्मोत्पलवती शोभिता विविधैर्द्रुमैः ॥ ३ ॥

“Containing full-blown lotuses and lilies and adorned with trees of every description, and with its water transparent as a cat’s-eye gem, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), Pampā looks charming. (3)

सौमित्रे पश्य पम्पायाः काननं शुभदर्शनम् ।
यत्र राजन्ति शैला वा द्रुमाः सशिखरा इव ॥ ४ ॥

“Behold, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), the woodland surrounding Pampā, so pleasant to the sight, the trees looking as though crested with their towering boughs, spread their charm like mountains. (4)

मां तु शोकाभिसंतप्तमाधयः पीडयन्ति वै ।
भरतस्य च दुःखेन वैदेह्या हरणेन च ॥ ५ ॥

“Agonies of various kinds for their part undoubtedly afflict me, sore-stricken as I already am with grief caused by Bharata’s sad plight and the abduction of Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory. (5)

शोकार्तस्यापि मे पम्पा शोभते चित्रकानना ।
व्यवकीर्णा बहुविधैः पुष्पैः शीतोदका शिवा ॥ ६ ॥

“The delightful Pampā, which is lined by a picturesque woodland and interspersed with flowers of various kinds and is known for its cool water, fascinates me, stricken though I am with grief. (6)

नलिनैरपि संछन्ना ह्यत्यर्थशुभदर्शना ।
सर्पव्यालानुचरिता मृगद्विजसमाकुला ॥ ७ ॥

“Though thickly covered with lotuses, infested with serpents and beasts of prey and surrounded by deer and birds, it actually wears an exceedingly pleasant aspect. (7)

अधिकं प्रविभात्येतन्नीलपीतं तु शाद्वलम् ।
द्रुमाणां विविधैः पुष्पैः परिस्तोमैरिवार्पितम् ॥ ८ ॥

“Scattered with blossoms of various kinds dropped from trees, this turf, which presents a blue and yellow hue, looks extremely charming, overspread, as it were, with carpets. (8)

पुष्पभारसमृद्धानि शिखराणि समन्ततः ।
लताभिः पुष्पिताग्राभिरुपगूढानि सर्वतः ॥ ९ ॥

“Enriched by loads of flowers on all sides, the tree-tops stand entwined all-round by climbers with blossomed ends. (9)

सुखानिलोऽयं सौमित्रे कालः प्रचुरमन्मथः ।
गन्धवान् सुरभिर्मासो जातपुष्पफलद्रुमः ॥ १० ॥

“This month of Caitra (the first month of the vernal season, roughly corresponding to the month of March), O Lakṣmaṇa, represents a period of agreeable breezes, awakening deep love and full of pride (on this achievement), when trees blossom and bear fruit. (10)

पश्य रूपाणि सौमित्रे वनानां पुष्पशालिनाम् ।
सृजतां पुष्पवर्षाणि वर्षं तोयमुचामिव ॥ ११ ॥

“Behold, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), the scenery of these woods adorned with flowers and raining volumes of flowers like clouds discharging showers. (11)

प्रस्तरेषु च रम्येषु विविधाः काननद्रुमाः ।
वायुवेगप्रचलिताः पुष्पैरवकिरन्ति गाम् ॥ १२ ॥

“Nay, shaken by the tempo of blasts, forest trees of every description standing in the midst of pleasing flat rocks cover the ground with flowers. (12)

पतितैः पतमानैश्च पादपस्थैश्च मारुतः ।
कुसुमैः पश्य सौमित्रे क्रीडतीव समन्ततः ॥ १३ ॥

“See how the breeze is sporting as it were on all sides with the flowers that have fallen, are falling and are still on the trees, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (13)

विक्षिपन् विविधाः शाखां नगानां कुसुमोत्कटाः ।
मारुतश्चलितस्थानैः षट्पदैरनुगीयते ॥ १४ ॥

“Violently shaking the various branches, richly endowed with blossom of trees, the breeze is being celebrated in song by black bees which have shifted from their position (on the flowers, dislodged as they were by the breeze). (14)

मत्तकोकिलसंनादैर्नर्तयन्निव पादपान् ।
शैलकंदरनिष्क्रान्तः प्रगीत इव चानिलः ॥ १५ ॥

“Emerging from mountain-caves and as though making the trees dance by the dulcet notes of cuckoos in heat, the breeze has started singing, as it were. (15)

तेन विक्षिपतात्यर्थं पवनेन समन्ततः ।
अमी संसक्तशाखाग्रा ग्रथिता इव पादपाः ॥ १६ ॥

“With the tips of their branches united on all sides by the aforesaid breeze, which was violently shaking them, those trees appear as though strung together. (16)

स एव सुखसंस्पर्शो वाति चन्दनशीतलः ।
गन्धमभ्यवहन् पुण्यं श्रमापनयनोऽनिलः ॥ १७ ॥

“Delightful to the touch and rendered cool by the touch of sandalwood and hence relieving fatigue, and wafting its pleasing fragrance, the aforesaid breeze moves along. (17)

अमी पवनविक्षिप्ता विनदन्तीव पादपाः ।
षट्पदैरनुकूजद्विर्वनेषु मधुगन्धिषु ॥ १८ ॥

“Violently shaken by the blast, those trees in the groves, fragrant with honey, are singing as it were through the black bees continuously humming. (18)

गिरिप्रस्थेषु रम्येषु पुष्पवद्विर्मनोरमैः ।
संसक्तशिखराः शैला विराजन्ति महाद्रुमैः ॥ १९ ॥

"The mountains look exceptionally charming with their peaks joined together by large trees laden with blossom and hence pleasing to the mind, standing on their lovely plateaus. (19)

पुष्पसंछन्नशिखरा मारुतोत्क्षेपचञ्चलाः ।
अमी मधुकरोत्तंसाः प्रगीता इव पादपाः ॥ २० ॥

"With their tops thickly covered with blossom, the yonder trees, unsteady due to the shaking given by the wind and crested with black bees, are singing, as it were. (20)

सुपुष्पितांस्तु पश्यैतान् कर्णिकारान् समन्ततः ।
हाटकप्रतिसंछन्नान् नरान् पीताम्बरानिव ॥ २१ ॥

"Behold these Karṇikāra trees laden with flowers on all sides and looking like men heavily adorned with gold ornaments and clad in yellow. (21)

अयं वसन्तः सौमित्रे नानाविहगनादितः ।
सीतया विप्रहीणस्य शोकसंदीपनो मम ॥ २२ ॥

"Made noisy by birds of different species, this vernal season, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), fully awakens my grief, disunited as I am once for all from Sitā. (22)

मां हि शोकसमाक्रान्तं संतापयति मन्मथः ।
हृष्टं प्रवदमानश्च समाह्वयति कोकिलः ॥ २३ ॥

"Indeed love torments me, overwhelmed as I am with grief; and engaging in a quarrel (with me), the cuckoo merrily challenges me. (23)

एष दात्यूहको हृष्टो रम्ये मां वननिर्झर ।
प्रणदन्मन्मथाविष्टं शोचयिष्यति लक्ष्मण ॥ २४ ॥

"Joyously cackling near the wild lovely cascade, O Lakṣmaṇa, this water-fowl fills me with grief, possessed as I am with love, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (24)

श्रुत्वैतस्य पुरा शब्दमाश्रमस्था मम प्रिया ।
मामाहूय प्रमुदिताः परमं प्रत्यनन्दत ॥ २५ ॥

"Overjoyed to hear its cry in the past, and calling me, my darling Sitā, when present in the hermitage, hailed me with excessive joy. (25)

एवं विचित्राः पतगा नानारावविराविणः ।
वृक्षगुल्मलताः पश्य सम्पतन्ति समन्ततः ॥ २६ ॥

"See how, uttering notes of various kinds, birds of every description descend on trees, bushes and climbers on all sides. (26)

विमिश्रा विहगाः पुंभिरात्मव्यूहाभिनन्दिताः ।
भृङ्गराजप्रमुदिताः सौमित्रे मधुरस्वराः ॥ २७ ॥

"When united with male birds, female birds, feeling rejoiced in the midst of their own kind, and female bees too are uttering sweet notes, overjoyed as they are at the sight of drones, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (27)

अस्याः कूले प्रमुदिताः सङ्घशः शकुनास्त्विवह ।
दात्यूहरतिविक्रन्दैः पुंस्कोकिलरुतैरपि ॥ २८ ॥

स्वनन्ति पादपाश्रेमे ममानङ्गप्रदीपकाः ।
अशोकस्तबकाङ्गारः षट्पदस्वननिःस्वनः ॥ २९ ॥

मां हि पल्लवताम्राचिर्वसन्ताग्निः प्रधक्ष्यति ।
नहि तां सूक्ष्मपक्ष्माक्षीं सुकेशीं मृदुभाषिणीम् ॥ ३० ॥

अपश्यतो मे सौमित्रे जीवितेऽस्ति प्रयोजनम् ।
अयं हि रुचिरस्तस्याः कालो रुचिरकाननः ॥ ३१ ॥

कोकिलाकुलसीमान्तो दयिताया ममानघ ।
मन्मथायाससम्भूतो वसन्तगुणवर्धितः ॥ ३२ ॥

अयं मां धक्ष्यति क्षिप्रं शोकाग्निर्नचिरादिव ।
अपश्यतस्तां वनितां पश्यतो रुचिरान् द्रुमान् ॥ ३३ ॥

ममायमात्मप्रभवो भूयस्त्वमुपयास्यति ।
अदृश्यमाना वैदेही शोकं वर्धयतीह मे ॥ ३४ ॥

दृश्यमानो वसन्तश्च स्वेदसंसर्गदूषकः ।
मां हि सा मृगशावाक्षी चिन्ताशोकबलात्कृतम् ॥ ३५ ॥

संतापयति सौमित्रे क्रूरश्चैत्रवनानिलः ।
अमी मयूराः शोभन्ते प्रनृत्यन्तस्ततस्ततः ॥ ३६ ॥

स्वैः पक्षैः पवनोद्धूतैर्गवाक्षैः स्फाटिकैरिव ।
शिखिनीभिः परिवृतास्त एते मदमूर्च्छिताः ॥ ३७ ॥

मन्मथाभिपरीतस्य मम मन्मथवर्धनाः ।
पश्य लक्ष्मण नृत्यन्तं मयूरमुपनृत्यति ॥ ३८ ॥

शिखिनी मन्मथार्तैषा भर्तारं गिरिसानुनि ।
तामेव मनसा रामां मयूरोऽप्यनुधावति ॥ ३९ ॥

वितत्य रुचिरौ पक्षौ रुतैरुपहसन्निव ।
मयूरस्य वने नूनं रक्षसा न हता प्रिया ॥ ४० ॥

“Living in flocks, birds for their part feel highly rejoiced on this strand of Pampā. Nay, through the notes of the water-fowls uttered during their amorous sports as well as through the shrill notes of male cuckoos these trees themselves sing, fully kindling (the fire of) love in me. Fire in the shape of the vernal season, which has bunches of crimson flowers of Aśoka trees for its live embers, the humming of bees for its crackle and the fresh leaves for its coppery tongues will undoubtedly consume me. Surely there is no purpose in my surviving, O Lakṣmaṇa, unable as I am to see that lady, Sītā, with lovely locks, eyes having fine eye-lashes and gentle speech. Surely the present season, in which woodlands look charming and their boundaries are thronged with cuckoos, was delightful to that darling of mine, O sinless one! This fire of grief, which has its source in the pangs of love and has been augmented by the charms of Spring will forthwith consume me without delay, as it were. This longing of my heart to meet her will reach its climax even as I am unable to perceive that beloved one and look on the charming trees. Being out of sight, Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, intensifies my grief in this forest, and so does Spring, which is discernible at present and shuts out all contact with sweat due to cool and delightful breezes. That fawn-eyed lady, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), unquestionably torments me, overpowered as I already am by worry and grief, and so does the cruel breeze from the woods characteristic of the month of Caitra. Dancing here and there with their wings, resembling crystal windows, shaken by the wind, the yonder peacocks spread their charm. Surrounded by peahens and intoxicated with joy, these peacocks intensify my longing to meet Sītā, overwhelmed as I already am with love. Behold, O Lakṣmaṇa, how this love-lorn peahen is dancing by the side of her mate, the dancing peacock, on the top of the hill. Spreading his charming wings and mocking me, as it were, by his cries, the peacock too is mentally following the aforesaid beloved one. Surely the beloved of the peacock has not been stolen away by a demon in the forest.

(28—40)

तस्मान्नृत्यति रम्येषु वनेषु सह कान्तया ।

मम त्वयं विना वासः पुष्पमासे सुदुःसहः ॥ ४१ ॥

“Hence it is that he is dancing with his beloved peahen in the delightful groves. For me, however, it is most unbearable to live in desolation in this vernal month of abundant flowers.

(41)

पश्य लक्ष्मण संरागस्तिर्यग्योनिगतेष्वपि ।

यदेषा शिखिनी कामाद् भर्तारमभिवर्तते ॥ ४२ ॥

“See, O Lakṣmaṇa, how intense love is found even among those belonging to the sub-human creation, as is clear from the fact that this peahen approaches her mate through love.

(42)

ममाप्येवं विशालाक्षी जानकी जातसम्भ्रमा ।

मदनेनाभिवर्तेत यदि नापहृता भवेत् ॥ ४३ ॥

“The large-eyed Sītā (daughter of Janaka) too would approach me through love in a flurry, had she not been borne away by the demon.

(43)

पश्य लक्ष्मण पुष्पाणि निष्फलानि भवन्ति मे ।

पुष्पभारसमृद्धानां वनानां शिशिरात्यये ॥ ४४ ॥

“See, O Lakṣmaṇa, how the blossoms of the forests, rich in their load of flowers, are proving of no use to me in the absence of Sītā, at the close of winter.

(44)

रुचिराण्यपि पुष्पाणि पादपानामतिश्रिया ।

निष्फलानि महीं यान्ति समं मधुक्रोत्करैः ॥ ४५ ॥

“The blossom of the trees, though lovely due to their surpassing charm, fall to the ground alongwith the swarms of black bees, being of no use to me.

(45)

नदन्ति कामं शकुना मुदिताः सङ्ग्रहः कलम् ।

आह्वयन्त इवान्योन्यं कामोन्मादकरा मम ॥ ४६ ॥

“Full of joy the birds carol at will in flocks, calling to one another, as it were, and intoxicating me with love. (46)

वसन्तो यदि तत्रापि यत्र मे वसति प्रिया।
नूनं परवशा सीता सापि शोचत्यहं यथा ॥ ४७ ॥

“If spring has set in even in that region where my darling, Sītā is living, fallen as she is under the sway of others, undoubtedly she too is pining as I do. (47)

नूनं न तु वसन्तस्तं देशं स्पृशति यत्र सा।
कथं ह्यसितपद्माक्षी वर्तयेत् सा मया विना ॥ ४८ ॥

“Surely Spring will never touch the fringe of that region where Sītā dwells. Even then how can that lady with dark lotus-like eyes survive without me? (48)

अथवा वर्तते तत्र वसन्तो यत्र मे प्रिया।
किं करिष्यति सुश्रोणी सा तु निर्भर्त्सिता परैः ॥ ४९ ॥

“Or, Spring does prevail where my darling dwells. But, scolded, as she is, by enemies, what will that fair-limbed lady do? (49)

श्यामा पद्मपलाशाक्षी मृदुभाषा च मे प्रिया।
नूनं वसन्तमासाद्य परित्यक्ष्यति जीवितम् ॥ ५० ॥

“Surely on crossing the threshold of Spring my juvenescent darling, who has eyes resembling lotus petals and is gentle of speech, will forthwith give up the ghost. (50)

दृढं हि हृदये बुद्धिर्मम सम्परिवर्तते।
नालं वर्तयितुं सीता साध्वी मद्विरहं गता ॥ ५१ ॥

“The thought steadily revolves in my heart that, having fallen a prey to separation from me, the virtuous Sītā is unable to survive. (51)

मयि भावो हि वैदेह्यास्तत्त्वतो विनिवेशितः।
ममापि भावः सीतायां सर्वथा विनिवेशितः ॥ ५२ ॥

“The affection of Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) is undoubtedly and truly riveted on me and my affection too is riveted wholly on Sītā. (52)

एष पुष्पवहो वायुः सुखस्पर्शो हिमावहः।
तां विचिन्तयतः कान्तां पावकप्रतिमो मम ॥ ५३ ॥

“This breeze carrying the fragrance of flowers, which is delightful to the touch and brings coolness to the body, is like fire to me even as I think deeply of my darling. (53)

सदा सुखमहं मन्ये यं पुरा सह सीतया।
मारुतः स विना सीतां शोकसंजननो मम ॥ ५४ ॥

“The selfsame breeze which I considered as ever agreeable at one time in the company of Sītā is causing grief to me, bereft, as I am, of Sītā. (54)

तां विनाथ विहङ्गोऽसौ पक्षी प्रणदितस्तदा।
वायसः पादपगतः प्रहृष्टमभिकूजति ॥ ५५ ॥

“In the past the yonder bird (which is a crow) emitted a hoarse cry while flying through the air (thereby foreboding the abduction of Sītā). Now, in the absence of Sītā, the crow is crying most delightfully while remaining perched on the tree (thereby predicting her return). (55)

एष वै तत्र वैदेह्या विहगः प्रतिहारकः।
पक्षी मां तु विशालाक्ष्याः समीपमुपनेष्यति ॥ ५६ ॥

“While this bird, viz., a crow, proved at that time (viz., during the presence of Sītā) instrumental (by foreboding evil) in bringing about the abduction of Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), the bird will this time lead me to the presence of Sītā, a lady with large eyes. (56)

पश्य लक्ष्मण संनादं वने मदविवर्धनम्।
पुष्पिताग्रेषु वृक्षेषु द्विजानामवकूजताम् ॥ ५७ ॥

“Know the chorus in the forest of the birds warbling on the trees crested with flowers to be instrumental in heightening my joy beyond measure, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (57)

विक्षिप्तां पवनेनैतामसौ तिलकमञ्जरीम्।
षट्पदः सहसाभ्येति मदोद्धूतामिव प्रियाम् ॥ ५८ ॥

“The yonder bee suddenly approaches this flower-stalk of a Tilaka tree, shaken by the wind, even as a lover would approach his loved one thrilled with joy. (58)

कामिनामयमत्यन्तमशोकः शोकवर्धनः ।
स्तबकैः पवनोत्क्षिप्तैस्तर्जयन्निव मां स्थितः ॥ ५९ ॥

“Accentuating beyond measure the grief of lovers, this Aśoka tree (which is supposed to rid those who approach it of their grief) stands threatening me, as it were, through its plumes of flowers shaken by the wind. (59)

अमी लक्ष्मण दृश्यन्ते चूताः कुसुमशालिनः ।
विभ्रमोत्सिक्तमनसः साङ्गरागा नरा इव ॥ ६० ॥

“Adorned with blossom, the yonder mango trees, O Lakṣmaṇa, look like human beings anointed with cosmetics, their mind distracted through love. (60)

सौमित्रे पश्य पम्पायाश्चित्रासु वनराजिषु ।
किंनरा नरशार्दूल विचरन्ति यतस्ततः ॥ ६१ ॥

“See, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), how Kinnaras (a species of demigods) range hither and thither through the picturesque rows of forest trees standing on the brink of Pampā, O tiger among men ! (61)

इमानि शुभगन्धीनि पश्य लक्ष्मण सर्वशः ।
नलिनानि प्रकाशन्ते जले तरुणसूर्यवत् ॥ ६२ ॥

“Behold, O Lakṣmaṇa, how these fragrant red lotuses shine on all sides on the water like the rising sun reflected in every ripple of the Pampā. (62)

एषा प्रसन्नसलिला पद्मनीलोत्पलायुता ।
हंसकारण्डवाकीर्णा पम्पा सौगन्धिकायुता ॥ ६३ ॥

“Here is Pampā distinguished by its placid water, nay covered all over with lotuses and blue water-lilies, thronged with swans and water-fowl and overspread with Saugandhika flowers (a species of Kalhāra). (63)

जले तरुणसूर्याभैः षट्पदाहतकेसरैः ।
पङ्कजैः शोभते पम्पा समन्तादभिसंवृता ॥ ६४ ॥

“Covered on all sides with lotuses shining like the rising sun reflected in water, their pollen having been scattered by black bees, Pampā spreads its charm. (64)

चक्रवाकयुता नित्यं चित्रप्रस्थवनान्तरा ।
मातङ्गमृगयूथैश्च शोभते सलिलार्थिभिः ॥ ६५ ॥

“Inhabited by Cakravākas (ruddy geese) all the year, the woodlands about it consisting of wonderful glades, the lake looks charming with herds of elephants and deer seeking its water. (65)

पवनाहतवेगाभिरूर्मिभिर्विमलेऽम्भसि ।
पङ्कजानि विराजन्ते ताड्यमानानि लक्ष्मण ॥ ६६ ॥

“Being lashed, O Lakṣmaṇa, by the waves which have gained velocity through the impact of winds, the lotuses shine brightly on the limpid water of the lake. (66)

पद्मपत्रविशालाक्षीं सततं प्रियपङ्कजाम् ।
अपश्यतो मे वैदेहीं जीवितं नाभिरोचते ॥ ६७ ॥

“Life no longer attracts me, unable as I am to see Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), who has eyes large as lotus petals and who is ever fond of lotuses. (67)

अहो कामस्य वामत्वं यो गतामपि दुर्लभाम् ।
स्मारयिष्यति कल्याणीं कल्याणतरवादिनीम् ॥ ६८ ॥

“Oh, the crookedness of Cupid, who puts me in mind of the blessed Sītā, who spoke highly agreeable words, nay, who has disappeared and is difficult to recover. (68)

शक्यो धारयितुं कामो भवेदध्यागतो मया ।
यदि भूयो वसन्तो मां न हन्यात् पुष्पितद्रुमः ॥ ६९ ॥

“The longing to meet her that has appeared in me may yet be restrained by me if Spring, marked by blossomed trees, were not to smite me in addition. (69)

यानि स्म रमणीयानि तया सह भवन्ति मे ।
तान्येवारमणीयानि जायन्ते मे तया विना ॥ ७० ॥

“Those very things which were delightful to me in her company have grown unattractive to me in her absence. (70)

पद्मकोशपलाशानि द्रष्टुं दृष्टिर्हि मन्यते ।
सीताया नेत्रकोशाभ्यां सदृशानीति लक्ष्मण ॥ ७१ ॥

“My eyes love to see the petals of lotus cups in that they are akin to Sitā's bud-like eyes, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (71)

पद्मकेसरसंसृष्टो वृक्षान्तरविनिःसृतः ।
निःश्वास इव सीताया वाति वायुर्मनोहरः ॥ ७२ ॥

“The soul-ravishing breeze brought into contact with the filaments of lotuses and emerged through other trees blows like the breath of Sitā. (72)

सौमित्रे पश्य पम्पाया दक्षिणे गिरिसानुषु ।
पुष्पितां कर्णिकारस्य यष्टिं परमशोभिताम् ॥ ७३ ॥

“Behold, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), the trunk of the blossomed Karṇikāra tree invested with supreme charm on the mountain-peaks to the south of Pampā. (73)

अधिकं शैलराजोऽयं धातुभिस्तु विभूषितः ।
विचित्रं सृजते रेणुं वायुवेगविघटितम् ॥ ७४ ॥

“Specially adorned in a large measure by minerals, this R̥ṣyamūka (a king of mountains) for its part is discharging a dust of various colours and odours wafted by force of winds. (74)

गिरिप्रस्थास्तु सौमित्रे सर्वतः सम्प्रपुष्पितैः ।
निष्पत्रैः सर्वतो रम्यैः प्रदीप्ता इव किंशुकैः ॥ ७५ ॥

“With their lovely Kimśuka trees richly endowed with flowers and shorn of leaves, the peaks of this mountain for their part, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), appear ignited on all sides. (75)

पम्पातीररुहाश्रेमे संसिक्ता मधुगन्धिनः ।
मालतीमल्लिकापद्मकरवीराश्च पुष्पिताः ॥ ७६ ॥

“Here are Mālātī, Mallikā, Padma and Karavīra trees in blossom, that have grown on the edge of the Pampā and have been nurtured by it and emit a sweet aroma. (76)

केतक्यः सिन्दुवाराश्च वासन्त्यश्च सुपुष्पिताः ।
माधव्यो गन्धपूर्णाश्च कुन्दगुल्माश्च सर्वशः ॥ ७७ ॥

“There are Ketakī and Sinduvāra trees and climbers named Vāsantī in full blossom as also climbers named Mādhavī and jasmine shrubs, all full of fragrance on every side. (77)

चिरिबिल्वा मधूकाश्च वज्जुला बकुलास्तथा ।
चम्पकास्तिलकाश्चैव नागवृक्षाश्च पुष्पिताः ॥ ७८ ॥

“Nay, here are Ciribilva and Madhūka, Vañjula, Bakula, Campaka and Tilaka as well as Nāga trees, all in blossom. (78)

पद्मकाश्चैव शोभन्ते नीलाशोकाश्च पुष्पिताः ।
लोध्राश्च गिरिपृष्ठेषु सिंहकेसरपिञ्जराः ॥ ७९ ॥

“On hill-tops Padmaka and blue Aśoka trees in blossom and also Lodhra trees, tawny as the manes of a lion, spread their charm. (79)

अङ्गोलाश्च कुरण्टाश्च चूर्णकाः पारिभद्रकाः ।
चूताः पाटलयश्चापि कोविदाराश्च पुष्पिताः ॥ ८० ॥

मुचुकुन्दार्जुनाश्चैव दृश्यन्ते गिरिसानुषु ।
केतकोद्दालकाश्चैव शिरीषाः शिंशपा धवाः ॥ ८१ ॥

शाल्मल्यः किंशुकाश्चैव रक्ताः कुरवकास्तथा ।
तिनिशा नक्तमालाश्च चन्दनाः स्यन्दनास्तथा ॥ ८२ ॥

हिन्तालास्तिलकाश्चैव नागवृक्षाश्च पुष्पिताः ।
पुष्पितान् पुष्पिताग्राभिर्लताभिः परिवेष्टितान् ॥ ८३ ॥

द्रुमान् पश्येह सौमित्रे पम्पाया रुचिरान् बहून् ।
वातविक्षिप्तवितपान् यथासन्नान् द्रुमानिमान् ॥ ८४ ॥

लताः समनुवर्तन्ते मत्ता इव वरस्त्रियः ।
पादपात् पादपं गच्छन् शैलाच्छैलं वनाद् वनम् ॥ ८५ ॥

वाति नैकरसास्वादसम्प्रेक्षित इवानिलः ।
केचित् पर्याप्तकुसुमाः पादपा मधुगन्धिनः ॥ ८६ ॥

केचिन्मुकुलसंवीताः श्यामवर्णा इवाबभुः ।
इदं मृष्टमिदं स्वादु प्रफुल्लमिदमित्यपि ॥ ८७ ॥

रागरक्तो मधुकरः कुसुमेष्वेव लीयते ।
निलीय पुनरुत्पत्य सहसान्यत्र गच्छति ।

मधुलुब्धो मधुकरः पम्पातीरद्रुमेष्वसौ ॥ ८८ ॥

“Aṅkola, Kuraṇṭa, Cūrṇaka and Pāribhadraka trees, mango, Pāṭali and Kovidāra trees as also Mucukunda and Arjuna trees are seen in blossom on mountain-peaks. Here are Ketaka as also Uddālaka, Śirīṣa, Śimśapā, Dhava, Śālmali and Kimśuka trees as well as red Kurabaka trees, Tiniśa and Naktamāla, sandalwood and Syandana, Hintāla and Tilaka as well as Nāga trees, all in blossom. Behold here, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), the numerous lovely trees in blossom entwined by climbers crested with blossom on the edge of the Pampā. Like pretty women drunk with love, the climbers embrace these trees, whose branches are tossed by the wind and which are bent so low as to appear quite at hand. Passing from tree to tree, from crag to crag and from wood to wood, the wind blows gently as though enraptured by enjoying diverse tastes from diverse flowers. Some trees are in full blossom and emit the fragrance of honey; while others are covered all over with buds and appear dark-brown of hue because of these buds. 'How sweet is this ! How delicious is that ! How full-blown is that (the other) !' Reflecting thus, the black bee steeped in love for the flowers remains buried in flowers alone. Remaining hidden (in flowers for some time) and then flying off, the black bee, covetous of honey, suddenly moves to other trees on the margin of the Pampā. (80—88)

इयं कुसुमसंघातैरुपस्तीर्णा सुखाकृता ।
स्वयं निपतितैर्भूमिः शयनप्रस्तैरैरिव ॥ ८९ ॥

"Strewn with heaps of flowers, fallen off themselves, this plot looks as if made smug by bedsheets. (89)

विविधा विविधैः पुष्पैस्तैरेव नगसानुषु ।
विस्तीर्णाः पीतरक्ताभाः सौमित्रे प्रस्तराः कृताः ॥ ९० ॥

"Extensive beds of a mixed yellow and red colour and of various sizes and designs have been made, as it were, with those flowers of different kinds on tops of the mountain, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā). (90)

हिमान्ते पश्य सौमित्रे वृक्षाणां पुष्पसम्भवम् ।
पुष्पमासे हि तरवः संघर्षादिव पुष्पिताः ॥ ९१ ॥

"Behold the wealth of flowers on the trees at the close of winter, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) ! Indeed in the month of Caitra (a month of flowers) the trees stand clothed with blossom as if in a spirit of rivalry. (91)

आह्वयन्त इवान्योन्यं नगाः षट्पदनादिताः ।
कुसुमोत्तंसविटपाः शोभन्ते बहु लक्ष्मण ॥ ९२ ॥

"Rendered noisy by the humming of bees and as such challenging one another as it were, and their boughs crowned with flowers, the trees, O Lakṣmaṇa, look very charming. (92)

एष कारण्डवः पक्षी विगाह्य सलिलं शुभम् ।
रमते कान्तया सार्धं काममुद्दीपयन्निव ॥ ९३ ॥

"Diving into the limpid water this bird of the Kāraṇḍava species (a kind of water-fowl) is sporting with its beloved mate, thereby inspiring love as it were (in me, who have been torn away from my beloved). (93)

मन्दाकिन्यास्तु यदिदं रूपमेतन्मनोरमम् ।
स्थाने जगति विख्याता गुणास्तस्या मनोरमाः ॥ ९४ ॥

"Since this beauty of Pampā, which looks like the Mandākinī, is so soul-ravishing, it is but proper that its soul-enchancing excellences are famed throughout the world. (94)

यदि दृश्येत सा साध्वी यदि चेह वसेमहि ।
स्पृहयेयं न शक्राय नायोध्यायै रघूत्तम ॥ ९५ ॥

"If that pious lady comes to view and if we live in this forest, I shall not look with envy on Indra, the ruler of gods, nor long to be at Ayodhyā, O jewel among the Raghus ! (95)

न ह्येवं रमणीयेषु शाद्वलेषु तया सह ।
रमतो मे भवेच्चिन्ता न स्पृहान्येषु वा भवेत् ॥ ९६ ॥

"If I sport with her on such lovely lawns, no worry will ever seize me, nor any craving for other pleasures. (96)

अमी हि विविधैः पुष्पैस्तरवो विविधच्छदाः ।
काननेऽस्मिन् विना कान्तां चिन्तामुत्पादयन्ति मे ॥ ९७ ॥

"Clothed with leaves of various kinds and laden with flowers of every description, the yonder trees in this forest cause worry to Me, bereft as I am of Sītā. (97)

पश्य शीतजलां चेमां सौमित्रे पुष्करायुताम्।
चक्रवाकानुचरितां कारण्डवनिषेविताम् ॥ ९८ ॥
प्लवैः क्रौञ्चैश्च सम्पूर्णा महामृगनिषेविताम्।
अधिकं शोभते पम्पा विकूजद्भिर्विहंगमैः ॥ ९९ ॥

“Behold, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), this lake full of cool water, covered all over with lotuses, frequented by Cakravākas (red geese), nay, inhabited by water-fowls, teeming with ducks and herons and visited by large deer. Pampā looks very charming with birds singing melodiously. (98-99)

दीपयन्तीव मे कामं विविधा मुदिता द्विजाः।
श्यामां चन्द्रमुखीं स्मृत्वा प्रियां पद्मनिभेक्षणाम् ॥ १०० ॥

“Putting me in mind of my youthful darling, whose countenance resembles the full moon and who has lotus-like eyes, the merry birds of different species intensely inflame my love, as it were. (100)

पश्य सानुषु चित्रेषु मृगीभिः सहितान् मृगान्।
मां पुनर्मृगशावाक्ष्या वैदेह्या विरहीकृतम्।
व्यथयन्तीव मे चित्तं संचरन्तस्ततस्ततः ॥ १०१ ॥

“Behold, on the one hand, the deer O
Lakṣmaṇa, accompanied by female deer, on the picturesque peaks and on the other hand, myself, who stand disunited from the fawn-eyed Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory); moving freely here and there they afflict my mind, as it were. (101)

अस्मिन् सानुनि रम्ये हि मत्तद्विजगणाकुले।
पश्येयं यदि तां कान्तां ततः स्वस्ति भवेन्मम ॥ १०२ ॥

“Happiness will come to me then only if I am able to behold that beloved one on this delightful peak thronged with flocks of birds in heat. (102)

जीवेयं खलु सौमित्रे मया सह सुमध्यमा।
सेवेत यदि वैदेही पम्पायाः पवनं शुभम् ॥ १०३ ॥

“I should certainly survive, O Lakṣmaṇa, if Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) of charming limbs enjoys with me the pleasant breeze coming from the Pampā. (103)

पद्मसौगन्धिकवहं शिवं शोकविनाशनम्।
धन्या लक्ष्मण सेवन्ते पम्पाया वनमारुतम् ॥ १०४ ॥

“Only blessed souls drink, O Lakṣmaṇa, the delightful breeze from the woodlands surrounding Pampā, carrying as it does the fragrance of lotuses and Saugandhika flowers
(the white water-lilies) and uprooting all grief.
(104)

श्यामा पद्मपलाशाक्षी प्रिया विरहिता मया।
कथं धारयति प्राणान् विवशा जनकात्मजा ॥ १०५ ॥

“How, I wonder, does the beloved and youthful Sītā (Janaka’s daughter), who has eyes resembling lotus petals, preserve her life, disunited as she is from me and helpless as such? (105)

किं नु वक्ष्यामि धर्मज्ञं राजानं सत्यवादिनम्।
जनकं पृष्टसीतं तं कुशलं जनसंसदि ॥ १०६ ॥

“How, I wonder, shall I tell the celebrated King Janaka, who knows what is right and always speaks the truth, when he asks me about Sītā in an assemblage of men, that all is well with her? (106)

या मामनुगता मन्दं पित्रा प्रस्थापितं वनम्।
सीता धर्म समास्थाय क्व नु सा वर्तते प्रिया ॥ १०७ ॥

“Where on earth is that beloved Sītā, who, clinging fast as she did to the principles of virtue, followed me when I was exiled to the forest by my father, unlucky as I was? (107)

तया विहीनः कृपणः कथं लक्ष्मण धारये।
या मामनुगता राज्याद् भ्रष्टं विहतचेतसम् ॥ १०८ ॥

“How, O Lakṣmaṇa, shall I survive, miserable as I am because bereft of Sītā, who followed me even when I was deprived of my sovereignty and dispirited? (108)

तच्चावाञ्छितपद्माक्षं सुगन्धि शुभमव्रणम्।
अपश्यतो मुखं तस्याः सीदतीव मतिर्मम ॥ १०९ ॥

“My mind is indeed troubled as I fail to behold her comely and bright face with graceful lotus-like eyes, free from scars and emitting a sweet fragrance. (109)

स्मितहास्यान्तरयुतं गुणवन्मधुरं हितम्।
वैदेह्या वाक्यमतुलं कदा श्रोष्यामि लक्ष्मण ॥ ११० ॥

When shall I hear, O Lakṣmaṇa, the incomparable speech of Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), excellent, sweet and wholesome and interspersed with smiles and fun? (110)

प्राप्य दुःखं वने श्यामा मां मन्मथविकर्षितम् ।

नष्टदुःखेव हृष्टेव साध्वी साध्वभ्यभाषत ॥ १११ ॥

“Even though undergoing suffering in the forest, the youthful and virtuous lady spoke lovingly to me, sore stricken as I was with love, as though she were happy and as though she had no suffering. (111)

किं नु वक्ष्याम्ययोध्यायां कौसल्यां हि नृपात्मज ।

क्व सा स्तुषेति पृच्छन्तीं कथं चापि मनस्विनीम् ॥ ११२ ॥

“What on earth shall I actually tell the lofty-minded Kausalyā (my mother) when she puts the following question to me in Ayodhyā (on my return from exile): ‘Where and also how is that princess, my daughter-in-law?’ (112)

गच्छ लक्ष्मण पश्य त्वं भरतं भ्रातृवत्सलम् ।

नह्यहं जीवितुं शक्तस्तामृते जनकात्मजाम् ॥ ११३ ॥

“Depart, O Lakṣmaṇa, and see you Bharata, who is so fond of his brothers; for I am no longer able to survive without the said daughter of Janaka.” (113)

इति रामं महात्मानं विलपन्तमनाथवत् ।

उवाच लक्ष्मणो भ्राता वचनं युक्तमव्ययम् ॥ ११४ ॥

Brother Lakṣmaṇa made the following judicious and flawless reply to the high-souled Śrī Rāma, who was lamenting like a forlorn creature : (114)

संस्तम्भ राम भद्रं ते मा शुचः पुरुषोत्तम ।

नेदृशानां मतिर्मन्दा भवत्यकलुषात्मनाम् ॥ ११५ ॥

“Have fortitude, O Rāma! May prosperity attend on you. Pray, do not grieve, O jewel among men ! The intellect of such people as you, whose mind is free from sin, never gets languid. (115)

स्मृत्वा वियोगजं दुःखं त्यज स्नेहं प्रिये जने ।

अतिस्नेहपरिष्वङ्गाद् वर्तिराद्रापि दह्यते ॥ ११६ ॥

“Bearing in mind the grief born of desolation, give up your fondness for the beloved ones. Even a wet wick begins to burn through contact with excessive oil (the word used here to denote oil is ‘Sneha’, which also means love). (116)

यदि गच्छति पातालं ततोऽभ्यधिकमेव वा ।

सर्वथा रावणस्तात न भविष्यति राघव ॥ ११७ ॥

“Rāvaṇa, O dear brother, will not survive at all even if he descends into Pātāla (the nethermost subterranean region) or a still darker region than that, O scion of Raghu. (117)

प्रवृत्तिर्लभ्यतां तावत् तस्य पापस्य रक्षसः ।

ततो हास्यति वा सीतां निधनं वा गमिष्यति ॥ ११८ ॥

“Let the whereabouts of that sinful ogre be ascertained first. He will then either yield up Sītā or meet his end. (118)

यदि याति दितेर्गर्भं रावणं सह सीतया ।

तत्राप्येनं हनिष्यामि न चेद् दास्यति मैथिलीम् ॥ ११९ ॥

“If Rāvaṇa enters with Sītā the womb of Diti (the mother of the demon race), I shall kill him even there in case he refuses to yield up Sītā (a princess of Mithilā). (119)

स्वास्थ्यं भद्रं भजस्वार्यं त्यज्यतां कृपणा मतिः ।

अर्थो हि नष्टकार्यार्थैरयत्नेनाधिगम्यते ॥ १२० ॥

“Have recourse to blessed forbearance which is your normal state, O noble sir, and let the abject mentality of despondency be given up. For, the object of pursuit cannot be attained without exertion by those whose endeavour has been foiled and purpose thwarted. (120)

उत्साहो बलवानार्य नास्त्युत्साहात् परं बलम् ।

सोत्साहस्य हि लोकेषु न किञ्चिदपि दुर्लभम् ॥ १२१ ॥

“Strenuous effort alone is powerful, O worthy Sir ! There is no might greater than exertion. Indeed nothing whatsoever is difficult to attain in all the worlds for a man given to endeavour. (121)

उत्साहवन्तः पुरुषा नावसीदन्ति कर्मसु ।

उत्साहमात्रमाश्रित्य प्रतिलप्स्याम जानकीम् ॥ १२२ ॥

“Men of endeavour do not get disheartened when faced with hardest duties. Falling back upon bare exertion we shall be able to recover Sītā (Janaka’s daughter). (122)

त्यजतां कामवृत्तत्वं शोकं संन्यस्य पृष्ठतः ।
महात्मानं कृतात्मानमात्मानं नावबुध्यसे ॥ १२३ ॥

“Casting grief to the background, abandon the behaviour of one dominated by concupiscence. It is a pity you no longer recognize yourself to be an exalted soul who has disciplined his mind.” (123)

एवं सम्बोधितस्तेन शोकोपहतचेतनः ।
त्यज्य शोकं च मोहं च रामो धैर्यमुपागमत् ॥ १२४ ॥

Shaking off grief and infatuation too, when admonished thus by Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma, whose understanding had been clouded by grief, regained his firmness. (124)

सोऽभ्यतिक्रामदव्यग्रस्तामचिन्त्यपराक्रमः ।
रामः पम्पां सुरुचिरां रम्यां पारिप्लवद्रुमाम् ॥ १२५ ॥

The celebrated Śrī Rāma, who was possessed of inconceivable prowess and was now unruffled, passed clearly beyond the aforesaid Pampā, which was exceedingly charming and delightful and was hemmed on all sides with waving trees. (125)

निरीक्षमाणः सहसा महात्मा
सर्वं वनं निर्झरकन्दरं च ।

उद्विग्नचेताः सह लक्ष्मणेन
विचार्य दुःखोपहतः प्रतस्थे ॥ १२६ ॥

Having deliberated with Lakṣmaṇa and surveying the entire forest as well as the cascades and caves comprised in it, the exalted soul, who was feeling perturbed in mind and was overwhelmed with sorrow, precipitately sallied forth in quest of Sītā. (126)

तं मत्तमातङ्गविलासगामी
गच्छन्तमव्यग्रमना महात्मा ।

स लक्ष्मणो राघवमिष्टचेष्टो
ररक्ष धर्मेण बलेन चैव ॥ १२७ ॥

Walking with the sportful gait of an elephant in rut, the celebrated and high-souled Lakṣmaṇa, whose mind was unruffled and whose movements were agreeable to his eldest brother, protected Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), who was walking ahead, by showing him his duty and describing his own might too. (127)

तावृष्यमूकस्य समीपचारी
चरन् ददर्शाद्भुतदर्शनीयौ ।
शाखामृगाणामधिपस्तरस्वी
वितत्रसे नैव विचेष्ट चेष्टाम् ॥ १२८ ॥

Moving about on the verge of Pampā, one day, the mighty Sugrīva (the overlord of monkeys), who used to ramble in the vicinity of Mount R̥ṣyamūka, espied the two princes, who were marvellously good-looking, and got so much frightened that he did not even move to take his food (which was coveted by him). (128)

स तौ महात्मा गजमन्दगामी
शाखामृगस्तत्र चरंश्चरन्तौ ।
दृष्ट्वा विषादं परमं जगाम
चिन्तापरीतो भयभारभग्नः ॥ १२९ ॥

Overwhelmed with anxiety and weighed down with a load of fear to see while rambling the two princes moving about in that area, that high-souled monkey, who walked with the slow gait of an elephant, fell a victim to supreme despondency. (129)

तमाश्रमं पुण्यमुखं शरण्यं
सदैव शाखामृगसेवितान्तम् ।

त्रस्ताश्च दृष्ट्वा हरयोऽभिजग्मु- र्महौजसौ राघवलक्ष्मणौ तौ ॥ १३० ॥

Frightened to see the aforesaid Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) and Lakṣmaṇa, who were possessed of great bodily strength, and whom they suspected to be allies of Vālī, the other monkeys too, who had cast their lot with Sugrīva and lived with him, retired for safety to the hermitage, referred to above, (of Sage Mataṅga, which had been rendered a forbidden land for Vālī due to an imprecation uttered by the sage) and hence was capable of affording protection to them, nay, which was sacred and pleasant and whose interior was permanently inhabited by monkeys.

(130)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे प्रथमः सर्गः ॥ १ ॥

Thus ends Canto One in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वितीयः सर्गः

Canto II

Seeing the two princely brothers and suspecting them to have been sent by his elder brother, Vālī, Sugrīva goes into hiding with his counsellors.

There Hanumān reassures him by recourse to reasoning. Sugrīva then sends Hanumān to ascertain what was in the mind of the two princes

तौ तु दृष्ट्वा महात्मानौ भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ।
वरायुधधरौ वीरौ सुग्रीवः शङ्कितोऽभवत् ॥ १ ॥

Sugrīva was seized with apprehension to see the two aforesaid gallant brothers, the high-souled Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, who for their part carried excellent weapons on their person. (1)

उद्विग्नहृदयः सर्वा दिशः समवलोकयन् ।
न व्यतिष्ठत कस्मिंश्चिद् देशे वानरपुंगवः ॥ २ ॥

Glancing round on all sides, perturbed at heart as he was, Sugrīva (the foremost of monkeys) could not find rest at any one place. (2)

नैव चक्रे मनः स्थातुं वीक्षमाणौ महाबलौ ।
कपेः परमभीतस्य चित्तं व्यवससाद ह ॥ ३ ॥

Perceiving the two princes of extraordinary might, Sugrīva did not feel inclined to stay at his own place. The mind of the monkey who was extremely frightened, gave way to despondency: so the tradition goes. (3)

चिन्तयित्वा स धर्मात्मा विमृश्य गुरुलाघवम् ।
सुग्रीवः परमोद्विग्नः सर्वैस्तैर्वानरैः सह ॥ ४ ॥

Pondering himself and considering with his ministers the superiority of the enemy's strength and his own weakness, the celebrated Sugrīva, whose mind was set on virtue, felt extremely perturbed with all the aforesaid monkeys. (4)

ततः स सचिवेभ्यस्तु सुग्रीवः प्लवगाधिपः ।
शशंस परमोद्विग्नः पश्यंस्तौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ ५ ॥

Beholding the said Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, the celebrated Sugrīva, the overlord of monkeys, for his part, who was extremely sad, thereupon pointed out the two princes to his ministers in the following words: (5)

एतौ वनमिदं दुर्गं वालिप्रणिहितौ ध्रुवम् ।
छद्मना चीरवसनौ प्रचरन्ताविहागतौ ॥ ६ ॥

“Undoubtedly sent by Vālī (my elder brother), these two princes, who are clad in the bark of trees by way of disguise, have come roaming about to this forest here, which is difficult of access.” (6)

ततः सुग्रीवसचिवा दृष्ट्वा परमधन्विनौ ।
जग्मुर्गिरितटात् तस्मादन्यच्छिखरमुत्तमम् ॥ ७ ॥

Seeing the two great bowmen, the counsellors of Sugrīva moved from that mountain-side to another excellent peak. (7)

ते क्षिप्रमभिगम्याथ यूथपा यूथपर्षभम् ।
हरयो वानरश्रेष्ठं परिवार्योपतस्थिरे ॥ ८ ॥

Reaching the peak in no time, the monkeys, who were all leaders of troops, stood surrounding Sugrīva (the foremost of monkeys), the leader of those leaders. (8)

एवमेकायनगताः प्लवमाना गिरेर्गिरिम् ।
प्रकम्पयन्तो वेगेन गिरीणां शिखराणि च ॥ ९ ॥

Leaping from crag to crag, and violently shaking the hill-tops with their vehemence, the monkeys thus reached a common track. (9)

ततः शाखामृगाः सर्वे प्लवमाना महाबलाः ।
बभञ्जुश्च नगांस्तत्र पुष्पितान् दुर्गमाश्रितान् ॥ १० ॥

Nay, while leaping (from crag to crag), the monkeys, who were all possessed of extraordinary might, thereupon broke down the trees in blossom standing on the hill at that time. (10)

आप्लवन्तो हरिवराः सर्वतस्तं महागिरिम् ।
मृगमार्जारशार्दूलांस्त्रासयन्तो ययुस्तदा ॥ ११ ॥

Jumping on that great mountain from all sides and scaring the deer, wild cats and leopards (living on that hill), the foremost of monkeys then moved on. (11)

ततः सुग्रीवसचिवाः पर्वतेन्द्रे समाहिताः ।
संगम्य कपिमुख्येन सर्वे प्राञ्जलयः स्थिताः ॥ १२ ॥

Coming together with Sugrīva (the chief of monkeys), all the ministers of Sugrīva then stood attentive on the R̥ṣyamūka hill (the lord of mountains) with joined palms. (12)

ततस्तु भयसंत्रस्तं वालिकिल्बिषशङ्कितम् ।
उवाच हनुमान् वाक्यं सुग्रीवं वाक्यकोविदः ॥ १३ ॥

Thereupon Hanumān, for his part, who was an adept in expression, spoke as follows to Sugrīva, who was distracted through fear and was apprehensive of some mischief on the part of Vālī : (13)

सम्भ्रमस्त्यज्यतामेष सर्वैर्वालिभृते महान् ।
मलयोऽयं गिरिवरो भयं नेहास्ति वालिनः ॥ १४ ॥

“Let this great flurry on account of Vālī be given up by all. This jewel among mountains is no other than Malaya (otherwise known as R̥ṣyamūka); there is no fear here from Vālī. (14)

यस्मादुद्विग्नचेतास्त्वं विद्रुतो हरिपुङ्गव ।
तं क्रूरदर्शनं क्रूरं नेह पश्यामि वालिनम् ॥ १५ ॥

“I do not see here that cruel Vālī of ferocious aspect, because of whom you have run away, perturbed in mind, O bull among monkeys ! (15)

यस्मात् तव भयं सौम्य पूर्वजात् पापकर्मणः ।
स नेह वाली दुष्टात्मा न ते पश्याम्यहं भयम् ॥ १६ ॥

“That Vālī of wicked mind, your elder brother of sinful deeds, from whom there is danger to you, O gentle one, is not here. I, therefore, see no cause of fear to you. (16)

अहो शाखामृगत्वं ते व्यक्तमेव प्लवङ्गम ।
लघुचित्ततयाऽऽत्मानं न स्थापयसि यो मतौ ॥ १७ ॥

“Oh, too evident is the ape in you, O bull among monkeys, who due to light-mindedness, are not able to keep yourself fixed on a particular conclusion. (17)

बुद्धिविज्ञानसम्पन्न इङ्गितैः सर्वमाचर ।
नह्यबुद्धि गतो राजा सर्वभूतानि शास्ति हि ॥ १८ ॥

“Reading the mind of others through their gestures, richly endowed as you are with intelligence and wisdom, do everything needful in the proper way. Surely a king who has taken recourse to thoughtlessness cannot effectively rule over all his subjects.” (18)

सुग्रीवस्तु शुभं वाक्यं श्रुत्वा सर्वं हनूमतः ।
ततः शुभतरं वाक्यं हनूमन्तमुवाच ह ॥ १९ ॥

Hearing the brilliant speech of Hanumān in its entirety, Sugrīva for his part addressed to Hanumān the following observation, which was more brilliant than the former (that of Hanumān) : (19)

दीर्घबाहू विशालाक्षौ शरचापासिधारिणौ ।
कस्य न स्याद् भयं दृष्ट्वा ह्येतौ सुरसुतोपमौ ॥ २० ॥

“Who will not be actually seized with fear to see these two warriors possessed of unusually long arms and large eyes, nay, carrying a bow, sword and arrow on their person and looking like the offspring of gods?

(20)

वालिप्रणिहितावेव शङ्केऽहं पुरुषोत्तमौ ।
राजानो बहुमित्राश्च विश्वासो नात्र हि क्षमः ॥ २१ ॥

“I suspect these two jewels among men to have been sent by Vālī alone; for kings have many friends and no reliance should be placed in them.

(21)

अरयश्च मनुष्येण विज्ञेयाश्छद्मचारिणः ।
विश्वस्तानामविश्वस्ताश्छिद्रेषु प्रहरन्त्यपि ॥ २२ ॥

“Enemies moving in disguise ought to be recognized by a clever man. For remaining distrustful themselves, they instil, trust in their enemies and then go the length of assailing the vulnerable points of their trustful adversaries.

(22)

कृत्येषु वाली मेधावी राजानो बहुदर्शिनः ।
भवन्ति परहन्तारस्ते ज्ञेयाः प्राकृतैर्नरैः ॥ २३ ॥

“Vālī is shrewd in his state affairs; nay, kings are well-versed in many expedients and destroy their enemies. They should be known (in their true colours) with the help of spies clad as ordinary men.

(23)

तौ त्वया प्राकृतेनेव गत्वा ज्ञेयौ प्लवंगम ।
इङ्गितानां प्रकारैश्च रूपव्याभाषणेन च ॥ २४ ॥

“Making a move to them like one unconcerned, the aforesaid two strangers ought to be truly known by you, O monkey hero, through the nature of their gestures, as also through their facial expression and mutual talks.

(24)

लक्षयस्व तयोर्भावं प्रहृष्टमनसौ यदि ।
विश्वासयन् प्रशंसाभिरिङ्गितैश्च पुनः पुनः ॥ २५ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे द्वितीयः सर्गः ॥ २ ॥

Thus ends Canto Two in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

ममैवाभिमुखं स्थित्वा पृच्छ त्वं हरिपुङ्गव ।
प्रयोजनं प्रवेशस्य वनस्यास्य धनुर्धरौ ॥ २६ ॥

“Find out their intentions and, inspiring confidence in them again and again by means of my praises and gestures (corroborating them), if they are highly rejoiced in mind and standing with your face turned towards me, inquire of the two bowmen the purpose of their entry into this forest, O bull among monkeys !

(25-26)

शुद्धात्मानौ यदि त्वेतौ जानीहि त्वं प्लवङ्गम ।
व्याभाषितैर्वा रूपैर्वा विज्ञेया दुष्टतानयोः ॥ २७ ॥

“Even if you conclude them to be honest of purpose, O monkey hero, their wickedness should be discovered by means of their talks as well as by their facial expression.”

(27)

इत्येवं कपिराजेन संदिष्टो मारुतात्मजः ।
चकार गमने बुद्धिं यत्र तौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ २८ ॥

Instructed thus by Sugrīva (a king of monkeys), Hanumān, son of wind-god, made up his mind to proceed to the spot where the aforesaid Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa were.

(28)

तथेति सम्पूज्य वचस्तु तस्य
कपेः सुभीतस्य दुरासदस्य ।
महानुभावो हनुमान् ययौ तदा
स यत्र रामोऽतिबली सलक्ष्मणः ॥ २९ ॥

Bowing with the words “So be it” to the command of Sugrīva, who felt dismayed, though otherwise difficult to approach, that high-souled monkey, Hanumān, then left for the place where Śrī Rāma, who was possessed of extraordinary might, was with Lakṣmaṇa.

(29)

तृतीयः सर्गः

Canto III

Approaching in the guise of a mendicant Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa and bowing low to them, Hanumān enquired of them as to who they were and, having narrated to them the story of Sugrīva, apprised them of the latter's anxiety to enlist their goodwill. Pleased with the cleverness of Hanumān, Śrī Rāma compliments the former on his knowledge of the Veda and grammar. With the approval of Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa gives utterance to the former's desire to secure Sugrīva's alliance

वचो विज्ञाय हनुमान् सुग्रीवस्य महात्मनः ।
पर्वतादृष्यमूकात् तु पुप्लुवे यत्र राघवौ ॥ १ ॥

Receiving respectfully the bidding of the high-souled Sugrīva, Hanumān for his part jumped from (the top of) the R̥ṣyamūka hill to the spot where stood Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, the two scions of Raghu. (1)

कपिरूपं परित्यज्य हनुमान् मारुतात्मजः ।
भिक्षुरूपं ततो भेजे शठबुद्धितया कपिः ॥ २ ॥

Concealing the form of a monkey, because of his having a suspicious mind, a monkey as he was, Hanumān, son of the wind-god, thereupon assumed the form of a mendicant (recluse). (2)

ततश्च हनुमान् वाचा श्लक्ष्णया सुमनोज्ञया ।
विनीतवदुपागम्य राघवौ प्रणिपत्य च ॥ ३ ॥
आबभाषे च तौ वीरौ यथावत् प्रशशंस च ।
सम्पूज्य विधिवद् वीरौ हनुमान् वानरोत्तमः ॥ ४ ॥
उवाच कामतो वाक्यं मृदु सत्यपराक्रमौ ।
राजर्षिदेवप्रतिमौ तापसौ संशितव्रतौ ॥ ५ ॥
देशं कथमिमं प्राप्तौ भवन्तौ वरवर्णिनौ ।
त्रासयन्तौ मृगगणानन्यांश्च वनचारिणः ॥ ६ ॥
पम्पातीररुहान् वृक्षान् वीक्षमाणौ समन्ततः ।
इमां नदीं शुभजलां शोभयन्तौ तरस्विनौ ॥ ७ ॥

Approaching the two scions of Raghu like a humble man and falling prostrate before them, Hanumān then accosted the aforesaid two heroes in a soft and most pleasing language and duly extolled them. Offering due homage to the two heroes according to the scriptural ordinance, Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, addressed the following gentle words to them according to the desire of Sugrīva: "How have you two ascetics of remarkable vigour, unfailing prowess, most austere vows and excellent appearance and resembling a couple of royal sages or gods, come to this region, causing fright to the herds of deer and other denizens of the forest, nay, surveying the trees growing on all sides on the brink of Pampā and lending charm as you do to this lake of sparkling water? (3—7)

धैर्यवन्तौ सुवर्णाभौ कौ युवां चीरवाससौ ।
निःश्वसन्तौ वरभुजौ पीडयन्ताविमाः प्रजाः ॥ ८ ॥

"Who are you of charming arms and remarkable fortitude, clad in the bark of trees and possessing a charming complexion and lustre, sighing and causing discomfort to these creatures by your very august presence? (8)

सिंहविप्रेक्षितौ वीरौ महाबलपराक्रमौ ।
शक्रचापनिभे चापे गृहीत्वा शत्रुनाशनौ ॥ ९ ॥
श्रीमन्तौ रूपसम्पन्नौ वृषभश्रेष्ठविक्रमौ ।
हस्तिहस्तोपमभुजौ द्युतिमन्तौ नरर्षभौ ॥ १० ॥
प्रभया पर्वतेन्द्रोऽसौ युवयोरवभासितः ।
राज्यार्हावमरप्रख्यौ कथं देशमिहागतौ ॥ ११ ॥

"Wielding a pair of bows shining brightly like rainbows, how have you, two heroic jewels among men, visited this region—you, who are endowed with the gaze of a lion and are possessed of extraordinary might and prowess, are capable of destroying the foes, are full of glory and splendour and rich in comeliness, who are distinguished by the noble gait of a bull and arms resembling the proboscis of an elephant, who are worthy of sovereignty and shine brightly like gods? The yonder Ṛṣyamūka (a king of mountains) stands illumined by your effulgence. (9—11)

पद्मपत्रेक्षणौ वीरौ जटामण्डलधारिणौ ।
अन्योन्यसदृशौ वीरौ देवलोकादिहागतौ ॥ १२ ॥

“Having eyes resembling the petals of a lotus and wearing a rounded mass of matted locks, you two gallant men match each other and are heroes come down to this earth from the celestial world. (12)

यदृच्छेयव सम्प्राप्तौ चन्द्रसूर्यौ वसुंधराम् ।
विशालवक्षसौ वीरौ मानुषौ देवरूपिणौ ॥ १३ ॥

“Endowed with a broad chest, you two heroic men possess the exterior of gods. It appears as if the moon-god and the sun-god have duly reached the earth by the will of Providence. (13)

सिंहस्कन्धौ महोत्साहौ समदाविव गोवृषौ ।
आयताश्च सुवृत्ताश्च बाहवः परिघोपमाः ॥ १४ ॥
सर्वभूषणभूषार्हाः किमर्थं न विभूषिताः ।
उभौ योग्यावहं मन्ये रक्षितुं पृथिवीमिमाम् ॥ १५ ॥
ससागरवनां कृत्स्नां विन्ध्यमेरुविभूषिताम् ।
इमे च धनुषी चित्रे श्लक्ष्णे चित्रानुलेपने ॥ १६ ॥
प्रकाशेते यथेन्द्रस्य वज्रे हेमविभूषिते ।
सम्पूर्णाश्च शितैर्बाणैस्तूणाश्च शुभदर्शनाः ॥ १७ ॥
जीवितान्तकरैर्घोरैर्ज्वलद्भिरिव पन्नगैः ।
महाप्रमाणौ विपुलौ तप्तहाटकभूषणौ ॥ १८ ॥
खड्गावेतौ विराजेते निर्मुक्तभुजगाविव ।
एवं मां परिभाषन्तं कस्माद् वै नाभिभाषतः ॥ १९ ॥

“Having shoulders resembling those of a lion and, possessed of extraordinary vigour, you look like a pair of bulls in heat. Wherefore have these arms of yours, long and perfectly round and resembling a pair of clubs, have not been artistically adorned, even though they deserve to be embellished with all kinds of jewels? I consider you both as fit to protect this entire earth with its oceans and forests and richly adorned with the Vindhya and Meru mountains. Nay, these wonderful, charming and strangely gilded bows of yours shine like Indra's thunderbolts decorated with gold. Besides, filled to capacity with blazing sharp-pointed shafts, capable of ending one's life and dreadful like serpents, these quivers of yours look so charming. These swords of considerable length and enormous size and decorated with refined gold, shine brightly like a pair of serpents that have shed their slough. But wherefore do you not answer me even though I am uttering your praises, as I have done? (14—19)

सुग्रीवो नाम धर्मात्मा कश्चिद् वानरपुङ्गवः ।
वीरो विनिकृतो भ्रात्रा जगद्भ्रमति दुःखितः ॥ २० ॥

“A gallant jewel among monkeys, Sugrīva by name, whose mind is set on virtue, roams the earth, afflicted as he is having been banished by his elder brother. (20)

प्राप्तोऽहं प्रेषितस्तेन सुग्रीवेण महात्मना ।
राज्ञा वानरमुख्यानां हनुमान् नाम वानरः ॥ २१ ॥

“Sent by that high-minded Sugrīva, king of the leaders of monkeys, I, a monkey, Hanumān by name, have sought you. (21)

युवाभ्यां स हि धर्मात्मा सुग्रीवः सख्यमिच्छति ।
तस्य मां सचिवं वित्तं वानरं पवनात्मजम् ॥ २२ ॥
भिक्षुरूपप्रतिच्छन्नं सुग्रीवप्रियकारणात् ।
ऋष्यमूकादिह प्राप्तं कामगं कामचारिणम् ॥ २३ ॥

“The said pious-minded Sugrīva actually seeks your friendship. Know me to be his minister, a monkey sprung from the loins of the wind-god and arrived here from Ṛṣyamūka in order to serve the cause of Sugrīva and disguised in the form of a recluse, capable as I am of going wherever I please and assuming any form as I please.” (22-23)

एवमुक्त्वा तु हनुमांस्तौ वीरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ।
वाक्यज्ञो वाक्यकुशलः पुनर्नोवाच किंचन ॥ २४ ॥

Having spoken thus to the aforesaid heroes, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, Hanumān, for his part, who understood the true meaning of words and was an adept in expression, said nothing further. (24)

एतच्छ्रुत्वा वचस्तस्य रामो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ।
प्रहृष्टवदनः श्रीमान् भ्रातरं पार्श्वतः स्थितम् ॥ २५ ॥

Hearing the foregoing speech of Hanumān, the glorious Rāma, who wore a most cheerful countenance, spoke as follows to his brother, Lakṣmaṇa, standing by his side : (25)

सचिवोऽयं कपीन्द्रस्य सुग्रीवस्य महात्मनः ।
तमेव कांक्षमाणस्य ममान्तिकमिहागतः ॥ २६ ॥

“He who has arrived here in my presence is a minister of Sugrīva, the high-minded chief of monkeys, whom alone I was seeking. (26)

तमभ्यभाष सौमित्रे सुग्रीवसचिवं कपिम् ।
वाक्यज्ञं मधुरैर्वाक्यैः स्नेहयुक्तमरिदमम् ॥ २७ ॥

“Answer in sweet words with affection the aforesaid monkey, who is a minister of Sugrīva, knows how to speak and is a tamer of foes, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (27)

नानृग्वेदविनीतस्य नायजुर्वेदधारिणः ।
नासामवेदविदुषः शक्यमेवं विभाषितुम् ॥ २८ ॥

“To speak in the way he has done is not possible for one who has not studied Ṛgveda with an eye to its meaning, not memorized Yajurveda and has no knowledge of Sāmaveda either. (28)

नूनं व्याकरणं कृत्स्नमनेन बहुधा श्रुतम् ।
बहु व्याहरतानेन न किञ्चिदपशब्दितम् ॥ २९ ॥

“Surely the entire range of Sanskrit grammar has been studied by him in many ways, as is clear from the fact that nothing has been wrongly worded by him even though speaking a good deal. (29)

न मुखे नेत्रयोश्चापि ललाटे च भ्रुवोस्तथा ।
अन्येष्वपि च सर्वेषु दोषः संविदितः क्वचित् ॥ ३० ॥

“No fault of expression was noticed anywhere in his face nor even in his eyes, nor again in his forehead nor in his eyebrows nor in anyone of his other limbs. (30)

अविस्तरमसंदिग्धमविलम्बितमव्यथम् ।
उरःस्थं कण्ठगं वाक्यं वर्तते मध्यमस्वरम् ॥ ३१ ॥

“The speech emanating from his bosom and articulated by his throat is marked by absence of prolixity, is unambiguous and unfaltering and does not make a grating impression on one’s ears, uttered as it is in a modulated tone. (31)

संस्कारक्रमसम्पन्नामद्भुतामविलम्बिताम् ।
उच्चारयति कल्याणीं वाचं हृदयहर्षिणीम् ॥ ३२ ॥

“He utters a wholesome, distinct and remarkable speech, which is grammatically correct, fluent and delightful to the mind. (32)

अनया चित्रया वाचा त्रिस्थानव्यञ्जनस्थया ।
कस्य नाराध्यते चित्तमुद्यतासेररेरपि ॥ ३३ ॥

“Whose mind will not be rendered favourable by this wonderful speech, which has its seat in three articulating organs, viz., the bosom, throat and head. To say nothing of others, the mind even of an enemy with his sword uplifted will be made friendly thereby. (33)

एवंविधो यस्य दूतो न भवेत् पार्थिवस्य तु ।
सिद्ध्यन्ति हि कथं तस्य कार्याणां गतयोऽनघ ॥ ३४ ॥

“How can the progress of undertakings of a king in whose service no such envoy exists actually meet with success, O sinless brother? (34)

एवंगुणगणैर्युक्ता यस्य स्युः कार्यसाधकाः ।
तस्य सिद्ध्यन्ति सर्वेऽर्था दूतवाक्यप्रचोदिताः ॥ ३५ ॥

“By the very pleading of an envoy, all the objects of a sovereign in whose service there happen to be agents adorned with hosts of such virtues are surely accomplished.” (35)

एवमुक्तस्तु सौमित्रिः सुग्रीवसचिवं कपिम् ।
अभ्यभाषत वाक्यज्ञो वाक्यज्ञं पवनात्मजम् ॥ ३६ ॥

Spoken to in these words by Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) for his part, who knew how to speak, replied as follows to the monkey, Hanumān (son of the wind-god), a minister of Sugrīva, who also knew how to speak :

(36)

विदिता नौ गुणा विद्वन् सुग्रीवस्य महात्मनः ।

तमेव चावां मार्गावः सुग्रीवं प्लवगेश्वरम् ॥ ३७ ॥

“The virtues of the high-minded Surgrīva are known to us, O learned monkey ! We too are looking for the self same Sugrīva, a ruler of monkeys.

(37)

यथा ब्रवीषि हनुमन् सुग्रीववचनादिह ।

तत् तथा हि करिष्यावो वचनात् तव सत्तम ॥ ३८ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे
तृतीयः सर्गः ॥ ३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Three in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्थः सर्गः

Canto IV

Hanumān inquires of Śrī Rāma the purpose of his visit to Pampā. Having narrated to Hanumān, as urged by Śrī Rāma, his life-story up to his separation from Sītā, Lakṣmaṇa tells him that cultivation of friendship with Sugrīva, in pursuance of the advice of Kabandha, was the purpose of their visit to the Pampā. Observing that Sugrīva was in a predicament similar to the one in which Śrī Rāma found himself placed and as such stood in need of Śrī Rāma's sympathy and goodwill, Hanumān resumes his real form and, placing Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa on his shoulders, reaches Rṣyamūka

ततः प्रहृष्टो हनुमान् कृत्यवानिति तद्वचः ।

श्रुत्वा मधुरभावं च सुग्रीवं मनसा गतः ॥ १ ॥

Highly rejoiced to hear the aforesaid speech of Śrī Rāma as well as of Śrī Rāma's friendly feeling towards Sugrīva and to learn that Śrī Rāma too had some purpose in meeting him, Hanumān then mentally sought the presence of Sugrīva.

(1)

“O excellent Hanumān, as desired by Sugrīva, we are prepared for an alliance with him.”

(38)

तत् तस्य वाक्यं निपुणं निशम्य

प्रहृष्टरूपः पवनात्मजः कपिः ।

मनः समाधाय जयोपपत्तौ

सख्यं तदा कर्तुमियेष ताभ्याम् ॥ ३९ ॥

Having carefully heard the aforesaid reply of Lakṣmaṇa, and setting his heart on the consummation of Sugrīva's triumph, Hanumān (the monkey sprung from the loins of the wind-god), who wore a most cheerful countenance, sought then and there to negotiate an alliance with the two princes. (39)

भाव्यो राज्यागमस्तस्य सुग्रीवस्य महात्मनः ।

यदयं कृत्यवान् प्राप्तः कृत्यं चैतदुपागतम् ॥ २ ॥

He said to himself, ‘Attainment of sovereignty on the part of that high-souled Sugrīva is sure to come about as is clear from the fact that Śrī Rāma has come here with a purpose and the duty of accomplishing it has devolved on Sugrīva.’

(2)

ततः परमसंहृष्टो हनूमान् प्लवगोत्तमः ।
प्रत्युवाच ततो वाक्यं रामं वाक्यविशारदः ॥ ३ ॥

Supremely rejoiced at the thought, Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, thereupon replied as follows to Śrī Rāma, who was an adept in expression : (3)

किमर्थं त्वं वनं घोरं पम्पाकाननमण्डितम् ।
आगतः सानुजो दुर्गं नानाव्यालमृगायुतम् ॥ ४ ॥

“What for have you come with your younger brother to this dreadful forest of Daṇḍaka, which is so difficult of access and is infested with birds of prey and deer of every description, though adorned with the woodland encompassing Pampā?” (4)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा लक्ष्मणो रामचोदितः ।
आचक्षे महात्मानं रामं दशरथात्मजम् ॥ ५ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid question of Hanumān, Lakṣmaṇa, as urged by Śrī Rāma (by means of gestures), spoke as follows about the high-souled Śrī Rāma, son of Emperor Daśaratha : (5)

राजा दशरथो नाम द्युतिमान् धर्मवत्सलः ।
चातुर्वर्ण्यं स्वधर्मेण नित्यमेवाभिपालयन् ॥ ६ ॥

“Ruling all the four grades of society from day to day according to the code of conduct prescribed for himself, there was a king, Daśaratha by name, who was full of splendour and fond of virtue. (6)

न द्वेष्टा विद्यते तस्य स तु द्वेष्टि न कंचन ।
स तु सर्वेषु भूतेषु पितामह इवापरः ॥ ७ ॥

“None was inimical to him nor did he for his part hate anyone. He was in fact another Brahmā (the grandfather of the entire creation) to all created beings. (7)

अग्निष्टोमादिभिर्यज्ञैरिष्टवानाप्तदक्षिणैः ।
तस्यायं पूर्वजः पुत्रो रामो नाम जनैः श्रुतः ॥ ८ ॥

“He propitiated the Lord by means of sacrificial performances such as Agniṣṭoma, in which handsome fees were paid to the priests officiating in them. This prince is his first-born son, called by the people by the name of Śrī Rāma. (8)

शरण्यः सर्वभूतानां पितुर्निर्देशपारगः ।
ज्येष्ठो दशरथस्यायं पुत्राणां गुणवत्तरः ॥ ९ ॥

“Fit to protect all created beings, he has fully carried out the commands of his father. He is the eldest of all Daśaratha’s sons and is more qualified than all of them (9)

राजलक्षणसंयुक्तः संयुक्तो राज्यसम्पदा ।
राज्याद् भ्रष्टो मया वस्तुं वने सार्धमिहागतः ॥ १० ॥
भार्यया च महाभाग सीतयानुगतो वशी ।
दिनक्षये महातेजाः प्रभयेव दिवाकरः ॥ ११ ॥

“Endowed with the bodily marks of a king, he was just going to be invested by his father with royal fortune (in the shape of the office of Prince Regent) when he was suddenly disinherited of his sovereignty and came here to live in the forest with me, followed by his consort, Sītā too—even as the sun sinks below horizon with its splendour at the close of the day—possessed as he was of extraordinary brilliance and had fully controlled himself. (10-11)

अहमस्यावरो भ्राता गुणैर्दास्यमुपागतः ।
कृतज्ञस्य बहुज्ञस्य लक्ष्मणो नाम नामतः ॥ १२ ॥

“I am his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa by name, who was lovingly drawn by his virtues to become his servant, appreciating as he does the services, rendered to him and making much of even small services. (12)

सुखार्हस्य महार्हस्य सर्वभूतहितात्मनः ।
ऐश्वर्येण विहीनस्य वनवासे रतस्य च ॥ १३ ॥
रक्षसापहता भार्या रहिते कामरूपिणा ।
तच्च न ज्ञायते रक्षः पत्नी येनास्य वा हता ॥ १४ ॥

“The spouse of my aforesaid brother, who is worthy of all comforts, who deserves to be adored even by the trio adored by all (viz., Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Śiva) and whose mind is set on the good of all created beings, nay, who is now totally bereft of all lordship and is devoted to a forest life, was carried off at a place where none was beside her, by an ogre who is capable of assuming any form at will. That ogre, however, by whom his consort has been stolen away is not known. (13-14)

दनुर्नाम दितेः पुत्रः शापाद् राक्षसतां गतः ।

आख्यातस्तेन सुग्रीवः समर्थो वानराधिपः ॥ १५ ॥

“There was a son of Diti, Danu (Kabandha) by name, who had by virtue of an imprecation assumed the state of an ogre. Sugrīva, the powerful overlord of monkeys, was mentioned to us by him. (15)

स ज्ञास्यति महावीर्यस्तव भार्यापहारिणम् ।

एवमुक्त्वा दनुः स्वर्गं भ्राजमानो दिवं गतः ॥ १६ ॥

“That exceptionally powerful monkey will find out the ogre who stole away your consort !” Saying so, and emitting light (all-round), Danu rose to the skies on his way to heaven. (16)

एतत् ते सर्वमाख्यातं याथातथ्येन पृच्छतः ।

अहं चैव च रामश्च सुग्रीवं शरणं गतौ ॥ १७ ॥

“All this has been narrated in all sincerity to you, who inquired about it. Now Śrī Rāma as well as myself have sought Sugrīva as our refuge. (17)

एष दत्त्वा च वित्तानि प्राप्य चानुत्तमं यशः ।

लोकनाथः पुरा भूत्वा सुग्रीवं नाथमिच्छति ॥ १८ ॥

“Having given away all his riches to beggars while leaving Ayodhyā for the forest and earned unsurpassed glory, and having been in the past the protector of the world, Śrī Rāma desires to have Sugrīva as his benefactor. (18)

सीता यस्य स्नुषा चासीच्छरण्यो धर्मवत्सलः ।

तस्य पुत्रः शरण्यश्च सुग्रीवं शरणं गतः ॥ १९ ॥

“Himself affording shelter to others and fond of virtues, the son of King Daśaratha, (who was fit to protect others and), whose daughter-in-law was Sītā, has sought Sugrīva as his refuge. (19)

सर्वलोकस्य धर्मात्मा शरण्यः शरणं पुरा ।

गुरुर्मे राघवः सोऽयं सुग्रीवं शरणं गतः ॥ २० ॥

“The selfsame Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), my eldest brother, whose mind is set on virtue and who was once not only fit to protect, but the actual protector of the whole world, has sought Sugrīva as his asylum. (20)

यस्य प्रसादे सततं प्रसीदेयुरिमाः प्रजाः ।

स रामो वानरेन्द्रस्य प्रसादमभिकांक्षते ॥ २१ ॥

“That Rāma, on whose being propitious all these created beings remain constantly pleased, seeks the favour of Sugrīva, king of monkeys ! (21)

येन सर्वगुणोपेताः पृथिव्यां सर्वपार्थिवाः ।

मानिताः सततं राज्ञा सदा दशरथेन वै ॥ २२ ॥

तस्यायं पूर्वजः पुत्रस्त्रिषु लोकेषु विश्रुतः ।

सुग्रीवं वानरेन्द्रं तु रामः शरणमागतः ॥ २३ ॥

“Śrī Rāma, the first-born son, well-known through all the three worlds, of King Daśaratha—by whom in reality all the kings on earth, endowed with all kinds of virtues, were unceasingly honoured everyday, has for his part sought Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, as his refuge. (22-23)

शोकाभिभूते रामे तु शोकार्ते शरणं गते ।

कर्तुमर्हति सुग्रीवः प्रसादं सह यूथपैः ॥ २४ ॥

“Sugrīva alongwith his troop-leaders ought in his turn to show his grace to Śrī Rāma, who is overwhelmed and stricken with grief and has sought Sugrīva as his refuge.” (24)

एवं ब्रुवाणं सौमित्रिं करुणं साश्रुपातनम् ।

हनूमान् प्रत्युवाचेदं वाक्यं वाक्यविशारदः ॥ २५ ॥

To Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), speaking as aforesaid in a pathetic tone accompanied by a flow of tears, Hanumān, who was an adept in expression, replied as follows : (25)

ईदृशा बुद्धिसम्पन्ना जितक्रोधा जितेन्द्रियाः ।

द्रष्टव्या वानरेन्द्रेण दिष्ट्या दर्शनमागताः ॥ २६ ॥

“Through good luck people like you, who are rich in wisdom, have subdued their anger and mastered their senses, and who deserve to be seen by Sugrīva (the ruler of monkeys), have fallen within the range of our sight. (26)

स हि राज्याश्च विभ्रष्टः कृतवैरश्च वालिना ।

हृतदारो वने त्रस्तो भ्रात्रा विनिकृतो भृशम् ॥ २७ ॥

“Antagonized and deposed from his throne, nay, actually deprived of his spouse and exiled by his elder brother, Vālī, Sugrīva lives in the forest greatly alarmed. (27)

करिष्यति स साहाय्यं युवयोर्भास्करात्मजः ।

सुग्रीवः सह चास्माभिः सीतायाः परिमार्गणे ॥ २८ ॥

“Alongwith us (monkeys) the said Sugrīva, sprung from the loins of the sun-god, will render help to you in tracing out Sitā.” (28)

इत्येवमुक्त्वा हनुमान् श्लक्ष्णं मधुरया गिरा ।

बभाषे साधु गच्छामः सुग्रीवमिति राघवम् ॥ २९ ॥

Having spoken thus in a sweet tone, Hanumān softly said to Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, “Well, let us proceed to meet Sugrīva.” (29)

एवं ब्रुवन्तं धर्मात्मा हनूमन्तं स लक्ष्मणः ।

प्रतिपूज्य यथान्यायमिदं प्रोवाच राघवम् ॥ ३० ॥

Having honoured according to the rules of propriety Hanumān, who was speaking thus, the celebrated Lakṣmaṇa, whose mind was set on virtue, submitted as follows to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) : (30)

कपिः कथयते हृष्टो यथायं मारुतात्मजः ।

कृत्यवान् सोऽपि सम्प्राप्तः कृतकृत्योऽसि राघव ॥ ३१ ॥

“Full of joy, this son of the wind-god speaks aright. Sugrīva too has some end to be achieved (through you). Having arrived here at the right time, you have your object accomplished, O scion of Raghu ! (31)

प्रसन्नमुखवर्णश्च व्यक्तं हृष्टश्च भाषते ।

नानृतं वक्ष्यते वीरो हनूमान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Full of delight, Hanumān speaks unambiguously and with a cheerful glow on his face. The gallant son of the wind-god would not tell a lie.” (32)

ततः स सुमहाप्राज्ञो हनूमान् मारुतात्मजः ।

जगामादाय तौ वीरौ हरिराजाय राघवौ ॥ ३३ ॥

Taking Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, the two heroic scions of Raghu, the aforesaid Hanumān, the extremely wise son of the wind-god, thereupon sallied forth to meet Sugrīva (the ruler of monkeys). (33)

भिक्षुरूपं परित्यज्य वानरं रूपमास्थितः ।

पृष्ठमारोप्य तौ वीरौ जगाम कपिकुञ्जरः ॥ ३४ ॥

Having abandoned the guise of a mendicant (recluse) and resumed the form of a monkey, and placing the aforesaid two heroes on his shoulders, Hanumān (a veritable elephant among monkeys) departed for R̥ṣyamūka. (34)

स तु विपुलयशाः कपिप्रवीरः

पवनसुतः कृतकृत्यवत् प्रहृष्टः ।

गिरिवरमुरुविक्रमः प्रयातः

स शुभमतिः सह रामलक्ष्मणाभ्याम् ॥ ३५ ॥

Overjoyed like one whose object has been accomplished, that great hero among the monkeys, the noble-minded son of the wind-god, for his part, who had earned an extensive fame and was possessed of extraordinary prowess, proceeded alongwith Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa to R̥ṣyamūka (the foremost of mountains). (35)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे चतुर्थः सर्गः ॥ ४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Four in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चमः सर्गः

Canto V

Having presented himself before Sugrīva on the Malaya mountain and apprised him of his having brought the two scions of Raghu to R̥ṣyamūka, Hanumān narrates to him the story of the two princes. Pleased to hear this news and approaching Śrī Rāma in the form of a human being, Sugrīva offers his hand for being clasped by Śrī Rāma as a token of friendship. Śrī Rāma responds by clasping it with his own and hugs him to his bosom. Their friendship having been solemnized in the presence of a fire, Sugrīva narrates to him his tale of woe and requests Śrī Rāma to get rid of Vālī, his hostile brother. Śrī Rāma promises this

ऋष्यमूकात् तु हनुमान् गत्वा तं मलयं गिरिम् ।
आचक्षे तदा वीरौ कपिराजाय राघवौ ॥ १ ॥

Springing to the celebrated Mount Malaya (an offshoot of R̥ṣyamūka) from the R̥ṣyamūka hill, Hanumān for his part forthwith announced Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa (the two scions of Raghu) to Sugrīva (the king of monkeys). (1)

अयं रामो महाप्राज्ञ सम्प्राप्तो दृढविक्रमः ।
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा रामोऽयं सत्यविक्रमः ॥ २ ॥

“Here is Rāma duly arrived with Lakṣmaṇa, his younger brother, O highly wise king of unbending prowess! The aforesaid Rāma is possessed of unfailing prowess. (2)

इक्ष्वाकूणां कुले जातो रामो दशरथात्मजः ।
धर्मे निगदितश्चैव पितुर्निर्देशकारकः ॥ ३ ॥

“Born in the line of Ikṣvākus, Śrī Rāma is sprung from the loins of King Daśaratha, and is well-known for his devotion to duty. He has come to the forest in obedience to the behest of his father. (3)

राजसूयाश्वमेधैश्च वह्निर्येनाभितर्पितः ।
दक्षिणाश्च तथोत्सृष्टा गावः शतसहस्रशः ॥ ४ ॥

Śrī Rāma is a son of the same King Daśaratha by whom the god of fire was fully propitiated by means of Rājasūya and

Aśwamedha sacrifices and liberal fees were given away as well as cows in hundreds of thousands. (4)

तपसा सत्यवाक्येन वसुधा येन पालिता ।
स्त्रीहेतोस्तस्य पुत्रोऽयं रामोऽरण्यं समागतः ॥ ५ ॥

“Nay, the earth was ruled by him by recourse to truthful words and asceticism. Because of the plighted word given by the aforesaid king to his wife (Kaikeyī, Rāma’s stepmother) Śrī Rāma has come to (live in) the forest. (5)

तस्यास्य वसतोऽरण्ये नियतस्य महात्मनः ।
रावणेन हृता भार्या स त्वां शरणमागतः ॥ ६ ॥

“The spouse of the same high-souled Śrī Rāma was carried off by Rāvaṇa while the former was leading a disciplined life in the forest. He has accordingly sought you as his refuge. (6)

भवता सख्यकामौ तौ भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ।
प्रगृह्य चार्चयस्वैतौ पूजनीयतमावुभौ ॥ ७ ॥

“Receiving and accepting as your own the aforesaid two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, who seek friendship with you and are most deserving of homage, pray, offer (formal) worship to both these princes.” (7)

श्रुत्वा हनूमतो वाक्यं सुग्रीवो वानराधिपः ।
दर्शनीयतमो भूत्वा प्रीत्योवाच च राघवम् ॥ ८ ॥

Hearing the submission of Hanumān and appearing most good-looking, Sugrīva, the overlord of monkeys, lovingly approached and submitted as follows to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) :

(8)

भवान् धर्मविनीतश्च सुतपाः सर्ववत्सलः ।
आख्याता वायुपुत्रेण तत्त्वतो मे भवद्गुणाः ॥ ९ ॥

“You have been trained in the practice of righteousness, and are highly ascetic and fond of all; your virtues have already been recounted by Hanumān, son of the wind-god, in their reality.

(9)

तन्ममैवैष सत्कारो लाभश्चैवोत्तमः प्रभो ।
यत्त्वमिच्छसि सौहार्दं वानरेण मया सह ॥ १० ॥

“It is an honour to myself and my foremost gain too, my lord, that you seek amity with me, a monkey.

(10)

रोचते यदि मे सख्यं बाहुरेष प्रसारितः ।
गृह्यतां पाणिना पाणिर्मयादा बध्यतां ध्रुवा ॥ ११ ॥

“If my friendship is acceptable to you, here is my hand extended before you. Let this hand be clasped with yours and an abiding pact entered into with me.”

(11)

एतत् तु वचनं श्रुत्वा सुग्रीवस्य सुभाषितम् ।
सम्प्रहृष्टमना हस्तं पीडयामास पाणिना ॥ १२ ॥

Extremely delighted at heart to hear this beautifully-worded submission of Sugrīva, Śrī Rāma for his part pressed his hand with his own.

(12)

हृष्टः सौहृदमालम्ब्य पर्यष्वजत पीडितम् ।
ततो हनूमान् संत्यज्य भिक्षुरूपमरिदमः ॥ १३ ॥
काष्ठयोः स्वेन रूपेण जनयामास पावकम् ।
दीप्यमानं ततो वह्निं पुष्पैरभ्यर्च्य सत्कृतम् ॥ १४ ॥
तयोर्मध्ये तु सुग्रीतो निदधौ सुसमाहितः ।
ततोऽग्निं दीप्यमानं तौ चक्रतुश्च प्रदक्षिणम् ॥ १५ ॥
सुग्रीवो राघवश्चैव वयस्यत्वमुपागतौ ।
ततः सुग्रीतमनसौ तावुभौ हरिराघवौ ॥ १६ ॥
अन्योन्यमभिवीक्षन्तौ न तृप्तिमभिजग्मतुः ।
त्वं वयस्योऽसि हृद्यो मे ह्येकं दुःखं सुखं च नौ ॥ १७ ॥
सुग्रीवो राघवं वाक्यमित्युवाच प्रहृष्टवत् ।
ततः सुपर्णबहुलां भङ्क्त्वा शाखां सुपुष्पिताम् ॥ १८ ॥

सालस्यास्तीर्य सुग्रीवो निषसाद सराघवः ।
लक्ष्मणायाथ संहृष्टो हनुमान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ १९ ॥
शाखां चन्दनवृक्षस्य ददौ परमपुष्पिताम् ।
ततः प्रहृष्टः सुग्रीवः श्लक्ष्णं मधुरया गिरा ॥ २० ॥
प्रत्युवाच तदा रामं हर्षव्याकुललोचनः ।
अहं विनिकृतो राम चरामीह भयार्दितः ॥ २१ ॥

Nay, adopting a friendly attitude, he joyously embraced Sugrīva, who had been subjected to oppression. Giving up the form of a mendicant (recluse), and appearing in his own native form, Hanumān, the tamer of his foes, thereupon lighted a fire out of a pair of logs of wood. Highly pleased and fully composed, Hanumān for his part thereupon placed the fire, after it had been honoured by being worshipped with flowers, between Śrī Rāma and Sugrīva. Having contracted friendship (with each other), the aforesaid Sugrīva and Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) too then went round the inflamed fire clockwise. Highly delighted in mind, both the aforesaid friends, Sugrīva (a monkey) and Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) did not experience satiety while gazing on each other. Full of excessive joy, Sugrīva spoke as follows to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) : “Since you are now a friend beloved of my heart, our woe and joy are one.” Breaking a bough of a sal tree, laden with flowers and thick with beautiful leaves, and laying it down, Sugrīva then sat down on it with Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu). Highly rejoiced, Hanumān, son of the wind-god, now offered to Lakṣmaṇa a fully blossomed bough of a sandalwood tree. Highly rejoiced, Sugrīva thereupon gently submitted forthwith in a sweet tone as follows to Śrī Rāma, his eyes bedimmed with joy : “Having been exiled (by my elder brother, Vālī), I move about in this forest, oppressed as I am with fear, O Rāma !

(13—21)

हृतभार्यो वने त्रस्तो दुर्गमेतदुपाश्रितः ।
सोऽहं त्रस्तो वने भीतो वसाम्युद्भ्रान्तचेतनः ॥ २२ ॥
वालिना निकृतो भ्रात्रा कृतवैरश्च राघव ।
वालिनो मे महाभाग भयार्तस्याभयं कुरु ॥ २३ ॥

“Alarmed as I am, my spouse too having been taken away, I have sought shelter for my protection in this mountain, which is difficult of access for Vālī. Having been banished and antagonized by my brother, (Vālī), O scion of Raghu, I live in the forest perturbed and alarmed, my mind being confused. Therefore, grant me security, O highly blessed one, from Vālī, stricken with fear as I am. (22-23)

कर्तुमर्हसि काकुत्स्थ भयं मे न भवेद् यथा ।
एवमुक्तस्तु तेजस्वी धर्मज्ञो धर्मवत्सलः ॥ २४ ॥
प्रत्यभाषत काकुत्स्थः सुग्रीवं प्रहसन्निव ।
उपकारफलं मित्रं विदितं मे महाकपे ॥ २५ ॥

“You ought to ensure, O scion of Kākutstha, that no fear may linger in me.” Implored thus, the glorious Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kākutstha), for his part, who knew what is right and was fond of righteousness, replied (as follows) to Sugrīva as though heartily laughing : “It is known to me that service is the fruit yielded by a friend, O mighty monkey ! (24-25)

वालिनं तं वधिष्यामि तव भार्यापहारिणम् ।
अमोघाः सूर्यसंकाशा ममेमे निशिताः शराः ॥ २६ ॥

“I shall dispose of the notorious Vālī, who has wrested your wife. Infallible are these sharpened shafts of mine, glorious as the sun. (26)

तस्मिन् वालिनि दुर्वृत्ते निपतिष्यन्ति वेगिताः ।
कङ्कपत्रप्रतिच्छन्ना महेन्द्राशिनिसंनिभाः ॥ २७ ॥
तीक्ष्णाग्रा ऋजुपर्वाणः सरोषा भुजगा इव ।
तमद्य वालिनं पश्य तीक्ष्णैराशीविषोपमैः ॥ २८ ॥
शरैर्विनिहतं भूमौ प्रकीर्णमिव पर्वतम् ।

स तु तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा राघवस्यात्मनो हितम् ।
सुग्रीवः परमप्रीतः परमं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ २९ ॥

“Covered at the end with the feathers of a buzzard and provided with a momentum, and shining brightly like the thunderbolt of the mighty Indra (the lord of paradise), these arrows with pointed heads and straight joints will descend like angry serpents on that Vālī of immoral conduct. See Vālī struck down today on the earth like a scattered mountain with pointed shafts resembling venomous serpents.” Supremely rejoiced to hear the aforesaid assurance, favourable to him, of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), the celebrated Sugrīva for his part uttered the following excellent words : (27—29)

तव प्रसादेन नृसिंह वीर
प्रियां च राज्यं च समाप्नुयामहम् ।
तथा कुरु त्वं नरदेव वैरिणं
यथा न हिंस्यात् स पुनर्ममाग्रजम् ॥ ३० ॥

“By your goodwill, O lion among men, I hope to recover my darling as well as my sovereignty. Pray, handle my hostile elder brother in such a way, O heroic prince, that he may not persecute me any more.” (30)

सीताकपीन्द्रक्षणदाचराणां
राजीवहेमन्चलनोपमानि ।
सुग्रीवरामप्रणयप्रसङ्गे
वामानि नेत्राणि समं स्फुरन्ति ॥ ३१ ॥

On the occasion of the friendship concluded between Sugrīva and Śrī Rāma the left eyes of Sitā, Vālī (the king of monkeys) and Rāvaṇa (an ogre, lit., a night-stalker)—which were lotus-like, gold-like and fire-like, respectively, synchronously throbbed.* (31)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे पञ्चमः सर्गः ॥ ५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Five in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

* According to the science of omens the throbbing of left limbs is believed to be auspicious in the case of females and inauspicious in that of males.

षष्ठः सर्गः

Canto VI

Telling Śrī Rāma that he had come to know from Hanumān all about his misfortune (in the shape of the abduction of his wife) and assuring him that he will have her traced out wherever she may be and restore her to him, Sugrīva fetches from inside his cave an ornament tied in a corner of a silk wrapper and dropped by her from the air while being carried away by Rāvaṇa, and shows it to Śrī Rāma. Recognizing it as belonging to Sītā alone, Śrī Rāma is plunged once more in grief born of separation from his beloved spouse and, violently hissing like a serpent, impatiently inquires who that Rāvaṇa was and where from he hailed

पुनरेवाब्रवीत् प्रीतो राघवं रघुनन्दनम् ।
अयमाख्याति ते राम सचिवो मन्त्रिसत्तमः ॥ १ ॥
हनुमान् यन्निमित्तं त्वं निर्जनं वनमागतः ।
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा वसतश्च वने तव ॥ २ ॥
रक्षसापहृता भार्या मैथिली जनकात्मजा ।
त्वया वियुक्ता रुदती लक्ष्मणेन च धीमता ॥ ३ ॥
अन्तरं प्रेप्सुना तेन हत्वा गृध्रं जटायुषम् ।
भार्यावियोगजं दुःखं प्रापितस्तेन रक्षसा ॥ ४ ॥

Sugrīva once more lovingly submitted as follows to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), the delight of the Raghus : “This Hanumān, a veritable jewel among my counsellors and your servant, has revealed to me the purpose for which you have sought this lonely forest, O Rāma ! He has told me how while you were living in the forest with your brother, Lakṣmaṇa, your consort, Sītā (a princess of Mithilā), daughter of Janaka, was carried off, wailing at a time when she was disunited from you as well as from the talented Lakṣmaṇa, after killing the vulture, Jaṭāyu, by that ogre Rāvaṇa, who had (all along) been seeking an opportune moment (to lay his violent hands on her), and how you have been subjected by that ogre to the agony of separation from your spouse.

(1—4)

भार्यावियोगजं दुःखं नचिरात् त्वं विमोक्ष्यसे ।
अहं तामानयिष्यामि नष्टां वेदश्रुतीमिव ॥ ५ ॥

“You will cast away before long the agony of separation from your consort; for I will bring her back even as the Lord (in His descent as the Divine Fish) recovered the Veda (the Divine Revelation) that had vanished out of sight. (5)

रसातले वा वर्तन्तीं वर्तन्तीं वा नभस्तले ।
अहमानीय दास्यामि तव भार्यामरिदम ॥ ६ ॥

“Recovering your consort, O tamer of foes, no matter whether she exists in the bowels of the earth or is living in the vaults of heaven, I shall deliver her to you. (6)

इदं तथ्यं मम वचस्त्वमवेहि च राघव ।
न शक्या सा जरयितुमपि सेन्द्रैः सुरासुरैः ॥ ७ ॥
तव भार्या महाबाहो भक्ष्यं विषकृतं यथा ।
त्यज शोकं महाबाहो तां कान्तामानयामि ते ॥ ८ ॥

“Know this statement of mine to be true, O mighty-armed scion of Raghu, that the aforesaid consort of yours cannot be absorbed (with impunity) even by gods and demons including Indra, any more than food cooked with poison. Cast away grief, O mighty-armed prince, I shall surely bring back that darling of yours. (7-8).

अनुमानात् तु जानामि मैथिली सा न संशयः ।
ह्रियमाणा मया दृष्टा रक्षसा रौद्रकर्मणा ॥ ९ ॥
क्रोशन्ती रामरामेति लक्ष्मणेति च विस्वर्म ।
स्फुरन्ती रावणस्याङ्गे पन्नगेन्द्रवधूर्यथा ॥ १० ॥

“By surmise on my part I conclude that the aforesaid princess of Mithilā was seen by me while being carried off by Rāvaṇa (the ogre) of terrible deeds, crying in a husky voice “Rāma, Rāma !” and “Lakṣmaṇa !” and wriggling like a female serpent in the arms of Rāvaṇa—there is no doubt about it. (9-10)

आत्मना पञ्चमं मां हि दृष्ट्वा शैलतले स्थितम् ।
उत्तरीयं तया त्यक्तं शुभान्याभरणानि च ॥ ११ ॥

“Seeing me standing at the foot of Mount Malaya (in the company of four others) with myself as the fifth, a wrapper was actually dropped by her as also shining jewels. (11)

तान्यस्माभिर्गृहीतानि निहितानि च राघव ।
आनयिष्याम्यहं तानि प्रत्यभिज्ञातुमर्हसि ॥ १२ ॥

“They were collected by us and have been preserved, O scion of Raghu ! I shall presently bring them; you ought to (be able to) recognize them (as belonging to Sitā).” (12)

तमब्रवीत् ततो रामः सुग्रीवं प्रियवादिनम् ।
आनयस्व सखे शीघ्रं किमर्थं प्रविलम्बसे ॥ १३ ॥

Śrī Rāma thereupon said to the celebrated Sugrīva, who had spoken agreeable words to him, “Bring them soon, my friend; wherefore do you tarry !” (13)

एवमुक्तस्तु सुग्रीवः शैलस्य गहनां गुहाम् ।
प्रविवेश ततः शीघ्रं राघवप्रियकाम्यया ॥ १४ ॥

Urged in these words, Sugrīva for his part then quickly penetrated deep into a cavern in the mountain, which was difficult of access, with intent to sooth Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu). (14)

उत्तरीयं गृहीत्वा तु स तान्याभरणानि च ।
इदं पश्येति रामाय दर्शयामास वानरः ॥ १५ ॥

Taking hold of the wrapper as well as of the aforesaid jewels, the said monkey, Sugrīva, for his part showed them to Śrī Rāma, saying : “Look here !” (15)

ततो गृहीत्वा वासस्तु शुभान्याभरणानि च ।
अभवद् बाष्पसंरुद्धो नीहारेणेव चन्द्रमाः ॥ १६ ॥

Then holding the raiment as well as the sparkling jewels, Śrī Rāma for his part was fully covered up with tears even as the moon is with fog. (16)

सीतास्नेहप्रवृत्तेन स तु बाष्पेण दूषितः ।
हा प्रियेति रुदन् धैर्यमुत्सृज्य न्यपतत् क्षितौ ॥ १७ ॥

Stained with tears that gushed forth due to his affection for Sitā, and losing his presence of mind, Śrī Rāma for his part toppled down to the ground crying “Ah my darling !” (17)

हृदि कृत्वा स बहुशस्तमलंकारमुत्तमम् ।
निशश्वास भृशं सर्पो बिलस्थ इव रोषितः ॥ १८ ॥

Pressing that excellent jewel to his bosom repeatedly, he violently hissed like a serpent provoked in its hole. (18)

अविच्छिन्नाश्रुवेगस्तु सौमित्रिं प्रेक्ष्य पार्श्वतः ।
परिदेवयितुं दीनं रामः समुपचक्रमे ॥ १९ ॥

Perceiving Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) by his side, Śrī Rāma for his part duly began to wail piteously as follows, the stream of his tears remaining unbroken : (19)

पश्य लक्ष्मण वैदेह्या संत्यक्तं ह्रियमाणया ।
उत्तरीयमिदं भूमौ शरीराद् भूषणानि च ॥ २० ॥

“Behold, O Lakṣmaṇa, this wrapper as well as the jewels consciously dropped on the ground from her person by Sitā (a princess of the Videha territory) while being borne away by the ogre. (20)

शाद्वलिन्यां ध्रुवं भूम्यां सीतया ह्रियमाणया ।
उत्सृष्टं भूषणमिदं तथा रूपं हि दृश्यते ॥ २१ ॥

“Surely this jewel was dropped on a grassy ground by Sitā while being borne away as is evident from the fact that it looks just the same in appearance.” (21)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण लक्ष्मणो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
नाहं जानामि केयूरे नाहं जानामि कुण्डले ॥ २२ ॥

नूपुरे त्वभिजानामि नित्यं पादाभिवन्दनात् ।
ततस्तु राघवो वाक्यं सुग्रीवमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ २३ ॥

Spoken to as aforesaid by Śrī Rāma,

Lakṣmaṇa for his part replied as follows :
 “Neither do I recognize the armlets nor do I know the earrings, I only recognize the anklets due to my bowing at her feet everyday.” Thereupon Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for his part spoke as follows to Sugrīva : (22-23)

ब्रूहि सुग्रीव कं देशं ह्रियन्ती लक्षिता त्वया ।
 रक्षसा रौद्ररूपेण मम प्राणप्रिया हता ॥ २४ ॥

“Pray, point out, O Sugrīva, to which land Sītā (who is dearer to me than my life) was borne away by the ogre of terrible aspect as she was perceived by you while being carried off. (24)

क्व वा वसति तद् रक्षो महद् व्यसनदं मम ।
 यन्निमित्तमहं सर्वान् नाशयिष्यामि राक्षसान् ॥ २५ ॥
 हरता मैथिलीं येन मां च रोषयता ध्रुवम् ।
 आत्मनो जीवितान्ताय मृत्युद्वारमपावृतम् ॥ २६ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे षष्ठः सर्गः ॥ ६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Six in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तमः सर्गः

Canto VII

Consoled by Sugrīva with the assurance that, even though ignorant of the abode of that vile ogre who bore away Sītā, he would see that Śrī Rāma is reunited with her; Śrī Rāma compliments him and promises to kill Vālī

एवमुक्तस्तु सुग्रीवो रामेणार्तेन वानरः ।
 अब्रवीत् प्राञ्जलिर्वाक्यं सबाष्पं बाष्पगद्गदः ॥ १ ॥

Spoken to as aforesaid by Śrī Rāma in distress, the monkey chief, Sugrīva, for his part, replied as follows to Śrī Rāma (who had tears in his eyes) with joined palms and in a voice choked with tears : (1)

न जाने निलयं तस्य सर्वथा पापरक्षसः ।
 सामर्थ्यं विक्रमं वापि दौष्कुलेयस्य वा कुलम् ॥ २ ॥

“I do not know at all the abode or

“Also, let me know where dwells that ogre, who has inflicted enormous suffering on me and on whose account I shall exterminate all the ogres, and by whom the portals of Death have undoubtedly been opened for the termination of his own life carrying off (as he did) Sītā (the princess of Mithilā) and provoking me. (25-26)

मम दयिततमा हता वनाद्
 रजनिचरेण विमथ्य येन सा ।
 कथय मम रिपुं तमद्य वै
 प्लवगपते यमसंनिधिं नयामि ॥ २७ ॥

“Point out to me, O lord of monkeys, the ranger of the night, my enemy, by whom my most beloved spouse was borne away from the forest after being put off the scent.
 I shall surely despatch him to the presence of Death today.” (27) strength or prowess or even the pedigree of that sinful ogre of vile birth. (2)

सत्यं तु प्रतिजानामि त्यज शोकमरिदम् ।
 करिष्यामि तथा यत्नं यथा प्राप्स्यसि मैथिलीम् ॥ ३ ॥

“Cast away grief, O tamer of foes ! I for my part make an unfailing promise to you : I will strive in such a way that you will be able to recover Sītā (a princess of Mithilā). (3)

रावणं सगणं हत्वा परितोष्यात्मपौरुषम् ।
 तथास्मि कर्ता नचिराद् यथा प्रीतो भविष्यसि ॥ ४ ॥

“Having killed Rāvaṇa with his followers and given satisfaction to you (thereby), I will exert my strength before long in such a way that you will get pleased with me. (4)

अलं वैक्लव्यमालम्ब्य धैर्यमात्मगतं स्मर।
त्वद्विधानां न सदृशमीदृशं बुद्धिलाघवम् ॥ ५ ॥

“Cease giving way to mental weakness and call to mind your native fortitude. Such littleness of mind is not becoming of people like you. (5)

मयापि व्यसनं प्राप्तं भार्याविरहजं महत्।
नाहमेवं हि शोचामि धैर्यं न च परित्यजे ॥ ६ ॥

“Great adversity born of separation from my spouse has been met with by me too. I, however, neither grieve nor lose courage thus. (6)

नाहं तामनुशोचामि प्राकृतो वानरोऽपि सन्।
महात्मा च विनीतश्च किं पुनर्धृतिमान् महान् ॥ ७ ॥

“A common monkey though I am, I do not grieve for her; how much less should you, a great man, high-souled and cultured and endowed with courage as you are? (7)

बाष्पमापतितं धैर्यान्निग्रहीतुं त्वमर्हसि।
मर्यादां सत्त्वयुक्तानां धृतिं नोत्स्रष्टुमर्हसि ॥ ८ ॥

“By recourse to fortitude you ought to restrain the tears which have appeared in your eyes. You ought not to abandon propriety of conduct and fortitude, characteristic of those possessed of resolution. (8)

व्यसने वार्थकृच्छ्रे वा भये वा जीवितान्तगे।
विमृशंश्च स्वया बुद्ध्या धृतिमान् नावसीदति ॥ ९ ॥

“Deliberating by recourse to his own faculty of judgment as to what remedy be adopted in suffering, caused by separation from one's object of love or in a financial crisis or in a danger leading to the end of one's life, a man of fortitude does not come to grief. (9)

बालिशस्तु नरो नित्यं वैक्लव्यं योऽनुवर्तते।
स मज्जत्यवशः शोके भाराक्रान्तेव नौर्जले ॥ १० ॥

“A foolish man, however, who always gives way to mental weakness, is helplessly plunged in grief, even as a boat loaded with excessive weight sinks in water. (10)

एषोऽञ्जलिर्मया बद्धः प्रणयात् त्वां प्रसादये।
पौरुषं श्रय शोकस्य नान्तरं दातुमर्हसि ॥ ११ ॥

“Here are palms joined by me (in supplication) and I beseech you through love: pray, have recourse to manliness; you ought not to allow grief a passage to enter your mind. (11)

ये शोकमनुवर्तन्ते न तेषां विद्यते सुखम्।
तेजश्च क्षीयते तेषां न त्वं शोचितुमर्हसि ॥ १२ ॥

“Happiness does not dwell in them who yield to grief; their strength too diminishes. Hence you should not grieve. (12)

शोकेनाभिप्रपन्नस्य जीविते चापि संशयः।
स शोकं त्यज राजेन्द्र धैर्यमाश्रय केवलम् ॥ १३ ॥

“There is danger even to the life of a man, who is overwhelmed with grief. Therefore, cast away grief, O king of kings, and have recourse to fortitude alone. (13)

हितं वयस्यभावेन ब्रूहि नोपदिशामि ते।
वयस्यतां पूजयन्मे न त्वं शोचितुमर्हसि ॥ १४ ॥

“I tender a salutary advice to you in a spirit of friendship and do not moralize. Honouring my friendship you should not grieve.” (14)

मधुरं सान्त्वितस्तेन सुग्रीवेण स राघवः।
मुखमश्रुपरिक्लिनं वस्त्रान्तेन प्रमार्जयत् ॥ १५ ॥

Sweetly comforted in these words by the aforesaid Sugrīva, the celebrated Śrī Rāma wiped his face, which had been bathed in tears, with an end of his loin-cloth. (15)

प्रकृतिस्थस्तु काकुत्स्थः सुग्रीवचनात् प्रभुः।
सम्परिष्वज्य सुग्रीवमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १६ ॥

Closely embracing Sugrīva, when he (Śrī Rāma) had returned to his normal condition, as a result of the former's words of consolation, Lord Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha) for his part replied as follow :

(16)

कर्तव्यं यद् वयस्येन स्निग्धेन च हितेन च ।
अनुरूपं च युक्तं च कृतं सुग्रीव तत् त्वया ॥ १७ ॥

“That which ought to be done by a loving and benevolent friend, nay, that which is worthy of you as well as proper has been done by you, O Sugrīva ! (17)

एष च प्रकृतिस्थोऽहमनुनीतस्त्वया सखे ।
दुर्लभो हीदृशो बन्धुरस्मिन् काले विशेषतः ॥ १८ ॥

“Counselled by you, my friend, I have returned to normalcy now. Such a friend as you are, is indeed difficult to get, particularly at this time of adversity. (18)

किं तु यत्तस्त्वया कार्यो मैथिल्याः परिमार्गणे ।
राक्षसस्य च रौद्रस्य रावणस्य दुरात्मनः ॥ १९ ॥

“Endeavour should, however, be made by you in the direction of tracing out Sītā (the princess of Mithilā) as well as the terrible and evil-minded ogre, Rāvaṇa. (19)

मया च यदनुष्ठेयं विस्त्रब्धेन तदुच्यताम् ।
वर्षास्त्रिव च सुक्षेत्रे सर्वं सम्पद्यते तव ॥ २० ॥

“It may also be pointed out by you unreservedly what should be done by me. All your desire will be accomplished even as all seeds sown in a good field during the rains bear fruit. (20)

मया च यदिदं वाक्यमभिमानात् समीरितम् ।
तत्त्वया हरिशार्दूल तत्त्वमित्युपधार्यताम् ॥ २१ ॥

“The assurance (to the effect that I shall kill Vālī) that has been duly given by me out of self-confidence should be taken by you to be a bare truth, O tiger among monkeys! (21)

अनृतं नोक्तपूर्वं मे न च वक्ष्ये कदाचन ।
एतत्ते प्रतिजानामि सत्येनैव शपाम्यहम् ॥ २२ ॥

“Never before has a falsehood been uttered by me nor shall I ever utter it. solemnly affirm this to you and swear by truth alone.” (22)

ततः प्रहृष्टः सुग्रीवो वानरैः सचिवैः सह ।
राघवस्य वचः श्रुत्वा प्रतिज्ञातं विशेषतः ॥ २३ ॥

Sugrīva alongwith his counsellors, who were all monkeys felt immensely delighted to hear the words of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), particularly the promise made by him. (23)

एवमेकान्तसम्पृक्तौ ततस्तौ नरवानरौ ।
उभावन्योन्यसदृशं सुखं दुःखमभाषताम् ॥ २४ ॥

United thus in a lonely retreat, both the aforesaid friends, a human being and a monkey, thereupon spoke each about his joys and sorrows, which were akin to those of the other. (24)

महानुभावस्य वचो निशम्य
हरिर्नृपाणामधिपस्य तस्य ।
कृतं स मेने हरिवीरमुख्य-
स्तदा च कार्यं हृदयेन विद्वान् ॥ २५ ॥

Hearing the assurance of Śrī Rāma, the king of kings, who was possessed of great might, the wise Sugrīva, the foremost of monkey heroes, forthwith took his object mentally accomplished. (25)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे
सप्तमः सर्गः ॥ ७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seven in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टमः सर्गः

Canto VIII

Congratulating himself as well as his near and dear ones on his having secured the friendship of Śrī Rāma, and sitting on a common bough along with the latter, Sugrīva seeks protection from Vālī. Dilating once more on the wrongs done to him by Vālī in the shape of wresting his wife and so on, he solicits Vālī's death at the hands of Śrī Rāma.

Asked to account for this hostile attitude of Vālī, Sugrīva proceeds to relate the circumstances which led to it

परितुष्टस्तु सुग्रीवस्तेन वाक्येन हर्षितः ।
लक्ष्मणस्याग्रजं शूरमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Much gratified at the aforesaid assurance of Śrī Rāma, Sugrīva for his part joyfully submitted as follows to the gallant eldest brother of Lakṣmaṇa :

सर्वथाहमनुग्राह्यो देवतानां न संशयः ।
उपपन्नो गुणोपेतः सखा यस्य भवान् मम ॥ २ ॥

"I am undoubtedly deserving in everyway of the grace of gods in that you, who are rich in all natural endowments and endowed with virtues, are my friend.

शक्यं खलु भवेद् राम सहायेन त्वयानघ ।
सुरराज्यमपि प्राप्तुं स्वराज्यं किमुत प्रभो ॥ ३ ॥

"With you as my ally, O sinless Rāma, it should indeed be possible for me to secure even the kingdom of gods, to say nothing of regaining my own lost sovereignty, O lord !

सोऽहं सभाज्यो बन्धूनां सुहृदां चैव राघव ।
यस्याग्निसाक्षिकं मित्रं लब्धं राघववंशजम् ॥ ४ ॥

"As such, O scion of Raghu, I deserve to be adored by my kinsmen and friends, in that a friend born in the line of Raghu has been secured by me with fire as a witness.

अहमप्यनुरूपस्ते वयस्यो ज्ञास्यसे शनैः ।
न तु वक्तुं समर्थोऽहं त्वयि आत्मगतान् गुणान् ॥ ५ ॥

"You will gradually come to know that I too am a friend worthy of you. I am, however, not able to make known to you the virtues inhering in me.

महात्मनां तु भूयिष्ठं त्वद्विधानां कृतात्मनाम् ।
निश्चला भवति प्रीतिर्धैर्यमात्मवतां वर ॥ ६ ॥

"The love of exalted souls like you, who have mastered their Self, is of course steady and their fortitude infinite, O jewel among masters of their Self !

रजतं वा सुवर्णं वा शुभान्याभरणानि च ।
अविभक्तानि साधूनामवगच्छन्ति साधवः ॥ ७ ॥

"Friends look upon their own silver or gold or even shining jewels as undivided with their friends.

आढ्योवापि दरिद्रो वा दुःखितः सुखितोऽपि वा ।
निर्दोषश्च सदोषश्च वयस्यः परमा गतिः ॥ ८ ॥

"Rich or even poor, nay, afflicted or even happy, and faultless as well as full of faults, a friend is the supreme asylum to a friend.

धनत्यागः सुखत्यागो देशत्यागोऽपि वानघ ।
वयस्यार्थे प्रवर्तन्ते स्नेहं दृष्ट्वा तथाविधम् ॥ ९ ॥

"Renunciation of wealth, renunciation of comforts and renunciation even of one's country follow in the interests of a friend on seeing love of a category evoking such a sacrifice, O sinless one !"

तत् तथेत्यब्रवीद् रामः सुग्रीवं प्रियदर्शनम् ।
लक्ष्मणस्याग्रतो लक्ष्म्या वासवस्येव धीमतः ॥ १० ॥

In the presence of the wise Lakṣmaṇa, who vied with Indra in splendour, Śrī Rāma said to Sugrīva of pleasing aspect, "It is as you say." (10)

ततो रामं स्थितं दृष्ट्वा लक्ष्मणं च महाबलम् ।

सुग्रीवः सर्वतश्चक्षुर्वने लोलमपातयत् ॥ ११ ॥

Seeing Śrī Rāma as well as Lakṣmaṇa, who was possessed of great strength, Sugrīva thereupon cast his restless eyes all around in the forest. (11)

स ददर्श ततः सालमविदूरे हरीश्वरः ।

सुपुष्पमीषत्पत्राढ्यं भ्रमरैरुपशोभितम् ॥ १२ ॥

Sugrīva, the ruler of monkeys, presently sighted not far from that spot a sal tree of charming flowers, nay, clothed with a scanty foliage and adorned with black bees. (12)

तस्यैकां पर्णबहुलां शाखां भङ्क्त्वा सुशोभिताम् ।

रामस्यास्तीर्य सुग्रीवो निषसाद सराघवः ॥ १३ ॥

Breaking for the sake of Śrī Rāma one most lovely bough, thick with leaves, off that tree and laying it on the ground, Sugrīva sat on it alongwith Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu). (13)

तावासीनौ ततो दृष्ट्वा हनूमानपि लक्ष्मणम् ।

शालशाखां समुत्पाट्य विनीतमुपवेशयत् ॥ १४ ॥

Seeing them seated and duly tearing one more bough off the sal tree, Hanumān prevailed on the meek Lakṣmaṇa too to sit on it. (14)

सुखोपविष्टं रामं तु प्रसन्नमुदधिं यथा ।

सालपुष्पावसंकीर्णं तस्मिन् गिरिवरोत्तमे ॥ १५ ॥

ततः प्रहृष्टः सुग्रीवः श्लक्ष्णया शुभया गिरा ।

उवाच प्रणयाद् रामं हर्षव्याकुलिताक्षरम् ॥ १६ ॥

Then out of affection Sugrīva for his part most joyfully submitted in a soft and attractive tone and in words rendered indistinct through joy to Śrī Rāma, the delighter of all, comfortably seated and calm like an unruffled ocean on that jewel among the best of mountains, which was strewn with blossoms of sal. (15-16)

अहं विनिकृतो भ्रात्रा चराम्येष भयार्दितः ।

ऋष्यमूकं गिरिवरं हतभार्यः सुदुःखितः ॥ १७ ॥

"Exiled by my elder brother, Vālī, and deprived of my spouse, I range on this R̥ṣyamūka, the best of mountains, stricken with fear and sore afflicted. (17)

सोऽहं त्रस्तो भये मग्नो वने सम्भ्रान्तचेतनः ।

वालिना निकृतो भ्रात्रा कृतवैरश्च राघवः ॥ १८ ॥

"Having been exiled and antagonized by my elder brother, Vālī, O scion of Raghu, I dwell in this forest alarmed and submerged in fear, my mind being utterly confused. (18)

वालिनो मे भयार्तस्य सर्वलोकाभयंकरः ।

ममापि त्वमनाथस्य प्रसादं कर्तुमर्हसि ॥ १९ ॥

"You ought to show favour to me as well, forlorn as I am and stricken with fear from Vālī, O prince ridding all people of fear !" (19)

एवमुक्तस्तु तेजस्वी धर्मज्ञो धर्मवत्सलः ।

प्रत्युवाच स काकुत्स्थः सुग्रीवं प्रहसन्निव ॥ २० ॥

Requested thus by Sugrīva, the glorious Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha, for his part, who knew what is right and was fond of righteousness, replied to Sugrīva as follows, as though heartily laughing : (20)

उपकारफलं मित्रमपकारोऽरिलक्षणम् ।

अद्यैव तं वधिष्यामि तव भार्यापहारिणम् ॥ २१ ॥

"Service is the fruit yielded by a friend and an enemy is known by disservice (that he renders). I will this very day dispose of Vālī, who has wrested your spouse. (21)

इमे हि मे महाभाग पत्रिणस्तिग्मतेजसः ।

कार्तिकेयवनोद्भूताः शरा हेमविभूषिताः ॥ २२ ॥

कङ्कपत्रपरिच्छन्ना महेन्द्राशनिसंनिभाः ।

सुपर्वाणः सुतीक्ष्णाग्राः सरोषा भुजगा इव ॥ २३ ॥

"Here indeed are my winged shafts of dazzling brilliance sprung from a thicket of reeds (the birth-place of Lord Skanda), decked with gold and adorned with the feathers of buzzards, endowed with smooth joints and exceptionally sharp points, nay, resembling the great Indra's thunderbolt and looking like angry serpents, O highly blessed one ! (22-23)

वालिसंज्ञममित्रं ते भ्रातरं कृतकिल्बिषम् ।
शरैर्विनिहतं पश्य विकीर्णमिव पर्वतम् ॥ २४ ॥

“See your hostile brother, known by the name of Vālī, who has done you wrong, struck down with arrows like a cleft mountain.” (24)

राघवस्य वचः श्रुत्वा सुग्रीवो वाहिनीपतिः ।
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे साधु साध्विति चाब्रवीत् ॥ २५ ॥

Sugrīva, who was the leader of an army, derived incomparable joy on hearing the assurance of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) and said, “Excellent ! Bravo !! (25)

राम शोकाभिभूतोऽहं शोकार्तानां भवान् गतिः ।
वयस्य इति कृत्वा हि त्वय्यहं परिदेवये ॥ २६ ॥

“I am overwhelmed with grief, while you are the refuge of those stricken with grief. I ventilate my grievance to you, knowing you as I do to be my friend. (26)

त्वं हि पाणिप्रदानेन वयस्यो मेऽग्निसाक्षिकम् ।
कृतः प्राणैर्बहुमतः सत्येन च शपाम्यहम् ॥ २७ ॥

“By offering my hand of friendship to you, we have been made friends, with fire as a witness and you are more highly esteemed than my very life. I swear by truth. (27)

वयस्य इति कृत्वा च विस्रब्धः प्रवदाम्यहम् ।
दुःखमन्तर्गतं तन्मे मनो हरति नित्यशः ॥ २८ ॥

“Nay, recognizing you to be my friend, I have revealed to you in confidence the sorrow residing in my heart, which distracts my mind from day to day.” (28)

एतावदुक्त्वा वचनं बाष्पदूषितलोचनः ।
बाष्पदूषितया वाचा नोच्चैः शक्नोति भाषितुम् ॥ २९ ॥

Having spoken words to the extent noted above, his eyes bedimmed with tears, he could not speak aloud any more due to his voice getting choked with tears. (29)

बाष्पवेगं तु सहसा नदीवेगमिवागतम् ।
धारयामास धैर्येण सुग्रीवो रामसंनिधौ ॥ ३० ॥

By recourse to firmness in the presence of Śrī Rāma, Sugrīva, however, controlled the stream of his tears that had precipitately welled up like a river in spate. (30)

स निगृह्य तु तं बाष्पं प्रमृज्य नयने शुभे ।
विनिःश्वस्य च तेजस्वी राघवं पुनरुचिवान् ॥ ३१ ॥

Restraining those tears, nay, wiping his charming eyes and drawing a deep breath, the strong-willed monkey for his part submitted to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) once more as follows : (31)

पुराहं वालिना राम राज्यात् स्वादवरोपितः ।
परुषाणि च संश्राव्य निर्धूतोऽस्मि बलीयसा ॥ ३२ ॥

“In the past, O Rāma, I was deposed by Vālī from my throne (which I had ascended under his instruction and with his concurrence) and, addressing pungent words, was exiled by him, mightier as he was. (32)

हृता भार्या च मे तेन प्राणेभ्योऽपि गरीयसी ।
सुहृदश्च मदीया ये संयता बन्धनेषु ते ॥ ३३ ॥

“My spouse too, who was more precious than my very life, was wrested (from me) by him and those who were my near and dear ones were bound with chains. (33)

यत्नवांश्च स दुष्टात्मा मद्विनाशाय राघव ।
बहुशस्तप्रयुक्ताश्च वानरा निहता मया ॥ ३४ ॥

“Nay, that malevolent fellow is endeavouring to bring about my destruction, O scion of Raghu ! Monkeys employed by him for this purpose on many occasions have been killed by me. (34)

शङ्कया त्वेतयाहं च दृष्ट्वा त्वामपि राघव ।
नोपसर्पाम्यहं भीतो भये सर्वे हि बिभ्यति ॥ ३५ ॥

“Nay, dismayed through this fear alone I could not have courage to approach you even on seeing you, O scion of Raghu; for in the face of danger all get nervous. (35)

केवलं हि सहाया मे हनुमत्प्रमुखास्त्वमे।
अतोऽहं धारयाम्यद्य प्राणान् कृच्छ्रातोऽपि सन् ॥ ३६ ॥

“These monkeys with Hanumān as their leader for their part have in fact been my only companions. Hence I am able to preserve my life today, though reduced to straits. (36)

एते हि कपयः स्त्रिधा मां रक्षन्ति समन्ततः।
सह गच्छन्ति गन्तव्ये नित्यं तिष्ठन्ति चास्थिते ॥ ३७ ॥

“These loving monkeys actually protect me on all sides. They accompany me wherever I have to go and ever remain by my side when I have to stay. (37)

संक्षेपस्त्वेष मे राम किमुक्त्वा विस्तरं हि ते।
स मे ज्येष्ठो रिपुर्भाता वाली विश्रुतपौरुषः ॥ ३८ ॥

“This in brief is all my story, O Rāma! Of what use is it to give you details? Vālī, that hostile elder brother of mine, is well-known for his valour. (38)

तद्विनाशेऽपि मे दुःखं प्रमृष्टं स्यादनन्तरम्।
सुखं मे जीवितं चैव तद्विनाशनिबन्धनम् ॥ ३९ ॥

“My suffering can be immediately wiped out only after his destruction. My happiness, nay, my life itself hinges on his destruction. (39)

एष मे राम शोकान्तः शोकार्तेन निवेदितः।
दुःखितः सुखितो वापि सख्युर्नित्यं सखा गतिः ॥ ४० ॥

“In this way has the means of ending my suffering been submitted by me, stricken as I am with grief, O Rāma! Afflicted or happy, a friend alone is the refuge of a friend at any time.” (40)

श्रुत्वैतच्च वचो रामः सुग्रीवमिदमब्रवीत्।
किं निमित्तमभूद् वैरं श्रोतुमिच्छामि तत्त्वतः ॥ ४१ ॥

Hearing this submission, Śrī Rāma once more spoke as follows to Sugrīva : “What was the occasion for Vālī’s hostility (with you)? I wish to hear this truly. (41)

सुखं हि कारणं श्रुत्वा वैरस्य तव वानर।
आनन्तर्याद् विधास्यामि सम्प्रधार्य बलाबलम् ॥ ४२ ॥

“After duly ascertaining the relative strength and weakness of you both, or hearing the cause of this antagonism, O monkey, I shall forthwith provide relief to you (in the shape of Vālī’s destruction). (42)

बलवान् हि ममामर्षः श्रुत्वा त्वामवमानितम्।
वर्धते हृदयोत्कम्पी प्रावृड्वेग इवाम्भसः ॥ ४३ ॥

“Like the onrush of water (flowing in streams) during the monsoon, my indignation, which is already strong and shakes my heart, grows hearing about your being insulted. (43)

हृष्टः कथय विस्त्रब्धो यावदारोप्यते धनुः।
सृष्टश्च हि मया बाणो निरस्तश्च रिपुस्तव ॥ ४४ ॥

“Speak joyfully and with confidence till the bow is strung by me. Your adversary (Vālī) will be killed as soon as an arrow is discharged by me.” (44)

एवमुक्तस्तु सुग्रीवः काकुत्स्थेन महात्मना।
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे चतुर्भिः सह वानरैः ॥ ४५ ॥

Reassured in these words by the high-souled Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha), Sugrīva for his part derived incomparable joy alongwith the four monkeys (who accompanied him). (45)

ततः प्रहृष्टवदनः सुग्रीवो लक्ष्मणाग्रजे।
वैरस्य कारणं तत्त्वमाख्यातुमुपचक्रमे ॥ ४६ ॥

With his face extremely delighted, Sugrīva thereupon proceeded to relate to Śrī Rāma (the eldest brother of Lakṣmaṇa) the cause of their hostility, which constituted the reality. (46)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डेऽष्टमः सर्गः ॥ ८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eight in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

नवमः सर्गः

Canto IX

Sugrīva tells Śrī Rāma how challenged to a duel at dead of night by a demon, Māyāvī by name, who owed him a grudge on the score of a woman, Vālī sallied forth with Sugrīva and following at the heels of the demon, who ran away on seeing him, and reaching the mouth of a cave, asked Sugrīva on oath to stay out, himself entering the cave. Since Vālī did not come out for a whole year and as from a confused din coming out of the cave as well as from a stream of blood issuing from it, it was concluded that Vālī had met his death at the hands of the demon, Sugrīva closed the mouth of the cave with a rock and, offering water to the spirit of his deceased elder brother, returned to Kiṣkindhā, where the ministers of Vālī installed him on the latter's throne in his absence. In the meantime Vālī returned from the cave and reprimanded Sugrīva for his having usurped Vālī's throne

वाली नाम मम भ्राता ज्येष्ठः शत्रुनिषूदनः ।
पितुर्बहुमतो नित्यं मम चापि तथा पुरा ॥ १ ॥

“Vālī by name is my elder brother, capable of exterminating his foes. He was held in great esteem by our father and likewise made much of by me too in the past. (1)

पितर्युपरते तस्मिन् ज्येष्ठोऽयमिति मन्त्रिभिः ।
कपीनामीश्वरो राज्ये कृतः परमसम्मतः ॥ २ ॥

“Our aforesaid father having died, Vālī, who was supremely honoured by all, was installed by the ministers on the throne of Kiṣkindhā as the ruler of monkeys, on the ground of his being the elder prince. (2)

राज्यं प्रशासतस्तस्य पितृपैतामहं महत् ।
अहं सर्वेषु कालेषु प्रणतः प्रेष्यवत् स्थितः ॥ ३ ॥

“While he justly ruled over his big ancestral kingdom, I remained submissive to him at all times and stood like his servant. (3)

मायावी नाम तेजस्वी पूर्वजो दुन्दुभेः सुतः ।
तेन तस्य महद्वैरं वालिनः स्त्रीकृतं पुरा ॥ ४ ॥

“There was a glorious son of the demon Maya, elder than Dundubhi. The said Vālī formerly had a bitter enmity with him on account of a woman. (4)

स तु सुप्ते जने रात्रौ किष्किन्धाद्वारमागतः ।
नर्दति स्म सुसंरब्धो वालिनं चाह्वयद् रणे ॥ ५ ॥

“Arrived at the gates of Kiṣkindhā at dead of night, when people were asleep, he for his part thundered and challenged Vālī to a duel, highly enraged as he was. (5)

प्रसुप्तस्तु मम भ्राता नर्दतो भैरवस्वनम् ।
श्रुत्वा न ममृषे वाली निष्पपात जवात् तदा ॥ ६ ॥

“Hearing the frightful roar of the thundering Māyāvī, my brother, Vālī, who was fast asleep, did not brook his challenge and briskly sallied forth at once. (6)

स तु वै निःसृतः क्रोधात् तं हन्तुमसुरोत्तमम् ।
वार्यमाणस्ततः स्त्रीभिर्मया च प्रणतात्मना ॥ ७ ॥

Emerging in fury to kill Māyāvī, the foremost of demons, Vālī for his part was actually restrained from that daring act by the women of his gynaeceum as well as by me, whose body was bent low with submission. (7)

स तु निर्धूय सर्वान् नो निर्जगाम महाबलः ।
ततोऽहमपि सौहार्दान्निःसृतो वालिना सह ॥ ८ ॥

“Repelling us all, Vālī, however, who was possessed of extraordinary might, went forth. Out of affection I too thereupon sallied forth with Vālī. (8)

स तु मे भ्रातरं दृष्ट्वा मां च दूरादवस्थितम् ।
असुरो जातसंत्रासः प्रदुद्राव तदा भृशम् ॥ ९ ॥

“Seized with terror to see from a distance my elder brother, Vālī, stationed in a firm position to give battle, as well as myself, Māyāvī forthwith ran quickly for life. (9)

तस्मिन् द्रवति संत्रस्ते ह्यावां द्रुततरं गतौ ।
प्रकाशोऽपि कृतो मार्गश्चन्द्रेणोदृच्छता तदा ॥ १० ॥

“While he was fleeing alarmed for life, we two followed faster; the road was illumined at that time by the moon appearing in the horizon. (10)

स तृणैरावृतं दुर्गं धरण्या विवरं महत् ।
प्रविवेशासुरो वेगादावामासाद्य विष्टितौ ॥ ११ ॥

“The aforesaid demon entered with expedition a large hole in the earth, which was covered with grass and hence difficult of access; while we two stood rooted on reaching the spot. (11)

तं प्रविष्टं रिपुं दृष्ट्वा बिलं रोषवशं गतः ।
मामुवाच ततो वाली वचनं क्षुभितेन्द्रियः ॥ १२ ॥

“Fallen a prey to anger on seeing his aforesaid adversary having penetrated deep into a hole, Vālī thereupon spoke to me as follows, his mind being agitated : (12)

इह तिष्ठाद्य सुग्रीव बिलद्वारि समाहितः ।
यावदत्र प्रविश्याहं निहन्मि समरे रिपुम् ॥ १३ ॥

“ ‘Remain alert at the mouth of this hole today, O Sugrīva, till I, penetrating deep into the hole, make short work of my enemy in the course of a duel.’ (13)

मया त्वेतद् वचः श्रुत्वा याचितः स परंतपः ।
शापयित्वा च मां पद्भ्यां प्रविवेश बिलं ततः ॥ १४ ॥

“Though implored by me to take myself alongwith him on hearing this command, Vālī, for his part, the scorcher of his foes, thereupon penetrated deep into the hole binding me on oath in the name of his own person to remain outside. (14)

तस्य प्रविष्टस्य बिलं साग्रः संवत्सरो गतः ।
स्थितस्य च बिलद्वारि स कालो व्यत्यवर्तत ॥ १५ ॥

“More than a year slipped away since he penetrated deep into the hole and the same period elapsed even as I remained stationed at the mouth of the hole. (15)

अहं तु नष्टं तं ज्ञात्वा स्नेहादागतसम्भ्रमः ।
भ्रातरं न प्रपश्यामि पापशङ्कि च मे मनः ॥ १६ ॥

“Since I did not perceive my elder brother with my own eyes all these long months, my mind began to apprehend his death. Nay, concluding him to have been killed by the demon, I for my part was overcome by a feeling of misgiving through affection. (16)

अथ दीर्घस्य कालस्य बिलात् तस्माद् विनिःसृतम् ।
सफेनं रुधिरं दृष्ट्वा ततोऽहं भृशदुःखितः ॥ १७ ॥

“Then, on seeing after a long time blood mixed with foam emerged from the aforesaid hole, I felt extremely distressed because of that. (17)

नर्दतामसुराणां च ध्वनिर्मे श्रोत्रमागतः ।
न रतस्य च संग्रामे क्रोशतोऽपि स्वनो गुरोः ॥ १८ ॥

“The yell of thundering demons too reached my ears, while the noise of my elder brother, even though he was roaring while engaged in the encounter, did not fall on my ears. (18)

अहं त्ववगतो बुद्ध्या चिह्नैस्तेर्भातरं हतम् ।
पिधाय च बिलद्वारं शिलया गिरिमात्रया ॥ १९ ॥
शोकार्तश्रोदकं कृत्वा किष्किन्धामागतः सखे ।
गूहमानस्य मे तत् त्वं यत्नतो मन्त्रिभिः श्रुतम् ॥ २० ॥

“By recourse to reason on the strength of the aforesaid indications, I, for my part, concluded my elder brother to have been killed. Nay, blocking up the mouth of the hole with a rock as big as a hillock, and offering water to the spirit of the deceased, stricken as I was with grief, I returned to Kiṣkindhā, O friend ! Although I concealed the truth, the secret was learnt by the ministers with effort. (19-20)

ततोऽहं तैः समागम्य समेतैरभिषेचितः ।
राज्यं प्रशासतस्तस्य न्यायतो मम राघव ॥ २१ ॥
आजगाम रिपुं हत्वा दानवं स तु वानरः ।
अभिषिक्तं तु मां दृष्ट्वा क्रोधात् संरक्तलोचनः ॥ २२ ॥

“Having met together and deliberated with one another, I was thereupon installed on the throne of Kiṣkindhā by the ministers in a body. Having got rid of his adversary, the demon (Māyāvi), the aforesaid monkey, my elder brother, Vālī, for his part came home while I was ruling his kingdom with justice, O scion of Raghu ! Seeing me installed on the throne he had his eyes actually turned crimson due to anger. (21-22)

मदीयान् मन्त्रिणो बद्ध्वा परुषं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
निग्रहे च समर्थस्य तं पापं प्रति राघव ॥ २३ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे नवमः सर्गः ॥ ९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Nine in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

दशमः सर्गः

Canto X

While giving out the reasons of his hostility with Vālī, Sugrīva tells Śrī Rāma how in spite of his trying to pacify his elder brother, the latter exiled him

ततः क्रोधसमाविष्टं संरब्धं तमुपागतम् ।
अहं प्रसादयांचक्रे भ्रातरं हितकाम्यया ॥ १ ॥

“With intent to do him good I then sought to placate in the following words my elder brother Vālī, who came possessed of anger and was excited : (1)

दिष्ट्यासि कुशली प्राप्नो निहतश्च त्वया रिपुः ।
अनाथस्य हि मे नाथस्त्वमेकोऽनाथनन्दन ॥ २ ॥

न प्रावर्तत मे बुद्धिर्भातुगौरवयन्त्रिता ।
हत्वा शत्रुं स मे भ्राता प्रविवेश पुरं तदा ॥ २४ ॥

“Nay, binding my ministers in chains, he spoke harsh words to them. Even though I was capable of restraining that sinful monkey, Vālī, O scion of Raghu, my mind, which was weighed down by a feeling of reverence for my elder brother, did not feel inclined to do so. Having killed his adversary, the said brother of mine forthwith entered the capital in due course. (23-24)

मानयंस्तं महात्मानं यथावच्चाभिवादयम् ।
उक्ताश्च नाशिषस्तेन प्रहृष्टेनान्तरात्मना ॥ २५ ॥

“Holding as I did the high-minded Vālī in esteem, I greeted him with due reverence: benedictions, however, were not pronounced by him with a highly rejoiced mind. (25)

नत्वा पादावहं तस्य मुकुटेनास्पृशं प्रभो ।
अपि वाली मम क्रोधान्न प्रसादं चकार सः ॥ २६ ॥

“Bowing down to him I touched his feet with my crown, O lord ! Due to anger, however, the said Vālī did not relent.” (26)

“By good luck you have returned home safe and the enemy has been killed by you. You are my only protector, protectorless as I was, O the delight of the forlorn ! (2)

इदं बहुशलाकं ते पूर्णचन्द्रमिवोदितम् ।
छत्रं सवालव्यजनं प्रतीच्छस्व मया धृतम् ॥ ३ ॥

“Here is your canopy supported on many ribs and resembling the full moon appeared above horizon, held by me alongwith a pair of whisks; pray, accept it and allow it to be held over your head and the whisks to be waved on both sides of you. (3)

आर्तस्तत्र बिलद्वारि स्थितः संवत्सरं नृप।
दृष्ट्वा च शोणितं द्वारि बिलाच्चापि समुत्थितम् ॥ ४ ॥
शोकसंविग्रहदयो भृशं व्याकुलितेन्द्रियः।
अपिधाय बिलद्वारं शैलशृङ्गेण तत् तदा ॥ ५ ॥
तस्माद् देशादपाक्रम्य किष्किन्धां प्राविशं पुनः।
विषादात्त्वह मां दृष्ट्वा पौरैर्मन्त्रिभिरेव च ॥ ६ ॥
अभिषिक्तो न कामेन तन्मे क्षन्तुं त्वमर्हसि।
त्वमेव राजा मानार्हः सदा चाहं यथा पुरा ॥ ७ ॥

“‘Having waited at the mouth of that hole for a full year, O monarch, even though I felt distressed over your entry into the hole, I felt agitated at heart through grief to see blood welled up from the hole and collected at its mouth, my mind being distracted. Closing the aforesaid mouth of the hole with the top of a cliff and withdrawing from that area, I then entered Kīṣkindhā again through despondency. Seeing me forlorn, without you for a year, I, for my part, was installed on the throne by the citizens as well as the ministers and not through covetousness on my part. You ought, therefore, to forgive the aforesaid offence on my part, unintentional as it was. You alone are the sovereign deserving of honour, while I am ever your servant as heretofore. (4—7)

राजभावे नियोगोऽयं मम त्वद्विरहात् कृतः।
सामात्यपौरनगरं स्थितं निहतकण्टकम् ॥ ८ ॥
न्यासभूतमिदं राज्यं तव निर्यातयाम्यहम्।
मा च रोषं कृथाः सौम्य मम शत्रुनिषूदन ॥ ९ ॥

“‘This installation of mine on the throne of Kīṣkindhā was brought about due to your absence. I hereby restore to you your kingdom including ministers, citizens and the city of Kīṣkindhā, which vested in me as a sacred trust and which has been rid of all thorns. Therefore, O gentle brother do not give vent to anger towards me, O exterminator of foes ! (8-9)

याचे त्वां शिरसा राजन् मया बद्धोऽयमञ्जलिः।
बलादस्मिन् समागम्य मन्त्रिभिः पुरवासिभिः ॥ १० ॥
राजभावे नियुक्तोऽहं शून्यदेशजिगीषया।
स्निग्धमेवं ब्रुवाणं मां स विनिर्भर्त्स्य वानरः ॥ ११ ॥
धिकत्वामिति च मामुक्त्वा बहु तत्तदुवाच ह।
प्रकृतीश्च समानीय मन्त्रिणश्चैव सम्मतान् ॥ १२ ॥
मामाह सुहृदां मध्ये वाक्यं परमगर्हितम्।
विदितं वो मया रात्रौ मायावी स महासुरः ॥ १३ ॥
मां समाह्वयत क्रुद्धो युद्धाकांक्षी तदा पुरा।
तस्य तद् भाषितं श्रुत्वा निःसृतोऽहं नृपालयात् ॥ १४ ॥

“‘I solicit you, O sovereign, with my head bent low to get pleased with me and here stand my palms joined together in supplication. I was forcibly installed on this throne by your ministers and the citizens in a body lest a rulerless state should tempt others to conquer it.’ “Censuring me, even though I spoke such loving words, and saying ‘Fie upon you !’ the said monkey, Vālī, actually uttered many abusive words. Nay, calling together (accredited representatives of) the people as well as ministers who were held in high esteem, he spoke to me most contemptible words in the midst of my near and dear ones as follows : “‘It is known to you how that mighty demon, Māyāvī, who sought a trial of arms with me, angrily challenged me to a duel the other day at dead of night. Hearing his aforesaid challenge, I sallied forth from my royal residence. (10—14)

अनुयातश्च मां तूर्णमयं भ्राता सुदारुणः।
स तु दृष्ट्वैव मां रात्रौ सद्वितीयं महाबलः ॥ १५ ॥
प्राद्रवद् भयसंत्रस्तो वीक्ष्यावां समुपागतौ।
अभिद्रुतस्तु वेगेन विवेश स महाबिलम् ॥ १६ ॥

“‘This most cruel younger brother of mine too followed me apace. The moment the demon saw me followed by another at night, the fellow, even though possessed of great might, fled for life, distracted as he was through fear. Nay, put to flight with greater speed on perceiving us arrived very near, he entered a big hole with impetuosity. (15-16)

तं प्रविष्टं विदित्वा तु सुघोरं सुमहद्विलम्।
अयमुक्तोऽथ मे भ्राता मया तु क्रूरदर्शनः ॥ १७ ॥

“ ‘Knowing him to have entered a most fearful and very large hole, this younger brother of mine of cruel aspect for his part was then spoken to by me as follows : (17)

अहत्वा नास्ति मे शक्तिः प्रतिगन्तुमितः पुरीम्।
बिलद्वारि प्रतीक्ष त्वं यावदेनं निहन्यहम् ॥ १८ ॥

“ ‘Power is lacking in me to return from this place to the city of Kiṣkindhā without disposing of this demon. Therefore, wait you at the mouth of the gate till I get rid of him. (18)

स्थितोऽयमिति मत्वाहं प्रविष्टस्तु दुरासदम्।
तं मे मार्गयतस्तत्र गतः संवत्सरस्तदा ॥ १९ ॥
स तु दृष्टो मया शत्रुरनिर्वेदाद् भयावहः।
निहतश्च मया सद्यः स सर्वैः सह बन्धुभिः ॥ २० ॥

“ ‘Presuming that my brother will remain standing there, I for my part penetrated deep into the cave, which was difficult of access. While I remained hunting the demon in that cave a whole year rolled by. Then that dreadful enemy for his part was seen by me without causing any despondency (in me because of his not having been seen for a whole year) and the demon was killed by me then and there with all his kinsmen. (19-20)

तस्यास्यात्तु प्रवृत्तेन रुधिरौघेण तद्विलम्।
पूर्णासीद् दुराक्रामं स्तनतस्तस्य भूतले ॥ २१ ॥

“ ‘While he was thundering in the bowels of the earth, the said cave was for its part filled with a stream of blood which gushed forth from his mouth and consequently rendered difficult to pass through. (21)

सूदयित्वा तु तं शत्रुं विक्रान्तं तमहं सुखम्।
निष्क्रामं नैव पश्यामि बिलस्य पिहितं मुखम् ॥ २२ ॥

“ ‘Having killed with ease my powerful enemy, the notorious Māyāvī, I would not find my way out of the cave as its entrance was closed. (22)

विक्रोशमानस्य तु मे सुग्रीवेति पुनः पुनः।
यतः प्रतिवचो नास्ति ततोऽहं भृशदुःखितः ॥ २३ ॥

“ ‘Since no response whatever came from outside even though I cried out loudly ‘O Sugrīva ! again and again, hence I felt sore afflicted. (23)

पादप्रहारैस्तु मया बहुभिः परिपातितम्।
ततोऽहं तेन निष्क्रम्य पथा पुरमुपागतः ॥ २४ ॥

“ ‘The rock was, however, pushed back by me with many a kick. Emerging through that outlet I then returned to the city. (24)

तत्रानेनास्मि संरुद्धो राज्यं मृगयताऽऽत्मनः।
सुग्रीवेण नृशंसेन विस्मृत्य भ्रातृसौहृदम् ॥ २५ ॥

“ ‘Disregarding brotherly affection, I was thus shut up in that cave by this cruel Sugrīva, who sought rulership for himself.’ (25)

एवमुक्त्वा तु मां तत्र वस्त्रेणैकेन वानरः।
तदा निर्वासयामास वाली विगतसाध्वसः ॥ २६ ॥

“Saying so, the monkey, Vālī, for his part, from whom all sense of shame had departed, banished me then and there with a single piece of cloth, stripping me of all my possessions. (26)

तेनाहमपविद्धश्च हृतदारश्च राघवः।
तद्भयाच्च महीं सर्वा क्रान्तवान् सवनार्णवाम् ॥ २७ ॥

“Expelled by him and deprived of my spouse too, O scion of Raghu, I ranged the whole earth with its forests and oceans for fear of him. (27)

ऋष्यमूकं गिरिवरं भार्याहरणदुःखितः।
प्रविष्टोऽस्मि दुराधर्षं वालिनः कारणान्तरे ॥ २८ ॥

“Distressed by the usurpation of my consort, I have retired to R̥ṣyamūka, the foremost of mountains, which is difficult of access for Vālī due to another reason (the imprecation uttered by Sage Mataṅga). (28)

एतत्ते सर्वमाख्यातं वैरानुकथनं महत्।
अनागसा मया प्राप्तं व्यसनं पश्य राघव ॥ २९ ॥

“In this way the whole momentous story of my hostility with Vālī has been narrated to you by me. See for yourself, O scion of Raghu, the misfortune met with by me, innocent though I am. (29)

वालिनश्च भयात् तस्य सर्वलोकभयापह।
कर्तुमर्हसि मे वीर प्रसादं तस्य निग्रहात् ॥ ३० ॥

“Nay, you ought to bring immunity to me, situated as I am, from the threat of Vālī through his subjugation, O gallant prince, the dispeller of the fear of all the worlds !” (30)

एवमुक्तः स तेजस्वी धर्मज्ञो धर्मसंहितम्।
वचनं वक्तुमारेभे सुग्रीवं प्रहसन्निव ॥ ३१ ॥

Requested as aforesaid, the glorious Śrī Rāma, who knew what is right, proceeded to address the following words, conformable to righteousness, to Sugrīva as though laughing heartily : (31)

अमोघाः सूर्यसंकाशा निशिता मे शरा इमे।
तस्मिन् वालिनि दुर्वृत्ते पतिष्यन्ति रुषान्विताः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Full of wrath these unfailing sharp arrows of mine, brilliant as the sun, will descend on that Vālī of immoral conduct. (32)

यावत् तं नहि पश्येयं तव भार्यापहारिणम्।
तावत् स जीवेत् पापात्मा वाली चारित्रदूषकः ॥ ३३ ॥

“The aforesaid Vālī, whose mind is set on sin and who has transgressed morality, will survive only till I do not behold that usurper of your spouse. (33)

आत्मानुमानात् पश्यामि मग्नस्त्वं शोकसागरे।
त्वामहं तारयिष्यामि बाढं प्राप्स्यसि पुष्कलम् ॥ ३४ ॥

“Through inference based on my own example I can see that you are plunged in an ocean of grief. I shall accordingly help you to cross it and you will surely be able to regain all that you have lost, viz., your consort and sovereignty, too.” (34)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा हर्षपौरुषवर्धनम्।
सुग्रीवः परमप्रीतः सुमहद्वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ३५ ॥

Supremely rejoiced to hear the aforesaid assurance of Śrī Rāma, which intensified his joy and courage, Sugrīva gave a most momentous reply. (35)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे

दशमः सर्गः ॥ १० ॥

Thus ends Canto Ten in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकादशः सर्गः

Canto XI

With a view to ascertaining Śrī Rāma's actual strength, Sugrīva expatiates on the prowess of Vālī and tells him how Māyāvī's brother, the demon Dundubhi too challenged him to a duel and how, having made short work of him, Vālī listlessly hurled his dead body crossing over to the precincts of the hermitage of Sage Mataṅga, and how the site of the hermitage having been desecrated with blood, spattered here and there from it's mouth, Sage Mataṅga pronounced a curse forbidding the individual who had perpetrated the sacrilege to enter the hermitage on pain of death, thus enabling Sugrīva to live unmolested in that retreat. In order to convince Sugrīva of his superior might Śrī Rāma kicks the skeleton of Dundubhi away with his toe. Belittling this feat on the ground of the skeleton havng shrunk as a result of exposure, Sugrīva further asks Śrī Rāma to pierce with his arrow one of the seven sal trees standing there and thus demonstrate his strength

रामस्य वचनं श्रुत्वा हर्षपौरुषवर्धनम् ।
सुग्रीवः पूजयांचक्रे राघवं प्रशशंस च ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the assurance of Śrī Rāma, that enhanced his joy and courage, Sugrīva welcomed it and applauded him in the following words : (1)

असंशयं प्रज्वलितैस्तीक्ष्णैर्मर्मातिगैः शरैः ।
त्वं दहेः कुपितो लोकान् युगान्त इव भास्करः ॥ २ ॥

"Like the sun at the end of creation, you can doubtless consume, when provoked, all the worlds with your fiery and pointed arrows that are capable of piercing the vital parts. (2)

वालिनः पौरुषं यत्तद् यच्च वीर्यं धृतिश्च या ।
तन्ममैकमनाः श्रुत्वा विधत्स्व यदनन्तरम् ॥ ३ ॥

"Hearing from my lips with a concentrated mind of the prowess as well as of the valour and fortitude that exist in Vālī, do what should be done next. (3)

समुद्रात् पश्चिमात् पूर्वं दक्षिणादपि चोत्तरम् ।
क्रामत्यनुदिते सूर्ये वाली व्यपगतक्लमः ॥ ४ ॥

"Getting up at the close of night Vālī strides from the western to the eastern and (moving to the south) from the southern to the northern ocean too, fatigue having altogether departed from him. (4)

अग्राण्यारुह्य शैलानां शिखराणि महान्त्यपि ।
ऊर्ध्वमुत्पात्य तरसा प्रतिगृह्णाति वीर्यवान् ॥ ५ ॥

"Climbing up the tops of mountains, and tossing up even gigantic peaks with force, the mighty Vālī catches them up. (5)

बहवः सारवन्तश्च वनेषु विविधा द्रुमाः ।
वालिना तरसा भग्ना बलं प्रथयताऽऽत्मनः ॥ ६ ॥

"Nay, numerous solid trees of every description in the forests were forcibly snapped by Vālī while demonstrating his might. (6)

महिषो दुन्दुभिर्नाम कैलासशिखरप्रभः ।
बलं नागसहस्रस्य धारयामास वीर्यवान् ॥ ७ ॥

"A mighty demon appearing in the form of a buffalo, Dundubhi by name, who shone like the peak of Kailāsa, bore the strength of a thousand elephants. (7)

स वीर्योत्सेकदुष्टात्मा वरदानेन मोहितः ।
जगाम स महाकायः समुद्रं सरितां पतिम् ॥ ८ ॥

“Blinded by a boon, that gigantic buffalo, whose mind had been perverted by pride of strength, approached Ocean, the lord of rivers. (8)

ऊर्मिमन्तमतिक्रम्य सागरं रत्नसंचयम् ।
मम युद्धं प्रयच्छेति तमुवाच महार्णवम् ॥ ९ ॥

“Disdaining the turbulent sea, the storehouse of jewels, he said to the celebrated Ocean, ‘Give battle to me !’ (9)

ततः समुद्रो धर्मात्मा समुत्थाय महाबलः ।
अब्रवीद् वचनं राजन्सुरं कालचोदितम् ॥ १० ॥

Duly rising (as a mark of respect), the very mighty Ocean, whose mind was set on righteousness, then replied as follows to the demon, who was impelled by the Time-Spirit : (10)

समर्थो नास्मि ते दातुं युद्धं युद्धविशारद ।
श्रूयतां त्वभिधास्यामि यस्ते युद्धं प्रदास्यति ॥ ११ ॥

“ ‘I am not competent to give battle to you, O demon skilled in warfare! Listen, I will presently name him who will give battle to you. (11)

शैलराजो महारण्ये तपस्विशरणं परम् ।
शंकरश्चशुरो नाम्ना हिमवानिति विश्रुतः ॥ १२ ॥

“ ‘There exists in a large forest the lord of mountains, Himavān by name, the supreme resort of ascetics and the far-famed father-in-law of Lord Śiva. (12)

महाप्रस्त्रवणोपेतो बहुकन्दरनिर्झरः ।
स समर्थस्तव प्रीतिमतुलां कर्तुमर्हति ॥ १३ ॥

“ ‘Adorned with big waterfalls and comprising numerous caves and cascades, he is powerful and ought to render incomparable satisfaction to you through his skill in warfare. (13)

तं भीतमिति विज्ञाय समुद्रमसुरोत्तमः ।
हिमवद्वनमागम्य शरश्चापादिव च्युतः ॥ १४ ॥

“ ‘Concluding Ocean to be afraid of himself, Dundubhi (the foremost of demons) sped to the forest of Himavān like an arrow shot from a bow. (14)

ततस्तस्य गिरेः श्वेता गजेन्द्रप्रतिमाः शिलाः ।
चिक्षेप बहुधा भूमौ दुन्दुभिर्विननाद च ॥ १५ ॥

“Then he hurled to the ground in a large number white cliffs of that mountain, resembling lordly elephants, and loudly roared. (15)

ततः श्वेताम्बुदाकारः सौम्यः प्रीतिकराकृतिः ।
हिमवानब्रवीद् वाक्यं स्व एव शिखरे स्थितः ॥ १६ ॥

“Remaining established on his own summit, the gentle Himavān, who looked like a white cloud and wore a pleasing aspect, spoke as follows : (16)

क्लेष्टुमर्हसि मां न त्वं दुन्दुभे धर्मवत्सल ।
रणकर्मस्वकुशलस्तपस्विशरणो ह्यहम् ॥ १७ ॥

“ ‘You ought not to pester me, O Dundubhi, who are fond of righteousness. I am not adept in warfare, the resort as I am of ascetics.’ (17)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा गिरिराजस्य धीमतः ।
उवाच दुन्दुभिर्वाक्यं क्रोधात् संरक्तलोचनः ॥ १८ ॥

“Hearing the aforesaid reply of the wise king of mountains, Dundubhi spoke as follows, his eyes turned crimson through anger : (18)

यदि युद्धेऽसमर्थस्त्वं मद्भयाद् वा निरुद्यमः ।
तमाचक्ष्व प्रदद्यान्मे यो हि युद्धं युयुत्सतः ॥ १९ ॥

“ ‘If you are incapable of an encounter (with me) or are inactive through fear of me, name him who may actually give battle to me in earnest, eager as I am to fight.’ (19)

हिमवानब्रवीद् वाक्यं श्रुत्वा वाक्यविशारदः ।
अनुक्तपूर्वं धर्मात्मा क्रोधात् तमसुरोत्तमम् ॥ २० ॥

“Hearing this, Himavān, who was an adept in expression and whose mind was set on virtue, angrily spoke as follows to Dundubhi the foremost of demons, to whom the name of a rival had not been mentioned before : (20)

वाली नाम महाप्राज्ञ शक्रपुत्रः प्रतापवान्।
अध्यास्ते वानरः श्रीमान् किष्किन्धामतुलप्रभाम् ॥ २१ ॥

“A glorious and mighty monkey, Vālī by name, son of Indra (the ruler of gods), dwells in Kiṣkindhā, which is unequalled in splendour, O highly intelligent demon ! (21)

स समर्थो महाप्राज्ञस्तव युद्धविशारदः।
द्वन्द्वयुद्धं स दातुं ते नमुचेरिव वासवः ॥ २२ ॥

“Highly intelligent and skilled in warfare, the aforesaid Vālī is capable of giving battle to you as Indra did to Namuci in the past. (22)

तं शीघ्रमभिगच्छ त्वं यदि युद्धमिहेच्छसि।
स हि दुर्मर्षणो नित्यं शूरः समरकर्मणि ॥ २३ ॥

“Approach him quickly if you seek an encounter with some rival on this earth; for he does not easily brook opposition and is ever valiant in warfare.” (23)

श्रुत्वा हिमवतो वाक्यं कोपाविष्टः स दुन्दुभिः।
जगाम तां पुरीं तस्य किष्किन्धां वालिनस्तदा ॥ २४ ॥
धारयन् माहिषं रूपं तीक्ष्णशृङ्गो भयावहः।
प्रावृषीव महामेघस्तोयपूर्णो नभस्तले ॥ २५ ॥

“Seized with wrath to hear the words of Himavān, nay, retaining the form of a buffalo and looking like a huge cloud surcharged with water in the vault of heavens during the rains, the said Dundubhi, who was endowed with pointed horns and inspired terror, forthwith sought Kiṣkindhā, the well-known capital of the celebrated Vālī. (24-25)

ततस्तु द्वारमागम्य किष्किन्धाया महाबलः।
ननर्द कम्पयन् भूमिं दुन्दुभिर्दुन्दुभिर्यथा ॥ २६ ॥
समीपजान् द्रुमान् भञ्जन् वसुधां दारयन् खुरैः।
विषाणेनोल्लिखन् दर्पात् तद्द्वारं द्विरदो यथा ॥ २७ ॥

“Reaching the gate of Kiṣkindhā, Dundubhi for his part, who was possessed of great might, thundered even as a large kettledrum would when beaten, causing the earth to shake, snapping the trees that had taken root in the neighbourhood, nay, rending the earth with its hoofs and arrogantly damaging the gate of Kiṣkindhā with its horns, as an elephant would with its tusk. (26-27)

अन्तःपुरगतो वाली श्रुत्वा शब्दममर्षणः।
निष्पपात सह स्त्रीभिस्ताराभिरिव चन्द्रमा ॥ २८ ॥

“Hearing the roar, Vālī, who was in the gynaeceum, and who was intolerant by nature, rushed forth with his wives even as the moon would appear in the horizon with hosts of stars. (28)

मितं व्यक्ताक्षरपदं तमुवाच स दुन्दुभिम्।
हरीणामीश्वरो वाली सर्वेषां वनचारिणाम् ॥ २९ ॥

“Vālī, the ruler of monkeys as well as of all the other denizens of the forest, spoke to the aforesaid Dundubhi in the following few words uttered with distinct accents : (29)

किमर्थं नगरद्वारमिदं रुद्ध्वा विनर्दसे।
दुन्दुभे विदितो मेऽसि रक्ष प्राणान् महाबल ॥ ३० ॥

“Why do you utter loud threats blocking this gate of the city, O Dundubhi? You are already known to me; (please) save your life (if you can), O demon possessed of extraordinary might !’ (30)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा वानरेन्द्रस्य धीमतः।
उवाच दुन्दुभिर्वाक्यं क्रोधात् संरक्तलोचनः ॥ ३१ ॥

“Hearing the aforesaid challenge of the wise Vālī, the ruler of monkeys, Dundubhi replied as follows, his eyes turned crimson with anger : (31)

न त्वं स्त्रीसंनिधौ वीर वचनं वक्तुमर्हसि।
मम युद्धं प्रयच्छाद्य ततो ज्ञास्यामि ते बलम् ॥ ३२ ॥

“You ought not to throw out a challenge in the presence of ladies, O gallant monkey ! Give battle to me today, then only shall I come to know your might. (32)

अथवा धारयिष्यामि क्रोधमद्य निशामिमाम्।
गृह्यतामुदयः स्वैरं कामभोगेषु वानर ॥ ३३ ॥

“Or, I shall restrain my anger today; let your passion for the enjoyment of sensuous pleasures be freely indulged in for this night, O monkey ! (33)

दीयतां सम्प्रदानं च परिष्वज्य च वानरान्।
सर्वशाखामृगेन्द्रस्त्वं संसादय सुहृज्जनम् ॥ ३४ ॥

“Let loving presents be given to the monkeys after embracing them. Take you leave of your dear and near ones, the ruler as you are of all monkeys. (34)

सुदृष्टां कुरु किष्किन्धां कुरुष्वात्मसमं पुरे।
क्रीडस्व च समं स्त्रीभिरहं ते दर्पशासनः ॥ ३५ ॥

“Let Kiṣkindhā be carefully seen for the last time, since you are not going to see it any more; place a replica of yours in the person of your son in charge of the city to look after it when you are no more and revel finally in the company of your wives till sunrise; for I am going to tame your arrogance soon. (35)

यो हि मत्तं प्रमत्तं वा भग्नं वा रहितं कृशम्।
हन्यात् स भ्रूणहा लोके त्वद्विधं मदमोहितम् ॥ ३६ ॥

“He who kills one who is drunk, is unwary, has broken a limb or has been deprived of his weapons, is emaciated of body or is blinded by passion like you is indeed as despicable as a foeticide.’ (36)

स प्रहस्याब्रवीन्मन्दं क्रोधात् तमसुरेश्वरम्।
विसृज्य ताः स्त्रियः सर्वास्ताराप्रभृतिकास्तदा ॥ ३७ ॥

Laughing heartily and dismissing all those ladies led by Tārā, Vālī now angrily replied as follows to the silly lord of demons : (37)

मत्तोऽयमिति मा मंस्था यद्यभीतोऽसि संयुगे।
मदोऽयं सम्प्रहारेऽस्मिन् वीरपानं समर्थ्यताम् ॥ ३८ ॥

“Do not be misled to think that I am drunk, if you are not afraid of engaging in a contest with me. Let this inebriety of mine be construed as a state of drunkenness resorted to by a hero on the occasion of this duel with you.’ (38)

तमेवमुक्त्वा संक्रुद्धो मालामुक्षिप्य काञ्चनीम्।
पित्रा दत्तां महेन्द्रेण युद्धाय व्यवतिष्ठत ॥ ३९ ॥

“Replying to him thus and throwing about his neck a chain of gold gifted to him by his father, the mighty Indra, Vālī stood prepared for an encounter with the demon, highly enraged. (39)

विषाणयोर्गृहीत्वा तं दुन्दुभिं गिरिसंनिभम्।
आविध्यत तथा वाली विनदन् कपिकुञ्जरः ॥ ४० ॥

“Seizing by the horns the aforesaid Dundubhi, who looked like a mountain, Vālī, an elephant among monkeys, forthwith began to revolve him, uttering a loud deep hoarse sound. (40)

बलाद् व्यापादयांचक्रे ननर्द च महास्वनम्।
श्रोत्राभ्यामथ रक्तं तु तस्य सुस्राव पात्यतः ॥ ४१ ॥

“Vālī then threw him down and uttered a loud cry. While he was being thrown down, blood immediately flowed from his ears. (41)

तयोस्तु क्रोधसंरम्भात् परस्परजयैषिणोः।
युद्धं समभवद् घोरं दुन्दुभेर्वालिनस्तथा ॥ ४२ ॥

“A terrible struggle then raged between the two combatants, Dundubhi and Vālī, who were keen to conquer each other in the vehemence of their wrath. (42)

अयुध्यत तदा वाली शक्रतुल्यपराक्रमः।
मुष्टिभिर्जानुभिः पद्भिः शिलाभिः पादपैस्तथा ॥ ४३ ॥

“Vālī, who was equal to Indra, the ruler of gods, in prowess, then struck with fists, knees, feet, rocks and trees. (43)

परस्परं घ्नतोस्तत्र वानरासुरयोस्तदा।
आसीद्धीनोऽसुरो युद्धे शक्रसूनुर्व्यवर्धत ॥ ४४ ॥

“While the monkey and the demon were striking one another on that spot at that time, the demon began to lose ground in the contest, while Vālī (Indra’s son) gained the upper hand. (44)

तं तु दुन्दुभिमुद्यम्य धरण्यामभ्यपातयत्।
युद्धे प्राणहरे तस्मिन्निष्पिष्टो दुन्दुभिस्तदा ॥ ४५ ॥

“Lifting Dundubhi, Vālī for his part dashed him to the ground with the result that Dundubhi was instantly crushed in that deadly contest. (45)

स्रोतोभ्यो बहु रक्तं तु तस्य सुस्त्राव पात्यतः ।

पपात च महाबाहुः क्षितौ पञ्चत्वमागतः ॥ ४६ ॥

“While he was being thrown down, profuse blood flowed from the openings in his body (viz., his eyes, ears, nostrils, mouth and so on) and the mighty-armed demon dropped dead to the ground. (46)

तं तोलयित्वा बाहुभ्यां गतसत्त्वमचेतनम् ।

चिक्षेप वेगवान् वाली वेगेनैकेन योजनम् ॥ ४७ ॥

“Lifting up with his arms Dundubhi, who was now lifeless and as such unconscious, the impetuous Vāli hurled him with a single effort to a distance of four miles. (47)

तस्य वेगप्रविद्धस्य वक्त्रात् क्षतजबिन्दवः ।

प्रपेतुर्मारुतोत्क्षिप्ता मतङ्गस्याश्रमं प्रति ॥ ४८ ॥

“Propelled by the wind, drops of blood from the mouth of the demon, when he was hurled with impetuosity, fell on the side of Matarīga’s hermitage. (48)

तान् दृष्ट्वा पतितांस्तत्र मुनिः शोणितविप्रुषः ।

क्रुद्धस्तस्य महाभाग चिन्तयामास को न्वयम् ॥ ४९ ॥

“Enraged to behold those drops of blood fallen in the precincts of his hermitage, O highly blessed prince, the sage contemplated as to who on earth was responsible for scattering the blood. (49)

येनाहं सहसा स्पृष्टः शोणितेन दुरात्मना ।

कोऽयं दुरात्मा दुर्बुद्धिरकृतात्मा च बालिशः ॥ ५० ॥

“‘Who is the evil-minded, perverse, wanton and stupid fellow by whom I have been spattered with blood all at once?’ he said to himself. (50)

इत्युक्त्वा स विनिष्क्रम्य ददृशे मुनिसत्तमः ।

महिषं पर्वताकारं गतासुं पतितं भुवि ॥ ५१ ॥

“Saying so and coming out in the open, the aforesaid jewel among ascetics beheld a buffalo, looking like a mountain, fallen dead on the ground. (51)

स तु विज्ञाय तपसा वानरेण कृतं हि तत् ।

उत्ससर्ज महाशापं क्षेप्तारं वानरं प्रति ॥ ५२ ॥

“Definitely coming to know by virtue of his askesis that it was surely the work of a monkey, he pronounced the following terrible imprecation on the monkey who had hurled the carcass. (52)

इह तेनाप्रवेष्टव्यं प्रविष्टस्य वधो भवेत् ।

वनं मत्संश्रयं येन दूषितं रुधिरस्रवैः ॥ ५३ ॥

“‘The monkey by whom the forest which is my abode has been desecrated with drops of blood ought not to set foot into this forest; his death will instantly follow if he steps into it. (53)

क्षिपता पादपाश्रेमे सम्भग्राश्वासुरीं तनुम् ।

समन्तादाश्रमं पूर्णं योजनं मामकं यदि ॥ ५४ ॥

आगमिष्यति दुर्बुद्धिर्यक्तं स न भविष्यति ।

ये चास्य सचिवाः केचित् संश्रिता मामकं वनम् ॥ ५५ ॥

न च तैरिह वस्तव्यं श्रुत्वा यान्तु यथासुखम् ।

तेऽपि वा यदि तिष्ठन्ति शपिष्ये तानपि ध्रुवम् ॥ ५६ ॥

वनेऽस्मिन् मामके नित्यं पुत्रवत् परिरक्षिते ।

पत्राङ्कुरविनाशाय फलमूलाभवाय च ॥ ५७ ॥

“‘If the perverted fellow by whom these trees have been smashed while throwing away the corpse of a demon sets his foot within a radius of full four miles of my hermitage will surely no longer survive. Nor should his ministers, whosoever have encamped in my forest tarry here any longer. Let them on hearing this malediction conveniently depart. If, however, they too remain in this forest of mine—which has been nurtured by me like my own offspring—for the destruction of its leaves and shoots as well as for the extinction of its fruits and roots, I shall assuredly curse them too. (54—57)

दिवसश्चाद्य मर्यादा यं द्रष्टा श्वोऽस्मि वानरम् ।

बहुवर्षसहस्राणि स वै शैलो भविष्यति ॥ ५८ ॥

“‘This day (on which I pronounced this execration) is the deadline for their sojourn in this forest. The monkey whom I shall see here tomorrow will surely be changed into a rock and continue in that state for many thousands of years.’ (58)

ततस्ते वानराः श्रुत्वा गिरं मुनिसमीरिताम् ।
निश्क्रमुर्वनात् तस्मात् तान् दृष्ट्वा वालिब्रवीत् ॥ ५९ ॥

“Hearing the malediction uttered by the sage, the aforesaid monkeys thereupon went away from that forest. Seeing them, Vāli said to them : (59)

किं भवन्तः समस्ताश्च मतङ्गवनवासिनः ।
मत्समीपमनुप्राप्ता अपि स्वस्ति वनौकसाम् ॥ ६० ॥

“Wherefore have you and all the denizens of Mataṅgavana (the grove occupied by Sage Mataṅga) sought my presence? I hope all is well with the denizens of the said forest.” (60)

ततस्ते कारणं सर्वं तथा शापं च वालिनः ।
शशंसुर्वानराः सर्वे वालिने हेममालिने ॥ ६१ ॥

“Thereupon all those monkeys reported to Vāli, who was adorned with a chain of gold, the whole reason of their sudden departure from the forest and referred to the malediction pronounced on Vāli. (61)

एतच्छ्रुत्वा तदा वाली वचनं वानरेरितम् ।
स महर्षिं समासाद्य याचते स्म कृताञ्जलिः ॥ ६२ ॥

“Hearing the aforesaid explanation given by the monkeys, and duly approaching the eminent sage, the aforesaid Vāli with joined palms craved his indulgence. (62)

महर्षिस्तमनादृत्य प्रविवेशाश्रमं प्रति ।
शापधारणभीतस्तु वाली विह्वलतां गतः ॥ ६३ ॥

“Disregarding him, however, the eminent sage entered deep into the hermitage, while Vāli, who was afraid of receiving the curse, was reduced to a state of utter confusion. (63)

ततः शापभयाद् भीतो ऋष्यमूकं महागिरिम् ।
प्रवेष्टुं नेच्छति हरिर्द्रष्टुं वापि नरेश्वर ॥ ६४ ॥

“Stricken with fear of the curse, the monkey, Vāli, no longer seeks to enter the boundary of the great Ṛṣyamūka hill or even to look at it, O lord of human beings ! (64)

तस्याप्रवेशं ज्ञात्वाहमिदं राम महावनम् ।
विचरामि सहामात्यो विषादेन विवर्जितः ॥ ६५ ॥

“Knowing that he cannot penetrate into it, O Rāma, I roam about in this large forest with my ministers, entirely free from anxiety as I am. (65)

एषोऽस्थिनिचयस्तस्य दुन्दुभेः सम्प्रकाशते ।
वीर्योत्सेकान्निरस्तस्य गिरिकूटनिभो महान् ॥ ६६ ॥

“Here is the colossal heap, shining most conspicuously like a mountain-top, of the bones of Dundubhi, who was thrown with pride of virility. (66)

इमे च विपुलाः सालाः सप्त शाखावलम्बिनः ।
यत्रैकं घटते वाली निष्पत्रयितुमोजसा ॥ ६७ ॥

“These are the seven gigantic sal trees, hanging low with their boughs, each of which Vāli can denude of its leaves by shaking it with his might. (67)

एतदस्यासमं वीर्यं मया राम प्रकाशितम् ।
कथं तं वालिनं हन्तुं समरे शक्यसे नृप ॥ ६८ ॥

“Such is the matchless strength of Vāli revealed by me, O Rāma ! How will you be able to kill that Vāli in a combat, O protector of men?” (68)

तथा ब्रुवाणं सुग्रीवं प्रहसँल्लक्ष्मणोऽब्रवीत् ।
कस्मिन् कर्मणि निर्वृत्ते श्रद्धया वालिनो वधम् ॥ ६९ ॥

To Sugrīva, who was speaking as aforesaid, Lakṣmaṇa, heartily laughing, said, “On what feat being accomplished should you believe that Vāli can be disposed of by Śrī Rāma?” (69)

तमुवाचाथ सुग्रीवः सप्त सालानिमान् पुरा ।
एवमेकैकशो वाली विव्याधाथ स चासकृत् ॥ ७० ॥

To him Sugrīva forthwith replied, “In the past Vāli pierced these seven sal trees one after another and he did so more than once even later. (70)

रामो निर्दारयेदेषां बाणेनैकेन च द्रुमम् ।
वालिनं निहतं मन्ये दृष्ट्वा रामस्य विक्रमम् ॥ ७१ ॥

“If Śrī Rāma too should be able to split one of these trees with a single arrow, I shall consider Vāli killed on witnessing Śrī Rāma's prowess. (71)

हतस्य महिषस्यास्थि पादेनैकेन लक्ष्मण।
उद्यम्य प्रक्षिपेच्चापि तरसा द्वे धनुःशते ॥ ७२ ॥

"I shall deem him killed even if lifting with his single foot the bones of the buffalo made short work of by Vālī, Śrī Rāma should be able to throw them by his might to a distance of two hundred bows' (or eight hundred arms') length, O Lakṣmaṇa !" (72)

एवमुक्त्वा तु सुग्रीवो रामं रक्तान्तलोचनम्।
ध्यात्वा मुहूर्तं काकुत्स्थं पुनरेव वचोऽब्रवीत् ॥ ७३ ॥

Saying so, and contemplating awhile on Śrī Rāma, Sugrīva, for his part, the corners of whose eyes were red, spoke once more as follows to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha) :

शूरश्च शूरमानी च प्रख्यातबलपौरुषः।
बलवान् वानरो वाली संयुगेष्वपराजितः ॥ ७४ ॥

"The powerful monkey, Vālī, is valiant and accounts himself valiant and is widely known for his strength and manliness. He has never been worsted in conflicts. (74)

दृश्यन्ते चास्य कर्माणि दुष्कराणि सुरैरपि।
यानि संचिन्त्य भीतोऽहमृष्यमूकमुपाश्रितः ॥ ७५ ॥

"His exploits are seen to be such as are difficult to accomplish even for gods and pondering them I have taken shelter on Mount R̥ṣyamūka, afraid as I am. (75)

तमजय्यमधृष्यं च वानरेन्द्रममर्षणम्।
विचिन्तयन्न मुञ्चामि ऋष्यमूकममुं त्वहम् ॥ ७६ ॥

"Thinking with apprehension of that lord of monkeys, who is invincible, nay, unassailable and intolerant, I, for my part, do not leave this R̥ṣyamūka mountain. (76)

उद्विग्नः शङ्कितश्चाहं विचरामि महावने।
अनुरक्तैः सहामात्यैर्हनुमत्प्रमुखैर्वैः ॥ ७७ ॥

"Perturbed and full of apprehension I roam about in the extensive forest with my devoted and excellent ministers headed by Hanumān. (77)

उपलब्धं च मे श्लाघ्यं सन्मित्रं मित्रवत्सल।
त्वामहं पुरुषव्याघ्र हिमवन्तमिवाश्रितः ॥ ७८ ॥

"Nay, a praiseworthy and noble ally has been found by me in you, O prince, fond of your friends ! I have taken refuge in you as one would resort to the Himālaya mountain, O tiger among men ! (78)

किं तु तस्य बलज्ञोऽहं दुर्भातुर्बलशालिनः।
अप्रत्यक्षं तु मे वीर्यं समरे तव राघव ॥ ७९ ॥

"I am, however, aware of the strength of my mighty and vile brother; while your prowess in battle is not before my eyes, O scion of Raghu ! (79)

न खल्वहं त्वां तुलये नावमन्ये न भीषये।
कर्मभिस्तस्य भीमैश्च कातर्यं जनितं मम ॥ ८० ॥

"Assuredly, I neither test you, nor belittle you, nor do I frighten you. Nay, pusillanimity has been engendered in me by his terrible deeds. (80)

कामं राघव ते वाणी प्रमाणं धैर्यमाकृतिः।
सूचयन्ति परं तेजो भस्मच्छन्नमिवानलम् ॥ ८१ ॥

"Your (unfaltering) speech, which is trustworthy, as well as your confidence and divine look abundantly indicate your supreme strength, which is analogous to a fire covered with ashes, O scion of Raghu !" (81)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा सुग्रीवस्य महात्मनः।
स्मितपूर्वमथो रामः प्रत्युवाच हरिं प्रति ॥ ८२ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid submission of that high-minded Sugrīva, Śrī Rāma then smilingly replied as follows to the monkey, Sugrīva :

यदि न प्रत्ययोऽस्मासु विक्रमे तव वानर।
प्रत्ययं समरे श्लाघ्यमहमुत्पादयामि ते ॥ ८३ ॥

"If you have no faith in the prowess inhering in us, O monkey, I shall presently inspire in you confidence which is laudable in a combat." (83)

एवमुक्त्वा तु सुग्रीवं सान्त्वयँल्लक्ष्मणाग्रजः।
राघवो दुन्दुभेः कायं पादाङ्गुष्ठेन लीलया ॥ ८४ ॥
तोलयित्वा महाबाहुश्चिक्षेप दशयोजनम्।
असुरस्य तनुं शुष्कां पादाङ्गुष्ठेन वीर्यवान् ॥ ८५ ॥

Saying so and lifting in sport the carcass of Dundubhi with his toe, the mighty-armed and powerful Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), the eldest brother of Lakṣmaṇa, for his part hurled the dried up skeleton of the demon to a distance of ten Yojanas (eighty-miles), thereby reassuring Sugrīva. (84-85)

क्षिप्तं दृष्ट्वा ततः कायं सुग्रीवः पुनरब्रवीत् ।
लक्ष्मणस्याग्रतो रामं तपन्तमिव भास्करम् ।
हरीणामग्रतो वीरमिदं वचनमर्थवत् ॥ ८६ ॥

Beholding the skeleton cast away by Śrī Rāma, Sugrīva then addressed once more to the heroic Śrī Rāma, scorching as the sun, in the presence of Lakṣmaṇa as well as of the other monkeys the following significant words : (86)

आर्द्रः समांसः प्रत्यग्रः क्षिप्तः कायः पुरा सखे ।
परिश्रान्तेन मत्तेन भ्रात्रा मे वालिना तदा ॥ ८७ ॥

“The carcass was thrown in the past, O my friend, while it was saturated with blood, full of flesh and fresh, having been shortly before killed by my elder brother, Vālī, at a time when he was exhausted and drunk. (87)

लघुः सम्प्रति निर्मासस्तृणभूतश्च राघव ।
क्षिप्त एवं प्रहर्षेण भवता रघुनन्दन ॥ ८८ ॥

“Having been stripped of its flesh, it is now light and converted into mere straw, as compared to its former weight, O scion of Raghu, and has been hurled by you with such extreme joy, O delight of Raghu ! (88)

नात्र शक्यं बलं ज्ञातुं तव वा तस्य वाधिकम् ।
आर्द्रं शुष्कमिति ह्येतत् सुमहद् राघवान्तरम् ॥ ८९ ॥

“It is not possible under the circumstances to ascertain whose strength is greater—yours or his; for whether a carcass is saturated with blood or dried up makes a very great difference, O scion of Raghu ! (89)

स एव संशयस्तात तव तस्य च यद्वलम् ।
सालमेकं विनिर्भिद्य भवेद् व्यक्तिर्बलाबले ॥ ९० ॥

“The same doubt still lingers in my mind about the strength which inheres in you as well as in Vālī, O dear friend ! Certainly in the matter of your relative strength or weakness will be arrived at by your thoroughly piercing a single sal tree (of the seven trees shown to you). (90)

कृत्वैतत् कार्मुकं सज्यं हस्तिहस्तमिवाततम् ।
आकर्णपूर्णमायम्य विसृजस्व महाशरम् ॥ ९१ ॥

“Stringing this bow, which is like another trunk of an elephant, and stretching it at full length up to your ear, discharge a big arrow. (91)

इमं हि सालं प्रहितस्त्वया शरो
न संशयोऽत्रास्ति विदारयिष्यति ।
अलं विमर्शेन मम प्रियं ध्रुवं
कुरुष्व राजन् प्रतिशापितो मया ॥ ९२ ॥

“Shot by you, the arrow will surely split up the yonder sal tree : there is no doubt about it. Reflect no more and, adjured by me, O king, oblige me unhesitatingly. (92)

यथा हि तेजःसु वरः सदा रवि-
र्यथा हि शैलो हिमवान् महाद्रिषु ।
यथा चतुष्पात्सु च केसरी वर-
स्तथा नराणामसि विक्रमे वरः ॥ ९३ ॥

“Even as the sun is always the foremost of all luminaries, even as the Himālaya mountain is the foremost of all large mountains and even as a lion is the foremost of all quadrupeds, so are you the foremost of all human beings in prowess.” (93)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे एकादशः सर्गः ॥ ११ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eleven in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वादशः सर्गः

Canto XII

Amazed to behold Śrī Rāma's arrow re-enter his quiver after piercing all the seven sal trees and penetrating the bowels of the earth, and applauding Śrī Rāma, Sugrīva implores him to make short work of Vālī. Sending Sugrīva to challenge Vālī to a combat, Śrī Rāma sits in hiding behind a tree. When a passage at arms commenced with Vālī who would not brook a challenge, Śrī Rāma did not hit Vālī with an arrow because the two brothers so closely resembled each other that it was difficult for him to distinguish one from the other. The result was that Sugrīva lost heart and ultimately taking to his heels, returned to R̥ṣyamūka. Explaining to Sugrīva the reason of his failure to hit Vālī, Śrī Rāma reassures Sugrīva and encourages him to seek an encounter with Vālī again. Urged by Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa uproots a blossomed Gajapuṣpī creeper and ties it about the neck of Sugrīva for identification

एतच्च वचनं श्रुत्वा सुग्रीवस्य सुभाषितम् ।
प्रत्ययार्थं महातेजा रामो जग्राह कार्मुकम् ॥ १ ॥

Nay, hearing this well-worded submission of Sugrīva, Śrī Rāma, who was invested with exceptional glory, took up his bow to inspire confidence in the former. (1)

स गृहीत्वा धनुर्घोरं शरमेकं च मानदः ।
सालमुद्दिश्य चिक्षेप पूरयन् स रवैर्दिशः ॥ २ ॥

Taking up the dreadful bow and an arrow and aiming it at the sal tree (pointed out by Sugrīva), the celebrated Śrī Rāma, the bestower of honour on others, discharged it filling the quarters with the twang of the bow. (2)

स विसृष्टो बलवता बाणः स्वर्णपरिष्कृतः ।
भित्त्वा सालान् गिरिप्रस्थं सप्तभूमिं विवेश ह ॥ ३ ॥

Piercing all the seven sal trees (though it was aimed at only one of them), as well as the plateau on which they stood, as also the six subterranean regions, the aforesaid arrow, which was shot by the mighty prince and was decked with gold, entered Pātāla (the seventh subterranean region); so the tradition goes. (3)

सायकस्तु मुहूर्तेन सालान् भित्त्वा महाजवः ।
निष्पत्य च पुनस्तूणं तमेव प्रविवेश ह ॥ ४ ॥

Having pierced the sal trees (as well as the plateau and the bowels of the earth) in the course of less than an hour and forcing its way out, the arrow for its part, which was possessed of great velocity, quickly entered once more, they say, the same quiver from which it had emerged. (4)

तान् दृष्ट्वा सप्त निर्भिन्नान् सालान् वानरपुङ्गवः ।
रामस्य शरवेगेन विस्मयं परमं गतः ॥ ५ ॥

Sugrīva (the foremost of monkeys) was seized with great wonder to see (with his own eyes) those seven sal trees thoroughly pierced by the impetuosity of Śrī Rāma's arrow. (5)

स मूर्ध्ना न्यपतद् भूमौ प्रलम्बीकृतभूषणः ।
सुग्रीवः परमप्रीतो राघवाय कृताञ्जलिः ॥ ६ ॥

Supremely pleased, Sugrīva with joined palms fell flat on the ground as a token of respect towards Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), with his head touching the ground and his ornaments also hanging loose in the process of bending low. (6)

इदं चोवाच धर्मज्ञं कर्मणा तेन हर्षितः ।
रामं सर्वास्त्रविदुषां श्रेष्ठं शूरमवस्थितम् ॥ ७ ॥

Nay, delighted with that feat of Śrī Rāma, he spoke as follows to the valiant Śrī Rāma, the foremost of those adept in the use of all types of missiles, who knew what is right and stood before him : (7)

सेन्द्रानपि सुरान् सर्वास्त्वं बाणैः पुरुषर्षभ ।
समर्थः समरे हन्तुं किं पुनर्वालिनं प्रभो ॥ ८ ॥

“You are able to kill with your arrows in an encounter all the gods including even Indra, their ruler, O jewel among men, much more so, Vālī, my lord ! (8)

येन सप्त महासाला गिरिभूमिश्च दारिताः ।
बाणेनैकेन काकुत्स्थ स्थाता ते को रणाग्रतः ॥ ९ ॥

“Who can stand in the van of a battle before you, by whom seven big sal trees as well as the mountain on which the trees stood and the earth supporting it have been pierced with a single arrow, O scion of Kakutstha? (9)

अद्य मे विगतः शोकः प्रीतिरद्य परा मम ।
सुहृदं त्वां समासाद्य महेन्द्रवरुणोपमम् ॥ १० ॥

“Now that I have duly met in the form of an ally you, who are a compeer of the mighty Indra (the ruler of gods) and Varuṇa (the god of waters), my grief has totally disappeared and my joy is supreme today. (10)

तमद्यैव प्रियार्थं मे वैरिणं भ्रातृरूपिणम् ।
वालिनं जहि काकुत्स्थ मया बद्धोऽयमञ्जलिः ॥ ११ ॥

“For my pleasure, O scion of Kākutstha, pray, make short work of Vālī, my enemy in the guise of a brother, this very day: so have these palms been joined by me.” (11)

ततो रामः परिष्वज्य सुग्रीवं प्रियदर्शनम् ।
प्रत्युवाच महाप्राज्ञो लक्ष्मणानुगतं वचः ॥ १२ ॥

Embracing Sugrīva of pleasing aspect, Śrī Rāma, who was exceptionally wise, thereupon replied as follows to Sugrīva, who was dear as Lakṣmaṇa to him : (12)

अस्माद्गच्छाम किष्किन्धां क्षिप्रं गच्छ त्वमग्रतः ।
गत्वा चाह्वय सुग्रीवं वालिनं भ्रातृगन्धिनम् ॥ १३ ॥

“Let us proceed, O Sugrīva, to Kiṣkindhā from this mountain; depart you ahead without delay and, going there, challenge to a duel Vālī, who bears the name of a brother !” (13)

सर्वे ते त्वरितं गत्वा किष्किन्धां वालिनः पुरीम् ।
वृक्षैरात्मानमावृत्य ह्यतिष्ठन् गहने वने ॥ १४ ॥

Reaching with hasty steps Kiṣkindhā, the capital of Vālī, and hiding themselves behind trees, they all halted in a dense forest. (14)

सुग्रीवोऽप्यनदद् घोरं वालिनो ह्वानकारणात् ।
गाढं परिहितो वेगान्नादैर्भिन्दन्निवाम्बरम् ॥ १५ ॥

Tightly girded about his loins, even Sugrīva roared frightfully by way of a challenge to Vālī, rending the air, as it were, by his shouts uttered with vehemence. (15)

तं श्रुत्वा निनदं भ्रातुः क्रुद्धो वाली महाबलः ।
निष्पपात सुसंरब्धो भास्करोऽस्ततटादिव ॥ १६ ॥

Enraged to hear that roar of his (younger) brother and highly excited, Vālī, who was possessed of extraordinary might, rushed forth as impetuously as the sun would slide from the edge of the western mountain (behind which the sun is supposed to set). (16)

ततः सुतुमुलं युद्धं वालिसुग्रीवयोरभूत् ।
गगने ग्रहयोर्घोरं बुधाङ्गारकयोरिव ॥ १७ ॥

Then ensued a most tumultuous and terrible combat between Vālī and Sugrīva, resembling a clash between Mercury and Mars in the heavens. (17)

तलैरशनिकल्पैश्च वज्रकल्पैश्च मुष्टिभिः ।
जघ्नतुः समरेऽन्योन्यं भ्रातरौ क्रोधमूर्च्छितौ ॥ १८ ॥

Blinded with anger, the two brothers struck each other in the course of their encounter with their palms and soles, which fell like lightning, and fists, which descended like the thunderbolt. (18)

ततो रामो धनुष्याणिस्तावुभौ समुदैक्षत ।
अन्योन्यसदृशौ वीरावुभौ देवाविवाश्विनौ ॥ १९ ॥

Bow in hand, Śrī Rāma thereupon keenly watched both the aforesaid heroes, who both closely resembled each other like the two Aświns (the twin-gods presiding over the star, Gemini). (19)

यन्नावगच्छत् सुग्रीवं वालिनं वापि राघवः ।
ततो न कृतवान् बुद्धिं मोक्तुमन्तकरं शरम् ॥ २० ॥

Since Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) could not make out Sugrīva or Vālī because of their close resemblance, he, therefore, could not make up his mind to discharge his deadly arrow (lest it should hit Sugrīva and dispose him of). (20)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे भग्नः सुग्रीवस्तेन वालिना ।
अपश्यन् राघवं नाथमृष्यमूकं प्रदुहुवे ॥ २१ ॥

Discomfited by the aforesaid Vālī and not perceiving Śrī Rāma as his protector, Sugrīva in the meantime ran for life towards R̥ṣyamūka. (21)

क्लान्तो रुधिरसिक्ताङ्गः प्रहारैर्जर्जरीकृतः ।
वालिनाभिद्रुतः क्रोधात् प्रविवेश महावनम् ॥ २२ ॥

Exhausted and battered with the blows of Vālī, his whole body bathed in blood, and chased in anger by Vālī, he entered the large forest (occupied by Sage Mataṅga). (22)

तं प्रविष्टं वनं दृष्ट्वा वाली शापभयात् ततः ।
मुक्तो ह्यसि त्वमित्युक्त्वा स निवृत्तो महाबलः ॥ २३ ॥

Seeing him having penetrated into the forest and saying “Indeed you are spared,” the aforesaid Vālī, even though possessed of extraordinary might, desisted from the pursuit due to fear of the curse. (23)

राघवोऽपि सह भ्रात्रा सह चैव हनूमता ।
तदेव वनमागच्छत् सुग्रीवो यत्र वानरः ॥ २४ ॥

Alongwith his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, as well as Hanumān, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) too returned to the same forest where the monkey chief Sugrīva was. (24)

तं समीक्ष्यागतं रामं सुग्रीवः सहलक्ष्मणम् ।
ह्रीमान् दीनमुवाचेदं वसुधामवलोकयन् ॥ २५ ॥

Discerning Śrī Rāma returned with Lakṣmaṇa, Sugrīva piteously spoke to him as follows, looking at the ground, full of shame at his discomfiture, as he was : (25)

आह्वयस्वेति मामुक्त्वा दर्शयित्वा च विक्रमम् ।
वैरिणा घातयित्वा च किमिदानीं त्वया कृतम् ॥ २६ ॥

“Having demonstrated your prowess and saying to me ‘Challenge Vālī to a duel’, what have you done now by getting me smitten by the enemy? (26)

तामेव वेलां वक्तव्यं त्वया राघव तत्त्वतः ।
वालिनं न निहन्मीति ततो नाहमितो ब्रजे ॥ २७ ॥

“In all faith it should have been pointed out by you that very moment : ‘I am not going to kill Vālī’. Then I would not have moved from this place.” (27)

तस्य चैवं ब्रुवाणस्य सुग्रीवस्य महात्मनः ।
करुणं दीनया वाचा राघवः पुनरब्रवीत् ॥ २८ ॥

To that high-minded Sugrīva, who was piteously speaking as aforesaid in doleful accents, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) replied again : (28)

सुग्रीव श्रूयतां तात क्रोधश्च व्यपनीयताम् ।
कारणं येन बाणोऽयं स मया न विसर्जितः ॥ २९ ॥

“Sugrīva, dear brother, let anger be banished from your mind and the reason why this deadly arrow was not discharged by me be heard. (29)

अलंकारेण वेषेण प्रमाणेन गतेन च ।
त्वं च सुग्रीव वाली च सदृशौ स्थः परस्परम् ॥ ३० ॥

“You, O Sugrīva, and Vālī resemble each other in personal embellishment, costume, stature and gait too. (30)

स्वरेण वर्चसा चैव प्रेक्षितेन च वानर ।
विक्रमेण च वाक्यैश्च व्यक्तिं वां नोपलक्षये ॥ ३१ ॥

“I did not perceive any distinction between you two—in voice as well as in splendour, in look and in prowess as well as in speech. (31)

ततोऽहं रूपसादृश्यान्मोहितो वानरोत्तम ।
 नोत्सृजामि महावेगं शरं शत्रुनिर्बहणम् ॥ ३२ ॥
 जीवितान्तकरं घोरं सादृश्यात् तु विशङ्कितः ।
 मूलघातो न नौ स्याद्धि द्वयोरिति कृतो मया ॥ ३३ ॥

“Puzzled as I was by the likeness of your features, O jewel among the monkeys, I, therefore, did not let fly the deadly and terrible arrow possessed of great velocity and capable of destroying the enemy. Seized as I was with apprehension, due to your close resemblance, lest the very root of us both should be destroyed by me by killing you unwittingly, this omission was deliberately committed by me. (32-33)

त्वयि वीर विपन्ने हि अज्ञानाल्लाघवान्मया ।
 मौढ्यं च मम बाल्यं च ख्यापितं स्यात् कपीश्वर ॥ ३४ ॥

“In the event of your being killed by me through ignorance or frivolity, my stupidity and puerility would have been surely exposed, O gallant ruler of monkeys ! (34)

दत्ताभयवधो नाम पातकं महदद्भुतम् ।
 अहं च लक्ष्मणश्चैव सीता च वरवर्णिनी ॥ ३५ ॥
 त्वदधीना वयं सर्वे वनेऽस्मिन् शरणं भवान् ।
 तस्माद् युध्यस्व भूयस्त्वं मा माशङ्कीश्च वानर ॥ ३६ ॥

“Killing one to whom protection has been vouchsafed is professedly a great and astounding sin. Moreover, myself and Lakṣmaṇa too as well as Sitā of excellent complexion—we all depend on you. You are our refuge in this forest. Therefore, engage you in a combat with Vālī once more. Pray, do not, O do not fall a prey to misgiving, O monkey chief ! (35-36)

एतन्मुहूर्ते तु मया पश्य वालिनमाहवे ।
 निरस्तमिषुणैकेन चेष्टमानं महीतले ॥ ३७ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे द्वादशः सर्गः ॥ १२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twelve in the Kīṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

“Within this hour behold Vālī struck down by me in course of the very combat with you with a single arrow and writhing on the ground. (37)

अभिज्ञानं कुरुष्व त्वमात्मनो वानरेश्वर ।
 येन त्वामभिजानीयां द्वन्द्वयुद्धमुपागतम् ॥ ३८ ॥

“Wear some distinguishing mark on your person, O lord of monkeys, by means of which I might recognize you when actually come to grips with Vālī. (38)

गजपुष्पीमिमां फुल्लामुत्पाद्य शुभलक्षणाम् ।
 कुरु लक्ष्मण कण्ठेऽस्य सुग्रीवस्य महात्मनः ॥ ३९ ॥

Turning to Lakṣmaṇa, he continued : “Uprooting this creeper, named Gajapuspi, which is in blossom and is propitious in character, fasten it, O Lakṣmaṇa, about the neck of the high-souled Sugrīva.” (39)

ततो गिरितटे जातामुत्पाद्य कुसुमायुताम् ।
 लक्ष्मणो गजपुष्पीं तां तस्य कण्ठे व्यसर्जयत् ॥ ४० ॥

Plucking Gajapuspi creeper, adorned with flowers and growing on the side of the mountain, Lakṣmaṇa then fastened it about the neck of Sugrīva. (40)

स तया शुशुभे श्रीमाल्लतया कण्ठसक्तया ।
 मालयेव बलाकानां ससंध्य इव तोयदः ॥ ४१ ॥

With that creeper fastened to his neck, the glorious Sugrīva shone like a cloud accompanied by twilight, and encircled by a string of herons. (41)

विभ्राजमानो वपुषा रामवाक्यसमाहितः ।
 जगाम सह रामेण किष्किन्धां पुनराप सः ॥ ४२ ॥

Shining brightly with his body and reassured by Śrī Rāma's words, Sugrīva left with Śrī Rāma and reached Kīṣkindhā once more. (42)

त्रयोदशः सर्गः

Canto XIII

While going to Kiṣkindhā alongwith Sugrīva and others with intent to make short work of Vālī, Śrī Rāma sees a delightful grove and inquires of Sugrīva as to whose hermitage it was. Sugrīva tells him in reply that the hermitage belonged to a group of sages known by the name of Saptajanas, who had bodily ascended to heaven

ऋष्यमूकात् स धर्मात्मा किष्किन्धां लक्ष्मणाग्रजः ।
जगाम सह सुग्रीवो वालिविक्रमपालिताम् ॥ १ ॥
समुद्यम्य महच्चापं रामः काञ्चनभूषितम् ।
शरांश्चादित्यसंकाशान् गृहीत्वा रणसाधकान् ॥ २ ॥

Duly lifting up his great bow, decked with gold, and taking his arrows, which shone brightly like the sun and were so effective in battle, and accompanied by Sugrīva, Śrī Rāma (the eldest brother of Lakṣmaṇa), whose mind was set on virtue, proceeded from R̥ṣyamūka to Kiṣkindhā, which stood protected by Vālī's valour.

(1-2)

अग्रतस्तु ययौ तस्य राघवस्य महात्मनः ।
सुग्रीवः संहतग्रीवो लक्ष्मणश्च महाबलः ॥ ३ ॥

In front of the high-souled Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, strode Sugrīva who had a strongly built neck, as well as Lakṣmaṇa, who was possessed of extraordinary might.

(3)

पृष्ठतो हनुमान् वीरो नलो नीलश्च वीर्यवान् ।
तारश्चैव महातेजा हरियूथपयूथपः ॥ ४ ॥

Behind him came the valiant Hanumān, Nala and the powerful Nīla and Tāra, who was endowed with exceptional energy and was a commander of commanders of monkey hordes.

(4)

ते वीक्षमाणा वृक्षांश्च पुष्पभारावलम्बिनः ।
प्रसन्नाम्बुवहाश्चैव सरितः सागरंगमाः ॥ ५ ॥
कन्दराणि च शैलांश्च निर्दराणि गुहास्तथा ।
शिखराणि च मुख्यानि दरीश्च प्रियदर्शनाः ॥ ६ ॥
वैदूर्यविमलैस्तोयैः पद्मैश्चाकोशकुड्मलैः ।
शोभितान् सजलान् मार्गे तटाकांश्चावलोकयन् ॥ ७ ॥

कारण्डैः सारसैर्हंसैर्वज्रलैर्जलकुक्कुटैः ।
चक्रवाकैस्तथा चान्यैः शकुनैः प्रतिनादितान् ॥ ८ ॥
मृदुशब्पाङ्कुराहारान्निर्भयान् वनगोचरान् ।
चरतः सर्वतः पश्यन् स्थलीषु हरिणान् स्थितान् ॥ ९ ॥
तटाकवैरिणश्चापि शुक्लदन्तविभूषितान् ।
घोरानेकचरान् वन्यान् द्विरदान् कूलघातिनः ॥ १० ॥
मत्तान् गिरितटोत्कृष्टान् पर्वतानिव जङ्गमान् ।
वानरान् द्विरदप्रख्यान् महीरेणुसमुक्षितान् ॥ ११ ॥
वने वनचरांश्चान्यान् खेचरांश्च विहंगमान् ।
पश्यन्तस्त्वरिता जग्मुः सुग्रीववशवर्तिनः ॥ १२ ॥

Observing trees which were bending under the load of their blossom as well as rivers journeying to the sea and carrying placid waters, also caves and cliffs, mountain-clefts and holes, also outstanding peaks and hollows pleasing to the sight, nay, seeing on the way ponds full of water, rendered charming by their waters, transparent as a cat's-eye jewel, and lotuses still in the state of buds up to their very mouths and rendered noisy by ducks, cranes, swans, Vañjulas, water-fowls, Cakrawākas and also by other birds, also beholding in the forest wild deer grazing on the tender shoots of grass, fearlessly moving everywhere or standing on tablelands and further perceiving fearful wild elephants in rut—which proved a menace to ponds in that they damaged their brinks (and rendered the water turbid), which were adorned with white tusks and moved all alone, nay, which tore asunder with their tusks the edges of mountains and looked like moving mountains—and monkeys looking like elephants and bathed in the dust of the earth, as well as other denizens of the forest and birds moving in the air, they moved apace following the will of Sugriva. (5—12)

तेषां तु गच्छतां तत्र त्वरितं रघुनन्दनः ।
द्रुमषण्डवनं दृष्ट्वा रामः सुग्रीवमब्रवीत् ॥ १३ ॥

Seeing a grove consisting of a cluster of trees, Śrī Rāma for his part among those who were moving apace towards Kiṣkindhā spoke to Sugriva as follows : (13)

एष मेघ इवाकाशे वृक्षषण्डः प्रकाशते ।
मेघसंघातविपुलः पर्यन्तकदलीवृतः ॥ १४ ॥
किमेतज्ज्ञातुमिच्छामि सखे कौतूहलं मम ।
कौतूहलापनयनं कर्तुमिच्छाम्यहं त्वया ॥ १५ ॥

“Here shines prominently a clump of trees resembling a cloud in the sky. I wish to know, my friend, what is that which is huge as a mass of clouds and hemmed in at the end by plantain trees? I wish to know this; for great is my curiosity in the matter. I seek to overcome this curiosity through you.” (14-15)

तस्य तद्वचनं श्रुत्वा राघवस्य महात्मनः ।
गच्छन्नेवाचचक्षेऽथ सुग्रीवस्तन्महद् वनम् ॥ १६ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid question of the high-souled Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, Sugriva, still moving on, forthwith related to him as follows the history of that momentous grove : (16)

एतद् राघव विस्तीर्णमाश्रमं श्रमनाशनम् ।
उद्यानवनसम्पन्नं स्वादुमूलफलोदकम् ॥ १७ ॥

“This extensive hermitage relieves the fatigue of all in that it is rich in gardens and groves and contains delicious roots, fruits and water. (17)

अत्र सप्तजना नाम मुनयः संशितव्रताः ।
सप्तैवासन्नधःशीर्षा नियतं जलशायिनः ॥ १८ ॥

“Here lived sages of most austere vows, Saptajanas by name, who were seven only in number, held their heads downward while practising their austerities and as a rule slept on water. (18)

सप्तरात्रे कृताहारा वायुनाचलवासिनः ।
दिवं वर्षशतैर्याताः सप्तभिः सकलेवराः ॥ १९ ॥

“They subsisted on air inhaled once at the end of seven nights and had their abode fixed (never stepping out of it). After seven hundred years they ascended in their bodies to heaven. (19)

तेषामेतत्प्रभावेण द्रुमप्राकारसंवृतम् ।
आश्रमं सुदुराधर्षमपि सेन्द्रैः सुरासुरैः ॥ २० ॥

“By virtue of their glory this hermitage, surrounded as it is by an enclosure of trees, is most difficult to assail even for gods and demons including Indra (the ruler of gods). (20)

पक्षिणो वर्जयन्त्येतत् तथान्ये वनचारिणः ।
विशन्ति मोहाद् येऽप्यत्र न निवर्तन्ति ते पुनः ॥ २१ ॥

“Birds as well as other wild creatures eschew it; even they that step into it through ignorance never return. (21)

विभूषणरवाश्चात्र श्रूयन्ते सकलाक्षराः ।
तूर्यगीतस्वनश्चापि गन्धो दिव्यश्च राघव ॥ २२ ॥

“Sounds of ornaments together with sweet accents are heard in this hermitage, as also the music of instruments and singing and an ethereal fragrance is inhaled, O scion of Raghu! (22)

त्रेताग्रयोऽपि दीप्यन्ते धूमो ह्येष प्रदृश्यते ।
वेष्टयन्निव वृक्षाग्रान् कपोताङ्गारुणो घनः ॥ २३ ॥

“The three sacred fires (viz., Dakṣiṇa, Gārhapatya and Āhavanīya) are also lit; here is seen their smoke, grey as the body of a dove, enveloping the tops of trees like a cloud. (23)

एते वृक्षाः प्रकाशन्ते धूमसंसक्तमस्तकाः ।
मेघजालप्रतिच्छन्ना वैडूर्यगिरयो यथा ॥ २४ ॥

“With their crests crowned with smoke and covered by a mass of clouds, the trees sparkle like mountains of cat’s-eye gems. (24)

कुरु प्रणामं धर्मात्मंस्तेषामुद्दिश्य राघव।
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा प्रयतः संहताञ्जलिः ॥ २५ ॥

“Piously disposed alongwith your brother, Lakṣmaṇa, make obeisance, O pious-minded scion of Raghu, with joined palms with a view to the pleasure of the aforesaid sages. (25)

प्रणमन्ति हि ये तेषामृषीणां भावितात्मनाम्।
न तेषामशुभं किञ्चिच्छरीरे राम विद्यते ॥ २६ ॥

“Indeed no evil of any kind, O Rāma, stays in the body of those who bow down with reverence to the aforesaid Ṛṣis, who contemplated on the Self.” (26)

ततो रामः सह भ्रात्रा लक्ष्मणेन कृताञ्जलिः।
समुद्दिश्य महात्मानस्तानृषीनभ्यवादयत् ॥ २७ ॥

“With joined palms alongwith his brother, Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma thereupon offered salutations to the memory of those high-souled Ṛṣis. (27)

अभिवाद्य च धर्मात्मा रामो भ्राता च लक्ष्मणः।
सुग्रीवो वानराश्चैव जम्मुः संहृष्टमानसाः ॥ २८ ॥

“Having made obeisance to the memory of those sages alongwith his brother,

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे त्रयोदशः सर्गः ॥ १३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirteen in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्दशः सर्गः

Canto XIV

Śrī Rāma and others remain hiding behind the trees of a grove in the vicinity of Kiṣkindhā, Sugrīva implores Śrī Rāma to implement his vow of killing Vālī. Assuring Sugrīva that this will be done, Śrī Rāma encourages the latter to go and challenge his elder brother and Sugrīva does accordingly

सर्वे ते त्वरितं गत्वा किष्किन्धां वालिनः पुरीम्।
वृक्षैरात्मानमावृत्य व्यतिष्ठन् गहने वने ॥ १ ॥

Reaching Kiṣkindhā, the capital of Vālī, expeditiously, and concealing themselves

Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma, whose mind was set on virtue, Sugrīva as well as the other monkeys walked on with a highly rejoiced mind. (28)

ते गत्वा दूरमध्वानं तस्मात् सप्तजनाश्रमात्।
ददृशुस्तां दुराधर्षा किष्किन्धां वालिपालिताम् ॥ २९ ॥

“Having covered a long distance from that hermitage of the Saptajanas, they sighted the celebrated Kiṣkindhā, which stood protected by Vālī and was difficult to assail. (29)

ततस्तु रामानुजरामवानराः
प्रगृह्य शस्त्राण्युदितोग्रतेजसः।

पुरीं सुरेशात्मजवीर्यपालितां
वधाय शत्रोः पुनरागतास्त्वह ॥ ३० ॥

Taking up their weapons, Lakṣmaṇa (the younger brother of Śrī Rāma), Śrī Rāma as well as the monkeys, for their part, whose terrific energy had become visible, came once more to the city of Kiṣkindhā, which was protected by the valour of Vālī (sprung from the loins of Indra) with a view to the destruction of the enemy in the person of Vālī at this very place. (30)

behind trees, they all halted in a dense forest. (1)

विसार्य सर्वतो दृष्टिं कानने काननप्रियः।
सुग्रीवो विपुलग्रीवः क्रोधमाहारयद् भृशम् ॥ २ ॥

Casting his glance all-round in the forest, the thick-necked Sugrīva, who was fond of forests, exhibited extreme anger. (2)

ततस्तु निनदं घोरं कृत्वा युद्धाय चाह्वयत् ।
परिवारैः परिवृतो नादैर्भिन्दन्निवाम्बरम् ॥ ३ ॥

Uttering a terrible roar and rending the air with his yells, Sugrīva, for his part, who was surrounded by his followers, then challenged his brother to a duel. (3)

गर्जन्निव महामेघो वायुवेगपुरःसरः ।
अथ बालार्कसदृशो दृप्तसिंहगतिस्ततः ॥ ४ ॥
दृष्ट्वा रामं क्रियादक्षं सुग्रीवो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
हरिवागुरया व्याप्तां तप्तकाञ्चनतोरणाम् ॥ ५ ॥
प्राप्ताः स्म ध्वजयन्त्राढ्यां किष्किन्धां वालिनः पुरीम् ।
प्रतिज्ञा या कृता वीर त्वया वालिवधे पुरा ॥ ६ ॥
सफलां कुरु तां क्षिप्रं लतां काल इवागतः ।
एवमुक्तस्तु धर्मात्मा सुग्रीवेण स राघवः ॥ ७ ॥
तमेवोवाच वचनं सुग्रीवं शत्रुसूदनः ।
कृताभिज्ञानचिह्नस्त्वमनया गजसाह्वया ॥ ८ ॥
लक्ष्मणेन समुत्पाट्य एषा कण्ठे कृता तव ।
शोभसेऽप्यधिकं वीर लतया कण्ठसक्तया ॥ ९ ॥
विपरीत इवाकाशे सूर्यो नक्षत्रमालया ।
अद्य वालिसमुत्थं ते भयं वैरं च वानर ॥ १० ॥
एकेनाहं प्रमोक्ष्यामि बाणमोक्षेण संयुगे ।
मम दर्शय सुग्रीव वैरिणं भ्रातृरूपिणम् ॥ ११ ॥

Thundering like a big cloud propelled by force of the wind and looking at Śrī Rāma, who was skilled in action, Sugrīva, who shone like the rising sun, and possessed the gait of a proud lion, spoke as follows: “We have arrived at Kiṣkindhā, the capital of Vālī, which was surrounded by a trap in the form of monkeys, decorated with arched gateways of gold and endowed with flags and instruments of war. Pray, implement without delay the vow that was undertaken by you the other day to kill Vālī, O valiant prince, in the same way as the season of fructification, when arrived, makes a creeper bear fruit.” Requested thus by Sugrīva, the celebrated Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), the destroyer of his foes, whose mind was set on virtue, replied to the same Sugrīva as follows :

“Having duly plucked this creeper, I have been fastened about your neck by Lakṣmaṇa. You have been provided with a distinguishing mark by this creeper called by the name of Gajapuṣpī (and hence associated with the name of an elephant). With this creeper fastened about your neck, O hero, you shine all the brighter even as the full moon adorned with a galaxy of stars in the heavens at night*. By discharging an arrow only once in the course of this encounter of yours with Vālī, I shall dispel this very day the fear as well as the feeling of animosity instilled in you by Vālī, O monkey chief ! Simply point out to me your enemy in the guise of a brother, O Sugrīva ! (4—11)

वाली विनिहतो यावद्वने पांसुषु चेष्टते ।
यदि दृष्टिपथं प्राप्तो जीवन् स विनिवर्तते ॥ १२ ॥
ततो दोषेण मागच्छेत् सद्यो गर्हेच्च मां भवान् ।
प्रत्यक्षं सप्त ते साला मया बाणेन दारिताः ॥ १३ ॥

“Struck down by me, Vālī will presently roll in the dust. If, having entered the range of my sight, he returns alive, you may justifiably hold me guilty and reproach me then and there. As many as seven sal trees were pierced by me with a single arrow before your very eyes. (12-13)

तेनावेहि बलेनाद्य वालिनं निहतं रणे ।
अनृतं नोक्तपूर्वं मे चिरं कृच्छ्रेऽपि तिष्ठता ॥ १४ ॥
धर्मलोभपरीतेन न च वक्ष्ये कथंचन ।
सफलां च करिष्यामि प्रतिज्ञां जहि संभ्रमम् ॥ १५ ॥
प्रसूतं कलमक्षेत्रं वर्षेणेव शतक्रतुः ।
तदाह्वाननिमित्तं च वालिनो हेममालिनः ॥ १६ ॥

* The words “Viparīte” occurring in this verse has been construed by some commentators to mean ‘at night’ and the word ‘Sūryah’ as the full moon :

परिते तु दिवा प्रोक्तं विपरीतं तु शर्वरी । पौर्णमासीगतश्चन्द्रः सूर्य इत्यभिधीयते ॥

सुग्रीव कुरु तं शब्दं निष्पतेद् येन वानरः ।
 जितकाशी जयश्लाघी त्वया चाधर्षितः पुरात् ॥ १७ ॥
 निष्पतिष्यत्यसङ्गेन वाली स प्रियसंयुगः ।
 रिपूणां धर्षितं श्रुत्वा मर्षयन्ति न संयुगे ॥ १८ ॥
 जानन्तस्तु स्वकं वीर्यं स्त्रीसमक्षं विशेषतः ।
 स तु रामवचः श्रुत्वा सुग्रीवो हेमपिङ्गलः ॥ १९ ॥
 ननर्द क्रूरनादेन विनिर्भिन्दन्निवाम्बरम् ।
 तत्र शब्देन विव्रस्ता गावो यान्ति हतप्रभाः ॥ २० ॥
 राजदोषपरामृष्टाः कुलस्त्रिय इवाकुलाः ।
 द्रवन्ति च मृगाः शीघ्रं भग्ना इव रणे हयाः ।
 पतन्ति च खगा भूमौ क्षीणपुण्या इव ग्रहाः ॥ २१ ॥

“Therefore, know Vālī as killed on the battlefield this very day by my might. No falsehood has been uttered by me ever before even though I continued in adversity for a long time, overcome as I was by craving for piety, nor shall I tell a lie under any circumstances even hereafter. And I shall fulfil my vow even as Indra (the god of rain, lit., he who has performed in his previous lives a hundred horse-sacrifices, which is a condition precedent for attaining the position of Indra) invests a field of paddy, rich in sprouts, with fruit through a timely shower.

“Therefore, in order to summon to a duel Vālī, who is distinguished by a chain of gold, pray, raise a shout in response to which the monkey, Vālī, may come out of the palace. Vālī has attained pre-eminence through his victories, is proud of his valour, has never been subdued by you and is fond of fighting. As such he will surely come out of the city due to his being free from attachment for his consorts. Hearing the challenge of their foes for a combat, those who are conscious of their valour do not for their part brook such defiance, particularly in the presence of ladies.” Hearing the exhortation of Śrī Rāma, the celebrated Sugrīva, for his part, who was reddish brown as gold, emitted a roar, pitilessly rending the air, as it were, with his fierce yell. Alarmed by the yell that was heard there and disconcerted, the cows began to run like ladies of noble birth laid hands on by others through the fault (in the shape of misrule) of rulers and therefore confused. Deer too ran with quick paces like horses that have taken fright in battle (due to their inability to endure the enemies’ blows). And birds fell to the ground as gods whose merit (which entitled them to an abode in heaven) has been exhausted. (14—21)

ततः स जीमूतकृतप्रणादो
 नादं ह्यमुञ्चत् त्वरया प्रतीतः ।
 सूर्यात्मजः शौर्यविवृद्धतेजाः
 सरित्पतिर्वाऽनिलचञ्चलोर्मिः ॥ २२ ॥

Thereupon the celebrated Sugrīva (a son of the sun-god), whose martial spirit was greatly enhanced through valour and whose roar resembled the rumbling of clouds, and who was well-known for his tempo in war, emitted his yell like an ocean (the lord of rivers) whose waves are lashed by the wind. (22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे चतुर्दशः सर्गः ॥ १४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fourteen in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चदशः सर्गः

Canto XV

Angrily issuing forth for an encounter on hearing the roar of Sugrīva,
Vālī is discouraged with cogent reasons by his wife, Tārā

अथ तस्य निनादं तं सुग्रीवस्य महात्मनः ।
शुश्रावान्तःपुरगतो वाली भ्रातुरमर्षणः ॥ १ ॥

Vālī, who was intolerant by nature, and who happened to be in his gynaeceum at the time, forthwith heard the aforesaid roar of the celebrated Sugrīva, who was noted for his extraordinary fortitude. (1)

श्रुत्वा तु तस्य निनदं सर्वभूतप्रकम्पनम् ।
मदश्चैकपदे नष्टः क्रोधश्चापादितो महान् ॥ २ ॥

On hearing his roar, which caused all created beings to tremble with fear, Vālī's vanity vanished all at once and a violent rage was aroused in him. (2)

ततो रोषपरीताङ्गो वाली स कनकप्रभः ।
उपरक्त इवादित्यः सद्यो निष्प्रभतां गतः ॥ ३ ॥

The notorious Vālī, who possessed the splendour of gold, thereupon lost his brilliance at once as the sun under eclipse, all his limbs seized with anger. (3)

वाली दंष्ट्राकरालस्तु क्रोधाद् दीप्ताग्निलोचनः ।
भात्युत्पतितपद्माभः समृणाल इव हृदः ॥ ४ ॥

Vālī, for his part, who looked fierce with his teeth and whose eyes shone like a blazing fire through anger, looked like a pond from which the splendour of lotuses has disappeared and in which the fibrous roots alone float. (4)

शब्दं दुर्मर्षणं श्रुत्वा निष्पपात ततो हरिः ।
वेगेन च पदन्यासैर्दारयन्निव मेदिनीम् ॥ ५ ॥

Hearing the roar, which was difficult to endure, the monkey (Vālī) issued forth from his palace with impetuosity, rending the earth, as it were, with his strides. (5)

तं तु तारा परिष्वज्य स्नेहाद् दर्शितसौहृदा ।
उवाच त्रस्तसम्भ्रान्ता हितोदकमिदं वचः ॥ ६ ॥

Embracing him through affection, Tārā, his wife, for her part, who felt frightened and agitated and exhibited her friendliness, tendered the following advice which was wholesome in consequence : (6)

साधु क्रोधमिमं वीर नदीवेगमिवागतम् ।
शयनादुत्थितः काल्यं त्यज भुक्तमिव स्रजम् ॥ ७ ॥

“Completely shake off this anger, which is occasional like a river-flood, even as one risen from bed in the morning discards a garland that has been enjoyed at night. (7)

काल्यमेतेन संग्रामं करिष्यसि च वानर ।
वीर ते शत्रुबाहुल्यं फल्गुता वा न विद्यते ॥ ८ ॥
सहसा तव निष्क्रामो मम तावन्न रोचते ।
श्रूयतामभिधास्यामि यन्निमित्तं निवार्यते ॥ ९ ॥

“You should enter into combat with Sugrīva in the morning. Although there is no multiplicity of enemies nor is there lack of strength in you, O gallant monkey-king, somehow your sallying forth precipitately does not appeal to me. Please listen: I shall presently disclose to you wherefore you are being discouraged by me. (8-9)

पूर्वमापतितः क्रोधात् स त्वामाह्वयते युधि ।
निष्पत्य च निरस्तस्ते हन्यमानो दिशो गतः ॥ १० ॥

“Latterly arrived in anger, he challenged you to a duel; but, even as you sallied forth he was vanquished and, being repeatedly struck by you, he fled. (10)

त्वया तस्य निरस्तस्य पीडितस्य विशेषतः ।
इहैत्य पुनराह्वानं शङ्कं जनयतीव मे ॥ ११ ॥

“His coming here and challenging you once more, even though he was repulsed and tormented in particular by you rouses my suspicion, as it were. (11)

दर्पश्च व्यवसायश्च यादृशस्तस्य नर्दतः ।
निनादस्य च संरम्भो नैतदल्पं हि कारणम् ॥ १२ ॥

“There is no paltry ground for the insolent way in which he is roaring and the kind of determination which is evinced by him as also for the excited way in which he is roaring. (12)

नासहायमहं मन्ये सुग्रीवं तमिहागतम् ।
अवष्टब्धसहायश्च यमाश्रित्यैष गर्जति ॥ १३ ॥

“I do not consider the aforesaid Sugrīva to have come here without an ally. He has surely fallen back upon some ally, depending on whom he roars. (13)

प्रकृत्या निपुणश्चैव बुद्धिमांश्चैव वानरः ।
नापरीक्षितवीर्येण सुग्रीवः सख्यमेष्यति ॥ १४ ॥

“Moreover, the monkey, Sugrīva, is clever by his very nature and intelligent too. Sugrīva, I am sure, will not enter into friendship with one whose valour has not been tested. (14)

पूर्वमेव मया वीर श्रुतं कथयतो वचः ।
अङ्गदस्य कुमारस्य वक्ष्याम्यद्य हितं वचः ॥ १५ ॥

“I shall communicate to you today the useful report which has already been heard by me from the mouth of Prince Aṅgada speaking (on one occasion), O gallant one ! (15)

अङ्गदस्तु कुमारोऽयं वनान्तमुपनिर्गतः ।
प्रवृत्तिस्तेन कथिता चारैरासीन्निवेदिता ॥ १६ ॥

“The aforesaid Prince Aṅgada for his part had once gone to the interior of the forest. The following news which was broken to him by spies, was conveyed by him to me : (16)

अयोध्याधिपतेः पुत्रौ शूरौ समरदुर्जयौ ।
इक्ष्वाकूणां कुले जातौ प्रथितौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ १७ ॥
सुग्रीवप्रियकामार्थं प्राप्तौ तत्र दुरासदौ ।
स ते भ्रातुर्हि विख्यातः सहायो रणकर्मणि ॥ १८ ॥
रामः परबलामर्दी युगान्ताग्निरिवोत्थितः ।
निवासवृक्षः साधूनामापन्नानां परा गतिः ॥ १९ ॥

“Two valiant sons of the emperor of Ayodhyā, Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa by name, born in the line of the Ikṣvākus and difficult even to approach, much more to conquer in battle, who were already on a journey, arrived there for fulfilling the cherished object of Sugrīva's desire. Indeed he who is the associate of your younger brother, Sugrīva in fighting is widely known by the name of Rāma. He is capable of crushing the enemy's ranks and resembles the fire that flared up at the end of the world cycle. He is a tree affording shelter to all virtuous souls and the ultimate resort of those in the grip of a calamity. (17-19)

आर्तानां संश्रयश्चैव यशसश्चैकभाजनम् ।
ज्ञानविज्ञानसम्पन्नो निदेशे निरतः पितुः ॥ २० ॥

“He is the refuge of the afflicted and the unique repository of glory. Richly endowed with worldly and spiritual wisdom, he is fully devoted to the command of his father. (20)

धातूनामिव शैलेन्द्रो गुणानामाकरो महान् ।
तत् क्षमो न विरोधस्ते सह तेन महात्मना ॥ २१ ॥
दुर्जयेनाप्रमेयेण रामेण रणकर्मसु ।
शूर वक्ष्यामि ते किञ्चिन्न चेच्छाम्यभ्यसूयितुम् ॥ २२ ॥

“As the Himālaya mountain (the king of mountains) is a large storehouse of minerals, he is a great repertory of virtues. Therefore, your antagonism is not desirable with that high-souled Rāma, who is difficult to excel in martial exploits and is immeasurable in greatness. I shall tell you something for your good, O heroic king, even though I do not wish to find fault with you. (21-22)

श्रूयतां क्रियतां चैव तव वक्ष्यामि यद्धितम् ।
यौवराज्येन सुग्रीवं तूर्णं साध्वभिषेचय ॥ २३ ॥

“Let the salutary advice that I am going to give you be heeded and acted upon: pray, invest Sugrīva speedily with the office of Prince Regent with due ceremony. (23)

विग्रहं मा कृथा वीर भ्रात्रा राजन् यवीयसा ।
अहं हि ते क्षमं मन्ये तेन रामेण सौहृदम् ॥ २४ ॥

सुग्रीवेण च सम्प्रीतिं वैरमुत्सृज्य दूरतः ।
लालनीयो हि ते भ्राता यवीयानेष वानरः ॥ २५ ॥

“Do not enter into a conflict with your younger brother, O valiant monarch: for I consider friendship with the aforesaid Rāma and affection towards Sugrīva desirable for you. For, relegating animosity to a distance, this monkey, Sugrīva, your younger brother, deserves to be lovingly cherished by you.

(24-25)

तत्र वा सन्निहस्थो वा सर्वथा बन्धुरेव ते ।
नहि तेन समं बन्धुं भुवि पश्यामि कंचन ॥ २६ ॥

“Whether living on R̥ṣyamūka or staying here in Kiṣkindhā, he is your unqualified friend in everyway. I do not see any friend equal to him on earth.

(26)

दानमानादिसत्कारैः कुरुष्व प्रत्यनन्तरम् ।
वैरमेतत् समुत्सृज्य तव पार्श्वे स तिष्ठतु ॥ २७ ॥

“Draw him close to you through gifts, honour and other attentions. Let him stay by your side, entirely giving up the present animosity.

(27)

सुग्रीवो विपुलग्रीवो महाबन्धुर्मतस्तव ।
भ्रातृसौहृदमालम्ब्य नान्या गतिरिहास्ति ते ॥ २८ ॥

“The thick-necked Sugrīva is considered by me as your great friend. You can thrive only by banking on the goodwill of your younger brother, Sugrīva : there is no other way to happiness for you. (28)

यदि ते मत्प्रियं कार्यं यदि चावैषि मां हिताम् ।

याच्यमानः प्रियत्वेन साधु वाक्यं कुरुष्व मे ॥ २९ ॥

“If that which is pleasing to me is intended to be done by you and if you recognize me as friendly to you, pray, follow my advice fully, as solicited by me, due to your being dear to me.

(29)

प्रसीद पथ्यं शृणु जल्पितं हि मे

न रोषमेवानुविधातुमर्हसि ।

क्षमो हि ते कोशलराजसूनुना

न विग्रहः शक्रसमानतेजसा ॥ ३० ॥

“Be pleased with me and hear my wholesome advice; you should certainly not give way to anger. Indeed your conflict with the Prince of Kosala, whose might is equal to Indra’s, is not desirable.”

(30)

तदा हि तारा हितमेव वाक्यं

तं वालिनं पथ्यमिदं बभाषे ।

न रोचते तद् वचनं हि तस्य

कालाभिपन्नस्य विनाशकाले ॥ ३१ ॥

Indeed, at that time Tārā tendered to the said Vālī the aforesaid advice, which was friendly in everyway and wholesome too. That advice, however, did not find favour with him, which spelt destruction for him, seized as he was by Death.

(31)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे

पञ्चदशः सर्गः ॥ १५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifteen in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षोडशः सर्गः

Canto XVI

Spurning the advice of Tārā and reproaching her, Vālī goes forth to meet Sugrīva and there ensues a fierce encounter between the two brothers.

When, however, Sugrīva is found losing ground, Vālī is struck with an arrow by Śrī Rāma and he falls to the ground

तामेवं ब्रुवतीं तारां ताराधिपनिभाननाम् ।
वाली निर्भर्त्सयामास वचनं चेदमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Vālī reproached the aforesaid Tārā, who was speaking as stated before and whose countenance shone brightly as the moon, the suzerain lord of the stars, and replied as follows :

(1)

गर्जतोऽस्य सुसंरब्धं भ्रातुः शत्रोर्विशेषतः ।
मर्षयिष्यामि केनापि कारणेन वरानने ॥ २ ॥

“Wherefore shall I tolerate the arrogance of this younger brother of mine, particularly when he is hostile to me—thundering, as he does, O lady of charming countenance?

(2)

अधर्षितानां शूराणां समरेष्वनिवर्तिनाम् ।
धर्षणामर्षणं भीरु मरणादतिरिच्यते ॥ ३ ॥

“Toleration of intrusion by the enemy on the part of heroes, who have never been overpowered and have never retreated in combats, is worse than death, O timid one !

(3)

सोढुं न च समर्थोऽहं युद्धकामस्य संयुगे ।
सुग्रीवस्य च संरम्भं हीनग्रीवस्य गर्जितम् ॥ ४ ॥

“Nay, I am not able to tolerate the arrogance, much less the roar, of the weak-necked Sugrīva, who seeks an encounter on the battlefield with me.

(4)

न च कार्यो विषादस्ते राघवं प्रति मत्कृते ।
धर्मज्ञश्च कृतज्ञश्च कथं पापं करिष्यति ॥ ५ ॥

“Nor should any anxiety be entertained by you from the side of Śrī Rāma on my account. How can Śrī Rāma—who knows what is right and cognizes his duty—perpetrate sin (in the form of killing one who is innocent)?

(5)

निवर्तस्व सह स्त्रीभिः कथं भूयोऽनुगच्छसि ।
सौहृदं दर्शितं तावन्मयि भक्तिस्त्वया कृता ॥ ६ ॥

“Please return with the other ladies. Why do you still follow me? Affection has been shown to such an extent and service rendered to me by you.

(6)

प्रतियोत्स्याम्यहं गत्वा सुग्रीवं जहि सम्भ्रमम् ।
दर्पं चास्य विनेष्यामि न च प्राणैर्वियोक्ष्यते ॥ ७ ॥

“Going out I shall give battle to Sugrīva; pray, give up all perplexity. Nay, I shall take away his pride, yet he will not be rid of his life.

(7)

अहं ह्याजिस्थितस्यास्य करिष्यामि यदीप्सितम् ।
वृक्षैर्मुष्टिप्रहारैश्च पीडितः प्रतियास्यति ॥ ८ ॥

“So long as he stays on the battlefield I shall do what is sought by him. Tormented with the strokes of trees and the blows of my fists, he will retreat.

(8)

न मे गर्वितमायस्तं सहिष्यति दुरात्मवान् ।
कृतं तारे सहायत्वं दर्शितं सौहृदं मयि ॥ ९ ॥

“The evil-minded fellow will not be able to withstand my haughtiness and tempo. Assistance by way of friendly advice and sage counsel has been rendered and affection shown to me by you, O Tārā !

(9)

शापितासि मम प्राणैर्निवर्तस्व जनेन च ।
अलं जित्वा निवर्तिष्ये तमहं भ्रातरं रणे ॥ १० ॥

“You are hereby, adjured by my life: pray, return with your retinue; while I shall return only after conquering my said brother in an encounter.”

(10)

तं तु तारा परिष्वज्य वालिनं प्रियवादिनी ।
चकार रुदती मन्दं दक्षिणा सा प्रदक्षिणम् ॥ ११ ॥

Embracing the aforesaid Vālī, Tārā for her part, who spoke agreeable words and was favourably disposed towards him, went clockwise round him (as a token of farewell and respect), gently weeping. (11)

ततः स्वस्त्ययनं कृत्वा मन्त्रविद् विजयैषिणी ।
अन्तःपुरं सह स्त्रीभिः प्रविष्टा शोकमोहिता ॥ १२ ॥

Having performed a religious rite called Swastyayana (which consists in scattering boiled rice on the ground and invoking blessings by the repetition of certain Mantras), Tārā, who was conversant with sacred texts pronounced on such occasions and desired victory for her husband, thereupon returned to the gynaeceum with the other ladies, dumbfounded as she was with grief. (12)

प्रविष्टायां तु तारायां सह स्त्रीभिः स्वमालयम् ।
नगर्यां निर्ययौ क्रुद्धो महासर्प इव श्वसन् ॥ १३ ॥

When Tārā had entered her apartments with the other ladies, Vālī for his part sallied forth from his capital, hissing like a large angry serpent. (13)

स निःश्वस्य महारोषो वाली परमवेगवान् ।
सर्वतश्चारयन् दृष्टिं शत्रुदर्शनकांक्षया ॥ १४ ॥

Breathing heavily, full of rage, the aforesaid Vālī, who was possessed of great impetuosity, stood casting his glance on all sides with intent to have a look at his adversary. (14)

स ददर्श ततः श्रीमान् सुग्रीवं हेमपिङ्गलम् ।
सुसंवीतमवष्टब्धं दीप्यमानमिवानलम् ॥ १५ ॥

The glorious Vālī thereupon saw Sugrīva, reddish brown as gold, tightly clothed below the loins, firmly rooted and glowing as fire. (15)

तं स दृष्ट्वा महाबाहुः सुग्रीवं पर्यवस्थितम् ।
गाढं परिदधे वासो वाली परमकोपनः ॥ १६ ॥

Seeing the aforesaid Sugrīva standing firm nearby, the celebrated Vālī, who was endowed with mighty arms and was highly irascible, tightened his loin-cloth. (16)

स वाली गाढसंवीतो मुष्टिमुद्यम्य वीर्यवान् ।
सुग्रीवमेवाभिमुखो ययौ योद्धुं कृतक्षणः ॥ १७ ॥

Raising his fist, the aforesaid Vālī, who was tightly clothed below the loins and full of vigour, and felt rejoiced (to have secured an opportunity to fight), proceeded precisely against Sugrīva to give battle to him. (17)

श्लिष्टं मुष्टिं समुद्यम्य संरब्धतरमागतः ।
सुग्रीवोऽपि समुद्दिश्य वालिनं हेममालिनम् ॥ १८ ॥

Raising his clenched fist at full length and duly aiming it at Vālī, who was adorned with a chain of gold and was highly excited, Sugrīva too came up. (18)

तं वाली क्रोधताम्राक्षः सुग्रीवं रणकोविदम् ।
आपतन्तं महावेगमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १९ ॥

To the aforesaid Sugrīva, whose eyes were red with anger and who was skilled in the art of fighting and was rushing with great impetuosity, Vālī spoke as follows : (19)

एष मुष्टिर्महान् बद्धो गाढः सुनियताङ्गुलिः ।
मया वेगविमुक्तस्ते प्राणानादाय यास्यति ॥ २० ॥

“This mighty fist, tightly closed with its fingers properly set will, when flung with force by me, return only after taking your life.” (20)

एवमुक्तस्तु सुग्रीवः क्रुद्धो वालिनमब्रवीत् ।
तव चैष हरन् प्राणान् मुष्टिः पततु मूर्धनि ॥ २१ ॥

Enraged when spoken as aforesaid by Vālī, Sugrīva for his part replied to Vālī, “Let this fist too descend on your head, taking away your life instantly.” (21)

ताडितस्तेन तं क्रुद्धः समभिक्रम्य वेगतः ।
अभवच्छ्रेणितोद्वारी सापीड इव पर्वतः ॥ २२ ॥

Enraged when struck by Vālī, who assailed him with impetuosity, Sugrīva vomited blood and looked like a mountain containing a cascade. (22)

सुग्रीवेण तु निःशङ्कं सालमुत्पाट्य तेजसा ।
गात्रेष्वभिहतो वाली वज्रेणेव महागिरिः ॥ २३ ॥

Forcibly tearing up a sal tree, Vāli too was fearlessly smitten on his limbs by Sugrīva even as a big mountain were struck with lightning. (23)

स तु वृक्षेण निर्भग्नः सालताडनविह्वलः ।
गुरुभारभराक्रान्ता नौः ससार्थेव सागरे ॥ २४ ॥

Crushed under the weight of the tree and overpowered by being beaten with a sal, Vāli began to shake like a bark full of passengers and pressed by the heavy weight of its load in a sea. (24)

तौ भीमबलविक्रान्तौ सुपर्णसमवेगितौ ।
प्रवृद्धौ घोरवपुषौ चन्द्रसूर्याविवाम्बरे ॥ २५ ॥
परस्परममित्रघ्नौ छिद्रान्वेषणतत्परौ ।
ततोऽवर्धत वाली तु बलवीर्यसमन्वितः ॥ २६ ॥
सूर्यपुत्रो महावीर्यः सुग्रीवः परिहीयत ।
वालिना भग्नदर्पस्तु सुग्रीवो मन्दविक्रमः ॥ २७ ॥
वालिनं प्रति सामर्थ्यं दर्शयामास राघवम् ।
वृक्षैः सशाखैः शिखरैर्वज्रकोटिनिर्भेनखैः ॥ २८ ॥
मुष्टिभिर्जानुभिः पद्भिर्बाहुभिश्च पुनः पुनः ।
तयोर्युद्धमभूद्घोरं वृत्रवासवयोरिव ॥ २९ ॥

The two brothers—who were endowed with terrible might and prowess and possessed the agility of Garuḍa (the carrier of Lord Viṣṇu), nay, who were engaged in a grim fight, were possessed of fearful bodies and capable of destroying the enemy and were intent on finding out the vulnerable points of each other—resembled the moon and the sun in the sky. Thereupon Vāli, for his part, who was richly endowed with strength and valour, gained the upper hand; while Sugrīva, son of the sun-god, even though possessed of extraordinary might, lost ground. Full of indignation towards Vāli, Sugrīva whose vanity was shattered by Vāli and whose strength grew feeble, becked Śrī Rāma about his failing strength. A terrible combat, resembling that between the demon Vṛtra and Indra, now ensued between the two brothers, who fought with trees including their branches, mountain-tops, their claws, which were as cutting as millions of diamonds, fists, knees, feet and arms repeatedly. (25—29)

तौ शोणिताक्तौ युध्येतां वानरौ वनचारिणौ ।
मेघाविव महाशब्दैस्तर्जमानौ परस्परम् ॥ ३० ॥

Threatening each other with loud noise, the aforesaid two monkeys, who roamed about in the forest and stood smeared with blood, contended like a pair of clouds. (30)

हीयमानमथापश्यत् सुग्रीवं वानरेश्वरम् ।
प्रेक्षमाणं दिशश्चैव राघवः स मुहुर्मुहुः ॥ ३१ ॥

The celebrated Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) presently beheld Sugrīva, a lord of monkeys, getting weaker and looking intently in all directions again and again. (31)

ततो रामो महातेजा आर्तं दृष्ट्वा हरीश्वरम् ।
स शरं वीक्षते वीरो वालिनो वधकांक्षया ॥ ३२ ॥

Seeing Sugrīva (a ruler of monkeys) afflicted, the aforesaid Śrī Rāma, a hero as he was, thereupon surveyed his arrow with intent to make short work of Vāli. (32)

ततो धनुषि संधाय शरमाशीविषोपमम् ।
पूरयामास तच्चापं कालचक्रमिवान्तकः ॥ ३३ ॥

Putting the arrow, which resembled a venomous serpent, to the bow, Śrī Rāma then stretched the aforesaid arrow at full length even as the god of death would lift his wheel for the destruction of the world. (33)

तस्य ज्यातलघोषेण त्रस्ताः पत्ररथेश्वराः ।
प्रदुद्गुवृर्मुगाश्चैव युगान्त इव मोहिताः ॥ ३४ ॥

Scared by the twang of the bow-string and bewildered as at the end of the world cycle, the foremost of birds flew and deer too ran helter-skelter. (34)

मुक्तस्तु वज्रनिर्घोषः प्रदीप्ताशनिसंनिभः ।
राघवेण महाबाणो वालिवक्षसि पातितः ॥ ३५ ॥

When discharged with a sound resembling the crash of thunder, the mighty arrow, which shone brightly like a dazzling flash of lightning, was shot by Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) at the breast of Vālī.

(35)

ततस्तेन महातेजा वीर्ययुक्तः कपीश्वरः ।
वेगेनाभिहतो वाली निपपात महीतले ॥ ३६ ॥

Struck with vehemence by the arrow, Vālī, the mighty ruler of monkeys, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, thereupon fell flat on the earth's surface.

(36)

इन्द्रध्वज इवोद्धूतः पौर्णमास्यां महीतले ।
आश्वयुक्समये मासि गतश्रीको विचेतनः ।
बाष्पसंरुद्धकण्ठस्तु वाली चार्तस्वरः शनैः ॥ ३७ ॥

Struck down on the earth's surface on the full moon day (at the end of summer) as a flag hoisted in honour of Indra (the god of rain) in the month of Āświna (corresponding roughly to the month of September), Vālī for his part fell lustreless and unconscious, slowly uttering a cry of pain, his throat fully choked with tears.

(37)

नरोत्तमः कालयुगान्तकोपमं
शरोत्तमं काञ्चनरूप्यभूषितम् ।
ससर्ज दीप्तं तममित्रमर्दनं
सधूममग्निं मुखतो यथा हरः ॥ ३८ ॥

Śrī Rāma, the foremost of men, discharged the fiery arrow, the foremost of arrows, decked with gold and silver at the end, nay, capable of crushing the enemy and terrible like the period of universal destruction, even as Lord Śiva (the Destroyer of the universe) emitted fire with smoke from the third eye on his forehead to destroy Kāmadeva. (38)

अथोक्षितः शोणिततोयविस्त्रवैः
सुपुष्पिताशोक इवानिलोद्धतः ।
विचेतनो वासवसूनुराहवे
प्रभ्रंशितेन्द्रध्वजवत् क्षितिं गतः ॥ ३९ ॥

Nay, bathed in jets of blood and water and looking like an Aśoka tree laden with flowers and uprooted by a storm, Vālī (son of Indra), fell unconscious to the ground like a flag hoisted in honour of Indra* (the ruler of gods) and then thrown down. (39)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे षोडशः सर्गः ॥ १६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixteen in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तदशः सर्गः

Canto XVII

Still retaining his life and vital energy by virtue of the gold chain bestowed on him by Indra, though pierced in the breast with a deadly arrow, Vālī indignantly reproaches Śrī Rāma in many ways

ततः शरेणाभिहतो रामेण रणकर्कशः ।
पपात सहसा वाली निकृत्त इव पादपः ॥ १ ॥

Pierced with an arrow by Śrī Rāma, Vālī, who was stiff in contest, fell precipitately like a hewn tree.

(1)

स भूमौ न्यस्तसर्वाङ्गस्तप्तकाञ्चनभूषणः ।
अपतद् देवराजस्य मुक्तश्चिरिव ध्वजः ॥ २ ॥

With all his limbs laid on the ground, Vālī, who was adored with ornaments of burnished gold, fell down like a flag hoisted

* During some festival observed on the full moon day in the month of Āświna in Bengal a flag is hoisted in honour of Indra and then let it fall at the end of the ceremony.

in honour of Indra, the god of rain, when the cord fastening it is loosed. (2)

अस्मिन् निपतिते भूमौ हर्यक्षाणां गणेश्वरे।
नष्टचन्द्रमिव व्योम न व्यराजत मेदिनी ॥ ३ ॥

On Vālī, the ruler of the hordes of monkeys and bears, having fallen to the ground, the part of the earth ruled by him did not shine brightly any more than the firmament when the moon has disappeared from it. (3)

भूमौ निपतितस्यापि तस्य देहं महात्मनः।
न श्रीर्जहाति न प्राणा न तेजो न पराक्रमः ॥ ४ ॥

Even though he lay fallen to the ground, neither grace nor life-breath nor vital energy nor prowess left the body of the high-minded monkey. (4)

शक्रदत्ता वरा माला काञ्चनी रत्नभूषिता।
दधार हरिमुख्यस्य प्राणांस्तेजः श्रियं च सा ॥ ५ ॥

The well-known excellent bejewelled chain of gold, bestowed on him by Indra, the ruler of gods, preserved the life, vital energy and grace of Vālī (the foremost of monkeys). (5)

स तया मालया वीरो हैमया हरियूथपः।
संध्यानुगतपर्यन्तः पयोधर इवाभवत् ॥ ६ ॥

With that necklace of gold that heroic leader of monkey hordes appeared like a cloud whose outlines are tinged with the roseate hues of dusk. (6)

तस्य माला च देहश्च मर्मघाती च यः शरः।
त्रिधेव रचिता लक्ष्मीः पतितस्यापि शोभते ॥ ७ ॥

His necklace and body as well as the arrow which pierced his vital parts, even while he lay fallen, shone as though his splendour had been divided into three parts. (7)

तदस्त्रं तस्य वीरस्य स्वर्गमार्गप्रभावनम्।
रामबाणासनक्षिप्तमावहत् परमां गतिम् ॥ ८ ॥

Discharged from the bow of Śrī Rāma, that missile, while illuminating the path of the said hero, Vālī, to (the highest) heaven, brought to him the supreme state. (8)

तं तथा पतितं संख्ये गतार्चिषमिवानलम्।
ययातिमिव पुण्यान्ते देवलोकादिह च्युतम् ॥ ९ ॥
आदित्यमिव कालेन युगान्ते भुवि पातितम्।
महेन्द्रमिव दुर्धर्षमुपेन्द्रमिव दुःसहम् ॥ १० ॥
महेन्द्रपुत्रं पतितं वालिनं हेममालिनम्।
व्यूढोरस्कं महाबाहुं दीप्तास्यं हरिलोचनम् ॥ ११ ॥
लक्ष्मणानुचरो रामो ददर्शोपससर्प च।
तं तथा पतितं वीरं गतार्चिषमिवानलम् ॥ १२ ॥

Śrī Rāma, followed by Lakṣmaṇa, saw the aforesaid Vālī, son of the mighty Indra—who was adorned with a chain of gold and was distinguished by a broad chest, long arms, a radiant face and yellow eyes, nay, who was difficult to overcome as the great Indra and hard to resist as Lord Viṣṇu (descended as a younger brother of Indra in the form of the Divine Dwarf)—fallen on the field of battle as mentioned in the foregoing lines like a fire without flame and resembling King Yayāti descended on earth from the realm of gods on the exhaustion of his merits (which entitled him to an abode in heaven) and further looking like the sun cast down on the earth by the Time-Spirit at the end of the world cycle, and proceeded towards the aforesaid hero fallen as described above like a fire without flame. (9—12)

बहुमान्य च तं वीरं वीक्षमाणं शनैरिव।
उपयातौ महावीर्यौ भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ १३ ॥

Nay, showing great honour to that hero, who was looking intently on them, the two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, who were possessed of extraordinary valour, went up to him slowly, as it were. (13)

तं दृष्ट्वा राघवं वाली लक्ष्मणं च महाबलम्।
अब्रवीत् परुषं वाक्यं प्रश्रितं धर्मसंहितम् ॥ १४ ॥
स भूमावल्पतेजोऽसुर्निहतो नष्टचेतनः।
अर्थसंहितया वाचा गर्वितं रणगर्वितम् ॥ १५ ॥

Seeing the celebrated Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) and Lakṣmaṇa, who was exceptionally strong, the said Vālī, who had scant vitality and life left in him and who lay mortally wounded and motionless on the ground, spoke proudly to Śrī Rāma (who behaved proudly on the battlefield) in a language full of meaning the following harsh words, which were at the same time courteous and conformable to righteousness : (14—15)

त्वं नराधिपतेः पुत्रः प्रथितः प्रियदर्शनः ।

पराङ्मुखवधं कृत्वा कोऽत्र प्राप्तस्त्वया गुणः ।

यदहं युद्धसंरब्धस्त्वत्कृते निधनं गतः ॥ १६ ॥

“You are the son of a sovereign, renowned and pleasing of aspect. Having brought about the death of one who did not face you in battle, what merit has been earned by you on this earth, since I met my death at your hands at a time when I was in the heat of contest with another? (16)

कुलीनः सत्त्वसम्पन्नस्तेजस्वी चरितव्रतः ।

रामः करुणवेदी च प्रजानां च हिते रतः ॥ १७ ॥

“Rāma is of noble birth, richly endowed with the quality of goodness and full of courage and has practised religious vows; he knows what is compassion and is devoted to the good of the people. (17)

सानुक्रोशो महोत्साहः समयज्ञो दृढव्रतः ।

इत्येतत् सर्वभूतानि कथयन्ति यशो भुवि ॥ १८ ॥

“Nay, he is compassionate, is endowed with great vigour, knows what should be done at what time and is firm in his vows.’ In these words do all created beings utter your praises on earth. (18)

दमः शमः क्षमा धर्मो धृतिः सत्यं पराक्रमः ।

पार्थिवानां गुणा राजन् दण्डश्चाप्यपकारिषु ॥ १९ ॥

“Control of the senses and the mind, forgiveness, righteousness, fortitude, truthfulness, valour and punishing the evil-doers are the virtues of kings, O prince ! (19)

तान् गुणान् सम्प्रधार्याहमग्र्यं चाभिजनं तव ।

तारया प्रतिषिद्धः सन् सुग्रीवेण समागतः ॥ २० ॥

“Believing the aforesaid virtues as existing in you and also fully considering your highest pedigree, I engaged in a combat with Sugrīva, though forbidden by Tārā. (20)

न मामन्येन संरब्धं प्रमत्तं वेद्धुमर्हसि ।

इति मे बुद्धिरुत्पन्ना बभूवादर्शने तव ॥ २१ ॥

“So long as I did not see you the idea cropped up in my mind that you would never stoop to strike me while I was furiously engaged with another and unwary. (21)

स त्वां विनिहतात्मानं धर्मध्वजमधार्मिकम् ।

जाने पापसमाचारं तृणैः कूपमिवावृतम् ॥ २२ ॥

“Now, however, I have come to know you to be one who has killed one’s soul by acting against one’s consciousness, nay, one who makes a show of virtue but is really impious, is sinful of conduct and is deceptive like a well of which the mouth is covered by grass and other vegetation. (22)

सतां वेषधरं पापं प्रच्छन्नमिव पावकम् ।

नाहं त्वामभिजानामि धर्मच्छायाभिसंवृतम् ॥ २३ ॥

“I did not know you till now to be sinful, though wearing the guise of the virtuous, and wholly covered by a mask of piety, thus resembling a hidden fire. (23)

विषये वा पुरे वा ते यदा पापं करोम्यहम् ।

न च त्वामवजानेऽहं कस्मात् तं हंस्यकिल्बिषम् ॥ २४ ॥

फलमूलाशनं नित्यं वानरं वनगोचरम् ।

मामिहाप्रतियुध्यन्तमन्येन च समागतम् ॥ २५ ॥

“While I did not perpetrate any sin in your dominion or capital, nor did I show contumely to you, why did you kill me, a monkey free from guilt, who ever lived on fruit and roots alone and in woods, nay, who was not offering resistance to you and was engaged here in a combat with another? (24-25)

त्वं नराधिपतेः पुत्रः प्रतीतः प्रियदर्शनः ।

लिङ्गमप्यस्ति ते राजन् दृश्यते धर्मसंहितम् ॥ २६ ॥

“You are a sovereign’s son, hence worthy of trust, and pleasing of aspect too.

Emblems too such as matted hair and the bark of trees for clothing, conformable to righteousness exist and are seen on your person, O prince ! (26)

कः क्षत्रियकुले जातः श्रुतवान् नष्टसंशयः ।
धर्मलिङ्गप्रतिच्छन्नः कूरं कर्म समाचरेत् ॥ २७ ॥

“Who, born in the Kṣatriya race and possessed of sacred knowledge, whose doubts regarding right and wrong have been resolved through such knowledge and who is furnished with emblems of piety, will perpetrate a cruel deed (like the one perpetrated by you)? (27)

त्वं राघवकुले जातो धर्मवानिति विश्रुतः ।
अभव्यो भव्यरूपेण किमर्थं परिधावसे ॥ २८ ॥

“Though born in the race of Raghu and widely known as a man of virtue, you are nevertheless cruel. Why then should you roam about in a gentle guise? (28)

साम दानं क्षमा धर्मः सत्यं धृतिपराक्रमौ ।
पार्थिवानां गुणा राजन् दण्डश्चाप्यपकारिषु ॥ २९ ॥

“The art of persuasion, liberality, forgiveness, righteousness, truthfulness, fortitude and valour and punishing the evil-doers are the virtues of rulers, O king ! (29)

वयं वनचरा राम मृगा मूलफलाशिनः ।
एषा प्रकृतिरस्माकं पुरुषस्त्वं नरेश्वर ॥ ३० ॥

“We, O Rāma, are beasts living in the forest and subsisting on roots and fruit alone; for such is our nature, while you are a man living in urban areas and subsisting on cooked food of various kinds, O ruler of men ! (Hence there was no cause for any contention between us). (30)

भूमिर्हिरण्यं रूपं च विग्रहे कारणानि च ।
तत्र कस्ते वने लोभो मदीयेषु फलेषु वा ॥ ३१ ॥

“Land, gold and silver are the only occasions for chastisement. In the aforesaid forest what attraction could there possibly be in you for the fruits which belong to me? (31)

नयश्च विनयश्चोभौ निग्रहानुग्रहावपि ।
राजवृत्तिसंकीर्णा न नृपाः कामवृत्तयः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Both administration and mildness, punishment and conferring benefits on the people, are the duties of a king, having different occasions for their exercise. Kings ought not to behave just as they please. (32)

त्वं तु कामप्रधानश्च कोपनश्चानवस्थितः ।
राजवृत्तेषु संकीर्णः शरासनपरायणः ॥ ३३ ॥

“You, on the other hand, are dominated by desire, irascible and fickle; you act indiscriminately in the sphere of kingly duties and have made it your prime object to discharge arrows wherever you please. (33)

न तेऽस्त्यपचितिर्धर्मे नार्थे बुद्धिरवस्थिता ।
इन्द्रियैः कामवृत्तः सन् कृष्यसे मनुजेश्वर ॥ ३४ ॥

“You have no respect for virtue, nor is your mind fixed so far as the pursuit of wealth is concerned. Acting according to your sweet will, you are carried away by your senses, O ruler of men ! (34)

हत्वा बाणेन काकुत्स्थ मामिहानपराधिनम् ।
किं वक्ष्यसि सतां मध्ये कर्म कृत्वा जुगुप्सितम् ॥ ३५ ॥

“Having killed me here with an arrow, even though I had not committed any offence, and thus perpetrated an abominable act, O scion of Kakutstha, what will you say (in your defence) in the midst of holy men? (35)

राजहा ब्रह्महा गोघ्नश्चोरः प्राणिवधे रतः ।
नास्तिकः परिवेत्ता च सर्वे निरयगामिनः ॥ ३६ ॥

“The regicide, the Brahminicide, the slaughterer of a cow, the thief, he who takes delight in the destruction of life, the unbeliever and he who weds before an elder brother, all go to hell. (36)

सूचकश्च कदर्यश्च मित्रघ्नो गुरुतल्पगः ।
लोकं पापात्मनामेते गच्छन्ते नात्र संशयः ॥ ३७ ॥

“The informer, the miser, the slayer of one's own friend and he who violates the bed of his teacher—all these descend to the world of those whose mind is set on sin. (37)

अधार्यं चर्म मे सद्मी रोमाण्यस्थि च वर्जितम् ।
अभक्ष्याणि च मांसानि त्वद्विधैर्धर्मचारिभिः ॥ ३८ ॥

“My skin, in other words, the skin of a monkey, is not permitted to be worn by the virtuous; my hair and bones too are precluded from use and my flesh is not permitted to be partaken of by those practising virtue like you. (38)

पञ्च पञ्चनखा भक्ष्या ब्रह्मक्षत्रेण राघव ।
शल्यकः श्वाविधो गोधा शशः कूर्मश्च पञ्चमः ॥ ३९ ॥

“Only the following five species of animals endowed with five claws (on each paw), viz., the rhinoceros, the porcupine, the iguana and the hare, the turtle being the fifth, are permitted to be partaken of by (meat-eaters-among) the Brāhmaṇas and Kṣatriyas (and Vaiśyas too). (39)

चर्म चास्थि च मे राम न स्पृशन्ति मनीषिणः ।
अभक्ष्याणि च मांसानि सोऽहं पञ्चनखो हतः ॥ ४० ॥

“The wise do not even touch my (i.e., a monkey's) skin and bones either, O Rāma, while my flesh is not at all worth eating. Yet I, an animal endowed with five claws (and therefore not fit to be partaken of) have been wantonly killed by you. (40)

तारया वाक्यमुक्तोऽहं सत्यं सर्वज्ञया हितम् ।
तदतिक्रम्य मोहेन कालस्य वशमागतः ॥ ४१ ॥

“I was given by Tārā, who knows everything, an advice which was correct and wholesome. Disregarding it through ignorance, I have fallen under the sway of Death. (41)

त्वया नाथेन काकुत्स्थ न सनाथा वसुंधरा ।
प्रमदा शीलसम्पूर्णा पत्येव च विधर्मणा ॥ ४२ ॥

“With you as its lord, O scion of Kakutstha, the earth is not blessed with a protector any more than a young woman, who is rich in moral character, is safe with a husband who is acting unlawfully. (42)

शठो नैकृतिकः क्षुद्रो मिथ्याप्रश्रितमानसः ।
कथं दशरथेन त्वं जातः पापो महात्मना ॥ ४३ ॥

“How were you, who are deceitful, mischievous, petty-minded, sinful and pseudo-tranquil-minded, procreated by the high-souled Daśaratha? (43)

छिन्नचारित्र्यकक्ष्येण सतां धर्मातिवर्तिना ।
त्यक्तधर्माङ्कुशेनाहं निहतो रामहस्तिना ॥ ४४ ॥

“I have been killed by the elephant in the form of Rāma, who has broken the chain of morality, transgressed the code of conduct of the virtuous and disregarded the goad of righteousness. (44)

अशुभं चाप्ययुक्तं च सतां चैव विगर्हितम् ।
वक्ष्यसे चेदृशं कृत्वा सद्भिः सह समागतः ॥ ४५ ॥

“Having done such a vicious and undesirable act, which is condemned by the virtuous, what will you say in justification of your conduct when come into contact with holy men? (45)

उदासीनेषु योऽस्मासु विक्रमोऽयं प्रकाशितः ।
अपकारिषु ते राम नैवं पश्यामि विक्रमम् ॥ ४६ ॥

“I do not find you exhibiting the same kind of valour against the wrongdoers that has now been shown by you against us, who have been neutral towards you. (46)

दृश्यमानस्तु युध्येथा मया युधि नृपात्मज ।
अद्य वैवस्वतं देवं पश्येस्त्वं निहतो मया ॥ ४७ ॥

“Had you fought with me on the battlefield remaining before my eyes, O prince, you would have seen God Yama (son of the sun-god) when killed by me this very day. (47)

त्वयादृश्येन तु रणे निहतोऽहं दुरासदः ।
प्रसुप्तः पन्नगेनैव नरः पापवशं गतः ॥ ४८ ॥

“Being difficult to approach, I have been killed by you, while you were not to be seen on the field of battle, even as a man fallen into the clutches of sin would when bitten by a serpent while fast asleep. (48)

सुग्रीवप्रियकामेन यदहं निहतस्त्वया ।
 मामेव यदि पूर्वं त्वमेतदर्थमचोदयः ।
 मैथिलीमहमेकाह्ला तव चानीतवान् भवेः ॥ ४९ ॥
 राक्षसं च दुरात्मानं तव भार्यापहारिणम् ।
 कण्ठे बद्ध्वा प्रदद्यां तेऽनिहतं रावणं रणे ॥ ५० ॥

“I would have brought back your wife (the princess of Mithilā) to you in a single day, had you but moved me in this behalf before; for, it is for this that I have been killed by you, keen as you were to oblige Sugrīva. Nay, tying round the neck the evil-minded ogre, Rāvaṇa, who stole away your wife, I would have handed him over to you without his being killed in battle. (49-50)

न्यस्तां सागरतोये वा पाताले वापि मैथिलीम् ।
 आनयेयं तवादेशाच्छ्वेतामश्वतरीमिव ॥ ५१ ॥

“I could have brought back at your command the princess of Mithilā even if she had been kept in a place surrounded by sea-water or in the lowest subterranean region, just as Lord Hayagrīva (an Avatāra of Lord Viṣṇu carrying on His person a horse's head) brought back the Vedas stolen by the demons Madhu and Kaiṭabha and kept in Pātāla in the form of a white female mule. (51)

युक्तं यत्प्राप्नुयाद् राज्यं सुग्रीवः स्वर्गते मयि ।
 अयुक्तं यदधर्मेण त्वयाहं निहतो रणे ॥ ५२ ॥

“It is but meet that Sugrīva should inherit the kingdom when I have ascended to heaven; it is, however, unjustifiable that I have been unrighteously slain by you while I was engaged otherwise on the battlefield. (52)

काममेवंविधो लोकः कालेन विनियुज्यते ।
 क्षमं चेद्भवता प्राप्तमुत्तरं साधु चिन्त्यताम् ॥ ५३ ॥

“Granted that people are subjected to death at the appointed hour; for such is the rule. (I have no grievance on this score). But if a suitable answer to my question (as to why you took it into your mind to make me a target of your arrow) has been hit upon by you, pray, let it be carefully thought of.” (53)

इत्येवमुक्त्वा परिशुष्कवक्त्रः
 शराभिघाताद् व्यथितो महात्मा ।
 समीक्ष्य रामं रविसंनिकाशं
 तूष्णीं बभौ वानरराजसूनुः ॥ ५४ ॥

Having spoken as aforesaid and looking intently on Śrī Rāma, who shone brightly like the sun, the high-minded Vālī (son of a king of monkeys), who felt agonized due to his having been pierced with an arrow and whose mouth had become parched on all sides (due to the exertion caused by his speaking with emotion for a long time), became mute. (54)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे
 सप्तदशः सर्गः ॥ १७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventeen in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टादशः सर्गः

Canto XVIII

Śrī Rāma justifies his action by saying that the punishment meted out to Vālī in the form of taking his life was meet, having regard to the sin of depriving his own younger brother of his wedded wife, of which Vālī was guilty.

Repenting for his having reproached Śrī Rāma, Vālī now seeks the latter's forgiveness and requests him to take care of his son,

Āṅgada. Agreeing to do so, Śrī Rāma comforts Vālī

इत्युक्तः प्रश्रितं वाक्यं धर्मार्थसहितं हितम् ।
परुषं वालिना रामो निहतेन विचेतसा ॥ १ ॥
तं निष्प्रभमिवादित्यं मुक्ततोयमिवाम्बुदम् ।
उक्तवाक्यं हरिश्रेष्ठमुपशान्तमिवानलम् ॥ २ ॥
धर्मार्थगुणसम्पन्नं हरीश्वरमनुत्तमम् ।
अधिक्षिप्तस्तदा रामः पश्चाद् वालिनमब्रवीत् ॥ ३ ॥

Spoken to at that time in the foregoing harsh words, though seemingly courteous, wholesome and conformable to righteousness and worldly interests, and reproached by Vālī, who had been mortally wounded and whose mind was confused, Śrī Rāma afterwards replied in the following excellent words, which were conformable to righteousness and worldly interests and salutary, to the aforesaid Vālī, (the lord of monkeys), the foremost of monkeys, who resembled the sun shorn of its brilliance, a cloud which had discharged its water and a fire that had been extinguished and who had had his say :

(1—3)

धर्ममर्थं च कामं च समयं चापि लौकिकम् ।
अविज्ञाय कथं बाल्यान्मामिहाद्य विगर्हसे ॥ ४ ॥

"Without fully knowing the secret of righteousness, worldly interests and enjoyment as well as of worldly conduct, how do you reproach me bitterly today on this spot through ignorance?"

(4)

अपृष्ट्वा बुद्धिसम्पन्नान् वृद्धानाचार्यसम्मतान् ।
सौम्य वानरचापल्यात् त्वं मां वक्तुमिहेच्छसि ॥ ५ ॥

"Nay, without consulting the elders, who are richly endowed with wisdom and esteemed by preceptors, O gentle one, you have sought to condemn me through simian frivolity.

(5)

इक्ष्वाकूणामियं भूमिः सशैलवनकानना ।
मृगपक्षिमनुष्याणां निग्रहानुग्रहेष्वपि ॥ ६ ॥

"This entire globe including mountains, forests and woodlands belongs to the scions of Ikṣvāku (having been bequeathed to them by their progenitor, Manu). The right of punishing and rewarding the beasts, birds and human beings of this earth too vests in them.

(6)

तां पालयति धर्मात्मा भरतः सत्यवानृजुः ।
धर्मकामार्थतत्त्वज्ञो निग्रहानुग्रहे रतः ॥ ७ ॥

"Bharata—whose mind is set on virtue, who is truthful and guileless, nay, who knows the truth about righteousness, self-gratification and wealth and is intent on chastising the evil-doers and recompensing the virtuous—rules over the earth.

(7)

नयश्च विनयश्चोभौ यस्मिन् सत्यं च सुस्थितम् ।
विक्रमश्च यथा दृष्टः स राजा देशकालवित् ॥ ८ ॥

"He (Bharata) is a king in whom prudence and humility both are present in an equal degree, nay, in whom truthfulness is firmly established as also valour as ordained in the scriptures and who has an idea of time and place.

(8)

तस्य धर्मकृतादेशा वयमन्ये च पार्थिवाः ।
चरामो वसुधां कृत्स्नां धर्मसंतानमिच्छवः ॥ ९ ॥

"Having received his command for the propagation of righteousness, we as well as other rulers of the world range the entire globe, keen as we are to promote virtue. (9)

तस्मिन् नृपतिशार्दूले भरते धर्मवत्सले।
पालयत्यखिलां पृथ्वीं कश्चरेद् धर्मविप्रियम्॥ १० ॥

“So long as the said Bharata, a veritable tiger among the rulers of men, who is fond of virtue, rules over the entire globe, who can dare do something repugnant to righteousness? (10)

ते वयं मार्गविभ्रष्टं स्वधर्मे परमे स्थिताः।
भरताज्ञां पुरस्कृत्य निगृहीमो यथाविधि॥ ११ ॥

“Keeping before us the command of Bharata, we, who are devoted to our paramount duty of upholding virtue, duly punish him who has strayed away from the path of virtue. (11)

त्वं तु संक्लिष्टधर्मश्च कर्मणा च विगर्हितः।
कामतन्त्रप्रधानश्च न स्थितो राजवर्त्मनि॥ १२ ॥

“As for yourself you have put down virtue and stand condemned for your doings. Nay, you top those who are slaves of lust and do not adhere to the path trodden by good kings. (12)

ज्येष्ठो भ्राता पिता वापि यश्च विद्यां प्रयच्छति।
त्रयस्ते पितरो ज्ञेया धर्मे च पथि वर्तिनः॥ १३ ॥

“By him who follows the path of virtue, an elder brother, father and even he who imparts learning—all the aforesaid three should be equally regarded as fathers. (13)

यवीयानात्मनः पुत्रः शिष्यश्चापि गुणोदितः।
पुत्रवत्ते त्रयश्चिन्त्या धर्मश्चैवात्र कारणम्॥ १४ ॥

“Similarly, a younger brother, one’s own son and a virtuous pupil too, the aforesaid three should be accounted as good as a son and morality alone is the authority in this matter. (14)

सूक्ष्मः परमदुर्ज्ञेयः सतां धर्मः प्लवङ्गम।
हृदिस्थः सर्वभूतानामात्मा वेद शुभाशुभम्॥ १५ ॥

“The principle governing the conduct of the virtuous is subtle and altogether unknowable, O monkey! Installed in the heart of all created beings, the Self alone knows what is good and what is evil. (15)

चपलश्चपलैः सार्धं वानरैरकृतात्मभिः।
जात्यन्ध इव जात्यन्धैर्मन्त्रयन् प्रेक्षसे नु किम्॥ १६ ॥

“Deliberating as you do with monkeys, who are all frivolous and are of uncontrolled mind, like a man born blind deliberating with those who are likewise blind by birth, what can you, who are frivolous yourself, know about Dharma? (16)

अहं तु व्यक्ततामस्य वचनस्य ब्रवीमि ते।
नहि मां केवलं रोषात् त्वं विगर्हितुमर्हसि॥ १७ ॥

“As for myself I presently tell you the evident meaning of this assertion of mine. You should in no case bitterly condemn me as you have done out of sheer wrath. (17)

तदेतत् कारणं पश्य यदर्थं त्वं मया हतः।
भ्रातुर्वर्तसि भार्यायां त्यक्त्वा धर्मं सनातनम्॥ १८ ॥

“Now know the obvious reason why you have been struck down by me: casting to the wind the eternal law, you cohabit with your younger brother’s wife. (18)

अस्य त्वं धरमाणस्य सुग्रीवस्य महात्मनः।
रुमायां वर्तसे कामात् स्नुषायां पापकर्मकृत्॥ १९ ॥

“You cohabit through lust with Rumā, the wedded wife of the high-souled Sugriva, who is your virtual daughter-in-law, even while Sugriva is alive; you have thus perpetrated a sinful deed. (19)

तद् व्यतीतस्य ते धर्मात् कामवृत्तस्य वानर।
भ्रातृभार्याभिमर्शंऽस्मिन् दण्डोऽयं प्रतिपादितः॥ २० ॥

“This punishment has been meted out to you, who strayed from righteousness and acted as you liked, for embracing younger brother’s wife, O monkey! (20)

नहि लोकविरुद्धस्य लोकवृत्तादपेयुषः।
दण्डादन्यत्र पश्यामि निग्रहं हरियूथप॥ २१ ॥

“For, other than punishment I do not see any way of restraining him who is opposed to public interests and has departed from the code of conduct prescribed for the commonalty, O leader of monkey hordes ! (21)

न च ते मर्षये पापं क्षत्रियोऽहं कुलोद्भूतः ।
औरसीं भगिनीं वापि भार्या वाप्यनुजस्य यः ॥ २२ ॥
प्रचरेत नरः कामात् तस्य दण्डो वधः स्मृतः ।
भरतस्तु महीपालो वयं त्वादेशवर्तिनः ॥ २३ ॥

“And I, a Kṣatriya born of a high pedigree, cannot brook your sin. Death is the punishment ordained for a man who approaches carnally through lust a girl sprung from his own loins, a sister or a wife of his own younger brother. In fact, Bharata is the ruler of the earth, while our duty is to carry out his behests. (22-23)

त्वं च धर्मादतिक्रान्तः कथं शक्यमुपेक्षितुम् ।
गुरुधर्मव्यतिक्रान्तं प्राज्ञो धर्मेण पालयन् ॥ २४ ॥
भरतः कामयुक्तानां निग्रहे पर्यवस्थितः ।
वयं तु भरतादेशावधिं कृत्वा हरीश्वर ।
त्वद्विधान् भिन्नमर्यादान् निग्रहीतुं व्यवस्थिताः ॥ २५ ॥

“And how can you, who have strayed from the path of virtue, be let go unpunished? Punishing him who has clearly deviated from a major duty and cherishing according to the principles of righteousness a man scrupulously following his duty, the wise Bharata is intent upon punishing those who are swayed by lust. Taking the behests of Bharata as our authority, O lord of monkeys, we are bent upon punishing people like you who have transgressed the bounds of morality. (24-25)

सुग्रीवेण च मे सख्यं लक्ष्मणेन यथा तथा ।
दारराज्यनिमित्तं च निःश्रेयस्करः स मे ॥ २६ ॥

“My friendship with Sugrīva is as indissoluble as that with Lakṣmaṇa. Nay, it has the recovery of his wife and kingdom for its motive. And in return he is expected to do the greatest good to me in the shape of getting back my lost spouse. (26)

प्रतिज्ञा च मया दत्ता तदा वानरसंनिधौ ।
प्रतिज्ञा च कथं शक्या मद्विधेनानवेक्षितुम् ॥ २७ ॥

“Again, at that time (when my friendship with Sugrīva was solemnized) a plighted word was given by me in the presence of other monkeys to get back for him his wife and sovereignty. And how can a plighted word be allowed by a man like me to remain unhonoured? (27)

तदेभिः कारणैः सर्वैर्महद्भिर्धर्मसंश्रितैः ।
शासनं तव यद् युक्तं तद् भवाननुमन्यताम् ॥ २८ ॥

“Therefore, for these mighty reasons, which are all broad-based on morality, you too should approve of your punishment, which was justified. (28)

सर्वथा धर्म इत्येव द्रष्टव्यस्तव निग्रहः ।
वयस्यस्योपकर्तव्यं धर्ममेवानुपश्यता ॥ २९ ॥

“Your punishment should be viewed by you as wholly in consonance with righteousness and good offices needs must be rendered to a friend by one recognizing one's duty. (29)

शक्यं त्वयापि तत्कार्यं धर्ममेवानुवर्तता ।
श्रूयते मनुना गीतौ श्लोकौ चारित्रवत्सलौ ।
गृहीतौ धर्मकुशलैस्तथा तच्चरितं मया ॥ ३० ॥

“By you too, had you followed the principle of righteousness, the same course of action should have been taken by way of expiation. The following two couplets, devoted to ideal kingly conduct and accepted as authoritative by those well-versed in ethics, are traditionally known to have been sung by Manu (the earliest and most respected law-giver). The principle enunciated in them has been acted upon by me in the way indicated in them. (30)

राजभिर्धृतदण्डाश्च कृत्वा पापानि मानवाः ।
निर्मलाः स्वर्गमायान्ति सन्तः सुकृतिनो यथा ॥ ३१ ॥

“They are reproduced below: ‘Men who, having perpetrated sins, have been subjected to punishment by kings become stainless and ascend to heaven like those who have performed meritorious deeds. (31)

शासनाद् वापि मोक्षाद् वा स्तेनः पापात् प्रमुच्यते ।
राजा त्वशासन् पापस्य तदवाप्नोति किल्बिषम् ॥ ३२ ॥

“A thief (in particular and a sinner in general) gets fully absolved from sin either through punishment or by being let go free by way of mercy. A king not punishing a sinner, however, incurs his sin.* (32)

आर्येण मम माम्धात्रा व्यसनं घोरमीप्सितम्।
श्रमणेन कृते पापे यथा पापं कृतं त्वया ॥ ३३ ॥

“A terrible suffering, which was absolutely desirable, was inflicted by my forbear, Emperor Māndhātā, by way of punishment on a monk, for a sin similar to the one perpetrated by you. (33)

अन्यैरपि कृतं पापं प्रमत्तैर्वसुधाधिपैः।
प्रायश्चित्तं च कुर्वन्ति तेन तच्छाम्यते रजः ॥ ३४ ॥

“Sins perpetrated by blundering men were likewise punished by other rulers of the earth, too. Besides this, people undergo expiation themselves too and through such expiation that sin, which is expiated, gets neutralized. (34)

तदलं परितापेन धर्मतः परिकल्पितः।
वधो वानरशार्दूल न वयं स्ववशे स्थिताः ॥ ३५ ॥

“Therefore, have done with grief, your death was contrived in accordance with the principles of righteousness, O tiger among monkeys; for we were not under our own control (being subject to the control of the Śāstras). (35)

शृणु चाप्यपरं भूयः कारणं हरिपुंगव।
तच्छ्रुत्वा हि महद् वीर न मन्युं कर्तुमर्हसि ॥ ३६ ॥

“Again, know from me another reason why I killed you, O bull among the monkeys! After knowing that momentous reason, O hero, you should not be angry with me. (36)

न मे तत्र मनस्तापो न मन्युर्हरिपुंगव।
वागुराभिश्च पाशैश्च कूटैश्च विविधैर्नराः ॥ ३७ ॥

प्रतिच्छन्नाश्च दृश्याश्च गृह्णन्ति सुबहून् मृगान्।
प्रधावितान् वा वित्रस्तान् विस्त्रब्धानतिविष्टितान् ॥ ३८ ॥

“No agony is felt by me nor any remorse for what I have done, O bull among monkeys! Remaining concealed or open to view, people catch by means of nets and nooses as well as by means of traps of various kinds numerous deer that have run away alarmed or remain firmly rooted, fearless as they are. (37-38)

प्रमत्तानप्रमत्तान् वा नरा मांसाशिनो भृशम्।
विध्यन्ति विमुखांश्चापि न च दोषोऽत्र विद्यते ॥ ३९ ॥

“Meat-eating people hit with violence deer, which are unwary or circumspect, nay, even those which have their faces turned away from the hunters and no blame attaches to this. (39)

यान्ति राजर्षयश्चात्र मृगयां धर्मकोविदाः।
तस्मात् त्वं निहतो युद्धे मया बाणेन वानर।
अयुध्यन् प्रतियुध्यन् वा यस्माच्छाखामृगो ह्यसि ॥ ४० ॥

“Nay, even royal sages, well-versed in the principles of righteousness, go on hunting. Hence, O monkey, you were mortally wounded by me with an arrow in the course of your encounter with Sugrīva, no matter whether you were not fighting with me or fighting with another; for you are but a monkey. (40)

दुर्लभस्य च धर्मस्य जीवितस्य शुभस्य च।
राजानो वानरश्रेष्ठ प्रदातारो न संशयः ॥ ४१ ॥

“Kings, O jewel among monkeys, are capable of dispensing religious merit, which is so difficult to attain otherwise—longevity and earthly blessings too: there is no doubt about it. (41)

तान् न हिंस्यान् चाक्रोशेनाक्षिपेन्नाप्रियं वदेत्।
देवा मानुषरूपेण चरन्त्येते महीतले ॥ ४२ ॥

* In Manusmṛti as extant today we read the two verses as below :

राजभिः कृतदण्डास्तु कृत्वा पापानि मानवाः । निर्मलाः स्वर्गमायान्ति सन्तः सुकृतिनो यथा ॥
शासनाद्वा विमोक्षाद्वा स्तेनः स्तेयाद्विमुच्यते । अशासित्वा तु तं राजा स्तेनस्याप्नोति किल्बिषम् ॥

“One should, therefore, neither assassinate nor reproach nor insult nor speak unpalatable words to them. Being gods themselves, these kings move about on earth in human semblance. (42)

त्वं तु धर्ममविज्ञाय केवलं रोषमास्थितः ।
विदूषयसि मां धर्मे पितृपैतामहे स्थितम् ॥ ४३ ॥

“Not fully knowing the principles of righteousness and holding fast to anger alone, you bitterly reproach me, devoted as I am to the code of conduct, followed by my forefathers.” (43)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण वाली प्रव्यथितो भृशम् ।
न दोषं राघवे दध्यौ धर्मेऽधिगतनिश्चयः ॥ ४४ ॥

Deeply pained when spoken to as aforesaid by Śrī Rāma, Vālī for his part no longer found fault with Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), certainty with regard to righteousness having now been attained by him. (44)

प्रत्युवाच ततो रामं प्राञ्जलिर्वानरेश्वरः ।
यत् त्वमात्थ नरश्रेष्ठ तत् तथैव न संशयः ॥ ४५ ॥

With joined palms Vālī, the ruler of monkeys, thereupon replied as follows to Śrī Rāma : “What you have said, O jewel among men, is precisely true: there is no doubt about it. (45)

प्रतिवक्तुं प्रकृष्टे हि नापकृष्टस्तु शक्नुयात् ।
यदयुक्तं मया पूर्वं प्रमादाद् वाक्यमप्रियम् ॥ ४६ ॥
तत्रापि खलु मां दोषं कर्तुं नार्हसि राघव ।
त्वं हि दृष्टार्थतत्त्वज्ञः प्रजानां च हिते रतः ।
कार्यकारणसिद्धौ च प्रसन्ना बुद्धिरव्यया ॥ ४७ ॥

“Indeed a dwarf cannot argue with a giant. Certainly you ought not to find fault, O scion of Raghu, with me even for the unbecoming and unpalatable words that were addressed by me to you before this through mistake. Indeed you have directly perceived the truth about the four objects of human pursuit and are a wise man. Nay, you are devoted to the good of the people and your mind is clear and unbaflled in determining your duty and weighing the circumstances on which you base your decision. (46-47)

मामप्यवगतं धर्माद् व्यतिक्रान्तपुरस्कृतम् ।
धर्मसंहितया वाचा धर्मज्ञ परिपालय ॥ ४८ ॥

“Encourage me too, O knower of what is right, placed as I am in the forefront of those who have definitely strayed from the path of virtue and known too as such, with words of consolation, conformable with righteousness.” (48)

बाष्पसंरुद्धकण्ठस्तु वाली सार्तरवः शनैः ।
उवाच रामं सम्प्रेक्ष्य पङ्कलग्न इव द्विपः ॥ ४९ ॥

Looking intently on Śrī Rāma, and groaning like an elephant sunk in a morass, Vālī, for his part, whose throat was completely choked with tears, slowly continued as follows : (49)

न चात्मानमहं शोचे न तारां नापि बान्धवान् ।
यथा पुत्रं गुणज्येष्ठमङ्गदं कनकाङ्गदम् ॥ ५० ॥

“I neither grieve for myself nor for my wife Tārā, nor even for my kinsmen as I do for my son, Aṅgada, who is foremost in point of virtues and is adorned with armlets of gold. (50)

स ममादर्शनाद् दीनो बाल्यात् प्रभृति लालितः ।
तटाक इव पीताम्बुरुपशोषं गमिष्यति ॥ ५१ ॥

“Miserable at not being able to see me, the boy, who has been cherished by me since his very infancy, will pine away like a pond whose waters have been dried up. (51)

बालश्चाकृतबुद्धिश्च एकपुत्रश्च मे प्रियः ।
तारेयो राम भवता रक्षणीयो महाबलः ॥ ५२ ॥

“Aṅgada (son of Tārā), who is still young, though exceptionally mighty, and whose judgment has not yet matured, and who is my only son and as such dear to me, deserves to be protected by you, O Rāma ! (52)

सुग्रीवे चाङ्गदे चैव विधत्स्व मतिमुत्तमाम् ।
त्वं हि गोप्ता च शास्ता च कार्याकार्यविधौ स्थितः ॥ ५३ ॥

“Establish the very best understanding between Sugrīva and Aṅgada; for you stand as their protector and preceptor in teaching them what should be done and what should not be done. (53)

या ते नरपते वृत्तिर्भरते लक्ष्मणे च या।
सुग्रीवे चाङ्गदे राजंस्तां चिन्तयितुमर्हसि॥ ५४॥

“You ought to cherish, O king, the same attitude of mind towards Sugrīva and Aṅgada which exists at the present moment in relation to Bharata and Lakṣmaṇa, O ruler of men ! (54)

महोषकृतदोषां तां यथा तारां तपस्विनीम्।
सुग्रीवो नावमन्येत तथावस्थायितुमर्हसि॥ ५५॥

“Nay, you should handle the situation in such a way that Sugrīva may not treat with disrespect poor Tārā, mentioned above, who is guilty only because I have been guilty of persecuting him. (55)

त्वया ह्यनुगृहीतेन शक्यं राज्यमुपासितुम्।
त्वद्वशे वर्तमानेन तव चित्तानुवर्तिना॥ ५६॥
शक्यं दिवं चार्जयितुं वसुधां चापि शासितुम्।
त्वत्तोऽहं वधमाकांक्षन् वार्यमाणोऽपि तारया॥ ५७॥
सुग्रीवेण सह भ्रात्रा द्वन्द्वयुद्धमुपागतः।
इत्युक्त्वा वानरो रामं विरराम हरीश्वरः॥ ५८॥

“A kingdom can indeed be ruled by one who is subject to your control, follows your mind and has thus been favoured by you; nay, residence in heaven can be earned and even the entire globe can be ruled. Seeking death at your hands, I entered into a duel with my younger brother, Sugrīva, even though I was being kept back all the time by Tārā.” Having spoken thus, the monkey, Vālī, who was a ruler of monkeys, became mute. (56—58)

स तमाश्वासयद् रामो वालिनं व्यक्तदर्शनम्।
साधुसम्मतया वाचा धर्मतत्त्वार्थयुक्तया॥ ५९॥

The celebrated Śrī Rāma in his turn reassured the said Vālī, in whom wisdom had now dawned, in the following words, which were full of meaning in the shape of the essence of piety, and were as such esteemed by holy men : (59)

न संतापस्त्वया कार्य एतदर्थं प्लवङ्गम्।
न वयं भवता चिन्त्या नाप्यात्मा हरिसत्तम।
वयं भवद्विशेषेण धर्मतः कृतनिश्चयाः॥ ६०॥

“No anxiety should be felt by you on this score, O monkey ! Neither for us nor even your own self should you be worried about, O jewel among monkeys ! For, filled as we are with extraordinary affection for you, we have determined our course of action according to the principles of righteousness. (60)

दण्ड्ये यः पातयेद् दण्डं दण्ड्यो यश्चापि दण्ड्यते।
कार्यकारणसिद्धार्थावुभौ तौ नावसीदतः॥ ६१॥

“He who metes out punishment to one deserving of punishment and he who is punished as worthy of punishment, both never come to grief inasmuch as they have achieved their end, the punished by undergoing punishment and the punisher by meting it out. (61)

तद् भवान् दण्डसंयोगादस्माद् विगतकल्मषः।
गतः स्वां प्रकृतिं धर्म्या दण्डदिष्टेन वर्त्मना॥ ६२॥

“Having been completely rid of sin by being subjected to this punishment according to the procedure enjoined by scriptures ordaining such punishment, you have regained your immaculate (spiritual) nature consistent with the principles of righteousness. (62)

त्यज शोकं च मोहं च भयं च हृदये स्थितम्।
त्वया विधानं हर्यग्र्य न शक्यमतिवर्तितुम्॥ ६३॥

“Cast away grief and infatuation and fear abiding in your heart. What has been ordained by Providence cannot be transgressed by you, O jewel among monkeys ! (63)

यथा त्वय्यङ्गदो नित्यं वर्तते वानरेश्वर।
तथा वर्तेत सुग्रीवे मयि चापि न संशयः॥ ६४॥

“Aṅgada will depend on Sugrīva and even on myself as he has ever done on you, O lord of monkeys: there is no doubt about it.” (64)

स तस्य वाक्यं मधुरं महात्मनः

समाहितं धर्मपथानुवर्तितम्।

निशम्य रामस्य रणावमर्दिनो

वचः सुयुक्तं निजगाद वानरः ॥ ६५ ॥

Having listened to the sweet and reassuring words, which strictly followed the path of righteousness, of the high-souled Śrī Rāma, who stood before him and who was capable of crushing his enemy on the field of battle, the aforesaid monkey, Vālī, made the

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डेऽष्टादशः सर्गः ॥ १८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighteen in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनविंशः सर्गः

Canto XIX

Agonized with grief to hear about the death of her husband, Tārā, wife of Vālī, sallied forth from Kiṣkindhā to arrive in the presence of Vālī. Fleeing helter-skelter through fear of Śrī Rāma and meeting Tārā on the way, the monkeys try to send her back inspiring fear in her and advise her to make arrangements for the defence of the city and install Aṅgada on the throne. Rushing to the scene of contest after dismissing them, Tārā catches sight of Vālī lying on the ground, as well as of Śrī Rāma and others

स वानरमहाराजः शयानः शरपीडितः।
प्रत्युक्तो हेतुमद्वाक्यैर्नोत्तरं प्रत्यपद्यत ॥ १ ॥

Answered in words which were supported with reason, Vālī, the overlord of monkeys, who was lying on the ground afflicted with pain caused by Śrī Rāma's arrow, could not make any reply. (1)

अश्मभिः परिभिन्नाङ्गः पादपैराहतो भृशम्।
रामबाणेन चाक्रान्तो जीवितान्ते मुमोह सः ॥ २ ॥

Severely battered with trees and pierced with Śrī Rāma's arrow, his limbs shattered by rocks, he swooned at the close of his life. (2)

following well-reasoned answer : (65)

शराभितप्तेन विचेतसा मया

प्रभाषितस्त्वं यदजानता विभो।

इदं महेन्द्रोपमभीमविक्रम

प्रसादितस्त्वं क्षम मे नरेश्वर ॥ ६६ ॥

“Pray, propitiated by me, O powerful ruler of men, possessed of terrific prowess and vying with the mighty Indra, forgive whatever unseemly and harsh words have been unwittingly uttered by me, agonized as I was with pain caused by your arrow and, therefore, confounded.” (66)

तं भार्या बाणमोक्षेण रामदत्तेन संयुगे।
हतं प्लवगशार्दूलं तारा शुश्राव वालिनम् ॥ ३ ॥

His wife, Tārā, heard of the said Vālī, a tiger among the monkeys, having been killed with the propulsion of an arrow by Śrī Rāma while the former was engaged in a trial of strength with Sugrīva. (3)

सा सपुत्राप्रियं श्रुत्वा वधं भर्तुः सुदारुणम्।
निष्पपात भृशं तस्मादुद्विग्ना गिरिकन्दरात् ॥ ४ ॥

Sore perturbed to hear the unpalatable and most cruel news of her husband's death, Tārā sallied forth with her son, Aṅgada, from that rocky cavern, which Kiṣkindhā was. (4)

ये त्वङ्गदपरीवारा वानरा हि महाबलाः ।
ते सकार्मुकमालोक्य रामं त्रस्ताः प्रदुद्रुवुः ॥ ५ ॥

Alarmed to see Śrī Rāma with a bow, the monkeys who followed Aṅgada as his bodyguard, ran helter-skelter even though they were possessed of extraordinary might.

(5)

सा ददर्श ततस्त्रस्तान् हरीनापततो द्रुतम् ।
यूथादेव परिभ्रष्टान् मृगान् निहतयूथपान् ॥ ६ ॥

Presently she saw the terror-stricken monkeys rushing headlong like deer, the leader of whose herd had been killed and who had strayed from their herd.

(6)

तानुवाच समासाद्य दुःखितान् दुःखिता सती ।
रामवित्रासितान् सर्वाननुबद्धानिवेषुभिः ॥ ७ ॥

Duly approaching them, who were all stricken with sorrow inspired as they were with terror of Śrī Rāma, as though they were being chased by his arrows, Tārā, a virtuous lady, who was full of sorrow herself, admonished them as follows :

(7)

वानरा राजसिंहस्य यस्य यूयं पुरःसराः ।
तं विहाय सुवित्रस्ताः कस्माद् द्रवत दुर्गताः ॥ ८ ॥
राज्यहेतोः स चेद् भ्राता भ्रात्रा क्रूरेण पातितः ।
रामेण प्रहितैर्दूरान्मार्गणैर्दूरपातिभिः ॥ ९ ॥

“Deserting that lion among kings whose servants you are, O monkeys, why should you run away in a miserable state greatly dismayed, if, for the sake of sovereignty, Vāli, brother of Sugrīva, has been caused by his cruel brother Sugrīva to be laid low by Śrī Rāma with arrows hitting a remote target and discharged from afar?”

(8-9)

कपिपत्न्या वचः श्रुत्वा कपयः कामरूपिणः ।
प्राप्तकालमविश्लिष्टमूर्चुर्वचनमङ्गनाम् ॥ १० ॥

Hearing the admonition of Tārā, wife of Vāli, the monkey chief, the monkeys, who were capable of assuming any form at will, made the following reply, which was both unambiguous and appropriate to the occasion, to the lady :

(10)

जीवपुत्रे निवर्तस्व पुत्रं रक्षस्व चाङ्गदम् ।
अन्तको रामरूपेण हत्वा नयति वालिनम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Go back, O mother of a surviving son, and protect your son, Aṅgada; having struck down Vāli, God of Death in the disguise of Rāma is bearing him away to his abode. (11)

क्षिप्तान् वृक्षान् समाविध्य विपुलाश्च तथा शिलाः ।
वाली वज्रसमैर्बाणैर्वज्रेणेव निपातितः ॥ १२ ॥

“Destroying with his arrows, resembling the lightning, the trees as well as the huge rocks hurled by Vāli, Śrī Rāma has struck him down as Indra would strike down a mountain with lightning.

(12)

अभिभूतमिदं सर्वं विद्रुतं वानरं बलम् ।
अस्मिन् प्लवगशार्दूले हते शक्रसमप्रभे ॥ १३ ॥

“This tiger among monkeys, whose splendour equalled the splendour of Indra, having been killed, the whole of this army of monkeys has taken to flight as though overpowered by Rāma.

(13)

रक्ष्यतां नगरी शूरैरङ्गदश्चाभिषिच्यताम् ।
पदस्थं वालिनः पुत्रं भजिष्यन्ति प्लवंगमाः ॥ १४ ॥

“Let the city of Kiṣkindhā be guarded by gallant soldiers and let Aṅgada be installed on the throne. All the monkeys will serve Vāli’s son when he assumes office. (14)

अथवारुचितं स्थानमिह ते रुचिरानने ।
आविशन्ति च दुर्गाणि क्षिप्रमद्यैव वानराः ॥ १५ ॥

“Your continuance here (in Kiṣkindhā), however, is not to our liking, O lady with a charming countenance; for, hostile monkeys (Hanumān and others) will soon take possession of all the citadels in Kiṣkindhā this very day.

(15)

अभार्याः सहभार्याश्च सन्त्यत्र वनचारिणः ।
लुब्धेभ्यो विप्रलब्धेभ्यस्तेभ्यो नः सुमहद्भयम् ॥ १६ ॥

“There are monkeys (lit., denizens of the forest) both with and without wives here, from whom there is very great fear, covetous of sovereignty as they are and victims of deprivation.”

(16)

अल्पान्तरगतानां तु श्रुत्वा वचनमङ्गना।
आत्मनः प्रतिरूपं सा बभाषे चारुहासिनी ॥ १७ ॥

Hearing the submission of the monkeys, who were only at a short distance from her, the aforesaid lady, Tārā, of charming demeanour made a reply which was worthy of herself : (17)

पुत्रेण मम किं कार्यं राज्येनापि किमात्मना।
कपिसिंहे महाभागे तस्मिन् भर्तरि नश्यति ॥ १८ ॥

“Now that the highly blessed Vālī, a veritable lion among monkeys, is dying, what purpose of mine will be served by my son, Aṅgada, or sovereignty or even by my own self? (18)

पादमूलं गमिष्यामि तस्यैवाहं महात्मनः।
योऽसौ रामप्रयुक्तेन शरेण विनिपातितः ॥ १९ ॥

“I shall seek the soles of feet of that exalted soul alone, who has been laid low with an arrow discharged by Śrī Rāma.” (19)

एवमुक्त्वा प्रदुद्राव रुदती शोकमूर्च्छिता।
शिरश्चोरश्च बाहुभ्यां दुःखेन समभिघ्नती ॥ २० ॥

Saying so, she ran fast crying and severely beating on all sides with both of her hands, her head and breast in agony, distracted as she was with grief. (20)

सा ब्रजन्ती ददर्शाथ पतिं निपतितं भुवि।
हन्तारं दानवेन्द्राणां समरेष्वनिवर्तिनाम् ॥ २१ ॥

क्षेप्तारं पर्वतेन्द्राणां वज्राणामिव वासवम्।
महावातसमाविष्टं महामेघौघनिःस्वनम् ॥ २२ ॥

शक्रतुल्यपराक्रान्तं वृष्ट्वेवोपरतं घनम्।
नर्दन्तं नर्दतां भीमं शूरं शूरेण पातितम्।

शार्दूलेनामिषस्यार्थं मृगराजमिवाहतम् ॥ २३ ॥
अर्चितं सर्वलोकस्य सपताकं सवेदिकम्।

नागहेतोः सुपर्णेन चैत्यमुन्मथितं यथा ॥ २४ ॥

While still on her way she presently saw fallen helpless on the ground her husband, Vālī, the slayer of demon chiefs who never retreated on the fields of battle—Vālī, who hurled against his enemy in the course of his fight the foremost of mountains as Indra, the ruler of gods, discharges his thunderbolt, who had the fury of a tempest and thundered like a mass of huge clouds nay, who was equal in valour to Indra, the ruler of gods, and now looked like a cloud that had calmed down after discharging itself, who while roaring inspired terror in those who roared in opposition and who, though valiant, had been laid low by a greater hero, nay, who looked like a lion (the king of beasts) struck down for the sake of prey by a tiger and resembled a place of worship laid waste, though held sacred by all people, with its flag and altar, by Garuḍa, the king of birds, on account of a serpent dwelling in it. (21—24)

अवष्टभ्यावतिष्ठन्तं ददर्श धनुरुजितम्।
रामं रामानुजं चैव भर्तुश्चैव तथानुजम् ॥ २५ ॥

She also beheld Śrī Rāma standing, leaning on his glorious bow as well as Lakṣmaṇa, younger brother of Śrī Rāma, and, even so, her brother-in-law, Surgiva. (25)

तानतीत्य समासाद्य भर्तारं निहतं रणे।
समीक्ष्य व्यथिता भूमौ सम्भ्रान्ता निपपात ह ॥ २६ ॥

Passing beyond them and duly reaching her husband, who lay mortally wounded on the battlefield, Tārā, they say, was pained to gaze on him and toppled on the ground, deeply miserable as she was. (26)

सुमेव पुनरुत्थाय आर्यपुत्रेति वादिनी।
रुरोद सा पतिं दृष्ट्वा संवीतं मृत्युदामभिः ॥ २७ ॥

Getting up once more like one who had been asleep and saying. “O son of a worthy father* !” she wept to see her husband tightly bound with the cords of Death. (27)

* Hindu ladies are not expected to utter the name of their husband. ‘Āryaputra’ (son of a worthy father) was the form of address generally employed by them while accosting him.

तामवेक्ष्य तु सुग्रीवः क्रोशन्तीं कुररीमिव ।
विषादमगमत् कष्टं दृष्ट्वा चाङ्गदमागतम् ॥ २८ ॥
Perceiving her screaming like a female osprey, and beholding Aṅgada too arrived on the scene, Sugrīva for his part, fell a prey to grievous despondency. (28)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे एकोनविंशः सर्गः ॥ १९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Nineteen in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

विंशः सर्गः

Canto XX

Clasping Vālī to her bosom and wailing piteously for the sake of Aṅgada, Tārā resolves upon a fast unto death

रामचापविसृष्टेन शरेणान्तकरेण तम् ।
दृष्ट्वा विनिहतं भूमौ तारा ताराधिपानना ॥ १ ॥
सा समासाद्य भर्तारं पर्यष्वजत भामिनी ।
इषुणाभिहतं दृष्ट्वा वालिनं कुञ्जरोपमम् ॥ २ ॥
वानरं पर्वतेन्द्राभं शोकसंतप्तमानसा ।
तारा तरुमिवोन्मूलं पर्यदेवयतातुरा ॥ ३ ॥

Beholding her aforesaid husband lying on the ground mortally wounded by a death-dealing arrow discharged from Śrī Rāma's bow, and duly reaching him, that proud lady, Tārā, whose face resembled the moon, clasped him to her bosom. Seeing Vālī, the monkey chief, who looked like an elephant and resembled a lordly mountain, struck down with an arrow and lying like an uprooted tree, Tārā, whose mind was tormented with grief, lamented as follows, distressed as she was : (1—3)

रणे दारुणविक्रान्त प्रवीर प्लवतां वर ।
किमिदानीं पुरोभागामद्य त्वं नाभिभाषसे ॥ ४ ॥

“Why don't you speak today to me, who stand before you at this moment, O great hero, the foremost of monkeys, possessed as you are of terrific prowess in combat? (4)

उत्तिष्ठ हरिशार्दूल भजस्व शयनोत्तमम् ।
नैवंविधाः शेरते हि भूमौ नृपतिसत्तमाः ॥ ५ ॥

“Get up, O tiger among monkeys, and take to your excellent couch. Surely, jewels among kings, such as you are, do not lie down on the ground. (5)

अतीव खलु ते कान्ता वसुधा वसुधाधिप ।
गतासुरपि तां गात्रैर्मा विहाय निषेवसे ॥ ६ ॥

“The earth, O suzerain lord of the earth, is indeed extremely beloved of you as is evident from the fact that, ignoring me, you hug her with your limbs even though your life has departed. (6)

व्यक्तमद्य त्वया वीर धर्मतः सम्प्रवर्तता ।
किष्किन्धेव पुरी रम्या स्वर्गमार्गे विनिर्मिता ॥ ७ ॥

“Evidently, O heroic king, a city as lovely as Kiṣkindhā, which you are leaving forever, has been specially built today on your way to heaven by you, who fought according to the principles of righteousness. (7)

यान्यस्माभिस्त्वया सार्धं वनेषु मधुगन्धिषु ।
विहृतानि त्वया काले तेषामुपरमः कृतः ॥ ८ ॥

“A dead stop has been given by you at this time to the pastimes which were enjoyed by us in your company in woodlands emitting sweet fragrance. (8)

निरानन्दा निराशाहं निमग्ना शोकसागरे ।
त्वयि पञ्चत्वमापन्ने महायूथपयूथपे ॥ ९ ॥

“Now that you, the leader of great generals are reduced to the five elements, I am bereft of all joy and hope and am deeply plunged in a sea of grief. (9)

हृदयं सुस्थितं मह्यं दृष्ट्वा निपतितं भुवि ।
यन्न शोकाभिसंतप्तं स्फुटतेऽद्य सहस्रधा ॥ १० ॥

“My heart is very strong in that, even though tormented with grief to see you fallen helpless on the ground, it does not break into a thousand pieces today. (10)

सुग्रीवस्य त्वया भार्या हता स च विवासितः ।
यत् तत् तस्य त्वया व्युष्टिः प्राप्तेयं प्लवगाधिप ॥ ११ ॥

“Since Sugrīva’s wife was wrested and he was exiled by you, this is the fruit reaped by you of that wrongdoing of yours, O suzerain lord of monkeys ! (11)

निःश्रेयसपरा मोहात् त्वया चाहं विगर्हिता ।
यैषाब्रुवं हितं वाक्यं वानरेन्द्र हितैषिणी ॥ १२ ॥

“I too, who tendered salutary advice to you, wishing well as I did of you, O ruler of monkeys, and who was intent on securing your highest good, was reproached by you through ignorance. (12)

रूपयौवनदृप्तानां दक्षिणानां च मानद ।
नूनमप्सरसामार्यं चित्तानि प्रमथिष्यसि ॥ १३ ॥

“Blessed with an ethereal form, you will surely churn the minds of celestial nymphs clever at dalliance and proud of their comeliness and lasting youth, O worthy bestower of honour ! (13)

कालो निःसंशयो नूनं जीवितान्तकरस्तव ।
बलाद् येनावपन्नोऽसि सुग्रीवस्यावशो वशम् ॥ १४ ॥

“The time which will put an end to your life and which is free from doubt, has surely arrived. It is by that time alone that you, who were subject to the control of none, were forcibly brought under the sway of Sugrīva. (14)

अस्थाने वालिनं हत्वा युध्यमानं परेण च ।
न संतप्यति काकुत्स्थः कृत्वा कर्म सुगर्हितम् ॥ १५ ॥

“It is not in the fitness of things that having struck Vālī, fighting with another and thus having done something highly despicable, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kākutstha, should not feel sore distressed at heart. (15)

वैधव्यं शोकसंतापं कृपणाकृपणा सती ।
अदुःखोपचिता पूर्वं वर्तयिष्याम्यनाथवत् ॥ १६ ॥

“Having been brought up in an atmosphere bereft of suffering and having never felt miserable in the past, I shall now like one forlorn miserably suffer widowhood, full of grief and agony. (16)

लालितश्चाङ्गदो वीरः सुकुमारः सुखोचितः ।
वत्स्यते कामवस्थां मे पितृव्ये क्रोधमूर्च्छिते ॥ १७ ॥

“To what plight will the valiant, yet tender Aṅgada be reduced—Aṅgada, who has been tended affectionately by me and deserves every comfort—when his uncle, Sugrīva, is beside himself with anger? (17)

कुरुष्व पितरं पुत्र सुदृष्टं धर्मवत्सलम् ।
दुर्लभं दर्शनं तस्य तव वत्स भविष्यति ॥ १८ ॥

“(Turning towards Aṅgada) bring your father, who is fond of virtue, well within your sight, my son; henceforth his sight will become difficult to obtain, my darling ! (18)

समाश्वासय पुत्रं त्वं संदेशं संदिशस्व मे ।
मूर्ध्नि चैनं समाग्राय प्रवासं प्रस्थितो ह्यसि ॥ १९ ॥

“(Turning once more to Vālī) fully comfort your son and duly smelling him at the head, give to me your parting message, since you have now set out on your journey to the other world. (19)

रामेण हि महत् कर्म कृतं त्वामभिनन्ता ।
आनृत्यं तु गतं तस्य सुग्रीवस्य प्रतिश्रवे ॥ २० ॥

“Indeed a great feat has been accomplished by Śrī Rāma in killing you. In fact acquittance has been obtained by him thereby in the matter of his plighted word to Sugrīva to dispose of you. (20)

सकामो भव सुग्रीव रुमां त्वं प्रतिपत्स्यसे ।
भुङ्क्ष्व राज्यमनुद्विग्नः शस्तो भ्राता रिपुस्तव ॥ २१ ॥

“(Turning to Sugrīva) be satisfied now that your desire has been fulfilled, O Sugrīva !

You will now get back your wife, Rūmā, too.
Enjoy the kingdom without feeling perturbed, since your hostile brother has been killed.

(21)

किं मामेवं प्रलपतीं प्रियां त्वं नाभिभाषसे ।

इमाः पश्य वरा बाह्व्यो भार्यास्ते वानरेश्वर ॥ २२ ॥

“(Turning to Vālī again) why do you not speak to me, your darling, lamenting thus?
Lo ! Here are your numerous pretty wives,
O ruler of monkeys !”

(22)

तस्या विलपितं श्रुत्वा वानर्यः सर्वतश्च ताः ।

परिगृह्णाद्गदं दीना दुःखार्ताः प्रतिचुकुशुः ॥ २३ ॥

Hearing her lament and surrounding Āṅgada on all sides, all those Vānara ladies
(the wives of Vālī) cried loudly, distressed and stricken with agony as they were : (23)

किमद्गदं साद्गदवीरबाहो

विहाय यातोऽसि चिरं प्रवासम् ।

न युक्तमेवं गुणसंनिकृष्टं

विहाय पुत्रं प्रियचारुवेषम् ॥ २४ ॥

Tārā continues : “Why have you departed on your long sojourn in the other world, deserting Āṅgada, O lord possessed of heroic arms adorned with armlets? It is not meet for you to leave abruptly in this way, abandoning your son, who is so proximate to you in point of excellences and is clad in an agreeable and lovely dress.

(24)

यद्यप्रियं किञ्चिदसम्प्रधार्य

कृतं मया स्यात् तव दीर्घबाहो ।

क्षमस्व मे तद्भरिवंशनाथ

व्रजामि मूर्ध्ना तव वीर पादौ ॥ २५ ॥

“If anything repugnant to you has inconsiderately been done by me, O lord with long arms, pray, condone that offence of mine, O protector of the race of monkeys;
I touch your feet with my head. O gallant one !”

(25)

तथा तु तारा करुणं रुदन्ती

भर्तुः समीपे सह वानरीभिः ।

व्यवस्यत प्रायमनिन्द्यवर्णा

उपोपवेष्टुं भुवि यत्र वाली ॥ २६ ॥

Wailing piteously as aforesaid, with other Vānara ladies, by the side of her husband, Tārā of faultless complexion, for her part, resolved to abstain from food and drink and await death sitting on the ground close to the place where Vālī lay. (26)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे विंशः सर्गः ॥ २० ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXI

Comforting Tārā, who was lamenting through a variety of expressions, Hanumān urges her to have the obsequies performed in respect of the departed soul by Āṅgada and attend to the earthly good of Āṅgada.

Tārā, however, refuses to flinch from her resolve and prefers to follow her husband to the other world rather than bestow any thought on the earthly welfare of her son

ततो निपतितां तारां च्युतां तारामिवाम्बरात् ।

शनैराश्वासयामास हनुमान् हरियूथपः ॥ १ ॥

Thereupon Hanumān, a commander of monkey hordes, slowly comforted (as follows) Tārā, who lay fallen on the ground and shone like a star dropped from the heavens : (1)

गुणदोषकृतं जन्तुः स्वकर्म फलहेतुकम्।
अव्यग्रस्तदवाप्नोति सर्वं प्रेत्य शुभाशुभम् ॥ २ ॥

Hanumān pleaded : “An embodied soul steadily reaps on departing from this world all the good and evil fruit of his actions done under the notion of virtue or vice and with an eye to their good or evil consequences. (2)

शोच्या शोचसि कं शोच्यं दीनं दीनानुकम्पसे।
कश्च कस्यानुशोच्योऽस्ति देहेऽस्मिन् बुद्बुदोपमे ॥ ३ ॥

“Yourself worth grieving for, whom else do you grieve for as pitiable and, yourself miserable, what miserable beings do you commiserate? This body being evanescent like a bubble, who is worth grieving for and to whom? (3)

अङ्गदस्तु कुमारोऽयं द्रष्टव्यो जीवपुत्रया।
आयत्यां च विधेयानि समर्थान्यस्य चिन्तय ॥ ४ ॥

“This boy, Aṅgada, for his part should be looked after by you, the mother of a surviving son. Please also bestow your thought on the rites that should be performed by you hereafter for the good of Vālī, in the other world. (4)

जानास्यनियतामेवं भूतानामागतिं गतिम्।
तस्माच्छुभं हि कर्तव्यं पण्डिते नेह लौकिकम् ॥ ५ ॥

“You know the birth and death of created beings to be indefinite; therefore, O wise lady, only that which yields good results hereafter should be done on these occasions of bereavement from one's near and dear ones and nothing which is purely worldly such as wailing and crying for a departed soul. (5)

यस्मिन् हरिसहस्राणि शतानि नियुतानि च।
वर्तयन्ति कृताशानि सोऽयं दिष्टान्तमागतः ॥ ६ ॥

“This Vālī, on whom hundreds of thousands, nay, hundreds of millions of monkeys depended with their hopes centred in him, has reached the end of his allotted span of life. (6)

यदयं न्यायदृष्टार्थः सामदानक्षमापरः।
गतो धर्मजितां भूमिं नैनं शोचितुमर्हसि ॥ ७ ॥

“Since Vālī, who attended to the affairs of his state in conformity with the principles of equity and was intent on giving solace to the afflicted, bestowing gifts on the needy and forgiving the wrongdoer—is sure to ascend to the realm of those who have scored a victory through righteousness, you ought not to grieve for him. (7)

सर्वे च हरिशार्दूलाः पुत्रश्चायं तवाङ्गदः।
हर्यक्षपतिराज्यं च त्वत्सनाथमनिन्दिते ॥ ८ ॥

“Nay, all the tigers among monkeys as well as this son of yours, Aṅgada, and the kingdom of the monkeys and the bears have their protector in you, O irreproachable lady ! (8)

ताविमौ शोकसंतप्तौ शनैः प्रेरय भामिनि।
त्वया परिगृहीतोऽयमङ्गदः शास्तु मेदिनीम् ॥ ९ ॥

“Gradually spur on to activity these two, Sugrīva and Aṅgada, who are distracted with grief, O good lady ! Let Aṅgada, taken by the hand by you, rule the earth. (9)

संततिश्च यथा दृष्टा कृत्यं यच्चापि साम्प्रतम्।
राजस्तत् क्रियतां सर्वमेष कालस्य निश्चयः ॥ १० ॥
संस्कार्यो हरिराजस्तु अङ्गदश्चाभिषिच्यताम्।
सिंहासनगतं पुत्रं पश्यन्ती शान्तिमेष्यसि ॥ ११ ॥

“Let all that for which a male offspring is commended in the scriptures and which is salutary for the deceased king in the other world be gone through: this is the decree of Time. Vālī (the king of monkeys) ought in every case to be cremated and let Aṅgada be installed on the throne. Beholding your son seated on the throne you will have peace of mind.” (10-11)

सा तस्य वचनं श्रुत्वा भर्तृव्यसनपीडिता।
अब्रवीदुत्तरं तारा हनूमन्तमवस्थितम् ॥ १२ ॥

Hearing the admonition of Hanumān, the celebrated Tārā, who was afflicted due to the evil plight of her husband, made the following reply to Hanumān, standing near : (12)

अङ्गदप्रतिरूपाणां पुत्राणामेकतः शतम्।
हृतस्याप्यस्य वीरस्य गात्रसंश्लेषणं वरम् ॥ १३ ॥

“Let there be on one side full one hundred of sons like Aṅgada. Clasping to the bosom the limbs of this hero, even though he has been killed, is, however, preferable to them in my eyes. (13)

न चाहं हरिराज्यस्य प्रभवाम्यङ्गदस्य वा।
पितृव्यस्तस्य सुग्रीवः सर्वकार्येष्वनन्तरः ॥ १४ ॥

“I have no power over the kingdom of monkeys nor over the installation of Aṅgada. His uncle, Sugrīva, is the authority in all matters and proximate to him. (14)

न ह्येषा बुद्धिरास्थेया हनूमन्ङ्गदं प्रति।
पिता हि बन्धुः पुत्रस्य न माता हरिसत्तम ॥ १५ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे एकविंशः सर्गः ॥ २१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-one in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmikī, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वाविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXII

Craving the forgiveness of Sugrīva, though he was younger than he, and applauding the resolve of Tārā (to follow her husband), nay, urging Sugrīva to follow the advice of Tārā, look after Aṅgada affectionately and accomplish the purpose of Śrī Rāma, Vālī asks Sugrīva to take off the gold chain from the former's neck, and gives up the ghost while tendering wholesome advice to Aṅgada. Extolling the wonderful exploits of Vālī, hordes of monkeys lament in many ways. Stricken with agony caused by separation from Vālī, Tārā falls to the ground, embracing Vālī

वीक्षमाणस्तु मन्दासुः सर्वतो मन्दमुच्छ्वसन्।
आदावेव तु सुग्रीवं ददर्शानुजमग्रतः ॥ १ ॥

Casting his eyes all-round and slowly breathing, Vālī for his part, whose vitality was now very low, beheld in the first instance his younger brother, Sugrīva, alone standing in front of him. (1)

“This conclusion of yours with regard to Aṅgada (viz., that he is to be installed on the throne by me) is not worth maintaining; for, the father and in his absence an uncle is the friend (helper) of a son, and not the mother, O jewel among the monkeys ! (15)

नहि मम हरिराजसंश्रयात्
क्षमतरमस्ति परत्र चेह वा।

अभिमुखहतवीरसेवितं

शयनमिदं मम सेवितुं क्षमम् ॥ १६ ॥

“Indeed nothing is more advisable for me in this world or the next than to follow Vālī, the king of monkeys. This bed, in the form of the bare ground, used by the heroic Vālī, slain facing his enemy, is fit to be shared by me.” (16)

तं प्राप्तविजयं वाली सुग्रीवं प्लवगेश्वरम्।
आभाष्य व्यक्तया वाचा सस्नेहमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ २ ॥

Accosting Sugrīva, who had scored a victory over him and was now the ruler of monkeys, Vālī lovingly spoke to him in distinct accents as follows : (2)

सुग्रीव दोषेण न मां गन्तुमर्हसि किल्बिषात्।
कृष्यमाणं भविष्येण बुद्धिमोहेन मां बलात् ॥ ३ ॥

“Sugrīva, you ought not to hold me guilty of wrong doing in the form of having exiled you and wrested your wife from you, but should conclude me to have been forcibly carried away by perversity occasioned by that which was bound to come. (3)

युगपद् विहितं तात न मन्ये सुखमावयोः ।
सौहार्दं भ्रातृयुक्तं हि तदिदं जातमन्यथा ॥ ४ ॥

“I believe, O dear brother, happiness was not ordained for us at one and the same time. That is why the well-known amity which ought to exist between two brothers came to be otherwise (was transformed into enmity). (4)

प्रतिपद्य त्वमद्यैव राज्यमेषां वनौकसाम् ।
मामप्यद्यैव गच्छन्तं विद्धि वैवस्वतक्षयम् ॥ ५ ॥

“Accept you this very day the rulership of these monkeys (lit., denizens of the forest) and know me as well to be ready to depart this very day to the abode of Yama (son of the sun-god and the god of retribution). (5)

जीवितं च हि राज्यं च श्रियं च विपुलां तथा ।
प्रजहाम्येष वै तूर्णमहं चागर्हितं यशः ॥ ६ ॥

“Indeed I am hereby quitting without doubt forever soon my life as well as my sovereignty and, even so, my extensive fortune as well as my untarnished fame. (6)

अस्यां त्वहमवस्थायां वीर वक्ष्यामि यद् वचः ।
यद्यप्यसुकरं राजन् कर्तुमेव त्वमर्हसि ॥ ७ ॥

“You ought certainly to accomplish, O heroic king whatever request I make to you in this dying state, even though it may be hard to accomplish. (7)

सुखार्हं सुखसंवृद्धं बालमेनमबालिशम् ।
बाष्पपूर्णमुखं पश्य भूमौ पतितमङ्गदम् ॥ ८ ॥

“See fallen on the ground this Aṅgada, who is not only deserving of all comfort but has actually been brought up in comfort, nay, whose, countenance is bathed in tears and who, though a mere boy, is not at all childish. (8)

मम प्राणैः प्रियतरं पुत्रं पुत्रमिवौरसम् ।
मया हीनमहीनार्थं सर्वतः परिपालय ॥ ९ ॥

“Protect in every way on all sides like a son sprung from your own loins, my son, Aṅgada, who is dearer than life to me, and is now going to be bereft of me, so that nothing may remain lacking to him. (9)

त्वमप्यस्य पिता दाता परित्राता च सर्वशः ।
भयेष्वभयदश्चैव यथाहं प्लवगेश्वर ॥ १० ॥

“Be you his father, donor and protector too in everyway as also his refuge in dangers as I have been, O ruler of monkeys ! (10)

एष तारात्मजः श्रीमांस्त्वया तुल्यपराक्रमः ।
रक्षसां च वधे तेषामग्रतस्ते भविष्यति ॥ ११ ॥

“This glorious son of Tārā is equal to you in prowess and will remain ahead of you in the destruction of those ogres. (11)

अनुरूपाणि कर्माणि विक्रम्य बलवान् रणे ।
करिष्यत्येष तारेयस्तेजस्वी तरुणोऽङ्गदः ॥ १२ ॥

“Exhibiting his prowess on the field of battle, this mighty and glorious son of Tārā, the youthful Aṅgada, will perform deeds worthy of me. (12)

सुषेणदुहिता चेयमर्थसूक्ष्मविनिश्चये ।
औत्पातिके च विविधे सर्वतः परिनिष्ठिता ॥ १३ ॥

“Nay, this Tārā (daughter of Suṣeṇa) is extremely clever in discerning the most profound matters as well as in deciphering the meaning of portents of various kinds as also in all other ways. (13)

यदेषा साध्विति ब्रूयात् कार्यं तन्मुक्तसंशयम् ।
नहि तारामतं किञ्चिदन्यथा परिवर्तते ॥ १४ ॥

“That which she recommends as right should be unhesitatingly done by you. No opinion of Tārā turns out to be wrong. (14)

राघवस्य च ते कार्यं कर्तव्यमविशङ्कया ।
स्यादधर्मो ह्यकरणे त्वां च हिंस्यादमानितः ॥ १५ ॥

“Nay, the purpose of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) should be unquestioningly accomplished by you; for sin will accrue to you in the event of your failing to do so (bound as you are by your plighted word to help him in recovering his lost spouse) and he may kill you if he is disregarded. (15)

इमां च मालामाधत्स्व दिव्यां सुग्रीव काञ्चनीम् ।

उदारा श्रीः स्थिता ह्यस्यां सम्प्रजह्यान्मृते मयि ॥ १६ ॥

“Also wear this ethereal chain of gold, O Sugrīva; for the exalted goddess of victory abides in it and may leave it for good if it remains on my dead body, when I am dead.” (16)

इत्येवमुक्तः सुग्रीवो वालिना भ्रातृसौहृदात् ।

हर्षं त्यक्त्वा पुनर्दीनो ग्रहग्रस्त इवोदुराट् ॥ १७ ॥

Giving up joy when instructed thus by Vālī out of brotherly affection, Sugrīva felt wretched again like the moon when seized by the demon Rāhu at the time of a lunar eclipse. (17)

तद्वालिवचनाच्छान्तः कुर्वन् युक्तमतन्द्रितः ।

जग्राह सोऽभ्यनुज्ञातो मालां तां चैव काञ्चनीम् ॥ १८ ॥

Pacified by the aforesaid conciliatory words of Vālī and carefully doing what was appropriate to the occasion, he also accepted, when permitted by him, that chain of gold. (18)

तां मालां काञ्चनीं दत्त्वा दृष्ट्वा चैवात्मजं स्थितम् ।

संसिद्धः प्रेत्यभावाय स्नेहादङ्गदमब्रवीत् ॥ १९ ॥

Parting with that chain of gold and gazing on his son, Aṅgada, standing before him, Vālī, who was now firmly resolved to die, fondly spoke to Aṅgada as follows : (19)

देशकालौ भजस्वाद्य क्षममाणः प्रियाप्रिये ।

सुखदुःखसहः काले सुग्रीववशगो भव ॥ २० ॥

“Have due regard now to time and place while doing an action, viewing alike the agreeable and the disagreeable and ignoring joy and sorrow when the time comes for it, be amenable to the control of Sugrīva. (20)

यथा हि त्वं महाबाहो लालितः सततं मया ।

न तथा वर्तमानं त्वां सुग्रीवो बहु मन्यते ॥ २१ ॥

“Sugrīva may not hold you in high esteem if you behave in the same way as you actually did when constantly cherished by me, O mighty-armed prince! (21)

नास्यामित्रैर्गतं गच्छेर्मा शत्रुभिरिदम् ।

भर्तृरर्थपरो दान्तः सुग्रीववशगो भव ॥ २२ ॥

“You should not enter into an alliance with those who are not his friends, much less with his enemies, O tamer of your foes! Remain devoted to the interests of your master, self-disciplined and subordinate to the will of Sugrīva. (22)

न चातिप्रणयः कार्यः कर्तव्योऽप्रणयश्च ते ।

उभयं हि महादोषं तस्मादन्तरदृग् भव ॥ २३ ॥

“Neither excessive fondness nor lack of affection should be shown by you towards anyone; for both constitute a major fault; therefore keep your eye on the golden mean.” (23)

इत्युक्त्वाथ विवृत्ताक्षः शरसम्पीडितो भृशम् ।

विवृतैर्दशनैर्भीमैर्बभूवोत्क्रान्तजीवितः ॥ २४ ॥

Having spoken as aforesaid, Vālī, who felt extremely agonized due to pain caused by the arrow, as could be seen by his upturned eyes and terrible teeth exposed, gave up his ghost. (24)

ततो विचुक्रुशुस्तत्र वानरा हतयूथपाः ।

परिदेवयमानास्ते सर्वे प्लवगसत्तमाः ॥ २५ ॥

Thereupon all the celebrated monkeys whose leader had been killed and who were present there, nay, who were the foremost of their race, fell acrying and wailed as follows : (25)

किष्किन्धा ह्यद्य शून्या च स्वर्गते वानरेश्वरे ।

उद्यानानि च शून्यानि पर्वताः काननानि च ॥ २६ ॥

“The ruler of monkeys having ascended to heaven, desolate indeed is Kiṣkindhā today and desolate its gardens, mountains and woodlands. (26)

हते प्लवगशार्दूले निष्प्रभा वानराः कृताः ।

यस्य वेगेन महता काननानि वनानि च ॥ २७ ॥

पुष्पौघेणानुबद्ध्यन्ते करिष्यति तदद्य कः।
येन दत्तं महद् युद्धं गन्धर्वस्य महात्मनः ॥ २८ ॥
गोलभस्य महाबाहोर्दश वर्षाणि पञ्च च।
नैव रात्रौ न दिवसे तद् युद्धमुपशाम्यति ॥ २९ ॥

“Vālī, a tiger among monkeys, by whose great might woodlands and groves were clothed with bunches of flowers all the year round, having been killed, the monkeys have been divested of their splendour. Who will do this now? A fierce encounter was granted by him to the high-minded and mighty-armed Gandharva, Golabha by name, which lasted for ten years and five. The said conflict did not cease by night or by day. (27—29)

ततः षोडशमे वर्षे गोलभो विनिपातितः।
तं हत्वा दुर्विनीतं तु वाली दंष्ट्राकरालवान्।
सर्वाभयंकरोऽस्माकं कथमेष निपातितः ॥ ३० ॥

“Ultimately Golabha was struck down in the sixteenth year. Even after slaying that insolent fellow, how has this Vālī—who was distinguished by the fearfulness of his teeth and who had rid us of fear from all quarters—been thrown down?” (30)

हते तु वीरे प्लवगाधिपे तदा
प्लवङ्गमास्तत्र न शर्म लेभिरे।
वनेचराः सिंहयुते महावने
यथा हि गावो निहते गवां पतौ ॥ ३१ ॥

That heroic Vālī, the suzerain lord of monkeys, having been killed, the monkeys for their part on that occasion enjoyed no more happiness than wild cows, living in a large forest infested with a lion, on the bull leading their herd having been killed. (31)

ततस्तु तारा व्यसनार्णवप्लुता
मृतस्य भर्तुर्वदनं समीक्ष्य सा।
जगाम भूमिं परिरभ्य वालिनं
महाद्रुमं छिन्नमिवाश्रिता लता ॥ ३२ ॥

Gazing on the face of her deceased husband and embracing Vālī like a creeper clinging to a huge uprooted tree, the celebrated Tārā for her part, who was submerged in an ocean of calamity, sank to the ground. (32)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे द्वाविंशः सर्गः ॥ २२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-two in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रयोविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXIII

Though endeavouring, after smelling Vālī's face, to embrace him, Tārā finds herself unable to do so, bathed as he was in blood and daubed with dust. Nīla pulls out Śrī Rāma's arrow from his heart and, urged by Tārā, Aṅgada bows down at his feet

ततः समुपजिघ्रन्ती कपिराजस्य तन्मुखम्।
पतिं लोकश्रुता तारा मृतं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

While smelling through love the well-known face of Vālī (the king of monkeys), Tārā, who was famed throughout the world, then spoke as follows to her deceased husband : (1)

शेषे त्वं विषमे दुःखमकृत्वा वचनं मम।
उपलोपचिते वीर सुदुःखे वसुधातले ॥ २ ॥

“Not having followed my advice, O hero, you are lying uncomfortably on an uneven and extremely hard and stony ground. (2)

मत्तः प्रियतरा नूनं वानरेन्द्र मही तव।
शेषे हि तां परिष्वज्य मां च न प्रतिभाषसे ॥ ३ ॥

“Surely, O lord of monkeys, the earth is dearer to you in comparison with me as is clear from the fact that you lie embracing her and do not even respond to me. (3)

सुग्रीवस्य वशं प्राप्तो विधिरेष भवत्यहो।
सुग्रीव एव विक्रान्तो वीर साहसिकप्रिय॥४॥

“Oh, Fate in the form of Śrī Rāma has become subservient to the will of Sugrīva. Sugrīva alone is, therefore, powerful and will rule over Kiṣkindhā, O hero fond of daring acts ! (4)

ऋक्षवानरमुख्यास्त्वां बलिनं पर्युपासते।
तेषां विलपितं कृच्छ्रमङ्गदस्य च शोचतः॥५॥
मम चेमा गिरः श्रुत्वा किं त्वं न प्रतिबुध्यसे।
इदं तद् वीरशयनं तत्र शेषे हतो युधि॥६॥
शायिता निहता यत्र त्वयैव रिपवः पुरा।
विशुद्धसत्त्वाभिजन प्रिययुद्ध मम प्रिय॥७॥

“The foremost of bears and monkeys sought shelter with you, mighty as you were. As such why don't you wake up even on hearing their cries of distress, and the utterances of wailing Aṅgada, as also these complaints of mine? This bed in the form of hard, uneven and stony ground, appropriate to a hero, is the same on which enemies killed by you were laid in the past. On that very bed you lie slain in combat today, O lord, fond of war and born in a race reputed for their immaculate strength, O my darling ! (5—7)

मामनाथां विहायैकां गतस्त्वमसि मानद।
शूराय न प्रदातव्या कन्या खलु विपश्चिता॥८॥

“Leaving me alone, without a protector, for good, you have departed to the other world, O bestower of honour ! ‘A girl should never be given in marriage to a hero by a wise man.’ (8)

शूरभार्या हतां पश्य सद्यो मां विधवां कृताम्।
अवभग्नश्च मे मानो भग्ना मे शाश्वती गतिः॥९॥

“In corroboration of this statement look at me, the wife of a hero, widowed in no time and ruined forever. My pride of being the spouse of a sovereign stands crushed and so my everlasting happiness in this world has been shattered. (9)

अगाधे च निमग्रास्मि विपुले शोकसागरे।
अश्मसारमयं नूनमिदं मे हृदयं दृढम्॥१०॥
भर्तारं निहतं दृष्ट्वा यन्नाद्य शतधा कृतम्।
सुहृच्चैव च भर्ता च प्रकृत्या च मम प्रियः॥११॥
प्रहारे च पराक्रान्तः शूरः पञ्चत्वमागतः।
पतिहीना तु या नारी कामं भवतु पुत्रिणी॥१२॥
धनधान्यसमृद्धापि विधवेत्युच्यते जनैः।
स्वगात्रप्रभवे वीर शेषे रुधिरमण्डले॥१३॥
कृमिरागपरिस्तोमे स्वकीये शयने यथा।
रेणुशोणितसंवीतं गात्रं तव समन्ततः॥१४॥
परिरब्धुं न शक्नोमि भुजाभ्यां प्लवगर्षभ।
कृतकृत्योऽद्य सुग्रीवो वैरेऽस्मिन्नतिदारुणे॥१५॥
यस्य रामविमुक्तेन हतमेकेषुणा भयम्।
शरेण हृदि लग्नेन गात्रसंस्पर्शने तव॥१६॥
वार्यामि त्वां निरीक्षन्ती त्वयि पञ्चत्वमागते।
उद्वर्हं शरं नीलस्तस्य गात्रगतं तदा॥१७॥
गिरिगह्वरसंलीनं दीप्तमाशीविषं यथा।
तस्य निष्कृष्यमाणस्य बाणस्यापि बभौ द्युतिः॥१८॥
अस्तमस्तकसंरुद्धरश्मेर्दिनकरादिव ।
पेतुः क्षतजधारास्तु व्रणेभ्यस्तस्य सर्वशः॥१९॥
ताम्रगैरिकसम्पृक्ता धारा इव धराधरात्।
अवकीर्णं विमार्जन्ती भर्तारं रणरेणुना॥२०॥
अस्त्रैर्नयनजैः शूरं सिषेचास्त्रसमाहतम्।
रुधिरोक्षितसर्वाङ्गं दृष्ट्वा विनिहतं पतिम्॥२१॥
उवाच तारा पिङ्गाक्षं पुत्रमङ्गदमङ्गना।
अवस्थां पश्चिमां पश्य पितुः पुत्र सुदारुणाम्॥२२॥

“Nay, I am completely submerged in a fathomless and vast ocean of grief. Surely this heart of mine, which is so stout, is made of steel as is evident from the fact that on seeing my husband slain it has not been split into a hundred fragments today. He, who was my disinterested friend and supporter too and was beloved of me by his very nature, nay, a hero powerful in dealing blows, has been reduced to the five elements. A woman who is bereft of her husband, no matter if she is blessed with a son and even though she is richly endowed with wealth and foodgrains, is spoken of as a widow by the wise.

“You lie stretched, O hero, in a pool of blood flowing from your own limbs even as you did at home in your own bed with a covering of deep red colour resembling that of an insect called Indragopa. Your body being enveloped on all sides in dust and blood, I am unable to clasp you with my arms, O jewel among monkeys ! Sugrīva, whose fear has been dispelled by a single arrow discharged by Śrī Rāma, has accomplished his purpose today through this most formidable antagonisms. I am prevented by the shaft fixed in your heart from embracing your limbs and merely stand gazing on you even though you have been reduced to the five elements.” Nīla, a general of Sugrīva, then extracted the arrow fixed in his body even as one would pull out a fiery snake lying hidden in a mountain cave. The brilliance of that shaft even while it was being drawn out of Vālī’s breast shone forth like that of the sun whose rays stand intercepted by a peak of the western mountain (behind which the sun is supposed to set). Streams of blood actually flowed from his wounds on all sides like rivulets mixed with red ochre flowing from a mountain. Wiping her gallant husband covered with the dust of combat, Tārā bathed him with the tears flowing from her eyes, badly wounded as he was with a missile. Seeing her killed husband bathed all over with blood, Tārā, his wife, spoke as follows to her son, Aṅgada, who had reddish brown eyes : “Behold, my son, the most tragic end of your father. (10—22)

सम्प्रसक्तस्य वैरस्य गतोऽन्तः पापकर्मणा ।
बालसूर्योर्ज्ज्वलतनुं प्रयातं यमसादनम् ॥ २३ ॥
अभिवादय राजानं पितरं पुत्र मानदम् ।
एवमुक्तः समुत्थाय जग्राह चरणौ पितुः ॥ २४ ॥
भुजाभ्यां पीनवृत्ताभ्यामद्गदोऽहमिति ब्रुवन् ।
अभिवादयमानं त्वामद्गदं त्वं यथा पुरा ॥ २५ ॥

दीर्घायुर्भव पुत्रेति किमर्थं नाभिभाषसे ।
अहं पुत्रसहाया त्वामुपासे गतचेतनम् ।
सिंहेन पातितं सद्यो गौः सवत्सेव गोवृषम् ॥ २६ ॥

“The end has thus been reached by him of the enmity which was forced on him by his sinful deeds of some past life. Greet, my son, your royal father, a bestower of honour on others, whose body shone brightly as the rising sun, and who has now departed to the abode of Death.” Rising up, when exhorted thus, Aṅgada clasped the feet of his father with his stout and rounded arms, saying : “I am your son, Aṅgada.” (Tārā then continued) : “Why don’t you bless Aṅgada, who is greeting you, in the words ‘Live long, my son!’ as you did before? Like a cow standing with its calf by the side of a bull instantly struck down by a lion, I wait with my son upon you, from whom consciousness has departed. (23—26)

इष्ट्वा संग्रामयज्ञेन रामप्रहरणाम्भसा ।
तस्मिन्वभृथे स्नातः कथं पत्न्या मया विना ॥ २७ ॥

“Having propitiated the gods through a sacrificial performance in the form of a duel, how did you take part without me, your wife, in these ablutions, so well known, performed at the end of the sacrifice by you with water in the form of blood provided by Śrī Rāma’s arrow? (27)

या दत्ता देवराजेन तव तुष्टेन संयुगे ।
शातक्रौम्भीं प्रियां मालां तां ते पश्यामि नेह किम् ॥ २८ ॥

“Why do I not see here on your person your favourite chain of gold, which was gifted to you by Indra (the ruler of gods) when pleased in an encounter? (28)

राज्यश्रीर्न जहाति त्वां गतासुमपि मानद ।
सूर्यस्यावर्तमानस्य शैलराजमिव प्रभा ॥ २९ ॥

“Even though life has departed from you, O bestower of honour on others, kingly glory does not leave you any more than the light of the setting sun leaves the western mountain (behind which the sun is supposed to set). (29)

न मे वचः पश्यमिदं त्वया कृतं
न चास्मि शक्ता हि निवारणे तव ।
हता सपुत्रास्मि हतेन संयुगे
सह त्वया श्रीर्विजहाति मामपि ॥ ३० ॥

“Neither was my salutary advice referred to above followed by you nor was I actually able to restrain you. The result is that you having been killed in a combat, I, with my son, have been ruined and alongwith you the goddess of fortune is deserting me as well as my son.” (30)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे त्रयोविंशः सर्गः ॥ २३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-three in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्विंशः सर्गः

Canto XXIV

Beseeching Aṅgada and others to conduct the search for Sītā, Sugrīva, whose heart melted to hear the laments of Tārā, seeks Śrī Rāma's permission to enter fire to atone for Vālī's death, making Śrī Rāma sad. Approaching Śrī Rāma in her turn, Tārā extols him with devotion and expresses her intention to give up the ghost, on which Śrī Rāma expostulates with her and urges her to survive for the earthly good of Aṅgada

तामाशु वेगेन दुरासदेन
त्वभिप्लुतां शोकमहार्णवेन ।
पश्यंस्तदा वाल्यनुजस्तरस्वी
भ्रातुर्वधेनाप्रतिमेन तेपे ॥ १ ॥

Seeing Tārā flooded with an ocean of grief of dashing impetuosity and difficult to encounter, Sugrīva (younger brother of Vālī) for his part, who was full of energy, felt agonized at that time due to the death of his elder brother, which he was instrumental in bringing about and which he thought was unbecoming of him. (1)

स बाष्पपूर्णेन मुखेन पश्यन्
क्षणेन निर्विण्णमना मनस्वी ।
जगाम रामस्य शनैः समीपं
भृत्यैर्वृतः सम्परिदूयमानः ॥ २ ॥

Gazing with a face bathed in tears and getting disgusted at heart in a moment, nay, feeling sore distressed, the wise Sugrīva, surrounded by his dependants, slowly sought the presence of Śrī Rāma. (2)

स तं समासाद्य गृहीतचाप-मुदात्तमाशीविषतुल्यबाणम् ।
यशस्विनं लक्षणलक्षिताङ्ग-
मवस्थितं राघवमित्युवाच ॥ ३ ॥

Duly approaching the celebrated, noble and glorious Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), who stood with his bow held in his grip and whose arrows resembled a snake, nay, whose limbs were distinguished with marks of royalty, Sugrīva submitted to him as follows : (3)

यथा प्रतिज्ञातमिदं नरेन्द्र
कृतं त्वया दृष्टफलं च कर्म ।
ममाद्य भोगेषु नरेन्द्रसूने
मनो निवृत्तं हतजीवितेन ॥ ४ ॥

“Although an exploit in the form of striking down Vālī with a single arrow, whose result in the shape of restoration of my kingdom and lost spouse is patent, has been accomplished as promised by you, O ruler of men, my mind, O prince, has recoiled from luxuries alongwith this accursed life, which has been responsible for the death of my own elder brother today. (4)

अस्यां महिष्यां तु भृशं रुदत्यां
पुरेऽतिविक्रोशति दुःखतप्ते ।
हते नृपे संशयितेऽङ्गदे च
न राम राज्ये रमते मनो मे ॥ ५ ॥

“Now that the king has been killed, this principal queen, Tārā, for her part is weeping bitterly, nay, the entire town is screaming, agonized as it is due to sorrow, and Aṅgada, his son, is in peril of losing his life due to extreme grief, my mind, O Rāma, no longer takes delight in sovereignty. (5)

क्रोधादमर्षादतिविप्रधर्षाद्
भ्रातुर्वधो मेऽनुमतः पुरस्तात् ।
हते त्विदानीं हरियूथपेऽस्मिन्
सुतीक्ष्णमिक्ष्वाकुवर प्रतप्ये ॥ ६ ॥

“Due to anger and indignation occasioned by utter humiliation at the hands of my deceased brother, I had consented the destruction of my elder brother in the past; but now that this Vālī (the leader of monkey hordes) has been killed, I shall bitterly repent for the whole of my life, O jewel among the Ikṣvākus ! (6)

श्रेयोऽद्य मन्ये मम शैलमुख्ये
तस्मिन् हि वासश्चिरमृष्यमूके ।
यथा तथा वर्तयतः स्ववृत्त्या
नेमं निहत्य त्रिदिवस्य लाभः ॥ ७ ॥

“I am of the opinion today that my dwelling for long on R̥ṣyamūka, that jewel among mountains, supporting life anyhow through the means of subsistence natural for monkeys, is surely preferable rather than attaining even heaven as a sequel to killing Vālī. (7)

न त्वा जिघांसामि चरेति यन्मा-

मयं महात्मा मतिमानुवाच ।
तस्यैव तद् राम वचोऽनुरूप-
मिदं वचः कर्म च मेऽनुरूपम् ॥ ८ ॥

“The familiar words: ‘I do not wish to kill you, depart !’ which, O Rāma, this high souled and wise monkey spoke to me on my challenging him to a duel were worthy of him alone: while this request which I made to you to dispose of him and exploit (in the shape of getting him killed by you) are worthy of me ! (8)

भ्राता कथं नाम महागुणस्य
भ्रातुर्वधं राम विरोचयेत ।
राज्यस्य दुःखस्य च वीर सारं
विचिन्तयन् कामपुरस्कृतोऽपि ॥ ९ ॥

“How can a brother duly considering the weight of sovereignty acquired by killing his brother and sorrow following his death, even though he has placed lust in the forefront, O gallant Rāma, actually find pleasure in the destruction of his brother endowed with exceptional virtues? (9)

वधो हि मे मतो नासीत् स्वमाहात्म्यव्यतिक्रमात् ।
ममासीद् बुद्धिदौरात्म्यात् प्राणहारी व्यतिक्रमः ॥ १० ॥

“My destruction was surely never deemed fit by him because it would detract from his greatness; while due to perversity of my intellect an offence was committed by me, which proved fatal to him. (10)

द्रुमशाखावभग्नोऽहं मुहूर्तं परिनिष्टनन् ।
सान्त्वयित्वा त्वनेनोक्तो न पुनः कर्तुमर्हसि ॥ ११ ॥

“While groaning for an hour or so, when wounded by him with a bough of a tree, I was simply admonished by him, after comforting me, in the words: ‘You should not repeat this error.’ (11)

भ्रातृत्वमार्यभावश्च धर्मश्चानेन रक्षितः ।
मया क्रोधश्च कामश्च कपित्वं च प्रदर्शितम् ॥ १२ ॥

“While brotherliness, nobility and righteousness were studiously maintained by him, only wrath, lust and frivolity, the characteristics of a monkey, have been shown by me. (12)

अचिन्तनीयं परिवर्जनीय-
मनीप्सनीयं स्वनवेक्षणीयम् ।
प्राप्तोऽस्मि पाप्मानमिदं वयस्य
भ्रातुर्वधात् त्वाष्ट्रवधादिवेन्द्रः ॥ १३ ॥

“As a sequel to my planning the death of my own elder brother, I have reaped, as Indra (the ruler of gods) from the death of Viśwarūpa* (son of Twaṣṭā, one of the twelve sons of Aditi presiding over the sun, one after another, month by month), this fruit in the form of sin, which is inconceivable, worth eschewing, undesirable and utterly unthinkable, my friend ! (13)

पाप्मानमिन्द्रस्य मही जलं च
वृक्षाश्च कामं जगृहुः स्त्रियश्च ।
को नाम पाप्मानमिमं सहेत
शाखामृगस्य प्रतिपत्तुमिच्छेत् ॥ १४ ॥

“While the earth and water as also the trees and the womenkind voluntarily took on their head the aforesaid sin of Indra, who would actually take on his own head this sin of a monkey and who would endure it (even if one undertakes to do so)? (14)

नार्हामि सम्मानमिमं प्रजानां
न यौवराज्यं कुत एव राज्यम् ।
अधर्मयुक्तं कुलनाशयुक्त-
मेवंविधं राघव कर्म कृत्वा ॥ १५ ॥

“Having perpetrated such a sinful deed, attended with the destruction of one’s own race, O scion of Raghu, I do not deserve this great honour from the people and not even the office of Prince Regent, much less the throne of Kiṣkindhā. (15)

पापस्य कर्तास्मि विगर्हितस्य
क्षुद्रस्य लोकापकृतस्य लोके ।
शोको महान् मामभिवर्ततेऽयं
वृष्टेर्यथा निम्नमिवाम्बुवेगः ॥ १६ ॥

“I am the perpetrator of an abject sin which is severely condemned in the world and constitutes an injury to the whole world. An overwhelming grief is therefore engulfing me even as the onrush of water following a shower makes towards a depression. (16)

सोदर्यघातापरगात्रवालः
सन्तापहस्ताक्षिशिरोविषाणः ।
एनोमयो मामभिवर्तते हस्ती
दृप्तो नदीकूलमिव प्रवृद्धः ॥ १७ ॥

“The mad and fully grown elephant of sin, whose hind part and tail represent the destruction of a co-uterine brother and whose proboscis, eyes, head and tusks are made up of remorse, is striking me even as it would strike the bank of a river. (17)

अंहो बतेदं नृवराविषह्यं
निवर्तते मे हृदि साधुवृत्तम् ।
अग्नौ विवर्णं परितप्यमानं
किट्टं यथा राघव जातरूपम् ॥ १८ ॥

“Alas, coming in contact with this intolerable sin, O jewel among men, the stock of virtue too existing in my heart is fast disappearing even as the dross existing in gold, whose presence cannot be brooked long by gold, gets separated through contact with impure gold in the process of being heated at a stretch on fire. (18)

महाबलानां हरियूथपाना-
मिदं कुलं राघव मन्निमित्तम् ।
अस्याङ्गदस्यापि च शोकतापा-
दर्धस्थितप्राणमितीव मन्ये ॥ १९ ॥

“Since I have been instrumental in the destruction of Vāli, as also due to the burning caused by grief of separation from his beloved father in the heart of Aṅgada, I consider this race of very mighty monkey chiefs as only half living and half dead, as it were. (19)

सुतः सुलभ्यः सुजनः सुवश्यः
कुतस्तु पुत्रः सदृशोऽङ्गदेन ।
न चापि विद्येत स वीर देशो
यस्मिन् भवेत् सोदरसंनिकर्षः ॥ २० ॥

“A son who is virtuous and fully amenable to control is easy to get; but nowhere can a son like Aṅgada be found. Nor is there a land where proximity to a co-uterine brother can be had, O gallant prince !
(20)

अद्याङ्गदो वीरवरो न जीवे-
ज्जीवेत माता परिपालनार्थम् ।
विना तु पुत्रं परितापदीना
सा नैव जीवेदिति निश्चितं मे ॥ २१ ॥

“Aṅgada, the foremost of heroes, may no longer survive the death of his father; while his mother can survive only to take care of her son. But without her son she will never survive, miserable as she is through agony caused by her husband's death: this is my positive belief.
(21)

सोऽहं प्रवेक्ष्याम्यतिदीप्तमग्निं
भ्रात्रा च पुत्रेण च सख्यमिच्छन् ।
इमे विचेष्यन्ति हरिप्रवीराः
सीतां निदेशे परिवर्तमानाः ॥ २२ ॥

“Seeking to be on a par with my deceased brother and son (Aṅgada, who is sure to die), I shall accordingly enter a blazing fire. Remaining at your beck and call, these foremost heroes among monkeys will search for Sītā.
(22)

कृत्स्नं तु ते सेत्स्यति कार्यमेत-न्मय्यप्यतीते मनुजेन्द्रपुत्र ।
कुलस्य हन्तारमजीवनाहं
रामानुजानीहि कृतागसं माम् ॥ २३ ॥

“Even when I have passed away, O prince, this object of yours will undoubtedly be accomplished in its entirety. Therefore, O Rāma, grant me leave to die, I, who am the destroyer of my race, and therefore an offender and as such not fit to survive.”
(23)

इत्येवमार्तस्य रघुप्रवीरः
श्रुत्वा वचो वालिजघन्यजस्य ।
संजातबाष्पः परवीरहन्ता
रामो मुहूर्तं विमना बभूव ॥ २४ ॥

Moved to tears to hear the foregoing lament of the wretched Sugriva (the younger brother of Vālī), Śrī Rāma, the foremost hero of the Raghus, the slayer of hostile warriors, felt discomposed for a while.
(24)

तस्मिन् क्षणेऽभीक्ष्णमवेक्षमाणः
क्षितिक्षमावान् भुवनस्य गोप्ता ।
रामो रुदन्तीं व्यसने निमग्नां
समुत्सुकः सोऽथ ददर्श ताराम् ॥ २५ ॥

Looking round again and again most eagerly, the celebrated Śrī Rāma, the protector of the world, who was full of forbearance like the earth, presently beheld at that moment Tārā, who was plunged overhead in adversity and was, therefore, weeping.
(25)

तां चारुनेत्रां कपिसिंहनाथां
पतिं समाश्लिष्य तदा शयानाम् ।
उत्थापयामासुरदीनसत्त्वां
मन्त्रिप्रधानाः कपिराजपत्नीम् ॥ २६ ॥

The foremost of Vālī's ministers lifted up that noble-minded wife of Vālī, Tārā, who had lovely eyes and who lay at that moment closely embracing her husband, who was the sovereign of lions among monkeys.
(26)

सा विस्फुरन्ती परिरभ्यमाणा
भर्तुः समीपादपनीयमाना ।
ददर्श रामं शरचापपाणि
स्वतेजसा सूर्यमिव ज्वलन्तम् ॥ २७ ॥

Struggling to extricate herself from their grip when being torn asunder from her husband, and clinging to him again, Tārā beheld Śrī Rāma, carrying an arrow and a bow in his hands, and shining like the blazing sun in his brilliance.
(27)

सुसंवृतं पार्थिवलक्षणैश्च
तं चारुनेत्रं मृगशावनेत्रा ।
अदृष्टपूर्वं पुरुषप्रधान-
मयं स काकुत्स्थ इति प्रजज्ञे ॥ २८ ॥

The fawn-eyed lady recognized that lovely-eyed jewel among men, whom she had never seen before and who was richly endowed with the bodily marks of a sovereign, to be the same scion of Kakutstha of whom she had heard from the mouth of Aṅgada. (28)

तस्येन्द्रकल्पस्य दुरासदस्य
महानुभावस्य समीपमार्या ।
आर्तातितूर्णं व्यसनं प्रपन्ना
जगाम तारा परिविह्वलन्ती ॥ २९ ॥

The noble Tārā, who had fallen in adversity and, therefore, felt miserable, sought, tottering with very quick paces, the presence of Śrī Rāma, who vied with Indra, was difficult to approach and bore an exalted demeanour. (29)

तं सा समासाद्य विशुद्धसत्त्वं
शोकेन सम्भ्रान्तशरीरभावा ।
मनस्विनी वाक्यमुवाच तारा
रामं रणोत्कर्षणलब्धलक्ष्यम् ॥ ३० ॥

Duly approaching Śrī Rāma, who was endowed with an utterly pure mind and who ever hit the target by virtue of his excelling all in combat, that high-minded Tārā, who had lost all consciousness of her body through grief, spoke to him as follows : (30)

त्वमप्रमेयश्च दुरासदश्च
जितेन्द्रियश्चोत्तमधर्मकश्च ।
अक्षीणकीर्तिश्च विचक्षणश्च
क्षितिक्षमावान् क्षतजोपमाक्षः ॥ ३१ ॥

“You are immeasurable in point of time, space and substance, nay, difficult to approach even for Yogis and have mastered your senses; you are possessed of the highest virtue and enjoy undecaying fame; you are wise and endowed with forbearance like the earth, and are distinguished by blood-red eyes. (31)

त्वमात्तबाणासनबाणपाणि-
र्महाबलः संहननोपपन्नः ।
मनुष्यदेहाभ्युदयं विहाय
दिव्येन देहाभ्युदयेन युक्तः ॥ ३२ ॥

“You are carrying a bow and hold an arrow in your hand, are possessed of extraordinary might and endowed with strong limbs. Having renounced the happiness enjoyable through a human form, you are still endowed with bodily happiness of an unearthly character. (32)

येनैव बाणेन हतः प्रियो मे
तेनैव बाणेन हि मां जहीहि ।
हता गमिष्यामि समीपमस्य
न मां विना वीर रमेत वाली ॥ ३३ ॥

“Pray, actually kill me with that very arrow with which my darling has surely been killed by you. When killed by you, I shall reach his presence; Vālī may not feel happy without me. (33)

स्वर्गेऽपि पद्मामलपत्रनेत्र
समेत्य सम्प्रेक्ष्य च मामपश्यन् ।
न ह्येष उच्चावचताम्रचूडा
विचित्रवेषाप्सरसोऽभजिष्यत् ॥ ३४ ॥

“Even on coming in contact with celestial nymphs and gazing on them with curiosity he would certainly not love those nymphs though adorned with a chaplet of red flowers of every description and clad in a many-coloured costume, unless he sees me there, O prince, possessed of eyes resembling stainless lotus-petals ! (34)

स्वर्गेऽपि शोकं च विवर्णतां च
मया विना प्राप्स्यति वीर वाली ।
रम्ये नगेन्द्रस्य तटावकाशे
विदेहकन्यारहितो यथा त्वम् ॥ ३५ ॥

“Without me, O heroic prince, Vālī will only experience grief and loss of colour even in heaven, even as bereft of Sitā

(a princess of the Videha territory) you experience grief and cheerlessness on the delightful slopes of Mount R̥ṣyamūka, the king of mountains. (35)

त्वं वेत्थ तावद् वनिताविहीनः

प्राप्नोति दुःखं पुरुषः कुमारः ।

तत् त्वं प्रजानञ्जहि मां न वाली

दुःखं ममादर्शनजं भजेत ॥ ३६ ॥

“You for one know how a young man bereft of his beloved wife undergoes suffering. Knowing this well, dispose you of me so that Vālī may not have to undergo suffering born of failure to see me. (36)

यच्चापि मन्येत भवान् महात्मा

स्त्रीघातदोषस्तु भवेन् महात्म ।

आत्मेयमस्येति हि मां जहि त्वं

न स्त्रीवधः स्यान्मनुजेन्द्रपुत्र ॥ ३७ ॥

“If you, an exalted soul that you are, are keen that the sin of killing a woman should not fall on your head, pray, kill me taking me to be the other self of Vālī, in which case the sin of killing a woman will not descend on you, O prince ! (37)

शास्त्रप्रयोगाद् विविधाश्च वेदा-

दनन्यरूपाः पुरुषस्य दाराः ।

दारप्रदानाद्धि न दानमन्यत्

प्रदृश्यते ज्ञानवतां हि लोके ॥ ३८ ॥

“The title to perform sacrifice etc., enjoined in the scriptures being enjoyed in particular by a man in conjunction with his wedded wife only and also according to various Vedic texts¹, a wife is identical with her husband. Hence by men of wisdom no gift is actually regarded as greater than that of a wife in the world. (38)

त्वं चापि मां तस्य मम प्रियस्य

प्रदास्यसे धर्ममवेक्ष्य वीर ।

अनेन दानेन न लप्स्यसे त्व-

मधर्मयोगं मम वीर घातात् ॥ ३९ ॥

“If, having due regard to piety, O gallant prince, you restore me to my aforesaid darling, you too will by virtue of this gift not get your share of sin which will accrue from my destruction (according to the maxim that through virtue one drives away sin² O heroic prince !). (39)

आर्तामनाथामपनीयमाना-

मेवंगतां नार्हसि मामहन्तुम् ।

अहं हि मातङ्गविलासगामिना

प्लवंगमानामृषभेण धीमता ।

विना वरार्होत्तमहेममालिना

चिरं न शक्यामि नरेन्द्र जीवितुम् ॥ ४० ॥

“You ought not to spare me, distressed, forlorn and reduced to this plight, as I am, and when I am being torn from my husband; for I shall not be able to survive long without the sagacious Vālī (the foremost of monkeys), whose graceful gait resembled that of an elephant and who was adorned with a valuable and excellent chain of gold, O ruler of men!” (40)

इत्येवमुक्तस्तु विभुर्महात्मा

तारां समाश्वास्य हितं बभाषे ।

मा वीरभार्ये विमतिं कुरुष्व

लोको हि सर्वो विहितो विधात्रा ॥ ४१ ॥

तं चैव सर्वं सुखदुःखयोगं

लोकोऽब्रवीत् तेन कृतं विधात्रा ।

त्रयोऽपि लोका विहितं विधानं

नातिक्रमन्ते वशगा हि तस्य ॥ ४२ ॥

प्रीतिं परां प्राप्स्यसि तां तथैव

पुत्रश्च ते प्राप्स्यति यौवराज्यम् ।

धात्रा विधानं विहितं तथैव

न शूरपत्न्यः परिदेवयन्ति ॥ ४३ ॥

Duly comforting Tārā when prayed to in the foregoing words, the powerful and high-souled prince, Śrī Rāma, for his part tendered to her the following salutary advice : “Pray, do not pursue a wrong line of thought, O consort of a hero! For the whole world

1. cf अर्थो वा एष आत्मनो यत्पत्नी—A wife is a part and parcel of one's own self.

2. धर्मेण पापमपनुदति । was evolved at the dawn of creation by the Creator and people speak of the entire creation as having been united with joy and sorrow by the same Creator. All the three worlds dare not overstep the bounds that have been fixed by the said Creator inasmuch as they are subject to His control. You will enjoy supreme delight through Sugrīva in the same way as you did before in the presence of Vālī and your son, Aṅgada, will attain the position of Prince Regent. (41—43)

आश्वासिता तेन महात्मना तु
प्रभावयुक्तेन परंतपेन ।

सा वीरपत्नी ध्वनता मुखेन

सुवेषरूपा विरराम तारा ॥ ४४ ॥

“The course of events has been ordained precisely that way by Providence and the wives of heroes do not wail (as you do).” Reassured in the foregoing words by the high-souled and powerful Śrī Rāma, the scorcher of his foes, the celebrated Tārā, the consort of a hero, for her part, who was not only finely dressed but had a charming exterior too and was till now marked with a wailing countenance, became silent. (44)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे चतुर्विंशः सर्गः ॥ २४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-four in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXV

Śrī Rāma consoles Sugrīva and others. Entrusting Sugrīva with the work of getting firewood for the cremation of Vālī, Lakṣmaṇa asks Tārā to arrange for a palanquin to carry Vālī in state to the crematory. Placing the dead body of Vālī as commanded by Śrī Rāma on the palanquin brought by Tārā, Sugrīva and others carry the palanquin to the riverside and, taking it down on a sandy bank, prepare a pyre. Vānara women comfort Tārā mourning the death of Vālī with his head placed in her lap. Placing the dead body of Vālī on the pyre, Aṅgada sets fire to it. At the end of the cremation they all offer water to the spirit of the deceased and return to Śrī Rāma's presence

स सुग्रीवं च तारां च साङ्गदां सहलक्ष्मणः ।
समानशोकः काकुत्स्थः सान्त्वयन्निदमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Comforting Sugrīva and Tārā too, who was accompanied by Aṅgada, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kākutstha, who shared their grief and was followed by Lakṣmaṇa, spoke to them as follows : (1)

न शोकपरितापेन श्रेयसा युज्यते मृतः ।
यदत्रानन्तरं कार्यं तत् समाधातुमर्हथ ॥ २ ॥

“A departed soul is not rendered fit for beatitude by grieving for him and giving way to remorse. You should, therefore, attend immediately to that which should be done now for the welfare of the departed soul, immediately after death. (2)

लोकवृत्तमनुष्ठेयं कृतं वो बाष्पमोक्षणम् ।
न कालादुत्तरं किञ्चित् कर्मशक्यमुपासितुम् ॥ ३ ॥

“Popular usage must also be observed and the same has been done by you in the form of shedding tears for the deceased. And, no religious duty to a departed soul can be performed after the appointed time, which is now passing. (3)

नियतिः कारणं लोके नियतिः कर्मसाधनम्।

नियतिः सर्वभूतानां नियोगेष्विह कारणम् ॥ ४ ॥

“The all-controlling Time-Spirit is the cause of all in the world. The Time-spirit again determines all duties and Time-Spirit again is the factor prompting all to action. (4)

न कर्ता कस्यचित् कश्चिन्नियोगे नापि चेश्वरः।

स्वभावे वर्तते लोकस्तस्य कालः परायणम् ॥ ५ ॥

“There is no independent doer of any action nor is anyone competent to prompt anyone to action. The whole world follows its own nature and the Time-Spirit is the substratum of Nature. (5)

न कालः कालमत्येति न कालः परिहीयते।

स्वभावं च समासाद्य न कश्चिदतिवर्तते ॥ ६ ॥

“The Time-Spirit does not overstep Its own bounds nor does It suffer diminution. Nay, coming face to face with Nature in the form of Destiny, no living being can transgress It. (6)

न कालस्यास्ति बन्धुत्वं न हेतुर्न पराक्रमः।

न मित्रज्ञातिसम्बन्धः कारणं नात्मनो वशः ॥ ७ ॥

किं तु कालपरीणामो द्रष्टव्यः साधु पश्यता।

धर्मश्चार्थश्च कामश्च कालक्रमसमाहिताः ॥ ८ ॥

“The Time-Spirit has no kinship, friendship or affinity with anyone nor is there any means of bringing It under control nor again can one's prowess prevail against It. Nor is God, who is the Cause of all, subject to the control of an individual soul. By a discerning man everything should be looked upon as an evolute of the Time-Spirit. Nay, even religious merit, and worldly prosperity and sensuous enjoyment are attained in process of Time. (7-8)

इतः स्वां प्रकृतिं वाली गतः प्राप्तः क्रियाफलम्।

सामदानार्थसंयोगैः पवित्रं प्लवगेश्वरः ॥ ९ ॥

“Having attained in this world the immaculate fruit of his actions in the form of enjoyment through conciliation, gifts and proper use of wealth, Vālī, the ruler of monkeys, has now, departing from this world, regained his own spiritual nature. (9)

स्वधर्मस्य च संयोगाज्जितस्तेन महात्मना।

स्वर्गः परिगृहीतश्च प्राणानपरिरक्षता ॥ १० ॥

“The highest heaven, which was earned by him through steadfastness to his duty, has now been actually attained by that high-souled monkey by not preserving his life. (10)

एषा वै नियतिः श्रेष्ठा यां गतो हरियूथपः।

तदलं परितापेन प्राप्तकालमुपास्यताम् ॥ ११ ॥

“This destiny which Vālī (the leader of monkey hordes) has attained, is indeed the highest. Therefore, have done with grief and let that which is appropriate to the occasion be attended to.” (11)

वचनान्ते तु रामस्य लक्ष्मणः परवीरहा।

अवदत् प्रश्रितं वाक्यं सुग्रीवं गतचेतसम् ॥ १२ ॥

After Śrī Rāma had finished speaking, Lakṣmaṇa, the slayer of hostile warriors, addressed the following polite words to Sugrīva, who had lost his balance of mind : (12)

कुरु त्वमस्य सुग्रीव प्रेतकार्यमनन्तरम्।

ताराङ्गदाभ्यां सहितो वालिनो दहनं प्रति ॥ १३ ॥

“Perform you in conjunction with Tārā and Āṅgada, O Sugrīva, without delay, the rites relating to the disposal of the dead body of Vālī and make arrangements for his cremation. (13)

समाज्ञापय काष्ठानि शुष्काणि च बहूनि च।

चन्दनानि च दिव्यानि वालिसंस्कारकारणात् ॥ १४ ॥

“Please command some responsible official to get together numerous logs of dry wood as well as excellent pieces of sandal-wood for the cremation of Vālī. (14)

समाश्वासय दीनं त्वमङ्गदं दीनचेतसम्।

मा भूर्बालिशबुद्धिस्त्वं त्वदधीनमिदं पुरम् ॥ १५ ॥

“Duly comfort you the wretched Aṅgada, who is distressed in mind. Be you not puerile-minded; this city of Kiṣkindhā depends on you. (15)

अङ्गदस्त्वानयेन्माल्यं वस्त्राणि विविधानि च ।
घृतं तैलमथो गन्धान् यच्चात्र समनन्तरम् ॥ १६ ॥

“Let Aṅgada for his part fetch garlands and textiles of every description, ghee, oil and fragrant substances and whatever else is immediately required at this moment for the cremation. (16)

त्वं तार शिबिकां शीघ्रमादायागच्छस्मभ्रमात् ।
त्वरा गुणवती युक्ता ह्यस्मिन् काले विशेषतः ॥ १७ ॥

“Taking a palanquin quickly, return you, O Tārā, with expedition; for promptitude is praiseworthy and particularly called for at this hour. (17)

सज्जीभवन्तु प्लवगाः शिबिकावाहनोचिताः ।
समर्था बलिनश्चैव निर्हरिष्यन्ति वालिनम् ॥ १८ ॥

“Let competent and mighty monkeys fit to carry the palanquin, who will bear away Vāli to the crematory, get ready for the purpose.” (18)

एवमुक्त्वा तु सुग्रीवं सुमित्रानन्दवर्धनः ।
तस्थौ भ्रातृसमीपस्थो लक्ष्मणः परवीरहा ॥ १९ ॥

Having instructed Sugriva as aforesaid, Lakṣmaṇa, the slayer of hostile warriors, for his part, who heightened the joy of Sumitrā (his own mother), stood silent by the side of his eldest brother. (19)

लक्ष्मणस्य वचः श्रुत्वा तारः सम्भ्रान्तमानसः ।
प्रविवेश गुहां शीघ्रं शिबिकासक्तमानसः ॥ २० ॥

Hearing the behest of Lakṣmaṇa, Tāra with an agitated mind quickly entered Kiṣkindhā (which was situated inside a cave), his heart set on getting a palanquin. (20)

आदाय शिबिकां तारः स तु पर्यापतत् पुनः ।
वानरैरुह्यमानां तां शूरैरुद्रह्नोचितैः ॥ २१ ॥

दिव्यां भद्रासनयुतां शिबिकां स्यन्दनोपमाम् ।
पक्षिकर्मभिराचित्रां द्रुमकर्मविभूषिताम् ॥ २२ ॥

आचितां चित्रपत्तीभिः सुनिविष्टां समन्ततः ।
विमानमिव सिद्धानां जालवातायनायुताम् ॥ २३ ॥
सुनियुक्तां विशालां च सुकृतां शिल्पिभिः कृताम् ।
दारुपर्वतकोपेतां चारुकर्मपरिष्कृताम् ॥ २४ ॥
वराभरणहारैश्च चित्रमाल्योपशोभिताम् ।
गुहागहनसंछन्नां रक्तचन्दनभूषिताम् ॥ २५ ॥
पुष्पौघैः समभिच्छन्नां पद्ममालाभिरेव च ।
तरुणादित्यवर्णाभिर्भ्राजमानाभिरावृताम् ॥ २६ ॥

The celebrated Tāra for his part rushed back to the spot where Vāli lay dead, taking a well-known chariot-like palanquin, which was being borne by valiant monkeys fit to carry it, nay, which had been got from heaven, was furnished with an elevated and royal seat and brought good fortune to those travelling by it; which presented a weird aspect with carved wooden figures of birds of every description and was decorated with the figures of trees; which was crowded with the figures of foot-soldiers and had its parts artistically disposed on all sides; which looked like an aerial car belonging to Siddhas and was provided with lattices and eye-holes for the passage of air; which was well-jointed and commodious and had been carefully designed by carpenters; which was provided with pleasure-mounds of wood, and had been perfected by craftsmen of lovable workmanship; which was adorned with excellent ornaments and necklaces and embellished with flowers of different colours; which was upholstered with a net and painted with red sandal-paste; which was thickly covered on all sides with heaps of flowers as well as with shining garlands of lotuses possessing the hue of the rising sun. (21—26)

ईदृशीं शिबिकां दृष्ट्वा रामो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ।
क्षिप्रं विनीयतां वाली प्रेतकार्यं विधीयताम् ॥ २७ ॥

Seeing such a palanquin, Śrī Rāma said to Lakṣmaṇa, “Let Vāli be borne away to the crematorium with all speed and let the obsequies relating to the deceased be gone through.” (27)

ततो वालिनमुद्यम्य सुग्रीवः शिबिकां तदा ।
आरोपयत विक्रोशनङ्गदेन सहैव तु ॥ २८ ॥

Raising Vālī's body in conjunction with Āṅgada and crying loudly all the time, Sugrīva for his part thereupon placed the body on the palanquin. (28)

आरोप्य शिबिकां चैव वालिनं गतजीवितम् ।
अलंकारैश्च विविधैर्माल्यैर्वस्त्रैश्च भूषितम् ॥ २९ ॥
आज्ञापयत् तदा राजा सुग्रीवः प्लवगेश्वरः ।
और्ध्वदेहिकमार्यस्य क्रियतामनुकूलतः ॥ ३० ॥

Nay, having laid on the palanquin the dead Vālī, who was also adorned with ornaments of various kinds as well as with garlands and articles of wearing apparel,
King Sugrīva, the ruler of monkeys, then issued the following command : "Let the last rites with respect to my noble elder brother be performed in accordance with the scriptural ordinance. (29-30)

विश्राणयन्तो रत्नानि विविधानि बहूनि च ।
अग्रतः प्लवगा यान्तु शिबिका तदनन्तरम् ॥ ३१ ॥

"Let monkeys proceed in the van scattering jewels of every description in profusion, and the palanquin closely follow.
(31)

राज्ञामृद्धिविशेषा हि दृश्यन्ते भुवि यादृशाः ।
तादृशैरिह कुर्वन्तु वानरा भर्तृसत्क्रियाम् ॥ ३२ ॥

"Let the monkeys perform the last rites with respect to their lord on this occasion with costly articles, the like of which are actually seen on earth on the occasion of obsequies of kings." (32)

तादृशं वालिनः क्षिप्रं प्राकुर्वन्और्ध्वदेहिकम् ।
अङ्गदं परिरभ्याशु तारप्रभृतयस्तदा ॥ ३३ ॥

Embracing Āṅgada, Tāra and others then proceeded apace with the obsequies with respect to Vālī according to that standard.
(33)

क्रोशन्तः प्रययुः सर्वे वानरा हतबान्धवाः ।
ततः प्रणिहिताः सर्वा वानर्योऽस्य वशानुगाः ॥ ३४ ॥

चक्रुःशुर्वीरवीरेति भूयः क्रोशन्ति ताः प्रियम् ।
ताराप्रभृतयः सर्वा वानर्यो हतबान्धवाः ॥ ३५ ॥
अनुजग्मुश्च भर्तारं क्रोशन्यः करुणस्वनाः ।
तासां रुदितशब्देन वानरीणां वनान्तरे ॥ ३६ ॥
वनानि गिरयश्चैव विक्रोशन्तीव सर्वतः ।
पुलिने गिरिनद्यास्तु विविक्ते जलसंवृते ॥ ३७ ॥
चितां चक्रुः सुबहवो वानरा वनचारिणः ।
अवरोप्य ततः स्कन्धाच्छिबिकां वानरोत्तमाः ॥ ३८ ॥
तत्स्थुरेकान्तमाश्रित्य सर्वे शोकपरायणाः ।
ततस्तारा पतिं दृष्ट्वा शिबिकातलशायिनम् ॥ ३९ ॥
आरोप्याङ्गे शिरस्तस्य विललाप सुदुःखिता ।
हा वानरमहाराज हा नाथ मम वत्सल ॥ ४० ॥
हा महार्ह महाबाहो हा मम प्रिय पश्य माम् ।
जनं न पश्यसीमं त्वं कस्माच्छोकाभिपीडितम् ॥ ४१ ॥

All the monkeys, whose kinsman in the person of Vālī had been killed, walked in procession weeping to the crematorium. Then all the Vānara women who were amenable to the control of Vālī, cried loudly together saying "O hero, O hero !" and they further mourned for their beloved lord. All the Vānara women headed by Tārā, whose kinsman in the person of Vālī had been killed, followed their husband crying in a pitiful tone. Through the cries of the Vānara women in the depths of the forest, the woodlands as well as the hills cried, as it were, on all sides. On a lonely bank, surrounded by water, of a mountain-stream good many monkeys living in forests got a pyre ready. Taking down the palanquin from their shoulders, the foremost of monkeys, who bore the palanquin, then halted on a lonely spot, all given over to grief. Seeing her deceased husband lying at the bottom of the palanquin, and placing his head in her lap, Tārā thereupon proceeded to lament as follows, sore afflicted as she was: "O eminent ruler of monkeys, O lord fond of me and adored by the great, O mighty-armed darling of mine, pray, look at me. Why don't you cast a glance on this maid-servant of yours, sore stricken with grief? (34—41)

प्रहृष्टमिह ते वक्त्रं गतासोरपि मानद।
अस्तार्कसमवर्णं च दृश्यते जीवतो यथा ॥ ४२ ॥

“Even though life has departed from you, O bestower of honour on others, your countenance, whose colour resembles the hue of the setting sun, looks highly delighted even now as it did when you were living. (42)

एष त्वां रामरूपेण कालः कर्षति वानर।
येन स्म विधवाः सर्वाः कृता एकेषुणा रणे ॥ ४३ ॥

“In the form of Śrī Rāma, by whom all of us have been widowed with a single arrow discharged on the battlefield where you were engaged in a passage of arms with another, the Time-Spirit alone is hereby snatching you away from our midst to the other world, O monkey chief! (43)

इमास्तास्तव राजेन्द्र वानर्योऽप्लवगास्तव।
पादैर्विकृष्टमध्वानमागताः किं न बुध्यसे ॥ ४४ ॥

“Don’t you know, O Indra among kings, that these consorts of yours, who, though belonging to the monkey race, cannot leap, have trodden the long path on foot? (44)

तवेष्टा ननु चैवेमा भार्याश्चन्द्रनिभाननाः।
इदानीं नेक्षसे कस्मात् सुग्रीवं प्लवगेश्वर ॥ ४५ ॥

“Wherefore do you not cast your look at this moment on these wives of yours, whose countenance shines like the moon and who are surely dear to you, as well as on Sugrīva, O lord of monkeys? (45)

एते हि सचिवा राजंस्तारप्रभृतयस्तव।
पुरवासिजनश्चायं परिवार्य विषीदति ॥ ४६ ॥

“These counsellors of yours, Tāra and others, O king, as also these citizens stand dejected around you indeed. (46)

विसर्जयैनान् सचिवान् यथापुरमरिंदम।
ततः क्रीडामहे सर्वा वनेषु मदनोत्कटाः ॥ ४७ ॥

“Dismiss these counsellors as you did in the past, O tamer of your foes! Then, intoxicated with love we shall all sport with you in the woodlands.” (47)

एवं विलपतीं तारां पतिशोकपरीवृताम्।
उत्थापयन्ति स्म तदा वानर्यः शोककर्षिताः ॥ ४८ ॥

Emaciated through grief, the Vānara women then raised Tārā, who was overwhelmed with sorrow caused by the loss of her husband and was lamenting as aforesaid. (48)

सुग्रीवेण ततः सार्धं सोऽङ्गदः पितरं रुदन्।
चितामारोपयामास शोकेनाभिप्लुतेन्द्रियः ॥ ४९ ॥

With the help of Sugrīva, the celebrated Aṅgada, who was weeping all the time, placed his father’s body on the funeral pile, his mind plunged in grief. (49)

ततोऽग्निं विधिवद् दत्त्वा सोऽपसव्यं चकार ह।
पितरं दीर्घमध्वानं प्रस्थितं व्याकुलेन्द्रियः ॥ ५० ॥

Offering fire to the deceased in accordance with the scriptural ordinance, he then with a troubled mind went clockwise round his father, set out on his long journey to the other world: so the tradition goes. (50)

संस्कृत्य वालिनं तं तु विधिवत् प्लवगर्षभाः।
आजग्मुरुदकं कर्तुं नदीं शुभजलां शिवाम् ॥ ५१ ॥

Having cremated the aforesaid Vālī with due ceremony, the foremost of monkeys for their part sought the blessed river (Tuṅgabhadra) carrying sacred waters, in order to offer water to the departed soul for his satisfaction in the other world. (51)

ततस्ते सहितास्तत्र ह्यङ्गदं स्थाप्य चाग्रतः।
सुग्रीवतारासहिताः सिषिचुर्वालिने जलम् ॥ ५२ ॥

Nay, placing Aṅgada ahead, they all with Sugrīva and Tārā then offered on that spot handfuls of water in a body to the spirit of Vālī. (52)

सुग्रीवेणैव दीनेन दीनो भूत्वा महाबलः।
समानशोकः काकुत्स्थः प्रेतकार्याण्यकारयत् ॥ ५३ ॥

Feeling miserable, as it were, alongwith the wretched Sugrīva, whose grief he shared, the very mighty Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha) got the obsequies performed under his directions and guidance. (53)

ततोऽथ तं वालिनमग्र्यपौरुषं
 प्रकाशमिक्ष्वाकुवरेषुणा हतम् ।
 प्रदीप्य दीप्ताग्निसमौजसं तदा
 सलक्ष्मणं राममुपेयिवान् हरिः ॥ ५४ ॥

Having cremated at that moment according to the scriptural ordinance the aforesaid Vālī of highest virility, who was universally noted and had been got killed with the arrow of Śrī Rāma (the foremost of Ikṣvākus), Sugrīva, the monkey-chief, then forthwith sought the presence of Śrī Rāma, who was present there with Lakṣmaṇa and whose splendour resembled that of a blazing fire. (54)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे पञ्चविंशः सर्गः ॥ २५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-five in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षड्विंशः सर्गः

Canto XXVI

Requested by Hanumān to visit Kiṣkindhā, Śrī Rāma declines to do so on the ground of his having been prohibited by his father to enter the limits of a village or town and, directing that Sugrīva may be installed on the throne of Kiṣkindhā and Aṅgada may assume the office of Prince Regent, he himself takes a vow to live in a cave till the end of the monsoon and leaves instructions to initiate a search for Sītā after the monsoon

ततः शोकाभिसंतप्तं सुग्रीवं क्लिन्नवाससम् ।
 शाखामृगमहामात्राः परिवार्योपतस्थिरे ॥ १ ॥

Surrounding Sugrīva, who was tormented with grief and stood in wet clothes, having just finished his bath after cremation, those at the top of the Vānara army then stood near him. (1)

अभिगम्य महाबाहुं राममक्लिष्टकारिणम् ।
 स्थिताः प्राञ्जलयः सर्वे पितामहमिवर्षयः ॥ २ ॥

Approaching the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma, who was unwearied in action, all stood with joined palms as so many Ṛṣis by the side of Brahmā, the father of the Prajāpatīs, the progenitors of the universe. (2)

ततः काञ्चनशैलाभस्तरुणार्कनिभाननः ।
 अब्रवीत् प्राञ्जलिर्वाक्यं हनूमान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ ३ ॥

Thereupon Hanūmān, son of the wind-god, who looked like Sumeru (the golden mountain), and whose countenance shone like the rising sun, submitted as follows with joined palms : (3)

भवत्प्रसादात् काकुत्स्थ पितृपैतामहं महत् ।
 वानराणां सुदंष्ट्राणां सम्पन्नबलशालिनाम् ॥ ४ ॥
 महात्मनां सुदुष्प्रापं प्राप्तं राज्यमिदं प्रभो ।
 भवता समनुज्ञातः प्रविश्य नगरं शुभम् ॥ ५ ॥
 संविधास्यति कार्याणि सर्वाणि ससुहृद्गणः ।
 स्नातोऽयं विविधैर्गन्धैरौषधैश्च यथाविधि ॥ ६ ॥
 अर्चयिष्यति माल्यैश्च रत्नैश्च त्वां विशेषतः ।
 इमां गिरिगुहां रम्यामभिगन्तुं त्वमर्हसि ॥ ७ ॥

“By your grace, O scion of Kakutstha, has this great ancestral kingdom which was most difficult to acquire, of the high-minded monkeys endowed with sharp teeth and rich in consummate strength, been acquired by Sugrīva, O lord ! Entering in state the prosperous city of Kiṣkindhā, when duly permitted by you, he, with his host of near and dear ones, will perform in the proper way all his kingly duties. Having gone through as a part of the installation ceremony the ceremonial bath with water made fragrant by perfumes and medicinal herbs in accordance with the scriptural ordinance, he will offer special worship to you with garlands and jewels. You should, therefore, visit this lovely mountain-cave in which the city of Kiṣkindhā is comprised. (4—7)

कुरुष्व स्वामिसम्बन्धं वानरान् सम्प्रहर्षय ।
 एवमुक्तो हनुमता राघवः परवीरहा ॥ ८ ॥
 प्रत्युवाच हनूमन्तं बुद्धिमान् वाक्यकोविदः ।
 चतुर्दश समाः सौम्य ग्रामं वा यदि वा पुरम् ॥ ९ ॥
 न प्रवेक्ष्यामि हनुमन् पितुर्निर्देशपालकः ।
 सुसमृद्धां गुहां दिव्यां सुग्रीवो वानरर्षभः ॥ १० ॥
 प्रविष्टो विधिवद् वीरः क्षिप्रं राज्येऽभिषिच्यताम् ।
 एवमुक्त्वा हनूमन्तं रामः सुग्रीवमब्रवीत् ॥ ११ ॥

“Pray, unite the monkeys with a master and thereby afford exceptional delight to them.” Requested thus by Hanumān, the wise Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), the slayer of hostile warriors, who was an adept in expression, replied as follows to Hanumān: “Obeying, O gentle Hanumān, the directions of my late lamented father, I will not enter for fourteen years even a village, much less a town. Let the valiant Sugrīva, the foremost of monkeys, be installed without delay on the throne of Kiṣkindhā with due ceremony as soon as he has entered the highly prosperous and wonderful cave comprising the city of Kiṣkindhā.” Having replied thus to Hanumān, Śrī Rāma spoke as follows to Sugrīva :

(8—11)

वृत्तज्ञो वृत्तसम्पन्नमुदारबलविक्रमम् ।
 इममप्यङ्गदं वीरं यौवराज्येऽभिषेचय ॥ १२ ॥

“Conversant as you are with the rules of conduct, both wordly as well as religious, install in the office of Prince Regent this gallant prince, Aṅgada, too, who is rich in moral character and endowed with extraordinary strength and valour. (12)

ज्येष्ठस्य हि सुतो ज्येष्ठः सदृशो विक्रमेण च ।
 अङ्गदोऽयमदीनात्मा यौवराज्यस्य भाजनम् ॥ १३ ॥

“Being the eldest son of your elder brother and equal to him in prowess, this boy, Aṅgada, noble-minded as he is, deserves the office of Prince Regent. (13)

पूर्वोऽयं वार्षिको मासः श्रावणः सलिलागमः ।
 प्रवृत्ताः सौम्य चत्वारो मासा वार्षिकसंज्ञिताः ॥ १४ ॥

“This is the first rainy month of Śrāvaṇa (roughly corresponding to July), in which showers are expected. The four months known by the name of rainy months have already commenced, O gentle one ! (14)

नायमुद्योगसमयः प्रविश त्वं पुरीं शुभाम् ।
 अस्मिन् वत्स्याम्यहं सौम्य पर्वते सहलक्ष्मणः ॥ १५ ॥

This is not the time for endeavour in the nature of a search for Sitā. Therefore, re-enter you the beautiful city of Kiṣkindhā; while I, O dear one, shall dwell with Lakṣmaṇa on this mountain. (15)

इयं गिरिगुहा रम्या विशाला युक्तमारुता ।
 प्रभूतसलिला सौम्य प्रभूतकमलोत्पला ॥ १६ ॥

“This lovely cavern, O gentle brother, is commodious and airy, contains plenty of water in the form of cascades and bounds in lotuses and lilies. (16)

कार्तिके समनुप्राप्ते त्वं रावणवधे यत ।
 एष नः समयः सौम्य प्रविश त्वं स्वमालयम् ॥ १७ ॥

“When the autumnal month of Kārtika (roughly corresponding to October) has duly set in, make you an endeavour to get rid of Rāvaṇa: such is our understanding, O dear friend ! For the present enter you your palace. (17)

अभिषिञ्चस्व राज्ये च सुहृदः सम्प्रहर्षय ।
 इति रामाभ्यनुज्ञातः सुग्रीवो वानरर्षभः ॥ १८ ॥
 प्रविवेश पुरीं रम्यां किष्किन्धां वालिपालिताम् ।
 तं वानरसहस्राणि प्रविष्टं वानरेश्वरम् ॥ १९ ॥

अभिचार्यं प्रविष्टानि सर्वतः प्लवगेश्वरम् ।
 ततः प्रकृतयः सर्वा दृष्ट्वा हरिगणेश्वरम् ॥ २० ॥
 प्रणम्य मूर्ध्ना पतिता वसुधायां समाहिताः ।
 सुग्रीवः प्रकृतीः सर्वाः सम्भाष्योत्थाप्य वीर्यवान् ॥ २१ ॥
 भ्रातुरन्तःपुरं सौम्यं प्रविवेश महाबलः ।
 प्रविष्टं भीमविक्रान्तं सुग्रीवं वानरर्षभम् ॥ २२ ॥
 अभ्यषिञ्चन्त सुहृदः सहस्राक्षमिवामराः ।
 तस्य पाण्डुरमाजहुश्छत्रं हेमपरिष्कृतम् ॥ २३ ॥
 शुक्ले च वालव्यजने हेमदण्डे यशस्करे ।
 तथा रत्नानि सर्वाणि सर्वबीजौषधानि च ॥ २४ ॥
 सक्षीराणां च वृक्षाणां प्ररोहान् कुसुमानि च ।
 शुक्लानि चैव वस्त्राणि श्वेतं चैवानुलेपनम् ॥ २५ ॥
 सुगन्धीनि च माल्यानि स्थलजान्यम्बुजानि च ।
 चन्दनानि च दिव्यानि गन्धांश्च विविधान् बहून् ॥ २६ ॥
 अक्षतं जातरूपं च प्रियङ्गुं मधुसर्पिषी ।
 दधि चर्म च वैयाघ्रं परार्घ्यौ चाप्युपानहौ ॥ २७ ॥

“Get yourself installed on the throne and bring extreme delight to your near and dear ones.” Duly letting him go in these words by Śrī Rāma, Sugrīva, the foremost of monkeys, entered in state the delightful city of Kiṣkindhā, protected so long by Vālī. Saluting the aforesaid king of monkeys when he had entered the city, thousands of monkeys duly entered the city keeping on every side of Sugrīva, the ruler of monkeys. Seeing Sugrīva (the ruler of hordes of monkeys) and reverently saluting him with their head bent low, all his subjects thereupon fell prostrate on the ground in a body. Calling on all his subjects to rise and speaking politely to them, the valiant Sugrīva, who was possessed of extraordinary might, duly entered the pleasing gynaeceum of his brother, Vālī. When Sugrīva, the foremost of monkeys, had come out of the gynaeceum after entering it and returned to the assembly hall, his near and dear ones consecrated him with a ceremonial bath as a part of the installation ceremony, even as the gods consecrated Indra, the thousand-eyed god.

They brought him a white canopy decorated with gold as also a pair of white whisks provided with handles of gold—which brought him renown—nay, all kinds of jewels and all specimens of seeds and herbs, the fibrous offshoots of trees exuding milk, and flowers, also white raiments as well as white fragrant substances for smearing one's body with, fragrant flowers growing on land and water, pieces of sandalwood of the Divya class, numerous fragrant substances of various kinds, grains of unbroken rice dyed in turmeric (which are considered to be auspicious) and gold, panic seeds, honey and ghee, curds and tiger's skin as also a pair of costly shoes. (18—27)

समालम्भनमादाय गoroचनं मनःशिलाम् ।

आजग्मुस्तत्र मुदिता वराः कन्याश्च षोडश ॥ २८ ॥

Taking a fragrant paste (for painting one's body with), Gorocana (a bright yellow orpiment prepared from the bile of a cow) and Manahśilā (realgar), there arrived on the spot sixteen excellent joyous maids. (28)

ततस्ते वानरश्रेष्ठमभिषेक्तुं यथाविधि ।
 रत्नैर्वस्त्रैश्च भक्ष्यैश्च तोषयित्वा द्विजर्षभान् ॥ २९ ॥

Having propitiated the foremost of Brāhmaṇas with gifts of jewels and raiments, as well as with edibles of various kinds, they then proceeded to consecrate with a ceremonial bath, as a part of the installation ceremony, Sugrīva, the foremost of monkeys, in accordance with the scriptural ordinance. (29)

ततः कुशपरिस्तीर्णं समिद्धं जातवेदसम् ।
 मन्त्रपूतेन हविषा हुत्वा मन्त्रविदो जनाः ॥ ३० ॥

Then those knowing sacred texts propitiated the sacred fire, once it had been girdled by blades of the sacred Kuśa grass and duly ignited, with offerings consecrated through the recitation of sacred texts. (30)

ततो हेमप्रतिष्ठाने वरास्तरणसंवृते ।
 प्रासादशिखरे रम्ये चित्रमाल्योपशोभिते ॥ ३१ ॥
 प्राङ्मुखं विधिवन्मन्त्रैः स्थापयित्वा वरासने ।
 नदीनदेभ्यः संहृत्य तीर्थेभ्यश्च समन्ततः ॥ ३२ ॥

आहूय च समुद्रेभ्यः सर्वेभ्यो वानरर्षभाः ।
 अपः कनककुम्भेषु निधाय विमलं जलम् ॥ ३३ ॥
 शुभैर्ऋषभशृङ्गैश्च कलशैश्चैव काञ्चनैः ।
 शास्त्रदृष्टेन विधिना महर्षिविहितेन च ॥ ३४ ॥
 गजो गवाक्षो गवयः शरभो गन्धमादनः ।
 मैन्दश्च द्विविदश्चैव हनूमाञ्जाम्बवांस्तथा ॥ ३५ ॥
 अभ्यषिञ्चत सुग्रीवं प्रसन्नेन सुगन्धिना ।
 सलिलेन सहस्राक्षं वसवो वासवं यथा ॥ ३६ ॥

Then, having installed Sugrīva, his face turned east-ward, with due ceremony with the recitation of sacred texts, on an excellent seat with legs of gold and covered with rich draperies in a lovely attic, decorated with bright coloured garlands, nay, collecting water from the different streams and rivers as well as from sacred places in all the four quarters and bringing water from all the seas and storing the holy water in pitchers of gold, the foremost of monkeys, Gaja, Gavākṣa, Gavaya, Śarabha, Gandhamādana, Mainda and Dwivida as well as Hanumān and Jāmbavān, the chief of bears, bathed Sugrīva with that limpid and fragrant water poured through beautiful horns of bulls and jars of gold according to the procedure laid down in the scriptures and enjoined by eminent sages, even as the Vasus (a class of gods, eight in number) bathed the thousand-eyed Indra. (31—36)

अभिषिक्ते तु सुग्रीवे सर्वे वानरपुङ्गवाः ।
 प्रचुक्रुर्मुह्यमानो हृष्टाः शतसहस्रशः ॥ ३७ ॥

When Sugrīva had thus been consecrated with a ceremonial bath, the foremost of monkeys for their part, who were all lofty-minded and numbered hundreds of thousands, roared loudly with delight. (37)

रामस्य तु वचः कुर्वन् सुग्रीवो वानरेश्वरः ।
 अङ्गदं सम्परिष्वज्य यौवराज्येऽभ्यषेचयत् ॥ ३८ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे षड्विंशः सर्गः ॥ २६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-six in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

Doing the bidding of Śrī Rāma and closely embracing Aṅgada, Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, for his part installed him in the office of Prince Regent. (38)

अङ्गदे चाभिषिक्ते तु सानुक्रोशाः प्लवंगमाः ।
 साधु साध्विति सुग्रीवं महात्मानो ह्यपूजयन् ॥ ३९ ॥

Aṅgada having been installed in the office of Prince Regent, the high-minded monkeys, who were all full of sympathy for Aṅgada, acclaimed Sugrīva, saying "Excellent ! Excellent !!" (39)

रामं चैव महात्मानं लक्ष्मणं च पुनः पुनः ।
 प्रीताश्च तुष्टुवुः सर्वे तादृशे तत्र वर्तिनि ॥ ४० ॥

Sugrīva and Aṅgada being present in Kiṣkindhā in the capacity of a ruler and Prince Regent, respectively, all felt rejoiced and extolled the high-souled Śrī Rāma as also Lakṣmaṇa again and again. (40)

हृष्टपुष्टजनाकीर्णा पताकाध्वजशोभिता ।
 बभूव नगरी रम्या किष्किन्धा गिरिगह्वरे ॥ ४१ ॥

Crowded with joyous and well-fed people and decorated with buntings and flags, the city of Kiṣkindhā, which was situated inside a mountain-cave, presented a lovely look. (41)

निवेद्य रामाय तदा महात्मने
 महाभिषेकं कपिवाहिनीपतिः ।

रुमां च भार्यामुपलभ्य वीर्यवा-
 नवाप राज्यं त्रिदशाधिपो यथा ॥ ४२ ॥

Having reported to the high-souled Śrī Rāma the fact of his having gone through the momentous consecration as the ruler of Kiṣkindhā at that time, and having got back his wife, Rumā, the valiant Sugrīva (the leader of the monkey army) inherited the kingdom even as Indra, the suzerain lord of gods, attained the sovereignty of gods. (42)

सप्तविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXVII

Arrived at a cave of Mount Prasravaṇa and seeing the place suitable for his residence, Śrī Rāma takes up his abode there. One day when he is seized with anguish caused by his separation from Sītā, Lakṣmaṇa comforts him

अभिषिक्ते तु सुग्रीवे प्रविष्टे वानरे गुहाम् ।
आजगाम सह भ्रात्रा रामः प्रस्रवणं गिरिम् ॥ १ ॥
शार्दूलमृगसंघुष्टं सिंहैर्भीमरवैर्वृतम् ।
नानागुल्मलतागूढं बहुपादपसंकुलम् ॥ २ ॥
ऋक्षवानरगोपुच्छैर्माजरींश्च निषेवितम् ।
मेघराशिनिभं शैलं नित्यं शुचिकरं शिवम् ॥ ३ ॥

The monkey chief, Sugrīva, having been installed on the throne of Kīṣkindhā and having withdrawn to the cave comprising the town, Śrī Rāma for his part alongwith his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, retired to Mount Prasravaṇa, which was rendered noisy by tigers and deer, and infested with lions giving out a terrible roar, was covered with various shrubs and climbers and was thick with numerous trees, which was frequented by bears, monkeys, baboons and wild cats, nay, which looked like a mass of clouds, consisting as it mainly did of rocks, and was ever sanctifying and conducive to blessedness. (1—3)

तस्य शैलस्य शिखरे महतीमायतां गुहाम् ।
प्रत्यगृह्णीत वासार्थं रामः सौमित्रिणा सह ॥ ४ ॥

Śrī Rāma with Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) chose for his residence a large and long cave on the summit of that hill. (4)

कृत्वा च समयं रामः सुग्रीवेण सहानघः ।
कालयुक्तं महद्वाक्यमुवाच रघुनन्दनः ॥ ५ ॥
विनीतं भ्रातरं भ्राता लक्ष्मणं लक्ष्मिवर्धनम् ।
इयं गिरिगुहा रम्या विशाला युक्तमारुता ॥ ६ ॥

Nay, having arrived at an understanding with Sugrīva that expeditions will be sent by the latter in all directions to carry out a search for Sītā after the rains, the sinless brother, Śrī Rāma, the delight of the Raghus, made the following opportune and momentous observation to his modest younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, the promoter of fortune : “This mountain-cave is lovely, commodious and airy too. (5-6)

अस्यां वत्स्याम सौमित्रे वर्षरात्रमरिदम् ।
गिरिशृङ्गमिदं रम्यमुत्तमं पार्थिवात्मज ॥ ७ ॥
श्वेताभिः कृष्णताम्राभिः शिलाभिरुपशोभितम् ।
नानाधातुसमाकीर्णं नदीदुर्दुरसंयुतम् ॥ ८ ॥

“Let us dwell, O son of Sumitrā, in this during the rainy nights, O tamer of foes! “This delightful and excellent mountain-peak, O prince, is adorned with white, black and red crags, is rich in various minerals, and abounds in frogs having their abode in rivers. (7-8)

विविधैर्वृक्षघण्डैश्च चारुचित्रलतायुतम् ।
नानाविहगसंघुष्टं मयूरवरनादितम् ॥ ९ ॥

“It is charming with clusters of trees of every description, and embellished with wonderful climbers, is rendered noisy by birds of different species and made resonant with the cries of excellent peacocks. (9)

मालतीकुन्दगुल्मैश्च सिन्दुवारैः शिरीषकैः ।
कदम्बार्जुनसर्जैश्च पुष्पितैरुपशोभितम् ॥ १० ॥

“Nay, it is graced with Mālātī and jasmine shrubs and Sinduvāra, Śīriṣa, Kadamba, Arjuna and Sarja trees in blossom. (10)

इयं च नलिनी रम्या फुल्लपङ्कजमण्डिता ।
नातिदूरे गुहाया नौ भविष्यति नृपात्मज ॥ ११ ॥

“Again, this lovely pond embellished with full-blown lotuses will remain not very far from our cave when the pond gets flooded with rain water, O prince ! (11)

प्रागुदक्प्रवणे देशे गुहा साधु भविष्यति ।
पश्चाच्चैवोन्नता सौम्य निवातेयं भविष्यति ॥ १२ ॥

“Located as it is in a place inclined towards the north-east, the cave will prove comfortable for us in that it opens to the south-west and, being elevated in the west alone, it will be protected from the easterly winds and showers too, O gentle one ! (12)

गुहाद्वारे च सौमित्रे शिला समतला शिवा ।
कृष्णा चैवायता चैव भिन्नाञ्जनचयोपमा ॥ १३ ॥

“Again, at the entrance of the cave, O son of Sumitrā, there is a level and smooth rock, black as a heap of powdered antimony and extensive too. (13)

गिरिशृङ्गमिदं तात पश्य चोत्तरतः शुभम् ।
भिन्नाञ्जनचयाकारमम्भोधरमिवोदितम् ॥ १४ ॥

“Behold in the north, O dear brother, the yonder beautiful mountain-peak, resembling a heap of powdered antimony and looking like a cloud risen above the horizon. (14)

दक्षिणस्यामपि दिशि स्थितं श्वेतमिवाम्बरम् ।
कैलासशिखरप्रख्यं नानाधातुविराजितम् ॥ १५ ॥

“Behold in the southern quarter too another mountain-peak resembling a peak of Kailāsa and looking like a white cloth, rich in varied minerals. (15)

प्राचीनवाहिनीं चैव नदीं भृशमकर्दमाम् ।
गुहायाः परतः पश्य त्रिकूटे जाह्नवीमिव ॥ १६ ॥
चन्दनैस्तिलकैः सालैस्तमालैरतिमुक्तकैः ।
पद्मकैः सरलैश्चैव अशोकैश्चैव शोभिताम् ॥ १७ ॥

“Also behold on the other side of the cave a river resembling the Mandākinī at Trikuṭa (the place of our last sojourn), utterly free from mud, flowing in an easterly direction and fringed with sandalwood, Tilaka, sal, Tamāla, Atimukta, Padmaka and Sarala as well as by Aśoka trees. (16-17)

वानिरैस्तिमिदैश्चैव बकुलैः केतकैरपि ।
हिन्तालैस्तिनिशैर्नैपैर्वेतसैः कृतमालकैः ॥ १८ ॥
तीरजैः शोभिता भाति नानारूपैस्ततस्ततः ।
वसनाभरणोपेता प्रमदेवाभ्यलंकृता ॥ १९ ॥

“Adorned with Vānira, Timida, Bakula, Ketaka, Hintāla, Tiniśa, Nipa and Vetasa as well as with Kṛtamāla trees of various shapes growing here and there on its banks, it looks like a young woman provided with wearing apparel and ornaments and decorated all over her body. (18-19)

शतशः पक्षिसङ्घैश्च नानानादविनादिता ।
एकैकमनुरक्तैश्च चक्रवाकैरलंकृता ॥ २० ॥
पुलिनैरतिरम्यैश्च हंससारससेविता ।
प्रहसन्त्येव भात्येषा नानारत्नसमन्विता ॥ २१ ॥

“It is made noisy with various notes by hundreds of flocks of birds and is adorned with Chakravāka birds (a species of red geese) fond of one another, and hemmed in with its most lovely sandy banks. Frequented by swan and cranes and enriched with precious stones of various kinds, the river looks as though it were heartily laughing. (20-21)

क्वचिन्नीलोत्पलैश्छन्ना भातिरक्तोत्पलैः क्वचित् ।
क्वचिदाभाति शुक्लैश्च दिव्यैः कुमुदकुड्मलैः ॥ २२ ॥

“Here it looks carpeted with blue lilies and there with the red and at a third place with the buds of white water-lilies useful for sport. (22)

पारिप्लवशतैर्जुष्टा बहिक्रौञ्चविनादिता ।
रमणीया नदी सौम्या मुनिसङ्घनिषेविता ॥ २३ ॥

“Visited by hundreds of ducks and made noisy by peacocks and cranes and frequented by multitudes of ascetics, this placid river appears delightful, O gentle one. (23)

पश्य चन्दनवृक्षाणां पङ्क्तीः सुरुचिरा इव ।
ककुभानां च दृश्यन्ते मनसैवोदिताः समम् ॥ २४ ॥

“Behold also the most charming rows of sandalwood trees. Rows of Kakubha

(Arjuna) trees, which have appeared, as it were, with my thought, are also seen here. (24)

अहो सुरमणीयोऽयं देशः शत्रुनिषूदन।
दृढं रंस्याव सौमित्रे साध्वत्र निवसावहे॥ २५ ॥

“Ah, this region is most delightful, O destroyer of foes ! Let us live comfortably here, O son of Sumitrā ! We shall surely enjoy life at this place. (25)

इतश्च नातिदूरे सा किष्किन्धा चित्रकानना।
सुग्रीवस्य पुरी रम्या भविष्यति नृपात्मज॥ २६ ॥

“Kiṣkindhā, that lovely capital of Sugrīva, consisting of wonderful woodlands, will not be very far from here, O prince ! (26)

गीतवादित्रनिर्घोषः श्रूयते जयतां वर।
नदतां वानराणां च मृदङ्गाडम्बरैः सह॥ २७ ॥

“The sound of vocal music and the crash of musical instruments coming from monkeys howling to the beat of clay tomtoms is being heard, O jewel among the victorious ! (27)

लब्ध्वा भार्या कपिवरः प्राप्य राज्यं सुहृद्वृतः।
ध्रुवं नन्दति सुग्रीवः सम्प्राप्य महतीं श्रियम्॥ २८ ॥

“Having regained his wife and got back his kingdom and having fully recovered a great fortune, Sugrīva, the foremost of monkeys, is surely rejoicing in the midst of his near and dear ones.” (28)

इत्युक्त्वा न्यवसत् तत्र राघवः सहलक्ष्मणः।
बहुदृश्यदरीकुञ्जे तस्मिन् प्रस्रवणे गिरौ॥ २९ ॥

Saying so, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) alongwith Lakṣmaṇa took up his abode on that Prasravaṇa hill comprising caves and bowers and full of numerous objects worth seeing in that region. (29)

सुसुखे हि बहुद्रव्ये तस्मिन् हि धरणीधरे।
वसतस्तस्य रामस्य रतिरल्पापि नाभवत्॥ ३० ॥
हृतां हि भार्या स्मरतः प्राणेभ्योऽपि गरीयसीम्।
उदयाभ्युदितं दृष्ट्वा शशाङ्कं च विशेषतः॥ ३१ ॥
आविवेश न तं निद्रा निशासु शयनं गतम्।
तत्समुत्थेन शोकेन बाष्पोपहतचेतनम्॥ ३२ ॥

Not the least joy was found by Śrī Rāma while he was actually living on that mountain, which was full of great comforts and contained abundant wealth in the shape of flowers and fruits etc., remembering as he did his abducted consort, who was more valuable to him than life. Sleep did not come upon him during the nights even though he lay on his bed, particularly on seeing the moon risen on the eastern mountain with a full orb, seized as he was with grief caused by the thought of his lost wife, his consciousness being obscured through his constantly shedding tears. (30—32)

तं शोचमानं काकुत्स्थं नित्यं शोकपरायणम्।
तुल्यदुःखोऽब्रवीद्भ्राता लक्ष्मणोऽनुनयं वचः॥ ३३ ॥

His younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, who shared his grief, addressed the following words, full of supplication, to the aforesaid Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha), who was constantly mourning and was given over to grief: (33)

अलं वीर व्यथां गत्वा न त्वं शोचितुमर्हसि।
शोचतो ह्यवसीदन्ति सर्वार्था विदितं हि ते॥ ३४ ॥

“Cease giving way to agony, O heroic prince ! you ought not to grieve. It is undoubtedly known to you how all the purposes of a grieving man get actually frustrated. (34)

भवान् क्रियापरो लोके भवान् देवपरायणः।
आस्तिको धर्मशीलश्च व्यवसायी च राघव॥ ३५ ॥

“You are devoted to your duties in this world. You are a votary of gods, believe in the existence of God and the other world and are pious by nature and energetic too, O scion of Raghu ! (35)

न ह्यव्यवसितः शत्रुं राक्षसं तं विशेषतः।
समर्थस्त्वं रणे हन्तुं विक्रमे जिह्वाकारिणम्॥ ३६ ॥

“Remaining inactive, you will not at all be able to kill in an encounter your enemy, particularly that ogre, Rāvaṇa, who practises wiles where prowess is needed. (36)

समुन्मूलय शोकं त्वं व्यवसायं स्थिरीकुरु ।

ततः सपरिवारं तं राक्षसं हन्तुमर्हसि ॥ ३७ ॥

“Root you out grief once for all and make your determination firm. Then only you ought to be able to kill that ogre with his family. (37)

पृथिवीमपि काकुत्स्थ ससागरवनाचलाम् ।

परिवर्तयितुं शक्तः किं पुनस्तं हि रावणम् ॥ ३८ ॥

“You are capable, O scion of Kākutstha, of turning upside down even the earth with its oceans, forests and mountains, much more surely you can overthrow the notorious Rāvaṇa. (38)

शरत्कालं प्रतीक्षस्व प्रावृट्कालोऽयमागतः ।

ततः सराष्ट्रं सगणं रावणं तं वधिष्यसि ॥ ३९ ॥

“Await the autumnal season, the rainy season has just commenced. Then you will destroy that Rāvaṇa with his kingdom and army. (39)

अहं तु खलु ते वीर्यं प्रसुप्तं प्रतिबोधये ।

दीप्तैराहुतिभिः काले भस्मच्छन्नमिवानलम् ॥ ४० ॥

“I for my part simply rouse by means of stimulating words your dormant manliness as one would rekindle a fire covered with ashes by pouring oblations into it at the proper time.” (40)

लक्ष्मणस्य हि तद् वाक्यं प्रतिपूज्य हितं शुभम् ।

राघवः सुहृदं स्निग्धमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ४१ ॥

Acclaiming the aforesaid advice of Lakṣmaṇa, which was undoubtedly friendly and salutary too, Śrī Rāma addressed to his affectionate brother the following loving words : (41)

वाच्यं यदनुरक्तेन स्निग्धेन च हितेन च ।

सत्यविक्रमयुक्तेन तदुक्तं लक्ष्मण त्वया ॥ ४२ ॥

“Only such advice has been tendered by you, O Lakṣmaṇa, as ought to be tendered by one who is devoted, loving and benevolent as well as by one who is endowed with unfailing prowess. (42)

एष शोकः परित्यक्तः सर्वकार्यावसादकः ।

विक्रमेष्वप्रतिहतं तेजः प्रोत्साहयाम्यहम् ॥ ४३ ॥

“Grief, which mars all one’s business, has now been completely shaken off by me. I shall stimulate my energy, which is unimpeded on occasions of valour. (43)

शरत्कालं प्रतीक्षिष्ये स्थितोऽस्मि वचने तव ।

सुग्रीवस्य नदीनां च प्रसादमनुपालयन् ॥ ४४ ॥

“I shall await the autumnal season and abide by your counsel, looking forward to the goodwill of Sugrīva and the pellucidity of the rivers. (44)

उपकारेण वीरस्तु प्रतिकारेण युज्यते ।

अकृतज्ञोऽप्रतिकृतो हन्ति सत्त्ववतां मनः ॥ ४५ ॥

“A heroic soul who has been placed under an obligation by a friend is invariably seized with an inclination to repay his debt. An ungrateful man, who does not repay his debt, hurts the feelings of those endowed with goodness.” (45)

तदेव युक्तं प्रणिधाय लक्ष्मणः

कृताञ्जलिस्तत् प्रतिपूज्य भाषितम् ।

उवाच रामं स्वभिरामदर्शनं

प्रदर्शयन् दर्शनमात्मनः शुभम् ॥ ४६ ॥

Acclaiming the aforesaid observation of Śrī Rāma and concluding that alone to be just, Lakṣmaṇa with joined palms replied as follows to Śrī Rāma of extremely pleasing aspect, thereby demonstrating his blessed judgment : (46)

यथोक्तमेतत् तव सर्वमीप्सितं

नरेन्द्र कर्ता नचिरात् तु वानरः ।

शरत्प्रतीक्षः क्षमतामिमं भवान्

जलप्रपातं रिपुनिग्रहे धृतः ॥ ४७ ॥

“The monkey-King, Sugrīva, will before long surely accomplish all this desired object of yours according to your instructions, O ruler of men ! Awaiting the autumn, put you up with the obstruction caused by the rains, remaining intent on the destruction of the enemy. (47)

नियम्य क्रोपं परिपाल्यतां शरत्
क्षमस्व मासांश्चतुरो मया सह।
वसाचलेऽस्मिन् मृगराजसेविते
संवर्तयज्ज्ञानुवधे समर्थः ॥ ४८ ॥
“Restraining your anger, let the autumn be awaited and bear the delay of four months in my company. Pray, dwell on this mountain abounding with lions (lit., the kings of beasts), passing the interval here, even though you are capable of destroying the enemy.” (48)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे सप्तविंशः सर्गः ॥ २७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-seven in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टाविंशःसर्गः

Canto XXVIII

Even though unable to bear the cool weather during the monsoon, emaciated as he was due to the agony of his separation from Sītā, and chatting with Lakṣmaṇa on the unbearability of his said separation from Sītā, Śrī Rāma describes the rainy season

स तदा वालिनं हत्वा सुग्रीवमभिषिच्य च।
वसन् माल्यवतः पृष्ठे रामो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Having made short work of Vālī and installed Sugrīva on the throne of Kiṣkindhā, and dwelling on the table-land of Mount Mālyavān (Prasravaṇa), Śrī Rāma now spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa : (1)

अयं स कालः सम्प्राप्तः समयोऽद्य जलागमः।
सम्पश्य त्वं नभो मेघैः संवृतं गिरिसंनिभैः ॥ २ ॥

“The well-known rainy season which was mutually fixed upon as an interval during which no endeavour for the search of Sītā was to be made has duly commenced today. Perceive you the sky overcast with clouds resembling mountains in size. (2)

नवमासधृतं गर्भं भास्करस्य गभस्तिभिः।
पीत्वा रसं समुद्राणां द्यौः प्रसूते रसायनम् ॥ ३ ॥

“Having sucked up the water of the oceans through the sun’s rays, the sky is giving birth to life-giving showers as a foetus carried in the womb for nine months (viz., from October to June). (3)

शक्यमम्बरमारुह्य मेघसोपानपंक्तिभिः।
कुटजार्जुनमालाभिरलंकर्तुं दिवाकरः ॥ ४ ॥

“Ascending to the heavens by the stairway of the clouds, it is possible to adorn the sun with garlands of Kuṭaja and Arjuna flowers so commonly found during the rainy season. (4)

संध्यारागोत्थितैस्ताम्रैरन्तेष्वपि च पाण्डुभिः।
स्निग्धैरभ्रपटच्छेदैर्बद्धव्रणमिवाम्बरम् ॥ ५ ॥

“The sky appears as though it’s wounds have been dressed with moisture-laden white rags of clouds, red in the border, tinged as they were with the glow of twilight. (5)

मन्दमारुतनिःश्वासं संध्याचन्दनरञ्जितम्।
आपाण्डुजलदं भाति कामातुरमिवाम्बरम् ॥ ६ ॥

“With the gentle winds for its sighs and its ashen clouds, which are suggestive of a pale face, the sky, which is painted with red sandal-paste in the form of the glow of twilight, appears love-sick, as it were. (6)

एषा घर्मपरिक्लिष्टा नववारिपरिप्लुता।
सीतेव शोकसंतप्ता मही बाष्पं विमुञ्चति ॥ ७ ॥

“Tormented with sunshine in the first instance and eventually immersed in fresh rain-water, the earth is radiating heat even as Sitā, who is tormented with grief, is shedding tears profusely before my mind’s eyes. (7)

मेघोदरविनिर्मुक्ताः कर्पूरदलशीतलाः ।
शक्यमञ्जलिभिः पातुं वाताः केतकगन्धिनः ॥ ८ ॥

“Released from the interior of clouds and cool as a leaf painted with camphor-paste and charged with the fragrance of Ketaka flowers, the wind can, as it were, be imbibed with the hollow of one’s palms. (8)

एष फुल्लार्जुनः शैलः केतकैरभवासितः ।
सुग्रीव इव शान्तारिधाराभिरभिषिच्यते ॥ ९ ॥

“With its Arjuna trees in blossom, and its enemy (in the form of wild fire) come to an end, this (Prasavaṇa) mountain, which is made fragrant with Ketaka flowers is being bathed with torrents even as Sugrīva, who is adorned with garlands of Arjuna flowers and whose raiment is charged with the fragrance of Ketaka flowers and whose enemy in the form of his own elder brother has come to an end, is being bathed with torrents poured from pitchers. (9)

मेघकृष्णाजिनधरा धारायज्ञोपवीतिनः ।
मारुतापूरितगुहाः प्राधीता इव पर्वताः ॥ १० ॥

“Wearing a black deerskin in the form of dark clouds and sacred threads in the form of torrents and with their caverns filled with winds and as such emitting a sound like that of reciting the Vedas, the mountains look like religious students who have commenced their study of the Vedas. (10)

कशाभिरिव हैमीभिर्विद्युद्भिरभिताडितम् ।
अन्तःस्तनितनिर्घोषं सवेदनमिवाम्बरम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Lashed on all sides with whips of gold in the form of lightnings and emitting groans in the form of peals of thunder, the sky appears full of anguish inside. (11)

नीलमेघाश्रिता विद्युत् स्फुरन्ती प्रतिभाति मे ।
स्फुरन्ती रावणस्याङ्गे वैदेहीव तपस्विनी ॥ १२ ॥

“Flashing in the interior of a sombre cloud, the lightning appears to me like the poor Sitā, a princess of the Videha territory, struggling in the arms of Rāvaṇa. (12)

इमास्ता मन्मथवतां हिताः प्रतिहता दिशः ।
अनुलिप्ता इव घनैर्नष्टग्रहनिशाकराः ॥ १३ ॥

“Smeared, as it were, with clouds and, therefore, obscured, these well-known quarters, in which the planets including the moon have ceased to appear, are favourably disposed* to those who are pierced with darts of love in the absence of their beloved. (13)

क्वचिद् बाष्पाभिसंरुद्धान् वर्षागमसमुत्सुकान् ।
कुटजान् पश्य सौमित्रे पुष्पितान् गिरिसानुषु ।
मम शोकाभिभूतस्य कामसंदीपनान् स्थितान् ॥ १४ ॥

“Look at the Kuṭaja trees in blossom (expressive of joy) standing on the mountain-peaks—trees, which are withered at places by the heat radiated by the earth after a fresh shower and appear as though bathed in tears, while at other places they look sated through rainfall (as a lover feels on meeting his beloved), and thus rekindle love in me, even though I am overwhelmed with grief, O son of Sumitrā ! (14)

रजः प्रशान्तं सहिमोऽद्य वायु- निदाघदोषप्रसराः प्रशान्ताः ।
स्थिता हि यात्रा वसुधाधिपानां
प्रवासिनो यान्ति नराः स्वदेशान् ॥ १५ ॥

“The dust of roads has now settled due to the recent shower, the wind is cool and the aggravation of the evils such as heat of hot weather has ceased. The expeditions for conquest of the rulers of the earth have actually come to a standstill and people living away from their home are returning to their own land. (15)

* The moon is supposed to accentuate the pangs of separation from one’s darling. Hence the quarters, in which the moon and the stars are no longer visible have been spoken of as favourable to the love-sick.

सम्प्रस्थिता मानसवासलुब्धाः
 प्रियान्विताः सम्प्रति चक्रवाकाः ।
 अभीक्ष्णवर्षोदकविक्षतेषु
 यानानि मार्गेषु न सम्पतन्ति ॥ १६ ॥

“Covetous of sojourn in the Mānasarovara lake (in Tibet), swans are well on their way to that region and the Cakravāka birds (the red geese) are now united with their mates. Conveyances (such as a chariot) no longer venture on the roads, which are badly damaged due to repeated showers. (16)

क्वचित् प्रकाशं क्वचिदप्रकाशं
 नभः प्रकीर्णाम्बुधरं विभाति ।
 क्वचित्क्वचित् पर्वतसंनिरुद्धं
 रूपं यथा शान्तमहार्णवस्य ॥ १७ ॥

“The sky—which is visible at places and invisible at other places due to clouds being scattered here and there—appears like the surface of an unruffled ocean interspersed here and there with hills. (17)

व्यामिश्रितं सर्जकदम्बपुष्पै- र्नवं जलं पर्वतधातुताम्रम् ।
 मयूरकेकाभिरनुप्रयातं
 शैलापगाः शीघ्रतरं वहन्ति ॥ १८ ॥

“The mountain-streams very swiftly carry to the sea their fresh waters, which are strewn with Sarja and Kadamba flowers, nay, are reddened with the mineral deposits of the rocks and are followed by the cries of peacocks. (18)

रसाकुलं षट्पदसंनिकाशं
 प्रभुज्यते जम्बुफलं प्रकामम् ।
 अनेकवर्णं पवनावधूतं
 भूमौ पतत्याम्रफलं विपक्वम् ॥ १९ ॥

“The fruits of Jambu (rose-apple) trees which are bursting with juice and fully resemble a black bee in colour are partaken of freely by the people; while mango fruits, which assume diverse hues on getting fully ripe, fall to the earth when shaken by the wind. (19)

विद्युत्पताकाः सबलाकमालाः
 शैलेन्द्रकूटाकृतिसनिकाशाः ।
 गर्जन्ति मेघाः समुदीर्णनादा
 मत्ता गजेन्द्रा इव संयुगस्थाः ॥ २० ॥

“With the lightning for their banner and adorned with garlands in the shape of rows of herons, the clouds, whose appearance resembles the shape of a mountain-peak and which emit a loud peal of thunder, rumble like elephants in rut standing in battle-array. (20)

वर्षोदकाप्यायितशाद्वलानि
 प्रवृत्तनृत्तोत्सवबर्हिणानि ।
 वनानि निर्वृष्टबलाहकानि
 पश्यापराह्लेष्वधिकं विभान्ति ॥ २१ ॥

“Lo! With their grass made richer by rain-water, their peacocks having commenced their festivity of dance, the woodlands on which the clouds have poured their copious showers look more charming during the afternoons. (21)

समुद्रहन्तः सलिलातिभारं
 बलाकिनो वारिधरा नदन्तः ।
 महत्सु शृङ्गेषु महीधराणां
 विश्रम्य विश्रम्य पुनः प्रयान्ति ॥ २२ ॥

“Having rested again and again on the colossal peaks of mountains, the thundering clouds, adorned with herons and strenuously carrying their big load of water, resume their journey. (22)

मेघाभिकामा परिसम्पतन्ती
 सम्मोदिता भाति बलाकपंक्तिः ।
 वातावधूता वरपौण्डरीकी
 लम्बेव माला रुचिराम्बरस्य ॥ २३ ॥

“Flying with speed in a flock with a longing to meet the cloud—their beloved—the highly rejoiced row of herons looks like a long garland of excellent lotuses shaken by the wind and adorning the charming sky. (23)

बालेन्द्रगोपान्तरचित्रितेन
 विभाति भूमिर्नवशाद्वलेन ।

गात्रानुपृक्तेन शुक्रप्रभेण
नारीव लाक्षोक्षितकम्बलेन ॥ २४ ॥

“With its carpet of fresh grass speckled here and there with young Indragopa insects, the earth looks charming like a woman with a blanket of parrot-like green hue sprinkled with the cochineal’s red sap closely wrapped about her limbs. (24)

निद्रा शनैः केशवमभ्युपैति
द्रुतं नदी सागरमभ्युपैति ।
हृष्टा बलाका घनमभ्युपैति
कान्ता सकामा प्रियमभ्युपैति ॥ २५ ॥

“Sleep slowly steals over Lord Viṣṇu; the river runs swiftly to the sea; the female heron joyously moves on her wings to the cloud; while a loved woman full of longing approaches her darling. (25)

जाता वनान्ताः शिखिसुप्रनृत्ता
जाताः कदम्बाः सकदम्बशाखाः ।
जाता वृषा गोषु समानकामा
जाता मही सस्यवनाभिरामा ॥ २६ ॥

“The forest regions have become gay due to the charming and joyous dance of peacocks; the Kadamba trees have exhibited flowers of their boughs; the bulls have become eager for union with cows, which are equally so; the earth has assumed an attractive appearance by its cornfields and woodlands. (26)

वहन्ति वर्षन्ति नदन्ति भान्ति
ध्यायन्ति नृत्यन्ति समाश्रसन्ति ।
नद्यो घना मत्तगजा वनान्ताः
प्रियाविहीनाः शिखिनः प्लवंगमाः ॥ २७ ॥

“Rivers rush onwards, clouds discharge their water, elephants in rut trumpet, the forest regions assume a charming look, lovers bereft of their loved ones remain immersed in their thought, peacocks dance and monkeys feel reassured due to abundance of fruit. (27)

प्रहर्षिताः केतकिपुष्पगन्ध-माघ्राय मत्ता वननिर्झरेषु ।

प्रपातशब्दाकुलिता गजेन्द्राः
सार्धं मयूरैः समदा नदन्ति ॥ २८ ॥

“Feeling overjoyed in the midst of sylvan cascades and getting intoxicated on inhaling the fragrance of Ketakī flowers, nay, bewildered to hear the sound of waterfalls the lordly elephants in rut emit a shrill cry alongwith the peacocks. (28)

धारानिपातैरभिहन्यमानाः
कदम्बशाखासु विलम्बमानाः ।
क्षणार्जितं पुष्परसावगाढं
शनैर्मदं षट्चरणास्त्यजन्ति ॥ २९ ॥

“Being smitten with showers, the black bees resting on the branches of a Kadamba tree gradually shed their inebriety developed in a moment and heightened by sucking the honey of flowers. (29)

अङ्गारचूर्णोत्करसंनिकाशैः
फलैः सुपर्याप्तरसैः समृद्धैः ।
जम्बूद्रुमाणां प्रविभान्ति शाखा
निपीयमाना इव षट्पदौघैः ॥ ३० ॥

“With their full-grown fruits looking like balls of powdered coal and containing copious juice, the branches of Jambu (rose-apple) trees appear as though being sucked to their heart’s content by swarms of black bees. (30)

तडित्यताकाभिरलंकृताना-
मुदीर्णगम्भीरमहारवाणाम् ।
विभान्ति रूपाणि बलाहकानां
रणोत्सुकानामिव वारणानाम् ॥ ३१ ॥

“The forms of clouds decorated with flags in the shape of flashes of lightning and emitting deep and loud peals look charming like those of elephants eager for a combat. (31)

मार्गानुगः शैलवनानुसारी
सम्प्रस्थितो मेघरवं निशम्य ।
युद्धाभिकामः प्रतिनादशङ्की
मत्तो गजेन्द्रः प्रतिसंनिवृत्तः ॥ ३२ ॥

Duly set out with a keen desire to fight and already on its way, the lordly elephant in rut, roaming about in forests of mountains, definitely turns back on hearing the rumbling of clouds behind its back and suspecting it to be a summon to a contest from a rival elephant. (32)

क्वचित् प्रगीता इव षट्पदौघैः

क्वचित् प्रनृत्ता इव नीलकण्ठैः ।

क्वचित् प्रमत्ता इव वारणेन्द्रै-

र्विभान्त्यनेकाश्रयिणो वनान्ताः ॥ ३३ ॥

“Singing melodiously as it were at one place through swarms of bees and dancing gaily, as it were, at another through peacocks (lit., the blue-necked birds) and as though getting furious elsewhere through lordly elephants, the forest regions appear endowed with different characteristics at one and the same time. (33)

कदम्बसर्जार्जुनकन्दलाढ्या

वनान्तभूमिर्मधुवारिपूर्णा ।

मयूरमत्ताभिरुतप्रनृत्तै-

रपानभूमिप्रतिमा विभाति ॥ ३४ ॥

“Abounding in Kadamba, Sarja, Arjuna and Kandala trees, full of water sweet as honey and characterized by the joyous cries and dance of peacocks, the land of the forest regions looks charming like a land reserved for drinking, where Kadamba, Sarja, Arjuna and Kandala flowers are had in abundance, wine is stored in large quantities and drunken men sing and dance merrily. (34)

मुक्तासमाभं सलिलं पतद् वै

सुनिर्मलं पत्रपुटेषु लग्नम् ।

हृष्टा विवर्णच्छदना विहंगाः

सुरेन्द्रदत्तं तृषिताः पिबन्ति ॥ ३५ ॥

“Thirsty birds actually drink with joy the crystal clear water poured by Indra, the ruler of gods, and resting in the first instance on the cup-like leaves and then dripping from them like pearls, their wings getting discoloured due to their being drenched. (35)

षट्पादतन्त्रीमधुराभिधानं

प्लवंगमोदीरितकण्ठतालम् ।

आविष्कृतं

मेघमृदङ्गनादै-

र्वनेषु संगीतमिव प्रवृत्तम् ॥ ३६ ॥

“Concerted music produced by the sound of wooden tomtoms in the form of the rumbling of clouds and accompanied by the sweet melody of Viṇās in the form of the humming of bees and the sound of beating time with the throat in the form of the croaking of frogs, has started, as it were, in the woodlands. (36)

क्वचित् प्रनृत्तैः क्वचिदुन्नदद्भिः

क्वचिच्च वृक्षाग्रनिषण्णकायैः ।

व्यालम्बबर्हाभरणैर्मयूरै-

र्वनेषु संगीतमिव प्रवृत्तम् ॥ ३७ ॥

“Nay, music with dancing has been set in operation as it were in the woodlands by peacocks merrily dancing at one place, singing loudly (like singers) at another and resting elsewhere with their bodies supported on tree-tops as though witnessing the dancing and listening to the music and with their jewel-like tails hanging loose. (37)

स्वनैर्घनानां प्लवगाः प्रबुद्धा

विहाय निद्रां चिरसंनिरुद्धाम् ।

अनेकरूपाकृतिवर्णनादा

नवाम्बुधाराभिहता नदन्ति ॥ ३८ ॥

“Shaking off their protracted slumber (in the form of hibernation) when roused by the repeated rumbling of clouds, frogs of different forms and shapes and colours and uttering various sounds, croak on being whipped by the fresh showers. (38)

नद्यः समुद्राहितचक्रवाका-

स्तटानि शीर्णान्यपवाहयित्वा ।

दृप्ता

नवप्रावृतपूर्णभोगा-

दृतं स्वभर्तारमुपोपयान्ति ॥ ३९ ॥

“Washing away their broken banks (impeding their motion towards the sea), the proud rivers (like young women) with the

Cakravāka birds borne on their surface (like a pair of heaving breasts) rush to meet their lord (the sea) chosen for full enjoyment with offerings in the shape of flowers etc. (39)

नीलेषु नीला नववारिपूर्णा
मेघेषु मेघाः प्रतिभान्ति सक्ताः ।
दवाग्निदग्धेषु दवाग्निदग्धाः
शैलेषु शैला इव बद्धमूलाः ॥ ४० ॥

“Clinging to other dark clouds, sombre clouds charged with fresh water, appear like rocks scorched with a forest conflagration cohering with other such rocks with their bases firmly rooted. (40)

प्रमत्तसंनादितबर्हिणानि
सशक्रगोपाकुलशाद्वलानि ।
चरन्ति नीपार्जुनवासितानि
गजाः सुरम्याणि वनान्तराणि ॥ ४१ ॥

“Elephants range over exceptionally delightful woodlands, in which the cries of peafowls fully in heat are heard, in which plots of grass are speckled with insects called by the name of Indragopa and which are rendered fragrant by Nipa and Arjuna trees. (41)

नवाम्बुधाराहतकेसराणि
द्रुतं परित्यज्य सरोरुहाणि ।
कदम्बपुष्पाणि सकेसराणि
नवानि हृष्टा भ्रमराः पिबन्ति ॥ ४२ ॥

“Definitely ignoring the lotus flowers, whose filaments have been destroyed by recent showers, black bees full of joy suck the honey of fresh Kadamba flowers whose filaments are intact. (42)

मत्ता गजेन्द्रा मुदिता गवेन्द्रा
वनेषु विक्रान्ततरा मृगेन्द्राः ।
रम्या नगेन्द्रा निभृता नरेन्द्राः
प्रक्रीडितो वारिधरैः सुरेन्द्रः ॥ ४३ ॥

“Lordly elephants roam about in rut, bulls feel rejoiced, the kings of beasts exhibit greater prowess in forests, the foremost of mountains have assumed a lovely look, kings are quiet (having put off their plans of conquest), while

Indra, the ruler of gods, is engaged in his brisk sport with the clouds. (43)

मेघाः समुद्भूतसमुद्रनादा
महाजलौघैर्गगनावलम्बाः ।
नदीस्तटाकानि सरांसि वापी-
र्महीं च कृत्स्नामपवाहयन्ति ॥ ४४ ॥

“With their big torrents, clouds hanging over the sky and drowning the roar of the seas make the rivers, ponds, lakes and tanks overflow and flood the whole land. (44)

वर्षप्रवेगा विपुलाः पतन्ति
प्रवान्ति वाताः समुदीर्णवेगाः ।
प्रणष्टकूलाः प्रवहन्ति शीघ्रं
नद्यो जलं विप्रतिपन्नमार्गाः ॥ ४५ ॥

“Abundant downpours descend on earth, winds blow with redoubled violence, while rivers with their banks entirely washed away carry their waters swiftly, rendering the roads impassable. (45)

नरैर्नरेन्द्रा इव पर्वतेन्द्राः
सुरेन्द्रदत्तैः पवनोपनीतैः ।
घनाम्बुकुम्भैरभिषिच्यमाना
रूपं श्रियं स्वामिव दर्शयन्ति ॥ ४६ ॥

“Being bathed, as rulers of men are by men, with water carried in pitchers in the form of clouds by the wind-god as a gift from Indra (the ruler of gods), the foremost of mountains exhibit their beauty and splendour, as it were. (46)

घनोपगूढं गगनं न तारा
न भास्करो दर्शनमभ्युपैति ।
नवैर्जलौघैर्धरणी वितृप्ता
तमोविलिप्ता न दिशः प्रकाशाः ॥ ४७ ॥

“The sky being overcast with clouds, neither a star nor the sun comes to view. The earth is saturated with the recent downpours and, shrouded in darkness, the quarters too are not discernible. (47)

महान्ति कूटानि महीधराणां
धाराविधौतान्यधिकं विभान्ति ।

महाप्रमाणैर्विपुलैः प्रपातै-
मुक्ताकलापैरिव लम्बमानैः ॥ ४८ ॥

“Fully washed by showers, the gigantic mountain-peaks look exceedingly charming due to numerous cascades of large dimensions falling from them like streams of pearls. (48)

शैलोपलप्रस्खलमानवेगाः
शैलोत्तमानां विपुलाः प्रपाताः ।
गुहासु संनादितबर्हिणासु
हारा विकीर्यन्त इवावभान्ति ॥ ४९ ॥

“With their force getting diffused against the jutting rocks, the numerous waterfalls on the foremost of mountains sparkle like pearl necklaces getting broken and the pearls being scattered in caves in which peacocks are singing loudly. (49)

शीघ्रप्रवेगा विपुलाः प्रपाता
निधौतशृङ्गोपतला गिरीणाम् ।
मुक्ताकलापप्रतिमाः पतन्तो
महागुहोत्सङ्गतलैर्ध्रियन्ते ॥ ५० ॥

“While falling with impetuous force like streams of pearls, after having cleanly washed the lowest reaches of the mountain-peaks the numerous cascades on mountains are arrested by the bottoms of large caves. (50)

सुरतामर्दविच्छिन्नाः स्वर्गस्त्रीहारमौक्तिकाः ।
पतन्ति चातुला दिक्षु तोयधाराः समन्ततः ॥ ५१ ॥

“Resembling the pearls of necklaces of celestial women, disjoined when violently pressed during sexual embrace, the peerless streams of water are falling on every side in all the quarters. (51)

विलीयमानैर्विहगैर्निमीलद्भिश्च पङ्कजैः ।
विकसन्त्या च मालत्या गतोऽस्तं ज्ञायते रविः ॥ ५२ ॥

“The sun, which has remained invisible during the whole day, is concluded to have set only because of the birds retiring to their nests, the lotus flowers closing and the Mālatī (evening jasmine) opening their petals. (52)

वृत्ता यात्रा नरेन्द्राणां सेना पथ्येव वर्तते ।
वैराणि चैव मार्गाश्च सलिलेन समीकृताः ॥ ५३ ॥

“The warlike expeditions of the rulers of men have been turned back and their armies stand obstructed on the way itself. Nay, hostilities as well as the roads have been stopped and thus reduced to the same state by water. (53)

मासि प्रौष्ठपदे ब्रह्म ब्राह्मणानां विवक्षताम् ।
अयमध्यायसमयः सामगानामुपस्थितः ॥ ५४ ॥

“Now has come the time in the bright half of the month of Bhādrapada (roughly corresponding to August of the Georgian calendar) of commencing the study of Veda for Brāhmaṇas belonging to that class, who chant the Sāmaveda and wishing to study the Veda. (54)

निवृत्तकर्मायतनो नूनं संचितसंचयः ।
आषाढीमभ्युपगतो भरतः कोसलाधिपः ॥ ५५ ॥

“Having finished all the work such as thatching the roof relating to his dwelling (as a protection against the showers) and got together the necessities of life (which may last him for the four rainy months), Bharata, the suzerain lord of the kingdom of Kosala, has surely undertaken his special vows relating to the four rainy months on the full moon of the month of Āṣāḍha (roughly corresponding to June). (55)

नूनमापूर्वमाणायाः सरय्वा वर्धते रयः ।
मां समीक्ष्य समायान्तमयोध्याया इव स्वनः ॥ ५६ ॥

“The onrush of the Sarayū river, which is getting flooded, is without doubt increasing even as the shouts of acclamation of the people of Ayodhyā will be on perceiving me duly returning from the forest. (56)

इमाः स्फीतगुणा वर्षाः सुग्रीवः सुखमश्रुते ।
विजितारिः सदारश्च राज्ये महति च स्थितः ॥ ५७ ॥

“Having fully overcome his enemy and having been re-united with his wife and established once more in his vast kingdom, Sugrīva is enjoying happiness during these rains, whose excellences are too many. (57)

अहं तु हृतदारश्च राज्याच्च महतश्च्युतः ।
नदीकूलमिव क्लिन्नमवसीदामि लक्ष्मण ॥ ५८ ॥

“Deprived of my wife and disinherited from my extensive kingdom, I, however, suffer in the same way as a river bank submerged in water gets corroded, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (58)

शोकश्च मम विस्तीर्णो वर्षाश्च भृशदुर्गमाः ।
रावणश्च महाज्ज्वरुपरः प्रतिभाति मे ॥ ५९ ॥

“Nay, my grief is enormous and the rains are exceedingly difficult to pass; while my great enemy, Rāvaṇa, appears to me an endless expanse. (59)

अयात्रां चैव दृष्ट्वेमां मार्गाश्च भृशदुर्गमान् ।
प्रणते चैव सुग्रीवे न मया किञ्चिदीरितम् ॥ ६० ॥

“Seeing the roads extremely difficult to tread and a martial expedition, therefore out of the question, no demand was made by me on Sugrīva even though he was submissive to me. (60)

अपि चापि परिक्लिष्टं चिराद् दारैः समागतम् ।
आत्मकार्यगरीयस्त्वाद् वक्तुं नेच्छामि वानरम् ॥ ६१ ॥

“I did not feel inclined to say anything to the monkey chief, who had been sore afflicted till the other day and was united with his wife after a long time and also because my own work of conducting a search for Sitā was very long and arduous. (61)

स्वयमेव हि विश्रम्य ज्ञात्वा कालमुपागतम् ।
उपकारं च सुग्रीवो वेत्स्यते नात्र संशयः ॥ ६२ ॥

“Having taken adequate rest after the heavy strain, he has had to bear in recovering his lost kingdom and come to know of the time for action, (viz., the end of the monsoon) having arrived, Sugrīva must of his own accord remember the obligation I have placed him under and try to repay it: there is no doubt about it. (62)

तस्मात् कालप्रतीक्षोऽहं स्थितोऽस्मि शुभलक्षण ।
सुग्रीवस्य नदीनां च प्रसादमभिकांक्षयन् ॥ ६३ ॥

“Therefore, keenly seeking the goodwill (in the shape of his inclination to take up my work) of Sugrīva as well as a favourable turn of rivers, I am biding my time, O prince bearing auspicious marks on your body ! (63)

उपकारेण वीरो हि प्रतीकारेण युज्यते ।
अकृतज्ञोऽप्रतिकृतो हन्ति सत्त्ववतां मनः ॥ ६४ ॥

“A heroic soul, who has been placed under an obligation by a friend, is surely seized with an inclination to pay his debt; while an ungrateful soul who does not repay his debt hurts the feelings of those endowed with goodness.” (64)

अथैवमुक्तः प्रणिधाय लक्ष्मणः
कृताञ्जलिस्तत् प्रतिपूज्य भाषितम् ।
उवाच रामं स्वभिरामदर्शनं
प्रदर्शयन् दर्शनमात्मनः शुभम् ॥ ६५ ॥

Acclaiming the aforesaid observation of Śrī Rāma and reflecting awhile, Lakṣmaṇa, when told thus, replied with folded hands as follows to Śrī Rāma of extremely pleasing aspect, thereby demonstrating his good judgment : (65)

यदुक्तमेतत् तव सर्वमीप्सितं
नरेन्द्र कर्ता नचिराद्धरीश्वरः ।
शरत्प्रतीक्षः क्षमतामिदं भवाञ्
जलप्रपातं रिपुनिग्रहे धृतः ॥ ६६ ॥

“Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, O ruler of men, will before long accomplish all this desired object of yours, which has been pointed out by you. Awaiting the autumn, bear you this obstruction caused by the rains, remaining intent on the destruction of the enemy.” (66)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डेऽष्टाविंशः सर्गः ॥ २८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-eight in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Rṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनत्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXIX

Recounting the virtues of Śrī Rāma to Sugrīva, who had due to his love of the pleasures of sense forgotten all about Śrī Rāma's business and was neglecting it even after the advent of autumn—and reminding him of the work of Śrī Rāma, Hanumān urges Sugrīva to collect an army with a view to conducting a search for Sītā. Awakened to a sense of his duty, Sugrīva enjoins Nīla to dispatch messengers to bring all the Vānara hordes together

समीक्ष्य विमलं व्योम गतविद्युद्बलाहकम् ।
 सारसाकुलसंघुष्टं रम्यज्योत्स्नानुलेपनम् ॥ १ ॥
 समृद्धार्थं च सुग्रीवं मन्दधर्मार्थसंग्रहम् ।
 अत्यर्थं चासतां मार्गमेकान्तगतमानसम् ॥ २ ॥
 निवृत्तकार्यं सिद्धार्थं प्रमदाभिरतं सदा ।
 प्राप्तवन्तमभिप्रेतान् सर्वानेव मनोरथान् ॥ ३ ॥
 स्वां च पत्नीमभिप्रेतां तारां चापि समीप्सिताम् ।
 विहरन्तमहोरात्रं कृतार्थं विगतज्वरम् ॥ ४ ॥
 क्रीडन्तमिव देवेशं गन्धर्वाप्सरसां गणैः ।
 मन्त्रिषु न्यस्तकार्यं च मन्त्रिणामनवेक्षकम् ॥ ५ ॥
 उच्छिन्नराज्यसंदेहं कामवृत्तमिव स्थितम् ।
 निश्चितार्थोऽर्थतत्त्वज्ञः कालधर्मविशेषवित् ॥ ६ ॥
 प्रसाद्य वाक्यैर्विविधैर्हेतुमद्भिर्मनोरमैः ।
 वाक्यविद् वाक्यतत्त्वज्ञं हरीशं मारुतात्मजः ॥ ७ ॥
 हितं तथ्यं च पथ्यं च सामधर्मार्थनीतिमत् ।
 प्रणयप्रीतिसंयुक्तं विश्वासकृतनिश्चयम् ॥ ८ ॥
 हरीश्वरमुपागम्य हनुमान् वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
 राज्यं प्राप्तं यशश्चैव कौली श्रीरभिवर्धिता ॥ ९ ॥

Vividly perceiving the sky to be clear and free from lightning and clouds, crowded with cranes and resonant with their cries and illumined with lovely light, seeing that Sugrīva, whose object had been fully achieved, was tardy in acquiring fortune and religious merit, that he had completely taken to the path of the unworthy (the path of sensuality) and neglecting the duties of kingship had set his mind on privacy, that, his work having been accomplished and purpose having been achieved, he ever felt delighted in the company of young women, that, having realized all the cherished objects of his desire and having got his own beloved wife, Rūmā, as well as Tārā, who was keenly sought after by him, he was revelling day and night, his object having been accomplished and his anxiety having completely gone, and was diverting himself as Indra (the ruler of gods) does with troops of Gandharvas (celestial musicians) and Apsarās (celestial nymphs), that having entrusted the work of administration to his ministers, he did not keep an eye on them and that he had become licentious, as it were, the peril to his kingdom having ceased, thanks to the loyalty of his ministers, Hanumān, son of the wind-god—who had ascertained the tenor of all the sacred books and as such knew the truth about all that ought to be done and that ought not to be done, and further knew the special duties relating to a particular occasion—and was adept in expression—approached Sugrīva, the ruler of monkeys, who arrived at the truth underlying what was said to him, was full of love and affection for Hanumān and was definite about the latter's trustworthiness—and having propitiated him by means of various reasoned expressions, pleasing to the mind, addressed to Sugrīva the following friendly, truthful and wholesome words, which were persuasive, righteous, full of meaning and prudent too : “Sovereignty as well as fame have been regained by you and the prosperity of your royal house stands heightened by you.

(1—9)

मित्राणां संग्रहः शेषस्तद् भवान् कर्तुमर्हति ।
यो हि मित्रेषु कालज्ञः सततं साधु वर्तते ॥ १० ॥
तस्य राज्यं च कीर्तिश्च प्रतापश्चापि वर्धते ।
यस्य कोशश्च दण्डश्च मित्राण्यात्मा च भूमिप ।
समान्येतानि सर्वाणि स राज्यं महदश्नुते ॥ ११ ॥

“The earning of the goodwill of friends (by obliging them through opportune services) remains and that you must do. The dominion, fame and glory of a sovereign who, having a sense of time, conducts himself well towards his allies, grow. He to whom exchequer, military strength, allies and his own self—all these are equally dear enjoys a large dominion, O protector of the earth !
(10-11)

तद् भवान् वृत्तसम्पन्नः स्थितः पथि निरत्यये ।
मित्रार्थमभिनीतार्थं यथावत् कर्तुमर्हति ॥ १२ ॥

“Rich in moral conduct and established in a path (the path of virtue) which is free from danger, you ought duly to accomplish the purpose of your friend, which has been undertaken by you.
(12)

संत्यज्य सर्वकर्माणि मित्रार्थे यो न वर्तते ।
सम्भ्रमाद् विकृतोत्साहः सोऽनर्थैर्नावरुध्यते ॥ १३ ॥

“He who does not wholly give up all other duties and attend with alacrity to the cause of his friend exhibiting his zeal in a special degree for that cause, meets with disaster.
(13)

यो हि कालव्यतीतेषु मित्रकार्येषु वर्तते ।
स कृत्वा महतोऽप्यर्थान्न मित्रार्थेन युज्यते ॥ १४ ॥

“He who actually attends to the concerns of his friend when their time has definitely passed, does not work in unison with the purpose of his friend, even though achieving great things.
(14)

तदिदं मित्रकार्यं नः कालातीतमरिदम ।
क्रियतां राघवस्यैतद् वैदेह्याः परिमार्गणम् ॥ १५ ॥

“The present object of our friend, viz, the search of Sitā (a princess of the Videha territory) will get delayed, O tamer of foes ! Therefore, let this work of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) be accomplished apace.
(15)

न च कालमतीतं ते निवेदयति कालवित् ।
त्वरमाणोऽपि स प्राज्ञस्तव राजन् वशानुगः ॥ १६ ॥

“Submitting, as he does, to your will, O king, the wise Śrī Rāma would not tell you the time for action had passed, even though he has a sense of time and is also in a hurry to get his work done.
(16)

कुलस्य हेतुः स्फीतस्य दीर्घबन्धुश्च राघवः ।
अप्रमेयप्रभावश्च स्वयं चाप्रतिमो गुणैः ॥ १७ ॥

“Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, is responsible for your race being prosperous and will continue to be your friend for a long time. Nay, immeasurable is his power and he is peerless in personal virtues.
(17)

तस्य त्वं कुरु वै कार्यं पूर्वं तेन कृतं तव ।
हरीश्वर कपिश्रेष्ठानाज्ञापयितुमर्हसि ॥ १८ ॥

“Pray, accomplish his object in the same way as your purpose has already been accomplished by him, O lord of monkeys ! In this behalf you ought to issue orders to the foremost of monkeys to bring together Vānara hordes.
(18)

नहि तावद् भवेत् कालो व्यतीतश्चोदनादृते ।
चोदितस्य हि कार्यस्य भवेत् कालव्यतिक्रमः ॥ १९ ॥

“Time will not be considered as having elapsed in vain if the work is commenced without any pressure from him. If, however, the work is commenced under pressure from Śrī Rāma, delay will surely be regarded as having taken place.
(19)

अकर्तुरपि कार्यस्य भवान् कर्ता हरीश्वर ।
किं पुनः प्रतिकर्तुस्ते राज्येन च वधेन च ॥ २० ॥

“You ought to accomplish the work of Śrī Rāma even if he had not achieved your purpose, O lord of monkeys ! Much more should you render good offices to him who has placed you under an obligation by killing Vālī (your mortal enemy) and getting back your lost sovereignty to you. (20)

शक्तिमानतिविक्रान्तो वानरर्क्षगणेश्वर ।

कर्तुं दाशरथेः प्रीतिमाज्ञायां किं नु सज्जसे ॥ २१ ॥

“Though powerful and exceptionally gallant, O ruler of hordes of monkeys and bears, why do you lag behind in commanding the monkeys to get together the hordes of monkeys and bears in order to win the pleasure of Śrī Rāma, son of Emperor Daśaratha? (21)

कामं खलु शरैः शक्तः सुरासुरमहोरगान् ।

वशे दाशरथिः कर्तुं त्वत्प्रतिज्ञामवेक्षते ॥ २२ ॥

“Though actually able to subdue by means of his arrows gods as well as demons as also large serpents, Śrī Rāma (son of Daśaratha) is affording you an opportunity to implement your plighted word. (22)

प्राणत्यागाविशंकेन कृतं तेन महत् प्रियम् ।

तस्य मार्गाम वैदेहीं पृथिव्यामपि चाम्बरे ॥ २३ ॥

“A kindly act of no small magnitude has been done by him without entertaining any doubt about the propriety of taking the life of Vālī, who had done no harm to him. Let us, therefore, search for his Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) on earth as well as in the heavens, if need be. (23)

देवदानवगन्धर्वा असुराः समरुद्गणाः ।

न च यक्षा भयं तस्य कुर्युः किमिव राक्षसाः ॥ २४ ॥

“Not even gods, Dānavas and Gandharvas as also demons alongwith the hosts of the wind-gods and Yakṣas can cause fright to him, much less ogres. (24)

तदेवं शक्तियुक्तस्य पूर्वं प्रतिकृतस्तथा ।

रामस्यार्हसि पिङ्गेश कर्तुं सर्वात्मना प्रियम् ॥ २५ ॥

“Therefore, O lord of monkeys, you ought to oblige with your whole soul Śrī Rāma, who is so powerful and has rendered good offices to you in the recent past. (25)

नाधस्तादवनौ नाप्सु गतिर्नोपरि चाम्बरे ।

कस्यचित् सज्जतेऽस्माकं कपीश्वर तवाज्ञया ॥ २६ ॥

“At your command, O lord of monkeys, the movement of any of us will not come to a standstill either below (in the subterranean regions) or on earth or in water or above (in the air-space) or still higher, in the heavens. (26)

तदाज्ञापय कः किं ते कुतो वापि व्यवस्यतु ।

हरयो ह्यप्रधृष्यास्ते सन्ति कोट्यग्रतोऽनघ ॥ २७ ॥

“Therefore, issue orders as to who should do what or even at what place. Indeed, monkeys numbering more than one crore and incapable of being overpowered are at your beck and call, O sinless one !” (27)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा काले साधु निरूपितम् ।

सुग्रीवः सत्त्वसम्पन्नश्चकार मतिमुत्तमाम् ॥ २८ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid submission of Hanumān, which was properly-worded and opportune, Sugrīva, who was richly endowed with sense, arrived at a supreme decision (of advancing the cause of Śrī Rāma). (28)

संदिदेशातिमतिमान् नीलं नित्यकृतोद्यमम् ।

दिक्षु सर्वासु सर्वेषां सैन्यानामुपसंग्रहे ॥ २९ ॥

Sugrīva, who was very wise, duly commanded Nīla (one of his foremost generals and counsellors), who was ever diligent, to collect all the troops in all quarters. (29)

यथा सेना समग्रा मे यूथपालाश्च सर्वशः ।

समागच्छन्त्यसङ्गेन सेनाग्रयेण तथा कुरु ॥ ३० ॥

He said : “Please take steps to see that my entire army as well as all the troop-commanders muster without delay with its generalissimo. (30)

ये त्वन्तपालाः प्लवगाः शीघ्रगा व्यवसायिनः ।

समानयन्तु ते शीघ्रं त्वरिताः शासनात्मनः ।

स्वयं चानन्तरं कार्यं भवानेवानुपश्यतु ॥ ३१ ॥

“Let those swift-footed and energetic monkeys who guard the frontiers leave their post hurriedly and muster soon in obedience to my command. And you alone should personally see what should be done next. (31)

त्रिपञ्चरात्रादूर्ध्वं यः प्राप्नुयादिह वानरः ।

तस्य प्राणान्तिको दण्डो नात्र कार्याविचारणा ॥ ३२ ॥

“Capital punishment will be awarded to the monkeys, who arrive here after fifteen nights from now: no reconsideration should be allowed on this point. (32)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे एकोनत्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ २९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-nine in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXX

Glorifying Śrī Rāma as a hero, Lakṣmaṇa comforts his brother who was wailing in many ways at the thought of Sītā, his agony of separation from her having been accentuated by the sight of the autumnal full moon and the water-lilies opening their petals during the night, His heart being captured by the wealth of beauties of autumn, Śrī Rāma extols the autumnal season and seeing Sugrīva inactive even during this season, sends Lakṣmaṇa to whip the latter into activity

गृहं प्रविष्टे सुग्रीवे विमुक्ते गगने घनैः ।
वर्षरात्रे स्थितो रामः कामशोकाभिपीडितः ॥ १ ॥

Sugrīva having retired into his palace and the sky being completely free from clouds, Śrī Rāma, who had halted on Mount Prasravaṇa for the rainy nights only, felt agonized through love for Sītā and grief caused by separation from her. (1)

पाण्डुरं गगनं दृष्ट्वा विमलं चन्द्रमण्डलम् ।
शारदीं रजनीं चैव दृष्ट्वा ज्योत्स्नानुलेपनाम् ॥ २ ॥
कामवृत्तं च सुग्रीवं नष्टां च जनकात्मजाम् ।
दृष्ट्वा कालमतीतं च मुमोह परमातुरः ॥ ३ ॥

Sore afflicted to see the sky pale and the orb of the moon free from clouds and to perceive the autumnal night too illumined

हरींश्च वृद्धानुपयातु साङ्गदो
भवान् ममाज्ञामधिकृत्य निश्चितम् ।
इति व्यवस्थां हरिपुङ्गवेश्वरो
विधाय वेश्म प्रविवेश वीर्यवान् ॥ ३३ ॥

“Nay, accompanied by Aṅgada, you should positively approach the elderly monkeys personally with reference to my command.” Having made this arrangement, the mighty Sugrīva, the lord of monkey chiefs, retired to his palace. (33) with moonlight and also to find Sugrīva leading a life of sensuality and Sītā (the daughter of Janaka) lost for ever and to perceive the time fixed for taking up the search for Sītā having already elapsed, Śrī Rāma felt perplexed. (2-3)

स तु संज्ञामुपागम्य मुहूर्तान्मतिमान् नृपः ।
मनःस्थामपि वैदेहीं चिन्तयामास राघवः ॥ ४ ॥

Regaining his balance of mind after a while, the wise Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), a protector of men, for his part, thought deeply of Sītā, even though she ever existed in his mind. (4)

दृष्ट्वा च विमलं व्योम गतविद्युद्वलाहकम् ।
सारसारावसंघुष्टं विललापार्तया गिरा ॥ ५ ॥

Nay, seeing the sky clear, free as it was from lightning and clouds, and resonant with the cries of cranes, Śrī Rāma lamented in plaintive tones. (5)

आसीनः पर्वतस्याग्रे हेमधातुविभूषिते।
शारदं गगनं दृष्ट्वा जगाम मनसा प्रियाम् ॥ ६ ॥

Observing the autumnal sky, while seated on the top of the mountain, rendered picturesque with minerals of golden hue, Śrī Rāma mentally approached his darling, Sitā. (6)

सारसारावसंनादैः सारसारावनादिनी।
याऽऽश्रमे रमते बाला साद्य मे रमते कथम् ॥ ७ ॥

He said to himself : 'In what way does that youthful lady of mine—whose voice resembles the notes of a crane, nay, who diverted herself in the hermitage with the cries of cranes uttered with the intention of calling their mates—divert herself now? (7)

पुष्पितांश्रासनान् दृष्ट्वा काञ्चनानिव निर्मलान्।
कथं सा रमते बाला पश्यन्ती मामपश्यती ॥ ८ ॥

'Beholding the Asana trees in blossom, which were bright as gold, but not seeing me, how does that youthful lady divert herself? (8)

या पुरा कलहंसानां कलेन कलभाषिणी।
बुध्यते चारुसर्वाङ्गी साद्य मे रमते कथम् ॥ ९ ॥

'How does that lady of mine, who spoke in such sweet tones and was charming of every limb, and who used to wake up in the morning with the notes of swans, divert herself now? (9)

निःस्वनं चक्रवाकानां निशम्य सहचारिणाम्।
पुण्डरीकविशालाक्षी कथमेषा भविष्यति ॥ १० ॥

'How will that lady with eyes as big as a lotus feel on hearing the cry of Cakravāka birds (the red geese) moving about in pairs? (10)

सरांसि सरितो वापीः काननानि वनानि च।
तां विना मृगशावाक्षीं चरन्नाद्य सुखं लभे ॥ ११ ॥

'I derive no more joy while roaming about on the brink of lakes, rivers and tanks and over woodlands and groves without that fawn-eyed lady. (11)

अपि तां मद्वियोगाच्च सौकुमार्याच्च भामिनीम्।
सुदूरं पीडयेत् कामः शरद्गुणनिरन्तरः ॥ १२ ॥

'Constantly intensified by the beauties of autumn, the pangs of love are, I am afraid, cruelly tormenting that beloved lady due to her separation from me and due to her tenderness.' (12)

एवमादि नरश्रेष्ठो विललाप नृपात्मजः।
विहंग इव सारङ्गः सलिलं त्रिदशेश्वरात् ॥ १३ ॥

In this and many other ways did Śrī Rāma (son of a monarch), a veritable jewel among men, wail after the manner of a Cātaka bird seeking water from Indra, the ruler of gods. (13)

ततश्चञ्चूर्य रम्येषु फलार्थी गिरिसानुषु।
ददर्श पर्युपावृत्तो लक्ष्मीवाँल्लक्ष्मणोऽग्रजम् ॥ १४ ॥

Having duly returned after wandering hither and thither on the lovely mountain-peaks in quest of fruit, the charming Lakṣmaṇa presently saw his elder brother. (14)

स चिन्तया दुस्सहया परीतं
विसंज्ञमेकं विजने मनस्वी।

भ्रातुर्विषादात् त्वरितोऽतिदीनः
समीक्ष्य सौमित्रिरुवाच दीनम् ॥ १५ ॥

Perceiving him in a lonely spot, desolate, absent-minded and miserable, nay, overcome with anxiety, which was difficult to endure, the high-minded Lakṣmaṇa, son of Sumitrā, who felt extremely wretched due to his brother's despondency, quickly submitted to him as follows : (15)

किमार्य कामस्य वशंगतेन
किमात्मपौरुष्यपराभवेन ।

अयं ह्रिया संहियते समाधिः
किमत्र योगेन निवर्तते न ॥ १६ ॥

"What will be gained by you if you belittle your own virility allowing yourself to be over-powered by love? The composure of your mind is hereby being disturbed by grief. Can't all your agony yield to concentration of mind at this juncture, O noble brother? (16)

क्रियाभियोगं मनसः प्रसादं
समाधियोगानुगतं च कालम् ।
सहायसामर्थ्यमदीनसत्त्वः
स्वकर्महेतुं च कुरुष्व तात ॥ १७ ॥

“Remaining undepressed in spirit, O dear brother, perform your daily duties in their entirety, have peace of mind and devote all your time to concentration of mind and enlist the help of the strong and increase your own strength, which is the only way to develop your manhood, O dear brother ! (17)

न जानकी मानववंशनाथ
त्वया सनाथा सुलभा परेण ।
न चाग्निचूडां ज्वलितामुपेत्य
न दह्यते वीर वरार्ह कश्चित् ॥ १८ ॥

“Having her protector in you, O lord of Manu's race, Sītā (daughter of Janaka) cannot be easily retained by another. Hugging a blazing flame none would escape being burnt, O hero worth being adored even by the foremost !” (18)

सलक्षणं लक्ष्मणमप्रधृष्यं
स्वभावजं वाक्यमुवाच रामः ।
हितं च पथ्यं च नयप्रसक्तं
ससामर्थमार्थसमाहितं च ॥ १९ ॥

Śrī Rāma addressed the following words, characteristic of his innate disposition, to Lakṣmaṇa, who was endowed with auspicious bodily marks and could not be (easily) overpowered : “What you have said, is useful and salutary and in consonance with propriety and full of consolation, justice and earthly good. (19)

नित्यसंशयं कार्यमवेक्षितव्यं
क्रियाविशेषोऽप्यनुवर्तितव्यः ।

न तु प्रवृद्धस्य दुरासदस्य
कुमार वीर्यस्य फलं च चिन्त्यम् ॥ २० ॥

“The work in hand viz., the search for Sītā should undoubtedly be attended to, and special efforts too should be made in this behalf. The reward alone, however, of our potent action, which is fully intensified and difficult to counteract, should not be thought of, O prince !” (20)

अथ पद्मपलाशाक्षीं मैथिलीमनुचिन्तयन् ।
उवाच लक्ष्मणं रामो मुखेन परिशुष्यता ॥ २१ ॥

Recalling to mind Sītā (a princess of Mithilā), whose eyes resembled the petals of a lotus, Śrī Rāma with a withering face then spoke once more to Lakṣmaṇa as follows: (21)

तर्पयित्वा सहस्राक्षः सलिलेन वसुंधराम् ।
निर्वर्तयित्वा सस्यानि कृतकर्मा व्यवस्थितः ॥ २२ ॥

“Having saturated the earth with water and ripened the corns, Indra (the god with a thousand eyes) is now easy of mind, his task having been accomplished. (22)

दीर्घगम्भीरनिर्घोषाः शैलद्रुमपुरोगमाः ।
विसृज्य सलिलं मेघाः परिशान्ता नृपात्मज ॥ २३ ॥

“Having discharged their water while sailing in front of mountains and trees with a prolonged and deep rumbling, the clouds are fully at rest now, O prince ! (23)

नीलोत्पलदलश्यामाः श्यामीकृत्वा दिशो दश ।
विमदा इव मातङ्गाः शान्तवेगाः पयोधराः ॥ २४ ॥

“The clouds, which were till recently dark like the petals of a blue lotus and stood darkening all the ten directions, now look like elephants free from rut, their fury having abated. (24)

जलगर्भा महावेगाः कुटजार्जुनगन्धिनः ।
चरित्वा विरताः सौम्य वृष्टिवाताः समुद्यताः ॥ २५ ॥

“Having finished their round, O gentle brother, the rainy winds, which were laden with moisture and full of great fury, and which bore the fragrance of Kuṭaja and

Arjuna flowers, have now ceased to blow, though fully prepared to march. (25)

घनानां वारणानां च मयूराणां च लक्ष्मण ।

नादः प्रस्रवणानां च प्रशान्तः सहसानघ ॥ २६ ॥

“The rumbling of clouds, the trumpeting of elephants, the cry of peacocks and the sound of waterfalls have become completely still all at once, O sinless one ! (26)

अभिवृष्टा महामेघैर्निर्मलाश्चित्रसानवः ।

अनुलिप्ता इवाभान्ति गिरयश्चन्द्ररश्मिभिः ॥ २७ ॥

“Having been washed on all sides by huge clouds and thus cleansed of their impurities, the mountains with their picturesque peaks shine forth as though illumined by the rays of the moon. (27)

शाखासु सप्तच्छदपादपानां

प्रभासु तारार्कनिशाकराणाम् ।

लीलासु चैवोत्तमवारणानां

श्रियं विभज्याद्य शरत्प्रवृत्ता ॥ २८ ॥

“Autumn has now set in, severally manifesting her grace (in the form of blossom) on the boughs of Saptachhada trees, through the light of the stars, the sun and the moon and through the frolicking sport of excellent elephants. (28)

सम्प्रत्यनेकाश्रयचित्रशोभा

लक्ष्मीः शरत्कालगुणोपपन्ना ।

सूर्याग्रहस्तप्रतिबोधितेषु

पद्माकरेष्वभ्यधिकं विभाति ॥ २९ ॥

“With her diversified elegance manifested through various channels the goddess of loveliness, adorned with the beauties of autumn, spreads her charm in an extraordinary degree in the clusters of lotuses opened by the first rays of the sun. (29)

सप्तच्छदानां कुसुमोपगन्धी

षट्पादवृन्दैरनुगीयमानः ।

मत्तद्विपानां पवनानुसारी

दर्पं विनेष्यन् अधिकं विभाति ॥ ३० ॥

“Bearing the fragrance of the blossom of Saptachhada trees, nay being celebrated in song by swarms of black bees, drying up the waters of the lakes and rivers etc., heightening the excitement of elephants in rut and thus following the ways of the wind-god, autumn is spreading its charm in a special degree. (30)

अभ्यागतैश्चारुविशालपक्षैः

स्मरप्रियैः पद्मरजोऽवकीर्णैः ।

महानदीनां

पुलिनोपयातैः

क्रीडन्ति हंसाः सह चक्रवाकैः ॥ ३१ ॥

“The swans are sporting with Cakravākas (a species of red geese), that have newly arrived from the Mānasarovara lake with them, are distinguished by their lovely distended wings and covered over with the pollen of lotuses, are fond of amorous sport and have come in contact with them on the sandy banks of big rivers. (31)

मदप्रगल्भेषु च वारणेषु

गवां समूहेषु च दर्पितेषु ।

प्रसन्नतोयासु च निम्नगासु

विभाति लक्ष्मीर्बहुधा विभक्ता ॥ ३२ ॥

“Loveliness appears reflected severally in elephants mad through rut, in herds of excited bulls as well as in streams with pellucid waters. (32)

नभः समीक्ष्याम्बुधरैर्विमुक्तं

विमुक्तबर्हाभरणा वनेषु ।

प्रियास्वरक्ता विनिवृत्तशोभा

गतोत्सवा ध्यानपरा मयूराः ॥ ३३ ॥

“Perceiving the sky wholly devoid of clouds, the peacocks in the woods—that had shed their decoration in the form of their tail and were no longer fond of their mates, whose grace had totally disappeared and whose joy had departed—became absorbed in the thought of clouds. (33)

मनोजगन्धैः प्रियकैरनल्पैः

पुष्पातिभारावन्ताग्रशाखैः ।

सुवर्णगौरैर्नयनाभिरामै-

रुद्योतितानीव वनान्तराणि ॥ ३४ ॥

“The depths of the forests were lit up, as it were, with the presence of numerous Priyaka (Asana) trees emitting delightful fragrance, which were bright as gold and were highly pleasing to the eye, and the tips of whose branches were bent under the excessive weight of their blossom. (34)

प्रियान्वितानां नलिनीप्रियाणां
वने प्रियाणां कुसुमोद्गतानाम्।
मदोत्कटानां मदलालसानां
गजोत्तमानां गतयोऽद्य मन्दाः ॥ ३५ ॥

“The gait of the foremost of elephants—who are accompanied by their mates, are fond of lotus-ponds and the woods, who are out to enjoy the blossom of Saptachhada trees, are excited by passion and are full of ardent longing for sexual enjoyment, affected with rut as they are—has become slow now. (35)

व्यक्तं नभः शस्त्रविधौतवर्णं
कृशप्रवाहानि नदीजलानि।
कह्लारशीताः पवनाः प्रवान्ति
तमो विमुक्ताश्च दिशः प्रकाशाः ॥ ३६ ॥

“The sky has clearly assumed the spotless hue of a sword sharpened on the whetstone, the waters of the rivers are flowing in a narrow stream, the winds are blowing cool due to contact with Kalhāra flowers and wafting their fragrance, while the quarters look bright, entirely free as they are from obscurity caused by clouds. (36)

सूर्यातपक्रामणनष्टपङ्कजं
भूमिश्चिरोद्घाटितसान्द्ररेणुः ।
अन्योन्यवैरेण समायुताना-
मुद्योगकालोऽद्य नराधिपानाम् ॥ ३७ ॥

“All mud having disappeared due to contact of sunshine, the soil is now covered with thick layers of dust come to light after a long time. Now is the time for military endeavour on the part of kings (lit., rulers of men) actuated by enmity towards one another. (37)

शरद्गुणाप्यायितरूपशोभाः

प्रहर्षिताः पांसुसमुत्थिताङ्गाः ।

मदोत्कटाः सम्प्रति युद्धलुब्धा

वृषा गवां मध्यगता नदन्ति ॥ ३८ ॥

“Overjoyed bulls—whose graceful comeliness of form has been heightened by the bracing qualities of autumn, whose limbs are powdered with dust, nay, who are excited with passion and are now covetous of fighting with one another—are bellowing in the midst of cows. (38)

समन्मथा तीव्रतरानुरागा
कुलान्विता मन्दगतिः करेणुः ।

मदान्वितं सम्परिवार्य यान्तं
वनेषु भर्तारमनुप्रयाति ॥ ३९ ॥

“Affected with rut and as such full of passionate love, hence walking with a slow tread, the she-elephant of noble breed follows her mate—also affected with rut and ranging through the woods—encompassing him now and then. (39)

त्यक्त्वा वराण्यात्मविभूषितानि
बर्हाणि तीरोपगता नदीनाम् ।

निर्भर्त्स्यमाना इव सारसौघैः
प्रयान्ति दीना विमना मयूराः ॥ ४० ॥

“Shedding their excellent tails, which served as their natural adornment, peacocks arrived near the banks of rivers, come away distressed and disconsolate, as though being rebuffed by swarms of cranes. (40)

वित्रास्य कारण्डवचक्रवाकान्
महारवैभिन्नकटा गजेन्द्राः ।

सरस्सुबद्धाम्बुजभूषणेषु
विक्षोभ्य विक्षोभ्य जलं पिबन्ति ॥ ४१ ॥

“Scaring away Kāraṇḍavas and Cakravākas by their formidable cries, while standing in lakes adorned with open lotuses, lordly elephants with ichor exuding from their temples, drink their water after stirring it violently again and again. (41)

व्यपेतपङ्क्तुसु सवालुकासु
प्रसन्नतोयासु सगोकुलासु ।
ससारसारावविनादितासु
नदीषु हंसा निपतन्ति हृष्टाः ॥ ४२ ॥

“Swans full of joy descend into rivers from which mud has altogether disappeared, which are now fringed with sands, whose waters have become clear, which are frequented by herds of cows and flocked with cranes and are rendered noisy with their cries. (42)

नदीघनप्रस्रवणोदकाना-
मतिप्रवृद्धानिलबर्हिणानाम् ।
प्लवंगमानां च गतोत्सवानां
ध्रुवं रवाः सम्प्रति सम्प्रणष्टाः ॥ ४३ ॥

“The sound of the water flowing in rivers, the water discharged by clouds and the murmur of the water gushing from springs, the sound of furious winds, the cries of peacocks and the croaks of frogs, that are bereft of joy, have completely vanished now, to be sure. (43)

अनेकवर्णाः सुविनष्टकाया
नवोदितेष्वम्बुधरेषु नष्टाः ।
क्षुधार्दिता घोरविषा बिलेभ्य-
श्चिरोषिता विप्रसरन्ति सर्पाः ॥ ४४ ॥

“Serpents of many colours carrying terrible poison in their fangs, which remained shut up for a long time in holes for fear of rains ever since the time clouds newly made their appearance in the sky and which were all but dead, their means of sustenance having been completely cut off, are now emerging freely from their holes, tormented as they are with hunger. (44)

चञ्चच्चन्द्रकरस्पर्शहर्षोन्मीलिततारका
अहो रागवती संध्या जहाति स्वयमम्बरम् ॥ ४५ ॥

“Full of passion in the form of roseate hue (in the western horizon) and the pupils of her eyes in the form of stars, brightened through joy at the touch of the hands of the charming moon in the form of moonbeams, the lady in the form of evening twilight automatically abandons herself the covering in the form of the sky. (45)

रात्रिः शशाङ्कोदितसौम्यवक्रा
तारागणोन्मीलितचारुनेत्रा ।
ज्योत्स्नांशुकप्रावरणा विभाति
नारीव शुक्लांशुकसंवृताङ्गी ॥ ४६ ॥

“With her pleasing countenance in the form of the moon perceptible and her lovely eyes in the form of the hosts of stars opened and with her mantle of moonshine wrapped round her body, the night looks like a woman who has her limbs covered with a white cloth. (46)

विपक्वशालिप्रसवानि भुक्त्वा
प्रहर्षिता सारसचारुपङ्क्तिः ।
नभः समाक्रामति शीघ्रवेगा
वातावधूता ग्रथितेव माला ॥ ४७ ॥

“Overjoyed to eat ears of fully ripe paddy and holding them in their beaks, a charming row of cranes takes its flight across the sky with a dashing speed like a knotted garland carried by the wind. (47)

सुप्तैकहंसं कुमुदैरुपेतं
महाह्रदस्थं सलिलं विभाति ।
घनैर्विमुक्तं निशि पूर्णचन्द्रं
तारागणाकीर्णमिवान्तरिक्षम् ॥ ४८ ॥

“Adorned with water-lilies, the water in the big pond with a solitary swan lying asleep on it, looks delightful like the sky completely bereft of clouds, nay, illumined by the full moon and spangled with a host of stars at night. (48)

प्रकीर्णहंसाकुलमेखलानां
प्रबुद्धपद्मोत्पलमालिनीनाम् ।
वाप्युत्तमानामधिकाद्य लक्ष्मी-
र्वराङ्गनानामिव भूषितानाम् ॥ ४९ ॥

“The loveliness of the best of tanks with their broken girdle of swans scattered here and there and their wreaths of full-blown lotuses, and, therefore, looking like lovely women adorned with jewels, stands enhanced today. (49)

वेणुस्वरव्यञ्जिततूर्यमिश्रः

प्रत्यृषकालेऽनिलसम्प्रवृत्तः ।

सम्मूर्छितो गर्गरगोवृषाणा-

मन्योन्यमापूरयतीव शब्दः ॥ ५० ॥

“Blended with the music produced in the form of the whistling of bamboos and circulated by the breeze in the morning and, therefore, spread all round, the echo coming from the caves and the bellowing of the bulls supplement each other, as it were. (50)

नवैर्नदीनां कुसुमप्रहासै-

व्याधूयमानैर्मृदुमारुतेन ।

धौतामलक्षौमपटप्रकाशैः

कूलानि काशैरुपशोभितानि ॥ ५१ ॥

“The banks of rivers stand decorated with fresh bunches of Kāśa grass smiling joyfully in the form of their blossom, nay, being swung by a gentle breeze and shining brightly like strips of linen washed clean with water. (51)

वनप्रचण्डा मधुपानशौण्डाः

प्रियान्विताः षट्चरणाः प्रहृष्टाः ।

वनेषु मत्ताः पवनानुयात्रां

कुर्वन्ति पद्मासनरेणुगौराः ॥ ५२ ॥

“Flying unhampered in the woods and adept in sucking honey, nay, drunk with honey in the woods and turned grey with the pollen of lotus and Asana flowers, the black bees accompanied by their loved ones and transported with joy follow the course of the wind. (52)

जलं प्रसन्नं कुसुमप्रहासं

क्रौञ्चस्वनं शालिवनं विपक्वम् ।

मृदुश्च वायुर्विमलश्च चन्द्रः

शंसन्ति वर्षव्यपनीतकालम् ॥ ५३ ॥

“Pellucid water in the rivers, lakes etc., smiling joyfully in the form of lotus and other flowers and made noisy with the cries of cranes, fully ripe paddy-fields, nay, the gentle breeze and the cloudless moon betoken the time of passing away of the rains. (53)

मीनोपसंदर्शितमेखलानां

नदीवधूनां गतयोऽद्य मन्दाः ।

कान्तोपभुक्तालसगामिनीनां

प्रभातकालेष्विव कामिनीनाम् ॥ ५४ ॥

“The pace of matrons in the form of rivers with their girdles visible in the form of fishes is slow today like that of passionate women enjoyed (the previous night) by their beloved one and walking with a tardy gait at the time of sunrise. (54)

सचक्रवाकानि सशैवलानि

काशैर्दुकूलैरिव संवृतानि ।

सपत्ररेखाणि सरोचनानि

वधूमुखानीव नदीमुखानि ॥ ५५ ॥

“Full of Cakravāka birds (a species of red geese) and duck-weeds floating on them and covered with bunches of Kāśa grass as though with a piece of cloth, the faces of rivers resemble the faces of matrons severally painted with Gorocana (a yellow orpiment prepared from the bile of a cow) and decorated with lines or streaks drawn with musk and other fragrant substances. (55)

प्रफुल्लबाणासनचित्रितेषु

प्रहृष्टषट्पादनिकूजितेषु ।

गृहीतचापोद्यतदण्डचण्डः

प्रचण्डचापोऽद्य वनेषु कामः ॥ ५६ ॥

“Wielding a fierce bow, the god of love, who is cruel in his violence started against the love-lorn with the bow grasped in his hand, has made his appearance today in woodlands adorned with Bāṇa and Asana trees in full blossom and rendered very noisy by highly delighted black bees. (56)

लोकं सुवृष्ट्या परितोषयित्वा

नदीस्तटाकानि च पूरयित्वा ।

निष्पन्नसस्यां वसुधां च कृत्वा

त्यक्त्वा नभस्तोयधराः प्रणष्टाः ॥ ५७ ॥

“Having saturated the earth with abundant rainfall and filling the rivers and tanks, nay, having provided the earth with ripe corns and leaving the sky, the clouds have totally disappeared. (57)

दर्शयन्ति शरन्नद्यः पुलिनानि शनैः शनैः ।

नवसंगमसत्रीडा जघनानीव योषितः ॥ ५८ ॥

“The autumnal streams gradually reveal their banks in the same way as brides bashful in their first meeting with their spouse uncover their body by degrees. (58)

प्रसन्नसलिलाः सौम्य कुरराभिविनादिताः ।

चक्रवाकगणाकीर्णा विभान्ति सलिलाशयाः ॥ ५९ ॥

“With their pellucid water, the lakes and ponds, which are made noisy by ospreys and crowded with swarms of Cakravāka birds (a species of red geese), look very charming, O gentle one ! (59)

अन्योन्यबद्धवैराणां जिगीषूणां नृपात्मज ।

उद्योगसमयः सौम्य पार्थिवानामुपस्थितः ॥ ६० ॥

“The time has come for kings who have deep-seated animosity with one another and are thirsting for conquest to embark on their military campaigns, O gentle prince ! (60)

इयं सा प्रथमा यात्रा पार्थिवानां नृपात्मज ।

न च पश्यामि सुग्रीवमुद्योगं च तथाविधम् ॥ ६१ ॥

“This is the occasion for kings to undertake their very first expedition for conquest after the monsoon, O prince ! I, however, neither see Sugrīva nor any endeavour of that kind on his part so far. (61)

असनाः सप्तपर्णाश्च कोविदाराश्च पुष्पिताः ।

दृश्यन्ते बन्धुजीवाश्च श्यामाश्च गिरिसानुषु ॥ ६२ ॥

“Asana and Saptaparna as well as Kovidāra and Bandhujiva as also Tamāla trees are seen in blossom on the mountain-peaks. (62)

हंससारसचक्राह्वैः कुररैश्च समन्ततः ।

पुलिनान्यवकीर्णानि नदीनां पश्य लक्ष्मण ॥ ६३ ॥

“See, O Lakṣmaṇa, the sandy banks of rivers crowded with swans, cranes and Cakravākas as well as with ospreys on all sides. (63)

चत्वारो वार्षिका मासा गता वर्षशतोपमाः ।

मम शोकाभितप्तस्य तथा सीतामपश्यतः ॥ ६४ ॥

“The four rainy months have well-nigh elapsed like a hundred years past me, tormented as I am with grief because I do not behold Sitā. (64)

चक्रवाकीव भर्तारं पृष्ठतोऽनुगता वनम् ।

विषमं दण्डकारण्यमुद्यानमिव चाङ्गना ॥ ६५ ॥

“The belle followed at my back to the forest of Daṇḍaka, which was hard to penetrate, even as a female Cakravāka would follow her mate to a garden. (65)

प्रियाविहीने दुःखार्ते हृतराज्ये विवासिते ।

कृपां न कुरुते राजा सुग्रीवो मयि लक्ष्मण ॥ ६६ ॥

“King Sugrīva, O Lakṣmaṇa, is not showing his goodwill to me, even though I am bereft of my darling, stricken with agony, deprived of my kingdom and exiled from my home. (66)

अनाथो हृतराज्योऽहं रावणेन च धर्षितः ।

दीनो दूरगृहः कामी मां चैव शरणं गतः ॥ ६७ ॥

इत्येतैः कारणैः सौम्य सुग्रीवस्य दुरात्मनः ।

अहं वानरराजस्य परिभूतः परंतपः ॥ ६८ ॥

“A scorcher of foes, as I am, I have been held in contempt by Sugrīva, the evil-minded king of monkeys, on the grounds that I am forlorn, have been deprived of my kingdom and outraged by Rāvaṇa, that I am miserable, far from my home and love-sick and have sought him for protection. (67-68)

स कालं परिसंख्याय सीतायाः परिमार्गणे ।

कृतार्थः समयं कृत्वा दुर्मतिर्नावबुध्यते ॥ ६९ ॥

“Having fixed a limit of time for the search of Sitā and arrived at an understanding with me on this score, the perverted fellow does not give heed to it, his object having already been accomplished.

(69)

स किष्किन्धां प्रविश्य त्वं ब्रूहि वानरपुङ्गवम् ।

मूर्खं ग्राम्यसुखे सक्तं सुग्रीवं वचनान्मम ॥ ७० ॥

“Therefore, duly entering Kiṣkindhā, admonish in my name the foolish Sugrīva, the foremost of monkeys, who is attached to carnal pleasures, as follows: (70)

अर्थिनामुपपन्नानां पूर्वं चाप्युपकारिणाम् ।

आशां संश्रुत्य यो हन्ति स लोके पुरुषाधमः ॥ ७१ ॥

‘The vilest among men in this world is he who, having pledged his word to grant the desire of suppliants, who are themselves endowed with strength etc., and have also rendered good offices to him in the past, fails to implement his promise. (71)

शुभं वा यदि वा पापं यो हि वाक्यमुदीरितम् ।

सत्येन परिगृह्णाति स वीरः पुरुषोत्तमः ॥ ७२ ॥

‘He, on the other hand, who honours as inviolable his plighted word, be it productive of good or evil, is a hero and the best of men. (72)

कृतार्था ह्यकृतार्थानां मित्राणां न भवन्ति ये ।

तान् मृतानपि क्रव्यादाः कृतघ्नान् नोपभुञ्जते ॥ ७३ ॥

‘Even carnivore refuse to feed on the flesh of those ungrateful beings, when they are dead, who, though having achieved their own end, actually fail to be of any service to their beneficent friends whose object has not yet been accomplished. (73)

नूनं काञ्चनपृष्ठस्य विकृष्टस्य मया रणे ।

द्रष्टुमिच्छसि चापस्य रूपं विद्युद्गणोपमम् ॥ ७४ ॥

‘Do you really wish to see the shining frame, resembling a series of lightning flashes, of my gold-backed bow stretched at full length by me in combat? (74)

घोरं ज्यातलनिर्घोषं कुब्धस्य मम संयुगे ।

निर्घोषमिव वज्रस्य पुनः संश्रोतुमिच्छसि ॥ ७५ ॥

‘Do you long to hear once more at close quarters the terrible twang of my bowstring resembling the crash of a thunderbolt when I am angered on a field of battle?’ (75)

काममेवंगतेऽप्यस्य परिज्ञाते पराक्रमे ।

त्वत्सहायस्य मे वीर न चिन्ता स्यान्नृपात्मज ॥ ७६ ॥

“It is strange, O prince, that no anxious thought that I could as well slay Sugrīva, as I did Vālī, if he failed to implement his promise should cross the mind of Sugrīva even under such circumstances when my prowess is directly and fully known to him and especially when I have a helpful companion in you. (76)

यदर्थमयमारम्भः कृतः परपुरंजय ।

समयं नाभिजानाति कृतार्थः प्लवगेश्वरः ॥ ७७ ॥

“Sugrīva (the lord of monkeys), whose object has been accomplished, no longer remembers the understanding which was arrived at with him by me relating to the purpose in the shape of conducting a search for Sītā for which this endeavour in the form of cultivating friendship with him and killing Vālī was made by me, O conqueror of hostile cities ! (77)

वर्षाः समयकालं तु प्रतिज्ञाय हरीश्वरः ।

व्यतीतांश्चतुरो मासान् विहरन् नावबुध्यते ॥ ७८ ॥

“Having given his plighted word to the effect that the understanding arrived at with me will be honoured at the end of the monsoon, Sugrīva (the king of monkeys), who is busy diverting himself by enjoying the pleasures of sense is not aware of the four rainy months that have already well-nigh elapsed. (78)

सामात्यपरिषत्क्रीडन् पानमेवोपसेवते ।

शोकदीनेषु नास्मासु सुग्रीवः कुरुते दयाम् ॥ ७९ ॥

“Amusing himself alongwith his ministers and court, Sugrīva is only enjoying drink, and does not commiserate with us, who are distressed through grief. (79)

उच्यतां गच्छ सुग्रीवस्त्वया वीर महाबल ।

मम रोषस्य यद्रूपं ब्रूयाश्चैनमिदं वचः ॥ ८० ॥

“Go and let Sugrīva be apprised of the turn which my wrath may take, O valiant prince possessed of extraordinary might, and administer to him the following warning: (80)

न स संकुचितः पन्था येन वाली हतो गतः ।
समये तिष्ठ सुग्रीव मा वालिपथमन्वगाः ॥ ८१ ॥

‘The route by which Vālī has departed on being killed by me on the field of battle has not been closed. Therefore, abide by the pledge given by you, pray, do not follow the path of Vālī. (81)

एक एव रणे वाली शरेण निहतो मया ।
त्वां तु सत्यादतिक्रान्तं हनिष्यामि सबान्धवम् ॥ ८२ ॥

‘Vālī alone was killed by me with an arrow while I will kill you with all your kinsfolk since you have deviated from truth.’ (82)

यदेवं विहिते कार्ये यद्धितं पुरुषर्षभ ।
तत् तद् ब्रूहि नरश्रेष्ठ त्वर कालव्यतिक्रमः ॥ ८३ ॥

“When the work of initiating a search for Sītā has been impeded in this way, pray, speak to Sugrīva whatever is good for him as well as for us, O jewel among men !

Make haste, O ornament of humanity ! Let there be no delay. (83)

कुरुष्व सत्यं मम वानरेश्वर
प्रतिश्रुतं धर्ममवेक्ष्य शाश्वतम् ।
मा वालिनं प्रेतगतो यमक्षये
त्वमद्य पश्येर्मम चोदितः शरैः ॥ ८४ ॥

“Address in my name the following appeal to Sugrīva : ‘Recognizing it to be an everlasting virtue, O lord of monkeys, implement the pledge given to me. Hurling by my arrows to the other world, pray, do not see you Vālī in the abode of Death today.’ (84)

स पूर्वजं तीव्रविवृद्धकोपं
लालप्यमानं प्रसमीक्ष्य दीनम् ।
चकार तीव्रां मतिमुग्रतेजा
हरीश्वरे मानववंशवर्धनः ॥ ८५ ॥

Perceiving his eldest brother, Śrī Rāma, babbling, distressed as he was, his anger having grown violent, Lakṣmaṇa, the promoter of the race of Manu (the progenitor of mankind), who was endowed with terrific energy, adopted a severe attitude towards Sugrīva, the ruler of monkeys. (85)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे
त्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३० ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and oldest epic.

एकत्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXI

Concluding from the angry words of Śrī Rāma that he was wroth against Sugrīva, Lakṣmaṇa gets ready to kill the latter. Pacifying Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma, however, sends him to Sugrīva with instructions to adopt a conciliatory attitude towards him. Reaching Kiṣkindhā with a bow and arrow in hand and assuming an angry demeanour, Lakṣmaṇa asks Aṅgada to announce his arrival to Sugrīva. Even when apprised of Lakṣmaṇa's arrival by Aṅgada, Sugrīva, who was drunk with wine, is unable to follow Aṅgada and comes to realize the gravity of the situation only on hearing the clamour of the alarmed monkeys and on being awakened to the reality by two of his foremost ministers and implored by them to pacify Lakṣmaṇa

स कामिनं दीनमदीनसत्त्वं
शोकाभिपन्नं समुदीर्णकोपम् ।
नरेन्द्रसूनुर्नरदेवपुत्रं
रामानुजः पूर्वजमित्युवाच ॥ १ ॥

Prince Lakṣmaṇa, younger brother of Śrī Rāma, submitted as follows to his eldest brother (Śrī Rāma), the son of a king, who, though noble-minded, was feeling distressed, overcome as he was with grief and full of longing for his lost consort, his wrath having grown intense: (1)

न वानरः स्थास्यति साधुवृत्ते
न मन्यते कर्मफलानुषङ्गान् ।
न भोक्ष्यते वानरराज्यलक्ष्मीं
तथा हि नातिक्रमतेऽस्य बुद्धिः ॥ २ ॥

“Since Sugrīva, who is a monkey after all, would not stick to the conduct of the virtuous, who are constant in their friendship and love, nor does he recognize the relation of cause and effect between his virtuous action (in the shape of cultivating friendship with you and solemnizing it in the presence of fire) and its reward (in the shape of regaining his lost sovereignty and his wife), it is therefore clear that he is not going to enjoy long the fortune in the shape of the kingdom of the monkeys. Hence his mind does not take rapid strides on the path of discharging one's obligations towards a friend. (2)

मतिक्षयाद् ग्राम्यसुखेषु सक्त-स्तव प्रसादात् प्रतिकारबुद्धिः ।
हतोऽग्रजं पश्यतु वीरवालिनं
न राज्यमेवं विगुणस्य देयम् ॥ ३ ॥

“He has got addicted to the vulgar pleasures due to loss of reason and the inclination to repay one's debt, springs up in one only as a result of your grace (which has evidently not descended on him). Let him, therefore, see, on his being killed, his elder brother, the heroic Vālī; rulership should not be conferred on an individual who is so destitute of virtues as he is. (3)

न धारये कोपमुदीर्णवेगं
निहन्मि सुग्रीवमसत्यमद्य ।
हरिप्रवीरैः सह वालिपुत्रो
नरेन्द्रपुत्र्या विचयं करोतु ॥ ४ ॥

“I am unable to contain my wrath, whose vehemence has been intensified, and shall get rid of the faithless Sugrīva this very day. Let the son of Vālī, on being installed on the throne in place of Sugrīva, conduct the search for Sītā (the daughter of a ruler of men) alongwith the foremost heroes among monkeys.” (4)

तमात्तबाणासनमुत्पतन्तं

निवेदितार्थं रणचण्डकोपम् ।

उवाच रामः परवीरहन्ता

स्ववीक्षितं सानुनयं च वाक्यम् ॥ ५ ॥

To Lakṣmaṇa, who was rushing forward towards Kiṣkindhā, bow in hand, nay, who had made known to Śrī Rāma, his purpose of sallying forth to Kiṣkindhā and manifested wild anger as a precursor of fight, Śrī Rāma, the destroyer of hostile warriors, gave the following reply, which was well thought out and full of civility : (5)

नहि वै त्वद्विधो लोके पापमेवं समाचरेत् ।

कोपमार्येण यो हन्ति स वीरः पुरुषोत्तमः ॥ ६ ॥

“Surely no one like you, who knows what is right, will ever knowingly perpetrate such a sin as indulging in the very thought of killing a friend. He who kills his anger through right judgment is a hero and the foremost of men. (6)

नेदमत्र त्वया ग्राह्यं साधुवृत्तेन लक्ष्मण ।

तां प्रीतिमनुवर्तस्व पूर्ववृत्तं च संगतम् ॥ ७ ॥

“No such idea should be entertained on this occasion by you, O Lakṣmaṇa, a man of pious conduct as you are. Pursue the former love that existed between us and Sugrīva and recollect what happened in the past and also our friendship. (7)

सामोपहितया वाचा रूक्षाणि परिवर्जयन् ।

वक्तुमर्हसि सुग्रीवं व्यतीतं कालपर्यये ॥ ८ ॥

“Avoiding harsh words, you ought to speak to Sugrīva, who stands guilty of delay, in a conciliatory language, reminding him of the time that has already elapsed.” (8)

सोऽग्रजेनानुशिष्टार्थो यथावत् पुरुषर्षभः ।

प्रविवेश पुरीं वीरो लक्ष्मणः परवीरहा ॥ ९ ॥

Having been duly instructed as to what should be done, Lakṣmaṇa, the well-known hero, a veritable jewel among men and the slayer of hostile warriors, boldly proceeded to enter the city of Kiṣkindhā. (9)

ततः शुभमतिः प्राज्ञो भ्रातुः प्रियहिते रतः ।

लक्ष्मणः प्रतिसंरब्धो जगाम भवनं कपेः ॥ १० ॥

Thereupon the wise and pious-minded Lakṣmaṇa—who was intent on doing what is pleasing and what is conducive to the good of his eldest brother, and was feeling indignant—made for the palace of the monkey chief. (10)

शक्रबाणासनप्रख्यं धनुः कालान्तकोपमम् ।

प्रगृह्य गिरिशृङ्गाभं मन्दरः सानुमानिव ॥ ११ ॥

“Bearing as he did his bow, shining brightly like the rainbow (the bow of Indra), nay, dreadful as the all-destroying, Time-Spirit and the god of death (the destroyer of the world) and resembling a mountain-peak, he stood like the Mandara mountain. (11)

यथोक्तकारी वचनमुत्तरं चैव सोत्तरम् ।

बृहस्पतिसमो बुद्ध्या मत्वा रामानुजस्तदा ॥ १२ ॥

कामक्रोधसमुत्थेन भ्रातुः क्रोधाग्निना वृतः ।

प्रभञ्जन इवाप्रीतः प्रययौ लक्ष्मणस्ततः ॥ १३ ॥

सालतालाश्रुकर्णाश्च तरसा पातयन् बलात् ।

पर्यस्यन् गिरिकूटानि द्रुमान्यांश्च वेगितः ॥ १४ ॥

Revolving in his mind what he had got to say to Sugrīva as well as the reply he expected from the latter alongwith his own contemplated rejoinder, Lakṣmaṇa, a younger brother of Śrī Rāma—who was wont to do as he was told by Śrī Rāma, who vied with Sage Bṛhaspati, the preceptor of gods, in intelligence, nay, who was encompassed by the fire of wrath sprung from the longing in his brother’s heart (for getting a search for Sītā initiated) and its frustration and displeased with Sugrīva—then rushed from that place like a tempest, uprooting with his might sal, palmyra and Aśwakarna as well as other trees, throwing down mountain-peaks, full of impetuosity as he was. (12—14)

शिलाश्च शकलीकुर्वन् पद्भ्यां गज इवाशुगः ।

दूरमेकपदं त्यक्त्वा ययौ कार्यवशाद् द्रुतम् ॥ १५ ॥

Nay, crushing the rocks under his feet like a swift-going elephant, he moved speedily, taking long strides due to exigency of the moment. (15)

तामपश्यद् बलाकीर्णा हरिराजमहापुरीम् ।

दुर्गामिक्ष्वाकुशार्दूलः किष्किन्धां गिरिसंकटे ॥ १६ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa, a tiger among the Ikṣvākus, beheld Kiṣkindhā, the famous capital of the king of monkeys, situated in the midst of mountains and surrounded by an army of monkeys and, therefore, difficult of access. (16)

रोषात् प्रस्फुरमाणोष्ठः सुग्रीवं प्रति लक्ष्मणः ।

ददर्श वानरान् भीमान् किष्किन्धायां बहिश्चरान् ॥ १७ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa, whose lips were trembling through anger directed against Sugrīva, saw fearful monkeys roaming outside in Kiṣkindhā. (17)

तं दृष्ट्वा वानराः सर्वे लक्ष्मणं पुरुषर्षभम् ।

शैलशृङ्गाणि शतशः प्रवृद्धांश्च महीरुहान् ।

जगृहुः कुञ्जरप्रख्या वानराः पर्वतान्तरे ॥ १८ ॥

Seeing the celebrated Lakṣmaṇa, a jewel among men, all the monkeys, who looked like elephants and behaved like men, snatched mountain-peaks in hundreds as well as fully grown up trees in the midst of mountains. (18)

तान् गृहीतप्रहरणान् सर्वान् दृष्ट्वा तु लक्ष्मणः ।

बभूव द्विगुणं क्रुद्धो बहिन्धन इवानलः ॥ १९ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa for his part got doubly enraged to see them all, weapons in hand, as a fire would flare up when fed with abundant firewood. (19)

तं ते भयपरीताङ्गा क्षुब्धं दृष्ट्वा प्लवंगमाः ।

कालमृत्युयुगान्ताभं शतशो विद्रुता दिशः ॥ २० ॥

Seeing him agitated like the all-devouring Time-Spirit, the god of death and the fire of universal destruction, the monkeys fled in their hundreds in all directions, their limbs overpowered through fear. (20)

ततः सुग्रीवभवनं प्रविश्य हरिपुंगवाः ।

क्रोधमागमनं चैव लक्ष्मणस्य न्यवेदयन् ॥ २१ ॥

Duly entering the palace of Sugrīva, the leaders of monkeys then apprised him of Lakṣmaṇa's arrival and wrath. (21)

तारया सहितः कामी सक्तः कपिवृषस्तदा ।

न तेषां कपिसिंहानां शुश्राव वचनं तदा ॥ २२ ॥

Sugrīva (the foremost of monkeys), who was accompanied by Tārā at that moment, and who was full of longing for women and deeply attached to the pleasure of sense, did not instantly heed the words of those lions among monkeys. (22)

ततः सचिवसंदिष्टा हरयो रोमहर्षणाः ।

गिरिकुञ्जरमेघाभा नगरान्निर्ययुस्तदा ॥ २३ ॥

As commanded by the ministers, the monkeys, who looked like mountains, elephants and clouds in size and made the hair of those who looked on them stand on end, thereupon issued out of the city at once. (23)

नखदंष्ट्रायुधाः सर्वे वीरा विकृतदर्शनाः ।

सर्वे शार्दूलदंष्ट्राश्च सर्वे विवृतदर्शनाः ॥ २४ ॥

Having nails and sharp teeth for their weapons, they were all heroic and terrible to look at. The teeth of them all were like those of a tiger and they could be clearly seen, standing as they were in the open. (24)

दशनागबलाः केचित् केचिद् दशगुणोत्तराः ।

केचिन्नागसहस्रस्य बभूवुस्तुल्यवर्चसः ॥ २५ ॥

Some of them possessed the strength of ten elephants, others were ten times stronger, while still others were equal in energy to ten thousand elephants. (25)

ततस्तैः कपिभिर्व्याप्तां द्रुमहस्तैर्महाबलैः ।

अपश्यल्लक्ष्मणः क्रुद्धः किष्किन्धां तां दुरासदाम् ॥ २६ ॥

Full of wrath, Lakṣmaṇa thereupon cast his eyes on the aforesaid Kīṣkindhā, surrounded by those exceptionally mighty monkeys, standing trees in hand, which was difficult of access. (26)

ततस्ते हरयः सर्वे प्राकारपरिखान्तरात्।
निष्क्रम्योदग्रसत्त्वास्तु तस्थुराविष्कृतं तदा ॥ २७ ॥

Coming out of the fortification wall and crossing the limits of the moat surrounding it, all the aforesaid monkeys for their part, who were exceptionally mighty, thereupon stood in the open on that occasion. (27)

सुग्रीवस्य प्रमादं च पूर्वजस्यार्थमात्मवान्।
दृष्ट्वा क्रोधवशं वीरः पुनरेव जगाम सः ॥ २८ ॥

Considering the negligence on the part of Sugrīva as well as the purpose of his eldest brother, Śrī Rāma, the valiant Lakṣmaṇa, even though self-possessed, fell a victim to anger once more. (28)

स दीर्घोष्णमहोच्छ्वासः कोपसंरक्तलोचनः।
बभूव नरशार्दूलः सधूम इव पावकः ॥ २९ ॥

Heaving deep and burning sighs, his eyes blood-red through anger, that tiger among men looked like fire enveloped in smoke. (29)

बाणशल्यस्फुरज्जिह्वः सायकासनभोगवान्।
स्वतेजोविषसम्भूतः पञ्चास्य इव पन्नगः ॥ ३० ॥

With the head of the arrow for its flickering tongues and the bow for its coils and full of poison in the shape of his martial ardour, Lakṣmaṇa stood like a five-headed serpent. (30)

तं दीप्तमिव कालाग्निं नागेन्द्रमिव कोपितम्।
समासाद्याङ्गदस्त्रासाद् विषादमगमत् परम् ॥ ३१ ॥

Duly approaching Lakṣmaṇa, who shone like the blazing fire of universal destruction and resembled the infuriated king of serpents, Śeṣa, Prince Aṅgada gave way to utter despondency through fear. (31)

सोऽङ्गदं रोषताम्राक्षः संदिदेश महायशः।
सुग्रीवः कथ्यतां वत्स ममागमनमित्युत ॥ ३२ ॥

His eyes bloodshot through anger, the highly glorious Lakṣmaṇa commanded Aṅgada as follows : “Let Sugrīva, my child, be apprised of my arrival as below : (32)

एष रामानुजः प्राप्तस्त्वत्सकाशमरिदम्।
भ्रातुर्व्यसनसंतप्तो द्वारि तिष्ठति लक्ष्मणः ॥ ३३ ॥

“ ‘Arrived in your presence, O tamer of enemies, here waits Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma’s younger brother, at your door, tormented as he is by the said plight of his eldest brother, Śrī Rāma. (33)

तस्य वाक्यं यदि रुचिः क्रियतां साधु वानर।
इत्युक्त्वा शीघ्रमागच्छ वत्स वाक्यमरिदम् ॥ ३४ ॥

“ ‘His advice may be duly followed if it pleases you, O monkey chief !’ Delivering this message of mine, O tamer of foes, return soon, my child !” (34)

लक्ष्मणस्य वचः श्रुत्वा शोकाविष्टोऽङ्गदोऽब्रवीत्।
पितुः समीपमागम्य सौमित्रिरयमागतः ॥ ३५ ॥

Overcome with grief to hear the message of Lakṣmaṇa, and seeking the presence of his uncle, Sugrīva, Aṅgada submitted to him, “Here is Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) come.” (35)

अथाङ्गदस्तस्य सुतीव्रवाचा
सम्भ्रान्तभावः परिदीनवक्त्रः।

निर्गत्य पूर्वं नृपतेस्तरस्वी
ततो रुमायाश्चरणौ ववन्दे ॥ ३६ ॥

Slipping away from the presence of Lakṣmaṇa, the swift-footed Aṅgada, who was perplexed in mind at the highly pungent words of Lakṣmaṇa, and wore a most wretched look on his countenance, bowed first at the feet of the king (his uncle Sugrīva) and then at those of his aunt, Rumā, as well as of his own mother, Tārā. (36)

संगृह्य पादौ पितुरुग्रतेजा
जग्राह मातुः पुनरेव पादौ।
पादौ रुमायाश्च निपीडयित्वा
निवेदयामास ततस्तदर्थम् ॥ ३७ ॥

Clasping tightly the feet of his uncle, Aṅgada, who was endowed with terrific energy, caught hold once more of the feet of his mother and, pressing firmly the feet of Rūmā, he then submitted to him the aforesaid matter. (37)

स निद्राक्लान्तसंवीतो वानरो न विबुद्धवान्।

बभूव मदमत्तश्च मदनेन च मोहितः ॥ ३८ ॥

The aforesaid monkey, however, who was heavy with sleep and overwhelmed with it, nay, who was drunk with wine and infatuated with love, did not wake up to the situation. (38)

ततः किलकिलां चक्रुर्लक्ष्मणं प्रेक्ष्य वानराः।

प्रसादयन्तस्तं क्रुद्धं भयमोहितचेतसः ॥ ३९ ॥

Perceiving Lakṣmaṇa enraged, the monkeys, whose mind was confused through fear, thereupon raised a hue and cry, seeking to pacify him. (39)

ते महौघनिभं दृष्ट्वा वज्राशनिसमस्वनम्।

सिंहनादं समं चक्रुर्लक्ष्मणस्य समीपतः ॥ ४० ॥

Descrying the presence of Lakṣmaṇa, they raised near about Sugrīva a clamour resembling all at once the sound of a great onrush of water or the peals of thunder or the roar of a lion. (40)

तेन शब्देन महता प्रत्यबुध्यत वानरः।

मदविह्वलताम्राक्षो व्याकुलः स्रग्विभूषणः ॥ ४१ ॥

The monkey, Sugrīva, woke up at that loud noise. With blood-red eyes he was beside himself through intoxication and felt troubled, garlands being his only ornaments. (41)

अथाङ्गदवचः श्रुत्वा तेनैव च समागतौ।

मन्त्रिणौ वानरेन्द्रस्य सम्मतोदारदर्शनौ ॥ ४२ ॥

प्लक्षश्चैव प्रभावश्च मन्त्रिणावर्थधर्मयोः।

वक्तुमुच्चावचं प्राप्तं लक्ष्मणं तौ शशंसतुः ॥ ४३ ॥

प्रसादयित्वा सुग्रीवं वचनैः सार्थनिश्चितैः।

आसीनं पर्युपासीनौ यथा शक्रं मरुत्यतिम् ॥ ४४ ॥

Hearing the submission of Aṅgada, and gladdening Sugrīva with words which expressed a definite opinion about the matter in hand, two famous counsellors of Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, namely Plakṣa and Prabhāva—who gave sage counsel and had come with Prince Aṅgada himself, nay, who were highly esteemed by Sugrīva, and were noble of appearance, and who stood respectfully by the side of Sugrīva, sitting like Indra, the ruler of gods—announced to him the presence of Lakṣmaṇa, who had come to teach him various things about worldly fortune and righteousness. (42—44)

सत्यसंधौ महाभागौ भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ।

मनुष्यभावं सम्प्राप्तौ राज्याहौ राज्यदायिनौ ॥ ४५ ॥

They said: "Having assumed for sport a human semblance, the two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa are true to their promise, highly blessed and deserving of sovereignty of all the three worlds and have conferred rulership on you. (45)

तयोरेको धनुष्याणिद्वारि तिष्ठति लक्ष्मणः।

यस्य भीताः प्रवेपन्तो नादान् मुञ्चन्ति वानराः ॥ ४६ ॥

"One of them, viz., Lakṣmaṇa, stands at your door, bow in hand. Afraid of him and violently shaking, the monkeys are raising shrill cries. (46)

स एष राघवभ्राता लक्ष्मणो वाक्यसारथिः।

व्यवसायरथः प्राप्तस्तस्य रामस्य शासनात् ॥ ४७ ॥

"Here stands the celebrated Lakṣmaṇa, younger brother of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), arrived at the command of the same Śrī Rāma with the latter's message as his charioteer (guide) and the determination to achieve his purpose for his chariot. (47)

अयं च तनयो राजंस्ताराया दयितोऽङ्गदः।

लक्ष्मणेन सकाशं ते प्रेषितस्त्वरयानघ ॥ ४८ ॥

"Nay, this beloved son of Tārā, Aṅgada, has been sent with expedition by Lakṣmaṇa to your presence, O sinless one ! (48)

सोऽयं रोषपरीताक्षो द्वारि तिष्ठति वीर्यवान्।

वानरान् वानरपते चक्षुषा निर्दहन्निव ॥ ४९ ॥

"And consuming, as it were, the monkeys with his angry look, O lord of monkeys, there stands at your door the powerful Lakṣmaṇa, his eyes suffused with anger. (49)

तस्य मूर्ध्ना प्रणामं त्वं सपुत्रः सहबान्धवः ।
गच्छ शीघ्रं महाराज रोषो ह्यदोपशाम्यताम् ॥ ५० ॥

“Accompanied by your son and kinsfolk, make respectful obeisance to him with your head bent low. Depart quickly, O monarch !

Let his anger be appeased this very day. (50)

यथा हि रामो धर्मात्मा तत्कुरुष्व समाहितः ।
राजंस्तिष्ठ स्वसमये भव सत्यप्रतिश्रवः ॥ ५१ ॥

“Devoutly act precisely as Śrī Rāma, whose mind is set on virtue, directs you to do, O king; abide by your understanding with him and remain true to your promise.” (51)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे एकत्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-one in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वात्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXII

Seeing Sugrīva dismayed to hear of Lakṣmaṇa's wrath from the mouth of Aṅgada, Hanumān tells Sugrīva that the delay in honouring the understanding arrived at with Śrī Rāma was at the root of the latter's displeasure, and advises Sugrīva to pacify Lakṣmaṇa and initiate the search for Sītā

अङ्गदस्य वचः श्रुत्वा सुग्रीवः सचिवैः सह ।
लक्ष्मणं कुपितं श्रुत्वा मुमोक्षासनमात्मवान् ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the submission of Aṅgada accompanied by his own counsellors, Plakṣa and Prabhāva and learning of Lakṣmaṇa being angry, Sugrīva, who had control over his self, quitted his bed in a flurry. (1)

स च तानब्रवीद् वाक्यं निश्चित्य गुरुलाघवम् ।
मन्त्रज्ञान् मन्त्रकुशलो मन्त्रेषु परिनिष्ठितः ॥ २ ॥

Nay, having definitely come to know the greatness of Śrī Rāma and his own frivolity, Sugrīva, who was an adept in turning to account the counsel of his ministers and was exceptionally clever at deliberations, spoke to them who were skilled in counsel, as follows : (2)

न मे दुर्व्याहृतं किञ्चिन्नापि मे दुरनुष्ठितम् ।
लक्ष्मणो राघवभ्राता क्रुद्धः किमिति चिन्तये ॥ ३ ॥

“Neither has anything harsh been uttered by me nor has anything wrong been done by me to Śrī Rāma. I, therefore, wonder why Lakṣmaṇa, younger brother of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), is angry with me. (3)

असुहृद्भिर्ममामित्रैर्नित्यमन्तरदर्शिभिः ।
मम दोषानसम्भूताञ्श्रावितो राघवानुजः ॥ ४ ॥

“Surely Lakṣmaṇa, younger brother of Śrī Rāma, has been told of my imaginary faults by my malevolent enemies who are ever given to picking holes. (4)

अत्र तावद् यथाबुद्धिः सर्वैरेव यथाविधि ।
भावस्य निश्चयस्तावद् विज्ञेयो निपुणं शनैः ॥ ५ ॥

“In this connection, at the very outset, however, what exists in the mind of Lakṣmaṇa should by degrees be carefully ascertained by all taken together in the proper way so that we may know the cause of his anger. (5)

न खल्वस्ति मम त्रासो लक्ष्मणान्नापि राघवात् ।
मित्रं स्वस्थानकुपितं जनयत्येव सम्भ्रमम् ॥ ६ ॥

“Indeed I have no fear from Lakṣmaṇa nor even from Śrī Rāma since I have done no wrong to them; a friend, however, who is angry without justification does create misgiving. (6)

सर्वथा सुकरं मित्रं दुष्करं प्रतिपालनम् ।
अनित्यत्वात् तु चित्तानां प्रीतिरल्येऽपि भिद्यते ॥ ७ ॥

“It is quite easy to make friends, but difficult to sustain friendship till the end. Due to fickleness of the minds, really speaking friendship is broken even in the event of a minor difference. (7)

अतोनिमित्तं त्रस्तोऽहं रामेण तु महात्मना ।
यन्ममोपकृतं शक्यं प्रतिकर्तुं न तन्मया ॥ ८ ॥

“For this reason alone I am apprehensive; for the good turn that has been done to me by the high-souled Śrī Rāma can in no way be repaid by me.” (8)

सुग्रीवेणैवमुक्ते तु हनूमान् हरिपुंगवः ।
उवाच स्वेन तर्केण मध्ये वानरमन्त्रिणाम् ॥ ९ ॥

When Sugrīva had spoken as aforesaid, Hanūmān, the foremost among monkeys, for his part submitted as follows in the midst of Vānara counsellors on the basis of his own presumption : (9)

सर्वथा नैतदाश्चर्यं यत् त्वं हरिणेश्वर ।
न विस्मरसि सुस्निग्धमुपकारं कृतं शुभम् ॥ १० ॥

“It is not at all a matter of surprise that you, O lord of the hordes of monkeys, should not forget a conspicuous service rendered to you with the utmost love. (10)

राघवेण तु वीरेण भयमुत्सृज्य दूरतः ।
त्वत्प्रियार्थं हतो वाली शक्रतुल्यपराक्रमः ॥ ११ ॥

“Shedding fear of obloquy at a respectable distance, Vālī, who equalled Indra, the ruler of gods, in prowess, was actually slain by the heroic Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for the sake of your pleasure. (11)

सर्वथा प्रणयात् क्रुद्धो राघवो नात्र संशयः ।
भ्रातरं सम्प्रहितवाँल्लक्ष्मणं लक्ष्मिवर्धनम् ॥ १२ ॥

“Enraged purely through affection for you has Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) duly sent to you his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, the promoter of fortune : there is no doubt about it. (12)

त्वं प्रमत्तो न जानीषे कालं कालविदां वर ।
फुल्लसप्तच्छदश्यामा प्रवृत्ता तु शरच्छुभा ॥ १३ ॥

“Heedless as you are, you have no idea of the passage of time, O jewel among those conversant with time ! The blessed autumn, green with Saptachhada trees in blossom, has already set in. (13)

निर्मलग्रहनक्षत्रा द्यौः प्रणष्टबलाहका ।
प्रसन्नाश्च दिशः सर्वाः सरितश्च सरांसि च ॥ १४ ॥

“The sky, from which clouds have totally disappeared, is illumined with bright planets and stars. All the four quarters as well as the rivers and lakes have assumed a cheerful aspect. (14)

प्राप्तमुद्योगकालं तु नावैषि हरिपुंगव ।
त्वं प्रमत्त इति व्यक्तं लक्ष्मणोऽयमिहागतः ॥ १५ ॥

“You are not at all aware of the time for military endeavour, which has already arrived, O jewel among monkeys ! Thus evidently you are forgetful. Hence has Lakṣmaṇa come here to remind you of your duty. (15)

आर्तस्य हृतदारस्य परुषं पुरुषान्तरात् ।
वचनं मर्षणीयं ते राघवस्य महात्मनः ॥ १६ ॥

“The harsh language of the high-souled Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), who is in distress and has been deprived of his spouse, as heard from the mouth of another man, Lakṣmaṇa, ought to be tolerated by you. (16)

कृतापराधस्य हि ते नान्यत् पश्याम्यहं क्षमम् ।
अन्तरेणाञ्जलिं बद्ध्वा लक्ष्मणस्य प्रसादनात् ॥ १७ ॥

“Indeed I do not consider anything other than pacifying Lakṣmaṇa with joined palms as meet for you, who have perpetrated an offence against Śrī Rāma. (17)

नियुक्तैर्मन्त्रिभिर्वाच्यो ह्यवश्यं पार्थिवो हितम् ।
इत एव भयं त्यक्त्वा ब्रवीम्यवधृतं वचः ॥ १८ ॥

“A king indeed must be tendered salutary advice by counsellors appointed for such service. It is for this reason that, shedding all fear of displeasing you, I tell you something which has been carefully considered by me. (18)

अभिक्रुद्धः समर्थो हि चापमुद्यम्य राघवः ।
सदेवासुरगन्धर्व वशे स्थापयितुं जगत् ॥ १९ ॥

“Raising his bow when enraged, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, is surely able to reduce to submission the whole universe including gods, demons and Gandharvas (celestial musicians). (19)

न स क्षमः कोपयितुं यः प्रसाद्यः पुनर्भवेत् ।
पूर्वोपकारं स्मरता कृतज्ञेन विशेषतः ॥ २० ॥

“He who deserves incessantly to be propitiated is not fit to be provoked particularly by a grateful soul who is alive to his past obligations. (20)

तस्य मूर्ध्ना प्रणम्य त्वं सपुत्रः ससुहृज्जनः ।
राजंस्तिष्ठ स्वसमये भर्तुर्भार्यैव तद्वशे ॥ २१ ॥

“Bowing low at his feet with your head bent low, alongwith your son and near and dear ones, O king, honour your understanding with Śrī Rāma and remain subordinate to his will as a wife to the will of her husband. (21)

न रामरामानुजशासनं त्वया
कपीन्द्रयुक्तं मनसाप्यपोहितुम् ।
मनो हि ते ज्ञास्यति मानुषं बलं
सराघवस्यास्य सुरेन्द्रवर्चसः ॥ २२ ॥

“The command of Śrī Rāma and his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, O ruler of monkeys, does not deserve to be flouted by you even with your mind; for your mind alone knows the superhuman might of Śrī Rāma, who is glorious as Indra (the ruler of gods), as also of Lakṣmaṇa, a scion of Raghu.” (22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे
द्वात्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-two in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रयस्त्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXIII

Ushered into Kiṣkindhā by Aṅgada and others, Lakṣmaṇa beholds stately mansions and other curios on both sides of the main road and, hearing the sound of vocal music accompanied by the sound of various musical instruments as well as the sweet jingling of anklets etc., coming from the palace of Sugrīva, twangs his bowstring. Hearing the twang of his bow, Sugrīva dispatches Tārā to him and the latter tries to pacify Lakṣmaṇa by apprising him of Sugrīva having already sent his generalissimo Nīla to collect all the monkey forces scattered here and there. His anger having been appeased to some extent by the news, he is led by Tārā to the gynaeceum and sees Sugrīva

अथ प्रतिसमादिष्टो लक्ष्मणः परवीरहा ।
प्रविवेश गुहां रम्यां किष्किन्धां रामशासनात् ॥ १ ॥

Requested by Aṅgada on the latter's coming back from the presence of Sugrīva, Lakṣmaṇa, the destroyer of hostile warriors, duly entered the delightful cave comprising the city of Kiṣkindhā as per the command of Śrī Rāma.

(1)

द्वारस्था हरयस्तत्र महाकाया महाबलाः ।
बभूवुर्लक्ष्मणं दृष्ट्वा सर्वे प्राञ्जलयः स्थिताः ॥ २ ॥

The monkeys that kept watch at the main gate of the city, who were gigantic of body and possessed of extraordinary might, all stood with folded hands on beholding Lakṣmaṇa.

(2)

निःश्वसन्तं तु तं दृष्ट्वा क्रुद्धं दशरथात्मजम् ।
बभूवुर्हरयस्त्रस्ता न चैनं पर्यवारयन् ॥ ३ ॥

The monkeys for their part were alarmed to see the aforesaid son of King Daśaratha snorting in anger, and did not encompass him as he entered the gate to escort him.

(3)

स तां रत्नमयीं दिव्यां श्रीमान् पुष्पितकाननाम् ।
रम्यां रत्नसमाकीर्णां ददर्श महतीं गुहाम् ॥ ४ ॥
हर्म्यप्रासादसम्बाधां नानारत्नोपशोभिताम् ।
सर्वकामफलैर्वृक्षैः पुष्पितैरुपशोभिताम् ॥ ५ ॥
देवगन्धर्वपुत्रैश्च वानरैः कामरूपिभिः ।
दिव्यमाल्याम्बरधरैः शोभितां प्रियदर्शनैः ॥ ६ ॥

चन्दनागुरुपद्मानां गन्धैः सुरभिगन्धिताम् ।
मैत्र्याणां मधूनां च सम्मोदितमहापथाम् ॥ ७ ॥
विन्ध्यमेरुगिरिप्रख्यैः प्रासादैर्नैकभूमिभिः ।
ददर्श गिरिनद्यश्च विमलास्तत्र राघवः ॥ ८ ॥

The glorious Lakṣmaṇa beheld the aforesaid magnificent, delightful and extensive cave abounding in precious stones and full of precious things and containing groves laden with blossom, which was thickly set with mansions as well as with palaces and temples, was illumined with jewels of every description and adorned with trees in blossom bearing fruits that yielded all one's desires, which was graced with monkeys of pleasing looks, sprung from the loins of gods and Gandharvas (celestial musicians), capable of assuming any form at will, and wearing celestial garlands and raiment, which was rendered fragrant with the odour of sandalwood, aloewood and lotuses, nay, whose highways were scented with the fragrance of wines of various kinds and which was adorned with many-storeyed palaces looking like the Vindhya and Meru mountains in height. Lakṣmaṇa, a scion of Raghu, also saw there mountain-streams free from mud.

(4—8)

अङ्गदस्य गृहं रम्यं मैन्दस्य द्विविदस्य च ।
गवयस्य गवाक्षस्य गजस्य शरभस्य च ॥ ९ ॥

विद्युन्मालेश्च सम्पातेः सूर्याक्षस्य हनूमतः ।
वीरबाहोः सुबाहोश्च नलस्य च महात्मनः ॥ १० ॥
कुमुदस्य सुषेणस्य तारजाम्बवतोस्तथा ।
दधिवक्त्रस्य नीलस्य सुपाटलसुनेत्रयोः ॥ ११ ॥
एतेषां कपिमुख्यानां राजमार्गे महात्मनाम् ।
ददर्श गृहमुख्यानि महासाराणि लक्ष्मणः ॥ १२ ॥
पाण्डुराभ्रप्रकाशानि गन्धमाल्ययुतानि च ।
प्रभूतधनधान्यानि स्त्रीरत्नैः शोभितानि च ॥ १३ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa also surveyed the lovely abode of Aṅgada as well as the foremost abodes of the following high-souled leaders of monkeys, viz., Maṇḍa and Dwivida, Gavaya, Gavākṣa, Gaja, Śarabha, Vidyunmālī, Sampāti, Sūryākṣa, Hanūmān, Virabāhu and Subāhu as also of the high-souled Nala, nay, those of Kumuda and Suṣeṇa, Tāra and Jāmbavān, Dadhivaktra, Nila, Supāṭala and Sunetra, which stood on the highway and were very strong, nay, which shone like white clouds, were scented with fragrant substances and adorned with wreaths of flowers, full of abundant riches and plentiful foodgrains and graced with excellent women. (9—13)

पाण्डुरेण तु शैलेन परिक्षिप्तं दुरासदम् ।
वानरेन्द्रगृहं रम्यं महेन्द्रसदनोपमम् ॥ १४ ॥

There was the lovely abode of Sugrīva, the king of monkeys, which was indeed difficult to reach and was enclosed by a white mountain of crystal, and vied with the palace of the mighty Indra. (14)

शुक्लैः प्रासादशिखरैः कैलासशिखरोपमैः ।
सर्वकामफलैर्वृक्षैः पुष्पितैरुपशोभितम् ॥ १५ ॥
महेन्द्रदत्तैः श्रीमद्भिर्नीलजीमूतसंनिभैः ।
दिव्यपुष्पफलैर्वृक्षैः शीतच्छायैर्मनोरमैः ॥ १६ ॥

It was graced with white pinnacles looking like the peaks of Mount Kailāsa as well as with trees in blossom bearing fruits that yielded all one's desires, and was further adorned with graceful trees, pleasing to the mind, which had been gifted by the mighty Indra, and resembled dark clouds, which bore celestial blossoms and fruit and cast a cool shade. (15-16)

हरिभिः संवृतद्वारं बलिभिः शस्त्रपाणिभिः ।
दिव्यमाल्यावृतं शुभ्रं तप्तकाञ्चनतोरणम् ॥ १७ ॥

The palace, which was white in colour, had its gates guarded by mighty monkeys bearing weapons in their hands, was covered with heavenly wreaths and had arched doorways of refined gold. (17)

सुग्रीवस्य गृहं रम्यं प्रविवेश महाबलः ।
अवार्यमाणः सौमित्रिर्महाभ्रमिव भास्करः ॥ १८ ॥

Not being checked by anyone, Lakṣmaṇa, son of Sumitrā, who was possessed of extraordinary might, duly entered the lovely palace of Sugrīva even as the sun would penetrate into a big cloud. (18)

स सप्त कक्ष्या धर्मात्मा यानासनसमावृताः ।
ददर्श सुमहद्गुप्तं ददर्शान्तःपुरं महत् ॥ १९ ॥

Having crossed seven enclosures, which were filled with conveyances and couches etc., Lakṣmaṇa, whose mind was set on virtue, beheld the extensive gynaeceum, guarded with very great care. (19)

हैमराजतपर्यङ्कैर्बहुभिश्च वरासनैः ।
महार्हास्तरणोपेतैस्तत्र तत्र समावृतम् ॥ २० ॥

It was adequately furnished at proper places with numerous gold and silver couches and excellent seats overspread with costly coverlets. (20)

प्रविशन्नेव सततं शुश्राव मधुरस्वनम् ।
तन्त्रीगीतसमाकीर्णं समतालपदाक्षरम् ॥ २१ ॥

The moment he entered the gynaeceum he constantly heard a sweet melody dominated by songs sung to the accompaniment of Vina, in which words and letters were being articulated in harmony with time. (21)

बह्वीश्च विविधाकारा रूपयौवनगर्विताः ।
स्त्रियः सुग्रीवभवने ददर्श स महाबलः ॥ २२ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa, who was possessed of extraordinary might, also saw in the palace of Sugrīva numerous ladies of different shapes, proud of their comeliness and youth.

(22)

दृष्ट्वाभिजनसम्पन्नास्तत्र माल्यकृतस्रजः ।
वरमाल्यकृतव्यग्रा भूषणोत्तमभूषिताः ॥ २३ ॥
नातृमान् नाति चाव्यग्रान् नानुदात्तपरिच्छदान् ।
सुग्रीवानुचरांश्चापि लक्षयामास लक्ष्मणः ॥ २४ ॥

Seeing those women there, who were rich in pedigree, were adorned with wreaths made of flowers and busy knitting excellent garlands and were decked with the best of ornaments, Lakṣmaṇa also perceived Sugrīva's attendants, who were never unsated, never without zeal in service to their Master and never without excellent ornaments.

(23-24)

कूजितं नूपुराणां च काञ्चीनां निःस्वनं तथा ।
स निशम्य ततः श्रीमान् सौमित्रिर्लज्जितोऽभवत् ॥ २५ ॥

The glorious Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) now felt abashed because of his pious vow to shun the presence of others' wives to hear at close quarters the jingling of their anklets and the tinkling of the ornaments worn round their waist.

(25)

रोषवेगप्रकुपितः श्रुत्वा चाभरणस्वनम् ।
चकार ज्यास्वनं वीरो दिशः शब्देन पूरयन् ॥ २६ ॥

Highly excited through vehemence of rage to hear the jingling of ornaments, the heroic prince, Lakṣmaṇa, twanged the string of his bow, filling all the four quarters with the aforesaid sound.

(26)

चारित्र्येण महाबाहुरपकृष्टः स लक्ष्मणः ।
तस्थावेकान्तमाश्रित्य रामकोपसमन्वितः ॥ २७ ॥

Restrained from entering Sugrīva's private apartments by his high moral sense, the said Lakṣmaṇa, who was distinguished by his mighty arms, stood receding to a lonely corner, possessed as he was with anger on Śrī Rāma's account whose cause had till then been totally and woefully neglected by Sugrīva.

(27)

तेन चापस्वनेनाथ सुग्रीवः प्लवगाधिपः ।
विज्ञायागमनं त्रस्तः स चचाल वरासनात् ॥ २८ ॥

Alarmed to know for certain the arrival of Lakṣmaṇa from the aforesaid twanging of his bow, the said Sugrīva, the suzerain lord of monkeys, forthwith stirred from his excellent seat.

(28)

अङ्गदेन यथा मह्यं पुरस्तात् प्रतिवेदितम् ।
सुव्यक्तमेष सम्प्राप्तः सौमित्रिर्भ्रातृवत्सलः ॥ २९ ॥

He said to himself: 'As was already announced to me by Prince Aṅgada, here has Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), who is so fond of his eldest brother, most evidently arrived.'

(29)

अङ्गदेन समाख्यातो ज्यास्वनेन च वानरः ।
बुबुधे लक्ष्मणं प्राप्तं मुखं चास्य व्यशुष्यत ॥ ३० ॥

Duly informed by Aṅgada as well as by the twang of the bowstring of Lakṣmaṇa, Sugrīva, the monkey chief, came to know of Lakṣmaṇa having arrived at his very door and his mouth got parched through fear.

(30)

ततस्तारां हरिश्रेष्ठः सुग्रीवः प्रियदर्शनाम् ।
उवाच हितमव्यग्रस्त्राससम्भ्रान्तमानसः ॥ ३१ ॥

Thereupon Sugrīva, the foremost of monkeys, calmly gave the following friendly admonition to Tārā of pleasing looks, though his mind was puzzled through fear :

(31)

किं नु रुट्कारणं सुभु प्रकृत्या मृदुमानसः ।
सरोष इव सम्प्राप्तो येनायं राघवानुजः ॥ ३२ ॥

"What may be the cause, I wonder, for anger, O lady with charming eyebrows, actuated by which this younger brother of Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, who is soft-hearted by nature, has arrived as though full of anger?

(32)

किं पश्यसि कुमारस्य रोषस्थानमनिन्दिते ।
न खल्वकारणे कोपमाहेन्नरपुङ्गवः ॥ ३३ ॥

"Do you know the occasion for the prince's anger, O irreproachable lady? Surely Lakṣmaṇa, a jewel among men, would not give way to anger without rhyme or reason. (33)

यद्यस्य कृतमस्माभिर्बुध्यसे किञ्चिदप्रियम् ।
तद्बुद्ध्या सम्प्रधार्याशु क्षिप्रमेवाभिधीयताम् ॥ ३४ ॥

“If you are aware of anything having been done by us, which is not to his liking, let it be made known to me without the least delay after divining it by your insight at once. (34)

अथवा स्वयमेवैनं द्रष्टुमर्हसि भामिनि ।
वचनैः सान्त्वयुक्तैश्च प्रसादयितुमर्हसि ॥ ३५ ॥

“Or you ought personally to see him, O charming lady, and should pacify him with words of conciliation. (35)

त्वदर्शने विशुद्धात्मा न स्म कोपं करिष्यति ।
नहि स्त्रीषु महात्मानः क्वचित् कुर्वन्ति दारुणम् ॥ ३६ ॥

“On seeing you, Lakṣmaṇa, who is endowed with an utterly pure mind, will never be angry; for magnanimous souls never practice harshness in relation to ladies. (36)

त्वया सान्त्वैरुपक्रान्तं प्रसन्नेन्द्रियमानसम् ।
ततः कमलपत्राक्षं द्रक्ष्याम्यहमरिंदमम् ॥ ३७ ॥

“When he is approached by you with mild words, and his senses and mind are soothed, then only I shall see Lakṣmaṇa (the tamer of his foes), whose eyes resemble the petals of a lotus.” (37)

सा प्रस्रलन्ती मदविह्वलाक्षी
प्रलम्बकाञ्चीगुणहेमसूत्रा ।
सलक्षणा लक्ष्मण संनिधानं
जगाम तारा नमिताङ्गयष्टिः ॥ ३८ ॥

The celebrated Tārā, whose eyes were rolling through intoxication, nay, who was endowed with auspicious marks on her body, sought tottering the presence of Lakṣmaṇa, the gold string of her girdle hanging loose and her slender frame bent low through feminine modesty. (38)

स तां समीक्ष्यैव हरीशपत्नीं
तस्थावुदासीनतया महात्मा ।

अवाङ्मुखोऽभून्मनुजेन्द्रपुत्रः

स्त्रीसंनिकर्षाद् विनिवृत्तकोपः ॥ ३९ ॥

The high-souled Prince Lakṣmaṇa stood unconcernedly without noticing her bodily charms, his face turned downwards, the moment he descried Tārā (the wife of the lord of monkeys), his anger having completely vanished due to his proximity to a woman. (39)

सा पानयोगाच्च निवृत्तलज्जा
दृष्टिप्रसादाच्च नरेन्द्रसूनोः ।

उवाच तारा प्रणयप्रगल्भं
वाक्यं महार्थं परिसान्त्वरूपम् ॥ ४० ॥

Her bashfulness having gone as a result of her being drunk with wine as well as due to the kindness in the prince's look, Tārā addressed to Lakṣmaṇa the following submission, which was fearless through amity, full of great significance and couched in highly conciliatory words : (40)

किं कोपमूलं मनुजेन्द्रपुत्र
कस्ते न संतिष्ठति वाङ्निदेशे ।

कः शुष्कवृक्षं वनमापतन्तं
दावाग्निमासीदति निर्विशङ्कः ॥ ४१ ॥

“What is the root of your anger, O Prince? Who does not obey your verbal command? Who dares to approach recklessly a forest-fire rushing towards a thicket consisting of dried trees?” (41)

स तस्या वचनं श्रुत्वा सान्त्वपूर्वमशङ्कितः ।
भूयः प्रणयदृष्टार्थं लक्ष्मणो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ४२ ॥

Rid of all misgiving on hearing her submission, which was prefaced with words of conciliation and in which the purport was expressed in the most endearing terms, the celebrated Lakṣmaṇa replied as follows: (42)

किमयं कामवृत्तस्ते लुप्तधर्मार्थसंग्रहः ।
भर्ता भर्तृहिते युक्ते न चैनमवबुध्यसे ॥ ४३ ॥

“Intent upon the gratification of his senses, this husband of yours has lost sight of the acquisition of religious merit and wordly riches, O lady charged with the duty of looking after the interests of your husband ! Why don't you admonish him?

(43)

न चिन्तयति राज्यार्थं सोऽस्माञ्शोकपरायणान् ।
सामात्यपरिषत् तारे काममेवोपसेवते ॥ ४४ ॥

“He does not bestow his thought on the affairs of the state nor does he think of us, who are given over to grief. Alongwith his ministers and entourage he pursues pleasures alone, O Tārā !
(44)

स मासांश्चतुरः कृत्वा प्रमाणं प्लवगेश्वरः ।
व्यतीतांस्तान् मदोदग्रो विहरन् नावबुध्यते ॥ ४५ ॥

“Having fixed four months as the limit for inactivity before starting the operations relating to the search for Sītā, Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, who remains heavily drunk with wine and is busy enjoying himself, is not aware that those four months have already passed.
(45)

नहि धर्मार्थसिद्ध्यर्थं पानमेवं प्रशस्यते ।
पानादर्थश्च कामश्च धर्मश्च परिहीयते ॥ ४६ ॥

“Drinking to this extent is not spoken highly of for those who are endeavouring to acquire religious merit and earthly riches. Worldly prosperity and enjoyment and religious merit too are lost through drinking.
(46)

धर्मलोपो महांस्तावत् कृते ह्यप्रतिकुर्वतः ।
अर्थलोपश्च मित्रस्य नाशे गुणवतो महान् ॥ ४७ ॥

“Serious loss of religious merit is undoubtedly incurred in the first instance by him who fails to requite a service rendered to him: while grave injury to one's mundane interests follows on the loss of friendship of a virtuous friend.
(47)

मित्रं ह्यर्थगुणश्रेष्ठं सत्यधर्मपरायणम् ।
तद्व्ययं तु परित्यक्तं न तु धर्मे व्यवस्थितम् ॥ ४८ ॥

“Indeed a friend is, on the one hand, foremost in the virtue of promoting the interests of a friend; while, on the other, he is devoted to truthfulness and virtue. Really speaking, both the aforesaid virtues have been neglected by your husband; in any case, no steadfastness to the path of virtue is seen in him.

(48)

तदेवं प्रस्तुते कार्ये कार्यमस्माभिरुत्तरम् ।
तत् कार्यं कार्यतत्त्वज्ञे त्वमुदाहर्तुमर्हसि ॥ ४९ ॥

“Therefore, O lady ! knowing the true nature of duty, you ought to point out to us that duty which should be performed by us next in the existing circumstances for achieving the purpose lying before us.” (49)

सा तस्य धर्मार्थसमाधियुक्तं
निशम्य वाक्यं मधुरस्वभावम् ।
तारा गतार्थं मनुजेन्द्रकार्यं
विश्वासयुक्तं तमुवाच भूयः ॥ ५० ॥

Hearing the reply of Lakṣmaṇa, which contained his conclusion about virtue and earthly prosperity and which revealed his sweet disposition, Tārā addressed to him once more the following rejoinder, which showed her faith in the success of the cause of Śrī Rāma, the ruler of human beings, the implications of which were known to her :
(50)

न कोपकालः क्षितिपालपुत्र
न चापि कोपः स्वजने विधेयः ।
त्वदर्थकामस्य जनस्य तस्य
प्रमादमप्यर्हसि वीर सोढुम् ॥ ५१ ॥

“This is not the time for resentment, O prince ! Nor should displeasure be shown to a friend. You ought to put up even with the negligence on the part of Sugrīva, who seeks to accomplish your purpose, O gallant prince !
(51)

कोपं कथं नाम गुणप्रकृष्टः
कुमार कुर्यादपकृष्टसत्त्वे ।
कस्त्वद्विधः कोपवशं हि गच्छेत्
सत्त्वावरुद्धस्तपसः प्रसूतिः ॥ ५२ ॥

“How can a man who is pre-eminent in point of virtues, O prince, really ventilate his anger against one of inferior strength? What man of your category, who is kept in check by his goodness and is a mine of sobriety would give way to anger? (52)

जानामि कोपं हरिवीरबन्धो-

जानामि कार्यस्य च कालसङ्गम् ।

जानामि कार्यं त्वयि यत्कृतं न-

स्तच्चापि जानामि यदत्र कार्यम् ॥ ५३ ॥

"I know the reason for the displeasure of Śrī Rāma, the befriender of the monkey hero, Sugrīva; I know also the cause of delay that has taken place in his work. I also know the service which was rendered to us by you and which was upto you alone and I also know what ought to be done in this connection by us in return for your services. (53)

तच्चापि जानामि तथाविषह्यं

बलं नरश्रेष्ठ शरीरजस्य ।

जानामि यस्मिंश्च जनेऽवबद्धं

कामेन सुग्रीवमसक्तमद्य ॥ ५४ ॥

"I also know how irresistible is the force of carnal desire, O jewel among men ! I also know on whom his attachment stands fastened through love and further know Sugrīva to be unattached to everything else at this moment. (54)

न कामतन्त्रे तव बुद्धिरस्ति

त्वं वै यथा मन्युवशं प्रपन्नः ।

न देशकालौ हि यथार्थधर्मा-

ववेक्षते कामरतिर्मुण्यः ॥ ५५ ॥

"As you have fallen under the sway of wrath, you have evidently no idea about one who is dominated by passion. To say nothing of a beast, a man who is full of passion for the gratification of his senses does not, really speaking, reckon time and place any more than he takes account of his worldly interests and religious merit. (55)

तं कामवृत्तं मम संनिकृष्टं

कामाभियोगाच्च विमुक्तलज्जम् ।

क्षमस्व तावत् परवीरहन्त-

स्त्वद्भ्रातरं वानरवंशनाथम् ॥ ५६ ॥

"Therefore, O slayer of hostile warriors, pardon that protector of the Vānara race, who is a brother to you, being a friend of your elder brother, nay, who is given to the gratification of his senses and was, therefore, at my side just now and has totally shaken off all sense of decorum possessed as he is with lust. (56)

महर्षयो

धर्मतपोऽभिरामाः

कामानुकामाः प्रतिबद्धमोहाः ।

अयं प्रकृत्या चपलः कपिस्तु

कथं न सज्जेत सुखेषु राजा ॥ ५७ ॥

"Even eminent sages, who attract others by their piety and asceticism and have kept infatuation at a distance, sometimes hanker after sense-gratification. How, then, will Sugrīva, a monkey, who is fickle by nature, and who is a king to boot, not get addicted to pleasures?" (57)

इत्येवमुक्त्वा वचनं महार्थं

सा वानरी लक्ष्मणमप्रमेयम् ।

पुनः सखेदं मदविह्वलाक्षी

भर्तृहितं वाक्यमिदं बभाषे ॥ ५८ ॥

Having addressed the foregoing reply, which was full of great significance, to Lakṣmaṇa, who was immeasurable in prowess, Tārā, who belonged to the race of monkeys and whose eyes were rolling through drunkenness, once more made the following submission, conducive to the good of her husband, Sugrīva in a doleful voice : (58)

उद्योगस्तु चिराज्ञप्तः सुग्रीवेण नरोत्तम ।

कामस्यापि विधेयेन तवार्थप्रतिसाधने ॥ ५९ ॥

"Endeavour for accomplishing your purpose has, really speaking, long since been enjoined by Sugrīva, O jewel among men, even though he is a slave to passion. (59)

आगता हि महावीर्या हरयः कामरूपिणः ।

कोटीः शतसहस्राणि नानानगनिवासिनः ॥ ६० ॥

“As a result of this lakhs and crores of monkeys possessed of extraordinary valour and capable of assuming any form at will and dwelling on different mountains have actually arrived. (60)

तदागच्छ महाबाहो चारित्रं रक्षितं त्वया ।
अच्छलं मित्रभावेन सतां दारावलोकनम् ॥ ६१ ॥

“Therefore, come in, O mighty-armed prince; chastity has been maintained by you in not intruding into the presence of women in our private apartments but by remaining outside. To look on others’ ladies with a friendly eye, rather than with lustful eyes, is not sinful in the eyes of the virtuous.” (61)

तारया चाभ्यनुज्ञातस्त्वरया वापि चोदितः ।
प्रविवेश महाबाहुरभ्यन्तरमरिंदमः ॥ ६२ ॥

Invited in the first instance by Tārā and further impelled by hurry to carry out the behest of his elder brother, the mighty-armed Lakṣmaṇa (the tamer of his foes) duly entered the inner apartments. (62)

ततः सुग्रीवमासीनं काञ्चने परमासने ।
महार्हास्तरणोपेते ददर्शादित्यसंनिभम् ॥ ६३ ॥
दिव्याभरणचित्राङ्गं दिव्यरूपं यशस्विनम् ।
दिव्यमाल्याम्बरधरं महेन्द्रमिव दुर्जयम् ॥ ६४ ॥

दिव्याभरणमाल्याभिः प्रमदाभिः समावृतम् ।
संरब्धतरक्ताक्षो बभूवान्तकसंनिभः ॥ ६५ ॥

Thereupon he beheld seated on an excellent couch of gold with a costly cover, and surrounded by young women adorned with celestial jewels and garlands, the illustrious Sugrīva, blazing like the sun and endowed with a godlike form, nay, wearing heavenly garlands and raiment and difficult to conquer like the mighty Indra, his limbs appearing wonderful with heavenly ornaments. Seeing this Lakṣmaṇa got enraged all the more, and with bloodshot eyes, looked dreadful like the god of death. (63—65)

रुमां तु वीरः परिरभ्य गाढं
वरासनस्थो वरहेमवर्णः ।
ददर्श सौमित्रिमदीनसत्त्वं
विशालनेत्रः स विशालनेत्रम् ॥ ६६ ॥

Seated on the excellent couch (referred to in the foregoing lines), closely embracing Rumā, the large-eyed heroic Sugrīva, for his part, who possessed the hue of excellent gold, saw the large-eyed Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), who had a powerful mind. (66)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे त्रयस्त्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-three in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुस्त्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXIV

Lakṣmaṇa warns Sugrīva to rectify his mistake in neglecting his duty of conducting a search for Sītā, which amounted to ingratitude on his part, and not to follow the path of his elder brother, Vālī

तमप्रतिहतं क्रुद्धं प्रविष्टं पुरुषर्षभम् ।
सुग्रीवो लक्ष्मणं दृष्ट्वा बभूव व्यथितेन्द्रियः ॥ १ ॥

Seeing the aforesaid Lakṣmaṇa, the foremost of men, who had entered his inner apartments unchecked and was full of anger, Sugrīva felt agonized in mind. (1)

क्रुद्धं निःश्वसमानं तं प्रदीप्तमिव तेजसा ।
भ्रातुर्व्यसनसंतप्तं दृष्ट्वा दशरथात्मजम् ॥ २ ॥

उत्पपात हरिश्रेष्ठो हित्वा सौवर्णमासनम् ।
महान् महेन्द्रस्य यथा स्वलंकृत इव ध्वजः ॥ ३ ॥

Observing the said son of Emperor Daśaratha, breathing heavily in anger and blazing as it were with spirit, tormented as he was with the misfortune of his elder brother, Śrī Rāma, and leaving his seat of gold, Sugrīva, the foremost of monkeys, who was richly adorned, jumped to the floor like a tall flag raised in honour of the mighty Indra, the ruler of gods, profusely adorned.

(2-3)

उत्पतन्तमनूत्येत् रुमाप्रभृतयः स्त्रियः ।
सुग्रीवं गगने पूर्णं चन्द्रं तारागणा इव ॥ ४ ॥

Like hosts of stars bursting into view in the firmament in the wake of the full moon, the ladies too led by his own wedded wife, Rumā, jumped immediately after Sugrīva had done.

(4)

संरक्तनयनः श्रीमान् संचचार कृताञ्जलिः ।
बभूवावस्थितस्तत्र कल्पवृक्षो महानिव ॥ ५ ॥

With his eyes blood-red through inebriety, the glorious monkey moved near with folded hands; while Lakṣmaṇa stood rooted there like a mighty wish-yielding tree.

(5)

रुमाद्वितीयं सुग्रीवं नारीमध्यगतं स्थितम् ।
अब्रवील्लक्ष्मणः क्रुद्धः सतारं शशिनं यथा ॥ ६ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa angrily spoke as follows to Sugrīva, standing with Rumā at his side in the midst of other ladies like the full moon surrounded by stars :

(6)

सत्त्वाभिजनसम्पन्नः सानुक्रोशो जितेन्द्रियः ।
कृतज्ञः सत्यवादी च राजा लोके महीयते ॥ ७ ॥

“A king who is endowed with goodness and is rich in pedigree, is compassionate and has subdued his senses, and who recognizes the services rendered to him and always speaks the truth is honoured in the world.

(7)

यस्तु राजा स्थितोऽधर्मे मित्राणामुपकारिणाम् ।
मिथ्या प्रतिज्ञां कुरुते को नृशंसतरस्ततः ॥ ८ ॥

“Who, on the other hand, is more hard-hearted than the king who, being rooted in unrighteousness, makes a false promise to friends, who have rendered good offices to him?

(8)

शतमश्वानृते हन्ति सहस्रं तु गवानृते ।
आत्मानं स्वजनं हन्ति पुरुषः पुरुषानृते ॥ ९ ॥

“On making a false promise with reference to the gift of a single horse, a man is supposed to have killed a hundred horses; on uttering a false promise with reference to the gift of a single cow, he is supposed to have actually killed a thousand cows; while on making a false promise to a man about some personal service, he is supposed to have committed suicide and killed his own people.

(9)

पूर्वं कृतार्थो मित्राणां न तत्प्रतिकरोति यः ।
कृतघ्नः सर्वभूतानां स वध्यः प्लवगेश्वर ॥ १० ॥

“He who having first accomplished his own purpose with the help of his friends, does not repay the service of his friends is ungrateful and deserves to be killed (ostracized) by all created beings, O lord of monkeys !

(10)

गीतोऽयं ब्रह्मणा श्लोकः सर्वलोकनमस्कृतः ।
दृष्ट्वा कृतघ्नं क्रुद्धेन तन्निबोध प्लवंगम ॥ ११ ॥

“The couplet which is being reproduced below and which is venerated by all men was uttered by Brahmā (or his own son, Swāyambhuva Manu) when enraged to see an ungrateful being. Pray, listen to it, O monkey :

(11)

गोघ्ने चैव सुरापे च चौरैर्भग्नव्रते तथा ।
निष्कृतिर्विहिता सद्भिः कृतघ्ने नास्ति निष्कृतिः ॥ १२ ॥

‘An expiation has been prescribed by good men with respect to a man who has killed a cow, for him as well who has drunk wine, also for a thief and likewise for him who has violated a sacred vow; but there is no expiation for an ungrateful soul.’

(12)

अनार्यस्त्वं कृतघ्नश्च मिथ्यावादी च वानर ।
पूर्वं कृतार्थो रामस्य न तत्प्रतिकरोषि यत् ॥ १३ ॥

“You are ignoble and ungrateful and a liar too, O monkey, in that having accomplished your purpose through the good offices of Śrī Rāma in the first instance, you are not requiting the services of Śrī Rāma. (13)

ननु नाम कृतार्थेन त्वया रामस्य वानर।
सीताया मार्गणे यत्नः कर्तव्यः कृतमिच्छता ॥ १४ ॥

“Surely an effort ought to be made at all costs by you, O monkey, since you have accomplished your object through the good offices of Śrī Rāma; you ought to requite the services of Śrī Rāma by the discovery of Sitā. (14)

स त्वं ग्राम्येषु भोगेषु सक्तो मिथ्याप्रतिश्रवः।
न त्वां रामो विजानीते सर्पं मण्डूकराविणम् ॥ १५ ॥

“On the contrary, you stand addicted to carnal enjoyments and have proved false to your promise. Śrī Rāma does not recognize you to be a serpent croaking through the throat of a frog held within its jaws. (15)

महाभागेन रामेण पापः करुणवेदिना।
हरीणां प्रापितो राज्यं त्वं दुरात्मा महात्मना ॥ १६ ॥

“Though sinful and evil-minded, you have been enabled to secure the rulership of monkeys by the highly blessed and high-souled Śrī Rāma, who gets melted through pity. (16)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे चतुस्त्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-four in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Rṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चत्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXV

Consoling Lakṣmaṇa, who was wroth against Sugrīva, by showing reasons for the delay, Tārā requests the former to compose himself, assuring him that everything will be accomplished

तथा ब्रूवाणं सौमित्रिं प्रदीप्तमिव तेजसा।
अब्रवील्लक्ष्मणं तारा ताराधिपनिभानना ॥ १ ॥

कृतं चेन्नातिजानीषे राघवस्य महात्मनः।
सद्यस्त्वं निशितैर्बाणैर्हतो द्रक्ष्यसि वालिनम् ॥ १७ ॥

“Pierced with his sharp arrows, you will soon see Vālī (in the abode of Death) if you fail to recognize the services of the high-souled Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu. (17)

न स संकुचितः पन्था येन वाली हतो गतः।
समये तिष्ठ सुग्रीव मा वालिपथमन्वगाः ॥ १८ ॥

“The well-known path along which Vālī had departed to the abode of Death when killed by Śrī Rāma has not been closed. Therefore, honour the understanding arrived at by you with Śrī Rāma, O Sugrīva; pray, do not follow in the wake of Vālī. (18)

न नूनमिक्ष्वाकुवरस्य कार्मुका- च्छांश्च तान् पश्यसि वज्रसंनिभान्।
ततः सुखं नाम विषेवसे सुखी
न रामकार्यं मनसाप्यवेक्षसे ॥ १९ ॥

“Surely you do not behold the well-known arrows, resembling the thunderbolt, shot from the bow of Śrī Rāma, the foremost of the Ikṣvākus. Hence it is that you complacently enjoy pleasures to your heart’s content and do not attend to the business of Śrī Rāma even with the mind.” (19)

To Lakṣmaṇa, son of Sumitrā, who was speaking as aforesaid, and who was inflamed, as it were, with a fiery spirit, Tārā, whose countenance resembled the moon, replied as follows : (1)

नैवं लक्ष्मण वक्तव्यो नायं परुषमर्हति ।
हरीणामीश्वरः श्रोतुं तव वक्त्राद् विशेषतः ॥ २ ॥

“Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, ought not to be spoken to in this strain, O Lakṣmaṇa ! He does not deserve to hear harsh words, particularly from your lips. (2)

नैवाकृतज्ञः सुग्रीवो न शठो नापि दारुणः ।
नैवानृतकथो वीर न जिह्वाश्च कपीश्वरः ॥ ३ ॥

“Sugrīva, the ruler of monkeys, is not at all ungrateful nor perfidious nor even hard-hearted nor again a liar nor crooked,
O gallant prince ! (3)

उपकारं कृतं वीरो नाप्ययं विस्मृतः कपिः ।
रामेण वीर सुग्रीवो यदन्यैर्दुष्करं रणे ॥ ४ ॥

“Nor has this gallant monkey, Sugrīva, forgotten the service rendered to him by Śrī Rāma, which was difficult for others to render on the field of battle, O heroic prince ! (4)

रामप्रसादात् कीर्तिं च कपिराज्यं च शाश्वतम् ।
प्राप्तवानिह सुग्रीवो रुमां मां च परंतप ॥ ५ ॥

“Nay, through the goodwill of Śrī Rāma,
O scourge of your enemies, Sugrīva regained his lost glory as well as the lasting rulership of monkeys as also his own spouse, Rumā, and myself too. (5)

सुदुःखशयितः पूर्वं प्राप्येदं सुखमुत्तमम् ।
प्राप्तकालं न जानीते विश्वामित्रो यथा मुनिः ॥ ६ ॥

“Having secured this summit of happiness, Sugrīva, who had slept most uneasily in the past, did not, like Sage Viśwāmitra, recollect what was called for at a particular moment. (6)

घृताच्यां किल संसक्तो दश वर्षाणि लक्ष्मण ।
अहोऽमन्यत धर्मात्मा विश्वामित्रो महामुनिः ॥ ७ ॥

“Deeply attached to the celestial nymph,
Ghṛtācī, O Lakṣmaṇa, the eminent sage,
Viśwāmitra, whose mind was set on virtue, thought of, they say, a period of ten years
as a day. (7)

स हि प्राप्तं न जानीते कालं कालविदां वरः ।
विश्वामित्रो महातेजाः किं पुनर्यः पृथग्जनः ॥ ८ ॥

“Indeed the said Viśwāmitra, the foremost of those having a sense of time, who was possessed of great ardour, did not come to know of the time that had stolen over him, to say nothing of ordinary people. (8)

देहधर्मगतस्यास्य परिश्रान्तस्य लक्ष्मण ।
अवितृप्तस्य कामेषु रामः क्षन्तुमिहार्हति ॥ ९ ॥

“Śrī Rāma, O Lakṣmaṇa, ought to grant pardon to Sugrīva, who is subject to the peculiarities of a body (viz., hunger, sleep, fear and sexual appetite), is fully exhausted and is not sated with enjoyments. (9)

न च रोषवशं तात गन्तुमर्हसि लक्ष्मण ।
निश्चयार्थमविज्ञाय सहसा प्राकृतो यथा ॥ १० ॥

“And without ascertaining the conclusive truth you ought not unconsciously to give way to anger like an ordinary man, O dear
Lakṣmaṇa ! (10)

सत्त्वयुक्ता हि पुरुषास्त्वद्विधाः पुरुषर्षभ ।
अविमृश्य न रोषस्य सहसा यान्ति वश्यताम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Indeed men who are endowed with goodness like you, O jewel among men, do not precipitately fall a prey to anger without due deliberation. (11)

प्रसादये त्वां धर्मज्ञ सुग्रीवार्थं समाहिता ।
महान् रोषसमुत्पन्नः संरम्भस्त्यज्यतामयम् ॥ १२ ॥

“I devoutly seek to propitiate you on behalf of Sugrīva, O knower of what is right ! Let this great excitement born of anger be given up. (12)

रुमां मां चाङ्गदं राज्यं धनधान्यपशूनि च ।
रामप्रियार्थं सुग्रीवस्त्यजेदिति मतिर्मम ॥ १३ ॥

“For the pleasure of Śrī Rāma, Sugrīva will renounce Rumā, myself, nay, even Aṅgada, his throne, fortune, stock of foodgrain and cattle: such is my conviction. (13)

समानेष्ट्यति सुग्रीवः सीतया सह राघवम् ।
शशाङ्कमिव रोहिण्या हत्वा तं राक्षसाधमम् ॥ १४ ॥

“Having killed that vile ogre, Rāvaṇa, Sugrīva will be able to re-unite Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) with Sitā, as one would re-unite the moon-god with Rohiṇī, his principal spouse. (14)

शतकोटिसहस्राणि लङ्कायां किल रक्षसाम् ।
अयुतानि च षट्त्रिंशत्सहस्राणि शतानि च ॥ १५ ॥

“In Laṅkā, they say, there are a hundred thousand crore three lakh, ninety-nine thousand and six hundred ogres. (15)

अहत्वा तांश्च दुर्धर्षान् रक्षसान् कामरूपिणः ।
न शक्यो रावणो हन्तुं येन सा मैथिली हता ॥ १६ ॥

“Without getting rid of those aforesaid ogres, who are difficult to overcome and are capable of assuming any form, it is impossible to kill Rāvaṇa, by whom the celebrated princess of Mithilā has been borne away. (16)

ते न शक्या रणे हन्तुमसहायेन लक्ष्मण ।
रावणः क्रूरकर्मा च सुग्रीवेण विशेषतः ॥ १७ ॥

“They as well as Rāvaṇa of cruel deeds are incapable of being killed in an encounter by anyone, unaided, particularly by Sugrīva, O Lakṣmaṇa ! (17)

एवमाख्यातवान् वाली स ह्यभिज्ञो हरीश्वरः ।
आगमस्तु न मे व्यक्तः श्रवात् तस्य ब्रवीम्यहम् ॥ १८ ॥

“So did Vālī say; for the said lord of monkeys had versatile knowledge. How all this number of ogres came to Rāvaṇa is not, however, known to me. I speak only on the basis of what I had heard from him. (18)

त्वत्सहायनिमित्तं हि प्रेषिता हरिपुङ्गवाः ।
आनेतुं वानरान् युद्धे सुबहून् हरिपुङ्गवान् ॥ १९ ॥

“For your knowledge the best of monkeys have been dispatched to all the four quarters to bring numerous monkeys, who are the foremost of their race in combat. (19)

तांश्च प्रतीक्षमाणोऽयं विक्रान्तान् सुमहाबलान् ।
राघवस्यार्थसिद्ध्यर्थं न निर्याति हरीश्वरः ॥ २० ॥

“Nay, awaiting the arrival of those valiant monkeys, who are possessed of extraordinary might, Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, is not moving out for accomplishing the object of Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu. (20)

कृता सुसंस्था सौमित्रे सुग्रीवेण पुरा यथा ।
अद्य तैर्वानरैः सर्वैरागन्तव्यं महाबलैः ॥ २१ ॥

“All those monkeys of extraordinary might must come today according to the time-limit already fixed for their welcome arrival by Sugrīva, O son of Sumitrā ! (21)

ऋक्षकोटिसहस्राणि गोलाङ्गूलशतानि च ।
अद्य त्वामुपयास्यन्ति जहि कोपमरिंदम ।
कोट्योऽनेकास्तु काकुत्स्थ कपीनां दीप्ततेजसाम् ॥ २२ ॥

“Thousands of crores of bears, hundreds of crores of baboons and many crores of monkeys of a fiery spirit will meet you today. Pray, get rid of your anger, O tamer of foes ! (22)

तव हि मुखमिदं निरीक्ष्य कोपात्
क्षतजसमे नयने निरीक्षमाणाः ।

हरिवरनिता न यान्ति शान्तिं
प्रथमभयस्य हि शङ्किताः स्म सर्वाः ॥ २३ ॥

“Observing this countenance of yours’ and further perceiving your eyes blood-red through anger, the wives of the foremost of monkeys do not find peace, apprehensive as they all are of a repetition of the danger which overtook them earlier (in the form of Vālī’s death).” (23)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे पञ्चत्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-five in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Rṣi and the oldest epic.

षट्त्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXVI

When Lakṣmaṇa gets pacified by the conciliatory words of Tārā, Sugrīva glorifies Śrī Rāma and requests Lakṣmaṇa to forgive his delinquency.

Regaining his normal self, Lakṣmaṇa too craves the forgiveness of Sugrīva for the harsh language employed by him in a fit of anger and asks him to approach Śrī Rāma and beg his pardon

इत्युक्तस्तारया वाक्यं प्रश्रितं धर्मसंहितम् ।
मृदुस्वभावः सौमित्रिः प्रतिजग्राह तद्वचः ॥ १ ॥

Spoken to by Tārā in these polite words consistent with righteousness, Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), who was gentle by nature, received those words with approbation. (1)

तस्मिन् प्रतिगृहीते तु वाक्ये हरिगणेश्वरः ।
लक्ष्मणात् सुमहत्त्रासं वस्त्रं क्लिन्नमिवात्यजत् ॥ २ ॥

The aforesaid submission of Tārā having been received with a nod, Sugrīva, the ruler of hordes of monkeys, for his part shed his very great fear of Lakṣmaṇa as one would discard one's wet clothes. (2)

ततः कण्ठगतं माल्यं चित्रं बहुगुणं महत् ।
चिच्छेद विमदश्चासीत् सुग्रीवो वानरेश्वरः ॥ ३ ॥

Thereupon Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, tore off the wonderful and valuable garland capable of yielding various enjoyments, worn round his neck and was rid of his vanity thereby. (3)

स लक्ष्मणं भीमबलं सर्ववानरसत्तमः ।
अब्रवीत् प्रश्रितं वाक्यं सुग्रीवः सम्प्रहर्षयन् ॥ ४ ॥

The aforesaid Sugrīva, the foremost of all the monkeys, then addressed the following humble submission to Lakṣmaṇa of redoubtable might, thus causing him supreme gratification : (4)

प्रणष्टा श्रीश्च कीर्तिश्च कपिराज्यं च शाश्वतम् ।
रामप्रसादात् सौमित्रे पुनश्चात्मदिदं मया ॥ ५ ॥

"My fortune and fame, too, as well as the lasting rulership of monkeys, which had been lost forever, all this has been regained by me through the grace of Śrī Rāma alone, O son of Sumitrā ! (5)

कः शक्तस्तस्य देवस्य ख्यातस्य स्वेन कर्मणा ।
तादृशं प्रतिकुर्वीत अंशेनापि नृपात्मज ॥ ६ ॥

"What powerful being can repay even in part, O prince, that kind of service on the part of the aforesaid divine personage, Śrī Rāma, who is known by his own exploits? (6)

सीतां प्राप्स्यति धर्मात्मा वधिष्यति च रावणम् ।
सहायमात्रेण मया राघवः स्वेन तेजसा ॥ ७ ॥

"With me as his mere companion, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), whose mind is set on virtue, will recover Sītā and dispose of Rāvaṇa by dint of his own fiery energy. (7)

सहायकृत्यं किं तस्य येन सप्त महाद्रुमाः ।
गिरिश्च वसुधा चैव बाणेनैकेन दारिताः ॥ ८ ॥

"What need is there for an assistant to Śrī Rāma, by whom seven giant trees as well as the mountain on which they stood as also the earth, forming the base of the mountain, were pierced with a single arrow? (8)

धनुर्विस्फारमाणस्य यस्य शब्देन लक्ष्मण ।
सशैला कम्पिता भूमिः सहायैः किं नु तस्य वै ॥ ९ ॥

"In fact what help on earth can be rendered by associates to Śrī Rāma, at the twang of whose bow, while he was stretching it, the earth with its mountains shook, O Lakṣmaṇa? (9)

अनुयात्रां नरेन्द्रस्य करिष्येऽहं नरर्षभ ।
गच्छतो रावणं हन्तुं वैरिणं सपुरस्सरम् ॥ १० ॥

“I shall join the expedition of Śrī Rāma, a ruler of men, O jewel among men, when he goes forth to get rid of his enemy, Rāvaṇa, with those who go before him (to lead his army). (10)

यदि किञ्चिदतिक्रान्तं विश्वासात् प्रणयेन वा ।
प्रेष्यस्य क्षमितव्यं मे न कश्चिन्नापराध्यति ॥ ११ ॥

“If any transgression has been made by me, your servant, out of confidence or love, it should be forgiven by you, for there is none (among the servants) who does no wrong.” (11)

इति तस्य ब्रुवाणस्य सुग्रीवस्य महात्मनः ।
अभवल्लक्ष्मणः प्रीतः प्रेम्णा चेदमुवाच ह ॥ १२ ॥

While the high-souled Sugrīva was speaking as aforesaid, Lakṣmaṇa got pleased with him, they say, and lovingly replied as follows : (12)

सर्वथा हि मम भ्राता सनाथो वानरेश्वर ।
त्वया नाथेन सुग्रीव प्रश्रितेन विशेषतः ॥ १३ ॥

“With you, O Sugrīva as his supporter, particularly so humble, my eldest brother, Śrī Rāma, is blessed in everyway, O lord of monkeys ! (13)

यस्ते प्रभावः सुग्रीव यच्च ते शौचमीदृशम् ।
अर्हस्त्वं कपिराज्यस्य श्रियं भोक्तुमनुत्तमाम् ॥ १४ ॥

“By virtue of the dignity that you possess, O Sugrīva, and the purity (guilelessness) of heart of the kind that exists in you, you deserve to enjoy the unsurpassed opulence of the kingdom of monkeys. (14)

सहायेन च सुग्रीव त्वया रामः प्रतापवान् ।
वधिष्यति रणे शत्रूनचिरान्नात्र संशयः ॥ १५ ॥

“With you as his associate, O Sugrīva, the glorious Śrī Rāma for his part will before long destroy his enemies on the battlefield : there is no doubt about it. (15)

धर्मज्ञस्य कृतज्ञस्य संग्रामेष्वनिवर्तिनः ।
उपपन्नं च युक्तं च सुग्रीव तव भाषितम् ॥ १६ ॥

“You being a knower of what is right, grateful and one who has never turned one’s back on the fields of battle, your submission, O Sugrīva, is just and reasonable too. (16)

दोषज्ञः सति सामर्थ्ये कोऽन्यो भाषितुमर्हति ।
वर्जयित्वा मम ज्येष्ठं त्वां च वानरसत्तम ॥ १७ ॥

“What individual, who is conscious of his own faults, other than my eldest brother, Śrī Rāma, and yourself, O jewel among the monkeys, can speak so disparagingly of himself as you have done, even though possessed of strength? (17)

सदृशश्चासि रामेण विक्रमेण बलेन च ।
सहायो दैवतैर्दत्तश्चिराय हरिपुंगव ॥ १८ ॥

“You are on a par with Śrī Rāma in prowess and might and have been ordained by the gods as his associate for a long time to come, O jewel among the monkeys ! (18)

किं तु शीघ्रमितो वीर निष्क्रम त्वं मया सह ।
सान्त्वयस्व वयस्यं च भार्याहरणदुःखितम् ॥ १९ ॥

“But sally you forth with me speedily from this place, O gallant king, and reassure your friend, Śrī Rāma, who is afflicted through the abduction of his spouse. (19)

यच्च शोकाभिभूतस्य श्रुत्वा रामस्य भाषितम् ।
मया त्वं परुषाण्युक्तस्तत् क्षमस्व सखे मम ॥ २० ॥

“And forgive, my friend, the way in which you have been spoken to in harsh words on hearing the lament of Śrī Rāma, who was overwhelmed with grief.” (20)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे षट्त्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-six in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तत्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXVII

Sugrīva commands Hanumān to dispatch messengers for collecting troops from all the four quarters. Receiving the message of Sugrīva, monkeys flock from all sides into his presence. Giving presents of fruits and roots etc., to their king, the messengers sent in advance by Nīla, announce to him the arrival of all the monkey hordes

एवमुक्तस्तु सुग्रीवो लक्ष्मणेन महात्मना ।
हनूमन्तं स्थितं पार्श्वे वचनं चेदमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Spoken to as aforesaid by the high-souled Lakṣmaṇa, Sugrīva for his part spoke as follows to Hanumān standing by his side :

महेन्द्रहिमवद्विन्ध्यकैलासशिखरेषु च ।
मन्दरे पाण्डुशिखरे पञ्चशैलेषु ये स्थिताः ॥ २ ॥
तरुणादित्यवर्णेषु भ्राजमानेषु नित्यशः ।
पर्वतेषु समुद्रान्ते पश्चिमस्यां तु ये दिशि ॥ ३ ॥
आदित्यभवने चैव गिरौ संध्याभ्रसंनिभे ।
पद्माचलवनं भीमाः संश्रिता हरिपुंगवाः ॥ ४ ॥
अञ्जनाम्बुदसंकाशाः कुञ्जरेन्द्रमहौजसः ।
अञ्जने पर्वते चैव ये वसन्ति प्लवंगमाः ॥ ५ ॥
महाशैलगुहावासा वानराः कनकप्रभाः ।
मेरुपार्श्वगताश्चैव ये च धूमगिरिं श्रिताः ॥ ६ ॥
तरुणादित्यवर्णाश्च पर्वते ये महारुणे ।
पिबन्तो मधु मैरेयं भीमवेगाः प्लवंगमाः ॥ ७ ॥
वनेषु च सुरम्येषु सुगन्धिषु महत्सु च ।
तापसाश्रमरम्येषु वनान्तेषु समन्ततः ॥ ८ ॥
तांस्तांस्त्वमानय क्षिप्रं पृथिव्यां सर्ववानरान् ।
सामदानादिभिः कल्पैर्वानरैर्वेगवत्तरैः ॥ ९ ॥

“Summon quickly by recourse to expedients such as persuasion, gifts etc., through monkeys possessed of superior agility the different hordes of monkeys on earth which are stationed on the heights of the following five mountain ranges, viz., the Mahendra, Himālaya, Vindhya, Kailāsa and Mandara mountains, the last-named of which is distinguished by yellowish white peaks; those which dwell on the ever resplendent mountains presenting the hue of the rising sun and standing on the other side of the ocean in the western quarter, those which live on the eastern and western mountains (the so-called abode of the sun-god), bright as the evening clouds; the terrible-looking leaders of monkeys which have taken up their abode in the forest on the Padma mountain, as also the monkeys possessing the hue of collyrium and sombre clouds and endowed with the superior strength of lordly elephants which live on the Añjana mountain the monkeys possessing the splendour of gold and having their abode in the caves of the Mahāsaila mountain and those living on the slopes of Mount Meru, those who have taken up their abode on the Dhūmra mountain, the monkeys of terrible agility possessing the hue of the rising sun, which live on the Mahāruṇa mountain drinking the intoxicating beverage known by the name of Maireya, as also those living on all sides in exceedingly lovely, fragrant and vast forests and their neighbourhood charming with the hermitages of ascetics. (2—9)

प्रेषिताः प्रथमं ये च मयाऽऽज्ञाता महाजवाः ।
त्वरणार्थं तु भूयस्त्वं सम्प्रेषय हरीश्वरान् ॥ १० ॥

“The monkeys of extraordinary agility already sent are known to me; yet, in order to goad them duly, send you leaders of monkeys once more. (10)

ये प्रसक्ताश्च कामेषु दीर्घसूत्राश्च वानराः ।
इहानयस्व ताञ्जीघ्रं सर्वानेव कपीश्वरान् ॥ ११ ॥

“Nay, bring here to my presence with expedition all those leaders of monkeys without exception, who are deeply attached to the pleasures of sense and are given to procrastination. (11)

अहोभिर्दशभिर्ये च नागच्छन्ति ममाज्ञया।

हन्तव्यास्ते दुरात्मानो राजशासनदूषकाः ॥ १२ ॥

“Again, those evil-minded monkeys who violate the royal command and do not return in ten days should be done to death in obedience to my behest. (12)

शतान्यथ सहस्राणि कोट्यश्च मम शासनात्।

प्रयान्तु कपिसिंहानां निदेशे मम ये स्थिताः ॥ १३ ॥

“Let hundreds, nay, thousands and even crores of such lions among monkeys as abide by my order sally forth under my command. (13)

मेघपर्वतसंकाशाशृङ्गादयन्त इवाम्बरम्।

घोररूपाः कपिश्रेष्ठा यान्तु मच्छासनादितः ॥ १४ ॥

“Let select monkeys of terrible aspect resembling mountains of mist proceed from this place under my command shrouding the heavens, as it were. (14)

ते गतिज्ञा गतिं गत्वा पृथिव्यां सर्ववानराः।

आनयन्तु हरीन् सर्वास्त्वरिताः शासनान्मम ॥ १५ ॥

“Let all those monkeys, knowing the homes of the monkeys, bring with all speed at my command all the monkeys on earth, taking long strides.” (15)

तस्य वानराजस्य श्रुत्वा वायुमुतो वचः।

दिक्षु सर्वासु विक्रान्तान् प्रेषयामास वानरान् ॥ १६ ॥

Hearing the command of the celebrated Sugrīva, the king of monkeys, Hanumān, son of the wind-god, dispatched valiant monkeys to all the quarters. (16)

ते पदं विष्णुविक्रान्तं पतन्निज्योतिरध्वगाः।

प्रयाताः प्रहिता राज्ञा हरयस्तु क्षणेन वै ॥ १७ ॥

Sent by the king, the aforesaid monkeys for their part soared in a moment to the very skies (the region covered in a single stride by Lord Viṣṇu in His descent as the Divine Dwarf), coursing along the route of birds as well as of the heavenly bodies. (17)

ते समुद्रेषु गिरिषु वनेषु च सरस्सु च।

वानरा वानरान् सर्वान् रामहेतोरचोदयन् ॥ १८ ॥

The said monkeys caused all the monkeys living on the seashore, on mountains, in forests as well as on the margin of lakes to move towards Kiṣkindhā for the cause of Śrī Rāma. (18)

मृत्युकालोपमस्याज्ञां राजराजस्य वानराः।

सुग्रीवस्याययुः श्रुत्वा सुग्रीवभयशङ्किताः ॥ १९ ॥

Hearing the command of Sugrīva, the ruler of rulers of monkeys, who was like Death himself to them, the monkeys turned up with all speed, unnerved as they were with fear of Sugrīva. (19)

ततस्तेऽञ्जनसंकाशा गिरेस्तस्मान्महाबलाः।

तिस्रः कोट्यः प्लवंगानां निर्ययुर्यत्र राघवः ॥ २० ॥

Then three crores of monkeys—monkeys who were like collyrium in colour and possessed of extraordinary might, rushed forth from the Añjana mountain to where Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) was. (20)

अस्तं गच्छति यत्रार्कस्तस्मिन् गिरिवरे रताः।

संतप्तह्रमवर्णाभास्तस्मात् कोट्यो दश च्युताः ॥ २१ ॥

Ten crores of other monkeys, possessing the hue of molten gold and sporting on the foremost of mountains where the sun sets, moved from the said mountain. (21)

कैलासशिखरेभ्यश्च सिंहकेसरवर्चसाम्।

ततः कोटिसहस्राणि वानराणां समागमन् ॥ २२ ॥

Again, thousands of crores of monkeys shining like the manes of a lion came in a body from the heights of the Kailāsa mountain. (22)

फलमूलेन जीवन्तो हिमवन्तमुपाश्रिताः।

तेषां कोटिसहस्राणां सहस्रं समवर्तत ॥ २३ ॥

Another million crores of monkeys, who had taken up their abode on the Himalayan range and lived on fruits and roots, turned up. (23)

अङ्गारकसमानानां भीमानां भीमकर्मणाम्।
विन्ध्याद् वानरकोटीनां सहस्राण्यपतन् द्रुतम् ॥ २४ ॥

Thousands of crores of fearful monkeys, appearing red like the Mars and of terrible deeds, descended in haste from the Vindhyan range. (24)

क्षीरोदवेलानिलयास्तमालवनवासिनः ।
नारिकेलाशनाश्चैव तेषां संख्या न विद्यते ॥ २५ ॥
वनेभ्यो गह्वरेभ्यश्च सरिद्धयश्च महाबलाः ।
आगच्छद् वानरी सेना पिबन्तीव दिवाकरम् ॥ २६ ॥

The number of those which had their abode on the shores of the Milk Ocean and those who dwelt in the forest known by the name of Tamālavana, living on coconuts, and those, possessed of extraordinary might, who came from other forests and caves and river banks could not be ascertained. The said monkey force came as though gorging the sun. (25-26)

ये तु त्वरयितुं याता वानराः सर्ववानरान्।
ते वीरा हिमवच्छैले ददृशुस्तं महाद्रुमम् ॥ २७ ॥

Those gallant monkeys, for their part, which went forth to spur all the rest (which had preceded them) beheld on the Himālaya mountain the well-known giant tree (located in the sacrificial grounds of Lord Śiva). (27)

तस्मिन् गिरिवरे पुण्ये यज्ञो माहेश्वरः पुरा।
सर्वदेवमनस्तोषो बभूव सुमनोरमः ॥ २८ ॥

On that sacred jewel among mountains a sacrifice intended to propitiate the great Lord Śiva, which gratified the mind of all the gods and was very charming, was performed in the past. (28)

अन्ननिस्स्यन्दजातानि मूलानि च फलानि च।
अमृतस्वादुकल्पानि ददृशुस्तत्र वानराः ॥ २९ ॥

The monkeys saw there roots and fruits, too, almost as delicious as ambrosia, which had sprung up from the streams of milk, boiled with rice, sugar and ghee (which had been poured into the sacred fire and overflowed the sacrificial pits). (29)

तदन्नसम्भवं दिव्यं फलमूलं मनोहरम्।
यः कश्चित् सकृदश्नाति मासं भवति तर्पितः ॥ ३० ॥

Whoever partakes even once of the ethereal fruits and roots sprung up from that offering of milk boiled with rice etc., remains sated for a whole month. (30)

तानि मूलानि दिव्यानि फलानि च फलाशनाः ।
औषधानि च दिव्यानि जगृहुर्हरिपुंगवाः ॥ ३१ ॥

These jewels among the monkeys, living as they did on fruits alone, gathered those ethereal roots and fruits as well as the celestial herbs while on their way to Kīṣkindhā. (31)

तस्माच्च यज्ञायतनात् पुष्पाणि सुरभीणि च।
आनिन्युर्वानरा गत्वा सुग्रीवप्रियकारणात् ॥ ३२ ॥

Nay, making for the sacrificial ground, the monkeys also brought from it fragrant flowers to win the pleasure of Sugrīva. (32)

ते तु सर्वे हरिवराः पृथिव्यां सर्ववानरान्।
संचोदयित्वा त्वरितं यूथानां जग्मुर्ग्रतः ॥ ३३ ॥

Pressing all the monkeys on earth to seek the presence of Sugrīva, all those jewels among the monkeys for their part returned with all speed before those hordes. (33)

ते तु तेन मुहूर्तेन कपयः शीघ्रचारिणः।
किष्किन्धां त्वरया प्राप्ताः सुग्रीवो यत्र वानरः ॥ ३४ ॥

The former swift-going monkeys for their part arrived in Kīṣkindhā with haste during that very hour and reached the place where Sugrīva, the monkey king, was. (34)

ते गृहीत्वौषधीः सर्वाः फलमूलं च वानराः।
तं प्रतिग्राहयामासुर्वचनं चेदमब्रुवन् ॥ ३५ ॥

Taking all the herbs as also the fruits and roots they had brought with them, they importuned Sugrīva to accept them and submitted as follows : (35)

सर्वे परिसृताः शैलाः सरितश्च वनानि च।
पृथिव्यां वानराः सर्वे शासनादुपयान्ति ते ॥ ३६ ॥

“All the mountains, river-banks and forests too have been scoured by us; all those monkeys on earth are approaching at your call.” (36)

एवं श्रुत्वा ततो हृष्टः सुग्रीवः प्लवगाधिपः ।
प्रतिजग्राह च प्रीतस्तेषां सर्वमुपायनम् ॥ ३७ ॥

Sugrīva, the suzerain lord of monkeys, felt rejoiced to hear this and forthwith accepted all their presents with love. (37)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे सप्तत्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-seven in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टात्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXVIII

Embracing Sugrīva, who came all the way on a palanquin with Lakṣmaṇa, and bowed down at Śrī Rāma's feet, and offering him a seat, the latter instructs him in a nutshell in statecraft and reminds him of his business. Expressing his indebtedness to Śrī Rāma for the unique favour done to him and giving to him an account of the efforts made by him, Sugrīva in his turn gratifies him by apprising him of the arrival of countless monkeys from all the parts of globe

प्रतिगृह्य च तत् सर्वमुपायनमुपाहृतम् ।
वानरान् सान्त्वयित्वा च सर्वानेव व्यसर्जयत् ॥ १ ॥

Nay, accepting all the aforesaid presents brought by the monkeys and speaking kindly to them, Sugrīva let all of them go. (1)

विसर्जयित्वा स हरीन् सहस्रान् कृतकर्मणः ।
मेने कृतार्थमात्मानं राघवं च महाबलम् ॥ २ ॥

Having sent away from his presence those thousands of monkeys, who had performed their task of bringing together all the monkeys from the remotest corners of the world, he deemed himself as well as Śrī Rāma of extraordinary might as good as accomplished of purpose. (2)

स लक्ष्मणो भीमबलं सर्ववानरसत्तमम् ।
अब्रवीत् प्रश्रितं वाक्यं सुग्रीवं सम्प्रहर्षयन् ॥ ३ ॥

The celebrated Lakṣmaṇa spoke the following polite words to Sugrīva, the foremost of all the monkeys, and possessed of terrific might, bringing excessive joy to him : (3)

किष्किन्धाया विनिष्काम यदि ते सौम्य रोचते ।
तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा लक्ष्मणस्य सुभाषितम् ॥ ४ ॥
सुग्रीवः परमप्रीतो वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ।
एवं भवतु गच्छाम स्थेयं त्वच्छासने मया ॥ ५ ॥

“Come out of Kiṣkindhā awhile if it pleases you, O gentle one !” Supremely pleased to hear the aforesaid suggestion of the celebrated Lakṣmaṇa, well-worded as it was, Sugrīva, they say, replied as follows: “Amen ! Let us go out; I must obey your order.” (4-5)

तमेवमुक्त्वा सुग्रीवो लक्ष्मणं शुभलक्षणम् ।
विसर्जयामास तदा ताराद्याश्चैव योषितः ॥ ६ ॥

Nay, having replied thus to the said Lakṣmaṇa, who was endowed with auspicious bodily marks, Sugrīva forthwith sent away Tārā and the other ladies. (6)

एहीत्युच्चैर्हरिवरान् सुग्रीवः समुदाहरत् ।
तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा हरयः शीघ्रमाययुः ॥ ७ ॥
बद्धाञ्जलिपुटाः सर्वे ये स्युः स्त्रीदर्शनक्षमाः ।
तानुवाच ततः प्राप्तान् राजार्कसदृशप्रभः ॥ ८ ॥

Sugrīva then called the foremost of monkeys in a loud voice, saying "Come hither !" Hearing the aforesaid call of Sugrīva, all the monkeys who were permitted to see the ladies in the gynaeceum quickly came with folded hands. To them, when arrived in his presence, the king, Sugrīva, whose splendour resembled the brilliance of the sun, presently said: (7-8)

उपस्थापयत क्षिप्रं शिबिकां मम वानराः ।
श्रुत्वा तु वचनं तस्य हरयः शीघ्रविक्रमाः ॥ ९ ॥
समुपस्थापयामासुः शिबिकां प्रियदर्शनाम् ।
तामुपस्थापितां दृष्ट्वा शिबिकां वानराधिपः ॥ १० ॥
लक्ष्मणारुह्यतां शीघ्रमिति सौमित्रिमब्रवीत् ।
इत्युक्त्वा काञ्चनं यानं सुग्रीवः सूर्यसंनिभम् ॥ ११ ॥
बहुभिर्हरिभिर्युक्तमारुरोह सलक्ष्मणः ।
पाण्डुरेणातपत्रेण ध्रियमाणेन मूर्धनि ॥ १२ ॥
शुक्लैश्च वालव्यजनैर्धूयमानैः समन्ततः ।
शंखभेरीनिनादैश्च बन्दिभिश्चाभिनन्दितः ॥ १३ ॥
निर्ययौ प्राप्य सुग्रीवो राज्यश्रियमनुत्तमाम् ।
स वानरशतैस्तीक्ष्णैर्बहुभिः शस्त्रपाणिभिः ॥ १४ ॥
परिकीर्णो ययौ तत्र यत्र रामो व्यवस्थितः ।
स तं देशमनुप्राप्य श्रेष्ठं रामनिषेवितम् ॥ १५ ॥
अवातरन्महातेजाः शिबिकायाः सलक्ष्मणः ।
आसाद्य च ततो रामं कृताञ्जलिपुटोऽभवत् ॥ १६ ॥

"Bring my palanquin soon, O monkeys !" Hearing his command, monkeys who walked with rapid strides duly brought a palanquin which was pleasing to the sight. Seeing the aforesaid palanquin ready, Sugrīva, the suzerain lord of monkeys, said to Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), "Let it be mounted soon, O Lakṣmaṇa !" Saying so, Sugrīva ascended with Lakṣmaṇa the gold palanquin, which shone brightly like the sun and was supported by a number of monkeys. Distinguished by a white canopy supported over his head and a number of white whisks being waved all about him, and hailed with the sound of conches and kettledrums and eulogized by bards, Sugrīva sallied forth in regal state for the first time after attaining the highest royal fortune. Surrounded by many hundreds of warlike monkeys bearing weapons in their hands, he proceeded to the spot where Śrī Rāma had taken up his abode. Having reached the excellent region which had been resorted to by Śrī Rāma, Sugrīva, who was endowed with high spirits, descended from the palanquin with Lakṣmaṇa and, approaching Śrī Rāma, now stood with folded hands. (9—16)

कृताञ्जलौ स्थिते तस्मिन् वानराश्चाभवन्स्तथा ।
तटाकमिव तं दृष्ट्वा रामः कुङ्कुमपङ्कजम् ॥ १७ ॥
वानराणां महत् सैन्यं सुग्रीवे प्रीतिमानभूत् ।
पादयोः पतितं मूर्ध्ना तमुत्थाप्य हरीश्वरम् ॥ १८ ॥
प्रेम्णा च बहुमानाच्च राघवः परिष्वजे ।
परिष्वज्य च धर्मात्मा निषीदेति ततोऽब्रवीत् ॥ १९ ॥

When Sugrīva stood with folded hands, the other monkeys too did likewise. Beholding the large army of monkeys with folded hands resembling a lake full of lotus buds, Śrī Rāma got pleased with Sugrīva. Raising the aforesaid Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, fallen at his feet, touching the ground with his head, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) embraced him with love and high esteem. Nay, having embraced him, Śrī Rāma, whose mind was set on virtue, thereupon said, "Please sit down." (17—19)

निषण्णं तं ततो दृष्ट्वा क्षितौ रामोऽब्रवीत् ततः ।
धर्ममर्थं च कामं च काले यस्तु निषेवते ॥ २० ॥
विभज्य सततं वीर स राजा हरिसत्तम ।
हित्वा धर्मं तथार्थं च कामं यस्तु निषेवते ॥ २१ ॥
स वृक्षाग्रे यथा सुप्तः पतितः प्रतिबुध्यते ।
अमित्राणां वधे युक्तो मित्राणां संग्रहे रतः ॥ २२ ॥
त्रिवर्गफलभोक्ता च राजा धर्मेण युज्यते ।
उद्योगसमयस्त्वेष प्राप्तः शत्रुनिषूदन ॥ २३ ॥

Seeing him seated on the ground, Śrī Rāma then spoke as follows : "A king in the true sense of the term is he who ever pursues religious merit, wealth and sensuous enjoyment too at the opportune moment, apportioning time to each, O jewel among the monkeys ! He, however, who pursues sensuous enjoyment, neglecting religious merit and worldly prosperity, wakes up only when he has fallen from his high position, like one lying asleep on a tree-top. A king intent on the destruction of his foes and fond of winning allies is rewarded with religious merit, nay, enjoys the fruit in the shape of the three ends of life, viz., religious merit, worldly prosperity and sensuous enjoyment. Now alone has come the time for endeavour, O exterminator of foes !

(20—23)

संचिन्त्यतां हि पिङ्गेश हरिभिः सह मन्त्रिभिः ।

एवमुक्तस्तु सुग्रीवो रामं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ २४ ॥

“Therefore, let the procedure of work be carefully considered in consultation with the monkeys in general and the ministers in particular. O lord of monkeys !” Spoken to in the foregoing words by Śrī Rāma, Sugrīva for his part replied as follows to Śrī Rāma :

(24)

प्रणष्टा श्रीश्च कीर्तिश्च कपिराज्यं च शाश्वतम् ।

त्वत्प्रसादान्महाबाहो पुनः प्राप्तमिदं मया ॥ २५ ॥

“My fortune and fame as well as the lasting rulership of monkeys, which had been lost for good—all this has been regained by me through your goodwill, O mighty-armed prince !

(25)

तव देव प्रसादाच्च भ्रातृश्च जयतां वर ।

कृतं न प्रतिकुर्याद् यः पुरुषाणां हि दूषकः ॥ २६ ॥

“All this has been achieved by me, O lord, through your goodwill as well as through that of your brother, O jewel among the victorious ! He who does not repay the obligation of others is surely a disgrace to men.

(26)

एते वानरमुख्याश्च शतशः शत्रुसूदन ।

प्राप्ताश्चादाय बलिनः पृथिव्यां सर्ववानरान् ॥ २७ ॥

“These leaders of monkeys, numbering hundreds, have arrived after summoning all the mighty monkeys on the globe, O destroyer of your enemies!

(27)

ऋक्षाश्च वानराः शूरा गोलाङ्गुलाश्च राघव ।

कान्तारवनदुर्गाणामभिज्ञा घोरदर्शनाः ॥ २८ ॥

देवगन्धर्वपुत्राश्च वानराः कामरूपिणः ।

स्वैः स्वैः परिवृताः सैन्यैर्वर्तन्ते पथि राघव ॥ २९ ॥

“Surrounded by their own troops, bears and monkeys as well as valiant baboons terrible to look at and having intimate knowledge of wildernesses and forests as well as of places difficult of access, and monkeys sprung from the loins of gods and Gandharvas (celestial musicians) and capable of changing form at will are already on their way to Kiṣkindhā, O scion of Raghu !

(28-29)

शतैः शतसहस्रैश्च वर्तन्ते कोटिभिस्तथा ।

अयुतैश्चावृता वीर शङ्कुभिश्च परंतप ॥ ३० ॥

अर्बुदैर्बुदशतैर्मध्यैश्चान्त्यैश्च वानराः ।

समुद्राश्च परार्धाश्च हरयो हरियूथपाः ॥ ३१ ॥

“The monkeys are followed severally by hundreds and tens of thousands, hundreds of thousands and crores, Arbudas (ten crores), and Kharvas (one hundred Arbudas) Śaṅkus (one thousand Kharvas) and Antyas (one hundred Kharvas) and Madhyas (one thousand Śaṅkus). Nay, some monkeys and their troop-commanders number many Samudras (or ten Śaṅkus) and (even) Parārdhas* (or ten Madhyas), O scourge of your enemies !”

(30-31)

आगमिष्यन्ति ते राजन् महेन्द्रसमविक्रमाः ।

मेघपर्वतसंकाशा मेरुविन्ध्यकृतालयाः ॥ ३२ ॥

The aforesaid monkeys etc., O prince,

* The following text from some work on Astronomy, quoted by one of the commentators, will give an idea of these numbers, each of which is ten times as much as the one immediately preceding it :

एकं दश शतमस्मात् सहस्रमयुतं ततः परं लक्षम् । प्रयुतं कोटिमथाबुदवन्दे खर्वं निखर्वं च ॥
तस्मान्महासरोजं शङ्कुं सरितांपतिं त्वन्तम् । मध्यं परार्धमाहुयथोत्तरं दशगुणं तथा ज्ञेयम् ॥ which are equal in prowess to the mighty Indra, resemble clouds and mountains in size and have taken up their abode on the Meru and Vindhya mountains, will arrive soon. (32)

ते त्वामभिगमिष्यन्ति राक्षसं योद्धुमाहवे।
निहत्य रावणं युद्धे ह्यानयिष्यन्ति मैथिलीम् ॥ ३३ ॥

“They will come to you in order to fight the ogre in combat. Killing Rāvaṇa in a battle they will surely bring back Sītā, a princess of Mithilā.” (33)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डेऽष्टात्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-eight in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXIX

While Śrī Rāma and Sugrīva were deliberating with each other, Śatabali and other generals of the monkey army, followed by hordes of countless monkeys of various species, which covered the sky with the clouds of dust raised by them, arrive in their presence and bow down at their feet

इति ब्रुवाणं सुग्रीवं रामो धर्मभृतां वरः।
बाहुभ्यां सम्परिष्वज्य प्रत्युवाच कृताञ्जलिम् ॥ १ ॥

Folding tightly in his arms Sugrīva, who was submitting as aforesaid with folded hands, Śrī Rāma, the foremost of those upholding the cause of righteousness, replied as follows : (1)

यदिन्द्रो वर्षते वर्षं न तच्चित्रं भविष्यति।
आदित्योऽसौ सहस्रांशुः कुर्याद् विततिमिरं नभः ॥ २ ॥
चन्द्रमा रजनीं कुर्यात् प्रभया सौम्य निर्मलाम्।
त्वद्विधो वापि मित्राणां प्रीतिं कुर्यात् परंतप ॥ ३ ॥

“It will not be strange if Indra, the god of rain, pours a shower during the rains, if the yonder sun with its countless rays rides the sky of its darkness, if the moon, O gentle one, makes the night clear by its brilliance or if an individual like you affords

ततः समुद्योगमवेक्ष्य वीर्यवान्
हरिप्रवीरस्य निदेशवर्तिनः।
बभूव हर्षाद् वसुधाधिपात्मजः
प्रबुद्धनीलोत्पलतुल्यदर्शनः ॥ ३४ ॥

Perceiving the consummate (martial) endeavour on the part of Sugrīva, the foremost warrior of the monkey race, who was at his beck and call, the powerful Śrī Rāma (son of Daśaratha, the suzerain lord of the earth) looked like a full-blown blue lotus through delight. (34)

delight to his friends through good offices rendered to them in return for their past services, O scourge of your foes ! (2-3)
एवं त्वयि न तच्चित्रं भवेद् यत् सौम्य शोभनम्।
जानाम्यहं त्वां सुग्रीव सततं प्रियवादिनम् ॥ ४ ॥

“Even so, the noble virtue of rendering good offices to your friends which exists in you, is not at all strange, O gentle one; for I know you to be constantly in the habit of speaking kind words to others, O Sugrīva ! (4)

त्वत्सनाथः सखे संख्ये जेतास्मि सकलानरीन्।
त्वमेव मे सुहृन्मित्रं साहाय्यं कर्तुमर्हसि ॥ ५ ॥

“With you as my helpful companion, O friend, I shall be able to conquer all enemies in combat. You alone are my benevolent friend and fit to render help to me. (5)

जहारात्मविनाशाय मैथिलीं राक्षसाधमः ।
वञ्चयित्वा तु पौलोमीमनुह्लादो यथा शचीम् ॥ ६ ॥

“For his own destruction Rāvaṇa, the disgrace of ogres, bore away Sītā (a princess of Mithilā) by practising fraud against her in the same way as Anuhlāda (a son of the demon Hiranyakaśipu, and a real brother of the celebrated devotee Prahlāda) for his part took away Śacī, daughter of the demon Pulomā (who was sought after by Indra). (6)

नचिरात् तं वधिष्यामि रावणं निशितैः शरैः ।
पौलोम्याः पितरं दृप्तं शतक्रतुरिवारिहा ॥ ७ ॥

“I shall before long kill the said Rāvaṇa with my sharp arrows even as Indra (who is said to have performed a hundred horse-sacrifices in his previous birth as a condition precedent for attaining this position), the destroyer of his foes, killed the arrogant Pulomā (father of Śacī, who played into the hands of Anuhlāda and countenanced her abduction by Anuhlāda).” (7)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे चैव रजः समभिवर्तत ।
उष्णतीव्रां सहस्रांशोश्छादयद् गगने प्रभाम् ॥ ८ ॥

In the meantime there rose a cloud of dust veiling the fiery and scorching brilliance of the sun with its numberless rays in the sky. (8)

दिशः पर्याकुलाश्वासंस्तमसा तेन दूषिताः ।
चचाल च मही सर्वा सशैलवनकानना ॥ ९ ॥

The quarters were obscured and enveloped by the darkness occasioned by that dust and the entire earth shook with its mountains, forests and woodlands. (9)

ततो नगेन्द्रसंकाशैस्तीक्ष्णदंष्ट्रैर्महाबलैः ।
कृत्स्ना संछादिता भूमिरसंख्येयैः प्लवंगमैः ॥ १० ॥

Thereupon the whole earth was thickly covered with innumerable monkeys possessed of extraordinary might and sharp teeth and looking like lordly mountains. (10)

निमेषान्तरमात्रेण ततस्तैर्हरियूथपैः ।
कोटीशतपरीवारैर्वानरैर्हरियूथपैः ॥ ११ ॥

नादेयैः पार्वतेयैश्च सामुद्रैश्च महाबलैः ।
हरिभिर्मघनिर्हार्दैर्यैश्च वनवासिभिः ॥ १२ ॥

In the mere twinkling of an eye after that the earth was overrun by celebrated leaders of Vānara hordes followed by hundreds of crores of monkeys, nay, capable of changing their form at will and possessed of extraordinary might and living on river banks, mountains and seashores and was further overrun by other monkeys dwelling in forests and thundering like clouds. (11-12)

तरुणादित्यवर्णैश्च शशिंगौरैश्च वानरैः ।
पद्मकेसरवर्णैश्च श्वेतैर्हमकृतालयैः ॥ १३ ॥

Their colour resembled in some cases the hue of the rising sun; others were yellowish as the moon; still others possessed the hue of the filaments of a lotus and others were white and had taken up their abode on the Hema mountain. (13)

कोटीसहस्रैर्दशभिः श्रीमान् परिवृतस्तदा ।
वीरः शतबलिर्नाम वानरः प्रत्यदृश्यत ॥ १४ ॥

Presently there appeared a glorious and gallant monkey, Satabali by name, followed by ten thousand crores of monkeys. (14)

ततः काञ्चनशैलाभस्ताराया वीर्यवान् पिता ।
अनेकैर्बहुसाहस्रैः कोटिभिः प्रत्यदृश्यत ॥ १५ ॥

Next came to view the powerful father of Tārā (Suṣeṇa by name), looking like a golden mountain and followed by many myriads of monkeys. (15)

तथापरेण कोटीनां सहस्रेण समन्वितः ।
पिता रुमायाः सम्प्राप्तः सुग्रीवश्चशुरो विभुः ॥ १६ ॥

Accompanied by another thousand crores, again, arrived Tārā, the mighty father of Rumā and father-in-law of Sugrīva. (16)

पद्मकेसरसंकाशस्तरुणार्कनिभाननः ।
बुद्धिमान् वानरश्रेष्ठः सर्ववानरसत्तमः ॥ १७ ॥
अनेकैर्बहुसाहस्रैर्वानराणां समन्वितः ।
पिता हनुमतः श्रीमान् केसरी प्रत्यदृश्यत ॥ १८ ॥

Also accompanied by many thousands of monkeys there appeared the wise and glorious father of Hanumān, Kesari, a jewel among the monkeys, nay, the foremost of all monkeys, who resembled in hue the filaments of a lotus and whose countenance shone like the rising sun. (17-18)

गोलाङ्गुलमहाराजो गवाक्षो भीमविक्रमः ।

वृतः कोटिसहस्रेण वानराणामदृश्यत ॥ १९ ॥

Surrounded by a thousand crore monkeys, came to view the suzerain lord of baboons, Gavākṣa, possessed of redoubtable prowess. (19)

ऋक्षाणां भीमवेगानां धूमः शत्रुनिबर्हणः ।

वृतः कोटिसहस्राभ्यां द्वाभ्यां समभिवर्तत ॥ २० ॥

Accompanied by two thousand crores of bears of terrible speed, turned up Dhūmra, the exterminator of his foes. (20)

महाचलनिभैर्घोरैः पनसो नाम यूथपः ।

आजगाम महावीर्यस्तिष्ठः कोटिभिवृतः ॥ २१ ॥

Surrounded by dreadful monkeys looking like huge mountains and numbering three crores, there came the troop-leader Panasa by name. (21)

नीलाञ्जनचयाकारो नीलो नामैष यूथपः ।

अदृश्यत महाकायः कोटिभिर्दशभिवृतः ॥ २२ ॥

Accompanied by ten crore monkeys appeared next the troop-commander, Nīla by name, who was possessed of a gigantic form and looked like a heap of antimony. (22)

ततः काञ्चनशैलाभो गवयो नाम यूथपः ।

आजगाम महावीर्यः कोटिभिः पञ्चभिवृतः ॥ २३ ॥

Then came the troop-leader named Gavaya, who shone like a mountain of gold, was possessed of extraordinary prowess and who was surrounded by five crores of monkeys. (23)

दरीमुखश्च बलवान् यूथपोऽभ्याययौ तदा ।

वृतः कोटिसहस्रेण सुग्रीवं समवस्थितः ॥ २४ ॥

Then arrived the mighty troop-leader Darimukha and stood in the presence of Sugrīva with a thousand crore monkeys. (24)

मैन्दश्च द्विविदश्चोभावश्चिपुत्रौ महाबलौ ।

कोटिकोटिसहस्रेण वानराणामदृश्यताम् ॥ २५ ॥

There also appeared Mainda and Dwivida, both sons of the Aświnikumāras (the twin-born physicians of gods), and possessed of extraordinary strength, with one thousand crore monkeys, each. (25)

गजश्च बलवान् वीरस्तिष्ठः कोटिभिवृतः ।

आजगाम महातेजाः सुग्रीवस्य समीपतः ॥ २६ ॥

Accompanied by three crores of monkeys, the mighty hero, Gaja, too, who was endowed with great vital power, sought the presence of Sugrīva. (26)

ऋक्षराजो महातेजा जाम्बवान्नाम नामतः ।

कोटिभिर्दशभिव्याप्तः सुग्रीवस्य वशे स्थितः ॥ २७ ॥

The king of bears, Jāmbavān by name, who was possessed of great energy, came surrounded, they say, by ten crores of bears and stood at the disposal of Sugrīva. (27)

रुमणो नाम तेजस्वी विक्रान्तैर्वानरैर्वृतः ।

आगतो बलवांस्तूर्ण कोटीशतसमावृतः ॥ २८ ॥

Surrounded by valiant monkeys, the mighty and glorious monkey, named Rumaṇa (Rumaṇwān), came hurriedly, followed by hundreds of crores of Vānaras. (28)

ततः कोटिसहस्राणां सहस्रेण शतेन च ।

पृष्ठतोऽनुगतः प्राप्तो हरिभिर्गन्धमादनः ॥ २९ ॥

Then arrived Gandhamādana followed at his back by a billion monkeys. (29)

ततः पद्मसहस्रेण वृतः शङ्कुशतेन च ।

युवराजोऽङ्गदः प्राप्तः पितुस्तुल्यपराक्रमः ॥ ३० ॥

Then arrived the Prince Regent, Aṅgada, who equalled his father, Vālī, in prowess, accompanied by one thousand Padma and a hundred Śaṅku monkeys. (30)

ततस्ताराद्युतिस्तारो हरिभिर्भीमविक्रमैः ।

पञ्चभिर्हरिकोटीभिर्दूरतः पर्यदृश्यत ॥ ३१ ॥

Then came to view from a distance the monkey, Tāra of terrible prowess, who possessed the brilliance of a star, followed by five crores of monkeys. (31)

इन्द्रजानुः कविर्वीरो यूथपः प्रत्यदृश्यत ।
एकादशानां कोटीनामीश्वरस्तैश्च संवृतः ॥ ३२ ॥

There also was to be seen the wise and gallant troop-leader, Indrajānu (or Indrabhānu), the ruler of eleven crore monkeys, and duly followed by them all. (32)

ततो रम्भस्त्वनुप्राप्तस्तरुणादित्यसंनिभः ।
अयुतेन वृतश्चैव सहस्रेण शतेन च ॥ ३३ ॥

Next arrived Rambha, who for his part shone like the rising sun, surrounded by eleven thousand and one hundred monkeys. (33)

ततो यूथपतिर्वीरो दुर्मुखो नाम वानरः ।
प्रत्यदृश्यत कोटीभ्यां द्वाभ्यां परिवृतो बली ॥ ३४ ॥

Then appeared the valiant and mighty troop-leader, a monkey named Durmukha, accompanied by two crore monkeys. (34)

कैलासशिखराकारैर्वानरैर्भीमविक्रमैः ।
वृतः कोटिसहस्रेण हनुमान् प्रत्यदृश्यत ॥ ३५ ॥

There was to be seen Hanumān, too, surrounded by a thousand crore monkeys of redoubtable prowess and resembling so many peaks of the Kailāsa mountain. (35)

नलश्चापि महावीर्यः संवृतो द्रुमवासिभिः ।
कोटीशतेन सम्प्राप्तः सहस्रेण शतेन च ॥ ३६ ॥

There arrived Nala, too, possessed of great virility and surrounded by a hundred crore and one lakh monkeys dwelling on trees. (36)

ततो दधिमुखः श्रीमान् कोटिभिर्दशभिर्वृतः ।
सम्प्राप्तोऽभिनदंस्तस्य सुग्रीवस्य महात्मनः ॥ ३७ ॥

Then arrived thundering in the presence of the aforesaid high-minded Sugrīva, the glorious Dadhimukha, accompanied by ten crore monkeys. (37)

शरभः कुमुदो वह्निर्वानरो रंह एव च ।
एते चान्ये च बहवो वानराः कामरूपिणः ॥ ३८ ॥

आवृत्य पृथिवीं सर्वा पर्वतांश्च वनानि च ।
यूथपाः समनुप्राप्ता येषां संख्या न विद्यते ॥ ३९ ॥

Even so, Śarabha, Kumuda, Vahni and the monkey Rāmha too—these and many other monkey troop-leaders, who were capable of changing form at will and whose number could not be ascertained, duly turned up, covering the entire globe as well as the mountains and forests. (38-39)

आगताश्च निविष्टाश्च पृथिव्यां सर्ववानराः ।
आप्लवन्तः प्लवन्तश्च गर्जन्तश्च प्लवंगमाः ।
अभ्यवर्तन्त सुग्रीवं सूर्यमभ्रगणा इव ॥ ४० ॥

Nay, all the monkeys which came up there sat down on the earth. Leaping from one tree to another and from one bough to another and growling, the monkeys surrounded Sugrīva as masses of clouds would encompass the sun. (40)

कुर्वाणा बहुशब्दांश्च प्रकृष्टा बाहुशालिनः ।
शिरोभिर्वानरेन्द्राय सुग्रीवाय न्यवेदयन् ॥ ४१ ॥

Raising many a cry, the foremost monkeys, distinguished for their mighty arms, reported themselves from a distance to Sugrīva, the king of monkeys, with their bent heads, too shy as they were to force their way through the invulnerable crowds to his presence. (41)

अपरे वानरश्रेष्ठाः संगम्य च यथोचितम् ।
सुग्रीवेण समागम्य स्थिताः प्राञ्जलयस्तदा ॥ ४२ ॥

Going near and submitting what was called for at the moment, other jewels among the monkeys departed; while others having met with Sugrīva stood with folded hands where they were at the moment. (42)

सुग्रीवस्त्वरितो रामे सर्वास्तान् वानरर्षभान् ।
निवेदयित्वा धर्मज्ञः स्थितः प्राञ्जलिरब्रवीत् ॥ ४३ ॥

Having announced to Śrī Rāma all the aforesaid monkeys, who were in a hurry to settle down and take rest, and standing with folded hands before Śrī Rāma, Sugrīva, who was full of alacrity and knew of the duties of a king, spoke as follows to the monkey chiefs : (43)

यथासुखं पर्वतनिर्झरेषु
वनेषु सर्वेषु च वानरेन्द्राः ।
निवेशयित्वा विधिवद् बलानि
बलं बलज्ञः प्रतिपत्तुमीष्टे ॥ ४४ ॥

“Having duly stationed the forces according to their convenience by the side of mountain rills in all the woods, O monkey chiefs, the general who knows their strength should be able to ascertain their exact number.” (44)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे एकोनचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-nine in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XL

Pointing out in pursuance of Śrī Rāma's command to one of his generals, Vinata by name, the regions in the east which could be penetrated into by monkeys, detailing the tracts worthy of note, and entrusting him with the task of conducting a search for Sītā in those regions, Sugrīva enjoins the general to return within a month after the work, adding that anyone returning after a month will be punished

अथ राजा समृद्धार्थः सुग्रीवः प्लवगेश्वरः ।
उवाच नरशार्दूलं रामं परबलार्दनम् ॥ १ ॥

King Sugrīva, the ruler of monkeys, whose wealth had considerably grown, submitted as follows to Śrī Rāma, a veritable tiger among men, the exterminator of hostile forces : (1)

आगता विनिविष्टाश्च बलिनः कामरूपिणः ।
वानरेन्द्रा महेन्द्राभा ये मद्विषयवासिनः ॥ २ ॥

“The mighty monkey chiefs, living in my dominion and shining like the great Indra, the lord of paradise, nay, capable of changing form at will, have duly arrived and have been lodged with care. (2)

त इमे बहुविक्रान्तैर्बलिभिर्भीमविक्रमैः ।
आगता वानरा घोरा दैत्यदानवसंनिभाः ॥ ३ ॥

“These aforesaid monkeys, ferocious as they are and greatly resemble giants and demons, have arrived with their mighty followers, who have exhibited their valour at many places and are of terrific prowess. (3)

ख्यातकर्मापदानाश्च बलवन्तो जितक्लमाः ।
पराक्रमेषु विख्याता व्यवसायेषु चोत्तमाः ॥ ४ ॥

“The mighty monkey chiefs are noted for their valour in fighting and have conquered fatigue. They are well-known for their exploits and are pre-eminent in their enterprises. (4)

पृथिव्यम्बुचरा राम नानानगनिवासिनः ।
कोट्योघाश्च इमे प्राप्ता वानरास्तव किंकराः ॥ ५ ॥

“These monkeys, that have arrived here, O Rāma, can move both on land and water, have their abode on different mountains, number many crores and are all your servants. (5)

निदेशवर्तिनः सर्वे सर्वे गुरुहिते स्थिताः ।
अभिप्रेतमनुष्ठातुं तव शक्ष्यन्त्यरिंदम ॥ ६ ॥

“They all will stand at your beck and call, are intent on doing good to their master and shall be able to carry out your plans, O tamer of foes ! (6)

त इमे बहुसाहस्रैरनीकैर्भीमविक्रमैः ।
आगता वानरा घोरा दैत्यदानवसंनिभाः ॥ ७ ॥

“These aforesaid monkeys, who are ferocious and resemble giants and demons to a great extent, have arrived with many thousands of contingents of terrible prowess. (7)

यन्मन्यसे नरव्याघ्र प्राप्तकालं तदुच्यताम् ।
त्वत्सैन्यं त्वद्वशे युक्तमाज्ञापयितुमर्हसि ॥ ८ ॥

“Whatever you regard as opportune may kindly be pointed out, O tiger among men ! You ought to give orders to your army, which is alert under your control. (8)

काममेषामिदं कार्यं विदितं मम तत्त्वतः ।
तथापि तु यथायुक्तमाज्ञापयितुमर्हसि ॥ ९ ॥

“Even though the work in hand, viz., that of conducting a search for Sitā, is known in truth to these monkeys as well as to me, nevertheless you ought to give proper orders.” (9)

तथा ब्रुवाणं सुग्रीवं रामो दशरथात्मजः ।
बाहुभ्यां सम्परिष्वज्य इदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १० ॥

Folding tight in his arms Sugrīva, who was speaking as aforesaid, Śrī Rāma, sprung from Daśaratha's loins, spoke as follows : (10)

ज्ञायतां सौम्य वैदेही यदि जीवति वा न वा ।
स च देशो महाप्राज्ञ यस्मिन् वसति रावणः ॥ ११ ॥

“Let it be ascertained, O gentle one, whether Sitā, a princess of the Videha territory, is still living or not and let the land where Rāvaṇa lives be found out, O highly intelligent one ! (11)

अधिगम्य तु वैदेहीं निलयं रावणस्य च ।
प्राप्तकालं विधास्यामि तस्मिन् काले सह त्वया ॥ १२ ॥

“Having found out Sitā, a princess of the Videha territory, as well as the abode of

Rāvaṇa, I shall do in conjunction with you what is opportune at that moment. (12)

नाहमस्मिन् प्रभुः कार्ये वानरेन्द्र न लक्ष्मणः ।
त्वमस्य हेतुः कार्यस्य प्रभुश्च प्लवगेश्वर ॥ १३ ॥

“I am not equal to this task of sending out Vānaras, O ruler of monkeys, nor is Lakṣmaṇa up to it. You alone can prove instrumental in accomplishing this work and are equal to it, O lord of monkeys ! (13)

त्वमेवाज्ञापय विभो मम कार्यविनिश्चयम् ।
त्वं हि जानासि मे कार्यं मम वीर न संशयः ॥ १४ ॥

“Fully ascertaining how my work is to be proceeded with, give you definite orders in the matter. Surely you know my work : no doubt is lurking in my mind in this behalf, O powerful hero ! (14)

सुहृद्द्वितीयो विक्रान्तः प्राज्ञः कालविशेषवित् ।
भवानस्मद्धिते युक्तः सुहृदाप्तोऽर्थवित्तमः ॥ १५ ॥

“You are my second near and dear one here, Lakṣmaṇa being the foremost, are valiant and wise in all matters; you know the particular time when a thing ought to be done, are intent on doing good to us, benevolent, trustworthy and the foremost of those knowing my purpose.” (15)

एवमुक्तस्तु सुग्रीवो विनतं नाम यूथपम् ।
अब्रवीद् रामसान्निध्ये लक्ष्मणस्य च धीमतः ॥ १६ ॥

शैलाभं मेघनिर्घोषमूर्जितं प्लवगेश्वरम् ।
सोमसूर्यनिभैः सार्धं वानरैर्वानरोत्तम ॥ १७ ॥

देशकालनयैर्युक्तो विज्ञः कार्यविनिश्चये ।
वृतः शतसहस्रेण वानराणां तरस्विनाम् ॥ १८ ॥

अधिगच्छ दिशं पूर्वा सशैलवनकाननाम् ।
तत्र सीतां च वैदेहीं निलयं रावणस्य च ॥ १९ ॥

मार्गध्वं गिरिदुर्गेषु वनेषु च नदीषु च ।
नदीं भागीरथीं रम्यां सरयूं कौशिकीं तथा ॥ २० ॥

कालिन्दीं यमुनां रम्यां यामुनं च महागिरिम् ।
सरस्वतीं च सिन्धुं च शोणं मणिनिभोदकम् ॥ २१ ॥

महीं कालमहीं चापि शैलकाननशोभिताम् ।
ब्रह्मालान् विदेहांश्च मालवान् काशिकोसलान् ॥ २२ ॥

मागधांश्च महाग्रामान् पुण्ड्रांस्त्वङ्गांस्तथैव च ।
भूमिं च कोशकाराणां भूमिं च रजताकराम् ॥ २३ ॥

सर्वं च तद् विचेतव्यं मार्गयद्भिस्ततस्ततः ।

रामस्य दयितां भार्या सीतां दशरथस्नुषाम् ॥ २४ ॥

Replied to in these words by Śrī Rāma, Sugrīva for his part spoke as follows in the presence of Śrī Rāma as also the wise Lakṣmaṇa to a powerful troop-leader, Vinata by name, who looked like a mountain and thundered like a cloud, nay, who was a ruler of monkeys and had arrived with monkeys which shone like the sun and the moon: "You are endowed with political wisdom suited to a particular place and time and skilled in determining your duty, O jewel among monkeys! Followed by a hundred thousand of energetic monkeys, explore the eastern quarter with its mountains, forests and woods, and make a search there for Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, and the abode of Rāvaṇa in mountain fastnesses, in forests and on river-banks. Nay, reaching the river Bhāgirathī, the holy Gaṅgā, the delightful Sarayū and Kauśikī (the modern Kośī), the lovely Yamunā, having its source in the Kalinda mountain, as well as the huge mountain Kalinda (the source of Yamunā) as also the Saraswatī and Sindhu (the modern Indus) and the Sona, whose waters sparkle as a gem, the rivers Mahī and Kālamahī, graced with mountains and forests, the territories of Brahmamālā and Videha, Mālawa, Kāśī and Kosala, the large villages of Magadha as well as the territories of Puṇḍra and Aṅga (roughly corresponding to the modern district of Bhagalpur) as also the land of silkworms and the land abounding in silver mines, this entire zone should be scoured while looking about in all the aforesaid regions for Sītā, the beloved consort of Śrī Rāma and the daughter-in-law of the late Emperor Daśaratha. (16—24)

समुद्रमवगाढांश्च पर्वतान् पत्तनानि च ।

मन्दरस्य च ये कोटिं संश्रिताः केचिदालयाः ॥ २५ ॥

कर्णप्रावरणाश्चैव तथा चाप्योष्ठकर्णकाः ।

घोरलोहमुखाश्चैव जवनाश्चैकपादकाः ॥ २६ ॥

अक्षया बलवन्तश्च तथैव पुरुषादकाः ।

किरातास्तीक्ष्णचूडाश्च हेमाभाः प्रियदर्शनाः ॥ २७ ॥

आममीनाशनाश्चापि किराता द्वीपवासिनः ।

अन्तर्जलचरा घोरा नरव्याघ्रा इति स्मृताः ॥ २८ ॥

एतेषामाश्रयाः सर्वे विचेयाः काननौकसः ।

गिरिभिर्वै च गम्यन्ते प्लवनेन प्लवेन च ॥ २९ ॥

"Nay, the towns built on sea-girt mountains and whatever villages are situated on the summit of Mount Mandara as well as all the abodes of the following, viz., those whose ears are so long and extensive as to serve as their covering and also those whose ears reach up to their lips, those whose faces are black and hard like iron and, therefore, dreadful as also those who though onefooted are fleet specially, those who are homeless (or whose line never meets with extinction) and are full of extraordinary strength, even so ogres (or cannibals) and golden-hued Kirātas possessed of sharp needle-like tufts and pleasing to look at and also fearful Kirātas subsisting on raw fish, dwelling on islands, moving in water and referred to as tiger-men (possessing as they do the shape of a human being below the waist and that of a tiger above), O denizens of the forest, regions which can be reached by crossing hills and leaping across them as also those which are accessible by means of a boat should be explored. (25—29)

यत्नवन्तो यवद्वीपं सप्तराजोपशोभितम् ।

सुवर्णरूप्यकद्वीपं सुवर्णाकरमण्डितम् ॥ ३० ॥

"Full of endeavour, you should also scour Yavadwīpa (the island of Java), graced with seven kingdoms as also the gold and silver islands adorned with gold mines. (30)

यवद्वीपमतिक्रम्य शिशिरो नाम पर्वतः ।

दिवं स्पृशति शृङ्गेण देवदानवसेवितः ॥ ३१ ॥

"Beyond Yavadwīpa lies a mountain, Śīsira by name, inhabited by gods and demons, which kisses the sky with its summit. (31)

एतेषां गिरिदुर्गेषु प्रपातेषु वनेषु च।
मार्गध्वं सहिताः सर्वे रामपत्नीं यशस्विनीम् ॥ ३२ ॥

“In the mountain fastnesses and forests and by the side of waterfalls of the aforesaid islands seek you all in a body for the illustrious consort of Śrī Rāma. (32)

ततो रक्तजलं प्राप्य शोणाख्यं शीघ्रवाहिनम्।
गत्वा पारं समुद्रस्य सिद्धचारणसेवितम् ॥ ३३ ॥
तस्य तीर्थेषु रम्येषु विचित्रेषु वनेषु च।
रावणः सह वैदेह्या मार्गितव्यस्ततस्ततः ॥ ३४ ॥

“Then, moving to the opposite shore of the sea, ‘inhabited by Siddhas (a class of demigods endowed with mystic powers from their very birth) and Cāraṇas (celestial bards) and reaching the swiftly flowing river named Sona, which is so-called because it carries reddish waters, Rāvaṇa alongwith Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) should be sought for everywhere at the delightful descents into the river as also in the charming forests along its banks. (33-34)

पर्वतप्रभवा नद्यः सुभीमबहुनिष्कृटाः।
मार्गितव्या दरीमन्तः पर्वताश्च वनानि च ॥ ३५ ॥

“Streams having their source in mountains and hemmed in with numerous exceedingly dreadful gardens, as well as cavernous heights and forests should be explored. (35)

ततः समुद्रद्वीपांश्च सुभीमान् द्रष्टुमर्हथ।
ऊर्मिमन्तं महारौद्रं क्रोशन्तमनिलोद्धतम् ॥ ३६ ॥

“Then you ought to scour the most dreadful islands comprising Ikṣudwīpa, surrounded by an ocean known as Ikṣusamudra as also that most frightful ocean tossed by the winds and, therefore, roaring. (36)

तत्रासुरा महाकायाश्छायां गृह्णन्ति नित्यशः।
ब्रह्मणा समनुज्ञाता दीर्घकालं बुभुक्षिताः ॥ ३७ ॥

“Having remained hungry for a long time and, therefore, duly permitted by Brahmā (the creator), demons of huge proportions in that ocean seize birds etc., flying over the ocean through their shadow everyday. (37)

तं कालमेघप्रतिमं महोरगनिषेवितम्।
अभिगम्य महानादं तीर्थेनैव महोदधिम् ॥ ३८ ॥
ततो रक्तजलं भीमं लोहितं नाम सागरम्।
गत्वा प्रेक्ष्यथ तां चैव बृहतीं कूटशाल्मलीम् ॥ ३९ ॥

“Crossing by sheer devices that ocean looking like a dark cloud and making a loud noise and infested with huge serpents, and then reaching the shore of the dreadful sea containing red water and consequently going by the name of Red Sea, you will behold that giant Kūṭaśālmālī tree (which has given the name of Śālmālī to the island containing it). (38-39)

गृहं च वैनतेयस्य नानारत्नविभूषितम्।
तत्र कैलाससंकाशं विहितं विश्वकर्मणा ॥ ४० ॥

“There you will also see the abode of Garuḍa (son of Vinatā), decorated with various jewels, constructed by Viśwakarmā (the architect of gods) and resembling Mount Kailāsa. (40)

तत्र शैलनिभा भीमा मन्देहा नाम राक्षसाः।
शैलशृङ्गेषु लम्बन्ते नानारूपा भयावहाः ॥ ४१ ॥

“In that island formidable ogres of diverse forms, looking like mountains and going by the class-name of Mandehas, and inspiring fear, remain suspended, head downwards, from the peaks of mountains enclosed by the ocean of wine. (41)

ते पतन्ति जले नित्यं सूर्यस्योदयनं प्रति।
अभितप्ताः स्म सूर्येण लम्बन्ते स्म पुनः पुनः ॥ ४२ ॥
निहता ब्रह्मतेजोभिरहन्यहनि राक्षसाः।
ततः पाण्डुरमेघाभं क्षीरोदं नाम सागरम् ॥ ४३ ॥
गत्वा द्रक्ष्यथ दुर्धर्षा मुक्ताहारमिवोर्मिभिः।

तस्य मध्ये महाज्ज्ञेतो ऋषभो नाम पर्वतः ॥ ४४ ॥
दिव्यगन्धैः कुसुमितैराचितैश्च नगैर्वृतः।
सरश्च राजतैः पद्मैर्ज्वलितैर्हर्मकैः सरैः ॥ ४५ ॥
नाम्ना सुदर्शनं नाम राजहंसैः समाकुलम्।
विबुधाश्चारणा यक्षाः किंनराश्चाप्सरोगणाः ॥ ४६ ॥

हृष्टाः समधिगच्छन्ति नलिनीं तां रिरंसवः ।
क्षीरोदं समतिक्रम्य तदा द्रक्ष्यथ वानराः ॥ ४७ ॥
जलोदं सागरं शीघ्रं सर्वभूतभयावहम् ।
तत्र तत्कोपजं तेजः कृतं हयमुखं महत् ॥ ४८ ॥

“With their heads turned upwards, at sunrise everyday they contend with the sun-god and, scorched by the sun and slain by the spiritual power released by the holy Gāyatrī text, muttered by those invested with the sacred thread day after day, the aforesaid ogres drop into the water and being brought back to life by the contact of water get suspended (from the mountain-peaks) again and again. Proceeding further, you, who are difficult to overpower, will behold the ocean looking like a white cloud and going by the name of Kṣīroda (the ocean of milk), which, with its white waves, appears adorned with pearl-necklaces, as it were. In the midst of that ocean rises a huge white mountain, Rṣabha by name, covered with trees in blossom emitting an ethereal fragrance and growing in clusters. There is on that mountain a lake also known by the name of Sudarśana and adorned with dazzling silver lotuses containing filaments of gold and thronged with swans. Full of delight, gods, Cāraṇas (celestial bards), Yakṣas and Kinnaras (two species of demigods) and bebies of celestial nymphs seek that lotus-pond with intent to disport themselves. Duly crossing the ocean of milk, O monkeys, you will then soon behold the ocean containing fresh water and causing terror to all created beings. In that ocean of fresh water there exists a huge (submarine) fire, known by the name of Vaḍavāmukha (so-called because it is believed to emerge from a cavity having the shape of a mare’s mouth under the sea at the South Pole) and sprung from the wrath of Sage Aurva and dropped into it. (42—48)

अस्याहुस्तन्महावेगमोदनं सचराचरम् ।
तत्र विक्रोशतां नादो भूतानां सागरौकसाम् ।
श्रूयते चासमर्थानां दृष्ट्वाभूद् वडवामुखम् ॥ ४९ ॥

“The wonderful water of that ocean including the mobile as well as the immobile creation supported by it and dashing against the shores with great impetuosity serves as its fuel. In that ocean the wail of created beings dwelling in the ocean, crying loudly, unable as they are to protect themselves against the terrible fire as well as those who are so able, stricken with fear to behold the aforesaid submarine fire, is constantly heard. (49)

स्वादूदस्योत्तरे तीरे योजनानि त्रयोदश ।
जातरूपशिलो नाम सुमहान् कनकप्रभः ॥ ५० ॥

“At a distance of thirteen Yojanas (or one hundred and four miles) from the northern shore of the ocean of fresh water, there stands a very large mountain possessing the brilliance of gold and as such known by the name of Jātarūpaśila (or consisting of golden rocks). (50)

तत्र चन्द्रप्रतीकाशं पन्नगं धरणीधरम् ।
पद्मपत्रविशालाक्षं ततो द्रक्ष्यथ वानराः ॥ ५१ ॥
आसीनं पर्वतस्याग्रे सर्वदेवनमस्कृतम् ।
सहस्रशिरसं देवमनन्तं नीलवाससम् ॥ ५२ ॥

“There you will find seated, O monkeys, in front of that mountain the thousand-headed serpent-god, Lord Ananta (Śeṣa), the supporter of the earth and the adored of all gods, shining like the moon and clad in blue, with eyes large as the petals of a lotus. (51-52)

त्रिशिराः काञ्चनः केतुस्तालस्तस्य महात्मनः ।
स्थापितः पर्वतस्याग्रे विराजति सवेदिकः ॥ ५३ ॥

“Planted in front of the mountain as an ensign of that high-souled being, shines brightly a golden palmyra tree with three main boughs and a platform for its base. (53)

पूर्वस्यां दिशि निर्माणं कृतं तत् त्रिदशेश्वरैः ।
ततः परं हेममयः श्रीमानुदयपर्वतः ॥ ५४ ॥

“The tree has been treated by gods as a boundary post, marking the end of the eastern quarter. Beyond it lies the glorious eastern mountain of gold from which the sun is supposed to rise. (54)

तस्य कोटिर्दिवं स्पृष्ट्वा शतयोजनमायता ।
जातरूपमयी दिव्या विराजति सवेदिका ॥ ५५ ॥

“Kissing the heaven, its wonderful summit of gold, a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles) long, shines brightly with the other mountains serving as its base. (55)

सालैस्तालैस्तमालैश्च कर्णिकारैश्च पुष्पितैः ।
जातरूपमयैर्दिव्यैः शोभते सूर्यसंनिभैः ॥ ५६ ॥

“It looks charming with heavenly sal, palmyra, Tamāla and Karṇikāra trees of gold in blossom, shining brightly as the sun. (56)

तत्र योजनविस्तारमुच्छ्रितं दशयोजनम् ।
शृङ्गं सौमनसं नाम जातरूपमयं ध्रुवम् ॥ ५७ ॥

“On that summit (a hundred Yojanas long, of the eastern mountain) there stands another everlasting golden peak, Saumanasa by name, a Yojana long and ten Yojanas high. (57)

तत्र पूर्वं पदं कृत्वा पुरा विष्णुस्त्रिविक्रमे ।
द्वितीयं शिखरे मेरोश्चकार पुरुषोत्तमः ॥ ५८ ॥

“Placing his first stride on that very peak in the process of covering all the three worlds in three strides in the former days, Lord Viṣṇu, the Supreme Person, placed the second on the peak of Mount Meru in heaven. (58)

उत्तरेण परिक्रम्य जम्बूद्वीपं दिवाकरः ।
दृश्यो भवति भूयिष्ठं शिखरं तन्महोच्छ्रयम् ॥ ५९ ॥

“The sun becomes most clearly visible to the inhabitants of Jambūdwīpa when circumambulating Jambūdwīpa from the north it ascends the said peak of great altitude. (59)

तत्र वैखानसा नाम वालखिल्या महर्षयः ।
प्रकाशमाना दृश्यन्ते सूर्यवर्णास्तपस्विनः ॥ ६० ॥

“On that peak eminent sages named

Vālakhilyas, who are all anchorites practising asceticism and are bright as the sun, are seen shedding their light. (60)

अयं सुदर्शनो द्वीपः पुरो यस्य प्रकाशते ।
तस्मिंस्तेजश्च चक्षुश्च सर्वप्राणभृतामपि ॥ ६१ ॥

“In front of the said eastern mountain shines the island of Sudarśana (so-called because it contains the lake named Sudarśana). Light as well as vision are secured by all living beings only when the sun shines on the aforesaid peak. (61)

शैलस्य तस्य पृष्ठेषु कन्दरेषु वनेषु च ।
रावणः सह वैदेह्या मार्गितव्यस्ततस्ततः ॥ ६२ ॥

“On the peaks as well as in the caves and forests of the aforesaid mountain Rāvaṇa alongwith Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) should be sought for at every place. (62)

काञ्चनस्य च शैलस्य सूर्यस्य च महात्मनः ।
आविष्टा तेजसा संध्या पूर्वा रक्ता प्रकाशते ॥ ६३ ॥

Illumined with the brilliance of Sumeru (the golden mountain) as well as of the magnanimous sun-god, the eastern horizon appears red. (63)

पूर्वमेतत् कृतं द्वारं पृथिव्या भुवनस्य च ।
सूर्यस्योदयनं चैव पूर्वा ह्येषा दिगुच्यते ॥ ६४ ॥

“This eastern mountain associated with the rising of the sun was evolved at the beginning of creation by Brahmā as the entrance for those entering the terrestrial region from the higher worlds as well as for those departing from it to the higher worlds. Hence this quarter is called the eastern (lit., the very first) quarter. (64)

तस्य शैलस्य पृष्ठेषु निर्झरेषु गुहासु च ।
रावणः सह वैदेह्या मार्गितव्यस्ततस्ततः ॥ ६५ ॥

“Rāvaṇa alongwith Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, should be sought for everywhere on the summits, by the side of cascades and in the caves of the aforesaid mountain. (65)

ततः परमगम्या स्याद् दिक्पूर्वा त्रिदशावृता ।
रहिता चन्द्रसूर्याभ्यामदृश्या तमसावृता ॥ ६६ ॥

“Beyond that mountain the eastern quarter is inaccessible, inhabited as it is solely by the deity presiding over it, viz., Indra, is without the moon and the sun and as such remains enveloped in darkness (screened as it is from the sun by the eastern mountain standing between them) and, therefore, invisible. (66)

शैलेषु तेषु सर्वेषु कन्दरेषु नदीषु च ।
ये च नोक्ता मयोद्देशा विचेया तेषु जानकी ॥ ६७ ॥

“Sītā, daughter of Janaka, should be sought for on the peaks of all the above-mentioned mountains, at the banks of all the aforesaid rivers and in all the aforementioned caves as also in all other regions which have not been mentioned by me. (67)

एतावद् वानरैः शक्यं गन्तुं वानरपुङ्गवाः ।
अभास्करममर्यादं न जानीमस्ततः परम् ॥ ६८ ॥

“Only thus far can the monkeys proceed, O jewels among the monkeys ! We have no knowledge of the region beyond the eastern mountain, which is devoid of the sun and the other luminaries and is without limit. (68)

अभिगम्य तु वैदेहीं निलयं रावणस्य च ।
मासे पूर्णे निवर्तध्वमुदयं प्राप्य पर्वतम् ॥ ६९ ॥

“Having reached the eastern mountain and definitely found out Sītā as well as the abode of Rāvaṇa, return before a month is complete. (69)

ऊर्ध्वं मासान् वस्तव्यं वसन् वध्यो भवेन्मम ।
सिद्धार्थाः संनिवर्तध्वमधिगम्य च मैथिलीम् ॥ ७० ॥

“You should not tarry beyond a month; anyone doing will be punishable with death by me. Having found out Sītā (a princess of Mithilā) and thus achieved your end, return forthwith. (70)

महेन्द्रकान्तां वनषण्डमण्डितां
दिशं चरित्वा निपुणेन वानराः ।
अवाप्य सीतां रघुवंशजप्रियां
ततो निवृत्ताः सुखिनो भविष्यथ ॥ ७१ ॥

“Having combed with care the eastern quarter loved by the mighty Indra and graced with a number of forests, O monkeys, and having found Sītā, the beloved of Śrī Rāma (born in the line of Raghu), and having returned from that eastern quarter you will become happy.” (71)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे

चत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४० ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLI

Specifying the different regions of the southern quarter and fixing a limit of one month for their return, Sugrīva dispatches Hanumān, Nīla, Aṅgada and others to that quarter for finding out the whereabouts of Sītā

ततः प्रस्थाप्य सुग्रीवस्तन्महद्वानरं बलम् ।
दक्षिणां प्रेषयामास वानरानभिलक्षितान् ॥ १ ॥

Having sent away that mighty host of monkeys to the east, Sugriva then dispatched well-tryed monkeys to the south.
(1)

नीलमग्निसुतं चैव हनूमन्तं च वानरम् ।
पितामहसुतं चैव जाम्बवन्तं महौजसम् ॥ २ ॥
सुहोत्रं च शरारिं च शरगुल्मं तथैव च ।
गजं गवाक्षं गवयं सुषेणं वृषभं तथा ॥ ३ ॥
मैन्दं च द्विविदं चैव सुषेणं गन्धमादनम् ।
उल्कामुखमनङ्गं च हुताशनसुतावुभौ ॥ ४ ॥
अङ्गदप्रमुखान् वीरान् वीरः कपिगणेश्वरः ।
गविक्रमसम्पन्नान् संदिदेश विशेषवित् ॥ ५ ॥

The gallant and judicious Sugrīva, the lord of monkey bands, detailed heroes headed by Aṅgada, who were endowed with speed and prowess, viz., Nīla, son of the god of fire as also the monkey chief Hanumān as well as the exceptionally powerful Jāmbavān, the ruler of bears, son of Brahmā (the father of the progenitors of the universe), also Suhotra and Śārāri and even so Śaragulma, Gaja and Gavākṣa, Gavaya and Suṣeṇa (not Tārā's father) as well as Vṛṣabha, Mainda and Dwivida as also Suṣeṇa (also different from Tārā's father) and Gandhamādana, also Ulkā mukha and Anaṅga both sons of Hutāśana. (2—5)

तेषामग्रेसरं चैव बृहद्वलमथाङ्गदम् ।
विधाय हरिवीराणामादिशद् दक्षिणां दिशम् ॥ ६ ॥

Nay, appointing Aṅgada, who was possessed of extraordinary strength, as the leader of all the aforesaid monkey heroes, he forthwith assigned to them the southern quarter to be explored by them. (6)

ये केचन समुद्देशास्तस्यां दिशि सुदुर्गमाः ।
कपीशः कपिमुख्यानां स तेषां समुदाहरत् ॥ ७ ॥

The said lord of monkeys specifically mentioned to those monkey chiefs whatever regions were exceedingly difficult of access in that quarter. (7)

सहस्रशिरसं विन्ध्यं नानाद्रुमलतायुतम् ।
नर्मदां च नदीं रम्यां महोरगनिषेविताम् ॥ ८ ॥
ततो गोदावरीं रम्यां कृष्णावेणीं महानदीम् ।
वरदां च महाभागां महोरगनिषेविताम् ।
मेखलानुत्कलांश्चैव दशार्णनगराण्यपि ॥ ९ ॥
आब्रवन्तीमवन्तीं च सर्वमेवानुपश्यत ।
विदर्भानृष्टिकांश्चैव रम्यान् माहिषकानपि ॥ १० ॥
तथा वङ्गान् कलिङ्गांश्च कौशिकांश्च समन्ततः ।
अन्वीक्ष्य दण्डकारण्यं सपर्वतनदीगुहम् ॥ ११ ॥
नदीं गोदावरीं चैव सर्वमेवानुपश्यत ।
तथैवान्ध्रांश्च पुण्ड्रांश्च चोलान् पाण्ड्यांश्च केरलान् ॥ १२ ॥

He said to them : "Explore the Vindhyan range,* consisting of a thousand peaks and covered with trees and creepers of every description, as also the delightful river Narmadā infested with large serpents, then the lovely river Godāvarī and the big river Kṛṣṇaveṇī, as also the highly blessed river Varadā (now known as 'Wardhā'), also infested with huge serpents, as well as the territories of Mekhala and Utkala, also the

* Though situated to the north of the Prasravaṇa hill (in the vicinity of Kiṣkindhā), from where the messengers are being dispatched by Sugrīva, the Vindhyan range has been included in the list of places in the south evidently with reference to Āryāvarta, the region extending from the Arabian Sea to the Bay of Bengal and bounded by the Vindhyan range in the south.

cities of Daśārṇa (a territory to the south-east of Madhyadeśa), the cities of Ābravantī and Avanti (the modern Ujjain in Madhya Pradesh and all. Exploring on all sides the territories of Vidarbha (now forming part of the State of Mahārāṣṭra) and Ṛṣṭika as well as the delightful Māhiṣaka, as also the territories of Vaṅga (the modern Bengal) and Kāliṅga (Utkala) and Kauśika, and scouring the entire forest of Daṇḍaka with its mountains, rivers and caves, ransack the section of the river Godāvarī (washing the Daṇḍaka forest) and even so the territories of Andhra and Puṇḍra, Cola, Pāṇḍya and Kerala. (8—12)

अयोमुखश्च गन्तव्यः पर्वतो धातुमण्डितः ।

विचित्रशिखरः श्रीमांश्चित्रपुष्पितकाननः ॥ १३ ॥

“The glorious Ayomukha (Malaya) mountain too—adorned with minerals of various kinds, nay, consisting of wonderful peaks and clothed with lovely forests in blossom, ought to be visited. (13)

सुचन्दनवनोद्देशो मार्गितव्यो महागिरिः ।

ततस्तामापगां दिव्यां प्रसन्नसलिलाशयाम् ॥ १४ ॥

तत्र द्रक्ष्यथ कावेरीं विहतामप्सरोगणैः ।

तस्यासीनं नगस्याग्रे मलयस्य महौजसम् ॥ १५ ॥

द्रक्ष्यथादित्यसंकाशमगस्त्यमृषिसत्तमम् ।

ततस्तेनाभ्यनुज्ञाताः प्रसन्नेन महात्मना ॥ १६ ॥

ताम्रपर्णीं ग्राहजुष्टां तरिष्यथ महानदीम् ।

सा चन्दनवनैश्चित्रैः प्रच्छन्नद्वीपवारिणी ॥ १७ ॥

कान्तेव युवती कान्तं समुद्रमवगाहते ।

ततो हेममयं दिव्यं मुक्तामणिविभूषितम् ॥ १८ ॥

युक्तं कवाटं पाण्ड्यानां गता द्रक्ष्यथ वानराः ।

ततः समुद्रमासाद्य सम्प्रधार्यार्थनिश्चयम् ॥ १९ ॥

The aforesaid extensive mountain, consisting as it does of parts which are covered with beautiful groves of sandalwood trees, should be combed. Then you will see there that blessed heavenly river, Kaveri, carrying pellucid waters and sported in by beves of celestial nymphs. “Seated in front of the aforesaid Malaya mountain (referred to in verse 13 above by the name of Ayomukha), you will see Sage Agastya,* the foremost of Ṛṣis, endowed with great splendour and shining brightly like the sun. Duly permitted by that kindly disposed exalted soul, you will cross the great river Tāmraparṇī, infested with alligators. With its islands and water covered with lovely sandalwood trees, the river enters the sea even as a beloved youthful woman would meet her darling. Gone from there, O monkeys, you will see the wonderful golden gate of the city of the Pāṇḍyas (identified with modern Madurai), fitted into the fortification wall and studded with pearls and gems. Then, reaching the sea (the Bay of Bengal) and duly arriving at a decision about the matter in hand (viz., your capacity to cross the sea), you will act accordingly. (14—19)

अगस्त्येनान्तरे तत्र सागरे विनिवेशितः ।

चित्रसानुनगः श्रीमान् महेन्द्रः पर्वतोत्तमः ॥ २० ॥

जातरूपमयः श्रीमानवगाढो महार्णवम् ।

नानाविधैर्नगैः फुल्लैर्लताभिश्चोपशोभितम् ॥ २१ ॥

देवर्षियक्षप्रवरैरप्सरोभिश्च शोभितम् ।

सिद्धचारणसङ्घैश्च प्रकीर्णं सुमनोरमम् ॥ २२ ॥

तमुपैति सहस्राक्षः सदा पर्वसु पर्वसु ।

द्वीपस्तस्यापरे पारे शतयोजनविस्तृतः ॥ २३ ॥

अगम्यो मानुषैर्दीप्तस्तं मार्गध्वं समन्ततः ।

तत्र सर्वात्मना सीता मार्गितव्या विशेषतः ॥ २४ ॥

“Between the moat of the city and the sea was set up by Agastya the glorious and splendid Mahendra mountain, the foremost of the mountains, made of gold and crowned

* A reference has already been made to a hermitage of Sage Agastya located in the north of Pancavaṭī. Even as Sage Vālmiki is believed to have had a number of hermitages at different places, it can be easily understood that besides the one located north of Pancavaṭī, he had another hermitage at the spot mentioned. Others are of opinion that the sage Agastya referred to here is different from the well-known Sage Agastya of Puranic fame.

with lovely peaks and trees, which has entered deep into the ocean on one side. Indra, the thousand-eyed god, ever visits on every fifteenth day of a dark fortnight the aforesaid mountain, highly pleasing to the mind, which is adorned with trees in blossom of every description as well as with creepers, graced by the foremost of gods, Ṛṣis and Yakṣas (a species of demigods) and celestial nymphs and thronged with hosts of Siddhas (a class of demigods endowed with mystic powers from their very birth) and Cāraṇas (celestial bards). On the other side of the ocean there is a resplendent island extending to a distance of one hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles), which is inaccessible to human beings. Scour it on all sides. There Sītā should be specially sought for with all one's mind. (20—24)

स हि देशस्तु वध्यस्य रावणस्य दुरात्मनः ।

राक्षसाधिपतेर्वासः सहस्राक्षसमद्युते ॥ २५ ॥

“The aforesaid land is without doubt the abode of the evil minded Rāvaṇa, the overlord of all ogres, whose brilliance compares with that of Indra (the thousand-eyed god) and who deserves in every way to be got rid of. (25)

दक्षिणस्य समुद्रस्य मध्ये तस्य तु राक्षसी ।

अङ्गारकेति विख्याता छायामाक्षिप्य भोजिनी ॥ २६ ॥

“In the middle of that southern ocean (now known as the Indian Ocean) there actually lives an ogress widely known by the name of Angārakā—who procures her prey by seizing the shadow of those flying in the air. (26)

एवं निःसंशयान् कृत्वा संशयान्घटसंशयाः ।

मृगयध्वं नरेन्द्रस्य पत्नीममिततेजसः ॥ २७ ॥

“Having removed through a careful search all doubts about the places of which you are doubtful, and thus rid of all doubts about the existence of Sītā, search for the consort of Śrī Rāma, a ruler of men, of limitless energy, elsewhere if she is not to be found there. (27)

तमतिक्रम्य लक्ष्मीवान् समुद्रे शतयोजने ।

गिरिः पुष्पितको नाम सिद्धचारणसेवितः ॥ २८ ॥

चन्द्रसूर्याशुसंकाशः सागराम्बुसमाश्रयः ।

भ्राजते विपुलैः शृङ्गैरम्बरं विलिखन्निव ॥ २९ ॥

“In the ocean extending to a distance of one hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles) beyond the aforesaid island of Laṅkā (in the Indian Ocean) shines a glorious hill, Puṣpitaka by name, inhabited by Siddhas and Cāraṇas, nay, bright as the rays of the sun and the moon, partly submerged in the ocean on the northern side and scratching the vault of the heavens with its peaks as it were. (28-29)

तस्यैकं काञ्चनं शृङ्गं सेवते यं दिवाकरः ।

श्वेतं राजतमेकं च सेवते यन्निशाकरः ।

न तं कृतघ्नाः पश्यन्ति न नृशंसा न नास्तिकाः ॥ ३० ॥

“It has a golden peak, on which the sun lingers, and another white, made of silver, on which the moon rests. Neither the ungrateful nor the hardhearted, nor, again, the unbelieving can behold it. (30)

प्रणम्य शिरसा शैलं तं विमार्गथ वानराः ।

तमतिक्रम्य दुर्धर्षं सूर्यवान्नाम पर्वतः ॥ ३१ ॥

अध्वना दुर्विगाहेन योजनानि चतुर्दश ।

ततस्तमप्यतिक्रम्य वैद्युतो नाम पर्वतः ॥ ३२ ॥

सर्वकामफलैर्वृक्षैः सर्वकालमनोहरैः ।

तत्र भुक्त्वा वरार्हाणि मूलानि च फलानि च ॥ ३३ ॥

मधूनि पीत्वा जुष्टानि परं गच्छत वानराः ।

तत्र नेत्रमनःकान्तः कुञ्जरो नाम पर्वतः ॥ ३४ ॥

अगस्त्यभवनं यत्र निर्मितं विश्वकर्मणा ।

तत्र योजनविस्तारमुच्छ्रितं दशयोजनम् ॥ ३५ ॥

शरणं काञ्चनं दिव्यं नानारत्नविभूषितम् ।

तत्र भोगवती नाम सर्पाणामालयः पुरी ॥ ३६ ॥

विशालरथ्या दुर्धर्षा सर्वतः परिरक्षिता ।

रक्षिता पन्नगैर्घोरैस्तीक्ष्णदंष्ट्रैर्महाविषैः ॥ ३७ ॥

“Respectfully saluting that mountain with your head bent low, diligently carry on your search there, O monkeys ! Beyond that peak, which cannot be easily assailed, stands a mountain, Sūryavān by name, at a distance of fourteen Yojanas or one hundred and twelve miles from Puṣpitaka and accessible through a path which is difficult to tread. Then passing beyond it can be reached another mountain, Vaidyuta by name, covered with trees bearing fruits which yield all one's desires, and ever pleasing to the mind. Partaking of roots and fruits which are worthy of the best, and drinking honeys which are worth eating, proceed further, O monkeys ! In that very region rises another mountain, Kunjara by name, delightful to the eyes and the mind and on which there stands a dwelling of Sage Agastya, constructed by Viśwakarmā, the architect of gods. The heavenly edifice standing there extends to a distance of one Yojana or eight miles, is ten Yojanas high and is made of gold and adorned with jewels of various kinds. On that very mountain stands the city of Bhogavatī, a replica of the city of the same name in Rasātala, the sixth subterranean region, the home of serpents, with spacious streets, which is difficult to assail and is strongly fortified on all sides and guarded by highly poisonous and terrible snakes with sharp fangs. (31—37)

सर्पराजो महाघोरो यस्यां वसति वासुकिः ।
निर्याय मार्गितव्या च सा च भोगवती पुरी ॥ ३८ ॥

“The most dreadful king of serpents, Vāsuki, lives in this city in another form. Particularly making your way into it the said city of Bhogavatī too should be explored. (38)

तत्र चानन्तरोद्देशा ये केचन समावृताः ।
तं च देशमतिक्रम्य महानृषभसंस्थितिः ॥ ३९ ॥
सर्वरत्नमयः श्रीमानृषभो नाम पर्वतः ।
गोशीर्षकं पद्मकं च हरिश्चामं च चन्दनम् ॥ ४० ॥
दिव्यमुत्पद्यते यत्र तच्चैवाग्निसमप्रभम् ।
न तु तच्चन्दनं दृष्ट्वा स्पष्टव्यं तु कदाचन ॥ ४१ ॥

“Whatever other places adjoining the city and hidden from view exist in that region should also be scoured. Nay, beyond the aforesaid region there rises a glorious and huge mountain, Ṛṣabha by name, which has the shape of a bull and is full of all kinds of jewels, and where Gośirṣaka (having the colour of Gorocana), Padmaka (resembling a lotus in hue), Hariśyāma (possessing the hue of a Tamāla tree) and also Agnisamaprabha (possessing a brilliance equal to that of fire) species of celestial sandalwood trees grow. Seeing those species of sandalwood, however, you should never touch them on any account. (39—41)

रोहिता नाम गन्धर्वा घोरां रक्षन्ति तद्वनम् ।
तत्र गन्धर्वपतयः पञ्च सूर्यसमप्रभाः ॥ ४२ ॥
शैलूषो ग्रामणीः शिक्षः शुको बभ्रुस्तथैव च ।
रविसोमाग्निवपुषां निवासः पुण्यकर्मणाम् ॥ ४३ ॥
अन्ते पृथिव्या दुर्धर्षास्ततः स्वर्गजितः स्थिताः ।
ततः परं न वः सेव्यः पितृलोकः सुदारुणः ॥ ४४ ॥

“A class of Gandharvas (celestial musicians), Rohitas by name, guard that dreaded forest. Among them there are five Gandharva chiefs, whose brilliance equals that of the sun, viz., Śailūṣa, Grāmaṇī, Śikṣa, Śuka and even so Babhru. At the end of the earth beyond the Ṛṣabha mountain there is the abode of those who have performed meritorious deeds and are possessed of bodies shining like the sun, the moon and fire. Only those who have earned the heavenly regions and are difficult to overcome live there. The most fearful realm of the manes lying beyond that ought not to be visited by you. (42—44)

राजधानी यमस्यैषा कष्टेन तमसाऽऽवृता ।
एतावदेव युष्माभिर्वीरा वानरपुंगवाः ।
शक्यं विचेतुं गन्तुं वा नातो गतिमतां गतिः ॥ ४५ ॥

“This capital of Yama (the god of retribution) is enveloped in a gloom which causes discomfort. Only thus far, O jewels among heroic monkeys, will it be possible for you to carry on your search or advance. Beyond that there is no access for earthly beings (lit., those possessed of motion). (45)

सर्वमेतत् समालोक्य यच्चान्यदपि दृश्यते ।
गतिं विदित्वा वैदेह्याः संनिवर्तितुमर्हथ ॥ ४६ ॥ “Ransacking all this area and whatever else can be seen, and finding out the whereabouts of Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), you ought duly to retrace your steps. (46)

यश्च मासान्निवृत्तोऽग्रे दृष्टा सीतेति वक्ष्यति ।
मत्तुल्यविभवो भोगैः सुखं स विहरिष्यति ॥ ४७ ॥
“He who having returned before a month will say that Sītā has been discovered will pass his time happily in luxuries, enjoying a prosperity equal to mine. (47)
ततः प्रियतरो नास्ति मम प्राणाद् विशेषतः ।
कृतापराधो बहुशो मम बन्धुर्भविष्यति ॥ ४८ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे एकचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-one in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्विचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLII

Fixing a time-limit of one month, Sugrīva dispatches Suṣeṇa and others to conduct a search for Sītā in the western quarter

अथ प्रस्थाप्य स हरीन् सुग्रीवो दक्षिणां दिशम् ।
अब्रवीन्मेघसंकाशं सुषेणं नाम वानरम् ॥ १ ॥
तारायाः पितरं राजा श्वशुरं भीमविक्रमम् ।
अब्रवीत् प्राञ्जलिर्वाक्यमभिगम्य प्रणम्य च ॥ २ ॥
Having sent away monkeys to the southern quarter, and approaching and respectfully bowing down to a monkey, Suṣeṇa by name, Tārā's father, who looked like a cloud and was possessed of terrific prowess, King Sugrīva spoke to his father-in-law with folded hands as follows : (1-2)
महर्षिपुत्रं मारीचमर्घिष्मन्तं महाकपिम् ।
वृत्तं कपिवरैः शूरैर्महेन्द्रसदृशद्युतिम् ॥ ३ ॥
बुद्धिविक्रमसम्पन्नं वैनतेयसमद्युतिम् ।
मरीचिपुत्रान् मारीचानर्घिर्माल्यान् महाबलान् ॥ ४ ॥
ऋषिपुत्रांश्च तान् सर्वान् प्रतीचीमादिशद् दिशम् ।
द्वाभ्यां शतसहस्राभ्यां कपीनां कपिसत्तमाः ॥ ५ ॥

“None will be dearer to me than he; nay, he will be dearer to me than life. Even though he may have perpetrated many an offence, he will be my friend. (48)

अमितबलपराक्रमा भवन्तो
विपुलगुणेषु कुलेषु च प्रसूताः ।
मनुजपतिसुतां यथा लभध्वं
तदधिगुणं पुरुषार्थमारभध्वम् ॥ ४९ ॥ “Endowed as you are with immeasurable strength and prowess and born in families adorned with ample virtues, initiate your valuable effort in that direction in such a way that you may find out Sītā (daughter of a ruler of men).” (49)

सुषेणप्रमुखा यूयं वैदेहीं परिमार्गथ ।
सौराष्ट्रान् सहबाह्लीकांश्चन्द्रचित्रांस्तथैव च ॥ ६ ॥
स्फीताञ्जनपदान् रम्यान् विपुलानि पुराणि च ।
पुंनागगहनं कुक्षिं बकुलोद्दालकाकुलम् ॥ ७ ॥
तथा केतकषण्डांश्च मार्गध्वं हरिपुङ्गवाः ।
प्रत्यक्स्रोतोवहाश्चैव नद्यः शीतजलाः शिवाः ॥ ८ ॥
तापसानामरण्यानि कान्तारगिरयश्च ये ।
तत्र स्थलीर्मरुप्राया अत्युच्चशिशिराः शिलाः ॥ ९ ॥

He also spoke to the great monkey
Arciṣmān, son of an eminent sage Marīci by name and, therefore, nicknamed Mārīca (son of Marīci)—who was surrounded by gallant monkey chiefs, was possessed of an effulgence resembling that of the mighty Indra, was richly endowed with intelligence and prowess and was clothed with a splendour which equalled that of Garuḍa

(son of Vinatā)—as well as to the class of monkeys known as Arcirmālyas, also sons of Marici and nicknamed Māricas, who were possessed of extraordinary might, and to the sons of other sages, and assigned the western quarter to them all. He said : “Followed by a couple of lakhs of monkeys, O jewels among monkeys, and with Suṣeṇa as your leader, search you carefully for Sitā (a princess of the Videha territory). Explore, O bulls among the monkeys, the territory of Saurāṣṭra and even so Candracitra (comprising the modern district of Mathura), Bāhlika (the modern Balkh), as also the prosperous and lovely rural districts and big towns, the principality of Kuksī (comprised in Madhya Pradesh), thick with Punnāga trees and thronged with Bakula and Uddālaka trees, as well as the thickets of Ketaka shrubs. Scour the auspicious streams flowing in a westerly direction and carrying cool waters, the groves of ascetics and whatever mountains covered with forests exist there as also uncultivated lands, consisting mostly of deserts, and very high and cold cliffs.

(3—9)

गिरिजालावृतां दुर्गां मार्गित्वा पश्चिमां दिशम् ।
ततः पश्चिममागम्य समुद्रं द्रष्टुमर्हथ ॥ १० ॥
तिमिनक्राकुलजलं गत्वा द्रक्ष्यथ वानराः ।
ततः केतकषण्डेषु तमालगहनेषु च ॥ ११ ॥
कपयो विहरिष्यन्ति नारिकेलवनेषु च ।
तत्र सीतां च मार्गध्वं निलयं रावणस्य च ॥ १२ ॥
वेलातलनिविष्टेषु पर्वतेषु वनेषु च ।
मुखीपत्तनं चैव रम्यं चैव जटापुरम् ॥ १३ ॥
अवन्तीमङ्गलेपां च तथा चालक्षितं वनम् ।
राष्ट्राणि च विशालानि पत्तनानि ततस्ततः ॥ १४ ॥

“Having scoured the western quarter, covered with a network of mountains, which is difficult of access and going further west, you ought to visit the sea, now known as the Arabian Sea, whose water is stirred by Timis (fishes of enormous size) and crocodiles. Reaching there you will surely behold the sea, O monkeys ! On seeing the sea the monkeys will disport themselves in clusters of Ketaka shrubs and thickets of Tamāla trees as well as in groves of coconut trees. Search for Sitā as well as for the abode of Rāvaṇa in all these as well as on the hills and in forests located on the seashore. Also explore the town of Muravī (Morvi) as well as the lovely town of Jaṭāpura, the cities of Avantī and Aṅgalepā, the forest of Alakṣita as also the extensive kingdoms and towns here and there.

(10—14)

सिन्धुसागरयोश्चैव संगमे तत्र पर्वतः ।
महान् सोमगिरिर्नाम शतशृङ्गो महाद्रुमः ॥ १५ ॥

“Nay, at the well-known meeting-place of the river Sindhu (Indus) and the sea there is a large mountain, Somagiri by name, consisting of a hundred peaks and covered with giant trees.

(15)

तत्र प्रस्थेषु रम्येषु सिंहाः पक्षगमाः स्थिताः ।
तिमिमत्स्यगजांश्चैव नीडान्यारोपयन्ति ते ॥ १६ ॥

“On the lovely plateaus of that mountain dwell winged lions. They carry Timis, alligators and elephants to their nests.

(16)

तानि नीडानि सिंहानां गिरिशृङ्गगताश्च ये ।
दूतास्तुषाश्च मातङ्गास्तोयदस्वननिःस्वनाः ॥ १७ ॥
विचरन्ति विशालेऽस्मिस्तोयपूर्णे समन्ततः ।
तस्य शृङ्गं दिवस्पर्शं काञ्चनं चित्रपादपम् ॥ १८ ॥

“Full of pride on the honour of being carried on the back of these winged lions and gratified with the nourishment they get there, the elephants, who thus reach the mountain-peaks, range about the aforesaid nests on this extensive plateau, full of water on every side, emitting a cry resembling the rumbling of clouds. The said golden peak of Somagiri touches the heavens and is covered with lovely trees.

(17-18)

सर्वमाशु विचेतव्यं कपिभिः कामरूपिभिः ।
कोटिं तत्र समुद्रस्य काञ्चनीं शतयोजनाम् ॥ १९ ॥
दुर्दर्शा पारियात्रस्य गत्वा द्रक्ष्यथ वानराः ।
कोट्यस्तत्र चतुर्विंशद् गन्धर्वाणां तरस्विनाम् ॥ २० ॥

वसन्त्यग्रिनिकाशानां घोराणां कामरूपिणाम् ।
पावकार्चिःप्रतीकाशाः समवेताः समन्ततः ॥ २१ ॥
नात्यासादयितव्यास्ते वानरैर्भीमविक्रमैः ।
नादेयं च फलं तस्माद् देशात् किञ्चित् प्लवङ्गमैः ॥ २२ ॥

“The whole of this mountain should be explored by the monkeys, who are capable of changing form at will. Arriving at that sea, O monkeys, you will behold the golden summit, a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles) long and difficult to be seen by others, of the Pāriyātra mountain. On that summit dwell twenty-four crores of terrible Gandharvas (celestial musicians) full of speed, shining brightly as fire and capable of changing form at will. Effulgent as flames of fire and come together from all sides, they should not be given offence to by the monkeys even though they are possessed of terrific prowess nor should any fruit be plucked from that region by the monkeys. (19—22)

दुरासदा हि ते वीराः सत्त्ववन्तो महाबलाः ।
फलमूलानि ते तत्र रक्षन्ते भीमविक्रमाः ॥ २३ ॥

“For, the aforesaid heroes are dangerous to approach, are full of courage, possessed of extraordinary might and endowed with terrific prowess. They guard the fruits and roots growing there. (23)

तत्र यत्नश्च कर्तव्यो मार्गितव्या च जानकी ।
नहि तेभ्यो भयं किञ्चित् कपित्वमनुवर्तताम् ॥ २४ ॥

“Sītā, daughter of King Janaka, should be diligently sought for and an effort made to find out her whereabouts. Of course, there is no fear of any kind from them to you so long as you maintain your simian character. (24)

तत्र वैदूर्यवर्णाभो वज्रसंस्थानसंस्थितः ।
नानाद्रुमलताकीर्णो वज्रो नाम महागिरिः ॥ २५ ॥
श्रीमान् समुदितस्तत्र योजनानां शतं समम् ।
गुहास्तत्र विचेतव्याः प्रयत्नेन प्लवङ्गमाः ॥ २६ ॥

“In the vicinity of the Pāriyātra mountain in that ocean there is a large and glorious mountain, Vajra by name, which is possessed of splendour resembling that of a cat's-eye gem and solid as the composition of a diamond, nay, which is covered with trees and creepers of every description and is a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles) high all round. The caves of that mountain should be explored with effort, O monkeys ! (25-26)

चतुर्भागे समुद्रस्य चक्रवान् नाम पर्वतः ।
तत्र चक्रं सहस्रारं निर्मितं विश्वकर्मणा ॥ २७ ॥

“Covering a quarter of the Arabian sea rises a mountain Cakravān by name. There a discus with a thousand spokes was forged by Viśwakarmā, the architect of gods. (27)

तत्र पञ्चजनं हत्वा हयग्रीवं च दानवम् ।
आजहार ततश्चक्रं शङ्खं च पुरुषोत्तमः ॥ २८ ॥

“Having slain Pañcajana, who had a conch for his body, as well as the demon Hayagrīva (so-called because he had the head of a horse on a human trunk), Lord Viṣṇu, the Supreme Person, took away the discus from the latter and the conch from the dead body of Pañcajana. (28)

तस्य सानुषु रम्येषु विशालासु गुहासु च ।
रावणः सह वैदेह्या मार्गितव्यस्ततस्ततः ॥ २९ ॥

“Rāvaṇa alongwith Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, should be sought for everywhere, on the lovely peaks and the extensive caves of the aforesaid mountain. (29)

योजनानि चतुःषष्टिर्वराहो नाम पर्वतः ।
सुवर्णशृङ्गः सुमहानगाधे वरुणालये ॥ ३० ॥

“In the fathomless sea there is a huge mountain, Varāha by name, which is sixty-four Yojanas (or five hundred and twelve miles) long and has golden peaks. (30)

तत्र प्राग्ज्योतिषं नाम जातरूपमयं पुरम् ।
यस्मिन् वसति दुष्टात्मा नरको नाम दानवः ॥ ३१ ॥

“On that mountain is located the golden city, Prāggyotiṣapura by name; in it dwells the vile-minded demon named Naraka. (31)

तत्र सानुषु रम्येषु विशालासु गुहासु च ।
रावणः सह वैदेह्या मार्गितव्यस्ततस्ततः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Rāvaṇa with Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, should be sought for everywhere, on the lovely peaks as well as in the extensive caves of that mountain. (32)

तमतिक्रम्य शैलेन्द्रं काञ्चनान्तरदर्शनम् ।
पर्वतः सर्वसौवर्णो धाराप्रस्त्रवणायुतः ॥ ३३ ॥

“Beyond the aforesaid Varāha, a ruler of mountains, in the depths of which gold can be perceived, rises a mountain, which is entirely of gold and contains as many as ten thousand cascades. (33)

तं गजाश्च वराहाश्च सिंहा व्याघ्राश्च सर्वतः ।
अभिगर्जन्ति सततं तेन शब्देन दर्पिताः ॥ ३४ ॥

“Reaching the aforesaid mountain, elephants and boars as well as lions and tigers incessantly emit a deep cry in all directions, made defiant by their own cry, coming back, as it were, in the form of an echo. (34)

यस्मिन् हरिहयः श्रीमान् महेन्द्रः पाकशासनः ।
अभिषिक्तः सुरै राजा मेघो नाम स पर्वतः ॥ ३५ ॥

“The said mountain, on which the glorious and mighty Indra (the ruler of gods), the tamer of the demon Pāka, who is distinguished by his green horse, was crowned king by the gods, is called by the name of Megha. (35)

तमतिक्रम्य शैलेन्द्रं महेन्द्रपरिपालितम् ।
षष्टिं गिरिसहस्राणि काञ्चनानि गमिष्यथ ॥ ३६ ॥
तरुणादित्यवर्णानि भ्राजमानानि सर्वतः ।
जातरूपमयैर्वृक्षैः शोभितानि सुपुष्पितैः ॥ ३७ ॥

“Passing beyond that king of mountains, protected on all sides by the mighty Indra, you will reach a range of sixty thousand golden hills, possessing the hue of the rising sun and embellished with golden trees in full blossom and as such shedding their light on all sides. (36-37)

तेषां मध्ये स्थितो राजा मेरुरुत्तमपर्वतः ।
आदित्येन प्रसन्नेन शैलो दत्तवरः पुरा ॥ ३८ ॥

“In their middle stands Mount Meru (Sāvārṇi), the foremost mountain, a veritable king among mountains, who was granted a boon in former days by the sun-god when the latter got pleased with the former. (38)

तेनैवमुक्तः शैलेन्द्रः सर्व एव त्वदाश्रयाः ।
मत्प्रसादाद् भविष्यन्ति दिवा रात्रौ च काञ्चनाः ॥ ३९ ॥

“The king of mountains was spoken to as follows by the sun-god: ‘By my grace all those who seek your protection by day and by night will come to be of gold. (39)

त्वयि ये चापि वत्स्यन्ति देवगन्धर्वदानवाः ।
ते भविष्यन्ति भक्ताश्च प्रभया काञ्चनप्रभाः ॥ ४० ॥

“‘Nay, gods, Gandharvas (celestial musicians) and demons, whosoever will dwell on you shall become my devotee and will shine like gold in point of brilliance.’ (40)

विश्वेदेवाश्च वसवो मरुतश्च दिवौकसः ।
आगत्य पश्चिमां संध्यां मेरुमुत्तमपर्वतम् ॥ ४१ ॥
आदित्यमुपतिष्ठन्ति तैश्च सूर्योऽभिपूजितः ।
अदृश्यः सर्वभूतानामस्तं गच्छति पर्वतम् ॥ ४२ ॥

“Seeking Meru, the foremost mountain, at the time of the evening twilight as seen in the west, the gods Viśwedevas, Vasus and Maruts (the wind-gods) wait upon the sun-god and, duly worshipped by them, the sun-god seeks the western mountain behind which the sun is supposed to disappear and becomes invisible to all living beings. (41-42)

योजनानां सहस्राणि दश तानि दिवाकरः ।
मुहूर्तार्धेन तं शीघ्रमभियाति शिलोच्चयम् ॥ ४३ ॥

“In less than half an hour the sun rapidly reaches the said western mountain lying at a distance of ten thousand Yojanas (or eighty thousand miles). (43)

शृङ्गे तस्य महद्विव्यं भवनं सूर्यसंनिभम्।
 प्रासादगणसम्बाधं विहितं विश्वकर्मणा ॥ ४४ ॥
 शोभितं तरुभिश्चित्रैर्नानापक्षिसमाकुलैः।
 निकेतं पाशहस्तस्य वरुणस्य महात्मनः ॥ ४५ ॥

“On the summit of that mountain (Merusāvarṇi) there is a huge ethereal edifice, glorious as the sun and constructed by Viśwakarmā, the architect of gods, which is thick with a multitude of palaces, is graced by various trees thronged with birds of various species and is the abode of the high-souled Varuṇa (the god of water), who bears a noose in his hand. (44-45)

अन्तरा मेरुमस्तं च तालो दशशिरा महान्।
 जातरूपमयः श्रीमान् भ्राजते चित्रवेदिकः ॥ ४६ ॥

“Between Mount Merusāvarṇi and the western mountain shines a giant glorious palmyra tree of gold, consisting of ten principal boughs and supported by a wonderful base. (46)

तेषु सर्वेषु दुर्गेषु सरस्सु च सरित्सु च।
 रावणः सह वैदेह्या मार्गितव्यस्ततस्ततः ॥ ४७ ॥

“Rāvaṇa, alongwith Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, should be sought for everywhere in all the well-known lakes, which are difficult of access, and rivers in this region. (47)

यत्र तिष्ठति धर्मज्ञस्तपसा स्वेन भावितः।
 मेरुसावर्णिरित्येष ख्यातो वै ब्रह्मणा समः ॥ ४८ ॥
 प्रष्टव्यो मेरुसावर्णिर्महर्षिः सूर्यसंनिभः।
 प्रणम्य शिरसा भूमौ प्रवृत्तिं मैथिलीं प्रति ॥ ४९ ॥

“On the said mountain (Merusāvarṇi) dwells the eminent sage known by the name of Merusāvarṇi, who knows what is right, is illumined by his own asceticism and vies with Brahmā, the creator. Respectfully bowing down to him with your head placed on the ground, the said Merusāvarṇi, who shines brightly as the sun, should be approached with an inquiry concerning the news of Sītā (a princess of Mithilā). (48-49)

एतावज्जीवलोकस्य भास्करो रजनीक्षये।
 कृत्वा वितिमिरं सर्वमस्तं गच्छति पर्वतम् ॥ ५० ॥

“Ridding this whole extent of the mortal world from the eastern to the western mountain of darkness at the close of night, the sun retires to the western mountain. (50)

एतावद् वानरैः शक्यं गन्तुं वानरपुङ्गवाः।
 अभास्करो मर्यादं न जानीमस्ततः परम् ॥ ५१ ॥

“Only thus far is it possible for monkeys to proceed, O bulls among the monkeys ! We have no knowledge of the region lying beyond the aforesaid extent, which is devoid of the sun and without limits. (51)

अवगम्य तु वैदेहीं निलयं रावणस्य च।
 अस्तं पर्वतमासाद्य पूर्णे मासे निवर्तत ॥ ५२ ॥

“Reaching the western mountain and finding out Sītā as well as the abode of Rāvaṇa retrace your steps as soon as a month is complete. (52)

ऊर्ध्वं मासान् वस्तव्यं वसन् वध्यो भवेन्मम।
 सहैव शूरो युष्माभिः श्वशुरो मे गमिष्यति ॥ ५३ ॥

“You should not tarry beyond a month; anyone so tarrying will be liable to be killed by me. My valiant father-in-law too will go with you. (53)

श्रोतव्यं सर्वमेतस्य भवद्भिर्दिष्टकारिभिः।
 गुरुरेष महाबाहुः श्वशुरो मे महाबलः ॥ ५४ ॥

“All his words should be listened to by you, obeying his commands. This mighty-armed father-in-law of mine is possessed of extraordinary might and is worthy of my adoration and, therefore, worthy of respect for you too. (54)

भवन्तश्चापि विक्रान्ताः प्रमाणं सर्व एव हि।
 प्रमाणमेनं संस्थाप्य पश्यध्वं पश्चिमां दिशम् ॥ ५५ ॥

“You too are powerful and indeed you have the initiative, all and sundry. Yet explore the western quarter establishing him as the sole authority in all matters. (55)

दृष्टायां तु नरेन्द्रस्य पत्न्याममिततेजसः ।
कृतकृत्या भविष्यामः कृतस्य प्रतिकर्मणा ॥ ५६ ॥

We shall have accomplished our purpose through requital of the service rendered (to us by Śrī Rāma) only when the consort of Śrī Rāma (a ruler of men), who is endowed with immeasurable energy, has been seen. (56)

अतोऽन्यदपि यत्कार्यं कार्यस्यास्य प्रियं भवेत् ।
सम्प्रधार्य भवद्भिश्च देशकालार्थसंहितम् ॥ ५७ ॥

Duly ascertaining whatever work other than the business in hand (viz., the discovery of Sītā) is contributory to this should be accomplished by you conformably with the place, time and purpose.” (57)

ततः सुषेणप्रमुखाः प्लवङ्गाः
सुग्रीववाक्यं निपुणं निशम्य ।
आमन्त्र्य सर्वे प्लवगाधिपं ते
जग्मुर्दिशं तां वरुणाभिगुप्ताम् ॥ ५८ ॥

Having carefully listened to the command of Sugrīva and taking leave of the suzerain lord of monkeys, all the aforesaid monkeys headed by Suṣeṇa then proceeded to the wellknown western quarter guarded by Varuṇa, the god of waters. (58)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे द्विचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-two in the Kīṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLIII

Sugrīva dispatches a contingent of monkeys under the leadership of Śatabali in order to seek for Sītā in the northern quarter

ततः संदिश्य सुग्रीवः श्वशुरं पश्चिमां दिशम् ।
वीरं शतबलिं नाम वानरं वानरेश्वरः ॥ १ ॥
उवाच राजा सर्वज्ञः सर्ववानरसत्तमः ।
वाक्यमात्महितं चैव रामस्य च हितं तदा ॥ २ ॥

Having duly directed his father-in-law, Suṣeṇa, to the western quarter, King Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys and the foremost of all monkeys, who knew everything connected with his work, then delivered to the valiant monkey, Śatabali by name, the following message, which was conducive to his own good as well as to the good of Śrī Rāma at that time : (1-2)

वृतः शतसहस्रेण त्वद्विधानां वनौकसाम् ।
वैवस्वतसुतैः सार्धं प्रविष्टः सर्वमन्त्रिभिः ॥ ३ ॥
दिशं ह्युदीचीं विक्रान्त हिमशैलावतंसिकाम् ।
सर्वतः परिमार्गध्वं रामपत्नीं यशस्विनीम् ॥ ४ ॥

“Indeed, having penetrated into the northern quarter, adorned by the Himālaya mountain, with all your counsellors, sons of God Yama (son of the sun-god), and accompanied by a lakh of monkeys like you, search all round for the illustrious Sītā, the spouse of Śrī Rāma, O powerful monkey ! (3-4)

अस्मिन् कार्ये विनिर्वृत्ते कृते दाशरथेः प्रिये ।
ऋणान्मुक्ता भविष्यामः कृतार्थार्थविदां वराः ॥ ५ ॥

“When this task of conducting a search for Sītā has been fully accomplished and what is pleasing to Śrī Rāma (son of Emperor Daśaratha) done, we shall have been released from a debt and shall have accomplished our purpose, O jewel among those knowing their purpose ! (5)

कृतं हि प्रियमस्माकं राघवेण महात्मना ।
तस्य चेत्प्रतिकारोऽस्ति सफलं जीवितं भवेत् ॥ ६ ॥

“Indeed a kindly act was done to us by the high-souled Śrī Rāma. Our life will have borne fruit if that service is requited by us.
(6)

अर्थिनः कार्यनिर्वृत्तिमकर्तुरपि यश्चरेत् ।
तस्य स्यात् सफलं जन्म किं पुनः पूर्वकारिणः ॥ ७ ॥

“The birth of that individual is fruitful, who accomplishes the work of a suppliant even though the latter has done nothing for that individual before; how much more fruitful is the birth of the individual who accomplishes the work of one who has rendered good offices to him in the past? (7)

एतां बुद्धिं समास्थाय दृश्यते जानकी यथा ।
तथा भवद्भिः कर्तव्यमस्मत्प्रियहितैषिभिः ॥ ८ ॥

“Arriving at this conclusion, an endeavour should be made by you, who seek to do a kindly act to us and wish well of us, so as to ensure that Sītā (daughter of King Janaka) is found out. (8)

अयं हि सर्वभूतानां मान्यस्तु नरसत्तमः ।
अस्मासु च गतः प्रीतिं रामः परपुंजयः ॥ ९ ॥

“Indeed Śrī Rāma standing before you, the conqueror of enemies’ cities, is worthy of respect to all created beings, is the foremost of men and has cultivated friendship with us. (9)

इमानि बहुदुर्गाणि नद्यः शैलान्तराणि च ।
भवन्तः परिमार्गन्तु बुद्धिविक्रमसम्पदा ॥ १० ॥

“With the wealth of your acumen and prowess explore you the following many places difficult of access, streams and defiles. (10)

तत्र म्लेच्छान् पुलिन्दांश्च शूरसेनांस्तथैव च ।
प्रस्थलान् भरतांश्चैव कुरुंश्च सह मद्रकैः ॥ ११ ॥
काम्बोजयवनांश्चैव शकानां पत्तनानि च ।
अन्वीक्ष्य दरदांश्चैव हिमवन्तं विचिन्वथ ॥ १२ ॥

“Scouring the lands of the Mlecchas
(beef-eaters) and Pulindas and, even so, that of the Śūrasenas (the area round about Mathurā), nay, those of the Prasthalas and Bharatas, as also the lands of the Kurus

(about the site of the modern Delhi) and the Madra, the Kāmbojas and Yavanas, also the towns of Śakas and the lands of the Daradas (living beyond Peshawar) there explore the Himalayan range. (11-12)

लोध्रपद्मकषण्डेषु देवदारुवनेषु च ।
रावणः सह वैदेह्या मार्गितव्यस्ततस्ततः ॥ १३ ॥

“Rāvaṇa alongwith Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) should be sought for everywhere in the thickets of Lodhra and Padmaka trees (a species of sandalwood) as well as in the groves of deodar in the Himālayan region. (13)

ततः सोमाश्रमं गत्वा देवगन्धर्वसेवितम् ।
कालं नाम महासानुं पर्वतं तं गमिष्यथ ॥ १४ ॥

“Visiting the hermitage of the sage Soma, which is inhabited by gods and the Gandharvas (celestial musicians), you will then reach the celebrated Kāla mountain, which is crowned with a high peak. (14)

महत्सु तस्य शैलेषु पर्वतेषु गुहासु च ।
विचिन्वत महाभागां रामपत्नीमनिन्दिताम् ॥ १५ ॥

“Search for the highly blessed Sītā (the spouse of Śrī Rāma), who is beyond reproach, on the extensive offshoots, both small and big, as well as in the caves of the aforesaid mountain. (15)

तमतिक्रम्य शैलेन्द्रं हेमगर्भं महागिरिम् ।
ततः सुदर्शनं नाम पर्वतं गन्तुमर्हथ ॥ १६ ॥

“Passing beyond the huge Kāla mountain (a ruler of mountains), containing gold mines, you should then seek the mountain named Sudarśana. (16)

ततो देवसखो नाम पर्वतः पतगालयः ।
नानापक्षिसमाकीर्णो विविधद्रुमभूषितः ॥ १७ ॥

“Beyond that rises a mountain,
Devasakha by name, the refuge of birds,
which is thickly crowded with every variety of winged creatures and is graced by trees of every species. (17)

तस्य काननषण्डेषु निङ्गरेषु गुहासु च।

रावणः सह वैदेह्या मार्गितव्यस्ततस्ततः ॥ १८ ॥

“Rāvaṇa alongwith Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) should be sought for everywhere in the thickets of the woods, near the cascades as well as in the caves of that mountain. (18)

तमतिक्रम्य चाकाशं सर्वतः शतयोजनम्।

अपर्वतनदीवृक्षं सर्वसत्त्वविवर्जितम् ॥ १९ ॥

“Beyond that stretches a desolate expanse, a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles) in extent on each side, which is devoid of mountains, rivers and trees and is entirely without any living being. (19)

तत्तु शीघ्रमतिक्रम्य कान्तारं रोमहर्षणम्।

कैलासं पाण्डुरं प्राप्य हृष्टा यूयं भविष्यथ ॥ २० ॥

“Speedily crossing the said wilderness, which makes one’s hair stand on end, you will be delighted to reach the white Kailāsa mountain. (20)

तत्र पाण्डुरमेघाभं जाम्बूनदपरिष्कृतम्।

कुबेरभवनं रम्यं निर्मितं विश्वकर्मणा ॥ २१ ॥

विशाला नलिनी यत्र प्रभूतकमलोत्पला।

हंसकारण्डवाकीर्णा अप्सरोगणसेविता ॥ २२ ॥

“On the aforesaid mountain stands the lovely palace of Kubera (the god of riches and the deity presiding over the northern quarter), resembling a white cloud and embellished with gold, which was constructed by Viśwakarmā (the architect of gods), and where exists an extensive lotus-pond, abounding in lotuses and water-lilies, crowded with swans and Kāraṇḍavas (a species of ducks) and frequented by bevvies of celestial nymphs. (21-22)

तत्र वैश्रवणो राजा सर्वलोकनमस्कृतः।

धनदो रमते श्रीमान् गुह्यकैः सह यक्षराट् ॥ २३ ॥

“The glorious King Kubera (the bestower of riches), son of Sage Viśravā and the ruler of Yakṣas (a class of demigods), who is greeted by the whole world, disports himself on that mountain with Guhyakas (Yakṣas). (23)

तस्य चन्द्रनिकाशेषु पर्वतेषु गुहासु च।

रावणः सह वैदेह्या मार्गितव्यस्ततस्ततः ॥ २४ ॥

“On the offshoots, shining brightly as the moon, as well as in the caves of that mountain should Rāvaṇa alongwith Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) be sought for everywhere. (24)

क्रौञ्चं तु गिरिमासाद्य बिलं तस्य सुदुर्गमम्।

अप्रमत्तैः प्रवेष्टव्यं दुष्प्रवेशं हि तत् स्मृतम् ॥ २५ ॥

“Reaching the Krauñca mountain, its cave, which is, however, most difficult of access, should be penetrated into by you, remaining vigilant all the time, as the cave is said to be difficult to enter into. (25)

वसन्ति हि महात्मानस्तत्र सूर्यसमप्रभाः।

देवैरभ्यर्थिताः सम्यग् देवरूपा महर्षयः ॥ २६ ॥

“Invited by the gods, high-souled eminent sages, who are effulgent as the sun and are truly god-like, actually dwell in that cave. (26)

क्रौञ्चस्य तु गुहाश्चान्याः सानूनि शिखराणि च।

निर्दराश्च नितम्बाश्च विचेतव्यास्ततस्ततः ॥ २७ ॥

“Other caves too, plateaus and peaks as also caverns and slopes too of the Krauñca mountain should be explored here and there. (27)

अवृक्षं कामशैलं च मानसं विहगालयम्।

न गतिस्तत्र भूतानां देवानां न च रक्षसाम् ॥ २८ ॥

“The treeless peak (of the same mountain), Mānasa, which grants the desires of all by its very sight and which is beyond the reach of birds, should also be ransacked. There is no attraction there for genii and gods nor for ogres. (28)

स च सर्वैर्विचेतव्यः ससानुप्रस्थभूधरः।

क्रौञ्चं गिरिमतिक्रम्य मैनाको नाम पर्वतः ॥ २९ ॥

“The said Krauñca mountain should be scoured with its peaks, plateaus and offshoots by all of you. Beyond the Krauñca mountain rises a mountain, Maināka by name. (29)

मयस्य भवनं तत्र दानवस्य स्वयंकृतम् ।

मैनाकस्तु विचेतव्यः ससानुप्रस्थकन्दरः ॥ ३० ॥

“The abode of the demon Maya, constructed by himself, stands on it. The said Maināka too should be explored by you alongwith its summits, tablelands and caves. (30)

स्त्रीणामश्वमुखीनां तु निकेतस्तत्र तत्र तु ।

तं देशं समतिक्रम्य आश्रमं सिद्धसेवितम् ॥ ३१ ॥

“The abodes of Kinnara women (whose heads resemble the heads of horses) are seen here and there. Passing clearly beyond that region you will see a hermitage occupied by perfect beings. (31)

सिद्धा वैखानसा यत्र वालखिल्याश्च तापसाः ।

वन्दितव्यास्ततः सिद्धास्तपसा वीतकल्मषाः ॥ ३२ ॥

प्रष्टव्या चापि सीतायाः प्रवृत्तिर्विनयान्वितैः ।

हेमपुष्करसंछन्नं तत्र वैखानसं सरः ॥ ३३ ॥

तरुणादित्यसंकाशैर्हंसैर्विचरितं शुभैः ।

औपवाह्यः कुबेरस्य सार्वभौम इति स्मृतः ॥ ३४ ॥

गजः पर्येति तं देशं सदा सह करेणुभिः ।

तत् सरः समतिक्रम्य नष्टचन्द्रदिवाकरम् ।

अनक्षत्रगणं व्योम निष्पयोदमनादितम् ॥ ३५ ॥

“In that hermitage dwell ascetics of the orders of Vaikhānasas and Vālakhilyas, who have reached perfection. The said realized souls, who have been completely rid of sin through askesis, should then be saluted and information concerning Sītā should be sought from them by you in all humility. Close to that hermitage there is a lake called Vaikhānasa (after those ascetics), covered with golden lotuses and frequented by beautiful swans shining brightly as the rising sun. The elephant, carrying Kubera on its back and known by the name of Sārvabhauma, always roams about the aforesaid region with she-elephants. Clearly beyond the aforesaid lake stretches the vast expanse of the sky devoid of the moon and the sun as well as of the hosts of stars and without clouds and their rumbling.

(32—35)

गभस्तिभिरिवार्कस्य स तु देशः प्रकाश्यते ।

विश्राम्यद्भिस्तपः सिद्धैर्देवकल्पैः स्वयंप्रभैः ॥ ३६ ॥

“That region is, however, illumined, as if by (so many) rays of the sun, by self-effulgent god-like sages, who have attained God-Realization through askesis and repose there. (36)

तं तु देशमतिक्रम्य शैलोदा नाम निम्नगा ।

उभयोस्तीरयोस्तस्याः कीचका नाम वेणवः ॥ ३७ ॥

“Beyond that region, again, flows a river named Śailodā. On both its banks there are bamboos of the Kicaka species (which are hollow within and as such make a rattling or whistling sound when the wind passes through them). (37)

ते नयन्ति परं तीरं सिद्धान् प्रत्यानयन्ति च ।

उत्तराः कुरवस्तत्र कृतपुण्यप्रतिश्रयाः ॥ ३८ ॥

“Getting interlaced the bamboos growing on both the banks enable the aforesaid God-realized souls to reach the opposite bank and return. “The land of the Uttara (northern) Kurus, the abode of those who have done meritorious deeds, stretches on the bank of the aforesaid Śailodā river. (38)

ततः काञ्चनपद्माभिः पद्मिनीभिः कृतोदकाः ।

नीलवैदूर्यपत्राढ्या नद्यस्तत्र सहस्रशः ॥ ३९ ॥

“Further on, in that land there are thousands of streams rich in lotus leaves, dark-green as a cat’s-eye jewel, whose waters are joined with lotus-ponds containing golden lotuses. (39)

रक्तोत्पलवनैश्चात्र मण्डिताश्च हिरण्मयैः ।

तरुणादित्यसंकाशा भान्ति तत्र जलाशयाः ॥ ४० ॥

महार्हमणिपत्रैश्च काञ्चनप्रभकेसरैः ।

नीलोत्पलवनैश्चित्रैः स देशः सर्वतो वृतः ॥ ४१ ॥

निस्तुलाभिश्च मुक्ताभिर्मणिभिश्च महाधनैः ।

उद्धूतपुलिनास्तत्र जातरूपैश्च निम्नगाः ॥ ४२ ॥

सर्वरत्नमयैश्चित्रैरवगाढा नगोत्तमैः ।
जातरूपमयैश्चापि हुताशनसमप्रभैः ॥ ४३ ॥
नित्यपुष्पफलास्तत्र नगाः पत्ररथाकुलाः ।
दिव्यगन्धरसस्पर्शाः सर्वकामान् स्रवन्ति च ॥ ४४ ॥
नानाकाराणि वासांसि फलन्त्यन्ये नगोत्तमाः ।
मुक्तावैदूर्यचित्राणि भूषणानि तथैव च ।
स्त्रीणां यान्यनुरूपाणि पुरुषाणां तथैव च ॥ ४५ ॥

“Lakes possessing the hue of the rising sun and adorned with clumps of red golden lotuses spread their charm in this land. The said land (of the Uttara Kurus) is covered on all sides with wonderful clumps of blue lotuses with petals of precious gems and filaments shining as gold. Nay, the rivers there have their sandy banks strewn with round pearls and gems of great value as also with pieces of gold, and are hemmed in with marvellous and excellent mountains of all kinds of jewels as well as of gold effulgent as fire. The trees there are thronged with birds and are ever full of flowers and fruits, possess an ethereal fragrance, taste and touch and yield all one's desires. Other excellent trees yield costumes of every shape and size and even so ornaments set with pearls and cat's-eye jewels—costumes and ornaments which are fit for women and, even so, for men. (40—45)

सर्वर्तुसुखसेव्यानि फलन्त्यन्ये नगोत्तमाः ।
महार्हमणिचित्राणि फलन्त्यन्ये नगोत्तमाः ॥ ४६ ॥

“Other excellent trees bear fruit which can be gladly partaken of in all seasons; while still other excellent trees bring forth wonderful fruits looking like precious gems. (46)

शयनानि प्रसूयन्ते चित्रास्तरणवन्ति च ।
मनःकान्तानि माल्यानि फलन्त्यत्रापरे द्रुमाः ॥ ४७ ॥
पानानि च महार्हाणि भक्ष्याणि विविधानि च ।
स्त्रियश्च गुणसम्पन्ना रूपयौवनलक्षिताः ॥ ४८ ॥

“Other trees in this land yield beds provided with variegated coverlets and garlands which are pleasing to the mind, costly drinks and viands of various kinds as well as women possessed of every accomplishment and distinguished for their comeliness and youth. (47-48)

गन्धर्वाः किन्नराः सिद्धा नागा विद्याधरास्तथा ।
रमन्ते सततं तत्र नारीभिर्भास्वरप्रभाः ॥ ४९ ॥

“Gandharvas (celestial musicians), Kinnaras (another class of demigods credited with a human figure and the head of a horse or with a horse's body and the head of a man), Siddhas, Nāgas (serpent-demons with a human face and serpent-like body) and Vidyādharas (celestial artists) of dazzling splendour revel with their women. (49)

सर्वे सुकृतकर्माणः सर्वे रतिपरायणाः ।
सर्वे कामार्थसहिता वसन्ति सह योषितः ॥ ५० ॥

“All beings living there have performed meritorious deeds in their past lives, all are given over to amorous enjoyment, all are endowed with wealth and luxuries and all live with young women. (50)

गीतवादित्रनिर्घोषः सोत्कृष्टहसितस्वनः ।
श्रूयते सततं तत्र सर्वभूतमनोरमः ॥ ५१ ॥

“The sound of singing and musical instruments, blended with peals of sweet laughter and pleasing to the mind of all created beings is constantly heard there. (51)

तत्र नामुदितः कश्चिन्नात्र कश्चिदसत्प्रियः ।
अहन्यहनि वर्धन्ते गुणास्तत्र मनोरमाः ॥ ५२ ॥

“None is unhappy there nor is anyone fond of evil deeds. Virtues which are delightful to the mind develop there from day to day. (52)

समतिक्रम्य तं देशमुत्तरः पयसां निधिः ।
तत्र सोमगिरिर्नाम मध्ये हेममयो महान् ॥ ५३ ॥

“Beyond the aforesaid region (viz., the land of the Uttara Kurus) stretches the Northern Sea. There in the middle rises a huge mountain of gold, Somagiri by name. (53)

इन्द्रलोकगता ये च ब्रह्मलोकगताश्च ये ।
देवास्तं समवेक्षन्ते गिरिराजं दिवं गताः ॥ ५४ ॥

“Those who have ascended to heaven as well as the gods who dwell in Indra’s heaven and those who reside in the realm of Brahmā (the creator) vividly perceive that lordly mountain. (54)

स तु देशो विसूर्योऽपि तस्य भासा प्रकाशते ।
सूर्यलक्ष्म्याभिविज्ञेयस्तपतेव विवस्वता ॥ ५५ ॥

“Though without the sun, that region remains actually lighted by the brilliance of the mountain as though by the scorching sun, and should be recognized as blessed with the brilliance of the sun. (55)

भगवांस्तत्र विश्वात्मा शम्भुरेकादशात्मकः ।
ब्रह्मा वसति देवेशो ब्रह्मर्षिपरिवारितः ॥ ५६ ॥

“There dwells Lord Viṣṇu (the Soul of the universe), as well as Lord Śiva (the Source of all blessings), manifested in the form of the eleven Rudras, and, even so, Brahmā (the creator), the sovereign of gods, surrounded by Brāhmaṇa sages (Mārica and others, his mind-born sons). (56)

न कथंचन गन्तव्यं कुरूणामुत्तरेण वः ।
अन्येषामपि भूतानां नानुक्रामति वै गतिः ॥ ५७ ॥

“You should on no account venture to the north of the Uttara Kurus. No way lies beyond for other created beings either. (57)

स हि सोमगिरिर्नाम देवानामपि दुर्गमः ।
तमालोक्य ततः क्षिप्रमुपावर्तितुमर्हथ ॥ ५८ ॥

“The aforesaid Mount Somagiri, they say, is really speaking difficult of access even for gods. Having sighted it, you ought speedily to return from that place from where you catch sight of it. (58)

एतावद् वानरैः शक्यं गन्तुं वानरपुंगवाः ।
अभास्कर्ममर्यादं न जानीमस्ततः परम् ॥ ५९ ॥

“Thus far only it is possible for monkeys to proceed, O jewels among the monkeys ! We have no knowledge whatsoever of the region beyond it, which is devoid of the sun and without limit. (59)

सर्वमेतद् विचेतव्यं यन्मया परिकीर्तितम् ।
यदन्यदपि नोक्तं च तत्रापि क्रियतां मतिः ॥ ६० ॥

“All this area, described by me, should be scoured by you. And a resolve should be made by you even for exploring what other places have not been mentioned. (60)

ततः कृतं दाशरथेर्महत्प्रियं
महत्प्रियं चापि ततो मम प्रियम् ।
कृतं भविष्यत्यनिलानलोपमा
विदेहजादर्शनजेन कर्मणा ॥ ६१ ॥

“Through the endeavour that will be made by you in the course of your search, leading eventually to a sight of Sitā (daughter of King Videha), something which is highly pleasing to Śrī Rāma (son of Emperor Daśaratha) will have been done by you, nay, through the same act what is even much more pleasing to me will have been accomplished, O monkeys vying with the god of fire and the wind-god ! (61)

ततः कृतार्थाः सहिताः सबान्धवा
मयाचिताः सर्वगुणैर्मनोरमैः ।
चरिष्यथोर्वी प्रति शान्तशत्रवः
सहप्रिया भूतधराः प्लवंगमाः ॥ ६२ ॥

“Propitiated by me as a sequel to your invaluable services through presents endowed with all excellences and delightful to the mind; nay, rid of all enmity, accomplished of purpose, and capable of sustaining other created beings, you will range the earth with your friends and relatives as well as with your beloved mates, O monkeys !” (62)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे त्रिचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-three in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुश्चत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLIV

With a view to inspiring confidence in Sītā, when found, Śrī Rāma hands over to Hanumān his signet ring as a token of recognition while sending him away to the south. Bowing down at Śrī Rāma's feet, Hanumān leaves his presence alongwith a contingent of the Vānara forces

विशेषेण तु सुग्रीवो हनूमत्यर्थमुक्तवान्।
स हि तस्मिन् हरिश्रेष्ठे निश्चिन्तार्थोऽर्थसाधने ॥ १ ॥

Sugrīva for his part broached the subject (of conducting a search for Sītā) in particular before Hanumān, for, so far as the question of achieving that purpose was concerned, he was sure about that jewel among monkeys being able to accomplish the task. (1)

अब्रवीच्च हनूमन्तं विक्रान्तमनिलात्मजम्।
सुग्रीवः परमप्रीतः प्रभुः सर्ववनौकसाम् ॥ २ ॥

Nay, supremely pleased with Hanumān, Sugrīva, the lord of all the denizens of the forest, spoke as follows to Hanumān, the valiant son of the wind-god : (2)

न भूमौ नान्तरिक्षे वा नाम्बरे नामरालये।
नाप्सु वा गतिसङ्गं ते पश्यामि हरिपुंगव ॥ ३ ॥

"Neither on earth nor in the air nor again in the sky nor in heaven (the abode of immortals) nor in waters for that matter do I find any obstruction to your movement, O bull among the monkeys ! (3)

सासुराः सहगन्धर्वाः सनागनरदेवताः।
विदिताः सर्वलोकास्ते ससागरधराधराः ॥ ४ ॥

"All the worlds inhabited by demons, by Gandharvas, by Nāgas (semi-divine beings having the face of a man and the body of a serpent and said to inhabit Pātāla), by human beings and by gods and including oceans and mountains are known to you. (4)

गतिर्वेगश्च तेजश्च लाघवं च महाकपे।
पितुस्ते सदृशं वीर मारुतस्य महौजसः ॥ ५ ॥

"Your unhampered movement and speed, energy and adroitness too are similar to those found in your father, the wind-god, who is possessed of extraordinary strength, O heroic and great monkey ! (5)

तेजसा वापि ते भूतं न समं भुवि विद्यते।
तद् यथा लभ्यते सीता तत्त्वमेवानुचिन्तय ॥ ६ ॥

"There is no created being on earth equal to you in vigour either. Therefore, you alone should ponder on the way in which Sītā may be found. (6)

त्वय्येव हनुमन्नस्ति बलं बुद्धिः पराक्रमः।
देशकालानुवृत्तिश्च नयश्च नयपण्डित ॥ ७ ॥

"Nay, in you alone, O Hanumān, repose strength, wisdom, prowess, conformability to place and time, and prudence too, O past master in statecraft !" (7)

ततः कार्यसमासङ्गमवगम्य हनूमति।
विदित्वा हनुमन्तं च चिन्तयामास राघवः ॥ ८ ॥

Concluding from the aforesaid words of Sugrīva that the success of the venture depended on Hanumān, and also knowing Hanumān to be capable of accomplishing the work, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) reflected as follows : (8)

सर्वथा निश्चितार्थोऽयं हनूमति हरीश्वरः।
निश्चितार्थतरश्चापि हनूमान् कार्यसाधने ॥ ९ ॥

"This lord of monkeys is cock-sure about Hanumān being capable of accomplishing the work entrusted to him, while Hanumān too is even more confident about his being able to accomplish the task. (9)

तदेवं प्रस्थितस्यास्य परिज्ञातस्य कर्मभिः ।

भर्त्रा परिगृहीतस्य ध्रुवः कार्यफलोदयः ॥ १० ॥

“Therefore, the success of the endeavour of Hanumān, who has been tested by his deeds and chosen for this work by his master, and who is now moving out (in obedience to his master’s call) is certain.” (10)

तं समीक्ष्य महातेजा व्यवसायोत्तरं हरिम् ।

कृतार्थ इव संहृष्टः प्रहृष्टेन्द्रियमानसः ॥ ११ ॥

Perceiving the aforesaid monkey, Hanumān, who was pre-eminent in accomplishing the work entrusted to him, Śrī Rāma, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, felt overjoyed as though he had gained his end, his senses and mind thrilled with delight. (11)

ददौ तस्य ततः प्रीतः स्वनामाङ्गोपशोभितम् ।

अङ्गुलीयमभिज्ञानं राजपुत्र्याः परंतपः ॥ १२ ॥

Full of joy, Śrī Rāma (the scourge of his foes) gave to Hanumān a ring inscribed with his name as a token of identification to Sītā (the daughter of a king). (12)

अनेन त्वां हरिश्रेष्ठ चिह्नेन जनकात्मजा ।

मत्सकाशादनुप्राप्तमनुद्विग्नानुपश्यति ॥ १३ ॥

He said to him, “Through this token, O jewel among the monkeys, Sītā (the daughter of Janaka) will unperturbedly recognize you to have arrived from my presence. (13)

व्यवसायश्च ते वीर सत्त्वयुक्तश्च विक्रमः ।

सुग्रीवस्य च संदेशः सिद्धिं कथयतीव मे ॥ १४ ॥

“Nay, your resolution as well as your prowess coupled with courage as also the words of Sugrīva addressed to you predict success, as it were, to my mind.” (14)

स तद् गृह्य हरिश्रेष्ठः कृत्वा मूर्ध्नि कृताञ्जलिः ।

वन्दित्वा चरणौ चैव प्रस्थितः प्लवगर्षभः ॥ १५ ॥

Taking the ring and placing it on his head and bowing down at Śrī Rāma’s feet, Hanumān, a jewel among the monkeys, set forth with joined palms. (15)

स तत् प्रकर्षन् हरिणां महद् बलं

बभूव वीरः पवनात्मजः कपिः ।

गताम्बुदे व्योम्नि विशुद्धमण्डलः

शशीव नक्षत्रगणोपशोभितः ॥ १६ ॥

Leading that mighty band of monkeys, the aforesaid monkey, the gallant Hanumān (son of the wind-god) shone like the moon with a stainless orb graced by a galaxy of stars in a cloudless sky. (16)

अतिबल बलमाश्रितस्तवाहं

हरिवर विक्रम विक्रमैरनल्पैः ।

पवनसुत यथाधिगम्यते सा

जनकसुता हनुमंतथा कुरुष्व ॥ १७ ॥

“Śrī Rāma sent him away with the following words : “I depend on your might, O Hanumān, endowed as you are with surpassing strength. Exert yourself in such a way by dint of your great valour, O son of the wind-god, possessing as you do the might of the foremost of lions, that Sītā, daughter of Janaka, may be found.” (17)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे

चतुश्चत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-four in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Rṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLV

Bowing to the command of Sugrīva and leading their respective bands, Vinata and other monkey chiefs set forth towards the quarter assigned to them by Sugrīva

सर्वाश्चाहूय सुग्रीवः प्लवगान् प्लवगर्षभः ।
समस्तांश्चाब्रवीद् राजा रामकार्यार्थसिद्धये ॥ १ ॥

Summoning all the monkeys in a body,
King Sugrīva, the foremost of monkeys, spoke to them as follows with a view to accomplishing the end sought to be achieved by Śrī Rāma :

(1)

एवमेतद् विचेतव्यं भवद्विर्वानरोत्तमैः ।
तदुग्रशासनं भर्तुर्विज्ञाय हरिपुंगवाः ॥ २ ॥
शलभा इव संछाद्य मेदिनीं सम्प्रतस्थिरे ।
रामः प्रस्त्रवणे तस्मिन् न्यवसत् सहलक्ष्मणः ॥ ३ ॥
प्रतीक्षमाणस्तं मासं सीताधिगमने कृतः ।
उत्तरां तु दिशं रम्यां गिरिराजसमावृताम् ॥ ४ ॥
प्रतस्थे सहसा वीरो हरिः शतबलिस्तदा ।
पूर्वा दिशं प्रतिययौ विनतो हरियूथपः ॥ ५ ॥
ताराङ्गदादिसहितः प्लवगः पवनात्मजः ।
अगस्त्याचरितामाशां दक्षिणां हरियूथपः ॥ ६ ॥

“All this area specified by me ought to be scoured by you, the foremost of monkeys, in the way pointed out by me.” Fully comprehending that formidable command of their master and overrunning the earth like locusts, the leaders of monkeys duly sallied forth. Waiting for the period of one month, which had been fixed as a limit for finding out the whereabouts of Sitā, Śrī Rāma continued to live on the celebrated Mount Prasavaṇa with Lakṣmaṇa. The valiant monkey Śatabali for his part then set out with a dash towards the delightful northern quarter blocked by the Himālaya mountain, the king of mountains. The monkey chief,
Vinata, marched towards the eastern quarter;
while accompanied by Tāra, Aṅgada and others, the monkey Hanumān (son of the wind-god), another monkey chief, proceeded towards the southern quarter, resorted to by Sage Agastya.

(2—6)

पश्चिमां च दिशं घोरां सुषेणः प्लवगेश्वरः ।
प्रतस्थे हरिशार्दूलो दिशं वरुणपालिताम् ॥ ७ ॥

Again, the monkey chief, Suṣeṇa, a tiger among monkeys, set forth towards the fearful western quarter, the quarter protected by Varuṇa (the god of water).

(7)

ततः सर्वा दिशो राजा चोदयित्वा यथातथम् ।
कपिसेनापतिर्वीरो मुमोद सुखितः सुखम् ॥ ८ ॥

Having dispatched the monkeys to all the quarters according to their worth, the valiant Sugrīva, the lord of the monkey forces, felt gratified and happy in his heart.

(8)

एवं संचोदिताः सर्वे राज्ञा वानरयूथपाः ।
स्वां स्वां दिशमभिप्रेत्य त्वरिताः सम्प्रतस्थिरे ॥ ९ ॥
नदन्तश्चोन्नदन्तश्च गर्जन्तश्च प्लवंगमाः ।
क्ष्वेडन्तो धावमानाश्च विनदन्तो महाबलाः ॥ १० ॥

Shouting and howling, thundering and roaring growling and running, when enjoined by the king as aforesaid, all the generals of the monkey army, who were endowed with extraordinary might, hastily marched each towards the quarter assigned to him. (9-10)

एवं संचोदिताः सर्वे राज्ञा वानरयूथपाः ।
आनयिष्यामहे सीतां हनिष्यामश्च रावणम् ॥ ११ ॥

Directed thus by the king, all the commanders of the monkey army said, “We shall dispose of Rāvaṇa and bring Sitā back.”

(11)

अहमेको वधिष्यामि प्राप्तं रावणमाह्वे ।
ततश्चोन्मथ्य सहसा हरिष्ये जनकात्मजाम् ॥ १२ ॥

वेपमानां श्रमेणाद्य भवद्भिः स्थीयतामिति ।

एक एवाहरिष्यामि पातालादपि जानकीम् ॥ १३ ॥

“Single-handed I shall kill Rāvaṇa arrived on the field of battle and then, destroying his associates too, I shall forcibly bear away today Janaka’s daughter, trembling through affliction and fear. You should all stay here.” “Single-handed I shall bring Janaka’s daughter even from Pātāla (the lowermost subterranean region). (12-13)

विधमिष्याम्यहं वृक्षान् दारयिष्याम्यहं गिरीन् ।

धरणीं दारयिष्यामि क्षोभयिष्यामि सागरान् ॥ १४ ॥

“I shall smash down trees. I shall cleave the mountains, shall rend the earth and shall churn up the oceans.” (14)

अहं योजनसंख्यायाः प्लवेयं नात्र संशयः ।

शतयोजनसंख्यायाः शतं समधिकं ह्यहम् ॥ १५ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे पञ्चचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-five in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Rṣi and the oldest epic.

षट्चत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLVI

While Sugrīva gave instructions to his various generals mentioning in detail the places they were to visit in the course of their expedition in search of Sītā, Śrī Rāma was struck by the knowledge of world geography revealed by Sugrīva and inquired of the latter how he had come to acquire such wonderful and accurate knowledge of geography. In reply to this Sugrīva tells him of the encounter of Vālī with Dundubhi, which led the former to conceive an inveterate hatred towards him (Sugrīva) who when pursued by Vālī had to range from one end of the world to another and this enabled him (Sugrīva) to gather a first-hand knowledge of all parts of the globe

गतेषु वानरेन्द्रेषु रामः सुग्रीवमब्रवीत् ।

कथं भवान् विजानीते सर्वं वै मण्डलं भुवः ॥ १ ॥

The leaders of monkeys having left, Śrī Rāma said to Sugrīva, “How do you directly know the entire terrestrial globe?” (1)

“I can leap across the waters to the extent of a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles).” “I can surely leap to a distance of more than a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles).” (15)

भूतले सागरे वापि शैलेषु च वनेषु च ।

पातालस्यापि वा मध्ये न ममाच्छिद्यते गतिः ॥ १६ ॥

“My progress cannot be intercepted on the earth’s surface or even in the ocean, on the mountains or in the woods or even in the heart of Pātāla (the nethermost subterranean region).” (16)

इत्येकैकस्तदा तत्र वानरा बलदर्पिताः ।

ऊचुश्च वचनं तस्य हरिराजस्य संनिधौ ॥ १७ ॥

Such words did the monkeys, proud of their might, utter one by one, in the presence of the celebrated Sugrīva (the king of monkeys) at that time on that spot. (17)

सुग्रीवश्च ततो राममुवाच प्रणतात्मवान् ।

श्रूयतां सर्वमाख्यास्ये विस्तरेण वचो मम ॥ २ ॥

And Sugrīva then with his body bent low through humility replied as follows to Śrī Rāma : “Pray, let my submission be heard. I shall narrate everything in extenso. (2)

यदा तु दुन्दुभिं नाम दानवं महिषाकृतिम्।
प्रतिकालयते वाली मलयं प्रति पर्वतम् ॥ ३ ॥
तदा विवेश महिषो मलयस्य गुहां प्रति।
विवेश वाली तत्रापि मलयं तज्जिघांसया ॥ ४ ॥

“When Vālī for his part was driving back the demon, Māyāvī* (son of Dundubhi) by name, living in the form of a buffalo, towards the Malaya mountain, the buffalo forthwith entered into a cave of the Malaya mountain. Vālī too entered the cave of the Malaya mountain on that occasion with intent to kill the demon. (3-4)

ततोऽहं तत्र निक्षिप्तो गुहाद्वारि विनीतवत्।
न च निष्क्रामते वाली तदा संवत्सरे गते ॥ ५ ॥

“Having been placed there (by Vālī), I thereupon obediently stood at the entrance of the cave. Vālī, however, did not come out at that juncture even though a year had elapsed. (5)

ततः क्षतजवेगेन आपुपूरे तदा बिलम्।
तदहं विस्मितो दृष्ट्वा भ्रातुः शोकविषादितः ॥ ६ ॥

“Then the cave was forthwith filled with a gushing stream of blood. I was amazed to see it and felt oppressed with the sting of grief on the score of my elder brother, Vālī. (6)

अथाहं गतबुद्धिस्तु सुव्यक्तं निहतो गुरुः।
शिला पर्वतसंकाशा बिलद्वारि मया कृता ॥ ७ ॥
अशक्नुवन्निष्क्रमितुं महिषो विनशिष्यति।
ततोऽहमागां किष्किन्धां निराशस्तस्य जीविते ॥ ८ ॥

“I was, however, immediately seized with the idea that my elder brother, Vālī, had most evidently been killed. A rock as big as a hill was placed by me at the entrance of the cave in the hope that, unable to come out, the buffalo would perish without nourishment. Hopeless about Vālī’s life, I thereupon came away to Kiṣkindhā. (7-8)

राज्यं च सुमहत् प्राप्य तारां च रुमया सह।
मित्रैश्च सहितस्तत्र वसामि विगतज्वरः ॥ ९ ॥

“Having attained a vast dominion and secured Tārā (Vālī’s wedded wife) with (my own wedded wife) Rumā, I began to live in Kiṣkindhā with my friends, free from anxiety. (9)

आजगाम ततो वाली हत्वा तं वानरर्षभः।
ततोऽहमददां राज्यं गौरवाद् भययन्त्रितः ॥ १० ॥

“Having killed the demon, Vālī, the foremost of monkeys, returned in the meantime. Thereupon I restored the kingdom to him out of respect, seized as I was also with fear. (10)

स मां जिघांसुर्दृष्टात्मा वाली प्रव्यथितेन्द्रियः।
परिकालयते वाली धावन्तं सचिवैः सह ॥ ११ ॥

“Wishing to kill me, the said malevolent Vālī, who had a thick coat of hair on his body and whose mind was extremely agonized, angrily pursued me, who was running for life with my ministers. (11)

ततोऽहं वालिना तेन सोऽनुबद्धः प्रधावितः।
नदीश्च विविधाः पश्यन् वनानि नगराणि च ॥ १२ ॥

“Pursued by the aforesaid Vālī, I as such then ran fast beholding various streams, forests and cities too. (12)

आदर्शतलसंकाशा ततो वै पृथिवी मया।
अलातचक्रप्रतिमा दृष्टा गोष्पदवत् कृता ॥ १३ ॥

“At that time the earth, which was turned into the imprint of a cow’s hoof, as it were, (and entailed no exertion in going round it), was seen by me much like a mirror (clearly revealing, as it did, everything on its surface) and a whirling firebrand due to the swiftness of my movement. (13)

पूर्वा दिशं ततो गत्वा पश्यामि विविधान् द्रुमान्।
पर्वतान् सदरीन् रम्यान् सरांसि विविधानि च ॥ १४ ॥

* According to the popular maxim ‘आत्मा वै जायते पुत्रः’ (One’s ownself is reborn as one’s son) Māyāvī (son of Dundubhi) has been spoken of here as Dundubhi; for the story evidently relates to Māyāvī as will be clear from a reference to Canto Nine, where it stands already narrated.

“Reaching the eastern quarter then, I beheld trees of all kinds, delightful mountains with caves, as well as lakes of every kind. (14)

उदयं तत्र पश्यामि पर्वतं धातुमण्डितम्।
क्षीरोदं सागरं चैव नित्यमप्सरसालयम् ॥ १५ ॥

“I saw there the eastern mountain adorned with minerals and also the ocean of milk, the constant abode of celestial nymphs. (15)

परिकाल्यमानस्तदा वालिनाभिद्रुतो ह्यहम्।
पुनरावृत्य सहसा प्रस्थितोऽहं तदा विभो ॥ १६ ॥

“Flying on and on when pursued by Vālī, and then returning, I forthwith departed all of a sudden, O powerful prince. (16)

दिशस्तस्यास्ततो भूयः प्रस्थितो दक्षिणां दिशम्।
विन्ध्यपादपसंकीर्णं चन्दनद्रुमशोभिताम् ॥ १७ ॥

“Turning from the eastern quarter, I then made for the southern quarter, crowded with trees growing on the Vindhyan range and graced by sandalwood trees. (17)

द्रुमशैलान्तरे पश्यन् भूयो दक्षिणतोऽपराम्।
अपरां च दिशं प्राप्नो वालिना समभिद्रुतः ॥ १८ ॥

“Seeing Vālī from behind the trees and hills again and again, and still steadily pursued by Vālī, I reached a quarter different from the south, viz., the western quarter. (18)

स पश्यन् विविधान् देशानस्तं च गिरिसत्तमम्।
प्राप्य चास्तं गिरिश्रेष्ठमुत्तरं सम्प्रधावितः ॥ १९ ॥

“Observing various lands as also the western mountain, the foremost of mountains, and finally reaching the western mountain, the crown of all mountains, I ran with all speed towards the north. (19)

हिमवन्तं च मेरुं च समुद्रं च तथोत्तरम्।
यदा न विन्दे शरणं वालिना समभिद्रुतः ॥ २० ॥
ततो मां बुद्धिसम्पन्नो हनुमान् वाक्यमब्रवीत्।
इदानीं मे स्मृतं राजन् यथा वाली हरीश्वरः ॥ २१ ॥
मतङ्गेन तदा शप्तो ह्यस्मिन्नाश्रममण्डले।
प्रविशेद् यदि वै वाली मूर्धास्य शतधा भवेत् ॥ २२ ॥

“When, constantly and steadily pursued by Vālī, I did not find shelter even on seeking the Himālayan range and Mount Meru and, even so, the Northern Sea, Hanumān, who was richly endowed with wisdom (and who was all along with me), thereupon submitted to me as follows : ‘It is now recollected by me, O king, how Vālī, the lord of monkeys, was at one time actually cursed by Sage Mataṅga that if he should ever venture into the limits of his hermitage, his head would surely get split into a hundred pieces. (20—22)

तत्र वासः सुखोऽस्माकं निरुद्विग्नो भविष्यति।
ततः पर्वतमासाद्य ऋष्यमूकं नृपात्मज ॥ २३ ॥
न विवेश तदा वाली मतङ्गस्य भयात् तदा।
एवं मया तदा राजन् प्रत्यक्षमुपलक्षितम्।
पृथिवीमण्डलं सर्वं गुहामस्यागतस्ततः ॥ २४ ॥

“‘Our residence there would be happy and free from fear.’ Then, reaching the Ṛṣyamūka mountain, O prince, I took up my abode there. During those days Vālī dared not enter that region for fear of the imprecation pronounced by Ṛṣi Mataṅga. In this way, O king, the entire terrestrial globe was directly perceived by me at that time and then I withdrew to the cave on Mount Ṛṣyamūka.” (23-24)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे

षट्चत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-six in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLVII

Even after scouring more than once the regions comprised in the quarter assigned to them, Vinata and others fail to get any clue to the whereabouts of Sītā. Returning despondent even before a month, they bow down to Śrī Rāma and Sugrīva and report their inability to find out Sītā. They feel convinced for many reasons that Hanumān alone will be able to discover Sītā

दर्शनार्थं तु वैदेह्याः सर्वतः कपिकुञ्जराः ।
व्यादिष्टाः कपिराजेन यथोक्तं जग्मुर्ज्जसा ॥ १ ॥

Dispatched all round by Sugrīva (the lord of monkeys) to find out Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), the foremost of the monkeys for their part instantly departed to the quarter severally assigned to them. (1)

ते सरांसि सरित्कक्षानाकाशं नगराणि च ।
नदीदुर्गास्तथा देशान् विचिन्वन्ति समन्ततः ॥ २ ॥

They scanned on all sides lakes, shrubs on the banks of rivers, open stretches of land and cities as also tracts rendered impassable by streams. (2)

सुग्रीवेण समाख्याताः सर्वे वानरयूथपाः ।
तत्र देशान् विचिन्वन्ति सशैलवनकाननान् ॥ ३ ॥

Thoroughly instructed by Sugrīva, all the leaders of monkey bands explored the regions comprised in the quarter assigned to them with their mountains, forests and woodlands. (3)

विचित्य दिवसं सर्वे सीताधिगमने धृताः ।
समायान्ति स्म मेदिन्यां निशाकालेषु वानराः ॥ ४ ॥

Having carried on their search for Sītā during the daytime, all the monkeys, who were bent on finding out Sītā, came together for repose at a rendezvous during the nights. (4)

सर्वर्तुकांश्च देशेषु वानराः सफलद्रुमान् ।
आसाद्य रजनीं शय्यां चक्रुः सर्वेष्वहःसु ते ॥ ५ ॥

Reaching during the days (in the course of their search) in all the regions trees which manifested all the seasons (in the course of a day) and ever bore fruits, the aforesaid monkeys slept during the night. (5)

तदहः प्रथमं कृत्वा मासे प्रस्रवणं गताः ।
कपिराजेन संगम्य निराशाः कपिकुञ्जराः ॥ ६ ॥

Reckoning the day of their departure as the first, the monkey chiefs returned disappointed in a month to Mount Prasravaṇa (where Sugrīva had been camping till then with Śrī Rāma) and meeting Sugrīva, continued there. (6)

विचित्य तु दिशं पूर्वा यथोक्तां सचिवैः सह ।
अदृष्ट्वा विनतः सीतामाजगाम महाबलः ॥ ७ ॥

Having explored the eastern quarter assigned to him, but not finding Sītā, Vinata for his part, who was possessed of extraordinary might, withdrew with his ministers. (7)

दिशमप्युत्तरां सर्वा विविच्य स महाकपिः ।
आगतः सह सैन्येन भीतः शतबलिस्तदा ॥ ८ ॥

Having combed the whole of the northern quarter, that great monkey, Śatabali, too presently returned with his band, full of fear. (8)

सुषेणः पश्चिमामाशां विविच्य सह वानरैः ।
समेत्य मासे पूर्णे तु सुग्रीवमुपचक्रमे ॥ ९ ॥

Having scoured the western quarter with the other monkeys and returning when a month had been completed, Suṣeṇa too for his part sought the presence of Sugrīva. (9)

तं प्रस्रवणपृष्ठस्थं समासाद्याभिवाद्य च ।
आसीनं सह रामेण सुग्रीवमिदमब्रुवन् ॥ १० ॥

Approaching and greeting Sugrīva, seated with Śrī Rāma on a plateau of Mount Prasravaṇa, all the three troop-leaders submitted to him as follows : (10)

विचिताः पर्वताः सर्वे वनानि गहनानि च ।

निम्नगाः सागरान्ताश्च सर्वे जनपदाश्च ये ॥ ११ ॥

“All the mountains and dense forests, also rivers falling into the sea and all the countrysides which were met with by us have been explored. (11)

गुहाश्च विचिताः सर्वा याश्च ते परिकीर्तिताः ।

विचिताश्च महागुल्मा लताविततसंतताः ॥ १२ ॥

“Nay, all the caves which were specified by you have also been ransacked. Also large bowers roofed with canopies of climbers have been scoured. (12)

गहनेषु च देशेषु दुर्गेषु विषमेषु च ।

सत्त्वान्यतिप्रमाणानि विचितानि हतानि च ।

ये चैव गहना देशा विचितास्ते पुनः पुनः ॥ १३ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे सप्तचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-seven in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLVIII

Accompanied by Aṅgada and others, Hanumān seeks for Sītā in the dense forests and caves of the Vindhyan range. Making their way into a forest whose trees had ceased to flower and bear fruits because of a curse pronounced by Sage Kaṇḍu, overwhelmed with grief occasioned by the loss of his son, the monkeys, who felt exhausted due to exertion, behold a demon. As the latter swoops upon the monkeys with a raised fist, Aṅgada makes short work of him thinking him to be Rāvaṇa. Feeling exhausted through peregrination in the forest, the monkeys seek the foot of a tree

सह ताराङ्गदाभ्यां तु सहसा हनुमान् कपिः ।

सुग्रीवेण यथोद्दिष्टं गन्तुं देशं प्रचक्रमे ॥ १ ॥

Alongwith Tāra and Aṅgada the monkey, Hanumān, for his part, proceeded all at once to march towards the region duly “Animals of huge proportions have been sought for (under the suspicion that they may be Rāvaṇa) in regions which were difficult to penetrate into, in places difficult of access and in uneven stretches of land, and killed. Nay, those areas which were difficult to penetrate into were explored again and again. (13)

उदारसत्त्वाभिजनो हनुमान्

स मैथिलीं ज्ञास्यति वानरेन्द्र ।

दिशं तु यामेव गता तु सीता

तामास्थितो वायुसुतो हनुमान् ॥ १४ ॥

“The celebrated Hanumān (alone), who is endowed with a noble character and is nobly born, will be able to find Sītā (a princess of Mithilā), O lord of monkeys ! Hanumān, son of the wind-god, has luckily enough resorted to the same quarter to which Sītā has been taken away.” (14) assigned to him by Surgiva. (1)

स तु दूरमुपागम्य सर्वैस्तैः कपिसत्तमैः ।

ततो विचित्य विन्ध्यस्य गुहाश्च गहनानि च ॥ २ ॥

Travelling a long distance in the company of all those monkey chiefs and then exploring the caves and the dense forests of the Vindhyān range, Hanumān for his part halted. (2)

पर्वताग्रनदीदुर्गान् सरांसि विपुलद्रुमान् ।
वृक्षषण्डांश्च विविधान् पर्वतान् वनपादपान् ॥ ३ ॥
अन्वेषमाणास्ते सर्वे वानराः सर्वतोदिशम् ।
न सीतां ददृशुर्वीरा मैथिलीं जनकात्मजाम् ॥ ४ ॥

Even though scouring the mountain peaks, rivers and places difficult of access, lakes, huge trees as well as groves of various kinds of trees, mountains and forest trees on all sides, all those heroic monkeys failed to perceive Sītā, daughter of Janaka and a princess of Mithilā. (3-4)

ते भक्षयन्तो मूलानि फलानि विविधान्यपि ।
अन्वेषमाणा दुर्धर्षा न्यवसंस्तत्र तत्र ह ॥ ५ ॥

Subsisting on roots as well as on fruits of various kinds, they say, while conducting their search, the monkeys, who were difficult to overpower, stayed wherever they could. (5)

स तु देशो दुरन्वेषो गुहागहनवान् महान् ।
निर्जलं निर्जनं शून्यं गहनं घोरदर्शनम् ॥ ६ ॥

That vast region round about the Vindhyān range, however, was difficult to explore, full of caves and dense forests as it was, and consisting of a wilderness which was waterless, uninhabited, desolate and frightful to look at. (6)

तादृशान्यप्यरण्यानि विचित्य भृशपीडिताः ।
स देशश्च दुरन्वेषो गुहागहनवान् महान् ॥ ७ ॥
त्यक्त्वा तु तं ततो देशं सर्वे वै हरियूथपाः ।
देशमन्यं दुराधर्षं विविशुश्चाकुतोभयाः ॥ ८ ॥
यत्र वन्ध्यफला वृक्षा विपुष्पाः पर्णवर्जिताः ।
निस्तोयाः सरितो यत्र मूलं यत्र सुदुर्लभम् ॥ ९ ॥
न सन्ति महिषा यत्र न मृगा न च हस्तिनः ।
शार्दूलाः पक्षिणो वापि ये चान्ये वनगोचराः ॥ १० ॥

Having scoured even such forests, although that vast region was difficult to comb, full of caves and thick forests as it was, and presently leaving that region, severely tormented as they were with hunger and thirst as a result of roaming in a waterless tract, all the monkey chiefs for their part, who had no fear from any quarter, penetrated in a body into another region, which was difficult to assail, and where the trees were unfruitful, flowerless and even without leaves nay, where the streams were devoid of water and where even roots were most difficult to get, where there were no buffaloes nor deer nor elephants nor tigers nor even birds nor any other animals found in a forest. (7—10)

न चात्र वृक्षा नौषध्यो न वल्लयो नापि वीरुधः ।
स्निग्धपत्राः स्थले यत्र पद्मिन्यः फुल्लपङ्कजाः ॥ ११ ॥
प्रेक्षणीयाः सुगन्धाश्च भ्रमरैश्च विवर्जिताः ।
कण्डुर्नाम महाभागः सत्यवादी तपोधनः ॥ १२ ॥
महर्षिः परमामर्षी नियमैर्दुष्प्रधर्षणः ।
तस्य तस्मिन् वने पुत्रो बालको दशवार्षिकः ॥ १३ ॥
प्रणष्टो जीवितान्ताय क्रुद्धस्तेन महामुनिः ।
तेन धर्मात्मना शप्तं कृत्स्नं तत्र महद्वनम् ॥ १४ ॥
अशरण्यं दुराधर्षं मृगपक्षिविवर्जितम् ।
तस्य ते काननान्तांस्तु गिरीणां कन्दराणि च ॥ १५ ॥
प्रभवाणि नदीनां च विचिन्वन्ति समाहिताः ।
तत्र चापि महात्मानो नापश्यञ्जनकात्मजाम् ॥ १६ ॥
हर्तारं रावणं वापि सुग्रीवप्रियकारिणः ।
ते प्रविश्य तु तं भीमं लतागुल्मसमावृतम् ॥ १७ ॥
ददृशुर्भीमकर्माणमसुरं सुरनिर्भयम् ।
तं दृष्ट्वा वानरा घोरं स्थितं शैलमिवासुरम् ॥ १८ ॥

Here there were neither trees nor annual plants nor climbers nor creepers nor were there in that area lotus plants with smooth leaves nor open lotuses charming to look at and fragrant and frequented by bees. There was an eminent sage, Kaṇḍu by name, who was highly blessed and truthful of speech, whose only wealth was his asceticism, who was supremely irascible and was difficult to overcome by virtue of his austerities. In that forest there lived in the past his son, a ten-year-old boy, who died in that he had reached the end of his life. The great sage felt enraged because of this mishap.

Subjected at that juncture to a curse by that pious-minded soul, the whole of the vast forest became unfit to harbour any creature, difficult to assail and devoid of beasts and birds. The monkeys, for their part, who were inclined to do what was pleasing to Sugrīva, carefully explored the forest regions of that area as well as the mountain caves as also the sources of rivers. Yet even there the high-souled ones did not find Sītā (the daughter of King Janaka), nor even her abductor, Rāvaṇa. Having penetrated into that dreadful forest, which was overgrown with creepers and briars, the monkeys for their part beheld a fearful demon of terrible deeds, who had no fear from gods (by virtue of a boon granted by them). The monkeys felt disquieted to see that frightful demon standing like a hill. (11—18)

गाढं परिहिताः सर्वे दृष्ट्वा तं पर्वतोपमम्।
सोऽपि तान् वानरान् सर्वान् नष्टाः स्थेत्यब्रवीद् बली ॥ १९ ॥

Seeing the demon, who looked like a mountain, all the monkeys stood with their loins tightly girded. The mighty demon too threatened all those monkeys, saying : “You are gone !” (19)

अभ्यधावत संकुब्धो मुष्टिमुद्यम्य संगतम्।
तमापतन्तं सहसा वालिपुत्रोऽङ्गदस्तदा ॥ २० ॥
रावणोऽयमिति ज्ञात्वा तलेनाभिजघान ह।
स वालिपुत्राभिहतो वक्त्राच्छेणितमुद्वमन् ॥ २१ ॥

असुरो न्यपतद् भूमौ पर्यस्त इव पर्वतः।
ते तु तस्मिन् निरुच्छ्वासे वानरा जितकाशिनः ॥ २२ ॥
व्यचिन्वन् प्रायशस्तत्र सर्वं ते गिरिगह्वरम्।
विचितं तु ततः सर्वं सर्वे ते काननौकसः ॥ २३ ॥
अन्यदेवापरं घोरं विविशुर्गिरिगह्वरम्।
ते विचित्य पुनः खिन्ना विनिष्पत्य समागताः।
एकान्ते वृक्षमूले तु निषेदुर्दीनमानसाः ॥ २४ ॥

Highly enraged, Aṅgada, son of Vālī, forthwith rushed to meet the demon, who was swooping upon him raising his clenched fist (to strike Aṅgada), and struck him with his palm, thinking him to be Rāvaṇa : so the tradition goes. Vomiting blood from his mouth when struck by Aṅgada (son of Vālī), the said demon fell flat on the ground like a mountain thrown off its base. The said wicked fellow being dead, the monkeys, who shone with a triumphant air, ransacked once more almost all the mountain-caves in that region (mistaking the demon to be Rāvaṇa). When the entire region had been explored without any result, all the aforesaid monkeys for their part then penetrated into another fearful mountain-cave, which was not distant. Coming out exhausted after the search, the monkeys assembled once more at the foot of a tree in a lonely place and sat down distressed in mind due to frustration. (20—24)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डेऽष्टचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-eight in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto XLIX

Asking the monkeys who accompanied him to the south and who had begun to feel diffident about their success to take note of the delay that was taking place in carrying out the command of Sugrīva and to beware of Sugrīva's wrath, which was sure to follow in consequence of the delay, Aṅgada advises them to take heart and encourages them to pursue their search vigorously. Encouraged by his enlivening words, they sally forth once more to renew their search in the cave of the Silver Mountain and, getting exhausted after a strenuous search, repose awhile in a grove and get ready to resume their efforts

अथाङ्गदस्तदा सर्वान् वानरानिदमब्रवीत् ।
परिश्रान्तो महाप्राज्ञः समाश्वास्य शनैर्वचः ॥ १ ॥

Reassuring all the monkeys (which had accompanied him), the highly intelligent Aṅgada, who was thoroughly exhausted as a result of the strenuous search, now slowly addressed the following exhortation to them on that occasion : (1)

वनानि गिरयो नद्यो दुर्गाणि गहनानि च ।
दरी गिरिगुहाश्चैव विचिताः सर्वमन्ततः ॥ २ ॥
तत्र तत्र सहास्माभिर्जानकी न च दृश्यते ।
तथा रक्षोऽपहर्ता च सीतायाश्चैव दुष्कृती ॥ ३ ॥

"Woods, mountains, rivers, places difficult of access and impenetrable forests, holes in the ground as well as mountain-caves have all been finally ransacked by us together everywhere. Sītā (the daughter of King Janaka) is, however, not to be seen, nor even the ogre, Rāvaṇa, of sinful deeds, the abductor of Sītā. (2-3)

कालश्च नो महान् यातः सुग्रीवश्चोग्रशासनः ।
तस्माद् भवन्तः सहिता विचिन्वन्तु समन्ततः ॥ ४ ॥

"A considerable time has moreover slipped past us and Sugrīva rules with an iron hand. Therefore, you should carry on the search all round together. (4)

विहाय तन्त्रीं शोकं च निद्रां चैव समुत्थिताम् ।
विचिनुध्वं तथा सीतां पश्यामो जनकात्मजाम् ॥ ५ ॥

"Giving up languor, grief and sleep that has fully come over you, search for Sītā in such a way that we may discover the daughter of Janaka. (5)

अनिर्वेदं च दाक्ष्यं च मनसश्चापराजयम् ।
कार्यसिद्धिकराण्याहुस्तस्मादेतद् ब्रवीम्यहम् ॥ ६ ॥

"They speak of untiring zeal and capability and indefatigability of spirit as conducive to success; hence do I speak to you as follows: (6)

अद्यापीदं वनं दुर्गं विचिन्वन्तु वनौकसः ।
खेदं त्यक्त्वा पुनः सर्वं वनमेव विचिन्वताम् ॥ ७ ॥

"Let all the monkeys comb this forest, which is difficult of access, even today. Shaking off lassitude, let them scour the entire forest once more. (7)

अवश्यं कुर्वतां तस्य दृश्यते कर्मणः फलम् ।
परं निर्वेदमागम्य नहि नोन्मीलनं क्षमम् ॥ ८ ॥

"To those who are engaged in action the fruit of that action invariably becomes manifest; it is, therefore, not at all advisable to become inert, giving way to utter despondency. (8)

सुग्रीवः क्रोधनो राजा तीक्ष्णदण्डश्च वानराः ।
भेतव्यं तस्य सततं रामस्य च महात्मनः ॥ ९ ॥

"King Sugrīva, O monkeys, is irascible and metes out severe punishment. We should remain in constant dread of him as well as of the high-souled Śrī Rāma. (9)

हितार्थमेतदुक्तं वः क्रियतां यदि रोचते।

उच्यतां हि क्षमं यत् तत् सर्वेषामेव वानराः ॥ १० ॥

“This advice of mine, intended as it is for your good, may be followed if it pleases you. And if it does not appeal to you, that which is really advisable for one and all may kindly be pointed out to me, O monkeys !” (10)

अङ्गदस्य वचः श्रुत्वा वचनं गन्धमादनः।

उवाच व्यक्तया वाचा पिपासाश्रमखिन्नया ॥ ११ ॥

Hearing the advice of Aṅgada, Gandhamādana (another leader of monkeys) replied as follows in a clear voice faint from thirst and exhaustion : (11)

सदृशं खलु वो वाक्यमङ्गदो यदुवाच ह।

हितं चैवानुकूलं च क्रियतामस्य भाषितम् ॥ १२ ॥

“The advice which Aṅgada has tendered to you is indeed worthy of him, and conducive to your interests and agreeable to you; his advice may, therefore, be followed. (12)

पुनर्मार्गामहे शैलान् कन्दरांश्च शिलांस्तथा।

काननानि च शून्यानि गिरिप्रस्त्रवणानि च ॥ १३ ॥

यथोद्दिष्टानि सर्वाणि सुग्रीवेण महात्मना।

विचिन्वन्तु वनं सर्वे गिरिदुर्गाणि संगताः ॥ १४ ॥

“Let us ransack once more the mountains and caves as also the rocks and all the desolate forests and mountain cascades specified by the high-souled Sugrīva. Let all the monkeys scour in a body the forest as well as the mountain defiles.” (13-14)

ततः समुत्थाय पुनर्वानरास्ते महाबलाः।

विन्ध्यकाननसंकीर्णा विचेरुर्दक्षिणां दिशम् ॥ १५ ॥

Rising up together, the aforesaid monkeys, who were all possessed of extraordinary strength, thereupon ranged once more the southern quarter dense with the Vindhyan forest. (15)

ते शारदाभ्रप्रतिमं श्रीमद्रजतपर्वतम्।

शृङ्गवन्तं दरीवन्तमधिरुह्य च वानराः ॥ १६ ॥

तत्र लोध्रवनं रम्यं सप्तपर्णवनानि च।

विचिन्वन्तो हरिवराः सीतादर्शनकांक्षिणः ॥ १७ ॥

Scaling the glorious Silver Mountain, which resembled an autumnal cloud and abounded in peaks and caverns, the aforesaid monkeys, the foremost of their species who longed for a sight of Sītā, began to comb the lovely grove of Lodhra trees and the clumps of Saptaparnā trees on that mountain. (16-17)

तस्याग्रमधिरुढास्ते श्रान्ता विपुलविक्रमाः।

न पश्यन्ति स्म वैदेहीं रामस्य महिषीं प्रियाम् ॥ १८ ॥

Having climbed up a summit of that mountain, the monkeys, who were endowed with extraordinary prowess, felt exhausted, but they could not find Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), the beloved consort of Śrī Rāma. (18)

ते तु दृष्टिगतं दृष्ट्वा तं शैलं बहुकन्दरम्।

अध्यारोहन्त हरयो वीक्षमाणाः समन्ततः ॥ १९ ॥

Having explored that mountain, which had many caves, so far as it came within the range of their sight, the said monkeys for their part climbed down, casting their eyes all round even then. (19)

अवरुह्य ततो भूमिं श्रान्ता विगतचेतसः।

स्थिता मुहूर्तं तत्राथ वृक्षमूलमुपाश्रिताः ॥ २० ॥

Descending to the base, the monkeys, who were fatigued and perplexed, then sought the foot of a tree and halted there awhile. (20)

ते मुहूर्तं समाश्रुताः किञ्चिद्भ्रमपरिश्रमाः।

पुनरेवोद्यताः कृत्स्नां मार्गितुं दक्षिणां दिशम् ॥ २१ ॥

Having rested awhile and their fatigue relieved a bit, they got ready to explore the whole of the southern quarter over again. (21)

हनुमत्प्रमुखास्तावत् प्रस्थिताः प्लवगर्षभाः।

विन्ध्यमेवादितः कृत्वा विचेरुश्च समन्ततः ॥ २२ ॥

Having set out at once on their expedition, the foremost of monkeys, led by Hanumān, circumambulated the Vindhyan range itself to begin with. (22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे एकोनपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ४९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-nine in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto L

The time appointed by Sugrīva for finding out the whereabouts of Sītā in the southern quarter having been exceeded in ransacking the caves of the Vindhyan range, which were hard to explore, Hanumān and others, who were tormented with hunger and thirst, catch sight of a cave known by the name of Ṛkṣabila. Concluding, from the presence of birds with wet wings at the entrance of the cave, that there must be water inside, the monkeys enter the cave, which was enveloped in thick darkness, in a line holding the hand of one another.

Proceeding to a short distance, the monkeys behold an ascetic woman in a strange spot illumined by trees of gold. Greeting her, Hanumān inquires of her the name of the place

सह ताराङ्गदाभ्यां तु संगम्य हनुमान् कपिः ।
विचिनोति च विन्ध्यस्य गुहाश्च गहनानि च ॥ १ ॥
सिंहशार्दूलजुष्टाश्च गुहाश्च परितस्तदा ।
विषमेषु नगेन्द्रस्य महाप्रस्त्रवणेषु च ॥ २ ॥

Joining hands with Tāra and Aṅgada, the monkey, Hanumān for his part began to explore the caves as well as the dense forests of the Vindhyan range as also the caves inhabited by lions and tigers, round about in the corners of that lord of mountains, rugged slopes and by the side of big waterfalls. (1-2)
आसेदुस्तस्य शैलस्य कोटिं दक्षिणपश्चिमाम् ।
तेषां तत्रैव वसतां स कालो व्यत्यवर्तत ॥ ३ ॥

They now reached the south-western summit of that mountain. While they continued on that summit the time appointed by Sugrīva for the search clearly slipped away. (3)

स हि देशो दुरन्वेष्टो गुहागहनवान् महान् ।
तत्र वायुसुतः सर्वं विचिनोति स्म पर्वतम् ॥ ४ ॥

That region, vast as it was, was also difficult to explore inasmuch as it was full of caves and impenetrable forests. Yet Hanumān, son of the wind-god, scoured the whole of the mountain in that region. (4)

परस्परेण रहिता अन्योन्यस्याविदूरतः ।
गजो गवाक्षो गवयः शरभो गन्धमादनः ॥ ५ ॥
मैन्दश्च द्विविदश्चैव हनूमान् जाम्बवानपि ।
अङ्गदो युवराजश्च तारश्च वनगोचरः ॥ ६ ॥
गिरिजालावृतान् देशान् मार्गित्वा दक्षिणां दिशम् ।
विचिन्वन्तस्ततस्तत्र ददृशुर्विवृतं बिलम् ॥ ७ ॥
दुर्गमृक्षबिलं नाम दानवेनाभिरक्षितम् ।
क्षुत्पिपासापरीतास्तु श्रान्तास्तु सलिलार्थिनः ॥ ८ ॥
अवकीर्णं लतावृक्षैर्ददृशुस्ते महाबिलम् ।
तत्र क्रौञ्चाश्च हंसाश्च सारसाश्चापि निष्क्रमन् ॥ ९ ॥
जलाद्राश्रकवाकाश्च रक्ताङ्गाः पद्मरेणुभिः ।
ततस्तद् बिलमासाद्य सुगन्धि दुरतिक्रमम् ॥ १० ॥

विस्मयव्यग्रमनसो बभूवुर्वानरर्षभाः ।
 संजातपरिशङ्कास्ते तद् बिलं प्लवगोत्तमाः ॥ ११ ॥
 अभ्यपद्यन्त संहृष्टास्तेजोवन्तो महाबलाः ।
 नानासत्त्वसमाकीर्णं दैत्येन्द्रनिलयोपमम् ॥ १२ ॥
 दुर्दर्शमिव घोरं च दुर्विगाहं च सर्वशः ।
 ततः पर्वतकूटाभो हनूमान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ १३ ॥
 अब्रवीद् वानरान् घोरान् कान्तारवनकोविदः ।
 गिरिजालावृतान् देशान् मार्गित्वा दक्षिणां दिशम् ॥ १४ ॥
 वयं सर्वे परिश्रान्ता न च पश्याम मैथिलीम् ।
 अस्माच्चापि बिलाद्धंसाः क्रौञ्चाश्च सह सारसैः ॥ १५ ॥
 जलार्द्राश्चक्रवाकाश्च निष्पतन्ति स्म सर्वशः ।
 नूनं सलिलवानत्र कूपो वा यदि वा ह्रदः ॥ १६ ॥

Having explored the areas covered by a network of mountains while combing the southern quarter apart from one another, yet not very far from one another, Gaja, Gavākṣa, Gavaya, Śarabha, Gandhamādana and Mainda, as also Dwivida, Hanumān, also Jāmbavān, Aṅgada, the Prince Regent, and the monkey Tāra presently saw there a cave, Rkṣabila by name, which had its mouth open, though the cave was difficult of access and was guarded by a demon (Maya by name). Overcome by hunger and thirst as they were and exhausted too, and seeking water, they for their part cast their eyes on the large cave, which was screened by climbers and trees. Herons and swans and cranes as well as Cakrawāka birds (a species of red geese) wet with water, their limbs reddened with the pollen of lotuses, emerged from the cave. Reaching that cave, which was emitting fragrance and was difficult to enter, the aforesaid jewels among the monkeys thereupon stood bewildered in mind through wonder.

Hope of getting water inside the cave having been instilled in them by the sight of birds wet with water, the said leaders of monkeys, who were full of spirit and possessed of extraordinary strength and were transported with joy at the prospect of obtaining water, approached that cave, which was crowded with every kind of creature and resembled Pātāla (the abode of the rulers of Daityas, nay, which was fearful and difficult to behold and hard to penetrate into in everyway. Thereupon Hanumān, son of the wind-god, who looked like a mountain-peak and was capable of entering forests which were difficult to penetrate into, spoke as follows to the redoubtable monkeys: "Having combed the southern quarter consisting of regions covered with a network of mountains we all feel exhausted, yet we are not finding Sītā (a princess of Mithilā). And from this cave emerge on all sides swans and herons with cranes as also Cakrawāka birds (a species of red geese) wet with water. Surely, therefore, there must be a well of fresh water or pool in the cave.

(5—16)

तथा चेमे बिलद्वारे स्निग्धास्तिष्ठन्ति पादपाः ।
 इत्युक्तास्तद् बिलं सर्वे विविशुस्तिमिरावृतम् ॥ १७ ॥
 अचन्द्रसूर्यं हरयो ददृशू रोमहर्षणम् ।
 निशाम्य तस्मात् सिंहांश्च तांस्तांश्च मृगपक्षिणः ॥ १८ ॥
 प्रविष्टा हरिशार्दूला बिलं तिमिरसंवृतम् ।
 न तेषां सज्जते दृष्टिर्न तेजो न पराक्रमः ॥ १९ ॥

"Moreover, these trees at the entrance of the cave are green." Spoken to, as aforesaid, by Hanumān, all the monkeys entered that cave, which was enveloped in darkness, and found it impenetrable by the rays of the sun and the moon and as such causing the hair to stand on end. Encouraged by seeing lions as well as other beasts and birds of different species emerging from the cave those tigers among monkeys penetrated deep into the cave veiled by darkness. Neither did their vision fail nor their spirit nor, again, their prowess.

(17—19)

वायोरिव गतिस्तेषां दृष्टिस्तमसि वर्तते ।
 ते प्रविष्टास्तु वेगेन तद् बिलं कपिकुञ्जराः ॥ २० ॥
 प्रकाशं चाभिरामं च ददृशुर्देशमुत्तमम् ।
 ततस्तस्मिन् बिले भीमे नानापादपसंकुले ॥ २१ ॥

अन्योन्यं सम्परिष्वज्य जग्मुर्योजनमन्तरम् ।
 ते नष्टसंज्ञास्तृषिताः सम्भ्रान्ताः सलिलार्थिनः ॥ २२ ॥
 परिपेतुर्बिले तस्मिन् कंचित् कालमतन्द्रिताः ।
 ते कृशा दीनवदनाः परिश्रान्ताः प्लवङ्गमाः ॥ २३ ॥
 आलोकं ददृशुर्वीरा निराशा जीविते यदा ।
 ततस्तं देशमागम्य सौम्या वितिमिरं वनम् ॥ २४ ॥
 ददृशुः काञ्चनान् वृक्षान् दीप्तवैश्वानरप्रभान् ।
 सालांस्तालांस्तमालांश्च पुंनागान् वज्जुलान् धवान् ॥ २५ ॥
 चम्पकान् नागवृक्षांश्च कर्णिकारांश्च पुष्पितान् ।
 स्तबकैः काञ्चनैश्चित्रै रक्तैः किसलयैस्तथा ॥ २६ ॥
 आपीडैश्च लताभिश्च हेमाभरणभूषितान् ।
 तरुणादित्यसंकाशान् वैदूर्यमयवेदिकान् ॥ २७ ॥
 बिभ्राजमानान् वपुषा पादपांश्च हिरण्मयान् ।
 नीलवैदूर्यवर्णाश्च पद्मिनीः पतगैर्वृताः ॥ २८ ॥

Their movement was uninterrupted like that of the wind as also their vision in the darkness. Having penetrated deep into that cave with speed, the aforesaid elephants among monkeys for their part caught sight of an excellent spot which was not only clear to view but also delightful. Catching hold of one another, they then headed to a distance of a Yojana (or eight miles) in that terrible cave thick with trees of every species. Seeking water, seized as they were with thirst and, therefore, bewildered and absent-minded, they progressed through that cave for some time free from lassitude. When the said heroic monkeys—which were emaciated through hunger and thirst and exhausted and looked melancholy—grew despondent about their life, they beheld a light. Reaching the aforesaid bright region, a light grove, the gentle ones saw there trees of gold possessing the brilliance of a blazing fire—sal, palmyra and Tamāla, Punnāga, Vañjula, Dhava, Campaka and Nāga as well as Karṇikāra trees in blossom with wonderful golden clusters of flowers and tender crimson leaves for their chaplets, nay, entwined by climbers and adorned with gold ornaments (yielded by the trees themselves). They also beheld trees of gold dazzling like the rising sun and shining brightly with their own bodies and standing on bases of cat's-eye gems, as well as lotus plants possessing the hue of blue cat's-eye gems and surrounded by birds. (20—28)

महद्भिः काञ्चनैर्वृक्षैर्वृता बालार्कसंनिभैः ।
 जातरूपमयैर्मत्स्यैर्महद्भिश्चाथ पङ्कजैः ॥ २९ ॥
 नलिनीस्तत्र ददृशुः प्रसन्नसलिलायुताः ।
 काञ्चनानि विमानानि राजतानि तथैव च ॥ ३० ॥
 तपनीयगवाक्षाणि मुक्ताजालावृतानि च ।
 हैमराजतभौमानि वैदूर्यमणिमन्ति च ॥ ३१ ॥
 ददृशुस्तत्र हरयो गृहमुख्यानि सर्वशः ।
 पुष्पितान् फलिनो वृक्षान् प्रवालमणिसंनिभान् ॥ ३२ ॥
 काञ्चनभ्रमरांश्चैव मधूनि च समन्ततः ।
 मणिकाञ्चनचित्राणि शयनान्यासनानि च ॥ ३३ ॥
 विविधानि विशालानि ददृशुस्ते समन्ततः ।
 हैमराजतकांस्यानां भाजनानां च राशयः ॥ ३४ ॥
 अगुरुणां च दिव्यानां चन्दनानां च संचयान् ।
 शुचीन्यभ्यवहाराणि मूलानि च फलानि च ॥ ३५ ॥
 महार्हाणि च यानानि मधूनि रसवन्ति च ।
 दिव्यानामम्बराणां च महार्हाणां च संचयान् ॥ ३६ ॥
 कम्बलानां च चित्राणामजिनानां च संचयान् ।
 तत्र तत्र च विन्यस्तान् दीप्तान् वैश्वानरप्रभान् ॥ ३७ ॥
 ददृशुर्वानराः शुभ्राञ्जातरूपस्य संचयान् ।
 तत्र तत्र विचिन्वन्तो बिले तत्र महाप्रभाः ॥ ३८ ॥
 ददृशुर्वानराः शूराः स्त्रियं कांचिददूरतः ।
 तां च ते ददृशुस्तत्र चीरकृष्णाजिनाम्बराम् ॥ ३९ ॥
 तापसीं नियताहारां ज्वलन्तीमिव तेजसा ।
 विस्मिता हरयस्तत्र व्यवतिष्ठन्त सर्वशः ।
 पप्रच्छ हनुमांस्तत्र कासि त्वं कस्य वा बिलम् ॥ ४० ॥

They further saw in that grove lotus-ponds full of pellucid water, nay, hemmed in with giant trees of gold shining brightly as the morning sun and adorned with golden fish and also with big lotuses. The monkeys also saw there palaces of gold as well as of silver and also on all sides mansions of gold, silver and earthly substances such as bricks, lime etc., and set with cat's-eye gems, with air-holes of gold and protected with lattices of pearls. They further beheld on all sides trees laden with blossom and fruit and shining brightly as coral and ruby with golden bees hovering about them, as also honeys of various kinds on all sides and, even so, spacious couches and seats of various kinds set with gems and gold, again heaps of vessels of gold, silver and bell-metal and also collections of aloe-wood and sandal-wood of the Divya class, pure foods as well as roots and fruits, costly conveyances (palanquins etc.) and delicious honeys, piles of costly ethereal textiles as also piles of excellent blankets and deerskins. The monkeys also saw dazzling and immaculate heaps of gold placed here and there and resplendent as fire. Looking about here and there in that cave, the heroic monkeys, which were possessed of extraordinary brilliance, beheld a certain woman at a short distance from them. Nay, they found her to be an ascetic woman clad in bark and black antelope skin, restrained in her diet and burning as it were with glory on that spot. Full of astonishment the monkeys halted there at some distance on all sides. Of them, Hanumān approached her with the following question: "Who are you and whose cave is this?" (29—40)

ततो हनूमान् गिरिसंनिकाशः

कृताञ्जलिस्तामभिवाद्य वृद्धाम्।

पप्रच्छ का त्वं भवनं बिलं च

रत्नानि चेमानि वदस्व कस्य ॥ ४१ ॥

Greeting that aged woman with joined palms, Hanumān, who greatly resembled a mountain, then put the following question to her: "Who are you and to whom do this cave, building and these precious stones belong? Pray, speak out." (41)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे पञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५० ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LI

Telling the monkeys how the cave was brought into existence, the ascetic woman, whose name was Swayamprabhā, feeds the newcomers, the monkeys, with fruits and roots etc., and, when they had taken rest, inquires of them what brought them to that spot

इत्युक्त्वा हनुमांस्तत्र चीरकृष्णाजिनाम्बराम्।
अब्रवीत् तां महाभागां तापसीं धर्मचारिणीम् ॥ १ ॥

Having questioned as aforesaid the highly blessed ascetic woman, who was clad in bark and black antelope skin and was practising virtue there, Hanumān submitted to her as follows : (1)

इदं प्रविष्टाः सहसा बिलं तिमिरसंवृतम्।
क्षुत्पिपासापरिश्रान्ताः परिखिन्नाश्च सर्वशः ॥ २ ॥

"Exhausted with hunger and thirst and fully tired in everyway, we rashly penetrated deep into this cave completely shrouded in darkness. (2)

महद् धरण्या विवरं प्रविष्टाः स्म पिपासिताः।
इमांस्त्वेवंविधान् भावान् विविधानद्भुतोपमान् ॥ ३ ॥
दृष्ट्वा वयं प्रव्यथिताः सम्भ्रान्ता नष्टचेतसः।
कस्यैते काञ्चना वृक्षास्तरुणादित्यसंनिभाः ॥ ४ ॥
शुचीन्यभ्यवहाराणि मूलानि च फलानि च।
काञ्चनानि विमानानि राजतानि गृहाणि च ॥ ५ ॥
तपनीयगवाक्षाणि मणिजालावृतानि च।
पुष्पिताः फलवन्तश्च पुण्याः सुरभिगन्धयः ॥ ६ ॥

इमे जाम्बूनदमयाः पादपाः कस्य तेजसा ।
काञ्चनानि च पद्मानि जातानि विमले जले ॥ ७ ॥

“Beholding such diverse curio-like objects on entering this large hole in the earth’s surface, seized with thirst, as we were, we felt bewildered, disquieted and distracted to think that they might be products of demoniac Māyā or enchantment. Whose property are these golden trees shining brightly like the rising sun, pure foods as also roots and fruits golden palaces and mansions of silver provided with windows of gold and protected with lattices of gems? By whose spiritual power have these holy golden trees full of blossom and fruit and emitting a fragrant smell been brought into existence? And through whose might have these golden lotuses sprung up in the pellucid water? (3—7)

कथं मत्स्याश्च सौवर्णा दृश्यन्ते सह कच्छपैः ।
आत्मनस्त्वनुभावाद् वा कस्य चैतत्तपोबलम् ॥ ८ ॥

“Again, how do fishes alongwith turtles appear golden? Is this attributable to your own might or is this the spiritual power of someone else acquired through askesis? (8)

अजानतां नः सर्वेषां सर्वमाख्यातुमर्हसि ।
एवमुक्ता हनुमता तापसी धर्मचारिणी ॥ ९ ॥
प्रत्युवाच हनूमन्तं सर्वभूतहिते रता ।
मयो नाम महतेजा मायावी वानरर्षभ ॥ १० ॥

“Be pleased to point out everything to us all, who are ignorant in this matter.” Questioned thus by Hanumān, the ascetic woman, who was practising virtue and was devoted to the good of all created beings, replied to Hanumān as follows : “There is a conjurer, Maya by name, who is endowed with great energy, O jewel among the monkeys ! (9-10)

तेनेदं निर्मितं सर्वं मायया काञ्चनं वनम् ।
पुरा दानवमुख्यानां विश्वकर्मा बभूव ह ॥ ११ ॥

“By him alone was this entire golden grove brought into existence by his wonderful architectural skill. Formerly, they say, he was the architect of the demon chiefs. (11)

येनेदं काञ्चनं दिव्यं निर्मितं भवनोत्तमम् ।
स तु वर्षसहस्राणि तपस्तप्त्वा महद्वने ॥ १२ ॥
पितामहाद् वरं लेभे सर्वमौशनसं धनम् ।
विधाय सर्वं बलवान् सर्वकामेश्वरस्तदा ॥ १३ ॥
उवास सुखितः कालं कंचिदस्मिन् महावने ।
तमप्सरसि हेमायां सक्तं दानवपुङ्गवम् ॥ १४ ॥
विक्रम्यैवाशनिं गृह्य जघानेशः पुरंदरः ।
इदं च ब्रह्मणा दत्तं हेमायै वनमुत्तमम् ॥ १५ ॥
शाश्वतः कामभोगश्च गृहं चेदं हिरण्यमयम् ।
दुहिता मेरुसावर्णेरहं तस्याः स्वयंप्रभा ॥ १६ ॥
इदं रक्षामि भवनं हेमाया वानरोत्तम ।
मम प्रियसखी हेमा नृत्तगीतविशारदा ॥ १७ ॥

“By him was this foremost ethereal golden palace constructed. Having practised austerities in this extensive grove for thousands of years, he for his part secured from Brahmā (the father of the progenitors of the universe) as a boon the entire wealth of Sage Śukra (in the form of his marvellous creative power as well as all the materials required for creation and the science of architecture, which is attributed to the said sage). Having accomplished everything, the mighty Maya, who had absolute control over all the objects of enjoyment evolved by him then lived happily for some time in this large grove. Seizing his thunderbolt and assailing the said demon chief, who was found attached to the celestial nymph Hemā, Indra (the destroyer of strong-holds), the ruler of gods, made short work of him. Nay, this excellent grove was bestowed on Hemā by Brahmā (the creator), as also perpetual enjoyment of luxuries and this golden mansion. I, Swayamprabhā by name, daughter of Merusāvarṇi, guard this dwelling of the said Hemā, O jewel among the monkeys! Hemā, who is my beloved friend, is an adept in the arts of dancing and singing. (12—17)

तयादत्तवरा चास्मि रक्षामि भवनं महत् ।
किं कार्यं कस्य वा हेतोः कान्ताराणि प्रपद्यथ ॥ १८ ॥

“And I, from whom a boon has been secured by her for the protection of her house, guard the huge building on her behalf. What is your purpose in coming over here and for whose sake do you tread these difficult paths? (18)

कथं चेदं वनं दुर्गं युष्माभिरुपलक्षितम् ।
शुचीन्यभ्यवहाराणि मूलानि च फलानि च ।
भुक्त्वा पीत्वा च पानीयं सर्वं मे वक्तुमर्हसि ॥ १९ ॥

“Again, how has this grove, which is difficult of access, been found by you? Having partaken of these pure foods as well as of the roots and fruits and drunk the water which are being offered by me, you ought to tell me everything.” (19)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे एकपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-one in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्विपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LII

Narrating the whole story from the entry of Śrī Rāma into the forest round about the Pampā lake down to the entry of the monkeys into the cave, and complimenting Swayamprabhā on the hospitality shown by her and wishing to repay her hospitality, Hanumān inquires of her if he can be of any service to her. Swayamprabhā, however, declines his offer saying that, being engaged in the practice of virtue, she has no purpose to achieve through another

अथ तानब्रवीत् सर्वान् विश्रान्तान् हरियूथपान् ।
इदं वचनमेकाग्रा तापसी धर्मचारिणी ॥ १ ॥

To all those leaders of monkey bands, when they had rested awhile after accepting her hospitality, the ascetic woman, who was engaged in practising virtue and had focussed her attention on that one object, now spoke the following words : (1)

वानरा यदि वः खेदः प्रणष्टः फलभक्षणात् ।
यदि चैतन्मया श्राव्यं श्रोतुमिच्छामि तां कथाम् ॥ २ ॥

“If, O monkeys, your fatigue has been fully relieved by partaking of the fruits offered by me and if your story admits of being listened to by me, I long to hear that story.” (2)

तस्यास्तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा हनूमान् मारुतात्मजः ।
आर्जवेन यथातत्त्वमाख्यातुमुपचक्रमे ॥ ३ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid request of Swayamprabhā, Hanumān, son of the wind-god, proceeded with perfect candour to narrate his story correctly. (3)

राजा सर्वस्य लोकस्य महेन्द्रवरुणोपमः ।
रामो दाशरथिः श्रीमान् प्रविष्टो दण्डकावनम् ॥ ४ ॥
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा वैदेह्या सह भार्यया ।
तस्य भार्या जनस्थानाद् रावणेन हृता बलात् ॥ ५ ॥

“The glorious son of Daśaratha, Śrī Rāma, the sovereign of the whole world and a compeer of the mighty Indra (the ruler of gods) and Varuṇa (the god of water), entered the Daṇḍaka forest alongwith his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, as well as with his spouse, Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory). His consort was forcibly carried away from Janasthāna by Rāvaṇa (while she was all alone in the cottage). (4-5)

वीरस्तस्य सखा राज्ञः सुग्रीवो नाम वानरः ।
 राजा वानरमुख्यानां येन प्रस्थापिता वयम् ॥ ६ ॥
 अगस्त्यचरितामाशां दक्षिणां यमरक्षिताम् ।
 सहैर्भवानैरुर्मुखैरङ्गदप्रमुखैर्वयम् ॥ ७ ॥
 रावणं सहिताः सर्वे राक्षसं कामरूपिणम् ।
 सीतया सह वैदेह्या मार्गध्वमिति चोदिताः ॥ ८ ॥

“A friend of the aforesaid sovereign is a valiant monkey, Sugrīva by name, the ruler of the foremost of monkeys, by whom we have been dispatched alongwith these leading monkeys, headed by Aṅgada, to the southern quarter, inhabited by Sage Agastya and protected by Yama (the god of retribution). And we have been commanded as follows : ‘Look out all of you together for the ogre, Rāvaṇa who is capable of changing his form at will, alongwith Sītā a princess of the Videha territory.’ (6—8)

विचित्य तु वनं सर्वं समुद्रं दक्षिणां दिशम् ।
 वयं बुभुक्षिताः सर्वे वृक्षमूलमुपाश्रिताः ॥ ९ ॥
 “Having scoured the entire forest in this area and eager to explore the ocean and the rest of the southern quarter we for our part all took shelter at the foot of a tree, hungry as we were. (9)

विवर्णवदनाः सर्वे सर्वे ध्यानपरायणाः ।
 नाधिगच्छामहे पारं मग्नाश्चिन्तामहार्णवे ॥ १० ॥

“All pale-faced and all absorbed in thought, we were sunk in an ocean of anxiety whose end we did not perceive, O lady ! (10)
 चारयन्तस्ततश्चक्षुर्दृष्टवन्तो महद् बिलम् ।
 लतापादपसंछन्नं तिमिरेण समावृतम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Casting our eyes all-round, we then beheld this extensive cave hidden by climbers and trees and totally enveloped in gloom. (11)
 अस्माद्धंसा जलक्लिन्नाः पक्षैः सलिलरेणुभिः ।
 कुरराः सारसाश्चैव निष्पतन्ति पतत्रिणः ॥ १२ ॥
 “From this cave, however, flew out birds, viz., swans, ospreys and cranes too, wet with water, their wings dusted with the pollen of lotuses. (12)

साध्वत्र प्रविशामेति मया तूक्ताः प्लवङ्गमाः ।
 तेषामपि हि सर्वेषामनुमानमुपागतम् ॥ १३ ॥
 “‘We had better penetrate deep into it:’ so were the monkeys told by me. The idea that water existed inside the cave equally struck all of them as well. (13)

अस्मिन् निपतिताः सर्वेऽप्यथ कार्यत्वरान्विताः ।
 ततो गाढं निपतिता गृह्य हतैः परस्परम् ॥ १४ ॥

“Full of hurry to accomplish our purpose we forthwith ventured into this cave one and all. Catching hold of one another by the hand, we then penetrated deep into it. (14)

इदं प्रविष्टाः सहसा बिलं तिमिरसंवृतम् ।
 एतन्नः कार्यमेतेन कृत्येन वयमागताः ॥ १५ ॥

“In this way we precipitately forced our way into this cave enveloped in darkness. This is our purpose and with this motive we have come to this place. (15)

त्वां चैवोपगताः सर्वे परिद्यूना बुभुक्षिताः ।
 आतिथ्यधर्मदत्तानि मूलानि च फलानि च ॥ १६ ॥
 अस्माभिरुपयुक्तानि बुभुक्षापरिपीडितैः ।
 यत् त्वया रक्षिताः सर्वे भ्रियमाणा बुभुक्षया ॥ १७ ॥
 ब्रूहि प्रत्युपकारार्थं किं ते कुर्वन्तु वानराः ।
 एवमुक्ता तु सर्वज्ञा वानरैस्तैः स्वयंप्रभा ॥ १८ ॥
 प्रत्युवाच ततः सर्वानिदं वानरयूथपान् ।
 सर्वेषां परितुष्टास्मि वानराणां तरस्विनाम् ॥ १९ ॥

“Nay, famished and wasted away we have all approached you. Sorely tried as we were by hunger, the roots and fruits too so kindly offered by you out of consideration for hospitality have been, partaken of by us. Since we have all been saved by you, dying as we were of starvation, pray, speak out what can the monkeys do to you in return for your invaluable service.” Spoken to in these words by those monkeys, the all-knowing Swayamprabhā for her part thereupon replied to all the monkey-leaders as follows : “I am highly pleased with you all, the monkeys, which are all heroic. (16—19)

चरन्त्या मम धर्मेण न कार्यमिह केनचित् ।
 एवमुक्तः शुभं वाक्यं तापस्या धर्मसंहितम् ॥ २० ॥

उवाच हनुमान् वाक्यं तामनिन्दितलोचनाम् ।
शरणं त्वां प्रपन्नाः स्मः सर्वे वै धर्मचारिणीम् ॥ २१ ॥
यः कृतः समयोऽस्मासु सुग्रीवेण महात्मना ।
स तु कालो व्यतिक्रान्तो बिले च परिवर्तताम् ॥ २२ ॥

“Passing, as I am, my time with righteousness, no object of mine will be served by anyone here.” Spoken to in these noble words, conformable to righteousness, by the hermitess, Hanumān replied as follows to that lady of irreproachable eyes : “We have all really come for protection to you, who are engaged in practising virtue. The time-limit which was fixed for us by the high-souled Sugrīva clearly expired even while we were actually roaming about in the cave. (20—22)

सा त्वमस्माद् बिलादस्मानुत्तारयितुमर्हसि ।
तस्मात् सुग्रीववचनादतिक्रान्तान् गतायुषः ॥ २३ ॥

“Situated as you are, you ought therefore to help out of this cave us, who have violated the command of Sugrīva and are as such doomed. (23)

त्रातुमर्हसि नः सर्वान् सुग्रीवभयशङ्कितान् ।
महच्च कार्यमस्माभिः कर्तव्यं धर्मचारिणि ॥ २४ ॥
तच्चापि न कृतं कार्यमस्माभिरिह वासिभिः ।
एवमुक्ता हनुमता तापसी वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ २५ ॥

“You ought to deliver us all, stricken as we are with fear of Sugrīva. Nay, a great task had to be accomplished by us, O lady engaged in practising virtue! While spending our time here even that work could not be executed by us.” Requested thus by Hanumān, the ascetic woman replied as follows : (24-25)

जीवता दुष्करं मन्ये प्रविष्टेन निवर्तितुम् ।
तपसः सुप्रभावेण नियमोपार्जितेन च ॥ २६ ॥
सर्वानेव बिलादस्मात् तारयिष्यामि वानरान् ।
निमीलयत चक्षूंषि सर्वे वानरपुङ्गवाः ॥ २७ ॥
नहि निष्क्रमितुं शक्यमनिमीलितलोचनैः ।
ततो निमीलिताः सर्वे सुकुमाराङ्गुलैः करैः ॥ २८ ॥

सहसा पिदधुर्दृष्टिं हृष्टा गमनकांक्षया ।
वानरास्तु महात्मानो हस्तरुद्धमुखास्तदा ॥ २९ ॥
निमेषान्तरमात्रेण बिलादुत्तारितास्तथा ।
उवाच सर्वास्तांस्तत्र तापसी धर्मचारिणी ॥ ३० ॥
निःसृतान् विषमात् तस्मात् समाश्वास्येदमब्रवीत् ।
एष विश्व्यो गिरिः श्रीमान् नानाद्रुमलतायुतः ॥ ३१ ॥
एष प्रस्रवणः शैलः सागरोऽयं महोदधिः ।
स्वस्ति वोऽस्तु गमिष्यामि भवनं वानरर्षभाः ।
इत्युक्त्वा तद् बिलं श्रीमत् प्रविवेश स्वयंप्रभा ॥ ३२ ॥

“I consider it difficult for anyone once entered into this cave to return alive. I shall, however, enable the monkeys one and all to emerge from this cave by the superior power of my asceticism duly acquired through restraint of the mind. Pray, all close your eyes, O bulls among the monkeys ! For it will not be possible for those whose eyes remain unclosed to get out of the cave.” Having closed their eyes, all the monkeys then joyously covered them all at once with their hands, possessed of soft fingers, with the desire of going out of the cave. Their faces still remaining covered with their hands, the high souled monkeys were for their part transported by her out of the cave in the twinkling of an eye at that juncture. Asking them all to take courage when they had come out of the danger, the ascetic woman, who was engaged in practising virtue, spoke to them as follows on that occasion outside the cave : “On this side stands the glorious Vindhyan range covered with trees and climbers of every species and there rises the Prasravaṇa mountain; while in the opposite direction stretches the Indian ocean. May good fortune attend on you ! I shall now return to my abode, O jewels among the monkeys !” Saying so, Swayamprabhā penetrated deep into the aforesaid splendid cave. (26—32)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे द्विपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-two in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LIII

While the monkeys were feeling dejected on coming out of the cave to see the trees covered with blossom, which led them to conclude that the latter half of winter had approached, Prince Aṅgada reminds them of the fierceness of Sugrīva and says that a fasting till death on their part will be preferable to an ignominious death at the latter's cruel hands. Another monkey general, Tāra, for his part suggests that they should take shelter in Swayamprabhā's cave and thus escape the wrath of Sugrīva, who dare not enter the cave. The monkeys fall in with the latter's view and make up their mind to re-enter the cave and take up their abode in it

ततस्ते ददृशुर्घोरं सागरं वरुणालयम् ।
अपारमभिगर्जन्तं घोरैरूर्मिभिराकुलम् ॥ १ ॥

“Then the monkeys beheld the shoreless ocean, the abode of Varuṇa (the god of waters), terribly roaring and wild with angry billows. (1)

मयस्य मायाविहितं गिरिदुर्गं विचिन्वताम् ।
तेषां मासो व्यतिक्रान्तो यो राज्ञा समयः कृतः ॥ २ ॥

While they were busy ransacking the mountain fastness brought into existence by recourse to a miraculous craftsmanship by the demon, Maya, the period of one month, which had been fixed as the time-limit for the search of Sītā by Sugrīva, the king, slipped away. (2)

विन्ध्यस्य तु गिरेः पादे सम्प्रपुष्पितपादपे ।
उपविश्य महात्मानश्चिन्तामापेदिरे तदा ॥ ३ ॥

Sitting down on a hill adjacent to the Vindhyan range, seeing the trees which had fully blossomed, the high-minded monkeys for their part fell a prey to anxious thought at that juncture. (3)

ततः पुष्यातिभाराग्राल्लताशतसमावृतान् ।
द्रुमान् वासन्तिकान् दृष्ट्वा बभूवुर्भयशङ्किताः ॥ ४ ॥

They now felt alarmed through fear of Sugrīva to perceive the mango and other vernal trees with their extremities bending under the overwhelming weight of blossom and covered with hundreds of climbers. (4)

ते वसन्तमनुप्राप्तं प्रतिवेद्य परस्परम् ।
नष्टसंदेशकालार्था निपेतुर्धरणीतले ॥ ५ ॥

Apprising one another of spring having approached, they sank to the ground, the task which had been entrusted to them for being completed within the appointed time having been utterly destroyed. (5)

ततस्तान् कपिवृद्धांश्च शिष्टांश्चैव वनौकसः ।
वाचा मधुरयाऽऽभाष्य यथावदनुमान्य च ॥ ६ ॥
स तु सिंहवृषस्कन्धः पीनायतभुजः कपिः ।
युवराजो महाप्राज्ञ अङ्गदो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ७ ॥

Addressing in a sweet tone and duly honouring the aforesaid elderly monkeys as well as the other monkeys, that highly intelligent monkey, Aṅgada, the Prince Regent of Kiṣkindhā, for his part, who had shoulders like those of a lion or a bull with stout and long arms, spoke as follows : (6-7)

शासनात् कपिराजस्य वयं सर्वे विनिर्गताः ।
मासः पूर्णो बिलस्थानां हरयः किं न बुध्यत ॥ ८ ॥

“We all set out in obedience to the command of Sugrīva (the lord of monkeys), O monkeys ! Don't you know that a full month elapsed even while we were tarrying in the cave? (8)

वयमाश्चयुजे मासि कालसंख्याव्यवस्थिताः ।
प्रस्थिताः सोऽपि चातीतः किमतः कार्यमुत्तरम् ॥ १॥

“Bound by a time-limit we sallied forth in the month of Āświna (roughly corresponding to September of the Gregorian calendar). That month too has passed. What should be done after this? (9)

भवन्तः प्रत्ययं प्राप्ता नीतिमार्गविशारदाः ।
हितेष्वभिरता भर्तुर्निसृष्टाः सर्वकर्मसु ॥ १० ॥

“You have earned the confidence of your master, are adept in the ways of propriety and devoted to his best interests and have been detailed by him on all sorts of errands. (10)

कर्मस्वप्रतिमाः सर्वे दिक्षु विश्रुतपौरुषाः ।
मां पुरस्कृत्य निर्याताः पिङ्गाक्षप्रतिचोदिताः ॥ ११ ॥

“You are incomparable in every work, your virility is well-known in every quarter. Commanded by Sugrīva (who is distinguished by his reddish brown eyes) you came away on this expedition placing me at your head. (11)

इदानीमकृतार्थानां मर्तव्यं नात्र संशयः ।
हरिराजस्य संदेशमकृत्वा कः सुखी भवेत् ॥ १२ ॥

“Now death is sure to befall us, who have failed to accomplish our purpose: there is no doubt about it. Having failed to execute the instructions of Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, who can hope to be happy? (12)

अस्मिन्नतीते काले तु सुग्रीवेण कृते स्वयम् ।
प्रायोपवेशनं युक्तं सर्वेषां च वनौकसाम् ॥ १३ ॥

“The time-limit fixed by Sugrīva himself having expired now, it is but proper for us, all the monkeys, to sit down without food awaiting death. (13)

तीक्ष्णः प्रकृत्या सुग्रीवः स्वामिभावे व्यवस्थितः ।
न क्षमिष्यति नः सर्वानपराधकृतो गतान् ॥ १४ ॥

“Vehement by nature and now established in authority, Sugrīva would never forgive us all if we approach him as offenders. (14)

अप्रवृत्तौ च सीतायाः पापमेव करिष्यति ।
तस्मात् क्षममिहाद्यैव गन्तुं प्रायोपवेशनम् ॥ १५ ॥
त्यक्त्वा पुत्रांश्च दारांश्च धनानि च गृहाणि च ।
ध्रुवं नो हिंसते राजा सर्वान् प्रतिगतानितः ॥ १६ ॥

“And in default of any news about Sītā he will surely make short work of us. Therefore, it is desirable for us to have recourse to fasting for death this very day, bidding adieu to our progeny and wife and also our wealth and homes. The king will undoubtedly kill us all when returned from this place (without any news about Sītā). (15-16)

वधेनाप्रतिरूपेण श्रेयान् मृत्युरिहैव नः ।
न चाहं यौवराज्येन सुग्रीवेणाभिषेचितः ॥ १७ ॥

“Our death at this very place is preferable to an unbecoming death at the hands of Sugrīva. Moreover, I was not invested with the office of Prince Regent of Kiṣkindhā by Sugrīva. (17)

नरेन्द्रेणाभिषिक्तोऽस्मि रामेणाक्लिष्टकर्मणा ।
स पूर्वं बद्धवैरो मां राजा दृष्ट्वा व्यतिक्रमम् ॥ १८ ॥
घातयिष्यति दण्डेन तीक्ष्णेन कृतनिश्चयः ।
किं मे सुहृद्भिर्व्यसनं पश्यद्भिर्जीवितान्तरे ।
इहैव प्रायमासिष्ये पुण्ये सागररोधसि ॥ १९ ॥

“I was so invested by Śrī Rāma, the ruler of men, of unwearied action. Perceiving my transgression, the aforesaid king Sugrīva, who nursed a grudge against me in the former days (when he was robbed of his kingdom and wife by Vālī, my father) and has, therefore, made up his mind to dispose me of, will surely cause me to be killed by recourse to a cruel punishment. What shall I do with my near and dear ones witnessing my being killed in cold blood? I shall accordingly sit down for a fast awaiting death on this holy sea shore itself.” (18-19)

एतच्छ्रुत्वा कुमारेण युवराजेन भाषितम् ।
सर्वे ते वानरश्रेष्ठाः करुणं वाक्यमब्रुवन् ॥ २० ॥

Hearing this statement made by Aṅgada, the Prince Regent of Kiṣkindhā, all the aforesaid monkey leaders gave the following pathetic reply : (20)

तीक्ष्णः प्रकृत्या सुग्रीवः प्रियारक्तश्च राघवः ।
समीक्ष्याकृतकार्यास्तु तस्मिंश्च समये गते ॥ २१ ॥
अदृष्टायां च वैदेह्यां दृष्ट्वा चैव समागतान् ।
राघवप्रियकामाय घातयिष्यत्यसंशयम् ॥ २२ ॥

“Vehement by nature is Sugrīva, while Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) is fond of his consort and therefore too unconcerned to interfere with the cruelty of Sugrīva). Already concluding, on the time-limit appointed for the search having expired, that we had failed to accomplish our end, and futher seeing us returned without Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) being found out, Sugrīva will without doubt have us killed in his eagerness to do what is pleasing to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu). (21-22)

न क्षमं चापराद्धानां गमनं स्वामिपार्श्वतः ।
प्रधानभूताश्च वयं सुग्रीवस्य समागताः ॥ २३ ॥

“It is not advisable for offenders to seek the presence of their master. Nay, we are the principal servants of Sugrīva arrived here at his command. (23)

इहैव सीतामन्वीक्ष्य प्रवृत्तिमुपलभ्य वा ।
नो चेद् गच्छाम तं वीरं गमिष्यामो यमक्षयम् ॥ २४ ॥

“Let us return to the said hero, Sugrīva, only after we have found out Sītā or obtained information concerning her in this very region; if not, we shall seek the abode of Yama, the god of death.” (24)

प्लवङ्गमानां तु भयार्दितानां
श्रुत्वा वचस्तार इदं बभाषे ।

अलं विषादेन बिलं प्रविश्य

वसाम सर्वे यदि रोचते वः ॥ २५ ॥

Hearing the reply of the monkeys stricken with fear (of meeting their death at the hands of Sugrīva), Tāra for his part made the following submission : “Away with despondency. Re-entering the cave, let us all take up our abode there if it meets with your approval. (25)

इदं हि मायाविहितं सुदुर्गमं

प्रभूतपुष्पोदकभोज्यपेयम् ।

इहास्ति नो नैव भयं पुरंदरा-

न राघवाद् वानरराजतोऽपि वा ॥ २६ ॥

“Having been brought into existence by dint of a wonderful craftsmanship, this cave is indeed exceedingly difficult of access and has at the same time a rich stock of flowers, water, foods and drinks. Here there will be no cause whatsoever for fear to us from Indra (the destroyer of strongholds), much less from Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) and still less from Sugrīva (the ruler of monkeys).” (26)

श्रुत्वाङ्गदस्यापि वचोऽनुकूल-

मूचुश्च सर्वे हरयः प्रतीताः ।

यथा न हन्येम तथा विधान-

मसक्तमद्यैव विधीयतां नः ॥ २७ ॥

Restored to confidence on hearing the favourable utterance of Aṅgada as also of Tāra, all the monkeys cried in one voice : “Let us without loss of time take recourse this very day to an expedient by adopting which we may not be killed by Sugrīva.” (27)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे त्रिपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-three in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुःपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LIV

Seeking to divert the minds of the other monkeys from the rebellious note struck by Tāra, whose advice readily found favour with Aṅgada and others, Hanumān warns Aṅgada of the dire consequences which were sure to follow in case he chose to stay away from home and, assuring him of Sugrīva's amiability and disarming all his fears about him, tries to convince him that they had better return to Kiṣkindhā and report themselves to their king

तथा ब्रुवति तारे तु ताराधिपतिवर्चसि ।
अथ मेने हृतं राज्यं हनूमानङ्गदेन तत् ॥ १ ॥

While Tāra, who possessed the splendour of the moon (the lord of the stars), was speaking as above, Aṅgada not opposing it, Hanumān accounted the well-known sovereignty of Kiṣkindhā as wrested from the hands of Sugrīva in no time by Aṅgada. (1)

बुद्ध्या ह्यष्टाङ्गया युक्तं चतुर्बलसमन्वितम् ।
चतुर्दशगुणं मेने हनूमान् वालिनः सुतम् ॥ २ ॥
आपूर्यमाणं शश्वच्च तेजोबलपराक्रमैः ।
शशिनं शुक्लपक्षादौ वर्धमानमिव श्रिया ॥ ३ ॥
बृहस्पतिसमं बुद्ध्या विक्रमे सदृशं पितुः ।
शुश्रूषमाणं तारस्य शुक्रस्येव पुरंदरम् ॥ ४ ॥
भर्तुरर्थे परिश्रान्तं सर्वशास्त्रविशारदः ।
अभिसंधातुमारेभे हनूमानङ्गदं ततः ॥ ५ ॥

Hanumān looked upon Aṅgada (the son of Vālī) as actually endowed with intelligence distinguished by eight virtues¹, equipped with the fourfold strength² and possessed of fourteen excellences³. Hanumān, who was well-versed in all the branches of learning, thereupon proceeded to win over to his master's side Aṅgada, who was being constantly replenished with energy, strength and valour and was waxing in glory like the moon at the beginning of a bright fortnight, nay, who equalled Bṛhaspati (the preceptor of gods) in wisdom, vied with his father in prowess and felt inclined to listen to the advice of Tāra, as Indra (the destroyer of strongholds) would at times to Śukra, the preceptor of demons, and was feeling averse to the cause of his master, Sugrīva. (2—5)

1. The eight virtues characterizing intelligence are—(1) Inclination to hear what others say (शुश्रूषा); (2) actually hearing what others say (श्रवणम्); (3) the capacity to grasp the meaning of what others say (ग्रहणम्); (4) retentiveness (धारणम्); (5) reasoning in favour of a proposition (ऊहः); (6) reasoning against a proposition (अपोहः); (7) insight into the meaning of what others say (अर्थविज्ञानम्); and (8) true wisdom (तत्त्वज्ञानम्).

शुश्रूषा श्रवणं चैव ग्रहणं धारणं तथा । ऊहापोहोऽर्थविज्ञानं तत्त्वज्ञानं च धीगुणाः ॥ (Kāmandak Nītiśāstra 4)

2. The four fold strength consists in the capacity to employ four expedients viz., (1) persuasion or conciliation (साम); (2) gift or gratification (दान); (3) sowing seeds of dissension among the enemy's ranks (भेद); and (4) use of violence or force (दण्ड).

3. The fourteen excellences enumerated in our Śāstras are—(1) A sense of time and place (देशकालज्ञता); (2) firmness (दाढ्यम्); (3) the capacity to endure all kinds of hardships (सर्वक्लेशसहिष्णुता); (4) knowledge of all empirical subjects (सर्वविज्ञानिता); (5) adroitness (दाक्ष्यम्); (6) ardour (ऊर्जः); (7) the capacity to guard one's secrets (संवृतमन्त्रता); (8) consistency (अविसंवादिता); (9) heroism (शौर्यम्); (10) consciousness of one's own strength as well as of the enemy (शक्तिज्ञता); (11) appreciation of other's services (कृतज्ञता); (12) fondness for a fugitive (शरणागतवात्सल्यम्); (13) indignation (अमर्षत्वम्); and (14) steadiness (अचापलम्).

देशकालज्ञता दाढ्यं सर्वक्लेशसहिष्णुता । सर्वविज्ञानिता दाक्ष्यमूर्जः संवृतमन्त्रता ॥
अविसंवादिता शौर्यं शक्तिज्ञत्वं कृतज्ञता । शरणागतवात्सल्यममर्षत्वमचापलम् ॥

स चतुर्णामुपायानां तृतीयमुपवर्णयन् ।
भेदयामास तान् सर्वान् वानरान् वाक्यसम्पदा ॥ ६ ॥

Employing the third (in order) of the four expedients (of winning over an enemy or dissenter), Hanumān set all the aforesaid monkeys at variance with one another by dint of his eloquence. (6)

तेषु सर्वेषु भिन्नेषु ततोऽभीषयदङ्गदम् ।
भीषणैर्विविधैर्वाक्यैः कोपोपायसमन्वितैः ॥ ७ ॥

All of them having been set at variance with one another, he then proceeded to intimidate Aṅgada by means of various frightening words coupled with threats : (7)

त्वं समर्थतरः पित्रा युद्धे तारेय वै ध्रुवम् ।
दृढं धारयितुं शक्तः कपिराज्यं यथा पिता ॥ ८ ॥

"You are undoubtedly more powerful in combat even than your uncle (Sugrīva) and are capable of firmly retaining the sovereignty of the monkeys as efficiently as your father, O Aṅgada ! (8)

नित्यमस्थिरचित्ता हि कपयो हरिपुंगव ।
नाज्ञाप्यं विषहिष्यन्ति पुत्रदारं विना त्वया ॥ ९ ॥

"The monkeys are indeed ever fickle-minded, O bull among the monkeys ! In the absence of their progeny and wife they would not brook your authority. (9)

त्वां नैते ह्यनुरज्जेयुः प्रत्यक्षं प्रवदामि ते ।
यथायं जाम्बवान् नीलः सुहोत्रश्च महाकपिः ॥ १० ॥
नह्यहं ते इमे सर्वे सामदानादिभिर्गुणैः ।
दण्डेन न त्वया शक्याः सुग्रीवादपकर्षितुम् ॥ ११ ॥

"I tell you clearly: these monkeys will certainly not get devoted to you. As is the case with this Jāmbavān (the king of bears), Nīla and the mighty monkey Suhotra, so, neither I, nor all these monkeys standing before you can be estranged by you from Sugrīva by means of persuasion, gift and other expedients, much less through violence. (10-11)

विगृह्यासनमप्याहुर्दुर्बलेन बलीयसा ।
आत्मरक्षाकरस्तस्मान्न विगृहीत दुर्बलः ॥ १२ ॥

"They say it is possible to remain at ease on entering into hostilities with one who is weak (and not otherwise). Hence a weakling seeking self-protection should not make enemies with a stronger person. (12)

यां चेमां मन्यसे धात्रीमेतद् बिलमिति श्रुतम् ।
एतल्लक्ष्मणबाणानामीषत् कार्यं विदारणम् ॥ १३ ॥

"To tear asunder this cave, which has been heard of by you as impregnable (from the mouth of Tāra) and which you regard as capable of affording protection to you (against the wrath of Indra and others), is easy for the arrows of Lakṣmaṇa. (13)

स्वल्पं हि कृतमिन्द्रेण क्षिपता ह्यशनिं पुरा ।
लक्ष्मणो निशितैर्बाणैर्भिन्ध्यात् पत्रपुटं यथा ॥ १४ ॥

"Indeed a very small opening was made into this cave in the past by Indra (the ruler of gods) while hurling his thunderbolt (which only succeeded in getting rid of the demon Maya, who had taken shelter in it); Lakṣmaṇa, however, can really tear it asunder as a vessel of leaves by means of his sharpened arrows. (14)

लक्ष्मणस्य च नाराचा बहवः सन्ति तद्विधाः ।
वज्राशनिसमस्पर्शा गिरीणामपि दारकाः ॥ १५ ॥

"Lakṣmaṇa has in his possession many such steel arrows as have an impact similar to that of a thunderbolt (hurled by Indra) or lightning discharged by a cloud and are capable even of rending mountains. (15)

अवस्थानं यदैव त्वमासिष्यसि परंतप ।
तदैव हरयः सर्वे त्यक्ष्यन्ति कृतनिश्चयाः ॥ १६ ॥

"The moment you take up your abode in the cave, O scourge of your foes, the monkeys will all forsake you since they are already determined to do so. (16)

स्मरन्तः पुत्रदाराणां नित्योद्विग्ना बुभुक्षिताः ।
खेदिता दुःखशय्याभिस्त्वां करिष्यन्ति पृष्ठतः ॥ १७ ॥

"Thinking of their progeny and wife, ever afraid (of Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa and Sugrīva), nay, famished and weary of their wretched plight etc., they will turn their back on you. (17)

स त्वं हीनः सुहृद्भिश्च हितकामैश्च बन्धुभिः ।
तृणादपि भृशोद्विग्नः स्पन्दमानाद् भविष्यसि ॥ १८ ॥

“Separated from your near and dear ones and friends seeking your welfare, you will be terribly afraid even of a trembling blade of grass. (18)

न च जातु न हिंस्युस्त्वां घोरा लक्ष्मणसायकाः ।
अपवृत्तं जिघांसन्तो महावेगा दुरासदाः ॥ १९ ॥

“Flying with extraordinary speed and difficult to approach, the fearful arrows of Lakṣmaṇa, which are ever disposed to kill a reactionary, will on no account spare you. (19)

अस्माभिस्तु गतं सार्धं विनीतवदुपस्थितम् ।
अनुपूर्वात्तु सुग्रीवो राज्ये त्वां स्थापयिष्यति ॥ २० ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे चतुःपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-four in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LV

Sick of hearing the praises of Sugrīva uttered by Hanumān and pointing out the faults of Sugrīva and denouncing him, Aṅgada proclaims to the monkeys his decision to undertake a fast unto death and actually sits down to fast. Condemning Sugrīva with tears in their eyes and making the mountain caverns resound with their tale of woe commencing from the appearance of Śrī Rāma on the scene and ending with their determination to observe a fast till death, the other monkeys too follow suit

श्रुत्वा हनुमतो वाक्यं प्रश्रितं धर्मसंहितम् ।
स्वामिसत्कारसंयुक्तमङ्गदो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the utterance of Hanumān, which was courteous and conformable to righteousness and was full of deference to his master, Aṅgada replied as follows : (1)

स्थैर्यमात्ममनःशौचमानृशंस्यमथार्जवम् ।
विक्रमश्चैव धैर्यं च सुग्रीवे नोपपद्यते ॥ २ ॥

Sugrīva will, however, install you on the throne of Kiṣkindhā in due course if, on the other hand, you return with us and present yourself before him in a submissive demeanour. (20)

धर्मराजः पितृव्यस्ते प्रीतिकामो दृढव्रतः ।
शुचिः सत्यप्रतिज्ञश्च स त्वां जातु न नाशयेत् ॥ २१ ॥

“Your uncle, Sugrīva, is a virtuous ruler, firm of vows, good-intentioned, true to his promise and seeks your love. He would never kill you. (21)

प्रियकामश्च ते मातुस्तदर्थं चास्य जीवितम् ।
तस्यापत्यं च नास्त्यन्यत् तस्मादङ्गद गम्यताम् ॥ २२ ॥

“Again, he is keen to oblige your mother; nay, he lives for her (alone). And he has no other progeny; therefore, Aṅgada, let us return to Kiṣkindhā.” (22)

भ्रातुर्ज्येष्ठस्य यो भार्या जीवतो महिषीं प्रियाम् ।
धर्मेण मातरं यस्तु स्वीकरोति जुगुप्सितः ॥ ३ ॥

“Stability, purity of body and mind, absence of cruelty and guilelessness, nay, valour and fortitude too are out of the question in Sugrīva, who for his part took to wife, detested as he is, his veritable mother from the moral point of view, the beloved queen of his elder brother—while he was still alive. (2-3)

कथं स धर्मं जानीते येन भ्रात्रा दुरात्मना।
युद्धायाभििनियुक्तेन बिलस्य पिहितं मुखम् ॥ ४ ॥

“How does he know what is right, by whom, evil-minded as he is, the opening of the cave was closed even though he had been enjoined by his brother—while the latter was going to meet his enemy for an encounter to guard the entrance? (4)

सत्यात् पाणिगृहीतश्च कृतकर्मा महायशाः।
विस्मृतो राघवो येन स कस्य सुकृतं स्मरेत् ॥ ५ ॥

“Whose good offices will he remember with gratitude, by whom even the highly illustrious Śrī Rāma—(a scion of Raghu)—who had been accepted as a friend by clasping the hand in the name of truth and who had rendered good offices to him—was put out of the mind? (5)

लक्ष्मणस्य भयेनेह नाधर्मभयभीरुणा।
आदिष्टा मार्गितुं सीता धर्मस्तस्मिन् कथं भवेत् ॥ ६ ॥

“How can piety exist in him, by whom Sitā was ordered to be searched for on this occasion from fear of Lakṣmaṇa and not because he was seized with the fear of incurring sin (accruing from infidelity to a beneficent friend)? (6)

तस्मिन् पापे कृतघ्ने तु स्मृतिभिन्ने चलात्मनि।
आर्यः को विश्वसेज्जातु तत्कुलीनो विशेषतः ॥ ७ ॥

“What noble soul, particularly one born in his own race will ever repose trust in that sinful, ungrateful and fickle monkey, who has cast to the winds all moral codes? (7)

राज्ये पुत्रः प्रतिष्ठाप्यः सगुणो निर्गुणोऽपि वा।
कथं शत्रुकुलीनं मां सुग्रीवो जीवयिष्यति ॥ ८ ॥

“How can Sugrīva suffer me to live after installing on the throne (as Prince Regent) me, his (adopted) son, sprung from the loins of his mortal foe, no matter whether he (Sugrīva) is full of virtues or devoid of them? (8)

भिन्नमन्त्रोऽपराद्धश्च भिन्नशक्तिः कथं ह्यहम्।
किञ्चिन्धां प्राप्य जीवेयमनाथ इव दुर्बलः ॥ ९ ॥

“Reaching Kiṣkindhā back how shall I actually survive like a forlorn and weak creature, I, whose rebellious plans have leaked out, nay, who has committed an offence of treason and whose strength has been shattered by sowing dissension among my followers? (9)

उपांशुदण्डेन हि मां बन्धनेनोपपादयेत्।
शठः क्रूरो नृशंसश्च सुग्रीवो राज्यकारणात् ॥ १० ॥

“Sugrīva—who is wily, fierce and merciless, will surely sentence me if not to death, at least to some secret punishment, such as putting me in chains for the sake of retaining his sovereignty. (10)

बन्धनाच्चावसादान्मे श्रेयः प्रायोपवेशनम्।
अनुजानन्तु मां सर्वे गृहं गच्छन्तु वानराः ॥ ११ ॥

“Fasting till death is preferable in my eyes to confinement and frustration caused by it. Hence let all the monkeys present here bid adieu to me and return home. (11)

अहं वः प्रतिजानामि न गमिष्याम्यहं पुरीम्।
इहैव प्रायमासिष्ये श्रेयो मरणमेव मे ॥ १२ ॥

“I solemnly declare to you that I will not return to the capital (Kiṣkindhā) but will observe a fast till death at this very place. Death is certainly best for me. (12)

अभिवादनपूर्वं तु राजा कुशलमेव च।
अभिवादनपूर्वं तु राघवौ बलशालिनौ ॥ १३ ॥

“After salutation, of course, the king (Sugrīva) should be apprised of my welfare only and even so the two mighty scions of Raghu too should be apprised of my welfare after salutation. (13)

वाच्यस्तातो यवीयान् मे सुग्रीवो वानरेश्वरः।
आरोग्यपूर्वं कुशलं वाच्या माता रुमा च मे ॥ १४ ॥

“My younger father, Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, as well as my younger mother, Rumā, should be told of my welfare after apprising them of my health. (14)

मातरं चैव मे तारामाश्वासयितुमर्हथ ।
 प्रकृत्या प्रियपुत्रा सा सानुक्रोशा तपस्विनी ॥ १५ ॥
 “You ought to console my real mother Tārā too. The poor lady is by her very nature fond of her son (myself) and full of compassion. (15)

विनष्टमिह मां श्रुत्वा व्यक्तं हास्यति जीवितम् ।
 एतावदुक्त्वा वचनं वृद्धांस्तानभिवाद्य च ॥ १६ ॥
 विवेश चाङ्गदो भूमौ रुदन् दर्भेषु दुर्मनाः ।
 तस्य संविशतस्तत्र रुदन्तो वानरर्षभाः ॥ १७ ॥
 नयनेभ्यः प्रमुमुचुरुष्णं वै वारि दुःखिताः ।
 सुग्रीवं चैव निन्दन्तः प्रशंसन्तश्च वालिनम् ॥ १८ ॥
 परिवार्याङ्गदं सर्वे व्यवसन् प्रायमासितुम् ।
 तद् वाक्यं वालिपुत्रस्य विज्ञाय प्लवगर्षभाः ॥ १९ ॥
 उपस्पृश्योदकं सर्वे प्राङ्मुखाः समुपाविशन् ।
 दक्षिणाग्रेषु दर्भेषु उदक्तीरं समाश्रिताः ॥ २० ॥

“She will evidently give up the ghost on hearing of my being dead.” Saying this much and greeting the aforesaid elderly monkeys, Aṅgada sank down weeping on the ground on blades of the sacred Kuśa grass, his countenance woe begone. As he sat down there, the foremost of monkeys shed burning tears profusely from their eyes, sobbing at the same time in distress. Denouncing Sugrīva and also praising Vālī and surrounding Aṅgada, all resolved to starve themselves to death. Reflecting on the aforesaid utterance of Aṅgada (the son of Vālī) and sipping water in order to consecrate themselves, all the leaders of monkeys sat down comfortably, their faces turned towards the east, on blades of the sacred Kuśa grass with their ends pointing towards the south, taking up their position on the northern shore of the Indian Ocean. (16—20)

मुमूर्षवो हरिश्रेष्ठा एतत् क्षममिति स्म ह ।
 रामस्य वनवासं च क्षयं दशरथस्य च ॥ २१ ॥
 जनस्थानवधं चैव वधं चैव जटायुषः ।
 हरणं चैव वैदेह्या वालिनश्च वधं तथा ।
 रामकोपं च वदतां हरीणां भयमागतम् ॥ २२ ॥

Those jewels among the monkeys, willing as they were to die, thought, they say, that the aforesaid was the course desirable for them. As the monkeys were talking of Śrī Rāma’s exile and also of Daśaratha’s death, nay, also of the carnage in Janasthāna as well as of the abduction of Sītā (a princess of the territory of Videha) as also of the slaying of Jaṭāyu and even so of the killing of Vālī and then of the wrath of Śrī Rāma, another danger stared them in the face. (21-22)

स संविशद्भिर्बहुभिर्महीधरो
 महाद्रिकूटप्रतिमैः प्लवंगमैः ।
 बभूव संनादितनिर्दरान्तरो
 भृशं नदद्भिर्जलदैरिवाम्बरम् ॥ २३ ॥

With those numerous monkeys, who themselves resembled the peaks of huge mountains, sitting down and roaring in dismay, the aforesaid mountain found the interior of its caves resonant and presented the appearance of the sky resounding with the sound of thundering clouds. (23)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे

पञ्चपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५५ ॥

*Thus ends Canto Fifty-five in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki,
 the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.*

षट्पञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LVI

Praising Providence out of joy at the prospect of deriving sustenance for a long time on seeing a band of monkeys even as it emerged from a cave of the Vindhyan range on hearing their noise, the vulture king, Sampāti (the elder brother of Jaṭāyu), expresses his determination to eat them all up one after another. Depressed to hear the vow and declaring Jaṭāyu, who had met his death at the hands of Rāvaṇa in the service of Śrī Rāma, while trying to deliver Sītā from the former's clutches, as more fortunate than any of them, who were threatened with death even before accomplishing the purpose of Śrī Rāma, Aṅgada reproaches Kaikeyī who was at the root of the whole mischief. Distressed to hear these words of Aṅgada and telling Aṅgada that he was the elder brother of Jaṭāyu, and at the same time inquiring about the death of his younger brother, Sampāti requests Aṅgada to help him slide down from his high post adding that, his wings having been burnt, he was unable to fly

उपविष्टास्तु ते सर्वे यस्मिन् प्रायं गिरिस्थले ।
हरयो गृध्राजश्च तं देशमुपचक्रमे ॥ १ ॥

The king of vultures too approached the same plateau on which all the aforesaid monkeys for their part had sat down to starve themselves to death. (1)

सम्पातिर्नाम नाम्ना तु चिरजीवी विहंगमः ।
भ्राता जटायुषः श्रीमान् विख्यातबलपौरुषः ॥ २ ॥

He was no other than a long lived and glorious bird, the brother of Jaṭāyu, known by the name of Sampāti, whose strength and prowess were widely known. (2)

कन्दरादभिनिष्क्रम्य स विन्ध्यस्य महागिरेः ।
उपविष्टान् हरीन् दृष्ट्वा हृष्टात्मा गिरमब्रवीत् ॥ ३ ॥

Emerging all of a sudden from a cave of the great Vindhyan range and delighted in mind to observe the monkeys seated there, he spoke as follows : (3)

विधिः किल नरं लोके विधानेनानुवर्तते ।
यथायं विहितो भक्ष्यश्चिरान्महामुपागतः ॥ ४ ॥

“Even as in this world the fruit of a man's past actions accrues to him according to the Law of Karma, this food in the shape of so many monkeys, which was ordained for me, has come of its own accord after a long time. (4)

परम्पराणां भक्षिष्ये वानराणां मृतं मृतम् ।
उवाचैतद् वचः पक्षी तान् निरीक्ष्य प्लवंगमान् ॥ ५ ॥

“I shall successively eat up one after the other all these monkeys seated in a line even as they fall dead successively due to starvation.” The bird uttered the foregoing words on perceiving the monkeys. (5)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा भक्ष्यलुब्धस्य पक्षिणः ।
अङ्गदः परमायस्तो हनूमन्तमथाब्रवीत् ॥ ६ ॥

Greatly perturbed to hear the aforesaid utterance of that bird, who was covetous of food, Aṅgada presently spoke to Hanumān as follows : (6)

पश्य सीतापदेशेन साक्षाद् वैवस्वतो यमः ।
इमं देशमनुप्राप्तो वानराणां विपत्तये ॥ ७ ॥

“For bringing destruction to the monkeys under the pretext of Sītā, Yama (the god of retribution), son of the sun-god, has bodily come to this region. (7)

रामस्य न कृतं कार्यं न कृतं राजशासनम् ।
हरीणामियमज्ञाता विपत्तिः सहसाऽऽगता ॥ ८ ॥

“The purpose of Śrī Rāma has not been accomplished nor has the king’s injunction been carried out. In the meantime, this unforeseen calamity has overtaken the monkeys all of a sudden. (8)

वैदेह्याः प्रियकामेन कृतं कर्म जटायुषा ।
गृध्राजेन यत् तत्र श्रुतं वस्तदशेषतः ॥ ९ ॥

“The service rendered at Pāñcavati by Jaṭāyu, the king of vultures, who was keen to oblige Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) has been heard of by you in its entirety. (9)

तथा सर्वाणि भूतानि तिर्यग्योनिगतान्यपि ।
प्रियं कुर्वन्ति रामस्य त्यक्त्वा प्राणान् यथा वयम् ॥ १० ॥

“All living beings, even those born in the sub-human species of birds and beasts do what is pleasing to Śrī Rāma, even laying down their life, if necessary, as we are doing. (10)

अन्योन्यमुपकुर्वन्ति स्नेहकारुण्ययन्त्रिताः ।
ततस्तस्योपकारार्थं त्यजतात्मानमात्मना ॥ ११ ॥

प्रियं कृतं हि रामस्य धर्मज्ञेन जटायुषा ।
राघवार्थं परिश्रान्ता वयं संत्यक्तजीविताः ॥ १२ ॥
कान्ताराणि प्रपन्नाः स्म न च पश्याम मैथिलीम् ।
स सुखी गृध्राजस्तु रावणेन हतो रणे ।
मुक्तश्च सुग्रीवभयाद् गतश्च परमां गतिम् ॥ १३ ॥

“Bound by love and compassion (for him alone as manifested in the form of all living beings) do people render good offices to one another. Therefore, lay down your life by yourselves for the sake of his service.

Indeed a kindly act was done to Śrī Rāma (in the shape of laying down his life in his service) by Jaṭāyu, who knew what is right. We too have ventured on difficult roads for the sake of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) and feel thoroughly exhausted; but we have not found out Sītā, even though we have finally taken leave of our lives. Blessed is that king of vultures in that he was slain in an encounter by Rāvaṇa, nay, was rid once for all of the fear of Sugrīva, who was evidently the overlord of (the entire sub-human creation) and has attained the highest state by the grace of Śrī Rāma ! (11—13)

जटायुषो विनाशेन राज्ञो दशरथस्य च ।
हरणेन च वैदेह्याः संशयं हरयो गताः ॥ १४ ॥

“The monkeys have fallen into danger through the death of King Daśaratha, the destruction of Jaṭāyu and the abduction of Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory). (14)

रामलक्ष्मणयोर्वासमरण्ये सह सीतया ।
राघवस्य च बाणेन वालिनश्च तथा वधः ॥ १५ ॥
रामकोपादशेषाणां रक्षसां च तथा वधम् ।
कैकेय्या वरदानेन इदं च विकृतं कृतम् ॥ १६ ॥

“Know the sojourn of Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmana in the forest with Sītā, and even so the destruction of Vālī encompassed by an arrow of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), and similarly the prospective extermination of all the ogres through the wrath of Śrī Rāma—all this evil to have been brought about by the boon granted by Daśaratha in favour of Kaikeyi.” (15-16)

तदसुखमनुकीर्तितं वचो
भुवि पतितांश्च निरीक्ष्य वानरान् ।
भृशचकितमतिर्महामतिः

कृपणमुदाहृतवान् स गृध्राजः ॥ १७ ॥

Greatly bewildered in mind to hear the aforesaid doleful cries uttered by the monkeys, and to perceive them tumbled down on the ground, the highly intelligent Sampāti, the king of vultures, spoke as follows in a piteous tone. (17)

तत् तु श्रुत्वा तथा वाक्यमङ्गदस्य मुखोद्गतम् ।
अब्रवीद् वचनं गृध्रस्तीक्ष्णतुण्डो महास्वनः ॥ १८ ॥

Nay, hearing the speech that had escaped from the lips of Aṅgada as above, the sharp-beaked vulture, Sampāti, spoke as follows, making a loud noise : (18)

कोऽयं गिरा घोषयति प्राणैः प्रियतरस्य मे ।
जटायुषो वधं भ्रातुः कम्पयन्निव मे मनः ॥ १९ ॥

“Who is the being which proclaims in so many distinct words the death of my brother, Jaṭāyu, who was dearer to me than life itself, causing my heart to tremble as it were (with this heart-rending news)? (19)

कथमासीज्जनस्थाने युद्धं राक्षसगृध्रयोः ।
नामधेयमिदं भ्रातुश्चिरस्याद्य मया श्रुतम् ॥ २० ॥

“How did an encounter take place between an ogre and the vulture in Janasthāna? This name of my younger brother has been heard of by me after a long time today. (20)

इच्छेयं गिरिदुर्गाच्च भवद्विरवतारितुम् ।
यवीयसो गुणज्ञस्य श्लाघनीयस्य विक्रमैः ॥ २१ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे षट्पञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-six in the Kīṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LVII

Having helped Sampāti to climb down the mountain, Aṅgada narrates to him the whole story from the entry of Śrī Rāma into the Daṇḍaka forest to his own fasting

शोकाद् भ्रष्टस्वरमपि श्रुत्वा वानरयूथपाः ।
श्रद्धधुनैव तद्वाक्यं कर्मणा तस्य शङ्किताः ॥ १ ॥

Even after hearing the words of Sampāti, whose voice had turned hoarse due to grief caused by the news of his brother's death, the monkey generals did not put faith in his words, seized as they were with suspicion

अतिदीर्घस्य कालस्य परितुष्टोऽस्मि कीर्तनात् ।
तदिच्छेयमहं श्रोतुं विनाशं वानरर्षभाः ॥ २२ ॥
भ्रातुर्जटायुषस्तस्य जनस्थाननिवासिनः ।
तस्यैव च मम भ्रातुः सखा दशरथः कथम् ॥ २३ ॥
यस्य रामः प्रियः पुत्रो ज्येष्ठो गुरुजनप्रियः ।
सूर्याशुदग्धपक्षत्वान्न शक्नोमि विसर्पितुम् ।
इच्छेयं पर्वतादस्मादवतर्तुमरिदमाः ॥ २४ ॥

“Nay, with your help I wish to bring myself down from the mountain citadel on which I am perched. I am highly gratified with the praises, heard after a very long time, of my younger brother, Jaṭāyu, who appreciated the virtues of others and was deserving of praise because of his exploits. Therefore, O leaders of monkeys, I long to hear about the destruction of my younger brother, Jaṭāyu, who lived in Janasthāna. Again, how did King Daśaratha, a friend of the selfsame brother of mine—whose beloved eldest son is Śrī Rāma, the favourite of his elders—meet his end? My wings having been scorched by the rays of the sun, I cannot fly about. All the same, I wish to descend from this eminence, O tamers of your foes.” (21—24) caused by his contemplated action of eating up the monkeys. (1)

ते प्रायमुपविष्टास्तु दृष्ट्वा गृध्रं प्लवंगमाः ।
चक्रुर्बुद्धिं तदा रौद्रां सर्वान् नो भक्षयिष्यति ॥ २ ॥

Seeing the vulture, the said monkeys, for their part, who had sat down to starve themselves to death, entertained the horrid idea that he would eat them all up. (2)

सर्वथा प्रायमासीनान् यदि नो भक्षयिष्यति।
कृतकृत्या भविष्यामः क्षिप्रं सिद्धिमितो गताः ॥ ३ ॥

“If he eats up us, who have sat down to fast till death, we shall have thoroughly accomplished our purpose, having attained speedy success (in the form of death) through this act of his.” (3)

एतां बुद्धिं ततश्चक्रुः सर्वे ते हरियूथपाः।
अवतार्य गिरेः शृङ्गाद् गृध्रमाहाङ्गदस्तदा ॥ ४ ॥

All those monkey leaders subsequently arrived at this latter conclusion. Having helped the vulture to descend from the mountain-peak, Aṅgada then spoke to the vulture as follows : (4)

बभूवर्क्षरजो नाम वानरेन्द्रः प्रतापवान्।
ममार्यः पार्थिवः पक्षिन् धार्मिकौ तस्य चात्मजौ ॥ ५ ॥
सुग्रीवश्चैव वाली च पुत्रौ घनबलावुभौ।
लोके विश्रुतकर्माभूद् राजा वाली पिता मम ॥ ६ ॥

“There was a glorious lord of monkeys, King Rkṣrāja by name, my grandfather, O bird ! And he had two pious sons, Vālī and Sugrīva, sprung from his own loins, both possessed of great strength. My father, King Vālī, was well-known for his exploits in the world. (5-6)

राजा कृत्स्नस्य जगत इक्ष्वाकूणां महारथः।
रामो दाशरथिः श्रीमान् प्रविष्टो दण्डकावनम् ॥ ७ ॥
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा वैदेह्या सह भार्यया।
पितुर्निदेशनिरतो धर्मं पन्थानमाश्रितः ॥ ८ ॥

“The sovereign of the whole earth and a great chariot warrior born in the line of the Ikṣvākus, and son of the late King Daśaratha, the glorious Rāma, who was wholly intent upon carrying out the command of his father and had taken to the path of virtue, entered the forest of Daṇḍaka with his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, and consort, Sitā (a princess of the Videha territory). (7-8)

तस्य भार्या जनस्थानाद् रावणेन हता बलात्।
रामस्य तु पितुर्मित्रं जटायुर्नाम गृध्राद् ॥ ९ ॥
ददर्श सीतां वैदेहीं ह्रियमाणां विहायसा।
रावणं विरथं कृत्वा स्थापयित्वा च मैथिलीम्।
परिश्रान्तश्च वृद्धश्च रावणेन हतो रणे ॥ १० ॥

“His consort, Sitā, was forcibly borne away from Janasthāna by Rāvaṇa. The king of vultures, Jaṭāyu by name, for his part, who was a friend of Śrī Rāmā's father (Emperor Daśaratha), observed Sitā, a princess of the Videha territory, being borne away in an aerial car through the airspace. Having deprived Rāvaṇa of his aerial car by shattering it and placed Sitā (a princess of Mithilā) on the ground, Jaṭāyu, who had been completely exhausted and was aged too, was slain by Rāvaṇa in combat. (9-10)

एवं गृध्रो हतस्तेन रावणेन बलीयसा।
संस्कृतश्चापि रामेण जगाम गतिमुत्तमाम् ॥ ११ ॥

“In this way the vulture, Jaṭāyu, was killed by the said Rāvaṇa, who was superior in might, and, having been cremated by Śrī Rāma, attained the highest destiny. (11)

ततो मम पितृव्येण सुग्रीवेण महात्मना।
चकार राघवः सख्यं सोऽवधीत् पितरं मम ॥ १२ ॥

“Then the celebrated Śrī Rāma contracted an alliance with my uncle, the high-souled Sugrīva, and killed my father (as a token of his friendship). (12)

मम पित्रा निरुद्धो हि सुग्रीवः सचिवैः सह।
निहत्य वालिनं रामस्ततस्तमभिषेचयत् ॥ १३ ॥

“Since Sugrīva had been banished with his ministers by my father, Śrī Rāma forthwith installed him on the throne after killing Vālī. (13)

स राज्ये स्थापितस्तेन सुग्रीवो वानरेश्वरः।
राजा वानरमुख्यानां तेन प्रस्थापिता वयम् ॥ १४ ॥
एवं रामप्रयुक्तास्तु मार्गमाणास्ततस्ततः।
वैदेहीं नाधिगच्छामो रात्रौ सूर्यप्रभामिव ॥ १५ ॥

“Installed on the throne as the lord of monkeys by Śrī Rāma, the aforesaid Sugrīva is now the ruler of all the monkey chiefs. Dispatched by him and directed by Śrī Rāma, and looking about here and there in this way, we could not find Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) any more than one would perceive the splendour of the sun at night. (14-15)

ते वयं दण्डकारण्यं विचिंत्य सुसमाहिताः ।
अज्ञानात् तु प्रविष्टाः स्म धरण्या विवृतं बिलम् ॥ १६ ॥

“Having explored the Daṇḍaka forest most carefully, we, however, penetrated deeply through ignorance into a gaping hole in the ground. (16)

मयस्य मायाविहितं तद् बिलं च विचिन्वताम् ।
व्यतीतस्तत्र नो मासो यो राज्ञा समयः कृतः ॥ १७ ॥

“Nay, even as we were scouring that cavern constructed by the demon Maya by dint of his wonderful architectural skill, the period of one month appointed by the king, Sugrīva, as the time-limit for the search, slipped past us. (17)

ते वयं कपिराजस्य सर्वे वचनकारिणः ।
कृतां संस्थामतिक्रान्ता भयात् प्रायमुपासिताः ॥ १८ ॥

“Having exceeded the time-limit fixed by the king, we all, who were engaged in carrying out the command of Sugrīva (the ruler of monkeys), have sat down through fear to starve ourselves to death. (18)

क्रुद्धे तस्मिंस्तु काकुत्स्थे सुग्रीवे च सलक्ष्मणे ।
गतानामपि सर्वेषां तत्र नो नास्ति जीवितम् ॥ १९ ॥

“In the event of Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kākutstha, as well as Sugrīva with Lakṣmaṇa being angry, there is no hope of survival for us all even if we return to Kiṣkindhā.” (19)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे सप्तपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-seven in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Rṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LVIII

Sampāti tells Aṅgada how having once soared with his younger brother to the neighbourhood of the solar orb in his eagerness to test their relative strength and flying power, he had his own wings burnt in trying to save the wings of Jaṭāyu by spreading his own wings over them as a canopy, and dropped on a peak of the Vindhyan range. Inquired by Aṅgada if he knew anything about the abduction of Sītā, he acknowledged his having seen a youthful lady being borne away by Rāvaṇa and crying out ‘Rāma, which now leads him to think that she was no other than Śrī Rāma’s beloved spouse. Sampāti further tells Aṅgada how, gifted as he was with an inordinately long vision, he could see Laṅkā, the capital of Rāvaṇa, at a distance of one hundred Yojanas, as well as the place where Sītā has been lodged. On his expressing a desire to offer water to the spirit of his deceased brother, the monkeys take him to the seashore and bring him back on his having concluded the rite

इत्युक्तः करुणं वाक्यं वानरैस्त्यक्तजीवितैः ।
सबाष्पो वानरान् गृध्रः प्रत्युवाच महास्वनः ॥ १ ॥

Spoken to in these pitiful words by the monkeys, who had given up all hope of their life, the vulture, full of tears, replied as follows to the monkeys in a loud voice :

(1)

यवीयान् स मम भ्राता जटायुर्नाम वानराः ।
यमाख्यात हतं युद्धे रावणेन बलीयसा ॥ २ ॥

“He was my younger brother, Jaṭāyu by name, O monkeys, whom you have spoken of as killed in an encounter by Rāvaṇa, who was superior in strength to him.

(2)

वृद्धभावादपक्षत्वाच्छृण्वंस्तदपि मर्षये ।
नहि मे शक्तिरस्त्यद्य भ्रातुर्वैरविमोक्षणे ॥ ३ ॥

“Due to old age and loss of my wings, I forbear even on hearing of it; for I have no more strength left in me to requite his mortal enmity towards my brother.

(3)

पुरा वृत्रवधे वृत्ते स चाहं च जयैषिणौ ।
आदित्यमुपयातौ स्वो ज्वलन्तं रश्मिमालिनम् ॥ ४ ॥
आवृत्याकाशमार्गेण जवेन स्वर्गतौ भृशम् ।
मध्यं प्राप्ते तु सूर्ये तु जटायुरवसीदति ॥ ५ ॥

“Seeking to conquer Indra in the olden days, when the death of the demon Vṛtra had taken place at the hands of Indra, Jaṭāyu and myself too soared with inordinate speed through the airspace to heaven. Turning back from heaven after conquering him, we flew up still higher and drew near the sun encircled by its aureole of rays and illumining heaven. When, however, the sun reached the meridian, Jaṭāyu for his part began to grow faint.

(4-5)

तमहं भ्रातरं दृष्ट्वा सूर्यरश्मिभिरदितम् ।
पक्षाभ्यां छादयामास स्नेहात् परमविह्वलम् ॥ ६ ॥

“Seeing my aforesaid brother tormented by the sun’s rays and greatly unnerved, I covered him with my wings out of affection.

(6)

निर्दग्धपत्रः पतितो विन्ध्येऽहं वानरर्षभाः ।
अहमस्मिन् वसन् भ्रातुः प्रवृत्तिं नोपलक्षये ॥ ७ ॥

“My wings having been fully burnt, I dropped down on the Vindhyān range, O leaders of monkeys! Living on this mountain, as I did, I got no news of my brother,”

(7)

जटायुषस्त्वेवमुक्तो भ्रात्रा सम्पातिना तदा ।
युवराजो महाप्रज्ञः प्रत्युवाचाङ्गदस्तदा ॥ ८ ॥

Told thus by Sampāti, the brother of Jaṭāyu on that occasion, the highly intelligent Aṅgada, the Prince Regent of Kiṣkindhā, for his part, then replied as follows :

(8)

जटायुषो यदि भ्राता श्रुतं ते गदितं मया ।
आख्याहि यदि जानासि निलयं तस्य रक्षसः ॥ ९ ॥

“If you are the brother of Jaṭāyu and if you have listened to what has been narrated by me, please say if you know the abode of that ogre.

(9)

अदीर्घदर्शिनं तं वै रावणं राक्षसाधमम् ।
अन्तिके यदि वा दूरे यदि जानासि शंस नः ॥ १० ॥

“If you actually know that short-sighted Rāvaṇa, the vilest of ogres, to be living near or far, please tell us.”

(10)

ततोऽब्रवीन्महातेजा भ्राता ज्येष्ठो जटायुषः ।
आत्मानुरूपं वचनं वानरान् सम्प्रहर्षयन् ॥ ११ ॥

Sampāti, the elder brother of Jaṭāyu, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, thereupon spoke the following words becoming of himself, bringing supreme delight to the monkeys thereby :

(11)

निर्दग्धपक्षो गृध्रोऽहं गतवीर्यः प्लवङ्गमाः ।
वाङ्मात्रेण तु रामस्य करिष्ये साह्यमुत्तमम् ॥ १२ ॥

“A vulture whose wings have been entirely burnt and whose virility has departed for good, O monkeys, I would render foremost service to Śrī Rāma through you, who are engaged in his service, at least through my speech only.

(12)

जानामि वारुणाँल्लोकान् विष्णोस्त्रैविक्रमानपि ।
देवासुरविमर्दाश्च ह्यमृतस्य विमन्थनम् ॥ १३ ॥

"I have knowledge of the worlds presided over by Varuṇa (the god of water) as also those measured in three strides by Lord Viṣṇu (descended in the form of the Divine Dwarf and then assuming inordinate proportions). I am equally aware of the conflicts that took place between the gods and the demons and also how nectar was churned out of the ocean of milk. (13)

रामस्य यदिदं कार्यं कर्तव्यं प्रथमं मया।

जरया च हतं तेजः प्राणाश्च शिथिला मम॥ १४॥

"Even though my energy has been snatched away by old age and my vitality is ebbing, this errand of Śrī Rāma, which you have mentioned, must be accomplished by me first. (14)

तरुणी रूपसम्पन्ना सर्वाभरणभूषिता।

ह्रियमाणा मया दृष्टा रावणेन दुरात्मना॥ १५॥

क्रोशन्ती रामरामेति लक्ष्मणेति च भामिनी।

भूषणान्यपविध्यन्ती गात्राणि च विधुन्वती॥ १६॥

"A Lovely young lady richly endowed with comeliness and adorned with all kinds of jewels was seen by me the other day crying out 'Rāma !', 'O Rāma !' 'O Lakṣmaṇa, nay, dropping down her ornaments and tossing her limbs in her attempt to extricate herself while being borne away by the evil-minded Rāvaṇa. (15-16)

सूर्यप्रभेव शैलाग्रे तस्याः कौशेयमुत्तमम्।

असिते राक्षसे भाति यथा वा तडिदम्बुदे॥ १७॥

"Her exquisite silken robe shone against the dark-complexioned ogre as the splendour of the sun against a mountain-peak or as a flash of lightning in the sky. (17)

तां तु सीतामहं मन्ये रामस्य परिकीर्तनात्।

श्रूयतां मे कथयतो निलयं तस्य रक्षसः॥ १८॥

"From the fact that she was uttering the name of Rāma again and again, I believe her to have been Sītā without doubt. Now hear from me, as I speak, about the abode of that ogre. (18)

पुत्रो विश्रवसः साक्षाद् भ्राता वैश्रवणस्य च।

अध्यास्ते नगरीं लङ्कां रावणो नाम राक्षसः॥ १९॥

"The son of Sage Viśravā himself and a (half-) brother of Kubera (son of Viśravā), the ogre, Rāvaṇa by name, lives in the city of Laṅkā. (19)

इतो द्वीपे समुद्रस्य सम्पूर्णे शतयोजने।

तस्मिँल्लङ्का पुरी रम्या निर्मिता विश्वकर्मणा॥ २०॥

जाम्बूनदमयैर्द्वारैश्चित्रैः काञ्चनवेदिकैः।

प्रासादैर्हैमवर्णैश्च महद्भिः सुसमाकृता॥ २१॥

प्राकारेणार्कवर्णेन महता च समन्विता।

तस्यां वसति वैदेही दीना कौशेयवासिनी॥ २२॥

रावणान्तःपुरे रुद्धा राक्षसीभिः सुरक्षिता।

जनकस्यात्मजां राज्ञस्तस्यां द्रक्ष्यथ मैथिलीम्॥ २३॥

"On a well-known island in the sea, situated at a distance of full one hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles) from this shore, lies the lovely city of Laṅkā, constructed by Viśwakarmā (the architect of gods), abounding in wonderful gates of Jāmbūnada (gold found on the banks of the Jammu river) and stately mansions of golden hue with terraces of gold and enclosed by a massive fortification wall bright as the sun. "In that city lives the agonized Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), clad in silk, confined in the gynaeceum of Rāvaṇa and strongly guarded by ogresses. There you will be able to see Sītā (a princess of Mithilā), daughter of King Janaka. (20—23)

लङ्कायामथ गुप्तायां सागरेण समन्ततः।

सम्प्राप्य सागरस्यान्तं सम्पूर्णं शतयोजनम्॥ २४॥

आसाद्य दक्षिणं तीरं ततो द्रक्ष्यथ रावणम्।

तत्रैव त्वरिताः क्षिप्रं विक्रमध्वं प्लवङ्गमाः॥ २५॥

"Duly reaching the end of the sea, which lies at a distance of a full hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles), and arriving at its southern coast you will be able to see after that Rāvaṇa in Laṅkā, protected by the sea on all sides. Reaching there expeditiously show your valour soon, O monkeys ! (24-25)

ज्ञानेन खलु पश्यामि दृष्ट्वा प्रत्यागमिष्यथ ।

आद्यः पन्थाः कुलिङ्गानां ये चान्ये धान्यजीविनः ॥ २६ ॥

“I perceive through intuition that you will indeed be able to return after seeing Sitā. The first shortest flight in point of height is that of sparrows and other birds who live on grain. (26)

द्वितीयो बलिभोजानां ये च वृक्षफलाशनाः ।

भासास्तृतीयं गच्छन्ति क्रौञ्चाश्च कुररैः सह ॥ २७ ॥

“The second, in order of height, is that of birds such as crows living on fragments of food left at a meal and those such as parrots that subsist on the fruits of trees. Bhāsas and herons as well as ospreys take a flight which is third in order of height. (27)

श्येनाश्चतुर्थं गच्छन्ति गृध्रा गच्छन्ति पञ्चमम् ।

बलवीर्योपपन्नानां रूपयौवनशालिनाम् ॥ २८ ॥

षष्ठस्तु पन्था हंसानां वैनतेयगतिः परा ।

वैनतेयाच्च नो जन्म सर्वेषां वानरर्षभाः ॥ २९ ॥

“Hawks take a flight which is fourth in order of height; while vultures take a flight which is fifth in order of height. The sixth in order of height is the flight of swans endowed with strength and virility and graced with comeliness and youth; while the flight of Garuḍa (son of Vinatā) is the highest. We all vultures claim our descent from Aruṇa, the younger son of Vinatā, O leaders of monkeys ! (28-29)

गर्हितं तु कृतं कर्म येन स्म पिशिताशिनः ।

प्रतिकार्यं च मे तस्य वैरं भ्रातृकृतं भवेत् ॥ ३० ॥

“The enmity shown towards my brother, Jaṭāyu, by that ogre (lit., one who feeds on raw flesh), by whom the execrable act in the shape of Sitā's abduction was actually perpetrated, remains to be repaid by me, which will be automatically done through your agency. (30)

इहस्थोऽहं प्रपश्यामि रावणं जानकीं तथा ।

अस्माकमपि सौपर्णं दिव्यं चक्षुर्बलं तथा ॥ ३१ ॥

“Standing here I vividly perceive Rāvaṇa and Sitā (daughter of Janaka). We also possess the supersensuous vision of Garuḍa of charming wings. (31)

तस्मादाहारवीर्येण निसर्गेण च वानराः ।

आयोजनशतात् साग्राद् वयं पश्याम नित्यशः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Therefore, through the potency of our food and by virtue of our nature (as descendants of Vinatā) we can always see to a distance of more than one hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles), O monkeys ! (32)

अस्माकं विहिता वृत्तिर्निसर्गेण च दूरतः ।

विहिता वृक्षमूले तु वृत्तिश्चरणयोधिनाम् ॥ ३३ ॥

“Moreover, our sustenance has been ordained by Nature with food seen at a distance, while that of cocks (lit., birds contending with their claws) has been ordained with food obtained at the foot of a tree. (33)

उपायो दृश्यतां कश्चिल्लङ्घने लवणाम्भसः ।

अभिगम्य तु वैदेहीं समृद्धार्थां गमिष्यथ ॥ ३४ ॥

“Some means may be found out to cross the sea (of brackish waters). Having met Sitā (a princess of the Videha territory) you will surely return to Kiṣkindhā, fully accomplished of purpose. (34)

समुद्रं नेतुमिच्छामि भवद्विर्वरुणालयम् ।

प्रदास्याम्युदकं भ्रातुः स्वर्गतस्य महात्मनः ॥ ३५ ॥

“I wish myself to be taken by you to the sea, the abode of Varuṇa (the god of water). I will duly offer water to the spirit of my high-souled younger brother, Jaṭāyu, who has ascended to heaven.” (35)

ततो नीत्वा तु तं देशं तीरे नदनदीपतेः ।

निर्दग्धपक्षं सम्पातिं वानराः सुमहौजसः ॥ ३६ ॥

तं पुनः प्रापयित्वा च तं देशं पतगेश्वरम् ।

बभूवुर्वानरा हृष्टाः प्रवृत्तिमुपलभ्य ते ॥ ३७ ॥

Actually taking Sampāti, whose wings had been completely burnt, to the aforesaid region lying on the shore of the ocean (the lord of rivers and streams), and then, after he had offered water to the spirit of his younger brother, taking the said king of birds back to the same place where he lived, the aforesaid monkeys, who were endowed with extraordinary energy, felt rejoiced to receive the information regarding Rāvaṇa and Sītā. (36-37)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे

अष्टपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-eight in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LIX

Interrogated by Jāmbavān as to how Sampāti came to know about Sītā's, abduction by Rāvaṇa, the vulture tells him that it was his son, Supārśwa, who related to him how, one day, while he was ranging along the seashore in search of food, he had seen a young lady, shining brightly as gold, being borne away by an ogre, of whom he had come to know later on from the words of an eminent sage that they were no other than Sītā and Rāvaṇa, respectively

ततस्तदमृतास्वादं गृध्रराजेन भाषितम् ।
निशम्य वदता हृष्टास्ते वचः प्लवगर्षभाः ॥ १ ॥

The aforesaid leaders of monkeys were delighted to hear the words, sweet as nectar, uttered by the king of vultures, even as he spoke to them. (1)

जाम्बवान् वानरश्रेष्ठः सह सर्वैः प्लवङ्गमैः ।
भूतलात् सहस्रोत्थाय गृध्रराजानमब्रवीत् ॥ २ ॥

Rising from the ground all at once alongwith all the monkeys, Jāmbavān, the foremost of all monkeys and bears, spoke as follows to Sampāti, the king of vultures : (2)

क्व सीता केन वा दृष्टा को वा हरति मैथिलीम् ।
तदाख्यातु भवान् सर्वं गतिर्भव वनौकसाम् ॥ ३ ॥

"Where is Sītā and by whom was she seen? And who abducted the princess of Mithilā? Pray, relate all that and prove to be an asylum for the monkeys and bears

(lit., dwellers in the woods). (3)

को दाशरथिबाणानां वज्रवेगनिपातिनाम् ।
स्वयं लक्ष्मणमुक्तानां न चिन्तयति विक्रमम् ॥ ४ ॥

"Who is it that does not mind the might of the arrows of Śrī Rāma (son of Daśaratha), which rush with the speed of lightning, as well as of those discharged by Lakṣmaṇa himself?" (4)

स हरीन् प्रतिसम्मुक्तान् सीताश्रुतिसमाहितान् ।
पुनराश्वासयन् प्रीत इदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ५ ॥

Consoling once more the monkeys, who had now totally given up the vow of starving themselves to death and were all attention to hear more about Sītā, Sampāti joyously made the following reply : (5)

श्रूयतामिह वैदेह्या यथा मे हरणं श्रुतम् ।
येन चापि ममाख्यातं यत्र चायतलोचना ॥ ६ ॥

"Hear how the abduction of Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) was heard of by me here and also by whom the story was related to me, and where the large-eyed lady is. (6)

अहमस्मिन् गिरौ दुर्गे बहुयोजनमायते ।
चिरान्निपतितो वृद्धः क्षीणप्राणपराक्रमः ॥ ७ ॥

“Long ago I fell on this mountain, which is difficult of access and is many Yojanas in extent. I am now old and find my vitality and prowess, too, depleted. (7)

तं मामेवंगतं पुत्रः सुपाश्वर्षो नाम नामतः ।
आहारेण यथाकालं बिभर्ति पततां वरः ॥ ८ ॥

“My own son, well-known by the name of Supārśwa, the foremost of birds, nourished me with food at regular hours when I was reduced to this plight. (8)

तीक्ष्णकामास्तु गन्धर्वास्तीक्ष्णकोपा भुजङ्गमाः ।
मृगाणां तु भयं तीक्ष्णं ततस्तीक्ष्णक्षुधा वयम् ॥ ९ ॥

“Ardent is the longing of Gandharvas (celestial musicians) for women and violent is the anger of serpents. Intense is the fear of antelopes, while we, birds, are noted more than the latter for our keen appetite. (9)

स कदाचित् क्षुधार्तस्य ममाहाराभिकांक्षिणः ।
गतसूर्येऽहनि प्राप्तो मम पुत्रो ह्यनामिषः ॥ १० ॥

“One day, my aforesaid son came to me actually without any flesh at an hour of the day when the sun had actually set; while I was tormented with hunger and was ardently longing for food. (10)

स मयाऽऽहारसंरोधात् पीडितः प्रीतिवर्धनः ।
अनुमान्य यथातत्त्वमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ११ ॥

“Honouring me when stung by me with harsh words for withholding food from me, Supārśwa, who heightened my joy on meeting me, made the following reply, which was in consonance with facts : (11)

अहं तात यथाकालमामिषार्थी खमाप्लुतः ।
महेन्द्रस्य गिरेर्द्वारमावृत्य सुसमाश्रितः ॥ १२ ॥

“‘Having flown into the air in quest of flesh in time I stationed myself blocking the approach to the Mahendra mountain, O dear father ! (12)

तत्र सत्त्वसहस्राणां सागरान्तरचारिणाम् ।
पन्थानमेकोऽध्यवसं संनिरोद्धुमवाङ्मुखः ॥ १३ ॥

“‘I stayed there alone, head downwards, with a view to obstructing completely the passage of thousands of creatures living in the sea. (13)

तत्र कश्चिन्मया दृष्टः सूर्योदयसमप्रभाम् ।
स्त्रियमादाय गच्छन् वै भिन्नाङ्गनचयोपमः ॥ १४ ॥

“‘On that occasion was seen by me someone looking like a mass of collyrium, actually carrying a lady bright as the dawn. (14)

सोऽहमभ्यवहारार्थं तौ दृष्ट्वा कृतनिश्चयः ।
तेन साम्ना विनीतेन पन्थानमनुयाचितः ॥ १५ ॥

“‘Seeing them, I resolved to seize them for your food. By him, however, I was asked for a passage in gentle words and in a submissive demeanour. (15)

नहि सामोपपन्नानां प्रहर्ता विद्यते भुवि ।
नीचेष्वपि जनः कश्चित् किमङ्ग बत मद्विधः ॥ १६ ॥

“‘Indeed there is no creature on earth, even among the vile, who would strike those armed with conciliatory words; how, then, can a creature like myself do so, O dear father? (16)

स यातस्तेजसा व्योम संक्षिपन्निव वेगितः ।
अथाहं खेचरैर्भूतैरभिगम्य सभाजितः ॥ १७ ॥

“‘He hurriedly passed on enveloping the sky as it were with splendour. Thereupon I was met and felicitated by living beings coursing in the air. (17)

दिष्ट्या जीवति सीतेति ह्यब्रुवन् मां महर्षयः ।
कथंचित् सकलत्रोऽसौ गतस्ते स्वस्त्यसंशयम् ॥ १८ ॥

“‘Eminent sages actually said to me : By good luck Sītā is still alive; again it is undoubtedly well for you that the fellow somehow left with that lady without doing any harm to you. (18)

एवमुक्तस्ततोऽहं तैः सिद्धैः परमशोभनैः ।

स च मे रावणो राजा रक्षसां प्रतिवेदितः ॥ १९ ॥

“ ‘After he had left I was spoken to as aforesaid by those highly glorious Siddhas. Nay, the fellow was further pointed out to have been no other than Rāvaṇa, the king of ogres. (19)

पश्यन् दाशरथेर्भार्या रामस्य जनकात्मजाम् ।

भ्रष्टाभरणकौशेयां शोकवेगपराजिताम् ॥ २० ॥

रामलक्ष्मणयोर्नाम क्रोशन्तीं मुक्तमूर्धजाम् ।

एष कालात्ययस्तात इति वाक्यविदां वरः ॥ २१ ॥

एतदर्थं समग्रं मे सुपार्श्वः प्रत्यवेदयत् ।

तच्छ्रुत्वापि हि मे बुद्धिर्नासीत् काचित् पराक्रमे ॥ २२ ॥

अपक्षो हि कथं पक्षी कर्म किंचित् समारभेत् ।

यत् तु शक्यं मया कर्तुं वाग्बुद्धिगुणवर्तिना ॥ २३ ॥

श्रूयतां तत्र वक्ष्यामि भवतां पौरुषाश्रयम् ।

वाङ्मतिभ्यां हि सर्वेषां करिष्यामि प्रियं हि वः ॥ २४ ॥

“ ‘I remained looking on the consort of Śrī Rāma, son of Daśaratha, and daughter of Janaka, whose jewels had dropped from her person and whose silk covering had slipped from over her head, nay, who had been overcome with vehemence of grief and who was calling loudly the names of Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, her hair dishevelled. This is how the time passed, O dear father !’ So did Supārśwa, the foremost of masters of expression, convey all this information to me. Even after actually hearing it the idea of showing valour did not occur to me at all. Indeed how can a bird shorn of its wings undertake to do anything? I, however, shall tell you something which can be done in that behalf by me, used as I am to helping others with my speech and understanding, but the execution of which depends entirely on your prowess. Surely, I will do with my word and intellect that which is really agreeable to you. (20—24)

यद्धि दाशरथेः कार्यं मम तन्नात्र संशयः ।

तद् भवन्तो मतिश्रेष्ठा बलवन्तो मनस्विनः ॥ २५ ॥

प्रहिताः कपिराजेन देवैरपि दुरासदाः ।

रामलक्ष्मणबाणाश्च विहिताः कङ्कपत्रिणः ॥ २६ ॥

त्रयाणामपि लोकानां पर्याप्तास्त्राणनिग्रहे ।

कामं खलु दशग्रीवस्तेजोबलसमन्वितः ।

भवतां तु समर्थानां न किंचिदपि दुष्करम् ॥ २७ ॥

“For that which is the concern of Śrī Rāma (a son of Daśaratha) is equally my concern: there is no doubt about it. You are pre-eminent in point of intelligence, mighty, high-minded and difficult to assail even for gods. Hence you have been dispatched here by Sugrīva (the ruler of monkeys). The shafts of Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, which have been evolved by the creator himself and are furnished with the plumes of a buzzard, are adequate to protect or subdue all the three worlds. Granted that Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) is, truly speaking, fully endowed with energy and bodily strength; nothing whatsoever is, however, difficult to accomplish for you, powerful as you are. (25—27)

तदलं कालसङ्गेन क्रियतां बुद्धिनिश्चयः ।

नहि कर्मसु सज्जन्ते बुद्धिमन्तो भवद्विधाः ॥ २८ ॥

“Therefore, there should be no more loss of time; let your mind be made up soon to do your best to find out Sītā. For, intelligent people like you do not lag behind in their undertakings.” (28)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे एकोनषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ५९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-nine in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Rṣi and the oldest epic.

षष्ठितमः सर्गः

Canto LX

Having inspired confidence in the monkeys, Sampāti proceeds to relate to Aṅgada and others, who longed to hear more about Sītā, the story of Sītā's abduction in greater detail. He tells them how, having fallen on the Vindhyan range with his wings completely burnt by the scorching sun, he swooned and regained consciousness only on the seventh day, when he came to know that it was the Vindhyan range on which he had fallen. Descending with difficulty from the eminence, he made his way into the hermitage of a sage named Niśākara, and bowed down to him. Recognizing him to be Sampāti, the sage inquired as to how his wings had come to be burnt

ततः कृतोदकं स्नातं तं गृध्रं हरियूथपाः ।
उपविष्टा गिरौ रम्ये परिवार्य समन्ततः ॥ १ ॥

The monkey chiefs now sat on the lovely mountain encompassing on all sides the vulture, Sampāti, who had offered water to the spirit of his deceased brother and taken his bath. (1)

तमङ्गदमुपासीनं तैः सर्वैर्हरिभिर्वृतम् ।
जनितप्रत्ययो हर्षात् सम्पातिः पुनर्ब्रवीत् ॥ २ ॥

Having inspired confidence in the monkeys, Sampāti joyously spoke once more to the celebrated Aṅgada, who was sitting close by, surrounded by all those monkeys : (2)

कृत्वा निःशब्दमेकाग्राः शृण्वन्तु हरयो मम ।
तथ्यं संकीर्तयिष्यामि यथा जानामि मैथिलीम् ॥ ३ ॥

“Let all the monkeys listen to me attentively, observing complete silence. I will narrate in detail the truth as to how I came to know of Sītā, the princess of Mithilā. (3)

अस्य विन्ध्यस्य शिखरे पतितोऽस्मि पुरानघ ।
सूर्यतापपरीताङ्गो निर्दग्धः सूर्यरश्मिभिः ॥ ४ ॥

“Scorched by the rays of the sun, all my limbs overpowered by the sun's heat, I fell in the former days on a summit of this Vindhyan range, O sinless ones ! (4)

लब्धसंज्ञस्तु षड्रात्राद् विवशो विह्वलन्निव ।
वीक्षमाणो दिशः सर्वा नाभिजानामि किञ्चन ॥ ५ ॥

“Having regained consciousness after six nights, I for my part stood looking all-round, powerless and fainting as it were, but could not distinguish anything. (5)

ततस्तु सागराञ्छैलान् नदीः सर्वाः सरांसि च ।
वनानि च प्रदेशांश्च निरीक्ष्य मतिरागता ॥ ६ ॥

“Then on scanning the seas and rocks, all the rivers and lakes, woods and the parts of the country, however, memory returned to me. (6)

हृष्टपक्षिगणाकीर्णः कन्दरोदरकूटवान् ।
दक्षिणस्योदधेस्तीरे विन्ध्योऽयमिति निश्चितः ॥ ७ ॥

“It was eventually concluded to be no other than the Vindhya mountain on the shore of the southern sea—a mountain which is crowded with flocks of joyous birds and contains caves in its flanks and a number of peaks. (7)

आसीच्चात्राश्रमं पुण्यं सुरैरपि सुपूजितम् ।
ऋषिर्निशाकरो नाम यस्मिन्नुग्रतपाऽभवत् ॥ ८ ॥

“Again, here there was a holy hermitage, highly adored even by gods, in which dwelt a Ṛṣi (a seer of Vedic Mantras) named Niśākara, noted for his rigorous austerities. (8)

अष्टौ वर्षसहस्राणि तेनास्मिन्नुषिणा गिरौ ।
वसतो मम धर्मज्ञे स्वर्गते तु निशाकरे ॥ १ ॥

“Even after Sage Niśākara, who knew what is right, had ascended to heaven, eight thousand years slipped past me as I lived on this mountain without this Ṛṣi. (9)

अवतीर्य च विन्ध्याग्रात् कृच्छ्रेण विषमाच्छनैः ।
तीक्ष्णदर्भा वसुमतीं दुःखेन पुनरागतः ॥ १० ॥

“Descending slowly and painfully from the rugged peak of the Vindhya mountain (on regaining consciousness after my fall from the sky) I then reached with difficulty a plain bristling with sharp-pointed blades of the sacred Kuśa grass. (10)

तमृषिं द्रष्टुकामोऽस्मि दुःखेनाभ्यागतो भृशम् ।
जटायुषा मया चैव बहुशोऽधिगतो हि सः ॥ ११ ॥

“Eager to see the aforesaid Ṛṣi I arrived there with great hardship; for he had been visited by Jaṭāyu and myself on many an occasion in the past. (11)

तस्याश्रमपदाभ्याशे ववुर्वाताः सुगन्धिनः ।
वृक्षो नापुष्पितः कश्चिदफलो वा न दृश्यते ॥ १२ ॥

“In the neighbourhood of the site of that hermitage fragrant breezes blew. No tree without blossom or fruit could be seen there. (12)

उपेत्य चाश्रमं पुण्यं वृक्षमूलमुपाश्रितः ।
द्रष्टुकामः प्रतीक्षे च भगवन्तं निशाकरम् ॥ १३ ॥

“Nay, approaching the holy hermitage I took shelter at the foot of a tree and waited there, keen as I was to see the venerable Sage, Niśākara. (13)

अथ पश्यामि दूरस्थमृषिं ज्वलिततेजसम् ।
कृताभिषेकं दुर्धर्षमुपावृत्तमुदङ्मुखम् ॥ १४ ॥

“Presently I beheld at a distance the sage of dazzling brilliance, who could not easily be disregarded, returning with his face turned towards the north having taken his bath in the sea. (14)

तमृक्षाः सृमरा व्याघ्राः सिंहा नानासरीसृपाः ।
परिवार्योपगच्छन्ति दातारं प्राणिनो यथा ॥ १५ ॥

“Bears, Sṛmaras (a species of deer), tigers, lions and serpents of various kinds followed, surrounding him on all sides as supplicants would follow a donor. (15)

ततः प्राप्तमृषिं ज्ञात्वा तानि सत्त्वानि वै ययुः ।
प्रविष्टे राजनि यथा सर्वं सामात्यकं बलम् ॥ १६ ॥

“Then finding the sage having reached the hermitage, the aforesaid animals left immediately for their dens, even as on a king retiring into his palace the whole army escorting him, alongwith the ministers, disperses. (16)

ऋषिस्तु दृष्ट्वा मां तुष्टः प्रविष्टश्चाश्रमं पुनः ।
मुहूर्तमात्रान्निर्गम्य ततः कार्यमपृच्छत् ॥ १७ ॥

“The Ṛṣi was pleased to behold me and retired into his hermitage. Coming out, however, once more after an hour or so, he then inquired of me the purpose of my visit. (17)

सौम्य वैकल्यतां दृष्ट्वा रोम्णां ते नावगम्यते ।
अग्निदग्धाविमौ पक्षौ प्राणाश्चापि शरीरके ॥ १८ ॥

“He said: ‘Seeing the disappearance of your feathers I could not recognize you, O gentle one! These wings of yours have also been burnt with fire and even so the vitality as well as the strength and prowess too in your frail frame stand well-nigh consumed. (18)

गृध्रौ द्वौ दृष्टपूर्वौ मे मातरिश्वसमौ जवे ।
गृध्राणां चैव राजानौ भ्रातरौ कामरूपिणौ ॥ १९ ॥

“Two vultures, related as brothers to each other, the rulers of vultures, who vied with the wind in speed and were capable of changing form at will, were seen by me before. (19)

ज्येष्ठोऽवितस्त्वं सम्पाते जटायुरुनुजस्तव ।
मानुषं रूपमास्थाय गृहीतां चरणौ मम ॥ २० ॥

“Assuming human forms, you, who stand recognized by me as the elder of the two, O Sampāti, and Jaṭāyu, your younger brother, used to clasp my feet as a token of respect. (20)

किं ते व्याधिसमुत्थानं पक्षयोः पतनं कथम् ।
दण्डो वायं धृतः केन सर्वमाख्याहि पृच्छतः ॥ २१ ॥

“Is this a symptom of some disease appearing in your body? How is the falling off of your wings to be accounted for? Or by whom has this punishment been inflicted on you? Relate everything to me, who makes this inquiry of you.” (21)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्राणायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे
षष्ठितमः सर्गः ॥ ६० ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXI

Relating to Sage Niśākara the circumstances which led to his being burnt, Sampāti takes before the sage a vow to give up the ghost by leaping from a mountain-peak

ततस्तद् दारुणं कर्म दुष्करं सहसा कृतम् ।
आचक्षे मुनेः सर्वं सूर्यानुगमनं तथा ॥ १ ॥

Thereupon Sampāti related in the following words to the sage Niśākara all about that impetuous act (in the form of discomfiting Indra), which was so hard to accomplish and had been rashly undertaken, as also about their wild goose chase after the sun :

भगवन् ब्रणयुक्तत्वाल्लज्जया चाकुलेन्द्रियः ।
परिश्रान्तो न शक्नोमि वचनं परिभाषितुम् ॥ २ ॥

“Due to my being afflicted with wounds inflicted by the thunderbolt of Indra and my mind being confused through shame (at my humiliation and frustration that followed in the wake of my chasing the sun) and exhausted by my arduous journey to your hermitage, I cannot narrate my story at length. O venerable sage ! (2)

अहं चैव जटायुश्च संघर्षाद् गर्वमोहितौ ।
आकाशं पतितौ दूराज्जिज्ञासन्तौ पराक्रमम् ॥ ३ ॥
कैलासशिखरे बद्ध्वा मुनीनामग्रतः पणम् ।
रविः स्यादनुयातव्यो यावदस्तं महागिरिम् ॥ ४ ॥

“Having taken a vow on a peak of Mount Kailāsa in the presence of hermits that the sun must be followed till it reached the huge Western Mountain (where the sun is supposed to set), Jaṭāyu, my younger brother, and myself too, who were anxious to test our relative strength, infatuated as we were with pride (occasioned by our having worsted Indra in an encounter), flew far into the sky in a spirit of emulation. (3-4)

अप्यावां युगपत् प्राप्तावपश्याव महीतले ।
रथचक्रप्रमाणानि नगराणि पृथक् पृथक् ॥ ५ ॥

“Nay, having reached the sky together, we distinctly perceived cities on the earth’s surface, equal in size to the wheel of a chariot. (5)

क्वचिद् वादित्रघोषश्च क्वचिद् भूषणनिःस्वनः ।
गायन्तीः स्माङ्गना बह्वीः पश्यावो रक्तवाससः ॥ ६ ॥

“In one region of the sky was heard the sound of musical instruments, while in another could be heard the jingling of ornaments. In a third region we found singing numerous young ladies clad in red. (6)

तूर्णमुत्पत्य चाकाशमादित्यपदमास्थितौ ।
आवामालोकयावस्तद् वनं शाद्वलसंस्थितम् ॥ ७ ॥

“Nay, speedily rising above the region immediately below the path of the sun and having reached the path of the sun, we found the forest below looking like a grassy plot. (7)

उपलैरिव संछन्ना दृश्यते भूः शिलोच्चयैः ।
आपगाभिश्च संवीता सूत्रैरिव वसुंधरा ॥ ८ ॥

“Thickly covered with mountains, the earth looked as though strewn with pebbles; nay, surrounded by rivers, the terrestrial globe appeared entwined with threads. (8)

हिमवांश्चैव विन्ध्यश्च मेरुश्च सुमहागिरिः ।
भूतले सम्प्रकाशन्ते नागा इव जलाशये ॥ ९ ॥

“The Himalayan range as well as the Vindhyan range and the huge mountain Meru too vividly appeared on the earth’s surface as so many elephants in a pond. (9)

तीव्रः स्वेदश्च खेदश्च भयं चासीत् तदावयोः ।
समाविशत मोहश्च ततो मूर्च्छा च दारुणा ॥ १० ॥

“Intense perspiration and fatigue as well as fear presently came upon us. Nay, confusion and then violent unconsciousness too overcame us. (10)

न च दिग् ज्ञायते याम्या न चाग्नेयी न वारुणी ।
युगान्ते नियतो लोको हतो दग्ध इवाग्निना ॥ ११ ॥

“Neither the southern quarter presided over by Yama, the god of retribution, nor the south-eastern corner presided over by the god of fire nor again the western quarter presided over by Varuṇa (the god of water) could be distinguished between. The world, which is governed by laws of nature and could not perish before the appointed time, seemed to have been consumed by fire as at the time of universal destruction (lit., the end of a Kalpa or cycle). (11)

मनश्च मे हतं भूयश्चक्षुः प्राप्य तु संश्रयम् ।
यत्नेन महता ह्यस्मिन् मनः संधाय चक्षुषी ॥ १२ ॥
यत्नेन महता भूयो भास्करः प्रतिलोकितः ।
तुल्य पृथ्वीप्रमाणेन भास्करः प्रतिभाति नौ ॥ १३ ॥

“Nay, falling back upon the sense of vision as its medium, my mind for its part got lost (due to the failure of my vision). Fixing once more my mind and eyes on the sun with great effort, of course, the sun could at least be seen with great effort. The sun appeared to us to be equal in size to the earth. (12-13)

जटायुर्ममनापृच्छ्य निपपात महीं ततः ।
तं दृष्ट्वा तूर्णमाकाशादात्मानं मुक्तवानहम् ॥ १४ ॥

“Without taking leave of me, Jaṭāyu then descended to the earth. Seeing him descend, I too speedily let myself fall from the sky. (14)

पक्षाभ्यां च मया गुप्तो जटायुर्न प्रदह्यत ।
प्रमादात् तत्र निर्दग्धः पतन् वायुपथादहम् ॥ १५ ॥
आशङ्के तं निपतितं जनस्थाने जटायुषम् ।
अहं तु पतितो विन्ध्ये दग्धपक्षो जडीकृतः ॥ १६ ॥

“Having been protected by me with my wings, Jaṭāyu was not burnt; I, however, got my wings badly burnt at that time due to my recklessness. While falling down from the sky I suspected Jaṭāyu to have dropped somewhere in Janasthāna; while I fell down unconscious on the Vindhyan range, my wings having been burnt. (15-16)

राज्याच्च हीनो भ्रात्रा च पक्षाभ्यां विक्रमेण च ।
सर्वथा मर्तुमेवेच्छन् पतिष्ये शिखराद् गिरेः ॥ १७ ॥

“Deprived of my rulership of the feathered kingdom and my brother, and shorn of my wings and prowess, and, therefore, seeking death alone under all circumstances, I will fall down from a mountain-peak.” (17)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे
एकषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-one in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्विषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXII

Sampāti communicates to the monkeys the prediction made by Sage Niśākara, who could foresee future events by dint of his intuitive perception, that descending as Śrī Rāma elsewhere the Lord will dispatch monkeys in quest of Sītā to the Vindhyan range and that Sampāti will get back his wings as soon as he tells the monkeys the whereabouts of Sītā

एवमुक्त्वा मुनिश्रेष्ठमरुदं भृशदुःखितः ।
अथ ध्यात्वा मुहूर्तं च भगवानिदमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

“Having submitted to Niśākara, the foremost of sages, as above, I fell asobbing, sore distressed as I was. Reflecting a while, the venerable sage, however, spoke as follows : (1)

पक्षौ च ते प्रपक्षौ च पुनरन्यौ भविष्यतः ।
चक्षुषी चैव प्राणाश्च विक्रमश्च बलं च ते ॥ २ ॥

“You will get back other pair of wings as well as vision and renewed vitality as also valour and strength too. (2)

पुराणे सुमहत्कार्यं भविष्यं हि मया श्रुतम् ।
दृष्टं मे तपसा चैव श्रुत्वा च विदितं मम ॥ ३ ॥

“It has actually been heard by me (predicted) in the old traditional history that a very remarkable event is going to take place in future. It has not only been learnt by me through hearsay but also foreseen by me by virtue of my asceticism. (3)

राजा दशरथो नाम कश्चिदिक्ष्वाकुवर्धनः ।
तस्य पुत्रो महातेजा रामो नाम भविष्यति ॥ ४ ॥

“There will be a certain king, Daśaratha by name, the promoter of Ikṣvāku’s race. A son, Rāma by name, endowed with extraordinary energy, will be born to him. (4)

अरण्यं च सह भ्रात्रा लक्ष्मणेन गमिष्यति ।
तस्मिन्नर्थे नियुक्तः सन् पित्रा सत्यपराक्रमः ॥ ५ ॥

“Called upon by his father to do so, Śrī Rāma of unfailing prowess will proceed to the forest with his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, and his consort, Sītā. (5)

नैर्ऋतो रावणो नाम तस्य भार्या हरिष्यति ।
राक्षसेन्द्रो जनस्थाने अवध्यः सुरदानवैः ॥ ६ ॥

“An ogre (lit., One born in the line of Nirṛti, the deity presiding over the south-east), Rāvaṇa by name, the ruler of ogres, incapable of being slain by gods and demons alike, will carry off his consort, Sītā, in Janasthāna. (6)

सा च कामैः प्रलोभ्यन्ती भक्ष्यैर्भोज्यैश्च मैथिली ।
न भोक्ष्यति महाभागा दुःखमग्रा यशस्विनी ॥ ७ ॥

“Plunged in sorrow, the illustrious and highly blessed Sītā, a princess of Mithilā, however, will not partake of anything, even though tempted with offers of dishes—worth coveting—requiring mastication and those which can be easily gulped. (7)

परमान्नं च वैदेह्या ज्ञात्वा दास्यति वासवः ।
यदन्नममृतप्रख्यं सुराणामपि दुर्लभम् ॥ ८ ॥

“Learning of this, Indra (the ruler of gods) will offer (through his messenger Mātali, a dish of) milk boiled with rice and sugar, a dish which will be like ambrosia and difficult to get even for gods. (8)

तदन्नं मैथिली प्राप्य विज्ञायेन्द्रादिदं त्विति ।
अग्रमुद्धृत्य रामाय भूतले निर्वपिष्यति ॥ ९ ॥
यदि जीवति मे भर्ता लक्ष्मणो वापि देवरः ।
देवत्वं गच्छतोर्वापि तयोरन्नमिदं त्विति ॥ १० ॥

“Receiving that dish and taking out the foremost part of it on coming to know for certain that it has come from Indra, Sītā (a princess of Mithilā) for her part will pour it on the ground as an offering to Śrī Rāma, saying: ‘If my husband or even Lakṣmaṇa, my brother-in-law, is alive, or even if they have attained the celestial state, let this food actually reach them.’ (9-10)

एष्यन्ति प्रेषितास्तत्र रामदूताः प्लवङ्गमाः ।
आख्येया राममहिषी त्वया तेभ्यो विहङ्गमा ॥ ११ ॥

“Dispatched as messengers of Śrī Rāma, monkeys will arrive on that spot. To them, O bird, the information about Sītā (the consort of Śrī Rāma) should be communicated by you. (11)

सर्वथा तु न गन्तव्यमीदृशः क्व गमिष्यसि ।
देशकालौ प्रतीक्षस्व पक्षौ त्वं प्रतिपत्स्यसे ॥ १२ ॥

“On no account, however, should you venture out. Where can you go in this state? Wait for a suitable place and time, you will recover your wings. (12)

उत्सहेयमहं कर्तुमद्यैव त्वां सपक्षकम् ।
इहस्थस्त्वं हि लोकानां हितं कार्यं करिष्यसि ॥ १३ ॥

“I can furnish you with wings this very day. (But in that case you will fly away to some other place). Continuing here, however, you will do a friendly act of service to mankind by enabling Śrī Rāma to trace out Sītā and kill Rāvaṇa, a sworn enemy of mankind. (13)

त्वयापि खलु तत् कार्यं तयोश्च नृपपुत्रयोः ।
ब्राह्मणानां गुरुणां च मुनीनां वासवस्य च ॥ १४ ॥

“Indeed it is your duty too to render the aforesaid service to those two princes (Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa), to the Brāhmaṇas as well as to your teachers (viz., ourselves) and other hermits as also to Indra, inasmuch as the interests of all these, including yourself, will be served by it. (14)

इच्छाम्यहमपि द्रष्टुं भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ।
नेच्छे चिरं धारयितुं प्राणांस्त्यक्ष्ये कलेवरम् ।
महर्षिस्त्वब्रवीदेवं दृष्टतत्त्वार्थदर्शनः ॥ १५ ॥

“I too long to see the two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa; yet I do not wish to preserve my life for a long time and will cast off my body.” Thus spoke the great Ṛṣi Nisākara, who had for his part realized the substance forming the Reality (viz., Brahma) and mastered the Veda (which enables one to realize It). (15)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे द्विषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-two in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto XLIII

Even while Sampāti was thus talking with the monkeys, a pair of beautiful wings shoot forth on his sides. Feeling transported with joy at their sight and showing them to the monkeys, nay, assuring them that their purpose too will likewise be achieved, Sampāti soars to the sky in order to test the power of his wings. Feeling encouraged by this, the monkeys too resume their journey further south

एतैरन्यैश्च बहुभिर्वाक्यैर्वाक्यविशारदः ।
मां प्रशस्याभ्यनुज्ञाप्य प्रविष्टः स स्वमालयम् ॥ १ ॥

“Having extolled me in the forgoing and many other such words and taking leave of me, the sage, who was a master of expression, retired into his abode. (1)

कन्दरात् तु विसर्पित्वा पर्वतस्य शनैः शनैः ।
अहं विन्ध्यं समारुह्य भवतः प्रतिपालये ॥ २ ॥

“Crawling from the mountain-cave and climbing up the Vindhyān range, I have been waiting for you all. (2)

अद्य त्वेतस्य कालस्य वर्षं साग्रशतं गतम् ।
देशकालप्रतीक्षोऽस्मि हृदि कृत्वा मुनेर्वचः ॥ ३ ॥

“Since then more than eight thousand* years have elapsed till this day. Bearing in mind the sage’s words I have been waiting for the predicted place and time. (3)

महाप्रस्थानमासाद्य स्वर्गते तु निशाकरे ।
मां निर्दहति संतापो वितर्कैर्बहुभिर्वृतम् ॥ ४ ॥

“Sage Nīśākara for his part having ascended to heaven on reaching the end of his life, agony has been consuming me, beset as I am with numerous doubts. (4)

उदितां मरणे बुद्धिं मुनिवाक्यैर्निवर्तये ।
बुद्धिर्या तेन मे दत्ता प्राणानां रक्षणे मम ॥ ५ ॥
सा मेऽपनयते दुःखं दीप्तेवाग्निशिखा तमः ।
बुध्यता च मया वीर्यं रावणस्य दुरात्मनः ॥ ६ ॥

पुत्रः संतर्जितो वाग्भिर्न त्राता मैथिली कथम् ।
तस्या विलपितं श्रुत्वा तौ च सीतावियोजितौ ॥ ७ ॥
न मे दशरथस्नेहात् पुत्रेणोत्पादितं प्रियम् ।
तस्य त्वेवं ब्रुवाणस्य संहतैर्वानरैः सह ॥ ८ ॥
उत्पेततुस्तदा पक्षौ समक्षं वनचारिणाम् ।
स दृष्ट्वा स्वां तनुं पक्षैरुद्गतैररुणच्छदैः ॥ ९ ॥
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे वानरांश्चेदमब्रवीत् ।
निशाकरस्य राजर्षेः प्रसादादमितौजसः ॥ १० ॥
आदित्यरश्मिनिर्दग्धौ पक्षौ पुनरुपस्थितौ ।
यौवने वर्तमानस्य ममासीद् यः पराक्रमः ॥ ११ ॥
तमेवाद्यावगच्छामि बलं पौरुषमेव च ।
सर्वथा क्रियतां यत्नः सीतामधिगमिष्यथ ॥ १२ ॥

“I have been setting aside the thought of suicide, which now and then appeared in me, by recalling the words of the sage. The determination he inspired in me to preserve my life takes away my agony even as a blazing flame of fire would dispel darkness. Nay, knowing as I did the virility of the evil-minded Rāvaṇa, my son was twitted by me in the following words: ‘Wherefore did you not rescue Sītā (the princess of Mithilā)?’ (I feel distressed to note that even) on hearing the wails of Sītā and on coming to know of the two princes (Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa) having been deprived of Sītā, that which would have conduced to my pleasure viz., an all out attempt to rescue her, was not done by my son, even though he was capable of doing it, which he ought to have done looking to my love for the late Emperor Daśaratha.”

* Interpreting ‘शतम्’ forming part of the compound word ‘वर्षशतम्’ in the text, as bearing the sense of innumerable the commentators have computed the number to be eight thousand in order to bring it into line with the previous statement of Samāpti contained in verse 9 of Canto LX above.

Even while Sampāti was speaking as aforesaid with the monkeys collected together, a pair of wings presently appeared on his sides in the presence of those dwellers of the forest. He experienced an ecstasy of delight, which was unequalled, on seeing his body covered by two newly grown wings with ruddy feathers, and spoke to the monkeys as follows : “By the grace of the royal sage Niśākara, who was possessed of immense spiritual power, my pair of wings, which had been completely burnt by the rays of the sun, have newly appeared. I find in me today the same prowess, strength and virility which existed in me when I was passing through my youth. Let an all out effort be made to trace out Sītā; you will surely be able to discover Sītā.

(5—12)

पक्षलाभो ममायं वः सिद्धिप्रत्ययकारकः ।

इत्युक्त्वा तान् हरीन् सर्वान् सम्पातिः पतगोत्तमः ॥ १३ ॥

उत्पपात गिरेः शृङ्गाज्जिज्ञासुः खगमो गतिम् ।

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा प्रतिसंहृष्टमानसाः ।

बभूवुर्हरिशार्दूला विक्रमाभ्युदयोन्मुखाः ॥ १४ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे

त्रिषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-three in the Kīṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुःषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXIV

On the monkey heroes getting despondent at the sight of the (Indian) ocean, which they found difficult to cross, Aṅgada inquires of them if anyone of them was capable of leaping across the sea dividing India from Laṅkā. When all keep mum, he encourages all to proclaim each his own leaping capacity and prowess

आख्याता गृध्राजेन समुत्प्लुत्य प्लवङ्गमाः ।

संगताः प्रीतिसंयुक्ता विनेदुः सिंहविक्रमाः ॥ १ ॥

“This recovery of wings on my part is a pledge of your success.” Having spoken as aforesaid to all those monkeys, Sampāti, the foremost of birds, flew from the mountain-peak, keen as he was to see for himself once again how a bird flew. Highly pleased in mind in their turn to hear the foregoing words of Sampāti, those tigers among the monkeys became hopeful of their success, which depended on their valour.

(13-14)

अथ पवनसमानविक्रमाः

प्लवगवराः प्रतिलब्धपौरुषाः ।

अभिजिदभिमुखां दिशं ययु-

र्जनकसुतापरिमार्गणोन्मुखाः ॥ १५ ॥

Having regained their virility, which had been lost as a result of their frustration, the aforesaid leaders of monkeys, who were endowed with a speed equal to that of the wind, headed towards the southern quarter in which the constellation known by the name of Abhijit (a name associated by astrologers with triumph) appears foremost, keen as they were to trace out Sītā (daughter of King Janaka).

(15)

Leaping at full height in a body when enlightened by the king of vultures on the whereabouts of Sītā, the monkeys, who were all endowed with the prowess of a lion, thundered with joy. (1)

सम्पातेर्वचनं श्रुत्वा हरयो रावणक्षयम्।
हृष्टाः सागरमाजग्मुः सीतादर्शनकांक्षिणः ॥ २ ॥

Rejoiced to hear the words of Sampāti, the monkeys sought the ocean, constituting a passage to the abode of Rāvaṇa, keen as they were to discover Sītā. (2)

अभिगम्य तु तं देशं ददृशुर्भीमविक्रमाः।
कृत्स्नं लोकस्य महतः प्रतिबिम्बमवस्थितम् ॥ ३ ॥

Approaching the aforesaid region (viz., the seashore), the monkeys, who were possessed of terrific prowess, beheld the ocean, in which there stood a full image of the vast steller region. (3)

दक्षिणस्य समुद्रस्य समासाद्योत्तरां दिशम्।
संनिवेशं ततश्चकुर्हरिवीरा महाबलाः ॥ ४ ॥

Duly reaching the northern end of the South Sea (the Indian Ocean), the monkey heroes, who were possessed of extraordinary might, halted there. (4)

प्रसुप्तमिव चान्यत्र क्रीडन्तमिव चान्यतः।
क्वचित् पर्वतमात्रैश्च जलराशिभिरावृतम् ॥ ५ ॥
संकुलं दानवेन्द्रैश्च पातालतलवासिभिः।
रोमहर्षकरं दृष्ट्वा विषेदुः कपिकुञ्जराः ॥ ६ ॥

Those elephants among the monkeys felt despondent on seeing the ocean, which lay fast asleep as it were at one place, was sporting as it were at another and was covered at a third place with volumes of water as high as mountains, nay, which was thickly inhabited by the rulers of demons living in the depths of Pātāla (the seventh or nethermost subterranean region) and made one's hair stand on end. (5-6)

आकाशमिव दुष्पारं सागरं प्रेक्ष्य वानराः।
विषेदुः सहिताः सर्वे कथं कार्यमिति ब्रुवन् ॥ ७ ॥

The monkeys felt dejected on perceiving the ocean, which was difficult to cross like the sky, and all exclaimed with one voice :

“How will our purpose be achieved?” (7)

विषण्णां वाहिनीं दृष्ट्वा सागरस्य निरीक्षणात्।
आश्वासयामास हरीन् भयार्तान् हरिसत्तमः ॥ ८ ॥

Seeing the whole band of his followers despondent at the sight of the ocean, Aṅgada, the foremost of the monkeys consoled as follows the monkeys, stricken as they were with fear : (8)

न विषादे मनः कार्यं विषादो दोषवत्तरः।
विषादो हन्ति पुरुषं बालं क्रुद्ध इवोरगः ॥ ९ ॥

“Your mind should not be allowed to be swayed by despondency; for despondency is very harmful. The latter destroys a man as an angry serpent would kill an infant. (9)

यो विषादं प्रसहते विक्रमे समुपस्थिते।
तेजसा तस्य हीनस्य पुरुषार्थो न सिद्ध्यति ॥ १० ॥

“The endeavour of a man, lacking in spirit, who falls a prey to despondency when an occasion for valour duly presents itself, does not bear fruit.” (10)

तस्यां रात्र्यां व्यतीतायामङ्गदो वानरैः सह।
हरिवृद्धैः समागम्य पुनर्मन्त्रममन्त्रयत् ॥ ११ ॥

Meeting the older among the monkeys when that night had passed, Aṅgada took counsel with them once more. (11)

सा वानराणां ध्वजिनी परिवार्याङ्गदं बभौ।
वासवं परिवार्येव मरुतां वाहिनीं स्थिता ॥ १२ ॥

Surrounding Aṅgada on all sides, that monkey force shone like an army of gods standing round Indra. (12)

कोऽन्यस्तां वानरीं सेनां शक्तः स्तम्भयितुं भवेत्।
अन्यत्र वालितनयादन्यत्र च हनूमतः ॥ १३ ॥

Barring Aṅgada (the son of Vālī) and barring Hanūmān, who else would be able to hold that army of monkeys in check? (13)

ततस्तान् हरिवृद्धांश्च तच्च सैन्यमरिदमः।
अनुमान्याङ्गदः श्रीमान् वाक्यमर्थवदब्रवीत् ॥ १४ ॥

Showing respect to those elderly monkeys as also to that army of monkeys, the glorious Aṅgada, the tamer of his foes, presently addressed to them the following significant words :

(14)

क इदानीं महातेजा लङ्घयिष्यति सागरम्।

कः करिष्यति सुग्रीवं सत्यसंधमरिदमम्॥ १५ ॥

“What monkey of extraordinary energy will take a leap across the sea at this juncture? Who will enable Sugrīva, the subduer of his foes, to prove himself to be true to his promise of wresting Sitā from the clutches of Rāvaṇa?

(15)

को वीरो योजनशतं लङ्घयेत् प्लवङ्गमः।

इमांश्च यूथपान् सर्वान् मोचयेत् को महाभयात्॥ १६ ॥

“What heroic monkey can leap to a distance of a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles)? Again, who will deliver all these leaders of monkey hordes from the great fear viz., that of incurring the wrath of Sugrīva?

(16)

कस्य प्रसादाद् दारांश्च पुत्रांश्चैव गृहाणि च।

इतो निवृत्ताः पश्येम सिद्धार्थाः सुखिनो वयम्॥ १७ ॥

“By whose good-will shall we be able to see, when returned accomplished of purpose and happy from this place, our wife as well as our sons and home?

(17)

कस्य प्रसादाद् रामं च लक्ष्मणं च महाबलम्।

अभिगच्छेम संहृष्टाः सुग्रीवं च वनौकसम्॥ १८ ॥

“By whose grace shall we be able to meet Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, who are possessed of extraordinary might, and the monkey Sugrīva, and feel transported with joy?

(18)

यदि कश्चित् समर्थो वः सागरप्लवने हरिः।

स ददात्वह नः शीघ्रं पुण्यामभयदक्षिणाम्॥ १९ ॥

“If any monkey among you is capable of leaping across the sea, let him quickly vouchsafe to us on this spot a holy boon in the shape of a vow to that effect, thereby ridding us of fear.”

(19)

अङ्गदस्य वचः श्रुत्वा न कश्चित् किञ्चिदब्रवीत्।

स्तिमितेवाभवत् सर्वा सा तत्र हरिवाहिनी॥ २० ॥

Hearing the question of Aṅgada nobody said anything. The entire Vānara force stood motionless, as it were.

(20)

पुनरेवाङ्गदः प्राह तान् हरीन् हरिसत्तमः।

सर्वे बलवतां श्रेष्ठा भवन्तो दृढविक्रमाः।

व्यपदेशकुले जाताः पूजिताश्चाप्यभीक्ष्णशः॥ २१ ॥

Once more did Aṅgada, the foremost of monkeys speak as follows to the aforesaid monkeys : “You are all pre-eminent among the mighty and endowed with unbending prowess. Born in a family free from all stigma, you have also been honoured time and again for your valour by the royal court.

(21)

नहि वो गमने सङ्गः कदाचित् कस्यचिद् भवेत्।

ब्रुवध्वं यस्य या शक्तिः प्लवने प्लवगर्षभाः॥ २२ ॥

“No obstruction is ever possible in the movement of any of you. Therefore, speak out, O leaders of monkeys, who can leap how far?”

(22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे

चतुःषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-four in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Rṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXV

Questioned by Aṅgada, Gaja and other leaders of monkey hordes proclaim each his own leaping capacity ranging in an increasing degree from ten Yojanas or eighty miles to ninety Yojanas or seven hundred and twenty miles.

Jāmbavān in his turn submits that he can leap full one hundred Yojanas or eight hundred miles but is doubtful about his capacity to return. On Aṅgada declaring the same thing, Jāmbavān submits that for a work, which can be entrusted to a servant alone, the services of a ruler would be out of place, and encourages Hanumān to take up the gauntlet

अथाङ्गदवचः श्रुत्वा ते सर्वे वानरर्षभाः।
स्वं स्वं गतौ समुत्साहमूचुस्तत्र यथाक्रमम्॥ १॥
गजो गवाक्षो गवयः शरभो गन्धमादनः।
मैन्दश्च द्विविदश्चैव सुषेणो जाम्बवांस्तथा॥ २॥

Hearing the speech of Aṅgada all the aforesaid leaders of monkeys—Gaja, Gavākṣa, Gavaya, Śarabha, Gandhamādana, Mainda and even so Dwivida, Suṣeṇa and Jāmbavān proclaimed in due succession each his own leaping capacity on that spot. (1-2)

आबभाषे गजस्तत्र प्लवेयं दशयोजनम्।
गवाक्षो योजनान्याह गमिष्यामीति विंशतिम्॥ ३॥

Of them, Gaja said, “I can leap as far as ten Yojanas (or eighty miles);” while Gavākṣa said, “I shall be able to leap to a distance of twenty Yojanas (or one hundred and sixty miles).” (3)

शरभो वानरस्तत्र वानरांस्तानुवाच ह।
त्रिंशतं तु गमिष्यामि योजनानां प्लवङ्गमाः॥ ४॥

The monkey Śarabha, they say, said to those monkeys on that occasion, “I shall cover in one leap thirty Yojanas (or two hundred and forty miles), O monkeys !” (4)

ऋषभो वानरस्तत्र वानरांस्तानुवाच ह।
चत्वारिंशद् गमिष्यामि योजनानां न संशयः॥ ५॥

The monkey Rṣabha, it is said, spoke to the monkeys on that spot as follows : “I shall cover in one leap forty Yojanas (or three hundred and twenty miles); there is no doubt about it.” (5)

वानरांस्तु महातेजा अब्रवीद् गन्धमादनः।
योजनानां गमिष्यामि पञ्चाशत् न संशयः॥ ६॥

Gandhamādana for his part, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, spoke, they say, to the monkeys as follows : “I for my part shall cover in a leap fifty Yojanas (or four hundred miles): there is no doubt about it.” (6)

मैन्दस्तु वानरस्तत्र वानरांस्तानुवाच ह।
योजनानां परं षष्टिमहं प्लवितुमुत्सहे॥ ७॥

The monkey Mainda for his part, they say, said to the monkeys on that spot, “I can leap at the utmost sixty Yojanas (or four hundred and eighty miles).” (7)

ततस्तत्र महातेजा द्विविदः प्रत्यभाषत।
गमिष्यामि न संदेहः सप्ततिं योजनान्यहम्॥ ८॥

Dwivida, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, then said on that occasion, “I shall cover seventy Yojanas (or five hundred and sixty miles): there is no doubt about it.” (8)

सुषेणस्तु महातेजाः सत्त्ववान् कपिसत्तमः।
अशीतिं प्रतिजानेऽहं योजनानां पराक्रमे॥ ९॥

The foremost of monkeys, Suṣeṇa, for his part, who was endowed with extraordinary energy and full of courage, said, “I solemnly declare that I can leap eighty Yojanas (or six hundred and forty miles).” (9)

तेषां कथयतां तत्र सर्वास्ताननुमान्य च।
ततो वृद्धतमस्तेषां जाम्बवान् प्रत्यभाषत ॥ १० ॥

Showing respect to them all, while they were speaking on that spot, Jāmbavān, the oldest of them all, then submitted as follows : (10)

पूर्वमस्माकमप्यासीत् कश्चिद् गतिपराक्रमः।
ते वयं वयसः पारमनुप्राप्ताः स्म साम्प्रतम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Formerly we too had some leaping capacity. Now, of course, we have reached the fag-end of our life. (11)

किं तु नैवं गते शक्यमिदं कार्यमुपेक्षितुम्।
यदर्थं कपिराजश्च रामश्च कृतनिश्चयौ ॥ १२ ॥
साम्प्रतं कालमस्माकं या गतिस्तां निबोधत।
नवतिं योजनानां तु गमिष्यामि न संशयः ॥ १३ ॥

“Even in such circumstances, however, the work in hand, which Sugrīva (the king of monkeys) and Śrī Rāma too are determined to carry through, can on no account be neglected. Please hear of the leaping capacity which now exists in me: I shall certainly cover in one leap ninety Yojanas (or seven hundred and twenty miles): there is no doubt about it.” (12-13)

तांश्च सर्वान् हरिश्रेष्ठाञ्जाम्बवानिदमब्रवीत्।
न खल्वेतावदेवासीद् गमने मे पराक्रमः ॥ १४ ॥

Nay, Jāmbavān spoke as follows to all those jewels among the monkeys : “Surely, I did not have only this much leaping capacity in the past. (14)

मया वैरोचने यज्ञे प्रभविष्णुः सनातनः।
प्रदक्षिणीकृतः पूर्वं क्रममाणस्त्रिविक्रमम् ॥ १५ ॥

“At the well-known sacrifice performed by King Bali (the son of Virocana) in the former days, the all-pervading and immortal Lord Trivikrama (who measured the whole universe in three strides) was gone round clockwise by me while taking His strides over the universe. (15)

स इदानीमहं वृद्धः प्लवने मन्दविक्रमः।
यौवने च तदासीन्मे बलमप्रतिमं परम् ॥ १६ ॥

“Having grown old I, whose surpassing strength in youth was unequalled, have now become tardy of movement in leaping. (16)

सम्प्रत्येतावदेवाद्य शक्यं मे गमने स्वतः।
नैतावता च संसिद्धिः कार्यस्यास्य भविष्यति ॥ १७ ॥

“This much only is my capacity in leaping unaided today and at this moment. The success of this undertaking of ours is, however, out of the question with this much capacity.” (17)

अथोत्तरमुदारार्थमब्रवीदङ्गदस्तदा।
अनुमान्य तदा प्राज्ञो जाम्बवन्तं महाकपिः ॥ १८ ॥

Showing respect to Jāmbavān at that moment, the wise Aṅgada, the mighty monkey, forthwith made on that occasion the following reply, which bore a noble import : (18)

अहमेतद् गमिष्यामि योजनानां शतं महत्।
निवर्तने तु मे शक्तिः स्यान्न वेति न निश्चितम् ॥ १९ ॥

“I shall surely cover these hundred long Yojanas (or eight hundred miles), but it is not certain whether I shall be able to return or not.” (19)

तमुवाच हरिश्रेष्ठं जाम्बवान् वाक्यकोविदः।
ज्ञायते गमने शक्तिस्तव हर्यृक्षसत्तम ॥ २० ॥

To Aṅgada, the foremost of monkeys, Jāmbavān, who was a master of expression, submitted as follows : “Your power of movement is known to us, O jewel among the monkeys and bears ! (20)

कामं शतसहस्रं वा नह्येष विधिरुच्यते।
योजनानां भवाञ्शक्तो गन्तुं प्रतिनिवर्तितुम् ॥ २१ ॥

“Nay, you may easily be able to leap a hundred or (even) a thousand Yojanas and come back. Surely, however, this is not said to be the rule. (21)

नहि प्रेषयिता तात स्वामी प्रेष्यः कथंचन।
भवतायं जनः सर्वः प्रेष्यः प्लवगसत्तम ॥ २२ ॥

“A master, O dear Aṅgada, who sends or directs an expedition, can under no circumstance be worthy of being directed or sent on an expedition. On the other hand, we all deserve to be directed or sent on an errand by you, O jewel among the monkeys ! (22)

भवान् कलत्रमस्माकं स्वामिभावे व्यवस्थितः ।
स्वामी कलत्रं सैन्यस्य गतिरेषा परंतप ॥ २३ ॥

“You deserve to be protected by us even like the mistress of a household, installed as you are in the position of our master. The ruler of an army deserves to be protected (like the mistress of a household): such is the rule, O scourge of your foes ! (23)

अपि वै तस्य कार्यस्य भवान् मूलमरिंदम ।
तस्मात् कलत्रवत् तात प्रतिपाल्यः सदा भवान् ॥ २४ ॥

“Moreover you are the very basis of the work in hand to us viz., the discovery of Sitā, O tamer of your foes ! Hence, O dear child, you deserve to be protected by us like a housewife at all times. (24)

मूलमर्थस्य संरक्ष्यमेष कार्यविदां नयः ।
मूले हि सति सिध्यन्ति गुणाः सर्वे फलोदयाः ॥ २५ ॥

“The root of a thing must be carefully preserved: this is the maxim of those knowing their business. Only so long as the root is there all excellences (which are only of secondary importance) bear fruit. (25)

तद् भवानस्य कार्यस्य साधनं सत्यविक्रम ।
बुद्धिविक्रमसम्पन्नो हेतुरत्र परंतप ॥ २६ ॥

“Therefore you are the means of accomplishing this work, O prince of unfailing prowess, and a key to it, richly endowed as you are with wisdom and valour, O scourge of your foes ! (26)

गुरुश्च गुरुपुत्रश्च त्वं हि नः कपिसत्तम ।
भवन्तमाश्रित्य वयं समर्था ह्यर्थसाधने ॥ २७ ॥

“You are our superior and the son of our superior. Banking on you we shall really be able to accomplish our end, O jewel among the monkeys !” (27)

उक्तवाक्यं महाप्राज्ञं जाम्बवन्तं महाकपिः ।
प्रत्युवाचोत्तरं वाक्यं वालिसूनुरथाङ्गदः ॥ २८ ॥

To the highly intelligent Jāmbavān, who had spoken as above, the great monkey, Aṅgada, the son of Vālī, now addressed the following reply : (28)

यदि नाहं गमिष्यामि नान्यो वानरपुङ्गवः ।
पुनः खल्विदमस्माभिः कार्यं प्रायोपवेशनम् ॥ २९ ॥

“If I do not stir nor does any other leader of the monkeys, fasting till death must surely be undertaken by us again. (29)

नह्यकृत्वा हरिपतेः संदेशं तस्य धीमतः ।
तत्रापि गत्वा प्राणानां न पश्ये परिरक्षणम् ॥ ३० ॥

“Having failed to carry out the instructions of that wise ruler of monkeys, I do not see any hope of preserving our life even after going there. (30)

स हि प्रसादे चात्यर्थकोपे च हरिरीश्वरः ।
अतीत्य तस्य संदेशं विनाशो गमने भवेत् ॥ ३१ ॥

“That monkey, Sugrīva, has certainly the absolute power to show clemency or give vent to his extreme anger towards us. Death is bound to follow if we depart for Kiṣkindhā without carrying out his instructions. (31)

तत्तथा ह्यस्य कार्यस्य न भवत्यन्यथा गतिः ।
तद् भवानेव दृष्टार्थः संचिन्तयितुमर्हति ॥ ३२ ॥

“Therefore, you alone, who have perceived the truth of everything, should devise some means to see that this purpose of ours in the shape of discovery of Sitā does not actually get frustrated.” (32)

सोऽङ्गदेन तदा वीरः प्रत्युक्तः प्लवगर्षभः ।
जाम्बवानुत्तमं वाक्यं प्रोवाचेदं ततोऽङ्गदम् ॥ ३३ ॥

In response to these words of Aṅgada at that juncture, the celebrated and heroic Jāmbavān, a jewel among the monkeys and bears, now addressed the following excellent rejoinder to Aṅgada : (33)

तस्य ते वीर कार्यस्य न किञ्चित् परिहास्यते ।
एष संचोदयाम्येनं यः कार्यं साधयिष्यति ॥ ३४ ॥

“Not an iota of your aforementioned purpose will be balked, O gallant prince !

now make an appeal to one who will surely accomplish our purpose.” (34)

ततः प्रतीतं प्लवतां वरिष्ठ-

मेकान्तमाश्रित्य सुखोपविष्टम् ।

संचोदयामास हरिप्रवीरो

हरिप्रवीरं

हनूमन्तमेव ॥ ३५ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे

षष्ठ्यष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-five in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षट्षष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXVI

Reminding Hanumān of his descent from the loins of the wind-god through Añjanā and of the circumstances which led to his getting the name of Hanumān and also how he received boons from Brahmā (the creator) and others, and glorifying him, Jāmbavān encourages Hanumān to leap across the sea and thereby deliver the monkeys from their wretched plight

अनेकशतसाहस्रीं विषण्णां हरिवाहिनीम् ।
जाम्बवान् समुदीक्ष्यैवं हनूमन्तमथाब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Perceiving the monkey force, which was many lakhs strong, despondent, Jāmbavān presently spoke to Hanumān as follows : (1)

वीर वानरलोकस्य सर्वशास्त्रविदां वर ।
तूष्णीमेकान्तमाश्रित्य हनूमन् किं न जल्पसि ॥ २ ॥

“Sitting quietly apart, O hero of the Vānara kingdom, O jewel among those well-versed in all the scriptures, why don't you speak, O Hanumān ! (2)

हनूमन्हरिराजस्य सुग्रीवस्य समो ह्यसि ।
रामलक्ष्मणयोश्चापि तेजसा च बलेन च ॥ ३ ॥

“Indeed you are a compeer, O Hanumān, of Sugrīva, the ruler of all monkeys, nay, even of Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa in point of valour and might. (3)

अरिष्टनेमिनः पुत्रो वैनतेयो महाबलः ।
गरुत्मानिव विख्यात उत्तमः सर्वपक्षिणाम् ॥ ४ ॥

Thereupon Jāmbavān, a prominent hero among the monkeys and bears, made an appeal to none else than the celebrated Hanumān, another prominent hero of the monkey race, the foremost of monkeys, who was sitting at ease apart. (35)

“You are as widely known as Garuḍa, son of Ariṣṭanemi (Sage Kaśyapa) through Vinatā, and the foremost of all winged creatures, who is possessed of extraordinary strength. (4)

बहुशो हि मया दृष्टः सागरे स महाबलः ।
भुजङ्गानुद्धरन् पक्षी महाबाहुर्महाबलः ॥ ५ ॥

“That bird, Garuḍa, of mighty arms and possessed of extraordinary strength and courage has actually been seen by me on many an occasion picking up huge serpents at sea. (5)

पक्षयोर्यद् बलं तस्य भुजवीर्यबलं तव ।
विक्रमश्चापि वेगश्च न ते तेनापहीयते ॥ ६ ॥

“The strength which inheres in his wings and the power and strength of your arms are equal. Your prowess and energy too are in no way inferior to his (Garuḍa's). (6)

बलं बुद्धिश्च तेजश्च सत्त्वं च हरिपुङ्गव ।
विशिष्टं सर्वभूतेषु किमात्मानं न सज्जसे ॥ ७ ॥

“Your strength and wisdom, energy and courage too, O bull among the monkeys, distinguish you from all other created beings. Why then do you not make yourself ready for the adventure? (7)

अप्सरराऽप्सरसां श्रेष्ठा विख्याता पुञ्जिकस्थला ।
अञ्जनेति परिख्याता पत्नी केसरिणो हरेः ॥ ८ ॥
विख्याता त्रिषु लोकेषु रूपेणाप्रतिमा भुवि ।
अभिशापादभूत् तात कपित्वे कामरूपिणी ॥ ९ ॥
दुहिता वानरेन्द्रस्य कुञ्जरस्य महात्मनः ।
मानुषं विग्रहं कृत्वा रूपयौवनशालिनी ॥ १० ॥
विचित्रमाल्याभरणा कदाचित् क्षौमधारिणी ।
अचरत् पर्वतस्याग्रे प्रावृड्म्बुदसंनिभे ॥ ११ ॥

“There was a celestial nymph, the foremost of all celestial nymphs and widely known by the name of Puñjikasthalā. Due to a curse pronounced by a Ṛṣi, she was reborn as a daughter of the high-souled Kuñjara, a monkey chief, and became widely known as Añjanā. She came to be the wife of a monkey, Kesari by name. She was celebrated in all the three worlds and was unparalleled on earth in beauty. Though living in the form of a monkey she could change her form at will. Having assumed a human form, Añjanā, who looked charming due to her comeliness and youth, was decked with wonderful ornaments of flowers and was clad in silk, was once roving on a mountain-peak, which looked like a rainy cloud. (8—11)

तस्या वस्त्रं विशालाक्ष्याः पीतं रक्तदशं शुभम् ।
स्थितायाः पर्वतस्याग्रे मारुतोऽपाहरच्छनैः ॥ १२ ॥

“The wind-god gently removed the charming red-bordered yellow covering of that large-eyed belle standing on the mountain-top. (12)

स ददर्श ततस्तस्या वृत्तावूरु सुसंहतौ ।
स्तनौ च पीनौ सहितौ सुजातं चारु चाननम् ॥ १३ ॥

“He thereupon perceived her rounded and closely united thighs and well-knit swelling breasts as well as her shapely and lovely countenance. (13)

तां बलादायतश्रोणीं तनुमध्यां यशस्विनीम् ।
दृष्ट्वैव शुभसर्वाङ्गीं पवनः काममोहितः ॥ १४ ॥

“The wind-god got infatuated through love in spite of himself the moment he saw that glorious woman with broad hips, slender of waist and charming of every limb. (14)

स तां भुजाभ्यां दीर्घाभ्यां पर्यष्वजत मारुतः ।
मन्मथाविष्टसर्वाङ्गो गतात्मा तामनिन्दिताम् ॥ १५ ॥

“The wind-god, whose mind was set on her and all whose limbs were possessed by love, pressed to his bosom that irreproachable girl with his long arms. (15)

सा तु तत्रैव सम्भ्रान्ता सुव्रता वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
एकपत्नीव्रतमिदं को नाशयितुमिच्छति ॥ १६ ॥

“Utterly confused, that lady of noble vows, for her part, spoke that very moment as follows : ‘Who seeks to violate this vow of mine of fidelity to a single husband?’ (16)

अञ्जनाया वचः श्रुत्वा मारुतः प्रत्यभाषत ।
न त्वां हिंसामि सुश्रोणि मा भूत् ते मनसो भयम् ॥ १७ ॥

“Hearing the question of Añjanā, the wind-god replied, ‘I am not going to violate you, O lady of charming limbs ! Let there be no fear in your mind. (17)

मनसास्मि गतो यत् त्वां परिष्वज्य यशस्विनि ।
वीर्यवान् बुद्धिसम्पन्नस्तव पुत्रो भविष्यति ॥ १८ ॥

“‘Since after embracing you I have entered your being with my mind, O illustrious lady, a son who is powerful and richly endowed with intelligence will be born to you. (18)

महासत्त्वो महातेजा महाबलपराक्रमः ।
लङ्घने प्लवने चैव भविष्यति मया समः ॥ १९ ॥

“‘Full of extraordinary courage, extraordinary energy and extraordinary strength and prowess, he will prove to be my equal in jumping and leaping.’ (19)

एवमुक्ता ततस्तुष्टा जननी ते महाकपे ।
गुहायां त्वां महाबाहो प्रजज्ञे प्लवगर्षभ ॥ २० ॥

“Satisfied when spoken to in these words, your mother, O great and mighty-armed monkey, gave birth to you in a cave,

O jewel among the monkeys! (20)

अभ्युत्थितं ततः सूर्यं बालो दृष्ट्वा महावने ।
फलं चेति जिघृक्षुस्त्वमुत्प्लुत्याभ्युत्पतो दिवम् ॥ २१ ॥

Seeing the sun just risen in an extensive forest while you were still a child, and bounding with intent to have it, taking it to be a fruit, you rose to the sky. (21)

शतानि त्रीणि गत्वाथ योजनानां महाकपे ।
तेजसा तस्य निर्धूतो न विषादं गतस्ततः ॥ २२ ॥

Having sprung to an altitude of over three thousand Yojanas* (or twenty-four thousand miles), O great monkey, you were repulsed by the brilliance of the sun but did not meet with despondency on that account. (22)

त्वामप्युपगतं तूर्णमन्तरिक्षं महाकपे ।
क्षिप्तमिन्द्रेण ते वज्रं कोपाविष्टेन तेजसा ॥ २३ ॥
तदा शैलाग्रशिखरे वामो हनुरभज्यत ।
ततो हि नामधेयं ते हनुमानिति कीर्तितम् ॥ २४ ॥

Seeing you risen to the sky in no time even on being repulsed, O great monkey, Indra hurled his thunderbolt with violence at you, possessed as he was with anger, dashing you against the foremost summit of a mountain, with the result that the left side of your chin got immediately fractured. From that time onward your name became current as Hanumān (one with a broken or defective chin). (23-24)

ततस्त्वां निहतं दृष्ट्वा वायुर्गन्धवहः स्वयम् ।
त्रैलोक्यं भृशसंकुद्धो न ववौ वै प्रभञ्जनः ॥ २५ ॥

“Seeing you badly hurt, the wind-god, the wafer of odour, himself felt extremely enraged and the wind now ceased to visit the three worlds. (25)

सम्भ्रान्ताश्च सुराः सर्वे त्रैलोक्ये क्षुभिते सति ।
प्रसादयन्ति संकुद्धं मारुतं भुवनेश्वराः ॥ २६ ॥

“All the three worlds being agitated for want of air, all the gods felt perplexed. The rulers of the worlds, Brahmā and others, proceeded to pacify the infuriated wind-god
(26)

प्रसादिते च पवने ब्रह्मा तुभ्यं वरं ददौ ।
अशस्त्रवध्यतां तात समरे सत्यविक्रम ॥ २७ ॥

“The wind-god being placated, Brahmā granted in your favour a boon in the form of invulnerability in combat, O dear child of unfailing prowess ! (27)

वज्रस्य च निपातेन विरुजं त्वां समीक्ष्य च ।
सहस्रनेत्रः प्रीतात्मा ददौ ते वरमुत्तमम् ॥ २८ ॥
स्वच्छन्दतश्च मरणं तव स्यादिति वै प्रभो ।
स त्वं केसरिणः पुत्रः क्षेत्रजो भीमविक्रमः ॥ २९ ॥
मारुतस्थौरसः पुत्रस्तेजसा चापि तत्समः ।
त्वं हि वायुसुतो वत्स प्लवने चापि तत्समः ॥ ३० ॥

“Pleased at heart to observe you free from anguish despite the impact of the thunderbolt and notwithstanding your being dashed against a mountain-peak, Indra (the thousand-eyed god) too conferred another excellent boon on you to the effect that death will come to you only when you wish to die, O powerful monkey ! In this way you are, on the one hand, the son of Kesari, begotten through his wife, and by another,
are endowed with terrible prowess. Again, sprung as you are from the loins of the wind-god, you are his equal in energy. Indeed, being a son of the wind-god, you are his equal even in leaping. (28—30)

वयमद्य गतप्राणा भवानस्मासु साम्प्रतम् ।
दाक्ष्यविक्रमसम्पन्नः कपिराज इवापरः ॥ ३१ ॥

“Our vitality has now all but gone. You

* Counting the figures in the reverse order according to the rule ‘अङ्कानां वामतो गतिः’ and placing the figure 3 (त्रीणि) at the beginning and 100 ‘शतानि’ afterwards, the number will come to 3100, and since ‘शतानि’ is in the plural, the figure will work up to three thousand and a few hundred. Hence ‘शतानि त्रीणि’ has been construed by one of the commentators to mean over three thousand so as to bring the figure into line with a statement made in Uttarakāṇḍa that Hanumān sprang to a height of many thousand Yojanas (बहुयोजनसाहस्रम्).

alone amongst us are endowed with skill and prowess and are another Sugrīva, the ruler of monkeys, as it were. (31)

त्रिविक्रमे मया तात सशैलवनकानना।

त्रिःसप्तकृत्वः पृथिवी परिक्रान्ता प्रदक्षिणम् ॥ ३२ ॥

“During the descent of the Lord as Trivikrama (who measured the entire universe in three strides), O dear child, the entire globe with its mountains, forests and woodlands was gone round clockwise by me as many as one and twenty times. (32)

तथा चौषधयोऽस्माभिः संचिता देवशासनात्।

निर्मथ्यममृतं याभिस्तदानीं नो महद्वलम् ॥ ३३ ॥

“Nay, that time, in obedience to the command of the gods, the herbs with the help of which nectar was to be churned out of the ocean of milk were gathered by me single-handed, since at that time extraordinary strength existed in me. (33)

स इदानीमहं वृद्धः परिहीनपराक्रमः।

साम्प्रतं कालमस्माकं भवान् सर्वगुणान्वितः ॥ ३४ ॥

“I am now old and destitute of prowess. You alone amongst us are endowed with all virtues at the present moment. (34)

तद् विजृम्भस्व विक्रान्त प्लवतामुत्तमो ह्यसि।

त्वद्वीर्यं द्रष्टुकामा हि सर्वा वानरवाहिनी ॥ ३५ ॥

Therefore exhibit your immense strength, O hero, since you are the foremost of monkeys. Indeed the entire Vānara force is keen to witness your virility. (35)

उत्तिष्ठ हरिशार्दूल लङ्घयस्व महार्णवम्।

परा हि सर्वभूतानां हनुमन् या गतिस्तव ॥ ३६ ॥

“Get up, O tiger among the monkeys, and leap over the vast sea; for the leaping capacity that exists in you, O Hanumān, is greater than that of all other created beings. (36)

विषण्णा हरयः सर्वे हनुमन् किमुपेक्षसे।

विक्रमस्व महावेग विष्णुस्त्रीन् विक्रमानिव ॥ ३७ ॥

“All the monkeys have grown despondent, O Hanumān ! How do you ignore them? Show your courage, O monkey of extraordinary speed, as did Lord Viṣṇu in His descent as Trivikrama take three strides in order to measure the universe.” (37)

ततः कपीनामृषभेण चोदितः

प्रतीतवेगः पवनात्मजः कपिः।

प्रहर्षयंस्तां हरिवीरवाहिनीं

चकार रूपं महदात्मनस्तदा ॥ ३८ ॥

Encouraged by Jāmbavān, the foremost of monkeys and bears, and convinced of his capacity for vigorous action, the monkey chief, Hanumān, son of the wind-god, now expanded his form that very moment, thereby bringing excessive joy to that army of monkey heroes. (38)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे षट्षष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-six in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXVII

Proclaiming his own glory in order to dispel the fears of the monkeys after assuming enormous proportions with a view to leaping across the sea, and climbing up Mount Mahendra, Hanumān prepares to take a leap across the sea

तं दृष्ट्वा जृम्भमाणं ते क्रमितुं शतयोजनम्।

वेगेनापूर्यमाणं च सहसा वानरोत्तमम् ॥ १ ॥

सहसा शोकमुत्सृज्य प्रहर्षेण समन्विताः।

विनेदुस्तुष्टुबुश्यापि हनूमन्तं महाबलम् ॥ २ ॥

Shaking off grief all at once on seeing Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, expanding his form with a view to leaping over a hundred Yojanas, and being filled with dash, the monkeys full of excessive joy, thundered and also glorified Hanumān, who was endowed with extraordinary might.

(1-2)

प्रहृष्टा विस्मिताश्चापि ते वीक्षन्ते समन्ततः ।
त्रिविक्रमं कृतोत्साहं नारायणमिव प्रजाः ॥ ३ ॥

Standing around him highly rejoiced and amazed too, they gazed on him even as all created beings looked on Lord Nārāyaṇa (Viṣṇu) when he had made a resolve to measure the entire cosmos in His descent as Trivikrama.

(3)

संस्तूयमानो हनुमान् व्यवर्धत महाबलः ।
समाविद्ध्य च लाङ्गुलं हर्षाद् बलमुपेयिवान् ॥ ४ ॥

Hanumān, who was endowed with extraordinary strength, grew considerably in size even while he was being acclaimed and, whirling his tail with delight, recollected his native strength.

(4)

तस्य संस्तूयमानस्य वृद्धैर्वानरपुङ्गवैः ।
तेजसाऽऽपूर्यमाणस्य रूपमासीदनुत्तमम् ॥ ५ ॥

While he was being duly acclaimed by the foremost of monkeys, who were all senior in age, and while he was getting recharged with energy, his form looked surpassingly excellent.

(5)

यथा विजृम्भते सिंहो विवृते गिरिगह्वरे ।
मारुतस्यौरसः पुत्रस्तथा सम्प्रति जृम्भते ॥ ६ ॥

Even as a lion stretches his limbs in a commodious mountain-cave, Hanumān (sprung from the loins of the wind-god) now yawned and expanded his form likewise.

(6)

अशोभत मुखं तस्य जृम्भमाणस्य धीमतः ।
अम्बरीषोपमं दीप्तं विधूम इव पावकः ॥ ७ ॥

While Hanumān, the wise one, was yawning, his mouth looked bright like a lighted oven or a smokeless fire.

(7)

हरीणामुत्थितो मध्यात् सम्प्रहृष्टतनूरुहः ।
अभिवाद्य हरीन् वृद्धान् हनुमानिदमब्रवीत् ॥ ८ ॥

Risen from the midst of monkeys, his hair standing on end through excessive joy, and greeting the older monkeys, Hanumān spoke as follows :

(8)

आरुजन् पर्वताग्राणि हुताशनसखोऽनिलः ।
बलवानप्रमेयश्च वायुराकाशगोचरः ॥ ९ ॥

“Circulating in space in the form of the wind and shattering mountain-peaks, the wind-god, a friend of fire, is mighty and beyond measure.

(9)

तस्याहं शीघ्रवेगस्य शीघ्रगस्य महात्मनः ।
मारुतस्यौरसः पुत्रः प्लवनेनास्मि तत्समः ॥ १० ॥

“I claim my descent from the loins of that high-souled wind-god of rapid speed and swift movement, and am his equal in leaping.

(10)

उत्सहेयं हि विस्तीर्णमालिखन्तमिवाम्बरम् ।
मेरुं गिरिमसङ्गेन परिगन्तुं सहस्रशः ॥ ११ ॥

“I can actually circumambulate a thousand times without pause the extensive Mount Meru, which stands scratching the firmament, as it were.

(11)

बाहुवेगप्रणुनेन सागरेणाहमुत्सहे ।
समाप्लावयितुं लोकं सपर्वतनदीहृदम् ॥ १२ ॥

“With the ocean pushed away by the might of my arms, I can fully deluge the world including its mountains, rivers and lakes.

(12)

ममोरुजङ्घावेगेन भविष्यति समुत्थितः ।
समुत्थितमहाग्राहः समुद्रो वरुणालयः ॥ १३ ॥

“Stirred by the force of my thighs and shanks, the ocean, which is the abode of Varuṇa, will begin to overflow, bringing its huge alligators to the surface.

(13)

पन्नगाशनमाकाशे पतन्तं पक्षिसेवितम् ।
वैनतेयमहं शक्तः परिगन्तुं सहस्रशः ॥ १४ ॥

“I am capable of going clockwise a thousand times round Garuḍa (son of Vinatā), who feeds on serpents and is waited upon by birds (whose ruler he is), while he is coursing through the sky. (14)

उदयात् प्रस्थितं वापि ज्वलन्तं रश्मिमालिनम् ।

अनस्तमितमादित्यमहं गन्तुं समुत्सहे ॥ १५ ॥

“I am fully capable of overtaking the blazing sun with its aureole of rays set out from the eastern mountain before it disappears behind the western mountain. (15)

ततो भूमिसंस्पृष्ट्वा पुनरागन्तुमुत्सहे ।

प्रवेगेनैव महता भीमेन प्लवगर्षभाः ॥ १६ ॥

“Then I can even come back to the earth and return to the sun before it sets with the same high and terrific rapid speed without standing on the earth for respite, O jewels among the monkeys ! (16)

उत्सहेयमतिक्रान्तुं सर्वानाकाशगोचरान् ।

सागरान् शोषयिष्यामि दारयिष्यामि मेदिनीम् ॥ १७ ॥

“I can leave behind in a race all the luminaries coursing in the heavens and can dry up the oceans and rend the earth. (17)

पर्वतांश्चूर्णयिष्यामि प्लवमानः प्लवङ्गमः ।

हरिष्याम्युरुवेगेन प्लवमानो महार्णवम् ॥ १८ ॥

“I can crush mountains while jumping on them, a monkey (lit., one who goes leaping) as I am. Nay, leaping with great speed I can reach the end of an ocean to say nothing of the sea dividing the Indian shore from Laṅkā. (18)

लतानां विविधं पुष्पं पादपानां च सर्वशः ।

अनुयास्यति मामद्य प्लवमानं विहायसा ॥ १९ ॥

“All kinds of flowers from the climbers and trees (growing on Mount Mahendra) on all sides will follow me (with the wind set into motion by me) as I take a leap across the heavens today. (19)

भविष्यति हि मे पन्थाः स्वातेः पन्था इवाम्बरे ।

चरन्तं घोरमाकाशमुत्पतिष्यन्तमेव च ॥ २० ॥

द्रक्ष्यन्ति निपतन्तं च सर्वभूतानि वानराः ।

महामेरुप्रतीकाशं मां द्रक्ष्यध्वं प्लवङ्गमाः ॥ २१ ॥

दिवमावृत्य गच्छन्तं ग्रसमानमिवाम्बरम् ।

विधमिष्यामि जीमूतान् कम्पयिष्यामि पर्वतान् ।

सागरं शोषयिष्यामि प्लवमानः समाहितः ॥ २२ ॥

“My passage through the heavens will thus resemble the Milky Way. All created beings, O monkeys, will perceive me springing up into the fearful sky and also sailing (through the air) and then descending to the opposite shore, all at a time, as it were. You will behold me, who look like the great Mount Meru,—O monkeys, enveloping heaven and engulfing the sky as it were, while coursing through the sky. Leaping with a concentrated mind I shall scatter the clouds, shake the mountains and dry up the sea. (20—22)

वैनतेयस्य वा शक्तिर्मम वा मारुतस्य वा ।

ऋते सुपर्णराजानं मारुतं वा महाबलम् ।

न तद् भूतं प्रपश्यामि यन्मां प्लुतमनुव्रजेत् ॥ २३ ॥

“Such extraordinary capacity inheres either in Garuḍa (son of Vinatā) or in the wind-god (my procreant) or in myself. Barring King Garuḍa and the wind-god of extraordinary might, I do not perceive that created being who can follow me even as I leap. (23)

निमेषान्तरमात्रेण निरालम्बनमम्बरम् ।

सहसा निपतिष्यामि घनाद् विद्युदिवोत्थिता ॥ २४ ॥

“In the space to the mere twinkling of an eye I shall all of a sudden envelop the supportless vault of heaven as a flash of lightning shot from a cloud. (24)

भविष्यति हि मे रूपं प्लवमानस्य सागरम् ।

विष्णोः प्रक्रममाणस्य तदा त्रीन् विक्रमानिव ॥ २५ ॥

“My form even as I take a leap across the sea will actually resemble that of Lord Viṣṇu taking His well-known three strides to measure the universe during His descent as Trivikrama. (25)

बुद्ध्या चाहं प्रपश्यामि मनश्चेष्टा च मे तथा ।

अहं द्रक्ष्यामि वैदेहीं प्रमोदध्वं प्लवङ्गमाः ॥ २६ ॥

“I conclude with my reason that I shall be able to see Sitā (a princess of the Videha territory), and my inference too points in the same direction. Therefore, exult, O monkeys ! (26)

मारुतस्य समो वेगे गरुडस्य समो जवे।
अयुतं योजनानां तु गमिष्यामीति मे मतिः ॥ २७ ॥

“A compeer of the wind-god in speed and the equal of Garuḍa (the king of birds) in rapidity of motion, I can cover in one leap ten thousand Yojanas (or eighty thousand miles): such is my conviction. (27)

वासवस्य सवन्नस्य ब्रह्मणो वा स्वयम्भुवः।
विक्रम्य सहसा हस्तादमृतं तदिहानये ॥ २८ ॥

“Showing my valour, I can forcibly bring here the well-known nectar from the hands of Indra, armed with his thunderbolt, or even of the self-born Brahmā (the creator). (28)

लङ्कां वापि समुत्क्षिप्य गच्छेयमिति मे मतिः।
तमेवं वानरश्रेष्ठं गर्जन्तममितप्रभम् ॥ २९ ॥
प्रहृष्टा हरयस्तत्र समुदैक्षन्त विस्मिताः।
तच्चास्य वचनं श्रुत्वा ज्ञातीनां शोकनाशनम् ॥ ३० ॥
उवाच परिसंहृष्टो जाम्बवान् प्लवगेश्वरः।
वीर केसरिणः पुत्र वेगवन् मारुतात्मज ॥ ३१ ॥
ज्ञातीनां विपुलः शोकस्त्वया तात प्रणाशितः।
तव कल्याणरुचयः कपिमुख्याः समागताः ॥ ३२ ॥
मङ्गलान्यर्थसिद्ध्यर्थं करिष्यन्ति समाहिताः।
ऋषीणां च प्रसादेन कपिवृद्धमतेन च ॥ ३३ ॥
गुरुणां च प्रसादेन सम्प्लव त्वं महार्णवम्।
स्थास्यामश्चैकपादेन यावदागमनं तव ॥ ३४ ॥
त्वद्गतानि च सर्वेषां जीवनानि वनौकसाम्।
ततश्च हरिशार्दूलस्तानुवाच वनौकसः ॥ ३५ ॥
कोऽपि लोके न मे वेगं प्लवने धारयिष्यति।
एतानीह नगस्यास्य शिलासंकटशालिनः ॥ ३६ ॥
शिखराणि महेन्द्रस्य स्थिराणि च महान्ति च।
येषु वेगं गमिष्यामि महेन्द्रशिखरेष्वहम् ॥ ३७ ॥
नानाद्रुमविकीर्णेषु धातुनिष्पन्दशोभिषु।
एतानि मम वेगं हि शिखराणि महान्ति च ॥ ३८ ॥
प्लवतो धारयिष्यन्ति योजनानामितः शतम्।
ततस्तु मारुतप्रख्यः स हरिर्मारुतात्मजः।
आरुरोह नगश्रेष्ठं महेन्द्रमरिमर्दनः ॥ ३९ ॥

वृतं नानाविधैः पुष्पैर्मृगसेवितशाद्वलम्।
लताकुसुमसम्बाधं नित्यपुष्पफलद्रुमम् ॥ ४० ॥
सिंहशार्दूलसहितं मत्तमातङ्गसेवितम्।
मत्तद्विजगणोद्घुष्टं सलिलोत्पीडसंकुलम् ॥ ४१ ॥

“Further, my conviction is that, uprooting Laṅkā, I can even carry it to some distance.” Highly rejoiced and amazed too, the monkeys gathered together on that spot looked intently on the aforesaid jewel among the monkeys, who was possessed of immeasurable radiance and was thus proclaiming his strength in a thundering voice. Extremely rejoiced to hear the foregoing utterance of Hanumān, which drove away the grief of his near and dear ones, Jāmbavān, a chief of monkeys and bears, spoke as follows : “O gallant Hanumān (sprung from the loins of the wind-god), son of Kesari, O dear child of commendable speed, the enormous grief of your near and dear ones has been completely driven away by you. Interested in your welfare, the assembled leaders of monkeys will with a concentrated mind recite prayers for the accomplishment of your purpose. By the grace of Ṛṣis (the seers of Vedic Mantras), nay, with the approval of the older monkeys and through the goodwill of your superiors as well, leap you across the vast sea with ease. We shall stand on one foot till your return; for the lives of all the monkeys hang on you.”

Thereupon Hanumān (a tiger among the monkeys) for his part spoke to those monkeys as follows : “None in the world will be able to sustain the pressure that will be exerted by me just before leaping. These peaks of the yonder mountain named Mahendra, which looks so charming with its compact mass of rocks, are solid and large too. These huge peaks of Mount Mahendra, on which I shall exert my force and which are covered here and there with trees of every kind and are adorned with heaps of minerals, will undoubtedly sustain my force even as I take a leap over a distance of a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles) from this place." Then the celebrated monkey chief, Hanumān (son of the wind-god), the destroyer of his foes, for his part, who was a compeer of the wind-god, climbed up Mount Mahendra, the foremost of mountains, which was carpeted with flowers (shed by the trees standing on it), was thick with creepers and flowers growing on them, was covered with trees ever laden with flowers and fruit and infested with lions and tigers, nay, which was frequented by elephants in rut, and rendered noisy by flocks of birds in heat and again which abounded in cascades and whose swords were ranged by deer.

(29—41)

महद्भिरुच्छ्रितं शृङ्गैर्महेन्द्रं स महाबलः ।
विचचार हरिश्रेष्ठो महेन्द्रसमविक्रमः ॥ ४२ ॥

Hanumān (the foremost of monkeys), who was endowed with extraordinary might and equalled the mighty Indra (the ruler of the three worlds) in prowess, ranged Mount Mahendra, which rose high with its huge peaks.

(42)

पादाभ्यां पीडितस्तेन महाशैलो महात्मना ।
ररास सिंहाभिहतो महान् मत्त इव द्विपः ॥ ४३ ॥

Pressed under the feet by that exalted soul, the huge mountain screamed (in the shape of the animals inhabiting it) like a mighty elephant in rut and attacked by a lion.

(43)

मुमोच सलिलोत्पीडान् विप्रकीर्णशिलोच्चयः ।
वित्रस्तमृगमातङ्गः प्रकम्पितमहाद्रुमः ॥ ४४ ॥

That huge mountain released new springs of water, its masses of rocks getting disintegrated. The deer and elephants inhabiting it got alarmed and the giant trees standing on it violently shook.

(44)

नानागन्धर्वमिश्रुनैः पानसंसर्गकर्कशैः ।
उत्पतद्भिर्विहंगैश्च विद्याधरगणैरपि ॥ ४५ ॥
त्यज्यमानमहासानुः संनिलीनमहोरगः ।
शैलशृङ्गशिलोत्पातस्तदाभूत् स महागिरिः ॥ ४६ ॥

Its gigantic peaks began to be deserted by many Gandharva couples, who were excessively addicted to drink and copulation, as well as by flying birds and even by bands of Vidyādhara (heavenly artists). Huge serpents living there hid themselves in holes, while rocks fell from the summits of the mountain.

(45-46)

निःश्वसद्भिस्तदा तैस्तु भुजगैरर्धनिःसृतैः ।
सपताक इवाभाति स तदा धरणीधरः ॥ ४७ ॥

With the aforesaid serpents, half-emerged from their holes and hissing, the said mountain for its part looked at that time as though adorned with flags.

(47)

ऋषिभिस्त्राससम्भ्रान्तैस्त्यज्यमानः शिलोच्चयः ।
सीदन् महति कान्तारे सार्थहीन इवाध्वगः ॥ ४८ ॥

Being deserted by Ṛṣis, who got agitated through fear, the mountain looked at that time forlorn like a wayfarer forsaken by his companions in a large wilderness.

(48)

स वेगवान् वेगसमाहितात्मा
हरिप्रवीरः परवीरहन्ता ।
मनः समाधाय महानुभावो
जगाम लङ्कां मनसा मनस्वी ॥ ४९ ॥

Having composed his mind, the high-spirited Hanumān, a distinguished hero among the monkeys, the slayer of hostile warriors, who was endowed with extraordinary speed and had focussed his mind on speed alone, and who was possessed of great might, betook himself to Laṅkā in thought.

(49)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये किष्किन्धाकाण्डे सप्तषष्ठितमः सर्गः ॥ ६७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-seven in the Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

॥ किष्किन्धाकाण्डं सम्पूर्णम् ॥

END OF KIṢKINDHĀKĀṆḌA

OM

Śrīmad Vālmīki-Rāmāyaṇa

(With Sanskrit Text and Translation into English)

Part-II

[Sundarakāṇḍa, Yuddhakāṇḍa and Uttarakāṇḍa]

(REVISED EDITION)

tvameva	mātā	ca	pitā	tvameva
tvameva	bandhuśca	sakhā	tvameva
tvameva	vidyā	draviṇaṃ	tvameva
tvameva	sarvaṃ	mama	devadeva
त्वमेव	माता	च	पिता	त्वमेव
त्वमेव	बन्धुश्च		सखा	त्वमेव ।
त्वमेव	विद्या		द्रविणं	त्वमेव
त्वमेव	सर्वं		मम	देवदेव ॥

Gita Press, Gorakhpur, India

ॐ

The Vālmiki-Rāmāyaṇa

Sundarakāṇḍa

— Book Five —

Number of Cantos:

Page

1.	Desirous of reaching Laṅkā in order to discover Sītā, Hanumān takes a leap from a peak of Mount Mahendra and honouring with the touch of his hand Mount Maināka, which rose from the bottom of the sea to provide rest on its peak to Hanumān, encounters Surasā (mother of Nāgas), sent by the gods in the form of an ogress, who was waiting for Hanumān with her mouth open to devour him. He enters her belly assuming a minute form and comes out without killing her. Further, he is met by another ogress, Simhikā by name, standing with her mouth wide open to gulp Hanumān. He enters her mouth after assuming a minute form and comes out after splitting her belly open and killing her. Then contracting his body into a minute form again in order to preclude the attention of the ogres, he descends on a mountain peak outside Laṅkā.	25
2.	Reflecting on the difficulty of penetrating into Laṅkā, which was strongly guarded by ogres, Hanumān further contracts his body and enters it at moonrise.	44
3.	Appearing in person before Hanumān, while he was making his way into Laṅkā at night, the mighty ogress, Laṅkā, presiding over the city, stops him, striking him with the palm of her hand. Getting unnerved, even though gently smitten with his left fist, she permits the monkey to enter, repeating the words of Brahmā, the creator, that the destruction of Laṅkā should be concluded as imminent when she is overpowered by a monkey.	49
4.	Entering Laṅkā and hearing the music of various instruments being played upon inside, and also observing the enemy's forces armed with various weapons, Hanumān finds his way into the royal gynaeceum.	53
5.	Even though seeing ogres and ogresses of various grades and orders while the moon was ascending the heavens, Hanumān gives way to anxiety on his not being able to find Sītā.	56
6.	Reaching the palace of Rāvaṇa, which served as an adornment to Laṅkā, and having looked for Sītā in the adjoining mansions of Prahasta and others, Hanumān now enters the palace of Rāvaṇa.	60
7.	The poet incidentally draws a pen-picture of Rāvaṇa's palace and his aerial car known by the name of Puṣpaka.	64
8.	A further description of the aerial car, Puṣpaka.	66
9.	Leaping up the Puṣpaka in the course of his quest for Sītā in the palace of Rāvaṇa, Hanumān gazes from that vantage-ground on the hosts of women lying asleep in the women's apartments in diverse states.	68

10. Hanumān catches sight of Rāvaṇa reposing on an excellent couch decked with various ornaments, himself adorned with jewels of every description. Perceiving Mandodarī graced with bright jewels and lying asleep on a wonderful couch not far from her husband in the midst of dancing girls lying in a disorderly state with diverse musical instruments clasped to their bosom, and taking her to be Sītā, Hanumān gets enraptured and exhibits his joy through various simian gestures such as kissing the end of his tail. 74
11. Banishing by recourse to reason the thought that the lady whom he had seen was Sītā, Hanumān searches for Sītā once more in the gynaeceum as well as in the banqueting hall and sees there a number of women lying in various states, as well as drinking vessels. He is seized with fear of having incurred the sin of gazing on others' wives; but the thought that he had looked on them with a lust-free mind eases his conscience. 79
12. Having failed to discover Sītā even after searching for her in the picture gallery and other places, Hanumān suspects that she might have been disposed of by Rāvaṇa and, thus meeting with frustration, falls into the quagmire of despair. On second thought, however, he deprecates despair as harmful and, falling back upon self-reliance, resumes the search. But, failing to find her even on searching for her all round, he becomes despondent again. 83
13. Coming out of the aerial car, Puṣpaka, and not finding Sītā even on searching for her on all sides, Hanumān concludes her to have been killed. Believing that her untraceability, no matter whether it is reported to Śrī Rāma or not, may lead to disastrous consequences, Hanumān decides not to return to the mainland. Meanwhile, as he contemplates fasting till death or suicide or the killing of Rāvaṇa, he catches sight of a grove which he does not remember to have seen and before proceeding to explore it mentally invokes the succour of Ṛṣis and gods for success in his undertaking. 86
14. Leaping down to the enclosure of the Aśoka grove and watching the loveliness of the grove from the top of the wall, Hanumān enters the grove and, leaping from tree to tree in the course of his search for Sītā, catches sight of an Aśoka tree. Espying a stream running beside it and expecting that Sītā might turn up on the bank of the stream to say her Sandhyā prayers, he takes up his position on that Aśoka tree, hiding himself behind its leafy boughs. 92
15. Casting his eyes all round while remaining perched on the top of that Śimśapā tree, Hanumān catches sight of Sītā in a temple and recognizes her by virtue of her characteristics and age. 96
16. Admiring the virtue and propitious bodily marks etc., of Sītā, Hanumān grieves at the thought of that lady, for whose sake Khara, Virādha and other ogres were killed, having been reduced to such a sad plight. 101
17. His eyes filled with joy on beholding Sītā surrounded by ogresses with hideous and deformed faces while the moon was at the meridian, Hanumān mentally bows to Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa and remains hidden behind the boughs of the Śimśapā tree. 104

18.	Perceiving Rāvaṇa surrounded by hundreds of young women and approaching Sītā towards the close of night, swayed by passion as he was, Hanumān, who was perched on the top of the Śimśapā tree, silently comes down in order to scan the figure of Rāvaṇa and hides himself in the boughs in order to avoid observation.	107
19.	Finding himself unable, as it were, to depict the mental state of Sītā, who got withered up and began to shudder at the sight of Rāvaṇa, the poet tries to portray her with the help of similes. Arrived in her presence, Rāvaṇa tries to win her.	110
20.	Seeking to cajole Sītā by means of coaxing words, Rāvaṇa implores her to accept him.	112
21.	Placing a blade of grass between herself and Rāvaṇa in order to avoid direct contact with a man of evil intentions and expostulating with him by showing him the right path, Sītā praises Śrī Rāma and, impressing on Rāvaṇa the consequences of the latter befriending or antagonizing Śrī Rāma, advises Rāvaṇa to make friends with Śrī Rāma through self-surrender.	115
22.	Nettled by the censure uttered by Sītā, Rāvaṇa allows her a time-limit of two months to revise her decision and threatens her with death if she does not listen to reason. Restored to confidence by the glances of Rāvaṇa's consorts, however, Sītā condemns him once more. Leaving instructions with ogresses of terrible and ugly aspect to bring her to reason by recourse to intimidation and persuasion, Rāvaṇa thereupon leaves the presence of Sītā alongwith his womenfolk.	118
23.	Extolling Rāvaṇa, Ekajāta and other ogresses posted in the Aśoka grove coax her to accept his proposal.	122
24.	Citing the examples of Śaci, Arundhatī and other devoted wives, even though threatened by the ogresses, Sītā with a stout heart boldly proclaims her resolve not to submit to anyone else other than her own husband even on pain of death. Hanumān silently watches her being menaced by the ogresses by means of harsh words and show of weapons, and weeping.	124
25.	Unable to endure the threats of the ogresses and calling aloud Śrī Rāma and others, Sītā bursts into a wail.	128
26.	Making up her mind not to submit to the advances of Rāvaṇa even on pain of death, when menaced by the ogresses, and indulging in speculation as to why Śrī Rāma was not turning up to rescue her, Sītā wails in various ways.	130
27.	Risen from sleep, an ogress, Trijaṭā by name, speaks to her companions intimidating Sītā, of a dream she saw only a few minutes before revealing the triumph of Śrī Rāma and the discomfiture of Rāvaṇa, and stops them from molesting Sītā. Pressed by them, she relates the dream to them and also speaks of the omens portending the triumph of Sītā.	134
28.	The moment Sītā, who was unable to bear the reproaches and threats of the ogresses, endeavours after wailing a good deal to strangle herself to death with the cord used for tying her hair, a propitious omen, never seen before, appears on her person.	139

29.	The omens described. Concluding them to be auspicious, from the thrill that ran through her body at their sight, Sītā experiences great joy.	141
30.	Weighing the pros and cons of comforting Sītā or remaining mum, now that he had come to know everything about Sītā at first hand, Hanumān decides upon the former course at the psychological moment.	143
31.	Transported with joy to hear the story commencing from the birth of Śrī Rāma and ending with Hanumān's spying Sītā, narrated in a human tongue by Hanumān, remaining perched on the Śimśapā tree and casting her eyes all round, Sītā catches sight of Hanumān sitting on a bough of the same Śimśapā tree beneath which she stood.	147
32.	Imagining Hanumān to have been seen in a dream, though actually perceived by her, and believing the sight of a monkey in a dream to be ominous, Sītā becomes anxious about the welfare of Śrī Rāma and others. Then concluding him on other grounds to have been seen in her waking hours, she prays to Brahmā and other gods that the statement of Hanumān may come out to be true.	149
33.	Keen to hear of Sītā's identity from her own lips, even though he had identified her, Hanumān inquires of her whether she was a goddess or anyone else and asks her to disclose her identity in case she was Sītā. In reply to this query Sītā narrates to him her whole life-story ending with her abduction by Rāvaṇa and tells him how Rāvaṇa was going to kill her two months later, and how in the event of her not being delivered from his clutches before that, she has resolved to end her life by herself.	151
34.	Inferring from the suitable reply to his queries received from Sītā and the trust reposed in him by the latter, Hanumān reveals to her the role of an envoy allotted to him by Śrī Rāma and repeat the inquiries made by the two brothers about her welfare. Taking him to be Rāvaṇa disguised as a monkey, Sītā, on the other hand, reproaches him when the latter approaches her in order to bow down at her feet. In order to allay her fears, Hanumān for his part discloses to her his reality as a minister of Sugrīva as well as requests her to give credence to his words.	154
35.	Questioned by Sītā, who was anxious to ascertain the bonafides of the monkey, Hanumān, after cataloguing the marks on the person of Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, narrates his own life-story from his birth onwards including his role as a minister of Sugrīva, and ending with his seeing of Sītā.	157
36.	Hanumān delivers Śrī Rāma's signet-ring to Sītā in order to strengthen her confidence in him. Applauding Hanumān, Sītā, who was rejoiced to receive the token, inquires about the health of Śrī Rāma and others. In order to appease the lady, who felt indignant at the thought that Śrī Rāma did not care to come to her rescue so far, which led her to suspect that he had ceased to love her, Hanumān attributes his non-appearance to his ignorance about her whereabouts. Describing Śrī Rāma's desolation in order to betoken his excessive love for her, he consoles her with the assurance that Śrī Rāma is sparing no pains to rescue her from her confinement.	166

37. Sītā, who was distressed to hear of Śrī Rāma's excessive grief caused by his separation from her, implores Hanumān to bring Śrī Rāma at once to her. Hanumān, who could not bear to see Sītā's sad plight, offers to carry her on his back to the presence of Śrī Rāma and girds up his loins to do so. In order to inspire confidence in Sītā, who doubts his capacity to do it looking to his small size, Hanumān assumes a gigantic form; Sītā, however, declines to go with him and urges Hanumān to bring Śrī Rāma to her. 170
38. Asked by Hanumān for a token, Sītā narrates the episode of a crow, which occurred on the Citrakūṭa mountain, and asks Hanumān to repeat the story to Śrī Rāma by way of a token. She further sends her greetings both to Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, conveys her inquiry after their welfare and communicates to them her resolve to survive only for a month after the expiry of the time-limit prescribed by Rāvaṇa; and last of all, she hands over to him her jewel for the head as a token. 176
39. Sītā asks Hanumān, when the latter is about to depart with the jewel for her head, to apprise Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa of her own welfare and urge them to rescue her. When Sītā expresses her misgivings about the capacity of the heroes on Śrī Rāma's side to cross the sea, Hanumān expatiates on the might of the monkey heroes and assures her of their ability to cross it, and in the end consoles her by promising to bring Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa on his back across the sea in any case. 183
40. Asking Hanumān, who was ready to depart, to remind Śrī Rāma of his having once painted a decorative mark on her cheek with red realgar, and also of how he threw a reed at the crow assailing her, destroying his right eye thereby, as further tokens of Hanumān having met her, and urging him to apprise Śrī Rāma of her wretched plight, Sītā grants him leave to depart with her blessings. 187
41. Accounting his purpose not fully accomplished till he had ascertained the strength of the ogres, even though he had received the message of Sītā, and making up his mind to lay waste the royal pleasure-garden as a means of ascertaining the strength of the enemy, Hanumān proceeds to do it. 190
42. Perceiving the devastation of the royal pleasance at the hands of Hanumān, the ogresses keeping watch over Sītā asked her who he was. On Sītā's pleading her ignorance in the matter, some of them hurriedly seek the presence of Rāvaṇa and report the matter to him. Hanumān makes short work of a company of ogres known by the name of Kiṅkaras, despatched by Rāvaṇa. Thereupon Rāvaṇa sends Prahasta's son to punish the intruder. 192
43. Having disposed of the Kiṅkaras sent by Rāvaṇa and making up his mind to demolish the sanctuary sacred to the guardian deity of ogres, Hanumān climbs it up and, killing the guards posted there, exhibits his prowess by uttering the name of Śrī Rāma in a thundering voice. Nay, uprooting a pillar of the sanctuary, he brandishes it and burns the sanctuary with the fire produced thereby. 196
44. Dispatched by Rāvaṇa to capture Hanumān, Jambumālī is killed in battle by the former. 198

45.	Having made short work of the seven sons of Rāvaṇa's chief minister too, Hanumān climbs up the archway again and takes up his position there.	200
46.	Having killed five more generals sent by Rāvaṇa, Hanumān returns again to the archway of the Aśoka grove.	202
47.	Prince Akṣa, son of Rāvaṇa, who came to meet Hanumān in combat, is killed.	205
48.	Dispatched by Rāvaṇa, Indrajit, Rāvaṇa's eldest son, marches against Hanumān. On his shafts being rendered ineffective by Hanumān through his extreme agility, Indrajit takes him captive by discharging the unfailing missile presided over by Brahmā (the creator). Even though capable of rendering it ineffective, Hanumān yields to its influence, eager as he was to meet Rāvaṇa, to whose presence he is led by his son.	211
49.	Wonderstruck to behold the splendour and glory of Rāvaṇa, Hanumān believes that he could even rule over heaven but for his gross unrighteousness, which dragged him down.	218
50.	Commanded by Rāvaṇa, Prahasta inquires of Hanumān as to who he was as also his motive in devastating the royal pleasance and killing the ogres. In reply Hanumān says that he destroyed the grove in order that he might be taken captive and dragged to the presence of Rāvaṇa, whom he was eager to see, and was compelled in self-defence to kill those who stood in his way. In the end he declares himself to be a messenger of Śrī Rāma and adds that, though protected against the missile presided over by Brahmā, he submitted to its influence only in order to be able to see Rāvaṇa.	220
51.	Narrating the story of Śrī Rāma from the latter's entry into the forest, to his own sight of Sītā being borne away by Rāvaṇa through the air over the R̥ṣyamūka mountain, and celebrating the glory of Śrī Rāma, Hanumān points out to Rāvaṇa that if he longed to survive he should restore Sītā to Śrī Rāma and that he should be prepared for the worst if, on the other hand, he chooses not to part with her.	222
52.	Provoked by the harsh words of Hanumān, Rāvaṇa orders him to be put to death. Vibhiṣaṇa, however, exhorts the latter to desist from this dastardly act, pointing out that the killing of an envoy is forbidden by the Śāstras.	226
53.	Wrapping up the tail of Hanumān in rags and soaking it in oil, and then lighting it up, the ogres, as urged by Rāvaṇa, take Hanumān round the city to the accompaniment of beat of drums. Hearing this news from the lips of the ogresses, Sītā prays to the god of fire on oath to see that Hanumān remains unscathed. Climbing up the gate and shedding the fire by attenuating his body, and then resuming vast proportions and seizing the iron bar of the gate, Hanumān kills with it the ogres guarding the gate.	229
54.	Making up his mind to set fire to the city of Laṅkā, which was the only work left for him to do, and coming out into the open, Hanumān burns the entire city barring the abode of Vibhiṣaṇa. Astonished to see the city burning, the gods and Gandharvas (celestial musicians) are filled with supreme joy.	233
55.	Seeing the whole of Laṅkā reduced to ashes and presuming Sītā too to have shared its lot, Hanumān begins to reproach himself and gets overwhelmed with grief. In the meantime, he hears of her safety from the lips of Siddhas, Cāraṇas (celestial bards) and others and feels comforted.	238

56. Hanumān sees Sītā once more and bidding adieu to her, takes a leap across the sea. 241
57. Having leapt from the coast of Laṅkā and touching the Maināka mountain, which he came across in the way, nay, advancing further, Hanumān roars at the top of his voice at the sight of the Mahendra mountain in order to bring joy to the monkeys awaiting his return there. Jāmbavān tells the monkeys, who got up impetuously on hearing the roar, that Hanumān has returned successful from his expedition as was evident from his jubilant roar. Having greeted Jāmbavān and others on alighting on the summit of the Mahendra mountain, Hanumān narrates to them in a nutshell the story of his discovery of Sītā. Applauding Hanumān, Prince Aṅgada, who was eager to hear the story, sits down to do so on an extensive flat rock alongwith all. 246
58. Enquired by Jāmbavān, seated alongwith the monkey hordes, Hanumān narrates in extenso how he saw Mount Maināka in the course of his journey to Laṅkā, reached Laṅkā, beheld Janaka's daughter and returned to Mount Mahendra. 250
59. Picturing to his fellow monkeys the said plight of Sītā, and feeling that it behoved them all to see Śrī Rāma only after recovering Sītā from Laṅkā, nay, recounting the past heroic exploits of Jāmbavān and others, Hanumān incites them all to have recourse to the arbitrament of war. 263
60. Feeling encouraged by the tributes paid to his valour by his fellow monkeys, Prince Aṅgada undertakes to exterminate the entire ogre race including Rāvaṇa and bring back Sītā from Laṅkā. Jāmbavān, however, who is more sagacious and practical-minded, discourages him by recourse to potent counter-arguments. 266
61. Set out from the Mahendra mountain in the direction of Kiṣkindhā, the monkeys halt at Madhuvana, a grove guarded by the monkey Dadhimukha, and most beloved of Sugrīva, which falls on their way. When the monkeys began to enjoy the fruits of the grove with the permission of Prince Aṅgada, Dadhimukha, comes in their way and is lacerated with their claws and teeth. 268
62. Having entered Madhuvana and partaken of honey, as permitted by Hanumān, and singing and dancing like drunken people, the monkeys were forbidden by those guarding the grove and they belaboured the latter. Repulsed by them, the guards reported the matter to their leader, Dadhimukha, who appeared on the scene with his entourage and on remonstrating with the monkeys was thrashed by Aṅgada, who dashed him to the ground. The guards headed by Dadhimukha then move en masse to Kiṣkindhā to report the matter to Sugrīva and bow down at the latter's feet. 271
63. Having heard from the mouth of Dadhimukha the story of Madhuvana having been laid waste by the monkeys, Sugrīva concludes from the jubilation of the monkeys that Sītā has been traced out. Comforting Dadhimukha, he asks him to send Aṅgada and others without delay. 275
64. Returning to Madhuvana as commanded by Sugrīva, and craving the forgiveness of Aṅgada, Dadhimukha submits to the latter that he is urgently summoned by Sugrīva. Set out in the company of Hanumān and others, and approaching Sugrīva, Prince Aṅgada apprises Śrī Rāma, after saluting him, of the discovery of Sītā and other events.	278

65.	Asked by Śrī Rāma to tell him the news about Sītā, Hanumān apprises Śrī Rāma of her presence at the foot of a Śimśapā tree in the midst of ogresses and delivers her message after narrating the incidents related by her as a token.	282
66.	Pressing to his bosom the jewel for the head sent by Sītā and piteously wailing in many ways, Śrī Rāma urges Hanumān to repeat the message of Sītā.	285
67.	Hanumān reproduces at length the incident connected with a crow that took place during the sojourn of Sītā with Śrī Rāma at Citrakūṭa, related by her by way of a token, and further describes her piteous lament and the way in which she was comforted by Hanumān.	286
68.	Hanumān tells Śrī Rāma, how Sītā expressed her doubt in the first instance about a monkey being able to leap across a vast sea and how her doubt was resolved by him.	290

Yuddhakāṇḍa

Book Six

Number of Cantos :	Page
1. Hearing the report of Hanumān, and highly rejoiced at his having done something worthy of a noble servant, which could not be accomplished by anyone else, Śrī Rāma applauds him and clasps him to his bosom.	293
2. Sugrīva heartens Śrī Rāma, who is tormented with grief, by asking him to take courage.	295
3. Enquired about Laṅkā by Śrī Rāma on his hearing the appeal of Sugrīva, Hanumān gives a detailed description of Laṅkā as he saw it.	297
4. Hearing the report of Hanumān, Śrī Rāma fixes a propitious hour for the departure of his forces for Laṅkā, and perceives good omens.	301
5. While talking with Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma is reminded of Sītā and, smitten with pangs of love, gives way to grief and lamentation.	311
6. At Laṅkā Rāvaṇa holds consultation with the ogres on the means of victory in the contingency of a conflict with the monkeys.	314
7. Indulging in praise of their own might on hearing the command of Rāvaṇa, all the ogres present stimulate him with confidence, asking him not to give way to despondency.	316
8. Prahasta and others reassure Rāvaṇa by vauntingly vowing the death of Śrī Rāma and others.	318
9. Restraining the ogres, who were boasting each of his own strength, Vibhīṣaṇa begins to talk wisdom, on which Rāvaṇa retires to his own palace.	320
10. Making his way into the palace of his eldest (half-) brother early next morning and drawing his attention to the evil portents, Vibhīṣaṇa appeals to his good sense by making a timely submission.	323

11.	When Rāvaṇa entered the assembly hall to hold consultations with his counsellors, other leading ogres as well as Vibhīṣaṇa follow suit.	326
12.	Rāvaṇa orders his Commander-in-Chief, Prahasta, to make adequate arrangements for the defence of the city and to apprise Kumbhakarna of the whole situation now that he had woken from his long slumber.	329
13.	Advised by Mahāpārśwa to use violence against Sītā, Rāvaṇa pleads his inability to do so because of a curse pronounced against him in the past by Brahmā, and boasts of his own valour.	333
14.	Vibhīṣaṇa exhorts Rāvaṇa to restore Sītā to Śrī Rāma before the latter's arrows pierced the heads of the ogres.	336
15.	Reproaching in a language which, though harsh, was yet conformable to truth, Indrajit, who was indulging in a boastful speech, on hearing the advice of Vibhīṣaṇa, the latter repeats that conciliation of Rāma was the only opportune and salutary course.	339
16.	Annoyed to hear this advice of his youngest half-brother, Vibhīṣaṇa, which, though unpleasant to hear, was most wholesome, Rāvaṇa, on whom it made no impression, castigates him with harsh words.	341
17.	Vibhīṣaṇa seeks the protection of Śrī Rāma and the latter holds consultation with his counsellors on the question of giving him shelter.	344
18.	Having heard the arguments of his counsellors, Śrī Rāma decides to accept Vibhīṣaṇa as his own.	350
19.	Falling at the feet of Śrī Rāma on coming down to the earth alongwith his ministers, when he had received an assurance of safety from Śrī Rāma, Vibhīṣaṇa submits to the former that, having been reprimanded by his eldest brother, Rāvaṇa, he has sought refuge with him, and on being questioned by Śrī Rāma tells him everything about Rāvaṇa.	354
20.	Told by an ogre, Śārdūla by name, that an army of monkeys led by Sugrīva was advancing towards Laṅkā, Rāvaṇa dispatched an ogre, Śuka by name, as an envoy to carry his message to Sugrīva. While commencing to deliver the message to Sugrīva, Śuka is captured by the monkeys; but Śrī Rāma causes him to be set free and he delivers the message to Sugrīva.	358
21.	When the sea did not, even when requested, allow a passage to Śrī Rāma, who was keen to cross it, nor did the sea-god care to appear in person before him, Śrī Rāma discharges fierce arrows which cause a stir among the creatures inhabiting the sea and make the sea-water overflow.	361
22.	Seized with terror to see a missile presided over by Brahmā (the creator) fitted to his bow by Śrī Rāma in fury, and appearing in person with joined palms, the sea-god undertakes to sustain on his bosom a bridge to be constructed by Nala, and goes out of sight. Nala accordingly builds a bridge across the sea.	365
23.	Śrī Rāma speaks of evil portents to Lakṣmaṇa.	373
24.	Beholding Laṅkā and applauding it, nay, drawing up his army in battle array, Śrī Rāma orders the release of Śuka (a spy of Rāvaṇa), who was captured earlier and kept under detention by the monkeys. Going back to Rāvaṇa the ogre speaks to him about the military strength of Śrī Rāma. Infuriated by this report, Rāvaṇa vauntingly harps on his own prowess.	374

25.	On Śrī Rāma having crossed over to the other side of the sea, Rāvaṇa commands his ministers, Śuka and Sāraṇa, to enter the enemy's ranks and tell him everything about them. Detected while doing the work of a spy, they are captured by Vibhiṣaṇa, but let go by Śrī Rāma. Going back to Rāvaṇa, they exhort the latter to hand over Sītā to Śrī Rāma.	379
26.	Climbing up the roof of his palace on hearing the submission of Sāraṇa and surveying the entire army of monkeys, Rāvaṇa inquires about the monkey leaders and Sāraṇa shows to him Hanumān and others alongwith their distinguishing marks.	382
27.	Mentioning the names of other monkey-generals, Sāraṇa proceeds to describe their individual valour.	386
28.	Śuka completes the account given by Sāraṇa.	390
29.	Snubbing Śuka and Sāraṇa, Rāvaṇa expels them from his court and dispatches Śārdūla and other ogres for espionage. Captured by the monkeys, the ogres are thrashed by them and get released by Śrī Rāma. Returning to Laṅkā, they too speak to Rāvaṇa about the army of monkeys.	394
30.	Dispatched by Rāvaṇa to ascertain the strength of the simian army, the ogre Śārdūla acquaints his master with the topmost leaders of the monkeys.	397
31.	Perturbed to learn from the spies sent by him that Śrī Rāma had taken up his position near the Suvēla mountain, Rāvaṇa takes counsel with his ministers and, after dismissing them, approaches Sītā with Vidyujihva, who was a past master in conjuring tricks. Telling her how her husband had been killed by him with his entire army, he produces before her as an evidence the counterfeit head of Śrī Rāma brought by Vidyujihva.	400
32.	Sītā bursts into a wail at the sight of Śrī Rāma's head and bow, when Rāvaṇa is abruptly called away by an emissary and after consultation with his ministers prepares his forces for action against the army of Śrī Rāma.	405
33.	Saramā reassures Sītā by telling her that the head brought before her was not of Śrī Rāma, who was alive and would soon be able to see her, and asks her not to be afraid.	409
34.	Urged by Sītā, Saramā discloses to her the definite plans of Rāvaṇa devised by him in consultation with his ministers.	412
35.	Observing in Laṅkā evil portents and startling phenomena foreboding the destruction of ogres, Mālyavān exhorts Rāvaṇa to make peace with Śrī Rāma.	415
36.	Deriding the exhortation of Mālyavān, even though conducive to his good, nay, holding consultation with his ministers and detailing Prahasta (the Commander-in-Chief) and others to guard the four main gates against the inroads of the enemy, Rāvaṇa complacently retires into his gynaeceum.	419
37.	While, on reaching the precincts of Laṅkā, Śrī Rāma and Sugrīva as well as other monkeys headed by Hanumān were deliberating as to how to achieve success in their expedition, Vibhiṣaṇa apprises them of the arrangements made by Rāvaṇa at the four gates for the defence of Laṅkā, as reported to him by his four ministers, who had entered Laṅkā in the disguise of birds and witnessed everything with their own eyes. Śrī Rāma too after detailing monkeys to storm the four gates climbs up the Suvēla mountain with his army.	421

38. Climbing up the Suvēla mountain in consultation with and in the company of Lakṣmaṇa and Vibhiṣaṇa as well as of Sugrīva and others, Śrī Rāma surveys the city from that vantage-ground. The eminent heroes among the monkeys too, who were eager to fight, roar at the top of their voice and spend the night on the mountain itself with Śrī Rāma. 425
39. Having passed the night on the summit of the Suvēla mountain, the commanders of simian troops entered the parks and gardens in the outskirts of Laṅkā, which were laden with blossom etc., while others make their way into Laṅkā itself. Śrī Rāma, however, feels amazed to behold from the mountain-top Laṅkā, which was charming in every respect. 427
40. Ascending the highest peak of the Suvēla mountain alongwith a division of his army, Śrī Rāma catches sight of Rāvaṇa perched on the top of a gate of his palace. Infuriated at his very sight, Sugrīva springs upon him by surprise from the mountain-top, throws down the diadem from his head, struggles with him for a long time and, eluding him, returns victorious to the presence of Śrī Rāma. 430
41. Śrī Rāma is not very pleased with the daring act of Sugrīva inasmuch as he had seen evil portents. Warning him against such action on the ground of his being a sovereign, and commanding the monkey generals to besiege all the four gates of Laṅkā, he dispatches Aṅgada to expostulate with Rāvaṇa and bring him to reason. Aṅgada tries his best to bring him round, but in vain, and returns unsuccessful to the presence of Śrī Rāma after threatening the ogres. 433
42. Approaching Rāvaṇa, the ogres break to him the news about Laṅkā having been laid siege to by the monkeys led by Śrī Rāma. Ascending the roof of his palace and taxing his brain about the means of putting an end to the monkeys, he casts a look at Śrī Rāma and the monkeys. Pained at the thought that Sītā was being bullied by Rāvaṇa on his account, and commanding the monkeys to besiege all the four gates of Laṅkā and to destroy the ogres, Śrī Rāma, on the other side, takes up his position alongwith Lakṣmaṇa near the northern gate. Apprised of these developments, Rāvaṇa mobilizes his army and, encouraged by him, the ogres beat their drums and emit a terrible roar. 442
43. In the course of duels the ogres and the monkeys, in which Aṅgada closes with Indrajit, the heads of Durdharṣa, Mitraghna, Agniketu and Yajñakopana are lopped off by Śrī Rāma and that of Nikumbha by Nila and, killed by Suṣeṇa, Vidyunmālī drops down dead. 447
44. During the nocturnal engagement the monkeys too dauntlessly offer a stiff fight to the ogres even though they were fighting against heavy odds inasmuch as the strength of ogres gets doubled at night, and felt highly rejoiced to find Indrajit vanquished by Aṅgada. Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa too put to flight numberless foes with their shower of arrows. Eventually, however, they are both bound by Indrajit in a noose of serpents. 451
45. Distressed to perceive the two scions of Raghu bound by Indrajit in a network of arrows and pierced with other fierce arrows, the monkeys give way to utter despondency. 455

46. Though itching to kill the enemy on beholding Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa enmeshed in a network of snakes, the monkeys, who were unable to perceive him, feel frustrated. Vibhīṣaṇa exhorts Sugrīva, who was seized with fear on finding Indrajit hidden under the cloak of witchcraft, to take heart and not to give way to fear. Concluding the two brothers to be dead, Indrajit, for his part, triumphantly enters Laṅkā and is welcomed by his father. 458
47. Indrajit having re-entered Laṅkā, Hanumān and other monkeys encompass Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa and guard their bodies. Having dismissed Indrajit, Rāvaṇa commands the ogresses guarding Sītā to take her to the field of battle and show her the plight of Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa. The ogresses, headed by Trijaṭā, accordingly take her in the aerial car, known by the name of Puṣpaka, and show her the two princes lying unconscious and motionless on the ground. Sītā bursts into a piteous wail on seeing her husband and brother-in-law in that plight. 462
48. “Those well-versed in physiognomy and palmistry had prophesied that I would never be widowed and would bear sons. How could their predictions prove untrue?” While Sītā was absorbed in these thoughts on beholding Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, Trijaṭā reassures her on the strength of good omens and, cheering her soul, takes her back to the Aśoka grove. 465
49. Returning to consciousness, Śrī Rāma wails over the lot of Lakṣmaṇa and the monkeys too fall a prey to extreme despondency on seeing Śrī Rāma wailing as aforesaid. Seeing Vibhīṣaṇa approach Śrī Rāma in the meantime, they all take to their heels, mistaking him for Indrajit. 469
50. Beholding Vibhīṣaṇa, Sugrīva asks Jāmbavān to restore the fleeing monkeys to confidence and himself reassures Vibhīṣaṇa. In the meantime, Garuḍa, the king of birds, makes his appearance on the scene and liberates Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa from their bondage. 472
51. Hearing the tumultuous noise of the monkeys, the servants of Rāvaṇa, detailed for the purpose, report to him how the two scions of Raghu were freed from the bondage of arrows. Depressed by this news, Rāvaṇa dispatches Dhūmrākṣa to dispose of Śrī Rāma. Though perturbed at the sight of evil portents, yet unwilling to retrace his steps on any account, Dhūmrākṣa surveys the army of the monkeys. 478
52. Dhūmrākṣa fights and is killed by Hanumān. 481
53. The monkeys’ tough fight with the ogre Vajradanṣṭra dispatched by Rāvaṇa, who is provoked by the death of Dhūmrākṣa. 485
54. An encounter between Vajradanṣṭra and Aṅgada, who kills the former. 488
55. Akampana and other ogres appear on the field of battle under orders of Rāvaṇa and wage a deadly conflict with the monkeys. 491
56. Hanumān kills Akampana. 494
57. Under orders of Rāvaṇa, Prahasta sallies forthwith a large army for the battlefield. 497
58. Nila kills Prahasta. 501
59. Disconsolate at the death of Prahasta, Rāvaṇa himself appears on the battle-field for an encounter. After a tough fight with Sugrīva, Lakṣmaṇa, Hanumān and Nila, Rāvaṇa meets Śrī Rāma and, sustaining an ignominious defeat at the latter’s hands and escaping with his life, withdraws to Laṅkā. 506

60.	The slumbering Kumbhakarṇa is roused by the ogres under orders of their king, who felt disconsolate at his own defeat, and the monkeys get alarmed to see the former.	522
61.	Vibhiṣaṇa acquaints Śrī Rāma with Kumbhakarṇa and the monkeys take up their position firmly at the gates of Laṅkā for an encounter under orders of Śrī Rāma.	531
62.	Kumbhakarṇa enters the palace of Rāvaṇa, who warns him of the danger from Śrī Rāma and urges him to destroy the enemy's army.	535
63.	Kumbhakarṇa twits Rāvaṇa for all his misdeeds and, reassuring him, shows his determination for a conflict.	537
64.	Mahodara twits Kumbhakarṇa and suggests to Rāvaṇa a device to achieve his end without a struggle.	542
65.	Kumbhakarṇa's sally for an encounter.	546
66.	Aṅgada reassures and rallies the monkeys scared away by Kumbhakarṇa; their carnage at the hands of Kumbhakarṇa puts them to flight again and Aṅgada restores them to confidence once more.	551
67.	Kumbhakarṇa's terrible encounter with Śrī Rāma and death at his hands.	555
68.	Rāvaṇa's lament over Kumbhakarṇa's fall.	573
69.	Rāvaṇa's sons and brothers sally forth for an encounter and Narāntaka meets with his death at the hands of Aṅgada.	575
70.	Death of Devāntaka and Triśirā at the hands of Hanumān, of Mahodara at the hands of Nila and of Mahāpārśwa at the hands of Ṛṣabha.	584
71.	Atikāya puts up a fierce fight and is killed by Lakṣmaṇa.	591
72.	Rāvaṇa feels anxious for the safety of Laṅkā and enjoins the ogres to guard the city jealously.	601
73.	A missile presided over by Brahmā and shot by Indrajit renders Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa as well as the whole army of monkeys unconscious.	603
74.	Under instructions from Jāmbavān, the lord of bears, Hanumān fetched a hillock covered with celestial herbs; and inhaling the odour of those herbs, Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa and all the monkeys regained their normal health.	611
75.	Laṅkā is set fire to by the monkeys, on which a terrible conflict ensues between the ogres and the monkeys.	619
76.	Death of Kampana and Prajaṅgha at the hands of Aṅgada, of Śonitākṣa at the hands of Dwivida, of Yūpākṣa at the hands of Mainda and of Kumbha at the hands of Sugrīva.	625
77.	Nikumbha's death at the hands of Hanumān.	633
78.	Makarākṣa sets out for an encounter under orders of Rāvaṇa.	636
79.	Death of Makarākṣa at the hands of Śrī Rāma.	638
80.	Indrajit puts up a formidable fight under orders of Rāvaṇa and Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa discuss the ways and means of putting an end to him.	642
81.	Indrajit kills an illusory living image of Sītā.	646
82.	Led by Hanumān, the monkeys meet the ogres in an encounter; Hanumān returns to the presence of Śrī Rāma and Indrajit pours oblations into the sacred fire at the sanctuary of Nikumbhilā.	649
83.	Śrī Rāma faints away on being told that Sītā has been done to death. After consoling him, Lakṣmaṇa prepares for action.	652

84.	Telling Śrī Rāma the secret of the conjuring trick practised by Indrajit, Vibhiṣaṇa assures him of Sītā being still alive and urges him to send Lakṣmaṇa with an army to the sanctuary of Nikumbhilā.	656
85.	Importuned by Vibhiṣaṇa, Śrī Rāma commands Lakṣmaṇa to march against Indrajit to make short work of him, and Lakṣmaṇa arrives with an army near the sanctuary of Nikumbhilā.	659
86.	In the course of an encounter of the monkeys with the ogres, Hanumān plays havoc among the hostile army and challenges Indrajit to a duel and Lakṣmaṇa catches sight of the ogre.	663
87.	Exchange of hot words between Indrajit and Vibhiṣaṇa.	666
88.	Exchange of hot words between Lakṣmaṇa and Indrajit, followed by a fierce fight.	669
89.	Vibhiṣaṇa takes the offensive against the ogres and encourages the commanders of monkey-troops to carry on the struggle. Lakṣmaṇa kills the charioteer of Indrajit and the monkeys make short work of his horses.	676
90.	A fierce contest between Indrajit and Lakṣmaṇa and Indrajit's fall.	681
91.	Lakṣmaṇa, Vibhiṣaṇa and others approach Śrī Rāma with the news of Indrajit's fall. Delighted with the news, Śrī Rāma embraces Lakṣmaṇa and applauds him and gets Lakṣmaṇa and others treated by Suṣeṇa.	689
92.	Stricken with grief at the death of Indrajit, Rāvaṇa proceeds to kill Sītā, who, he feels was the root of all trouble, but desists from this dastardly act at the intercession of Supārśwa.	692
93.	Destruction of ogre-troops at the hands of Śrī Rāma.	698
94.	Lament of the ogresses.	702
95.	Rāvaṇa calls together his generals and, marching with them to the field of battle, exhibits his valour against the enemy.	706
96.	Destruction of the army of ogres at the hands of Sugrīva and the fall of Virūpākṣa.	710
97.	The fearful encounter of Mahodara with Sugrīva and his fall at the latter's hands.	713
98.	Fall of Mahāpārśwa at the hands of Aṅgada.	717
99.	Śrī Rāma's encounter with Rāvaṇa.	719
100.	Encounter of Śrī Rāma with Rāvaṇa; Lakṣmaṇa swoons under a blow of Rāvaṇa's javelin and Rāvaṇa flees away from the battlefield.	724
101.	Śrī Rāma laments over the precarious condition of Lakṣmaṇa. The latter regains consciousness under the treatment of the monkey Suṣeṇa with the help of a herb brought at his instance all the way from the Himālaya mountain by Hanumān.	729
102.	Seated in a chariot sent by Indra (the ruler of gods), Śrī Rāma renews his combat with Rāvaṇa.	734
103.	Śrī Rāma upbraids Rāvaṇa, who, when wounded by the former is removed from the battlefield by his charioteer.	740
104.	Rāvaṇa reproaches the charioteer and the latter after satisfying his master with his reply drives his chariot back to the battlefield.	743
105.	Sage Agastya advises Śrī Rāma to recite the 'Āditya-Hṛdaya', a collection of verses in praise of the sun-god, with a view to gaining victory.	746

106.	Catching sight of Rāvaṇa's chariot, Śrī Rāma asks Mātali to be on his guard. A description of portents prognosticating the fall of Rāvaṇa and good omens predicting the victory of Śrī Rāma.	749
107.	Fierce encounter of Śrī Rāma with Rāvaṇa.	752
108.	Rāvaṇa's death at Śrī Rāma's hands.	758
109.	Vibhīṣaṇa bursts into a lament and Śrī Rāma comforts him and asks him to perform the obsequies in relation to his deceased eldest brother.	761
110.	The lament of Rāvaṇa's consorts.	764
111.	Mandodarī's lament and the funeral of Rāvaṇa.	767
112.	Installation of Vibhīṣaṇa on the throne of Laṅkā; Śrī Rāma sends his message to Sītā through Hanumān.	777
113.	Hanumān delivers Śrī Rāma's message to Sītā and brings back her message to him.	779
114.	At the command of Śrī Rāma, Vibhīṣaṇa escorts Sītā to the former's presence and she feasts her eyes on the moon-like countenance of her darling.	784
115.	Regarding with suspicion the character of Sītā, Śrī Rāma repudiates her and asks her to seek shelter elsewhere.	788
116.	With a taunting reply, Sītā undergoes a fire-ordeal in order to prove her conjugal fidelity.	790
117.	Gods seek the presence of Śrī Rāma, and Brahmā (the creator) proclaims his divinity and extols him.	794
118.	The god of fire emerges in person from the burning pyre with Sītā and, restoring her to Śrī Rāma, testifies to her purity and the latter joyfully accept her.	797
119.	As enjoined by Lord Śiva, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa pay their respects to the soul of Emperor Daśaratha, who appears in an ethereal form, a replica of his extinct personality, and ascends once more to heaven after giving necessary instructions to his two former sons and daughter-in-law.	799
120.	At the instance of Śrī Rāma, Indra brings back to life all the monkeys who had lost their life in combat, the gods disperse and the simian army enjoy their well-earned rest.	803
121.	Śrī Rāma prepares to leave for Ayodhyā and at his instance Vibhīṣaṇa orders the presence of the aerial car, Puṣpaka, to take him to Ayodhyā.	805
122.	In obedience to the command of Śrī Rāma, Vibhīṣaṇa heaps special honours on the monkeys and taking Sugrīva, Vibhīṣaṇa and other monkeys with them, Śrī Rāma, Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa start on their aerial journey by Puṣpaka.	808
123.	In the course of their flight to Ayodhyā, Śrī Rāma shows to Sītā the places over which they were flying.	811
124.	Landing the aerial car at the hermitage of Sage Bharadwāja, Śrī Rāma sees the great Ṛṣi and receives boons from him.	816
125.	Preceding Śrī Rāma to Śrngaverapura and Nandigrāma, Hanumān, apprises Guha and Bharata of Śrī Rāma's impending return soon and Bharata offers him a number of valuable gifts in recompense for the delightful news.	818

126.	Hanumān recounts to Bharata broad details relating to the sojourn of Śrī Rāma, Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa in the forest.	823
127.	Arrangements for the reception of Śrī Rāma in Ayodhyā; the departure of Bharata with all others for Nandigrāma to receive Śrī Rāma; Śrī Rāma's meeting with Bharata and others and his sending back the aerial car, Puṣpaka, to Kubera, the ruler of Yakṣas (a class of demigods), to whom it originally belonged.	828
128.	Bharata renders back the kingdom of Ayodhyā to Śrī Rāma, who drives in a procession to the city; his consecration on the throne of Ayodhyā; His farewell to the monkeys and the glory of the epic.	834

Uttarakāṇḍa

— Book Seven —

Number of Cantos:	Page
1. Great seers meet Śrī Rāma in the audience hall, his conversation with them and the questions he addresses to them.	845
2. Agastya discourses on the good qualities and Tapas of Pulastya and the origin of Viśravā.	848
3. Vaiśravaṇa's birth from the loins of Viśravā; his obtaining boons through Tapas and his residence in Laṅkā.	851
4. A description of the race of Rākṣasas and the origin of Heti, Vidyutkeśa and Sukeśa.	854
5. Description of the descendants of Mālyavān, Sumālī and Mālī, sons of Sukeśa.	856
6. Under the advice of Lord Śiva, the gods seek the help of Śrī Viṣṇu for the destruction of the Rākṣasas; they return reassured; the Rākṣasas usurp the region of the gods; the coming of Śrī Viṣṇu to help the gods.	860
7. The destruction of the Rākṣasas by Lord Viṣṇu; the survivors take to flight.	865
8. Mālyavān's fight and his defeat; retreat of Sumālī and other Rākṣasas into the nether world.	869
9. The origin of Rāvaṇa and others, their stay in Gokaṇṇa to perform Tapas (askesis).	872
10. Rāvaṇa and his younger brothers perform Tapas and obtain boons.	876
11. Kubera listens to the ultimatum of Rāvaṇa, leaves Laṅkā at the command of his father and proceeds to Kailāsa to live there. The Rākṣasas occupy Laṅkā and Rāvaṇa is installed as its ruler.	879
12. The marriage of Śūrpaṇakhā, of Rāvaṇa and his brothers and the birth of Meghanāda.	883
13. Kumbhakarna goes to sleep in the mansion built at the command of Rāvaṇa; Rāvaṇa's transgressions; Kubera sends a messenger to pull him up; the messenger is put to death by the enraged Rāvaṇa.	886
14. An attack by Rāvaṇa and his ministers on the Yakṣas and the defeat (of the latter).	889
15. Defeat of Māṇibhadra and Kubera; Rāvaṇa takes hold of the Puṣpaka.	891

16.	Nandiśwara curses Rāvaṇa; Lord Śaṅkara curbs the pride of Rāvaṇa, who obtains a sword from Lord Śaṅkara.	895
17.	Vedavatī, daughter of a Brahmarṣi, insulted by Rāvaṇa, pronounces a curse on him and enters the fire. She appears as Sitā in another birth.	899
18.	Marutta's discomfiture at the hands of Rāvaṇa; Indra and the other gods confer boons on the peacock and other birds.	902
19.	Rāvaṇa kills Anaraṇya and receives a curse from him.	905
20.	Rāvaṇa is pulled up by Nārada; at his suggestion he seeks the abode of Yama for combat; Nārada's curiosity on that account.	908
21.	Rāvaṇa invades the domain of Yama and destroys the forces of Yama.	911
22.	Duel between Yama and Rāvaṇa; Yama holds back, at the intervention of Brahmā, his rod of destruction which was raised to make short work of Rāvaṇa; the triumphant Rāvaṇa leaves the domain of Yama.	914
23.	Rāvaṇa makes friends with the Nivātakavacas, kills the Kālakeyas and vanquishes the sons of Varuṇa.	918
24.	Lament of the celestial damsels and other ladies forcibly carried off by Rāvaṇa and the curse pronounced by them; Rāvaṇa consoles his wailing sister, Śūrpaṇakhā and sends her to the Daṇḍaka forest with Khara.	923
25.	Meghanāda attains success through sacrifices; Vibhīṣaṇa describes to Rāvaṇa the evil consequences of bearing away others' wives; after consoling Kumbhīnāsī, Rāvaṇa, accompanied by Madhu, invades the realm of the gods. ...	926
26.	Rāvaṇa violates the celestial nymph Rambhā and receives a terrible curse from Nalakūbara.	931
27.	Rāvaṇa, accompanied by his army, invades the realm of Indra; Indra invokes the help of Lord Viṣṇu; Viṣṇu dismisses Indra with a vow to kill Rāvaṇa; encounter of the ogres with the gods; Sumālī is killed by Vasu.	935
28.	A duel between Meghanāda and Jayanta (Indra's son); Jayanta is removed to another place by Pulomā (his maternal grandfather); the appearance of Indra (the ruler of gods) on the field of battle; the destruction of the Rākṣasa army by the Rudras and the wind-gods; a duel between Indra and Rāvaṇa.	939
29.	Rāvaṇa carves his way through the army of the gods; the gods try to capture him; Meghanāda captures Indra by employing conjuring tricks and coming out victorious returns to Laṅkā with his army.	944
30.	Brahmā grants boons to Indrajit and prevails on him to release Indra from captivity; nay, reminding the latter of his past sin, Brahmā asks him to perform a sacrifice to propitiate Lord Viṣṇu; at the conclusion of the said sacrifice Indra returns to heaven.	948
31.	Rāvaṇa goes to Māhiṣmatī; unable to find its ruler, Arjuna, he takes a dip in the holy Narmadā and offers worship to Lord Śiva.	952
32.	The flow of the Narmadā gets intercepted by the arms of Arjuna; the heap of flowers collected for Rāvaṇa's worship of Lord Śiva is swept away by the reversed current; the encounter of Rāvaṇa and the other ogres with Arjuna; Arjuna captures Rāvaṇa and bears him away to his city.	956
33.	Pulastya secures the deliverance of Rāvaṇa from the bondage of Arjuna.	962
34.	Rāvaṇa's humiliation at the hands of Vālī; Rāvaṇa makes friends with him.	964

35.	The descent of Hanumān; he rushes against the sun, the planet Rāhu and Airāvata (the mount of Indra) even as an infant; he is rendered unconscious as the result of a stroke of lightning by Indra; the entire creation gets suffocated due to the displeasure of the wind-god; the gods under the leadership of Brahmā seek the presence of the wind-god to pacify him.	968
36.	After bringing Hanumān back to life, Brahmā and other gods grant boons of various kinds in his favour. The wind-god takes him to Añjanā. Due to a curse pronounced on him by some Ṛṣis, Hanumān remains unconscious of his might. Śrī Rāma permits Agastya and other sages to depart after requesting them to be present at the sacrifice to be performed by Him.	974
37.	Śrī Rāma sits in court with His courtiers.	980
38.	Śrī Rāma grants leave to Kings—Janaka, Yudhājī, Pratardana and others to proceed to their respective dominions.	982
39.	The princes send presents to Śrī Rāma, who after accepting them distributes them to His friends, the monkeys, the bears and the ogres; and they all sojourn happily with Him.	985
40.	Śrī Rāma sends back the monkeys, the bears and ogres to their respective abodes.	988
41.	The arrival in Ayodhyā of the aerial car Puṣpaka sent by Kubera; its disappearance after receiving honours and blessings from Śrī Rāma; Bharata's description of the unique glory of Śrī Rāma's rule.	990
42.	Recreation of Śrī Rāma and Śrī Sītā in the Aśoka-grove; the enceinte Śrī Sītā expresses her desire to visit penance-groves and Śrī Rāma accords His consent.	992
43.	Bhadra apprises Śrī Rāma of the ugly remarks made by the citizens about Śrī Sītā.	995
44.	On being sent for by Him all the brothers present themselves before Śrī Rāma.	997
45.	Annoyed with the ill-report about Sītā, Śrī Rāma orders Lakṣmaṇa to take Sītā away in the forest and leave her in the vicinity of Vālmiki-Āśrama.	999
46.	Lakṣmaṇa proceeds to the forest, alongwith Sītā in order to leave her in the vicinity of Vālmiki's Āśrama and reaches on the bank of Gaṅgā.	1001
47.	Carrying Sītā across the Gaṅgā, Lakṣmaṇa laments agony and talks with a heavy heart thinking of her future.	1003
48.	Sītā's plaintive utterance, Her message to Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa's departure and the wail of Sītā.	1005
49.	Hearing Sītā's crying, from young ascetics sage Vālmiki approaches her and carries her to his hermitage.	1007
50.	Dialogue between Lakṣmaṇa and Sumantra.	1009
51.	On his way to Ayodhyā Sumantra narrates the account of Bhṛgu's curse which he heard from Durvāsā and tells Lakṣmaṇa some future events to console him.	1011
52.	Lakṣmaṇa meets Śrī Rāma in the Royal chamber and comforts Him.	1013
53.	Śrī Rāma narrates the story of king Nṛga, who was cursed for not attending to his subjects, and instructs Lakṣmaṇa, to perform obligatory duties towards citizens.	1015

54.	King Nrga gets a cosy pit prepared for himself, entrusts the kingdom to his son and enters the pit and suffers the consequences of curse.....	1017
55.	King Nimi and sage Vasiṣṭha leave their bodies as a result of mutual curse.	1018
56.	At the instance of Brahmā Vasiṣṭha enters the semen of Varuṇa; Varuṇa places his semen in a pitcher near Urvaśī; as a consequence of Mitra's curse Urvaśī lives with king Purūravā on the earth and bears him a son.	1020
57.	Sage Vasiṣṭha is re-incarnated and king Nimi resides in the eye-lids of living beings.	1023
58.	Śukrācārya curses king Yayāti.	1025
59.	King Yayāti borrows youth from his son Pūru, in exchange for his own old age. Satisfied after a long time with the enjoyment of the objects of pleasure, he returns his youth to Pūru and consecrates him king and pronounces curse on Yadu.	1027
Interpolated Canto
	1. A dog arrives at the Royal palace-gate with a request, Śrī Rāma orders for ushering.	1029
	2. Śrī Rāma does justice to the dog and makes the Brāhmaṇa 'Kulapati' (a 'Mahanta') of Kalañjara. The dog points out the evils associated with being Kulapati.	1031
60.	Sages, living on the bank of Yamunā, terrorised by Asura Lavaṇa approach Śrī Rāma, in order to make a complaint. Śrī Rāma receives them with honour and enquires about the cause of their arrival.....	1035
61.	The sages inform Śrī Rāma about the boon obtained by the Asura, Madhu, and the might, and atrocities perpetrated by Lavaṇāsura and appeal to Śrī Rāma to dispel their fear.	1036
62.	Rāma enquires of the sages regarding Lavaṇa's way of living and dispatches Śatrughna with a view to kill Lavaṇa.	1038
63.	Rāma coronates Śatrughna as a king and explains to him the way to safeguard himself against Lavaṇa's lance.	1040
64.	Śatrughna dispatches his army in compliance with Śrī Rāma's order in advance and he himself proceeds after a month.	1043
65.	Sage Vālmiki narrates to Śatrughna the story of Kalmāṣapāda, son of Sudāsa.	1044
66.	Birth of two sons to Sītā, Vālmiki makes arrangement for their protection. Śatrughna is happy over this and leaves for the bank of the Yamunā.	1047
67.	The sage Cyavana apprises Śatrughna of the power of Lavaṇa's lance and narrates the events connected with the slaying of king Māndhātā.	1049
68.	Lavaṇa goes out in search of food. Śatrughna stays at the citygate awaiting return of Lavaṇa and has an angry exchange of words with the latter.	1051
69.	Duel fight between Śatrughna and Lavaṇa, Śatrughna kills Lavaṇa.	1053
70.	Having obtained a boon from the gods and after founding Madhupurī, in the twelfth year, Śatrughna decides to meet Śrī Rāma.	1056
71.	Śatrughna, accompanied by a few soldiers, proceeds to Ayodhyā, on the way listening Śrī Rāma's glory being sung at Ṛṣi Vālmiki's Āśrama and getting pleasantly surprised.	1057

72.	After taking leave from Vālmiki, Śatrughna meets Śrī Rāma and others at Ayodhyā and after staying there for a week, leaves again for Madhupurī.	1059
73.	A Brāhmaṇa arrives at the palace-gate, carrying the dead body of his son, and laments blaming the king for the death of the child.	1061
74.	Nārada told Śrī Rāma the cause of the death of Brāhmaṇa's son as an unauthorized practice of penance by a Śūdra.	1063
75.	Śrī Rāma goes round in the aerial celestial car Puṣpaka of Kubera, in order to trace out unrighteousness in his kingdom, but finding no trace of it anywhere, He proceeds to the south and comes across a Śūdra, practising penance.	1065
76.	Śrī Rāma kills Śambūka for which gods laud Him. Sage Agastya welcomes Śrī Rāma and presents a celestial ornament to Him.	1067
77.	Sage Agastya narrates the story of the king Śveta, who after eating corpse acquires heaven.	1071
78.	King Śveta tells Agastya the reason as to why he had to eat the condemned food and recounts his conversation with Brahmā, He gives Agastya a divine ornament and gets freed from hunger and thirst.	1072
79.	Reign of king Daṇḍa, a son of Ikṣvāku.	1075
80.	The story of Daṇḍakavana. King Daṇḍa violates the chastity of Bhārgava's daughter and is cursed by him.	1076
81.	End of king Daṇḍa, his family and kingdom, as a result of Śukra's curse. ...	1078
82.	Śrī Rāma leaves Agastya's hermitage and starts for Ayodhyā.	1080
83.	Śrī Rāma abandons the proposal of performing Rājasūya sacrifice at the instance of Bharata.	1081
84.	Lakṣmaṇa advises Śrī Rāma to perform Aśvamedha sacrifice and narrates the story of Indra and Vṛtra. Vṛtra's penance and Indra's appeal to Viṣṇu to kill him.	1083
85.	Viṣṇu's lustre enters Indra's body and his thunderbolt, Indra kills Vṛtra with his thunderbolt and is guilty of killing a Brāhmaṇa and as a consequence has to go to the region of darkness.	1085
86.	Indra is freed from the sin of Brahmahatyā as a result of performing Aśvamedha.	1087
87.	Śrī Rāma narrates to Lakṣmaṇa the story of King Ilā.	1088
88.	Ilā and Budha see each other, Budha gives the name Kimpuruṣis to her and her companions and asks them to take their abode on the foot of the mountain.	1091
89.	Union of Budha and Ilā and birth of Purūravā.	1093
90.	Ilā attains manhood as a result of performing Aśvamedha.	1095
91.	Preparation for Aśvamedha by the order of Śrī Rāma.	1096
92.	Significance of donation and honour in the Aśvamedha Yajña of Śrī Rāma.	1099
93.	Arrival of sage Vālmiki with Lava and Kuśa in the Horse-sacrifice of Śrī Rāma and He orders Kuśa and Lava for singing the Rāmāyaṇa.	1100
94.	Śrī Rāma hears the sweet singing of the Rāmāyaṇa by Lava and Kuśa in his assembly.	1102
95.	Śrī Rāma despatches an envoy to sage Vālmiki. The envoy meets the sage. Śrī Sitā takes an oath of absolute purification.	1104

96.	The Sage Vālmīki supports purity of Sītā.	1106
97.	Sītā takes oath and enters in netherworld.	1108
98.	Śrī Rāma becomes enveloped by grief at Sītā's departure. Brahmā informs Him that Sītā will again be reunited with Him in the Heaven.	1110
99.	Śrī Rāma enters Ayodhyā in grief for Sītā and afterwards performs Ten-thousand Horse-sacrifices. Passing away of His mothers and brothers.	1112
100.	Gārgya comes with a token gift of pleasure to Śrī Rāma; Bharata proceeds towards the territory of the Gandharvas with his sons and army on the order of Śrī Rāma.	1114
101.	Bharata and Yudhājit reach the city of the Gandharva, their fight with Gandharvas, latter are defeated. Bharata installs Takṣa on Takṣaśilā and Puṣkala on Puṣkalāvata and return to Ayodhyā.	1116
102.	Coronation of Aṅgada and Candraketu by Bharata, and Lakṣmaṇa as per order of Śrī Rāma in the territory of Kārupatha.	1117
103.	Śrī Rāma's virtuous rule. An ascetic approaches Him for a private talk.	1119
104.	The Ascetic conveys the message of Brahmā to Śrī Rāma.	1120
105.	Durvāsā appears before Śrī Rāma and desires to take food. After eating, he departs. Śrī Rāma remembers the words of Death, and is wonderstruck.	1122
106.	Lakṣmaṇa departs and goes to heaven alongwith his body.	1124
107.	According to the counsel of Sage Vasiṣṭha, Śrī Rāma considers to take citizens with Him and crowns Kuśa and Lava on the kingdoms of South and North Kosala.	1125
108.	Śrī Rāma decides to go to heaven with his brothers, monkeys and bears. He advises Vibhīṣaṇa, Hanumān, Jāmbavān, Mainda, and Dwivida to remain on the earth.	1127
109.	Śrī Rāma ascends heaven with the citizens of Kosala.	1130
110.	Śrī Rāma enters alive the divine lustre of Viṣṇu alongwith his brothers; and others go to Santānika world.	1132
111.	Mention of the consequences of listening to and reading of the Rāmāyaṇa.	1134

ध्यानमग्न श्रीसीताजी

श्रीमद्वाल्मीकीयरामायणम् सुन्दरकाण्डम्

प्रथमः सर्गः

Śrīmad Vālmīki-Rāmāyaṇa (Sundarakāṇḍa)

[Book Five]

Canto I

Desirous of reaching Laṅkā in order to discover Sītā, Hanumān takes a leap from a peak of Mount Mahendra and honouring with the touch of his hand Mount Maināka, which rose from the bottom of the sea to provide rest on its peak to Hanumān, encounters Surasā (mother of Nāgas), sent by the gods in the form of an ogress, who was waiting for Hanumān with her mouth open to devour him. He enters her belly assuming a minute form and comes out without killing her.

Further, he is met by another ogress, Simhikā by name, standing with her mouth wide open to gulp Hanumān.

He enters her mouth after assuming a minute form and comes out after splitting her belly open and killing her. Then contracting his body into a minute form again in order to preclude the attention of the ogres, he descends on a mountain peak outside Laṅkā

ततो रावणनीतायाः सीतायाः शत्रुकर्षणः ।
इयेष पदमन्वेष्टुं चारणाचरिते पथि ॥ १ ॥

In order to discover the whereabouts of Sītā, who had been taken away by Rāvaṇa, Hanumān, the scourge of his foes, wished to course through the heavens, the path of the Cāraṇas or celestial bards. (1)

दुष्करं निष्प्रतिद्वन्द्वं चिकीर्षन् कर्म वानरः ।
समुदग्रशिरोग्रीवो गवां पतिरिवाबभौ ॥ २ ॥

With his head and neck exalted, Hanumān, the monkey chief, who sought to accomplish without any other support a feat, which was difficult for others to perform, looked like a well-built bull. (2)

अथ वैदूर्यवर्गेषु शाद्वलेषु महाबलः ।
धीरः सलिलकल्पेषु विचचार यथासुखम् ॥ ३ ॥
द्विजान् वित्रासयन् धीमानुरसा पादपान् हरन् ।
मृगांश्च सुबहून् निघ्नन् प्रवृद्ध इव केसरी ॥ ४ ॥

Scaring away the birds, nay, pulverizing the trees with his breast and crushing very many deer and other wild animals under his feet, the brave and wise Hanumān, who was endowed with extraordinary might, trod at ease, in the meantime, like a full-grown lion on the swards possessing the hue of a cat's-eye gem and stretching evenly like a sheet of green water. (3-4)

निललोहितमाञ्जिष्ठपद्मवर्णैः सितासितैः ।
स्वभावसिद्धैर्विमलैर्धातुभिः समलंकृतम् ॥ ५ ॥
कामरूपिभिराविष्टमभीक्ष्णं सपरिच्छदैः ।
यक्षकिंनरगन्धर्वैर्देवकल्पैः सपन्नगैः ॥ ६ ॥
स तस्य गिरिवर्यस्य तले नागवरायुते ।
तिष्ठन् कपिवरस्तत्र हृदे नाग इवाबभौ ॥ ७ ॥

Stopping short at the well-known foot of that jewel among mountains—which was crowded with lordly elephants, was rendered most charming by spotless natural minerals of purple, rosy, ruby-like and white and black hues and was constantly visited by Yakṣas (a class of demigods ruled over by Kubera, the god of riches), Kinnaras (a class of semi-divine beings credited with a human figure and the head of a horse or with a horse's body and a human head), Gandharvas (celestial musicians), and Nāgas (serpent-demons believed to have a human face with serpent-like lower extremities), who very nearly resembled the gods, were capable of changing their form at will and were accompanied by their retinue—Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, looked like a large-bodied elephant standing in a pool. (5—7)

स सूर्याय महेन्द्राय पवनाय स्वयम्भुवे ।
भूतेभ्यश्चाञ्जलिं कृत्वा चकार गमने मतिम् ॥ ८ ॥

Joining his palms by way of salutation to the sun-god, the mighty Indra (the ruler of gods), the wind-god (his own procreant), Brahmā (the self-born) and the genii (the attendants of Lord Śiva), he made up his mind to depart. (8)

अञ्जलिं प्राङ्मुखं कुर्वन् पवनायात्मयोनये ।
ततो हि ववृधे गन्तुं दक्षिणो दक्षिणां दिशम् ॥ ९ ॥

Joining his palms towards the east in salutation to the wind-god, his procreant, the proficient Hanumān then actually grew in size in order to proceed to the southern quarter. (9)

प्लवगप्रवरैर्दृष्टः प्लवने कृतनिश्चयः ।
ववृधे रामवृद्ध्यर्थं समुद्र इव पर्वसु ॥ १० ॥

Gazed on with wonder and love by foremost of the monkeys and having resolved to take a leap, he swelled in size further for the purpose of Śrī Rāma as the sea swells on the full-moon days. (10)

निष्प्रमाणशरीरः सँल्लिलङ्घयिषुरर्णवम् ।
बाहुभ्यां पीडयामास चरणाभ्यां च पर्वतम् ॥ ११ ॥

Wishing to leap across the sea, his body having grown immensely, Hanumān pressed the mountain with his hands and feet. (11)

स चचालाचलश्चाशु मुहूर्तं कपिपीडितः ।
तरूणां पुष्पिताग्राणां सर्वं पुष्पमशातयत् ॥ १२ ॥

Pressed by Hanumān, the aforesaid mountain forthwith shook awhile and caused all the flowers of the trees standing on it to fall, the ends of their branches being laden with blossom. (12)

तेन पादपमुक्तेन पुष्पौघेण सुगन्धिना ।
सर्वतः संवृतः शैलो बभौ पुष्पमयो यथा ॥ १३ ॥

Covered on all sides with that fragrant shower of flowers, discharged by the trees, the mountain appeared as though it were all flowers. (13)

तेन चोत्तमवीर्येण पीड्यमानः स पर्वतः ।
सलिलं सम्प्रसुस्त्राव मदमत्त इव द्विपः ॥ १४ ॥

Nay, while being pressed by Hanumān, who was endowed with surpassing might, the said mountain spurted water profusely even as an elephant in rut would exude ichor in abundance. (14)

पीड्यमानस्तु बलिना महेन्द्रस्तेन पर्वतः ।
रीतीर्निर्वर्तयामास काञ्चनाञ्जनराजतीः ॥ १५ ॥

Being pressed by that mighty monkey, the Mahendra mountain for its part let loose streams possessing the hues of gold, antimony and silver, flowing, as they did, through beds containing the ore of these metals. (15)

मुमोच च शिलाः शैलो विशालाः समनःशिलाः ।
मध्यमेनार्चिषा जुष्टो धूमराजीरिवानलः ॥ १६ ॥

The mountain also discharged from its flanks massive boulders containing realgar even as a fire burning with a mild flame would release columns of smoke. (16)

हरिणा पीड्यमानेन पीड्यमानानि सर्वतः ।
गुहाविष्टानि सत्त्वानि विनेदुर्विकृतैः स्वरैः ॥ १७ ॥

Being tormented by the squeezing, the mountain, which was being hard pressed by Hanumān, the creatures took to caverns and shrieked in unnatural tones. (17)

स महान् सत्त्वसन्नादः शैलपीडानिमित्तजः ।
पृथिवीं पूरयामास दिशश्चोपवनानि च ॥ १८ ॥

That loud clamour of the creatures inhabiting the mountain, occasioned by the circumstance of pressure exerted on the mountain by Hanumān, filled the earth as well as the four quarters and the groves. (18)

शिरोभिः पृथुभिर्नागा व्यक्तस्वस्तिकलक्षणैः ।
वमन्तः पावकं घोरं ददंशुर्दशनैः शिलाः ॥ १९ ॥

Vomiting a terrible fire through their large heads (mouths,) which revealed the marks of Swastika on them, snakes bit the rocks with their fangs. (19)

तास्तदा सविषैर्दष्टाः कुपितैस्तैर्महाशिलाः ।
जज्वलुः पावकोद्दीप्ता बिभिदुश्च सहस्रधा ॥ २० ॥

Bitten by those venomous serpents provoked to anger, the aforesaid huge rocks burst into flames as though lighted by fire, and got split up into thousands of fragments. (20)

यानि त्वौषधजालानि तस्मिञ्जातानि पर्वते ।
विषघ्नान्यपि नागानां न शेकुः शमितुं विषम् ॥ २१ ॥

Even the bunches of medicinal herbs, capable of counteracting poison, which had sprung up on that mountain, could not neutralize the poison of the snakes. (21)

भिद्यतेऽयं गिरिभूतैरिति मत्वा तपस्विनः ।
त्रस्ता विद्याधरास्तस्मादुत्पेतुः स्त्रीगणैः सह ॥ २२ ॥

Alarmed to think that the mountain in question was being riven by genii, ascetics practising austerities on it as well as the Vidyādhara enjoying life there with the hosts of their womenfolk rose in the air from that mountain. (22)

पानभूमिगतं हित्वा हैममासवभाजनम् ।
पात्राणि च महार्हाणि करकांश्च हिरण्मयान् ॥ २३ ॥
लेह्यानुच्चावचान् भक्ष्यान् मांसानि विविधानि च ।
आर्षभाणि च चर्माणि खड्गांश्च कनकत्सरून् ॥ २४ ॥
कृतकण्ठगुणाः क्षीबा रक्तमाल्यानुलेपनाः ।
रक्ताक्षाः पुष्कराक्षाश्च गगनं प्रतिपेदिरे ॥ २५ ॥

Leaving their gold jug of wine lying in the liquor-house as well as their precious utensils and gold vases for carrying water as also sauces of every description capable of being licked and articles of food that could be easily gulped, fruit pulps of various kinds, shields made of the hides of oxen and swords with gold hilts, the intoxicated Vidyādhara with reddish lotus-like eyes, who had put garlands around their neck, and were decorated with red flowers and daubed with red sandal-paste, rose to the heavens. (23—25)

हारनूपुरकेयूरपारिहार्यधराः स्त्रियः ।
विस्मिताः सस्मितास्तस्थुराकाशे रमणैः सह ॥ २६ ॥

Wearing pearl necklaces, anklets, armlets and bangles, the Vidyādhara women stood astonished and full of smiles with their husbands in the airspace. (26)

दर्शयन्तो महाविद्यां विद्याधरमहर्षयः ।
सहितास्तस्थुराकाशे वीक्षांचक्रुश्च पर्वतम् ॥ २७ ॥

Revealing their great skill in the form of capability to remain standing in the airspace, which had obviously been acquired through some magical spell, the Vidyādhara, who looked like eminent sages, stood in a body in the airspace and gazed down on the mountain. (27)

शुश्रुवुश्च तदा शब्दमृषीणां भावितात्मनाम् ।
चरणानां च सिद्धानां स्थितानां विमलेऽम्बरे ॥ २८ ॥

Nay, they heard at that time the following observation of the pure-minded Ṛṣis (seers of Vedic Mantras), Cāraṇas (celestial bards) and Siddhas (a class of demigods endowed with mystic powers from their very birth) standing like them in the cloudless sky: (28)

एष पर्वतसंकाशो हनुमान् मारुतात्मजः ।
तितीर्षति महावेगः समुद्रं वरुणालयम् ॥ २९ ॥

“Looking like a mountain in size and possessed of extraordinary vigour, the yonder Hanumān, son of the wind-god, seeks to leap across the sea, the abode of Varuṇa, the god of water. (29)

रामार्थं वानरार्थं च चिकीर्षन् कर्म दुष्करम् ।
समुद्रस्य परं पारं दुष्प्रापं प्राप्तुमिच्छति ॥ ३० ॥

“Eager to perform for the cause of Śrī Rāma and the monkeys, a feat which is hard to accomplish, he seeks to touch the other (opposite) shore of the sea, which is difficult to reach.” (30)

इति विद्याधरा वाचः श्रुत्वा तेषां तपस्विनाम् ।
तमप्रमेयं ददृशुः पर्वते वानरर्षभम् ॥ ३१ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid remarks of those ascetics, the Vidyādhara espied on the mountain-like Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, whose strength was beyond measure. (31)

दुधुवे च स रोमाणि चकम्पे चानलोपमः ।
ननाद च महानादं सुमहानिव तोयदः ॥ ३२ ॥

Nay, looking like a flame, Hanumān shook the hair on his body and quivered and loudly thundered like a huge cloud. (32)

आनुपूर्व्या च वृत्तं तल्लाङ्गलं रोमभिश्चितम् ।
उत्पतिष्यन् विचिक्षेप पक्षिराज इवोरगम् ॥ ३३ ॥

While about to spring up, he stretched out his prominent tail which was thickly set with hair and had been successively rolled up in a circle—as Garuḍa, the king of birds, would jolt a snake. (33)

तस्य लाङ्गलमाविद्धमतिवेगस्य पृष्ठतः ।
ददृशे गरुडेनेव ह्रियमाणो महोरगः ॥ ३४ ॥

Curled at his back, the tail of Hanumān, who was full of great vigour, looked like a huge serpent being borne away by Garuḍa. (34)

बाहू संस्तम्भयामास महापरिघसंनिभौ ।
आससाद कपिः कट्यां चरणौ संचुकोच च ॥ ३५ ॥

Hanumān firmly fixed on the mountain his arms, which resembled a pair of huge iron clubs, and crouched at the waist and also contracted his feet. (35)

संहृत्य च भुजौ श्रीमांस्तथैव च शिरोधराम् ।
तेजः सत्त्वं तथा वीर्यमाविवेश स वीर्यवान् ॥ ३६ ॥

Nay, drawing in his arms and likewise his neck too, the glorious and powerful Hanumān summoned all his energy, courage and virility. (36)

मार्गमालोकयन् दूरादूर्ध्वप्रणिहितेक्षणः ।
रुरोध हृदये प्राणानाकाशमवलोकयन् ॥ ३७ ॥

Having cast his eyes upwards in order to survey the long distance he had to cover, he held his breath in the heart while looking into the sky. (37)

पद्भ्यां दृढमवस्थानं कृत्वा स कपिकुञ्जरः ।
निकुच्य कर्णौ हनुमानुत्पतिष्यन् महाबलः ॥ ३८ ॥

वानरान् वानरश्रेष्ठ इदं वचनमब्रवीत् ।
यथा राघवनिर्मुक्तः शरः श्वसनविक्रमः ॥ ३९ ॥

गच्छेत् तद्वद् गमिष्यामि लंकां रावणपालिताम् ।
नहि द्रक्ष्यामि यदि तां लंकायां जनकात्मजाम् ॥ ४० ॥

अनेनैव हि वेगेन गमिष्यामि सुरालयम् ।
यदि वा त्रिदिवे सीतां न द्रक्ष्यामि कृतश्रमः ॥ ४१ ॥

बद्ध्वा राक्षसराजानमानयिष्यामि रावणम् ।
सर्वथा कृतकार्योऽहमेष्यामि सह सीतया ॥ ४२ ॥

Having firmly established himself with his feet, and contracting his ears, while about to leap, Hanumān, that elephant among the monkeys, nay, the foremost of monkeys, who was endowed with extraordinary might, addressed the following words to the monkeys: “Even as an arrow shot by Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, would fly with the speed of the wind, I too would, likewise, course to Laṅkā, which is guarded by Rāvaṇa. If, however, I don’t find Sitā, the daughter of Janaka, in Laṅkā, I shall certainly proceed with the same speed to heaven, the abode of gods. If I don’t find Sitā in heaven even after exerting myself much, I shall bring Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, in chains. At all events I shall return successful with Sitā. Or, else I shall bring Laṅkā with Rāvaṇa after uprooting it.” (38—42)

आनयिष्यामि वा लंकां समुत्पाट्य सरावणाम् ।
एवमुक्त्वा तु हनुमान् वानरो वानरोत्तमः ॥ ४३ ॥
उत्पपाताथ वेगेन वेगवानविचारयन् ।
सुपर्णमिव चात्मानं मेने स कपिकुञ्जरः ॥ ४४ ॥

Saying so, Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, for his part, who was full of vigour, sprang up in the sky with impetuosity, unmindful of the exertion. Nay, that elephant among the monkeys accounted himself a compeer of Garuḍa. (43-44)

समुत्पतति वेगात् तु वेगात् ते नगरोहिणः ।
संहृत्य विटपान् सर्वान् समुत्पेतुः समन्ततः ॥ ४५ ॥

Drawing together all their boughs even while Hanumān sprang up in the sky with vehemence, the aforesaid trees growing on the mountain flew with force on all sides. (45)

स मत्तकोयष्टिभकान् पादपान् पुष्पशालिनः ।
उद्धहन्नुवेगेन जगाम विमलेऽम्बरे ॥ ४६ ॥

Bearing aloft in his great onrush the trees charming with flowers and with lapwings in heat perched on them, Hanumān coursed through the cloudless sky. (46)

ऊरुवेगोत्थिता वृक्षा मुहूर्तं कपिमन्वयुः ।
प्रस्थितं दीर्घमध्वानं स्वबन्धुमिव बान्धवाः ॥ ४७ ॥

Swept away by the force of his thighs, the trees followed the monkey for a while like relatives accompanying their near and dear ones set out on a long journey. (47)

तमूरुवेगोन्मथिताः सालाश्चान्ये नगोत्तमाः ।
अनुजग्मुर्हनुमन्तं सैन्या इव महीपतिम् ॥ ४८ ॥

Uprooted by the impetus of his thighs, sal and other excellent trees followed Hanumān even as troops would follow a king. (48)

सुपुष्पिताग्रैर्बहुभिः पादपैरन्वितः कपिः ।
हनुमान् पर्वताकारो बभूवाद्वुतदर्शनः ॥ ४९ ॥

Followed by numerous trees with their extremities laden with blossoms, Hanumān, who looked like a mountain in size, presented a weird appearance. (49)

सारवन्तोऽथ ये वृक्षा न्यमज्जल्लवणाभ्सि ।
भयादिव महेन्द्रस्य पर्वता वरुणालये ॥ ५० ॥

Trees, which were solid, forthwith sank into the brackish sea even as mountains in the hoary past took a plunge into the ocean (the abode of Varuṇa) in fear of the mighty Indra. (50)

स नानाकुसुमैः कीर्णः कपिः साङ्कुरकोरकैः ।
शुशुभे मेघसंकाशः खद्योतैरिव पर्वतः ॥ ५१ ॥

Covered with flowers of every kind, dropped from the trees that followed him, including shoots and buds, the aforesaid Hanumān, who resembled a cloud, shone brightly as a mountain with fireflies. (51)

विमुक्तास्तस्य वेगेन मुक्त्वा पुष्पाणि ते द्रुमाः ।
व्यवशीर्यन्त सलिले निवृत्ताः सुहृदो यथा ॥ ५२ ॥

Shedding their blossom when receded by his impetus, the said trees dropped into the water of the sea like near and dear ones returned after escorting their relative up to the margin of water. (52)

लघुत्वेनोपपन्नं तद् विचित्रं सागरेऽपतत् ।
द्रुमाणां विविधं पुष्पं कपिवायुसमीरितम् ।

ताराचितमिवाकाशं प्रबभौ स महार्णवः ॥ ५३ ॥

Swept away by the wind set in motion by Hanumān dashing forward across the sky, the blossom on the trees, consisting of every variety, dropped on the ocean and presented a curious sight while floating, endowed as they were with lightness of weight. Carpeted with them, that vast sea looked charming like the star-spangled sky.

(53)

पुष्पौघेण सुगन्धेन नानावर्णेन वानरः ।
बभौ मेघ इवोद्यन् वै विद्युद्गणविभूषितः ॥ ५४ ॥

Covered with a shower of fragrant flowers of various tints, Hanumān actually looked charming like a rising cloud streaked with flashes of lightning.

(54)

तस्य वेगसमुद्भूतैः पुष्पैस्तोयमदृश्यत ।
ताराभिरिव रामाभिरुदिताभिरिवाम्बरम् ॥ ५५ ॥

Overspread with flowers scattered by his impetus, the sea-water resembled the firmament spangled with lovely stars just risen.

(55)

तस्याम्बरगतौ बाहू ददृशाते प्रसारितौ ।
पर्वताग्राद् विनिष्क्रान्तौ पञ्चास्याविव पन्नगौ ॥ ५६ ॥

His two arms outstretched in space looked like a pair of five-hooded serpents risen from a mountain-top.

(56)

पिबन्निव बभौ चापि सोर्मिजालं महार्णवम् ।
पिपासुरिव चाकाशं ददृशे स महाकपिः ॥ ५७ ॥

Nay, while looking downward the mighty Hanumān appeared as though drinking up the vast sea alongwith the mass of its waves; and looking upwards, he appeared keen to imbibe the sky.

(57)

तस्य विद्युत्प्रभाकरे वायुमार्गानुसारिणः ।
नयने विप्रकाशेते पर्वतस्थाविवानलौ ॥ ५८ ॥

The eyes of Hanumān, who was following the course of the wind, blazed like a pair of fires burning on a mountain, flashing as they did like lightning.

(58)

पिङ्गे पिङ्गाक्षमुख्यस्य बृहती परिमण्डले ।
चक्षुषी सम्प्रकाशेते चन्द्रसूर्याविव स्थितौ ॥ ५९ ॥

Nay, the reddish-brown large round eyes of Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, shed their bright light like the moon and the sun shining together.

(59)

मुखं नासिकया तस्य ताम्रया ताम्रमाबभौ ।
संध्यया समभिसृष्टं यथा स्यात् सूर्यमण्डलम् ॥ ६० ॥

Due to the reflection of his coppery nose, his countenance looked red as the solar orb embraced by dusk.

(60)

लाङ्गूलं च समाविद्धं प्लवमानस्य शोभते ।
अम्बरे वायुपुत्रस्य शक्रध्वज इवोच्छ्रितम् ॥ ६१ ॥

Moreover, the coiled tail of Hanumān, son of the wind-god, darting across the sky looked charming like a tall banner hoisted (on the twelfth day of the bright half of Bhādrapada) in honour of Indra, the ruler of gods.

(61)

लाङ्गूलचक्रो हनुमान् शुक्लदंष्ट्रोऽनिलात्मजः ।
व्यरोचत महाप्राज्ञः परिवेषीव भास्करः ॥ ६२ ॥

With his curled tail and white teeth, the highly intelligent Hanumān, an offspring of the wind-god, shone brightly as the sun encircled by a misty halo.

(62)

स्फिग्देशेनातिताम्रेण रराज स महाकपिः ।
महता दारितेनेव गिरिगैरिकधातुना ॥ ६३ ॥

With his deep-red rump, that mighty Hanumān looked splendid like a mountain with a large deposit of red chalk rent asunder.

(63)

तस्य वानरसिंहस्य प्लवमानस्य सागरम् ।
कक्षान्तरगतो वायुर्जीमूत इव गर्जति ॥ ६४ ॥

The wind passing through the arm-pits of that leonine Hanumān, bounding over the sea, thundered like a cloud.

(64)

खे यथा निपतत्युल्का उत्तरान्ताद् विनिःसृता ।
दृश्यते सानुबन्धा च तथा स कपिकुञ्जरः ॥ ६५ ॥

That elephant among the monkeys was seen darting much in the same way as a meteor risen from the upper part of the northern quarter shoots alongwith its tail-like extremity.

(65)

पतत्पतङ्गसंकाशो व्यायतः शुशुभे कपिः ।
प्रवृद्ध इव मातङ्गः कक्ष्यया बध्यमानया ॥ ६६ ॥

The enormous monkey, Hanumān, who resembled the moving sun, looked charming with his tail entwined round his waist as a fully developed elephant with a girth tied round its waist. (66)

उपरिष्ठाच्छरीरेण छाद्यया चावगाढया ।
सागरे मारुताविष्टा नौरिवासीत् तदा कपिः ॥ ६७ ॥

Coursing above with his body and with his reflection immersed in water, Hanumān looked at that time like a vessel propelled by the wind above and sailing on the sea below. (67)

यं यं देशं समुद्रस्य जगाम स महाकपिः ।
स तु तस्याङ्गवेगेन सोन्माद इव लक्ष्यते ॥ ६८ ॥

Whichever part of the sea that enormous Hanumān passed over, it looked actually riotous, as it were, due to the impetus of his body and terrific speed. (68)

सागरस्योर्मिजालानामुरसा शैलवर्ष्णाम् ।
अभिध्वंस्तु महावेगः पुप्लुवे स महाकपिः ॥ ६९ ॥

Full of extraordinary vehemence, that huge monkey, Hanumān, dashed forward actually smashing with his breast the rows of waves of the sea, rising as high as mountains. (69)

कपिवातश्च बलवान् मेघवातश्च निर्गतः ।
सागरं भीमनिर्ह्रादं कम्पयामासतुर्भृशम् ॥ ७० ॥

The mighty wind generated by the impetus of Hanumān as well as the wind set in motion by clouds, when adrift, violently agitated the sea, which began to roar terribly. (70)

विकर्षन्मूर्मिजालानि बृहन्ति लवणाम्भसि ।
पुप्लुवे कपिशार्दूलो विकिरन्निव रोदसी ॥ ७१ ॥

Forcibly drawing series of huge billows in the salt sea, Hanumān, a tiger among monkeys, sped along agitating the earth and heaven both, as it were. (71)

मेरुमन्दरसंकाशानुद्गतान् सुमहार्णवे ।
अत्यक्रामन्महावेगस्तरङ्गान् गणयन्निव ॥ ७२ ॥

Hanumān, who was rushing along with great speed, moved on counting, as it were, the billows resembling Mounts Meru and Mandara in size, raised in the vast sea (72)

तस्य वेगसमुद्घुष्टं जलं सजलदं तदा ।
अम्बरस्थं विबभ्राजे शरदभ्रमिवाततम् ॥ ७३ ॥

The water raised by his onrush and hanging in the air along with clouds looked exceptionally charming at that time like an outstretched mass of autumnal clouds. (73)

तिमिनक्रझषाः कूर्मा दृश्यन्ते विवृतास्तदा ।
वस्त्रापकर्षणेनेव शरीराणि शरीरिणाम् ॥ ७४ ॥

Exposed at that time on account of the sea-water being raised by the onrush of Hanumān, whales, crocodiles, alligators and turtles became visible even like the limbs of men uncovered by drawing the covering off. (74)

क्रममाणं समीक्ष्याथ भुजगाः सागरंगमाः ।
व्योम्नि तं कपिशार्दूलं सुपर्णमिव मेनिरे ॥ ७५ ॥

Keenly observing that tiger among the monkeys coursing through space, the serpents moving in the sea forthwith took him to be Garuḍa endowed with lovely wings. (75)

दशयोजनविस्तीर्णा त्रिंशद्योजनमायता ।
छाया वानरसिंहस्य जवे चारुतराभवत् ॥ ७६ ॥

The shadow of that lion among monkeys, Hanumān, which was ten Yojanas (or eighty miles) wide and thirty Yojanas (or two hundred forty miles) long, appeared lovelier due to the rapidity of his movement. (76)

श्वेताभ्रघनराजीव वायुपुत्रानुगामिनी ।
तस्य सा शुशुभे छाया पतिता लवणाम्भसि ॥ ७७ ॥

Falling on the salt sea and following Hanumān, an offspring of the wind-god, that shadow of his looked charming like a row of clouds sailing in the white sky. (77)

शुशुभे स महातेजा महाकायो महाकपिः ।
वायुमार्गे निरालम्बे पक्षवानिव पर्वतः ॥ ७८ ॥

On his aerial path, where he had nothing to rest upon, that great monkey of vast proportions, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, appeared lovely like a winged mountain. (78)

येनासौ याति बलवान् वेगेन कपिकुञ्जरः ।
तेन मार्गेण सहसा द्रोणीकृत इवार्णवः ॥ ७९ ॥

The sea below the path by which that mighty elephant-like monkey, Hanumān, moved with speed, got suddenly transformed into a trough, as it were. (79)

आपाते पक्षिसङ्घानां पक्षिराज इव ब्रजन् ।
हनुमान् मेघजालानि प्रकर्षन् मारुतो यथा ॥ ८० ॥

Coursing through the path of birds like Garuḍa, the king of winged creatures, Hanumān appeared like the wind drawing away clouds with force. (80)

पाण्डुरारुणवर्णानि नीलमञ्जिष्ठाकानि च ।
कपिनाऽऽकृष्यमाणानि महाभ्राणि चकाशिरे ॥ ८१ ॥

Being drawn by Hanumān, big clouds, which were either white or reddish in colour or blue or madder-coloured, looked charming; (81)

प्रविशन्भ्रजालानि निष्पतंश्च पुनः पुनः ।
प्रच्छन्श्च प्रकाशश्च चन्द्रमा इव दृश्यते ॥ ८२ ॥

Repeatedly entering into the masses of clouds and then emerging, he looked like the hidden and the visible moon, respectively. (82)

प्लवमानं तु तं दृष्ट्वा प्लवगं त्वरितं तदा ।
ववृषुस्तत्र पुष्पाणि देवगन्धर्वचारणाः ॥ ८३ ॥

Seeing the aforesaid Hanumān bounding apace at that time, gods, Gandharvas (celestial songsters) and Dānavas (demons) rained flowers on him. (83)

तताप नहि तं सूर्यः प्लवन्तं वानरेश्वरम् ।
सिषेवे च तदा वायू रामकार्यार्थसिद्धये ॥ ८४ ॥

The sun did not actually scorch Hanumān, the ruler of monkeys, who was travelling for the sake of accomplishing his object in the shape of Śrī Rāma's task viz. the quest of Sītā; while the wind-god ministered to him by fanning him with a delightful breeze in order to refresh him. (84)

ऋषयस्तुष्टुवुश्चैनं प्लवमानं विहायसा ।
जगुश्च देवगन्धर्वाः प्रशंसन्तो वनौकसम् ॥ ८५ ॥

Nay, Ṛṣis (seers of Vedic Mantras) extolled Hanumān coursing through airspace; while gods and Gandharvas sang praises in order to sustain him in his arduous journey. (85)

नागाश्च तुष्टुवुर्यक्षा रक्षांसि विविधानि च ।
प्रेक्ष्य सर्वे कपिवरं सहसा विगतक्लमम् ॥ ८६ ॥

Observing Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, with a smile on his lips and entirely free from languor, Nāgas (semi-divine beings having the face of a man and the tail of a serpent, and inhabiting Pātāla) and Yakṣas (a class of demigods) as well as ogres of all classes—all lauded him. (86)

तस्मिन् प्लवगशार्दूले प्लवमाने हनूमति ।
इक्ष्वाकुकुलमानार्थी चिन्तयामास सागरः ॥ ८७ ॥

While Hanumān, that tiger among monkeys, was moving along through airspace, the deity presiding over oceans, who sought to do honour to the lineage of Ikṣvāku, to which Śrī Rāma had the honour to belong, reflected as follows : (87)

साहाय्यं वानरेन्द्रस्य यदि नाहं हनूमतः ।
करिष्यामि भविष्यामि सर्ववाच्यो विवक्षताम् ॥ ८८ ॥

'If I do not lend assistance to Hanumān, a leader of monkeys, I shall incur the obloquy of all among those gifted with speech. (88)

अहमिक्ष्वाकुनाथेन सगरेण विवर्धितः ।
इक्ष्वाकुसचिवश्चायं तन्नाहृत्यवसादितुम् ॥ ८९ ॥

‘I was greatly extended by King Sagara, the protector of Ikṣvāku’s race, while Hanumān is helping Śrī Rāma, a descendant of Ikṣvāku. He must not, therefore, come to grief in this journey. (89)

तथा मया विधातव्यं विश्रमेत यथा कपिः ।
शेषं च मयि विश्रान्तः सुखी सोऽतितरिष्यति ॥ ९० ॥

‘I should so arrange that Hanumān may rest awhile. Having rested awhile on me, I am sure he will leap across the rest of the sea with ease.’ (90)

इति कृत्वा मतिं साध्वीं समुद्रश्छन्नमम्भसि ।
हिरण्यनाभं मैनाकमुवाच गिरिसत्तमम् ॥ ९१ ॥

Having made this righteous resolve, the god presiding over the oceans spoke as follows to Maināka, the foremost of mountains, consisting mainly of gold and submerged in water : (91)

त्वमिहासुरसङ्घानां देवराज्ञा महात्मना ।
पातालनिलयानां हि परिघः संनिवेशितः ॥ ९२ ॥

“You have actually been established here by the high-souled Indra, the ruler of gods, by way of a barrier against the intrusion into the terrestrial region of the hordes of demons inhabiting Pātāla, the nethermost subterranean region. (92)

त्वमेषां ज्ञातवीर्याणां पुनरेवोत्पत्तिष्यताम् ।
पातालस्याप्रमेयस्य द्वारमावृत्य तिष्ठसि ॥ ९३ ॥

“You stand here blocking the entrance of the immeasurable Pātāla against the aforesaid demons, whose valour is well known and who are prone to come up to the surface of this earth once more. (93)

तिर्यगूर्ध्वमधश्चैव शक्तिस्ते शैल वर्धितुम् ।
तस्मात् संचोदयामि त्वामुत्तिष्ठ गिरिसत्तमम् ॥ ९४ ॥

“The capacity to grow from side to side (horizontally) as also upwards and downwards (vertically) is there in you, O mountain! I, therefore, command you as follows: please swell upwards, O jewel among mountains! (94)

स एष कपिशार्दूलस्त्वामुपर्येति वीर्यवान् ।
हनुमान् रामकार्यार्थी भीमकर्मा खमाप्लुतः ॥ ९५ ॥

“Here is the powerful Hanumān of terrific deeds, a veritable tiger among monkeys, who has already sprung in the sky, seeking, as he does, to achieve the purpose of Śrī Rāma, passing over you. (95)

अस्य साह्यं मया कार्यमिक्ष्वाकुकुलवर्तिनः ।
मम इक्ष्वाकवः पूज्याः परं पूज्यतमास्तव ॥ ९६ ॥

“Assistance must be rendered by me to Hanumān, who is a servant of the House of Ikṣvāku. The Ikṣvākus are worthy of adoration to me and are by far the highest object of veneration to you. (96)

कुरु साचिव्यमस्माकं न नः कार्यमतिक्रमेत् ।
कर्तव्यमकृतं कार्यं सतां मन्युमुदीरयेत् ॥ ९७ ॥

“Therefore, please render assistance to us. Our plan should not be allowed to miscarry through default. A duty which needs must be performed is likely to rouse the anger of the virtuous if not scrupulously discharged. (97)

सलिलादूर्ध्वमुत्तिष्ठ तिष्ठत्वेष कपिस्त्वयि ।
अस्माकमतिथिश्चैव पूज्यश्च प्लवतां वरः ॥ ९८ ॥

“Therefore, rise up from the water. Let Hanumān stand on you. Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, is our unexpected guest and worthy of our adoration, too. (98)

चामीकरमहानाभं देवगन्धर्वसेवितम् ।
हनुमाँस्त्वयि विश्रान्तस्ततः शेषं गमिष्यति ॥ ९९ ॥

“Having rested on you, O mountain with a lofty peak of gold and frequented by gods and Gandharvas, Hanumān will then cover the remaining distance. (99)

काकुत्स्थस्यानृशंस्यं च मैथिल्याश्च विवासनम् ।
श्रमं च प्लवगेन्द्रस्य समीक्ष्योत्थातुमर्हसि ॥ १०० ॥

“Nay, fully considering the soft-heartedness of Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha, as well as of Sitā, a princess of Mithilā, living perforce in an alien land, as also the exertion of Hanumān, a leader of monkeys, you ought to rise up.” (100)

हिरण्यगर्भो मैनाको निशम्य लवणाम्भसः ।

उत्पपात जलात् तूर्णं महाद्रुमलतावृतः ॥ १०१ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid words of Varuṇa, the deity presiding over the salty sea, Mount Maināka, which contained deposits of gold in its bowels and was covered by large trees and creepers, instantly emerged from under the water. (101)

स सागरजलं भित्त्वा बभूवात्युच्छ्रितस्तदा ।

यथा जलधरं भित्त्वा दीप्तरश्मिर्दिवाकरः ॥ १०२ ॥

Dividing the sea-water, Maināka rose very high at that moment even as the sun with its brilliant rays would, tearing the veil of a cloud. (102)

स महात्मा मुहूर्तेन पर्वतः सलिलावृतः ।

दर्शयामास शृङ्गाणि सागरेण नियोजितः ॥ १०३ ॥

Enjoined by the deity presiding over the ocean, the aforesaid mountain of vast proportions, which had heretofore been covered with water, revealed its peaks in an instant. (103)

शातकुम्भमयैः शृङ्गैः सकिंनरमहोरगैः ।

आदित्योदयसंकाशैरुल्लिखद्भिरिवाम्बरम् ॥ १०४ ॥

The mountain looked charming with its peaks of gold, which were inhabited by Kinnaras (a class of demigods with a human figure and the head of a horse) and huge serpents, and shimmered like the sun at dawn, and which were scraping the skies, as it were. (104)

तस्य जाम्बूनदैः शृङ्गैः पर्वतस्य समुत्थितैः ।

आकाशं शस्त्रसंकाशमभवत् काञ्चनप्रभम् ॥ १०५ ॥

Due to the towering peaks of that mountain, consisting of gold, the blue sky which shone like a sword, now shed the lustre of gold. (105)

जातरूपमयैः शृङ्गैर्भ्राजमानैर्महाप्रभैः ।

आदित्यशतसंकाशः सोऽभवद् गिरिसत्तमः ॥ १०६ ॥

With its shining peaks of gold, emitting a dazzling splendour, that jewel among mountains shone brightly like a hundred suns. (106)

समुत्थितमसङ्गेन हनुमानग्रतः स्थितम् ।

मध्ये लवणतोयस्य विघ्नोऽयमिति निश्चितः ॥ १०७ ॥

Hanumān positively considered the mountain, which instantly stood very high before him in the midst of the salty sea, to be a stumbling block in his journey. (107)

स तमुच्छ्रितमत्यर्थं महावेगो महाकपिः ।

उरसा पातयामास जीमूतमिव मारुतः ॥ १०८ ॥

Hanumān, the mighty monkey, who was possessed of great impetuosity, felled with his breast the exceedingly lofty mountain even as the wind would strike down a cloud. (108)

स तदासादितस्तेन कपिना पर्वतोत्तमः ।

बुद्ध्वा तस्य हरेर्वेगं जहर्ष च ननाद च ॥ १०९ ॥

Worsted on that occasion by the aforesaid Hanumān and recognizing his impetuosity, Maināka, the foremost of mountains, felt rejoiced and roared too. (109)

तमाकाशगतं वीरमाकाशे समुपस्थितः ।

प्रीतो हृष्टमना वाक्यमब्रवीत् पर्वतः कपिम् ॥ ११० ॥

मानुषं धारयन् रूपमात्मनः शिखरे स्थितः ।

दुष्करं कृतवान् कर्म त्वमिदं वानरोत्तम ॥ १११ ॥

Assuming the form of a human being and standing on his own summit, the mountain, which stood very high once more in the sky, glad at heart, lovingly spoke as follows to Hanumān, the heroic monkey, who still remained in the sky: “You have undertaken this task, which is hard to accomplish, O jewel among monkeys! (110-111)

निपत्य मम शृङ्गेषु सुखं विश्रम्य गम्यताम् ।

राघवस्य कुले जातैरुदधिः परिवर्धितः ॥ ११२ ॥

“Alighting on my peaks and having comfortably rested awhile, resume your journey with renewed vigour. The ocean was extended by the sons of Sagara, who were born in the ancestry of Śrī Rāma. (112)

स त्वां रामहिते युक्तं प्रत्यर्चयति सागरः ।
कृते च प्रतिकर्तव्यमेष धर्मः सनातनः ॥ ११३ ॥

“The deity presiding over the said sea seeks to offer respect to you, who are engaged in the service of Śrī Rāma. And service must be rendered in return for a service: such is the eternal law. (113)

सोऽयं तत्प्रतिकारार्थी त्वत्तः सम्मानमर्हति ।
त्वन्निमित्तमनेनाहं बहुमानात् प्रचोदितः ॥ ११४ ॥

“Hence, seeking to repay that obligation of his benefactors, the sons of Sagara, this Ocean merits attention in the shape of willingness to accept his hospitality by you. I have, therefore, been very politely charged by him in the following words to honour you: (114)

योजनानां शतं चापि कपिरेष खमाप्लुतः ।
तव सानुषु विश्रान्तः शेषं प्रक्रमतामिति ॥ ११५ ॥

“Hanumān has taken a leap in the sky with a view to covering a distance of even a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles). Having rested awhile on your peaks, he may cover the remaining distance.’ (115)

तिष्ठ त्वं हरिशार्दूल मयि विश्रम्य गम्यताम् ।
तदिदं गन्धवत् स्वादु कन्दमूलफलं बहु ॥ ११६ ॥

“Therefore, tarry, O tiger among monkeys, and proceed further after reposing on me for some time. Here are abundant bulbs, roots and fruits, both fragrant and luscious. (116)

तदास्वाद्य हरिश्रेष्ठ विश्रान्तोऽथ गमिष्यसि ।
अस्माकमपि सम्बन्धः कपिमुख्य त्वयास्ति वै ।
प्रख्यातस्त्रिषु लोकेषु महागुणपरिग्रहः ॥ ११७ ॥

“Having relished them, O jewel among monkeys, and reposed for a short while, you should then proceed on your course. Indeed we too have some relation with you, O jewel among monkeys! You are a repository of great virtues and are widely known in all the three worlds. (117)

वेगवन्तः प्लवन्तो ये प्लवगा मारुतात्मज ।
तेषां मुख्यतमं मन्ये त्वामहं कपिकुञ्जर ॥ ११८ ॥

“I account you the most prominent among monkeys, who are given to leaping and full of vigour, O elephant among monkeys! (118)

अतिथिः किल पूजार्हः प्राकृतोऽपि विजानता ।
धर्मं जिज्ञासमानेन किं पुनर्यादृशो भवान् ॥ ११९ ॥

“Even an ordinary newcomer is surely deserving of adoration at the hands of a discerning man who is keen to know his duty, much more so an individual such as you. (119)

त्वं हि देववरिष्ठस्य मारुतस्य महात्मनः ।
पुत्रस्तस्यैव वेगेन सदृशः कपिकुञ्जर ॥ १२० ॥

“Indeed, you are a son of the high-souled wind-god, the most pre-eminent among gods, and the only one equal to him in speed, O elephant among monkeys! (120)

पूजिते त्वयि धर्मज्ञे पूजां प्राप्नोति मारुतः ।
तस्मात् त्वं पूजनीयो मे शृणु चाप्यत्र कारणम् ॥ १२१ ॥

“On your being adored, a knower as you are of what is right, the wind-god will have received my homage. You are worthy of adoration to me for that reason. Know one further reason for my adoring the wind-god through you : (121)

पूर्वं कृतयुगे तात पर्वताः पक्षिणोऽभवन् ।
तेऽपि जग्मुर्दिशः सर्वा गरुडा इव वेगिनः ॥ १२२ ॥

“Formerly, in Satyayuga, O dear one, mountains were endowed with wings. Full of speed they too used to range all the four quarters even like so many Garuḍas. (122)

ततस्तेषु प्रयातेषु देवसङ्घाः सहर्षिभिः ।
भूतानि च भयं जग्मुस्तेषां पतनशङ्कया ॥ १२३ ॥

“Therefore, when they moved with speed to and fro, hosts of gods with Ṛṣis (seers of Vedic Mantras) and spirits too fell a prey to panic, seized as they were with the apprehension of their falling. (123)

ततः क्रुद्धः सहस्राक्षः पर्वतानां शतक्रतुः ।

पक्षांश्चिच्छेद वज्रेण ततः शतसहस्रशः ॥ १२४ ॥

“Provoked to anger by their fear, Indra (who is presupposed to have performed a hundred Aśwamedha sacrifices in his previous existences as a condition precedent for attaining that position) thereupon lopped off with his thunderbolt the wings of mountains in hundreds of thousands. (124)

स मामुपगतः क्रुद्धो वज्रमुद्यम्य देवराट् ।

ततोऽहं सहसा क्षिप्तः श्वसनेन महात्मना ॥ १२५ ॥

अस्मिँल्लवणतोये च प्रक्षिप्तः प्लवगोत्तम ।

गुप्तपक्षः समग्रश्च तव पित्राभिरक्षितः ॥ १२६ ॥

“Lifting up his thunderbolt in anger, the aforesaid Indra, the ruler of gods, approached me too; I, however, was thereupon suddenly tossed into the sky by the high-souled wind-god and then violently cast into this salty sea. In this way my wings were preserved; nay, I was saved with all my being by your father, O jewel among monkeys ! (125-126)

ततोऽहं मानयामि त्वां मान्योऽसि मम मारुते ।

त्वया ममैष सम्बन्धः कपिमुख्य महागुणः ॥ १२७ ॥

“Therefore, do I esteem you and you are worthy of honour to me, O son of the wind-god ! This bond of mine with you in the shape of your being my benefactor’s son is full of great potentialities, O leader of monkeys ! (127)

अस्मिन्नेवंगते कार्ये सागरस्य ममैव च ।

प्रीतिं प्रीतमनाः कर्तुं त्वमर्हसि महामते ॥ १२८ ॥

“This long awaited and welcome opportunity of repaying my debt to your father having thus fortunately arrived, you ought to oblige the deity presiding over the ocean as well as myself with a glad heart, O highly talented Hanumān ! (128)

श्रमं मोक्षय पूजां च गृहाण हरिसत्तम ।

प्रीतिं च मम मान्यस्य प्रीतोऽस्मि तव दर्शनात् ॥ १२९ ॥

“Therefore, pray, relieve your fatigue and accept my hospitality as well as my affection, O jewel among the monkeys ! I am pleased to see you, worthy of honour as you are to me.” (129)

एवमुक्तः कपिश्रेष्ठस्तं नगोत्तममब्रवीत् ।

प्रीतोऽस्मि कृतमातिथ्यं मन्युरेषोऽपनीयताम् ॥ १३० ॥

Spoken to as above by Maināka, Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, replied as follows to the aforesaid jewel among mountains: “I am pleased with you and homage has been done by you in the form of kind words. Let this sad thought that your hospitality has not been accepted by me be banished from your mind. (130)

त्वरते कार्यकालो मे अहश्चाप्यतिवर्तते ।

प्रतिज्ञा च मया दत्ता न स्थातव्यमिहान्तरा ॥ १३१ ॥

“The time allotted to my duty of leaping across the sea and tracing out Sītā is hastening me. The day too is passing. Nay, plighted word has been given by me to my fellow monkeys to the effect that I would not tarry here midway.” (131)

इत्युक्त्वा पाणिना शैलमालभ्य हरिपुङ्गवः ।

जगामाकाशमाविश्य वीर्यवान् प्रहसन्निव ॥ १३२ ॥

Saying so and touching the mountain with his hand as a token of respect and friendship, nay, rising to the skies, the valiant Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, sped on as though heartily laughing. (132)

स पर्वतसमुद्राभ्यां बहुमानादवेक्षितः ।

पूजितश्चोपपन्नाभिराशीर्भिरभिनन्दितः ॥ १३३ ॥

He was on that occasion regarded with great esteem, adored and cheered with suitable benedictions by the deities presiding over the mountain and the ocean both. (133)

अथोर्ध्वं दूरमागत्य हित्वा शैलमहार्णवौ ।

पितुः पन्थानमासाद्य जगाम विमलेऽम्बरे ॥ १३४ ॥

Then, rising high, nay, leaving the mountain as well as the ocean, far below and reaching the path of the wind (i.e., his father), Hanumān coursed through the cloudless sky. (134)

भूयश्चोर्ध्वं गतिं प्राप्य गिरिं तमवलोकयन् ।
वायुसूनुर्निरालम्बो जगाम कपिकुञ्जरः ॥ १३५ ॥

Rising still higher and looking on the mountain below, Hanumān, a son of the wind-god, an elephant among the monkeys, moved on unsupported in the sky. (135)

तद् द्वितीयं हनुमतो दृष्ट्वा कर्म सुदुष्करम् ।
प्रशशंसुः सुराः सर्वे सिद्धाश्च परमर्षयः ॥ १३६ ॥

Seeing the aforesaid second feat of Hanumān, viz., refusal on his part to seize the golden opportunity offered to him by Mount Maināka to rest on its peaks, which was most difficult to accomplish, the gods, and the Siddhas as well as the greatest Ṛṣis—all lauded him. (136)

देवताश्चाभवन् हृष्टास्तत्रस्थास्तस्य कर्मणा ।
काञ्चनस्य सुनाभस्य सहस्राक्षश्च वासवः ॥ १३७ ॥

The gods, who happened to be on the mountain (at that time in order to see what the mountain intended to do by rising up), nay, Indra, the thousand-eyed god, too, all were pleased with the act of offering hospitality and foothold to Hanumān by that golden mountain with beautiful slopes. (137)

उवाच वचनं धीमान् परितोषात् सगद्गदम् ।
सुनाभं पर्वतश्रेष्ठं स्वयमेव शचीपतिः ॥ १३८ ॥

The sagacious Indra (the spouse of Śaci) on his own initiative addressed the following words in faltering tones through intense gratification to Maināka, the foremost of mountains, distinguished by charming slopes : (138)

हिरण्यनाभ शैलेन्द्र परितुष्टोऽस्मि ते भृशम् ।
अभयं ते प्रयच्छामि गच्छ सौम्य यथासुखम् ॥ १३९ ॥

"I am extremely pleased with you, O lord of mountains with peaks of gold! I grant you immunity from all fear of being shorn of your wings by me. Therefore, proceed according to your pleasure, O gentle one! (139)

साह्यं कृतं ते सुमहद् विश्रान्तस्य हनूमतः ।
क्रमतो योजनशतं निर्भयस्य भये सति ॥ १४० ॥

"Exceedingly valuable assistance has been rendered by you to Hanumān, who is fearlessly attempting to leap over a distance of hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles) even though there is every risk of his getting exhausted in the course of his journey and falling down, and who has had the mental satisfaction of having rested. (140)

रामस्यैष हितायैव याति दाशरथेः कपिः ।
सत्क्रियां कुर्वता शक्त्या तोषितोऽस्मि दृढं त्वया ॥ १४१ ॥

"This monkey is journeying only for the benefit of Śrī Rāma, son of Daśaratha. And I have been highly gratified by you through a good turn done to Hanumān according to your capacity." (141)

स तत् प्रहर्षमलभद् विपुलं पर्वतोत्तमः ।
देवतानां पतिं दृष्ट्वा परितुष्टं शतक्रतुम् ॥ १४२ ॥

Seeing Indra, the ruler of gods, highly gratified, Maināka, the foremost of mountains, derived deep and abundant joy. (142)

स वै दत्तवरः शैलो बभूवावस्थितस्तदा ।
हनूमांश्च मुहूर्तेन व्यतिचक्राम सागरम् ॥ १४३ ॥

Having been granted, as above, by Indra the boon of security, the aforesaid mountain then stood rooted as before, below the surface of sea-water; while Hanumān shortly sped over the sea. (143)

ततो देवाः सगन्धर्वाः सिद्धाश्च परमर्षयः ।
अब्रुवन् सूर्यसंकाशां सुरसां नागमातरम् ॥ १४४ ॥

Thereupon the gods, Siddhas and the most eminent Ṛṣis with Gandharvas approached and spoke as follows to Surasā, mother of the Nāgas, who shone brightly like the sun : (144)

अयं वातात्मजः श्रीमान् प्लवते सागरोपरि ।
हनूमान् नाम तस्य त्वं मुहूर्तं विघ्नमाचर ॥ १४५ ॥
राक्षसं रूपमास्थाय सुघोरं पर्वतोपमम् ।
दंष्ट्राकरालं पिङ्गाक्षं वक्त्रं कृत्वा नभःस्पृशम् ॥ १४६ ॥

“This glorious son of the wind-god, Hanumān by name, is leaping across the sea. Assuming the exceedingly hideous form of an ogress, gigantic as a mountain, and revealing a head looking fearful with its tusks and red-brown eyes and reaching up to the sky, pray, you interrupt him awhile.

(145-146)

बलमिच्छामहे ज्ञातुं भूयश्चास्य पराक्रमम् ।
त्वां विजेष्यत्युपायेन विषादं वा गमिष्यति ॥ १४७ ॥

“We seek to ascertain his strength and more so his prowess whether he will conquer you with expediency or give way to dependency.”

(147)

एवमुक्ता तु सा देवी दैवतैरभिसत्कृता ।
समुद्रमध्ये सुरसा बिभ्रती राक्षसं वपुः ॥ १४८ ॥
विकृतं च विरूपं च सर्वस्य च भयावहम् ।
प्लवमानं हनूमन्तमावृत्येदमुवाच ह ॥ १४९ ॥

Assuming in mid-sea, when spoken to and honoured by the gods, the form of an ogress, which was deformed and ugly too, nay, inspiring fear to all and encompassing Hanumān, who was leaping forward, Surasā for her part spoke to him, they say, as follows :

(148-149)

मम भक्ष्यः प्रदिष्टस्त्वमीश्वरैर्वानरर्षभ ।
अहं त्वां भक्षयिष्यामि प्रविशेदं ममाननम् ॥ १५० ॥

“You have been destined by the lords of the universe to serve as my food, O, jewel among the monkeys ! I shall accordingly eat you up; pray ! enter for good this mouth of mine.

(150)

वर एष पुरा दत्तो मम धात्रेति सत्त्वरा ।
व्यादाय वक्त्रं विपुलं स्थिता सा मारुतेः पुरः ॥ १५१ ॥

“A boon to this effect that I shall be able to catch up and devour whosoever comes up before me was granted in my favour by the creator, Brahmā.” Opening her vast mouth with these words, she speedily stood up before Hanumān, son of the wind-god.

(151)

एवमुक्तः सुरसया प्रहृष्टवदनोऽब्रवीत् ।
रामो दाशरथिर्नाम प्रविष्टो दण्डकावनम् ।
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा वैदेह्या चापि भार्यया ॥ १५२ ॥

Accosted thus by Surasā, Hanumān with his face lit up with excessive joy, replied as follows: “A son of Empero Daśaratha, Śrī Rāma by name, entered deep into the Daṇḍaka forest with his younger brother, Laksmana, as well as his consort, Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory.

(152)

अन्यकार्यविषक्तस्य बद्धवैरस्य राक्षसैः ।
तस्य सीता हृता भार्या रावणेन यशस्विनी ॥ १५३ ॥

“Sītā, the illustrious consort of Śrī Rāma, was carried off by Rāvaṇa while Śrī Rāma was engaged in chasing and killing the demon, Marica, since the ogres bore deep-rooted enmity to him.

(153)

“At the command of Śrī Rāma, I am going to seek her presence as his messenger. You ought to render assistance to Śrī Rāma, O ogress inhabiting his dominion, which extends over the whole earth !

(154)

अथवा मैथिलीं दृष्ट्वा रामं चाक्लिष्टकारिणम् ।
आगमिष्यामि ते वक्त्रं सत्यं प्रतिशृणोमि ते ॥ १५५ ॥

“Or, if you are bent on devouring me at all costs, I promise you in good faith: having seen Sītā, a princess of Mithilā, as well as reporting to Śrī Rāma, who is unwearied in action, I shall seek your mouth.”

(155)

एवमुक्ता हनुमता सुरसा कामरूपिणी ।
अब्रवीन्नातिवर्तेन्मां कश्चिदेष वरो मम ॥ १५६ ॥

Spoken to as aforesaid, Surasā, who was capable of assuming any form at will, rejoined : “None dare elude me: such is the boon granted in my favour.”

(156)

तं प्रयान्तं समुद्रीक्ष्य सुरसा वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
बलं जिज्ञासमाना सा नागमाता हनूमतः ॥ १५७ ॥

Perceiving him on the journey nevertheless, that mother of the Nāgas,

Surasā, who was keen to ascertain the strength of Hanumān, said: (157)

निविश्य वदनं मेऽद्य गन्तव्यं वानरोत्तम।

वर एष पुरा दत्तो मम धात्रेति सत्त्वरा॥ १५८॥

व्यादाय विपुलं वक्त्रं स्थिता सा मारुतेः पुरः।

एवमुक्तः सुरसया क्रुद्धो वानरपुंगवः॥ १५९॥

अब्रवीत् कुरु वै वक्त्रं येन मां विषहिष्यसि।

इत्युक्त्वा सुरसां क्रुद्धो दशयोजनमायताम्॥ १६०॥

दशयोजनविस्तारो हनूमानभवत् तदा।

तं दृष्ट्वा मेघसंकाशं दशयोजनमायतम्।

चकार सुरसाप्यास्यं विंशद् योजनमायतम्॥ १६१॥

“You must proceed only after entering my mouth for once today, O jewel among the monkeys ! Such is the boon granted in my favour by the creator, Brahmā, in the past.” Saying so and opening her enormous mouth, she hastily stood in front of Hanumān, son of the wind-god. Provoked to anger when spoken to in these words by Surasā, Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, said, “Extend your mouth so that you may be able to sustain me.” Saying so to Surasā, whose mouth was ten Yojanas (or eighty miles) wide, Hanumān then angrily assumed a height of ten Yojanas. Seeing him ten Yojanas high and resembling a cloud, Surasā too made her mouth twenty Yojanas (or one hundred and sixty, miles) wide. (158—161)

हनूमांस्तु ततः क्रुद्धस्त्रिंशद् योजनमायतः।

चकार सुरसा वक्त्रं चत्वारिंशत् तथोच्छ्रितम्॥ १६२॥

Enraged at this, Hanumān for his part became thirty Yojanas (or two hundred and forty miles) high. Surasā, likewise, made her mouth forty Yojanas (or three hundred and twenty miles) wide. (162)

बभूव हनुमान् वीरः पञ्चाशद् योजनोच्छ्रितः।

चकार सुरसा वक्त्रं षष्टिं योजनमुच्छ्रितम्॥ १६३॥

Thereupon the gallant Hanumān became fifty Yojanas (or four hundred miles) high, while Surasā made her mouth sixty Yojanas (or four hundred and eighty miles) wide. (163)

तदैव हनुमान् वीरः सप्ततिं योजनोच्छ्रितः।

चकार सुरसा वक्त्रमशीतिं योजनोच्छ्रितम्॥ १६४॥

That very moment the valiant Hanumān became seventy Yojanas (or five hundred and sixty miles) high and Surasā too made her mouth eighty Yojanas (or six hundred and forty miles) wide. (164)

हनूमाननलप्रख्यो नवतिं योजनोच्छ्रितः।

चकार सुरसा वक्त्रं शतयोजनमायतम्॥ १६५॥

Hanumān, who was blazing like fire, thereupon became ninety Yojanas (or seven hundred and twenty miles) high and Surasā widened her mouth to a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles). (165)*

तद् दृष्ट्वा व्यादितं त्वास्यं वायुपुत्रः स बुद्धिमान्।

दीर्घजिह्वं सुरसया सुभीमं नरकोपमम्॥ १६६॥

स संक्षिप्यात्मनः कायं जीमूत इव मारुतिः।

तस्मिन् मुहूर्ते हनुमान् बभूवादृष्टमात्रकः॥ १६७॥

Seeing the aforesaid mouth opened by Surasā, which with its long tongue was extremely terrible to look at and was a replica of hell, and contracting his body like a cloud, Hanumān, son of the wind-god, was reduced to the breadth of a thumb the same moment. (166-167)

सोऽभिपद्याथ तद्वक्त्रं निष्पत्य च महाबलः।

अन्तरिक्षे स्थितः श्रीमानिदं वचनमब्रवीत्॥ १६८॥

Having entered her mouth and coming out forthwith, the glorious Hanumān, who was endowed with extraordinary might, spoke to her as follows standing in airspace : (168)

प्रविष्टोऽस्मि हि ते वक्त्रं दाक्षायणि नमोऽस्तु ते।

गमिष्ये यत्र वैदेही सत्यश्चासीद् वरस्तव॥ १६९॥

“Indeed, I have entered your mouth and the boon granted to you has been honoured.

* Verses 162 to 165 above have been rejected as interpolated by some commentators. The author of the commentary known by the name of “Rāmāyaṇa-Śiromaṇi” has, however commented on them and we have therefore incorporated them into the text.

My salutation be to you, O daughter of Dakṣa ! I shall now move to the place where Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, is.” (169)

तं दृष्ट्वा वदनान्मुक्तं चन्द्रं राहुमुखादिव ।
अब्रवीत् सुरसा देवी स्वेन रूपेण वानरम् ॥ १७० ॥

Seeing him released from her mouth as the moon gets released from the mouth of the demon Rāhu, and appearing in her native form, the goddess Surasā said to the monkey : (170)

अर्थसिद्ध्यै हरिश्रेष्ठ गच्छ सौम्य यथासुखम् ।
समानय च वैदेहीं राघवेण महात्मना ॥ १७१ ॥

“Move according to your pleasure for accomplishing your mission, O gentle Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, and unite Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, with the high-souled Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu.” (171)

तत् तृतीयं हनुमतो दृष्ट्वा कर्म सुदुष्करम् ।
साधुसाध्विति भूतानि प्रशशंसुस्तदा हरिम् ॥ १७२ ॥

Witnessing this third feat of Hanumān in the shape of escaping alive from the mouth of Surasā, which was most difficult to accomplish, living beings, who were watching it, applauded the monkey on that occasion, exclaiming “Well done, excellent !” (172)

स सागरमनाधृष्यमभ्येत्य वरुणालयम् ।
जगामाकाशमाविश्य वेगेन गरुडोपमः ॥ १७३ ॥

Drawing near the inviolable sea, the abode of Varuṇa, the god of water, and coursing through the air, he moved on with speed like Garuḍa. (173)

सेविते वारिधाराभिः पतगैश्च निषेविते ।
चरिते कैशिकाचार्यैर्रावतनिषेविते ॥ १७४ ॥

सिंहकुञ्जरशार्दूलपतगोरगवाहनैः ।
विमानैः सम्पतद्भिश्च विमलैः समलंकृते ॥ १७५ ॥

वज्राशनिसमस्पर्शैः पावकैरिव शोभिते ।
कृतपुण्यैर्महाभागैः स्वर्गजिद्धिरधिष्ठिते ॥ १७६ ॥

वहता हव्यमत्यन्तं सेविते चित्रभानुना ।
ग्रहनक्षत्रचन्द्रार्कतारागणविभूषिते ॥ १७७ ॥

महर्षिगणगन्धर्वनागयक्षसमाकुले ।
विविक्ते विमले विश्वे विश्वावसुनिषेविते ॥ १७८ ॥
देवराजगजाक्रान्ते चन्द्रसूर्यपथे शिवे ।
विताने जीवलोकस्य वितते ब्रह्मनिर्मिते ॥ १७९ ॥
बहुशः सेविते वीरैर्विद्याधरगणैर्वृते ।
जगाम वायुमार्गे च गरुत्मानिव मारुतिः ॥ १८० ॥

Like Garuḍa, Hanumān, son of the wind-god, coursed through the path of the wind, which was refreshed by torrents and frequented by birds, was traversed by masters of music and dancing (Tumburu and other Gandharvas) and used by Airāvata (a celestial elephant which carries Indra on its back), and was adorned with stainless fast-moving aerial cars drawn by lions, elephants, tigers, birds and serpents; which was presided over and rendered charming by highly blessed souls, who had performed meritorious deeds in their previous lives and had accordingly won their residence in heaven, were hard to the touch like a diamond and thunderbolt and shone like fire; which was inhabited by the god of fire abundantly carrying oblations to the various gods, and was richly adorned with planets, lunar asterisks, the moon, the sun and groups of stars; which was ever thronged with hosts of eminent Ṛṣis (the seers of Vedic Mantras), Gandharvas, Nāgas and Yakṣas, and was isolated, cloudless and spacious and frequented by Viśvāvasu, the chief of Gandharvas; nay which was traversed by elephants (other than Airāvata) belonging to Indra, the ruler of gods, was the peaceful orbit of the sun and the moon, and served as an extensive canopy for the world of living beings, spread by Brahmā, the creator, and which was frequented by numerous heroes ascending to heaven by virtue of their laying down their life in a righteous cause and blocked by Vidyādharas (celestial artists). (174—180)

हनुमान् मेघजालानि प्राकर्षन् मारुतो यथा ।
कालागुरुसवर्णानि रक्तपीतसितानि च ॥ १८१ ॥

Like the wind, Hanumān dragged along with him masses of clouds of the same colour as Agallocam (the black aloe) as also red, yellow and white in colour. (181)

कपिना कृष्यमाणानि महाभ्राणि चकाशिरे ।
प्रविशन्नभ्रजालानि निष्पतंश्च पुनः पुनः ॥ १८२ ॥
प्रावृषीन्दुरिवाभाति निष्पतन् प्रविशंस्तदा ।
प्रदृश्यमानः सर्वत्र हनूमान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ १८३ ॥
भेजेऽम्बरं निरालम्बं पक्षयुक्त इवाद्रिग्रात् ।
प्लवमानं तु तं दृष्ट्वा सिंहिका नाम राक्षसी ॥ १८४ ॥
मनसा चिन्तयामास प्रवृद्धा कामरूपिणी ।
अद्य दीर्घस्य कालस्य भविष्याम्यहमाशिता ॥ १८५ ॥
इदं मम महासत्त्वं चिरस्य वशमागतम् ।
इति संचिन्त्य मनसा छायायामस्य समाक्षिपत् ॥ १८६ ॥

Drawn by Hanumān, the huge clouds looked charming. Penetrating the masses of clouds and coming out again and again, he shone forth at that moment like the moon emerging from and entering into the clouds during the monsoon. Eagerly watched everywhere by all, Hanumān, son of the wind-god, sped through the supportless sky like Sumeru, the king of mountains, endowed with wings. Seeing him moving on, an ogress, Simhikā by name, who was able to change her form at will, and had grown out of all proportion, thought for her part within herself: "Today I shall be sated for a long time to come. After a long wait this huge creature has fallen in my grasp." Reflecting thus in her heart, she clutched his shadow. (182—186)

छायायां गृह्यमाणायाम् चिन्तयामास वानरः ।
समाक्षिप्तोऽस्मि सहसा पङ्गूकृतपराक्रमः ॥ १८७ ॥
प्रतिलोमेन वातेन महानौरिव सागरे ।
तिर्यगूर्ध्वमधश्चैव वीक्षमाणस्तदा कपिः ॥ १८८ ॥
ददर्श स महासत्त्वमुत्थितं लवणाम्भसि ।
तद् दृष्ट्वा चिन्तयामास मारुतिर्विकृताननाम् ॥ १८९ ॥

On his shadow being seized, Hanumān thought: "Clutched by someone all of a sudden, I have been rendered powerless like a big bark retarded in its course by an adverse wind." Looking about sideways as well as both upward and below, she said Hanumān espied a huge creature risen from the salty sea below. Seeing that female form with an ugly face, Hanumān, son of the wind-god, reflected: (187—189)

कपिराज्ञा यथाख्यातं सत्त्वमद्भुतदर्शनम् ।
छायाग्राहि महावीर्यं तदिदं नात्र संशयः ॥ १९० ॥
"It is the same creature of weird appearance, endowed with extraordinary prowess and capable of securing her prey by means of its shadow, which was depicted in its true colours by Sugrīva, the king of monkeys; there is no doubt about it." (190)
स तां बुद्ध्वार्थतत्त्वेन सिंहिकां मतिमान् कपिः ।
व्यवर्धत महाकायः प्रावृषीव बलाहकः ॥ १९१ ॥

Knowing her from the correctness of the description given by Sugrīva to be Simhikā, that sagacious Hanumān grew out of all proportions to be gigantic in form like a cloud during the rains. (191)

तस्य सा कायमुद्वीक्ष्य वर्धमानं महाकपेः ।
वक्त्रं प्रसारयामास पातालाम्बरसंनिभम् ॥ १९२ ॥
घनराजीव गर्जन्ती वानरं समभिद्रवत् ।
स ददर्श ततस्तस्या विकृतं सुमहन्मुखम् ॥ १९३ ॥
कायमात्रं च मेधावी मर्माणि च महाकपिः ।
स तस्या विकृते वक्त्रे वज्रसंहननः कपिः ॥ १९४ ॥
संक्षिप्य मुहुरात्मानं निपपात महाकपिः ।
आस्ये तस्या निमज्जन्तं ददृशुः सिद्धचारणाः ॥ १९५ ॥
ग्रस्यमानं यथा चन्द्रं पूर्णं पर्वणि राहुणा ।
ततस्तस्या नखैस्तीक्ष्णैर्मर्माण्युत्कृत्य वानरः ॥ १९६ ॥
उत्पपाताथ वेगेन मनःसम्पातविक्रमः ।
तां तु दिष्ट्या च धृत्या च दाक्षिण्येन निपात्य सः ॥ १९७ ॥
कपिप्रवीरो वेगेन ववृधे पुनरात्मवान् ।
हृतहृत्सा हनुमता पपात विधुराम्भसि ।
स्वयंभुवैव हनुमान् सृष्टस्तस्या निपातने ॥ १९८ ॥

Observing the body of that mighty Hanumān growing, she distended her mouth, which resembled the space enclosed in Pātāla (the nethermost subterranean region) and, thundering like a mass of clouds, rushed towards Hanumān. That huge, intelligent monkey, Hanumān, then noticed her ugly enormous mouth, which was of the same dimensions as his body, as well as her vulnerable parts. Contracting his body further, that mighty monkey, Hanumān, who was hard as a diamond, fell into her hideous mouth. Siddhas and Cāraṇas beheld him disappearing into her mouth like the full moon being devoured on a full moon night by the demon Rāhu. Then, tearing out her vulnerable parts with his sharp nails, the monkey forthwith rushed out with the rapidity of thought. Having overthrown her with the help of Providence, as well as through firmness and ingenuity, Hanumān, for his part, who was the foremost hero among the monkeys and self-possessed too, rapidly grew once more in size. With her heart, the very seat of her life, torn asunder by Hanumān, she fell down dead into the water. Hanuman was created as an instrument for her destruction by Brahmā, the self-born creator himself. (192—198)

तां हतां वानरेणाशु पतितां वीक्ष्य सिंहिकाम् ।
भूतान्याकाशचारीणि तमूचुः प्लवगोत्तमम् ॥ १९९ ॥

Perceiving the aforesaid Simhikā killed in no time by Hanumān and fallen, the beings who ranged the skies said to that jewel among the monkeys : (199)

भीममद्य कृतं कर्म महत्सत्त्वं त्वया हतम् ।
साधयार्थमभिप्रेतमरिष्टं प्लवतां वर ॥ २०० ॥

“A terrific valiant deed has been performed by you this day in that a mighty creature has been killed by you. Now accomplish your desired object without hindrance, O jewel among the monkeys ! (200)

यस्य त्वेतानि चत्वारि वानरेन्द्र यथा तव ।
धृतिर्दृष्टिर्मतिर्दाक्ष्यं स कर्मसु न सीदति ॥ २०१ ॥

“He in whom the following four virtues, viz., firmness, vision, understanding and skill actually exist, as in you, never fails in his undertakings.” (201)

स तैः सम्पूजितः पूज्यः प्रतिपन्नप्रयोजनैः ।

जगामाकाशमाविश्य पन्नागशनवत् कपिः ॥ २०२ ॥

Bounding in the air like Garuḍa (who feeds on serpents), adored with ceremony by those beings, who were now accomplished of purpose—thanks to the gallantry of Hanumān—the aforesaid monkey, who was worthy of adoration for his exploits, sped on. (202)

प्राप्तभूयिष्ठपारस्तु सर्वतः परिलोकयन् ।

योजनानां शतस्यान्ते वनरार्जीं ददर्श सः ॥ २०३ ॥

Looking around on all sides when he had well-nigh reached the opposite shore at the end of a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles), he espied a row of forest trees: (203)

ददर्श च पतन्नेव विविधद्रुमभूषितम् ।

द्वीपं शाखामृगश्रेष्ठो मलयोपवनानि च ॥ २०४ ॥

While yet in the airspace, Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, also beheld an island adorned with trees of various kinds as well as groves on the Malaya mountain. (204)

सागरं सागरानूपान् सागरानूपजान् दुमान् ।

सागरस्य च पत्नीनां मुखान्यपि विलोकयत् ॥ २०५ ॥

He further saw the sea skirting the island, the watery regions bordering it, the trees growing in those regions and the mouths of rivers (consorts of the ocean) too. (205)

स महामेघसंकाशं समीक्ष्यात्मानमात्मवान् ।

निरुन्धन्तमिवाकाशं चकार मतिमान् मतिम् ॥ २०६ ॥

Gazing on his own person, which closely resembled a big cloud and blocked the sky, as it were, the intelligent Hanumān, who was self-possessed too, began to reflect. (206)

कायवृद्धिं प्रवेगं च मम दृष्ट्वैव राक्षसाः ।

मयि कौतूहलं कुर्युरिति मेने महामतिः ॥ २०७ ॥

The highly talented Hanumān felt convinced that seeing the extraordinary growth of his body and his tremendous speed itself, the ogres would be inquisitive about him. (207)

ततः शरीरं संक्षिप्य तन्महीधरसंनिभम्।
पुनः प्रकृतिमापेदे वीतमोह इवात्मवान् ॥ २०८ ॥

Then, contracting his aforesaid expanded body, which closely resembled a mountain, he once more assumed his native form, even as he, who has mastered his self and is completely free from infatuation, realizes his own blissful divine nature. (208)

तद्रूपमतिसंक्षिप्य हनूमान् प्रकृतौ स्थितः।
त्रीन् क्रमानिव विक्रम्य बलिवीर्यहरो हरिः ॥ २०९ ॥

Having considerably contracted that form of his, Hanumān returned to his natural state, even as having taken three strides in His Cosmic Form and thereby frustrated the power of Bali, the demon king, Lord Śrī Viṣṇu descended as the Divine Dwarf, returned to His former state (of a dwarf). (209)

स चारुनानाविधरूपधारी
परं समासाद्य समुद्रतीरम्।
परैरशक्यं प्रतिपन्नरूपः
समीक्षितात्मा समवेक्षितार्थः ॥ २१० ॥

Having duly reached the other shore of the sea, which could not be approached by anyone else, Hanumān, who was capable of assuming various graceful forms, gazed on his own body and, fully considering his mission of tracing out Sitā, regained his native form. (210)

ततः स लम्बस्य गिरेः समृद्धे
विचित्रकूटे निपपात कूटे।

सकेतकोद्दालकनारिकेले
महाभ्रकूटप्रतिमो महात्मा ॥ २११ ॥

Then the high-souled Hanumān, who resembled a huge mass of clouds, descended on a summit of the Lamba mountain, rich in fruit and blossom and covered with Ketaka Uddālaka and coconut trees and consisting of wonderful lower peaks. (211)

ततस्तु सम्प्राप्य समुद्रतीरं
समीक्ष्य लंकां गिरिवर्यमूर्ध्नि।
कपिस्तु तस्मिन् निपपात पर्वते
विधूय रूपं व्यथयन्मृगद्विजान् ॥ २१२ ॥

Duly reaching the seashore and perceiving from there Laṅkā perched on a summit of the Trikūṭa mountain, the foremost of mountains, Hanumān for his part descended on that mountain, Trikūṭa, abandoning his assumed colossal form and agitating the beasts and birds inhabiting that mountain with his gigantic monkey form. (212)

स सागरं दानवपन्नगायुतं
बलेन विक्रम्य महोर्मिमालिनम्।
निपत्य तीरे च महोदधेस्तदा
ददर्श लंका ममरावतीमिव ॥ २१३ ॥

Having leapt by dint of his vigour over the sea infested with demons and reptiles and heaving with series of huge waves, and descending on the shore of the vast sea, Hanumān then saw Laṅkā standing like Amarāvati, the city of gods, the capital of Indra. (213)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे प्रथमः सर्गः ॥ १ ॥

Thus ends Canto One of the Sundarakāṇḍa in the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वितीयः सर्गः

Canto II

Reflecting on the difficulty of penetrating into Laṅkā, which was strongly guarded by ogres, Hanumān further contracts his body and enters it at moonrise

स सागरमनाधृष्यमतिक्रम्य महाबलः ।
त्रिकूटस्य तटे लंकां स्थितः स्वस्थो ददर्श ह ॥ १ ॥

Standing at ease on a slope of the Trikūṭa mountain, on having negotiated the inviolable sea, Hanumān, who was endowed with extraordinary might, surveyed Laṅkā: so the tradition goes. (1)

ततः पादपमुक्तेन पुष्पवर्षेण वीर्यवान् ।
अभिवृष्टस्ततस्तत्र बभौ पुष्पमयो हरिः ॥ २ ॥

Covered all over by a shower of blossoms discharged by the trees on all sides, the powerful monkey, Hanumān, looked as if consisting of flowers only. (2)

योजनानां शतं श्रीमांस्तीर्त्वाप्युत्तमविक्रमः ।
अनिःश्वसन् कपिस्तत्र न ग्लानिमधिगच्छति ॥ ३ ॥

Even on having covered a hundred Yojanas (eight hundred miles), the glorious Hanumān, who was endowed with prowess of the first magnitude, did not gasp for breath nor did he experience any fatigue. (3)

शतान्यहं योजनानां क्रमेयं सुबहून्यपि ।
किं पुनः सागरस्यान्तं संख्यातं शतयोजनम् ॥ ४ ॥

He said to himself: 'I am able to journey many hundreds of miles, to say nothing of reaching the opposite shore of a sea, which has been calculated as being at a distance of a hundred Yojanas only.' (4)

स तु वीर्यवतां श्रेष्ठः प्लवतामपि चोत्तमः ।
जगाम वेगवाँल्लंकां लङ्घयित्वा महोदधिम् ॥ ५ ॥

Having negotiated the vast sea, Hanumān, for his part, who was the foremost of powerful beings and a jewel among the monkeys, and was full of energy, reached Laṅkā. (5)

शाद्वलानि च नीलानि गन्धवन्ति वनानि च ।
मधुमन्ति च मध्येन जगाम नगवन्ति च ॥ ६ ॥

He passed through dark green meadows and groves full of fragrance, nay, full of trees and full of honey too. (6)

शैलांश्च तरुसंछन्नान् वनराजीश्च पुष्पिताः ।
अभिचक्राम तेजस्वी हनूमान् प्लवगर्षभः ॥ ७ ॥

The glorious Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, further coursed through mountains covered with trees and groves laden with blossom. (7)

स तस्मिन्नचले तिष्ठन् वनान्युपवनानि च ।
स नगाग्रे स्थितां लंकां ददर्श पवनात्मजः ॥ ८ ॥

Stationed on that mountain, he saw forests and groves. That son of the wind-god, Hanumān, also beheld Laṅkā perched on the top of the mountain. (8)

सरलान् कर्णिकारांश्च खर्जूरांश्च सुपुष्पितान् ।
प्रियालान् मुचुलिन्दांश्च कुटजान् केतकानपि ॥ ९ ॥

प्रियङ्गून् गन्धपूर्णांश्च नीपान् समच्छन्दास्तथा ।
असनान् कोविदारांश्च करवीरांश्च पुष्पितान् ॥ १० ॥

पुष्पभारनिबद्धांश्च तथा मुकुलितानपि ।
पादपान् विहगाकीर्णान् पवनाधूतमस्तकान् ॥ ११ ॥

हंसकारण्डवाकीर्णा वापीः पद्मोत्पलावृताः ।
आक्रीडान् विविधान् रम्यान् विविधांश्च जलाशयान् ॥ १२ ॥

संततान् विविधैर्वृक्षैः सर्वर्तुफलपुष्पितैः ।
उद्यानानि च रम्याणि ददर्श कपिकुञ्जरः ॥ १३ ॥

Hanumān, an elephant among the monkeys, further saw Saralas (a species of pine trees), and Karnikaras, as also date-palms in full blossom, Priyalas and muculindas (a species of oranges), Kūṭajas, also Ketakas and fragrant Priyangu (trees yielding long pepper as their fruit), Nipas (a species of Kadamba trees) as well as Saptacchadas, Asanas, Kovidaras and Karaviras in blossom as also trees adorned with a load of flowers as well as those bearing buds only, and which were crowded with birds and whose crests were being shaken by the wind, ponds abounding in swans and Karandavas (a species of duck) and carpeted with lotuses and water-lilies, lovely pleasure-groves of every description and lovely ponds of various kinds overspread by trees of every species, bearing fruit and flower in all seasons as also delightful gardens. (9—13)

समासाद्य च लक्ष्मीवाँल्लंकां रावणपालिताम् ।
परिखाभिः सपद्माभिः सोत्पलाभिरलंकृताम् ॥ १४ ॥
सीतापहरणात् तेन रावणेन सुरक्षिताम् ।
समन्ताद् विचरद्भिश्च राक्षसैरुग्रधन्वभिः ॥ १५ ॥
काञ्चनेनावृतां रम्यां प्राकारेण महापुरीम् ।
गृहैश्च गिरिसंकाशैः शारदाम्बुदसंनिभैः ॥ १६ ॥
पाण्डुराभिः प्रतोलीभिरुच्चाभिरभिसंवृताम् ।
अट्टालकशताकीर्णा पताकाध्वजशोभिताम् ॥ १७ ॥
तोरणैः काञ्चनैर्दिव्यैर्लतापङ्क्तिविराजितैः ।
ददर्श हनुमाँल्लंकां देवो देवपुरीमिव ॥ १८ ॥

Duly arriving at the great and lovely city of Laṅkā, which was protected by Rāvaṇa, nay, was fringed with moats full of lotuses and water-lilies and was strongly guarded, ever since Sītā had been abducted and placed there, by the selfsame Rāvaṇa, as well as by other ogres armed with formidable bows ranging on every side; which was enclosed with a golden boundary wall and crowded with buildings lofty as mountains and resembling autumnal clouds; which was hemmed in with white-plastered and elevated roads, was crowded with hundreds of mansions and decorated with flags and pennons and was distinguished by wonderful golden archways adorned with rows of climbers—the glorious Hanumān surveyed Laṅkā even as a god would look at the city of gods. (14—18)

गिरिमूर्ध्नि स्थितां लंकां पाण्डुरैर्भवनैः शुभैः ।
ददर्श स कपिः श्रीमान् पुरीमाकाशगामिव ॥ १९ ॥

That illustrious Hanumān saw Laṅkā perched on the summit of a mountain and distinguished by its sparkling white mansions as though it were a city moving in the airspace. (19)

पालितां राक्षसेन्द्रेण निर्मितां विश्वकर्मणा ।
प्लवमानामिवाकाशे ददर्श हनुमान् कपिः ॥ २० ॥

Nay, Hanumān beheld the city constructed by Viśwakarmā, the architect of gods, and protected by Rāvaṇa, the king of the ogres, as though it was sailing in the sky. (20)

वप्रप्राकारजघनां विपुलाम्बुवनाम्बराम् ।
शतघ्नीशूलकेशान्तामट्टालकावतंसकाम् ॥ २१ ॥
मनसेव कृतां लंकां निर्मितां विश्वकर्मणा ।
द्वारमुत्तरमासाद्य चिन्तयामास वानरः ॥ २२ ॥
कैलासनिलयप्रख्यमालिखन्तमिवाम्बरम् ।
ध्रियमाणमिवाकाशमुच्छ्रितैर्भवनोत्तमैः ॥ २३ ॥

He further conceived Laṅkā, the city built by Viśwakarmā, as a woman evolved with his mind, with its buttress and enclosure as her hip and loins, the vast sea and the woods encircling the city for her raiment, the Śataghnīs* and Śūlas (spikes) for her locks and the mansions for her earrings. Reaching the northern gate, which looked like the gateway of the city of Alakā, the capital of Kubera, the god of riches, perched on Mount Kailāśa, the abode of Lord Śiva, which scraped the sky, as it were, by means of its tall mansions and supported the firmament, as it were, on its housetops, Hanumān fell abrooding. (21—23)

* A kind of weapon used as a missile (and described as a huge stone studded with iron spikes and four Talas or palmyra trees in length):

शतघ्नी च चतुस्ताला लोहकण्टकसंचिता ।

अयःकण्टकसंछन्ना शतघ्नी महतो शिला ॥

सम्पूर्णा राक्षसैर्घोरैर्नागैर्भोगवतीमिव ।
 अचिन्त्यां सुकृतां स्पष्टां कुबेराध्युषितां पुरा ॥ २४ ॥
 दंष्ट्राभिर्बहुभिः शूरैः शूलपट्टिशपाणिभिः ।
 रक्षितां राक्षसैर्घोरैर्गुहामाशीविषैरिव ॥ २५ ॥
 तस्याश्च महतीं गुप्तिं सागरं च निरीक्ष्य सः ।
 रावणं च रिपुं घोरं चिन्तयामास वानरः ॥ २६ ॥

Observing the city—which was overfull with fierce ogres as Bhogavatī, the capital of Pātāla, with Nāgas—was beyond conception and well-constructed, was clearly visible and had been occupied by Kubera in the past and was guarded by numerous gallant and terrible ogres distinguished by tusks and carrying spikes and Pattisas (a kind of sharp-edged spear) in their hands, even as a cavern by venomous serpents—as well as its mighty defences, as also the sea encircling it and thinking the formidable adversary in the form of Rāvaṇa, Hanumān reflected as follows : (24—26)

आगत्यापीह हरयो भविष्यन्ति निरर्थकाः ।
 नहि युद्धेन वै लंका शक्या जेतुं सुरैरपि ॥ २७ ॥

‘The monkeys will prove of no avail even on coming here; for Laṅkā cannot be conquered in any case through warfare even by the gods. (27)

इमां त्वविषमां लंकां दुर्गां रावणपालिताम् ।
 प्राप्यापि सुमहाबाहुः किं करिष्यति राघवः ॥ २८ ॥

‘What will Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, of highly mighty arms do even on actually reaching this Laṅkā, which is surpassingly rugged and difficult of access and is protected by Rāvaṇa? (28)

अवकाशो न साम्रस्तु राक्षसेष्वभिगम्यते ।
 न दानस्य न भेदस्य नैव युद्धस्य दृश्यते ॥ २९ ॥

‘No possibility at all is perceived of winning over ogres through persuasion or gift nor of bringing them to their knees by sowing dissension among them nor again of reducing them to submission through warfare. (29)

चतुर्णामेव हि गतिर्वानराणां तरस्विनाम् ।
 वालिपुत्रस्य नीलस्य मम राज्ञश्च धीमतः ॥ ३० ॥
 ‘Only four agile monkeys, can actually reach this place, viz., Aṅgada (the son of Vāli), Nīla, the sagacious king Sugriva and myself. (30)

यावज्जानामि वैदेहीं यदि जीवति वा न वा ।
 तत्रैव चिन्तयिष्यामि दृष्ट्वा तां जनकात्मजाम् ॥ ३१ ॥

‘Meanwhile, I shall find out whether Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, is alive or not. Having seen that daughter of King Janaka, I shall consider other points only then.’ (31)

ततः स चिन्तयामास मुहूर्तं कपिकुञ्जरः ।
 गिरेः शृङ्गे स्थितस्तस्मिन् रामस्याभ्युदयं ततः ॥ ३२ ॥

Stationed on that mountain peak, that elephant among the monkeys, Hanumān, pondered for a while the means of discovering Sītā in which lay the welfare of Śrī Rāma. (32)

अनेन रूपेण मया न शक्या रक्षसां पुरी ।
 प्रवेष्टुं राक्षसैर्गुप्ता क्रूरैर्बलसमन्वितैः ॥ ३३ ॥

He said to Himself: ‘Laṅkā, the city of ogres, guarded as it is by ferocious and mighty ogres, cannot be entered by me in this form. (33)

महौजसो महावीर्या बलवन्तश्च राक्षसाः ।
 वञ्चनीया मया सर्वे जानकीं परिमार्गता ॥ ३४ ॥

‘All the ogres, who are endowed with extraordinary energy and extraordinary prowess and are full of might, must be blindfolded by me while I continue to look about for Sītā, the daughter of Janaka. (34)

लक्ष्यालक्ष्येण रूपेण रात्रौ लंकापुरी मया ।
 प्राप्तकालं प्रवेष्टुं मे कृत्यं साधयितुं महत् ॥ ३५ ॥

‘In order to accomplish this great task it is advisable for me to enter the city of Laṅkā during the night in a form which cannot be directly perceived, but whose existence could be inferred by its exploits.’ (35)

तां पुरीं तादृशीं दृष्ट्वा दुराधर्षा सुरासुरैः ।
हनूमांश्चिन्तयामास विनिःश्वस्य मुहुर्मुहुः ॥ ३६ ॥

Beholding that city to be of the kind mentioned above and difficult to overcome even for gods and demons, and sighing again and again, Hanumān reflected as follows : (36)

केनोपायेन पश्येयं मैथिलीं जनकात्मजाम् ।
अदृष्टो राक्षसेन्द्रेण रावणेन दुरात्मना ॥ ३७ ॥

‘Through what device shall I be able to behold Sitā, daughter of King Janaka and a princess of Mithilā, myself remaining unperceived by the evil-minded Rāvaṇa, the ruler of the ogres? (37)

न विनश्येत् कथं कार्यं रामस्य विदितात्मनः ।
एकामेकस्तु पश्येयं रहिते जनकात्मजाम् ॥ ३८ ॥

‘How shall I be able to see the daughter of Janaka alone in secret with none else beside me, so that the cause of Śrī Rāma, the knower of the Self, may not be altogether lost? (38)

भूताश्चार्था विनश्यन्ति देशकालविरोधिताः ।
विक्लवं दूतमासाद्य तमः सूर्योदये यथा ॥ ३९ ॥

‘Nay, even as darkness disappears at sunrise, objects which are all but accomplished are completely lost at the hands of a timid or thoughtless messenger when they are set in opposition to time and place. (39)

अर्थानर्थान्तरे बुद्धिर्निश्चितापि न शोभते ।
घातयन्तीह कार्याणि दूताः पण्डितमानिनः ॥ ४० ॥

‘Even a decision duly arrived at by a ruler in consultation with his ministers regarding what should be done and what should be refrained from, does not yield good results when implemented by a thoughtless messenger. Messengers fancying themselves clever, but really not so, bring to nought all undertakings on such occasions. (40)

न विनश्येत् कथं कार्यं वैक्लव्यं न कथं भवेत् ।
लङ्घनं च समुद्रस्य कथं नु न भवेद् वृथा ॥ ४१ ॥

‘How should I act to ensure that the purpose may not be frustrated? How should

I guard against thoughtlessness? And how, I wonder, should I ensure that my leaping across the sea does not go in vain? (41)

मयि दृष्टे तु रक्षोभी रामस्य विदितात्मनः ।
भवेद् व्यर्थमिदं कार्यं रावणानर्थमिच्छतः ॥ ४२ ॥

‘If I am detected by the ogres, this project (in the shape of my being sent to Laṅkā) of Śrī Rāma, who is a knower of the Self, and who seeks the overthrow of Rāvaṇa, will miscarry. (42)

नहि शक्यं क्वचित् स्थातुमविज्ञातेन राक्षसैः ।
अपि राक्षसरूपेण किमुतान्येन केनचित् ॥ ४३ ॥

‘It is not possible at this place for anyone to remain anywhere unknown by the ogres even in the disguise of an ogre, much less in any other form. (43)

वायुरप्यत्र नाज्ञातश्चरेदिति मतिर्मम ।
नह्यत्राविदितं किञ्चिद् रक्षसां भीमकर्मणाम् ॥ ४४ ॥

‘My belief is that even the wind cannot circulate here undetected. Certainly nothing here is unknown to the ogres of terrible deeds. (44)

इहाहं यदि तिष्ठामि स्वेन रूपेण संवृतः ।
विनाशमुपयास्यामि भर्तुरर्थश्च हास्यति ॥ ४५ ॥

‘If I remain here in my native form, I shall certainly meet with destruction and the cause of my master will suffer. (45)

तदहं स्वेन रूपेण रजन्यां ह्रस्वतां गतः ।
लंकामभिपतिष्यामि राघवस्यार्थसिद्धये ॥ ४६ ॥

‘Therefore, reduced to a small size, I shall penetrate into Laṅkā by night in my own form for carrying through the purpose of my master: (46)

रावणस्य पुरीं रात्रौ प्रविश्य सुदुरासदाम् ।
प्रविश्य भवनं सर्वं द्रक्ष्यामि जनकात्मजाम् ॥ ४७ ॥

‘Entering by night the capital of Rāvaṇa, which is most difficult of access, and penetrating through every dwelling, I shall find out Janaka’s daughter.’ (47)

इति निश्चित्य हनुमान् सूर्यस्यास्तमयं कपिः ।
आचकाङ्क्षे तदा वीरो वैदेह्या दर्शनोत्सुकः ॥ ४८ ॥

Having resolved thus, Hanumān, the heroic monkey, who was eager to discover Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, then longed for the sunset. (48)

सूर्ये चास्तं गते रात्रौ देहं संक्षिप्य मारुतिः ।
वृषदंशकमात्रोऽथ बभूवाद्भुतदर्शनः ॥ ४९ ॥

Nay, contracting his body at night, when the sun had actually set, the son of the wind-god assumed the size of a cat, strange to behold. (49)

प्रदोषकाले हनुमांस्तूर्णमुत्पत्य वीर्यवान् ।
प्रविवेश पुरीं रम्यां प्रविभक्तमहापथाम् ॥ ५० ॥
प्रासादमालाविततां स्तम्भैः काञ्चनसंनिभैः ।
शातकुम्भनिभैर्जालैर्गन्धर्वनगरोपमाम् ॥ ५१ ॥

Springing up quickly at eventide, the powerful Hanumān proceeded to penetrate deep into the lovely city, whose highways had been symmetrically aligned, which was filled with rows of mansions, and with its golden pillars and golden lattice windows, it looked like the city of the Gandharvas. (50-51)

सप्तभौमाष्टभौमैश्च स ददर्श महापुरीम् ।
तलैः स्फटिकसंकीर्णैः कार्त्तस्वरविभूषितैः ॥ ५२ ॥
वैदूर्यमणिचित्रैश्च मुक्ताजालविभूषितैः ।
तैस्तैः शुशुभिरे तानि भवनान्यत्र रक्षसाम् ॥ ५३ ॥

He saw the great city from where he stood as distinguished by seven-storeyed and eight-storeyed mansions. Those dwellings of the ogres in this city shone brightly with their respective floors inlaid with crystal and gold, nay, studded with cat's-eye gems and decorated with strings of pearls. (52-53)

काञ्चनानि विचित्राणि तोरणानि च रक्षसाम् ।
लंकाद्युद्योतयामासुः सर्वतः समलंकृताम् ॥ ५४ ॥

Wonderful archways of gold, erected by the ogres, also illumined Laṅkā, decorated on all sides. (54)

अचिन्त्यामद्भुताकारां दृष्ट्वा लंकां महाकपिः ।
आसीद् विषण्णो हृष्टश्च वैदेह्या दर्शनोत्सुकः ॥ ५५ ॥

Beholding Laṅkā, which was beyond all imagination and strange to look at, Hanumān, the great monkey, felt despondent and delighted too at the prospect of finding out Sītā, eager as he was to see Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory. (55)

स पाण्डुराविद्धविमानमालिनीं
महार्हजाम्बूनदजालतोरणाम् ।
यशस्विनीं रावणबाहुपालितां
क्षपाचरैर्भीमबलैः सुपालिताम् ॥ ५६ ॥

Presently he entered the glorious city, which was arrayed with rows of white interlaced seven-storeyed mansions, and conspicuous with gold—latticed archways of great value, nay, which was protected by Rāvaṇa and fully guarded by ogres of terrific might. (56)

चन्द्रोऽपि साचिव्यमिवास्य कुर्व-स्तारागणैर्मध्यगतो विराजन् ।
ज्योत्स्नावितानेन वितत्य लोका- नुत्तिष्ठतेऽनेकसहस्ररश्मिः ॥ ५७ ॥

Rendering aid, as it were, to him and shining brightly with hosts of stars in their midst, nay, overspreading the worlds with the canopy of its light, the moon with its myriad rays made its appearance on the horizon. (57)

शङ्खप्रभं क्षीरमृणालवर्ण-मुद्गच्छमानं व्यवभासमानम् ।
ददर्श चन्द्रं स कपिप्रवीरः
पोप्लूयमानं सरसीव हंसम् ॥ ५८ ॥

That great hero among the monkeys gazed on the rising moon white as milk or a lotus-fibre, which was shining brightly with the splendour of a conch-shell and resembled a swan swimming in a lake. (58)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे द्वितीयः सर्गः ॥ २ ॥

Thus ends Canto Two in the Sundarakaṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

तृतीयः सर्गः

Canto III

Appearing in person before Hanumān, while he was making his way into Laṅkā at night, the mighty ogress, Laṅkā, presiding over the city, stops him, striking him with the palm of her hand. Getting unnerved, even though gently smitten with his left fist, she permits the monkey to enter, repeating the words of Brahmā, the creator, that the destruction of Laṅkā should be concluded as imminent when she is overpowered by a monkey

स लम्बशिखरे लम्बे लम्बतोयदसंनिभे ।
सत्त्वमास्थाय मेधावी हनुमान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ १ ॥
निशि लंकां महासत्त्वो विवेश कपिकुञ्जरः ।
रम्यकाननतोयाढ्यां पुरीं रावणपालिताम् ॥ २ ॥
शारदाम्बुधरप्रख्यैर्भवैरुपशोभिताम् ।
सागरोपमनिर्घोषां सागरानिलसेविताम् ॥ ३ ॥
सुपुष्टबलसम्पुष्टां यथैव विटपावतीम् ।
चारुतोरणनिर्यूहां पाण्डुरद्वारतोरणाम् ॥ ४ ॥
भुजगाचरितां गुप्तां शुभां भोगवतीमिव ।
तां सविद्युद्धनाकीर्णां ज्योतिर्गणनिषेविताम् ॥ ५ ॥
चण्डमारुतनिर्हृदां यथा चाप्यमरावतीम् ।
शातकुम्भेन महता प्राकारेणाभिसंवृताम् ॥ ६ ॥
किङ्किणीजालघोषाभिः पताकाभिरलंकृताम् ।
आसाद्य सहसा हृष्टः प्राकारमभिपेदिवा ॥ ७ ॥

Standing on a towering peak of the Lamba mountain (a synonym of Trikūṭa), which looked much like a high cloud, and relying on his own virility, the intelligent Hanumān, son of the wind-god, who was full of great courage and was an elephant among the monkeys, entered by night the city of Laṅkā, which was protected by Rāvaṇa, and was rich in lovely forests and water-bodies, which was adorned with mansions white as autumnal clouds, which unceasingly emitted a sound like the roaring of the sea and was fanned by breezes from the sea, nay, which had been rendered sufficiently strong by well-fed forces even like Vitapavati (a synonym of Alakāpurī, the capital of Kubera's realm), had elephants in rut stationed at its charming outer gates and was provided with white gates and archways and which was frequented by huge serpents and guarded by them like the splendid Bhogavati (the city of serpents, the capital of Patilla, the nethermost subterranean region). Delighted to reach the city—which was ever overcast with clouds illumined with flashes of lightning, and served by hosts of luminaries, the planets and stars and which ever resounded with the thunder-like sound of violent blasts even like Amarāvati, the city of gods, the capital of heaven, nay, which was enclosed with a defensive wall of gold and was decorated with pennons fluttering with the jingling of tiny bells attached to them—Hanumān leapt up the wall. (1—7)

विस्मयाविष्टहृदयः पुरीमालोक्य सर्वतः ।
जाम्बूनदमयैर्द्वारैर्वैदूर्यकृतवेदिकैः ॥ ८ ॥
वज्रस्फटिकमुक्ताभिर्मणिकुट्टिमभूषितैः ।
तप्तहाटकनिर्यूहैः राजतामलपाण्डुरैः ॥ ९ ॥
वैदूर्यकृतसोपानैः स्फटिकान्तरपांसुभिः ।
चारुसंजवनोपेतैः खमिवोत्पतितैः शुभैः ॥ १० ॥
क्रौञ्चबर्हिणसंघुष्टैः राजहंसनिषेवितैः ।
तूर्याभरणनिर्घोषैः सर्वतः परिनादिताम् ॥ ११ ॥
वस्वोकसारप्रतिमां समीक्ष्य नगरीं ततः ।
खमिवोत्पतितां लंकां जहर्ष हनुमान् कपिः ॥ १२ ॥

When he had surveyed the city on all sides, his heart was filled with wonder. Hanumān rejoiced to gaze on Laṅkā, which was distinguished by charming golden entrances, with platforms of cat's-eye gems on both sides of the gates inside as well as with those inlaid with diamonds, crystals and pearls—entrances which were embellished with floors of gems and graced with elephants of refined gold and were crowned with spotless white vaults of silver, entrances accessible by means of stairs of cat's-eye and with their inside walls made of crystal and free from dust and provided with lovely and charming assembly halls, entrances which appeared to have risen to the skies due to their height, and were rendered noisy by herons and frequented by swans—and by which Laṅkā was resonant on all sides with the sound of clarionets and the tinkling of ornaments, was a replica of Vaswokasara (another name of the city of Alakā) and appeared as though risen to the skies on account of its lofty mansions. (8—12)

तां समीक्ष्य पुरीं लंकां राक्षसाधिपतेः शुभाम् ।
अनुत्तमामृद्धिमतीं चिन्तयामास वीर्यवान् ॥ १३ ॥

Gazing on Laṅkā, that splendid city of the suzerain lord of ogres, which was unsurpassed in beauty and was full of opulence, the valiant Hanumān reflected as follows : (13)

नेयमन्येन नगरी शक्या धर्षयितुं बलात् ।
रक्षिता रावणबलैरुद्यतायुधपाणिभिः ॥ १४ ॥

‘Guarded by the forces of Rāvaṇa with weapons uplifted in their hands, this city is incapable of being subdued by anyone by force. (14)

कुमुदाङ्गदयोर्वापि सुषेणस्य महाकपेः ।
प्रसिद्धेयं भवेद् भूमिमैन्दद्विविदयोरपि ॥ १५ ॥

‘This land is accessible only to Kumuda and Aṅgada or to the great monkey, Suṣeṇa, as also to Mainda and Dwivida. (15)

विवस्वतस्तनूजस्य हेश्च कुशपर्वणः ।
ऋक्षस्य कपिमुख्यस्य मम चैव गतिर्भवेत् ॥ १६ ॥

‘Again access to it may be had by Sugrīva (sprung from the loins of the sun-god), the monkey Kuśaparva, Jāmbavān, the bear, the foremost of the monkey hordes, and even by myself.’ (16)

समीक्ष्य च महाबाहो राघवस्य पराक्रमम् ।
लक्ष्मणस्य च विक्रान्तमभवत् प्रीतिमान् कपिः ॥ १७ ॥

Fully considering, however, the prowess of the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, as also the valour of Lakṣmaṇa, Hanumān felt satisfied. (17)

तां रत्नवसनोपेतां गोष्ठागारावतंसिकाम् ।
यन्त्रागारस्तनीमृद्धां प्रमदामिव भूषिताम् ॥ १८ ॥
तां नष्टतिमिरां दीपैर्भास्वरैश्च महाग्रहैः ।
नगरीं राक्षसेन्द्रस्य स ददर्श महाकपिः ॥ १९ ॥

That mighty Hanumān looked upon that celebrated and flourishing city of Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres—whose darkness had been dispelled by lights as well as by the major planets full of radiance—as if it were a young woman adorned with ornaments, nay, having the bejewelled defensive wall for her raiment, the cow-pens (including stables etc.,) as well as other houses for her earrings and the armouries for her breasts. (18-19)

अथ सा हरिशार्दूलं प्रविशन्तं महाकपिम् ।
नगरी स्वेन रूपेण ददर्श पवनात्मजम् ॥ २० ॥

Appearing in her personal form, Laṅkā, the presiding ogress of the city, now beheld the great monkey, Hanumān, sprung from the loins of the wind-god, a tiger among the monkeys, entering the city. (20)

सा तं हरिवरं दृष्ट्वा लंका रावणपालिता ।
स्वयमेवोत्थिता तत्र विकृताननदर्शना ॥ २१ ॥

Seeing that jewel among the monkeys, the aforesaid Laṅkā, protected by Rāvaṇa, rose up on her own initiative on that spot showing her ugly features. (21)

पुरस्तात् तस्य वीरस्य वायुसूनोरतिष्ठत् ।
मुञ्चमाना महानादमब्रवीत् पवनात्मजम् ॥ २२ ॥

She stood before that heroic offspring of the wind-god. Emitting a loud cry she spoke as follows to Hanumān, sprung from the loins of the wind-god: (22)

कस्त्वं केन च कार्येण इह प्राप्तो वनालय।
कथयस्वेह यत् तत्त्वं यावत् प्राणा धरन्ति ते ॥ २३ ॥

“Who are you and for what purpose have you come hither, O dweller of the forest? Speak out what the truth is so long as life has its hold on you. (23)

न शक्यं खल्वियं लंका प्रवेष्टुं वानर त्वया।
रक्षिता रावणबलैरभिगुप्ता समन्ततः ॥ २४ ॥

“Protected by the forces of Rāvaṇa and strongly guarded on all sides, this Laṅkā can never be penetrated by you, O monkey !” (24)

अथ तामब्रवीद् वीरो हनुमानग्रतः स्थिताम्।
कथयिष्यामि तत् तत्त्वं यन्मां त्वं परिपृच्छसे ॥ २५ ॥

The valiant Hanumān then replied to the ogress standing before him: “I shall presently give out that truth which you have just questioned me about. (25)

का त्वं विरूपनयना पुरद्वारेऽवतिष्ठसे।
किमर्थं चापि मां क्रोधान्निर्भर्त्सयसि दारुणे ॥ २६ ॥

“Who are you with hideous eyes standing at the city gate? And what for do you angrily threaten me, O cruel one!” (26)

हनुमद्वचनं श्रुत्वा लंका सा कामरूपिणी।
उवाच वचनं क्रुद्धा परुषं पवनात्मजम् ॥ २७ ॥

Irritated to hear the counter-question of Hanumān, the aforesaid Laṅkā, who was able to change her form at will, spoke harshly as follows to the offspring of the wind-god: (27)

अहं राक्षसराजस्य रावणस्य महात्मनः।
आज्ञाप्रतीक्षा दुर्धर्षा रक्षामि नगरीमिमाम् ॥ २८ ॥

“Always remaining at the beck and call of the high-souled Rāvaṇa—the ruler of ogres—and difficult to overpower, I guard this city. (28)

न शक्यं मामवज्ञाय प्रवेष्टुं नगरीमिमाम्।
अद्य प्राणैः परित्यक्तः स्वप्स्यसे निहतो मया ॥ २९ ॥

“It is not possible to make one’s way into this city disregarding me. Overthrown by me and deprived of your life-breath, you will lie down in eternal sleep today. (29)

अहं हि नगरी लंका स्वयमेव प्लवङ्गम्।
सर्वतः परिरक्षामि अतस्ते कथितं मया ॥ ३० ॥

“In truth I am the city of Laṅkā in person, O monkey, and guard it on all sides; hence such harsh words have been spoken to you by me.” (30)

लंकाया वचनं श्रुत्वा हनुमान् मारुतात्मजः।
यत्नवान् स हरिश्रेष्ठः स्थितः शैल इवापरः ॥ ३१ ॥

Hearing the words of Laṅkā, that jewel among the monkeys, Hanumān, sprung from the loins of the wind-god, stood like another mountain (standing on the Trikuṭa mountain), full of agility to give her a sound thrashing if she dared to assail him. (31)

स तां स्त्रीरूपविकृतां दृष्ट्वा वानरपुङ्गवः।
आबभाषेऽथ मेधावी सत्त्ववान् प्लवगर्षभः ॥ ३२ ॥

Seeing that monster in the form of a woman, that bull among the monkeys, a veritable jewel among monkeys, who was full of intelligence and courage, then spoke to her as follows : (32)

द्रक्ष्यामि नगरीं लंकां सादृष्ट्राकारतोरणाम्।
इत्यर्थमिह सम्प्राप्तः परं कौतूहलं हि मे ॥ ३३ ॥

“I should like to see the city of Laṅkā with its palaces, defensive wall and archways. I have come here for this very purpose; for great is my curiosity in this behalf. (33)

वनान्युपवनानीह लंकायाः काननानि च।
सर्वतो गृहमुख्यानि द्रष्टुमागमनं हि मे ॥ ३४ ॥

“Indeed, my visit to this place is purported to explore the forests, gardens and groves of Laṅkā and to see the foremost of its mansions on all sides.” (34)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा लंका सा कामरूपिणी।
भूय एव पुनर्वाक्यं बभाषे परुषाक्षरम् ॥ ३५ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid reply of Hanumān, the ill-famed Laṅkā, who was able to take any form at will, once more uttered the following harsh words : (35)

मामनिर्जित्य दुर्बुद्धे राक्षसेश्वरपालिताम् ।
न शक्यं ह्यद्य ते द्रष्टुं पुरीयं वानराधम ॥ ३६ ॥

“Without overcoming me, protected as I am by Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, O monkey of perverted mind, it is surely not possible for you to see the city today, O the lowest of monkeys !” (36)

ततः स हरिशार्दूलस्तामुवाच निशाचरीम् ।
दृष्ट्वा पुरीमिमां भद्रे पुनर्यास्ये यथागतम् ॥ ३७ ॥

Thereupon that tiger among the monkeys, said to that ogress, “Having seen this city, O good lady, I shall go back as I came.” (37)

ततः कृत्वा महानादं सा वै लंका भयंकरम् ।
तलेन वानरश्रेष्ठं ताडयामास वेगिता ॥ ३८ ॥

Raising a loud and frightful cry, Laṅkā then actually struck with impetuosity that jewel among the monkeys with the palm of her hand. (38)

ततः स हरिशार्दूलो लंकया ताडितो भृशम् ।
ननाद सुमहानादं वीर्यवान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ ३९ ॥

Smitten violently by Laṅkā, that valiant offspring of the wind-god, a veritable tiger among the monkeys, thereupon uttered a very high-pitched roar. (39)

ततः संवर्तयामास वामहस्तस्य सोऽङ्गुलीः ।
मुष्टिनाभिजघानैनां हनुमान् क्रोधमूर्च्छितः ॥ ४० ॥

Overcome with anger, the aforesaid Hanumān then closed the fingers of his left hand and smote her with his fist. (40)

स्त्री चेति मन्यमानेन नातिक्रोधः स्वयं कृतः ।
सा तु तेन प्रहारेण विह्वलाङ्गी निशाचरी ।
पपात सहसा भूमौ विकृताननदर्शना ॥ ४१ ॥

No violent anger, however, was exhibited by him of his own accord, inasmuch as he looked upon her as a woman. Her limbs having been overpowered by that blow, that ogress fell precipitately to the ground, displaying her ugly features. (41)

ततस्तु हनुमान् वीरस्तां दृष्ट्वा विनिपातिताम् ।
कृपां चकार तेजस्वी मन्यमानः स्त्रियं च ताम् ॥ ४२ ॥

Seeing her prostrated, the heroic and noble Hanumān showed compassion to her considering her to be a woman (one belonging to the weaker sex). (42)

ततो वै भृशमुद्विग्ना लंका सा गद्गदाक्षरम् ।
उवाचागर्वितं वाक्यं हनुमन्तं प्लवङ्गमम् ॥ ४३ ॥

Greatly alarmed at this turn of events, the aforesaid Laṅkā actually addressed the following words, which were shorn of pride, to the monkey, Hanumān, in a faltering tone: (43)

प्रसीद सुमहाबाहो त्रायस्व हरिसत्तम ।
समये सौम्य तिष्ठन्ति सत्त्ववन्तो महाबलाः ॥ ४४ ॥

“Get propitiated, O exceedingly mighty-armed one! Spare me, O jewel among the monkeys! Those endowed with courage and extraordinary might honour the code of chivalry that a woman ought not to be killed, O gentle one ! (44)

अहं तु नगरी लंका स्वयमेव प्लवङ्गम ।
निर्जिताहं त्वया वीर विक्रमेण महाबल ॥ ४५ ॥

“I am the city of Laṅkā-incarnate. I have actually been vanquished by you by dint of your prowess, O heroic monkey of extraordinary might ! (45)

इदं च तथ्यं शृणु मे ब्रुवन्त्या वै हरीश्वर ।
स्वयं स्वयम्भुवा दत्तं वरदानं यथा मम ॥ ४६ ॥

“And duly hear this truth from me even as I speak, O lord of monkeys ! The following prophecy was uttered in my presence by Brahmā himself : (46)

यदा त्वां वानरः कश्चिद् विक्रमाद् वशमानयेत् ।
तदा त्वया हि विज्ञेयं रक्षसां भयमागतम् ॥ ४७ ॥

“Surely, at the time when some monkey subdues you by dint of his prowess, destruction of the ogres should be concluded by you to be imminent. (47)

स हि मे समयः सौम्य प्राप्तोऽद्य तव दर्शनात्।
स्वयम्भूविहितः सत्यो न तस्यास्ति व्यतिक्रमः ॥ ४८ ॥

“From your sight, O gentle one, it is concluded by me that the aforesaid time has now come. The fact has been ordained by Brahmā, the self-born creator, and no reversal of it is possible. (48)

सीतानिमित्तं राज्ञस्तु रावणस्य दुरात्मनः।
रक्षसां चैव सर्वेषां विनाशः समुपागतः ॥ ४९ ॥

“The time of destruction of King Rāvaṇa of perverted mind as well as of all the ogres has duly arrived on account of the abduction of Sītā. (49)

तत् प्रविश्य हरिश्रेष्ठ पुरीं रावणपालिताम्।
विधत्स्व सर्वकार्याणि यानि यानीह वाञ्छसि ॥ ५० ॥

“Therefore, penetrating deep into this city protected by Rāvaṇa, accomplish all objects whichever you seek to accomplish. (50)

प्रविश्य शापोपहतां हरीश्वर
पुरीं शुभां राक्षसमुख्यपालिताम्।
यदृच्छ्या त्वं जनकात्मजां सतीं
विमार्गं सर्वत्र गतो यथासुखम् ॥ ५१ ॥

“Entering deep into the charming city protected by Rāvaṇa (the foremost of ogres), which has been consigned to destruction by an imprecation (uttered by Nandikeswara, the divine bull, who carries Lord Śiva on his back and remains posted at the entrance of His Abode), O lord of monkeys, and, having easily found access to every place, carefully look at will for the virtuous daughter of Janaka.” (51)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे तृतीयः सर्गः ॥ ३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Three in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्थः सर्गः

Canto IV

Entering Laṅkā and hearing the music of various instruments being played upon inside, and also observing the enemy's forces armed with various weapons, Hanumān finds his way into the royal gynaeceum

स निर्जित्य पुरीं लंकां श्रेष्ठां तां कामरूपिणीम्।
विक्रमेण महातेजा हनूमान् कपिसत्तमः ॥ १ ॥
अद्वारेण महावीर्यः प्राकारमवपुप्लुवे।
निशि लंकां महासत्त्वो विवेश कपिकुञ्जरः ॥ २ ॥

Having subdued by dint of his superior prowess Laṅkā, the ogress presiding over that most excellent city, able to take any form at will, the jewel among the monkeys, Hanumān, who was endowed with extraordinary energy and great virility, leapt over the defensive wall without passing through the gate; and the elephant-like monkey, endowed as he was with exceptional courage, entered Laṅkā by night. (1-2)

प्रविश्य नगरीं लंकां कपिराजहितंकरः।
चक्रेऽथ पादं सव्यं च शत्रूणां स तु मूर्धनि ॥ ३ ॥

Nay, having penetrated deep into the city of Laṅkā, Hanumān, who was in the habit of doing acts of service to Sugrīva, the king of monkeys, thereby actually placed

* Works on Hindu military science recommend entry into a hostile city without passing through the gate to ensure the overthrow of the enemy.

his left foot, as it were, on the head of his foes. (3)

प्रविष्टः सत्त्वसम्पन्नो निशायां मारुतात्मजः ।
स महापथमास्थाय मुक्तपुष्पविराजितम् ॥ ४ ॥
ततस्तु तां पुरीं लंकां रम्यामभिययौ कपिः ।
हसितोत्कृष्टनिनदैस्तूर्यघोषपुरस्कृतैः ॥ ५ ॥
वज्राङ्कुशनिकाशैश्च वज्रजालविभूषितैः ।
गृहमेघैः पुरी रम्या बभासे द्यौरिवाम्बुदैः ॥ ६ ॥

Taking the main road, which looked bright with flowers strewn along it, now that he had definitely made good his entry into the city by night, the said monkey, for his part, who was an offspring of the wind-god and was full of courage, then headed towards that lovely city of Laṅkā. The delightful city looked charming with its excellent houses, which resounded with exquisite peals of laughter preceded by the sound of musical instruments, were marked with figures of thunderbolts and goads and adorned with lattice—windows of diamonds, even as the sky looks charming with clouds. (4—6)

प्रज्ज्वाल तदा लंका रक्षोगणगृहैः शुभैः ।
सिताभ्रसदृशैश्चित्रैः पद्मस्वस्तिकसंस्थितैः ॥ ७ ॥
वर्धमानगृहैश्चापि सर्वतः सुविभूषितैः ।
तां चित्रमाल्याभरणां कपिराजहितंकरः ॥ ८ ॥
राघवार्थं चरन् श्रीमान् ददर्श च ननन्द च ।
भवनाद् भवनं गच्छन् ददर्श कपिकुञ्जरः ॥ ९ ॥
विविधाकृतिरूपाणि भवनानि ततस्ततः ।
शुश्राव रुचिरं गीतं त्रिस्थानस्वरभूषितम् ॥ १० ॥

Laṅkā shone brightly at that time with the magnificent and wonderful mansions belonging to the hosts of ogres, and resembling white clouds and of designs known by the name of Padma* and Swastika and also of the pattern called Vardhamāna, all of which were profusely decorated on all sides. Ranging in the interest of Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, Hanumān, the glorious one, who was wont to do a good turn to Sugriva, the ruler of monkeys, surveyed that city decorated with wonderful wreaths and jewels and rejoiced. Going from house to house, the elephant-like monkey, Hanumān, beheld on every side buildings of various shapes and forms and heard melodious songs embellished by notes of higher, medium and lower pitches (uttered from the three different centres viz., the cerebrum, the throat and the heart, respectively). (7—10)

स्त्रीणां मदनविद्वानां दिवि चाप्सरसामिव ।
शुश्राव काञ्चीनिनदं नूपुराणां च निःस्वनम् ॥ ११ ॥
सोपाननिनदांश्चापि भवनेषु महात्मनाम् ।
आस्फोटितनिनादांश्च क्ष्वेडितांश्च ततस्ततः ॥ १२ ॥

He also heard the tinkling of ornaments with tiny bells worn round the waist as well as the jingling sound of anklets of women stung with love, who vied with celestial nymphs, as also the footfalls of those going upstairs and downstairs in the houses of high-minded ogres, nay, the sound of clapping of arms by way of challenge prior to or during a wrestling bout and the roar of heroes competing in a duel everywhere. (11-12)

शुश्राव जपतां तत्र मन्त्रान् रक्षोगृहेषु वै ।
स्वाध्यायनिरतांश्चैव यातुधानान् ददर्श सः ॥ १३ ॥

He actually heard there the sound of

* We read the following description of these patterns of buildings in the Saṁhitā of Vārāhamihira:
चतुश्शालं चतुर्द्वारं सर्वतोभद्रसंज्ञितम् । पश्चिमद्वाररहितं नन्दावर्ताहयं तु तत् ।
दक्षिणद्वाररहितं वर्धमानं धनप्रदम् । प्राग्द्वाररहितं स्वस्तिकाख्यं पुत्रधनप्रदम् ॥

“A house with four rooms (one in each quarter) with an equal number of exits is known by the name of Sarvatobhadra. A house (with only three gates) having no opening in the west is called by the name of Nandyavarta. A house without any opening in the south is known as Vardhamān and bestows riches (on the owner or the occupant); while that which has no entrance in the east is called Swastika and bestows sons and riches both.”

those muttering sacred formulas in the dwellings of the ogres and also observed Yātudhānas (a class of ogres) engaged in the study of the Vedas. (13)

रावणस्तवसंयुक्तान् गर्जतो राक्षसानपि ।
राजमार्गं समावृत्य स्थितं रक्षोगणं महत् ॥ १४ ॥

He further saw ogres united for the purpose of glorifying Rāvaṇa and roaring, and a large crowd of ogres which stood blocking the road on all sides. (14)

ददर्श मध्यमे गुल्मे राक्षसस्य चरान् बहून् ।
दीक्षिताञ्जटिलान् मुण्डान् गोजिनाम्बरवाससः ॥ १५ ॥

In the central zone of the city he perceived numerous spies of the ogre Rāvaṇa, some of whom were disguised as householders initiated into yogic practices, others as anchorites wearing matted locks on their head, still others as recluses with shaven heads and others as ascetics wearing the hide of cows or deerskin or stark naked having no covering other than space. (15)

दर्भमुष्टिप्रहरणानग्निकुण्डायुधांस्तथा ।
कूटमुद्गरपाणींश्च दण्डायुधधरानपि ॥ १६ ॥

He saw them carrying a handful of the sacred Kuṣa grass as a weapon to ward off evil spirits, or a fire-vessel for pouring oblations into it to invoke malevolent spirits, also as a weapon for protection against enemies, or bearing hammers and clubs and also holding staffs as weapons. (16)

एकाक्षानेकवर्णांश्च लंबोदरपयोधरान् ।
करालान् भुग्नवक्त्रांश्च विकटान् वामनांस्तथा ॥ १७ ॥

He beheld spies who were one-eyed or had a multi-coloured complexion, were pot-bellied or with pendent breasts, were hideous with crooked faces, fierce or dwarfish. (17)

धन्विनः खड्गिनश्चैव शतघ्नीमुसलायुधान् ।
परिघोत्तमहस्तांश्च विचित्रकवचोज्ज्वलान् ॥ १८ ॥

He saw them armed with a bow or sword, Śataghni or pestle, carrying an excellent Parigha (a club tipped with iron) or effulgent in curious armour. (18)

नातिस्थूलान् नातिकृशान् नातिदीर्घातिह्रस्वकान् ।
नातिगौरान् नातिकृष्णान् नातिकुब्जान् वामनान् ॥ १९ ॥

He found some of them neither very stout nor too lean, neither very tall nor very short-statured, neither very fair nor very dark-complexioned, neither very humpbacked nor dwarfish. (19)

विरूपान् बहुरूपांश्च सुरूपांश्च सुवर्चसः ।
ध्वजिनः पताकिनश्चैव ददर्श विविधायुधान् ॥ २० ॥

He also found them ugly or able to assume many forms, with a comely form or endowed with great brilliance, carrying banners or pennons or bearing all kinds of weapons. (20)

शक्तिवृक्षायुधांश्चैव पट्टिशाशनिधारिणः ।
क्षेपणीपाशहस्तांश्च ददर्श स महाकपिः ॥ २१ ॥

That great monkey, Hanuman, saw them carrying a javelin or a tree for a weapon or bearing a Pattisa (a kind of spear with a sharp edge) or thunderbolt and holding a sling or a noose in their hand. (21)

स्त्रग्विणस्त्वनुलिप्तांश्च वराभरणभूषितान् ।
नानावेषसमायुक्तान् यथास्वैरचरान् बहून् ॥ २२ ॥

He also saw many wearing a garland and smeared with sandal-paste, adorned with excellent jewels and dressed in various garbs and ranging about at will. (22)

तीक्ष्णशूलधरांश्चैव वज्रिणश्च महाबलान् ।
शतसाहस्रमव्यग्रमारक्षं मध्यमं कपिः ॥ २३ ॥

रक्षोऽधिपतिनिर्दिष्टं ददर्शान्तःपुराग्रतः ।
स तदा तद् गृहं दृष्ट्वा महाहाटकतोरणम् ॥ २४ ॥

राक्षसेन्द्रस्य विख्यातमद्रिमूर्ध्नि प्रतिष्ठितम् ।
पुण्डरीकावतंसाभिः परिखाभिः समावृतम् ॥ २५ ॥

प्राकारावृतमत्यन्तं ददर्श स महाकपिः ।
त्रिविष्टपनिभं दिव्यं दिव्यनादविनादितम् ॥ २६ ॥

वाजिह्वेषितसंघुष्टं नादितं भूषणैस्तथा ।
रथैर्यानैर्विमानैश्च तथा हयगजैः शुभैः ॥ २७ ॥

वारणैश्च चतुर्दन्तैः श्वेताभ्रनिचयोपमैः ।
 भूषितै रुचिरद्वारं मत्तैश्च मृगपक्षिभिः ॥ २८ ॥
 रक्षितं सुमहावीर्यैर्यातुधानैः सहस्रशः ।
 राक्षसाधिपतेर्गुप्तमाविवेश गृहं कपिः ॥ २९ ॥

He further saw them carrying sharp edged pikes, armed with thunderbolt and endowed with extraordinary might. Hanumān also saw the central garrison, one hundred thousand strong, lodged in a huge building in front of the royal gynaeceum as directed by Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres. Having seen on that occasion the aforesaid building in which the garrison was housed with large golden archways, that mighty Hanumān beheld the well-known palace of Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, erected on the summit of Mount Trikūṭa, girded by a number of moats adorned with white lotuses. Hanumān approached the wonderful and well-protected gynaeceum of Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, which resembled paradise and was resonant with marvellous sounds, which was rendered noisy with the neighing of horses and the tinkling of ornaments, whose portals looked charming with the presence of chariots and other conveyances such as palanquins as well as with aerial cars such as Puṣpaka, as also with beautiful horses and elephants, nay, with four-tusked elephants decked with jewels and resembling masses of white clouds as well as with birds and deer in heat, and which was guarded by thousands of exceptionally powerful Yatudhānas. (23—29)

स हेमजाम्बूनदचक्रवालं
 महार्हमुक्तामणि भूषितान्तम् ।
 परार्ध्यकालागुरुचन्दनार्हं
 स रावणान्तःपुरमाविवेश ॥ ३० ॥

The celebrated Hanumān finally entered the gynaeceum of Rāvaṇa, which was encircled with walls of refined gold and pure gold (so-called because it was found in the olden days in the bed of the Jambu river, now known by the name of Jammu); whose inside was embellished with pearls and gems of great value and which was daily sprinkled with water containing superb agallocom and sandalwood. (30)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे चतुर्थः सर्गः ॥ ४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Four in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चमः सर्गः

Canto V

Even though seeing ogres and ogresses of various grades and orders while the moon was ascending the heavens, Hanumān gives way to anxiety on his not being able to find Sītā

ततः स मध्यंगतमंशुमन्तं
 ज्योत्स्नावितानं मुहुरुद्वमन्तम् ।
 ददर्श धीमान् भुवि भानुमन्तं
 गोष्ठे वृषं मत्तमिव भ्रमन्तम् ॥ १ ॥

Thereupon the wise Hanumān beheld the moon arrived at the meridian and repeatedly spreading out the canopy of its light over the earth like the sun, and resembling a bull in rut ranging in a cow-pen. (1)

लोकस्य पापानि विनाशयन्तं
 महोदधिं चापि समेधयन्तम् ।
 भूतानि सर्वाणि विराजयन्तं
 ददर्श शीतांशुमथाभियान्तम् ॥ २ ॥

He forthwith saw the moon dispelling the sins and the resultant afflictions of the world by shedding light everywhere and thereby minimizing the chances of sins being committed by the people, nay, swelling by drawing up tides in the ocean and giving light to all created beings while advancing in the heavens. (2)

या भाति लक्ष्मीर्भुवि मन्दरस्था
यथा प्रदोषेषु च सागरस्था ।
तथैव तोयेषु च पुष्करस्था
रराज सा चारुनिशाकरस्था ॥ ३ ॥

The same splendour which is visible on Mount Mandāra on earth, which plays during evenings on the sea, and which rests on a lotus in the waters shone forth in the delightful moon. (3)

हंसो यथा राजतपञ्जरस्थः
सिंहो यथा मन्दरकन्दरस्थः ।
वीरो यथा गर्वितकुञ्जरस्थ-
श्चन्द्रोऽपि बभ्राज तथाम्बरस्थः ॥ ४ ॥

The moon shone forth in the heavens much in the same way as a swan displays its charm in a silvery cage, as a lion in a cave of Mount Mandāra and as a hero mounted on a proud elephant. (4)

स्थितः ककुद्धानिव तीक्ष्णशृङ्गो
महाचलः श्वेत इवोर्ध्वशृङ्गः ।
हस्तीव जाम्बूनदबद्धशृङ्गो
विभाति चन्द्रः परिपूर्णशृङ्गः ॥ ५ ॥

The full moon with its horn-like spot fully developed looked exceptionally charming like a bull with pointed horns, like the great white mountain, Himālaya, so-called because of its remaining clothed with snow, with its lofty peaks and like an elephant with gold-plated tusks. (5)

विनष्टशीताम्बुतुषारपङ्के
महाग्रहग्राहविनष्टपङ्कः ।
प्रकाशलक्ष्म्याश्रयनिर्मलाङ्को
रराज चन्द्रो भगवान् शशाङ्कः ॥ ६ ॥

The glorious moon bearing the earth's shadow in the form of a hare-like figure in the bosom of its orb—whose stain in the form of cold water and frost (which are supposed to have their origin in the moon, the storehouse of cold) had been washed away due to proximity to the equator, nay, by whom stain in the form of darkness had been wiped away through the reflection of the rays of the sun (the big star) and whose spot had turned resplendent through the wealth of its effulgence shone brightly. (6)

शिलातलं प्राप्य यथा मृगेन्द्रो
महारणं प्राप्य यथा गजेन्द्रः ।
राज्यं समासाद्य यथा नरेन्द्र-
स्तथा प्रकाशो विरराज चन्द्रः ॥ ७ ॥

The radiant moon looked exceptionally splendid in the same way as the king of beasts on ascending the level surface of a rock, as a lordly elephant on penetrating deep into a large forest and a ruler of men on duly reaching his own kingdom. (7)

प्रकाशचन्द्रोदयनष्टदोषः
प्रवृद्धरक्षः पिशिताशदोषः ।
रामाभिरामेरितचित्तदोषः
स्वर्गप्रकाशो भगवान् प्रदोषः ॥ ८ ॥

The glorious evening, the evil attaching to which in the form of darkness, which gives an incentive to the commission of dark deeds, has been dispelled by the appearance of the bright moon, nay, whose other blot in the form of flesh-eating by ogres has been intensified, and in which the bitterness of mind caused by unrequited love of young women and their lovers is wiped away, scattered bliss. (8)

तन्त्रीस्वराः कर्णसुखाः प्रवृत्ताः
स्वपन्ति नार्यः पतिभिः सुवृत्ताः ।
नक्तंचराश्चापि तथा प्रवृत्ता
विहर्तुमत्यद्भुतरौद्रवृत्ताः ॥ ९ ॥

The strains of the lute, delightful to the ear, have started. Women of good moral character are sleeping with their husbands. Nay, rangers of the night too of very strange and violent behaviour have likewise started disporting themselves. (9)

मत्तप्रमत्तानि समाकुलानि
रथाश्वभद्रासनसंकुलानि ।
वीरश्रिया चापि समाकुलानि
ददर्श धीमान् स कपिः कुलानि ॥ १० ॥

The sagacious Hanumān beheld there mansions of arrogant and intoxicated ogres connected together, nay, crowded with chariots, horses and seats of gold and also full of fortune enjoyed by heroes. (10)

परस्परं चाधिकमाक्षिपन्ति
भुजांश्च पीनानधिविक्षिपन्ति ।
मत्तप्रलापानधिविक्षिपन्ति
मत्तानि चान्योन्यमधिक्षिपन्ति ॥ ११ ॥

The proud ogres railed at one another in profusion and even threw about their stout arms too in a bellicose spirit, uttered wild and incoherent words and insulted one another. (11)

रक्षांसि वक्षांसि च विक्षिपन्ति
गात्राणि कान्तासु च विक्षिपन्ति ।
रूपाणि चित्राणि च विक्षिपन्ति
दृढानि चापानि च विक्षिपन्ति ॥ १२ ॥

Nay, the ogres smote their breasts as a form of exercise and lovingly placed their hands and other limbs on the person of their beloved ones. They also put on various garbs to please their wives and drew their strong bows by way of practice. (12)

ददर्श कान्ताश्च समालभन्त्य-स्तथापरास्तत्र पुनः स्वपन्त्यः ।
सुरूपवक्त्राश्च तथा हसन्त्यः
क्रुद्धाः पराश्चापि विनिःश्वसन्त्यः ॥ १३ ॥

Hanumān further observed that lovely women were applying sandal-paste on their bodies, while others in those mansions were lying asleep. Some with a lovely exterior and countenance were laughing whereas still others, who had been angered through love were hissing like an angry serpent. (13)

महागजैश्चापि तथा नदद्भिः
सुपुजितैश्चापि तथा सुसद्भिः ।
रराज वीरैश्च विनिःश्वसद्भि- र्हृदा भुजंगैरिव निःश्वसद्भिः ॥ १४ ॥

Nay, with its trumpeting huge elephants, and likewise with its highly virtuous souls like Vibhiṣaṇa greatly adored as well as with its hissing heroes, the city of Laṅkā looked charming like lakes infested, inter alia, with hissing serpents. (14)

बुद्धिप्रधानान् रुचिराभिधानान्
संश्रद्धधानाञ्जगतः प्रधानान् ।
नानाविधानान् रुचिराभिधानान्
ददर्श तस्यां पुरि यातुधानान् ॥ १५ ॥

Hanumān beheld in that city Yatudhānas, who were predominantly intellectual, who were sweet of expression, fully devout and pre-eminent in the world, nay, who were dressed in various garbs and were called by charming names. (15)

ननन्द दृष्ट्वा स च तान् सुरूपान्
नानागुणानात्मगुणानुरूपान् ।
विद्योतमानान् स च तान् सुरूपान्
ददर्श कांश्चिच्च पुनर्विरूपान् ॥ १६ ॥

He rejoiced to see the latter, who were comely of form and endowed with many virtues and who behaved in consonance with their virtues. Nay, he found those who were comely of form, even though some were misshapen, shining brightly. (16)

ततो वरार्हाः सुविशुद्धभावा- स्तेषां स्त्रियस्तत्र महानुभावाः ।
प्रियेषु पानेषु च सक्तभावा
ददर्श तारा इव सुस्वभावाः ॥ १७ ॥

He then saw their womenfolk, who were deserving of excellent attire and ornaments, were exceedingly pure-hearted and dignified, whose mind was enamoured of their beloved ones as well as of beverages, who shone like stars and were of excellent disposition.

(17)

स्त्रियो ज्वलन्तीस्त्रपयोपगूढा
निशीथकाले रमणोपगूढाः ।
ददर्श काश्चित् प्रमदोपगूढा
यथा विहंगा विहगोपगूढाः ॥ १८ ॥

He further beheld some women who shone brightly with their wealth of beauty and character and were adorned with bashfulness, who were embraced at dead of night by their husbands like female birds by their mates and were filled with excessive joy.
(18)

अन्याः पुनर्हर्म्यतलोपविष्टा- स्तत्र प्रियाङ्गेषु सुखोपविष्टाः ।
भर्तुः परा धर्मपरा निविष्टा
ददर्श धीमान् मदनोपविष्टाः ॥ १९ ॥

The wise Hanumān saw still other women, who were highly esteemed in the eyes of their husbands, were devoted to their duty towards their husbands and had been lawfully married to them and were possessed by love—perched on the roof of their mansions and seated most comfortably in the lap of their beloved ones.
(19)

अप्रावृताः काञ्चनराजिवर्णाः
काश्चित्पराध्यास्तपनीयवर्णाः ।
पुनश्च काश्चिच्छलक्ष्मवर्णाः
कान्तप्रहीणा रुचिराङ्गवर्णाः ॥ २० ॥

Again there were some women possessing the hue of a golden streak and shorn of their outer garment, while some other highly excellent women possessed the hue of refined gold. Some more, who had been disunited from their husbands, were pale as the moon, though possessed of a lovely complexion.
(20)

ततः प्रियान् प्राप्य मनोऽभिरामान्
सुप्रीतियुक्ताः सुमनोऽभिरामाः ।
गृहेषु हृष्टाः परमाभिरामा
हरिप्रवीरः स ददर्श रामाः ॥ २१ ॥

The said Hanumān, the foremost hero among the monkeys, then saw most charming young women happy in their homes and filled with great delight to meet their beloved ones—who were highly pleasing to their mind—and lovely with flowers on their person.
(21)

चन्द्रप्रकाशाश्च हि वक्त्रमाला
वक्राः सुपक्ष्माश्च सुनेत्रमालाः ।
विभूषणानां च ददर्श मालाः
शतहृदानामिव चारुमालाः ॥ २२ ॥

He also observed rows of faces shining as the moon, nay, rows of shapely oblique eyes with beautiful lashes and, even so, rows of ornaments resembling charming flashes of lightning.
(22)

न त्वेव सीतां परमाभिजातां
पथि स्थिते राजकुले प्रजाताम् ।
लतां प्रफुल्लामिव साधुजातां
ददर्श तन्वीं मनसाभिजाताम् ॥ २३ ॥

He, however, did not find anywhere the frail Sitā, sprung from the mind of the creator and supremely high-born—descended as she was in a royal house, the House of Nimi, fixed on the path of virtue, and resembling a lovely climber in full blossom.
(23)

सनातने वर्त्मनि संनिविष्टां
रामेक्षणीं तां मदनाभिषिष्टाम् ।
भर्तुर्मनः श्रीमदनुप्रविष्टां
स्त्रीभ्यः पराभ्यश्च सदा विशिष्टाम् ॥ २४ ॥

उष्णादितां सानुसृतास्त्रकण्ठीं
पुरा वरार्होत्तमनिष्ककण्ठीम् ।
सुजातपक्ष्मामभिरक्तकण्ठीं
वने प्रनृत्तामिव नीलकण्ठीम् ॥ २५ ॥

अव्यक्तरेखामिव चन्द्रलेखां
पांसुप्रदिग्धामिव हेमरेखाम् ।
क्षतप्ररूढामिव वर्णरेखां
वायुप्रभुग्नामिव मेघरेखाम् ॥ २६ ॥
सीतामपश्यन्मनुजेश्वरस्य
रामस्य पत्नीं वदतां वरस्य ।

बभूव दुःखोपहतश्चिरस्य
प्लवंगमो मन्द इवाचिरस्य ॥ २७ ॥

Hanumān at once turned languid, as it were, afflicted as he was with sorrow, on not finding, even after striving for a long time, the celebrated Sītā, the consort of Śrī Rāma, a ruler of men, the best of speakers, Sītā, who was firmly established in the eternal path of devotion to her husband, who had her eyes fixed on Śrī Rāma alone, who was possessed by love for Śrī Rāma, who had penetrated deep into the dignified mind of her spouse and was ever exalted above all other women; who was tormented with anguish born of separation from her consort, whose throat was choked with tears incessantly flowing from her eyes, whose neck was heretofore adorned with an excellent gold ornament worthy of the foremost, who was distinguished by beautiful eyelashes, who had a charming throat and when united with her spouse resembled a pea-hen merrily dancing in a forest; who in her soiled clothes and unclean person in her captivity shone like the crescent with its outline blurred due to its being screened by a cloud or a streak of gold soiled with dust, was prominent like a scar left by a wound (serving as a reminder of the injury sustained by Śrī Rāma in the shape of her abduction) and who, while being carried to Laṅkā, shone like the streak of a cloud swept by the wind. (24—27)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे पञ्चमः सर्गः ॥ ५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Five in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षष्ठः सर्गः

Canto VI

Reaching the palace of Rāvaṇa, which served as an adornment to Laṅkā, and having looked for Sītā in the adjoining mansions of Prahasta and others, Hanumān now enters the palace of Rāvaṇa

स निकामं विमानेषु विचरन् कामरूपधृक् ।
विचचार कपिलङ्कां लाघवेन समन्वितः ॥ १ ॥
आससाद च लक्ष्मीवान् राक्षसेन्द्रनिवेशनम् ।
प्राकारेणार्कवर्णेन भास्वरेणाभिसंवृतम् ॥ २ ॥
रक्षितं राक्षसैर्भीमैः सिंहैरिव महद् वनम् ।
समीक्षमाणो भवनं चकाशे कपिकुञ्जरः ॥ ३ ॥
रूप्यकोपहितैश्चित्रैस्तोरणैर्हर्मभूषणैः ।
विचित्राभिश्च कक्ष्याभिद्वारैश्च रुचिरैर्वृतम् ॥ ४ ॥
गजास्थितैर्महामात्रैः शूरैश्च विगतश्रमैः ।
उपस्थितमसंहार्यैर्हयैः स्यन्दनयायिभिः ॥ ५ ॥
सिंहव्याघ्रतनुत्राणैर्दान्तकाञ्चनराजतीः ।
घोषवद्भिर्विचित्रैश्च सदा विचरितं रथैः ॥ ६ ॥
बहुरत्नसमाकीर्णं परार्घ्यासनभूषितम् ।
महारथसमावापं महारथमहासनम् ॥ ७ ॥

दृश्यैश्च परमोदारैस्तैस्तैश्च मृगपक्षिभिः ।
विविधैर्बहुसाहस्रैः परिपूर्णं समन्ततः ॥ ८ ॥
विनीतैरन्तपालैश्च रक्षोभिश्च सुरक्षितम् ।
मुख्याभिश्च वरस्त्रीभिः परिपूर्णं समन्ततः ॥ ९ ॥

Wandering in the midst of seven-storeyed mansions, Hanumān, who was full of riches in the form of strength and valour, who was able to assume any form he chose and was endowed with tremendous speed, ranged over Laṅkā at will and reached the palace of Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, enclosed with a wall dazzling like the sun, nay, guarded by terrible ogres as a huge forest by lions. Hanumān, an elephant among the monkeys, felt happy with the prospect of finding out Sitā while keenly observing the palace, which was surrounded with figures drawn in molten silver, archways decked with ornaments of gold, beautiful concentric enclosures and charming gateways; which was waited upon by drivers of elephants mounted on them, unwearied heroes and horses which could not be killed and which drew chariots; which was ever frequented by marvellous chariots protected with armours of lion-skins and tiger-skins, bearing images of ivory, gold and silver and accompanied by a musical sound produced by tiny bells fastened round them; which was filled with many precious stones, embellished with most excellent seats and provided with sheds in which big chariots could be made to stand and with spacious quarters for lodging great chariot-warriors; which was crowded on all sides with well-known beasts and birds of every species, most charming and worth seeing and numbering many thousands; nay, which was scrupulously protected by disciplined soldiers guarding the boundaries as well as by other ogres and was thronged on every side with pre-eminent belles. (1—9)

मुदितप्रमदारत्नं राक्षसेन्द्रनिवेशनम् ।
 वराभरणसंह्रादैः समुद्रस्वननिःस्वनम् ॥ १० ॥
 तद् राजगुणसम्पन्नं मुख्यैश्च वरचन्दनैः ।
 महाजनसमाकीर्णं सिंहैरिव महद् वनम् ॥ ११ ॥
 भेरीमृदङ्गाभिरुतं शङ्खधोषविनादितम् ।
 नित्यार्चितं पर्वसुतं पूजितं राक्षसैः सदा ॥ १२ ॥
 समुद्रमिव गम्भीरं समुद्रसमनिःस्वनम् ।
 महात्मनो महद् वेश्म महारत्नपरिच्छदम् ॥ १३ ॥
 महारत्नसमाकीर्णं ददर्श स महाकपिः ।
 विराजमानं वपुषा गजाश्वरथसंकुलम् ॥ १४ ॥

That great Hanumān beheld the spacious palace of Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, full of joyous belles, which on account of the tinkling of excellent jewels produced a sound that resembled the roaring of sea, nay, which was equipped with royal appurtenances, was rendered fragrant with the foremost varieties of sandalwood and remained thronged with eminent personages as a large forest infested with lions; which was resonant with the sound of kettledrums and clay tomtoms and was rendered noisy by the blowing of conches, which was ever respected and kept tidy and clean by the ogres and in which the Soma juice was extracted during sacrificial performances at every change of the moon (viz., on the eighth and fourteenth days of each half month and the days of the full moon and no moon); which was inscrutable like the sea and noisy as the sea and was full of ornaments made of precious jewels; nay, which abounded with precious jewels and looked most charming due to the person of that mighty soul Rāvaṇa and was crowded with elephants, horses and chariots.

(10—14)

लंकाभरणमित्येव सोऽमन्यत महाकपिः ।
 चचार हनुमांस्तत्र रावणस्य समीपतः ॥ १५ ॥

That mighty Hanumān reckoned the palace to be the very ornament of Laṅkā and wandered about the abode of Rāvaṇa at that time. (15)

गृहाद् गृहं राक्षसानामुद्यानानि च सर्वशः ।
 वीक्षमाणोऽप्यसंत्रस्तः प्रासादांश्च चचार सः ॥ १६ ॥

Moving from house to house belonging to the ogres and even observing all the gardens as well as the palaces, he ranged undaunted everywhere. (16)

अवप्लुत्य महावेगः प्रहस्तस्य निवेशनम् ।
 ततोऽन्यत् पुप्लुवे वेश्म महापार्श्वस्य वीर्यवान् ॥ १७ ॥

Leaping down into the mansion of Prahasta, the powerful Hanumān, who was endowed with extraordinary vehemence, sprang from that house to another which belonged to Mahāpārśwa. (17)

अथ मेघप्रतीकाशं कुम्भकर्णनिवेशनम् ।
 विभीषणस्य च तथा पुप्लुवे स महाकपिः ॥ १८ ॥

That mighty Hanumān then bounded into the palace of Kumbhakarṇa, which resembled a cloud, and thence into that of Vibhīṣaṇa. (18)

महोदरस्य च तथा विरूपाक्षस्य चैव हि ।
विद्युज्जिह्वस्य भवनं विद्युन्मालेस्तथैव च ॥ १९ ॥

He further leapt into the house of Mahodara and likewise into that of Virupākṣa as well and similarly into those of Vidyujjihva and Vidyunmālī. (19)

वज्रदंष्ट्रस्य च तथा पुप्लुवे स महाकपिः ।
शुकस्य च महावेगः सारणस्य च धीमतः ॥ २० ॥

That great Hanumān, who was possessed of extraordinary speed, similarly bounded into the house of Vajradamṣṭra as also into the houses of Śuka and the wise Sāraṇa. (20)

तथा चेन्द्रजितो वेश्म जगाम हरियूथपः ।
जम्बुमालेः सुमालेश्च जगाम हरिसत्तमः ॥ २१ ॥

Hanumān, the commander of monkey forces, likewise passed on to the palace of Indrajit (Rāvaṇa's eldest son) and then that jewel among the monkeys went into the dwellings of Jambumālī and Sumālī. (21)

रश्मिकेतोश्च भवनं सूर्यशत्रोस्तथैव च ।
वज्रकायस्य च तथा पुप्लुवे स महाकपिः ॥ २२ ॥

That great Hanumān also leapt into the abode of Rasmiketu, and likewise into that of Sūryaśatru, and similarly into that of Vajrakāya. (22)

धूम्राक्षस्याथ सम्पातेर्भवनं मारुतात्मजः ।
विद्युद्रूपस्य भीमस्य घनस्य विघनस्य च ॥ २३ ॥

शुकनाभस्य चक्रस्य शठस्य कपटस्य च ।
ह्रस्वकर्णस्य दंष्ट्रस्य लोमशस्य च रक्षसः ॥ २४ ॥

युद्धोन्मत्तस्य मत्तस्य ध्वजग्रीवस्य सादिनः ।
विद्युज्जिह्वद्विजिह्वानां तथा हस्तिमुखस्य च ॥ २५ ॥

करालस्य पिशाचस्य शोणिताक्षस्य चैव हि ।
प्लवमानः क्रमेणैव हनुमान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ २६ ॥

तेषु तेषु महार्हेषु भवनेषु महायशाः ।
तेषामृद्धिमतामृद्धिं ददर्श स महाकपिः ॥ २७ ॥

The son of the wind-god Hanumān, then visited the habitations of Dhūmrākṣa, Sampāti, Vidyudrūpa, Bhīma, Ghana and

Vighana, Sukanābha, Cakra, Satha and Kapata, Hraṣwakarṇa, Damstra and the ogre Lomaśa, Yuddhonmatta, Matta, Dhvajagrīva, Sadi, (another) Vidyujjihva and Dwijihva and likewise those of Hastimukha, Karāla, Piśāca and also of Sonitaksa. Leaping one after another into the various mansions of great value, that mighty and highly illustrious Hanumān, son of the wind-god, marked the affluence of those wealthy ogres. (23—27)

सर्वेषां समतिक्रम्य भवनानि समन्ततः ।
आससादाथ लक्ष्मीवान् राक्षसेन्द्रनिवेशनम् ॥ २८ ॥

Passing clearly beyond the residences of all the aforesaid principal ogres on every side, Hanumān, endowed with riches in the form of virility, once more reached the palace of Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres. (28)

रावणस्योपशायिन्यो ददर्श हरिसत्तमः ।
विचरन् हरिशार्दूलो राक्षसीर्विकृतेक्षणाः ॥ २९ ॥

While wandering about the palace of Rāvaṇa, Hanumān, a tiger among the monkeys, beheld a number of ogresses with ghastly eyes, guarding the bed-chamber of Rāvaṇa. (29)

शूलमुद्गरहस्तांश्च शक्तितोमरधारिणः ।
ददर्श विविधानुल्मांस्तस्य रक्षःपतेर्गृहे ॥ ३० ॥

He also saw in the abode of that lord of ogres various troops of ogres bearing darts and clubs in their hands and carrying javelins and lances. (30)

राक्षसांश्च महाकायान् नानाप्रहरणोद्यतान् ।
रक्तान् श्वेतान् सितांश्चापि हरींश्चापि महाजवान् ॥ ३१ ॥

He further observed gigantic ogres with uplifted weapons of every description and also found tethered in the stables red as well as white steeds of high speed. (31)

कुलीनान् रूपसम्पन्नान् गजान् परगजारुजान् ।
शिक्षितान् गजशिक्षायामैरावतसमान् युधि ॥ ३२ ॥
निहन्तृन् परसैन्यानां गृहे तस्मिन् ददर्श सः ।
क्षरतश्च यथा मेघान् स्रवतश्च यथा गिरीन् ॥ ३३ ॥
मेघस्तनितनिर्घोषान् दुर्धर्षान् समरे परैः ।
सहस्रं वाहिनीस्तत्र जाम्बूनदपरिष्कृताः ॥ ३४ ॥

हेमजालैरविच्छिन्नास्तरुणादित्यसंनिभाः ।

ददर्श राक्षसेन्द्रस्य रावणस्य निवेशने ॥ ३५ ॥

He observed in that palace elephants of superior breed, vanquishers of hostile tuskers and destroyers of hostile forces, which were endowed with grace and had been trained in the methods of warfare carried on with elephants, which were equal in combat to Airāvata, the elephant who carries on its back Indra, the ruler of paradise, and discharged fluid from their temples like raining clouds and mountains sending forth rills and springs etc., nay, whose trumpeting resembled the thundering of clouds and which were hard to assail for the foes. Hanumān also beheld in the abode of Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, thousands of garrisons adorned with jewels of pure gold (found in the bed of the Jammu river), nay, fully protected with armours of gold and, therefore, shining brightly like the morning sun. (32—35)

शिबिका विविधाकाराः स कपिर्मारुतात्मजः ।

लतागृहाणि चित्राणि चित्रशालागृहाणि च ॥ ३६ ॥

क्रीडागृहाणि चान्यानि दारुपर्वतकानि च ।

कामस्य गृहकं रम्यं दिवागृहकमेव च ॥ ३७ ॥

ददर्श राक्षसेन्द्रस्य रावणस्य निवेशने ।

स मन्दरसमप्रख्यं मयूरस्थानसंकुलम् ॥ ३८ ॥

ध्वजयष्टिभिराकीर्णं ददर्श भवनोत्तमम् ।

अनन्तरत्ननिचयं निधिजालं समन्ततः ।

धीरनिष्ठितकर्माङ्गं गृहं भूतपतेरिव ॥ ३९ ॥

The aforesaid Hanumān, son of the wind-god, further observed in the palace of Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, palanquins of various shapes, wonderful bowers and buildings with picture galleries duly provided in them as also other pleasure-houses with wooden mountains, a lovely house for sexual delights and a diurnal pleasure-house as well. He found the excellent palace having an appearance like that of Mount Mandāra and crowded with pens for peacocks, thickly set with flagstaves, and enriched with heaps of endless precious stones and collections of treasures on all sides. Sacrifices forming part of the ritual were performed there for the preservation of those treasures by fearless and resolute priests, so that the palace looked like the mansion of Kubera (the ruler of riches). (36—39)

अर्घिभिश्चापि रत्नानां तेजसा रावणस्य च ।

विराज च तद् वेश्म रश्मिवानिव रश्मिभिः ॥ ४० ॥

Due to the rays of its precious stones and the splendour of Rāvaṇa, the aforesaid palace shone brightly like the sun encircled by its myriad rays. (40)

जाम्बूनदमयान्येव शयनान्यासनानि च ।

भाजनानि च शुभाणि ददर्श हरियूथपः ॥ ४१ ॥

Hanumān, a leader of monkey hordes, beheld in that palace couches and seats and glittering vessels all made of gold. (41)

मध्वासवकृतक्लेदं मणिभाजनसंकुलम् ।

मनोरममसम्बाधं कुबेरभवनं यथा ॥ ४२ ॥

नूपुराणां च घोषेण काञ्चीनां निःस्वनेन च ।

मृदङ्गतलनिर्घोषैर्घोषवद्भिर्विनादितम् ॥ ४३ ॥

प्रासादसंघातयुतं स्त्रीरत्नशतसंकुलम् ।

सुव्यूढकक्ष्यं हनुमान् प्रविवेश महागृहम् ॥ ४४ ॥

Hanumān penetrated deep into the huge, beautiful and commodious edifice, whose floors remained wet with wines and liquors (spilt now and then), which was full of vessels made of gems and looked like the mansion of Kubera, nay, which was resonant with the tinkling of anklets, the jingling of girdles, the sound of clapping and the crash of wooden tomtoms and other deep-sounding musical instruments of percussion, which consisted of multitudes of lofty mansions and was crowded with hundreds of excellent women and encircled by a number of spacious concentric enclosures. (42—44)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे षष्ठः सर्गः ॥ ६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Six in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तमः सर्गः

Canto VII

The poet incidentally draws a pen-picture of Rāvaṇa's palace and his aerial car known by the name of Puṣpaka

स वेश्मजालं बलवान् ददर्श
व्यासक्तवैदूर्यसुवर्णजालम् ।
यथा महत्प्रावृषि मेघजालं
विद्युत्पिनद्धं सविहङ्गजालम् ॥ १ ॥

The mighty Hanumān beheld the collection of buildings comprising the palace of Rāvaṇa to which were fitted lattices of gold inlaid with cat's-eyes, which was full of flocks of birds and looked like a huge mass of clouds pierced by lightning in the rainy season. (1)

निवेशनानां विविधाश्च शालाः
प्रधानशङ्खयुधचापशालाः ।
मनोहराश्चापि पुनर्विशाला
ददर्श वेश्माद्रिषु चन्द्रशालाः ॥ २ ॥

He also observed various apartments forming part of the buildings and stored with excellent conches, bows and other weapons and further saw soul-captivating and commodious attics on top of the mountain-like mansions. (2)

गृहाणि नानावसुरार्जितानि
देवासुरैश्चापि सुपूजितानि ।
सर्वैश्च दोषैः परिवर्जितानि
कपिर्ददर्श स्वबलार्जितानि ॥ ३ ॥

Hanumān also beheld mansions enriched with treasures of various kinds and held in great veneration even by gods and demons, which were completely free from all sorts of flaws and which had been acquired from the possession of Kubera by dint of might. (3)

तानि प्रयत्नाभिसमाहितानि
मयेन साक्षादिव निर्मितानि ।
महीतले सर्वगुणोत्तराणि
ददर्श लंकाधिपतेर्गृहाणि ॥ ४ ॥

He saw those mansions of Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of Laṅkā, which had been disposed with great effort and had been constructed, as it were, by Maya (the architect of the demons, noted for his magical skill), himself and which were superior on the earth's surface from the point of all excellences. (4)

ततो ददर्शोच्छ्रितमेघरूपं
मनोहरं काञ्चनचारुरूपम् ।
रक्षोऽधिपस्यात्मबलानुरूपं
गृहोत्तमं ह्यप्रतिरूपरूपम् ॥ ५ ॥
महीतले स्वर्गमिव प्रकीर्णं
श्रिया ज्वलन्तं बहुरत्नकीर्णम् ।
नानातरूपां कुसुमावकीर्णं
गिरेरिवाग्रं रजसावकीर्णम् ॥ ६ ॥
नारीप्रवेकैरिव दीप्यमानं
तडिद्भिरम्भोधरमर्च्यमानम् ।
हंसप्रवेकैरिव बाह्यमानं
श्रिया युतं खे सुकृतं विमानम् ॥ ७ ॥

He then beheld the excellent and soul-captivating palace of Rāvaṇa, the suzerain ruler of ogres, of incomparable loveliness, nay, having the appearance of a towering cloud and possessing the effulgence of gold and worthy of his own extraordinary might, which was heaven, as it were, descended on earth and was blazing with splendour, which was full of numerous precious stones and strewn with the flowers of various trees, which looked like the summit of a mountain covered with pollen; nay, which was lit up by jewel-like women as a cloud adorned with flashes of lightning and looked like a beautifully made aerial car full of splendour and being drawn in the skies by excellent swans. (5—7)

यथा नगाग्रं बहुधातुचित्रं
यथा नभश्च ग्रहचन्द्रचित्रम् ।
ददर्श युक्तीकृतचारुमेघ-
चित्रं विमानं बहुरत्नचित्रम् ॥ ८ ॥

Hanumān also beheld in that palace an aerial car decked with numerous precious stones and charming like a beautiful cloud endowed with many hues by the rays of the sun, which resembled a mountain-peak, looking picturesque with numerous minerals, and the firmament illumined by planets including the moon. (8)

मही कृता पर्वतराजिपूर्णा
शैलाः कृता वृक्षवितानपूर्णाः ।
वृक्षाः कृताः पुष्पवितानपूर्णाः
पुष्पं कृतं केसरपत्रपूर्णम् ॥ ९ ॥

The ground on which those intending to board the aerial car stood had been provided with rows of artificial hills of gems, gold, etc., the latter in their turn were covered with clusters of trees, also artificial, the trees were clothed with bunches of artificial flowers, while the flowers were made full with filaments and petals. (9)

कृतानि वेश्मानि च पाण्डुराणि
तथा सुपुष्पाण्यपि पुष्कराणि ।
पुनश्च पद्मानि सकेसराणि
वनानि चित्राणि सरोवराणि ॥ १० ॥

White mansions had been erected in it and likewise pools, with lovely flowers; again, lotuses with filaments had been planted and charming groves grown and lakes too had been constructed. (10)

पुष्पाह्वयं नाम विराजमानं
रत्नप्रभाभिश्च विघूर्णमानम् ।
वेश्मोत्तमानामपि चोच्चमानं
महाकपिस्तत्र महाविमानम् ॥ ११ ॥

Thus, Hanumān, the great monkey, saw there the vast aerial car bearing the name of Puṣpaka, derived from the word 'Puṣpa' (a flower), capable of travelling long distances and shining brightly with the rays of precious stones, nay, enjoying an exalted rank among the foremost of aerial cars, serving as the residence of gods. (11)

कृताश्च वैदूर्यमया विहङ्गा
रूप्यप्रवालैश्च तथा विहङ्गाः ।
चित्राश्च नानावसुभिर्भुजङ्गा
जात्यानुरूपास्तुरगाः शुभाङ्गाः ॥ १२ ॥

Birds of cat's-eye gems as well as those fashioned of silver and corals, nay, lovely serpents made of various jewels and also horses of beautiful limbs, resembling steeds of a noble breed, figured there. (12)

प्रवालजाम्बूनदपुष्पपक्षाः
सलीलमावर्जितजिह्वापक्षाः ।
कामस्य साक्षादिव भान्ति पक्षाः
कृता विहङ्गाः सुमुखाः सुपक्षाः ॥ १३ ॥

Birds of charming beaks and lovely wings had been carved, which bore on their wings flowers of corals and sterling gold, which had playfully contracted their slanting wings and which looked like allies of Cupid himself. (13)

नियुज्यमानाश्च गजाः सुहस्ताः
सकेसराश्चोत्पलपत्रहस्ताः ।
बभूव देवी च कृतासुहस्ता
लक्ष्मीस्तथा पद्मिनि पद्महस्ता ॥ १४ ॥

In a lotus-pool within the Puṣpaka could be seen artificial elephants with shapely trunks and covered with filaments of lotuses engaged in offering worship to Goddess Lakṣmī (the goddess of fortune and Consort of Lord Viṣṇu) with lotus-petals held in their trunks, and an image of Goddess Lakṣmī too had been fashioned with four graceful hands and holding a lotus in Her hand. (14)

इतीव तद्गृहमभिगम्य शोभनं
सविस्मयो नगमिव चारुकन्दरम् ।
पुनश्च तत्परमसुगन्धि सुन्दरं
हिमात्यये नगमिव चारुकन्दरम् ॥ १५ ॥

Hanumān was thus filled with wonder on visiting that splendid and beautiful aerial car, resembling a mountain, with lovely caverns and further looking like a tree with charming hollows and supremely fragrant during the spring-time (lit., the close of winter). (15)

ततः स तां कपिरभिपत्य पूजितां
चरन् पुरीं दशमुखबाहुपालिताम् ।
अदृश्य तां जनकसुतां सुपूजितां
सुदुःखितां पतिगुणवेगनिर्जिताम् ॥ १६ ॥

Reaching that honoured city, protected by the arms of Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, and not finding anywhere, even though moving about freely, that daughter of King Janaka, highly respected and sore afflicted and conquered by the force of her consort's virtues, Hanumān presently felt very miserable. (16)

ततस्तदा बहुविधभावितात्मनः
कृतात्मनो जनकसुतां सुवर्त्मनः ।
अपश्यतोऽभवदतिदुःखितं मनः
सचक्षुषः प्रविचरतो महात्मनः ॥ १७ ॥

The mind of the high-souled Hanumān, who had contemplated on the Supreme Spirit in many ways and disciplined his self, nay, who always followed the right path and who kept his eyes open, thereupon became sore distressed when he did not perceive Sītā on that occasion, though ranging wide. (17)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे सप्तमः सर्गः ॥ ७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seven in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टमः सर्गः

Canto VIII

A further description of the aerial car, Puṣpaka

स तस्य मध्ये भवनस्य संस्थितो
महद्विमानं मणिरत्नचित्रितम् ।
प्रतप्तजाम्बूनदजालकृत्रिमं
ददर्श धीमान् पवनात्मजः कपिः ॥ १ ॥

Stationed in the centre of the aforesaid palace, that intelligent Hanumān, sprung from the loins of the wind-god, beheld a vast aerial car, rendered picturesque by gems and jewels and distinguished by the structure of lattice windows of highly refined gold. (1)

तदप्रमेयप्रतिकारकृत्रिमं
कृतं स्वयं साध्विति विश्वकर्मणा ।
दिवं गते वायुपथे प्रतिष्ठितं
व्यराजतादित्यपथस्य लक्ष्म तत् ॥ २ ॥

The aerial car was embellished with images etc., of immeasurable beauty and made by Viśwakarmā (the artisan of gods) himself, as an excellent achievement. Placed on the aerial path lying in the heavens it shone brightly as a beacon-light in the orbit of the sun. (2)

न तत्र किञ्चिन् कृतं प्रयत्नतो
न तत्र किञ्चिन् महार्घरत्नवत् ।
न ते विशेषा नियताः सुरेष्वपि
न तत्र किञ्चिन् महाविशेषवत् ॥ ३ ॥

There was nothing in that structure which had not been executed with special effort and there was no part of it which was not inlaid with precious stones of great value. The specialities which were incorporated into it were not to be found even in the abodes of gods and there was nothing in it which was not marked with some great speciality. (3)

तपः समाधानपराक्रमार्जितं
 मनःसमाधानविचारचारिणम् ।
 अनेकसंस्थानविशेषनिर्मितं
 ततस्ततस्तुल्यविशेषनिर्मितम् ॥ ४ ॥
 मनः समाधाय तु शीघ्रगामिनं
 दुरासदं मारुततुल्यगामिनम् ।
 महात्मनां पुण्यकृतां महर्द्धिनां
 यशस्विनामग्न्यमुदामिवालयम् ॥ ५ ॥
 विशेषमालम्ब्य विशेषसंस्थितं
 विचित्रकूटं बहुकूटमण्डितम् ।
 मनोऽभिरामं शरदिन्दुनिर्मलं
 विचित्रकूटं शिखरं गिरेर्यथा ॥ ६ ॥
 वहन्ति यत्कुण्डलशोभितानना
 महाशना व्योमचरानिशाचराः ।
 विवृत्तविध्वस्तविशाललोचना
 महाजवा भूतगणाः सहस्रशः ॥ ७ ॥
 वसन्तपुष्पोत्करचारुदर्शनं
 वसन्तमासादपि चारुदर्शनम् ।
 स पुष्पकं तत्र विमानमुत्तमं
 ददर्श तद् वानरवीरसत्तमः ॥ ८ ॥

That prince among monkey-heroes,
 Hanumān, saw in that palace the excellent aerial car, Puṣpaka, which had been secured by Rāvaṇa by dint of prowess acquired through askesis and concentration of mind on Lord Śiva, which went wherever the thought of its master directed it after concentration of mind, nay, which had been constructed according to specific models and prepared with special, appropriate materials collected from various places; which moved swiftly following the mind of its master and was difficult to approach for the sinful, nay, which sped as swiftly as the wind and could be occupied only by exalted souls who had performed meritorious deeds and acquired enormous merit of askesis, were illustrious and enjoyed the foremost happiness; which, having partaken of a peculiarity of its own, had been shaped in a peculiar fashion, which was a veritable collection of curios and was adorned with numerous apartments, which was soul-captivating and bright as the autumnal moon and looked like a mountain-peak with a number of lovely, smaller pinnacles; which was borne by hosts of genii, thousands in number, whose faces were adorned with earrings, who were voracious eaters and had large rolling and unwinking eyes, were endowed with tremendous speed, nay, who travelled through space and ranged at night;

 and which, with its bunches of vernal flowers, was charming to look at and was lovelier even than the vernal month. (4—8)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डेऽष्टमः सर्गः ॥ ८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eight in the Sundarākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

नवमः सर्गः

Canto IX

Leaping up the Puṣpaka in the course of his quest for Sītā in the palace of Rāvaṇa, Hanumān gazes from that vantage-ground on the hosts of women lying asleep in the women's apartments in diverse states

तस्यालयवरिष्ठस्य मध्ये विमलमायतम् ।
ददर्श भवनश्रेष्ठं हनुमान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ १ ॥
अर्धयोजनविस्तीर्णमायतं योजनं महत् ।
भवनं राक्षसेन्द्रस्य बहुप्रासादसंकुलम् ॥ २ ॥

In the centre of that palace, the most excellent of all edifices, Hanumān, sprung from the loins of the wind-god, espied the huge, spotless and spacious mansion of Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, the foremost of all buildings, half a Yojana (or four miles) wide and a Yojana (or eight miles) long and crowded with numerous edifices. (1-2)

मार्गमाणस्तु वैदेहीं सीतामायतलोचनाम् ।
सर्वतः परिचक्राम हनुमानरिसूदनः ॥ ३ ॥

Looking about for the large-eyed Sītā, a princess of the Vedeha territory, Hanumān, the slayer of his foes, ranged all over in that palace. (3)

उत्तमं राक्षसावासं हनुमानवलोकयन् ।
आससादाथ लक्ष्मीवान् राक्षसेन्द्रनिवेशनम् ॥ ४ ॥

Gazing on the excellent abode of the ogres, Hanumān, who was full of riches in the form of strength and valour, presently approached the mansion of Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres. (4)

चतुर्विषाणैर्द्विरदैस्त्रिविषाणैस्तथैव च ।
परिक्षिप्तमसम्बाधं रक्ष्यमाणमुदायुधैः ॥ ५ ॥

The commodious edifice was surrounded by elephants with four, two and three tusks respectively and was being guarded by ogres with uplifted weapons. (5)

राक्षसीभिश्च पत्नीभी रावणस्य निवेशनम् ।
आहृताभिश्च विक्रम्य राजकन्याभिरावृतम् ॥ ६ ॥

The mansion was thronged with ogresses, who were wives of Rāvaṇa as well as by princesses who had been brought away by him after showing valour. (6)

तन्क्रमकराकीर्णं तिमिंगिलझषाकुलम् ।
वायुवेगसमाधूतं पन्नगैरिव सागरम् ॥ ७ ॥

It looked like a sea infested with crocodiles and alligators, crowded with whales and other fishes, tossed by the force of winds and teeming with serpents. (7)

या हि वैश्रवणे लक्ष्मीर्या चन्द्रे हरिवाहने ।
सा रावणगृहे रम्या नित्यमेवानपायिनी ॥ ८ ॥

The lovely splendour that hangs about Kubera (son of Sage Viśravā), the moon and Indra (who has a greenish mount) ever existed in the abode of Rāvaṇa and never departed from it. (8)

या च राज्ञः कुबेरस्य यमस्य वरुणस्य च ।
तादृशी तद्विशिष्टा वा ऋद्धी रक्षोगृहेष्विह ॥ ९ ॥

In the dwellings of the ogres in Laṅkā was found the same prosperity or even greater than that which reigned in the residences of King Kubera (the ruler of Yakṣas and other demigods), Yama (the god of retribution) and Varuṇa (the god of waters). (9)

तस्य हर्म्यस्य मध्यस्थवेश्म चान्यत् सुनिर्मितम् ।
बहुनिर्यूहसंयुक्तं ददर्श पवनात्मजः ॥ १० ॥

Hanumān, sprung from the loins of the wind-god, beheld another edifice in the centre of the aforesaid mansion, which was beautifully constructed and marked with the presence of numerous elephants in rut. (10)

ब्रह्मणोऽर्थे कृतं दिव्यं दिवि यद् विश्वकर्मणा ।
विमानं पुष्पकं नाम सर्वरत्नविभूषितम् ॥ ११ ॥

परेण तपसा लेभे यत् कुबेरः पितामहात् ।
कुबेरमोजसा जित्वा लेभे तद् राक्षसेश्वरः ॥ १२ ॥

Conquering Kubera by dint of his superior physical strength, Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, had won as a booty that heavenly aerial car, Puṣpaka by name, which had been constructed in heaven for Brahmā, the creator, by Viśwakarmā, the architect of gods and was embellished with all kinds of precious stones, and which Kubera had secured by virtue of his severest asceticism from Brahmā (the grandfather of the entire creation, which was brought forth by his mind-born sons, the Prajāpatis). (11-12)

ईहामृगसमायुक्तैः कार्तस्वरहिरण्यैः ।
सुकृतैराचितं स्तम्भैः प्रदीप्तमिव च श्रिया ॥ १३ ॥
मेरुमन्दरसंकाशैरुल्लिखद्भिरिवाम्बरम् ।
कूटागारैः शुभागारैः सर्वतः समलंकृतम् ॥ १४ ॥
ज्वलनार्कप्रतीकाशैः सुकृतं विश्वकर्मणा ।
हेमसोपानयुक्तं च चारुप्रवरवेदिकम् ॥ १५ ॥
जालवातायनैर्युक्तं काञ्चनैः स्फाटिकैरपि ।
इन्द्रनीलमहानीलमणिप्रवरवेदिकम् ॥ १६ ॥
विद्रुमेण विचित्रेण मणिभिश्च महाधनैः ।
निस्तुलाभिश्च मुक्ताभिस्तलेनाभिविराजितम् ॥ १७ ॥
चन्दनेन च रक्तेन तपनीयनिभेन च ।
सुपुण्यगन्धिना युक्तमादित्यतरुणोपमम् ॥ १८ ॥
कूटागारैर्वराकारैर्विविधैः समलंकृतम् ।
विमानं पुष्पकं दिव्यमारुरोह महाकपिः ।
तत्रस्थः सर्वतो गन्धं पानभक्ष्यानसम्भवम् ॥ १९ ॥
दिव्यं सम्पूच्छितं जिघ्रन् रूपवन्तमिवानिलम् ।
स गन्धस्तं महासत्त्वं बन्धुर्बन्धुमिवोत्तमम् ॥ २० ॥
इत एहीत्युवाचेव तत्र यत्र स रावणः ।
ततस्तां प्रस्थितः शालां ददर्श महतीं शिवाम् ॥ २१ ॥
रावणस्य महाकान्तां कान्तामिव वरस्त्रियम् ।
मणिसोपानविकृतां हेमजालविराजिताम् ॥ २२ ॥
स्फाटिकैरावृततलां दन्तान्तरितरूपिकाम् ।
मुक्तावज्रप्रवालैश्च रूप्यचामीकरैरपि ॥ २३ ॥
विभूषितां मणिस्तम्भैः सुबहुस्तम्भभूषिताम् ।
समैर्ऋजुभिरत्युच्चैः समन्तात् सुविभूषितैः ॥ २४ ॥
स्तम्भैः पक्षैरिवात्युच्चैर्दिवं सम्प्रस्थितामिव ।
महत्या कुथयाऽऽस्तीर्णा पृथिवीलक्षणाङ्ग्या ॥ २५ ॥

पृथिवीमिव विस्तीर्णा सराष्ट्रगृहशालिनीम् ।
नादितां मत्तविहगैर्दिव्यगन्धाधिवासिताम् ॥ २६ ॥
परध्व्यस्तरणोपेतां रक्षोऽधिपनिषेविताम् ।
धूम्रामगुरुधूपेन विमलां हंसपाण्डुराम् ॥ २७ ॥
पत्रपुष्पोपहारेण कल्माषीमिव सुप्रभाम् ।
मनसो मोदजननीं वर्णस्यापि प्रसाधिनीम् ॥ २८ ॥
तां शोकनाशिनीं दिव्यां श्रियः संजननीमिव ।
इन्द्रियाणीन्द्रियार्थैस्तु पञ्च पञ्चभिरुत्तमैः ॥ २९ ॥
तर्पयामास मातेव तदा रावणपालिता ।
स्वर्गोऽयं देवलकोऽयमिन्द्रस्यापि पुरी भवेत् ।
सिद्धिर्वेयं परा हि स्यादित्यमन्यत मारुतिः ॥ ३० ॥

Hanumān, the mighty monkey, leapt up the heavenly aerial car, Puṣpaka, which was supported by well-fashioned pillars of gold and silver, embellished with images of wolves, and which was ablaze, as it were, with splendour; which was graced on all sides with secret cells and pleasure-houses, resembling Meru and Mandāra mountains, brilliant as fire and the sun and scraping the heavens, as it were; which had been constructed well by Viśwakarmā, the architect of gods, had stairways of gold and charming and excellent platforms radiant with sapphires and emeralds, was provided with lattice windows of gold as well as of crystal, was embellished on all sides with floors inlaid with lovely coral and precious gems and matchless pearls and which shone like the rising sun painted as it was with the sandal, bright as heated gold and emitting a pure odour. Standing there, he smelt red heavenly odour coming from drinks and foods including cooked rice and diffused on all sides—odour which impinged on him as though it were solid air. That odour called, as it were, Hanumān, who was endowed with extraordinary vitality, even as a relation would call an esteemed relative, to the place where Rāvaṇa was, saying 'Come hither.'

Set out from there he beheld that well-known, wonderful, spacious and cosy hall which was the most beloved of Rāvaṇa as a loved belle, had stairways of gems constructed with extra care and was adorned with lattice windows of gold; whose floors were covered with slabs of crystal inlaid with figures of ivory, pearls, diamonds and corals as well as of silver and gold; which was embellished with pillars of gems, uniform, straight and very tall and highly ornamented as well as with numerous other pillars; which, supported, as it was, on very lofty pillars looking like so many wings, had duly set out, as it were, on its flight to heaven; whose floor was covered with a large carpet with designs of mountains, trees and rivers etc., the features of the earth's surface executed on it; which was extensive like the earth and looked charming with mural representations of various countries and dwellings; which was rendered noisy by birds in heat and ever remained scented with celestial odours; which was hung with excellent tapestries and was inhabited by Rāvaṇa, the suzerain ruler of ogres; which remained smoky with fumes of incense made of agallocum, though spotless and white as a swan; nay, which, with its offerings of leaves and flowers, looked variegated, as it were, was full of great effulgence and soul-ravishing and served as an adornment even to splendour; which banished all grief and gave birth to prosperity, as it were. Like a mother, the chamber protected by Rāvaṇa gratified on that occasion all the five senses of Hanumān with the excellent five objects of those senses. Hanumān, son of the wind-god, speculated that the place where he stood might indeed be paradise or that it might be the realm of the principal gods, the city of Indra, the ruler of gods, or that it might be the realm of Brahmā, the attainment of which constitutes the highest achievement on the material plane. (13—30)

प्रध्यायत इवापश्यत् प्रदीपांस्तत्र काञ्चनान्।

धूर्तानिव महाधूर्तैर्देवनेन पराजितान्॥ ३१॥

Hanumān found the lights burning steadily inside lamps of gold mounted on lamp posts also of gold and bedimmed, as it were, by the splendour of Rāvaṇa in that chamber as though they were in deep contemplation like gamblers worsted in gambling by expert gamblers. (31)

दीपानां च प्रकाशेन तेजसा रावणस्य च।

अर्चिर्भिर्भूषणानां च प्रदीप्तेत्यभ्यमन्यत॥ ३२॥

He thought that the chamber was ablaze with the brilliance of the lights and the glory of Rāvaṇa as also with the splendour of the ornaments. (32)

ततोऽपश्यत् कुथासीनं नानावर्णाम्बरस्रजम्।

सहस्रं वरनारीणां नानावेषविभूषितम्॥ ३३॥

परिवृत्तेऽर्धरात्रे तु पाननिद्रावशंगतम्।

क्रीडित्वोपरतं रात्रौ प्रसुप्तं बलवत् तदा॥ ३४॥

Next he found lying on the carpet at that moment thousands of belles wearing clothes and garlands of diverse hues and clad in various attires, nay, fallen dead asleep at night under the influence of drink and slumber, having retired after sport, half of the night having already passed. (33-34)

तत् प्रसुप्तं विरुरुचे निःशब्दान्तरभूषितम्।

निःशब्दहंसभ्रमरं यथा पद्मवनं महत्॥ ३५॥

Fast asleep and adorned with jewels such as girdle and anklets which did not make their peculiar tinkling sound, that bevy shone brightly like a large bed of lotuses with the swans and bees sitting calm and quiet without any noise. (35)

तासां संवृतदान्तानि मीलिताक्षीणि मारुतिः।

अपश्यत् पद्मगन्धीनि वदनानि सुयोषिताम्॥ ३६॥

Hanumān, son of the wind-god, saw the faces of those belles with their teeth concealed by their sealed lips and their eyes closed and emitting a fragrance akin to that of a lotus. (36)

प्रबुद्धानीव पद्मानि तासां भूत्वा क्षपाक्षये।

पुनः संवृतपत्राणि रात्राविव बभुस्तदा॥ ३७॥

Assuming the shape of full-blown lotuses at the close of night, their faces again looked at that time like lotuses with their petals closed at night. (37)

इमानि मुखपद्मानि नियतं मत्तषट्पदाः ।
अम्बुजानीव फुल्लानि प्रार्थयन्ति पुनः पुनः ॥ ३८ ॥
इति वामन्यत श्रीमानुपपत्त्या महाकपिः ।
मेने हि गुणतस्तानि समानि सलिलोद्भवैः ॥ ३९ ॥

By recourse to reason the glorious and mighty Hanumān presumed that the drunken bees must be repeatedly invoking the hospitality of these lotus-like faces as they do in the case of expanded lotuses; for he regarded the former akin to lotuses (lit., flowers sprung from water). (38-39)

सा तस्य शुशुभे शाला ताभिः स्त्रीभिर्विराजिता ।
शरदीव प्रसन्ना द्यौस्ताराभिरभिशोभिता ॥ ४० ॥

Irradiated by those women that chamber of Rāvaṇa shone like the cloudless sky spangled on all sides with stars in autumn. (40)

स च ताभिः परिवृतः शुशुभे राक्षसाधिपः ।
यथा ह्युदुपतिः श्रीमांस्ताराभिरिव संवृतः ॥ ४१ ॥

And, surrounded by them, Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, actually shone like the glorious moon (lit., the lord of stars) encircled by stars. (41)

याश्च्यवन्तेऽम्बरात् ताराः पुण्यशेषसमावृताः ।
इमास्ताः संगताः कृत्स्ना इति मेने हरिस्तदा ॥ ४२ ॥

Hanumān thought at that time that all those meteors that fell from the heavens, wrapped up in the residue of their exhausted stock of merit had been (re-) united there. (42)

ताराणामिव सुव्यक्तं महतीनां शुभार्चिषाम् ।
प्रभावर्णप्रसादाश्च विरेजुस्तत्र योषिताम् ॥ ४३ ॥

Nay, the lustre, complexion and grace of the women lying there very vividly resembled the brilliance, charm and clearness of big stars radiating bright lustre. (43)

व्यावृत्तकचपीनस्त्रक्प्रकीर्णवरभूषणाः ।
पानव्यायामकालेषु निद्रोपहतचेतसः ॥ ४४ ॥

Their locks and thick garlands thrown into disorder and their excellent jewels scattered at the time of drinking and dancing etc., they had fallen unconscious under the influence of slumber. (44)

व्यावृत्ततिलकाः काश्चित् काश्चिदुद्भ्रान्तनूपुराः ।
पाश्वे गलितहाराश्च काश्चित् परमयोषितः ॥ ४५ ॥

Some of them had the sacred marks on their forehead wiped off, others had their anklets thrown on their ankles, while still other belles had their necklaces fallen off by their side. (45)

मुक्ताहारवृताश्चान्याः काश्चित् प्रस्त्रस्तवाससः ।
व्याविद्धरशनादामाः किशोर्य इव वाहिताः ॥ ४६ ॥

Some lay covered by their broken necklaces, while others had their raiment slipped off, while yet others, who had the strings of their girdles snapped, lay like young mares which had been made to carry loads and fallen asleep under a spell of exertion. (46)

अकुण्डलधराश्चान्या विच्छिन्नमृदितस्त्रजः ।
गजेन्द्रमृदिताः फुल्ला लता इव महावने ॥ ४७ ॥

Some did not have any earrings (which had obviously dropped in the course of their dancing etc.,) while others had their garlands broken and crushed and looked like blossomed creepers lying crushed by a lordly elephant in a large forest. (47)

चन्द्रांशुकिरणाभाश्च हाराः कासांचिदुदगताः ।
हंसा इव बभुः सुप्ताः स्तनमध्येषु योषिताम् ॥ ४८ ॥

Again, the pearl-necklaces of some women which had come out, shone like the rays of the moon and the sun, appeared like swans lying asleep in the space between their breasts. (48)

अपरासां च वैदूर्याः कादम्बा इव पक्षिणः ।
हेमसूत्राणि चान्यासां चक्रवाका इवाभवन् ॥ ४९ ॥

Necklaces of cat's-eye gems on the breasts of some ladies looked like Kadamba birds (a species of geese with dark-grey wings), while chains of gold on the breasts of others appeared like Cakrawāka birds. (49)

हंसकारण्डवोपेताश्चक्रवाकोपशोभिताः ।
आपगा इव ता रेजुर्जघनैः पुलिनैरिव ॥ ५० ॥

With their thighs for banks, they looked like rivers characterized by swans and ducks and graced by Cakrawākas. (50)

किङ्किणीजालसंकाशास्ता हेमविपुलाम्बुजाः ।
भावग्राहा यशस्तीराः सुप्ता नद्य इवाबभूः ॥ ५१ ॥

With the tiny bells forming part of their girdles for buds, the gold ornaments for big lotuses, the amorous gestures appearing on their person in their dream for alligators and their splendour for river banks, the women while asleep looked like so many streams. (51)

मृदुष्वङ्गेषु कासांचित् कुचाग्रेषु च संस्थिताः ।
बभूवुर्भूषणानीव शुभा भूषणराजयः ॥ ५२ ॥

The charming marks of ornaments imprinted on their tender limbs as well as on the nipples of some women looked like so many ornaments. (52)

अंशुकान्ताश्च कासांचिन्मुखमारुतकम्पिताः ।
उपर्युपरि वक्त्राणां व्याधूयन्ते पुनः पुनः ॥ ५३ ॥

Shaken by the breaths of their mouths, the ends of the upper garments drawn over the faces of some women fluttered again and again. (53)

ताः पताका इवोद्धृताः पत्नीनां रुचिरप्रभाः ।
नानावर्णसुवर्णानां वक्त्रमूलेषु रेजिरे ॥ ५४ ॥

Those pieces of cloth drawn over the lower parts of the faces of Rāvaṇa's consorts of diverse lovely complexions waved like streamers of agreeable splendour. (54)

ववल्गुश्चात्र कासांचित् कुण्डलानि शुभार्चिषाम् ।
मुखमारुतसंकम्पैर्मन्दं मन्दं च योषिताम् ॥ ५५ ॥

The earrings of some women of charming splendour gently vibrated due to the movements of the breaths escaping from their nostrils/mouths. (55)

शर्करासवगन्धः स प्रकृत्या सुरभिः सुखः ।
तासां वदननिःश्वासः सिषेवे रावणं तदा ॥ ५६ ॥

Emitting the odour of spirituous liquor extracted from sugar, the well-known breath escaping from their mouth, which was naturally fragrant and delightful, was refreshing Rāvaṇa at that time. (56)

रावणाननशंकाश्च काश्चिद् रावणयोषितः ।
मुखानि च सपत्नीनामुपाजिघ्रन् पुनः पुनः ॥ ५७ ॥

Nay, some consorts of Rāvaṇa smelt again and again the mouths of other co-wives, suspecting them to be Rāvaṇa's mouth due to infatuation caused by intoxication and sleep. (57)

अत्यर्थं सक्तमनसो रावणे ता वरस्त्रियः ।
अस्वतन्त्राः सपत्नीनां प्रियमेवाचरन्तदा ॥ ५८ ॥

No longer master of themselves, their mind being excessively attached to Rāvaṇa, the aforesaid belles thereby brought delight only at that time to other co-wives, who too in their turn smelt the mouths of other co-wives, mistaking them to be Rāvaṇa's. (58)

बाहूनुपनिधायान्याः पारिहार्यविभूषितान् ।
अंशुकानि च रम्याणि प्रमदास्तत्र शिष्यरे ॥ ५९ ॥

Some young woman lay there placing their arms adorned with bracelets under their heads by way of a pillow, while others did so placing their lovely garments under their head. (59)

अन्या वक्षसि चान्यस्यास्तस्याः काचित् पुनर्भुजम् ।
अपरा त्वङ्गमन्यस्यास्तस्याश्चाप्यपरा कुचौ ॥ ६० ॥

A certain woman lay with her head resting on another's bosom, while another lay using the latter's arm as a pillow. Yet another for her part lay converting the lap of another into a pillow, while a third lay turning the latter's breasts into a pillow. (60)

ऊरुपाश्वर्कटीपृष्ठमन्योन्यस्य समाश्रिताः ।
परस्परनिविष्टाङ्गो मदस्नेहवशानुगाः ॥ ६१ ॥

Yielding to the influence of intoxication and love, they rested their heads on the thighs, sides, waist and backs of one another, their limbs placed on one another's limbs.

(61)

अन्योन्यस्यांगसंस्पर्शात् प्रीयमाणाः सुमध्यमाः ।

एकीकृतभुजाः सर्वाः सुषुपुस्तत्र योषितः ॥ ६२ ॥

Feeling delighted with the touch of one another's limbs, their arms intertwined, all the women, who were distinguished by their slender waist, were lying asleep there. (62)

अन्योन्यभुजसूत्रेण स्त्रीमाला ग्रथिता हि सा ।

मालेव ग्रथिता सूत्रे शुशुभे मत्तषट्पदा ॥ ६३ ॥

Strung on the arms of one another intertwined as one string, drunken black bees in heat resting over it (in the form of hair and nipples etc.) the aforesaid garland of women looked really charming like a wreath of flowers strung on a thread. (63)

लतानां माधवे मासि फुल्लानां वायुसेवनात् ।

अन्योन्यमालाग्रथितं संसक्तकुसुमोच्चयम् ॥ ६४ ॥

प्रतिवेष्टितसुस्कन्धमन्योन्यभ्रमराकुलम् ।

आसीद् वनमिवोद्धतं स्त्रीवनं रावणस्य तत् ॥ ६५ ॥

Shaken by the breaths from their mouths (in the shape of their covering), that gathering of the consorts of Rāvaṇa, strung together in the form of a garland, with their bunches of flowers joined with one another, their boughs in the form of shoulders interlocked and the black bees in the form of hair promiscuously mixed, looked like a cluster of creepers blossomed in the vernal month of Vaiśākha (corresponding to April) due to the caress of the southern breeze. (64-65)

उचितेष्वपि सुव्यक्तं न तासां योषितां तदा ।

विवेकः शक्य आधातुं भूषणांगाम्बरस्त्रजाम् ॥ ६६ ॥

It was not possible to distinguish at that moment the jewels, the limbs, the raiment and the garlands of those women lying intertwined, as they were, even though the jewels etc., very vividly figured in their customary places. (66)

रावणे सुखसंविष्टे ताः स्त्रियो विविधप्रभाः ।

ज्वलन्तः काञ्चना दीपाः प्रेक्षन्तो निमिषा इव ॥ ६७ ॥

While Rāvaṇa lay comfortably asleep, the deities presiding over the lights burning on lamp posts of gold gazed with unwinking eyes, as it were, on those women of varying splendour whom they dared not look at for fear of Rāvaṇa so long as he was awake

(67)

राजर्षिविप्रदैत्यानां गन्धर्वाणां च योषितः ।

रक्षसां चाभवन् कन्यास्तस्य कामवशंगताः ॥ ६८ ॥

Fallen a prey to lust, unmarried daughters of royal sages, Brahmṇas and demons, as well as of Gandharvas (celestial musicians) and ogres had chosen to become his wives. (68)

युद्धकामेन ताः सर्वा रावणेन हृताः स्त्रियः ।

समदा मदनेनैव मोहिताः काश्चिदागताः ॥ ६९ ॥

Many other women had been borne away by him because he was fond of war (since he thought that their relatives would offer resistance); while yet others, who were drunk with passion, had come of their own accord, infatuated as they were through love. (69)

न तत्र काश्चित् प्रमदाः प्रसह्य

वीर्योपपन्नेन गुणेन लब्धाः ।

न चान्यकामापि न चान्यपूर्वा

विना वरार्हा जनकात्मजां तु ॥ ७० ॥

Even though he was full of prowess, no women among them, excepting, of course, the daughter of Janaka, who was worthy of being adored even by the best, had been forcibly carried off by him; they had been won through eminence in valour, prowess, comeliness etc. Nor was there any who longed for another, nor anyone who had belonged to another in the past. (70)

न चाकुलीना न च हीनरूपा

नादक्षिणा नानुपचारयुक्ता ।

भार्याभवत् तस्य न हीनसत्त्वा

न चापि कान्तस्य न कामनीया ॥ ७१ ॥

Again, no consort of his was low-born, nor devoid of beauty, nor clumsy, nor unadorned, nor feeble, nor repulsive to her husband. (71)

बभूव बुद्धिस्तु हरीश्वरस्य
यदीदृशी राघवधर्मपत्नी ।
इमा महाराक्षसराजभार्याः
सुजातमस्येति हि साधुबुद्धेः ॥ ७२ ॥

The following thought actually entered the mind of the pious-minded Hanumān, the leader of monkeys, that if Sītā, the lawful wife of Śrī Rāma, had been allowed by Rāvaṇa to remain as happy with her husband as those consorts of the mighty Rāvaṇa were, the birth of Rāvaṇa would indeed have been blessed. (72)

पुनश्च सोऽचिन्तयदात्तरूपो
ध्रुवं विशिष्टा गुणतो हि सीता ।
अथायमस्यां कृतवान् महात्मा
लङ्केश्वरः कष्टमनार्यकर्म ॥ ७३ ॥

Nay, Hanumān thought a second time that surely Sītā was superior to all these in point of excellences; that having assumed a deceptive form, this mighty ruler of Laṅkā perpetrated a painful and ignoble deed (in the shape of her abduction) with reference to her. (73)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे नवमः सर्गः ॥ ९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Nine in the Sundarākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

दशमः सर्गः

Canto X

Hanumān catches sight of Rāvaṇa reposing on an excellent couch decked with various ornaments, himself adorned with jewels of every description.

Perceiving Mandodarī graced with bright jewels and lying asleep on a wonderful couch not far from her husband in the midst of dancing girls lying in a disorderly state with diverse musical instruments clasped to their bosom, and taking her to be Sītā, Hanumān gets enraptured and exhibits his joy through various simian gestures such as kissing the end of his tail

तत्र दिव्योपमं मुख्यं स्फाटिकं रत्नभूषितम् ।
अवेक्षमाणो हनुमान् ददर्श शयनासनम् ॥ १ ॥

Looking round, Hanumān observed in that chamber a prominent dais made of crystal and decked with precious stones and appearing like a celestial structure, with a couch placed on it. (1)

दान्तकाञ्चनचित्रांगैर्वैदूर्यैश्च वरासनैः ।
महार्हास्तरणोपेतैरुपपन्नं महाधनैः ॥ २ ॥

It was furnished with excellent couches of great value, made of cat's-eye gems and fitted with component parts made of ivory and gold and with various figures painted on them and covered with precious beds. (2)

तस्य चैकतमे देशे दिव्यमालोपशोभितम् ।
ददर्श पाण्डुरं छत्रं ताराधिपतिसंनिभम् ॥ ३ ॥

In a portion of the dais Hanumān further beheld a white canopy decked with heavenly wreaths and shining brightly like the moon, the lord of stars. (3)

जातरूपपरिक्षिप्तं चित्रभानोः समप्रभम् ।
अशोकमालाविततं ददर्श परमासनम् ॥ ४ ॥

He also saw exceptionally excellent couch overlaid with gold, refulgent as fire and overhung with wreaths of Aśoka flowers. (4)

वालव्यजनहस्ताभिर्वीज्यमानं समन्ततः ।
गन्धैश्च विविधैर्जुष्टं वरधूपेन धूपितम् ॥ ५ ॥

It was being fanned on all sides by women bearing chowries in their hands, was refreshed with perfumes of various kinds and fumigated with excellent incense. (5)

परमास्तरणास्तीर्णमाविकाजिनसंवृतम् ।
दामभिर्वरमाल्यानां समन्तादुपशोभितम् ॥ ६ ॥

It was overspread with an excellent bed, upholstered with sheepskin and decked on every side with wreaths of excellent flowers. (6)

तस्मिञ्जीमूतसंकाशं प्रदीप्तोज्ज्वलकुण्डलम् ।
लोहिताक्षं महाबाहुं महारजतवाससम् ॥ ७ ॥
लोहितेनानुलिप्तांगं चन्दनेन सुगन्धिना ।
संध्यारक्तमिवाकाशे तोयदं सतडिद्गुणम् ॥ ८ ॥
वृतमाभरणैर्दिव्यैः सुरूपं कामरूपिणम् ।
सवृक्षवनगुल्माढ्यं प्रसुप्तमिव मन्दरम् ॥ ९ ॥
क्रीडित्वोपरतं रात्रौ वराभरणभूषितम् ।
प्रियं राक्षसकन्यानां राक्षसानां सुखावहम् ॥ १० ॥
पीत्वाप्युपरतं चापि ददर्श स महाकपिः ।
भास्वरे शयने वीरं प्रसुप्तं राक्षसाधिपम् ॥ ११ ॥

Hanumān, the great monkey, saw the gallant and mighty-armed Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, of a comely exterior with reddened eyes, and closely resembling a cloud in complexion, who was adorned with bright and flashing earrings and clad in robes of golden texture, was smeared all over with fragrant red sandal-paste presented the appearance of a cloud reddened at sunset and illumined with flashes of lightning in the sky, who was adorned with celestial ornaments and was able to change his form at will and who with his twenty arms etc., looked like Mount Mandāra covered with clusters of trees and rich in shrubs; and lying fast asleep, who had retired after dalliance at night and was decked with excellent jewels, was beloved of Rākṣasa (ogre) maids and the delight of ogres and, having drunk to his fill, was lying fast asleep on that magnificent couch. (7—11)

निःश्वसन्तं यथा नागं रावणं वानरोत्तमः ।
आसाद्य परमोद्विग्नः सोपासर्पत् सुभीतवत् ॥ १२ ॥

Extremely disgusted at the sight of that sinful monster on approaching Rāvaṇa, who was snoring like an elephant, Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, shrank back out of repulsion. (12)

अथारोहणमासाद्य वेदिकान्तरमाश्रितः ।
क्षीबं राक्षसशार्दूलं प्रेक्षते स्म महाकपिः ॥ १३ ॥

Then, going down the stairway and stationed on a landing of the stairway at some distance from the dais on which Rāvaṇa lay, the mighty Hanumān began to look intently on the drunken Rāvaṇa, a tiger among the ogres. (13)

शुशुभे राक्षसेन्द्रस्य स्वपतः शयनं शुभम् ।
गन्धहस्तिनि संविष्टे यथा प्रस्त्रवणं महत् ॥ १४ ॥

As Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, lay sleeping, the magnificent couch on which he lay looked like the lofty Praśravana, a mountain with a scent-elephant* (an elephant of the best kind, whose scent alone drives away hostile elephants) lying on it. (14)

काञ्चनाङ्गदसंनद्धौ ददर्श स महात्मनः ।
विक्षिप्तौ राक्षसेन्द्रस्य भुजाविन्द्रध्वजोपमौ ॥ १५ ॥
ऐरावतविषाणाग्रैरापीडनकृतव्रणौ ।
वज्रोल्लिखितपीनांसौ विष्णुचक्रपरिक्षतौ ॥ १६ ॥
पीनौ समसुजातांसौ संगतौ बलसंयुतौ ।
सुलक्षणनखाङ्गुष्ठौ स्वङ्गुलीयकलक्षितौ ॥ १७ ॥
संहतौ परिघाकारौ वृत्तौ करिकरोपमौ ।
विक्षिप्तौ शयने शुभ्रे पञ्चशीर्षाविवोरगौ ॥ १८ ॥

शशक्षतजकल्पेन सुशीतेन सुगन्धिना ।
चन्दनेन परार्धेन स्वनुलिप्तौ स्वलंकृतौ ॥ १९ ॥
उत्तमस्त्रीविमृदितौ गन्धोत्तमनिषेवितौ ।
यक्षपन्नगगन्धर्वदेवदानवराविणौ ॥ २० ॥

He also observed the two outstretched arms of the gigantic lord of ogres, which were adorned with armlets of gold and resembled a pair of flags raised in honour of Indra (on the 12th day of the bright half of Bhādrapada); which bore scars of wounds sustained in combat with the ends of the tusks of Airāvata, the carrier of Indra, nay, whose fleshy shoulders had been lacerated by the thunderbolt of Indra and which had been injured by the discus of Lord Viṣṇu; which were fleshy and culminated in uniform and well-formed shoulders, were tough-jointed and powerful, bore auspicious marks on their nails and thumbs and were characterized by shapely fingers and palms; which were compact and rounded, resembled a pair of iron clubs and were shaped like the tapering proboscis of an elephant and which, while outstretched on the white bed, looked like a pair of five-hooded serpents; which had been artistically smeared with exceptionally excellent, very cool and fragrant sandal-paste of the colour of a hare's blood and profusely adorned; which were strenuously kneaded by belles and had been anointed with excellent perfumes and which made Yakṣas, Nāgas, Gandharvas, gods and demons cry in terror when they dared to oppose him. (15—20)

ददर्श स कपिस्तस्य बाहू शयनसंस्थितौ ।
मन्दरस्यान्तरे सुप्तौ महाही रुषिताविव ॥ २१ ॥

Hanumān gazed on his two arms placed on the couch as though they were two large angry serpents lying asleep in a cave of Mount Mandāra (21)

ताभ्यां स परिपूर्णाभ्यामुभाभ्यां राक्षसेश्वरः ।
शुशुभेऽचलसंकाशः शृंगाभ्यामिव मन्दरः ॥ २२ ॥

With both those fully developed arms, Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, who closely resembled a mountain, looked charming like Mount Mandāra with two* peaks. (22)

चूतपुंनागसुरभिर्बकुलोत्तमसंयुतः ।
मृष्टान्नरससंयुक्तः पानगन्धपुरःसरः ॥ २३ ॥
तस्य राक्षसराजस्य निश्चक्राम महामुखात् ।
शयानस्य विनिःश्वासः पूरयन्निव तद् गृहम् ॥ २४ ॥

Pervading, as it were, the whole of that chamber, issued from the huge mouth of the aforesaid ruler of ogres, even as he lay asleep, breaths carrying the fragrance of the mango and the nutmeg and united with the odour of excellent Bakula flowers, nay, scented with the fragrance of excellent dishes and preceded by the odour of drinks. (23-24)

मुक्तामणिविचित्रेण काञ्चनेन विराजिता ।
मुकुटेनापवृत्तेन कुण्डलोज्ज्वलिताननम् ॥ २५ ॥
रक्तचन्दनदिग्धेन तथा हारेण शोभिना ।
पीनायतविशालेन वक्षसाभिविराजिता ॥ २६ ॥
पाण्डुरेणापविद्धेन क्षौमेण क्षतजेक्षणम् ।
महाहरेण सुसंवीतं पीतेनोत्तरवाससा ॥ २७ ॥
माषराशिप्रतीकाशं निःश्वसन्तं भुजंगवत् ।
गांगे महति तोयान्ते प्रसुप्तमिव कुञ्जरम् ॥ २८ ॥
चतुर्भिः काञ्चनैर्दीपैर्दीप्यमानं चतुर्दिशम् ।
प्रकाशीकृतसर्वाङ्गं मेघं विद्युद्गणैरिव ॥ २९ ॥
पादमूलगताश्चापि ददर्श सुमहात्मनः ।
पत्नीः स प्रियभार्यस्य तस्य रक्षःपतेर्गृहे ॥ ३० ॥

In the palace of that gigantic lord of ogres, the lover of his wives, Hanumān saw Rāvaṇa, whose face was lit up with earrings and who was adorned with a diadem of gold, which was rendered picturesque by pearls and was shining brightly though it had receded a bit from its position; who was

* In these verses Rāvaṇa has been spoken of as having only one head and two arms. This shows that in ordinary circumstances he was endowed with only one head and two arms and that in conflicts only he voluntarily assumed as many as ten heads and twenty-arms.

distinguished by his fleshy, large and broad chest, which was smeared with red sandal-paste and shone brightly with a charming string of pearls: who had blood-red eyes and was covered below the loins with a white silken loin-cloth, which had been dislodged from its position, and was properly covered with a costly yellow upper garment; who resembled a heap of black beans, was hissing like a serpent and looked like an elephant lying fast asleep in a large stream of the holy Gaṅgā; who was being illumined on all the four sides by four lights set on golden pillars and accordingly had all his limbs lit up even as a cloud is irradiated by flashes of lightning—and also looked on his wives lying close by his feet. (25—30)

शशिप्रकाशवदना वरकुण्डलभूषणाः ।
अम्लानमाल्याभरणा ददर्श हरियूथपः ॥ ३१ ॥

Hanumān, a leader of monkey hordes, found them with their faces resplendent as the moon, nay, adorned with excellent earrings and graced with unwithered celestial garlands. (31)

नृत्यवादित्रकुशला राक्षसेन्द्रभुजाङ्गगाः ।
वराभरणधारिण्यो निषण्णा ददृशे कपिः ॥ ३२ ॥

Hanumān saw lying there women who were skilled in dancing and playing on musical instruments, nay, who found a place in the arms and lap of Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, and who wore excellent jewels. (32)

वज्रवैदूर्यगर्भाणि श्रवणान्तेषु योषिताम् ।
ददर्श तापनीयानि कुण्डलान्यंगदानि च ॥ ३३ ॥

He beheld on the lobes of the ears of those women earrings of gold set with diamonds and cat's-eye gems, as well as armlets about their arms. (33)

तासां चन्द्रोपमैर्वक्त्रैः शुभैर्ललितकुण्डलैः ।
विरराज विमानं तन्नभस्तारागणैरिव ॥ ३४ ॥

That chamber, which was shaped like an aerial car, shone brightly with their faces, bright as the moon and graced with lovely earrings, even as the firmament with hosts of stars. (34)

मदव्यायामखिन्नास्ता राक्षसेन्द्रस्य योषितः ।
तेषु तेष्ववकाशेषु प्रसुप्तास्तनुमध्यमाः ॥ ३५ ॥

Languid with intoxication and amorous dalliance, the aforesaid consorts of Rāvaṇa with slender waists had fallen asleep during the varying spells of respite. (35)

अंगहारैस्तथैवान्या कोमलैर्नृत्यशालिनी ।
विन्यस्तशुभसर्वाङ्गी प्रसुप्ता वरवर्णिनी ॥ ३६ ॥

Though fast asleep, a certain woman with an excellent complexion, all of whose limbs had been specially endowed with beauty, likewise appeared graceful in a dancing mood (due to habit) with delicate motions of her limbs. (36)

काचिद् वीणां परिष्वज्य प्रसुप्ता सम्प्रकाशते ।
महानदीप्रकीर्णैव नलिनी पोतमाश्रिता ॥ ३७ ॥

Fallen fast asleep hugging her vina of six strings, another woman looked exceptionally charming like a lotus plant, thrown about in a large river, having clung to a boat. (37)

अन्या कक्षगतेनैव मड्डुकेनासितेक्षणा ।
प्रसुप्ता भामिनी भाति बालपुत्रेव वत्सला ॥ ३८ ॥

Another dark-eyed lovely woman, who had lain fast asleep with a Madduka (a kind of small drum) placed in one of her arm-pits looked like a loving matron with her infant in her lap. (38)

पटहं चारुसर्वाङ्गी न्यस्य शेते शुभस्तनी ।
चिरस्य रमणं लब्ध्वा परिष्वज्येव कामिनी ॥ ३९ ॥

Another woman with lovely breasts and graceful of every limb lay hugging a tambourine as though a passionate woman lay embracing her lover on securing him after a long time. (39)

काचिद् वीणां परिष्वज्य सुप्ता कमललोचना ।
वरं प्रियतमं गृह्य सकामेव हि कामिनी ॥ ४० ॥

Yet another woman with lotus-like eyes lay asleep pressing a vina of six strings to her bosom as though a passionate woman lay clasping her most beloved husband with passion. (40)

विपञ्चीं परिगृह्णान्या नियता नृत्यशालिनी ।

निद्रावशमनुप्राप्ता सहकान्तेव भामिनी ॥ ४१ ॥

Another self-possessed lovely woman, who looked graceful in a dancing mood, had fallen asleep clasping a vina with seven strings as though she lay with her beloved. (41)

अन्या कनकसंकाशैर्मृदुपीनैर्मनोरमैः ।

मृदंगं परिविद्ध्यांगैः प्रसुप्ता मत्तलोचना ॥ ४२ ॥

Another woman with intoxicated eyes lay fast asleep pressing a wooden tomtom to her bosom with her golden, soft, fleshy and soul-ravishing limbs. (42)

भुजपाशान्तरस्थेन कक्षगेन कृशोदरी ।

पणवेन सहानिन्द्या सुप्ता मदकृतश्रमा ॥ ४३ ॥

Another woman with a slender waist and irreproachable in point of beauty, who had been worn out through drunkenness, was lying asleep with a tabor pressed to her bosom (lit., the space between the two arms) and inserted in one of her arm-pits. (43)

डिण्डिमं परिगृह्णान्या तथैवासक्तडिण्डिमा ।

प्रसुप्ता तरुणं वत्समुपगुह्येव भामिनी ॥ ४४ ॥

Another lovely woman lay fast asleep hugging a drum and with another drum slung likewise on her back as though she lay embracing her young husband as also her child. (44)

काचिदाडम्बरं नारी भुजसम्भोगपीडितम् ।

कृत्वा कमलपत्राक्षी प्रसुप्ता मदमोहिता ॥ ४५ ॥

Another woman with eyes resembling the petals of a lotus and infatuated through inebriety lay fast asleep pressing an Āḍambara (a kind of musical instrument) in the compass of her arms. (45)

कलशीमपविद्धयान्या प्रसुप्ता भाति भामिनी ।

वसन्ते पुष्पशबला मालेव परिमार्जिता ॥ ४६ ॥

Lying fast asleep having unconsciously upturned a jug of water (and getting wetted thereby), another lovely woman, lay like a wreath of varied flowers sprinkled with water in spring to keep it green. (46)

पाणिभ्यां च कुचौ काचित् सुवर्णकलशोपमौ ।

उपगुह्याबला सुप्ता निद्राबलपराजिता ॥ ४७ ॥

Overcome by pressure of sleep, still another woman lay asleep pressing with her hands her breasts resembling two golden pitchers. (47)

अन्या कमलपत्राक्षी पूर्णेन्दुसदृशानना ।

अन्यामालिङ्ग्य सुश्रोणीं प्रसुप्ता मदविह्वला ॥ ४८ ॥

Overpowered by drunkenness, a woman with eyes resembling the petals of a lotus and a face resembling the full moon lay fast asleep embracing another woman of lovely hips. (48)

आतोद्यानि विचित्राणि परिष्वज्य वरस्त्रियः ।

निपीड्य च कुचैः सुप्ताः कामिन्यः कामुकानिव ॥ ४९ ॥

Hugging musical instruments of various kinds and pressing them with their breasts as passionate women embrace their lovers, a number of belles could be seen lying there. (49)

तासामेकान्तविन्यस्ते शयानां शयने शुभे ।

ददर्श रूपसम्पन्नामथ तां स कपिः स्त्रियम् ॥ ५० ॥

मुक्तामणिसमायुक्तैर्भूषणैः सुविभूषिताम् ।

विभूषयन्तीमिव च स्वश्रिया भवनोत्तमम् ॥ ५१ ॥

गौरीं कनकवर्णाभामिष्टामन्तःपुरेश्वरीम् ।

कपिर्मन्दोदरीं तत्र शयानां चारुरूपिणीम् ॥ ५२ ॥

स तां दृष्ट्वा महाबाहुर्भूषितां मारुतात्मजः ।

तर्कयामास सीतेति रूपयौवनसम्पदा ।

हर्षेण महता युक्तो ननन्द हरियूथपः ॥ ५३ ॥

Hanumān, then saw, lying asleep there on a magnificent couch set apart from those of the aforesaid women, a celebrated fair-complexioned lady, shedding a golden lustre, Mandodarī by name, beloved of Rāvaṇa and the mistress of the women of the gynaeceum, who was rich in comeliness and endowed with a charming exterior, nay, who was profusely adorned with ornaments set with pearls and gems and who was illumining the excellent edifice with her splendour, as it were. Seeing her lying adorned and endowed with wealth of beauty and exuberance of youth, the mighty-armed Hanumān, sprung from the loins of the wind-god, inferred her to be Sītā; filled with great delight, that leader of monkey hordes felt transported with joy. (50—53)

आस्फोटयामास चुचुम्ब पुच्छं

ननन्द चिक्रीड जगौ जगाम।

स्तम्भानरोहन्निपपात भूमौ

निदर्शयन् स्वां प्रकृतिं कपीनाम् ॥ ५४ ॥

Demonstrating his simian nature, he clapped his arms and kissed his tail, rejoiced, frolicked, sang and paced, climbed up the pillars and dropped back on the ground.

(54)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे दशमः सर्गः ॥ १० ॥

Thus ends Canto Ten in the Sundarākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकादशः सर्गः

Canto XI

Banishing by recourse to reason the thought that the lady whom he had seen was Sītā, Hanumān searches for Sītā once more in the gynaeceum as well as in the banqueting hall and sees there a number of women lying in various states, as well as drinking vessels. He is seized with fear of having incurred the sin of gazing on others' wives; but the thought that he had looked on them with a lust-free mind eases his conscience

अवधूय च तां बुद्धिं बभूवावस्थितस्तदा।
जगाम चापरां चिन्तां सीतां प्रति महाकपिः ॥ १ ॥

Having dismissed that thought, Hanuman, the great monkey, became normal again. Then he indulged in further reflection concerning Sītā as follows : (1)

न रामेण वियुक्ता सा स्वप्तुमर्हति भामिनी।
न भोक्तुं नाप्यलं कर्तुं न पानमुपसेवितुम् ॥ २ ॥

"Separated from Rāma, the foresaid belle should not be able to sleep, nor to eat, nor again to adorn herself, much less to enjoy drink. (2)

नान्यं नरमुपस्थातुं सुराणामपि चेश्वरम्।
न हि रामसमः कश्चिद् विद्यते त्रिदशेष्वपि ॥ ३ ॥

"Nor would she consort with another male, be he the lord of celestials himself; for there is none equal to Śrī Rāma even among the gods (who have only three stages in life, viz., childhood, adolescence and youth, the fourth, viz., old age, being absent in them)." (3)

अन्येयमिति निश्चित्य भूयस्तत्र चचार सः।
पानभूमौ हरिश्रेष्ठः सीतासंदर्शनोत्सुकः ॥ ४ ॥

Concluding that she must be someone other than Sītā, Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, began to move about in the banquet hall once more, keen as he was to discover Sītā. (4)

क्रीडितेनापराः क्लान्ता गीतेन च तथापराः।
नृत्येन चापराः क्लान्ताः पानविप्रहतास्तथा ॥ ५ ॥

Some had been worn out through gambling, while others had likewise got fatigued through singing. Still others had been exhausted through dancing while others had been overpowered by drink. (5)

मुरजेषु मृदंगेषु चेलिकासु च संस्थिताः ।
तथाऽऽस्तरणमुख्येषु संविष्टाश्चापराः स्त्रियः ॥ ६ ॥

Nay, some had reclined on tabors, wooden tomtoms and Celikas (a kind of musical instrument); while other women had likewise lain asleep on excellent beds. (6)

अंगनानां सहस्रेण भूषितेन विभूषणैः ।
रूपसंलापशीलेन युक्तगीतार्थभाषिणा ॥ ७ ॥
देशकालाभियुक्तेन युक्तवाक्याभिधायिना ।
रताधिकेन संयुक्तां ददर्श हरियूथपः ॥ ८ ॥

Hanumān, a commander of monkey hordes, saw the banquet hall full of thousands of belles adorned with excellent jewels, who indulged in talking of one another's charms and discussing the apposite meaning of songs, were skilled in discerning time and place and capable of using appropriate expressions and excessively addicted to pleasure. (7-8)

अन्यत्रापि वरस्त्रीणां रूपसंलापशायिनाम् ।
सहस्रं युवतीनां तु प्रसुप्तं स ददर्श ह ॥ ९ ॥

Elsewhere too he actually saw lying fast asleep thousands of young belles who were wont to lie down talking of one another's charms: so the tradition goes. (9)

देशकालाभियुक्तं तु युक्तवाक्याभिधायि तत् ।
रताविरतसंसुप्तं ददर्श हरियूथपः ॥ १० ॥

Hanumān, a leader of monkey hordes, found these latter capable of discerning what was called for at a particular time and place and wont to use proper expression and lying fast asleep after ceaselessly indulging in sexual delights. (10)

तासां मध्ये महाबाहुः शुशुभे राक्षसेश्वरः ।
गोष्ठे महति मुख्यानां गवां मध्ये यथा वृषः ॥ ११ ॥

In their midst the mighty-armed Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, looked charming like a bull lying in the midst of excellent cows in a big cow-pen. (11)

स राक्षसेन्द्रः शुशुभे ताभिः परिवृतः स्वयम् ।
क्रेणुभिर्यथारण्ये परिकीर्णो महाद्विपः ॥ १२ ॥

Surrounded by them, the aforesaid lord of ogres himself looked charming like a lordly elephant encircled by female elephants in a forest. (12)

सर्वकामैरुपेतां च पानभूमिं महात्मनः ।
ददर्श कपिशार्दूलस्तस्य रक्षःपतेर्गृहे ॥ १३ ॥

Hanumān, a tiger among monkeys, once more ransacked the banquet hall in the palace of the aforesaid lord of ogres of gigantic proportions, which was furnished with all desired objects. (13)

मृगाणां महिषाणां च वराहाणां च भागशः ।
तत्र न्यस्तानि मांसानि पानभूमौ ददर्श सः ॥ १४ ॥

He saw the meats of deer and buffaloes as well as of boars separately arranged in that banquet hall. (14)

रौक्मेषु च विशालेषु भाजनेष्वप्यभक्षितान् ।
ददर्श कपिशार्दूलो मयूरान् कुक्कुटांस्तथा ॥ १५ ॥

Hanumān further beheld placed in big vessels of gold the meats of peacocks and fowl, that had not yet been tasted by anyone. (15)

वराहवाघ्रीणसकान् दधिसौवर्चलायुतान् ।
शल्यान् मृगमयूरांश्च हनुमानन्ववैक्षत ॥ १६ ॥
कृकलान् विविधांश्छागान् शशकानर्धभक्षितान् ।
महिषानेकशल्यांश्च मेषांश्च कृतनिष्ठितान् ॥ १७ ॥
लेह्यानुच्चावचान् पेयान् भोज्यानुच्चावचानि च ।
तथाम्ललवणोत्तंसैर्विविधै रागखाण्डवैः ॥ १८ ॥

Hanumān also perceived there the meats of boars, rhinoceroses, porcupines, deer and peacocks preserved in curds and Sochal salt, as also the meats of birds known by the name of Kṛkala, goats of various kinds, hares, half-consumed buffaloes, also Ekaśalyas (a kind of fish), and the dressed meat of rams as well as chutneys and drinks of various kinds as also dishes of different kinds that could be easily gulped, along with Rāgas* and Khāṇḍavas of every description seasoned with sour and salty sauces. (16—18)

महानूपुरकेयूरैरपविद्धैर्महाधनैः ।
पानभाजनविक्षिप्तैः फलैश्च विविधैरपि ॥ १९ ॥
कृतपुष्पोपहारा भूरधिकां पुष्यति श्रियम् ।
तत्र तत्र च विन्यस्तैः सुश्लिष्टशयनासनैः ॥ २० ॥
पानभूमिर्विना वह्निं प्रदीप्तोवोपलक्ष्यते ।
बहुप्रकारैर्विविधैर्वरसंस्कारसंस्कृतैः ॥ २१ ॥
मांसैः कुशलसंयुक्तैः पानभूमिगतैः पृथक् ।
दिव्याः प्रसन्ना विविधाः सुराः कृतसुरा अपि ॥ २२ ॥
शर्करासवमाध्वीकाः पुष्पासवफलासवाः ।
वासचूर्णैश्च विविधैर्मृष्टास्तैस्तैः पृथक् पृथक् ॥ २३ ॥

With large anklets and armlets of great value thrown away and drinking vessels scattered about, as also with fruits of various kinds scattered here and there, the floor of the banquet hall, on which flowers had been offered to gods, spread its charm profusely. Nay, with couches and seats set of gold and precious stones arranged in order at various places close to one another appeared inflamed, as it were, even without fire. Transparent beverages of various kinds that had trickled down from Kadamba and other trees as well as artificial liquors lying separately on the floor of the banquet hall alongside meats of various kinds and different tastes, dressed by expert cooks and flavoured with diverse excellent ingredients, as also beverages distilled from sugar, honey, flowers and fruits (such as vine and date-palms) and impregnated with aromatic powders of various kinds separately were seen by Hanumān. (19—23)

संतता शुशुभे भूमिर्माल्यैश्च बहुसंस्थितैः ।
हिरण्यैश्च कलशैर्भाजनैः स्फाटिकैरपि ॥ २४ ॥
जाम्बूनदमयैश्चान्यैः करकैरभिसंवृता ।
राजतेषु च कुम्भेषु जाम्बूनदमयेषु च ॥ २५ ॥

पानश्रेष्ठां तथा भूमिं कपिस्तत्र ददर्श सः ।
सोऽपश्यच्छातकुम्भानि सीधोर्मणिमयानि च ॥ २६ ॥
तानि तानि च पूर्णानि भाजनानि महाकपिः ।
क्वचिदर्धावशेषाणि क्वचित् पीतान्यशेषतः ॥ २७ ॥
क्वचिन्नैव प्रपीतानि पानानि स ददर्श ह ।
क्वचिद् भक्ष्यांश्च विविधान् क्वचित् पानानि भागशः ॥ २८ ॥
क्वचिदर्धावशेषाणि पश्यन् वै विचचार ह ।
शयनान्यत्र नारीणां शून्यानि बहुधा पुनः ।
परस्परं समाश्लिष्य काश्चित् सुप्ता वरांगनाः ॥ २९ ॥

Strewn with flowers collected at various places and covered with pitchers of gold, also vessels of crystal and pots of gold and other substances with two outlets, the floor of the banquet hall looked charming. Hanumān likewise saw the floor of that hall with excellent beverages collected in pitchers of silver as well as of gold. Hanumān also beheld different vessels of gold as well as of gems, full of wine. Here he saw wine jars which were half-full, and there he saw them wholly drained; while elsewhere he found them quite full: so the tradition goes. Hanumān, they say, roamed about beholding at one place foods of various kinds requiring mastication and beverages kept separately elsewhere; and drinks half exhausted at a third place. Here the beds of many women were lying unoccupied, while elsewhere some belles lay asleep embracing one another. (24—29)

काचिच्च वस्त्रमन्यस्या अपहृत्योपगृह्य च ।
उपगम्याबला सुप्ता निद्राबलपराजिता ॥ ३० ॥

Moving to the bed of another, snatching away her covering and wrapping herself in it, a certain woman, who had been overpowered by pressure of slumber, lay asleep embracing her. (30)

तासामुच्छ्वासवातेन वस्त्रं माल्यं च गात्रजम् ।
नात्यर्थं स्पन्दते चित्रं प्राप्य मन्दमिवानिलम् ॥ ३१ ॥

* The juice of grapes and pomegranates sweetened with sugarcandy, honey etc., is known by the name of Rāga in the fluid state and is called Khāṇḍava when thickened—

सितामध्वादिमधुरो द्राक्षादाडिमयो रसः । विरलश्चेत्कृतो रागः सान्द्रश्चेत् खाण्डवः स्मृतः ॥

Due to their outgoing breaths the excellent covering and garland on their body shook gently as on facing a gentle breeze. (31)

चन्दनस्य च शीतस्य सीधोर्मधुरसस्य च।
विविधस्य च माल्यस्य पुष्पस्य विविधस्य च ॥ ३२ ॥
बहुधा मारुतस्तस्य गन्धं विविधमुद्बुहन्।
स्नानानां चन्दनानां च धूपानां चैव मूर्च्छितः ॥ ३३ ॥
प्रववौ सुरभिर्गन्धो विमाने पुष्पके तदा।
श्यामावदातास्तत्रान्याः काश्चित् कृष्णा वरांगनाः ॥ ३४ ॥
काश्चित् काञ्चनवर्णान्धः प्रमदा राक्षसालये।
तासां निद्रावशत्वाच्च मदनेन विमूर्च्छितम् ॥ ३५ ॥
पद्मिनीनां प्रसुप्तानां रूपमासीद् यथैव हि।
एवं सर्वमशेषेण रावणान्तःपुरं कपिः।
ददर्श स महातेजा न ददर्श च जानकीम् ॥ ३६ ॥

Nay, wafting the varied scent of cool sandal-paste, sweet-tasting wine as well as of the diverse floral wreaths and various flowers as also of sandal-paste fit to be used for bath and of incenses burning in that edifice, the wind blew hard in many ways at that time and its fragrance spread over the aerial car, Puṣpaka, standing outside. In the abode of that ogre, Rāvaṇa, some belles were of a dark-brown complexion, while others were fair-complexioned. Some were dark-complexioned, while other young women were of a golden complexion. Withered partly due to the influence of sleep and partly due to excessive indulgence in sexual delights, the elegance of those women precisely resembled the grace of closed lotus flower indeed. In this way Hanumān, the exceptionally glorious monkey, thoroughly searched the entire gynaeceum of Rāvaṇa, but he did not find Sītā, Janaka's daughter.

(32—36)

निरीक्षमाणश्च ततस्ताः स्त्रियः स महाकपिः।
जगाम महतीं शंकां धर्मसाध्वसशंकितः ॥ ३७ ॥

While gazing on those women, that great Hanumān fell a victim to grave misgiving, seized as he was with apprehension regarding the infringement of the moral code on his part. (37)

परदारावरोधस्य प्रसुप्तस्य निरीक्षणम्।
इदं खलु ममात्यर्थं धर्मलोपं करिष्यति ॥ ३८ ॥

He said to himself : 'Gazing on a group of others' wives lying fast asleep and therefore, deshabelle, is not good. Indeed it will utterly neutralize my virtue. (38)

न हि मे परदाराणां दृष्टिर्विषयवर्तिनी।
अयं चात्र मया दृष्टः परदारपरिग्रहः ॥ ३९ ॥

'My gaze never fell on the wives of others heretofore. Nay, this fellow Rāvaṇa, who had taken the consorts of others to wife, has also been seen by me, which in itself is sinful.' (39)

तस्य प्रादुरभूच्चिन्ता पुनरन्या मनस्विनः।
निश्चितैकान्तचित्तस्य कार्यनिश्चयदर्शिनी ॥ ४० ॥

Another thought then cropped up in the mind of the high-minded Hanumān, whose mind was definitely devoted to a single purpose—a thought which showed to him the way of determining his duty. (40)

कामं दृष्ट्वा मया सर्वा विश्वस्ता रावणस्त्रियः।
न तु मे मनसा किञ्चिद् वैकृत्यमुपपद्यते ॥ ४१ ॥

He said to himself : 'True, all the consorts of Rāvaṇa were seen by me lying unsuspecting of my presence; yet no foulness of purpose entered my mind. (41)

मनो हि हेतुः सर्वेषामिन्द्रियाणां प्रवर्तने।
शुभाशुभास्ववस्थासु तच्च मे सुव्यवस्थितम् ॥ ४२ ॥

'The mind is undoubtedly instrumental in impelling all the sense-organs to good and evil actions; and that mind of mine is firmly established in righteousness. (42)

नान्यत्र हि मया शक्या वैदेही परिमार्गितुम्।
स्त्रियो हि स्त्रीषु दृश्यन्ते सदा सम्परिमार्गणे ॥ ४३ ॥

'Surely Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, could not be searched for by me anywhere else; for when search has to be carried out thoroughly, women are always looked for in the midst of women. (43)

यस्य सत्त्वस्य या योनिस्तस्यां तत् परिमार्गते ।
न शक्यं प्रमदा नष्टा मृगीषु परिमार्गितुम् ॥ ४४ ॥

‘One looks for a being amongst the variety which comprises it. A lost woman could not be sought for among the deer.’
(44)

तदिदं मार्गितं तावच्छुद्धेन मनसा मया ।
रावणान्तःपुरं सर्वं दृश्यते न च जानकी ॥ ४५ ॥

‘Therefore, with a pure mind only has this entire gynaeceum of Rāvaṇa been ransacked by me; Janaka’s daughter, however, is not to be seen.’
(45)

देवगन्धर्वकन्याश्च नागकन्याश्च वीर्यवान् ।
अवेक्षमाणो हनुमान् नैवापश्यत जानकीम् ॥ ४६ ॥

Even while gazing on the daughters of gods, Gandharvas and Nāgas, the powerful Hanumān did not behold Janaka’s daughter at all.

(46)

तामपश्यन् कपिस्तत्र पश्यंश्चान्या वरस्त्रियः ।
अपक्रम्य तदा वीरः प्रस्थातुमुपचक्रमे ॥ ४७ ॥

Not finding Sītā there while seeing other belles, and slipping away from that place, the hero Hanumān then prepared to leave for another place.
(47)

स भूयः सर्वतः श्रीमान् मारुतिर्यत्नमाश्रितः ।
आपानभूमिमुत्सृज्य तां विचेतुं प्रचक्रमे ॥ ४८ ॥

Leaving the place of carousing, that glorious son of the wind-god began once more to search for Sītā on all sides with assiduity.
(48)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे एकादशः सर्गः ॥ ११ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eleven in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वादशः सर्गः

Canto XII

Having failed to discover Sītā even after searching for her in the picture gallery and other places, Hanumān suspects that she might have been disposed of by Rāvaṇa and, thus meeting with frustration, falls into the quagmire of despair. On second thought, however, he deprecates despair as harmful and, falling back upon self-reliance, resumes the search. But, failing to find her even on searching for her all round, he becomes despondent again

स तस्य मध्ये भवनस्य संस्थितो
लतागृहांश्चित्रगृहान् निशागृहान् ।
जगाम सीतां प्रतिदर्शनोत्सुको
न चैव तां पश्यति चारुदर्शनाम् ॥ १ ॥

Remaining stationed within the four walls of that palace, Hanumān, who was keen to discover Sītā, visited the arbours, picture galleries and dormitories, but did not perceive that lady of charming looks.
(1)

स चिन्तयामास ततो महाकपिः
प्रियामपश्यन् रघुनन्दनस्य ताम् ।
ध्रुवं न सीता ध्रियते यथा न मे
विचिन्वतो दर्शनमेति मैथिली ॥ २ ॥

Not finding that beloved consort of Śrī Rāma (the delight of the Raghus), that great monkey, Hanumān, thereupon reflected as follows : ‘Undoubtedly Sītā does not survive, in that the princess of Mithilā does not meet my eye even though I continue to look for her. (2)

सा राक्षसानां प्रवरेण जानकी

स्वशीलसंरक्षणतत्परा सती ।

अनेन नूनं प्रति दुष्टकर्मणा

हता भवेदार्यपथे परे स्थिता ॥ ३ ॥

‘That virtuous lady, Sitā, Janaka’s daughter, who was intent on scrupulously guarding her chastity and adhered to the exalted path of noble women, has surely been disposed of by this foremost leader of the ogres, who has perpetrated most wicked deeds. (3)

विरूपरूपा विकृता विवर्चसो

महानना दीर्घविरूपदर्शनाः ।

समीक्ष्य ता राक्षसराजयोषितो

भयाद् विनष्टा जनकेश्वरात्मजा ॥ ४ ॥

‘Or, the daughter of the lord of the Janakas perished from fear on seeing those servant-maids of Rāvaṇa (the ruler of ogres) of hideous looks, monstrous faces and large ugly eyes, deformed and lustreless. (4)

सीतामदृष्ट्वा ह्यनवाप्य पौरुषं

विहृत्य कालं सह वानरैश्चिरम् ।

न मेऽस्ति सुग्रीवसमीपगा गतिः

सुतीक्ष्णदण्डो बलवांश्च वानरः ॥ ५ ॥

‘Now that I have not been able to discover Sitā and win the prize of my valour and have diverted myself for a long time in the company of monkeys, there is no longer any possibility of my reaching the presence of Sugrīva; for the aforesaid monkey King is mighty and metes out most severe punishment. (5)

दृष्टमन्तःपुरं सर्वं दृष्ट्वा रावणयोषितः ।

न सीता दृश्यते साध्वी वृथा जातो मम श्रमः ॥ ६ ॥

‘The entire gynaeceum has been explored, all the womenfolk of Rāvaṇa have also been seen; the virtuous Sitā, however, is not to be seen and my exertion has proved of no avail. (6)

किं नु मां वानराः सर्वे गतं वक्ष्यन्ति संगताः ।

गत्वा तत्र त्वया वीर किं कृतं तद् वदस्व नः ॥ ७ ॥

‘What, I wonder, will all the monkeys come together say to me when I have gone to them? They will say, “Going there, what did you accomplish, O gallant one? Please make it known to us.” (7)

अदृष्ट्वा किं प्रवक्ष्यामि तामहं जनकात्मजाम् ।

ध्रुवं प्रायमुपासिष्ये कालस्य व्यतिवर्तने ॥ ८ ॥

‘Not having seen the celebrated daughter of Janaka, what reply shall I give? The time-limit fixed by Sugrīva having been exceeded, I shall surely await death by abstaining from food and drink. (8)

किं वा वक्ष्यति वृद्धश्च जाम्बवानंगदश्च सः ।

गतं पारं समुद्रस्य वानराश्च समागताः ॥ ९ ॥

‘What, again, will the aged Jāmbavān and the celebrated Prince Aṅgada as well as the assembled monkeys say to me when I reach the other end of the sea? (9)

अनिर्वेदः श्रियो मूलमनिर्वेदः परं सुखम् ।

भूयस्तत्र विचेष्ट्यामि न यत्र विचयः कृतः ॥ १० ॥

‘Indefatigability is the root of prosperity; indefatigability constitutes supreme happiness. I shall, therefore, resume my search for Sitā in those places where no search has so far been conducted by me. (10)

अनिर्वेदो हि सततं सर्वार्थेषु प्रवर्तकः ।

करोति सफलं जन्तोः कर्म यच्च करोति सः ॥ ११ ॥

‘Indeed indefatigability constantly impels one to pursue all objects. Nay, it rewards with success the action of a living being, who performs it. (11)

तस्मादनिर्वेदकरं यत्नं चेष्टेऽहमुत्तमम् ।

अदृष्टांश्च विचेष्ट्यामि देशान् रावणपालितान् ॥ १२ ॥

‘I shall, therefore, put forth supreme effort which may restore self-reliance, and shall explore the unexplored regions protected by Rāvaṇa. (12)

आपानशाला विचितास्तथा पुष्पगृहाणि च ।

चित्रशालाश्च विचिता भूयः क्रीडागृहाणि च ॥ १३ ॥

निष्कुटान्तररथ्याश्च विमानानि च सर्वशः ।

इति संचिन्त्य भूयोऽपि विचेतुमुपचक्रमे ॥ १४ ॥

भूमीगृहांश्चैत्यगृहान् गृहातिगृहकानपि ।
उत्पतन् निपतंश्चापि तिष्ठन् गच्छन् पुनः क्वचित् ॥ १५ ॥
अपवृण्वंश्च द्वाराणि कपाटान्यवघट्टयन् ।
प्रविशन् निष्पतंश्चापि प्रपतन्नुत्पतन्निव ॥ १६ ॥
सर्वमप्यवकाशं स विचचार महाकपिः ।
चतुरंगुलमात्रोऽपि नावकाशः स विद्यते ।
रावणान्तःपुरे तस्मिन् यं कपिर्न जगाम सः ॥ १७ ॥

‘Banquet halls have already been explored by me and, even so, gardens. Picture-galleries have also been ransacked by me and pleasure houses, too; even so, the alleys of gardens attached to houses and also all seven-storeyed buildings.’ Reflecting thus, Hanumān further began to explore basements, sheds on cross-roads and also pleasure-houses built beyond residential houses but not far from them. Springing up and down at one place, also tarrying awhile at another and then departing, nay, opening doors and closing them, making good his entry and coming out, descending and going up, that great monkey, Hanumān, ranged through all space, till not even the space of four fingers was left in the aforesaid gynaeceum of Rāvaṇa, which that monkey did not cover. (13—17)

प्राकारान्तरवीथ्यश्च वेदिकाश्चैत्यसंश्रयाः ।
श्वभ्राश्च पुष्करिण्यश्च सर्वं तेनावलोकितम् ॥ १८ ॥

The lanes within the defence walls, the platforms forming the base of trees on cross-roads, chasms as well as lotus ponds—everything was explored by him. (18)

राक्षस्यो विविधाकारा विरूपा विकृतास्तथा ।
दृष्ट्वा हनुमता तत्र न तु सा जनकात्मजा ॥ १९ ॥

Ogresses of various shapes, ugly and deformed, were also seen by Hanumān there; but not the aforesaid daughter of Janaka. (19)

रूपेणाप्रतिमा लोके परा विद्याधरस्त्रियः ।
दृष्ट्वा हनुमता तत्र न तु राघवनन्दिनी ॥ २० ॥
Foremost Vidyādhara women, peerless in beauty, were also seen there by Hanumān, but not Sītā, the delight of Śrī Rāma. (20)
नागकन्या वरारोहाः पूर्णचन्द्रनिभाननाः ।
दृष्ट्वा हनुमता तत्र न तु सा जनकात्मजा ॥ २१ ॥

Daughters of Nāgas of lovely limbs, whose faces shone like the full moon, were also seen by Hanumān there, but not that offspring of Janaka, Sītā. (21)

प्रमथ्य राक्षसेन्द्रेण नागकन्या बलाद्धृताः ।
दृष्ट्वा हनुमता तत्र न सा जनकनन्दिनी ॥ २२ ॥

Daughters of Nāgas, who had been forcibly borne away by Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, after handling them roughly, were also seen by Hanumān there, but not Sītā, the delight of Janaka. (22)

सोऽपश्यंस्तं महाबाहुः पश्यंश्चान्या वरस्त्रियः ।
विषाद महाबाहुर्हनुमान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ २३ ॥

Not finding her even though gazing on other belles, the aforesaid Hanumān, son of the wind-god, of mighty arms gave way to despair. (23)

उद्योगं वानरेन्द्राणां प्लवनं सागरस्य च ।
व्यर्थं वीक्ष्यानिलसुतश्चिन्तां पुनरुपागतः ॥ २४ ॥

Finding the endeavour of the leaders of monkeys and his own leaping across the sea futile, Hanumān, the offspring of the wind-god, gave way to anxiety once more. (24)

अवतीर्य विमानाच्च हनुमान् मारुतात्मजः ।
चिन्तामुपजगामाथ शोकोपहतचेतनः ॥ २५ ॥

Nay, descending from the aerial car, Hanumān, sprung from the loins of the wind-god, now fell abrooding, his understanding having been clouded by grief. (25)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे द्वादशः सर्गः ॥ १२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twelve in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रयोदशः सर्गः

Canto XIII

Coming out of the aerial car, Puṣpaka, and not finding Sītā even on searching for her on all sides, Hanumān concludes her to have been killed. Believing that her untraceability, no matter whether it is reported to Śrī Rāma or not, may lead to disastrous consequences, Hanumān decides not to return to the mainland. Meanwhile, as he contemplates fasting till death or suicide or the killing of Rāvaṇa, he catches sight of a grove which he does not remember to have seen and before proceeding to explore it mentally invokes the succour of Ṛṣis and gods for success in his undertaking

विमानात् तु स संक्रम्य प्राकारं हरियूथपः ।
हनूमान् वेगवानासीद् यथा विद्युद् घनान्तरे ॥ १ ॥

Passing from the aerial car on to the defence wall, the agile Hanumān, a leader of monkey hordes, for his part flashed like lightning athwart a cloud. (1)

सम्परिक्रम्य हनुमान् रावणस्य निवेशनान् ।
अदृष्ट्वा जानकीं सीतामब्रवीद् वचनं कपिः ॥ २ ॥

Ranging observantly through the apartments of Rāvaṇa, but not finding Sītā, Janaka's daughter, anywhere, Hanumān spoke to himself as follows : (2)

भूयिष्ठं लोलिता लंका रामस्य चरता प्रियम् ।
न हि पश्यामि वैदेहीं सीतां सर्वाङ्गशोभनाम् ॥ ३ ॥

'In my attempt to do what is pleasing to Śrī Rāma, Laṅkā has been explored by me many a time; yet I do not perceive Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, who is charming of every limb. (3)

पल्वलानि तटाकानि सरांसि सरितस्तथा ।
नद्योऽनूपवनान्ताश्च दुर्गाश्च धरणीधराः ॥ ४ ॥
लोलिता वसुधा सर्वा न च पश्यामि जानकीम् ।
इह सम्पातिना सीता रावणस्य निवेशने ।
आख्याता गृध्रराजेन न च सा दृश्यते न किम् ॥ ५ ॥

'Pools, ponds, lakes and streams, rivers and forest regions abounding in water as also mountains difficult of access, nay, the entire land comprised of Laṅkā has been scoured; but I do not find Sītā, Janaka's daughter. Sītā was reported by Sampātī, the ruler of vultures, to be here in the abode of Rāvaṇa; yet she is not to be seen. I wonder why she is not found. (4-5)

किं नु सीताथ वैदेही मैथिली जनकात्मजा ।
उपतिष्ठेत विवशा रावणेन हृता बलात् ॥ ६ ॥

'Forcibly borne away by Rāvaṇa, can Sītā, the offspring of King Janaka, a princess of Mithila and claiming her descent from the Videha kings, helplessly consort with him? (6)

क्षिप्रमुत्पततो मन्ये सीतामादाय रक्षसः ।
बिभ्यतो रामबाणानामन्तरा पतिता भवेत् ॥ ७ ॥

'I presume she might have dropped midway from the grasp of the ogre, Rāvaṇa, as he was flying in a hurry taking Sītā in his arms, fearing the arrows of Śrī Rāma. (7)

अथवा ह्रियमाणायाः पथि सिद्धनिषेविते ।
मन्ये पतितमार्याया हृदयं प्रेक्ष्य सागरम् ॥ ८ ॥

'Or, while she was being borne away along the path of the Siddhas (a class of semi-divine beings endowed with mystic powers from their very birth), the very heart of the noble lady crumbled, I believe, at the sight of the sea. (8)

रावणस्योरुवेगेन भुजाभ्यां पीडितेन च ।
तया मन्ये विशालाक्ष्या त्यक्तं जीवितमार्याया ॥ ९ ॥

‘Or, I think on account of the great speed assumed by Rāvaṇa and under the pressure of his arms that large-eyed noble lady yielded up her life. (9)

उपर्युपरि सा नूनं सागरं क्रमतस्तदा।
विचेष्टमाना पतिता समुद्रे जनकात्मजा ॥ १० ॥

‘Surely, while wriggling in her attempt to extricate herself from the grip of Rāvaṇa, as he was flying over the sea, that daughter of Janaka dropped into the sea. (10)

आहो क्षुद्रेण चानेन रक्षन्ती शीलमात्मनः।
अबन्धुर्भक्षिता सीता रावणेन तपस्विनी ॥ ११ ॥

‘Or, may be, poor unbefriended Sītā was, while guarding her chastity, devoured by this mean Rāvaṇa himself. (11)

अथवा राक्षसेन्द्रस्य पत्नीभिरसितेक्षणा।
अदुष्टा दुष्टभावाभिर्भक्षिता सा भविष्यति ॥ १२ ॥

‘Or, that dark-eyed innocent lady might have been eaten up by the wives of Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, who were actuated by vile motives. (12)

सम्पूर्णचन्द्रप्रतिमं पद्मपत्रनिभेक्षणम्।
रामस्य ध्यायती वक्त्रं पञ्चत्वं कृपणा गता ॥ १३ ॥

‘The pitiable lady met with her death contemplating on the countenance of Śrī Rāma, resembling the full moon, with lotus-like eyes. (13)

हा राम लक्ष्मणेत्येवं हायोध्ये चेति मैथिली।
विलप्य बहु वैदेही न्यस्तदेहा भविष्यति ॥ १४ ॥

‘Sītā, a princess of Mithilā, who claimed her descent from the Videha kings, must have cast off her body wailing a lot and crying ‘O Rāma ! O Lakṣmaṇa !! O Ayodhyā !!!’ (14)

अथवा निहिता मन्ये रावणस्य निवेशने।
भृशं लालप्यते बाला पञ्जरस्थेव सारिका ॥ १५ ॥

‘Or, having been lodged in the abode of Rāvaṇa, the youthful lady is repeatedly wailing like a caged minā. (15)

जनकस्य कुले जाता रामपत्नी सुमध्यमा।
कथमुत्पलपत्राक्षी रावणस्य वशं व्रजेत् ॥ १६ ॥

‘How can the slender-waisted consort of Śrī Rāma, born in the line of Janaka and having eyes resembling the petals of a lotus, submit to the will of Rāvaṇa? (16)

विनष्टा वा प्रणष्टा वा मृता वा जनकात्मजा।
रामस्य प्रियभार्यस्य न निवेदयितुं क्षमम् ॥ १७ ॥

‘But whether Sītā is living unseen anywhere or has perished by falling into the sea or has died due to her inability to bear separation from her lord, the news would not bear transmission to Śrī Rāma, who is fond of his wife. (17)

निवेद्यमाने दोषः स्याद् दोषः स्यादनिवेदने।
कथं नु खलु कर्तव्यं विषमं प्रतिभाति मे ॥ १८ ॥

‘A catastrophe in the shape of loss of Śrī Rāma’s life may follow if the matter is reported to Śrī Rāma and an offence will be committed by me in the shape of disloyalty to Śrī Rāma in the event of my not reporting the matter to him. How, I wonder, should I act? Both the courses appear difficult to me.’ (18)

अस्मिन्नेवंगते कार्ये प्राप्तकालं क्षमं च किम्।
भवेदिति मतिं भूयो हनुमान् प्रविचारयन् ॥ १९ ॥

Hanumān now fell seriously on revolving once more the problem as to what would be opportune and advisable when the question as to what should be done has become so knotty. (19)

यदि सीतामदृष्ट्वाहं वानरेन्द्रपुरीमितः।
गमिष्यामि ततः को मे पुरुषार्थो भविष्यति ॥ २० ॥

He said to himself: ‘If I return to Kiṣkindhā, the capital of the ruler of monkeys, from this place without finding out Sītā, of what avail will my exertion prove to be? (20)

ममेदं लङ्घनं व्यर्थं सागरस्य भविष्यति।
प्रवेशश्चैव लंकायां राक्षसानां च दर्शनम् ॥ २१ ॥

‘My leaping across the sea in this way, as well as my entry into Laṅkā and my survey of the ogres will come to nought. (21)

किं वा वक्ष्यति सुग्रीवो हरयो वापि संगताः ।

किष्किन्धामनुसम्प्राप्तं तौ वा दशरथात्मजौ ॥ २२ ॥

‘What, I wonder, will Sugrīva or the assembled monkeys or the two sons of Daśaratha tell me when I reach Kiṣkindhā? (22)

गत्वा तु यदि काकुत्स्थं वक्ष्यामि परुषं वचः ।

न दृष्टेति मया सीता ततस्त्यक्ष्यति जीवितम् ॥ २३ ॥

‘If, having gone there, I for my part communicate to Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha, the jarring news that Sītā has not been found by me, he will forthwith give up his life. (23)

परुषं दारुणं तीक्ष्णं क्रूरमिन्द्रियतापनम् ।

सीतानिमित्तं दुर्वाक्यं श्रुत्वा स न भविष्यति ॥ २४ ॥

‘Hearing the harsh, severe, piercing, cruel, soul-agonizing and unpleasant tidings about Sītā, he will no longer survive. (24)

तं तु कृच्छ्रगतं दृष्ट्वा पञ्चत्वगतमानसम् ।

भृशानुरक्तमेधावी न भविष्यति लक्ष्मणः ॥ २५ ॥

‘Finding him reduced to straits and resolved upon dying, the extremely devoted and sagacious Lakṣmaṇa too will be no more. (25)

विनष्टौ भ्रातरौ श्रुत्वा भरतोऽपि मरिष्यति ।

भरतं च मृतं दृष्ट्वा शत्रुघ्नो न भविष्यति ॥ २६ ॥

‘Hearing of the two brothers having perished, Bharata too will die and, hearing of Bharata being dead, Śatrughna too will not live. (26)

पुत्रान् मृतान् समीक्ष्याथ न भविष्यन्ति मातरः ।

कौसल्या च सुमित्रा च कैकेयी च न संशयः ॥ २७ ॥

‘Reckoning their sons to be dead, Kausalyā and Sumitrā, and Kaikeyī too, will no doubt cease to be. (27)

कृतज्ञः सत्यसंधश्च सुग्रीवः प्लवगाधिपः ।

रामं तथागतं दृष्ट्वा ततस्त्यक्ष्यति जीवितम् ॥ २८ ॥

‘Finding Śrī Rāma reduced to such a plight, Sugrīva, the suzerain lord of monkeys, who is grateful and true to his pledge, will forthwith yield up his life. (28)

दुर्मना व्यथिता दीना निरानन्दा तपस्विनी ।

पीडिता भर्तृशोकेन रुमा त्यक्ष्यति जीवितम् ॥ २९ ॥

‘Disconsolate and distressed, miserable and cheerless, nay, stricken with grief over the death of her husband, poor Rumā too will surrender her life. (29)

वाल्लिजेन तु दुःखेन पीडिता शोककर्षिता ।

पञ्चत्वमागता राज्ञी तारापि न भविष्यति ॥ ३० ॥

‘Stricken with agony caused by the death of Vāli, nay, emaciated through grief and resolved upon dying, Queen Tārā, Vāli’s widow, either, would no longer survive. (30)

मातापित्रोर्विनाशेन सुग्रीवव्यसनेन च ।

कुमारोऽप्यंगदस्तस्माद् विजहिष्यति जीवितम् ॥ ३१ ॥

‘Consequent on the death of his parents and the calamity that befalls Sugrīva, Prince Aṅgada too will thereupon surrender his life. (31)

भर्तृजेन तु दुःखेन अभिभूता वनौकसः ।

शिरांस्यभिहनिष्यन्ति तलैर्मुष्टिभिरेव च ॥ ३२ ॥

‘Overwhelmed by agony caused by the loss of their master, the monkeys (lit., denizens of the forest) for their part will smite their own heads with their palms and fists as well. (32)

सान्त्वेनानुप्रदानेन मानेन च यशस्विना ।

लालिताः कपिनाथेन प्राणांस्त्यक्ष्यन्ति वानराः ॥ ३३ ॥

‘Having been cherished by the illustrious lord of monkeys with friendly inquiries, gifts and honour, the monkeys too will give up the ghost. (33)

न वनेषु न शैलेषु न निरोधेषु वा पुनः ।

क्रीडामनुभविष्यन्ति समेत्य कपिकुञ्जराः ॥ ३४ ॥

‘Coming together the foremost among the monkeys will no longer indulge in sports in woodlands, on mountains and in covered places such as caves. (34)

सपुत्रदाराः सामात्या भर्तृव्यसनपीडिताः ।

शैलाग्रेभ्यः पतिष्यन्ति समेषु विषमेषु च ॥ ३५ ॥

‘Stricken with agony on the death of their master, they will fall down with their sons and wives as well as with their ministers from the mountain tops on even or rugged grounds. (35)

विषमुद्वन्धनं वापि प्रवेशं ज्वलनस्य वा।
उपवासमथो शस्त्रं प्रचरिष्यन्ति वानराः ॥ ३६ ॥

‘Nay, the monkeys will swallow poison, or even hang themselves or enter the fire or take to fasting till death or fall back upon their own weapons to bring about their death. (36)

घोरमारोदनं मन्ये गते मयि भविष्यति।
इक्ष्वाकुकुलनाशश्च नाशश्चैव वनौकसाम् ॥ ३७ ॥

‘I think a terrible wail will be set up on my return to Kiṣkindhā, nay, the destruction of the race of Ikṣvaku as also the extirpation of monkeys (lit., denizens of the forest) will follow. (37)

सोऽहं नैव गमिष्यामि किष्किन्धां नगरीमितः।
नहि शक्ष्याम्यहं द्रष्टुं सुग्रीवं मैथिलीं विना ॥ ३८ ॥

‘Situated as I am, I shall on no account return to the city of Kiṣkindhā from this place; for I shall not be able to see Sugrīva without tracing out Sītā, the princess of Mithilā. (38)

मय्यगच्छति चेहस्थे धर्मात्मानौ महारथौ।
आशया तौ धरिष्येते वानराश्च तरस्विनः ॥ ३९ ॥

‘If I do not return and continue at this place, those two great chariot-warriors, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, who have set their mind on virtue, will preserve their lives as also the agile monkeys, full of hope for my return. (39)

हस्तादानो मुखादानो नियतो वृक्षमूलिकः।
वानप्रस्थो भविष्यामि ह्यदृष्ट्वा जनकात्मजाम् ॥ ४० ॥

‘Subsisting on whatever comes to my hands or whatever comes to my mouth through another’s will, nay, self-restrained, and resting at the foot of trees, I shall actually live as a hermit on my not discovering the daughter of Janaka. (40)

सागरानूपजे देशे बहुमूलफलोदके।
चित्तिं कृत्वा प्रवेक्ष्यामि समिद्धमरणीसुतम् ॥ ४१ ॥

‘Or, preparing a funeral pile on a piece of watery land adjoining the sea so that my ashes may be washed away by the waves of the sea and as such abounding in roots, fruits and water, I shall enter a flaming fire produced by rubbing two wooden sticks together. (41)

उपविष्टस्य वा सम्यग् लिंगिनं साधयिष्यतः।
शरीरं भक्षयिष्यन्ति वायसाः श्वापदानि च ॥ ४२ ॥

‘Or, crows and beasts of prey will eat up my body when I have sat down for fasting till death and am engaged in my attempt to extricate the soul (encased in the subtle body, which constitutes the Liṅga or invariable concomitant of an embodied soul) from the body. (42)

इदमप्यृषिभिर्दृष्टं निर्याणमिति मे मतिः।
सम्यगापः प्रवेक्ष्यामि न चेत् पश्यामि जानकीम् ॥ ४३ ॥

‘If I do not find Sītā, Janaka’s daughter, I shall enter the waters for good; for this way of departure from this world has also been recognized by the seers: such is my belief. (43)

सुजातमूला सुभगा कीर्तिमाला यशस्विनी।
प्रभग्ना चिररात्राय मम सीतामपश्यतः ॥ ४४ ॥

‘Since I have not found out Sītā even after a long time, the garland of my glory, which had a lovely beginning in the shape of my role as Sugrīva’s messenger to Śrī Rāma, which paved the way for the alliance between the two, nay, which conferred good fortune on Sugrīva and which endowed me with fame as a confidante of Śrī Rāma, entrusted with the duty of delivering his message along with his signet ring to his beloved spouse, separated from him—has been snapped. (44)

तापसो वा भविष्यामि नियतो वृक्षमूलिकः।
नेतः प्रतिगमिष्यामि तामदृष्ट्वासितेक्षणाम् ॥ ४५ ॥

‘Or, I shall turn out to be an ascetic living at the foot of trees and remaining self-restrained. In any case, I shall not return from this place without seeing the dark-eyed Sītā. (45)

यदि तु प्रतिगच्छामि सीतामनधिगम्य ताम्।
अंगदः सहितः सर्वैर्वानरैर्न भविष्यति ॥ ४६ ॥

‘If, however, I go back without finding the celebrated Sītā, Prince Aṅgada, with the other monkeys, will cease to be. (46)

विनाशे बहवो दोषा जीवन् प्राप्नोति भद्रकम्।
तस्मात् प्राणान् धरिष्यामि ध्रुवो जीवति संगमः ॥ ४७ ॥

‘There are numerous evils attending self-destruction; a man continuing to live attains good fortune sooner or later. I shall, therefore, preserve my life; for attainment of happiness is more or less certain if one continues to live.’ (47)

एवं बहुविधं दुःखं मनसा धारयन् बहु।
नाध्यगच्छत् तदा पारं शोकस्य कपिकुञ्जरः ॥ ४८ ॥

Conceiving with his mind a good deal of trouble of various kinds in this way, Hanumān could not reach the end of his grief at that time. (48)

ततो विक्रममासाद्य धैर्यवान् कपिकुञ्जरः।
रावणं वा वधिष्यामि दशग्रीवं महाबलम्।
काममस्तु हता सीता प्रत्याचीर्णं भविष्यति ॥ ४९ ॥

Then, recalling his prowess, the courageous Hanumān, an elephant among the monkeys, said to himself, ‘Or, I shall make short work of the ten-headed Rāvaṇa, who is endowed with extraordinary might. It does not matter if Sītā has been abducted; her abduction will be avenged by me in that way. (49)

अथवैनं समुत्क्षिप्य उपर्युपरि सागरम्।
रामायोपहरिष्यामि पशुं पशुपतेरिव ॥ ५० ॥

‘Or, lifting him up and carrying him across the sea, I shall offer him to Śrī Rāma, a sacrificial animal, as it were, to Lord Rudra (the god of destruction):’ (50)

इति चिन्तासमापन्नः सीतामनधिगम्य ताम्।
ध्यानशोकपरीतात्मा चिन्तयामास वानरः ॥ ५१ ॥

Thus overwhelmed with uneasiness due to his failing to find out the celebrated Sītā, Hanumān, whose mind was overcome with anxiety and grief, reflected as follows: (51)

यावत् सीतां न पश्यामि रामपत्नीं यशस्विनीम्।
तावदेतां पुरीं लंकां विचिनोमि पुनः पुनः ॥ ५२ ॥

‘I shall explore the city of Laṅkā again and again as long as I do not find out Sītā, the illustrious consort of Śrī Rāma. (52)

सम्पातिवचनाच्चापि रामं यद्यानयाम्यहम्।
अपश्यन् राघवो भार्या निर्देहेत् सर्ववानरान् ॥ ५३ ॥

‘Even if I fetch Śrī Rāma here on the strength of Sampāti’s words, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, may burn all monkeys with the fire of his wrath on not beholding his spouse. (53)

इहैव नियताहारो वत्स्यामि नियतेन्द्रियः।
न मत्कृते विनश्येयुः सर्वे ते नरवानराः ॥ ५४ ॥

‘Therefore, I shall continue to live at this very place, Laṅkā, on a regulated diet with my senses under control. Let not all men and monkeys perish for my fault. (54)

अशोकवनिका चापि महतीयं महाद्रुमा।
इमामधिगमिष्यामि नहीयं विचिता मया ॥ ५५ ॥

‘Here is a large grove too of Aśoka trees, containing gigantic trees. I shall now explore it since it has not been scoured by me so far. (55)

वसून् रुद्रांस्तथाऽऽदित्यानश्विनौ मरुतोऽपि च।
नमस्कृत्वा गमिष्यामि रक्षसां शोकवर्धनः ॥ ५६ ॥

‘Having saluted the eight Vasus (a class of gods), the eleven Rudras as well as the twelve Ādityas (sons of Aditi), the two Aświns (the twin-born physicians of gods) as also the forty-nine wind-gods, I shall proceed to ransack the Aśoka garden, and thereby intensify the grief of the ogres. (56)

जित्वा तु राक्षसान् देवीमिक्ष्वाकुकुलनन्दिनीम्।
सम्प्रादास्यामि रामाय सिद्धीमिव तपस्विने ॥ ५७ ॥

‘Again, having conquered the ogres, I shall hand over the godlike Sītā, the delight of Ikṣvāku's race, to Śrī Rāma even as success is conferred on an ascetic by a goddess pleased with his austerities.' (57)

स मुहूर्तमिव ध्यात्वा चिन्ताविग्रथितेन्द्रियः ।

उदतिष्ठन् महाबाहुर्हनूमान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ ५८ ॥

Having reflected a while, as it were, celebrated Hanumān, that mighty armed son of the wind-god, whose senses had been enfeebled through anxiety, got up and said : (58)

नमोऽस्तु रामाय सलक्ष्मणाय

देव्यै च तस्यै जनकात्मजायै ।

नमोऽस्तु रुद्रेन्द्रयमानिलेभ्यो

नमोऽस्तु चन्द्राग्निमरुद्गणेभ्यः ॥ ५९ ॥

'Hail to Śrī Rāma accompanied by Lakṣmaṇa, as well as to that godlike lady an offspring of King Janaka ! Salutations to Rudra (the god of destruction), Indra (the ruler of gods), Yama (the god of retribution) and the wind-god (my father) and hail to the moon-god, the god of fire, and the forty-nine wind-gods !' (59)

स तेभ्यस्तु नमस्कृत्वा सुग्रीवाय च मारुतिः ।

दिशः सर्वाः समालोक्य सोऽशोकवनिकां प्रति ॥ ६० ॥

Having paid reverence to the aforesaid as well as to Sugrīva, his master, and surveying all the quarters, Hanumān, that son of the wind-god, for his part mentally proceeded towards the Aśoka grove. (60)

स गत्वा मनसा पूर्वमशोकवनिकां शुभाम् ।

उत्तरं चिन्तयामास वानरो मारुतात्मजः ॥ ६१ ॥

Having mentally reached the splendid Aśoka grove in the first instance, Hanumān, an offspring of the wind-god, envisaged the future as follows : (61)

ध्रुवं तु रक्षोबहुला भविष्यति वनाकुला ।

अशोकवनिका पुण्या सर्वसंस्कारसंस्कृता ॥ ६२ ॥

'Surely the Aśoka grove must be guarded by many ogres and surrounded by forests, and must be sacred and also cultured with all cultivating processes such as breaking up the ground and uprooting weeds. (62)

रक्षिणश्चात्र विहिता नूनं रक्षन्ति पादपान् ।

भगवानपि विश्वात्मा नातिक्षोभं प्रवायति ॥ ६३ ॥

'Nay, the guards posted there undoubtedly protect the trees, so that the all-pervading and powerful wind too does not blow freely with unusual velocity. (63)

संक्षिप्तोऽयं मयाऽऽत्मा च रामार्थे रावणस्य च ।

सिद्धिं दिशन्तु मे सर्वे देवाः सर्षिगणास्त्विह ॥ ६४ ॥

'In the interests of Śrī Rāma and also in order to avoid the gaze of Rāvaṇa, this body has been contracted by me; let all the gods alongwith hosts of Ṛṣis, the seers of Vedic Mantras, for their part grant success to me in this undertaking. (64)

ब्रह्मा स्वयम्भूर्भगवान् देवाश्चैव तपस्विनः ।

सिद्धिमग्निश्च वायुश्च पुरुहूतश्च वज्रभृत् ॥ ६५ ॥

'May the glorious self-born Brahmā, the creator, as well as other gods and ascetics, nay, the god of fire and the wind-god and Indra, the wielder of the thunderbolt, grant success to me !' (65)

वरुणः पाशहस्तश्च सोमादित्यौ तथैव च ।

अश्विनौ च महात्मानौ मरुतः सर्व एव च ॥ ६६ ॥

सिद्धिं सर्वाणि भूतानि भूतानां चैव यः प्रभुः ।

दास्यन्ति मम ये चान्येऽप्यदृष्टाः पथि गोचराः ॥ ६७ ॥

'Varuṇa, the god of water, who carries a noose in his hand, and even so the moon-god and the sun-god, and likewise the two high-souled Aświns and all the forty-nine wind-gods, all created beings as well as Lord Viṣṇu, who is the Lord of all created beings, and also other gods who may fall on the way, whether seen or even unseen, will bestow success on me. (66—67)

तदुन्नसं पाण्डुरदन्तमव्रणं

शुचिस्मितं पद्मपलाशलोचनम् ।

द्रक्ष्ये तदायावदनं कदा न्हं

प्रसन्नताराधिपतुल्यवर्चसम् ॥ ६८ ॥

'I wonder when I shall be able to behold that unscarred face of the aforesaid noble lady, with a prominent nose, white teeth, bright smiles and eyes resembling lotus-petals and vying in splendour with a cloudless moon, the lord of stars? (68)

क्षुद्रेण हीनेन नृशंसमूर्तिना
सुदारुणालंकृतवेषधारिणा ।

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे त्रयोदशः सर्गः ॥ १३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirteen in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्दशः सर्गः

Canto XIV

Leaping down to the enclosure of the Aśoka grove and watching the loveliness of the grove from the top of the wall, Hanumān enters the grove and, leaping from tree to tree in the course of his search for Sītā, catches sight of an Aśoka tree. Espying a stream running beside it and expecting that Sītā might turn up on the bank of the stream to say her Sandhyā prayers, he takes up his position on that Aśoka tree, hiding himself behind its leafy boughs

स मुहूर्तमिव ध्यात्वा मनसा चाधिगम्य ताम् ।
अवप्लुतो महातेजाः प्राकारं तस्य वेश्मनः ॥ १ ॥

Reflecting awhile as to how he should reach the Aśoka grove and reaching Sītā mentally, Hanumān, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, leapt from the defence wall of the palace on to the enclosure of the Aśoka grove. (1)

स तु संहृष्टसर्वाङ्गः प्राकारस्थो महाकपिः ।
पुष्पिताग्रान् वसन्तादौ ददर्श विविधान् द्रुमान् ॥ २ ॥
सालानशोकान् भव्यांश्च चम्पकांश्च सुपुष्पितान् ।
उद्दालकान् नागवृक्षांश्चूतान् कपिमुखानपि ॥ ३ ॥
तथाऽऽम्रवणसम्पन्नाल्लताशतसमन्वितान् ।
ज्यामुक्त इव नाराचः पुप्लुवे वृक्षवाटिकाम् ॥ ४ ॥

Stationed on the said enclosure, with all his limbs thrilled with joy at the prospect of finding Sītā in the grove, that great monkey for his part found the various trees, viz., sal,

बलाभिभूता ह्यबला तपस्विनी

कथं नु मे दृष्टिपथेऽद्य सा भवेत् ॥ ६९ ॥

‘How on earth will that helpless and pitiable lady, overpowered with might by the mean and vile Rāvaṇa of noxious form, who, though savage, assumes an ornamented form, fall within the range of my sight today?’ (69)

Aśoka, Bhavya and Campaka, which were in full blossom, as well as Uddālaka, Nāgakeśara and mango trees with their fruits crimson as the snout of a monkey—surrounded with clumps of mango trees and intertwined with hundreds of climbers, and covered at the extremities with flowers, it being the beginning of spring. Nay, like an arrow shot from a bow-string by Śrī Rāma, he leapt into the grove. (2-4)

स प्रविश्य विचित्रां तां विहगैरभिनादिताम् ।
राजतैः काञ्चनैश्चैव पादपैः सर्वतो वृताम् ॥ ५ ॥
विहगैर्मृगसङ्घैश्च विचित्रां चित्रकाननाम् ।
उदितादित्यसंकाशां ददर्श हनुमान् बली ॥ ६ ॥
वृतां नानाविधैर्वृक्षैः पुष्पोपगफलोपगैः ।
कोकिलैर्भृङ्गराजैश्च मत्तैर्नित्यनिषेविताम् ॥ ७ ॥
प्रहृष्टमनुजां काले मृगपक्षिमदाकुलाम् ।
मत्तबर्हिणसंघुष्टां नानाद्विजगणायुताम् ॥ ८ ॥

Penetrating deep into it, the mighty

Hanumān surveyed that marvellous grove, which was rendered noisy by birds, was surrounded on all sides with golden and silvery trees and looked variegated with birds and herds of deer; which consisted of lovely thickets and with its reddish flowers appeared red like the sun just risen; nay, which was fringed with trees of various kinds laden with flowers and fruits, and was ever inhabited by cuckoos and king-bees in heat; which filled men with delight at all times and overwhelmed deer and birds with heat and which was made noisy by peacocks in heat and was full of birds of every species. (5—8)

मार्गमाणो वरारोहां राजपुत्रीमनिन्दिताम्।
सुखप्रसुप्तान् विहगान् बोधयामास वानरः ॥ ९ ॥

While searching for that irreproachable princess of excellent limbs, the monkey woke the birds sweetly lying asleep. (9)

उत्पतद्भिर्द्विजगणैः पक्षैर्वानैः समाहताः।
अनेकवर्णा विविधा मुमुचुः पुष्पवृष्टयः ॥ १० ॥

Buffeted by flocks of birds with winds while moving on their wings, the trees in the Aśoka grove released showers of flowers of various kinds and various colours. (10)

पुष्पावकीर्णः शुशुभे हनुमान् मारुतात्मजः।
अशोकवनिकामध्ये यथा पुष्पमयो गिरिः ॥ ११ ॥

Covered with those flowers, Hanumān, sprung from the loins of the wind-god, looked charming like a mountain of flowers in the midst of the Aśoka grove. (11)

दिशः सर्वाभिधावन्तं वृक्षखण्डगतं कपिम्।
दृष्ट्वा सर्वाणि भूतानि वसन्त इति मेनिरे ॥ १२ ॥

Beholding the monkey stationed in a cluster of trees after running in all directions, all living beings in the Aśoka garden thought that it was Spring-incarnate. (12)

वृक्षेभ्यः पतितैः पुष्पैरवकीर्णाः पृथग्विधैः।
राज वसुधा तत्र प्रमदेव विभूषिता ॥ १३ ॥

Strewn with flowers of various kinds fallen from the trees, the earth there shone like a young woman richly adorned. (13)

तरस्विना ते तरवस्तरसा बहु कम्पिताः।
कुसुमानि विचित्राणि ससृजुः कपिना तदा ॥ १४ ॥

Shaken with violence in diverse ways by the impetuous monkey, the aforesaid trees shed blooms of diverse kinds at that time. (14)

निर्धूतपत्रशिखराः शीर्णपुष्पफलद्रुमाः।
निक्षिप्तवस्त्राभरणा धूर्ता इव पराजिताः ॥ १५ ॥

With their tops shorn of leaves and their blossom and fruit fallen, the trees stood like gamblers who, having lost their game, had staked even their raiment and ornaments. (15)

हनूमता वेगवता कम्पितास्ते नगोत्तमाः।
पुष्पपत्रफलान्याशु मुमुचुः फलशालिनः ॥ १६ ॥

Shaken by the impetuous Hanumān, those excellent trees, adorned with fruit, speedily shed their blossom, leaves and fruit. (16)

विहंगसङ्घैर्हीनास्ते स्कन्धमात्राश्रया द्रुमाः।
बभूवुरगमाः सर्वे मारुतेन विनिर्धुताः ॥ १७ ॥

Deserted by flocks of birds and depended upon their boughs alone, all the trees, when violently shaken, became unworthy of being approached. (17)

विधूतकेशी युवतिर्यथा मृदितवर्णका।
निपीतशुभदन्तोष्ठी नखैर्दन्तैश्च विक्षता ॥ १८ ॥
तथा लांगूलहस्तैस्तु चरणाभ्यां च मर्दिता।
तथैवाशोकवनिका प्रभग्नवनपादपा ॥ १९ ॥

Battered by the tail and hands as well as by the feet of Hanumān and with its trees shattered, the Aśoka grove looked smitten exactly like a young woman whose locks have been thrown into disorder, whose 'Tilaka' (sacred mark on the forehead) has been effaced, whose lips illumined by her bright teeth have been deprived of their colour (by being kissed again and again) and who has been dug into with nails and bitten with teeth. (18-19)

महालतानां दामानि व्यधमत् तरसा कपिः ।

यथा प्रावृषि वेगेन मेघजालानि मारुतः ॥ २० ॥

The monkey in his impetuosity snapped the clusters of thick climbers even as the wind scatters masses of clouds in its onrush during the rains. (20)

स तत्र मणिभूमीश्च राजतीश्च मनोरमाः ।

तथा काञ्चनभूमीश्च विचरन् ददृशे कपिः ॥ २१ ॥

Ranging in that grove, the monkey beheld soul-ravishing grounds paved with gems and plated with silver and gold. (21)

वापीश्च विविधाकाराः पूर्णाः परमवारिणा ।

महाहैर्मणिसोपानैरुपपन्नास्ततस्ततः ॥ २२ ॥

मुक्ताप्रवालसिकताः स्फाटिकान्तरकुट्टिमाः ।

काञ्चनैस्तरुभिश्चित्रैस्तीरजैरुपशोभिताः ॥ २३ ॥

बुद्धपद्मोत्पलवनाश्चक्रवाकोपशोभिताः ।

नृत्यहरुतसंघुष्टा हंससारसनादिताः ॥ २४ ॥

दीर्घाभिर्द्रुमयुक्ताभिः सरिद्धिश्च समन्ततः ।

अमृतोपमतोयाभिः शिवाभिरुपसंस्कृताः ॥ २५ ॥

लताशतैरवतताः संतानकुसुमावृताः ।

नानागुल्मावृतवनाः करवीरकृतान्तराः ॥ २६ ॥

He also beheld at different places ponds of different shapes, which were full of excellent water and provided with costly steps of gems; which were distinguished by sands of pearls and corals and bottoms of crystals and were embellished with lovely golden trees growing on their margin; which contained beds of open lotuses and lilies, were adorned with Cakrawākas (red geese), and resonant with the notes of Cātaka birds and were made noisy by swans and cranes; which were fed on all sides with broad and delightful streams containing nectar-like water and bordered by trees; which were screened by hundreds of creepers and covered with flowers of Santana (a species of celestial wish-yielding trees); whose water was surrounded with shrubs of various kinds and which could be peeped into through Karavira trees, which served as air-holes. (22—26)

ततोऽम्बुधरसंकाशं प्रवृद्धशिखरं गिरिम् ।

विचित्रकूटं कूटैश्च सर्वतः परिवारितम् ॥ २७ ॥

शिलागहैरवततं नानावृक्षसमावृतम् ।

ददर्श कपिशार्दूलो रम्यं जगति पर्वतम् ॥ २८ ॥

Then Hanumān, a tiger among monkeys, sighted a mountain closely resembling a cloud laden with moisture, with elevated and charming peaks and surrounded on all sides with other mountain-tops, which was dotted with caves and covered with trees of every species and was reckoned as a lovely mountain on earth. (27-28)

ददर्श च नगात् तस्मान् नदीं निपतितां कपिः ।

अंकादिव समुत्पत्य प्रियस्य पतितां प्रियाम् ॥ २९ ॥

जले निपतिताग्रैश्च पादपैरुपशोभिताम् ।

वार्यमाणामिव क्रुद्धां प्रमदां प्रियबन्धुभिः ॥ ३० ॥

Hanumān further beheld a stream fallen from that mountain like a beloved wife fallen (in rage) with a bound from the lap of her loved one, and adorned with trees, whose boughs had bent down to the level of water, and thus looking like an enraged young woman, leaving her loved one, being detained by her near and dear ones. (29-30)

पुनरावृत्ततोयां च ददर्श स महाकपिः ।

प्रसन्नामिव कान्तस्य कान्तां पुनरुपस्थिताम् ॥ ३१ ॥

Again the great monkey saw the stream of the river turned back due to its being impeded in its course by the aforesaid boughs, showing as if the beloved wife had returned duly reconciled to her loved one. (31)

तस्यादूरात् स पद्मिन्यो नानाद्विजगणायुताः ।

ददर्श कपिशार्दूलो हनूमान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ ३२ ॥

Not far from that mountain, the aforesaid Hanumān, an offspring of the wind-god and a tiger among monkeys, sighted lotus-ponds crowded with birds of every species. (32)

कृत्रिमां दीर्घिकां चापि पूर्णां शीतेन वारिणा ।

मणिप्रवरसोपानां मुक्तासिकतशोभिताम् ॥ ३३ ॥

विविधैर्मृगसङ्घैश्च विचित्रां चित्रकाननाम् ।

प्रासादैः सुमहद्भिश्च निर्मितैर्विश्वकर्मणा ॥ ३४ ॥

काननैः कृत्रिमैश्चापि सर्वतः समलंकृताम् ।
 ये केचित् पादपास्तत्र पुष्पोपगफलोपगाः ॥ ३५ ॥
 सच्छत्राः सवितर्दीकाः सर्वे सौवर्णवेदिकाः ।
 लताप्रतानैर्बहुभिः पर्णैश्च बहुभिवृताम् ॥ ३६ ॥
 काञ्चनीं शिंशपामेकां ददर्श स महाकपिः ।
 वृतां हेममयीभिस्तु वेदिकाभिः समन्ततः ॥ ३७ ॥

Nay, he also beheld an artificial oblong pond full of cool water, provided with steps made of excellent gems and enriched with sands in the form of pearls, nay, which looked charming with various herds of deer, was surrounded by manifold thickets and lined with huge mansions constructed by Viśvakarmā, the architect of gods, and which was duly adorned on all sides with artificial woods. Whatever trees there were, laden with flowers and fruit, were crowned with boughs which spread like an umbrella and were all provided at their foot with platforms having smaller golden platforms above. That mighty Hanumān then sighted a singular golden Śīmśapā (Aśoka) tree intertwined with numerous clusters of climbers and clothed with abundant leaves, and actually surrounded on all sides by golden daises. (33—37)

सोऽपश्यद् भूमिभागांश्च नगप्रस्त्रवणानि च ।
 सुवर्णवृक्षानपरान् ददर्श शिखिसंनिभान् ॥ ३८ ॥

He also beheld stretches of open land and mountain springs as well as other golden trees resplendent as fire. (38)

तेषां द्रुमाणां प्रभया मेरोरिव महाकपिः ।
 अमन्यत तदा वीरः काञ्चनोऽस्मीति सर्वतः ॥ ३९ ॥

Enveloped by the effulgence of those trees, which resembled the brilliance of Mount Meru (the golden mountain), the hero thought himself to be golden all round. (39)

तान् काञ्चनान् वृक्षगणान् मारुतेन प्रकम्पितान् ।
 किङ्किणीशतनिर्घोषान् दृष्ट्वा विस्मयमागमत् ॥ ४० ॥
 सुपुष्पिताग्रान् रुचिरांस्तरुणाङ्कुरपल्लवान् ।
 तामारह्य महावेगः शिंशपां पर्णसंवृताम् ॥ ४१ ॥

इतो द्रक्ष्यामि वैदेहीं रामदर्शनलालसाम् ।
 इतश्चेतश्च दुःखार्ता सम्पतन्तीं यदृच्छया ॥ ४२ ॥

Hanumān was wonderstruck to behold the aforesaid clusters of splendid golden trees with their crests in full blossom and bristling with young shoots and leaves, trees which, when violently shaken by the wind, emitted a sound like the tinkling of hundreds of ornaments for the waist with tiny bells fastened to them. Climbing up that Śīmśapā tree covered with leaves, Hanumān, who was full of great impetuosity, reflected as follows: 'From this position I shall look out for Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, who is sighing for Śrī Rāma's sight and who, stricken with sorrow, must be wandering aimlessly to and fro. (40—42)

अशोकवनिका चेयं दृढं रम्या दुरात्मनः ।
 चन्दनैश्चम्पकैश्चापि बकुलैश्च विभूषिता ॥ ४३ ॥

'Nay, this Aśoka grove of the evil-minded Rāvaṇa is highly delightful and is richly adorned with sandalwood and Campaka, as well as with Bakula trees. (43)

इयं च नलिनी रम्या द्विजसङ्घनिषेविता ।
 इमां सा राजमहिषी नूनमेष्यति जानकी ॥ ४४ ॥

'Here is a lovely lotus-pond, frequented by flocks of birds. Queen Sītā, daughter of Janaka, will undoubtedly seek it. (44)

सा रामा राजमहिषी राघवस्य प्रिया सती ।
 वनसंचारकुशला ध्रुवमेष्यति जानकी ॥ ४५ ॥

'Bereft of Śrī Rāma, the aforesaid Queen, Sītā, daughter of Janaka, ever beloved of Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, and accustomed to roaming in woods, will surely walk to this place. (45)

अथवा मृगशावाक्षी वनस्यास्य विचक्षणा ।
 वनमेष्यति साद्येह रामचिन्तासुकर्षिता ॥ ४६ ॥

'Or, that fawn-eyed lady, who is conversant with the beauties of this forest, will seek this forest at this spot today, greatly emaciated as she is by the thought of Śrī Rāma. (46)

रामशोकाभिसंतप्ता सा देवी वामलोचना।
वनवासरता नित्यमेष्यते वनचारिणी ॥ ४७ ॥

‘Sore stricken with grief on account of separation from Śrī Rāma, that fair-eyed lady, who is ever fond of dwelling in woods and is used to roving in forests, will turn up this side. (47)

वनेचराणां सततं नूनं स्पृहयते पुरा।
रामस्य दयिता चार्या जनकस्य सुता सती ॥ ४८ ॥

‘Nay, the noble and virtuous daughter of Janaka, the beloved spouse of Śrī Rāma, perpetually loved heretofore the denizens of the grove without doubt. (48)

संध्याकालमनाः श्यामा ध्रुवमेष्यति जानकी।
नदीं चेमां शुभजलां संध्यार्थे वरवर्णिनी ॥ ४९ ॥

‘Intent on the devotions pertaining to the morning and evening twilights, the fair-complexioned daughter of Janaka, who ever looks as though she were only sixteen years old, will surely seek this stream of translucent water for the sake of her morning ablutions and devotions. (49)

तस्याश्चाप्यनुरूपेयमशोकवनिका शुभा।
शुभायाः पार्थिवेन्द्रस्य पत्नी रामस्य सम्मता ॥ ५० ॥

‘Nay, this magnificent Aśoka grove is also worthy of that charming lady, who is the highly esteemed consort of Śrī Rāma, the king of the rulers of the earth. (50)

यदि जीवति सा देवी ताराधिपनिभानना।
आगमिष्यति सावश्यमिमां शीतजलां नदीम् ॥ ५१ ॥

‘If that godlike lady, whose countenance resembles the moon, the suzerain lord of stars, is surviving, she will undoubtedly visit this stream of cool waters.’ (51)

एवं तु मत्वा हनुमान् महात्मा
प्रतीक्षमाणो मनुजेन्द्रपत्नीम्।
अवेक्षमाणश्च ददर्श सर्वं
सुपुष्पिते पर्णधने निलीनः ॥ ५२ ॥

Pondering thus and expecting Sītā, the consort of a ruler of men, nay, looking all round in search of her, while remaining concealed on that tree in full blossom and thick with leaves, the high-souled Hanumān surveyed the entire grove. (52)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे चतुर्दशः सर्गः ॥ १४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fourteen in the Sundarākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चदशः सर्गः

Canto XV

Casting his eyes all round while remaining perched on the top of that Śimśapā tree, Hanumān catches sight of Sītā in a temple and recognizes her by virtue of her characteristics and age

स वीक्षमाणस्तत्रस्थो मार्गमाणश्च मैथिलीम्।
अवेक्षमाणश्च महीं सर्वा तामन्ववैक्षत ॥ १ ॥

Glancing all round while remaining perched on that tree, and surveying the ground below in quest of Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, Hanumān explored the entire Aśoka grove. (1)

संतानकलताभिश्च पादपैरुपशोभिताम्।
दिव्यगन्धरसोपेतां सर्वतः समलंकृताम् ॥ २ ॥
तां स नन्दनसंकाशां मृगपक्षिभिरावृताम्।
हर्म्यप्रासादसम्बाधां कोकिलाकुलनिःस्वनाम् ॥ ३ ॥
काञ्चनोत्पलपद्माभिर्वापीभिरुपशोभिताम्।
बह्वसनकुथोपेतां बहुभूमिगृहायुताम् ॥ ४ ॥

सर्वर्तुकुसुमै रम्यैः फलवद्भिश्च पादपैः ।
 पुष्पितानामशोकानां श्रिया सूर्योदयप्रभाम् ॥ ५ ॥
 प्रदीप्तामिव तत्रस्थो मारुतिः समुदैक्षत ।
 निष्पत्रशाखां विहगैः क्रियमाणामिवासकृत् ॥ ६ ॥
 विनिष्पतद्भिः शतशश्चित्रैः पुष्पावतंसकैः ।
 समूलपुष्परचितैरशोकैः शोकनाशनैः ॥ ७ ॥
 पुष्पभारातिभारैश्च स्मृशद्भिरिव मेदिनीम् ।
 कर्णिकारैः कुसुमितैः किंशुकैश्च सुपुष्पितैः ॥ ८ ॥
 स देशः प्रभया तेषां प्रदीप्त इव सर्वतः ।
 पुंनागाः सप्तपर्णाश्च चम्पकोद्दालकास्तथा ॥ ९ ॥
 विवृद्धमूला बहवः शोभन्ते स्म सुपुष्पिताः ।
 शातकुम्भनिभाः केचित् केचिदग्निशिखप्रभाः ॥ १० ॥
 नीलाञ्जननिभाः केचित् तत्राशोकाः सहस्रशः ।
 नन्दनं विबुधोद्यानं चित्रं चैत्ररथं यथा ॥ ११ ॥
 अतिवृत्तमिवाचिन्त्यं दिव्यं रम्यश्रियायुतम् ।
 द्वितीयमिव चाकाशं पुष्पज्योतिर्गणायुतम् ॥ १२ ॥
 पुष्परत्नशतैश्चित्रं पञ्चमं सागरं यथा ।
 सर्वर्तुपुष्पैर्निचितं पादपैर्मधुगन्धिभिः ॥ १३ ॥
 नानानिनादैरुद्यानं रम्यं मृगगणद्विजैः ।
 अनेकगन्धप्रवहं पुण्यगन्धं मनोहरम् ॥ १४ ॥
 शैलेन्द्रमिव गन्धाढ्यं द्वितीयं गन्धमादनम् ।
 अशोकवनिकायां तु तस्यां वानरपुंगवः ॥ १५ ॥
 स ददर्शाविदूरस्थं चैत्यप्रासादमूर्जितम् ।
 मध्ये स्तम्भसहस्रेण स्थितं कैलासपाण्डुरम् ॥ १६ ॥
 प्रवालकृतसोपानं तप्तकाञ्चनवेदिकम् ।
 मुष्णन्तमिव चक्षूंषि द्योतमानमिव श्रिया ॥ १७ ॥
 निर्मलं प्रांशुभावत्वादुल्लिखन्तमिवाम्बरम् ।
 ततो मलिनसंवीतां राक्षसीभिः समावृताम् ॥ १८ ॥
 उपवासकृशां दीनां निःश्वसन्तीं पुनः पुनः ।
 ददर्श शुक्लपक्षादौ चन्द्ररेखामिवामलाम् ॥ १९ ॥
 मन्दप्रख्यायमानेन रूपेण रुचिरप्रभाम् ।
 पिनद्धां धूमजालेन शिखामिव विभावसोः ॥ २० ॥
 पीतेनैकेन संवीतां क्लिष्टेनोत्तमवाससा ।
 सपङ्कामनलंकारां विपद्गामिव पद्मिनीम् ॥ २१ ॥
 पीडितां दुःखसंतप्तां परिक्षीणां तपस्विनीम् ।
 ग्रहेणांगारकेणेव पीडितामिव रोहिणीम् ॥ २२ ॥
 अश्रुपूर्णमुखीं दीनां कृशामनशनेन च ।
 शोकध्यानपरां दीनां नित्यं दुःखपरायणाम् ॥ २३ ॥
 प्रियं जनमपश्यन्तीं पश्यन्तीं राक्षसीगणम् ।
 स्वगणेन मृगीं हीनां श्वगणेनावृतामिव ॥ २४ ॥

नीलनागाभया वेण्या जघनं गतयैकया ।
 नीलया नीरदापाये वनराज्या महीमिव ॥ २५ ॥
 Seated there, Hanumān, son of the wind-god, surveyed the Aśoka grove, which was adorned with trees intertwined with Santanaka climbers, and enriched with celestial odours and delicious substances, and had been decorated on all sides, and as such closely resembled the Nandana grove in paradise, which was full of animals and birds and crowded with mansions and palaces and resounded with the notes of cuckoos; which was graced with large oblong wells containing golden water-lilies, and lotuses furnished with numerous seats and carpets and provided with many-storeyed buildings, which was embellished with lovely trees flowering in every season, and laden with fruit and which in virtue of the loveliness of Aśoka trees in blossom scattered the splendour of sunrise and looked inflamed, as it were, and the boughs of whose trees were being repeatedly divested of their leaves, as it were, by birds even as they flew away from them and again perched on them. Adorned with wonderful Aśoka trees, which by virtue of their crest-like flowers falling down in hundreds appeared as though made of flowers from their very roots and dispelled all grief—as well as with Karkikāra trees in blossom, which, bending as they did under the heavy weight of their clusters of flowers, seemed to touch the ground, and with Kirmśuka trees in full blossom, that region was ablaze, as it were, on all sides with their brilliance.
 Numerous Punnaga and Saptaparna trees as also Campakas and Uddālakas in full blossom, whose roots had assumed great dimensions, were spreading their charm in that grove. Aśoka trees stood there in thousands, some of which shone brightly as gold, others were resplendent as flames of fire, while still others were dark as collyrium. The Aśoka garden was delightful as the Nandana, the garden of gods, and lovely as the Caitraratha grove of Kubera, nay, far superior to the two aforesaid groves, as it were, and was inconceivable, wonderful and invested with a charming splendour. Spangled with hosts of luminaries in the form of flowers, it was a second firmament, as it were, and enchanting like a fifth ocean (besides the four oceans bounding the earth according to the ancient geography) with hundreds of precious stones in the form of its flowers. Hanumān also beheld a garden forming part of the Aśoka grove, full of trees blooming in every season and diffusing a sweet fragrance, nay, delightful on account of its herds of animals and birds—which emitted cries of various kinds—which scattered many odours and ravished the mind with its holy scents and which was like another Gandhamādana, the lord of mountains, rich in odours.

In the aforesaid Aśoka grove that bull among monkeys saw situated at a short distance a lofty temple, which was supported in the centre on a thousand pillars and was free from impurities and white as Mount Kailāśa, which shone brightly due to its splendour and blinded the eyes, as it were, and appeared by virtue of its eminence to scrape the heavens, and which was provided with steps made of coral and platforms of refined gold. Then he caught sight of a woman who was surrounded by ogresses, was emaciated through fasting and looked miserable, who was sighing again and again and was immaculate like the disc of the moon at the beginning of a bright fortnight, who was casting a delightful splendour with her form which could only be indistinctly recognized, who, being clad in a soiled raiment, looked like a flame enveloped in smoke, who was clad in a single yellow worn-out excellent cloth and, being smeared with dust and divested of all decoration, looked like a muddy lotus-pond devoid of lotuses; who, being oppressed, tormented with agony, wasted and reduced to a pitiable condition, looked like the constellation Rohiṇī pressed by the planet, Mars, who wore a wretched appearance, her face bathed in tears, and was worn out through abstinence from food, was given over to grief and anxiety, felt exhausted and was ever plunged in sorrow; who, being unable to see her beloved ones and able to behold ogresses alone, appeared like a she-doe disunited from her herd and surrounded by a pack of hounds and who, with a single braid looking like a black serpent and reaching up to her hinder part, looked like the earth with a dark-green row of trees at the end of the monsoon when the clouds have disappeared. (2—25)

सुखार्हा दुःखसंतप्तां व्यसनानामकोविदाम् ।
तां विलोक्य विशालाक्षीमधिकं मलिनां कृशाम् ॥ २६ ॥
तर्कयामास सीतेति कारणैरुपपादिभिः ।
हियमाणा तदा तेन रक्षसा कामरूपिणा ॥ २७ ॥
यथारूपा हि दृष्टा सा तथारूपेयमंगना ।
पूर्णचन्द्राननां सुभ्रूं चारुवृत्तपयोधराम् ॥ २८ ॥
कुर्वतीं प्रभया देवीं सर्वा वितिमिरा दिशः ।
तां नीलकर्णो बिम्बोष्ठीं सुमध्यां सुप्रतिष्ठिताम् ॥ २९ ॥
सीतां पद्मपलाशाक्षीं मन्मथस्य रतिं यथा ।
इष्टां सर्वस्य जगतः पूर्णचन्द्रप्रभामिव ॥ ३० ॥
भूमौ सुतनुमासीनां नियतामिव तापसीम् ।
निःशवासबहुलां भीरुं भुजगेन्द्रवधूमिव ॥ ३१ ॥
शोकजालेन महता विततेन न राजतीम् ।
संसक्तां धूमजालेन शिखामिव विभावसोः ॥ ३२ ॥
तां स्मृतीमिव संदिग्धामृद्धिं निपतितामिव ।
विहतामिव च श्रद्धामाशां प्रतिहतामिव ॥ ३३ ॥
सोपसर्गा यथा सिद्धिं बुद्धिं सकलुषामिव ।
अभूतेनापवादेन कीर्तिं निपतितामिव ॥ ३४ ॥
रामोपरोधव्यथितां रक्षोगणनिपीडिताम् ।
अबलां मृगशावाक्षीं वीक्षमाणां ततस्ततः ॥ ३५ ॥
बाष्पाम्बुपरिपूर्णेन कृष्णवक्राक्षिपक्ष्मणा ।
वदनेनाप्रसन्नेन निःश्वसन्तीं पुनः पुनः ॥ ३६ ॥
मलपङ्कधरां दीनां मण्डनार्हामण्डिताम् ।
प्रभां नक्षत्रराजस्य कालमेघैरिव आवृताम् ॥ ३७ ॥
तस्य संदिदिहे बुद्धिस्तथा सीतां निरीक्ष्य च ।
आम्नायानामयोगेन विद्यां प्रशिथिलांमिव ॥ ३८ ॥

Beholding that large-eyed woman, who looked very untidy and emaciated, who had never known calamities before and who, though deserving of comforts, was stricken with sorrow, Hanumān guessed her to be Sītā on convincing grounds. He said to himself: 'This lady is precisely endowed with the same form in which that woman was seen by us being borne away over Mount R̥ṣyamūka the other day by that ogre, able to change his form at will.'

Gazing on that godlike lady, Sītā, of comely form, whose countenance resembled the full moon, who had shapely eyebrows and graceful rounded breasts and who was dispelling the darkness of all the four quarters by her radiance; whose neck presented a bluish appearance due to her wearing ornaments of sapphire which cast a bluish splendour about them, whose lips were ruddy like the ripe Bimba fruit, who had a slender waist and well-disposed limbs; whose eyes resembled the petals of a lotus, who compared with Rati, the consort of Love, was beloved of the whole world even as the light of a full moon; who was seated on the bare ground like an ascetic woman leading an austere life and who, though timid by nature, was hissing frequently like the consort of the lord of serpents; who being enmeshed in a mighty and extensive cobweb of grief, ceased to shine like a flame intertwined with smoke; who resembled a Smṛti text of doubtful meaning, a treasure that has been cast away, faith that has been shattered, a hope which has been frustrated, perfection impeded by obstacles, understanding clouded by passion or reputation marred by false scandal; who was tormented by obstruction, caused in the service of Śrī Rāma and oppressed by the presence of ogres, whose eyes resembled those of a fawn and who was looking all round in her helplessness; who with her cheerless countenance bathed in tears and with her eyes distinguished by dark and oblique lashes was sighing again and again, who had put on a thick coat of dirt on her person due to want of toilet and bath, felt distressed and was undecorated though deserving of every decoration and looked like the radiance of the moon, the king of stars, obscured by dark clouds and who had grown very thin like knowledge obscured for want of uninterrupted study, the mind of Hanumān got puzzled. (26—38)

दुःखेन बुबुधे सीतां हनुमाननलंकृताम् ।
संस्कारेण यथा हीनां वाचमर्थान्तरं गताम् ॥ ३९ ॥

With difficulty did Hanumān recognize Sītā, who was unadorned, even as one is able to decipher with difficulty a text which being devoid of purity of expression has undergone a change of meaning. (39)

तां समीक्ष्य विशालाक्षीं राजपुत्रीमनिन्दिताम् ।
तर्कयामास सीतेति कारणैरुपपादयन् ॥ ४० ॥

Observing that large-eyed and irreproachable princess, Hanumān concluded her to be Sītā, establishing her identity on the following grounds : (40)

वैदेह्या यानि चांगेषु तदा रामोऽन्वकीर्तयत् ।
तान्याभरणजालानि गात्रशोभीन्यलक्षयत् ॥ ४१ ॥

He perceived the same ornaments casting their charm on her limbs as Śrī Rāma had mentioned at the time of his (Hanumān's) leaving Kiṣkindhā as existing on the person of Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory. (41)

सुकृतौ कर्णवेष्टौ च श्वदंष्ट्रौ च सुसंस्थितौ ।
मणिविद्रुमचित्राणि हस्तेष्वाभरणानि च ॥ ४२ ॥

He said to himself: 'I find on her person a pair of skillfully shaped earrings and also a pair of well-fitting Swadamstras (another ornament for the ears), as well as ornaments on the limbs of her hands, set with gems and coral. (42)

श्यामानि चिरयुक्तत्वात् तथा संस्थानवन्ति च ।
तान्येवैतानि मन्येऽहं यानि रामोऽन्वकीर्तयत् ॥ ४३ ॥

'Though darkened due to their not having been brushed for a long time and also due to their contact with her untidy person, they are of the same shape. I, therefore, believe them to be the same of which Śrī Rāma spoke at the time. (43)

तत्र यान्यवहीनानि तान्यहं नोपलक्ष्ये।
यान्यस्या नावहीनानि तानीमानि न संशयः ॥ ४४ ॥

‘I don’t find on her person those which she had dropped on the R̥ṣyamūka mountain. No doubt the existing ornaments are the same which did not drop from her person. (44)

पीतं कनकपद्मभं स्रस्तं तद्वसनं शुभम्।
उत्तरीयं नगासक्तं तदा दृष्टं प्लवंगमैः ॥ ४५ ॥
भूषणानि च मुख्यानि दृष्टानि धरणीतले।
अनयैवापविद्धानि स्वनवन्ति महान्ति च ॥ ४६ ॥

‘That shining yellow upper garment, which looked like a sheet of gold (due to its texture of gold) and which, when dropped, was seen by the monkeys caught in a tree at that time, as also the principal ornaments found lying on the earth’s surface, which were valuable and made a tinkling sound, were dropped by her alone. (45-46)

इदं चिरगृहीतत्वाद् वसनं क्लिष्टवत्तरम्।
तथाप्यनूनं तद्वर्णं तथा श्रीमद्यथेतरत् ॥ ४७ ॥

‘Although the existing garment on her person is exceedingly worn, having been used by her for a long time, its colour is yet unfaded and the piece is as bright as the other one. (47)

इयं कनकवर्णांगी रामस्य महिषी प्रिया।
प्रणष्टापि सती यस्य मनसो न प्रणश्यति ॥ ४८ ॥

‘She is no other than the beloved and virtuous spouse of Śrī Rāma with golden limbs, who though out of his sight has not disappeared from his mind. (48)

इयं सा यत्कृते रामश्चतुर्भिर्हि तप्यते।
कारुण्येनानृशंस्येन शोकेन मदनेन च ॥ ४९ ॥
स्त्री प्रणष्टेति कारुण्यादाश्रितेत्यानृशंस्यतः।
पत्नी नष्टेति शोकेन प्रियेति मदनेन च ॥ ५० ॥

‘Here is the one for whom Śrī Rāma is suffering torment through the following four, viz., pity, tenderness, grief and love—through pity for a helpless woman deserving protection having disappeared; through tenderness for one who was dependent on him, through grief at the thought of his own spouse having been lost and through love for one who was beloved of him. (49-50)

अस्या देव्या यथारूपमंगप्रत्यंगसौष्टवम्।
रामस्य च यथारूपं तस्येयमसितेक्षणा ॥ ५१ ॥

‘The comeliness of Śrī Rāma and the elegance of each of his major and minor limbs are analogous to those of this godlike lady and the comeliness of this lady is similar to that of Śrī Rāma; hence this dark-eyed woman must be his consort. (51)

अस्या देव्या मनस्तस्मिंस्तस्य चास्यां प्रतिष्ठितम्।
तेनेयं स च धर्मात्मा मुहूर्तमपि जीवति ॥ ५२ ॥

‘The mind of this godlike lady is set on him, while his mind is set on her. For this reason alone does she, as also that pious-minded soul, survive even for a short while. (52)

दुष्करं कृतवान् रामो हीनो यदनया प्रभुः।
धारयत्यात्मनो देहं न शोकेनावसीदति ॥ ५३ ॥

‘Lord Śrī Rāma has done what was hard to accomplish for him in that he has been able to preserve his life even though disunited from her and does not perish through grief.’ (53)

एवं सीतां तथा दृष्ट्वा हृष्टः पवनसम्भवः।
जगाम मनसा रामं प्रशशंस च तं प्रभुम् ॥ ५४ ॥

Delighted in this way to behold Sītā as mentioned above, Hanumān, sprung from the loins of the wind-god, sought the presence of Śrī Rāma with his mind and admired the aforesaid lord. (54)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे पञ्चदशः सर्गः ॥ १५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifteen in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a R̥ṣi and the oldest epic.

षोडशः सर्गः

Canto XVI

Admiring the virtue and propitious bodily marks etc., of Sītā, Hanumān grieves at the thought of that lady, for whose sake Khara, Virādha and other ogres were killed, having been reduced to such a sad plight

प्रशस्य तु प्रशस्तव्यां सीतां तां हरिपुंगवः ।
गुणाभिरामं रामं च पुनश्चिन्तापरोऽभवत् ॥ १ ॥

Having admired the aforesaid Sītā, who was worth admiring, as well as Śrī Rāma, who was pleasing by virtue of his excellences, Hanumān for his part became absorbed in thought once more. (1)

स मुहूर्तमिव ध्यात्वा बाष्पपर्याकुलेक्षणः ।
सीतामाश्रित्य तेजस्वी हनूमान् विललाप ह ॥ २ ॥

Reflecting awhile, the celebrated and glorious Hanumān, whose eyes got bedimmed with tears, started lamenting about Sītā as follows: (2)

मान्या गुरुविनीतस्य लक्ष्मणस्य गुरुप्रिया ।
यदि सीता हि दुःखार्ता कालो हि दुरतिक्रमः ॥ ३ ॥

'If even Sītā, who deserves all honour and is the beloved consort of Śrī Rāma, the eldest brother of Lakṣmaṇa, who had been instructed in good morals by his elders, is stricken with sorrow, indeed it is difficult to withstand the force of destiny. (3)

रामस्य व्यवसायज्ञा लक्ष्मणस्य च धीमतः ।
नात्यर्थं क्षुभ्यते देवी गङ्गेव जलदागमे ॥ ४ ॥

'Conscious as she is of the prowess of Śrī Rāma as well as of the sagacious Lakṣmaṇa, the godlike lady does not feel much agitated any more than the holy Gaṅgā at the approach of the monsoon. (4)

तुल्यशीलवयोवृत्तां तुल्याभिजनलक्षणाम् ।
राघवोऽर्हति वैदेहीं तं चेयमसितेक्षणा ॥ ५ ॥

'Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, is worthy of Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, whose character, age and conduct are well-matched with his and whose pedigree and bodily marks too are on a par with his; and this dark-eyed lady too is worthy of Śrī Rāma.' (5)

तां दृष्ट्वा नवहेमाभां लोककान्तामिव श्रियम् ।
जगाम मनसा रामं वचनं चेदमब्रवीत् ॥ ६ ॥

Perceiving the aforesaid lady, who looked quite young and shone like gold and who resembled Lakṣmī, the goddess of fortune, coveted by the whole world, Hanumān sought the presence of Śrī Rāma with his mind and said to himself as follows: (6)

अस्या हेतोर्विशालाक्ष्या हतो वाली महाबलः ।
रावणप्रतिमो वीर्ये कबन्धश्च निपातितः ॥ ७ ॥

'For the sake of this large-eyed lady was killed Vāli; Kabandha as well, who was equal to Rāvaṇa in valour, was disposed of. (7)

विराधश्च हतः संख्ये राक्षसो भीमविक्रमः ।
वने रामेण विक्रम्य महेन्द्रेणैव शम्बरः ॥ ८ ॥

'The ogre Virādha too of redoubtable prowess was got rid of in combat by Śrī Rāma by showing his valour even as the demon Śambara was killed by the mighty Indra. (8)

चतुर्दश सहस्राणि रक्षसां भीमकर्मणाम् ।
निहतानि जनस्थाने शरैरग्निशिखोपमैः ॥ ९ ॥

'Fourteen thousand ogres of terrible deeds were made short work of in Janasthāna by means of arrows resembling tongues of fire. (9)

खरश्च निहतः संख्ये त्रिशिराश्च निपातितः ।
दूषणश्च महातेजा रामेण विदितात्मना ॥ १० ॥

'Khara too was slain on the field of battle and so was Trisirā brought low as also Dūṣaṇa, endowed with extraordinary energy, by Śrī Rāma, who has realized the Self. (10)

ऐश्वर्यं वानराणां च दुर्लभं वालिपालितम्।

अस्या निमित्ते सुग्रीवः प्राप्तवाँल्लोकविश्रुतः ॥ ११ ॥

‘Nay, on account of her Sugrīva, who is well-known throughout the world, attained the lordship of monkeys which was difficult to acquire, guarded as it was by Vāli. (11)

सागरश्च मयाऽऽक्रान्तः श्रीमान् नदनदीपतिः।

अस्या हेतोर्विशालाक्ष्याः पुरी चेयं निरीक्षिता ॥ १२ ॥

‘Nay, for the sake of this large-eyed lady has the mighty sea, the lord of rivers and streams, been crossed by me and this city of Lāṅkā explored. (12)

यदि रामः समुद्रान्तां मेदिनीं परिवर्तयेत्।

अस्याः कृते जगच्चापि युक्तमित्येव मे मतिः ॥ १३ ॥

‘If for her sake Śrī Rāma turned the earth bounded by the oceans upside down, or even the universe, it would be justifiable: such is my belief. (13)

राज्यं वा त्रिषु लोकेषु सीता वा जनकात्मजा।

त्रैलोक्यराज्यं सकलं सीताया नाप्नुयात् कलाम् ॥ १४ ॥

‘If sovereignty over all the three worlds, on the one hand, and Sitā, daughter of King Janaka, on the other, were put on the scales, the integral sovereignty of the three worlds would not approach even a fraction of Sitā. (14)

इयं सा धर्मशीलस्य जनकस्य महात्मनः।

सुता मैथिलराजस्य सीता भर्तृदृढव्रता ॥ १५ ॥

‘She is no other than the celebrated Sitā, daughter of Janaka, the virtuous and high-souled king of Mithilā, unswerving in her vow of devotion to her lord. (15)

उत्थिता मेदिनीं भित्त्वा क्षेत्रे हलमुखक्षते।

पद्मरेणुनिभैः कीर्णा शुभैः केदारपांसुभिः ॥ १६ ॥

‘While a field was being furrowed with a ploughshare, she rose splitting open the earth, and covered with the dust of the field, which gleamed like pollen. (16)

विक्रान्तस्यार्यशीलस्य संयुगेष्वनिवर्तिनः।

स्नुषा दशरथस्यैषा ज्येष्ठा राज्ञो यशस्विनी ॥ १७ ॥

‘She is the illustrious and senior most daughter-in-law of the valiant King Daśaratha of noble disposition, who never turned his back on the field of battle. (17)

धर्मज्ञस्य कृतज्ञस्य रामस्य विदितात्मनः।

इयं सा दयिता भार्या राक्षसीवशमागता ॥ १८ ॥

‘Fallen under the sway of ogresses, she is the beloved consort of Śrī Rāma, who knows what is right, is conscious of services rendered to him and is a knower of the Self. (18)

सर्वान् भोगान् परित्यज्य भर्तृस्नेहबलात् कृता।

अचिन्तयित्वा कष्टानि प्रविष्टा निर्जनं वनम् ॥ १९ ॥

‘Completely renouncing all enjoyments and not minding hardships, she entered the lonely forest, overcome as she was by love for her husband. (19)

संतुष्टा फलमूलेन भर्तृशुश्रूषणापरा।

या परां भजते प्रीतिं वनेऽपि भवने यथा ॥ २० ॥

सेयं कनकवर्णाङ्गी नित्यं सुस्मितभाषिणी।

सहते यातनामेतामनर्थानामभागिनी ॥ २१ ॥

‘That very Sitā of golden limbs, ever given to speaking with a sweet smile and undeserving of woes—who, contented as she was with fruit and roots alone and devoted to the service of her husband, experienced the same degree of supreme felicity in the forest as in her own royal abode—is undergoing this suffering here ! (20-21)

इमां तु शीलसम्पन्नां द्रष्टुमिच्छति राघवः।

रावणेन प्रमथितां प्रपामिव पिपासितः ॥ २२ ॥

‘Like a thirsty man yearning to find a place where water is freely distributed to passers-by, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for his part longs to see this lady, rich in chastity, though tormented by Rāvaṇa. (22)

अस्या नूनं पुनर्लाभाद् राघवः प्रीतिमेष्यति।

राजा राज्यपरिभ्रष्टः पुनः प्राप्येव मेदिनीम् ॥ २३ ॥

‘Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, will surely derive joy through recovery of her even as a king, deprived of his throne, on regaining the land. (23)

कामभोगैः परित्यक्ता हीना बन्धुजनेन च।
धारयत्यात्मनो देहं तत्समागमकाङ्क्षिणी ॥ २४ ॥

‘Deprived of all coveted enjoyments and bereft of her kinsfolk, she preserves her body, desirous as she is of meeting him. (24)

नैषा पश्यति राक्षस्यो नेमान् पुष्पफलद्रुमान्।
एकस्थहृदया नूनं राममेवानुपश्यति ॥ २५ ॥

‘She neither sees the ogresses around her nor these trees laden with flowers and fruit. With her heart centred on one object only, she undoubtedly beholds Śrī Rāma alone all the time. (25)

भर्ता नाम परं नार्याः शोभनं भूषणादपि।
एषा हि रहिता तेन शोभनार्हा न शोभते ॥ २६ ॥

‘Indeed, the husband is the greatest adornment for a woman, greater even than an ornament. Hence, though deserving of decoration, she no longer looks charming, bereft as she is of her husband. (26)

दुष्करं कुरुते रामो हीनो यदनया प्रभुः।
धारयत्यात्मनो देहं न दुःखेनावसीदति ॥ २७ ॥

‘Lord Śrī Rāma is really doing something great in that he is preserving his body even though bereft of her, and does not faint through grief. (27)

इमामसितकेशान्तां शतपत्रनिभेक्षणाम्।
सुखार्हा दुःखितां ज्ञात्वा ममापि व्यथितं मनः ॥ २८ ॥

‘My mind too is seized with anguish on finding this lady with dark long hanging hair and lotus-like eyes afflicted, though deserving of happiness. (28)

क्षितिक्षमा पुष्करसंनिभेक्षणा
या रक्षिता राघवलक्ष्मणाभ्याम्।

सा राक्षसीभिर्विकृतेक्षणाभिः

संरक्ष्यते सम्प्रति वृक्षमूले ॥ २९ ॥

‘She, who is forbearing as the earth and whose eyes resemble a pair of lotuses and who was protected by Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) and Lakṣmaṇa, is now being strongly guarded at the foot of a tree by ogresses with deformed eyes. (29)

हिमहतनलिनीव नष्टशोभा
व्यसनपरम्परया निपीड्यमाना।

सहचररहितेव चक्रवाकी
जनकसुता कृपणां दशां प्रपन्ना ॥ ३० ॥

‘Deprived of her charms like a lotus plant blasted by frost, being sore oppressed as she is by a series of misfortunes, Sītā, Janaka’s daughter, has been reduced to a pitiable plight like a female Cakrawāka (red goose) bereft of her mate. (30)

अस्या हि पुष्पावनताग्रशाखाः
शोकं दृढं वै जनयन्त्यशोकाः।

हिमव्यपायेन च शीतरश्मि-
रभ्युत्थितो नैकसहस्ररश्मिः ॥ ३१ ॥

‘Indeed, the Aśoka trees with the ends of their boughs bent under the weight of their blossom, actually cause immense grief to her; while due to the close of winter marked by the advent of spring, the moon with its cool rays has grown fierce like the myriad-rayed sun.’ (31)

इत्येवमर्थं कपिरन्ववेक्ष्य
सीतेयमित्येव तु जातबुद्धिः।

संश्रित्य तस्मिन् निषाद वृक्षे
बली हरीणामृषभस्तरस्वी ॥ ३२ ॥

Duly considering his interest, the mighty Hanumān the foremost of monkeys, who was full of impetuosity, and who for his part felt convinced that she was Sītā, remained firmly seated on that tree. (32)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे षोडशः सर्गः ॥ १६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixteen in the Sundarākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तदशः सर्गः

Canto XVII

His eyes filled with joy on beholding Sītā surrounded by ogresses with hideous and deformed faces while the moon was at the meridian, Hanumān mentally bows to Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa and remains hidden behind the boughs of the Śimśapā tree

ततः कुमुदखण्डाभो निर्मलं निर्मलोदयः ।
प्रजगाम नभश्चन्द्रो हंसो नीलमिवोदकम् ॥ १ ॥

Then at the end of the day the moon, which looked like a cluster of water-lilies and had risen quite stainless, ascended the cloudless sky like a swan swimming through blue waters. (1)

साचिव्यमिव कुर्वन् स प्रभया निर्मलप्रभः ।
चन्द्रमा रश्मिभिः शीतैः सिषेवे पवनात्मजम् ॥ २ ॥

Rendering aid to him, as it were, with its light so as to enable him to see Sītā clearly, the moon, possessed of bright lustre, ministered to Hanumān with its cool rays. (2)

स ददर्श ततः सीतां पूर्णचन्द्रनिभाननाम् ।
शोकभारैरिव न्यस्तां भारैर्नावमिवाभ्यसि ॥ ३ ॥

He thereupon beheld Sītā, whose face shone like the full moon and who was weighed down by the pressure of grief even as a boat sinking in water under heavy loads. (3)

दिदृक्षमाणो वैदेहीं हनूमान् मारुतात्मजः ।
स ददर्शाविदूरस्था राक्षसीघोरदर्शनाः ॥ ४ ॥

While seeking openly to see Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, the said Hanumān, sprung from the loins of the wind-god, beheld ogresses of terrible aspect sitting at a short distance from her. (4)

एकाक्षीमेककर्णा च कर्णप्रावरणां तथा ।
अकर्णा शङ्कुकर्णा च मस्तकोच्छ्वासनासिकाम् ॥ ५ ॥
अतिकायोत्तमाङ्गीं च तनुदीर्घशिरोधराम् ।
ध्वस्तकेशीं तथाकेशीं केशकम्बलधारिणीम् ॥ ६ ॥
लम्बकर्णललाटां च लम्बोदरपयोधराम् ।
लम्बोष्ठीं चिबुकोष्ठीं च लम्बास्यां लम्बजानुकाम् ॥ ७ ॥

ह्रस्वां दीर्घां च कुब्जां च विकटां वामनां तथा ।
करालां भुग्नवक्त्रां च पिंगाक्षीं विकृताननाम् ॥ ८ ॥

He found one of them single-eyed, another with a single ear, a third using her extensive ears as a covering for her body, still another without ears, another with dart-like ears, another with her nose for respiration on the forehead, another with her head disproportionately large, yet another with a thin long neck, another with her hair fallen off, still another hairless, another wearing her hair as a blanket wrapped about her person, another with long ears and brow, another with a protruding belly and breasts, another with protruding lips, another with her lips hanging over the chin, another with a long face and still another with protruding knees, another stunted, yet another tall, another humpbacked, another with a crooked body, yet another a dwarf, another frightful, yet another with her face set awry, another with tawny eyes and yet another with a deformed face. (5—8)

विकृताः पिंगलाः कालीः क्रोधनाः कलहप्रियाः ।
कालायसमहाशूलकूटमुद्गरधारिणीः ॥ ९ ॥
वराहमृगशार्दूलमहिषाजशिवामुखाः ।
गजोष्ट्रहयपादाश्च निखातशिरसोऽपराः ॥ १० ॥
एकहस्तैकपादाश्च खरकर्ण्यश्वकर्णिकाः ।
गोकर्णीर्हस्तिकर्णीश्च हरिकर्णीस्तथापराः ॥ ११ ॥
अतिनासाश्च काश्चिच्च तिर्यङ्नासा अनासिकाः ।
गजसंनिभनासाश्च ललाटोच्छ्वासनासिकाः ॥ १२ ॥
हस्तिपादा महापादा गोपादाः पादचूलिकाः ।
अतिमात्रशिरोग्रीवा अतिमात्रकुचोदरीः ॥ १३ ॥
अतिमात्रास्यनेत्राश्च दीर्घजिह्वाननास्तथा ।
अजामुखीर्हस्तिमुखीर्गोमुखीः सूकरीमुखीः ॥ १४ ॥

हयोष्ट्रखरवक्त्राश्च राक्षसीर्घोरदर्शनाः ।
 शूलमुद्गरहस्ताश्च क्रोधनाः कलहप्रियाः ॥ १५ ॥
 कराला धूम्रकेशिन्यो राक्षसीर्विकृताननाः ।
 पिबन्ति सततं पानं सुरामांससदाप्रियाः ॥ १६ ॥
 मांसशोणितदिग्धांगीर्मांसशोणितभोजनाः ।
 ता ददर्श कपिश्रेष्ठो रोमहर्षणदर्शनाः ॥ १७ ॥
 स्कन्धवन्तमुपासीनाः परिवार्य वनस्पतिम् ।
 तस्याधस्ताच्च तां देवीं राजपुत्रीमनिन्दिताम् ॥ १८ ॥

Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, saw ogresses who were deformed, those who were tawny, others who were dark-complexioned, others who were irascible and fond of picking up a quarrel and wielded big darts, mallets and clubs of iron, some with heads like those of a boar, deer, tiger, buffalo, goat or fox, some with the feet of an elephant, camel or horse, and others with their heads sunk into their bosom (like Kabandha), some with a single hand and others with a single foot, some having ears of donkeys and others those of horses, some having the ears of a cow and others those of an elephant, and still others those of a lion, some having abnormally long noses and others having crooked noses, and yet others having no nose at all, some having noses like the proboscis of an elephant and others having noses for respiration fixed in their foreheads, some having the feet of elephants and others those of kine, some having enormous feet and others having a tuft of hair growing on their feet, some having abnormally large heads and necks and others having exceptionally large breasts and bellies, some having unusually large mouths and eyes, some having long tongues in their mouths, also ogresses of terrible aspect having the heads of goats, elephants, cows or boars, horses, camels or donkeys, some carrying pikes and clubs in their hands, frightful ogresses who were irascible and fond of picking up quarrels, had smoke-coloured hair and deformed faces, who constantly drank wine and were ever fond of drink and meat, who lived on meat and blood and had their bodies smeared with meat and blood and whose very sight made one's hair stand on end and who were seated close to and round about that tree of beautiful trunk and boughs; and at the foot of the same tree he beheld that irreproachable and godlike princess. (9—18)

लक्षयामास लक्ष्मीवान् हनूमाञ्जनकात्मजाम् ।
 निष्प्रभां शोकसंतप्तां मलसंकुलमूर्धजाम् ॥ १९ ॥
 क्षीणपुण्यां च्युतां भूमौ तारां निपतितामिव ।
 चारित्रव्यपदेशाढ्यां भर्तृदर्शनदुर्गताम् ॥ २० ॥
 भूषणैरुत्तमैर्हीनां भर्तृवात्सल्यभूषिताम् ।
 राक्षसाधिपसंरुद्धां बन्धुभिश्च विनाकृताम् ॥ २१ ॥
 वियूथां सिंहसंरुद्धां बद्धां गजवधूमिव ।
 चन्द्ररेखां पयोदान्ते शारदाभ्रैरिवावृताम् ॥ २२ ॥
 क्लिष्टरूपामसंस्पर्शादयुक्तामिव वल्लकीम् ।
 स तां भर्तृहिते युक्तामयुक्तां रक्षसां वशे ॥ २३ ॥
 अशोकवनिकामध्ये शोकसागरमाप्लुताम् ।
 ताभिः परिवृतां तत्र सग्रहामिव रोहिणीम् ॥ २४ ॥
 ददर्श हनुमांस्तत्र लतामकुसुमामिव ।
 सा मलेन च दिग्धांगी वपुषा चाप्यलंकृता ।
 मृणाली पङ्कदिग्धेव विभाति च न भाति च ॥ २५ ॥

The graceful Hanumān found Sītā, Janaka's daughter, who was shorn of lustre like a meteor fallen on the earth, its merits exhausted, was sore stricken with grief, her locks thick with dirt, and rich in fame for her lofty character, though deprived of the sight of her lord, who, though bereft of her excellent jewels, was nonetheless adorned with the affection of her husband, nay, who, having been detained by Rāvaṇa (the suzerain lord of ogres) and as such disunited from her relations, resemble a female elephant separated from its herd, detained by a lion and tied with a cord of affection for her own herd, or the disc of the moon obscured by autumnal clouds at the end of the monsoon; who, through lack of contact with her husband had got faded in appearance like the untouched strings of a Viṇā by its master and was reduced to a dumb state, not merited by her; nay, who was devoted to the good of her husband and had fallen under the sway of ogres, though not deserving it; who, though living in the midst of the Aśoka grove (consisting of trees which are supposed by their name to rid all, who live in their midst, of all grief), was nonetheless plunged in grief and was surrounded there by ogresses even like the star Rohiṇī fallen under the sway of some unpropitious planet. Hanumān found her there like a creeper divested of its blooms.

Nay, graced with her body, which was clothed with a natural charm, even though unadorned, even though her limbs were stained with dirt, she looked charming as well as without charm like a lotus-fibre stained with mud. (19—25)

मलिनेन तु वस्त्रेण परिक्लिष्टेन भामिनीम्।
संवृतां मृगशावाक्षीं ददर्श हनुमान् कपिः ॥ २६ ॥
तां देवीं दीनवदनामदीनां भर्तृतेजसा।
रक्षितां स्वेन शीलेन सीतामसितलोचनाम् ॥ २७ ॥

Hanumān saw the dark-eyed young godlike belle, Sītā, with eyes like a fawn's and actually covered with a soiled and tattered cloth, wretched in appearance, though undepressed in spirit, her confidence being restored by the thought of her husband's glory and protected by her own virtue. (26-27)

तां दृष्ट्वा हनुमान् सीतां मृगशावनिभेक्षणाम्।
मृगकन्यामिव त्रस्तां वीक्षमाणां समन्ततः ॥ २८ ॥

दहन्तीमिव निःश्वासैर्वृक्षान् पल्लवधारिणः।
संघातमिव शोकानां दुःखस्योर्मिमिवोत्थिताम् ॥ २९ ॥
तां क्षमां सुविभक्ताङ्गीं विनाभरणशोभिनीम्।
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे मारुतिः प्रेक्ष्य मैथिलीम् ॥ ३० ॥

Hanumān, son of the wind-god, derived immense and excessive joy on beholding the celebrated Sītā, that princess of Mithilā, who was lovely to look at, whose eyes resembled those of a fawn and who was looking all round timidly like a frightened fawn, who was burning, as it were, with her sighs the trees bearing leaves, nay, who was a personification of griefs, as it were, and resembled a towering wave of sorrow, who was emaciated and had well-proportioned limbs and who looked charming even without ornaments. (28—30)

हर्षजानि च सोऽश्रूणि तां दृष्ट्वा मदिरेक्षणाम्।
मुमोच हनुमांस्तत्र नमश्चक्रे च राघवम् ॥ ३१ ॥

Hanumān shed tears born of joy on beholding that lady with maddening eyes and saluted Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, on that happy occasion. (31)

नमस्कृत्वाथ रामाय लक्ष्मणाय च वीर्यवान्।
सीतादर्शनसंहृष्टो हनुमान् संवृतोऽभवत् ॥ ३२ ॥

Having bowed down to Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, the powerful Hanumān, who was overjoyed at the sight of Sītā, then went into hiding once more behind the boughs. (32)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे सप्तदशः सर्गः ॥ १७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventeen in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टादशः सर्गः

Canto XVIII

Perceiving Rāvaṇa surrounded by hundreds of young women and approaching Sītā towards the close of night, swayed by passion as he was, Hanumān, who was perched on the top of the Śimśapā tree, silently comes down in order to scan the figure of Rāvaṇa and hides himself in the boughs in order to avoid observation

तथा विप्रेक्षमाणस्य वनं पुष्पितपादपम् ।
विचिन्वतश्च वैदेहीं किञ्चिच्छेषा निशाभवत् ॥ १ ॥

While Hanumān was thus keenly observing the grove with its trees in blossom and looking for an opportunity to see more closely Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, the night was well-nigh spent. (1)

षडंगवेदविदुषां क्रतुप्रवरयाजिनाम् ।
शुश्राव ब्रह्मघोषान् स विरात्रे ब्रह्मरक्षसाम् ॥ २ ॥

Towards the close of the night he heard the chanting of the Vedas in the dwellings of Brāhmaṇa-ogres well-versed in the Vedas, including the six auxiliary sciences, viz., grammar, prosody, etymology, phonetics, astronomy and the science of rituals and conducting big sacrifices. (2)

अथ मंगलवादित्रैः शब्दैः श्रोत्रमनोहरैः ।
प्राबोध्यत महाबाहुर्दशग्रीवो महाबलः ॥ ३ ॥

Presently the mighty-armed Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, who was endowed with extraordinary strength, was awakened by means of musical instruments played upon on festive occasions as well as by means of praises ravishing the ears and mind. (3)

विबुध्य तु महाभागो राक्षसेन्द्रः प्रतापवान् ।
स्रस्तमाल्याम्बरधरो वैदेहीमन्वचिन्तयत् ॥ ४ ॥

Waking up, the glorious Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, for his part, who was highly blessed and whose garlands and raiment were in disarray, thought of Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory. (4)

भृशं नियुक्तस्तस्यां च मदनेन मदोत्कटः ।
न तु तं राक्षसः कामं शशाकात्मनि गूहितुम् ॥ ५ ॥

Nay, irresistibly drawn towards her by passion, the ogre, who was intoxicated with drink, could not, however, suppress that passion in his mind. (5)

स सर्वाभरणैर्युक्तो बिभ्रच्छ्रियमनुत्तमाम् ।
तां नगैर्विविधैर्जुष्टां सर्वपुष्पफलोपगैः ॥ ६ ॥
वृतां पुष्करिणीभिश्च नानापुष्पोपशोभिताम् ।
सदा मत्तैश्च विहगैर्विचित्रां परमाद्भुतैः ॥ ७ ॥
ईहामृगैश्च विविधैर्वृतां दृष्टिमनोहरैः ।
वीथीः सम्प्रेक्षमाणश्च मणिकाञ्चनतोरणाम् ॥ ८ ॥
नानामृगगणाकीर्णां फलैः प्रपतितैर्वृताम् ।
अशोकवनिकामेव प्राविशत् संततद्रुमाम् ॥ ९ ॥

Adorned with every kind of ornament and bearing an unsurpassed splendour, nay, duly observing the avenues leading to the Aśoka grove, he deeply penetrated into the Aśoka grove itself, which was adorned with trees of all species, bearing all kinds of flowers and fruit and was surrounded by lotus-pools; nay, which was graced with various flowers and rendered picturesque by most wonderful birds ever in heat, which was crowded with artificial deer ravishing the eyes and mind; which was decorated with archways of gold and gems, was filled with herds of deer of every species and carpeted with the fruit fallen from above and was ever full of trees. (6—9)

अंगनाः शतमात्रं तु तं व्रजन्तमनुव्रजन् ।
महेन्द्रमिव पौलस्त्यं देवगन्धर्वयोषितः ॥ १० ॥

Only a hundred belles for their part followed that grandson of Pulastya as he walked to the Aśoka grove, even as celestial and Gandharva women follow the mighty Indra wherever he goes. (10)

दीपिकाः काञ्चनीः काश्चिज्जगृहुस्तत्र योषितः ।

वालव्यजनहस्ताश्च तालवृन्तानि चापराः ॥ ११ ॥

Some women among them bore torches with gold handles, others carried chowries in their hands, while still others bore fans of palmyra leaves. (11)

काञ्चनैश्चैव भृंगारैर्जहुः सलिलमग्रतः ।

मण्डलाग्रा बृसीश्चैव गृह्यान्याः पृष्ठतो ययुः ॥ १२ ॥

Some carried water in golden ewers ahead, while others followed in the rear taking cushions with circular ends. (12)

काचिद् रत्नमयीं पात्रीं पूर्णां पानस्य भ्राजतीम् ।

दक्षिणा दक्षिणेनैव तदा जग्राह पाणिना ॥ १३ ॥

Some compliant woman held in her right hand alone on that occasion a shining pitcher made of jewels and filled with wine. (13)

राजहंसप्रतीकाशं छत्रं पूर्णशशिप्रभम् ।

सौवर्णदण्डमपरा गृहीत्वा पृष्ठतो ययौ ॥ १४ ॥

Yet another followed in the rear taking a canopy resembling a swan and shining brightly like the full moon, with a handle of gold. (14)

निद्रामदपरीताक्ष्यो रावणस्योत्तमस्त्रियः ।

अनुजग्मुः पतिं वीरं घनं विद्युल्लता इव ॥ १५ ॥

Their eyes overcome with sleep and intoxication, the excellent consort of Rāvaṇa followed their valiant lord as flashes of lightning following a cloud. (15)

व्याविद्धहारकेयूराः समामृदितवर्णकाः ।

समागलितकेशान्ताः सस्वेदवदनास्तथा ॥ १६ ॥

Their necklaces and armlets got slightly displaced, their coat of sandal-paste got effaced, their looks got dishevelled and their faces got moistened with sweat. (16)

घूर्णन्त्यो मदशेषेण निद्रया च शुभाननाः ।

स्वेदक्लिष्टाङ्गकुसुमाः समाल्याकुलमूर्धजाः ॥ १७ ॥

Those women with lovely faces were staggering under the surviving traces of intoxication and sleep. The flowers on their person had got shrivelled by perspiration and their locks shook along with the wreaths that decorated them. (17)

प्रयान्तं नैर्ऋतपतिं नार्यो मदिरलोचनाः ।

बहुमानाच्च कामाच्च प्रियभार्यास्तमन्वयुः ॥ १८ ॥

Actuated by great regard for their husband as well as by longing to behold Sītā, the ladies, who were his beloved consorts, and who had intoxicating eyes, followed the aforesaid lord of ogres, who was going out to meet Sītā. (18)

स च कामपराधीनः पतिस्तासां महाबलः ।

सीतासक्तमना मन्दो मन्दाञ्चितगतिर्बभौ ॥ १९ ॥

And the evil-minded lord of theirs, who was the slave of his passion, though endowed with extraordinary might, and whose mind was attached to Sītā, looked charming as he proceeded in a slow-moving gait. (19)

ततः काञ्चीनिनादं च नूपुराणां च निःस्वनम् ।

शुश्राव परमस्त्रीणां कपिर्मरुतनन्दनः ॥ २० ॥

At that time, Hanumān, the delight of the wind-god, heard the tinkling of the ornaments worn round the waist as well as of the anklets of those excellent women. (20)

तं चाप्रतिमकर्माणमचिन्त्यबलपौरुषम् ।

द्वारदेशमनुप्राप्तं ददर्श हनुमान् कपिः ॥ २१ ॥

दीपिकाभिरनेकाभिः समन्तादवभासितम् ।

गन्धतैलावसिक्ताभिर्ध्रियमाणाभिरग्रतः ॥ २२ ॥

कामदर्पमदैर्युक्तं जिह्वताम्रायतेक्षणम् ।

समक्षमिव कन्दर्पमपविद्धशरासनम् ॥ २३ ॥

मथितामृतफेनाभमरजोवस्त्रमुत्तमम् ।

सपुष्पमवकर्षन्तं विमुक्तं सक्तमङ्गदे ॥ २४ ॥

Hanumān also found arrived near the gate of the Aśoka grove Rāvaṇa—who had accomplished unparalleled deeds and was endowed with inconceivable might and virility, who was illumined on all sides with numerous torches, fed with fragrant oil and being borne ahead, who was full of passion and vanity and intoxicated too, who had large, oblique and coppery eyes and looked like Love himself bereft of his bow and was disengaging and re-adjusting his excellent and stainless upper garment, which was white as the foam of churned milk, decorated with flowers and superior pearls, and had got entangled with his armllet. (21—24)

तं पत्रविटपे लीनः पत्रपुष्पशतावृतः ।
समीपमुपसंक्रान्तं विज्ञातुमुपचक्रमे ॥ २५ ॥

Remaining hidden behind a leafy bough, Hanumān, who was covered with hundreds of leaves and flowers, strove to discover the identity of Rāvaṇa, who had now drawn near. (25)

अवेक्षमाणस्तु तदा ददर्श कपिकुञ्जरः ।
रूपयौवनसम्पन्ना रावणस्य वरस्त्रियः ॥ २६ ॥

Looking round at that moment, Hanumān, an elephant among monkeys, also beheld the excellent consorts of Rāvaṇa, who were richly endowed with comeliness and youth. (26)

ताभिः परिवृतो राजा सुरूपाभिर्महायशाः ।
तन्मृगद्विजसंघुष्टं प्रविष्टः प्रमदावनम् ॥ २७ ॥

Surrounded by those women of a charming exterior, the highly illustrious king, Rāvaṇa, deeply penetrated into that pleasance for the use of ladies, rendered noisy by deer and birds. (27)

क्षीबो विचित्राभरणः शङ्कुकर्णो महाबलः ।
तेन विश्रवसः पुत्रः स दृष्टो राक्षसाधिपः ॥ २८ ॥
वृतः परमनारीभिस्ताराभिरिव चन्द्रमाः ।
तं ददर्श महातेजास्तेजोवन्तं महाकपिः ॥ २९ ॥

रावणोऽयं महाबाहुरिति संचिन्त्य वानरः ।
सोऽयमेव पुरा शेते पुरमध्ये गृहोत्तमे ।
अवप्लुतो महातेजा हनूमान् मारुतात्मजः ॥ ३० ॥

That suzerain ruler of ogres, Rāvaṇa, son of Sage Visrava, who was endowed with extraordinary might, was seen by Hanumān adorned with lovely jewels, drunk, distinguished by pointed (dart-like) ears, and surrounded by excellent women as the moon is by stars. Hanumān, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, thus beheld the glorious Rāvaṇa. Distinctly recalling that it was he who was lying asleep the previous night in a sumptuous apartment in the heart of the city, and concluding that he was no other than the mighty-armed Rāvaṇa, Hanumān, sprung from the loins of the wind-god, got down from the bough on which he was perched. (28—30)

स तथाप्युग्रतेजाः स निर्धूतस्तस्य तेजसा ।
पत्रे गुह्यान्तरे सक्तो मतिमान् संवृतोऽभवत् ॥ ३१ ॥

Overshadowed by the brilliance of Rāvaṇa, though himself possessed of terrific energy, the sagacious Hanumān stood rooted and concealed behind a bough thick with leaves. (31)

स तामसितकेशान्तां सुश्रोणीं संहतस्तनीम् ।
दिदृक्षुरसितापाङ्गीमुपावर्तत रावणः ॥ ३२ ॥

Keen to see Sītā of charming limbs and well-knit breasts, the ends of whose tresses were black and the corners of whose eyes were also dark, Rāvaṇa approached her. (32)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डेऽष्टादशः सर्गः ॥ १८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighteen in the Sundarākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनविंशः सर्गः

Canto XIX

Finding himself unable, as it were, to depict the mental state of Sītā, who got withered up and began to shudder at the sight of Rāvaṇa, the poet tries to portray her with the help of similes. Arrived in her presence, Rāvaṇa tries to win her

तस्मिन्नेव ततः काले राजपुत्री त्वनिन्दिता ।
रूपयौवनसम्पन्नं भूषणोत्तमभूषितम् ॥ १ ॥
ततो दृष्ट्वैव वैदेही रावणं राक्षसाधिपम् ।
प्रावेपत वरारोहा प्रवाते कदली यथा ॥ २ ॥

Thereupon the irreproachable princess, Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) of excellent limbs, began to shake like a plantain tree in a windy place as soon as she caught sight of, at that place and that very moment, Rāvaṇa, the suzerain ruler of ogres, richly endowed with comeliness and youth and decked with excellent ornaments. (1-2)

ऊरुभ्यामुदरं छाद्य बाहुभ्यां च पयोधरौ ।
उपविष्टा विशालाक्षी रुदती वरवर्णिनी ॥ ३ ॥

Concealing her belly behind her thighs and her breasts with her arms, the large-eyed lady with an excellent complexion sat down weeping. (3)

दशग्रीवस्तु वैदेहीं रक्षितां राक्षसीगणैः ।
ददर्श दीनां दुःखार्ता नावं सन्नामिवार्णवे ॥ ४ ॥
असंवृतायामासीनां धरण्यां संशितव्रताम् ।
छिन्नां प्रपतितां भूमौ शाखामिव वनस्पतेः ॥ ५ ॥
मलमण्डनदिग्धांगीं मण्डनार्हामण्डनाम् ।
मृणाली पङ्कदिग्धेव विभाति न विभाति च ॥ ६ ॥
समीपं राजसिंहस्य रामस्य विदितात्मनः ।
संकल्पहयसंयुक्तैर्यान्तीमिव मनोरथैः ॥ ७ ॥
शुष्यन्तीं रुदतीमेकां ध्यानशोकपरायणाम् ।
दुःखस्यान्तमपश्यन्तीं रामां राममनुव्रताम् ॥ ८ ॥
चेष्टमानामथाविष्टां पन्नगेन्द्रवधूमिव ।
धूप्यमानां ग्रहेणेव रोहिणीं धूमकेतुना ॥ ९ ॥
वृत्तशीले कुले जातामाचारवति धार्मिके ।
पुनः संस्कारमापन्नां जातामिव च दुष्कुले ॥ १० ॥

Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster for his part gazed on Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, of austere vows, who was guarded in turns by batches of ogresses and looked miserable and stricken with agony like a bark lying motionless in the sea; who was seated on the bare ground like the bough of a tree severed from the trunk and fallen flat on the ground; whose limbs were coated with dirt by way of decoration and was undecorated though deserving of decoration and who, like a lotus fibre stained with mud, looked charming as well as did not look charming; who was constantly seeking the presence of Śrī Rāma, a well-known personality, a lion among sovereigns, in the chariot of her mind, drawn by the horses of thought; who was a lovely woman ever growing emaciated and, seeing no end to her grief, wept alone and remained absorbed in thought of her beloved spouse and grieving, and who was devoted to Śrī Rāma; who was writhing like the female of the king of serpents under the spell of an incantation and was undergoing suffering like the constellation Rohiṇī when tormented by the smoke coloured planet, Ketu; and who, though born in a family distinguished for right conduct and noble disposition and also married in a pious family of good conduct, wore a shabby appearance like a woman born in an ignoble family. (4—10)

सन्नामिव महाकीर्तिं श्रद्धामिव विमानिताम् ।
प्रज्ञामिव परिक्षीणामाशां प्रतिहतामिव ॥ ११ ॥
आयतीमिव विध्वस्तामाज्ञां प्रतिहतामिव ।
दीप्तामिव दिशं काले पूजामपहतामिव ॥ १२ ॥
पौर्णमासीमिव निशां तमोग्रस्तेन्दुमण्डलाम् ।
पद्मिनीमिव विध्वस्तां हतशूरां चमूमिव ॥ १३ ॥

प्रभामिव तमोध्वस्तामुपक्षीणामिवापगाम् ।
 वेदीमिव परामृष्टां शान्तामग्निशिखामिव ॥ १४ ॥
 उत्कृष्टपर्णकमलां वित्रासितविहंगमाम् ।
 हस्तिहस्तपरामृष्टामाकुलामिव पद्मिनीम् ॥ १५ ॥
 पतिशोकातुरां शुष्कां नदीं विस्त्रावितामिव ।
 परया मृजया हीनां कृष्णपक्षे निशामिव ॥ १६ ॥
 सुकुमारीं सुजातांगीं रत्नगर्भगृहोचिताम् ।
 तप्यमानामिवोष्णेन मृणालीमचिरोद्धृताम् ॥ १७ ॥
 गृहीतामालितां स्तम्भे यूथपेन विनाकृताम् ।
 निःश्वसन्तीं सुदुःखार्तां गजराजवधूमिव ॥ १८ ॥
 एकया दीर्घया वेण्या शोभमानामयत्नतः ।
 नीलया नीरदापाये वनराज्या महीमिव ॥ १९ ॥
 उपवासेन शोकेन ध्यानेन च भयेन च ।
 परिक्षीणां कृशां दीनामल्पाहारां तपोधनाम् ॥ २० ॥
 आयाचमानां दुःखार्तां प्राञ्जलिं देवतामिव ।
 भावेन रघुमुख्यस्य दशग्रीवपराभवम् ॥ २१ ॥
 समीक्षमाणां रुदतीमनिन्दितां
 सुपक्षमताम्रायतशुक्ललोचनाम् ।
 अनुव्रतां राममतीव मैथिलीं
 प्रलोभयामास वधाय रावणः ॥ २२ ॥

Rāvaṇa, to his own destruction, sought to cajole Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, who resembled a great renown which has grown dim, a faith which has been treated with contempt, an understanding which has grown feeble, a hope which has been frustrated, a prospect which has been blasted, an order which has been flouted, a quarter appearing in flame at the time of some portentous phenomenon, a worship which has been tampered with, a full-moon night on which the orb of the moon has been eclipsed by the demon Rāhu (darkness personified), a lotus plant blighted by frost, an army whose warriors have been killed, sunlight that has been obscured by darkness, a stream which has become thin due to drought, an altar desecrated by an undesirable person, a flame which has gone out, a lotus pond whose lotuses with their leaves have been pulled out, whose birds have been scared away, nay, which has been rendered turbid by the trunk of an elephant as well as stirred by it; who was stricken with grief caused by separation from her lord and had grown lean and thin like a river whose water has been diverted through canals etc., for irrigation purposes and who, having been deprived of excellent washing, resembled a night during a dark fortnight; who was tender and possessed of charming limbs and was worthy of living in an abode full of precious stones and looking like a lotus-root dug out not long before and being baked in heat; who resembled the female of a lordly elephant disunited from the leader of the herd, nay, captured and chained to a pillar and breathing hard, sore stricken with sorrow, who looked charming with a single long braid formed without effort, even as the earth covered with a dark row of trees at the end of a monsoon when the clouds have disappeared; who had been wasted, emaciated and depressed through fasting, grief, brooding and fear, lived on a meagre diet and was rich in austerity; who was constantly asking her deity mentally, as it were, with folded hands for the discomfiture of Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, at the hands of Śrī Rāma, the foremost of Raghus; who was looking round weeping, irreproachable as she was, had large reddish and white eyes with beautiful lashes and was excessively devoted to Śrī Rāma. (11—22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे एकोनविंशः सर्गः ॥ १९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Nineteen in the Sundarākāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

विंशः सर्गः

Canto XX

Seeking to cajole Sītā by means of coaxing words,
Rāvaṇa implores her to accept him

स तां परिवृतां दीनां निरानन्दां तपस्विनीम्।
साकारैर्मधुरैर्वाक्यैर्न्यदर्शयत रावणः ॥ १ ॥

The aforesaid Rāvaṇa disclosed his mind in the following significant and sweet words to the poor and wretched Sītā, who was bereft of all joy and remained surrounded all the time by ogresses : (1)

मां दृष्ट्वा नागनासोरु गूहमाना स्तनोदरम्।
अदर्शनमिवात्मानं भयान्नेतुं त्वमिच्छसि ॥ २ ॥

“Concealing your breasts and belly, O lady with thighs resembling the proboscis of an elephant, you want to keep yourself out of sight, as it were, through fear of me. (2)

कामये त्वां विशालाक्षि बहु मन्यस्व मां प्रिये।
सर्वाङ्गगुणसम्पन्ने सर्वलोकमनोहरे ॥ ३ ॥

“I long for you, O large-eyed lady ! Pray, hold me in high esteem, O beloved one, who are richly endowed with all bodily excellences and ravish the mind of all people. (3)

नेह किञ्चिन्मनुष्या वा राक्षसाः कामरूपिणः।
व्यपसर्पतु ते सीते भयं मत्तः समुत्थितम् ॥ ४ ॥

“There are no men or ogres capable of changing form at will here. And let your fear born of me vanish for good, O Sītā! (4)

स्वधर्मो रक्षसां भीरु सर्वदैव न संशयः।
गमनं वा परस्त्रीणां हरणं सम्प्रमथ्य वा ॥ ५ ॥

“It has always been the peculiar course of conduct prescribed for ogres, O timid one, to approach sexually the wives of others or to bear them away by force: there is no doubt about it. (5)

एवं चैवमकामां त्वां न च स्पृक्ष्यामि मैथिलि।
कामं कामः शरीरे मे यथाकामं प्रवर्तताम् ॥ ६ ॥

“Notwithstanding this, O princess of Mithilā, I will not touch you so long as you do not love me in return. I would fain let passion hold sway at will over my body. (6)

देवि नेह भयं कार्यं मयि विश्वसिहि प्रिये।
प्रणयस्व च तत्त्वेन मैवं भूः शोकलालसा ॥ ७ ॥

“No fear should be entertained by you on this spot, O adorable lady ! Have confidence in me, O beloved one ! Make love to me in reality; don’t get swayed by grief. (7)

एकवेणी अधःशय्या ध्यानं मलिनमम्बरम्।
अस्थानेऽप्युपवासश्च नैतान्यौपयिकानि ते ॥ ८ ॥

“To wear a single plait, to lie on the ground, to remain brooding all the time, to put on a soiled attire and to observe a fast even when there is no occasion for it—all these are not proper for you. (8)

विचित्राणि च माल्यानि चन्दनान्यगुरूणि च।
विविधानि च वासांसि दिव्यान्याभरणानि च ॥ ९ ॥
महार्हाणि च पानानि शयनान्यासनानि च।
गीतं नृत्यं च वाद्यं च लभ मां प्राप्य मैथिलि ॥ १० ॥

“Having secured me as your lover, enjoy garlands of diverse kinds as well as sandal-pastes and aloes, as also robes of various kinds and celestial ornaments too, nay, costly drinks, beds and seats, vocal and instrumental music and dancing, O princess of Mithilā ! (9-10)

स्त्रीरत्नमसि मैवं भूः कुरु गात्रेषु भूषणम्।
मां प्राप्य हि कथं वा स्यास्त्वमनर्हा सुविग्रहे ॥ ११ ॥

“You are a jewel among women; no longer, therefore, remain in this shabby condition. Wear ornaments on your limbs. Indeed, having had me as your lover, how can you remain unadorned, O lady endowed with a lovely form? (11)

इदं ते चारु संजातं यौवनं ह्यतिवर्तते।
यदतीतं पुनर्नैति स्रोतः स्रोतस्विनामिव ॥ १२ ॥

“This charming youth of yours, which is now fully developed, is actually passing away. What has actually passed never returns any more than the current of streams. (12)

त्वां कृत्वोपरतो मन्ये रूपकर्ता स विश्वकृत्।
नहि रूपोपमा ह्यन्या तवास्ति शुभदर्शने ॥ १३ ॥

“Having created you as the paragon of beauty, I believe, the celebrated maker of the universe, who designed your form, has retired from his duty of designing forms, for indeed there is no other women who can compare in comeliness with you, O lady of charming aspect ! (13)

त्वां समासाद्य वैदेहि रूपयौवनशालिनीम्।
कः पुनर्नातिवर्तेत साक्षादपि पितामहः ॥ १४ ॥

“Who, having come across you, O princess of the Videha territory, adorned as you are with comeliness and exuberant youth, would not lose his balance of mind, even if he is Brahmā (the grandfather of the universe) himself? (14)

यद् यत् पश्यामि ते गात्रं शीतांशुसद्गुणानने।
तस्मिन्स्मिन् पृथुश्रोणि चक्षुर्मम निबध्यते ॥ १५ ॥

“My eye gets riveted, O lady of broad hips, on each of your limbs which I behold, O lady endowed with a moonlike countenance! (15)

भव मैथिलि भार्या मे मोहमेतं विसर्जय।
बह्वीनामुत्तमस्त्रीणां ममाग्रमहिषी भव ॥ १६ ॥

“Give up this folly in the form of fidelity to your husband and become my consort, O princess of Mithilā! Become the foremost queen of my numerous excellent wives. (16)

लोकेभ्यो यानि रत्नानि सम्प्रमथ्याहृतानि मे।
तानि ते भीरु सर्वाणि राज्यं चैव ददामि ते ॥ १७ ॥

“I offer you all the well-known jewels which have been brought by me by way of booty from the various kingdoms, as well as my own, O timid one! (17)

विजित्य पृथिवीं सर्वा नानानगरमालिनीम्।
जनकाय प्रदास्यामि तव हेतोर्विलासिनि ॥ १८ ॥

“Having fully subjugated the entire globe with its chain of cities, O sportive lady, I will offer it to Janaka, your father, for your sake. (18)

नेह पश्यामि लोकेऽन्यं यो मे प्रतिबलो भवेत्।
पश्य मे सुमहद्वीर्यमप्रतिद्वन्द्वमाहवे ॥ १९ ॥

“I do not find in the universe anyone else who may be my equal in might. You will behold my extraordinary vitality which knows no rival in combat. (19)

असकृत् संयुगे भग्ना मया विमृदितध्वजाः।
अशक्ताः प्रत्यनीकेषु स्थातुं मम सुरासुराः ॥ २० ॥

“Unable to stand in ranks hostile to me, the gods as well as the demons were more than once utterly routed in battle by me, their standards having been smashed. (20)

इच्छ मां क्रियतामद्य प्रतिकर्म तवोत्तमम्।
सुप्रभाण्यवसज्जन्तां तवांगे भूषणानि हि ॥ २१ ॥

“Therefore, be favourably disposed to me. Let you be exquisitely decorated today. Let exceptionally brilliant jewels be worn on your limbs. (21)

साधु पश्यामि ते रूपं सुयुक्तं प्रतिकर्मणा।
प्रतिकर्माभिसंयुक्ता दाक्षिण्येन वरानने ॥ २२ ॥

“Let me behold your excellent form profusely adorned with decoration. Be decorated by way of courtesy to me, O lady endowed with a charming countenance ! (22)

भुङ्क्ष्व भोगान् यथाकामं पिब भीरु रमस्व च।
यथेष्टं च प्रयच्छ त्वं पृथिवीं वा धनानि च ॥ २३ ॥

“Enjoy luxuries according to your pleasure; drink and revel, O timid one ! And gift you land as well as riches to others as you wish. (23)

ललस्व मयि विस्त्रब्धा धृष्टमाज्ञापयस्व च।
मत्प्रासादाल्ललन्त्याश्च ललतां बान्धवस्तव ॥ २४ ॥

“Full of confidence in me, seek pleasures and boldly give orders to me. When you enjoy pleasures out of kindness to me, let your relatives too enjoy life. (24)

ऋद्धिं ममानुपश्य त्वं श्रियं भद्रे यशस्विनि ।
किं करिष्यसि रामेण सुभगे चीरवासिना ॥ २५ ॥

“Look at my affluence and prosperity, O blessed and illustrious lady ! What will you do, O lovely one, with Rāma, who remains clad in tatters? (25)

निक्षिप्तविजयो रामो गतश्रीर्वनगोचरः ।
व्रती स्थण्डिलशायी च शंके जीवति वा न वा ॥ २६ ॥

“Rāma has given up all hope of victory, has lost his fortune; dwells in the forest, is observing sacred vows and lies on the ground without any cot. I am doubtful whether he still survives or not. (26)

नहि वैदेहि रामस्त्वां द्रष्टुं वाप्युपलभ्यते ।
पुरोबलाकैरसितैर्मधैर्ज्योत्स्नामिवावृताम् ॥ २७ ॥

“Surely Rāma will not be able even to see you, any more than moonshine veiled by dark clouds perceived by herons, O Sitā, a princess of the Videha territory ! (27)

न चापि मम हस्तात् त्वां प्राप्तुमर्हति राघवः ।
हिरण्यकशिपुः कीर्तिमिन्द्रहस्तगतामिव ॥ २८ ॥

“Nor will Rāma, a scion of Raghu, be able to get you back from my hands any more than the demon Hiranyakaśipu was able to recover his glory which had passed into the hands of Indra. (28)

चारुस्मिते चारुदति चारुनेत्रे विलासिनि ।
मनो हरसि मे भीरु सुपर्णः पन्नगं यथा ॥ २९ ॥

“You ravish my mind even as Garuḍa, who is noted for his charming wings, carries away a serpent, O sportive yet timid lady, distinguished by sweet smiles, lovely teeth and beautiful eyes ! (29)

क्लिष्टकौशेयवसनां तन्वीमप्यनलंकृताम् ।
त्वां दृष्ट्वा स्वेषु दारेषु रतिं नोपलभाम्यहम् ॥ ३० ॥

“Seeing you clad in a worn out silk cloth, emaciated and unadorned, I find no delight even in my own principal consort, Mandodarī. (30)

अन्तःपुरनिवासिन्यः स्त्रियः सर्वगुणान्विताः ।
यावत्सो मम सर्वासामैश्वर्यं कुरु जानकि ॥ ३१ ॥

“Hold sway, O daughter of Janaka, over all the women who dwell in my gynaeceum and are endowed with all excellences. (31)

मम ह्यसितकेशान्ते त्रैलोक्यप्रवरस्त्रियः ।
तास्त्वां परिचरिष्यन्ति श्रियमप्सरसो यथा ॥ ३२ ॥

“My celebrated consorts, who are most excellent in all the three worlds (heaven, earth and the intermediate region), will wait on you even as celestial nymphs attend on Lakṣmī, the goddess of fortune, O lady with black hair ! (32)

यानि वैश्रवणे सुभु रत्नानि च धनानि च ।
तानि लोकांश्च सुश्रोणि मया भुङ्क्ष्व यथासुखम् ॥ ३३ ॥

“Make use according to your pleasure of all the jewels and riches which (though won by me) exist in the possession of Kubera (son of Viśravā), O lady of charming brows and graceful limb, and enjoy the rulership of the three worlds. (33)

न रामस्तपसा देवि न बलेन च विक्रमैः ।
न धनेन मया तुल्यस्तेजसा यशसापि वा ॥ ३४ ॥

“Neither in point of asceticism, nor in might, nor in prowess, nor in wealth, nor in glory, nor even in renown is Rāma equal to me. (34)

पिब विहर रमस्व भुङ्क्ष्व भोगान्
धननिचयं प्रदिशामि मेदिनीं च ।

मयि लल ललने यथासुखं त्वं
त्वयि च समेत्य ललन्तु बान्धवास्ते ॥ ३५ ॥

“Therefore, drink, sport, revel and enjoy pleasures. Bestow on your relatives the immense store of wealth that you will own from now onwards as well as the earth that will now be yours. Enjoy you life according to your pleasure, depending on me, O beloved one, and, reaching your presence, let your relatives too enjoy life. (35)

कुसुमिततरुजालसंततानि

भ्रमरयुतानि समुद्रतीरजानि ।

कनकविमलहारभूषितांगी

विहर मया सह भीरु काननानि ॥ ३६ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे विंशः सर्गः ॥ २० ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXI

Placing a blade of grass between herself and Rāvaṇa in order to avoid direct contact with a man of evil intentions and expostulating with him by showing him the right path, Sītā praises Śrī Rāma and, impressing on Rāvaṇa the consequences of the latter befriending or antagonizing Śrī Rāma, advises Rāvaṇa to make friends with Śrī Rāma through self-surrender

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा सीता रौद्रस्य रक्षसः ।
आर्ता दीनस्वरा दीनं प्रत्युवाच ततः शनैः ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid speech of that terrible ogre, Sītā, who was already afflicted, now gently and sadly replied in piteous tones. (1)

दुःखार्ता रुदती सीता वेपमाना तपस्विनी ।
चिन्तयन्ती वरारोहा पतिमेव पतिव्रता ॥ २ ॥
तृणमन्तरतः कृत्वा प्रत्युवाच शुचिस्मिता ।
निवर्तय मनो मत्तः स्वजने प्रीयतां मनः ॥ ३ ॥

Placing a straw between herself and Rāvaṇa in order to avoid direct contact with him, poor Sītā of excellent limbs and bright smiles, who was sobbing and shuddering, stricken with sorrow as she was, and, being devoted to her husband, was, constantly thinking of him alone, replied in the following words: "Withdraw your mind from me and let it be satisfied with your own consorts alone. (2-3)

न मां प्रार्थयितुं युक्तस्त्वं सिद्धिमिव पापकृत् ।
अकार्यं न मया कार्यमेकपत्न्या विगर्हितम् ॥ ४ ॥

"Your person adorned with bright gold necklaces, range in my company, O timid one, the groves, appearing on the seashore, nay, covered all over with clusters of trees in blossom and crowded with black bees." (36)

कुलं सम्प्राप्तया पुण्यं कुले महति जातया ।
एवमुक्त्वा तु वैदेही रावणं तं यशस्विनी ॥ ५ ॥
रावणं पृष्ठतः कृत्वा भूयो वचनमब्रवीत् ।
नाहपौपयिकी भार्या परभार्या सती तव ॥ ६ ॥

"You are not deserving of seeking to win me any more than a sinner deserves to seek perfection in the form of final beatitude. An unworthy act which is deprecated by a devoted wife can never be done by me, who was born in a noble house and have joined a pious family by virtue of marriage." Having spoken thus to Rāvaṇa, who made his foes cry in terror, and turning her back on him, the illustrious Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, once more addressed the following words to him : "Being the virtuous wife of another, I cannot be your lawful consort. (4-6)

साधु धर्ममवेक्षस्व साधु साधुव्रतं चर ।
यथा तव तथान्येषां रक्ष्या दारा निशाचर ॥ ७ ॥

"Take into account the rule of conduct of the virtuous and duly follow the course of conduct of the virtuous. Others' wives too deserve to be protected by you in the same way as your own, O prowler of the night ! (7)

आत्मानमुपमां कृत्वा स्वेषु दारेषु रम्यताम् ।
अतुष्टं स्वेषु दारेषु चपलं चपलेन्द्रियम् ।
नयन्ति निकृतिप्रज्ञं परदाराः पराभवम् ॥ ८ ॥

“Making a model of yourself, take delight in your wife alone. Others' wives lead to humiliation of the fickle man of vagrant senses and reproachful understanding, who is not contented with his own wife. (8)

इह सन्तो न वा सन्ति सतो वा नानुवर्तसे ।
यथा हि विपरीता ते बुद्धिराचारवर्जिता ॥ ९ ॥

“Either there are no pious men here or you do not follow them in that your mind is so perverse and has turned away from right conduct. (9)

वचो मिथ्याप्रणीतात्मा पथ्यमुक्तं विचक्षणैः ।
राक्षसानामभावाय त्वं वा न प्रतिपद्यसे ॥ १० ॥

“Or, you do not listen to the wholesome advice tendered by the wise, your mind being set on the unreal, bent as you are on the destruction of ogres. (10)

अकृतात्मानमासाद्य राजानमनये रतम् ।
समृद्धानि विनश्यन्ति राष्ट्राणि नगराणि च ॥ ११ ॥

“Having found as their ruler one who has not been able to control his mind and who is given to unrighteousness, even affluent kingdoms and cities go to ruin. (11)

तथैव त्वां समासाद्य लंका रत्नौघसंकुला ।
अपराधात् तवैकस्य नचिराद् विनशिष्यति ॥ १२ ॥

“Even so, having got you as its ruler, Laṅkā, which is full of heaps of precious stones, will perish before long for the fault of one individual, viz., yourself. (12)

स्वकृतैर्हन्यमानस्य रावणादीर्घदर्शिनः ।
अभिनन्दन्ति भूतानि विनाशे पापकर्मणः ॥ १३ ॥

“All beings rejoice over the destruction, O Rāvaṇa, of that short-sighted fellow who is given to sinful deeds and is being killed by his own doings. (13)

एवं त्वां पापकर्माणं वक्ष्यन्ति निकृता जनाः ।
दिष्ट्यैतद् व्यसनं प्राप्तो रौद्र इत्येव हर्षिताः ॥ १४ ॥

“In the same way people tormented by you will speak of you as a man of sinful deeds and feeling rejoiced will say: ‘Luckily enough has the terrible being met with this reverse.’ (14)

शक्या लोभयितुं नाहमैश्वर्येण धनेन वा ।
अनन्या राघवेणाहं भास्करेण यथा प्रभा ॥ १५ ॥

“I am not capable of being tempted with power or riches; I am undivided from Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, even as sunlight is from the sun. (15)

उपधाय भुजं तस्य लोकनाथस्य सत्कृतम् ।
कथं नामोपधास्यामि भुजमन्यस्य कस्यचित् ॥ १६ ॥

“Having rested on the honoured arm of that lord of the people, how shall I actually rest on the arm of anyone else? (16)

अहमौपयिकी भार्या तस्यैव च धरापतेः ।
व्रतस्नातस्य विद्येव विप्रस्य विदितात्मनः ॥ १७ ॥

“I am the lawful wife of that ruler of the globe alone even as knowledge of Veda lawfully belongs to a Brāhmaṇa who has realized the Self and has had his ceremonial bath as a token of having completed his vow of celibacy. (17)

साधु रावण रामेण मां समानय दुःखिताम् ।
वने वासितया सार्धं करेण्वेव गजाधिपम् ॥ १८ ॥

“Unite me straight with Śrī Rāma, wretched as I am, even as one would unite a lordly elephant with a female elephant in heat in a forest, O Rāvaṇa ! (18)

मित्रमौपयिकं कर्तुं रामः स्थानं परीप्सता ।
बन्धं चानिच्छता घोरं त्वयासौ पुरुषर्षभः ॥ १९ ॥

“It would be but meet that that jewel among men, Śrī Rāma, be made friends by you if you seek to preserve your fortress Laṅkā and if you do not wish to suffer terrible bondage. (19)

विदितः सर्वधर्मज्ञः शरणागतवत्सलः ।
तेन मैत्री भवतु ते यदि जीवितुमिच्छसि ॥ २० ॥

“He is a reputed knower of all virtues and fond of those who have sought shelter with him. Let your friendship be established with him if you seek to survive. (20)

प्रसादयस्व त्वं चैनं शरणागतवत्सलम्।
मां चास्मै प्रयतो भूत्वा निर्यातयितुमर्हसि ॥ २१ ॥

“Nay, propitiate Śrī Rāma, who is fond of those who have sought protection with him. And, remaining restrained throughout in your behaviour with me, be pleased to restore me to him. (21)

एवं हि ते भवेत् स्वस्ति सम्प्रदाय रघूत्तमे।
अन्यथा त्वं हि कुर्वाणः परां प्राप्स्यसि चापदम् ॥ २२ ॥

“Surely your welfare lies in thus restoring me to Śrī Rāma, the foremost of the Raghus. Acting otherwise you will undoubtedly meet with adversity. (22)

वर्जयेद् वज्रमुत्सृष्टं वर्जयेदन्तकश्चिरम्।
त्वद्विधं न तु संक्रुद्धो लोकनाथः स राघवः ॥ २३ ॥

“The thunderbolt may spare a wrongdoer like you, even though discharged; Death too may ignore an offender like you for a long time. That scion of Raghu, the protector of the people, will not, however, leave you when enraged. (23)

रामस्य धनुषः शब्दं श्रोष्यसि त्वं महास्वनम्।
शतक्रतुविसृष्टस्य निर्घोषमशनेरिव ॥ २४ ॥

“You will soon hear the twang of Śrī Rāma’s bow, producing a terrific sound and resembling the crash of the thunderbolt hurled by Indra (who is presupposed to have performed a hundred Aśwamedha sacrifices in his previous existence as a condition precedent to his attainment of that exalted position). (24)

इह शीघ्रं सुपर्वाणो ज्वलितास्या इवोरगाः।
इषवो निपतिष्यन्ति रामलक्ष्मणलक्षिताः ॥ २५ ॥

“Well-mounted arrows marked by the names of Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa will soon rain on this city like serpents with flaming jaws. (25)

रक्षांसि निहनिष्यन्तः पुर्यामस्यां न संशयः।
असम्पातं करिष्यन्ति पतन्तः कङ्कवाससः ॥ २६ ॥

“Descending on this city, the arrows decorated with the plumes of a buzzard, which are sure to exterminate the ogres, will leave no space uncovered by them; there is no doubt about it. (26)

राक्षसेन्द्रमहासर्पान् स रामगरुडो महान्।
उद्धरिष्यति वेगेन वैनतेय इवोरगान् ॥ २७ ॥

“That great secretary-bird in the form of Śrī Rāma will speedily stamp out the mighty serpents in the form of the leaders of ogres in the same way as Garuḍa, the king of birds, son of Vinatā, would extirpate serpents. (27)

अपनेष्यति मां भर्ता त्वत्तः शीघ्रमरिंदमः।
असुरेभ्यः श्रियं दीप्तां विष्णुस्त्रिभिरिव क्रमैः ॥ २८ ॥

“My husband, the tamer of his foes, will soon recover me from you even as Lord Viṣṇu wrested the radiant sovereignty of the three worlds from the demons in the course of three strides. (28)

जनस्थाने हतस्थाने निहते रक्षसां बले।
अशक्तेन त्वया रक्षः कृतमेतदसाधु वै ॥ २९ ॥

“The host of the ogres stationed in Janasthāna having been destroyed by Śrī Rāma and your foothold on Janasthāna having consequently been lost, this wicked deed in the shape of my abduction was actually perpetrated by you, impotent as you were to avenge yourself on the destruction of the army in Janasthāna, O ogre ! (29)

आश्रमं तत्तयोः शून्यं प्रविश्य नरसिंहयोः।
गोचरं गतयोर्भ्रात्रोरपनीता त्वयाधम ॥ ३० ॥

“I was borne away by you, O vile wretch, entering that lonely hermitage of the aforesaid two brothers, who are lions among men and who had gone out a-hunting. (30)

नहि गन्धमुपाघ्राय रामलक्ष्मणयोस्त्वया।
शक्यं संदर्शने स्थातुं शुना शार्दूलयोरिव ॥ ३१ ॥

“It is not possible for you to stand within the sight of Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa even on smelling their presence, any more than a dog would tarry within the gaze of a pair of tigers. (31)

तस्य ते विग्रहे ताभ्यां युगग्रहणमस्थिरम्।
वृत्रस्येवेन्द्रबाहुभ्यां बाहोरेकस्य विग्रहे ॥ ३२ ॥

“Your victory in an encounter with them, situated as you are, is uncertain in the same way as on the part of a single arm of the demon Vṛtra in its encounter with both the arms of Indra during the great war between gods and demons at the beginning of creation. (32)

क्षिप्रं तव स नाथो मे रामः सौमित्रिणा सह।
तोयमल्पमिवादित्यः प्राणानादास्यते शरैः ॥ ३३ ॥

“Soon shall that lord of mine, Śrī Rāma, with Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), take away your life with his shafts even as the sun sucks up with its rays the shallow water of a pool. (33)

गिरिं कुबेरस्य गतोऽथवाऽऽलयं

सभां गतो वा वरुणस्य राज्ञः ।

असंशयं दाशरथेर्विमोक्ष्यसे

महाद्रुमः कालहतोऽशनेरिव ॥ ३४ ॥

“Even if you flyaway for protection to the mountain, Kailāśa, constituting the abode of Kubera (the god of riches) or descend on the council-chamber of King Varuṇa (the deity presiding over water), you shall undoubtedly be deprived of your life by the arrows of Śrī Rāma (son of Daśaratha), killed as you already are by the Time-Spirit even as a huge tree felled by lightning.” (34)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे एकविंशः सर्गः ॥ २१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-one in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वाविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXII

Nettled by the censure uttered by Sītā, Rāvaṇa allows her a time-limit of two months to revise her decision and threatens her with death if she does not listen to reason. Restored to confidence by the glances of Rāvaṇa's consorts, however, Sītā condemns him once more. Leaving instructions with ogresses of terrible and ugly aspect to bring her to reason by recourse to intimidation and persuasion, Rāvaṇa thereupon leaves the presence of Sītā alongwith his womenfolk

सीताया वचनं श्रुत्वा परुषं राक्षसेश्वरः।
प्रत्युवाच ततः सीतां विप्रियं प्रियदर्शनाम् ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the sharp rebuff of Sītā, Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, then made the following unpalatable reply to Sītā of pleasing aspect : (1)

यथा यथा सान्त्वयिता वश्यः स्त्रीणां तथा तथा।
यथा यथा प्रियं वक्ता परिभूतस्तथा तथा ॥ २ ॥

“The courteous a man is to women, the more agreeable he becomes to them. In your case, however, I find that the more kind words I speak the more I am snubbed by you. (2)

संनियच्छति मे क्रोधं त्वयि कामः समुत्थितः।
द्रवतो मार्गमासाद्य हयानिव सुसारथिः ॥ ३ ॥

“The love that has sprung up in my heart for you restrains my anger even as a good charioteer controls the horses of his chariot swirling on a wrong path. (3)

वामः कामो मनुष्याणां यस्मिन् किल निबध्यते ।
जने तस्मिंस्त्वनुक्रोशः स्नेहश्च किल जायते ॥ ४ ॥

“It is a well-known fact that compassion and affection are generated towards that individual on whom cruel love gets actually fastened. (4)

एतस्मात् कारणान्न त्वां घातयामि वरानने ।
वधार्हमवमानार्हं मिथ्या प्रव्रजने रताम् ॥ ५ ॥

“It is on this account that I do not cause you to be put to death even though you are deserving of death and ignominy, devoted as you are to asceticism (the way of life of recluses) in vain, O lady of charming countenance ! (5)

पुरुषाणि हि वाक्यानि यानि यानि ब्रवीषि माम् ।
तेषु तेषु वधो युक्तस्तव मैथिलि दारुणः ॥ ६ ॥

“Indeed for all those cutting remarks that you have uttered with reference to me, violent capital punishment is proper for you, O princess of Mithilā !” (6)

एवमुक्त्वा तु वैदेहीं रावणो राक्षसाधिपः ।
क्रोधसंरम्भसंयुक्तः सीतामुत्तरमब्रवीत् ॥ ७ ॥

Having spoken thus to Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, who was filled with anger, addressed the following words to Sītā : (7)

द्वौ मासौ रक्षितव्यौ मे योऽवधिस्ते मया कृतः ।
ततः शयनमारोह मम त्वं वरवर्णिनि ॥ ८ ॥

“According to the time-limit of twelve months which has been fixed by me, I must wait for two months (that now remain). After that you must share my bed, O lady of excellent complexion ! (8)

द्वाभ्यामूर्ध्वं तु मासाभ्यां भर्तारं मामनिच्छतीम् ।
मम त्वां प्रातराशार्थं सूदाश्छेत्यन्ति खण्डशः ॥ ९ ॥

“My cooks will mince you for my morning repast in case you do not consent to have me for your husband even after two months from now.” (9)

तां भर्त्यमानां सम्प्रेक्ष्य राक्षसेन्द्रेण जानकीम् ।
देवगन्धर्वकन्यास्ता विषेदुर्विकृतेक्षणाः ॥ १० ॥

Gazing on that daughter of Janaka being threatened by Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, those daughters of gods and Gandharvas, who had been forcibly borne away like Sītā, grew melancholy with troubled eyes. (10)

ओष्ठप्रकारैरपरा नेत्रैर्वक्त्रैस्तथापराः ।
सीतामाश्वासयामासुस्तर्जितां तेन रक्षसा ॥ ११ ॥

Some of them reassured by the expression of their lips and others by their eyes and faces Sītā, who was being menaced as above by that ogre. (11)

ताभिराश्वासिता सीता रावणं राक्षसाधिपम् ।
उवाचात्महितं वाक्यं वृत्तशौटीर्यग्वितम् ॥ १२ ॥

Restored to confidence by them, Sītā addressed to Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, the following reply, which was in his own interest and which was full of pride for her own morality as well as for her husband's valour : (12)

नूनं न ते जनः कश्चिदस्मिन्निःश्रेयसि स्थितः ।
निवारयति यो न त्वां कर्मणोऽस्माद् विगर्हितात् ॥ १३ ॥

“Surely in this city there is no man intent on your welfare, since no one deters you from this most reproachful act in the shape of detaining another's wife forcibly without her concurrence. (13)

मां हि धर्मात्मनः पत्नीं शचीमिव शचीपतेः ।
त्वदन्यस्त्रिषु लोकेषु प्रार्थयेन्मनसापि कः ॥ १४ ॥
राक्षसाधम रामस्य भार्याममिततेजसः ।
उक्तवानसि यत् पापं क्व गतस्तस्य मोक्ष्यसे ॥ १५ ॥

“Indeed, who other than you in all the three worlds will seek even with his mind to have me, the consort of Śrī Rāma, who has set his mind on virtue, even as one would seek Saci, the spouse of Indra? Going anywhere you will not escape the consequences of the sinful proposal you have made to the consort of Śrī Rāma, who is endowed with immense energy, O vile ogre! (14-15)

यथा दृप्तश्च मातंगः शशश्च सहितौ वने।

तथा द्विरदवद् रामस्त्वं नीच शशवत् स्मृतः ॥ १६ ॥

“Śrī Rāma is like an elephant, while you, O mean fellow, have been declared to be like a hare. If you two ever encounter each other in a combat, the picture will be of a proud elephant and a hare come to grips in a forest. (16)

स त्वमिक्ष्वाकुनाथं वै क्षिपन्निह न लज्जसे।

चक्षुषो विषये तस्य न यावदुपगच्छसि ॥ १७ ॥

“As such you do not evidently feel abashed while railing here (when he is not before you) at Śrī Rāma, the protector of the Ikṣvākus. You blab like this only so long as you do not fall within the range of his sight. (17)

इमे ते नयने क्रूरे विकृते कृष्णपिंगले।

क्षितौ न पतिते कस्मान्मामनार्य निरीक्षतः ॥ १८ ॥

“I wonder how these cruel, evil, dark-yellow eyes of yours did not drop on the ground even as you gazed on me lustfully, O ignoble creature ! (18)

तस्य धर्मात्मनः पत्नी स्नुषा दशरथस्य च।

कथं व्याहरतो मां ते न जिह्वा पाप शीर्यति ॥ १९ ॥

“Why did your tongue not fall off even as you were talking as you did to me, the spouse of the aforesaid pious minded soul and daughter-in-law of King Daśaratha? (19)

असंदेशात्तु रामस्य तपसश्चानुपालनात्।

न त्वां कुर्मि दशग्रीव भस्म भस्मार्हतेजसा ॥ २० ॥

“I do not reduce you to ashes by dint of my glory, which alone is enough to reduce you to ashes, only because I do not have the mandate of Śrī Rāma to do so and also because I seek to preserve the power of my asceticism, O ten-headed monster ! (20)

नापहर्तुमहं शक्या तस्य रामस्य धीमतः।

विधिस्तव वधार्थाय विहितो नात्र संशयः ॥ २१ ॥

“Being the consort of that wise Śrī Rāma, I was not capable of being wrested by you. My abduction is only a device ordained by Providence for bringing about your destruction: there is no doubt about it. (21)

शूरेण धनदभ्रात्रा बलैः समुदितेन च।

अपोह्य रामं कस्माच्चिद् दारचौर्यं त्वया कृतम् ॥ २२ ॥

“Wherefore was Śrī Rāma’s consort, myself, stolen away by you after luring away Śrī Rāma from the hermitage, heroic as you claim yourself, nay, a (half-) brother of Kubera, the bestower of riches, and well-equipped with forces?” (22)

सीताया वचनं श्रुत्वा रावणो राक्षसाधिपः।

विवृत्य नयने क्रूरे जानकीमन्ववैक्षत ॥ २३ ॥

नीलजीमूतसंकाशो महाभुजशिरोधरः।

सिंहसत्त्वगतिः श्रीमान् दीप्तजिह्वोग्रलोचनः ॥ २४ ॥

चलाग्रमुकुटप्रांशुशिचित्रमाल्यानुलेपनः।

रक्तमाल्याम्बरधरस्तप्तांगदविभूषणः ॥ २५ ॥

श्रोणीसूत्रेण महता मेचकेन सुसंवृतः।

अमृतोत्पादने नद्धो भुजंगेनेव मन्दरः ॥ २६ ॥

Turning his cruel eyes round in anger on hearing the reply of Sītā, the glorious Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, looked askance at the daughter of Janaka—Rāvaṇa who resembled a dark cloud had enormous arms and neck, possessed the courage and gait of a lion, had a flaming tongue and frightful eyes, who looked very tall with the crest of his diadem shaking as a result of his anger, who was adorned with excellent garlands and smeared with exquisite sandal-paste and who wore a garland of red flowers and a red costume, was decked with brilliant armlets and encircled at his waist with a costly dark-blue girdle, obviously made of sapphires, thus presenting the appearance of Mount Mandāra encompassed by the serpent Vāsuki at the time of the churning of the ocean for extracting nectar. (23—26)

ताभ्यां स परिपूर्णाभ्यां भुजाभ्यां राक्षसेश्वरः ।

शुशुभेऽचलसंकाशः शृंगाभ्यामिव मन्दरः ॥ २७ ॥

With his two well-built arms of well-known might that lord of ogres, who was colossal as a mountain, looked charming like Mount Mandāra with a pair of peaks.

(27)

तरुणादित्यवर्णाभ्यां कुण्डलाभ्यां विभूषितः ।

रक्तपल्लवपुष्पाभ्यामशोकाभ्यामिवाचलः ॥ २८ ॥

Adorned with a pair of ear-rings resembling the rising sun in hue, he looked like a mountain with a pair of Aśoka trees clothed with crimson leaves and flowers.

(28)

स कल्पवृक्षप्रतिमो वसन्त इव मूर्तिमान् ।

श्मशानचैत्यप्रतिमो भूषितोऽपि भयंकरः ॥ २९ ॥

Though adorned like a wish-yielding tree or like spring-incarnate, he was fearful like a funeral monument or pyramidal column containing the ashes of deceased persons and existing in a crematorium.

(29)

अवेक्षमाणो वैदेहीं कोपसंरक्तलोचनः ।

उवाच रावणः सीतां भुजंग इव निःश्वसन् ॥ ३० ॥

Gazing on Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, his eyes bloodshot through anger, and hissing like a serpent, Rāvaṇa spoke to her as follows:

(30)

अनयेनाभिसम्पन्नमर्थहीनमनुव्रते ।

नाशयाम्यहमद्य त्वां सूर्यः संध्यामिवौजसा ॥ ३१ ॥

“O woman devoted to a man who is beset with ill-luck and is devoid of resources, I shall get rid of you today by recourse to my glory even as the sun dispels the morning twilight by its brilliance.”

(31)

इत्युक्त्वा मैथिलीं राजा रावणः शत्रुरावणः ।

संददर्श ततः सर्वा राक्षसीर्घोरदर्शनाः ॥ ३२ ॥

एकाक्षीमेककर्णा च कर्णप्रावरणां तथा ।

गोकर्णी हस्तिकर्णी च लम्बकर्णीमकर्णिकाम् ॥ ३३ ॥

हस्तिपद्मश्वपदौ च गोपदीं पादचूलिकाम् ।

एकाक्षीमेकपादीं च पृथुपादीमपादिकाम् ॥ ३४ ॥

अतिमात्रशिरोग्रीवामतिमात्रकुचोदरीम् ।

अतिमात्रास्यनेत्रां च दीर्घजिह्वानखामपि ॥ ३५ ॥

अनासिकां सिंहमुखीं गोमुखीं सूकरीमुखीम् ।

यथा मद्रशगा सीता क्षिप्रं भवति जानकी ॥ ३६ ॥

तथा कुरुत राक्षस्यः सर्वाः क्षिप्रं समेत्य वा ।

प्रतिलोमानुलोमैश्च सामदानादिभेदनैः ॥ ३७ ॥

Having threatened Sītā, a princess of Mithilā, as aforesaid, King Rāvaṇa, who made his enemies cry in terror, commanded as follows all the ogresses of formidable appearance stationed there to guard Sītā, ogresses, who were either one-eyed or with one ear only or with ears wide enough to cover their body, or with ears resembling those of a cow or those of an elephant, or with long ears or devoid of ears or with the feet of an elephant, horse or cow or with feet having a tuft of hair or with a single eye or single foot or enormous feet or no feet at all, with their head and neck of inordinate size, with enormous breasts and belly, with a disproportionately large mouth and eyes, with a long tongue and nails, noseless or having the head of a lion, cow or boar: “Act promptly in such a way, severally or jointly, O ogresses, that Sītā, Janaka’s daughter, soon submits to my will. Reduce Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, to submission by acting conformably or contrary to her will, by causing disaffection in her mind to her husband after persuasion and gifts have failed, and also by exercising coercion, if necessary.”

(32—37)

आवर्जयत वैदेहीं दण्डस्योद्यमनेन च ।

इति प्रतिसमादिश्य राक्षसेन्द्रः पुनः पुनः ॥ ३८ ॥

काममन्युपरीतात्मा जानकीं प्रति गर्जत ।

उपगम्य ततः क्षिप्रं राक्षसी धान्यमालिनी ॥ ३९ ॥

परिष्वज्य दशग्रीवमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ।

मया क्रीड महाराज सीतया किं तवानया ॥ ४० ॥

विवर्णया कृपणया मानुष्या राक्षसेश्वर ।

नूनमस्यां महाराज न देवा भोगसत्तमान् ॥ ४१ ॥

विदधत्यमरश्रेष्ठास्तव बाहुबलार्जितान् ।

अकामां कामयानस्य शरीरमुपतप्यते ॥ ४२ ॥

इच्छतीं कामयानस्य प्रीतिर्भवति शोभना।
एवमुक्तस्तु राक्षस्या समुत्क्षिप्तस्ततो बली।
प्रहसन् मेघसंकाशो राक्षसः स न्यवर्तत ॥ ४३ ॥

Having commanded the ogresses in these words again and again, Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, whose mind was seized with passion and anger, roared at Sītā, Janaka's daughter. Approaching Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) speedily and embracing him with a view to preventing him from striking Sītā, Mandodarī as well as Dhanyamālinī (Rāvaṇa's junior most consort) thereupon spoke to him as follows: "Sport with me, O great king ! What purpose of yours will be served by Sītā, this pale and wretched human creature, O lord of ogres ! Surely, O great monarch, gods like Brahmā and Indra, who are the foremost of immortals, have not assigned to her lot the exquisite luxuries that have been won by the might of your arms. The body of one, who loves a woman not loving him in return, reaps suffering alone; while extreme delight falls to the lot of the man loving a woman who pines for him." Spoken to in these words and drawn away from that place by Mandodarī, that mighty ogre Rāvaṇa, for his part, who fully resembled a cloud, turned back heartily laughing. (38—43)

प्रस्थितः स दशग्रीवः कम्पयन्निव मेदिनीम्।
ज्वलद्भास्करसंकाशं प्रविवेश निवेशनम् ॥ ४४ ॥

Having left that place as though causing the earth to shake, that ten-headed monster duly entered his abode, fully resembling the blazing sun. (44)

देवगन्धर्वकन्याश्च नागकन्याश्च तास्ततः।
परिवार्य दशग्रीवं प्रविशुस्ता गृहोत्तमम् ॥ ४५ ॥

Surrounding Rāvaṇa, the aforesaid daughters of gods and Gandharvas as well as those of Nāgas thereupon penetrated deep into that excellent abode. (45)

स मैथिलीं धर्मपरामवस्थितां
प्रवेपमानां परिभर्त्स्य रावणः।
विहाय सीतां मदनेन मोहितः
स्वमेव वेश्म प्रविवेश रावणः ॥ ४६ ॥

Having unsparingly threatened Sītā, the princess of Mithilā, who was devoted to virtue and stood rooted where she was, though shaking from top to bottom, and letting her alone, the aforesaid Rāvaṇa, who made people cry in terror and was distracted with passion, duly entered his own abode. (46)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे द्वाविंशः सर्गः ॥ २२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-two in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रयोविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXIII

Extolling Rāvaṇa, Ekajāta and other ogresses posted in the Aśoka grove coax her to accept his proposal

इत्युक्त्वा मैथिलीं राजा रावणः शत्रुरावणः।
संदिश्य च ततः सर्वा राक्षसीर्निर्जगाम ह ॥ १ ॥

Having threatened Sītā, a princess of Mithilā and instructing all the ogresses as aforesaid, Rāvaṇa, who made his enemies cry in terror, sallied forth from that grove; so the tradition goes. (1)

निष्क्रान्ते राक्षसेन्द्रे तु पुनरन्तःपुरं गते।
राक्षस्यो भीमरूपास्ताः सीतां समभिदुद्रुवुः ॥ २ ॥

Rāvaṇa, the king of ogres, having left the Aśoka grove and returned to the gynaeceum, the aforesaid ogresses of hideous appearance for their part ran up in a body to Sītā. (2)

ततः सीतामुपागम्य राक्षस्यः क्रोधमूर्च्छिताः ।
परं परुषया वाचा वैदेहीमिदमब्रुवन् ॥ ३ ॥

Approaching Sītā, the princess of the Videha territory, the ogresses, who were distracted with anger, spoke to her as follows in exceedingly harsh tones : (3)

पौलस्त्यस्य वरिष्ठस्य रावणस्य महात्मनः ।
दशग्रीवस्य भार्यात्वं सीते न बहु मन्यसे ॥ ४ ॥

“Don’t you prize, O Sītā, the wifehood of the high-souled and pre-eminent Rāvaṇa, a scion of Sage Pulastya, who is endowed with ten heads?” (4)

ततस्त्वेकजटा नाम राक्षसी वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
आमन्त्र्य क्रोधताम्राक्षी सीतां करतलोदरीम् ॥ ५ ॥

Then, addressing Sītā, whose belly could be spanned with the palm, an ogress named Ekajata, for her part, her eyes bloodshot with anger, spoke to her as follows : (5)

प्रजापतीनां षण्णां तु चतुर्थोऽयं प्रजापतिः ।
मानसो ब्रह्मणः पुत्रः पुलस्त्य इति विश्रुतः ॥ ६ ॥

“There is a mind-born son of Brahmā (the creator) widely known by the name of Pulastya. Of the six Prajāpatīs,* (lords of created beings entrusted with the work of creation by Brahmā), he is indeed the fourth Prajāpati. (6)

पुलस्त्यस्य तु तेजस्वी महर्षिर्मानसः सुतः ।
नाम्ना स विश्रवा नाम प्रजापतिसमप्रभः ॥ ७ ॥

“The glorious mind-born son of Pulastya, again, is an eminent Ṛṣi, Viśravā by name, who, they say, equals the Prajāpatīs in glory. (7)

तस्य पुत्रो विशालाक्षि रावणः शत्रुरावणः ।
तस्य त्वं राक्षसेन्द्रस्य भार्या भवितुमर्हसि ॥ ८ ॥

“Rāvaṇa, who makes his enemies cry in terror, is a son of Viśravā. You deserve to be the wife of the aforesaid lord of ogres, O large eyed one ! (8)

मयोक्तं चारुसर्वाङ्गि वाक्यं किं नानुमन्यसे ।
ततो हरिजटा नाम राक्षसी वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ९ ॥
विवृत्य नयने कोपान्मार्जारसदृशेक्षणा ।
येन देवास्त्रयस्त्रिंशद् देवराजश्च निर्जितः ॥ १० ॥
तस्य त्वं राक्षसेन्द्रस्य भार्या भवितुमर्हसि ।
वीर्योत्सिक्तस्य शूरस्य संग्रामेष्वनिर्वर्तिनः ।
बलिनो वीर्ययुक्तस्य भार्यात्वं किं न लिप्ससे ॥ ११ ॥

“Why don’t you acquiesce in this proposal put forward by me, O lady! charming of every limb?” Dilating her eyes, which resembled a cat’s, an ogress, Harijāta by name, then angrily spoke as follows :

“You deserve to be a wife of that king of ogres by whom were vanquished all the thirty-three principal deities, viz., the twelve Ādityas, the eleven Rudras, the eight Vasus and the twin Aświnikumāras, and even Indra, the ruler of gods. Why don’t you seek the wifehood of Rāvaṇa, who is heroic and mighty, full of valour and proud of his prowess, and who never turns his back on the field of battle? (9—11)

प्रियां बहुमतां भार्या त्यक्त्वा राजा महाबलः ।
सर्वासां च महाभागां त्वामुपैष्यति रावणः ॥ १२ ॥

“Renouncing his beloved wife Mandodarī, who is much esteemed by all his wives and is highly blessed, Rāvaṇa will betake himself to you. (12)

समृद्धं स्त्रीसहस्रेण नानारत्नोपशोभितम् ।
अन्तःपुरं तदुत्सृज्य त्वामुपैष्यति रावणः ॥ १३ ॥

“Nay, leaving alone his well-known gynaeceum, enriched by thousands of women and decked with various jewels, Rāvaṇa will go to you.” (13)

अन्या तु विकटा नाम राक्षसी वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
असकृद् भीमवीर्येण नागा गन्धर्वदानवाः ।
निर्जिताः समरे येन स ते पार्श्वमुपागतः ॥ १४ ॥

* Their names in the order of seniority are: Marīci, Atri, Āṅgirā, Pulastya, Pulaha and Kratu—मरीचिरत्र्यङ्गिरसौ पुलस्त्यः पुलहः क्रतुः ।

Another ogress, Vikaṭā by name, for her part, addressed the following words to Sītā: “He has come by your side, by whose terrible prowess the Nāgas, Gandharvas and demons were routed more than once on the battlefield. (14)

तस्य सर्वसमृद्धस्य रावणस्य महात्मनः ।
किमर्थं राक्षसेन्द्रस्य भार्यात्वं नेच्छसेऽधमे ॥ १५ ॥

“Why don’t you solicit the wifehood of the aforesaid ruler of ogres, the high-souled Rāvaṇa, who is fully accomplished in every way, O vile woman?” (15)

ततस्तां दुर्मुखी नाम राक्षसी वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
यस्य सूर्यो न तपति भीतो यस्य स मारुतः ।
न वाति स्मायतापाङ्गि किं त्वं तस्य न तिष्ठसे ॥ १६ ॥

Then another ogress, Durmukhi by name, spoke as follows: “Why don’t you yield to Rāvaṇa, in fear of whom the sun does not shine brightly and the wind stops blowing terrifically, O lady with long-cornered eyes? (16)

पुष्पवृष्टिं च तरवो मुमुचुर्यस्य वै भयात् ।
शैलाः सुस्रुवुः पानीयं जलदाश्च यदेच्छति ॥ १७ ॥
तस्य नैर्ऋतराजस्य राजराजस्य भामिनि ।
किं त्वं न कुरुषे बुद्धिं भार्यार्थे रावणस्य हि ॥ १८ ॥

“Why don’t you really make up your mind, O lovely woman, to become the wife of that Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres and the king of kings, in fear of whom the trees rain down flowers, mountains and clouds shed their water whenever he wills? (17-18)

साधु ते तत्त्वतो देवि कथितं साधु भामिनि ।
गृहाण सुस्मिते वाक्यमन्यथा न भविष्यसि ॥ १९ ॥

“Accept cheerfully, O lovely lady with sweet smiles, the advice which has been tendered to you in good spirit and in accordance with facts; or else you shall die.” (19)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे त्रयोविंशः सर्गः ॥ २३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-three in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्विंशः सर्गः

Canto XXIV

Citing the examples of Śaci, Arundhatī and other devoted wives, even though threatened by the ogresses, Sītā with a stout heart boldly proclaims her resolve not to submit to anyone else other than her own husband even on pain of death. Hanumān silently watches her being menaced by the ogresses by means of harsh words and show of weapons, and weeping

ततः सीतां समस्तास्ता राक्षस्यो विकृताननाः ।
परुषं परुषानर्हामूचुस्तद्वाक्यमप्रियम् ॥ १ ॥

Thereupon all those ogresses of loathsome appearance addressed the following harsh and unpalatable words to Sītā, who did not merit such harsh words : (1)

किं त्वमन्तःपुरे सीते सर्वभूतमनोरमे ।
महार्हशयनोपेते न वासमनुमन्यसे ॥ २ ॥

“Why don’t you consent to dwell, O Sītā, in the gynaeceum of Rāvaṇa, ravishing the soul of all created beings and furnished with costly couches? (2)

मानुषी मानुषस्यैव भार्यात्वं बहु मन्यसे ।
प्रत्याहर मनो रामानैवं जातु भविष्यति ॥ ३ ॥

“A human being that you are, you prize the wifehood of a human being alone. Pray, withdraw your mind from Rāma; for, if you continue to love Rāma, you will never survive. (3)

त्रैलोक्यवसुभोक्तारं रावणं राक्षसेश्वरम् ।
भर्तारमुपसंगम्य विहरस्व यथासुखम् ॥ ४ ॥

“Approaching for union as a husband, Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, who enjoys the riches of all the three worlds, sport happily with him. (4)

मानुषी मानुषं तं तु राममिच्छसि शोभने ।
राज्याद् भ्रष्टमसिद्भ्यार्थं विक्लवन्तमनिन्दिते ॥ ५ ॥

“Merely because you are a human being, O good lady of irreproachable charm, you pant for Rāma, who has been deprived of his kingdom, whose object has not been accomplished and as such who remains ever agitated in mind !” (5)

राक्षसीनां वचः श्रुत्वा सीता पद्मनिभेक्षणा ।
नेत्राभ्यामश्रुपूर्णाभ्यामिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ६ ॥

Hearing the exhortation of the ogresses, Sītā of lotus-like eyes replied as follows with eyes full of tears : (6)

यदिदं लोकविद्विष्टमुदाहरत संगताः ।
नैतन्मनसि वाक्यं मे किल्बिषं प्रतितिष्ठति ॥ ७ ॥

“This cheap and sinful advice, which you have jointly tendered and which is repugnant in the eyes of the world, does not hold in my mind even for a moment. (7)

न मानुषी राक्षसस्य भार्या भवितुमर्हति ।
कामं खादत मां सर्वा न करिष्यामि वो वचः ॥ ८ ॥

“A human lady ought not to become the wife of an ogre. Devour me all if you will; I will never follow your advice. (8)

दीनो वा राज्यहीनो वा यो मे भर्ता स मे गुरुः ।
तं नित्यमनुरक्तास्मि यथा सूर्यं सुवर्चला ॥ ९ ॥

“Destitute or deprived of his kingdom, he who is my husband is my adorable deity. I am ever devoted to him even as Suvarcalā (consort of the sun-god) is to the sun-god. (9)

यथा शची महाभागा शक्रं समुपतिष्ठति ।
अरुन्धती वसिष्ठं च रोहिणी शशिनं यथा ॥ १० ॥
लोपामुद्रा यथागस्त्यं सुकन्या च्यवनं यथा ।
सावित्री सत्यवन्तं च कपिलं श्रीमती यथा ॥ ११ ॥
सौदासं मदयन्तीव केशिनी सगरं यथा ।
नैषधं दमयन्तीव भैमी पतिमनुव्रता ॥ १२ ॥
तथाहमिक्ष्वाकुवरं रामं पतिमनुव्रता ।
सीताया वचनं श्रुत्वा राक्षस्यः क्रोधमूर्च्छिताः ।
भर्त्सयन्ति स्म परुषैर्वाक्यै रावणचोदिताः ॥ १३ ॥

“I am devoted to my husband, Śrī Rāma, the foremost of the Ikṣvākus, in the same way as the highly blessed Śaci waits upon Indra (the ruler of gods), as does Arundhati upon Sage Vasiṣṭha and Rohiṇī (the foremost of the twenty-seven spouses of the moon-god, presiding over the same number of constellations appearing in the heavens) on the moon-god, as does Lopamudrā upon Sage Agastya and Sukanyā did upon Sage Cyavana, as Sāvitrī did upon Satyavān and Śrīmatī upon Lord Kapila, as Madayanti did upon King Saudāsa and Keśinī upon King Sagara, and as Damayanti, daughter of Bhīma, was devoted to her husband, Nala, a king of the Niṣādhas.”

Filled with anger on hearing the reply of Sītā, the ogresses began to intimidate her with harsh words, as ordered by Rāvaṇa while he left their presence: (10–13)

अवलीनः स निर्वाक्यो हनुमान् शिशपाद्गुमे ।
सीतां संतर्जयन्तीस्ता राक्षसीरशृणोत् कपिः ॥ १४ ॥

Remaining hidden in the Aśoka tree without uttering a word, Hanumān listened to those ogresses threatening Sītā. (14)

तामभिक्रम्य संरब्धा वेपमानां समन्ततः ।
भृशं संललितहुर्दीप्तान् प्रलम्बान् दशनच्छदान् ॥ १५ ॥

Assailing on all sides Sītā, who was trembling with fear, enraged as they were, they licked their protruding and glowing lips again and again. (15)

ऊचुश्च परमक्रुद्धाः प्रगृह्याशु परश्वधान् ।
नेयमर्हति भर्तारं रावणं राक्षसाधिपम् ॥ १६ ॥

Nay, quickly holding up their axes, highly enraged, as they were, they said, "She does not deserve to have Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, for her husband." (16)

सा भर्त्यमाना भीमाभी राक्षसीभिर्वरांगना।
सा बाष्पमपमार्जन्ती शिंशपां तामुपागमत् ॥ १७ ॥
While that lovely lady was being overawed by the terrible ogresses, she approached that Āśoka tree, wiping away her tears. (17)

ततस्तां शिंशपां सीता राक्षसीभिः समावृता।
अभिगम्य विशालाक्षी तस्थौ शोकपरिप्लुता ॥ १८ ॥
Reaching the foot of that Śimśapā tree, the large-eyed Sītā then stood overwhelmed with grief, surrounded as she was by the ogresses. (18)

तां कृशां दीनवदनां मलिनाम्बरवासिनीम्।
भर्त्सयाञ्चक्रिरे भीमा राक्षस्यस्ताः समन्ततः ॥ १९ ॥
Standing around her, the hideous ogresses reproached the emaciated Sītā, who wore a wretched appearance and was clad in a soiled garment. (19)

ततस्तु विनता नाम राक्षसी भीमदर्शना।
अब्रवीत् कुपिताकारा कराला निर्णतोदरी ॥ २० ॥
Thereupon a fearful and grim-visaged ogress, Vinatā by name, who wore angry looks and had a sunken belly, spoke as follows: (20)

सीते पर्याप्तमेतावद् भर्तुः स्नेहः प्रदर्शितः।
सर्वत्रातिकृतं भद्रे व्यसनायोपकल्पते ॥ २१ ॥

"This much of affection which has been shown by you for your husband is enough, O Sītā ! But anything carried to excess leads to adversity everywhere, O good lady ! (21)

परितुष्टास्मि भद्रं ते मानुषस्ते कृतो विधिः।
ममापि तु वचः पथ्यं ब्रुवन्त्याः कुरु मैथिलि ॥ २२ ॥

"I am highly pleased with you, O princess of Mithilā ! May good betide you ! The rule of conduct enjoined upon human beings has been followed by you. Now please also carry out the advice tendered by me, who speak only that which is wholesome to you. (22)

रावणं भज भर्तारं भर्तारं सर्वरक्षसाम्।
विक्रान्तमापतन्तं च सुरेशमिव वासवम् ॥ २३ ॥

"Take for your husband Rāvaṇa, the protector of all ogres, who is valiant and possessed of a comely exterior like Indra, the ruler of gods. (23)

दक्षिणं त्यागशीलं च सर्वस्य प्रियवादिनम्।
मानुषं कृपणं रामं त्यक्त्वा रावणमाश्रय ॥ २४ ॥

"Leaving the mortal and wretched Rāma, betake yourself to Rāvaṇa, who is clever and munificent and speaks kindly to all. (24)

दिव्यांगरागा वैदेहि दिव्याभरणभूषिता।
अद्यप्रभृति लोकानां सर्वेषामीश्वरी भव ॥ २५ ॥
अग्रेः स्वाहा यथा देवी शची वेन्द्रस्य शोभने।
किं ते रामेण वैदेहि कृपणेन गतायुषा ॥ २६ ॥

"Using celestial cosmetics and adorned with excellent ornaments, O princess of the Videha territory, become you from this day the sovereign of all the three worlds like Swāhā, the consort of the god of fire, or like Goddess Śaci, the spouse of Indra, O charming lady ! What purpose of yours will be served by the wretched Rāma, whose life has now ebbed, O princess of the Videha territory ! (25-26)

एतदुक्तं च मे वाक्यं यदि त्वं न करिष्यसि।
अस्मिन् मुहूर्ते सर्वास्त्वां भक्षयिष्यामहे वयम् ॥ २७ ॥

"If, on the other hand, you will not act upon this advice tendered by me, we shall all devour you at this very hour." (27)

अन्या तु विकटा नाम लम्बमानपयोधरा।
अब्रवीत् कुपिता सीतां मुष्टिमुद्यम्य तर्जती ॥ २८ ॥

Then clenching her fist and menacing Sītā, another ogress with hanging breasts, Vikaṭā by name, angrily spoke as follows : (28)

बहून्यप्रतिरूपाणि वचनानि सुदुर्मते।
अनुक्रोशान्मृदुत्वाच्च सोढानि तव मैथिलि ॥ २९ ॥

“Many unseemly remarks of yours, uttered with reference to Rāvaṇa, have been endured by us out of compassion and tenderness, O grossly stupid princess of Mithilā ! (29)

न च नः कुरुषे वाक्यं हितं कालपुरस्कृतम् ।
आनीतासि समुद्रस्य पारमन्वैर्दुरासदम् ॥ ३० ॥

“It is a pity that you do not even then abide by our wholesome and opportune advice. You must remember that you have been transported to the other shore of the sea, which is difficult of access to others. (30)

रावणान्तःपुरे घोरे प्रविष्टा चासि मैथिलि ।
रावणस्य गृहे रुद्धा अस्माभिस्त्वभिरक्षिता ॥ ३१ ॥

“Again you have found your way into the dreadful gynaeceum of Rāvaṇa, O princess of Mithilā ! Nay, you have been detained in the abode of Rāvaṇa and are guarded on all sides by us. (31)

न त्वां शक्तः परित्रातुमपि साक्षात् पुरंदरः ।
कुरुष्व हितवादिन्या वचनं मम मैथिलि ॥ ३२ ॥

“Not even Indra (the destroyer of strongholds) himself is capable of rescuing you. Therefore, act upon the advice of mine, who am tendering friendly counsel to you, O princess of Mithilā ! (32)

अलमश्रुनिपातेन त्यज शोकमनर्थकम् ।
भज प्रीतिं प्रहर्षं च त्यजन्ती नित्यदैर्न्यताम् ॥ ३३ ॥

“Cease shedding tears. Give up grief, which is of no avail. Shaking off perpetual depression, embrace cheerfulness and experience excessive delight. (33)

सीते राक्षसराजेन परिक्रीड यथासुखम् ।
जानीमहे यथा भीरु स्त्रीणां यौवनमध्रुवम् ॥ ३४ ॥

“Sport with Rāvaṇa happily, O Sītā, since we all know the youth of all women to be transitory, O timid lady ! (34)

यावन् ते व्यतिक्रामेत् तावत् सुखमवाप्नुहि ।
उद्यानानि च रम्याणि पर्वतोपवनानि च ॥ ३५ ॥
सह राक्षसराजेन चर त्वं मदिरेक्षणे ।
स्त्रीसहस्राणि ते देवि वशे स्थास्यन्ति सुन्दरि ॥ ३६ ॥

“Enjoy happiness as long as your youth does not pass. Nay, range you the lovely gardens as well as mountains and groves along with Rāvaṇa, the king of ogres, O lady with maddening eyes ! Thousands of women will remain at your beck and call. O charming lady ! (35-36)

रावणं भज भर्तारं भर्तारं सर्वरक्षसाम् ।
उत्पाट्य वा ते हृदयं भक्षयिष्यामि मैथिलि ॥ ३७ ॥
यदि मे व्याहृतं वाक्यं न यथावत् करिष्यसि ।
ततश्चण्डोदरी नाम राक्षसी क्रूरदर्शना ॥ ३८ ॥
भ्रामयन्ती महच्छूलमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ।
इमां हरिणशावाक्षीं त्रासोत्कम्पयोधराम् ॥ ३९ ॥
रावणेन हतां दृष्ट्वा दौर्हृदो मे महानयम् ।
यकृत्स्लीहं महत् क्रोडं हृदयं च सबन्धनम् ॥ ४० ॥
गात्राण्यपि तथा शीर्षं खादेयमिति मे मतिः ।
ततस्तु प्रघसा नाम राक्षसी वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ४१ ॥

“Accept as your consort Rāvaṇa, the lord of all ogres. Tearing out your heart, on the other hand, I shall feast on it, O princess of Mithilā, if you will not duly follow the advice tendered by me.” Brandishing a huge dart, an ogress of ferocious looks, Candodārī by name, then spoke as follows: “At the sight of this woman with eyes resembling those of a fawn and with her breasts shaking through fear, borne away to Laṅkā by Rāvaṇa, this great longing sprang up in my heart that I should feast on her liver and spleen, her swollen breast as well as her heart including its stem (consisting of veins and arteries), nay, all her limbs and head too. Such is my mind even now.” Then an ogress, Praghāśa by name, for her part spoke as follows : (37—41)

कण्ठमस्या नृशंसायाः पीडयामः किमास्यते ।
निवेद्यतां ततो राज्ञे मानुषी सा मृतेति ह ॥ ४२ ॥

“We shall presently squeeze the neck of this heartless woman; why do we tarry? Let it then be reported to the king that the ‘human lady in question has breathed her last’, they say. (42)

नात्र कश्चन संदेहः खादतेति स वक्ष्यति ।
ततस्त्वजामुखी नाम राक्षसी वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ४३ ॥

“Hearing this news he will say, ‘devour her’; there is no doubt about it.” Thereupon an ogress, Ajāmukhi by name, spoke as follows : (43)

विशस्येमां ततः सर्वान् समान् कुरुत पिण्डकान् ।
विभजाम ततः सर्वा विवादो मे न रोचते ॥ ४४ ॥

“Having hacked her, make all pieces equal then. We shall all after that divide them among ourselves. Disputation does not find favour with me. (44)

पेयमानीयतां क्षिप्रं माल्यं च विविधं बहु ।
ततः शूर्पणखा नाम राक्षसी वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ४५ ॥

“Let drink also be brought speedily as well as many garlands of various kinds.” Then an ogress, Śūrpaṇakhā by name, spoke as follows : (45)

अजामुख्या यदुक्तं वै तदेव मम रोचते ।
सुरा चानीयतां क्षिप्रं सर्वशोकविनाशिनी ॥ ४६ ॥

“That alone which has been suggested by my friend, Ajāmukhī, appeals to me as well. Let wine too, which dispels all grief, be brought soon. (46)

मानुषं मांसमास्वाद्य नृत्यामोऽथ निकुम्भिलाम् ।
एवं निर्भर्त्यमाना सा सीता सुरसुतोपमा ।
राक्षसीभिर्विरूपाभिर्धैर्यमुत्सृज्य रोदिति ॥ ४७ ॥

“Having enjoyed human flesh, we shall then dance in the presence of Goddess Bhadrakālī installed in the western quarter of Laṅkā (known by the name of Nikumbhilā).” Losing her patience while being threatened thus by the monstrous ogresses, the said Sītā, who resembled the daughter of a god, began to cry. (47)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे चतुर्विंशः सर्गः ॥ २४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-four in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXV

Unable to endure the threats of the ogresses and calling aloud
Śrī Rāma and others, Sītā bursts into a wail

अथ तासां वदन्तीनां परुषं दारुणं बहु ।
राक्षसीनामसौम्यानां रुरोद जनकात्मजा ॥ १ ॥

In the midst of those repellent ogresses, who were uttering many such unkind and cruel remarks, the daughter of Janaka, Sita, now fell a-weeping. (1)

एवमुक्ता तु वैदेही राक्षसीभिर्मनस्विनी ।
उवाच परमत्रस्ता बाष्पगद्गदया गिरा ॥ २ ॥

Greatly alarmed when threatened thus by the ogresses, Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, of firm resolve, for her part, spoke as follows in a voice choked with tears: (2)

न मानुषी राक्षसस्य भार्या भवितुमर्हति ।
कामं खादत मां सर्वा न करिष्यामि वो वचः ॥ ३ ॥

“A female human being is not fit to become the wife of an ogre. Devour me all, if you will; I shall never follow your counsel.” (3)

सा राक्षसीमध्यगता सीता सुरसुतोपमा ।
न शर्म लेभे शोकार्ता रावणेनेव भर्त्सिता ॥ ४ ॥

Surrounded by ogresses, stricken with grief, as it were, due to her having been reproached by Rāvaṇa, the aforesaid Sītā, who resembled the daughter of a god, did not find rest. (4)

वेपते स्माधिकं सीता विशन्तीवांगमात्मनः ।
वने यूथपरिभ्रष्टा मृगी कोकैरिवार्दिता ॥ ५ ॥

Shrinking into her own person, as it were, through fear, Sitā shook violently as a doe which has strayed away from its herd and is tormented by wolves in a forest. (5)

सा त्वशोकस्य विपुलां शाखामालम्ब्य पुष्पिताम् ।
चिन्तयामास शोकेन भर्तारं भग्नमानसा ॥ ६ ॥

Laying hold of a big bough of an Aśoka tree, which was rich in blossom, frustrated as she was in mind through grief, Sitā, for her part, thought of her lord. (6)

सा स्नापयन्ती विपुलौ स्तनौ नेत्रजलस्रवैः ।
चिन्तयन्ती न शोकस्य तदान्तमधिगच्छति ॥ ७ ॥

Bathing her large breasts with the streams of her tears and brooding over her miserable plight, she saw no end to her grief at that moment. (7)

सा वेपमाना पतिता प्रवाते कदली यथा ।
राक्षसीनां भयत्रस्ता विवर्णवदनाभवत् ॥ ८ ॥

Shaking like a plantain tree exposed to a stormy wind, seized as she was with the fear of the ogresses, Sitā looked palefaced. (8)

तस्याः सा दीर्घबहुला वेपन्त्याः सीतया तदा ।
ददृशे कम्पिता वेणी व्यालीव परिसर्पती ॥ ९ ॥

That swinging braid of Sitā, long and thick, while she was shaking from head to foot, looked like a gliding serpent at that time. (9)

सा निःश्वसन्ती शोकार्ता कोपोपहतचेतना ।
आर्ता व्यसृजदश्रूणि मैथिली विललाप च ॥ १० ॥
हा रामेति च दुःखार्ता हा पुनर्लक्ष्मणेति च ।
हा श्वश्रूर्मम कौसल्ये हा सुमित्रेति भामिनी ॥ ११ ॥

Drawing deep audible breaths, miserable and stricken with grief as she was, that lovely young lady, the princess of Mithilā, whose understanding had been clouded through anger and who was afflicted with agony, began to shed tears and wailed—"O Rāma," and again, "O Lakṣmaṇa, O Kausalyā, my mother-in-law, O Sumitrā ! (10-11)

लोकप्रवादः सत्योऽयं पण्डितैः समुदाहृतः ।
अकाले दुर्लभो मृत्युः स्त्रिया वा पुरुषस्य वा ॥ १२ ॥
यत्राहमाभिः क्रूराभी राक्षसीभिरिहार्दिता ।
जीवामि हीना रामेण मुहूर्तमपि दुःखिता ॥ १३ ॥

"There is this popular saying uttered by the wise that the death of a woman or of a man is difficult to occur before time inasmuch as, even though I am tormented by these fierce ogresses here and stand separated from Śrī Rāma, and afflicted, I am able to survive even for a while. (12-13)

एषाल्पपुण्या कृपणा विनशिष्याम्यनाथवत् ।
समुद्रमध्ये नौः पूर्णा वायुवेगैरिवाहता ॥ १४ ॥

"Of poor merit and wretched that I am, I shall perish like a forlorn creature, even as a bark fully loaded and buffeted by the blasts of a tempest would flounder in the ocean. (14)

भर्तारं तमपश्यन्ती राक्षसीवशमागता ।
सीदामि खलु शोकेन कूलं तोयहतं यथा ॥ १५ ॥

"Unable to see my celebrated husband and fallen into the clutches of ogresses, I am wasting away through grief even as a river bank undermined by the current. (15)

तं पद्मदलपत्राक्षं सिंहविक्रान्तगामिनम् ।
धन्याः पश्यन्ति मे नाथं कृतज्ञं प्रियवादिनम् ॥ १६ ॥

"Only the fortunate are able to look on my aforesaid lord, who has eyes resembling the petals of an expanded lotus and walks with the gait of a lion, who is alive to the services rendered to him and speaks kind words to all. (16)

सर्वथा तेन हीनाया रामेण विदितात्मना ।
तीक्ष्णं विषमिवास्वाद्य दुर्लभं मम जीवनम् ॥ १७ ॥

"My life, now that I have been separated from the aforesaid Śrī Rāma, a knower of the Self, is hard to sustain even as for one who has swallowed a deadly poison. (17)

कीदृशं तु महापापं मया देहान्तरे कृतम्।
तेनेदं प्राप्यते घोरं महादुःखं सुदारुणम्॥ १८ ॥

“What kind of heinous sin was actually perpetrated by me in another body in a previous existence? Due to that, this terrible and most cruel major sorrow is being experienced by me. (18)

जीवितं त्यक्तुमिच्छामि शोकेन महता वृता।
राक्षसीभिश्च रक्षन्त्या रामो नासाद्यते मया॥ १९ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे पञ्चविंशः सर्गः ॥ २५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-five in the Sundarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षड्विंशः सर्गः

Canto XXVI

Making up her mind not to submit to the advances of Rāvaṇa even on pain of death, when menaced by the ogresses, and indulging in speculation as to why Śrī Rāma was not turning up to rescue her, Sītā wails in various ways

प्रसक्ताश्रुमुखी त्वेवं ब्रुवती जनकात्मजा।
अधोगतमुखी बाला विलप्तमुपचक्रमे॥ १ ॥
उन्मत्तेव प्रमत्तेव भ्रान्तचित्तेव शोचती।
उपावृत्ता किशोरीव विचेष्टन्ती महीतले॥ २ ॥

While speaking as aforesaid and grieving, tears rolling down her face, her head bent low, as though she were possessed, distracted or bewildered in mind, and wallowing on the earth's surface like a colt which rolls habitually about in order to shake off its fatigue, the youthful daughter of Janaka for her part began to wail as follows: (1-2)

राघवस्य प्रमत्तस्य रक्षसा कामरूपिणा।
रावणेन प्रमथ्याहमानीता क्रोशती बलात्॥ ३ ॥

“Though living under the protection of Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, who having been lured away from my presence by Mārīca, had grown heedless about me, I

“Beset that I am with this intense grief, I long to give up the ghost; for Śrī Rāma can never be reached by me so long as I am being guarded by the ogresses. (19)

धिगस्तु खलु मानुष्यं धिगस्तु परवश्यताम्।
न शक्यं यत् परित्यक्तुमात्मच्छन्देन जीवितम्॥ २० ॥

“Shame indeed be upon the human state and shame be upon dependence on others, due to which it is not possible for me even to yield up life of my own free will !” (20)

was forcibly borne away, screaming after being overpowered by the ogre, Rāvaṇa, who is able to change his form at will. (3)

राक्षसीवशमापन्ना भर्त्स्यमाना च दारुणम्।
चिन्तयन्ती सुदुःखार्ता नाहं जीवितुमुत्सहे॥ ४ ॥

“Fallen that I am into the clutches of ogresses and am being ruthlessly threatened by them, and remain constantly brooding and sore stricken with sorrow, I dare not survive any longer. (4)

नहि मे जीवितेनार्थो नैवार्थेन च भूषणैः।
वसन्त्या राक्षसीमध्ये विना रामं महारथम्॥ ५ ॥

“I have no use whatsoever for life, nor even for riches, nor for jewels, as long as I am living in the midst of ogresses apart from Śrī Rāma, a great chariot-warrior. (5)

अश्मसारमिदं नूनमथवाप्यजामरम्।
हृदयं मम येनेदं न दुःखेन विशीर्यते॥ ६ ॥

“This heart of mine is surely like iron or proof against age and death in that it does not get riven even through agony. (6)

धिङ्मामनार्यामसतीं याहं तेन विना कृता।
मुहूर्तमपि जीवामि जीवितं पापजीविका॥ ७ ॥

“Woe be to me, ignoble and vile that I am, inasmuch as I preserve my life even for a while, though separated from him and leading as I do a sinful existence. (7)

चरणेनापि सव्येन न स्पृशेयं निशाचरम्।
रावणं किं पुनरहं कामयेयं विगर्हितम्॥ ८ ॥

“I would not touch the ogre Rāvaṇa even with my left foot, much less love the despicable fellow. (8)

प्रत्याख्यानं न जानाति नात्मानं नात्मनः कुलम्।
यो नृशंसस्वभावेन मां प्रार्थयितुमिच्छति॥ ९ ॥

“He does not heed my refusal, nor does he cognize himself, nor his own race. Due to his cruel nature, on the other hand, he seeks to win me over. (9)

छिन्ना भिन्ना प्रभिन्ना वा दीप्ता वाग्नौ प्रदीपिता।
रावणं नोपतिष्ठेयं किं प्रलापेन वशिचरम्॥ १० ॥

“I would not betake myself to Rāvaṇa even if I am transfixed, cut asunder, hacked to pieces, roasted in fire or burnt. What shall be gained by your raving for so long? (10)

ख्यातः प्राज्ञः कृतज्ञश्च सानुक्रोशश्च राघवः।
सद्वृत्तो निरनुक्रोशः शङ्के मद्भाग्यसंक्षयात्॥ ११ ॥
राक्षसानां जनस्थाने सहस्राणि चतुर्दश।
एकेनैव निरस्तानि स मां किं नाभिपद्यते॥ १२ ॥

“I fear Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, who was well-known as a wise man, alive to the services rendered to him, nay, merciful and a man of excellent morals, has become pitiless due to complete loss of my good fortune. Otherwise, why does he, by whom alone as many as fourteen thousand ogres were killed in Janasthāna, not come to me? (11-12)

निरुद्धा रावणेनाहमल्पवीर्येण रक्षसा।
समर्थः खलु मे भर्ता रावणं हन्तुमाहवे॥ १३ ॥

“What a pity that I have been detained by Rāvaṇa, an ogre of poor strength, although my husband is surely able to kill Rāvaṇa in combat. (13)

विराधो दण्डकारण्ये येन राक्षसपुंगवः।
रणे रामेण निहतः स मां किं नाभिपद्यते॥ १४ ॥

“Why does Śrī Rāma, by whom Virādha, the foremost of ogres, was slain in the Daṇḍaka forest, not run up to me? (14)

कामं मध्ये समुद्रस्य लङ्केयं दुष्प्रधर्षणा।
न तु राघवबाणानां गतिरोधो भविष्यति॥ १५ ॥

“Granted that, situated as it is in mid-ocean, this Laṅkā is difficult to storm, but the flight of the arrows of Śrī Rāma, however, can meet with no obstruction here. (15)

किं नु तत् कारणं येन रामो दृढपराक्रमः।
रक्षसापहतां भार्यामिष्टां यो नाभिपद्यते॥ १६ ॥

“What on earth could be the reason why Śrī Rāma of unyielding prowess does not run to the rescue of his beloved wife, borne away by an ogre? (16)

इहस्थां मां न जानीते शङ्के लक्ष्मणपूर्वजः।
जानन्नपि स तेजस्वी धर्षणां मर्षयिष्यति॥ १७ ॥

“I fear that Śrī Rāma, an elder brother of Lakṣmaṇa, does not know me to be here. Knowing that I am here, will he be able to put up with the outrage, all powerful and mighty that he is? (17)

हृतेति मां योऽधिगत्य राघवाय निवेदयेत्।
गृध्रराजोऽपि स रणे रावणेन निपातितः॥ १८ ॥

“That king of vultures too, who having come to know that Rāvaṇa had borne me away, could have reported the matter to Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, but was killed by Rāvaṇa in an encounter. (18)

कृतं कर्म महत् तेन मां तथाभ्यवपद्यता।
तिष्ठता रावणवधे वृद्धेनापि जटायुषा॥ १९ ॥

“A prodigious feat was accomplished by the aforesaid Jaṭāyu, who though old, strove to get rid of Rāvaṇa in order to rescue me at the moment. (19)

यदि मामिह जानीयाद् वर्तमानां हि राघवः ।

अद्य बाणैरभिकुद्धः कुर्याल्लोकमराक्षसम् ॥ २० ॥

“If Śrī Rāma really knew me to be present here, he would in fury rid the world of ogres with his shafts today. (20)

निर्दहेच्च पुरीं लङ्कां निर्दहेच्च महोदधिम् ।

रावणस्य च नीचस्य कीर्तिं नाम च नाशयेत् ॥ २१ ॥

“Nay, he would reduce the city of Laṅkā to ashes and burn up the ocean. He would also blot out the fame as well as the name of the despicable Rāvaṇa. (21)

ततो निहतनाथानां राक्षसीनां गृहे गृहे ।

यथाहमेवं रुदती तथा भूयो न संशयः ॥ २२ ॥

“Then, even as I stand weeping thus, more so would be heard in every house wails of the ogresses, whose lords would have been slain: there is no doubt about it. (22)

अन्विष्य रक्षसां लङ्कां कुर्याद् रामः सलक्ष्मणः ।

नहि ताभ्यां रिपुर्दृष्टो मुहूर्तमपि जीवति ॥ २३ ॥

“Having searched out Laṅkā, he with Lakṣmaṇa will encompass the destruction of ogres. An enemy seen by them would not survive even for a while. (23)

चिताधूमाकुलपथा गृध्रमण्डलमण्डिता ।

अचिरेणैव कालेन श्मशानसदृशी भवेत् ॥ २४ ॥

“With its streets obscured by the smoke of funeral piles and graced with wreaths of vultures, Laṅkā will at no distant date look like a crematorium. (24)

अचिरेणैव कालेन प्राप्स्याम्येनं मनोरथम् ।

दुष्प्रस्थानोऽयमाभाति सर्वेषां वो विपर्ययः ॥ २५ ॥

“I shall at no distant time attain the object of my desire; for this evil conduct of you all in the shape of my abduction and oppression means your annihilation. (25)

यादृशानि तु दृश्यन्ते लङ्कायामशुभानि तु ।

अचिरेणैव कालेन भविष्यति हतप्रभा ॥ २६ ॥

“The type of ill-omens, which are actually seen here in Laṅkā lead one to conclude that the city will at no distant date be shorn of its splendour. (26)

नूनं लङ्का हते पापे रावणे राक्षसाधिपे ।

शोषमेष्यति दुर्धर्षा प्रमदा विधवा यथा ॥ २७ ॥

“Surely when the sinful Rāvaṇa, the suzerain ruler of ogres, is slain, Laṅkā which appears difficult to storm now, will wither up like a young widow. (27)

पुण्योत्सवसमृद्धा च नष्टभर्त्री सराक्षसा ।

भविष्यति पुरी लङ्का नष्टभर्त्री यथांगना ॥ २८ ॥

“Abounding in festive ceremonies at present, the city of Laṅkā, when its ruler is dead and gone with the ogres inhabiting it, will look like a widow. (28)

नूनं राक्षसकन्यानां रुदतीनां गृहे गृहे ।

श्रोष्यामि नचिरादेव दुःखार्तानामिह ध्वनिम् ॥ २९ ॥

“I shall assuredly hear before long the cry of distress of ogre maids stricken with sorrow and weeping in every dwelling here. (29)

सान्धकारा हतद्योता हतराक्षसपुंगवा ।

भविष्यति पुरी लङ्का निर्दग्धा रामसायकैः ॥ ३० ॥

यदि नाम स शूरो मां रामो रक्तान्तलोचनः ।

जानीयाद् वर्तमानां यां राक्षसस्य निवेशने ॥ ३१ ॥

“Consumed by Śrī Rāma’s shafts, Laṅkā, with its principal ogres slain and its splendour dissipated, will look gloomy, if only that heroic Śrī Rāma, the corners of whose eyes are red, comes to know of my being present in the abode of Rāvaṇa. (30-31)

अनेन तु नृशंसेन रावणेनाधमेन मे ।

समयो यस्तु निर्दिष्टस्तस्य कालोऽयमागतः ॥ ३२ ॥

“The expiry of that time-limit of twelve months which was actually fixed by this cruel and vile Rāvaṇa for my death, has well-nigh arrived, as it is coming only two months hence. (32)

स च मे विहितो मृत्युरस्मिन् दुष्टेन वर्तते ।

अकार्यं ये न जानन्ति नैर्ऋताः पापकारिणः ॥ ३३ ॥

“Again, the aforesaid death of mine has been ordained in the near future by the wicked fellow in the presence of these sinful ogresses, who have no idea of what should not be perpetrated. (33)

अधर्मात् तु महोत्पातो भविष्यति हि साम्प्रतम् ।
नैते धर्मं विजानन्ति राक्षसाः पिशिताशनाः ॥ ३४ ॥

“A great calamity indeed will presently follow from the injustice which is being done to me. These flesh-eating ogres, however, attach no value to virtue. (34)

ध्रुवं मां प्रातराशार्थं राक्षसः कल्पयिष्यति ।
साहं कथं करिष्यामि तं विना प्रियदर्शनम् ॥ ३५ ॥

“The ogre will undoubtedly cut me into slices for his morning repast. As such what shall I do in the absence of Śrī Rāma of pleasing aspect? (35)

रामं रक्तान्तनयनमपश्यन्ती सुदुःखिता ।
क्षिप्रं वैवस्वतं देवं पश्येयं पतिना विना ॥ ३६ ॥

“Unable to see Śrī Rāma, the corners of whose eyes are red, and therefore sore distressed, I shall soon see God Yama (the god of death, son of the sun-god) in the absence of my husband. (36)

नाजानाज्जीवतीं रामः स मां भरतपूर्वजः ।
जानन्तौ तु न कुर्यातां नोर्व्या हि परिमार्गणम् ॥ ३७ ॥

“Śrī Rāma, that elder brother of Bharata, does not know me to be living, nor does Lakṣmaṇa. Had they known it, it cannot be imagined that they would not prosecute their search all over the globe. (37)

नूनं ममैव शोकेन स वीरो लक्ष्मणाग्रजः ।
देवलोकमितो यातस्त्यक्त्वा देहं महीतले ॥ ३८ ॥

“Leaving his body on the earth’s surface precisely through grief caused by separation from me, that gallant elder brother of Lakṣmaṇa has surely departed to the heavenly world from this globe. (38)

धन्या देवाः सगन्धर्वाः सिद्धाश्च परमर्षयः ।
मम पश्यन्ति ये वीरं रामं राजीवलोचनम् ॥ ३९ ॥

“Happy in heaven are the gods as well as the Gandharvas, the Siddhas and the eminent Ṛṣis, who are able to look on my husband, the heroic Śrī Rāma of lotus-like eyes. (39)

अथवा नहि तस्यार्थो धर्मकामस्य धीमतः ।
मया रामस्य राजर्षेर्भार्यया परमात्मनः ॥ ४० ॥

“Or, that royal sage, the sagacious Śrī Rāma, who seeks religious merit alone and has become one with the Supreme Spirit, has no longer any use for me, his wife. (40)

दृश्यमाने भवेत् प्रीतिः सौहृदं नास्त्यदृश्यतः ।
नाशयन्ति कृतघ्नास्तु न रामो नाशयिष्यति ॥ ४१ ॥

“Love sticks to one remaining before one’s eyes while it no longer exists for one who is out of sight. But the ungrateful alone spurn love; Śrī Rāma would never do so. (41)

किं वा मय्यगुणाः केचित् किं वा भाग्यक्षयो हि मे ।
या हि सीता वराहेण हीना रामेण भामिनी ॥ ४२ ॥

“Or, are there any shortcomings in me or perhaps it is loss of fortune in my case due to which, I, Sītā, a young lady, deserving his protection, stand separated from Śrī Rāma, who is worthy of excellent possessions. (42)

श्रेयो मे जीवितान्मर्तुं विहीनाया महात्मना ।
रामादक्लिष्टचारित्राच्छूराच्छत्रुनिबर्हणात् ॥ ४३ ॥

“Death is preferable to life for me, who stand disunited from the high-souled and heroic Śrī Rāma, who is unwearied in maintaining his character and who is capable of exterminating his foes. (43)

अथवा न्यस्तशस्त्रौ तौ वने मूलफलाशनौ ।
भ्रातरौ हि नरश्रेष्ठौ चरन्तौ वनगोचरौ ॥ ४४ ॥

“Or, those two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, the foremost of men, roaming, as they do, in the forest as dwellers of the forest and living on roots and fruits alone have actually given up their arms and taken a vow of non-violence. (44)

अथवा राक्षसेन्द्रेण रावणेन दुरात्मना ।
छद्मना घातितौ शूरौ भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ ॥ ४५ ॥

“Or, the two gallant brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, have been caused to be killed through some trick by the evil-minded Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres. (45)

साहमेवंविधे काले मर्तुमिच्छामि सर्वतः ।

न च मे विहितो मृत्युरस्मिन् दुःखेऽतिवर्तति ॥ ४६ ॥

“Situated as I am, I wish to die by all means at such a juncture; my death, however, is not ordained even in my present extreme agony. (46)

धन्याः खलु महात्मानो मुनयः सत्यसम्पत्ताः ।

जितात्मानो महाभागा येषां न स्तः प्रियाप्रिये ॥ ४७ ॥

“Happy indeed are the magnanimous and highly blessed hermits by whom the highest Reality has been fully recognized as their very Self and who have subdued

the self and in whose eyes the pleasing and the displeasing do not exist. (47)

प्रियान् सम्भवेद् दुःखमप्रियादधिकं भवेत् ।

ताभ्यां हि ते वियुज्यन्ते नमस्तेषां महात्मनाम् ॥ ४८ ॥

“To them sorrow does not follow from the pleasing, being snatched away, nor does it grow intense through the displeasing being met with, inasmuch as they are rid of joy and sorrow. Hail to those high-souled ones! (48)

साहं त्यक्ता प्रियेणैव रामेण विदितात्मना ।

प्राणांस्त्यक्ष्यामि पापस्य रावणस्य गता वशम् ॥ ४९ ॥

“Situated as I am, I, who have been forsaken by my beloved Śrī Rāma himself, a knower of the Self, and I, who have fallen into the clutches of the sinful Rāvaṇa, shall give up the ghost.” (49)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये सुन्दरकाण्डे षड्विंशः सर्गः ॥ २६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-six in the Sundarakaṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXVII

Risen from sleep, an ogress, Trijaṭā by name, speaks to her companions intimidating Sītā, of a dream she saw only a few minutes before revealing the triumph of Śrī Rāma and the discomfiture of Rāvaṇa, and stops them from molesting Sītā. Pressed by them, she relates the dream to them and also speaks of the omens portending the triumph of Sītā

इत्युक्ताः सीतया घोरं राक्षस्यः क्रोधमूर्च्छिताः ।

काश्चिज्जग्मुस्तदाख्यातुं रावणस्य दुरात्मनः ॥ १ ॥

Distracted through anger when told by Sītā of her violent intention, some ogresses proceeded to communicate it to the evil-minded Rāvaṇa. (1)

ततः सीतामुपागम्य राक्षस्यो भीमदर्शनाः ।

पुनः परुषमेकार्थमनर्थार्थमथाब्रुवन् ॥ २ ॥

Approaching Sītā, the ogresses of hideous aspect then spoke to her again the following harsh words, which harped on the same point and spelt disaster to them alone: (2)

अद्येदानीं तवानार्ये सीते पापविनिश्चये ।

राक्षस्यो भक्षयिष्यन्ति मांसमेतद् यथासुखम् ॥ ३ ॥

“O wretched Sītā of sinful resolve, the ogresses will feast at pleasure on this flesh of yours this very moment today.” (3)

सीतां ताभिरनार्याभिर्दृष्ट्वा संतर्जितां तदा ।

राक्षसी त्रिजटा वृद्धा प्रबुद्धा वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ४ ॥

Seeing Sītā intimidated as above by those vile women at that moment, an aged ogress, Trijaṭā, who had just woken up from sleep, spoke as follows: (4)

आत्मानं खादतानार्या न सीतां भक्षयिष्यथ ।
जनकस्य सुतामिष्टां स्नुषां दशरथस्य च ॥ ५ ॥

“Devour yourselves, O wretches if you will; you will not be able to feast on Sītā, Janaka’s daughter and beloved daughter-in-law of Daśaratha. (5)

स्वप्नो ह्यद्य मया दृष्टो दारुणो रोमहर्षणः ।
राक्षसानामभावाय भर्तुरस्या भवाय च ॥ ६ ॥

“A horrible dream, which makes my hair stand on end, has actually been seen by me today pointing to the annihilation of ogres and to the well-being of her husband.” (6)

एवमुक्तास्त्रिजटया राक्षस्यः क्रोधमूर्च्छिताः ।
सर्वा एवाबुवन् भीतास्त्रिजटां तामिदं वचः ॥ ७ ॥

Seized with fright when spoken to as aforesaid by Trijaṭā, all the ogresses, who were distracted through anger only a minute before, spoke as follows to the aforesaid Trijaṭā: (7)

कथयस्व त्वया दृष्टः स्वप्नोऽयं कीदृशो निशि ।
तासां श्रुत्वा तु वचनं राक्षसीनां मुखोद्धतम् ॥ ८ ॥
उवाच वचनं काले त्रिजटा स्वप्नसंश्रितम् ।
गजदन्तमयीं दिव्यां शिबिकामन्तरिक्षगाम् ॥ ९ ॥
युक्तां वाजिसहस्रेण स्वयमास्थाय राघवः ।
शुक्लमाल्याम्बरधरो लक्ष्मणेन समागतः ॥ १० ॥

“Speak out what kind of dream was seen by you this night.” Hearing the request that had escaped from the lips of the ogresses, Trijaṭā for her part made the following answer bearing on the dream seen by her during the morning wee-hours :

“Mounting a celestial palanquin made of ivory and coursing through the airspace, nay, drawn by a thousand horses, Śrī Rāma himself, clad in a white raiment and wearing a white garland, has duly come here with Lakṣmaṇa. (8—10)

स्वप्ने चाद्य मया दृष्टा सीता शुक्लाम्बरावृता ।
सागरेण परिक्षिप्तं श्वेतपर्वतमास्थिता ॥ ११ ॥

“Clad in white robes, Sītā, too, was seen by me in the dream today perched on a white mountain surrounded by sea. (11)

रामेण संगता सीता भास्करेण प्रभा यथा ।
राघवश्च पुनर्दृष्टश्चतुर्दन्तं महागजम् ॥ १२ ॥

आरूढः शैलसंकाशं चकास सहलक्ष्मणः ।
ततस्तु सूर्यसंकाशौ दीप्यमानौ स्वतेजसा ॥ १३ ॥

शुक्लमाल्याम्बरधरौ जानकीं पर्युपस्थितौ ।
ततस्तस्य नगस्याग्रे ह्याकाशस्थस्य दन्तिनः ॥ १४ ॥

भर्त्रा परिगृहीतस्य जानकी स्कन्धमाश्रिता ।
भर्तुरङ्गात् समुत्पत्य ततः कमललोचना ॥ १५ ॥

चन्द्रसूर्यौ मया दृष्टा पाणिभ्यां परिमार्जतौ ।
ततस्ताभ्यां कुमाराभ्यामास्थितः स गजोत्तमः ।

सीतया च विशालाक्ष्या लङ्काया उपरि स्थितः ॥ १६ ॥
पाण्डुरर्षभयुक्तेन रथेनाष्टयुजा स्वयम् ।

इहोपयातः काकुत्स्थः सीतया सह भार्यया ॥ १७ ॥
शुक्लमाल्याम्बरधरो लक्ष्मणेन सहागतः ।

ततोऽन्यत्र मया दृष्टो रामः सत्यपराक्रमः ॥ १८ ॥
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा सीतया सह वीर्यवान् ।

आरूढ्य पुष्पकं दिव्यं विमानं सूर्यसंनिभम् ॥ १९ ॥
उत्तरां दिशमालोच्य प्रस्थितः पुरुषोत्तमः ।

एवं स्वप्ने मया दृष्टो रामो विष्णुपराक्रमः ॥ २० ॥
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा सीतया सह भार्यया ।

न हि रामो महातेजाः शक्यो जेतुं सुरासुरैः ॥ २१ ॥
राक्षसैर्वापि चान्यैर्वा स्वर्गः पापजनैरिव ।

रावणश्च मया दृष्टो मुण्डस्तैलसमुक्षितः ॥ २२ ॥
रक्तवासाः पिबन्मत्तः करवीरकृतस्त्रजः ।

विमानात् पुष्पकादद्य रावणः पतितः क्षितौ ॥ २३ ॥

“Nay, Sītā was seen re-united with Śrī Rāma as light is with the sun. Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, who shone brightly with Lakṣmaṇa, was further beheld by me as mounted on a huge elephant*, closely

* We read in “Swapnādhyāya” (a treatise on dreams) :

आरोहणं गोवृषकुञ्जराणां प्रासादशैलाग्रवनस्पतीनाम् । विष्ठानुलेपो रुदिनं मृतं च स्वप्नेष्वगम्यागमनं च धन्यम् ॥

“To mount on the back of a cow, a bull or an elephant, to climb up a mansion, the top of a mountain resembling a hill, with as many as four tusks. Wearing white garlands and clad in white robes and ablaze with their own effulgence, nay, shining brightly like the sun, the two brothers for their part then stood by the side of Sītā, Janaka's daughter. Thereupon Sītā actually mounted the shoulders of that tusker led by her husband, standing in the air in front of the aforesaid white hill. Springing up from the lap of her husband, the lotus-eyed lady was then seen by me gently touching the moon and the sun* with her hands. Then that jewel among elephants, ridden by the aforesaid two brothers as well as by the large-eyed Sītā took its stand on Laṅkā. I saw in another dream that wearing a white garland and clad in a white robe, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha, himself came here along with his consort, Sītā, in a chariot drawn by eight white bullocks and was accompanied by Lakṣmaṇa, too. Then in another dream the valiant Śrī Rāma of unfailing prowess, a jewel among men was seen by me on the move towards a northerly direction having ascended the celestial aerial car, Puṣpaka, shining brightly as the sun. In this way was Śrī Rāma, who vies with Lord Viṣṇu in prowess, seen by me in a dream alongwith his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, and his wife, Sītā. Surely Śrī Rāma, who is endowed with extraordinary energy, is incapable of being conquered by gods and demons or even by ogres or by any other people, even as heaven cannot be won by sinful men.

“Rāvaṇa too was seen by me in the dream today with a shaven head, nay, bathed in oil, attired in red, drunken and still drinking, adorned with garlands of oleander flowers and fallen on the earth from the aerial car, Puṣpaka.

(12—23)

कृष्यमाणः स्त्रिया मुण्डो दृष्टः कृष्णाम्बरः पुनः ।

रथेन खरयुक्तेन रक्तमाल्यानुलेपनः ॥ २४ ॥

“He was seen in a dream once more with a shaven head and robed in black, wearing a red garland and smeared with red sandal-paste and being pulled by a woman on a chariot drawn by asses. (24)

पिबंस्तैलं हसन्त्यन् भ्रान्तचित्ताकुलेन्द्रियः ।

गर्दभेन ययौ शीघ्रं दक्षिणां दिशमास्थितः ॥ २५ ॥

“Quaffing oil, laughing and dancing, his mind confused and senses obscured, he sped on the back of an ass in a southerly direction. (25)

पुनरेव मया दृष्टो रावणो राक्षसेश्वरः ।

पतितोऽवाक्शिरा भूमौ गर्दभाद् भयमोहितः ॥ २६ ॥

“Rāvaṇa, the lord of ogres, was again seen by me fallen headlong from the back of the ass, confused through fear. (26)

सहसोत्थाय सम्भ्रान्तो भयार्तो मदविह्वलः ।

उन्मत्तरूपो दिग्वासा दुर्वाक्यं प्रलपन् बहु ॥ २७ ॥

“Leaping up suddenly, utterly bewildered, terror-stricken, overpowered with intoxication, looking like a madman, and sky-clad, he was seen uttering many abusive words. (27)

दुर्गन्धं दुःसहं घोरं तिमिरं नरकोपमम् ।

मलपङ्कं प्रविश्याशु मग्नस्तत्र स रावणः ॥ २८ ॥

“Entering a fearful gloom, resembling hell itself, emitting a foul smell difficult to bear, nay, full of filth and mire, the aforesaid Rāvaṇa soon disappeared into it. (28)

प्रस्थितो दक्षिणामाशां प्रविष्टोऽकर्मं हृदम् ।

कण्ठे बद्ध्वा दशग्रीवं प्रमदा रक्तवासिनी ॥ २९ ॥

काली कर्मलिप्ताङ्गी दिशं याम्यां प्रकर्षति ।

एवं तत्र मया दृष्टः कुम्भकर्णो महाबलः ॥ ३० ॥

“Again having set out in a southerly or a tree, to get bedaubed with excrement, weeping/and death as well as copulation with a woman not fit for intercourse in dreams are looked upon as auspicious.”

* We further read in “Swapnādhyāya”:

आदित्यमण्डलं वापि चन्द्रमण्डलमेव वा । स्वप्ने गृह्णाति हस्ताभ्यां महद्राज्यं समाप्नुयात् ॥

“Whoever touches with one's hand the orb of the sun or that of the moon bids fair to attain a large dominion.”

direction, he entered a dry lake even without mud. Tying the ten-headed monster round his neck, a dark young woman clad in red, her limbs besmeared with mud, was dragging him in a southerly direction. Rāvaṇa's younger brother Kumbhakarna of extraordinary might was likewise seen by me in that dream.

(29-30)

