“The world would murmur against me saying that Rāma, son of Daśaratha, was really foolish and that his mind was dominated by lust, if I actually accepted the daughter of Janaka without proving her chastity. (14)

अनन्यहृदयां सीतां मच्चित्तपरिरक्षिणीम्।
अहमप्यवगच्छामि मैथिलीं जनकात्मजाम् ॥ १५ ॥

“I too know Sītā, the daughter of Janaka and a princess of Mithilā, to be undivided in her affection to me and agreeable to my mind. (15)

इमामपि विशालाक्षीं रक्षितां स्वेन तेजसा।
रावणो नातिवर्तेत वेलामिव महोदधिः ॥ १६ ॥

“Rāvaṇa could not violate this large-eyed lady either, protected as she was by her own moral power, any more than a sea would transgress its bounds. (16)

प्रत्ययार्थं तु लोकानां त्रयाणां सत्यसंश्रयः।
उपेक्षे चापि वैदेहीं प्रविशन्तीं हुताशनम् ॥ १७ ॥

“In order, however, to convince the denizens of the three worlds, I, whose sheet-anchor is truth, ignored Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) even while she was entering the fire. (17)

न हि शक्तः सुदुष्टात्मा मनसापि हि मैथिलीम् ।
प्रधर्षयितुमप्राप्यां दीप्तामग्निशिखामिव ॥ १८ ॥

“The extremely evil-minded fellow, Rāvaṇa, could not actually lay his violent hands even in thought on the princess of Mithilā, who was inaccessible to him like a flaming tongue of fire. (18)

नेयमर्हति वैक्लव्यं रावणान्तःपुरे सती ।
अनन्या हि मया सीता भास्करस्य प्रभा यथा ॥ १९ ॥

“This virtuous lady could not give way to frailty in the gynaeceum of Rāvaṇa inasmuch as Sītā is non-different from me even as sunlight is non-different from the sun. (19)

विशुद्धा त्रिषु लोकेषु मैथिली जनकात्मजा ।
न विहातुं मया शक्या कीर्तिरात्मवता यथा ॥ २० ॥

“The daughter of Janaka, a princess of Mithilā, is absolutely unsullied in all the three worlds. She can no longer be renounced by me any more than good name by a man of prudence. (20)

अवश्यं च मया कार्यं सर्वेषां वो वचो हितम् ।
स्निग्धानां लोकनाथानामेवं च वदतां हितम् ॥ २१ ॥

“The friendly advice of you all, the loving protectors of the world, who are saying what is conducive to our good, needs must be acted upon by me.” (21)

इत्येवमुक्त्वा विजयी महाबलः
प्रशस्यमानः स्वकृतेन कर्मणा ।
समेत्य रामः प्रियया महायशाः
सुखं सुखार्होऽनुबभूव राघवः ॥ २२ ॥

Saying as aforesaid and getting reunited with his darling, Sītā, the victorious and highly illustrious Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, who was endowed with extraordinary might and deserved happiness, and was being glorified by exploits performed by his own self, experienced great felicity. (22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये युद्धकाण्डेऽष्टादशाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ ११८ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and eighteen in the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXIX

As enjoined by Lord Śiva, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa pay their respects to the soul of Emperor Daśaratha, who appears in an ethereal form, a replica of his extinct personality, and ascends once more to heaven after giving necessary instructions to his two former sons and daughter-in-law

एतच्छ्रुत्वा शुभं वाक्यं राघवेणानुभाषितम् ।
ततः शुभतरं वाक्यं व्याजहार महेश्वरः ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the foregoing excellent reply made by Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), Lord Śiva (the Supreme Lord) thereupon delivered the following still more charming speech: (1)

पुष्कराक्ष महाबाहो महावक्षः परंतप ।
दिष्ट्या कृतमिदं कर्म त्वया धर्मभृतां वर ॥ २ ॥

“O lotus-eyed, mighty-armed and broadcheded scourge of your enemies, by good luck has this feat been performed by you, O jewel among those upholding the cause of virtue. (2)

दिष्ट्या सर्वस्य लोकस्य प्रवृद्धं दारुणं तमः ।
अपवृत्तं त्वया संख्ये राम रावणजं भयम् ॥ ३ ॥

“Fortunately has the dread born of Rāvaṇa—which cast an enormous formidable gloom on the entire universe—has been dispelled by you on the battlefield. (3)

आश्वास्य भरतं दीनं कौसल्यां च यशस्विनीम् ।
कैकेयीं च सुमित्रां च दृष्ट्वा लक्ष्मणमातरम् ॥ ४ ॥
प्राप्य राज्यमयोध्यायां नन्दयित्वा सुहृज्जनम् ।
इक्ष्वाकूणां कुले वंशं स्थापयित्वा महाबल ॥ ५ ॥
इष्ट्वा तुरगमेधेन प्राप्य चानुत्तमं यशः ।
ब्राह्मणेभ्यो धनं दत्त्वा त्रिदिवं गन्तुमर्हसि ॥ ६ ॥

“Comforting the wretched Bharata, as well as your mother, the illustrious Kausalyā, and seeing your stepmothers, Kaikeyī and Sumitrā, the mother of Lakṣmaṇa, attaining the sovereignty of Ayodhyā, bringing delight to your dear and near ones, stabilizing your prosperity in the race of Ikṣvāku, propitiating the Lord by means of a horse-sacrifice, nay, acquiring the highest renown and bestowing riches on the Brāhmaṇas, you ought to ascend the heaven, O prince endowed with extraordinary might! (4—6)

एष राजा दशरथो विमानस्थः पिता तव ।
काकुत्स्थ मानुषे लोके गुरुस्तव महायशाः ॥ ७ ॥

“Here is your (deceased) father, King Daśaratha—who was your highly illustrious senior in the world of mortals—seated in an aerial car, O scion of Kakutstha! (7)

इन्द्रलोकं गतः श्रीमांस्त्वया पुत्रेण तारितः ।
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा त्वमेनमभिवादय ॥ ८ ॥

“Having been delivered by you, his pious son, the glorious monarch has taken up his abode in the realm of Indra. Greet you him with your younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa.” (8)

महादेववचः श्रुत्वा राघवः सहलक्ष्मणः ।
विमानशिखरस्थस्य प्रणाममकरोत् पितुः ॥ ९ ॥

Hearing the speech of Lord Śiva (the Supreme Deity), Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), alongwith Lakṣmaṇa, respectfully bowed down to his father seated on the topmost part of an aerial car. (9)

दीप्यमानं स्वया लक्ष्म्या विरजोऽम्बरधारिणम् ।
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा ददर्श पितरं प्रभुः ॥ १० ॥

With his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, the lord looked on His deceased father, who was blazing in his own effulgence and was clad in spotless raiment. (10)

हर्षेण महताऽऽविष्टो विमानस्थो महीपतिः ।
प्राणैः प्रियतरं दृष्ट्वा पुत्रं दशरथस्तदा ॥ ११ ॥

Seated in his aerial car, Daśaratha, a (quondam) ruler of the earth, was filled with excessive delight to behold on that occasion his erstwhile son, Śrī Rāma, who was dearer to him than life. (11)

आरोप्याङ्के महाबाहुर्वरासनगतः प्रभुः ।
बाहुभ्यां सम्परिष्वज्य ततो वाक्यं समाददे ॥ १२ ॥

Placing the latter in his lap and folding him tightly in his arms, the mighty-armed (quondam) ruler, who, having landed, was resting on an excellent seat, now commenced his speech as follows: (12)

न मे स्वर्गो बहु मतः सम्मानश्च सुरर्षभैः ।
त्वया राम विहीनस्य सत्यं प्रतिशृणोमि ते ॥ १३ ॥

“Truly do I swear to you, O Rāma, that to me, who stand separated once for all from you, neither does residence in heaven, nor the honour bestowed on me by the foremost of gods is prized by me. (13)

अद्य त्वां निहतामित्रं दृष्ट्वा सम्पूर्णमानसम् ।
निस्तीर्णवनवासं च प्रीतिरासीत् परा मम ॥ १४ ॥

“Supreme joy is being experienced by me today on seeing you fully satisfied in mind, now that your enemies have been exterminated and you have fully gone through the period of your exile. (14)

कैकेय्या यानि चोक्तानि वाक्यानि वदतां वर ।
तव प्रव्राजनाथानि स्थितानि हृदये मम ॥ १५ ॥
“Nay, the words which were uttered by Kaikeyī with the motive of sending you into exile are still imprinted on my heart, O jewel among the eloquent ! (15)

त्वां तु दृष्ट्वा कुशलिनं परिष्वज्य सलक्ष्मणम् ।
अद्य दुःखाद् विमुक्तोऽस्मि नीहारादिव भास्करः ॥ १६ ॥
“I, however stand completely rid of sorrow—even as the sun is freed from mist—on seeing you whole with Lakṣmaṇa and hugging you today. (16)

तारितोऽहं त्वया पुत्र सुपुत्रेण महात्मना ।
अष्टावक्रेण धर्मात्मा कहोलो ब्राह्मणो यथा ॥ १७ ॥
“I have been redeemed by you, my worthy and high-souled son, even as the Brāhmaṇa, Kahola, whose mind was set on virtue, was by his son, Aṣṭāvakra, O my child! (17)

इदानीं च विजानामि यथा सौम्य सुरेश्वरैः ।
वधार्थं रावणस्येह विहितं पुरुषोत्तमम् ॥ १८ ॥
“I now recognize you to be the Supreme Person, duly dispatched here in disguise by the rulers of gods for the destruction of Rāvaṇa, O gentle one! (18)

सिद्धार्थां खलु कौसल्या या त्वां राम गृहं गतम् ।
वनान्निवृत्तं संहृष्टा द्रक्ष्यते शत्रुसूदनम् ॥ १९ ॥ “Accomplished of purpose indeed is Kausalyā, who will see you, the destroyer of your enemies, returned home from the forest,
O Rāma, and feel highly delighted. (19)

सिद्धार्थाः खलु ते राम नरा ये त्वां पुरीं गतम् ।
राज्ये चैवाभिषिक्तं च द्रक्ष्यन्ते वसुधाधिपम् ॥ २० ॥ “Accomplished of purpose indeed are those men who will see you returned to the city of Ayodhyā and consecrated on the throne as the suzerain lord of the entire globe. (20)

अनुरक्तेन बलिना शुचिना धर्मचारिणा ।
इच्छेयं त्वामहं द्रष्टुं भरतेन समागतम् ॥ २१ ॥

“I desire to see you reunited with the mighty and pious Bharata, who is devoted to you and has all along been practising virtue. (21)

चतुर्दश समाः सौम्य वने निर्यातितास्त्वया ।
वसता सीतया सार्धं मत्प्रीत्या लक्ष्मणेन च ॥ २२ ॥

“Full fourteen years have been spent by you, O gentle one, while living in the forest with Sitā and Lakṣmaṇa for my pleasure. (22)

निवृत्तवनवासोऽसि प्रतिज्ञा पूरिता त्वया ।
रावणं च रणे हत्वा देवताः परितोषिताः ॥ २३ ॥

“The term of your exile has now expired;
my pledge given to Kaikeyī has also been implemented by you and the gods too have been fully gratified by making short work of Rāvaṇa on the field of battle. (23)

कृतं कर्म यशः श्लाघ्यं प्राप्तं ते शत्रुसूदन ।
भ्रातृभिः सह राज्यस्थो दीर्घमायुरवाप्नुहि ॥ २४ ॥

“A laudable feat has thus been accomplished and covetable fame won by you, O exterminator of your enemies! Getting installed on the throne of Ayodhyā, may you attain a long life with your younger brothers.” (24)

इति ब्रुवाणं राजानं रामः प्राञ्जलिरब्रवीत् ।
कुरु प्रसादं धर्मज्ञ कैकेय्या भरतस्य च ॥ २५ ॥

To the king, who was speaking in this strain, Śrī Rāma with joined palms submitted as follows: “Be gracious to Kaikeyī and Bharata, O knower of what is right! (25)

सपुत्रां त्वां त्यजामीति यदुक्ता कैकयी त्वया ।
स शापः कैकयीं घोरः सपुत्रां न स्पृशेत् प्रभो ॥ २६ ॥

“You will remember that Kaikeyī was twitted by you in the words: I disown you with your son (Bharata).’ May that terrible curse not fall on mother Kaikeyī and her son, my lord!” (26)

तथेति स महाराजो राममुक्त्वा कृताञ्जलिम् ।
लक्ष्मणं च परिष्वज्य पुनर्वाक्यमुवाच ह ॥ २७ ॥

Saying “Amen!” to Śrī Rāma, and embracing Lakṣmaṇa, who stood with joined palms, the said emperor spoke to the latter once more as follows: (27)

रामं शुश्रूषता भक्त्या वैदेह्या सह सीतया ।
कृता मम महाप्रीतिः प्राप्तं धर्मफलं च ते ॥ २८ ॥

“Great satisfaction has been rendered to me and reward in the form of religious merit earned by you in that you served Rāma alongwith Sitā, a princess of the Videha territory. (28)

धर्मं प्राप्स्यसि धर्मज्ञ यशश्च विपुलं भुवि ।
रामे प्रसन्ने स्वर्गं च महिमानं तथोत्तमम् ॥ २९ ॥

“Rāma being pleased with you, you will attain further religious merit as also extensive renown on earth as well as an abode in heaven and supreme glory, O Knower of what is right! (29)

रामं शुश्रूष भद्रं ते सुमित्रानन्दवर्धन ।
रामः सर्वस्य लोकस्य हितेष्वभिरतः सदा ॥ ३० ॥

“Continue to serve Rāma as heretofore, O enhancer of Sumitrā’s joy; may all be well with you. Rāma remains ever engaged in advancing the interests of the entire universe. (30)

एते सेन्द्रास्त्रयो लोकाः सिद्धाश्च परमर्षयः ।
अभिवाद्य महात्मानमर्चन्ति पुरुषोत्तमम् ॥ ३१ ॥

“Greeting the high-souled Rāma, the denizens of all these three worlds including Indra, their ruler, nay, even the Siddhas (a class of demigods endowed with mystic powers by virtue of their very birth) as well as eminent Ṛṣis (the seers of Vedic Mantras) pay homage to him as the Supreme Person. (31)

एतत् तदुक्तमव्यक्तमक्षरं ब्रह्मसम्मितम् ।
देवानां हृदयं सौम्य गुह्यं रामः परंतपः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Rāma, the scourge of his enemies, has been spoken of as the unmanifest and imperishable Brahma, the Absolute, esteemed by the Vedas, the heart of all gods, nay, the secret of all gods, O gentle one! (32)

अवासधर्माचरणं यशश्च विपुलं त्वया ।
एवं शुश्रूषताव्यग्रं वैदेह्या सह सीतया ॥ ३३ ॥

“The reward of the practice of all virtues as also extensive fame has been earned by you in that you steadily served him, as also Sitā, a princess of the Videha territory.” (33)

इत्युक्त्वा लक्ष्मणं राजा स्नुषां बद्धाञ्जलिं स्थिताम् ।
पुत्रीत्याभाष्य मधुरं शनैरेनामुवाच ह ॥ ३४ ॥

Having spoken as aforesaid to Lakṣmaṇa and accosting his daughter-in-law, Sitā, standing before him with joined palms as “My daughter”, the (former) king gently and slowly instructed her as follows: (34)

कर्तव्यो न तु वैदेहि मन्युस्त्यागमिमं प्रति ।
रामेणेदं विशुद्ध्यर्थं कृतं वै त्वद्वितैषिणा ॥ ३५ ॥

“No resentment, however, should be shown by you against this repudiation of yours by Rāma, O princess of the Videha territory! This was undoubtedly done by Rāma, who wished well of you, in order to demonstrate your absolute purity. (35)

सुदुष्करमिदं पुत्रि तव चारित्रलक्षणम् ।
कृतं यत् तेऽन्यनारीणां यशो ह्यभिभविव्यति ॥ ३६ ॥

“This act of entering the flames, which has been done by you and which reveals your true character, my daughter, is most difficult to perform (for others) and will undoubtedly overshadow the renown of other virtuous ladies. (36)

न त्वं कामं समाधेया भर्तृशुश्रूषणं प्रति ।
अवश्यं तु मया वाच्यमेष ते दैवतं परम् ॥ ३७ ॥

“Although you need not be instructed in the matter of rendering service to your husband, nonetheless it needs must be pointed out by me that he is your supreme deity.” (37)

इति प्रतिसमादिश्य पुत्रौ सीतां च राघवः ।
इन्द्रलोकं विमानेन ययौ दशरथो नृपः ॥ ३८ ॥

Having admonished as aforesaid his two sons, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, as well as his daughter-in-law, Sītā, King Daśaratha, a (quondam) scion of Raghu, ascended in his aerial car to heaven, the realm of Indra. (38)

विमानमास्थाय महानुभावः
श्रिया च संहृष्टतनुर्नृपोत्तमः ।

आमन्त्र्य पुत्रौ सह सीतया च
जगाम देवप्रवरस्य लोकम् ॥ ३९ ॥

Taking his seat in the aerial car and bidding adieu to his two sons and Sītā, too, Daśaratha, the foremost of the rulers of men, who had a majestic bearing, was clothed with splendour and felt thrilled all over with delight, ascended to the realm of Indra, the foremost of gods. (39)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये युद्धकाण्डे एकोनविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ ११९ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and nineteen in the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

विंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXX

At the instance of Śrī Rāma, Indra brings back to life all the monkeys who had lost their life in combat, the gods disperse and the simian army enjoy their well-earned rest

प्रतिप्रयाते काकुत्स्थे महेन्द्रः पाकशासनः ।
अब्रवीत् परमप्रीतो राघवं प्राञ्जलिं स्थितम् ॥ १ ॥

Daśaratha (a former scion of Kakutstha) having returned to heaven, the mighty Indra, the tamer of the demon Pāka, who felt supremely rejoiced, spoke as follows to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), standing before him with joined palms: (1)

अमोघं दर्शनं राम तवास्माकं नरर्षभ ।
प्रीतियुक्ताः स्म तेन त्वं ब्रूहि यन्मनसेप्सितम् ॥ २ ॥

“Your sight of us, O Rāma, a jewel among human beings, must not go in vain. We are pleased with you. Therefore, you speak out, what is sought after by your mind.” (2)

एवमुक्तो महेन्द्रेण प्रसन्नेन महात्मना ।
सुप्रसन्नमना हृष्टो वचनं प्राह राघवः ॥ ३ ॥

Highly gratified at heart when told thus by the mighty and high-souled Indra, who was pleased with him, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, joyfully submitted as follows: (3)

यदि प्रीतिः समुत्पन्ना मयि ते विबुधेश्वर ।
वक्ष्यामि कुरु मे सत्यं वचनं वदतां वर ॥ ४ ॥

“If goodwill towards me has arisen in you, O ruler of gods, I shall speak out my mind to you. Pray, grant my prayer, O jewel among the eloquent. (4)

मम हेतोः पराक्रान्ता ये गता यमसादनम् ।
ते सर्वे जीवितं प्राप्य समुत्तिष्ठन्तु वानराः ॥ ५ ॥

“Gaining a fresh lease of life, may all those monkeys who, having exhibited their prowess in my cause, have reached the abode of Death, duly rise again. (5)

मत्कृते विप्रयुक्ता ये पुत्रैर्दारैश्च वानराः ।
तान् प्रीतमनसः सर्वान् द्रष्टुमिच्छामि मानद ॥ ६ ॥

"I desire to see all those monkeys delighted at heart, who have been torn for good from their sons and wife for my sake, O bestower of honour on others! (6)

विक्रान्ताश्चापि शूराश्च न मृत्युं गणयन्ति च । कृतयत्ना विपन्नाश्च जीवयैतान् पुरंदर ॥ ७ ॥

"Nay, they were all valiant and heroic too and held death of no account. Utmost exertion was put forth by them to regain my honour, yet they fell dead on the battlefield. Pray, bring them back to life, O destroyer of citadels! (7)

मत्प्रियेष्वभिरक्ताश्च न मृत्युं गणयन्ति ये ।
त्वत्प्रसादात् समेयुस्ते वरमेतमहं वृणे ॥ ८ ॥

"By your grace may those monkeys, who were fond of doing kindly acts to me and counted death as nothing, get reunited with their near and dear ones! I seek this boon of you. (8)

नीरुजो निर्व्रणांश्चैव सम्पन्नबलपौरुषान् ।
गोलाङ्गूलांस्तथर्क्षाश्च द्रष्टुमिच्छामि मानद ॥ ९ ॥

"I wish to see all those long-tailed monkeys and bears whole and healed of their wounds and their former strength and energy fully restored, O bestower of honour on others. (9)

अकाले चापि पुष्पाणि मूलानि च फलानि च ।
नद्यश्च विमलास्तत्र तिष्ठेयुर्यत्र वानराः ॥ १० ॥

"Nay, let there be flowers and edible roots and fruits even out of season and let rivers with limpid waters flow wherever the aforesaid monkeys live." (10)

श्रुत्वा तु वचनं तस्य राघवस्य महात्मनः ।
महेन्द्रः प्रत्युवाचेदं वचनं प्रीतिसंयुतम् ॥ ११ ॥

Hearing the foregoing prayer of that high-souled scion of Raghu, the mighty Indra for his part made the following affectionate reply: (11)

महानयं वरस्तात यस्त्वयोक्तो रघूत्तम ।
द्विर्मया नोक्तपूर्वं च तस्मादेतद् भविष्यति ॥ १२ ॥

"This boon, which has been sought by you, O jewel among the Raghus, is indeed hard to grant. No offer has, however, been revised by me in the past. Hence this will come to be. (12)

समुत्तिष्ठन्तु ते सर्वे हता ये युधि राक्षसैः ।
ऋक्षाश्च सह गोपुच्छैर्निकृत्ताननबाहवः ॥ १३ ॥

"Let all those monkeys as well as bears, alongwith long-tailed monkeys, who have been killed in combat by the ogres, and whose heads and arms have been severed, duly rise again. (13)

नीरुजो निर्व्रणाश्चैव सम्पन्नबलपौरुषाः ।
समुत्थास्यन्ति हरयः सुप्ता निद्राक्षये यथा ॥ १४ ॥

"The monkeys will duly rise whole and healed of their wounds, their strength and energy fully restored, even as those fallen asleep would do on the termination of their sleep. (14)

सुहृद्भिर्बान्धवैश्चैव ज्ञातिभिः स्वजनेन च ।
सर्व एव समेध्यन्ति संयुक्ताः परया मुदा ॥ १५ ॥

"Full of excessive joy, all will undoubtedly get reunited with their friends and relatives, kinsfolk and those who are their own. (15)

अकाले पुष्पशबलाः फलवन्तश्च पादपाः ।
भविष्यन्ति महेष्वास नद्यश्च सलिलायुताः ॥ १६ ॥

"The trees in the region inhabited by the monkeys and bears will remain spotted with blossom and laden with fruit even out of season and the rivers will remain constantly supplied with water, O wielder of a mighty bow!" (16)

सव्रणैः प्रथमं गात्रैरिदानीं निर्व्रणैः समैः ।
ततः समुत्थिताः सर्वे सुप्तेव हरिसत्तमाः ॥ १७ ॥

With all their limbs now completely healed of wounds, though formerly covered with wounds, all the dead monkeys who were the foremost of their race thereupon duly rose as though they had slept soundly. (17)

बभूवुर्वानराः सर्वे किं त्वेतदिति विस्मिताः ।
काकुत्स्थं परिपूर्णार्थं दृष्ट्वा सर्वे सुरोत्तमाः ॥ १८ ॥

अब्रुवन् परमप्रीताः स्तुत्वा रामं सलक्ष्मणम् ।
गच्छायोध्यामितो राजन् विसर्जय च वानरान् ॥ १९ ॥

All the onlooking monkeys felt amazed, saying to one another: "What miracle is this?" Seeing Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha, fully accomplished of purpose, nay, extolling Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, all the jewels among the gods present on the occasion spoke to him as follows, supremely delighted as they were: "Return to Ayodhyā from this place, O monarch, and disband the monkeys.

(18-19)

मैथिलीं सान्त्वयस्वैनामनुरक्तां यशस्विनीम् ।
भ्रातरं भरतं पश्य त्वच्छोकाद् व्रतचारिणम् ॥ २० ॥
शत्रुघ्नं च महात्मानं मातृः सर्वाः परंतप ।
अभिषेचय चात्मानं पौरान् गत्वा प्रहर्षय ॥ २१ ॥

Reassure this devoted and illustrious princess of Mithilā and see your younger brother, Bharata, who is practising austerities through grief caused by separation from you, the lofty-minded Śatrughna as well as all your mothers, O scourge of your enemies! Reaching Ayodhyā, bring excessive delight to the citizens and get yourself consecrated on the throne."

(20-21)

एवमुक्त्वा सहस्राक्षो रामं सौमित्रिणा सह ।
विमानैः सूर्यसंकाशैर्ययौ हृष्टः सुरैः सह ॥ २२ ॥

Having spoken as aforesaid to Śrī Rāma, who was accompanied by Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), Indra (the thousand-eyed god) joyfully returned to heaven with the other gods in their aerial cars blazing like the sun.

(22)

अभिवाद्य च काकुत्स्थः सर्वास्तांस्त्रिदशोत्तमान् ।
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा वासमाज्ञापयत् तदा ॥ २३ ॥

Nay, greeting all the aforesaid jewels among the gods, Śrī Rāma with his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, then ordered the encampment of the army.

(23)

ततस्तु सा लक्ष्मणरामपालिता
महाचमूर्हृष्टजना यशस्विनी ।
श्रिया ज्वलन्ती विरराज सर्वतो
निशा प्रणीतेव हि शीतरश्मिना ॥ २४ ॥

Thereupon that illustrious and mighty army of happy troops for its part, which was protected by Lakṣmaṇa and Śrī Rāma and was blazing with splendour on all sides, shone brightly indeed like a night illumined by the moon.

(24)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये युद्धकाण्डे विंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १२० ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and twenty in the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXXI

Śrī Rāma prepares to leave for Ayodhyā and at his instance
Vibhīṣaṇa orders the presence of the aerial car,
Puṣpaka, to take him to Ayodhyā

तां रात्रिमुषितं रामं सुखोदितमरिंदमम् ।
अब्रवीत् प्राञ्जलिर्वाक्यं जयं पृष्ट्वा विभीषणः ॥ १ ॥

Wishing victory to Śrī Rāma, the tamer of his enemies, who having reposed during the previous night, had risen fresh, Vibhīṣaṇa spoke to him with joined palms as follows:

(1)

स्नानानि चाङ्गरागाणि वस्त्राण्याभरणानि च ।
चन्दनानि च माल्यानि दिव्यानि विविधानि च ॥ २ ॥

“Various kinds of baths (such as hot and cold, perfumed etc.) and cosmetics, garments and ornaments as also sandal-pastes and heavenly garlands of various kinds are ready for your use. (2)

अलंकारविदश्चैता नार्यः पद्मनिभेक्षणाः ।
उपस्थितास्त्वां विधिवत् स्नापयिष्यन्ति राघव ॥ ३ ॥

“Nay, these women with lotus-like eyes, who are well-versed in the art of decoration are at your service. They will duly assist you in bathing, O scion of Raghu!” (3)

एवमुक्तस्तु काकुत्स्थः प्रत्युवाच विभीषणम् ।
हरीन् सुग्रीवमुख्यांस्त्वं स्नानेनोपनिमन्त्रय ॥ ४ ॥

Spoken to in these words, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha) replied as follows to Vibhīṣaṇa: “Invite you the monkeys headed by Sugrīva to bathe. (4)

स तु ताम्यति धर्मात्मा मम हेतोः सुखोचितः ।
सुकुमारो महाबाहुर्भरतः सत्यसंश्रयः ॥ ५ ॥

“That mighty-armed prince, Bharata, for his part, whose mind is set on virtue, who is delicate of body and was used to bodily comforts and who takes his stand entirely on veracity is suffering on my account. (5)

तं विना कैकयीपुत्रं भरतं धर्मचारिणम् ।
न मे स्नानं बहु मतं वस्त्राण्याभरणानि च ॥ ६ ॥

“In the absence of that son of Kaikeyī, Bharata, who is practising virtue, bathing, raiment and jewels are of no value to me. (6)

एतत् पश्य यथा क्षिप्रं प्रतिगच्छाम तां पुरीम् ।
अयोध्यां गच्छतो ह्येष पन्थाः परमदुर्गमः ॥ ७ ॥

“Ignoring everything else, ponder over the question as to how we may be able to reach Ayodhyā soon; for to anyone proceeding on foot to that city the route by which we have come is most difficult to tread.” (7)

एवमुक्तस्तु काकुत्स्थं प्रत्युवाच विभीषणः ।
अह्ना त्वां प्रापयिष्यामि तां पुरीं पार्थिवात्मज ॥ ८ ॥

Requested in these words, Vibhīṣaṇa for his part replied as follows to Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha: “I shall enable you to reach that city in the course of a day, O prince! (8)

पुष्पकं नाम भद्रं ते विमानं सूर्यसंनिभम् ।
मम भ्रातुः कुबेरस्य रावणेन बलीयसा ॥ ९ ॥
हृतं निर्जित्य संग्रामे कामगं दिव्यमुत्तमम् ।
त्वदर्थं पालितं चेदं तिष्ठत्यतुलविक्रम ॥ १० ॥

“May prosperity attend you! There is a heavenly and excellent aerial car, Puṣpaka by name, brilliant as the sun and belonging to my brother, Kubera, the ruler of Yakṣas, which was borne away by the very mighty Rāvaṇa after conquering the former in combat and which moves according to the will of its rider. Nay, having been retained for your sake, it still continues with me, O warrior of unequalled prowess! (9-10)

तदिदं मेघसंकाशं विमानमिह तिष्ठति ।
येन यास्यसि यानेन त्वमयोध्यां गतज्वरः ॥ ११ ॥

“The yonder aerial car, which closely resembles a cloud, stands here in Laṅkā, and by which transport you will reach Ayodhyā without any trouble. (11)

अहं ते यद्यनुग्राह्यो यदि स्मरसि मे गुणान् ।
वस तावदिह प्राज्ञ यद्यस्ति मयि सौहृदम् ॥ १२ ॥
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा वैदेह्या भार्यया सह ।
अर्चितः सर्वकामैस्त्वं ततो राम गमिष्यसि ॥ १३ ॥

“If I deserve to be treated with kindness by you, nay, if you think of any virtue in me and if there is any affection for me in your heart, remain here awhile, O sagacious prince, alongwith your younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa and with your consort, Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory. When you have been entertained by me with all kinds of luxuries, you shall then depart, O Rāma! (12-13)

प्रीतियुक्तस्य विहितां ससैन्यः ससुहृद्गणः ।
सत्क्रियां राम मे तावद् गृहाण त्वं मयोद्यताम् ॥ १४ ॥

“In the meantime, O Rāma, pray, accept you with your entire army and host of friends my hospitality, which has been arranged for by me in accordance with the scriptures, full of affection as I am for you. (14)

प्रणयाद् बहुमानाच्च सौहार्देन च राघव ।
प्रसादयामि प्रेष्ठोऽहं न खल्वाज्ञापयामि ते ॥ १५ ॥

“I seek this favour of you out of affection, as well as with great esteem and a friendly feeling, O scion of Raghu! I am your servant and as such I am certainly not constraining you to do so.” (15)

एवमुक्तस्ततो रामः प्रत्युवाच विभीषणम् ।
रक्षसां वानराणां च सर्वेषामेव शृण्वताम् ॥ १६ ॥

Requested, as aforesaid, Śrī Rāma thereupon replied as follows to Vibhīṣaṇa while all the ogres and monkeys present there listened: (16)

पूजितोऽस्मि त्वया वीर साचिव्येन परेण च ।
सर्वात्मना च चेष्टाभिः सौहार्देन परेण च ॥ १७ ॥

“I stand honoured by you, O hero, by your most valued counsel as well as by your military efforts put forth with your whole soul and above all by your great friendship. (17)

न खल्वेतन्न कुर्यां ते वचनं राक्षसेश्वर ।
तं तु मे भ्रातरं द्रष्टुं भरतं त्वरते मनः ॥ १८ ॥
मां निवर्तयितुं योऽसौ चित्रकूटमुपागतः ।
शिरसा याचतो यस्य वचनं न कृतं मया ॥ १९ ॥
कौसल्यां च सुमित्रां च कैकेयीं च यशस्विनीम् ।
गुहं च सुहृदं चैव पौराञ्जानपदैः सह ॥ २० ॥

“Nevertheless I would never dare to turn down this request of yours either, O ruler of ogres! My mind, however, is impatient to see Bharata, that younger brother of mine, who came all the way to Citrakūṭa to take me back to Ayodhyā the other day, yet whose prayer was not granted by me even though he besought me with his head bent low—and my mother, Kausalyā as also (my stepmothers) Sumitrā and the illustrious Kaikeyī, as well as my friend, Guha, alongwith the people of Ayodhyā and the outlying districts comprised in the kingdom of Ayodhyā. (18—20)

अनुजानीहि मां सौम्य पूजितोऽस्मि विभीषण ।
मन्युर्न खलु कर्तव्यः सखे त्वां चानुमानये ॥ २१ ॥

“Therefore, grant me leave to go, O gentle one! I have already been honoured by you in so many ways, O Vibhīṣaṇa. In no case should disappointment be felt by you, I beseech you, my friend! (21)

उपस्थापय मे शीघ्रं विमानं राक्षसेश्वर ।
कृतकार्यस्य मे वासः कथं स्यादिह सम्मतः ॥ २२ ॥

“Place your aerial car at my disposal quickly, O ruler of ogres! How can my continued stay here be considered advisable now that my task has been accomplished!” (22)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण राक्षसेन्द्रो विभीषणः ।
विमानं सूर्यसंकाशमाजुहाव त्वरान्वितः ॥ २३ ॥
ततः काञ्चनचित्राङ्गं वैदूर्यमणिवेदिकम् ।
कूटागारैः परिक्षिप्तं सर्वतो रजतप्रभम् ॥ २४ ॥
पाण्डुराभिः पताकाभिर्ध्वजैश्च समलंकृतम् ।
शोभितं काञ्चनैर्हर्म्यैर्हमपद्मविभूषितैः ॥ २५ ॥
प्रकीर्णं किङ्किणीजालैर्मुक्तामणिगवाक्षकम् ।
घण्टाजालैः परिक्षिप्तं सर्वतो मधुरस्वनम् ॥ २६ ॥

Requested in these words by Śrī Rāma, Vibhīṣaṇa, the ruler of ogres, for his part thereupon hastily invoked the presence of the aerial car, Puṣpaka, brilliant as the sun, whose parts were all made of gold and were picturesque, and seats made of cat’s-eye gems; which was full of attics and shone like silver on all sides; which was artistically decorated with whitish yellow pennons and flags with armorial bearings and graced with golden mansions adorned with lotuses of gold; which was hung with networks of tiny bells and contained eye-holes set with pearls and was surrounded on all sides with rows of bells giving forth a melodious sound. (23—26)

तं मेरुशिखराकारं निर्मितं विश्वकर्मणा ।
बृहद्भिभूषितं हर्म्यैर्मुक्तारजतशोभितैः ॥ २७ ॥
तलैः स्फटिकचित्राङ्गैर्वैदूर्यैश्च वरासनैः ।
महार्हास्तरणोपेतैरुपपन्नं महाधनैः ॥ २८ ॥
उपस्थितमनाधृष्यं तद् विमानं मनोजवम् ।
निवेदयित्वा रामाय तस्थौ तत्र विभीषणः ॥ २९ ॥

Announcing to Śrī Rāma that the said aerial car—which resembled a summit of Mount Meru (the golden mountain) and was the workmanship of Viśwakarmā (the architect of gods); which was graced with stately palaces decked with pearls and silver and provided with pavements in-laid with crystal and furnished with excellent and costly seats of cat's-eye gems upholstered with highly valuable coverings; and which could not be assailed and was swift as thought—was ready, Vibhiṣaṇa stood there awaiting Śrī Rāma's further command. (27—29)

तत् पुष्पकं कामगमं विमान-
मुपस्थितं भूधरसंनिकाशम् ।
दृष्ट्वा तदा विस्मयमाजगाम
रामः ससौमित्रिरुदारसत्त्वः ॥ ३० ॥

The lofty-minded Śrī Rāma with Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) felt astonished to see the aforesaid aerial car, Puṣpaka, which could go everywhere at will and closely resembled a mountain, present on that occasion. (30)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये युद्धकाण्डे एकविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १२१ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and twenty-one in the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वाविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः Canto CXXII

In obedience to the command of Śrī Rāma, Vibhīṣaṇa heaps special honours on the monkeys and taking Sugrīva, Vibhīṣaṇa and other monkeys with them, Śrī Rāma, Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa start on their aerial journey by Puṣpaka

उपस्थितं तु तं कृत्वा पुष्पकं पुष्पभूषितम् ।
अविदूरे स्थितो राममित्युवाच विभीषणः ॥ १ ॥

Having placed at hand the said aerial car, Puṣpaka, which was adorned with flowers, Vibhīṣaṇa for his part, standing not very far, submitted as follows to Śrī Rāma. (1)

स तु बद्धाञ्जलिपुटो विनीतो राक्षसेश्वरः ।
अब्रवीत् त्वरयोपेतः किं करोमीति राघवम् ॥ २ ॥

Full of reverence, the said ruler of ogres for his part humbly said with joined palms to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), “What shall I do next?” (2)

तमब्रवीन्महातेजा लक्ष्मणस्योपशृण्वतः ।
विमृश्य राघवो वाक्यमिदं स्नेहपुरस्कृतम् ॥ ३ ॥

After some deliberation, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), who was endowed with extraordinary energy, made the following affectionate reply to him, while Lakṣmaṇa listened: (3)

कृतप्रयत्नकर्माणः सर्व एव वनौकसः ।
रत्नैरर्थैश्च विविधैः सम्पूज्यन्तां विभीषण ॥ ४ ॥

“Let all the monkeys and bears (lit., denizens of the woods) without exception, who have fought diligently, be duly honoured with precious stones and riches of various kinds, O Vibhiṣaṇa! (4)

सहामीभिस्त्वया लङ्का निर्जिता राक्षसेश्वर ।
हृष्टैः प्राणभयं त्यक्त्वा संग्रामेष्वनिवर्तिभिः ॥ ५ ॥

“Laṅkā, O ruler of ogres, has been conquered by you in collaboration with these monkeys, who have never turned their back in conflicts and fought joyfully ignoring all risk to their life. (5)

त इमे कृतकर्माणः सर्व एव वनौकसः ।
धनरत्नप्रदानैश्च कर्मैषां सफलं कुरु ॥ ६ ॥

“All these monkeys (lit., denizens of the forest) without exception have accomplished their task. Reward their achievement with gifts of gold and precious stones. (6)

एवं सम्मानिताश्चैते नन्द्यमाना यथा त्वया ।
भविष्यन्ति कृतज्ञेन निर्वृता हरियूथपाः ॥ ७ ॥

“Highly honoured in this way and duly cheered by you, cognizant of their services, the commanders of monkey troops will feel happy. (7)

त्यागिनं संग्रहीतारं सानुक्रोशं जितेन्द्रियम् ।
सर्वे त्वामभिगच्छन्ति ततः सम्बोधयामि ते ॥ ८ ॥

“In the event of your doing so, all will recognize you to be munificent as well as the accumulator of wealth, full of kindness and one who has mastered his senses. Hence I admonish you in this behalf. (8)

हीनं रतिगुणैः सर्वैरभिहन्तारमाहवे ।
सेना त्यजति संविशा नृपतिं तं नरेश्वर ॥ ९ ॥

“Feeling disaffected, the army deserts that ruler of men, O king, who is devoid of all virtues evoking devotion, as one who brings about the destruction of so many lives on the field of battle for nothing.” (9)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण वानरांस्तान् विभीषणः ।
रत्नार्थसंविभागेन सर्वानेवाभ्यपूजयत् ॥ १० ॥

Admonished in these words by Śrī Rāma, Vibhiṣaṇa for his part honoured all the aforesaid monkeys by duly distributing precious stones and gold among them. (10)

ततस्तान् पूजितान् दृष्ट्वा रत्नार्थैर्हरियूथपान् ।
आरुरोह तदा रामस्तद् विमानमनुत्तमम् ॥ ११ ॥
अङ्गेनादाय वैदेहीं लज्जमानां मनस्विनीम् ।
लक्ष्मणेन सह भ्रात्रा विक्रान्तेन धनुष्मता ॥ १२ ॥

Seeing on that occasion all those commanders of monkey troops rewarded with precious stones and riches, Śrī Rāma then ascended that aerial car, which was unsurpassed in its manifold virtues, alongwith his younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa, a valiant archer, taking the high-souled princess of the Videha territory, who was feeling abashed in his arms. (11-12)

अब्रवीत् स विमानस्थः पूजयन् सर्ववानरान् ।
सुग्रीवं च महावीर्यं काकुत्स्थः सविभीषणम् ॥ १३ ॥

Bestowing attentions on all the monkeys as well as on Sugrīva, who was endowed with great valour, as also on Vibhiṣaṇa, while standing in the aerial car, that scion of Kakutstha, spoke as follows: (13)

मित्रकार्यं कृतमिदं भवद्भिर्वानरवर्षभाः ।
अनुज्ञाता मया सर्वे यथेष्टं प्रतिगच्छन्त ॥ १४ ॥

“This work of a friend has been accomplished by you, O jewels among the monkeys! Permitted by me, go you all where you will. (14)

यत् तु कार्यं वयस्येन स्निग्धेन च हितेन च ।
कृतं सुग्रीव तत् सर्वं भवताधर्मभीरुणा ॥ १५ ॥

“All that which ought to have been done by an affectionate and kindly-disposed friend has been done by you, O Sugrīva, loathsome as you are to unrighteousness.

(15)

किष्किन्धां प्रति याह्याशु स्वसैन्येनाभिसंवृतः ।

स्वराज्ये वस लङ्कायां मया दत्ते विभीषण ।

न त्वां धर्षयितुं शक्ताः सेन्द्रा अपि दिवौकसः ॥ १६ ॥

“Surrounded on all sides by your army, proceed to Kiṣkindhā at once. Settle down in your kingdom at Laṅkā conferred by me, O Vibhīṣaṇa! Even all the gods (lit., denizens of heaven) including Indra shall not be able to attack you.

(16)

अयोध्यां प्रति यास्यामि राजधानीं पितुर्मम ।

अभ्यनुज्ञातुमिच्छामि सर्वानामन्त्रयामि वः ॥ १७ ॥

“For myself I shall proceed to the seat of government of my father. As such I bid adieu to you and wish to take leave of you all.”

(17)

एवमुक्तास्तु रामेण हरीन्द्रा हरयस्तथा ।

ऊचुः प्राञ्जलयः सर्वे राक्षसश्च विभीषणः ॥ १८ ॥

Spoken to in these words by Śrī Rāma the monkey chiefs as well as all the monkeys as also the ogre Vibhīṣaṇa submitted as follows with joined palms:

(18)

अयोध्यां गन्तुमिच्छामः सर्वान् नयतु नो भवान् ।

मुद्युक्ता विचरिष्यामो वनान्युपवनानि च ॥ १९ ॥

“We desire to proceed to Ayodhyā; pray take us with you. Full of joy we shall range the groves and gardens there.

(19)

दृष्ट्वा त्वामभिषेकार्द्रं कौसल्यामभिवान् च ।

अचिरादागमिष्यामः स्वगृहान् नृपसत्तम ॥ २० ॥

“Seeing you drenched with ablution at the time of coronation and greeting mother Kausalyā, we shall return to our homes without delay, O jewel among the protectors of men.”

(20)

एवमुक्तस्तु धर्मात्मा वानरैः सविभीषणैः ।

अब्रवीद् वानरान् रामः ससुग्रीवविभीषणान् ॥ २१ ॥

Requested thus by the monkeys as well as by Vibhīṣaṇa, Śrī Rāma for his part, whose mind was set on virtue, spoke as follows to the monkeys including Sugrīva, as well as to Vibhīṣaṇa:

(21)

प्रियात् प्रियतरं लब्धं यदहं ससुहृज्जनः ।

सर्वैर्भवद्भिः सहितः प्रीतिं लप्स्ये पुरीं गतः ॥ २२ ॥

“Something more agreeable than everything agreeable will be achieved by me if I reach Ayodhyā with the host of my friends, viz., you all. I shall thereby feel delighted with my near and dear ones, Bharata and others.

(22)

क्षिप्रमारोह सुग्रीव विमानं सह वानरैः ।

त्वमप्यारोह सामात्यो राक्षसेन्द्र विभीषण ॥ २३ ॥

“Mount the aerial car with the other monkeys at once, O Sugrīva! Mount you too with your ministers, O Vibhīṣaṇa, ruler of ogres!”

(23)

ततः स पुष्पकं दिव्यं सुग्रीवः सह वानरैः ।

आरुरोह मुदा युक्तः सामात्यश्च विभीषणः ॥ २४ ॥

Full of joy, the said Sugrīva thereupon ascended the heavenly car, Puṣpaka, with the other monkeys, as well as Vibhīṣaṇa accompanied by his ministers.

(24)

तेष्वारूढेषु सर्वेषु कौबेरं परमासनम् ।

राघवेणाभ्यनुज्ञातमुत्पपात विहायसम् ॥ २५ ॥

Duly permitted by Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), when they had all taken their seat in it, the excellent aerial car of Kubera, the god of riches, rose into the air.

(25)

खगतेन विमानेन हंसयुक्तेन भास्वता ।

प्रहृष्टश्च प्रतीतश्च बभौ रामः कुबेरवत् ॥ २६ ॥

Feeling greatly thrilled and delighted while travelling in the splendid aerial car, which was now coursing through the air and was provided with the image of a swan (as though yoked to the car), Śrī Rāma shone like Kubera, the god of riches.

(26)

ते सर्वे वानरर्क्षाश्च राक्षसाश्च महाबलाः ।

यथासुखमसम्बद्धं दिव्ये तस्मिन्नुपाविशन् ॥ २७ ॥

All the aforesaid monkeys and bears as well as the ogres, who were endowed with extraordinary might, comfortably took their seats in that heavenly car without causing any obstruction to others. (27)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये युद्धकाण्डे द्वाविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १२२ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and twenty-two in the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रयोविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXXIII

In the course of their flight to Ayodhyā, Śrī Rāma shows to Sītā the places over which they were flying

अनुज्ञातं तु रामेण तद् विमानमनुत्तमम् ।
हंसयुक्तं महानादमुत्पपात विहायसम् ॥ १ ॥

Permitted by Śrī Rāma, that aerial car, which was unsurpassed in its manifold virtues and was provided (in the front) with the image of a swan, flew through the air with a great noise. (1)

पातयित्वा ततश्चक्षुः सर्वतो रघुनन्दनः ।
अब्रवीन्मैथिलीं सीतां रामः शशिनिभाननाम् ॥ २ ॥

Casting his glance all round, Śrī Rāma, the delight of the Raghus, thereupon spoke as follows to Sītā, who had a moon-like countenance: (2)

कैलासशिखराकारे त्रिकूटशिखरे स्थिताम् ।
लङ्कामीक्षस्व वैदेहि निर्मितां विश्वकर्मणा ॥ ३ ॥

“Survey the city of Lāṅkā perched on a summit of the Trikūṭa mountain, resembling a peak of Mount Kailāsa, and built by Viśvakarmā (the architect of gods), O princess of the Videha territory! (3)

एतदायोधनं पश्य मांसशोणितकर्दमम् ।
हरीणां राक्षसानां च सीते विशसनं महत् ॥ ४ ॥

“Behold the yonder field of battle covered with a mire of flesh and blood, the scene of carnage of monkeys and ogres, O Sītā!
(4)

एष दत्तवरः शेते प्रमाथी राक्षसेश्वरः ।
तव हेतोर्विशालाक्षि निहतो रावणो मया ॥ ५ ॥

“Here lies the deceased ruler of ogres, who was given to torturing the people and on whom a boon of invincibility had been conferred by Brahmā. Rāvaṇa was made short work of by me on your account, O large-eyed one! (5)

कुम्भकर्णोऽत्र निहतः प्रहस्तश्च निशाचरः ।
धूम्राक्षश्चात्र निहतो वानरेण हनूमता ॥ ६ ॥

“Here was Kumbhakarna killed (by me) and the ogre Prahasta, by Nila. And here was Dhūmrākṣa dispatched by Hanumān, the monkey chief. (6)

विद्युन्माली हतश्चात्र सुषेणेन महात्मना ।
लक्ष्मणेनेन्द्रजिच्चात्र रावणिर्निहतो रणे ॥ ७ ॥

“Nay, here was Vidyunmālī disposed of by the high-souled Suṣeṇa, and here was Indrajit, the eldest son of Rāvaṇa, killed in action by Lakṣmaṇa. (7)

अङ्गदेनात्र निहतो विकटो नाम राक्षसः ।
विरूपाक्षश्च दुष्टेक्षो महापार्श्वमहोदरौ ॥ ८ ॥

“Here was the ogre, Vikaṭa by name, struck down by Aṅgada and Virūpākṣa,
who was difficult even to look at, by Sugriva, and, even so, Mahāpārśwa by Ṛṣabha and Mahodara by Nila. (8)

अकम्पनश्च निहतो बलिनोऽन्ये च राक्षसाः ।
त्रिशिराश्चातिकायश्च देवान्तकनरान्तकौ ॥ १॥

“Akampana too was made short work of here by Hanumān, as well as other mighty ogres, viz., Trīśīrā (by Hanumān) and Atikāya (by Lakṣmaṇa) as also Devāntaka (by Hanumān) and Narāntaka (by Aṅgada). (9)

युद्धोन्मत्तश्च मत्तश्च राक्षसप्रवरावुभौ ।
निकुम्भश्चैव कुम्भश्च कुम्भकर्णात्मजौ बली ॥ १० ॥
वज्रदंष्ट्रश्च दंष्ट्रश्च बहवो राक्षसा हताः ।
मकराक्षश्च दुर्धर्षो मया युधि निपातितः ॥ ११ ॥

“Nay, many other ogres were killed, such as Yuddhonmatta and Matta, the two jewels among the ogres, as also Nikumbha and Kumbha, the two mighty sons of Kumbhakarna (by Hanumān and Sugrīva respectively) and also Vajradanṣṭra and Danṣṭra (by Aṅgada). Again, Makarākṣa, who was so difficult to overpower, was struck down in combat by me. (10-11)

अकम्पनश्च निहतः शोणिताक्षश्च वीर्यवान् ।
यूपाक्षश्च प्रजङ्घश्च निहतौ तु महाहवे ॥ १२ ॥

“Again, Akampana was made short work of, as also the mighty Śoṇitākṣa (by Dvivida). Yūpākṣa and Prajaṅgha too for their part were disposed of in a major conflict (by Mainda and Aṅgada respectively). (12)

विद्युज्जिह्वोऽत्र निहतो राक्षसो भीमदर्शनः ।
यज्ञशत्रुश्च निहतः सुप्तघ्नश्च महाबलः ॥ १३ ॥

“Here was dispatched the ogre Vidyujjihva, who was dreadful to look at. Yajñaśatru too was made short work of as also Suptaghna, who was endowed with extraordinary might. (13)

सूर्यशत्रुश्च निहतो ब्रह्मशत्रुस्तथापरः ।
अत्र मन्दोदरी नाम भार्या तं पर्यदेवयत् ॥ १४ ॥
सपत्नीनां सहस्रेण साग्रेण परिवारिता ।
एतत् तु दृश्यते तीर्थं समुद्रस्य वरानने ॥ १५ ॥
यत्र सागरमुत्तीर्य तां रात्रिमुषिता वयम् ।
एष सेतुर्मया बद्धः सागरे लवणार्णवे ॥ १६ ॥

तव हेतोर्विशालाक्षि नलसेतुः सुदुष्करः ।
पश्य सागरमक्षोभ्यं वैदेहि वरुणालयम् ॥ १७ ॥
अपारमिव गर्जन्तं शङ्खशुक्तिसमाकुलम् ।
हिरण्यनाभं शैलेन्द्रं काञ्चनं पश्य मैथिलि ॥ १८ ॥
विश्रमार्थं हनुमतो भित्त्वा सागरमुत्थितम् ।
एतत् कुक्षौ समुद्रस्य स्कन्धावारनिवेशनम् ॥ १९ ॥
अत्र पूर्वं महादेवः प्रसादमकरोद् विभुः ।
एतत् तु दृश्यते तीर्थं सागरस्य महात्मनः ॥ २० ॥
सेतुबन्ध इति ख्यातं त्रैलोक्येन च पूजितम् ।
एतत् पवित्रं परमं महापातकनाशनम् ॥ २१ ॥
अत्र राक्षसराजोऽयमाजगाम विभीषणः ।
एषा सा दृश्यते सीते किष्किन्धा चित्रकानना ॥ २२ ॥
सुग्रीवस्य पुरी रम्या यत्र वाली मया हतः ।
अथ दृष्ट्वा पुरीं सीता किष्किन्धां वालिपालिताम् ॥ २३ ॥
अब्रवीत् प्रश्रितं वाक्यं रामं प्रणयसाध्वसा ।
सुग्रीवप्रियभार्याभिस्ताराप्रमुखतो नृप ॥ २४ ॥
अन्येषां वानरेन्द्राणां स्त्रीभिः परिवृता ह्यहम् ।
गन्तुमिच्छे सहायोध्यां राजधानीं त्वया सह ॥ २५ ॥

“Sūryaśatru was also struck down here as also another ogre, Brahmaśatru. Surrounded by more than a thousand of her co-wives, here did Rāvaṇa's principal consort, Mandodarī by name, lament for him. Here is seen the landing-place on the seashore, where, having crossed the ocean, we spent that night O lovely lady; Here is the bridge called Nala-setu (so called because it was constructed by the monkey chief Nala), which was so difficult to execute for others, caused to be thrown over the salt sea by me on your account, O large-eyed lady! Behold, O princess of the Videha territory, the roaring, imperturbable and seemingly boundless ocean, the abode of Varuṇa (the god of waters), which is teeming with conchs and Oyster-shells. See, O princess of Mithilā, the golden mountain Maināka (the ruler of mountains), which has ores of gold in its cavities, and which rose the other day cleaving the ocean in order to provide rest to Hanumān. Here lies the island in the heart of the ocean, where my troops were stationed before their crossing over the Laṅkā. On this very spot did the all-pervading Lord Śiva (the Supreme Deity) bestow His grace on me by appearing in the form of a Liṅga and accepting my worship as Lord Rāmeśwara before the construction of this bridge. Here on the shore of the gigantic ocean can be seen the sacred spot which will be known by the name of Setubandha where the construction of the well-known bridge was commenced and will be adored in all the three worlds. This spot will be held as supremely sacred and will be capable of washing away major sins. At this very spot did this king of ogres, Vibhīṣaṇa, make his appearance for the first time. Here is seen, O Sītā, the delightful city of Sugrīva, Kiṣkindhā, which is full of lovely woods, where Vālī, the elder brother of Sugrīva, was killed by me.” Seeing the city of Kiṣkindhā, (once) protected by Vālī, Sītā, who was feeling timid through love, forthwith addressed to him the following humble submission: “Really speaking I wish to reach Ayodhyā, your future seat of government, in your company, accompanied by the beloved consorts of Sugrīva, with Tārā at their head, as well as by the wives of other monkey chiefs too, O ruler of men!” (14—25)

एवमुक्तोऽथ वैदेह्या राघवः प्रत्युवाच ताम् ।
 एवमस्त्विति किष्किन्धां प्राप्य संस्थाप्य राघवः ॥ २६ ॥
 विमानं प्रेक्ष्य सुग्रीवं वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ।
 ब्रूहि वानरशार्दूल सर्वान् वानरपुङ्गवान् ॥ २७ ॥
 स्त्रीभिः परिवृताः सर्वे ह्ययोध्यां यान्तु सीतया ।
 तथा त्वमपि सर्वाभिः स्त्रीभिः सह महाबल ॥ २८ ॥
 अभित्वरय सुग्रीव गच्छामः प्लवगाधिप ।
 एवमुक्तस्तु सुग्रीवो रामेणामिततेजसा ॥ २९ ॥
 वानराधिपतिः श्रीमांस्तैश्च सर्वैः समावृतः ।
 प्रविश्यान्तःपुरं शीघ्रं तारामुद्वीक्ष्य सोऽब्रवीत् ॥ ३० ॥

Spoken to in these words by Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) forthwith said to her in reply,

“Amen!” Reaching Kiṣkindhā, (nay) causing the aerial car to halt, and looking intently on Sugrīva, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), they say, spoke as follows: “Instruct, O jewel among the monkeys, all the monkey chiefs in the following words: ‘Followed by your wives, you should unhesitatingly proceed to Ayodhyā with Sītā!’ And you too should likewise do the same alongwith all your consorts, O monkey endowed with extraordinary might! Make haste, Sugrīva, so that we may be able to depart soon, O suzerain lord of monkeys!” Surrounded by all the aforesaid monkeys, nay, quickly penetrating into his gynaeceum and looking up at Tārā, when admonished in these words by Śrī Rāma, who was endowed with immeasurable energy, that glorious and suzerain lord of monkeys, Sugrīva, for his part spoke to her as follows: (26—30)

प्रिये त्वं सह नारीभिर्वानराणां महात्मनाम् ।
 राघवेणाभ्यनुज्ञाता मैथिलीप्रियकाम्यया ॥ ३१ ॥

“You have, my darling, been duly permitted by Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, to proceed to Ayodhyā in the company of the wives of the high-souled monkeys with intent to gratify Sītā, a princess of Mithilā. (31)

त्वर त्वमभिगच्छामो गृह्य वानरयोषितः ।
 अयोध्यां दर्शयिष्यामः सर्वा दशरथस्त्रियः ॥ ३२ ॥

“As such hasten you to depart. Taking the wives of the monkeys we shall proceed on our journey through the air and shall show you Ayodhyā and all the consorts of Emperor Daśaratha.” (32)

सुग्रीवस्य वचः श्रुत्वा तारा सर्वाङ्गशोभना ।
 आहूय चाब्रवीत् सर्वा वानराणां तु योषितः ॥ ३३ ॥

Hearing the admonition of Sugrīva, and summoning the wives of all the monkeys, Tārā for her part, who was charming of every limb, spoke to them all as follows: (33)

सुग्रीवेणाभ्यनुज्ञाता गन्तुं सर्वैश्च वानरैः ।
 मम चापि प्रियं कार्यमयोध्यादर्शनेन च ॥ ३४ ॥

“Duly permitted by King Sugrīva, hasten to proceed to Ayodhyā with all the monkeys (your spouses). Nay, a kindly act will also be undoubtedly done to me by you through the sight of Ayodhyā which is so dear to me. (34)

प्रवेशं चैव रामस्य पौरजानपदैः सह।
विभूतिं चैव सर्वासां स्त्रीणां दशरथस्य च ॥ ३५ ॥

“We shall also witness the entry of Śrī Rāma into Ayodhyā alongwith the people of that city as well as of the outlying countryside, as also the affluence of all the widows of Emperor Daśaratha.” (35)

तारया चाभ्यनुज्ञाताः सर्वा वानरयोषितः।
नेपथ्यविधिपूर्वं तु कृत्वा चापि प्रदक्षिणम् ॥ ३६ ॥
अध्यारोहन् विमानं तत् सीतादर्शनकाङ्क्षया।
ताभिः सहोत्थितं शीघ्रं विमानं प्रेक्ष्य राघवः ॥ ३७ ॥
ऋष्यमूकसमीपे तु वैदेहीं पुनरब्रवीत्।
दृश्यतेऽसौ महान् सीते सविद्युदिव तोयदः ॥ ३८ ॥
ऋष्यमूको गिरिवरः काञ्चनैर्धातुभिर्वृतः।
अत्राहं वानरेन्द्रेण सुग्रीवेण समागतः ॥ ३९ ॥
समयश्च कृतः सीते वधार्थं वालिनो मया।
एषा सा दृश्यते पम्पा नलिनी चित्रकानना ॥ ४० ॥
त्वया विहीनो यत्राहं विललाप सुदुःखितः।
अस्यास्तीरे मया दृष्टा शबरी धर्मचारिणी ॥ ४१ ॥
अत्र योजनबाहुश्च कबन्धो निहतो मया।
दृश्यतेऽसौ जनस्थाने श्रीमान् सीते वनस्पतिः ॥ ४२ ॥
जटायुश्च महातेजास्तव हेतोर्विलासिनि।
रावणेन हतो यत्र पक्षिणां प्रवरो बली ॥ ४३ ॥

Also going round that aerial car clockwise (as a mark of respect) when duly permitted by Queen Tārā, after decorating themselves, all the wives of the monkeys for their part* ascended it with a desire to have a look at Sītā. Perceiving the aerial car risen (in the air) in no time with the aforesaid women (who had taken their seats in it), Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for his part spoke once more to Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) in the vicinity of Mount R̥ṣyamūka: “There is seen, O Sītā, Mount R̥ṣyamūka, the foremost of mountains, covered by veins of golden minerals and as such resembling a huge cloud accompanied by flashes of lightning. Here did I come in contact with Sugrīva, who is now the ruler of monkeys, and an agreement was made by me to make short work of his elder brother, Vālī, O Sītā! Here is seen the well-known Pampā lake, abounding in lotuses and hemmed in with lovely woods, on the brink of which I lamented, sore afflicted as I was, having been separated from you. On the strand of this lake was Śabari, who was practising virtue, seen by me. And here was killed by me the demon Kabandha, whose arms were eight miles long. And over there is seen in Janasthāna, O Sītā, that magnificent tree under which the mighty vulture, Jaṭāyu, the foremost of birds, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, was dispatched by Rāvaṇa on your account, O sportive lady! (36—43)

खरश्च निहतो यत्र दूषणश्च निपातितः।
त्रिशिराश्च महावीर्यो मया बाणैरजिह्वगैः ॥ ४४ ॥

And there is the region known by the name of Pañcavaṭī, so called because it consisted of five banyan trees, where the ogre Khara (a half-brother of Rāvaṇa) was disposed of by me with straight-going arrows, as well as his brothers, Dūṣaṇa and Trīśirā, the latter of whom was endowed with extraordinary prowess. (44)

एतत् तदाश्रमपदमस्माकं वरवर्णिनि।
पर्णशाला तथा चित्रा दृश्यते शुभदर्शने ॥ ४५ ॥
यत्र त्वं राक्षसेन्द्रेण रावणेन हता बलात्।
एषा गोदावरी रम्या प्रसन्नसलिला शुभा ॥ ४६ ॥

* According to one of the well-known commentators of the Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the party travelling in the aerial car, Puṣpaka, halted at Kiṣkindhā for a day. According to the testimony of the Mahābhārata (vide III. CCXCI. 58-59), Śrī Rāma caused Aṅgada to be formally installed as the Prince Regent of Kiṣkindhā that day.

अगस्त्यस्याश्रमश्चैव दृश्यते कदलीवृतः ।
दीप्तश्चैवाश्रमे ह्येष सुतीक्ष्णस्य महात्मनः ॥ ४७ ॥

“Here is the well-known site of our hermitage, O lady of excellent complexion, and here is seen the enchanting hut of leaves, O lady of brilliant looks whence you were forcibly borne away by Rāvaṇa the king of ogres. Here is the delightful and charming river Godāvarī carrying limpid waters. And here is also seen the hermitage of Sage Agastya, surrounded with plantains. Nay, here indeed is the glorious hermitage of the high-souled Sage Sutikṣṇa, disciple of Sage Agastya. (45—47)

दृश्यते चैव वैदेहि शरभङ्गाश्रमो महान् ।
उपयातः सहस्राक्षो यत्र शक्रः पुरंदरः ॥ ४८ ॥

“Again, there is also seen, O Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), the spacious hermitage of Sage Śarabhaṅga, where came the thousand-eyed Indra, the destroyer of citadels. (48)

अस्मिन् देशे महाकायो विराधो निहतो मया ।
एते ते तापसा देवि दृश्यन्ते तनुमध्यमे ॥ ४९ ॥
अत्रिः कुलपतिर्यत्र सूर्यवैश्वानरोपमः ।
अत्र सीते त्वया दृष्टा तापसी धर्मचारिणी ॥ ५० ॥

“In this region was the gigantic Virādha killed by me. Here are seen, O lady with a slender-waist, the ascetics belonging to the same hermitage where lives as the head of the hermitage Sage Atri, who vies with the sun and fire in brilliance. In this hermitage, O Sītā, was seen by you the ascetic lady, Anasūyā, wife of Sage Atri, who is given to the practice of virtue. (49-50)

असौ सुतनु शैलेन्द्रश्चित्रकूटः प्रकाशते ।
अत्र मां कैकयीपुत्रः प्रसादयितुमागतः ॥ ५१ ॥

“There shines forth, O lady of charming limbs, Citrakūṭa, the lord of mountains. Here came Bharata (son of Kaikeyī) to seek my favour in the form of my consent to return to Ayodhyā. (51)

एषा सा यमुना रम्या दृश्यते चित्रकानना ।
भरद्वाजाश्रमः श्रीमान् दृश्यते चैष मैथिलि ॥ ५२ ॥

“Here is seen the delightful Yamunā, which is hemmed in with lovely woods. The glorious hermitage of Sage Bharadwāja is also seen here, O princess of Mithilā! (52)

इयं च दृश्यते गङ्गा पुण्या त्रिपथगा नदी ।
नानाद्विजगणाकीर्णा सम्प्रपुष्पितकानना ॥ ५३ ॥

“Here is also seen the holy river, Gaṅgā, which wends its way through the three worlds, viz., heaven, the earth and the subterranean world, nay, whose banks are crowded with flocks of birds of every species, and which is lined with woods in full blossom. (53)

शृङ्गवेरपुरं चैतद् गुहो यत्र सखा मम ।
एषा सा दृश्यते सीते सरयूर्यूपमालिनी ॥ ५४ ॥

“Again, here is the town of Śṛṅgaverapura, where dwells my friend, Guha. Here is seen, O Sītā, the river Sarayū, lined with rows of sacrificial posts (the relics of sacrifices performed from time to time by kings of the Ikṣvāku dynasty). (54)

एषा सा दृश्यते सीते राजधानी पितुर्मम ।
अयोध्यां कुरु वैदेहि प्रणामं पुनरागता ॥ ५५ ॥

“Here is seen, O Sītā, the well-known seat of government of my deceased father, Emperor Daśaratha. Having duly returned after a long time offer respectful salutations to Ayodhyā.” (55)

ततस्ते वानराः सर्वे राक्षसाः सविभीषणाः ।
उत्पत्योत्पत्य संहृष्टास्तां पुरीं ददृशुस्तदा ॥ ५६ ॥

Bounding again and again to have a view of it and feeling greatly delighted, all the aforesaid monkeys and ogres, including Vibhiṣaṇa, thereupon beheld that city on that occasion. (56)

ततस्तु तां पाण्डुरहर्म्यमालिनीं
 विशालकक्ष्यां गजवाजिभिर्वृताम् ।
 पुरीमपश्यन् प्लवगाः सराक्षसाः
 पुरीं महेन्द्रस्य यथामरावतीम् ॥ ५७ ॥
 Thereupon did the monkeys for their part alongwith the ogres survey that city, which was adorned with rows of yellowish white mansions, intersected with wide streets and crowded with elephants and horses, which vied with Amarāvati, the city of the mighty Indra, the ruler of heaven. (57)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये युद्धकाण्डे त्रयोविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १२३ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and twenty-three in the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्विंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXXIV

Landing the aerial car at the hermitage of Sage Bharadwāja, Śrī Rāma sees the great Ṛṣi and receives boons from him

पूर्णे चतुर्दशे वर्षे पञ्चम्यां लक्ष्मणाग्रजः ।
 भरद्वाजाश्रमं प्राप्य ववन्दे नियतो मुनिम् ॥ १ ॥

Reaching the hermitage of Sage Bharadwāja on the fifth day (of the bright half) of the lunar month of Āświna (roughly corresponding to the month of September) when the fourteenth year of his exile had been completed, Śrī Rāma, the eldest brother of Lakṣmaṇa), who was disciplined even now, bowed down to the anchorite.
 (1)

सोऽपृच्छदभिवाद्यैनं भरद्वाजं तपोधनम् ।
 शृणोषि कच्चिद् भगवन् सुभिक्षानामयं पुरे ।
 कच्चित् स युक्तो भरतो जीवन्त्यपि च मातरः ॥ २ ॥

Having greeted the aforesaid Bharadwāja, who had asceticism for his sole possession, he enquired of him: "Have you heard, O glorious sage, that there has been a good harvest and there is absence of disease in the city, Ayodhyā? I hope Bharata is still active in ruling over the people and my mothers still survive?"
 (2)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण भरद्वाजो महामुनिः ।
 प्रत्युवाच रघुश्रेष्ठं स्मितपूर्वं प्रहृष्टवत् ॥ ३ ॥

Questioned by Śrī Rāma in the foregoing words, the great Sage,
 Bharadwāja, smilingly replied as follows to Śrī Rāma (the foremost of the Raghus) like one greatly rejoiced: (3)

आज्ञावशत्वे भरतो जटिलस्त्वां प्रतीक्षते ।
 पादुके ते पुरस्कृत्य सर्वं च कुशलं गृहे ॥ ४ ॥

"Wearing matted locks on his head and placing your wooden sandals constantly before him, Bharata, who is steadfast in obedience to your commands, expects you back every moment. Nay, all is well at your home as well as in the city. (4)

त्वां पुरा चीरवसनं प्रविशन्तं महावनम् ।
 स्त्रीतृतीयं च्युतं राज्याद् धर्मकामं च केवलम् ॥ ५ ॥
 पदातिं त्यक्तसर्वस्वं पितृनिर्देशकारिणम् ।
 सर्वभोगैः परित्यक्तं स्वर्गच्युतमिवामरम् ॥ ६ ॥
 दृष्ट्वा तु करुणापूर्वं ममासीत् समितिंजय ।
 कैकेयीवचने युक्तं वन्यमूलफलाशिनम् ॥ ७ ॥

"Pity actually arose in my mind last time, O prince, who are ever victorious in combat, on seeing you penetrating deep into the forest on foot before with the sole desire of practising virtue, clad in pieces of bark, disinherited from sovereignty and deprived of all enjoyments like an immortal fallen from heaven, having renounced all your possessions, with your spouse, Sītā, as the third (of your party besides Lakṣmaṇa and yourself), bent as you were on carrying out the behest of your father and intent on implementing the pledge given by your father to Kaikeyī, and living on wild roots and fruits. (5—7)

साम्प्रतं तु समृद्धार्थं समित्रगणबान्धवम्।
समीक्ष्य विजितारिं च ममाभूत् प्रीतिरुत्तमा ॥ ८ ॥

“Supreme joy is, however, being experienced by me now on perceiving you fully accomplished of purpose, now that you have completely conquered your enemies, and are accompanied by hosts of your friends and near and dear ones, viz., your consort and younger brother, Lakṣmaṇa. (8)

सर्वं च सुखदुःखं ते विदितं मम राघव।
यत् त्वया विपुलं प्राप्तं जनस्थाननिवासिना ॥ ९ ॥

“Nay, all your joy and sorrow that was experienced by you in abundance while sojourning in the forest of Janasthāna is known to me, O Rāma (a scion of Raghu)! (9)

ब्राह्मणार्थे नियुक्तस्य रक्षतः सर्वतापसान्।
रावणेन हता भार्या बभूवेयमनिन्दिता ॥ १० ॥

“This irreproachable consort of yours was borne away by Rāvaṇa while you were busy protecting all the ascetics, who were carrying on their austerities in that area, entrusted as you were by the will of Providence with the work of safe-guarding the interests of the Brāhmaṇas. (10)

मारीचदर्शनं चैव सीतोन्मथनमेव च।
कबन्धदर्शनं चैव पम्पाभिगमनं तथा ॥ ११ ॥

सुग्रीवेण च ते सख्यं यत्र वाली हतस्त्वया।
मार्गणं चैव वैदेह्याः कर्म वातात्मजस्य च ॥ १२ ॥
विदितायां च वैदेह्यां नलसेतुर्यथा कृतः।
यथा चादीपिता लङ्का प्रहृष्टैरियूथपैः ॥ १३ ॥
सपुत्रबान्धवामात्यः सबलः सहवाहनः।
यथा च निहतः संख्ये रावणो बलदर्पितः ॥ १४ ॥
यथा च निहते तस्मिन् रावणे देवकण्ठके।
समागमश्च त्रिदशैर्यथा दत्तश्च ते वरः ॥ १५ ॥
सर्वं ममैतद् विदितं तपसा धर्मवत्सल।
सम्पतन्ति च मे शिष्याः प्रवृत्त्याख्याः पुरीमितः ॥ १६ ॥

“Nay, even the appearance of Mārīca as well as the abduction of Sītā by Rāvaṇa as also the sight of Kabandha and, even so, your arrival at the Pampā lake, again, your alliance with Sugrīva in pursuance of which his elder brother, Vālī was killed by you, also the quest for Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) and the exploit in the form of leaping across the sea by Hanumān, son of the wind-god, again, how on the said princess of the Videha territory having been traced, a bridge was constructed over the sea by the monkey chief, Nala, and how Laṅkā was set fire to by the commanders of monkey troops, who felt greatly rejoiced over the fall of Indrajit and how Rāvaṇa, who was elated with pride of his might, was killed in combat with his sons, kinsfolk and ministers as well as with his army and mounts, again your meeting with the gods on the aforesaid Rāvaṇa, who was a thorn in the side of gods, having been made short work of, and how boons were conferred on you by them—all this is known to me by virtue of my asceticism, O lover of virtue! Nay, my disciples, who communicate to me tidings relating to Ayodhyā, repair in a body now and then from this place to the city. (11—16)

अहमप्यत्र ते दन्नि वरं शस्त्रभृतां वर।
अर्घ्यं प्रतिगृहाणेदमयोध्यां श्वो गमिष्यसि ॥ १७ ॥

“I, too, hereby confer a boon on you, O jewel among those who bear weapons on their person! Pray, accept this offering of water to wash your hands with. You shall go to Ayodhyā tomorrow.” (17)

तस्य तच्छिरसा वाक्यं प्रतिगृह्य नृपात्मजः ।

बाढमित्येव संहृष्टः श्रीमान् वरमयाचत ॥ १८ ॥

Bowing to his aforesaid command with his head bent low, highly pleased as he was, and saying “Amen!”, the glorious prince, Śrī Rāma, asked of him the following boon: (18)

अकालफलिनो वृक्षाः सर्वे चापि मधुस्रवाः ।

फलान्यमृतगन्धीनि बहूनि विविधानि च ॥ १९ ॥

भवन्तु मार्गे भगवन्नयोध्यां प्रति गच्छतः ।

तथेति च प्रतिज्ञाते वचनात् समनन्तरम् ॥ २० ॥

अभवन् पादपास्तत्र स्वर्गपादपसंनिभाः ।

निष्फलाः फलिनश्चासन् विपुष्पाः पुष्पशालिनः ॥ २१ ॥

“Let all the trees on the way, even as I fly to Ayodhyā, bear fruits and flow with honey and let abundant fruits of various kinds, emitting the fragrance of nectar, appear on them, O venerable Sir!” Immediately after his consent, once it was given in the words “Be it so!”, all the trees in that region grew to be closely similar to heavenly trees in their virtues. For three Yojanas (twenty-four miles) on all sides, in the interest of those travelling to Ayodhyā, trees that no longer bore fruit were laden with fruit; those which had even ceased to blossom, looked charming with blossom again. (19—21)

शुष्काः समग्रपत्रास्ते नगाश्चैव मधुस्रवाः ।

सर्वतो योजनास्तिस्त्रो गच्छतामभवंस्तदा ॥ २२ ॥

Trees that had withered were fully clothed with foliage once more and further began to flow with honey on that occasion. (22)

ततः प्रहृष्टाः प्लवगर्षभास्ते

बहूनि दिव्यानि फलानि चैव ।

कामादुपाश्रयन्ति

सहस्रशस्ते

मुदान्विताः स्वर्गजितो यथैव ॥ २३ ॥

Leaping down from the aerial car on reaching the outskirts of Ayodhyā, highly rejoiced and full of joy even as those who had won their place in heaven, the aforesaid jewels among the monkeys in their thousands thereupon feasted at will on the numerous ethereal fruits. (23)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये युद्धकाण्डे चतुर्विंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १२४ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and twenty-four in the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXXV

Preceding Śrī Rāma to Śṛṅgaverapura and Nandigrāma, Hanumān apprises Guha and Bharata of Śrī Rāma’s impending return soon and Bharata offers him a number of valuable gifts in recompense for the delightful news

अयोध्यां तु समालोक्य चिन्तयामास राघवः ।

प्रियकामः प्रियं रामस्ततस्त्वरितविक्रमः ॥ १ ॥

Gazing on Ayodhyā while still in the air, before landing at the hermitage of Bharadwāja, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) for his part, who wished to do a kindly act, and who was quick in exhibiting prowess, contemplated thereupon to do a kindly act to his friends, Sugrīva and others, as well as to the people of Ayodhya. (1)

चिन्तयित्वा ततो दृष्टिं वानरेषु न्यपातयत्।
उवाच धीमांस्तेजस्वी हनूमन्तं प्लवंगमम्॥ २ ॥

Taxing his brain awhile, the sagacious and glorious prince then cast his glance on the monkeys and spoke as follows to the monkey chief, Hanumān: (2)

अयोध्यां त्वरितो गत्वा शीघ्रं प्लवगसत्तम।
जानीहि कच्चित् कुशली जनो नृपतिमन्दिरे॥ ३ ॥

“Moving with all speed to Ayodhyā, O jewel among the monkeys, quickly find out if people in the royal palace are happy. (3)

शृङ्गवेरपुरं प्राप्य गुहं गहनगोचरम्।
निषादाधिपतिं ब्रूहि कुशलं वचनान्मम॥ ४ ॥

“Reaching Śṛṅgaverapura earlier, communicate in my name my welfare to Guha, the suzerain lord of the Niṣādas,* who dwells in the woods. (4)

श्रुत्वा तु मां कुशलिनमरोगं विगतज्वरम्।
भविष्यति गुहः प्रीतः स ममात्मसमः सखा॥ ५ ॥

“Guha will feel actually delighted to hear of me as being safe and sound and free from anxiety. He is my friend, as good as my own self. (5)

अयोध्यायाश्च ते मार्गं प्रवृत्तिं भरतस्य च।
निवेदयिष्यति प्रीतो निषादाधिपतिर्गुहः॥ ६ ॥

“Feeling pleased, Guha, the suzerain lord of the Niṣādas, will tell you the way to Ayodhyā as well as the news about Bharata. (6)

भरतस्तु त्वया वाच्यः कुशलं वचनान्मम।
सिद्धार्थं शंस मां तस्मै सभार्य सहलक्ष्मणम्॥ ७ ॥

“Bharata, too, should be asked by you of his welfare in my name. Nay, speak to him of me as having returned accomplished of purpose with my wife and Lakṣmaṇa. (7)

हरणं चापि वैदेह्या रावणेन बलीयसा।
सुग्रीवेण च संवादं वालिनश्च वधं रणे॥ ८ ॥
मैथिल्यन्वेषणं चैव यथा चाधिगता त्वया।
लङ्घयित्वा महातोयमापगापतिमव्ययम्॥ ९ ॥

“Nay, also speak to him of abduction of Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory) by the exceedingly mighty Rāvaṇa as also of my conversation with Sugrīva and the destruction by me of his elder brother, Vālī, on the field of battle, as well as of the search conducted by Sugrīva for Sītā (a princess of Mithilā) and mention to him how she was traced out by you after leaping across the never-diminishing sea (the lord of rivers) and consisting of a vast expanse of water. (8-9)

उपयानं समुद्रस्य सागरस्य च दर्शनम्।
यथा च कारितः सेतू रावणश्च यथा हतः॥ १० ॥

“Also tell him of my going near the ocean and the appearance of the Ocean and also how a bridge was thrown over it and how Rāvaṇa was ultimately killed. (10)

वरदानं महेन्द्रेण ब्रह्मणा वरुणेन च।
महादेवप्रसादाच्च पित्रा मम समागमम्॥ ११ ॥

“Further tell him of bestowal on me of boons by the mighty Indra, the ruler of gods, Brahmā (the creator) and Varuṇa, the god of waters, and of my meeting with my deceased father in an ethereal form through the grace of Lord Śiva, the Supreme Deity. (11)

उपयातं च मां सौम्य भरताय निवेदय।
सह राक्षसराजेन हरीणामीश्वरेण च॥ १२ ॥

“Also speak to Bharata of me as having arrived near Ayodhyā with Vibhiṣaṇa, the king of ogres and Sugrīva, the ruler of monkeys, O gentle one! (12)

* A caste believed to have originated from a Śūdra mother through a Brāhmaṇa father and as such regarded as low.

जित्वा शत्रुगणान् रामः प्राप्य चानुत्तमं यशः ।

उपायाति समृद्धार्थः सह मित्रैर्महाबलैः ॥ १३ ॥

“Say to him, ‘Having conquered the hosts of enemies and won unsurpassed glory, his purpose thus accomplished, Rāma has arrived near with other friends endowed with extraordinary might.’ (13)

एतच्छ्रुत्वा यमाकारं भजते भरतस्ततः ।

स च ते वेदितव्यः स्यात् सर्वं यच्चापि मां प्रति ॥ १४ ॥

“Nay, the expression which Bharata wears on his face on hearing this news should also then be observed by you as also all what he intends to do in relation to me. (14)

ज्ञेयाः सर्वे च वृत्तान्ता भरतस्येङ्गितानि च ।

तत्त्वेन मुखवर्णेन दृष्ट्या व्याभाषितेन च ॥ १५ ॥

“All the reactions of Bharata and his gestures too should be truly ascertained through the colour of his face, glances and speech. (15)

सर्वकामसमृद्धं हि हस्त्यश्वरथसंकुलम् ।

पितृपैतामहं राज्यं कस्य नावर्तयेन्मनः ॥ १६ ॥

“Whose mind will a kingdom exceedingly rich in all coveted enjoyments, nay, teeming with elephants, horses and chariots and inherited from one’s father and grandfather, not actually attract? (16)

संगत्या भरतः श्रीमान् राज्येनार्थी स्वयं भवेत् ।

प्रशास्तु वसुधां सर्वामखिलां रघुनन्दनः ॥ १७ ॥

“If through association with rulership or with his mother, the glorious Bharata has himself grown covetous of sovereignty, let the delight of Raghu rule the entire globe without exception. (17)

तस्य बुद्धिं च विज्ञाय व्यवसायं च वानर ।

यावन् दूरं याताः स्मः क्षिप्रमागन्तुमर्हसि ॥ १८ ॥

“Ascertaining his mind and resolve as well, O Hanumān, you ought to return apace before we are gone far from the hermitage of Sage Bharadwāja.” (18)

इति प्रतिसमादिष्टो हनूमान् मारुतात्मजः ।

मानुषं धारयन् रूपमयोध्यां त्वरितो ययौ ॥ १९ ॥

Assuming a human semblance when commanded as aforesaid by Śrī Rāma, Hanumān, an offspring of the wind-god, left in all haste for Ayodhyā. (19)

अथोत्पपात वेगेन हनूमान् मारुतात्मजः ।

गरुत्मानिव वेगेन जिघृक्षन्नुरगोत्तमम् ॥ २० ॥

Hanumān, son of the wind-god, forthwith sprang forward towards Ayodhyā with speed even as Garuḍa, the king of birds and the transport of Lord Viṣṇu, would with impetuosity when seeking to lay hands on a jewel among the serpents. (20)

लङ्घयित्वा पितृपथं विहगेन्द्रालयं शुभम् ।

गङ्गायमुनयोर्भीमं समतीत्य समागमम् ॥ २१ ॥

शृङ्गवेरपुरं प्राप्य गुहमासाद्य वीर्यवान् ।

स वाचा शुभया हृष्टो हनूमानिदमब्रवीत् ॥ २२ ॥

Sweeping through the air (the course of his father, the wind-god), the charming abode of the jewels among birds, nay, duly crossing over the formidable confluence of the Gaṅgā and the Yamunā rivers, at Prayāga, reaching Śrīngaverapura and meeting Guha, the Niṣāda chief, the celebrated and powerful Hanumān joyfully spoke as follows in a charming voice: (21-22)

सखा तु तव काकुत्स्थो रामः सत्यपराक्रमः ।

ससीतः सह सौमित्रिः स त्वां कुशलमब्रवीत् ॥ २३ ॥

“With Sitā as well as Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) your friend, Śrī Rāma, that scion of Kakutstha of unfailing prowess, has for his part enquired of you about your welfare. (23)

पञ्चमीमद्य रजनीमुषित्वा वचनान्मुनेः ।

भरद्वाजाभ्यनुज्ञातं द्रक्ष्यस्यत्रैव राघवम् ॥ २४ ॥

“You will be able to see Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) at this very place today when he has been duly permitted by Sage Bharadwāja after spending at the instance of the sage with him the night of the fifth lunar day of the bright half of the month of Āświna.” (24)

एवमुक्त्वा महातेजाः सम्प्रहृष्टतनूरुहः ।
उत्पपात महावेगाद् वेगवानविचारयन् ॥ २५ ॥

Saying so, not minding the fatigue of the journey, the swift-moving Hanumān, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, sprang forward with great impetuosity, his hair standing erect for joy at the thought of his being of some little service to Śrī Rāma, the Delight of the universe. (25)

सोऽपश्यद् रामतीर्थं च नदीं वालुकिनीं तथा ।
वरूथीं गोमतीं चैव भीमं शालवनं तथा ॥ २६ ॥
प्रजाश्च बहुसाहस्रीः स्फीताञ्जनपदानपि ।
स गत्वा दूरमध्वानं त्वरितः कपिकुञ्जरः ॥ २७ ॥
आससाद द्रुमान् फुल्लान् नन्दिग्रामसमीपगान् ।
सुराधिपस्योपवने यथा चैत्ररथे द्रुमान् ॥ २८ ॥
स्त्रीभिः सपुत्रैः पौत्रैश्च रममाणैः स्वलंकृतैः ।
क्रोशमात्रे त्वयोध्यायाश्चिरकृष्णाजिनाम्बरम् ॥ २९ ॥
ददर्श भरतं दीनं कृशमाश्रमवासिनम् ।
जटिलं मलदिग्धाङ्गं भ्रातृव्यसनकर्षितम् ॥ ३० ॥
फलमूलाशिनं दान्तं तापसं धर्मचारिणम् ।
समुन्नतजटाभारं वल्कलाजिनवाससम् ॥ ३१ ॥
नियतं भावितात्मानं ब्रह्मर्षिसमतेजसम् ।
पादुके ते पुरस्कृत्य प्रशासन्तं वसुंधराम् ॥ ३२ ॥
चातुर्वर्ण्यस्य लोकस्य त्रातारं सर्वतो भयात् ।
उपस्थितममात्यैश्च शुचिभिश्च पुरोहितैः ॥ ३३ ॥
बलमुख्यैश्च युक्तैश्च काषायाम्बरधारिभिः ।
नहि ते राजपुत्रं तं चीरकृष्णाजिनाम्बरम् ॥ ३४ ॥
परिभोक्तुं व्यवस्यन्ति पौरा वै धर्मवत्सलाः ।
तं धर्ममिव धर्मज्ञं देहबन्धमिवापरम् ॥ ३५ ॥
उवाच प्राञ्जलिर्वाक्यं हनुमान् मारुतात्मजः ।
वसन्तं दण्डकारण्ये यं त्वं चीरजटाधरम् ॥ ३६ ॥
अनुशोचसि काकुत्स्थं स त्वां कौशलमब्रवीत् ।
प्रियमाख्यामि ते देव शोकं त्यज सुदारुणम् ॥ ३७ ॥

He came across on the way the waters hallowed by the association of Lord Paraśurāma and the rivers Vālukini, Varūthini and Gomatī as well, as also the formidable forest of sal trees and many thousands of people inhabiting the kingdom of Kosala as also the prosperous territories comprised in that kingdom. Having speedily covered a long distance, that jewel among the monkeys reached the blossomed trees standing in the neighbourhood of Nandigrāma and resembling like those comprised in the garden of Indra, the suzerain lord of gods, and the garden of Kubera known by the name of Caitraratha, and frequented by women as also by their grandsons and sons beautifully adorned. At a distance of two miles from Ayodhyā he saw Bharata sad and emaciated, dwelling in a hermitage with the bark of trees and the skin of a black antelope wrapped around his waist, wearing matted locks on his head and afflicted through separation from his elder brother, Śrī Rāma, subsisting on fruits and roots, disciplined, and engaged in austerities, practising virtue, distinguished by a very high head of matted hair, covering the upper part of his body too with the bark of trees and a deer-skin, abstemious and clothed with a glory equalling that of a Brāhmaṇa Ṛṣi, his limbs covered with dirt, though his mind had been chastened, nay, ruling the earth after placing the well-known wooden sandals of Śrī Rāma before him, protecting the people belonging to all the four grades, viz., the Brāhmaṇas, the Kṣatriyas, the Vaiśyas and the Śūdras from all peril and attended by upright ministers and family priests as well as by clever troop-commanders, all clad in ochre robes. Indeed, the citizens of Ayodhyā, who were all lovers of virtue, would never feel inclined to enjoy pleasures ignoring that prince clad in the bark of trees and the skin of a black antelope. With joined palms Hanumān, an offspring of the wind-god, spoke as follows to that prince, who knew what is right and seemed to be a second Dharma, the god of virtue, clothed with a body: “That scion of Kakutstha for whom you are grieving, living as he was in the Daṇḍaka forest, wearing the bark of trees on his person and matted locks on his head, has asked you about your welfare. I hereby break a delightful news to you, my lord! Pray, abandon your poignant grief. (26—37)

अस्मिन् मुहूर्ते भ्रात्रा त्वं रामेण सह संगतः ।
निहत्य रावणं रामः प्रतिलभ्य च मैथिलीम् ॥ ३८ ॥
उपयाति समृद्धार्थः सह मित्रैर्महाबलैः ।
लक्ष्मणश्च महातेजा वैदेही च यशस्विनी ।
सीता समग्रा रामेण महेन्द्रेण शची यथा ॥ ३९ ॥

“You will be reunited with your elder brother, Śrī Rāma, very soon. Having killed Rāvaṇa, the king of ogres, and recovered Sitā, a princess of Mithilā, Śrī Rāma is coming back with his numerous friends endowed with extraordinary might, his purpose fully accomplished. Lakṣmaṇa too, who is endowed with extraordinary energy, is coming, as also Sitā, the illustrious princess of the Videha territory, who has her desires fulfilled, with Śrī Rāma, even as Śacī, the consort of Indra, would with the mighty Indra, the ruler of gods.” (38-39)

एवमुक्तो हनुमता भरतः कैकयीसुतः ।
पपात सहसा हृष्टो हर्षान्मोहमुपागमत् ॥ ४० ॥

Feeling delighted when spoken to as aforesaid by Hanumān, Bharata, son of Kaikeyī, sank all at once to the ground and fainted through joy. (40)

ततो मुहूर्तादुत्थाय प्रत्याश्वस्य च राघवः ।
हनूमन्तमुवाचेदं भरतः प्रियवादिनम् ॥ ४१ ॥

Regaining his consciousness and rising awhile, Bharata, a scion of Raghu, replied as follows to Hanumān, who had brought the pleasant tidings to him: (41)

अशोकजैः प्रीतिमयैः कपिमालिङ्ग्य सम्भ्रमात् ।
सिषेच भरतः श्रीमान् विपुलैरश्रुबिन्दुभिः ॥ ४२ ॥

Embracing the monkey in a flurry, the glorious Bharata bathed him with copious tear-drops out of joy and as such other than those born of grief. (42)

देवो वा मानुषो वा त्वमनुक्रोशादिहागतः ।
प्रियाख्यानस्य ते सौम्य ददामि ब्रुवतः प्रियम् ॥ ४३ ॥
गवां शतसहस्रं च ग्रामाणां च शतं परम् ।
सकुण्डलाः शुभाचारा भार्याः कन्यास्तु षोडश ॥ ४४ ॥
हेमवर्णाः सुनासोरूः शशिसौम्याननाः स्त्रियः ।
सर्वाभरणसम्पन्नाः सम्पन्नाः कुलजातिभिः ॥ ४५ ॥

“Whether you are a god or a human being, you have come here through compassion. To you, who have broken this agreeable news to me, O gentle one, I shall give you, in return for the pleasant tidings, a hundred thousand cows, excellent one hundred villages and for wives sixteen golden-complexioned virgin girls of good conduct, adorned with earrings, nay, decked with all kinds of jewels and distinguished by a shapely nose and thighs and a countenance delightful as the moon, and rich in lineage and birth.” (43—45)

निशम्य रामागमनं नृपात्मजः
कपिप्रवीरस्य तदाद्भुतोपमम् ।
प्रहर्षितो रामदिदृक्षयाभवत्
पुनश्च हर्षादिदमब्रवीद् वचः ॥ ४६ ॥

Hearing from the mouth of Hanumān, a principal hero among the monkeys, the glorious return of Śrī Rāma on that occasion, prince Bharata was thrown into ecstatic joy by a desire to behold Śrī Rāma, and joyfully spoke once more as follows: (46)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये युद्धकाण्डे पञ्चविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १२५ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and twenty-five in the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षड्विंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXXVI

Hanumān recounts to Bharata broad details relating to the sojourn of Śrī Rāma, Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa in the forest

बहूनि नाम वर्षाणि गतस्य सुमहद्वनम् ।
शृणोम्यहं प्रीतिकरं मम नाथस्य कीर्तनम् ॥ १ ॥

“Indeed, I hear for the first time today the delightful story of my lord, Śrī Rāma, who proceeded to the vast forest many years ago. (1)

कल्याणी बत गाथेयं लौकिकी प्रतिभाति माम् ।
एति जीवन्तमानन्दो नरं वर्षशतादपि ॥ २ ॥

“Ah, how right does this popular saying sound to me that joy comes to a surviving man even if it be after, say, a hundred years! (2)

राघवस्य हरीणां च कथमासीत् समागमः ।
कस्मिन् देशे किमाश्रित्य तत्त्वमाख्याहि पृच्छतः ॥ ३ ॥

“How, at what place and on what common ground did an alliance between Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, and the monkeys come to be concluded? Pray, speak the truth to me, inquiring as I am.” (3)

स पृष्ठो राजपुत्रेण बृश्यां समुपवेशितः ।
आचक्षे ततः सर्वं रामस्य चरितं वने ॥ ४ ॥

Seated comfortably on a mat of the sacred Kuśa grass meant for ascetics and enquired as above by the prince, Bharata. Hanumān thereupon began to recount in a nutshell as follows, the whole story of the sojourn of Śrī Rāma in the forest: (4)

यथा प्रव्राजितो रामो मातुर्दत्तौ वरौ तव ।
यथा च पुत्रशोकेन राजा दशरथो मृतः ॥ ५ ॥
यथा दूतैस्त्वमानीतस्तूर्णं राजगृहात् प्रभो ।
त्वयायोध्यां प्रविष्टेन यथा राज्यं न चेप्सितम् ॥ ६ ॥
चित्रकूटगिरिं गत्वा राज्येनामित्रकर्शनः ।
निमन्त्रितस्त्वया भ्राता धर्ममाचरता सताम् ॥ ७ ॥

स्थितेन राज्ञो वचने यथा राज्यं विसर्जितम् ।
आर्यस्य पादुके गृह्य यथासि पुनरागतः ॥ ८ ॥
सर्वमेतन्महाबाहो यथावद् विदितं तव ।
त्वयि प्रतिप्रयाते तु यद् वृत्तं तन्निबोध मे ॥ ९ ॥

“How two boons were conferred on your mother by your father, how in pursuance of one of which Śrī Rāma was exiled to the forest and how King Daśaratha breathed his last out of grief caused by separation from his eldest son; how you were speedily brought back all the way from Rājagṛha, the seat of government of the Kekaya kings, by the envoys, my lord, and how, for that matter, sovereignty was not coveted by you when you re-entered Ayodhyā; how on your repairing to Citrakūṭa, your elder brother, the scourge of his enemies, was besought by you, who followed the way of life of the virtuous, to accept the kingship; how the crown was renounced by Śrī Rāma, who stood by the pledge of the deceased king, given to Kaikeyī, and how you returned to Ayodhyā taking with you the wooden sandals of your elder brother—all this is known aright to you, O mighty-armed prince! Hear from me now that which happened after you had returned to Ayodhyā. (5—9)

अपयाते त्वयि तदा समुद्भ्रान्तमृगद्विजम् ।
परिद्यून्मिवात्यर्थं तद् वनं समपद्यत ॥ १० ॥

“When you had gone away (back to Ayodhyā), the said forest of Citrakūṭa assumed an extremely doleful appearance, as it were, on that occasion, the beasts and birds getting utterly bewildered. (10)

तद्धस्तिमृदितं घोरं सिंहव्याघ्रमृगाकुलम् ।
प्रविवेशाथ विजनं स महद् दण्डकावनम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Śrī Rāma forthwith penetrated deep into the dreadful, lonely and extensive Daṇḍaka forest, which had been trampled down by wild elephants and was crowded with lions, tigers and deer. (11)

तेषां पुरस्ताद् बलवान् गच्छतां गहने वने।
विनदन् सुमहानादं विराधः प्रत्यदृश्यत ॥ १२ ॥

“Before them, even as they were advancing into the dense forest, there suddenly appeared the mighty ogre, Virāḍha, uttering forth a tremendous roar. (12)

तमुत्क्षिप्य महानादमूर्ध्वबाहुमधोमुखम्।
निखाते प्रक्षिपन्ति स्म नदन्तमिव कुञ्जरम् ॥ १३ ॥

“Getting rid of that ogre, who rushed with uplifted arms and head bent low, all the three, Śrī Rāma, Sītā and Lakṣmaṇa, cast him into a pit, even as he was emitting a loud cry like an elephant. (13)

तत् कृत्वा दुष्करं कर्म भ्रातरौ रामलक्ष्मणौ।
सायाह्ने शरभङ्गस्य रम्यमाश्रममीयतुः ॥ १४ ॥

“Having accomplished that feat, which was difficult for others to perform, the two brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa reached the lovely hermitage of Sage Śaraḥbhaṅga at the close of the same day. (14)

शरभङ्गे दिवं प्राप्ते रामः सत्यपराक्रमः।
अभिवाद्य मुनीन् सर्वाञ्जनस्थानमुपागमत् ॥ १५ ॥

“Greeting all the anchorites, when Śaraḥbhaṅga had ascended to heaven, Śrī Rāma of unfailing prowess moved to the region known as Janasthāna. (15)

पश्चाच्छूर्पणखा नाम रामपार्श्वमुपागता।
ततो रामेण संदिष्टो लक्ष्मणः सहसोत्थितः ॥ १६ ॥
प्रगृह्य खड्गं चिच्छेद कर्णनासं महाबलः।
चतुर्दश सहस्राणि रक्षसां भीमकर्मणाम् ॥ १७ ॥
हतानि वसता तत्र राघवेण महात्मना।
एकेन सह संगम्य रामेण रणमूर्धनि ॥ १८ ॥
अहश्चतुर्थभागेन निःशेषा रक्षसाः कृताः।
महाबला महावीर्यास्तपसो विघ्नकारिणः ॥ १९ ॥

निहता राघवेणाजौ दण्डकारण्यवासिनः।
राक्षसाश्च विनिष्पिष्टाः खरश्च निहतो रणे ॥ २० ॥
दूषणं चाग्रतो हत्वा त्रिशिरास्तदनन्तरम्।
ततस्तेनार्दिता बाला रावणं समुपागता ॥ २१ ॥

“Subsequently an ogress, Śūrpaṇakhā by name, sought the presence of Śrī Rāma. Enjoined by Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa, who was endowed with extraordinary might, thereupon rose suddenly and firmly seizing hold of his sword, cut off her ears and nose. Nay, fourteen thousands of ogres of terrible deeds were made short work of by the high-souled Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, while sojourning in that region. On closing with Śrī Rāma alone in the van of the fight the ogres were wholly exterminated in a fraction of a quarter of a day. The ogres dwelling in the Daṇḍaka forest, who were endowed with extraordinary might and distinguished for their great valour, and who interfered with the austerities of the ascetics, were extirpated in combat by Śrī Rāma. Not only were the ogres utterly destroyed but even Khara, their leader, was made short work of in combat. Nay, after killing Dūṣaṇa, his brother, first, Triśirā, the other brother, was dispatched immediately afterwards. Pained by the aforesaid incident, the foolish Śūrpaṇakhā sought refuge with Rāvaṇa. (16—21)

रावणानुचरो घोरो मारीचो नाम राक्षसः।
लोभयामास वैदेहीं भूत्वा रत्नमयो मृगः ॥ २२ ॥

“Assuming the guise of a deer with a form consisting of precious stones, a redoubtable ogre, Mārica by name, a follower of Rāvaṇa, wrought his charm on Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory). (22)

सा राममब्रवीद् दृष्ट्वा वैदेही गृह्यतामिति।
अयं मनोहरः कान्त आश्रमो नो भविष्यति ॥ २३ ॥

“That princess of the Videha territory said to Śrī Rāma, ‘Let this deer be captured. This hermitage of ours will turn out to be soul-captivating and lovely with its presence.’ (23)

ततो रामो धनुष्पाणिर्मृगं तमनुधावति ।
स तं जघान धावन्तं शरेणानतपर्वणा ॥ २४ ॥

“Bow in hand, Śrī Rāma thereupon chased that weird deer. Nay, he killed it with an arrow of curved joints even while it was running. (24)

अथ सौम्य दशग्रीवो मृगं याति तु राघवे ।
लक्ष्मणे चापि निष्क्रान्ते प्रविवेशाश्रमं तदा ॥ २५ ॥

“When, however, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) had left in pursuit of the aforesaid, deer and Lakṣmaṇa too had issued forth (from the hermitage on being pressed by Sītā to leave immediately to help his eldest brother, who seemed to be in ‘trouble’, Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, forthwith entered the hermitage during that interval, O gentle Sir! (25)

जग्राह तरसा सीतां ग्रहः खे रोहिणीमिव ।
त्रातुकामं ततो युद्धे हत्वा गृध्रं जटायुषम् ॥ २६ ॥
प्रगृह्य सहसा सीतां जगामाशु स राक्षसः ।
ततस्त्वद्भुतसंकाशाः स्थिताः पर्वतमूर्धनि ॥ २७ ॥
सीतां गृहीत्वा गच्छन्तं वानराः पर्वतोपमाः ।
ददृशुर्विस्मिताकारा रावणं राक्षसाधिपम् ॥ २८ ॥
ततः शीघ्रतरं गत्वा तद् विमानं मनोजवम् ।
आरुह्य सह वैदेह्या पुष्पकं स महाबलः ॥ २९ ॥
प्रविवेश तदा लङ्कां रावणो राक्षसेश्वरः ।
तां सुवर्णपरिष्कारे शुभे महति वेश्मनि ॥ ३० ॥
प्रवेश्य मैथिलीं वाक्यैः सान्त्वयामास रावणः ।
तृणवद् भाषितं तस्य तं च नैर्ऋतपुङ्गवम् ॥ ३१ ॥
अचिन्तयन्ती वैदेही ह्यशोकवनिकां गता ।
न्यवर्तत तदा रामो मृगं हत्वा तदा वने ॥ ३२ ॥

“He forcibly laid his hands on Sītā even as a planet like Mars would obscure the constellation Rohiṇī by interposing itself between the moon and the lunar mansion. Fatally wounding in an encounter, the vulture-king, Jaṭāyu, who sought to deliver her, and seizing hold of Sītā by force, the said ogre thereupon departed in haste. Perched on a mountain-top some strange-looking monkeys (Sugrīva and others) for their part, who appeared like mountains and had amazement writ large on their faces, presently saw Rāvaṇa the suzerain lord of ogres, passing that way, taking Sītā in his arms. Then, coursing with great speed in the air and mounting with the princess of the Videha territory, the well-known aerial car, Puṣpaka, which was swift as thought (and stood waiting for him somewhere according to his directions), that ruler of ogres, Rāvaṇa, who was endowed with extraordinary might, presently made good his entry into Laṅkā. Lodging the princess of Mithilā in a charming stately mansion enclosed with a gold wall, Rāvaṇa sought to console her with blandishing words. Caring a straw for his speech and ignoring that prince of ogres, however, Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, actually remained in the Aśoka grove (attached to that palace estate). “Having presently killed the ogre disguised as a deer in the forest, Śrī Rāma then retraced his steps to his hermitage. (26—32)

निवर्तमानः काकुत्स्थो दृष्ट्वा गृध्रं स विव्यथे ।
गृध्रं हतं तदा दृष्ट्वा रामः प्रियतरं पितुः ॥ ३३ ॥
मार्गमाणस्तु वैदेहीं राघवः सहलक्ष्मणः ।
गोदावरीमनुचरन् वनोद्देशांश्च पुष्पितान् ॥ ३४ ॥

“Missing Sītā in the hermitage as well as the vulture, who was living on the outskirts of the hermitage, while returning, the said scion of Kakutstha felt agonized. Seeing the vulture, Jaṭāyu, who was dearer to him than his own father, killed, while looking out for Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, for his part, who was accompanied by Lakṣmaṇa, ranged along the bank of the Godāvarī as also the blossomed woodlands. (33-34)

आसेदतुर्महारण्ये कबन्धं नाम राक्षसम्।
ततः कबन्धवचनाद् रामः सत्यपराक्रमः ॥ ३५ ॥
ऋष्यमूकगिरिं गत्वा सुग्रीवेण समागतः।
तयोः समागमः पूर्वं प्रीत्या हार्दो व्यजायत ॥ ३६ ॥

“The two princes met in a vast forest an ogre, Kabandha by name, and killed him. Repairing to the Ṛṣyamūka mountain according to the advice of Kabandha, Śrī Rāma of unfailing prowess thereupon came into contact with Sugrīva. A meeting of hearts through affinity had taken place between them even before they met. (35-36)

भ्रात्रा निरस्तः क्रुद्धेन सुग्रीवो वालिना पुरा।
इतरेतरसंवादात् प्रगाढः प्रणयस्तयोः ॥ ३७ ॥

“Sugrīva had been banished in the past by his angry brother, Vālī, and as a result of mutual talks a deep affection arose between Śrī Rāma and Sugrīva. (37)

रामः स्वबाहुवीर्येण स्वराज्यं प्रत्यपादयत्।
वालिनं समरे हत्वा महाकायं महाबलम् ॥ ३८ ॥

“Killing by the might of his arms on the field of battle the gigantic Vālī, even though he was endowed with extraordinary might, Śrī Rāma caused his kingship to be restored to Sugrīva. (38)

सुग्रीवः स्थापितो राज्ये सहितः सर्ववानरैः।
रामाय प्रतिजानीते राजपुत्र्यास्तु मार्गणम् ॥ ३९ ॥

“Sugrīva was thus established in his kingdom alongwith all the monkeys. Sugrīva, in his turn, had given his pledge to institute a search for the princess of Mithilā. (39)

आदिष्टा वानरेन्द्रेण सुग्रीवेण महात्मना।
दश कोट्यः प्लवङ्गानां सर्वाः प्रस्थापिता दिशः ॥ ४० ॥

“Ten crores of monkeys were accordingly assigned this work and dispatched to all the four quarters. (40)

तेषां नो विप्रकृष्टानां विन्ध्ये पर्वतसत्तमे।
भृशं शोकाभितप्तानां महान् कालोऽत्यवर्तत ॥ ४१ ॥

“A long time slipped past us (monkeys) as we had lost our way in the Vindhya mountain, the foremost of mountains and felt sore stricken with grief. (41)

भ्राता तु गृध्रराजस्य सम्पातिर्नाम वीर्यवान्।
समाख्याति स्म वसतीं सीतां रावणमन्दिरे ॥ ४२ ॥

“In the meantime, the powerful brother of Jaṭāyu, the king of vultures, Sampāti by name, definitely told us of Sītā dwelling in the mansion of Rāvaṇa. (42)

सोऽहं दुःखपरीतानां दुःखं तज्ज्ञातिनां नुदन्।
आत्मवीर्यं समास्थाय योजनानां शतं प्लुतः।
तत्राहमेकामद्राक्षमशोकवनिकां गताम् ॥ ४३ ॥
कौशेयवस्त्रां मलिनां निरानन्दां दृढव्रताम्।
तया समेत्य विधिवत् पृष्ट्वा सर्वमनिन्दिताम् ॥ ४४ ॥
अभिज्ञानं मया दत्तं रामनामाङ्गुलीयकम्।
अभिज्ञानं मणिं लब्ध्वा चरितार्थोऽहमागतः ॥ ४५ ॥

“Dispelling the aforesaid despondency of my kinsfolk, who were all seized with despair, and resorting to my own energy, I as such leapt across a sea extending over a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles). There I beheld Sītā living alone in a grove of Aśoka trees, clad in silk, unclean and cheerless, yet unflinching in her vow of conjugal fidelity. After meeting that irreproachable lady and duly inquiring everything of her, a ring with the name of Śrī Rāma engraved on it was handed over to her by me as a token. And receiving as a token from her in return a jewel of her head, I returned to the northern seashore, accomplished of purpose. (43—45)

मया च पुनरागम्य रामस्याक्लिष्टकर्मणः।
अभिज्ञानं मया दत्तमर्चिष्मान् स महामणिः ॥ ४६ ॥

“Nay, returning to the presence of Śrī Rāma at Kiṣkindhā alongwith my companions, that brilliant and valuable jewel was delivered by me as a token to Śrī Rāma, who was unwearied in action. (46)

श्रुत्वा तां मैथिलीं रामस्त्वाशशंसे च जीवितम्।
जीवितान्तमनुप्राप्तः पीत्वामृतमिवातुरः ॥ ४७ ॥

“Nay, hearing the news of that princess of Mithilā being alive and firm in her devotion to him, Śrī Rāma for his part regained the hope to survive even as an ailing man, who has approached the end of his life, would on drinking nectar. (47)

उद्योजयिष्यन्नुद्योगं दधे लङ्कावधे मनः ।
जिघांसुरिव लोकान्ते सर्वाल्लोकान् विभावसुः ॥ ४८ ॥

“Putting forth a war effort, he set his mind upon the destruction of Laṅkā even as at the dissolution of the world the fire of universal destruction would proceed to destroy all the worlds, when intending to do so. (48)

ततः समुद्रमासाद्य नलं सेतुमकारयत् ।
अतरत् कपिवीराणां वाहिनी तेन सेतुना ॥ ४९ ॥

“Reaching the seashore, he then caused the monkey chief, Nala to construct a bridge across the sea and the army of monkey heroes crossed the sea by means of that bridge. (49)

प्रहस्तमवधीनीलः कुम्भकर्णं तु राघवः ।
लक्ष्मणो रावणसुतं स्वयं रामस्तु रावणम् ॥ ५० ॥

“The monkey chief, Nīla, the Commander-in-chief of the simian army, killed the ogre, Prahasta, whereas Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, disposed of Kumbhakarna, the younger brother of Rāvaṇa, Lakṣmaṇa dispatched Indrajit, the eldest son of Rāvaṇa, and Śrī Rāma himself got rid of Rāvaṇa (50)

स शक्रेण समागम्य यमेन वरुणेन च ।
महेश्वरस्वयंभूभ्यां तथा दशरथेन च ॥ ५१ ॥
तैश्च दत्तवरः श्रीमानृषिभिश्च समागतैः ।
सुरर्षिभिश्च काकुत्स्थो वराल्लेभे परंतपः ॥ ५२ ॥

“Coming together, Indra, the ruler of gods, Yama, the god of retribution, and Varuṇa, the god of water, Lord Śiva (the Supreme Ruler) and Brahmā, the self-born creator and likewise with the spirit of his deceased father, nay, granted boons by them as also by the Ṛṣis (seers of Vedic Mantras) and celestial sages assembled there, the glorious Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha, the scourge of his enemies, gratefully received them. (51-52)

स तु दत्तवरः प्रीत्या वानरैश्च समागतैः ।
पुष्पकेण विमानेन किष्किन्धामभ्युपागमत् ॥ ५३ ॥

“Nay, having been granted boons, Śrī Rāma for his part joyfully flew to Kiṣkindhā in the aerial car known as Puṣpaka alongwith the monkeys who had collected there. (53)

तां गङ्गां पुनरासाद्य वसन्तं मुनिसंनिधौ ।
अविघ्नं पुष्ययोगेन श्वो रामं द्रष्टुमर्हसि ॥ ५४ ॥

“Tomorrow, when the moon will be in conjunction with the asterisk Puṣya, you will be able without any hindrance to see Śrī Rāma, who, having already reached the bank of the holy Gaṅgā once more, is staying for a day in the presence of Sage Bharadwāja.” (54)

ततः स वाक्यैर्मधुरैर्हनूमतो
निशम्य हृष्टो भरतः कृताञ्जलिः ।
उवाच वाणीं मनसः प्रहर्षिणीं
चिरस्य पूर्णः खलु मे मनोरथः ॥ ५५ ॥

Delighted to hear of Śrī Rāma's impending return to Ayodhyā in the sweet words of Hanumān, the celebrated Bharata with joined palms thereupon made the following reply, which brought excessive joy to his mind: “After a long time indeed has my desire been fulfilled.” (55)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये युद्धकाण्डे षड्विंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १२६ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and twenty-six in the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXXVII

Arrangements for the reception of Śrī Rāma in Ayodhyā; the departure of Bharata with all others for Nandigrāma to receive Śrī Rāma; Śrī Rāma's meeting with Bharata and others and his sending back the aerial car, Puṣpaka, to Kubera, the ruler of Yakṣas (a class of demigods), to whom it originally belonged

श्रुत्वा तु परमानन्दं भरतः सत्यविक्रमः ।
हृष्टमाज्ञापयामास शत्रुघ्नं परवीरहा ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the supremely delightful news of Śrī Rāma's impending return to Ayodhyā, Bharata of unflinching prowess, the destroyer of hostile champions, commanded as follows Śatrughna, the younger twin brother of Lakṣmaṇa, who too felt delighted at the news: (1)

दैवतानि च सर्वाणि चैत्यानि नगरस्य च ।
सुगन्धमाल्यैर्वादित्रैरर्चन्तु शुचयो नराः ॥ २ ॥

“Let men of good conduct offer worship to their family deities as well as at all the temples in the city with fragrant flowers and to the accompaniment of various musical instruments. (2)

सूताः स्तुतिपुराणज्ञाः सर्वे वैतालिकास्तथा ।
सर्वे वादित्रकुशला गणिकाश्चैव सर्वशः ॥ ३ ॥
राजदारास्तथामात्याः सैन्याः सेनाङ्गनागणाः ।
ब्राह्मणाश्च सराजन्याः श्रेणीमुख्यास्तथा गणाः ॥ ४ ॥
अभिनिर्यान्तु रामस्य द्रष्टुं शशिनिभं मुखम् ।
भरतस्य वचः श्रुत्वा शत्रुघ्नः परवीरहा ॥ ५ ॥
विष्टीरनेकसाहस्रीश्रोदयामास भागशः ।
समीकुरुत निम्नानि विषमाणि समानि च ॥ ६ ॥
स्थानानि च निरस्यन्तां नन्दिग्रामादितः परम् ।
सिञ्चन्तु पृथिवीं कृत्स्नां हिमशीतेन वारिणा ॥ ७ ॥

“Nay, let bards well-versed in singing praises as well as in the Purāṇas (containing ancient legends, cosmogony, etc.) as also minstrels, all those proficient in the use of musical instruments as well as courtesans from every quarter, the queen-mothers as also the ministers, the troops stationed in the royal palace and drawing their emoluments from the palace itself, army men and their wives, nay, the Brāhmaṇas accompanied by the Kṣatriyas (the members of the warrior class, the leaders of the guilds of traders and artisans as well as their members issue forth to behold the moonlike countenance of Śrī Rāma.” Hearing the command of Bharata, Śatrughna, the destroyer of hostile champions, called together labourers working on wages and numbering many thousand and, dividing them into so many gangs, ordered them as follows: “Level all the low-lying areas as also the elevated grounds from this place, Ayodhyā, onwards upto Nandigrāma. Of course, let all the intervening temples be left alone as they are. Nay, sprinkle the whole length of land with ice-cold water. (3—7)

ततोऽभ्यवकिरन्त्वन्ये लाजैः पुष्पैश्च सर्वतः ।
समुच्छ्रितपताकास्तु रथ्याः पुरवरोत्तमे ॥ ८ ॥

“Let others then strew it all over with parched grains of paddy and flowers. Also line with flags the streets of Ayodhyā, which is superior even to the foremost of cities. (8)

शोभयन्तु च वेश्मानि सूर्यस्योदयनं प्रति ।
स्नग्दाममुक्तपुष्पैश्च सुवर्णैः पञ्चवर्णकैः ॥ ९ ॥

“Nay, decorate the dwellings on the roadside till sunrise with garlands strung both sparsely and closely as well as with loose flowers of charming colours as also with five coloured ornaments. (9)

राजमार्गमसम्बाधं किरन्तु शतशो नराः ।
ततस्तच्छासनं श्रुत्वा शत्रुघ्नस्य मुदान्विताः ॥ १० ॥
धृष्टिर्जयन्तो विजयः सिद्धार्थश्चार्थसाधकः ।
अशोको मन्त्रपालश्च सुमन्त्रश्चापि निर्ययुः ॥ ११ ॥
मतैर्नागसहस्रैश्च सध्वजैः सुविभूषितैः ।
अपरे हेमकक्षाभिः सगजाभिः करेणुभिः ॥ १२ ॥
निर्ययुस्तुरगाक्रान्ता रथैश्च सुमहारथाः ।
शक्त्यृष्टिपाशहस्तानां सध्वजानां पताकिनाम् ॥ १३ ॥
तुरगाणां सहस्रैश्च मुख्यैर्मुख्यतरान्वितैः ।
पदातीनां सहस्रैश्च वीराः परिवृता ययुः ॥ १४ ॥

“Also let hundreds of men line the main road in order to see that it remains unobstructed.” Hearing the foregoing command of Śatrughna, all the eight ministers, viz., Dhṛṣṭi Jayanta, Vijaya, Siddhārtha as also Arthasādhaka, Aśoka and Mantrapāla and Sumantra too thereupon issued forth on the back of elephants, full of joy (to receive Śrī Rāma and others), followed by thousands of elephants in rut, bearing standards and splendidly adorned. Other highly eminent car-warriors rode on the back of elephants and female elephants provided with golden girths, on horse-back or in chariots. Champions went forth surrounded by thousands of selected horses and even by still superior ones bearing standards and pennons, as well as by thousands of foot soldiers carrying javelins, spears and nooses. (10—14)

ततो यानान्युपाखण्डाः सर्वा दशरथस्त्रियः ।
कौसल्यां प्रमुखे कृत्वा सुमित्रां चापि निर्ययुः ॥ १५ ॥
कैकेय्या सहिताः सर्वा नन्दिग्राममुपागमन् ॥ १६ ॥

Placing at their head Kausalyā (the mother of Śrī Rāma) as well as Sumitrā (the mother of Lakṣmaṇa and Śatrughna), nay, seated in palanquins, all the consorts of Daśaratha thereupon issued forth to meet Śrī Rāma and his party; and, accompanied by Kaikeyī (Bharata’s mother), all reached Nandigrāma. (15-16)

द्विजातिमुख्यैर्धर्मात्मा श्रेणीमुख्यैः सनैगमैः ।
माल्यमोदकहस्तैश्च मन्त्रिभिर्भरतो वृतः ॥ १७ ॥
शङ्खभेरीनिनादैश्च बन्दिभिश्चाभिनन्दितः ।
आर्यपादौ गृहीत्वा तु शिरसा धर्मकोविदः ॥ १८ ॥
पाण्डुरं छत्रमादाय शुक्लमाल्योपशोभितम् ।
शुक्ले च वालव्यजने राजार्हे हेमभूषिते ॥ १९ ॥
उपवासकृशो दीनश्चीरकृष्णाजिनाम्बरः ।
भ्रातुरागमनं श्रुत्वा तत्पूर्वं हर्षमागतः ॥ २० ॥
प्रत्युद्ययौ यदा रामं महात्मा सचिवैः सह ।
अश्वानां खुरशब्दैश्च रथनेमिस्वनेन च ॥ २१ ॥
शङ्खदुन्दुभिनादेन संचचालेव मेदिनी ।
गजानां बृहितैश्चापि शङ्खदुन्दुभिनिःस्वनैः ॥ २२ ॥
कृत्स्नं तु नगरं तत् तु नन्दिग्राममुपागमत् ।
समीक्ष्य भरतो वाक्यमुवाच पवनात्मजम् ॥ २३ ॥

Placing the wooden sandals of his elder brother, Śrī Rāma, on his head, nay, taking the white parasol (intended for Śrī Rāma) adorned with white garlands as well as two white whisks decked with gold and eminently worthy of kings, nay, surrounded by the foremost of the Brahmanas (lit., the twice-born), leaders of the guilds of traders and artisans including the Vaiśyas (members of the mercantile class) and the counsellors with garlands and ball-shaped sweets in their hands and cheered by the blasts of conches and the roll of kettledrums as well as by panegyrists, the high-souled Bharata for his part, whose mind was set on virtue, who was well-versed in the secret of righteousness, and who was emaciated through fasting, nay, who felt emaciated, was clad in the bark of trees and the skin of a black antelope and who experienced joy even before the advent of his elder brother, Śrī Rāma, on hearing of it—went in advance with his ministers to meet Śrī Rāma.

The earth shook, as it were, on that occasion due to the sound of the hoofs of horses and the rattling of the felloes of the chariot wheels as well as on account of the blare of conches and the roll of drums. Accompanied by the roars of elephants as well as by the blare of conches and the roll of drums, really speaking the entire city of Ayodhyā literally reached Nandigrāma (a village on the outskirts of Ayodhyā where Bharata spent the period of Śrī Rāma's exile). Glancing round, Bharata addressed the following words to Hanumān, the offspring of the wind-god: (17—23)

कच्चिन्न खलु कापेयी सेव्यते चलचित्तता ।

नहि पश्यामि काकुत्स्थं राममार्यं परंतपम् ॥ २४ ॥

“Indeed, I hope the levity, which constitutes the very nature of monkeys, has not been resorted to by you; for, I do not behold Śrī Rāma, a worthy scion of Kakutstha, the scourge of his enemies. (24)

कच्चिन्न चानुद्दश्यन्ते कपयः कामरूपिणः ।

अथैवमुक्ते वचने हनूमानिदमब्रवीत् ॥ २५ ॥

अर्थ्यं विज्ञापयन्नेव भरतं सत्यविक्रमम् ।

सदाफलान् कुसुमितान् वृक्षान् प्राप्य मधुस्रवान् ॥ २६ ॥

भरद्वाजप्रसादेन मत्तभ्रमरनादितान् ।

तस्य चैव वरो दत्तो वासवेन परंतप ॥ २७ ॥

ससैन्यस्य तदातिथ्यं कृतं सर्वगुणान्वितम् ।

निःस्वनः श्रूयते भीमः प्रहृष्टानां वनौकसाम् ॥ २८ ॥

“Neither are to be seen the monkeys, who are able to change their form at will.” When this remark was uttered by Bharata, Hanumān frothwith replied as follows to Bharata of unfailing prowess, revealing to him the truth of the matter: “Here is heard the formidable roar of monkeys and bears (lit., denizens of the woods), overjoyed to come across on their way trees ever yielding fruit, adorned with blossom, flowing with honey and rendered noisy by the humming of intoxicated bees—all through the grace of Sage Bharadwāja. Nay, a boon to this effect was definitely conferred by Indra, by virtue of which hospitality rich in all excellences was extended to you with your entire army when you paid your visit to him while going to Citrakūṭa to bring Śrī Rāma back to Ayodhyā (as also to Śrī Rāma with his army during his return journey to Ayodhyā). (25—28)

मन्ये वानरसेना सा नदीं तरति गोमतीम् ।

रजोवर्षं समुद्भूतं पश्य सालवनं प्रति ॥ २९ ॥

“I presume the aforesaid army of monkeys is crossing the sacred Gomati. Behold the cloud of dust risen near the grove of sal trees. (29)

मन्ये सालवनं रम्यं लोलयन्ति प्लवंगमाः ।

तदेतद् दृश्यते दूराद् विमानं चन्द्रसंनिभम् ॥ ३० ॥

विमानं पुष्पकं दिव्यं मनसा ब्रह्मनिर्मितम् ।

रावणं बान्धवैः सार्धं हत्वा लब्धं महात्मना ॥ ३१ ॥

“I think the monkeys are shaking the lovely grove of sal trees. There is seen in distance the well-known heavenly aerial car, shining brightly like the moon, the aerial car created with his mind by Viśwakarmā (the architect of gods, who has been referred to here as Brahmā by virtue of his creative talent), which has been secured by the high-souled Śrī Rāma after killing Rāvaṇa alongwith his kinsfolk. (30-31)

तरुणादित्यसंकाशं विमानं रामवाहनम् ।

धनदस्य प्रसादेन दिव्यमेतन्मनोजवम् ॥ ३२ ॥

This celestial aerial car, swift as thought, which is carrying Śrī Rāma and shines brightly as the rising sun, belongs to Kubera, the bestower of riches, by the grace of Brahmā, who bestowed it on that god. (32)

एतस्मिन् भ्रातरौ वीरौ वैदेह्या सह राघवौ ।

सुग्रीवश्च महातेजा राक्षसश्च विभीषणः ॥ ३३ ॥

“In the yonder car are with Sītā, a princess of the Videha territory, seated the two heroic brothers, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa, (scions of Raghu) as also Sugrīva, who is endowed with extraordinary energy and the ogre, Vibhiṣaṇa.” (33)

ततो हर्षसमुद्भूतो निःस्वनो दिवमस्पृशत्।
स्त्रीबालयुववृद्धानां रामोऽयमिति कीर्तिते ॥ ३४ ॥

Immediately the words “Here comes Śrī Rāma!” were loudly uttered by Hanumān, a clamour born of joy from the mouth of women, children, young men and the aged thereupon reached the skies. (34)

रथकुञ्जरवाजिभ्यस्तेऽवतीर्य महीं गताः।
ददृशुस्तं विमानस्थं नराः सोममिवाम्बरे ॥ ३५ ॥

Standing on the ground, on alighting from their chariots, elephants and horses, the people beheld Śrī Rāma seated in the aerial car like the moon in the sky. (35)

प्राञ्जलिर्भरतो भूत्वा प्रहृष्टो राघवोन्मुखः।
यथार्थेनार्घ्यपाद्याद्यैस्ततो राममपूजयत् ॥ ३६ ॥

Standing highly rejoiced with joined palms, his face turned towards Śrī Rāma, Bharata thereupon worshipped Śrī Rāma (from afar) with offerings of water to wash his hands and feet with and other articles, extending welcome to him in the true sense, Śrī Rāma’s return being truly welcome to him. (36)

मनसा ब्रह्मणा सृष्टे विमाने भरताग्रजः।
रराज पृथुदीर्घाक्षो वज्रपाणिरिवामरः ॥ ३७ ॥

Śrī Rāma, the elder brother of Bharata, who had large and long eyes (extending up to the ears) shone in the said aerial car created by Viśwakarmā with his mind, like the god, Indra, who carries the thunderbolt in his hand. (37)

ततो विमानाग्रगतं भरतो भ्रातरं तदा।
ववन्दे प्रणतो रामं मेरुस्थमिव भास्करम् ॥ ३८ ॥

Bent low with reverence, Bharata then saluted his elder brother, Śrī Rāma, who stood in the forepart of the aerial car even as one would salute the sun appearing on Mount Meru. (38)

ततो रामाभ्यनुज्ञातं तद् विमानमनुत्तमम्।
हंसयुक्तं महावेगं निपपात महीतलम् ॥ ३९ ॥

Duly permitted by Śrī Rāma, the said aerial car, which was unsurpassed by any other, had a swan, as it were, yoked to it, and was endowed with extraordinary speed descended to the earth’s surface. (39)

आरोपितो विमानं तद् भरतः सत्यविक्रमः।
राममासाद्य मुदितः पुनरेवाभ्यवादयत् ॥ ४० ॥

Feeling delighted when lifted on to that aerial car and approaching Śrī Rāma, Bharata of unfailing prowess, greeted him once more. (40)

तं समुत्थाय काकुत्स्थश्चिरस्याक्षिपथं गतम्।
अङ्गे भरतमारोप्य मुदितः परिष्वजे ॥ ४१ ॥

Fully rising from his seat and placing on his lap Bharata who had fallen within the range of his sight after a long time, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha, joyfully embraced him. (41)

ततो लक्ष्मणमासाद्य वैदेहीं च परंतपः।
अथाभ्यवादयत् प्रीतो भरतो नाम चाब्रवीत् ॥ ४२ ॥

Approaching Lakṣmaṇa (and embracing him) as also Sītā (a princess of the Videha territory), Bharata, the scourge of his enemies thereupon joyously saluted her and mentioned his name too. (42)

सुग्रीवं केकयीपुत्रो जाम्बवन्तमथाङ्गदम्।
मैन्दं च द्विविदं नीलमृषभं चैव सस्वजे ॥ ४३ ॥

Bharata (son of Kaikeyī) also embraced Sugrīva, the ruler of monkeys, Jāmbavān, the king of bears, and Aṅgada (son of Vālī, Sugrīva’s elder brother), as also Mainda, Dwivida, Nīla and Ṛṣabha, too. (43)

सुषेणं च नलं चैव गवाक्षं गन्धमादनम्।
शरभं पनसं चैव परितः परिष्वजे ॥ ४४ ॥

He further embraced fully Suṣeṇa and Nala (son of Viśwakarmā, who constructed the bridge across the sea), Gavākṣa, Gandhamādana, Śarabha, as well as Panasa. (44)

ते कृत्वा मानुषं रूपं वानराः कामरूपिणः ।
कुशलं पर्यपृच्छंस्ते प्रहृष्टा भरतं तदा ॥ ४५ ॥

Assuming a human semblance, the celebrated monkeys, who were able to change their form at will and felt highly rejoiced, duly inquired of Bharata his welfare on that occasion. (45)

अथाब्रवीद् राजपुत्रः सुग्रीवं वानरर्षभम् ।
परिष्वज्य महातेजा भरतो धर्मिणां वरः ॥ ४६ ॥
त्वमस्माकं चतुर्णां वै भ्राता सुग्रीव पञ्चमः ।
सौहृदाज्जायते मित्रमपकारोऽरिलक्षणम् ॥ ४७ ॥

Embracing Sugrīva, the foremost of monkeys, prince Bharata, a jewel among the virtuous, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, said, "You are a fifth brother to us four brothers, O Sugrīva! For a friend is made through beneficence actuated by good-will and a friend is as good as a brother, while maleficence is that which distinguishes an enemy." (46-47)

विभीषणं च भरतः सान्त्ववाक्यमथाब्रवीत् ।
दिष्ट्या त्वया सहायेन कृतं कर्म सुदुष्करम् ॥ ४८ ॥

To Vibhīṣaṇa as well did Bharata then address the following kind words: "By good fortune an exceedingly difficult task has been accomplished by you as an ally of Śrī Rāma." (48)

शत्रुघ्नश्च तदा राममभिवाद्य सलक्ष्मणम् ।
सीतायाश्चरणौ वीरो विनयादभ्यवादयत् ॥ ४९ ॥

Having greeted Śrī Rāma as well as Lakṣmaṇa (his elder twin), the valiant Śatrughna too bowed reverently at the feet of Sītā on that occasion. (49)

रामो मातरमासाद्य विवर्णां शोककर्षिताम् ।
जग्राह प्रणतः पादौ मनो मातुः प्रहर्षयन् ॥ ५० ॥

Approaching Kausalyā (his own mother), who looked pale and had got emaciated through grief born of separation from her husband as well as from her two sons and daughter-in-law), Śrī Rāma, who bent low with reverence, clasped the feet of her mother, thereby bringing excessive delight to her mind. (50)

अभिवाद्य सुमित्रां च कैकेयीं च यशस्विनीम् ।
स मातृश्च ततः सर्वाः पुरोहितमुपागमत् ॥ ५१ ॥

Nay, having greeted Sumitrā (the mother of Lakṣmaṇa and Śatrughna) as well as the illustrious Kaikeyī (Bharata's mother), he then approached and greeted all the rest of his mothers as well as Sage Vasiṣṭha (his family priest). (51)

स्वागतं ते महाबाहो कौसल्यानन्दवर्धन ।
इति प्राञ्जलयः सर्वे नागरा राममब्रुवन् ॥ ५२ ॥

With joined palms all the citizens of Ayodhyā, said to Śrī Rāma, "Blessed is your arrival here, O mighty-armed prince, the enhancer of Kausalyā's delight!" (52)

तान्यञ्जलिसहस्राणि प्रगृहीतानि नागरैः ।
व्याकोशानीव पद्मानि ददर्श भरताग्रजः ॥ ५३ ॥

Śrī Rāma, the elder brother of Bharata, beheld thousands of joined palms held tightly by the citizens like so many full-blown lotuses. (53)

पादुके ते तु रामस्य गृहीत्वा भरतः स्वयम् ।
चरणाभ्यां नरेन्द्रस्य योजयामास धर्मवित् ॥ ५४ ॥
अब्रवीच्च तदा रामं भरतः स कृताञ्जलिः ।
एतत् ते सकलं राज्यं न्यासं निर्यातितं मया ॥ ५५ ॥

Taking the wooden sandals bestowed on him by Śrī Rāma, Bharata for his part, who knew what is right, himself placed them below the feet of Śrī Rāma, a ruler of men. Nay, with joined palms the said Bharata spoke as follows to Śrī Rāma: "Here is your entire kingdom, held in trust by me so long, rendered back to you by me. (54-55)

अद्य जन्म कृतार्थं मे संवृत्तश्च मनोरथः ।
यत् त्वां पश्यामि राजानमयोध्यां पुनरागतम् ॥ ५६ ॥

"Accomplished of purpose is my birth today and my desire too stands consummated in that I see you, its king come back to Ayodhyā. (56)

अवेक्षतां भवान् कोशं कोष्ठागारं गृहं बलम्।
भवतस्तेजसा सर्वं कृतं दशगुणं मया ॥ ५७ ॥

“Review you your exchequer, storehouses, palace and army. Everything has been increased tenfold (by me) by virtue of your moral force.” (57)

तथा ब्रुवाणं भरतं दृष्ट्वा तं भ्रातृवत्सलम्।
मुमुचुर्वानरा बाष्पं राक्षसश्च विभीषणः ॥ ५८ ॥

Seeing the said Bharata, who was so fond of his elder brother, speaking as above, the monkeys began to shed tears as also the ogre, Vibhīṣaṇa. (58)

ततः प्रहर्षाद् भरतमङ्कमारोप्य राघवः।
ययौ तेन विमानेन ससैन्यो भरताश्रमम् ॥ ५९ ॥

Placing Bharata on his lap in excessive joy, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, then flew with his entire army of monkeys and bears in that aerial car to the hermitage of Bharata. (59)

भरताश्रममासाद्य ससैन्यो राघवस्तदा।
अवतीर्य विमानाग्रादवतस्थे महीतले ॥ ६० ॥

Alighting from the top of the aerial car with the simian army on reaching the hermitage of Bharata, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, stood on the ground for the time being. (60)

अब्रवीत् तु तदा रामस्तद् विमानमनुत्तमम्।
वह वैश्रवणं देवमनुजानामि गम्यताम् ॥ ६१ ॥

Śrī Rāma for his part then said to that aerial car, which was unsurpassed by any other, “Let thee be gone and serve the glorious Kubera (son of Sage Viśravā). I grant you leave to depart.” (61)

ततो रामाभ्यनुज्ञातं तद् विमानमनुत्तमम्।
उत्तरां दिशमुद्दिश्य जगाम धनदालयम् ॥ ६२ ॥

Proceeding in a northerly direction when duly permitted by Śrī Rāma, that aerial car, which was unsurpassed by any other, then flew to the celestial abode of Kubera, the bestower of riches. (62)

विमानं पुष्पकं दिव्यं संगृहीतं तु रक्षसा।
अगमद् धनदं वेगाद् रामवाक्यप्रचोदितम् ॥ ६३ ॥

Impelled by the instruction of Śrī Rāma, the heavenly aerial car, Puṣpaka, which for its part had been seized by the ogre, Rāvaṇa, returned with all speed to Kubera. (63)

पुरोहितस्यात्मसखस्य राघवो
बृहस्पतेः शक्र इवामराधिपः।
निपीड्य पादौ पृथगासने शुभे
सहैव तेनोपविवेश वीर्यवान् ॥ ६४ ॥

Lovingly pressing the feet of his family priest, sage Vasiṣṭha, who was his great well-wisher, even as Indra, the suzerain lord of immortals, would press the feet of Sage Bṛhaspati, the preceptor of gods, the powerful Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) sat by his very side, though apart from him, on a splendid seat. (64)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये युद्धकाण्डे सप्तविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १२७ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and twenty-seven in the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टाविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXXVIII

Bharata renders back the kingdom of Ayodhyā to Śrī Rāma, who drives in a procession to the city; his consecration on the throne of Ayodhyā; His farewell to the monkeys and the glory of the epic

शिरस्यञ्जलिमाधाय कैकेयीनन्दिवर्धनः ।
बभाषे भरतो ज्येष्ठं रामं सत्यपराक्रमम् ॥ १ ॥

Placing his joined palms on his head as a token of submission, Bharata, the enhancer of Kaikeyī's joy, submitted as follows to his elder brother, Śrī Rāma, of unfailing prowess: (1)

पूजिता मामिका माता दत्तं राज्यमिदं मम ।
तद्वदामि पुनस्तुभ्यं यथा त्वमददा मम ॥ २ ॥

"This kingdom of Ayodhyā was bestowed on me by you; my mother too was honoured by you. I, for my part, hereby give it back to you just as you conferred it on me. (2)

धुरमेकाकिना न्यस्तां वृषभेण बलीयसा ।
किशोरवद् गुरुं भारं न वोढुमहमुत्सहे ॥ ३ ॥

"I am unable to bear the heavy burden any more than a young ox would sustain a load borne on its shoulders by an exceptionally strong bull all alone. (3)

वारिवेगेन महता भिन्नः सेतुरिव क्षरन् ।
दुर्बन्धनमिदं मन्ये राज्यच्छिद्रमसंवृतम् ॥ ४ ॥

"I believe this vulnerable point in the form of administration is difficult to protect, particularly when exposed, even as a dam which is leaking when breached by a strong onrush of water. (4)

गतिं खर इवाश्वस्य हंसस्येव च वायसः ।
नान्वेतुमुत्सहे वीर तव मार्गमरिंदम ॥ ५ ॥

"I am unable to follow in your footsteps any more than a donkey would follow the gallop of a horse or a crow would imitate the flight of a swan, O valiant scourge of your enemies! (5)

यथा चारोपितो वृक्षो जातश्चान्तर्निवेशने ।
महानपि दुरारोहो महास्कन्धः प्रशाखवान् ॥ ६ ॥
शीर्येत पुष्पितो भूत्वा न फलानि प्रदर्शयन् ।
तस्य नानुभवेदर्थं यस्य हेतोः स रोपितः ॥ ७ ॥
एषोपमा महाबाहो त्वमर्थं वेत्तुमर्हसि ।
यद्यस्मान् मनुजेन्द्र त्वं भर्ता भृत्यान् न शाधि हि ॥ ८ ॥

"Nay, if, for example, a fruit tree planted in an orchard forming part of one's own house and grows immensely and difficult to climb with a huge trunk and large boughs, dries up after flowering, without yielding fruit, he who planted it would not realize the object for which it was planted. This analogy would apply to you, O mighty-armed ruler of men, if you, our master, would not actually rule over us, your servants. You can easily understand what I mean. (6—8)

जगदद्याभिषिक्तं त्वामनुपश्यतु राघव ।
प्रतपन्तमिवादित्यं मध्याह्ने दीप्ततेजसम् ॥ ९ ॥

"Let the entire world see you engulfed with a dazzling brilliance like the sun at midday when consecrated on the throne of Ayodhyā today, O scion of Raghu! (9)

तूर्यसंघातनिर्घोषैः काञ्चीनूपुरनिःस्वनैः ।
मधुरैर्गीतशब्दैश्च प्रतिबुध्यस्व शेष्वा च ॥ १० ॥

"May you repose and wake too to the sounds of musical instruments, the tinkling of ornaments strung with tiny bells and worn round the waist and anklets and the dulcet strains of singing. (10)

यावदावर्तते चक्रं यावती च वसुंधरा।
तावत् त्वमिह लोकस्य स्वामित्वमनुवर्तय ॥ ११ ॥

“Enjoy you the rulership of the world while living here in Ayodhyā as long as the stellar sphere revolves and so far as the earth exists.” (11)

भरतस्य वचः श्रुत्वा रामः परपुरञ्जयः।
तथेति प्रतिजग्राह निषसादासने शुभे ॥ १२ ॥

Hearing the submission of Bharata, Śrī Rāma, the conqueror of hostile cities, granted his request in the words: “Be it so!” and took his place on a charming seat. (12)

ततः शत्रुघ्नवचनान्निपुणाः श्मश्रुवर्धनाः।
सुखहस्ताः सुशीघ्राश्च राघवं पर्यवारयन् ॥ १३ ॥

At the command of Śatrughna skilled barbers, who were soft-handed and very nimble too, thereupon surrounded Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu. (13)

पूर्वं तु भरते स्नाते लक्ष्मणे च महाबले।
सुग्रीवे वानरेन्द्रे च राक्षसेन्द्रे विभीषणे ॥ १४ ॥
विशोधितजटः स्नातश्चित्रमाल्यानुलेपनः।
महार्हवसनोपेतस्तस्थौ तत्र श्रिया ज्वलन् ॥ १५ ॥

Bharata having bathed first of all as also the exceptionally mighty Lakṣmaṇa as well as Sugrīva, the ruler of monkeys, and Vibhīṣaṇa, the king of ogres, Śrī Rāma had his matted locks disentangled, took his bath, was adorned with picturesque garlands and daubed with sandal-pastes etc., of various colours, was clothed in costly raiment and stood blazing in effulgence. (14-15)

प्रतिकर्म च रामस्य कारयामास वीर्यवान्।
लक्ष्मणस्य च लक्ष्मीवानिक्ष्वाकुलवर्धनः ॥ १६ ॥

Nay, the powerful and the glorious Śatrughna, the promoter of the race of Ikṣvāku, caused Śrī Rāma as well as Lakṣmaṇa to be adorned with jewels. (16)

प्रतिकर्म च सीतायाः सर्वा दशरथस्त्रियः।
आत्मनैव तदा चक्रुर्मनस्विन्यो मनोहरम् ॥ १७ ॥

And all the noble-minded widows of Emperor Daśaratha themselves adorned

Sītā in a soul-captivating style on that occasion. (17)

ततो वानरपत्नीनां सर्वासामेव शोभनम्।
चकार यत्नात् कौसल्या प्रहृष्टा पुत्रवत्सला ॥ १८ ॥

Later, Kausalyā, Śrī Rāma’s own mother, who felt highly rejoiced on the return of her sons and daughter-in-law and was so fond of her sons, adorned with care all the wives of the monkeys without exception in a splendid way. (18)

ततः शत्रुघ्नवचनात् सुमन्त्रो नाम सारथिः।
योजयित्वाभिचक्राम रथं सर्वाङ्गशोभनम् ॥ १९ ॥

Yoking horses to a chariot, charming in all parts, in obedience to the command of Śatrughna, the king’s charioteer-minister, Sumantra by name, then made his appearance before Śrī Rāma. (19)

अग्न्यर्कामलसंकाशं दिव्यं दृष्ट्वा रथं स्थितम्।
आरुरोह महाबाहू रामः परपुरंजयः ॥ २० ॥

Seeing the heavenly chariot, which cast an immaculate splendour like fire and the sun, standing before him, the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma, the conqueror of hostile cities, ascended it. (20)

सुग्रीवो हनुमांश्चैव महेन्द्रसदृशद्युती।
स्नातौ दिव्यनिर्भैर्वस्त्रैर्जगमतुः शुभकुण्डलौ ॥ २१ ॥

Attired in robes of ethereal splendour and adorned with sparkling earrings on having bathed, Sugrīva as well as Hanumān, who vied with the mighty Indra (the ruler of gods) in splendour, started towards the city. (21)

सर्वाभरणजुष्टाश्च ययुस्ताः शुभकुण्डलाः।
सुग्रीवपत्न्यः सीता च द्रष्टुं नगरमुत्सुकाः ॥ २२ ॥

Adorned with all sorts of jewels as well as with brilliant earrings, the celebrated consorts of Sugrīva as also Sītā advanced, eager as they were to behold the city of Ayodhyā. (22)

अयोध्यायां च सचिवा राज्ञो दशरथस्य च।
पुरोहितं पुरस्कृत्य मन्त्रयामासुरर्थवत् ॥ २३ ॥

Nay, placing Sage Vasiṣṭha, the family priest, at their head, in the meantime, when they were back in Ayodhyā, the ministers of King Daśaratha deliberated suitably the coronation of Śrī Rāma. (23)

अशोको विजयश्चैव सिद्धार्थश्च समाहिताः ।

मन्त्रयन् रामवृद्धयर्थमृद्धयर्थं नगरस्य च ॥ २४ ॥

Composed in mind, the ministers Aśoka as well as Vijaya as also Siddhārtha held consultation with one another with a view to the advancement of Śrī Rāma and the prosperity of the city of Ayodhyā. (24)

सर्वमेवाभिषेकार्थं जयार्हस्य महात्मनः ।

कर्तुमर्हथ रामस्य यद् यन्मङ्गलपूर्वकम् ॥ २५ ॥

They said to the servants: "Beginning with a benedictory prayer with a view to ensuring success, you ought to do unreservedly all that is needed for the consecration on the throne of Ayodhyā of the high-souled Śrī Rāma, who deserves all felicitation." (25)

इति ते मन्त्रिणः सर्वे संदिश्य च पुरोहितः ।

नगरान्निर्ययुस्तूर्णं रामदर्शनबुद्धयः ॥ २६ ॥

Having issued the foregoing instructions, all the aforesaid ministers as well as the family priest speedily set forth from the city, their mind set on the blessed sight of Śrī Rāma. (26)

हरियुक्तं सहस्राक्षो रथमिन्द्र इवानघः ।

प्रययौ रथमास्थाय रामो नगरमुत्तमम् ॥ २७ ॥

Taking his seat in a chariot even as the thousand-eyed Indra would in his chariot drawn by green horses, the sinless Śrī Rāma drove to the excellent city of Ayodhyā. (27)

जग्राह भरतो रश्मीन् शत्रुघ्नश्छत्रमाददे ।

लक्ष्मणो व्यजनं तस्य मूर्ध्नि संवीजयंस्तदा ॥ २८ ॥

Bharata took up the reins of the horses as a charioteer, Śatrughna held the parasol in his hand, while Lakṣmaṇa carried a fan thereby driving a current of air upon Śrī Rāma's head on that occasion. (28)

श्वेतं च वालव्यजनं जगृहे परितः स्थितः ।

अपरं चन्द्रसंकाशं राक्षसेन्द्रो विभीषणः ॥ २९ ॥

Standing on the other side of Śrī Rāma, opposite to Lakṣmaṇa, Vibhīṣaṇa, the ruler of ogres, held another white fan, consisting of a bunch of hair from the tail of a yak shining brightly as the moon. (29)

ऋषिसङ्घैस्तदाऽऽकाशे देवैश्च समरुद्गणैः ।

स्तूयमानस्य रामस्य शुश्रुवे मधुरध्वनिः ॥ ३० ॥

The sweet song which was sung in the sky by groups of Ṛṣis (the seers of Vedic Mantras) as well as by gods accompanied by the wind-god, while Śrī Rāma was being praised by them, was heard on that occasion. (30)

ततः शत्रुञ्जयं नाम कुञ्जरं पर्वतोपमम् ।

आरुरोह महातेजाः सुग्रीवः प्लवगर्षभः ॥ ३१ ॥

Sugrīva, a jewel among the monkeys, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, thereupon rode an elephant, Śatrumjaya by name, which looked like a mountain in size. (31)

नव नागसहस्राणि ययुरास्थाय वानराः ।

मानुषं विग्रहं कृत्वा सर्वाभरणभूषिताः ॥ ३२ ॥

Assuming a human semblance, and adorned with all kinds of jewels, the monkeys rode on nine thousand elephants. (32)

शङ्खशब्दप्रणादैश्च दुन्दुभीनां च निःस्वनैः ।

प्रययौ पुरुषव्याघ्रस्तां पुरीं हर्म्यमालिनीम् ॥ ३३ ॥

Accompanied by blasts of conches and shouts of joy uttered by men and the roll of drums, Śrī Rāma, a jewel among men, drove in state to that city adorned with rows of mansions. (33)

ददृशुस्ते समायान्तं राघवं सपुरःसरम् ।

विराजमानं वपुषा रथेनातिरथं तदा ॥ ३४ ॥

The people of Ayodhyā saw proceeding in a chariot Śrī Rāma, an exceedingly consummate car-warrior, shining brightly in his own person on that occasion and preceded by an advance party. (34)

ते वर्धयित्वा काकुत्स्थं रामेण प्रतिनन्दिताः ।
अनुजग्मुर्मात्मानं भ्रातृभिः परिवारितम् ॥ ३५ ॥

Having felicitated Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha, and joyously greeted in return by Śrī Rāma, they followed at the heels of the noble-minded Śrī Rāma, who was surrounded by his three brothers. (35)

अमात्यैर्बाह्यणैश्चैव तथा प्रकृतिभिर्वृतः ।
श्रिया विरुरुचे रामो नक्षत्रैरिव चन्द्रमाः ॥ ३६ ॥

Surrounded by his ministers as well as by Brāhmaṇas, as also by the people, Śrī Rāma shone brightly in his own effulgence as the moon would shine in the midst of galaxy of stars. (36)

स पुरोगामिभिस्तुर्यैस्तालस्वस्तिकपाणिभिः ।
प्रव्याहरद्भिर्मुदितैर्मङ्गलानि वृतो ययौ ॥ ३७ ॥

He drove surrounded by musicians, who marched ahead of him with trumpets, wooden cymbals and Swastikas (a kind of musical instrument) in their hands, joyfully singing festive songs. (37)

अक्षतं जातरूपं च गावः कन्याः सहद्विजाः ।
नरा मोदकहस्ताश्च रामस्य पुरतो ययुः ॥ ३८ ॥

Pots containing unbroken grains of rice, dyed with turmeric powder and thereby appearing golden in colour, cows and maidens accompanied by Brāhmaṇas (lit., the twice-born) and men carrying balls of sweets in their hands* marched before Śrī Rāma. (38)

सख्यं च रामः सुग्रीवे प्रभावं चानिलात्मजे ।
वानराणां च तत् कर्म ह्याचक्षेऽथ मन्त्रिणाम् ॥ ३९ ॥

Śrī Rāma next spoke to his counsellors about his alliance with Sugrīva, the might of Hanumān (son of the wind-god) and the well-known achievements of the monkeys. (39)

श्रुत्वा च विस्मयं जग्मुरयोध्यापुरवासिनः ।
वानराणां च तत् कर्म राक्षसानां च तद् बलम् ।
विभीषणस्य संयोगमाचक्षेऽथ मन्त्रिणाम् ॥ ४० ॥

The denizens of the city of Ayodhyā were astonished to hear of the well-known achievements of the monkeys in the shape of the conquest of Laṅkā and the commonly known might of the ogres. Śrī Rāma further spoke to his counsellors about his meeting with Vibhiṣaṇa. (40)

द्युतिमानेतदाख्याय रामो वानरसंयुतः ।
हृष्टपुष्टजनाकीर्णामयोध्यां प्रविवेश सः ॥ ४१ ॥

Having communicated all this, the celebrated and glorious Śrī Rāma, who was accompanied by the monkeys, penetrated deep into Ayodhyā, which was crowded with happy and well-fed people. (41)

ततो ह्यभ्युच्छयन् पौराः पताकाश्च गृहे गृहे ।
ऐक्ष्वाकाध्युषितं रम्यमाससाद पितुर्गृहम् ॥ ४२ ॥

The citizens thereupon raised aloft the pennons on their respective dwellings. Śrī Rāma too reached the lovely abode of his father, which had earlier been occupied by the kings of Ikṣvāku's dynasty. (42)

अथाब्रवीद् राजपुत्रो भरतं धर्मिणां वरम् ।
अर्थोपहितया वाचा मधुरं रघुनन्दनः ॥ ४३ ॥
पितुर्भवनमासाद्य प्रविश्य च महात्मनः ।
कौसल्यां च सुमित्रां च कैकेयीमभिवाद्य च ॥ ४४ ॥

Nay, having reached and penetrated deep into the abode of his high-souled father and greeted his mothers Kausalyā as well as Sumitrā and Kaikeyī, Prince Śrī Rāma, the delight of the Raghus, then spoke as follows to Bharata, a jewel among the virtuous, in a sweet language pregnant with meaning: (43-44)

तच्च मद्भवनं श्रेष्ठं साशोकवनिकं महत् ।
मुक्तावैदूर्यसंकीर्णं सुग्रीवाय निवेदय ॥ ४५ ॥

"Place at the disposal of Sugrīva, my well-known grand and most splendid palace studded with pearls and cat's-eye gems, including the Aśoka grove attached to it." (45)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा भरतः सत्यविक्रमः ।
हस्ते गृहीत्वा सुग्रीवं प्रविवेश तमालयम् ॥ ४६ ॥

* The presence of all these articles, animals and individuals is believed to be auspicious.

Taking Sugrīva by the hand on hearing the aforesaid command of Śrī Rāma, Bharata of unfailing prowess penetrated deep into the palace. (46)

ततस्तैलप्रदीपांश्च पर्यङ्कास्तरणानि च।
गृहीत्वा विविशुः क्षिप्रं शत्रुञ्जेन प्रचोदिताः ॥ ४७ ॥

Taking oil lamps and coverlets for the couches as enjoined by Śatrughna, servants thereupon speedily entered the palace. (47)

उवाच च महातेजाः सुग्रीवं राघवानुजः।
अभिषेकाय रामस्य दूतानाज्ञापय प्रभो ॥ ४८ ॥

Nay, Bharata (a younger brother of Śrī Rāma), who was endowed with extraordinary energy, said to Sugrīva, "Pray, dispatch couriers to bring sea-water for the consecration of Śrī Rāma on the throne of Ayodhyā, my lord." (48)

सौवर्णान् वानरेन्द्राणां चतुर्णां चतुरो घटान्।
ददौ क्षिप्रं स सुग्रीवः सर्वरत्नविभूषितान् ॥ ४९ ॥
तथा प्रत्यूषसमये चतुर्णां सागराम्भसाम्।
पूर्णेर्घटैः प्रतीक्षध्वं तथा कुरुत वानराः ॥ ५० ॥

The celebrated Sugrīva quickly gave over to four monkey-chiefs four golden pails encrusted with all kinds of precious stones, and said, "Set your programme in such a way, O monkeys, that you await my orders tomorrow at dawn with your pails filled with water from the four seas, respectively." (49-50)

एवमुक्ता महात्मानो वानरा वारणोपमाः।
उत्पेतुर्गगनं शीघ्रं गरुडा इव शीघ्रगाः ॥ ५१ ॥

Commanded thus, the colossal monkeys, who looked like elephants, swiftly sprang in the air like swift-flying eagles. (51)

जाम्बवांश्च हनूमांश्च वेगदर्शी च वानरः।
ऋषभश्चैव कलशाञ्जलपूर्वान्थानयन् ॥ ५२ ॥
नदीशतानां पञ्चानां जलं कुम्भैरुपाहरन्।
पूर्वात् समुद्रात् कलशं जलपूर्णमथानयत् ॥ ५३ ॥
सुषेणः सत्त्वसम्पन्नः सर्वरत्नविभूषितम्।
ऋषभो दक्षिणात्तूर्णं समुद्राज्जलमानयत् ॥ ५४ ॥

रक्तचन्दनकर्पूरैः संवृतं काञ्चनं घटम्।
गवयः पश्चिमात् तोयमाजहार महार्णावात् ॥ ५५ ॥
रत्नकुम्भेन महता शीतं मारुतविक्रमः।
उत्तराच्च जलं शीघ्रं गरुडानिलविक्रमः ॥ ५६ ॥
आजहार स धर्मात्मानिलः सर्वगुणान्वितः।
ततस्तैर्वानरश्रेष्ठैरानीतं प्रेक्ष्य तज्जलम् ॥ ५७ ॥
अभिषेकाय रामस्य शत्रुघ्नः सचिवैः सह।
पुरोहिताय श्रेष्ठाय सुहृद्भ्यश्च न्यवेदयत् ॥ ५८ ॥

Jāmbavān, the king of bears, and Hanumān as also the monkey Gavaya (who exhibited great impetuosity) as well as R̥ṣabha presently brought pails full of sea water. Another five hundred monkeys brought water from five hundred different rivers in the various parts of the country in different pails. Jāmbavān, who led an excellent army, who was richly endowed with courage, forthwith brought a pail, encrusted with all sorts of jewels, and full of water from the eastern sea, now known as the Bay of Bengal. Taking a golden pail, painted with red sandal-paste and camphor, R̥ṣabha speedily brought water from the southern sea, north of Laṅkā. Gavaya, who vied with the wind-god in prowess, brought in a large pail made of precious stones cold water from the western ocean, now called the Arabian Sea. And the celebrated Hanumān, son of the wind-god, who vied with Garuḍa, the king of birds, and the wind-god in prowess, nay, whose mind was set on virtue and who was endowed with all excellences, brought water with all speed from the northern sea (now known as the Arctic Ocean). Perceiving that water brought by the aforesaid jewels among the monkeys, Śatrughna, with his ministers, placed it at the disposal of Sage Vasiṣṭha, the arch-priest of Ikṣvāku's race, and other friends (such as the ministers) for the consecration of Śrī Rāma on the throne of Ayodhyā. (52—58)

ततः स प्रयतो वृद्धो वसिष्ठो ब्राह्मणैः सह।
रामं रत्नमये पीठे ससीतं संन्यवेशयत् ॥ ५९ ॥

Accompanied by the other Brāhmaṇas (members of the priestly class), the celebrated Sage Vasiṣṭha, who was fully active though aged, thereupon prevailed upon Śrī Rāma duly to occupy alongwith Sītā, his consort, the seat made of precious stones. (59)

वसिष्ठो वामदेवश्च जाबालिरथ काश्यपः ।
कात्यायनः सुयज्ञश्च गौतमो विजयस्तथा ॥ ६० ॥
अभ्यषिञ्चन्नरव्याघ्रं प्रसन्नेन सुगन्धिना ।
सलिलेन सहस्राक्षं वसवो वासवं यथा ॥ ६१ ॥

Sages Vasiṣṭha and Vāmadeva as also Jābāli, Kāśyapa (a scion of Kāśyapa), Kātyāyana and Suyajña (son of Vasiṣṭha), Gautama and Vijaya caused Śrī Rāma (the foremost of men) to be consecrated with transparent and fragrant water even as the eight Vasus consecrated the thousand-eyed Indra. (60-61)

ऋत्विग्भिर्बाह्यणैः पूर्वं कन्याभिर्मन्त्रिभिस्तथा ।
योधैश्चैवाभ्यषिञ्चस्ते सम्प्रहृष्टैः सनैगमैः ॥ ६२ ॥

They got him consecrated first by the Brāhmaṇas officiating as priests at the ceremony of consecration and then in order by sixteen virgins and ministers as well as by warriors, who felt exceedingly rejoiced, followed by merchants. (62)

सर्वौषधिरसैश्चापि दैवतैर्नभसि स्थितैः ।
चतुर्भिलोकपालैश्च सर्वैर्देवैश्च संगतैः ॥ ६३ ॥

Nay, the sages also allowed him to be sprinkled with the sap of all kinds of medicinal herbs by all the four gods, the guardians of the world, standing in the air, as well as by all the other gods assembled there. (63)

ब्रह्मणा निर्मितं पूर्वं किरीटं रत्नशोभितम् ।
अभिषिक्तः पुरा येन मनुस्तं दीप्ततेजसम् ॥ ६४ ॥
तस्यान्ववाये राजानः क्रमाद् येनाभिषेचिताः ।
सभायां हेमक्लृप्तायां शोभितायां महाधनैः ॥ ६५ ॥
रत्नैर्नानाविधैश्चैव चित्रितायां सुशोभनैः ।
नानारत्नमये पीठे कल्पयित्वा यथाविधि ॥ ६६ ॥
किरीटेन ततः पश्चाद् वसिष्ठेन महात्मना ।
ऋत्विग्भिर्भूषणैश्चैव समयोक्ष्यत राघवः ॥ ६७ ॥

There was a crown studded with precious stones and fashioned by Brahmā, the creator, at the beginning of creation, with which the seventh Manu (known by the name of Vaivaswata, so called because he was procreated by the sun-god) was adorned when consecrated on the throne and with which (afterwards) the kings who followed in his line were also successively invested when consecrated. After installing Śrī Rāma, who was clothed with a dazzling splendour, with due ceremony on a throne made of various precious stones in the council-hall, which was constituted of gold, was graced with abundant riches and studded with most charming jewels of various kinds, the scion of Raghu was later duly adorned with that crown as well as with jewels by the high-souled Vasiṣṭha and other priests officiating at the consecration ceremony. (64—67)

छत्रं तस्य च जग्राह शत्रुघ्नः पाण्डुरं शुभम् ।
श्वेतं च वालव्यजनं सुग्रीवो वानरेश्वरः ॥ ६८ ॥
अपरं चन्द्रसंकाशं राक्षसेन्द्रो विभीषणः ।
मालां ज्वलन्तीं वपुषा काञ्चनीं शतपुष्कराम् ॥ ६९ ॥
राघवाय ददौ वायुर्वासवेन प्रचोदितः ।
सर्वरत्नसमायुक्तं मणिभिश्च विभूषितम् ॥ ७० ॥
मुक्ताहारं नरेन्द्राय ददौ शक्रप्रचोदितः ।
प्रजगुर्देवगन्धर्वा ननृतुश्चाप्सरोगणाः ॥ ७१ ॥
अभिषेके तदर्हस्य तदा रामस्य धीमतः ।
भूमिः सस्यवती चैव फलवन्तश्च पादपाः ॥ ७२ ॥
गन्धवन्ति च पुष्पाणि बभूवु राघवोत्सवे ।
सहस्रशतमश्वानां धेनूनां च गवां तथा ॥ ७३ ॥
ददौ शतवृषान् पूर्वं द्विजेभ्यो मनुजर्षभः ।
त्रिंशत्कोटीर्हिरण्यस्य ब्राह्मणेभ्यो ददौ पुनः ॥ ७४ ॥
नानाभरणवस्त्राणि महार्हाणि च राघवः ।
अर्करश्मिप्रतीकाशां काञ्चनीं मणिविग्रहाम् ॥ ७५ ॥
सुग्रीवाय स्रजं दिव्यां प्रायच्छन्मनुजाधिपः ।
वैदूर्यमयचित्रे च चन्द्ररश्मिविभूषिते ॥ ७६ ॥
वालिपुत्राय धृतिमानङ्गदायाङ्गदे ददौ ।
मणिप्रवरजुष्टं तं मुक्ताहारमनुत्तमम् ॥ ७७ ॥

सीतायै प्रददौ रामश्चन्द्रशिमसमप्रभम्।
अरजे वाससी दिव्ये शुभान्याभरणानि च ॥ ७८ ॥

Śatrughna held over him the hereditary charming parasol and Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, the white whisk to fan him with; and Vibhīṣaṇa, the ruler of ogres, held another whisk shining brightly as the moon. Prompted by Indra, the wind-god presented to Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, a golden garland consisting of a hundred lotuses of gold and casting a splendour with its body. Nay, urged by Indra, he further presented to Śrī Rāma, the ruler of men, a necklace of pearls interspersed with jewels of every variety and enriched with gems as well. Gandharvas (celestial musicians) from among the gods themselves beautifully sang and troupes of apsarās (celestial nymphs) danced on that occasion at the consecration of the sagacious Śrī Rāma, who deserved that honour. Nay, the earth was covered with crops and the trees too bore fruits, while the flowers emitted their fragrance of the festive occasion of the consecration of Śrī Rāma. Śrī Rāma, the foremost of men, first gave away to the Brāhmaṇas (lit., the twice-born) a hundred thousand of horses and cows that had lately calved as also a hundred bulls. The scion of Raghu gave away later thirty crores of gold coins and every variety of costly jewels and raiment. Śrī Rāma, the suzerain lord of men, conferred on his friend, Sugrīva, the ruler of monkeys, a heavenly garland consisting of gold and gems and shining like the sun's rays. Śrī Rāma, who was full of love, gifted to Aṅgada, son of Vālī, a pair of lovely armlets made of cat's-eye gems and encrusted with diamonds and other precious stones. Śrī Rāma further bestowed on Sītā, his consort, the aforesaid pearl necklace (conferred on him by the wind-god), which was enriched with the foremost of gems, was unsurpassed by any other in splendour and shone brightly like moonbeams, a pair of immaculate celestial robes and other charming jewels. (68—78)

अवेक्षमाणा वैदेही प्रददौ वायुसूनवे।
अवमुच्यात्मनः कण्ठाद्भारं जनकनन्दिनी ॥ ७९ ॥
अवैक्षत हरीन् सर्वान् भर्तारं च मुहुर्महुः।
तामिद्विततः सम्प्रेक्ष्य बभाषे जनकात्मजाम् ॥ ८० ॥
प्रदेहि सुभगे हारं यस्य तुष्टासि भामिनि।
अथ सा वायुपुत्राय तं हारमसितेक्षणा ॥ ८१ ॥
तेजो धृतिर्यशो दाक्ष्यं सामर्थ्यं विनयो नयः।
पौरुषं विक्रमो बुद्धिर्यस्मिन्नेतानि नित्यदा ॥ ८२ ॥

Looking to his invaluable services, the princess of the Videha territory felt inclined to bestow a gift on Hanumān, son of the wind-god. Taking the pearl necklace, conferred on her by her husband from her neck, Janaka's daughter, cast a look at all the monkeys present in the assembly as well as at her husband again and again. Looking intently on her, Śrī Rāma, who could read the mind of another through his or her gestures, said to Janaka's daughter, "Gladly bestow the pearl necklace on him with whom you are pleased, O blessed young lady." The dark-eyed lady forthwith conferred that necklace on the son of the wind-god, in whom the following, viz., energy, firmness, renown, dexterity, competence, modesty, prudence, virility, prowess and intelligence are ever to be found. (79—82)

हनूमांस्तेन हारेण शुशुभे वानरर्षभः।
चन्द्रांशुचयगौरेण श्वेताभ्रेण यथाचलः ॥ ८३ ॥

Adorned with that jewel, Hanumān the foremost of monkeys, shone like a mountain silvered by a cloud, white as an aureole of moonbeams. (83)

सर्वे वानरवृद्धाश्च ये चान्ये वानरोत्तमाः।
वासोभिर्भूषणैश्चैव यथार्हं प्रतिपूजिताः ॥ ८४ ॥

All the senior ones among the monkeys as also others who were the foremost among them were honoured with raiment and ornaments according to their deserts. (84)

विभीषणोऽथ सुग्रीवो हनूमाञ्जाम्बवांस्तथा।
सर्वे वानरमुख्याश्च रामेणाक्लिष्टकर्मणा ॥ ८५ ॥

यथार्हं पूजिताः सर्वे कामै रत्नैश्च पुष्कलैः ।
प्रहृष्टमनसः सर्वे जग्मुरेव यथागतम् ॥ ८६ ॥

Also Vibhiṣaṇa, Sugrīva, Hanumān and Jāmbavān, nay, all the leaders of monkeys were honoured according to their deserts by Śrī Rāma, who was unwearied in action, with gifts of all desired objects as well as of abundant precious stones. And, greatly delighted in mind, all returned to their home even as they had come. (85-86)

ततो द्विविदमैन्दाभ्यां नीलाय च परंतपः ।
सर्वान् कामगुणान् वीक्ष्य प्रददौ वसुधाधिपः ॥ ८७ ॥

Carefully examining the articles proposed to be gifted, Śrī Rāma, the suzerain lord of the globe, the scourge of his enemies, thereupon conferred on the monkeys, Dwivida and Mainda, as also on Nīla all sorts of articles endowed with desired excellences. (87)

दृष्ट्वा सर्वे महात्मानस्ततस्ते वानरर्षभाः ।
विसृष्टाः पार्थिवेन्द्रेण किष्किन्धां समुपागमन् ॥ ८८ ॥

Dismissed by Śrī Rāma, the king of kings, on having seen the consecration of Śrī Rāma, all those high-souled jewels among the monkeys thereupon returned to Kiṣkindhā. (88)

सुग्रीवो वानरश्रेष्ठो दृष्ट्वा रामाभिषेचनम् ।
पूजितश्चैव रामेण किष्किन्धां प्राविशत् पुरीम् ॥ ८९ ॥

Having witnessed the consecration of Śrī Rāma and having been honoured by Śrī Rāma, Sugrīva, the foremost of monkeys, re-entered the city of Kiṣkindhā. (89)

विभीषणोऽपि धर्मात्मा सह तैर्नैर्ऋतर्षभैः ।
लब्ध्वा कुलधनं राजा लङ्कां प्रायान्महायशाः ॥ ९० ॥

Having inherited the fortune of his next of kin (in the shape of the sovereignty of Laṅkā), the highly renowned King Vibhiṣaṇa too, whose mind was set on virtue, returned to Laṅkā with the aforesaid jewels, among the ogres, who had accompanied him from that city. (90)

स राज्यमखिलं शासन्निहतारिर्महायशाः ।
राघवः परमोदारः शशास परया मुदा ।
उवाच लक्ष्मणं रामो धर्मज्ञं धर्मवत्सलः ॥ ९१ ॥

Ruling over the entire kingdom of Kosala, the aforesaid Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, who having exterminated his enemies, had earned a great renown and was supremely generous, reigned with supreme joy. Śrī Rāma, who was a lover of piety, spoke as follows to Lakṣmaṇa, who knew what is right: (91)

आतिष्ठ धर्मज्ञ मया सहेमां
गां पूर्वराजाध्युषितां बलेन ।
तुल्यं मया त्वं पितृभिर्धृता या
तां यौवराज्ये धुरमुद्वहस्व ॥ ९२ ॥

“Rule with me, O knower of what is right, this earth, which was protected in the past by the former kings of Ayodhyā with the help of an army. Installed in the office of Prince Regent, bear you like me the burden of sovereignty, which was borne in the past by our forbears.” (92)

सर्वात्मना पर्यनुनीयमानो
यदा न सौमित्रिरुपैति योगम् ।
नियुज्यमानो भुवि यौवराज्ये
ततोऽभ्यषिञ्चद् भरतं महात्मा ॥ ९३ ॥

When Lakṣmaṇa, son of Sumitrā, did not give his consent even though being repeatedly entreated with his entire soul by Śrī Rāma, nay, even though being actually appointed to the office of Prince Regent of the entire globe, the high-souled Śrī Rāma thereupon consecrated Bharata as the Prince Regent of Ayodhyā. (93)

पौण्डरीकाश्वमेधाभ्यां वाजपेयेन चासकृत् ।
अन्यैश्च विविधैर्यज्ञैरयजत् पार्थिवात्मजः ॥ ९४ ॥

Śrī Rāma (son of King Daśaratha) propitiated the Lord more than once through the performance of the Pauṇḍarika and Aśwamedha sacrifices and the Vājapeya sacrifice as also other sacrifices of every description. (94)

राज्यं दशसहस्राणि प्राप्य वर्षाणि राघवः ।

शताश्वमेधानाजहे सदश्वान् भूरिदक्षिणान् ॥ ९५ ॥

Having enjoyed the kingship for ten and one* thousand years, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, performed during this period a hundred horse-sacrifices in which excellent horses were sacrificed and liberal fees were paid to the priests officiating at each. (95)

आजानुलम्बिबाहुः स महावक्षाः प्रतापवान् ।

लक्ष्मणानुचरो रामः शशास पृथिवीमिमाम् ॥ ९६ ॥

With Lakṣmaṇa as his follower, the said Śrī Rāma, whose arms reached to his knees and who was broad-chested and glorious, ruled this earth well. (96)

राघवश्चापि धर्मात्मा प्राप्य राज्यमनुत्तमम् ।

ईजे बहुविधैर्यज्ञैः ससुहृज्जातिबान्धवः ॥ ९७ ॥

Having attained sovereignty, which was unsurpassed by any other, Śrī Rāma, whose mind was set on virtue, further propitiated the Lord through many kinds of sacrificial performances with the co-operation of his friends, relations and kinsfolk. (97)

न पर्यदेवन् विधवा न च व्यालकृतं भयम् ।

न व्याधिजं भयं चासीद् रामे राज्यं प्रशासति ॥ ९८ ॥

While Śrī Rāma ruled over the kingdom of Ayodhyā, there were no widows to lament over their loss nor was there any danger from beasts of prey or snakes nor, again, was there any fear of diseases. (98)

निर्दस्युरभवल्लोको नानर्थं कश्चिदस्पृशत् ।

न च स्म वृद्धा बालानां प्रेतकार्याणि कुर्वते ॥ ९९ ॥

The world had no robbers or thieves nor did anyone suffer harm. Nor again did old people ever perform obsequies relating to youngsters. (99)

सर्वं मुदितमेवासीत् सर्वो धर्मपरोऽभवत् ।

राममेवानुपश्यन्तो नाभ्यर्हिसन् परस्परम् ॥ १०० ॥

Every creature felt pleased, nay, everyone was devoted to righteousness. Turning their eyes towards Śrī Rāma alone, creatures did not kill one another. (100)

आसन् वर्षसहस्राणि तथा पुत्रसहस्रिणः ।

निरामया विशोकाश्च रामे राज्यं प्रशासति ॥ १०१ ॥

So long as Śrī Rāma ruled the kingdom of Ayodhyā, people lived to an age of thousands of years, were blessed with thousands of sons and remained free from diseases and grief. (101)

रामो रामो राम इति प्रजानामभवन् कथाः ।

रामभूतं जगदभूद् रामे राज्यं प्रशासति ॥ १०२ ॥

So long as Śrī Rāma ruled the kingdom, the talks of the people centred round Śrī Rāma, Śrī Rāma and Śrī Rāma alone; nay, the world itself appeared to them as transformed into Śrī Rāma. (102)

नित्यमूला नित्यफलास्तरवस्तत्र पुष्पिताः ।

कामवर्षी च पर्जन्यः सुखस्पर्शश्च मारुतः ॥ १०३ ॥

Trees in Ayodhyā ever remained firmly rooted and bore fruit and flowers perpetually. Clouds sent down rain only when desired and the wind was ever delightful to the touch. (103)

ब्राह्मणाः क्षत्रिया वैश्याः शूद्रा लोभविर्वर्जिताः ।

स्वकर्मसु प्रवर्तन्ते तुष्टाः स्वैरेव कर्मभिः ॥ १०४ ॥

Remaining entirely free from avarice and satisfied with their own avocations, the Brāhmaṇas (members of the priestly class), the Kṣatriyas (those belonging to the warrior class), the Vaiśyas (the members of the mercantile class) and the Śūdras (those belonging to the labouring class) remained engaged in their own duties. (104)

आसन् प्रजा धर्मपरा रामे शासति नानृताः ।

सर्वे लक्षणसम्पन्नाः सर्वे धर्मपरायणाः ॥ १०५ ॥

So long as Śrī Rāma ruled, the people remained devoted to pious observances and never told lies. Nay, all were endowed with auspicious bodily marks and all were given to righteousness. (105)

दशवर्षसहस्राणि दशवर्षशतानि च ।

भ्रातृभिः सहितः श्रीमान् रामो राज्यमकारयत् ॥ १०६ ॥

With his three younger brothers, the glorious Śrī Rāma ruled for ten and one thousand (11,000) years. (106)

धर्म्यं यशस्यमायुष्यं राज्ञां च विजयावहम् ।

आदिकाव्यमिदं चार्षं पुरा वाल्मीकिना कृतम् ॥ १०७ ॥

यः शृणोति सदा लोके नरः पापात् प्रमुच्यते ।

पुत्रकामश्च पुत्रान् वै धनकामो धनानि च ॥ १०८ ॥

लभते मनुजो लोके श्रुत्वा रामाभिषेचनम् ।

महीं विजयते राजा रिपूंश्चाप्यधितिष्ठति ॥ १०९ ॥

He who listens everyday to this oldest epic, composed in the days of old by Sage Vālmiki, which is calculated to bestow religious merit, renown and longevity and to bring victory to kings and lends support to the Vedas, is completely rid of sin. On hearing the narrative of his consecration on the throne of Ayodhyā a man seeking a son obtains sons and a seeker of wealth obtains riches in the world. A king, who does so conquers the earth and overcomes his enemies. (107—109)

राघवेण यथा माता सुमित्रा लक्ष्मणेन च ।

भरतेन च कैकेयी जीवपुत्रास्तथा स्त्रियः ॥ ११० ॥

भविष्यन्ति सदानन्दाः पुत्रपौत्रसमन्विताः ।

श्रुत्वा रामायणमिदं दीर्घमायुश्च विन्दति ॥ १११ ॥

रामस्य विजयं चेमं सर्वमक्लिष्टकर्मणः ।

शृणोति य इदं काव्यं पुरा वाल्मीकिना कृतम् ॥ ११२ ॥

श्रद्धधानो जितक्रोधो दुर्गाण्यतितरत्यसौ ।

समागम्य प्रवासान्ते रमन्ते सह बान्धवैः ॥ ११३ ॥

शृण्वन्ति य इदं काव्यं पुरा वाल्मीकिना कृतम् ।

ते प्रार्थितान् वरान् सर्वान् प्राप्नुवन्तीह राघवात् ॥ ११४ ॥

Even as Kausalyā, Śrī Rāma's mother, had a living son in Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, Sumitrā in Lakṣmaṇa and Śatrughna, and Kaikeyī in Bharata, so women listening to the aforementioned story will have living sons, will ever experience joy and will be blessed with sons and grandsons in abundance. Nay, one attains a long life on listening to this poem, the Rāmāyaṇa and particularly to this entire narrative of the victory of Śrī Rāma, who was unwearied in action. Again, he who, having conquered his anger, reverently listens to this epic composed in the days of old by Sage Vālmiki, overcomes all difficulties. They who listen to this epic composed of yore by Sage Vālmiki will get reunited with their relations at the end of their absence from home, and rejoice with them. They will also secure from Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, in this world all the boons coveted by them. (110—114)

श्रवणेन सुराः सर्वे प्रीयन्ते सम्प्रशृण्वताम् ।

विनायकाश्च शाम्यन्ति गृहे तिष्ठन्ति यस्य वै ॥ ११५ ॥

Through a hearing of this epic all the gods of the Hindu pantheon get pleased with those who carefully listen to it. Nay, all obstacles coming in the way of an individual, in whose house a copy of the epic exists, definitely come to an end. (115)

विजयेत महीं राजा प्रवासी स्वस्तिमान् भवेत् ।

स्त्रियो रजस्वलाः श्रुत्वा पुत्रान् सूर्यनुत्तमान् ॥ ११६ ॥

A king listening to this epic will be able to conquer the earth, an individual staying away from home will fare well and women listening to it prior to their pregnancy will give birth to sons who are unsurpassed by another in point of excellences. (116)

पूजयंश्च पठंश्चैनमितिहासं पुरातनम् ।

सर्वपापैः प्रमुच्येत दीर्घमायुरवाप्नुयात् ॥ ११७ ॥

A man offering worship to and reading this ancient historical work is completely rid of all sins and attains longevity. (117)

प्रणम्य शिरसा नित्यं श्रोतव्यं क्षत्रियैर्द्विजात् ।

ऐश्वर्यं पुत्रलाभश्च भविष्यति न संशयः ॥ ११८ ॥

After offering respectful salutation with their heads bent low, the epic should be listened to by the Kṣatriyas from the mouth of a Brāhmaṇa (lit., a member of the twice-born class) everyday. Lordship as well as the birth of a son will be secured by them: there is no doubt about it. (118)

रामायणमिदं कृत्स्नं शृण्वतः पठतः सदा ।
प्रीयते सततं रामः स हि विष्णुः सनातनः ॥ ११९ ॥

He, who listens to or reads the whole of this Rāmāyaṇa daily, Śrī Rāma remains constantly pleased. Indeed, Rāma is none else than the eternal Lord Viṣṇu. (119)

आदिदेवो महाबाहुर्हरिर्नारायणः प्रभुः ।
साक्षाद् रामो रघुश्रेष्ठः शेषो लक्ष्मण उच्यते ॥ १२० ॥

The mighty-armed Lord Śrī Hari, who has His abode on the waters of the ocean of milk, has appeared in person as Śrī Rāma, the foremost of the Raghus, and Śeṣa, the serpent-god forming His couch, is spoken of as Lakṣmaṇa. (120)

एवमेतत् पुरावृत्तमाख्यानं भद्रमस्तु वः ।
प्रव्याहरत विस्मयं बलं विष्णोः प्रवर्धताम् ॥ १२१ ॥

Thus runs this ancient historical narrative. May all be well with you ! Confidently repeat it. So say Princes Lava and Kuśa, sons of Śrī Rāma, to whom this epic was taught first of all by Vālmīki in his own hermitage, where they were born—vide I. iv. 6 of Vālmīki-Rāmāyaṇa (Number-1). May the power of Lord Viṣṇu grow immensely thereby. (121)

देवाश्च सर्वे तुष्यन्ति ग्रहणाच्छ्रवणात् तथा ।
रामायणस्य श्रवणे तृष्यन्ति पितरः सदा ॥ १२२ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये युद्धकाण्डेऽष्टाविंशत्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १२८ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and twenty-eight in the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

॥ युद्धकाण्डं सम्पूर्णम् ॥

END OF YUDDHAKĀṆḌA

Nay, all the gods get propitiated by means of listening to and apprehending this narrative. The manes are gratified forever through a hearing of the Rāmāyaṇa. (122)

भक्त्या रामस्य ये चेमां संहितामृषिणा कृताम् ।
ये लिखन्तीह च नरास्तेषां वासस्त्रिविष्टपे ॥ १२३ ॥

Residence in heaven after death is assured in the case of those men who transcribe with devotion in this life this collection of verses depicting the story of Śrī Rāma, composed by the sage Vālmīki. (123)

कुटुम्बवृद्धिं धनधान्यवृद्धिं
स्त्रियश्च मुख्याः सुखमुत्तमं च ।
श्रुत्वा शुभं काव्यमिदं महार्थं
प्राप्नोति सर्वा भुवि चार्थसिद्धिम् ॥ १२४ ॥

On listening to this charming epic, full of great meaning, one secures the growth of one's family as well as the augmentation of one's wealth and stock of grains, excellent women for wives and supreme felicity as well as the accomplishment of all one's objects on earth. (124)

आयुष्यमारोग्यकरं यशस्यं
सौभ्रातृकं बुद्धिकरं शुभं च ।
श्रोतव्यमेतन्नियमेन सद्भि-
राख्यानमोजस्करमृद्धिकामैः ॥ १२५ ॥

This charming narrative of Śrī Rāma, which is conducive to longevity, health, renown, brotherly love, wisdom and vitality, should be listened to with regularity by virtuous men desirous of prosperity. (125)

श्रीमद्वाल्मीकीयरामायणम्

उत्तरकाण्डम्

प्रथमः सर्गः

Śrīmad Vālmīki-Rāmāyaṇa

(Uttarakāṇḍa)

[Book Seven]

Canto I

Great seers meet Śrī Rāma in the audience hall, his conversation with them and the questions he addresses to them

प्राप्तराज्यस्य रामस्य राक्षसानां वधे कृते ।
आजगमुर्मुनयः सर्वे राघवं प्रतिनन्दितुम् ॥ १ ॥
When Śrī Rāma had regained the kingdom, after the destruction of the Rākṣasas, all the sages came to offer their felicitations to him. (1)

कौशिकोऽथ यवक्रीतो गार्ग्यो गालव एव च ।
कण्वो मेधातिथेः पुत्रः पूर्वस्यां दिशि ये श्रिताः ॥ २ ॥
स्वस्त्यात्रेयश्च भगवान् नमुचिः प्रमुचिस्तथा ।
अगस्त्योऽत्रिश्च भगवान् सुमुखो विमुखस्तथा ॥ ३ ॥
आजगमुस्ते सहागस्त्या ये श्रिता दक्षिणां दिशम् ।
नृषङ्गुः कवषो धौम्यः कौशेयश्च महानृषिः ॥ ४ ॥
तेऽप्याजगमुः शशिष्या वै ये श्रिताः पश्चिमां दिशम् ।
वसिष्ठः कश्यपोऽथात्रिर्विश्वामित्रः सगौतमः ॥ ५ ॥
जमदग्निर्भरद्वाजस्तेऽपि सप्तर्षयस्तथा ।
उदीच्यां दिशि सप्तैते नित्यमेव निवासिनः ॥ ६ ॥
सम्प्राप्यैते महात्मानो राघवस्य निवेशनम् ।
विष्टिताः प्रतिहारार्थं हुताशनसमप्रभाः ॥ ७ ॥

वेदवेदाङ्गविदुषो नानाशास्त्रविशारदाः ।
द्वाःस्थं प्रोवाच धर्मात्मा अगस्त्यो मुनिसत्तमः ॥ ८ ॥
निवेद्यतां दाशरथेर्ऋषयो वयमागताः ।
प्रतीहारस्ततस्तूर्णमगस्त्यवचनाद् द्रुतम् ॥ ९ ॥
समीपं राघवस्याशु प्रविवेश महात्मनः ।
नयेद्भित्तज्ञः सद्वृत्तो दक्षो धैर्यसमन्वितः ॥ १० ॥

Kauśika, Yavakṛita, Gārgya, Gālava, Kaṇva, the son of Medhātithi—sages who resided in the eastern quarter; Swastyātreyā, the revered Namuci, Pramuci, Agastya and alongwith Agastya came the revered Atri, Sumukha, Vimukha—sages who resided in the southern quarter; Nṛṣaṅgu, Kavaṣa, Dhaumya, the great seer Kauśeya—sages who resided in the western quarter, came attended by their disciples; Vasiṣṭha*,
Kaśyapa, Atri, Viśwāmitra alongwith
Gautama, Jamadagni and Bharadwāja—seven seers residing permanently in the northern quarter—all these high-souled

* Vasiṣṭha was already present in Ayodhyā as the family-priest and preceptor of the kings of Ikṣvāku's dynsty. He simultaneously existed in another form in the region of the Saptarṣis. It is this latter who is spoken of as having arrived from that region on that occasion.

personages with splendour like that of fire, versed in the Vedas and the Vedāṅgas, deeply learned in the various Śāstras, arrived at the mansion of Śrī Rāma and waited for being announced by the door-keeper. Agastya, the soul of righteousness and the best of sages, told the door-keeper : “Inform Rāma that we, seers, have arrived.” Soon after hearing the words of Agastya, the door-keeper, well-versed in the laws of right conduct, skilled in reading the minds of people, of good conduct, clever and courageous, rushed to the presence of Śrī Rāma, the great soul. (2—10)

स रामं दृश्य सहसा पूर्णचन्द्रसमद्युतिम्।
अगस्त्यं कथयामास सम्प्राप्तमृषिसत्तमम्॥ ११ ॥

Seeing Śrī Rāma, whose lustre was equal to that of the full moon, he informed him immediately of the arrival of sage Agastya alongwith several other sages. (11)

श्रुत्वा प्राप्तान् मुनींस्तांस्तु बालसूर्यसमप्रभान्।
प्रत्युवाच ततो द्वाःस्थं प्रवेशय यथासुखम्॥ १२ ॥

Having heard of the arrival of those sages, whose lustre was equal to that of the rising sun, Śrī Rāma asked the door-keeper to bring them in honourably. (12)

दृष्ट्वा प्राप्तान् मुनींस्तांस्तु प्रत्युत्थाय कृताञ्जलिः।
पाद्यार्घ्यादिभिरानर्च गां निवेद्य च सादरम्॥ १३ ॥

रामोऽभिवाद्य प्रयत आसनान्यादिदेश ह।
तेषु काञ्चनचित्रेषु महत्सु च वरेषु च॥ १४ ॥
कुशान्तर्धानदत्तेषु मृगचर्मयुतेषु च।
यथार्हमुपविष्टास्ते आसनेष्वृषिपुङ्गवाः॥ १५ ॥

रामेण कुशलं पृष्टाः सशिष्याः सपुरोगमाः।
महर्षयो वेदविदो रामं वचनमब्रुवन्।
कुशलं नो महाबाहो सर्वत्र रघुनन्दन॥ १६ ॥

Seeing the arrival of the aforesaid sages, Śrī Rāma stood up with folded hands, piously did obeisance to them, respectfully offered Pādyā and Arghya (water to wash their feet and hands with), etc., as well as a cow, and ordered that seats should be arranged for them. When these best of sages were seated, as befitted them, on the excellent seats made of sacred grass, embroidered with gold lace and covered with deerskin, and when Śrī Rāma had made kind inquiries regarding their own welfare and of their disciples and elders, those eminent sages, learned in the Vedas, spoke the following words to Śrī Rāma: “O mighty-armed, delight of the line of Raghu, we are quite well everywhere. (13—16)

त्वां तु दिष्ट्या कुशलिनं पश्यामो हतशात्रवम्।
दिष्ट्या त्वया हतो राजन् रावणो लोकरावणः॥ १७ ॥

“Fortunately we see you quite safe after destroying your enemies; it was our good fortune that Rāvaṇa, the tormentor of the world, was killed by you. (17)

नहि भारः स ते राम रावणः पुत्रपौत्रवान्।
सधनुस्त्वं हि लोकांस्त्रीन् विजयेथा न संशयः॥ १८ ॥

“To you, who could with your bow conquer the three worlds without doubt, Rāvaṇa, with his sons and grandsons, was no problem. (18)

दिष्ट्या त्वया हतो राम रावणो राक्षसेश्वरः।
दिष्ट्या विजयिनं त्वाद्य पश्यामः सह सीतया॥ १९ ॥
लक्ष्मणेन च धर्मात्मन् भ्रात्रा त्वद्वितकारिणा।
मातृभिर्भ्रातृसहितं पश्यामोऽद्य वयं नृप॥ २० ॥

“It is really great good luck that Rāvaṇa, the king of the Rākṣasas, was killed by you and we are able to see you victorious in the company of Sītā and of Lakṣmaṇa, your brother, who always promotes your interests; now we see you also, O virtuous king, in the company of your mothers and other brothers today. (19-20)

दिष्ट्या प्रहस्तो विकटो विरूपाक्षो महोदरः।
अकम्पनश्च दुर्धर्षो निहतास्ते निशाचराः॥ २१ ॥

“The night-wanderers, Prahastā, Vikatā, Virūpākṣa, Mahodara, Akampana, the man hard to quell, were all killed by you by good fortune. (21)

यस्य प्रमाणाद् विपुलं प्रमाणं नेह विद्यते।
दिष्ट्या ते समरे राम कुम्भकर्णो निपातितः ॥ २२ ॥

“Kumbhakarna, other than whom no one had greater dimensions, was by good luck killed by you in battle, O Rāma ! (22)

त्रिशिराश्चातिकायश्च देवान्तकनरान्तकौ।
दिष्ट्या ते निहता राम महावीर्या निशाचराः ॥ २३ ॥

“Triśirā, Atikāya, Devāntaka and Narāntaka, those very powerful night-wanderers were also fortunately killed by you, O Rāma. (23)

कुम्भश्चैव निकुम्भश्च राक्षसौ भीमदर्शनौ।
दिष्ट्या तौ निहतौ राम कुम्भकर्णसुतौ मृधे ॥ २४ ॥

“Kumbha and Nikumbha, the fierce-looking sons of Kumbhakarna, were also fortunately slain by you in battle, O Rāma. (24)

युद्धोन्मत्तश्च मत्तश्च कालान्तकयमोपमौ।
यज्ञकोपश्च बलवान् धूम्राक्षो नाम राक्षसः ॥ २५ ॥
कुर्वन्तः कदनं घोरमेते शस्त्रास्त्रपारगाः।
अन्तकप्रतिमैर्बाणैर्दिष्ट्या विनिहतास्त्वया ॥ २६ ॥

“Yuddhonmatta and Matta, comparable to Yama, the great slayer, the mighty Yajñakopa and the Rākṣasa named Dhūmrākṣa, these well-practised in Śastra and Astra (short and long range weapons), who were doing ghastly slaughter with arrows dreadful like Yama, were killed by you by good luck. (25-26)

दिष्ट्या त्वं राक्षसेन्द्रेण द्वन्द्वयुद्धमुपागतः।
देवतानामवध्येन विजयं प्राप्तवानसि ॥ २७ ॥

“It was by good fortune that you came out victorious in the duel with the king of the Rākṣasas, who could not be killed even by gods. (27)

संख्ये तस्य न किञ्चित् तु रावणस्य पराभवः।
द्वन्द्वयुद्धमनुप्राप्तो दिष्ट्या ते रावणिर्हतः ॥ २८ ॥

“That Rāvaṇa suffered defeat at your hands, is no great matter for surprise; but it is a matter for gratification that his son, who fought a duel with you, was killed by you. (28)

दिष्ट्या तस्य महाबाहो कालस्येवाभिधावतः।
मुक्तः सुररिपोर्वीर प्राप्तश्च विजयस्त्वया ॥ २९ ॥

“That you, O mighty-armed hero, obtained release from the Nāgapāśa (noose of snakes) of Indrajit, the enemy of gods, and rushed at him like Yama, and got the better of him, is really due to our good luck. (29)

अभिनन्दाम ते सर्वे संश्रुत्येन्द्रजितो वधम्।
अवध्यः सर्वभूतानां महामायाधरो युधि ॥ ३० ॥
विस्मयस्त्वेष चास्माकं तं श्रुत्वेन्द्रजितं हतम्।
एते चान्ये च बहवो राक्षसाः कामरूपिणः ॥ ३१ ॥
दिष्ट्या त्वया हता वीरा रघूणां कुलवर्धन।
दत्त्वा पुण्यामिमां वीर सौम्यामभयदक्षिणाम् ॥ ३२ ॥
दिष्ट्या वर्धसि काकुत्स्थ जयेनामित्रकर्शन।
श्रुत्वा तु वचनं तेषां मुनीनां भावितात्मनाम् ॥ ३३ ॥
विस्मयं परमं गत्वा रामः प्राञ्जलिरब्रवीत्।
भगवन्तः कुम्भकर्णं रावणं च निशाचरम् ॥ ३४ ॥
अतिक्रम्य महावीर्यो किं प्रशंसथ रावणिम्।
महोदरं प्रहस्तं च विरूपाक्षं च राक्षसम् ॥ ३५ ॥
मत्तोन्मत्तौ च दुर्धर्षौ देवान्तकनरान्तकौ।
अतिक्रम्य महावीरान् किं प्रशंसथ रावणिम् ॥ ३६ ॥

“All of us offer our felicitations to you on hearing of Indrajit's death. We were indeed agreeably surprised to hear that Indrajit who employed great conjuring tricks, and who could not be slain by any being, was killed by you. We are so fortunate, O glorifier of Raghu dynasty, that you killed these and many other ogre-warriors capable of assuming any form they wished. This is indeed our good fortune, O hero, O scion of the line of Kakutstha, O destroyer of your foes, that you have given us the gift of Abhaya (freedom from fear), which is both auspicious and kind, and have acquired fame through your victory.” Hearing these words of the sages, who had realized the true nature of their Self, Śrī Rāma became greatly surprised and spoke with folded hands: “Overleaping the very powerful

Kumbhakarna and the Rākṣasa Rāvaṇa, how does it happen that all of you praise the son of Rāvaṇa? Disregarding the very brave heroes, Mahodara, Prahasta, Virūpākṣa the Rākṣasa, and the arrogant Matta and Unmatta, Devāntaka and Narāntaka, how does it happen that you applaud the son of Rāvaṇa? (30—36)

अतिकायं त्रिशिरसं धूम्राक्षं च निशाचरम् ।
अतिक्रम्य महावीर्यान् किं प्रशंसथ रावणिम् ॥ ३७ ॥

“Overleaping the very powerful Atikāya, Trīśirā and the Rākṣasa Dhūmrākṣa, how is it that you bestow plaudits on the son of Rāvaṇa? (37)

कीदृशो वै प्रभावोऽस्य किं बलं कः पराक्रमः ।
केन वा कारणेनैष रावणादतिरिच्यते ॥ ३८ ॥

“What is the nature of his prowess, what the nature of his strength and valour? For what reason is he held superior even to his father? (38)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे प्रथमः सर्गः ॥ १ ॥

Thus ends Canto One in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वितीयः सर्गः

Canto II

Agastya discourses on the good qualities and Tapas of Pulastya and the origin of Viśravā

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा राघवस्य महात्मनः ।
कुम्भयोनिर्महातेजा वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ १ ॥

Hearing these words of the high-souled Rāghava, Agastya of great lustre, spoke the following words: (1)

शृणु राम तथा वृत्तं तस्य तेजोबलं महत् ।
जघान शत्रून् येनासौ न च वध्यः स शत्रुभिः ॥ २ ॥

“O Śrī Rāma, hear of his (Indrajit's) great valour and strength, by virtue of which he slew his enemies but could not

शक्यं यदि मया श्रोतुं न खल्वाज्ञापयामि वः ।
यदि गुह्यं न चेद् वक्तुं श्रोतुमिच्छामि कथ्यताम् ॥ ३९ ॥

“If it is not a secret not to be divulged, and if I can know of it, I should like to hear of it. Please tell me. I do not, however, order you to do so. (39)

शक्रोऽपि विजितस्तेन कथं लब्धवरश्च सः ।
कथं च बलवान् पुत्रो न पिता तस्य रावणः ॥ ४० ॥

“How did he obtain the boons and how did he defeat even Indra? How did he become more powerful than his father, Rāvaṇa? (40)

कथं पितुश्चाप्यधिको महाहवे
शक्रस्य जेता हि कथं स राक्षसः ।
वरांश्च लब्धाः कथयस्व मेऽद्य

तत् पाप्रच्छतश्चास्य मुनीन्द्र सर्वम् ॥ ४१ ॥

“O best of sages, tell me today, as I am exceedingly inquisitive, how that Rākṣasa excelled his father in warfare, how he vanquished Indra and how he obtained boons. Please tell me all.” (41)

be slain by any. (2)

तावत् ते रावणस्येदं कुलं जन्म च राघव ।
वरप्रदानं च तथा तस्मै दत्तं ब्रवीमि ते ॥ ३ ॥

“Meanwhile I shall tell you, O Rāghava, about the family of Rāvaṇa, of his birth, of the boons that were granted to him and how. (3)

पुरा कृतयुगे राम प्रजापतिसुतः प्रभुः ।
पुलस्त्यो नाम ब्रह्मर्षिः साक्षादिव पितामहः ॥ ४ ॥

“O Śrī Rāma, in the remote Kṛtayuga

there lived a famous and powerful Brahmarṣi, Pulastya by name, a son of Brahmā and the very like of the creator himself. (4)

नानुकीर्त्या गुणास्तस्य धर्मतः शीलतस्तथा ।
प्रजापतेः पुत्र इति वक्तुं शक्यं हि नामतः ॥ ५ ॥

“It is not possible to praise the qualities pertaining to his righteousness and character. They speak for themselves when it is just stated that he was a son of the creator. (5)

प्रजापतिसुतत्वेन देवानां वल्लभो हि सः ।
इष्टः सर्वस्य लोकस्य गुणैः शुभ्रैर्महामतिः ॥ ६ ॥

“By virtue of his being a son of the creator, he became the favourite of gods; by reason of his pure qualities, this great intellectual endeared himself to all people. (6)

स तु धर्मप्रसङ्गेन मेरोः पार्श्वे महागिरेः ।
तृणबिन्दाश्रमं गत्वाप्यवसन्मुनिपुङ्गवः ॥ ७ ॥

“That jewel among sages, being an ardent votary of Dharma, went to the hermitage of Tṛṇabindu on the slopes of Mount Meru, and lived there. (7)

तपस्तेपे स धर्मात्मा स्वाध्यायनियतेन्द्रियः ।
गत्वाऽऽश्रमपदं तस्य विघ्नं कुर्वन्ति कन्यकाः ॥ ८ ॥

ऋषिपन्नगकन्याश्च राजर्षितनयाश्च याः ।
क्रीडन्त्योऽप्सरसश्चैव तं देशमुपेदिरे ॥ ९ ॥
सर्वतुषूपभोग्यत्वाद् रम्यत्वात् काननस्य च ।

नित्यशस्तास्तु तं देशं गत्वा क्रीडन्ति कन्यकाः ॥ १० ॥
देशस्य रमणीयत्वात् पुलस्त्यो यत्र स द्विजः ।

गायन्त्यो वादयन्त्यश्च लासयन्त्यस्तथैव च ॥ ११ ॥
मुनेस्तपस्विनस्तस्य विघ्नं चक्रुरनिन्दिताः ।

अथ रुष्टो महातेजा व्याजहार महामुनिः ॥ १२ ॥
या मे दर्शनमागच्छेत् सा गर्भं धारयिष्यति ।

तास्तु सर्वाः प्रतिश्रुत्य तस्य वाक्यं महात्मनः ॥ १३ ॥
ब्रह्मशापभयाद् भीतास्तं देशं नोपचक्रमुः ।

तृणबिन्दोस्तु राजर्षेस्तनया न शृणोति तत् ॥ १४ ॥
गत्वाऽऽश्रमपदं तत्र विचचार सुनिर्भया ।

न चापश्यच्च सा तत्र कांचिदभ्यागतां सखीम् ॥ १५ ॥
“This Dharmātmā, highly self-controlled and intent on studying the Vedas, was performing Tapas (askesis). That place, thickly studded with trees, was quite charming and enjoyable in all the seasons (of the year). That is why maidens belonging to the family of seers, Nāgas and kings, as also celestial nymphs resorted to that region everyday, sang, sported, played on musical instruments, and danced and thus caused obstruction, though in an innocent manner, to the sage, who was performing Tapas. That sage, of great fame, got enraged and said, ‘She, on whom my eyes fall, will become enceinte’. Hearing these words of the high-souled seer, those maidens never came to that place, being afraid of the curse of the Brāhmaṇa. “The daughter of the royal sage, Tṛṇabindu, however, did not hear this and went to the Āśrama and roamed about fearlessly, but did not see any of her companions arrived. (8—15)

तस्मिन् काले महातेजाः प्राजापत्यो महानृषिः ।
स्वाध्यायमकरोत् तत्र तपसा भावितः स्वयम् ॥ १६ ॥

“At that time that great seer, a son of the creator and of great lustre, was studying the Vedas. He had been rendered lustrous by strict discipline (Tapas). (16)

सा तु वेदश्रुतिं श्रुत्वा दृष्ट्वा वै तपसो निधिम् ।
अभवत् पाण्डुदेहा सा सुव्यञ्जितशरीरजा ॥ १७ ॥

“She heard the recitation of the Vedas and also saw the repository of Tapas. With a clear indication of pregnancy, she became pale all over the body at once. (17)

बभूव च समुद्विग्ना दृष्ट्वा तद्दोषमात्मनः ।
इदं मे किंत्विति ज्ञात्वा पितुर्गत्वाऽऽश्रमे स्थिता ॥ १८ ॥

“Seeing that transformation, she became extremely anxious. Saying to herself, ‘I do not understand what this means !’ she then went to her father’s Āśrama and stood before him. (18)

तां तु दृष्ट्वा तथाभूतां तृणबिन्दुरथाब्रवीत् ।
किं त्वमेतत्त्वसदृशं धारयस्यात्मनो वपुः ॥ १९ ॥

“Seeing her thus changed’ Tṛṇabindu said, 'How does it happen that your body looks unlike itself?' (19)

सा तु कृत्वाञ्जलिं दीना कन्योवाच तपोधनम् ।
न जाने कारणं तात येन मे रूपमीदृशम् ॥ २० ॥

"That maiden, very dispirited, spoke with folded hands to the repository of Tapas: 'Father I do not know the reason for this change in my body. (20)

किं तु पूर्वं गतास्म्येका महर्षेर्भावितात्मनः ।
पुलस्त्यस्याश्रमं दिव्यमन्वेष्टुं स्वसखीजनम् ॥ २१ ॥

'Prior to this I went alone to the charming Āśrama of the great seer, Pulastya, the knower of the Self, in search of my companions. (21)

न च पश्याम्यहं तत्र कांचिदभ्यागतां सखीम् ।
रूपस्य तु विपर्यासं दृष्ट्वा त्रासादिहागता ॥ २२ ॥

'But I did not see anyone of them in that place. I, however, noticed this change in my bodily form and have come here in trepidation.' (22)

तृणबिन्दुस्तु राजर्षिस्तपसा द्योतितप्रभः ।
ध्यानं विवेश तच्चापि अपश्यदृषिकर्मजम् ॥ २३ ॥

Tṛṇabindu, the royal sage, glowing with lustre arising from his Tapas, went into meditation and discovered that it was the work of the seer. (23)

स तु विज्ञाय तं शापं महर्षेर्भावितात्मनः ।
गृहीत्वा तनयां गत्वा पुलस्त्यमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ २४ ॥

Learning of the curse of Pulastya, the great seer, who had realized his Self, and taking hold of his daughter, he went to him and said: (24)

भगवंस्तनयां मे त्वं गुणैः स्वैरेव भूषिताम् ।
भिक्षां प्रतिगृहाणेमां महर्षे स्वयमुद्यताम् ॥ २५ ॥

"'O venerable sir, O great seer, deign to accept, as a gift, my daughter, adorned by her own qualities, who has come to you of her own accord. (25)

तपश्चरणयुक्तस्य श्रम्यमाणेन्द्रियस्य ते ।
शुश्रूषणपरा नित्यं भविष्यति न संशयः ॥ २६ ॥

"'There is no doubt that she will always do service to you, your limbs being fatigued due to the practice of Tapas.' (26)

तं ब्रुवाणं तु तद् वाक्यं राजर्षि धार्मिकं तदा ।
जिघृक्षुरब्रवीत् कन्यां बाढमित्येव स द्विजः ॥ २७ ॥

"Desiring to accept her, that Brāhmaṇa said, 'Yes', to the virtuous royal sage who spoke as above. (27)

दत्त्वा तु तनयां राजा स्वमाश्रमपदं गतः ।
सापि तत्रावसत् कन्या तोषयन्ती पतिं गुणैः ॥ २८ ॥

"After giving his daughter to the sage, the Rājaṛṣi returned to his Āśrama. That maiden stayed there, pleasing her husband by her service. (28)

तस्यास्तु शीलवृत्ताभ्यां तुतोष मुनिपुङ्गवः ।
प्रीतः स तु महातेजा वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ २९ ॥

"That best of seers, of great lustre, was pleased with her conduct and character and out of love, spoke the following words to her: (29)

परितुष्टोऽस्मि सुश्रोणि गुणानां सम्पदा भृशम् ।
तस्माद् देवि ददाम्यद्य पुत्रमात्मसमं तव ॥ ३० ॥

उभयोर्वशकर्तारं पौलस्त्य इति विश्रुतम् ।

यस्मात् तु विश्रुतो वेदस्त्वयेहाध्ययतो मम ॥ ३१ ॥

तस्मात् स विश्रवा नाम भविष्यति न संशयः ।

एवमुक्ता तु सा देवी प्रहृष्टेनान्तरात्मना ॥ ३२ ॥

अचिरेणैव कालेनासूत विश्रवसं सुतम् ।

त्रिषु लोकेषु विख्यातं यशोधर्मसमन्वितम् ॥ ३३ ॥

"O lady of shapely limbs, I am highly pleased with the wealth of your excellent qualities; therefore, O Devi, I shall give you today a son equal to me in every respect, who will continue my line as well as yours and who will become known as Pulastya. Since you listened to the Vedas as I was reciting them, he will, without doubt be known as Viśravā."

"Hearing these words that lady was inwardly highly pleased, and soon gave birth to a son, Viśravā by name. He became well-known in the three worlds, rich as he was in righteousness and fame. (30—33)

श्रुतिमान् समदर्शी च व्रताचाररतस्तथा।
पितेव तपसा युक्तो ह्यभवद् विश्रवा मुनिः ॥ ३४ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे द्वितीयः सर्गः ॥ २ ॥

Thus ends Canto Two in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

तृतीयः सर्गः

Canto III

Vaiśravaṇa's birth from the loins of Viśravā; his obtaining boons through Tapas and his residence in Laṅkā

अथ पुत्रः पुलस्त्यस्य विश्रवा मुनिपुङ्गवः।
अचिरेणैव कालेन पितेव तपसि स्थितः ॥ १ ॥

“The son of Pulastya, Viśravā, the best of sages, was soon engaged in Tapas like his father. (1)

सत्यवाञ्शीलवान् दान्तः स्वाध्यायनिरतः शुचिः।
सर्वभोगेष्वसंसक्तो नित्यं धर्मपरायणः ॥ २ ॥

He was always bent on treading the path of righteousness and speaking the truth: he was of good conduct, self-controlled, given to studying the Vedas, pure and unattached to every kind of sensual pleasure. (2)

ज्ञात्वा तस्य तु तद् वृत्तं भरद्वाजो महामुनिः।
ददौ विश्रवसे भार्या स्वसुतां देववर्णिनीम् ॥ ३ ॥

Learning his way of life, Bharadvāja the great sage, gave his daughter, Devavarṇinī (beautiful like a divine damsel) to Viśravā in marriage. (3)

प्रतिगृह्य तु धर्मेण भरद्वाजसुतां तदा।
प्रजान्वेषिकया बुद्ध्या श्रेयो ह्यस्य विचिन्तयन् ॥ ४ ॥

Accepting Bharadvāja's daughter in the prescribed way he began to think of begetting a son with a mind seeking the welfare of the people as well as with a view to promoting his spiritual welfare. (4)

Viśravā, the seer, spent his time in Tapas like his father. He was well-read in the Vedas. He treated all living creatures alike. He was devoted to the observance of holy vows and good conduct. (34)

मुदा परमया युक्तो विश्रवा मुनिपुङ्गवः।
स तस्यां वीर्यसम्पन्नमपत्यं परमाद्भुतम् ॥ ५ ॥
जनयामास धर्मज्ञः सर्वैर्ब्रह्मगुणैर्वृतम्।
तस्मिञ्जाते तु संहृष्टः स बभूव पितामहः ॥ ६ ॥
दृष्ट्वा श्रेयस्करिं बुद्धिं धनाध्यक्षो भविष्यति।
नाम चास्याकरोत् प्रीतः सार्धं देवर्षिभिस्तदा ॥ ७ ॥

Filled with highest joy, Viśravā, the best of sages, who knew what is right, begot of her a most wonderful son, possessed of valour and all the virtues of a Brāhmaṇa. Divining on his birth his inclination to do good to the world and seeing that he would become the lord of wealth, the sage was highly pleased and then gave him a name in consultation with other celestial sages. (5—7)

यस्माद् विश्रवसोऽपत्यं सादृश्याद् विश्रवा इव।
तस्माद् वैश्रवणो नाम भविष्यत्येष विश्रुतः ॥ ८ ॥

They said, ‘since he is a son of Viśravā and resembles his father in every respect, he would be known (in course of time), as Vaiśravaṇa.’ (8)

स तु वैश्रवणस्तत्र तपोवनगतस्तदा।
अवर्धताहुतिहुतो महातेजा यथानलः ॥ ९ ॥

“Vaiśravaṇa, of great lustre, then repaired to a forest retreat (Tapovana) and grew up like fire fed by offerings. (9)

तस्याश्रमपदस्थस्य बुद्धिर्जज्ञे महात्मनः ।

चरिष्ये परमं धर्मं धर्मो हि परमा गतिः ॥ १० ॥

As this high-souled person was living in the Āśrama, a thought occurred to him that he must practise the highest form of Dharma, as it was the ultimate goal. (10)

स तु वर्षसहस्राणि तपस्तप्त्वा महावने ।

यन्त्रितो नियमैरुग्रैश्चकार सुमहत्तपः ॥ ११ ॥

Performing Tapas for thousands of years in a vast forest retreat, he had subdued his senses by stern discipline; the Tapas that he performed was a very severe one. (11)

पूर्णे वर्षसहस्रान्ते तं तं विधिमकल्पयत् ।

जलाशी मारुताहारो निराहारस्तथैव च ॥ १२ ॥

At the end of a thousand years, he imposed on himself the discipline appropriate for the occasion and lived on water, then on air and then went without anything to live upon. (12)

एवं वर्षसहस्राणि जग्मुस्तान्येकवर्षवत् ।

अथ प्रीतो महातेजाः सेन्द्रैः सुरगणैः सह ॥ १३ ॥

गत्वा तस्याश्रमपदं ब्रह्मेदं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।

परितुष्टोऽस्मि ते वत्स कर्मणानेन सुव्रत ॥ १४ ॥

Thus a thousand years flew away like one year. "The highly glorious Brahmā, greatly pleased, went to his Āśrama accompanied by Indra and a host of other gods and spoke as follows: 'O sage of commendable vows, may all be well with you. I am pleased with your achievement, my son ! (13-14)

वरं वृणीष्व भद्रं ते वराहंस्त्वं महामते ।

अथाब्रवीद् वैश्रवणः पितामहमुपस्थितम् ॥ १५ ॥

O highly intelligent one, you deserve a boon. Ask for one.' Addressing Brahmā, who had come in person, Vaiśravaṇa said: (15)

भगवँल्लोकपालत्वमिच्छेयं लोकरक्षणम् ।

अथाब्रवीद् वैश्रवणं परितुष्टेन चेतसा ॥ १६ ॥

ब्रह्मा सुरगणैः सार्धं बाढमित्येव हृष्टवत् ।

अहं वै लोकपालानां चतुर्थं स्रष्टुमुद्यतः ॥ १७ ॥

'I like to be a guardian of the world (Lokapāla) and its protector (Lokarakṣaka), O venerable sir !' "With a well-pleased mind and greatly satisfied, Brahmā, in the presence of the host of gods, said: 'Be it so. I was about to create the fourth Lokapāla (guardian of the world). (16-17)

यमेन्द्रवरुणानां च पदं यत् तव चेप्सितम् ।

तद् गच्छ बत धर्मज्ञ निधीशत्वमवाप्नुहि ॥ १८ ॥

'Go, therefore, O knower of Dharma, and attain the position of the lord of wealth and be an equal of Yama, Indra and Varuṇa. (18)

शक्राम्बुपयमानां च चतुर्थस्त्वं भविष्यसि ।

एतच्च पुष्पकं नाम विमानं सूर्यसंनिभम् ॥ १९ ॥

प्रतिगृहीष्व यानार्थं त्रिदशैः समतां व्रज ।

स्वस्ति तेऽस्तु गमिष्यामः सर्व एव यथागतम् ॥ २० ॥

कृतकृत्या वयं तात दत्त्वा तव वरद्वयम् ।

इत्युक्त्वा स गतो ब्रह्मा स्वस्थानं त्रिदशैः सह ॥ २१ ॥

'You will be the fourth, besides Indra, Varuṇa and Yama. Accept this aerial car, Puṣpaka by name, resplendent like the sun, as your conveyance and become equal to gods. Let all be well with you. We shall go back as we came, having accomplished our purpose by granting you the two boons.' Having said this, Brahmā went back to his abode accompanied by the gods. (19—21)

गतेषु ब्रह्मपूर्वेषु देवेष्वथ नभस्तलम् ।

धनेशः पितरं प्राह प्राञ्जलिः प्रयतात्मवान् ॥ २२ ॥

When Brahmā and the other gods had gone to the heavens, the lord of wealth, with folded hands and with all humility, said to his father: (22)

भगवँल्लब्धवानस्मि वरमिष्टं पितामहात् ।

निवासनं न मे देवो विदधे स प्रजापतिः ॥ २३ ॥

'Revered sir, from Brahmā I have obtained the boon of my choice, but the said lord of creation did not assign a place for my abode. (23)

तं पश्य भगवन् कंचिन्निवासं साधु मे प्रभो ।

न च पीडा भवेद् यत्र प्राणिनो यस्य कस्यचित् ॥ २४ ॥

‘Therefore, select a holy place for me where no injury may be caused to any living creature.’ (24)

एवमुक्तस्तु पुत्रेण विश्रवा मुनिपुंगवः ।
वचनं ग्राह धर्मज्ञ श्रूयतामिति सत्तम ॥ २५ ॥
दक्षिणस्योदधेस्तीरे त्रिकूटो नाम पर्वतः ।
तस्याग्रे तु विशाला सा महेन्द्रस्य पुरी यथा ॥ २६ ॥
लङ्का नाम पुरी रम्या निर्मिता विश्वकर्मणा ।
राक्षसानां निवासार्थं यथेन्द्रस्यामरावती ॥ २७ ॥

“Thus addressed by his son, Viśravā, the best of sages, spoke as follows: ‘Listen, O knower of Dharma and the noblest of beings, there is a mountain by name Trikūṭa on the shores of the southern ocean; on its summit there is a charming city called Laṅkā, spacious like the city of the great Indra; it was constructed by Viśwakarmā for the residence of the Rākṣasas as Amarāvati was for the residence of Indra. (25—27)

तत्र त्वं वस भद्रं ते लङ्कायां नात्र संशयः ।
हेमप्राकारपरिखा यन्त्रशस्त्रसमावृता ॥ २८ ॥
रमणीया पुरी सा हि रुक्मवैदूर्यतोरेणा ।
राक्षसैः सा परित्यक्ता पुरा विष्णुभयार्दितैः ॥ २९ ॥

‘Let all be well with you, my son. You may live there in Laṅkā without any misgiving. That charming city has golden fortifications and is surrounded by moats; it is well-equipped on all sides with mechanical devices and weapons; its portals are made of gold and cat’s-eye gems; long ago it was deserted by the Rākṣasas, who were afflicted with the fear of Viṣṇu. (28-29)

शून्या रक्षोगणैः सर्वे रसातलतलं गतैः ।
शून्या सम्प्रति लङ्का सा प्रभुस्तस्या न विद्यते ॥ ३० ॥

‘It is now free of the Rākṣasas they having fled to the nether world, known as Rasātala. That city of Laṅkā is now vacant and is without a ruler. (30)

स त्वं तत्र निवासाय गच्छ पुत्र यथासुखम् ।
निर्दोषस्तत्र ते वासो न बाधस्तत्र कस्यचित् ॥ ३१ ॥

‘You may go there, my son, and live there, as it suits your pleasure. Your stay there will be quite happy and no harm will result to anybody.’ (31)

एतच्छ्रुत्वा स धर्मात्मा धर्मिष्ठं वचनं पितुः ।
निवासयामास तदा लङ्कां पर्वतमूर्धनि ॥ ३२ ॥

“Hearing these most righteous words of his father, that Dharmātmā then lived in Laṅkā, situated upon the crest of the mountain. (32)

नैर्ऋतानां सहस्रैस्तु हृष्टैः प्रमुदितैः सदा ।
अचिरेणैव कालेन सम्पूर्णा तस्य शासनात् ॥ ३३ ॥

“Soon, thanks to his wise administration, that city became full of thousands of ever contented and elated Nairṛtas. (33)

स तु तत्रावसत् प्रीतो धर्मात्मा नैर्ऋतर्षभः ।
समुद्रपरिखायां स लङ्कायां विश्रवात्मजः ॥ ३४ ॥

“The son of Viśravā, the pious-minded lord of the Nairṛtas, lived happily there in Laṅkā, which had the sea as its moat. (34)

काले काले तु धर्मात्मा पुष्पकेण धनेश्वरः ।
अभ्यागच्छद् विनीतात्मा पितरं मातरं च हि ॥ ३५ ॥

“From time to time the pious-minded lord of wealth, full of humility, went to his father and mother, on the Puṣpaka. (35)

स देवगन्धर्वगणैरभिष्टुत-स्तथाप्सरोनृत्यविभूषितालयः ।

गभस्तिभिः सूर्य इवावभासयन्
पितुः समीपं प्रययौ स वित्तपः ॥ ३६ ॥

“Praised by hosts of gods and Gandharvas and with his abode adorned by the dance of celestial damsels, and himself glowing like the sun by its rays, the celebrated lord of wealth repaired to the presence of his father.” (36)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे तृतीयः सर्गः ॥ ३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Three in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्थः सर्गः

Canto IV

A description of the race of Rākṣasas and the origin of Heti, Vidyutkeśa and Sukeśa

श्रुत्वागस्त्येरितं वाक्यं रामो विस्मयमागतः।
कथमासीत् तु लङ्कायां सम्भवो रक्षसां पुरा ॥ १ ॥

Rāma was struck with surprise on hearing the words spoken by Agastya. 'How did it happen that the Rākṣasas lived in Laṅkā even before Viśravā?' (1)

ततः शिरः कम्पयित्वा त्रेताग्निसमविग्रहम्।
तमगस्त्यं मुहुर्दृष्ट्वा स्मयमानोऽभ्यभाषत ॥ २ ॥

Shaking his head and repeatedly looking at Agastya, whose lustre was equal to that of the three fires (Dakṣiṇāgni, Gārhapatya and Āhavanīya), Śrī Rāma spoke the following words smilingly: (2)

भगवन् पूर्वमध्येषा लङ्काऽऽसीत् पिशिताशिनाम्।
श्रुत्वेदं भगवद्वाक्यं जातो मे विस्मयः परः ॥ ३ ॥

'Revered Sir, hearing Your Holiness' words that Laṅkā belonged to the demons even before, I am greatly surprised. (3)

पुलस्त्यवंशादुद्भूता रक्षसा इति नः श्रुतम्।
इदानीमन्यतश्चापि सम्भवः कीर्तितस्त्वया ॥ ४ ॥

"We have heard it said that the origin of the Rākṣasas was from the progeny of Pulastya. But now their descent is traced by you to another source. (4)

रावणात् कुम्भकर्णाश्च प्रहस्ताद् विकटादपि।
रावणस्य च पुत्रेभ्यः किं नु ते बलवत्तराः ॥ ५ ॥

"Were they more powerful than Rāvaṇa, Kumbhakarna, Prahasta, Vikaṭa and Rāvaṇa's sons? (5)

क एषां पूर्वको ब्रह्मन् किं नामा च बलोत्कटः।
अपराधं च कं प्राप्य विष्णुना द्राविताः कथम् ॥ ६ ॥

"Who was their ancestor, O Brāhmaṇa, what was the name of that powerful being? For what offence and how were they driven out by Lord Viṣṇu? (6)

एतद् विस्तरतः सर्वं कथयस्व ममानघ।
कुतूहलमिदं मह्यं नुद भानुर्यथा तमः ॥ ७ ॥

"O sinless one, tell me all about this in detail and remove this curiosity of mine as the sun dispels darkness." (7)

राघवस्य वचः श्रुत्वा संस्कारालंकृतं शुभम्।
अथ विस्मयमानस्तमगस्त्यः प्राह राघवम् ॥ ८ ॥

"Hearing these beautiful and polished words of Rāghava, Agastya, feeling rather surprised, addressed the following words to him: (8)

प्रजापतिः पुरा सृष्ट्वा अपः सलिलसम्भवः।
तासां गोपायने सत्त्वानसृजत् पद्मसम्भवः ॥ ९ ॥

"Prajāpati, born of the causal water and of the lotus (sprung from the navel of Lord Viṣṇu), created the waters of the ocean in the days of yore and then created living beings for their protection. (9)

ते सत्त्वाः सत्त्वकर्तारं विनीतवदुपस्थिताः।
किं कुर्म इति भाषन्तः क्षुत्पिपासाभयार्दिताः ॥ १० ॥

"Tormented by fear born of hunger and thirst, these living beings approached the creator in all humility and asked: 'What shall we do?' (10)

प्रजापतिस्तु तान् सर्वान् प्रत्याह प्रहसन्निव।
आभाष्य वाचा यत्नेन रक्षध्वमिति मानद ॥ ११ ॥

Addressing them in so many words, O bestower of honour, Prajāpati said as though laughing: 'Protect the waters with all effort.' (11)

रक्षाम इति तत्रान्यैर्यक्षाम इति चापरैः।
भुक्षिताभुक्षितैरुक्तस्ततस्तानाह भूतकृत् ॥ १२ ॥
रक्षाम इति यैरुक्तं राक्षसास्ते भवन्तु वः। यक्षाम इति यैरुक्तं यक्षा एव भवन्तु वः ॥ १३ ॥

"Of those who were hungry and thirsty, some said, 'We shall protect' and the others said, 'We shall adore.' Then the creator told them, 'Let those of you who said, 'We shall protect' become Rākṣasas and those of you who said, 'We shall adore' become Yakṣas.' (12-13)

तत्र हेतिः प्रहेतिश्च भ्रातरौ राक्षसाधिपौ।
मधुकैटभसंकाशौ बभूवतुरिंदमौ ॥ १४ ॥

"There were two brothers, Heti and Praheti, leaders of the Rākṣasas and the scourge of their enemies, compeers of Madhu and Kaiṭabha. (14)

प्रहेतिर्धार्मिकस्तत्र तपोवनगतस्तदा।
हेतिर्दारक्रियार्थं तु परं यत्नमथाकरोत् ॥ १५ ॥

"Of them, Praheti, given to the practice of Dharma, then repaired to a forest retreat used as a place for performing Tapas. Heti made great efforts to secure a wife. (15)

स कालभगिनीं कन्यां भयां नाम महाभयाम्।
उदावहदमेयात्मा स्वयमेव महामतिः ॥ १६ ॥

"Highly intelligent and indefatigable, he married on his own initiative the sister of Yama, Bhayā by name, who inspired great terror (because of her being a sister of Kāla). (16)

स तस्यां जनयामास हेती राक्षसपुंगवः।
पुत्रं पुत्रवतां श्रेष्ठो विद्युत्केशमिति श्रुतम् ॥ १७ ॥

"Hetī, the best of Rākṣasas begot of her a son known as Vidyutkeśa, and came to be recognized as the foremost of those blessed with sons. (17)

विद्युत्केशो हेतिपुत्रः स दीप्तार्कसमप्रभः।
व्यवर्धत महातेजास्तोयमध्य इवाम्बुजम् ॥ १८ ॥

"Vidyutkeśa, the son of Heti, who was of great lustre like the blazing sun, grew up as a lotus in the midst of water. (18)

स यदा यौवनं भद्रमनुप्राप्तो निशाचरः।
ततो दारक्रियां तस्य कर्तुं व्यवसितः पिता ॥ १९ ॥

"When that Rākṣasa attained blooming youth, his father exerted himself for getting him married. (19)

संध्यादुहितरं सोऽथ संध्यातुल्यां प्रभावतः।
वरयामास पुत्रार्थं हेती राक्षसपुंगवः ॥ २० ॥

"Hetī, the best of Rākṣasas, forthwith selected for his son, the daughter of Sandhyā, equal in majesty to Sandhyā herself. (20)

अवश्यमेव दातव्या परस्मै सेति संध्यया।
चिन्तयित्वा सुता दत्ता विद्युत्केशाय राघव ॥ २१ ॥

"Thinking that her daughter had necessarily to be given to another, Sandhyā gave her away in marriage to Vidyutkeśa, O Rāghava ! (21)

संध्यायास्तनयां लब्ध्वा विद्युत्केशो निशाचरः।
रमते स तया सार्धं पौलोम्या मघवानिव ॥ २२ ॥

"Having secured (Sālakaṭaṅkaṭā) the daughter of Sandhyā, Vidyutkeśa, the said Rākṣasa, revelled with her as Indra does with Paulomī. (22)

केनचित्त्वथ कालेन राम सालकटङ्कटा।
विद्युत्केशाद् गर्भमाप घनराजिरिवार्णवात् ॥ २३ ॥

"In course of time, O Śrī Rāma, Sālakaṭaṅkaṭā thereupon conceived a child through Vidyutkeśa even as a mass of clouds would draw water from the ocean. (23)

ततः सा राक्षसी गर्भं घनगर्भसमप्रभम्।
प्रसूता मन्दरं गत्वा गङ्गा गर्भमिवाग्निजम्।
समुत्सृज्य तु सा गर्भं विद्युत्केशरतार्थिनी ॥ २४ ॥
रेमे तु सार्धं पतिना विस्मृत्य सुतमात्मजम्।
उत्सृष्टस्तु तदा गर्भो घनशब्दसमस्वनः ॥ २५ ॥

"The Rākṣasī repaired to the slopes of Mount Mandara and gave birth to a son, brilliant like lightning, even as Goddess Gaṅgā delivered the offspring (of Lord Śiva) released by Agni. Desiring to revel with Vidyutkeśa, she delivered the child and revelled with her husband, forgetting all about her own child. Deserted by her, the baby then rumbled like a cloud. (24-25)

तयोत्सृष्टः स तु शिशुः शरदर्कसमद्युतिः।
निधायस्ये स्वयं मुष्टिं रुरोद शनकैस्तदा ॥ २६ ॥

“Putting the fist into the mouth itself, the child left by her, who was equal in lustre to the autumnal sun, gently cried. (26)

ततो वृषभमास्थाय पार्वत्या सहितः शिवः ।
वायुमार्गेण गच्छन् वै शुश्राव रुदितस्वनम् ॥ २७ ॥

“Lord Śiva, mounted on his bull and proceeding by air in the company of Pārvatī, thereupon heard the sound of crying. (27)

अपश्यदुमया सार्धं रुदन्तं राक्षसात्मजम् ।
कारुण्यभावात् पार्वत्या भवस्त्रिपुरसूदनः ॥ २८ ॥
तं राक्षसात्मजं चक्रे मातुरेव वयःसमम् ।
अमरं चैव तं कृत्वा महादेवोऽक्षरोऽव्ययः ॥ २९ ॥

“Mahādeva, the undecaying and imperishable, the destroyer of Tripura, saw the crying child of the Rākṣasa, and due to the compassion felt by Umā, the daughter of Himavān, made the Rākṣasa’s son grow up to the age of his mother and made him also immortal. (28-29)

पुरमाकाशं प्रादात् पार्वत्याः प्रियकाम्यया ।
उमयापि वरो दत्तो राक्षसीनां नृपात्मजः ॥ ३० ॥
सद्योपलब्धिर्गर्भस्य प्रसूतिः सद्य एव च ।
सद्य एव वयःप्राप्तिं मातुरेव वयःसमम् ॥ ३१ ॥

“To please Pārvatī, Śiva gave him a flying city; Umā also gave to the Rākṣasa woman the boon of instantaneous conception, instantaneous delivery and instantaneous growing up of the child to the age of its mother. (30-31)

ततः सुकेशो वरदानगर्वितः
श्रियं प्रभोः प्राप्य हरस्य पार्श्वतः ।
चचार सर्वत्र महान् महामतिः
खगं पुरं प्राप्य पुरंदरो यथा ॥ ३२ ॥

“Then the great and intelligent Sukeśa, obtaining from Lord Śiva, both wealth and the city that could fly in the air, became haughty by reason of the boon of immortality and roamed about everywhere like Indra.” (32)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे चतुर्थः सर्गः ॥ ४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Four in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चमः सर्गः

Canto V

Description of the descendants of Mālyavān, Sumālī and Mālī, sons of Sukeśa

सुकेशं धार्मिकं दृष्ट्वा वरलब्धं च राक्षसम् ।
ग्रामणीनाम गन्धर्वो विश्वावसुसमप्रभः ॥ १ ॥
तस्य देववती नाम द्वितीया श्रीरिवात्मजा ।
त्रिषु लोकेषु विख्याता रूपयौवनशालिनी ॥ २ ॥
तां सुकेशाय धर्मात्मा ददौ रक्षःश्रियं यथा ।
वरदानकृतैश्वर्यं सा तं प्राप्य पतिं प्रियम् ॥ ३ ॥
आसीद् देववती तुष्टा धनं प्राप्येव निर्धनः ।
स तया सह संयुक्तो रराज रजनीचरः ॥ ४ ॥
अञ्जनादभिनिष्क्रान्तः करेण्वेव महागजः ।
ततः काले सुकेशस्तु जनयामास राघव ॥ ५ ॥
त्रीन् पुत्राञ्जनयामास त्रेताग्निसमविग्रहान् ।
माल्यवन्तं सुमालिं च मालिं च बलिनां वरम् ॥ ६ ॥

त्रींस्त्रिनेत्रसमान् पुत्रान् राक्षसान् राक्षसाधिपः ।
त्रयो लोका इवाव्यग्राः स्थितास्त्रय इवाग्रयः ॥ ७ ॥
त्रयो मन्त्रा इवात्युग्रास्त्रयो घोरा इवामयाः ।
त्रयः सुकेशस्य सुतास्त्रेताग्निसमतेजसः ॥ ८ ॥
विवृद्धिमगमन्तत्र व्याधयोपेक्षिता इव ।
वरप्राप्तिं पितुस्ते तु ज्ञात्वैश्वर्यं तपोबलात् ॥ ९ ॥
तपस्तप्तुं गता मेरुं भ्रातरः कृतनिश्चयाः ।
प्रगृह्य नियमान् घोरान् राक्षसा नृपसन्तम् ॥ १० ॥
विचेरुस्ते तपो घोरं सर्वभूतभयावहम् ।
सत्यार्जवशमोपेतैस्तपोभिर्भुवि दुर्लभैः ॥ ११ ॥
सन्तापयन्तस्त्रींल्लोकान् सदेवासुरमानुषान् ।
ततो विभुश्चतुर्वक्त्रो विमानवरमाश्रितः ॥ १२ ॥

सुकेशपुत्रानामन्य वरदोऽस्मीत्यभाषत ।
 ब्रह्माणं वरदं ज्ञात्वा सेन्द्रैर्देवगणैर्वृतम् ॥ १३ ॥
 ऊचुः प्राञ्जलयः सर्वे वेपमाना इव द्रुमाः ।
 तपसाऽऽराधितो देव यदि नो दिशसे वरम् ॥ १४ ॥
 अजेयाः शत्रुहन्तारस्तथैव चिरजीविनः ।
 प्रभविष्णवो भवामेति परस्परमनुव्रताः ॥ १५ ॥

“Seeing Sukeśa, the pious Rākṣasa, having obtained boons, a pious-minded Gandharva, Grāmaṇī by name and equal in lustre to Viśwāvasu, gave in marriage to Sukeśa his daughter, Devavatī by name, looking like a second Lakṣmī, famed in all the three worlds and endowed with beauty and youth, who embodied as it were the glory of the race of Rākṣasas. Having obtained a loving husband who had secured rulership through boons, Devavatī was perfectly pleased even as a pauper is when he obtains riches. Being married to her, the Rākṣasa shone like a mighty elephant, sprung from Añjana (an elephant guarding a cardinal point), united with a she-elephant. “In course of time, O Rāghava, Sukeśa, the lord of the Rākṣasas, begot three sons, the ogres Mālyavān, Sumālī and Mālī, the last of whom was the foremost among the strong and who were equal in lustre to the three fires, and all the three were compeers of Lord Śiva. The three sons remained steady like the three worlds, were bright as the three sacrificial fires, powerful like the three strengths (of rulership, strenuous effort and sacred formula—प्रभुशक्ति, उत्साहशक्ति and मन्त्रशक्ति or the three Vedas) and formidable like the three kinds of diseases (arising from derangement of the three humours of the body, viz., wind, bile and phlegm). The three sons of Sukeśa, who were bright as the three sacrificial fires, grew up like diseases that have been neglected. “Knowing that by dint of his Tapas their father had secured boons as well as rulership, the three brothers repaired to Mount Meru determined to perform Tapas. Having adopted formidable rules of conduct, O jewel among the rulers of men, the aforesaid ogres practised severe austerities which proved to be a source of terror to all created beings. Through austerities combined with truthfulness, straightforwardness and self-control and rare in the world, the Rākṣasas, O best of kings, caused unrest to the three worlds inhabited by gods, Asuras and human beings. Then Lord Brahmā came seated in an excellent aerial car and addressing the sons of Sukeśa said, ‘I have come to grant boons’. Knowing Brahmā, surrounded by hosts of gods, including Indra, to have come to grant boons, all the three, shaking like trees said with folded hands: ‘Propitiated by our Tapas, O Lord, if you deign to grant us boons, let us become invincible, the scourge of our foes and also long-lived; let us also become powerful and full of love for one another.’

(1—15)

एवं भविष्यथेत्युक्त्वा सुकेशतनयान् विभुः ।
 स ययौ ब्रह्मलोकाय ब्रह्मा ब्राह्मणवत्सलः ॥ १६ ॥

Having said to the sons of Sukeśa, ‘You shall become all this’, Lord Brahmā, loving to Brāhmaṇas, repaired to Brahmaloḥka.

(16)

वरं लब्ध्वा तु ते सर्वे राम रात्रिंचरास्तदा ।
 सुरासुरान् प्रबाधन्ते वरदानमुनिर्भयाः ॥ १७ ॥

“Having obtained the boons, and free from fear by reason of them, all the three Rākṣasas went about harassing the gods and demons, O Śrī Rāma!

(17)

तैर्बाध्यमानास्त्रिदशाः सर्षिसङ्घाः सचारणाः ।
 त्रातारं नाधिगच्छन्ति निरयस्था यथा नराः ॥ १८ ॥

“Tormented by them, the gods, alongwith the seers and the Cāraṇas, did not find a protector any more than those cast in hell.

(18)

अथ ते विश्वकर्माणं शिल्पिनां वरमव्ययम् ।
 ऊचुः समेत्य संहृष्टा राक्षसा रघुसत्तम ॥ १९ ॥

“Highly rejoiced, the Rākṣasas in a body then approached the best of architects, the immortal Viśwakarmā, O jewel among the Raghus, and said: (19)

ओजस्तेजोबलवतां महतामात्मतेजसा ।
गृहकर्ता भवानेव देवानां हृदयेप्सितम् ॥ २० ॥

“You alone build abodes, according to their heart’s desire, for the great gods, full of valour, lustre and strength by virtue of their spirituality. (20)

अस्माकमपि तावत् त्वं गृहं कुरु महामते ।
हिमवन्तमुपाश्रित्य मेरुं मन्दरमेव वा ॥ २१ ॥
महेश्वरगृहप्रख्यं गृहं नः क्रियतां महत् ।
विश्वकर्मा ततस्तेषां राक्षसानां महाभुजः ॥ २२ ॥
निवासं कथयामास शक्रस्येवामरावतीम् ।
दक्षिणस्योदधेस्तीरे त्रिकूटो नाम पर्वतः ॥ २३ ॥

“This time, O highly intelligent one, build an abode for us also. On the slopes of Mount Himavān, Meru or Mandara erect for us a spacious house like that of Maheśwara.” Viśwakarmā, the mighty-armed, thereupon told the said Rākṣasas of a residence equal to Amarāvati, the residence of Indra, as follows: “On the shore of the southern sea there is a hill Trikūṭa by name. (21—23)

सुवेल इति चाप्यन्यो द्वितीयो राक्षसेश्वराः ।
शिखरे तस्य शैलस्य मध्यमेऽम्बुदसंनिभे ॥ २४ ॥
शकुनैरपि दुष्प्रापे टङ्कच्छिन्नचतुर्दिशि ।
त्रिंशद्योजनविस्तीर्णा शतयोजनमायता ॥ २५ ॥
स्वर्णप्राकारसंवीता हेमतोरणसंवृता ।
मया लङ्केति नगरी शक्राज्ञप्तेन निर्मिता ॥ २६ ॥

“O lords of the Rākṣasas, there is another hill by its side called Suvela. On the middle peak of the former, looking like a cloud, and inaccessible even to birds due to all its four sides being polished by a chisel, I built the city of Laṅkā at the command of Indra. It is thirty Yojanas wide and a hundred Yojanas long. It is surrounded by fortifications made of gold. The portals also are made of gold. (24—26)

तस्यां वसत दुर्धर्षा यूयं राक्षसपुंगवाः ।
अमरावतीं समासाद्य सेन्द्रा इव दिवौकसः ॥ २७ ॥

“You, the foremost of Rākṣasas, who are unassailable by others, may live there, as do the gods alongwith Indra in Amarāvati. (27)

लङ्कादुर्गं समासाद्य राक्षसैर्बहुभिर्वृताः ।
भविष्यथ दुराधर्षाः शत्रूणां शत्रुसूदनाः ॥ २८ ॥

“‘Having duly reached the fortress of Laṅkā with a large following of Rākṣasas you will be unassailable by enemies, O slayers of your foes!’ (28)

विश्वकर्मवचः श्रुत्वा ततस्ते राक्षसोत्तमाः ।
सहस्रानुचरा भूत्वा गत्वा तामवसन् पुरीम् ॥ २९ ॥

“Hearing the words of Viśwakarmā, those best of Rākṣasas then went to that city with thousands of followers and lived there. (29)

दृढप्राकारपरिखां हैमैर्गृहशतैर्वृताम् ।
लङ्कामवाप्य ते हृष्टा न्यवसन् रजनीचराः ॥ ३० ॥

“The Rākṣasas full of delight reached Laṅkā surrounded by strong fortifications and moats and dotted with hundreds of houses made of gold, and stayed there. (30)

एतस्मिन्नेव काले तु यथाकामं च राघव ।
नर्मदा नाम गन्धर्वी बभूव रघुनन्दन ॥ ३१ ॥
तस्याः कन्यात्रयं ह्यासीद् ह्रीश्रीकीर्तिसमद्युति ।
ज्येष्ठक्रमेण सा तेषां राक्षसानामराक्षसी ॥ ३२ ॥
कन्यास्ताः प्रददौ हृष्टाः पूर्णचन्द्रनिभाननाः ।
त्रयाणां राक्षसेन्द्राणां तिस्रो गन्धर्वकन्यकाः ॥ ३३ ॥

“At that time, O Śrī Rāma, the delight of the Raghus, there lived a Gandharva woman by name Narmadā. She had three daughters equal in lustre to Hri, Śrī and Kirti, the goddesses presiding over modesty, prosperity and fame, respectively. This non-Rākṣasa lady voluntarily gave all the three Gandharva maidens, whose faces were beaming with joy like the full moon, in the order of their seniority in age, in marriage to the three Rākṣasas. (31—33)

दत्ता मात्रा महाभागा नक्षत्रे भगदैवते ।
कृतदारास्तु ते राम सुकेशतनयास्तदा ॥ ३४ ॥
चिक्रीडुः सह भार्याभिरप्सरोभिरिवामराः ।
ततो माल्यवतो भार्या सुन्दरी नाम सुन्दरी ॥ ३५ ॥

स तस्यां जनयामास यदपत्यं निबोध तत्।
वज्रमुष्टिर्विरूपाक्षो दुर्मुखश्चैव राक्षसः ॥ ३६ ॥
सुप्तो यज्ञकोपश्च मतोन्मत्तौ तथैव च।
अनला चाभवत् कन्या सुन्दर्या राम सुन्दरी ॥ ३७ ॥

“The highly fortunate maidens were given by their mother at a time when the asterisk Uttarā-Phālgunī was visible. The sons of Sukeśa being married, revelled with their wives as do the immortals (gods) with Apsarā women (celestial nymphs), O Rāma ! Learn from me about the children that Mālyavān begot of his wife, the beautiful Sundarī. They were Vajramuṣṭi, Virūpākṣa, the Rākṣasa Durmukha, Suptaghna, Yajñakopa, Matta and Unmatta. Of Sundarī, O Rāma, there was also born a beautiful girl by name Analā. (34—37)

सुमालिनोऽपि भार्याऽऽसीत् पूर्णचन्द्रनिभानना।
नाम्ना केतुमती राम प्राणेभ्योऽपि गरीयसी ॥ ३८ ॥

“Sumālī’s wife, Ketumatī by name, too had a face beaming like the full moon, and who was dearer to him than his life, O Rāma ! (38)

सुमाली जनयामास यदपत्यं निशाचरः।
केतुमत्यां महाराज तन्निबोधानुपूर्वशः ॥ ३९ ॥

“Hear from me, O monarch, about the children that Sumālī the Rākṣasa, begot of Ketumatī in order of their seniority. (39)

प्रहस्तोऽकम्पनश्चैव विकटः कालिकामुखः।
धूम्राक्षश्चैव दण्डश्च सुपाश्वश्च महाबलः ॥ ४० ॥
संहृदिः प्रघसश्चैव भासकर्णश्च राक्षसः।
राका पुष्पोत्कटा चैव कैकसी च शुचिस्मिताः ॥ ४१ ॥
कुम्भीनसी च इत्येते सुमालेः प्रसवाः स्मृताः ॥ ४२ ॥

“Prahasta, and Akampana, Vikata, Kālikāmukha and Dhūmrākṣa and Daṇḍa, Supārśwa of great strength, Samhrādi and Praghāsa and the ogre Bhāsakarṇa, and the girls Rākā, Puṣpotkāṭā, Kaikasī and Kumbhīnasī of bright smiles were the children of Sumālī. (40—42)

मालेस्तु वसुदा नाम गन्धर्वी रूपशालिनी।
भार्यासीत् पद्मपत्राक्षी स्वक्षी यक्षीवरोपमा ॥ ४३ ॥

“Mālī’s wife was Vasudā, a Gandharva lady. She was lovely and her beautiful eyes resembled the petals of a lotus. She compared with the best of the Yakṣa ladies. (43)

सुमालेरनुजस्तस्यां जनयामास यत् प्रभो।
अपत्यं कथ्यमानं तु मया त्वं शृणु राघव ॥ ४४ ॥

“Listen, O King Rāma, to what I say about the children that Sumālī’s brother begot of her. (44)

अनलश्चानिलश्चैव हरः सम्पातिरेव च।
एते विभीषणामात्या मालेयास्ते निशाचराः ॥ ४५ ॥

“They were Anala and Anila, Hara and Sampāti. These Rākṣasas, the sons of Mālī, were the ministers of Vibhiṣaṇa. (45)

ततस्तु ते राक्षसपुङ्गवास्त्रयो
निशाचरैः पुत्रशतैश्च संवृताः।
सुरान् सहेन्द्रानृषिनागयक्षान्
बबाधिरे तान् बहुवीर्यदर्पिताः ॥ ४६ ॥

“Surrounded by night-rangers and hundreds of sons, those three bulls among the Rākṣasas, who had grown haughty by reason of their excessive valour, harassed the said gods including Indra, the Ṛṣis, the Nāgas and the Yakṣas. (46)

जगद्भ्रमन्तोऽनिलवद् दुरासदा
रणेषु मृत्युप्रतिमानतेजसः।
वरप्रदानादपि गर्विता भृशं
क्रतुक्रियाणां प्रशमंकराः सदा ॥ ४७ ॥

“Roaming about the world like the wind, they were unapproachable. In battle they were as fierce as Yama. They had grown immensely haughty by reason of the boons they had obtained. They always put obstacles in the way of Vedic sacrifices.” (47)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे पञ्चमः सर्गः ॥ ५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Five in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षष्ठः सर्गः

Canto VI

Under the advice of Lord Śiva, the gods seek the help of Śrī Viṣṇu for the destruction of the Rākṣasas; they return reassured; the Rākṣasas usurp the region of the gods; the coming of Śrī Viṣṇu to help the gods

तैर्वध्यमाना देवाश्च ऋषयश्च तपोधनाः ।
भयार्ताः शरणं जग्मुर्देवदेवं महेश्वरम् ॥ १ ॥
जगत्सृष्ट्यन्तकर्तारमजमव्यक्तरूपिणम् ।
आधारं सर्वलोकानामाराध्यं परमं गुरुम् ॥ २ ॥

“The gods, as well as seers given to asceticism who were being killed by them (the Rākṣasas), were terribly afraid and sought refuge in Maheśwara, the god of gods, the creator and destroyer of the world, the unborn, the unmanifest, the support of all the worlds, the worshipful one and the highest Guru. (1-2)

ते समेत्य तु कामारिं त्रिपुरारिं त्रिलोचनम् ।
ऊचुः प्राञ्जलयो देवा भयगद्गदभाषिणः ॥ ३ ॥

“Approaching in a body, the enemy of Kāma and Tripura, the three-eyed God, the aforementioned gods said with folded hands, in a voice faltering due to fear: (3)

सुकेशपुत्रैर्भगवन् पितामहवरोद्धतैः ।
प्रजाध्यक्ष प्रजाः सर्वा बाध्यन्ते रिपुबाधनैः ॥ ४ ॥

“O divine lord of living beings, all creatures are being harassed by the sons of Sukeśa who have grown haughty by reason of the boons granted to them by Brahmā and who are the scourge of their foes. (4)

शरण्यान्यशरण्यानि ह्याश्रमाणि कृतानि नः ।
स्वर्गाच्च देवान् प्रच्याव्य स्वर्गे क्रीडन्ति देववत् ॥ ५ ॥

“Our habitations and hermitages have been made unfit for our residence. Driving out the gods from heaven, they sport there as if they were gods. (5)

अहं विष्णुरहं रुद्रो ब्रह्माहं देवराडहम् ।
अहं यमश्च वरुणश्चन्द्रोऽहं रविरप्यहम् ॥ ६ ॥

इति माली सुमाली च माल्यवांश्चैव राक्षसाः ।
बाधन्ते समरोद्धर्षा ये च तेषां पुरस्सराः ॥ ७ ॥

“‘The Rākṣasas Mālī, Sumālī and Mālyavān and their lieutenants, thirsting for battle, give us trouble saying, ‘I am Viṣṇu, I am Rudra, I am Brahmā, I am Indra, I am Yama, I am Varuṇa, I am the moon and the sun.’ (6-7)

तन्नो देव भयार्तानामभयं दातुमर्हसि ।
अशिवं वपुरास्थाय जहि वै देवकण्टकान् ॥ ८ ॥

“‘O Lord, please grant fearlessness to us, who are afraid; kill these enemies of gods by assuming a fierce-looking form.’ (8)

इत्युक्तस्तु सुरैः सर्वैः कपर्दी नीललोहितः ।
सुकेशं प्रति सापेक्षः प्राह देवगणान् प्रभुः ॥ ९ ॥

“Spoken to in these words by all the gods, Lord Śiva, the god with matted locks, who had some consideration for Sukeśa, said to the host of gods: (9)

अहं तान् न हनिष्यामि ममावध्या हि तेऽसुराः ।
किं तु मन्त्रं प्रदास्यामि यो वै तान् निहनिष्यति ॥ १० ॥

‘I will not kill them as the said ogres are exempt from death at my hands; but I shall advise you as regards the person who will surely kill them. (10)

एतमेव समुद्योगं पुरस्कृत्य महर्षयः ।
गच्छध्वं शरणं विष्णुं हनिष्यति स तान् प्रभुः ॥ ११ ॥

‘With this purpose in view, O great seers, go and seek refuge in Viṣṇu and the said Lord will kill them.’ (11)

ततस्तु जयशब्देन प्रतिनन्द्य महेश्वरम् ।
विष्णोः समीपमाजग्मुर्निशाचरभयार्दिताः ॥ १२ ॥

“Then greeting Maheśwara with a shout of victory, they, who were afraid of the

Rākṣasas, came to the presence of Lord Viṣṇu. (12)

शङ्खचक्रधरं देवं प्रणम्य बहुमान्य च ।
ऊचुः सम्भ्रान्तवद् वाक्यं सुकेशतनयान् प्रति ॥ १३ ॥

“Paying obeisance and praising the Lord, who holds the conch and the discus, in a voice full of awe, they spoke the following words with regard to the sons of Sukeśa: (13)

सुकेशतनयैर्देवं त्रिभिस्त्रेताग्रिसंनिभैः ।
आक्रम्य वरदानेन स्थानान्यपहृतानि नः ॥ १४ ॥

“‘O Lord, by reason of the boons granted to them, the three sons of Sukeśa, resembling the three fires, have usurped our places after invading them. (14)

लङ्का नाम पुरी दुर्गा त्रिकूटशिखरे स्थिता ।
तत्र स्थिताः प्रबाधन्ते सर्वान् नः क्षणदाचराः ॥ १५ ॥

“‘There is a city, Laṅkā by name, situated on the crest of Mount Trikūṭa, which is difficult of access. The Rākṣasas settled there are harassing all of us. (15)

स त्वमस्मद्विद्वत्तार्थाय जहि तान् मधुसूदन ।
शरणं त्वां वयं प्राप्ता गतिर्भव सुरेश्वर ॥ १६ ॥

“‘O Lord Madhusūdana, we have taken refuge in You; as such be our saviour and kill them for our good, O Ruler of gods ! (16)

चक्रकृत्तास्यकमलान् निवेदय यमाय वै ।
भयेष्वभयदोऽस्माकं नान्योऽस्ति भवता विना ॥ १७ ॥

राक्षसान् समरे हृष्टान् सानुबन्धान् मदोद्धतान् ।
नुद त्वं नो भयं देव नीहारमिव भास्करः ॥ १८ ॥

“‘O Lord, except You there is surely none else who will grant us protection in times of danger; with Your discus tear the lotus-like faces of these haughty Rākṣasas who are full of haughtiness for war and give them as a gift to Yama alongwith their followers and remove our fear as the sun melts the frost.’ (17-18)

इत्येवं दैवतैरुक्तो देवदेवो जनार्दनः ।
अभयं भयदोऽरीणां दत्त्वा देवानुवाच ह ॥ १९ ॥

“Thus spoken to by the gods, Janārdana, the adored of gods, the scourge of His foes, granted protection to the heavenly beings and said: (19)

सुकेशं राक्षसं जाने ईशानवरदर्पितम् ।
तांश्चास्य तनयाञ्जाने येषां ज्येष्ठः स माल्यवान् ॥ २० ॥

“I know the ogre Sukeśa who has grown arrogant by reason of the boons granted to him by Śiva; I know his notorious sons also, of whom the said Mālyavān is the eldest. (20)

तानहं समतिक्रान्तमर्यादान् राक्षसाधमान् ।
निहनिष्यामि संकुद्धः सुरा भवत विज्वराः ॥ २१ ॥

“Getting infuriated I will kill these despicable Rākṣasas, who have transgressed all propriety, O gods; be free from worry.” (21)

इत्युक्तास्ते सुराः सर्वे विष्णुना प्रभविष्णुना ।
यथावासं ययुर्हृष्टाः प्रशंसन्तो जनार्दनम् ॥ २२ ॥

“Having been assured thus by the All-powerfull Lord Viṣṇu, the gods praised Janārdana and left for their respective places full of joy. (22)

विबुधानां समुद्योगं माल्यवांस्तु निशाचरः ।
श्रुत्वा तौ भ्रातरौ वीराविदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ २३ ॥

Having heard of the move of the gods, Mālyavān, the Rākṣasa, spoke as follows to his aforesaid heroic brothers: (23)

अमरा ऋषयश्चैव संगम्य किल शङ्करम् ।
अस्मद्वधं परीप्सन्त इदं वचनमब्रुवन् ॥ २४ ॥

सुकेशतनया देव वरदानबलोद्धताः ।
बाधन्तेऽस्मान् समुद्वृप्ता घोररूपाः पदे पदे ॥ २५ ॥

“The gods and seers, seeking our destruction, addressed in a body, the following words to Śaṅkara: ‘O Lord, the fierce-looking sons of Sukeśa, grown haughty and arrogant by reason of the boons granted to them, torment us every now and then. (24-25)

राक्षसैरभिभूताः स्मो न शक्ताः स्म प्रजापते ।
स्वेषु सद्यसु संस्थातुं भयात् तेषां दुरात्मनाम् ॥ २६ ॥

“O Lord of living beings, we are overpowered by these Rākṣasas; for fear of these wicked ones we are unable to reside in our abodes. (26)

तदस्माकं हितार्थाय जहि तांश्च त्रिलोचन।
राक्षसान् हुंकृतेनैव दह प्रदहतां वर॥ २७॥

“O three-eyed God and the foremost of destroyers, kill these Rākṣasas for our good and consume them with just a roar (Huṅkāra).” (27)

इत्येवं त्रिदशैरुक्तो निशम्यान्धकसूदनः।
शिरः करं च धुन्वान इदं वचनमब्रवीत्॥ २८॥

Listening to these words of the gods, the Slayer of Andhaka, shaking His head and hand, spoke the following words: (28)

अवध्या मम ते देवाः सुकेशतनया रणे।
मन्त्रं तु वः प्रदास्यामि यस्तान् वै निहनिष्यति॥ २९॥

‘O gods, those sons of Sukeśa are immune from death at my hands in war; but I shall advise you as regards the person who will surely kill them. (29)

योऽसौ चक्रगदापाणिः पीतवासा जनार्दनः।
हरिर्नारायणः श्रीमान् शरणं तं प्रपद्यथ॥ ३०॥

‘Seek refuge in Him, the glorious Janārdana, who holds in His hands the discus and the club, who wears a yellow garment and who is also known as Hari and Nārāyaṇa.’ (30)

हरादवाप्य ते मन्त्रं कामारिमभिवाद्य च।
नारायणालयं प्राप्य तस्मै सर्वं न्यवेदयन्॥ ३१॥

Receiving this advice from Hara, they paid obeisance to the foe of Kāma (Lord Śiva) and reaching the abode of Nārāyaṇa, submitted all their woes to Him. (31)

ततो नारायणेनोक्ता देवा इन्द्रपुरोगमाः।
सुरादींस्तान् हनिष्यामि सुरा भवत निर्भयाः॥ ३२॥

“The gods led by Indra were thereupon assured by Nārāyaṇa: ‘I will kill those enemies of yours, O gods, shed your fear.’ (32)

देवानां भयभीतानां हरिणा राक्षससर्षभौ।
प्रतिज्ञातो वधोऽस्माकं चिन्त्यतां यदिह क्षमम्॥ ३३॥

“O best of Rākṣasas, Hari has promised to the frightened gods that He will bring about our destruction; therefore, think of what is the proper action to do on this occasion. (33)

हिरण्यकशिपोर्मृत्युरन्येषां च सुरद्विषाम्।
नमुचिः कालनेमिश्च संहृदो वीरसत्तमः॥ ३४॥

राधेयो बहुमायी च लोकपालोऽथ धार्मिकः।
यमलार्जुनौ च हार्दिक्यः शुम्भश्चैव निशुम्भकः॥ ३५॥

असुरा दानवाश्चैव सत्त्ववन्तो महाबलाः।
सर्वे समरमासाद्य न श्रूयन्तेऽपराजिताः॥ ३६॥

“The death of Hiraṇyakaśipu, and other enemies was encompassed by him. Nay, Namuci, Kālanemi, Saṁhrāda, the best of the brave, Rādheya, who knew many conjuring tricks, the righteous Lokapāla, Yamala, Arjuna and Hārdikya, Śumbha and Niśumbha and other demons and giants of great might, and full of courage, who were never defeated on the battlefield are heard of no more. (34—36)

सर्वैः क्रतुशतैरिष्टं सर्वे मायाविदस्तथा।
सर्वे सर्वास्त्रकुशलाः सर्वे शत्रुभयंकराः॥ ३७॥

“All of them had performed hundreds of Vedic sacrifices and all of them knew deceitful warfare; all of them were well-practised in all arms and all of them were such as created fright in the minds of their enemies. (37)

नारायणेन निहताः शतशोऽथ सहस्रशः।
एतज्ज्ञात्वा तु सर्वेषां क्षमं कर्तुमिहार्हथ।

दुःखं नारायणं जेतुं यो नो हन्तुमिहेच्छति॥ ३८॥

“They were killed in hundreds and thousands by Nārāyaṇa; keeping this in mind all of you will do well to do that which is proper for you all at this juncture. It is difficult to conquer Nārāyaṇa, who desires to kill us at this moment.” (38)

ततः सुमाली माली च श्रुत्वा माल्यवतो वचः।
ऊचतुर्भ्रातरं ज्येष्ठमश्विनाविव वासवम्॥ ३९॥

“Hearing these words of Mālyavān, Sumālī and Mālī spoke to their elder brother even as the Aświns speak to Indra: (39)

स्वधीतं दत्तमिष्टं च ऐश्वर्यं परिपालितम्।
आयुर्निरामयं प्राप्तं सुधर्मः स्थापितः पथि ॥ ४० ॥

‘We have studied the Vedas, have performed acts of charity and the Vedic sacrifices. We have safeguarded our wealth; we have obtained a long lease of life free from disease. We have Dharma installed in our life. (40)

देवसागरमक्षोभ्यं शस्त्रैः समवगाह्य च।
जिता द्विषो ह्यप्रतिमास्तन्नो मृत्युकृतं भयम् ॥ ४१ ॥

‘The sea in the form of gods, which was incapable of being disturbed has been penetrated by our missiles; unequalled foes have been conquered. There is no fear of death to us. (41)

नारायणश्च रुद्रश्च शक्रश्चापि यमस्तथा।
अस्माकं प्रमुखे स्थातुं सर्वे बिभ्यति सर्वदा ॥ ४२ ॥

‘Nārāyaṇa and Rudra and Indra, and Yama—all of them are always afraid of standing in front of us. (42)

विष्णोर्द्वेषस्य नास्त्येव कारणं राक्षसेश्वर।
देवानामेव दोषेण विष्णोः प्रचलितं मनः ॥ ४३ ॥

‘O Lord of Rākṣasas, Viṣṇu has no cause for quarrel with us; his mind has been poisoned only by the crookedness of gods. (43)

तस्मादद्यैव सहिताः सर्वेऽन्योन्यसमावृताः।
देवानेव जिघांसामो येभ्यो दोषः समुत्थितः ॥ ४४ ॥

‘Therefore, let us all even now join together and, guarded by one another, kill the very gods from whom enmity has started.’ (44)

एवं सम्मन्त्र्य बलिनः सर्वसैन्यसमावृताः।
उद्योगं घोषयित्वा तु सर्वे नैर्ऋतपुंगवाः ॥ ४५ ॥
युद्धाय निर्ययुः क्रुद्धा जम्भवृत्रादयो यथा।
इति ते राम सम्मन्त्र्य सर्वोद्योगेन राक्षसाः ॥ ४६ ॥
युद्धाय निर्ययुः सर्वे महाकाया महाबलाः।
स्यन्दनैर्वारणैश्चैव हयैश्च करिसंनिभैः ॥ ४७ ॥

खरैर्गोभिरथोष्ट्रश्च शिशुमारैर्भुजंगमैः।
मकरैः कच्छपैर्मनैर्विहंगैरुडोपमैः ॥ ४८ ॥
सिंहैर्व्याघ्रैर्वराहैश्च सृमरैश्चमरैरपि।
त्यक्त्वा लङ्कां गताः सर्वे राक्षसा बलगर्विताः ॥ ४९ ॥
प्रयाता देवलोकाय योद्धुं दैवतशत्रवः।
लङ्काविपर्ययं दृष्ट्वा यानि लङ्कालयान्यथ ॥ ५० ॥
भूतानि भयदर्शीनि विमनस्कानि सर्वशः।
स्थोत्तमैरुह्यमानाः शतशोऽथ सहस्रशः ॥ ५१ ॥
प्रयाता राक्षसास्तूर्णं देवलोकं प्रयत्नतः।
रक्षसामेव मार्गेण दैवतान्यपचक्रमुः ॥ ५२ ॥

“Having taken counsel in this manner, all those strong leaders of the Rākṣasas, like Jambha, Vṛtra and etc., followed by all their troops and proclaiming their intention, sallied forth for war in anger. Having thought thus, O Rāma all the said Rākṣasas of huge bodies and immense strength, set forth for war with all preparations. Leaving Laṅkā, all the Rākṣasas, the enemies of gods, in the pride of their strength, proceeded towards the abode of gods to wage war followed by chariots, elephants, horses huge as elephants, mules, cows, camels, Śīsumāras (dolphins), snakes, alligators, tortoises, fish, birds huge as Garuḍa, lions, tigers, boars, varieties of deer known as Śṛmāra and Camara. Other living beings, who were residing in Laṅkā, foreseeing its destruction and apprehending danger, became sad. The Rākṣasas in their hundreds and thousands soon set out collectively in the best of chariots towards the realm of gods with determination. The gods also went out through the same passage as the Rākṣasas. (45—52)

भौमाश्चैवान्तरिक्षाश्च कालाज्ञप्ता भयावहाः।
उत्पाता राक्षसेन्द्राणामभावाय समुत्थिताः ॥ ५३ ॥

“Portents, both terrestrial and celestial, ordained by Yama and indicating the impending danger, distinctly arose suggesting the destruction of the Rākṣasas. (53)

अस्थीनि मेघा ववृषुरुष्णं शोणितमेव च।
वेलां समुद्राश्चोत्क्रान्ताश्चेलुश्चाप्यथ भूधराः ॥ ५४ ॥

Clouds rained bones and hot blood; the oceans transgressed their limits and mountains rocked. (54)

अट्टहासान् विमुञ्चन्तो घननादसमस्वनाः ।
वाश्यन्त्यश्च शिवास्तत्र दारुणं घोरदर्शनाः ॥ ५५ ॥

Creatures roaring like thunder raised yells resembling a horse-laugh and fierce-looking she-jackals, emitted piercing howls. (55)

सम्पतन्त्यथ भूतानि दृश्यन्ते च यथाक्रमम् ।
गृध्रचक्रं महच्चात्र प्रज्वालोल्लासिभिर्मुखैः ॥ ५६ ॥
रक्षोगणस्योपरिष्ठात् परिभ्रमति कालवत् ।
कपोता रक्तपादाश्च सारिका विद्रुता ययुः ॥ ५७ ॥

The elements appeared to be dissolving as it were one after another, and a huge circle of vultures spitting forth flames through their mouths, were hovering like Death over the Rākṣasa hordes. Red-footed pigeons and mynas flew with speed. (56-57)

काका वाश्यन्ति तत्रैव विडाला वै द्विपादयः ।
उत्पातांस्ताननादृत्य राक्षसा बलदर्पिताः ॥ ५८ ॥
यान्येव न निवर्तन्ते मृत्युपाशावपाशिताः ।
माल्यवांश्च सुमाली च माली च सुमहाबलः ॥ ५९ ॥
पुरस्सरा राक्षसानां ज्वलिता इव पावकाः ।
माल्यवन्तं तु ते सर्वे माल्यवन्तमिवाचलम् ॥ ६० ॥
निशाचरा आश्रयन्ति धातारमिव देवताः ।
तद् बलं राक्षसेन्द्राणां महाभ्रघननादितम् ॥ ६१ ॥
जयेप्सया देवलोकं ययौ मालिवशे स्थितम् ।
राक्षसानां समुद्योगं तं तु नारायणः प्रभुः ॥ ६२ ॥
देवदूतादुपश्रुत्य चक्रे युद्धे तदा मनः ।
स सज्जायुधतूणीरो वैनतेयोपरि स्थितः ॥ ६३ ॥

The crows cawed aloud, the cats growled and the elephants etc., too trumpeted at that very spot. "Not minding these evil forebodings, the Rākṣasas, arrogant as they were by reason of their strength, did not retrace their steps, but proceeded drawn by the noose of Yama. Mālyavān and Sumālī, as well as Mālī, of great strength, marched like blazing fires at the head of the Rākṣasas. On Mālyavān, unshakable like Mount Mālyavān, the Rākṣasas relied even as the gods relied on Brahmā. The aforesaid army of the leaders of ogres under the command of Mālī, and producing a noise resembling the peal of thunder, proceeded to the realm of gods with a view to conquering it.

"Hearing of the aforesaid endeavour of the Rākṣasas from the envoy of the gods, Lord Viṣṇu, for His part made up His mind to fight, and equipped with a quiver full of arrows rode on Garuḍa. (58—63)

आसाद्य कवचं दिव्यं सहस्रार्कसमद्युति ।
आबद्ध्य शरसम्पूर्णे इषुधी विमले तदा ॥ ६४ ॥
श्रोणिसूत्रं च खड्गं च विमलं कमलेक्षणः ।
शङ्खचक्रगदाशार्ङ्गखड्गांश्चैव वरायुधान् ॥ ६५ ॥
सुपर्णं गिरिसंकाशं वैनतेयमथास्थितः ।
राक्षसानामभावाय ययौ तूर्णतरं प्रभुः ॥ ६६ ॥

Mounted on the beautiful-feathered Garuḍa, who looked like a hill, equipped with a pair of immaculate quivers full of arrows, putting on His celestial armour shining like a thousand suns, arming Himself with His excellent weapons—the conch, the discus, the mace, the Śārṅga bow and the sword, and fastening His belt as well as His splendid sword, the lotus-eyed Lord set out at once to bring about the destruction of the Rākṣasas. (64—66)

सुपर्णपृष्ठे स बभौ श्यामः पीताम्बरो हरिः ।
काञ्चनस्य गिरेः शृङ्गे सतडितोयदो यथा ॥ ६७ ॥
Mounting on the back of Garuḍa, the most handsome Lord Hari, clad in yellow, shone like a cloud with a streak of lightning on a peak of Mount Meru. (67)

स सिद्धदेवर्षिमहोरगैश्च
गन्धर्वयक्षैरुपगीयमानः ।

समाससादासुरसैन्यशत्रु-

श्चक्रासिशार्ङ्गायुधशङ्खपाणिः ॥ ६८ ॥

Holding the discus, the sword, the bow and the conch in His hands, the Lord, the enemy of Asura hordes, duly arrived, His praises being sung by Siddhas, gods, Ṛṣis,

Mahoragas (huge serpents), Gandharvas and Yakṣas. (68)

सुपर्णपक्षानिलनुन्नपक्षं

भ्रमत्यताकं प्रविकीर्णशस्त्रम् ।

चचाल

तद्राक्षसराजसैन्यं

चलोपलं नीलमिवाचलाग्रम् ॥ ६९ ॥

By the wind arising from the flapping of Garuḍa's wings a portion of the Rākṣasa king's army was blown away, their banners whirled and their weapons slipped from their hands; the said army of the king of ogres shook like the crest of a blue hill with its crags displaced. (69)

ततः शितैः शोणितमांसरूषितै-

र्युगान्तवैश्वानरतुल्यविग्रहैः ।

निशाचराः सम्परिवार्य माधवं

वरायुधैर्निर्बिभिदुः सहस्रशः ॥ ७० ॥

The Rākṣasas in their thousands surrounded Viṣṇu and attacked Him with sharp excellent weapons daubed with blood and flesh, and resembling the fire arising at the end of the world-cycle. (70)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे षष्ठः सर्गः ॥ ६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Six in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तमः सर्गः

Canto VII

The destruction of the Rākṣasas by Lord Viṣṇu;
the survivors take to flight

नारायणगिरिं ते तु गर्जन्तो राक्षसाम्बुदाः ।

अर्दयन्तोऽस्त्रवर्षेण वर्षेणेवाद्रिमम्बुदाः ॥ १ ॥

“Just as clouds lash hills with a downpour, even so the Rākṣasa hordes, making a terrific noise, attacked with their volleys of missiles, Nārāyaṇa who stood like a hill. (1)

श्यामावदातस्तैर्विष्णुनीलैर्नक्तंचरोत्तमैः ।

वृत्तोऽञ्जनगिरीवायं वर्षमाणैः पयोधरैः ॥ २ ॥

The bright, though dark-complexioned Viṣṇu was surrounded by those sable-looking jewels among the Rākṣasas like a hill of antimony by the pouring clouds. (2)

शलभा इव केदारं मशका इव पावकम् ।

यथामृतघटं दंशा मकरा इव चार्णवम् ॥ ३ ॥

तथा रक्षोधनुर्मुक्ता वज्रानिलमनोजवाः ।

हरिं विशन्ति स्म शरा लोका इव विपर्यये ॥ ४ ॥

The arrows shot from the bows of the

Rākṣasas, with the speed of the thunderbolt, the air and mind, entered into the body of Viṣṇu as locusts rush into paddy fields, moths into the flame, bees into a pot containing honey, crocodiles into the sea and the worlds into Viṣṇu at the time of the deluge. (3-4)

स्यन्दनैः स्यन्दनगता गजैश्च गजमूर्धगाः ।

अश्वारोहास्तथाश्वैश्च पादाताश्चाम्बरे स्थिताः ॥ ५ ॥

राक्षसेन्द्रा गिरिनिभाः शरैः शक्त्यृष्टितोमरैः ।

निरुच्छ्वासं हरिं चक्रुः प्राणायामा इव द्विजम् ॥ ६ ॥

Huge as mountains, the Rākṣasa chiefs, sitting in chariots, or riding on elephants, or on horses suffocated Viṣṇu from their chariots, elephants and horses as also the foot-soldiers standing in airspace by means of arrows, javelins, double-edged swords and iron clubs, only as breath-control exercises make Brāhmaṇas (practising them) stop their breathing (for awhile). (5-6)

निशाचरैस्ताड्यमानो मीनैरिव महोदधिः ।
शार्ङ्गमायम्य दुर्धर्षो राक्षसेभ्योऽसृजच्छरान् ॥ ७ ॥

“Attacked by the Rākṣasas, as the ocean is lashed by fishes, Lord Viṣṇu, the invincible, pulled the string of His bow known as the Śārṅga and discharged arrows at the Rākṣasas. (7)

शरैः पूर्णायतोत्सृष्टैर्वज्रकल्पैर्मनोजवैः ।
चिच्छेद विष्णुर्निशितैः शतशोऽथ सहस्रशः ॥ ८ ॥

By means of sharp arrows hard like adamant and having the speed of the mind, shot from the bow, whose string was pulled to the extreme length, Viṣṇu mangled to pieces the Rākṣasas in their hundreds and thousands. (8)

विद्राव्य शरवर्षेण वर्षं वायुरिवोत्थितम् ।
पाञ्चजन्यं महाशङ्खं प्रदध्मौ पुरुषोत्तमः ॥ ९ ॥

Having dispersed the Rākṣasas by the shower of arrows, even as wind disperses the rainbearing clouds, Puruṣottama blew His mighty conch, Pāñcajanya. (9)

सोऽम्बुजो हरिणा ध्मातः सर्वप्राणेन शङ्खराट् ।
ररास भीमनिर्ह्रादस्त्रैलोक्यं व्यथयन्निव ॥ १० ॥

That conch, the best of its kind, blown with all His might by Viṣṇu, produced a terrific noise, thereby causing agony to the three worlds, as it were. (10)

शङ्खराजरवः सोऽथ त्रासयामास राक्षसान् ।
मृगराज इवारण्ये समदानिव कुञ्जरात् ॥ ११ ॥

The terrific sound produced by the best of conches frightened the Rākṣasas even as a lion roaring in a forest would frighten the elephants in rut. (11)

न शेकुरश्वाः संस्थातुं विमदाः कुञ्जराऽभवन् ।
स्यन्दनेभ्यश्च्युता वीराः शङ्खरावितदुर्बलाः ॥ १२ ॥

Getting unnerved on hearing the noise of the conch, horses were unable to stand, elephants lost their fury and soldiers slipped from their chariots. (12)

शार्ङ्गचापविनिर्मुक्ता वज्रतुल्याननाः शराः ।
विदार्य तानि रक्षांसि सुपुङ्खा विविशुः क्षितिम् ॥ १३ ॥

The beautifully-feathered arrows shot from the Śārṅga bow, with their heads hard like adamant, cleaving the bodies of the Rākṣasas entered the ground. (13)

भिद्यमानाः शरैः संख्ये नारायणकरच्युतैः ।
निपेतु राक्षसा भूमौ शैला वज्रहता इव ॥ १४ ॥

Being pierced in battle by the arrows shot from the hands of Nārāyaṇa, the Rākṣasas fell on the ground like mountains struck by thunderbolts. (14)

व्रणानि परगात्रेभ्यो विष्णुचक्रकृतानि हि ।
असृक् क्षरन्ति धाराभिः स्वर्णधारा इवाचलाः ॥ १५ ॥

Blood gushed out of the wounds caused on the bodies of the enemies by Viṣṇu's discus like streams of ochre from mountains. (15)

शङ्खराजरवश्चापि शार्ङ्गचापवस्तथा ।
राक्षसानां रवांश्चापि ग्रसते वैष्णवो रवः ॥ १६ ॥

The noise of the best of conches, the twang of the bow Śārṅga and the war-cry of Viṣṇu (all combined) drowned the noise produced by the Rākṣasas. (16)

तेषां शिरोधरान् धूताञ्छ्रध्वजधनूंषि च ।
रथान् पताकास्तूणीरांश्चिच्छेद स हरिः शरैः ॥ १७ ॥

By means of His arrows the said Śrī Hari cut down their unsteady necks, arrows, banners, bows, chariots, pennants and quivers. (17)

सूर्यादिव करा घोरा वार्योघा इव सागरात् ।
पर्वतादिव नागेन्द्रा धारौघा इव चाम्बुदात् ॥ १८ ॥
तथा शार्ङ्गविनिर्मुक्ताः शरा नारायणेरिताः ।
निर्धावन्तीषवस्तूर्णं शतशोऽथ सहस्रशः ॥ १९ ॥

Like the fierce rays from the sun, waves from the sea, huge serpents from a mountain and torrents from clouds, the deadly arrows shot by Nārāyaṇa from His bow, Śārṅga, flew with speed in their hundreds and thousands in all directions. (18-19)

शरभेण यथा सिंहाः सिंहेन द्विरदा यथा ।
द्विरदेन यथा व्याघ्रा व्याघ्रेण द्वीपिनो यथा ॥ २० ॥
द्वीपिनेव यथा श्वानः शुना मार्जारको यथा ।
मार्जारेण यथा सर्पाः सर्पेण च यथाखवः ॥ २१ ॥

तथा ते राक्षसाः सर्वे विष्णुना प्रभविष्णुना ।
द्रवन्ति द्राविताश्चान्ये शायिताश्च महीतले ॥ २२ ॥

Like lions chased by (the fabulous animal known as) Śarabha, like elephants by a lion, like tigers by an elephant, like leopards by a tiger, like dogs by a leopard, like cats by a dog, like snakes by a cat, and like rats by a snake, even so all the Rākṣasas, chased by the mighty Viṣṇu, took to their heels while others lay stretched on the ground. (20—22)

राक्षसानां सहस्राणि निहत्य मधुसूदनः ।
वारिजं पूरयामास तोयदं सुरराडिव ॥ २३ ॥

Having killed thousands of Rākṣasas, Madhusūdana blew His conch tremendously as Indra charges a cloud with water. (23)

नारायणशरत्रस्तं शङ्खनादसुविह्वलम् ।
ययौ लङ्कामभिमुखं प्रभग्नं राक्षसं बलम् ॥ २४ ॥

The worsted Rākṣasa forces, terrified by Nārāyaṇa's arrows and unhinged by the sound of the conch, fled towards Laṅkā. (24)

प्रभग्रे राक्षसबले नारायणशराहते ।
सुमाली शरवर्षेण निववार रणे हरिम् ॥ २५ ॥

When the Rākṣasa forces were put to flight while being struck by Nārāyaṇa's arrows, Sumālī blocked Nārāyaṇa on the battlefield by the shower of his arrows. (25)

स तु तं छादयामास नीहार इव भास्करम् ।
राक्षसाः सत्त्वसम्पन्नाः पुनर्धैर्यं समादधुः ॥ २६ ॥

He screened Him (Nārāyaṇa) even as mist does the sun. The powerful Rākṣasas again mustered up courage. (26)

अथ सोऽभ्यपतद् रोषाद् राक्षसो बलदर्पितः ।
महानादं प्रकुर्वाणो राक्षसाञ्जीवयन्निव ॥ २७ ॥

The enraged Rākṣas, arrogant by reason of his strength, jumped forward making a huge noise as if infusing new life into the Rākṣasas. (27)

उत्क्षिप्य लम्बाभरणं धुन्वन् करमिव द्विपः ।
ररास राक्षसो हर्षात् सतडित्तोयदो यथा ॥ २८ ॥

Raising his hand with an ornament hanging about it and waving it even as an elephant would wave its trunk, the elated Rākṣasas roared like a cloud accompanied by lightning. (28)

सुमालेर्नर्दतस्तस्य शिरो ज्वलितकुण्डलम् ।
चिच्छेद यन्तुरश्वश्च भ्रान्तास्तस्य तु रक्षसः ॥ २९ ॥

Śrī Hari cut off the head, adorned with dazzling earrings, of the charioteer of the roaring Sumālī. The horses of the Rākṣasa then ran wildly. (29)

तैरश्वैर्भ्राम्यते भ्रान्तैः सुमाली राक्षसेश्वरः ।
इन्द्रियाश्वैः परिभ्रान्तैर्धृतिहीनो यथा नरः ॥ ३० ॥

Like the unsteady man who is tossed this side and that by his fickle sense-organs, which may be likened to horses, Sumālī, the lord of the Rākṣasas, was drawn this side and that by those horses running helter-skelter. (30)

ततो विष्णुं महाबाहुं प्रपतन्तं रणाजिरे ।
हृते सुमालेश्वैश्च रथे विष्णुरथं प्रति ॥ ३१ ॥

माली चाभ्यद्रवद् युक्तः प्रगृह्य सशरं धनुः ।
मालेर्धनुश्च्युता बाणाः कार्तस्वरविभूषिताः ॥ ३२ ॥

विविशुर्हरिमासाद्य क्रौञ्चं पत्ररथा इव ।
अर्द्यमानः शरैः सोऽथ मालिमुक्तैः सहस्रशः ॥ ३३ ॥

चुक्षुभे न रणे विष्णुर्जितेन्द्रिय इवाधिभिः ।
अथ मौर्वीस्वनं कृत्वा भगवान् भूतभावनः ॥ ३४ ॥

मालिनं प्रति बाणौघान् ससर्जांसिगदाधरः ।
ते मालिदेहमासाद्य वज्रविद्युत्प्रभाः शराः ॥ ३५ ॥

पिबन्ति रुधिरं तस्य नागा इव सुधारसम् ।
मालिनं विमुखं कृत्वा शङ्खचक्रगदाधरः ॥ ३६ ॥

मालिमौलिं ध्वजं चापं वाजिनश्चाप्यपातयत् ।
विरथस्तु गदां गृह्य माली नक्तंचरोत्तमः ॥ ३७ ॥

आपुप्लुवे गदापाणिर्गिर्यग्रादिव केसरी ।
गदया गरुडेशानमीशानमिव चान्तकः ॥ ३८ ॥

ललाटदेशेऽभ्यहनद् वज्रेणेन्द्रो यथाचलम् ।
गदयाभिहतस्तेन मालिना गरुडो भृशम् ॥ ३९ ॥

रणात् पराङ्मुखं देवं कृतवान् वेदनातुरः ।
पराङ्मुखो कृते देवे मालिना गरुडेन वै ॥ ४० ॥

उदतिष्ठन्महान् शब्दो रक्षसामभिनर्दताम्।
 रक्षसां रुवतां रावं श्रुत्वा हरिहयानुजः ॥ ४१ ॥
 तिर्यगास्थाय संक्रुद्धः पक्षीशे भगवान् हरिः।
 पराङ्मुखोऽप्युत्ससर्ज मालेश्चक्रं जिघांसया ॥ ४२ ॥

“When Sumālī’s chariot was being drawn into confusion by his horses, the alert Mālī, holding the bow and an arrow in his hands, rushed towards the mount of Viṣṇu, the mighty-armed, who was darting towards him on the battlefield. Mālī’s arrows, decked with gold and shot from his bow, reaching Viṣṇu, entered His body as birds enter into the Krauñca hill. Pierced by thousands of arrows, shot by Mālī, Viṣṇu did not feel ruffled on the battlefield even as a self-controlled man is not perturbed by mental agonies. Then, hearing the twang of Mālī’s bow-string, the Lord, the Creator of beings, who was armed with a mace and a sword, shot volleys of arrows at Mālī. Those arrows, bright as a diamond and shining like lightning, reaching Mālī’s body, drank his blood as though the Nāgas (huge serpents) would be drinking nectar. “Having put Mālī to flight, Śrī Hari (the Bearer of a conch, a discus and a club), flung to the ground Mālī’s crest, his banner, his bow and his horses. Having lost his chariot, and seizing hold of his club, Mālī, the best of Rākṣasas, with the weapon in his hand, leapt like a lion from a mountain peak. With his club he hit Garuḍa (the king of eagles) on the forehead even as Yama hit Śiva and Indra would strike a mountain with his thunderbolt. Hit hard by the said Mālī with his club, Garuḍa, unable to stand the acute pain, made the Lord turn His back on the battle. A great clamour rose from the Rākṣasas, who roared when Lord Hari was, in fact, made to turn His back on the battlefield alongwith Garuḍa by Mālī. “Highly incensed to hear the noise of the roaring Rākṣasas, Lord Hari, the younger brother of Indra, even sitting obliquely on Garuḍa’s back, as His face was turned away from the battle, threw His discus at Mālī with a view to kill him. (31—42)

तत् सूर्यमण्डलाभासं स्वभासा भासयन् नभः।
 कालचक्रनिभं चक्रं मालेः शीर्षमपातयत् ॥ ४३ ॥

Resembling the wheel of time and lustrous like the orb of the sun, that discus, illuminating as it did the skies by its own blaze, brought Mālī’s head to the ground.

(43)

तच्छिरो राक्षसेन्द्रस्य चक्रोत्कृत्तं विभीषणम्।
 पपात रुधिरोद्गारि पुरा राहुशिरो यथा ॥ ४४ ॥

That fierce-looking head of the Rākṣasa-chief, cut off by the discus, fell on the ground emitting blood, like Rāhu’s head of yore.

(44)

ततः सुरैः सम्प्रहृष्टैः सर्वप्राणसमीरितः।
 सिंहनादरवो मुक्तः साधु देवेतिवादिभिः ॥ ४५ ॥

Then a clamour like the roar of a lion, saying ‘Well done, O Lord!’ was raised with all their might by the gods, who were transported with joy.

(45)

मालिनं निहतं दृष्ट्वा सुमाली माल्यवानपि।
 सबलौ शोकसंतप्तौ लङ्कामेव प्रधावितौ ॥ ४६ ॥

Seeing Mālī dead, Sumālī and Mālyavān, stricken with grief fled to Laṅkā with the remnant of the forces.

(46)

गरुडस्तु समाश्वस्तः संनिवृत्य यथा पुरा।
 राक्षसान् द्रावयामास पक्षवातेन कोपितः ॥ ४७ ॥

Having recovered, the enraged Garuḍa returned and dispersed as before the Rākṣasas by the blast (arising from the flapping) of his wings.

(47)

चक्रकृत्तास्यकमला गदासंचूर्णितोरसः।
 लाङ्गलग्लपितग्रीवा मुसलैर्भिन्नमस्तकाः ॥ ४८ ॥
 केचिच्चैवासिना छिन्नास्तथान्ये शरताडिताः।
 निपेतुरम्बरात् तूर्णं राक्षसाः सागराम्भसि ॥ ४९ ॥

The Rākṣasas quickly fell into the sea-water from the skies; some had their lotus-like faces cut by the discus, some had their breasts pulverized by the club, some had their necks rent by the ploughshare, some had their heads broken by the pestle, some were cut by the sword, and others were injured by arrows. (48-49)

नारायणोऽपीषुवराशनीभि-

विदारयामास धनुर्विमुक्तैः ।

नक्तंचरान् धूतविमुक्तकेशान्

यथाशनीभिः सतडिन्महाभ्रः ॥ ५० ॥

By means of sharp arrows shot from his bow like so many strokes of lightning, Nārāyaṇa tore the Rākṣasas with their hair dishevelled and tossed about, even a lightning-bearing huge cloud would disperse mountains with strokes of lightning. (50)

भिन्नातपत्रं पतमानशस्त्रं

शरैरपध्वस्तविनीतवेषम् ।

विनिःसृतान्त्रं भयलोलनेत्रं

बलं तदुन्मत्ततरं बभूव ॥ ५१ ॥

With their parasols broken, their weapons slipping from their hands, their plain costumes rendered threadbare by arrows, their entrails ripped open and their eyes restless through fear, that army stood completely distracted. (51)

सिंहार्दितानामिव कुञ्जराणां

निशाचराणां सह कुञ्जराणाम् ।

रवाश्च वेगाश्च समं बभूवुः

पुराणसिंहेन विमर्दितानाम् ॥ ५२ ॥

The cries as well as the stampede of the Rākṣasas utterly routed by Lord Viṣṇu (who appeared as a man-lion of yore) with those of their elephants followed all at once like those of elephants chased by a lion. (52)

ते वार्यमाणा हरिबाणजालैः

स्वबाणजालानि समुत्सृजन्तः ।

धावन्ति नक्तंचरकालमेघा

वायुप्रणुन्ना इव कालमेघाः ॥ ५३ ॥

Being checked by the volleys of arrows shot by Śrī Hari, and shooting their own arrows, in large numbers, those clouds in the form of Rākṣasa, sped like sombre clouds propelled by the wind. (53)

चक्रप्रहारैर्विनिकृत्तशीर्षाः

संचूर्णिताङ्गाश्च गदाप्रहारैः ।

असिप्रहारैर्द्विविधाविभिन्नाः

पतन्ति शैला इव राक्षसेन्द्राः ॥ ५४ ॥

With their heads cut off by the strokes of the discus, their limbs pounded by blows of the club, and cut into two by the strokes of the sword, the Rākṣasa chieftains fell like mountains struck by the thunderbolt. (54)

विलम्बमानैर्मणिहारकुण्डलै-

र्निशाचरैर्नीलबलाहकोपमैः ।

निपात्यमानैर्ददृशे निरन्तरं

निपात्यमानैरिव नीलपर्वतैः ॥ ५५ ॥

With the Rākṣasas, resembling black clouds, being thrown to the ground with their pendent necklaces and earrings of gold, the earth looked fully covered as though with blue mountains dashed to the ground. (55)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे सप्तमः सर्गः ॥ ७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seven in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टमः सर्गः

Canto VIII

Mālyavān's fight and his defeat; retreat of Sumālī and other Rākṣasas into the nether world

हन्यमाने बले तस्मिन् पद्मनाभेन पृष्ठतः ।

माल्यवान् संनिवृत्तोऽथ वेलामेत्य इवार्णवः ॥ १ ॥

“When the aforesaid forces were fleeing and were being chased and destroyed from behind by Padmanābha, Lord Viṣṇu, Mālyavān forthwith returned to the field as does the sea after touching the shore. (1)

संरक्तनयनः क्रोधाच्चलन्मौलिर्निशाचरः ।

पद्मनाभमिदं ग्राह वचनं पुरुषोत्तमम् ॥ २ ॥

With blood-shot eyes and shaking his head with wrath, the ogre addressed the following words to Padmanābha, also known as Puruṣottama: (2)

नारायण न जानीषे क्षात्रधर्मं पुरातनम् ।

अयुद्धमनसो भीतानस्मान् हंसि यथेतरः ॥ ३ ॥

‘O Nārāyaṇa, you do not know the ancient rules of warfare; like any other ignorant person you are killing us, frightened souls who have given up all thought of war. (3)

पराङ्मुखवधं पापं यः करोति सुरेश्वर ।

स हन्ता न गतः स्वर्गं लभते पुण्यकर्मणाम् ॥ ४ ॥

‘O Lord of gods, the slayer who commits the sin of killing those who have given up fighting, does not go to heaven, which is reserved for those who have done meritorious deeds. (4)

युद्धश्रद्धाथवा तेऽस्ति शङ्खचक्रगदाधर ।

अहं स्थितोऽस्मि पश्यामि बलं दर्शय यत् तव ॥ ५ ॥

‘O bearer of the conch, the discus and the club, if you are keen on fighting, here I stand; show your prowess, so that I may witness it.’ (5)

माल्यवन्तं स्थितं दृष्ट्वा माल्यवन्तमिवाचलम् ।

उवाच राक्षसेन्द्रं तं देवराजानुजो बली ॥ ६ ॥

Seeing Mālyavān, the chief of the Rākṣasas, standing firm like Mount Mālyavān, the mighty younger brother of Indra spoke to him as follows: (6)

युष्मत्तो भयभीतानां देवानां वै मयाभयम् ।

राक्षसोत्सादनं दत्तं तदेतदनुपाल्यते ॥ ७ ॥

‘I am implementing the assurance of safety and the pledge of exterminating the Rākṣasas given by me to the gods, who are afraid of you. (7)

प्राणैरपि प्रियं कार्यं देवानां हि सदा मया ।

सोऽहं वो निहनिष्यामि रसातलगतानपि ॥ ८ ॥

‘Service must always be done to the gods by me even at the cost of my life hence I will kill you all even though you enter the nether world.’ (8)

देवदेवं ब्रुवाणं तं रक्ताम्बुरुहलोचनम् ।

शक्त्या बिभेद संकुद्धो राक्षसेन्द्रो भुजान्तरे ॥ ९ ॥

The enraged Rākṣasa chieftain struck with his Śakti (javelin) the breast of the Lord of gods, whose eyes were like a red lotus, even while He was speaking as above. (9)

माल्यवद्भुजनिर्मुक्ता शक्तिर्घण्टाकृतस्वना ।

हरेरुरसि बभ्राज मेघस्थेव शतहृदा ॥ १० ॥

Hurled by the arm of Mālyavān, the Śakti, with jingling bells, shone on Hari’s breast like a streak of lightning athwart a cloud. (10)

ततस्तामेव चोत्कृष्य शक्तिं शक्तिधरप्रियः ।

माल्यवन्तं समुद्दिश्य चिक्षेपाम्बुरुहेक्षणः ॥ ११ ॥

Pulling out that very Śakti, Hari, the lotus-eyed, the Beloved of Lord Skanda (the bearer of a lance), hurled it back at Mālyavān. (11)

स्कन्दोत्सृष्टेव सा शक्तिर्गोविन्दकरनिःसृता ।

कांक्षन्ती राक्षसं प्रायान्महोल्केवाञ्जनाचलम् ॥ १२ ॥

As though shot by Skanda, that Śakti shot by the hands of Govinda, went in search of Mālyavān like a large meteor would proceed towards a hill of antimony. (12)

सा तस्योरसि विस्तीर्णे हारभारावभासिते ।

आपतद् राक्षसेन्द्रस्य गिरिकूट इवाशनिः ॥ १३ ॥

On the broad chest of that Rākṣasa chieftain, which was illumined with necklaces, the Śakti descended even as the thunderbolt on a mountain-peak. (13)

तया भिन्नतनुत्राणः प्राविशद् विपुलं तमः ।

माल्यवान् पुनराश्वस्तस्तस्थौ गिरिवाचलः ॥ १४ ॥

With his armour broken to pieces by the Śakti, Mālyavān fell into a deep swoon; pulling himself up, however, he stood unshaken like a mountain. (14)

ततः कालायसं शूलं कण्टकैर्बहुभिश्चितम् ।
प्रगृह्णाभ्यहनद् देवं स्तनयोरन्तरे दृढम् ॥ १५ ॥

Then he violently struck Śrī Hari in the centre of the chest with a pike made of iron and covered with many spikes. (15)

तथैव रणरक्तस्तु मुष्टिना वासवानुजम् ।
ताडयित्वा धनुर्मात्रमपक्रान्तो निशाचरः ॥ १६ ॥

Likewise, striking the younger brother of Indra, Śrī Hari, with his fist, the Rākṣasa, keen on fighting, then withdrew to a bow's length. (16)

ततोऽम्बरे महान् शब्दः साधुसाध्विति चोत्थितः ।
आहत्य राक्षसो विष्णुं गरुडं चाप्यताडयत् ॥ १७ ॥

A loud cry of 'Bravo, Bravo!' then arose in the skies. Having struck Viṣṇu, the Rākṣasa struck Garuḍa also. (17)

वैनतेयस्ततः क्रुद्धः पक्षवातेन राक्षसम् ।
व्यपोहद् बलवान् वायुः शुष्कपर्णचयं यथा ॥ १८ ॥

Provoked to anger, Garuḍa thereupon drove off the Rākṣasa with the blast (arising from the flapping) of his wings even as a strong wind would scatter a heap of dried leaves. (18)

द्विजेन्द्रपक्षवातेन द्रावितं दृश्य पूर्वजम् ।
सुमाली स्वबलैः सार्धं लङ्कामभिमुखो ययौ ॥ १९ ॥

Seeing his elder brother driven off by the blast arising from the wings of Garuḍa, Sumālī made for Laṅkā, accompanied by his forces. (19)

पक्षवातबलोद्धूतो माल्यवानपि राक्षसः ।
स्वबलेन समागम्य ययौ लङ्कां हिया वृतः ॥ २० ॥

Blown away by the wind arising from the wings of Garuḍa, and covered with shame, the Rākṣasa, Mālyavān too, fled to Laṅkā, joined by his forces. (20)

एवं ते राक्षसा राम हरिणा कमलेक्षण ।
बहुशः संयुगे भग्ना हतप्रवरनायकाः ॥ २१ ॥

"O lotus-eyed Rāma, in this manner those Rākṣasas were repeatedly worsted in battle by Śrī Hari and their foremost leaders were killed. (21)

अशक्नुवन्तस्ते विष्णुं प्रतियोद्धुं बलार्दिताः ।
त्यक्त्वा लङ्कां गता वस्तुं पातालं सहपत्नयः ॥ २२ ॥

"Tormented by His might, the Rākṣasas, being unable to fight Viṣṇu in return, left Laṅkā and went to the nether world with their wives to reside there. (22)

सुमालिनं समासाद्य राक्षसं रघुसत्तम ।
स्थिताः प्रख्यातवीर्यास्ते वंशे सालकटङ्कटे ॥ २३ ॥

"Those warriors well-known for their bravery, lived there under the protection of Sumālī who was born in the line of Śālakaṭaṅkaṭā. (23)

ये त्वया निहतास्ते तु पौलस्त्या नाम राक्षसाः ।
सुमाली माल्यवान् माली ये च तेषां पुरःसराः ।
सर्व एते महाभागा रावणाद् बलवत्तराः ॥ २४ ॥

"Sumālī, Mālyavān and Mālī and those who marched at their head, were all highly blessed and stronger than Rāvaṇa; while the other Rākṣasas who were killed by You, came in the line of Pulastya, O jewel among the Raghus! (24)

न चान्यो राक्षसान् हन्ता सुरारीन् देवकण्टकान् ।
ऋते नारायणं देवं शङ्खचक्रगदाधरम् ॥ २५ ॥

"None other than Lord Nārāyaṇa, the bearer of the conch, the discus and the club, could have killed the Rākṣasas, the enemies and tormentors of gods. (25)

भवान् नारायणो देवश्चतुर्बाहुः सनातनः ।
राक्षसान् हन्तुमुत्पन्नो ह्यजय्यः प्रभुरव्ययः ॥ २६ ॥

"You are indeed Lord Nārāyaṇa, the four-armed, the ancient one; You are the invincible and imperishable Lord! You were born to destroy the Rākṣasas. (26)

नष्टधर्मव्यवस्थानां काले काले प्रजाकरः ।
उत्पद्यते दस्युवधे शरणागतवत्सलः ॥ २७ ॥

"You, the creator, who are fond of those who have taken refuge in You, appear from time to time to destroy the barbarians (Dasyus) who violate all the bounds of Dharma. (27)

एषा मया तव नराधिप राक्षसाना-

मुत्पत्तिरद्य कथिता सकला यथावत्।

भूयो निबोध रघुसत्तम रावणस्य

जन्मप्रभावमतुलं ससुतस्य सर्वम्॥ २८ ॥

“O king, I have thus related in detail to you today all about the origin of the Rākṣasas. Learn from me further, O jewel among the Raghus, the origin of Rāvaṇa and his son, as also all about their immeasurable powers. (28)

चिरात् सुमाली व्यचरद् रसातलं

स राक्षसो विष्णुभयार्दितस्तदा।

पुत्रैश्च पौत्रैश्च समन्वितो बली

ततस्तु लङ्कामवसद् धनेश्वरः॥ २९ ॥

“Tormented by the fear of Viṣṇu, that mighty ogre, Sumālī wandered for long in the nether world with his sons and grandsons. Meanwhile, Vaiśravaṇa took up his abode in Laṅkā.” (29)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डेऽष्टमः सर्गः॥ ८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eight in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

नवमः सर्गः

Canto IX

The origin of Rāvaṇa and others, their stay in Gokarṇa to perform Tapas (askesis)

कस्यचित् त्वथ कालस्य सुमाली नाम राक्षसः।

रसातलान्मर्त्यलोकं सर्वं वै विचचार ह॥ १ ॥

“After sometime the Rākṣasa known as Sumālī, emerged from the nether world and actually wandered, they say, all over the world of mortals. (1)

नीलजीमूतसंकाशस्तप्तकाञ्चनकुण्डलः।

कन्यां दुहितरं गृह्य विना पद्ममिव श्रियम्॥ २ ॥

“Resembling a dark cloud and wearing earrings made of pure gold, he was holding by the hand his daughter, who resembled Lakṣmī without the lotus. (2)

राक्षसेन्द्रः स तु तदा विचरन् वै महीतले।

तदापश्यत् स गच्छन्तं पुष्पकेण धनेश्वरम्॥ ३ ॥

गच्छन्तं पितरं द्रष्टुं पुलस्त्यतनयं विभुम्।

तं दृष्ट्वामरसंकाशं गच्छन्तं पावकोपमम्॥ ४ ॥

रसातलं प्रविष्टः सन्मर्त्यलोकात् सविस्मयः।

इत्येवं चिन्तयामास राक्षसानां महामतिः॥ ५ ॥

actually wandering on the earth, he happened to see Kubera proceeding in the aerial car, Puṣṭaka, to see his powerful father, Viśarwā, the son of Pulastya. Filled with wonder to see him, who was godlike and resplendent like fire, flying, the highly intelligent Sumālī, left the world of human beings, went to the nether world and thought as follows: (3—5)

किं कृत्वा श्रेय इत्येवं वर्धेमहि कथं वयम्।

अथाब्रवीत् सुतां रक्षः कैकसीं नाम नामतः॥ ६ ॥

“What has to be done to ensure the permanent good of the ogres! How shall we prosper?” “Then the Rākṣasa told his daughter by name Kaikāsī: (6)

पुत्रि प्रदानकालोऽयं यौवनं व्यतिवर्तते।

प्रत्याख्यानाच्च भीतैस्त्वं न वरैः प्रतिगृह्यसे॥ ७ ॥

“My child, you are passing beyond the period of youth, this is the time to give you away in marriage; suitors hold back for fear of rejection. (7)

“While that Rākṣasa chieftain was thus

त्वत्कृते च वयं सर्वे यन्त्रिता धर्मबुद्धयः ।
त्वं हि सर्वगुणोपेता श्रीः साक्षादिव पुत्रिके ॥ ८ ॥

‘Pious-minded as we are, we have all exerted ourselves to see you married.
Daughter, you are endowed with all good qualities and almost the same as Lakṣmī.
(8)

कन्यापितृत्वं दुःखं हि सर्वेषां मानकांक्षिणाम् ।
न ज्ञायते च कः कन्यां वरयेदिति कन्यके ॥ ९ ॥

‘To be the father of an unmarried girl is a source of anxiety to all who care for their honour; for they do not know who will accept their daughter, O child! (9)

मातुः कुलं पितृकुलं यत्र चैव च दीयते ।
कुलत्रयं सदा कन्या संशये स्थाप्य तिष्ठति ॥ १० ॥

‘An unmarried girl ever exposes to risk the reputation of three families, the family of her mother, of her father and that to which she is gifted. (10)

सा त्वं मुनिवरं श्रेष्ठं प्रजापतिकुलोद्भवम् ।
भज विश्रवसं पुत्रि पौलस्त्यं वरय स्वयम् ॥ ११ ॥

‘Hence, O daughter, you had better choose yourself and accept as your husband
the excellent sage Viśravā, the best of sages, born in the family of Prajāpati (Brahmā) and the son of Pulastya. (11)

ईदृशास्ते भविष्यन्ति पुत्राः पुत्रि न संशयः ।
तेजसा भास्करसमो तादृशोऽयं धनेश्वरः ॥ १२ ॥

‘O daughter, sons will be born to you equal to the lord of riches, whose lustre is like that of the sun: about this there is no doubt.’ (12)

सा तु तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा कन्यका पितृगौरवात् ।
तत्र गत्वा च सा तस्थौ विश्रवा यत्र तप्यते ॥ १३ ॥

‘Hearing these words, that girl, out of respect for her father, went to the spot where Viśravā was doing Tapas and stood there. (13)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे राम पुलस्त्यतनयो द्विजः ।
अग्निहोत्रमुपातिष्ठच्चतुर्थं इव पावकः ॥ १४ ॥

“In the meantime, O Rāma, that Brāhmaṇa, the son of Pulastya, resembling a fourth fire, was performing Agnihotra
(sacrificial feeding of fire). (14)

अविचिन्त्य तु तां वेलां दारुणां पितृगौरवात् ।
उपसृत्याग्रतस्तस्य चरणाधोमुखी स्थिता ॥ १५ ॥
विलिखन्ती मुहुर्भूमिमुद्धृष्टाग्रेण भामिनी ।
स तु तां वीक्ष्य सुश्रोणीं पूर्णचन्द्रनिभाननाम् ॥ १६ ॥
अब्रवीत् परमोदारो दीप्यमानां स्वतेजसा ।
भद्रे कस्यासि दुहिता कुतो वा त्वमिहागता ॥ १७ ॥
किं कार्यं कस्य वा हेतोस्तत्त्वतो ब्रूहि शोभने ॥ १८ ॥

“Not realizing that the time was inauspicious, out of respect for her father’s words, the young girl went near him and stood in front of him with her face bent downwards and eyes fixed on her feet and repeatedly scratching the ground with the tip of her great toe. Seeing that girl of shapely limbs, whose face resembled the full moon and who was brilliant with her own lustre, that supremely magnanimous sage said:
‘Blessed girl, whose daughter are you,
wherefrom and with what motive have you come here and what is your purpose? Tell me the truth, O beautiful one!’ (15—18)

एवमुक्ता तु सा कन्या कृताञ्जलिरथाब्रवीत् ।
आत्मप्रभावेण मुने ज्ञातुमर्हसि मे मतम् ॥ १९ ॥

“Addressed thus, that girl forthwith said with folded hands: ‘O sage, you should read my mind by your spiritual insight. (19)

किं तु मां विद्धि ब्रह्मर्षे शासनात् पितुरागताम् ।
कैकसी नाम नाम्नाहं शेषं त्वं ज्ञातुमर्हसि ॥ २० ॥

‘O Brahmarṣi, I am Kaikasi by name; know me to have come at the behest of my father; the rest you should comprehend for yourself.’ (20)

स तु गत्वा मुनिध्यानं वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ।
विज्ञातं ते मया भद्रे कारणं यन्मनोगतम् ॥ २१ ॥

The sage went into meditation and said,
‘O auspicious one, I have divined the intention in your mind. (21)

सुताभिलाषो मत्तस्ते मत्तमातङ्गगामिनि ।
 दारुणायां तु वेलायां यस्मात् त्वं मामुपस्थिता ॥ २२ ॥
 शृणु तस्मात् सुतान् भद्रे यादृशाञ्जनयिष्यसि ।
 दारुणान् दारुणाकारान् दारुणाभिजनप्रियान् ॥ २३ ॥
 प्रसविष्यसि सुश्रोणि राक्षसान् क्रूरकर्मणः ।
 सा तु तद्वचनं श्रुत्वा प्रणिपत्याब्रवीद् वचः ॥ २४ ॥
 भगवन्नीदृशान् पुत्रांस्त्वत्तोऽहं ब्रह्मवादिनः ।
 नेच्छामि सुदुराचारान् प्रसादं कर्तुमर्हसि ॥ २५ ॥

‘O lady, whose gait is like that of an elephant in rut, you are eager to have sons by me. But since you have approached me at an inauspicious time, know, therefore, the kind of sons you will give birth to; they will be cruel-minded, fierce-looking and fond of people equally cruel. O lady of shapely limbs, you will bring forth Rākṣasas given to cruel deeds.’ Hearing these words of Viśravā, she made obeisance and spoke as follows: ‘O revered sir, from you, who are a Brahnavādī (one who discourses on Brahma), I do not desire such sons, given to heinous deeds; be gracious to me.’ (22—25)

कन्यया त्वेवमुक्तस्तु विश्रवा मुनिपुङ्गवः ।
 उवाच कैकसीं भूयः पूर्णेन्दुरिव रोहिणीम् ॥ २६ ॥

Implored thus by the maiden, Viśravā, the best of sages, who resembled the full moon, for his part spoke again to Kaikasī, who looked like Rohiṇī, (a lunar asterism): (26)
 पश्चिमो यस्तव सुतो भविष्यति शुभानने ।
 मम वंशानुरूपः स धर्मात्मा च न संशयः ॥ २७ ॥

‘O lady with a lovely face, he who will be your last son, will be pious-minded and fully in accord with my family: about this there is no doubt.’ (27)

एवमुक्ता तु सा कन्या राम कालेन केनचित् ।
 जनयामास बीभत्सं रक्षोरूपं सुदारुणम् ॥ २८ ॥
 दशग्रीवं महादंष्ट्रं नीलाञ्जनचयोपमम् ।
 ताम्रोष्ठं विंशतिभुजं महास्यं दीप्तमूर्धजम् ॥ २९ ॥

“Spoken to in these words, O Rāma, that girl in course of time brought forth a hideous child having the form of a Rākṣasa, very cruel, with ten heads, huge teeth, resembling a heap of antimony, having coppery lips, with twenty hands, vast mouths, and fiery hair. (28-29)

तस्मिञ्जाते ततस्तस्मिन् सज्वालकवलाः शिवाः ।
 क्रव्यादाश्चापसव्यानि मण्डलानि प्रचक्रमुः ॥ ३० ॥

“At the time of his birth vixens emitting flames through their mouths, and other carnivorous animals circled from left to right. (30)

ववर्ष रुधिरं देवो मेघाश्च खरनिःस्वनाः ।
 प्रबभौ न च सूर्यो वै महोल्काश्चापतन् भुवि ॥ ३१ ॥

“The rain-god showered blood; clouds thundered fiercely; the sun did not shine brightly; and huge meteors fell on the ground. (31)

चकम्पे जगती चैव ववुर्वाताः सुदारुणाः ।
 अक्षोभ्यः क्षुभितश्चैव समुद्रः सरितां पतिः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Nay, the earth rocked; and fierce winds blew; the sea, the lord of rivers, which is incapable of being thrown into commotion, was agitated. (32)

अथ नामाकरोत् तस्य पितामहसमः पिता ।
 दशग्रीवः प्रसूतोऽयं दशग्रीवो भविष्यति ॥ ३३ ॥

“His father, equal to the creator, named him Daśagrīva, since he was born with ten heads. (33)

तस्य त्वनन्तरं जातः कुम्भकर्णो महाबलः ।
 प्रमाणाद् यस्य विपुलं प्रमाणं नेह विद्यते ॥ ३४ ॥

“After him was born the exceptionally mighty Kumbhakarna, other than whose dimensions no one has greater magnitude on earth. (34)

ततः शूर्पणखा नाम संजज्ञे विकृतानना ।
 विभीषणश्च धर्मात्मा कैकस्याः पश्चिमः सुतः ॥ ३५ ॥

“Then was born Śūrpaṇakhā with an ugly face; the pious-minded Vibhiṣaṇa was the last son of Kaikasī. (35)

तस्मिन् जाते महासत्त्वे पुष्यवर्षं पपात ह ।
 नभःस्थाने दुन्दुभयो देवानां प्राणदंस्तथा ।
 वाक्यं चैवान्तरिक्षे च साधु साध्विति तत् तदा ॥ ३६ ॥

“When this noble soul was born, flowers, they say, fell in showers on the earth, and kettledrums of the gods sounded in the heavens. ‘Good, excellent!’ were the words spoken in mid heaven. (36)

तौ तु तत्र महारण्ये ववृधाते महौजसौ।
कुम्भकर्णदशग्रीवौ लोकोद्वेगकरौ तदा ॥ ३७ ॥

“Then both, Kumbhakarna and Daśagrīva, of great strength and tormentors of the world, grew up in that big forest. (37)

कुम्भकर्णः प्रमत्तस्तु महर्षीन् धर्मवत्सलान्।
त्रैलोक्ये नित्यासंतुष्टो भक्षयन् विचचार ह ॥ ३८ ॥

“Wanton Kumbhakarna, ever discontented, roamed about the three worlds devouring the great sages fond of righteousness. (38)

विभीषणस्तु धर्मात्मा नित्यं धर्मव्यवस्थितः।
स्वाध्यायनियताहार उवास विजितेन्द्रियः ॥ ३९ ॥

“The pious-minded Vibhiṣaṇa, who was ever fully established in rectitude and highly self-controlled, lived on a sparse diet, and was given to the study of the Vedas. (39)

अथ वैश्रवणो देवस्तत्र कालेन केनचित्।
आगतः पितरं द्रष्टुं पुष्पकेण धनेश्वरः ॥ ४० ॥

“Now after sometime god Kubera (son of Viśravā), the lord of riches, came in his aerial car to see his father. (40)

तं दृष्ट्वा कैकसी तत्र ज्वलन्तमिव तेजसा।
आगम्य राक्षसी तत्र दशग्रीवमुवाच ह ॥ ४१ ॥

“On seeing him, blazing as it were with lustre, the ogress, Kaikasī came up there and said to Daśagrīva: (41)

पुत्र वैश्रवणं पश्य भ्रातरं तेजसा वृतम्।
भ्रातृभावे समे चापि पश्यात्मानं त्वमीदृशम् ॥ ४२ ॥

‘Son, look at your (half-) brother, Vaiśravaṇa (Kubera), full of lustre; look upon yourself, who are so poor, though equal to him as a brother. (42)

दशग्रीव यथा यत्नं कुरुष्वामितविक्रम।
यथा त्वमपि मे पुत्र भवेवैश्रवणोपमः ॥ ४३ ॥

‘Make every effort, so that you too become like him, O Daśagrīva! you have limitless prowess, my son.’ (43)

मातुस्तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा दशग्रीवः प्रतापवान्।
अमर्षमतुलं लेभे प्रतिज्ञां चाकरोत् तदा ॥ ४४ ॥

“Hearing these words of his mother, the valiant Daśagrīva became immeasurably envious and took the following vow: (44)

सत्यं ते प्रतिजानामि भ्रातृतुल्योऽधिकोऽपि वा।
भविष्याम्योजसा चैव संतापं त्यज हृद्गतम् ॥ ४५ ॥

‘I swear to you truly, I will rise equal to Vaiśravaṇa and even excel him in respect of power; give up grieving in your heart.’ (45)

ततः क्रोधेन तेनैव दशग्रीवः सहानुजः।
चिकीर्षुर्दुष्करं कर्म तपसे धृतमानसः ॥ ४६ ॥

प्राप्स्यामि तपसा काममिति कृत्वाध्यवस्य च।
आगच्छदात्मसिद्ध्यर्थं गोकर्णस्याश्रमं शुभम् ॥ ४७ ॥

“Then in a fit of spleen, Daśagrīva, having set his mind on performing Tapas, and seeking to accomplish a difficult task, came to the holy Āśrama at Gokarna for achieving success determined to gain his ends by practising austerities with his younger brothers. (46-47)

स राक्षसस्तत्र सहानुजस्तदा
तपश्चारातुलमुग्रविक्रमः ।

अतोषयच्चापि पितामहं विभुं
ददौ स तुष्टश्च वराञ्जयावहान् ॥ ४८ ॥

“That Rākṣasa of terrible prowess, in the company of his younger brothers, practised unsurpassed Tapas in that place; thereby he pleased the all-powerful Brahmā who, in the plenitude of his pleasure, granted boons which would bring victory.” (48)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे नवमः सर्गः ॥ ९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Nine in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

दशमः सर्गः

Canto X

Rāvaṇa and his younger brothers perform
Tapas and obtain boons

अथाब्रवीन्मुनिं रामः कथं ते भ्रातरो वने ।
कीदृशं तु तदा ब्रह्मंस्तपस्तेर्पुर्महाबलाः ॥ १ ॥

“Śrī Rāma then said to the sage, ‘How and in what manner did those brothers of extraordinary might perform Tapas in the forest, O Brāhmaṇa?’” (1)

अगस्त्यस्त्वब्रवीत् तत्र रामं सुप्रीतमानसम् ।
तांस्तान् धर्मविधींस्तत्र भ्रातरस्ते समाविशन् ॥ २ ॥

Agastya for his part told on that occasion Śrī Rāma, who was well-pleased at heart, that the said brothers adopted the religious practices which suited them severally. (2)

कुम्भकर्णस्ततो यत्तो नित्यं धर्मपथे स्थितः ।
तताप ग्रीष्मकाले तु पञ्चाग्नीन् परितः स्थितः ॥ ३ ॥

“Ever steadfast in the path of rectitude and striving hard, Kumbhakarna performed Tapas in summer standing in the midst of fires on all the four sides and the sun shining overhead. (3)

मेघाम्बुसिक्तो वर्षासु वीरासनमसेवत ।
नित्यं च शिशिरे काले जलमध्यप्रतिश्रयः ॥ ४ ॥

“In the rainy season, he sat kneeling on one leg, drenched all over with rainwater and in the winter season he remained always standing in water. (4)

एवं वर्षसहस्राणि दश तस्यापचक्रमुः ।
धर्मे प्रयतमानस्य सत्यथे निष्ठितस्य च ॥ ५ ॥

“Standing firm in the right path and ever striving for righteousness, he spent ten thousand years. (5)

विभीषणस्तु धर्मात्मा नित्यं धर्मपरः शुचिः ।
पञ्चवर्षसहस्राणि पादेनैकेन तस्थिवान् ॥ ६ ॥

“The pious-minded Vibhiṣaṇa, pure and always intent on rectitude, for his part stood on one leg for five thousand years. (6)

समाप्ते नियमे तस्य ननृतुश्चाप्सरोगणाः ।
पपात पुष्पवर्षं च तुष्टुवुश्चापि देवताः ॥ ७ ॥

“When his austerities were over, troupes of Apsarās (celestial nymphs) danced, flowers fell in showers and the gods hymned his praises. (7)

पञ्चवर्षसहस्राणि सूर्यं चैवान्ववर्तत ।
तस्थौ चोर्ध्वशिरोबाहुः स्वाध्याये धृतमानसः ॥ ८ ॥

“Intent on studying the Vedas, he spent another five thousand years with his arms and head raised and worshipped the sun. (8)

एवं विभीषणस्यापि स्वर्गस्थस्येव नन्दने ।
दशवर्षसहस्राणि गतानि नियतात्मनः ॥ ९ ॥

“In this manner, Vibhiṣaṇa, the disciplined soul, spent ten thousand years as though he stayed in the Nandana Vana (Indra’s pleasure-garden). (9)

दशवर्षसहस्रं तु निराहारो दशाननः ।
पूर्णे वर्षसहस्रे तु शिरश्चाग्नौ जुहाव सः ॥ १० ॥

“Daśagrīva for his part went without food for ten thousand years and at the end of every thousand years offered one of his heads as a sacrifice into the fire. (10)

एवं वर्षसहस्राणि नव तस्यातिचक्रमुः ।
शिरांसि नव चाप्यस्य प्रविष्टानि हुताशनम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Thus he spent nine thousand years and nine of his heads went into the fire. (11)

अथ वर्षसहस्रे तु दशमे दशमं शिरः ।
छेत्तुकामे दशग्रीवे प्राप्तस्तत्र पितामहः ॥ १२ ॥

“At the end of ten thousand years when Daśagrīva was about to cut off his tenth head, Brahmā appeared before him. (12)

पितामहस्तु सुप्रीतः सार्धं देवैरुपस्थितः ।
तव तावद् दशग्रीव प्रीतोऽस्मीत्यभ्यभाषत ॥ १३ ॥

“Supremely satisfied, Brahmā for his part stood before him in the company of other gods and said, ‘O Daśagrīva, I am really pleased with you. (13)

शीघ्रं वरय धर्मज्ञ वरो यस्तेऽभिकांक्षितः ।
कं ते कामं करोम्यद्य न वृथा ते परिश्रमः ॥ १४ ॥

“‘Select the boon of your choice without delay, O knower of what is right! What desire of yours shall I fulfil today? Your austerities should not go in vain.’ (14)

अथाब्रवीद् दशग्रीवः प्रहृष्टेनान्तरात्मना ।
प्रणम्य शिरसा देवं हर्षगद्गदया गिरा ॥ १५ ॥

“Pleased at heart, Daśagrīva bowed down to the god and said in a voice choked with joy: (15)

भगवन् प्राणिनां नित्यं नान्यत्र मरणाद् भयम् ।
नास्ति मृत्युसमः शत्रुरमरत्वमहं वृणे ॥ १६ ॥

“‘O Lord, to living beings the only constant source of fear is death; there is no enemy like unto death. I choose immortality.’ (16)

एवमुक्तस्तदा ब्रह्मा दशग्रीवमुवाच ह ।
नास्ति सर्वामरत्वं ते वरमन्यं वृणीष्व मे ॥ १७ ॥

“Thus addressed, Brahmā, thereupon said to Daśagrīva, ‘There can be no absolute immortality for you; ask for some other boon of me.’ (17)

एवमुक्ते तदा राम ब्रह्मणा लोककर्तृणा ।
दशग्रीव उवाचेदं कृताञ्जलिरथाग्रतः ॥ १८ ॥

“O Rāma, Brahmā, the creator of the world, having spoken thus at that time, Daśagrīva, standing in front, submitted as follows with folded hands: (18)

सुपर्णनागयक्षाणां दैत्यदानवरक्षसाम् ।
अवध्योऽहं प्रजाध्यक्ष देवतानां च शाश्वत ॥ १९ ॥

“‘O eternal lord of created beings, I want immunity from death at the hands of Suparṇas (eagles), Nāgas (serpents), Yakṣas, Daityas, Dānavas, Rākṣasas, as also from gods. (19)

नहि चिन्ता ममान्येषु प्राणिष्वमरपूजित ।
तृणभूता हि ते मन्ये प्राणिनो मानुषादयः ॥ २० ॥

“‘O god, worshipped by the immortals, I have no cause of anxiety from other living beings; for I think of those other creatures such as human beings as mere straw.’ (20)

एवमुक्तस्तु धर्मात्मा दशग्रीवेण रक्षसा ।
उवाच वचनं देवः सह देवैः पितामहः ॥ २१ ॥

“Addressed thus by Daśagrīva, the Rākṣasa, the pious-minded god Brahmā, who was accompanied by other gods, said as follows: (21)

भविष्यत्येवमेतत् ते वचो रक्षसपुङ्गव ।
एवमुक्त्वा तु तं राम दशग्रीवं पितामहः ॥ २२ ॥

शृणु चापि वरो भूयः प्रीतस्येह शुभो मम ।
हुतानि यानि शीर्षाणि पूर्वमग्नौ त्वयानघ ॥ २३ ॥

पुनस्तानि भविष्यन्ति तथैव तव रक्षस ।
वितरामीह ते सौम्य वरं चान्यं दुरासदम् ॥ २४ ॥

छन्दतस्तव रूपं च मनसा यद् यथेप्सितम् ।
एवं पितामहोक्तस्य दशग्रीवस्य रक्षसः ॥ २५ ॥

अग्नौ हुतानि शीर्षाणि पुनस्तान्युत्थितानि वै ।
एवमुक्त्वा तु तं राम दशग्रीवं पितामहः ॥ २६ ॥

विभीषणमथोवाच वाक्यं लोकपितामहः ।
विभीषण त्वया वत्स धर्मसंहितबुद्धिना ॥ २७ ॥

परितुष्टोऽस्मि धर्मात्मन् वरं वरय सुव्रत ।
विभीषणस्तु धर्मात्मा वचनं प्राह साञ्जलिः ॥ २८ ॥

वृतः सर्वगुणैर्नित्यं चन्द्रमा रश्मिभिर्यथा ।
भगवन् कृतकृत्योऽहं यन्मे लोकगुरुः स्वयम् ॥ २९ ॥

“‘O jewel among the Rākṣasas, this request of yours shall be fulfilled.’ Having said this to Daśagrīva, O Rāma, Brahmā added: ‘Hear now of another auspicious boon from me who am pleased, O sinless one, the heads which were previously offered as a sacrifice into the fire, will again appear as before, O ogre. I will give you on this occasion another boon, not easily to be obtained, O dear one! You will assume any form at will.’ So of Daśagrīva, who was thus assured by Brahmā, the heads which were offered as sacrifice into the fire were restored. "Having said as above to Daśagrīva, O Rāma, Brahmā, the grandfather of the universe, spoke as follows to Vibhiṣaṇa: 'Vibhiṣaṇa, my child, I am highly pleased with you, whose mind is imbued with Dharma, O pious-minded one! Ask for a boon, O ogre of holy vows!' Vibhiṣaṇa, the Dharmātmā, always endowed with all good qualities like the moon with its rays, said with folded hands, 'I am Kṛtakṛtya (one who has his life's purpose accomplished) O venerable sir, in that the 'Loka-guru' (the world-teacher) is himself pleased with me.

(22—29)

प्रीतेन यदि दातव्यो वरो मे शृणु सुव्रत ।
परमापद्रुतस्यापि धर्मे मम मतिर्भवेत् ॥ ३० ॥

'If you grant a boon to me in your pleasure, O god of holy vows, please give me a hearing: Even when I get into the greatest of difficulties, my mind should remain steady in virtue.

(30)

अशिक्षितं च ब्रह्मास्त्रं भगवन् प्रतिभातु मे ।
या या मे जायते बुद्धिर्येषु येष्वाश्रमेषु च ॥ ३१ ॥
सा सा भवतु धर्मिष्ठा तं तं धर्मं च पालये ।
एष मे परमोदारो वरः परमको मतः ॥ ३२ ॥

'O Lord, let the knowledge of Brahmāstra (a mystic missile presided over by Brahmā) dawn on me untaught. May all the thoughts that come to me in the various stages of life, be in accord with Dharma. Let me also perform the duties appropriate to each such stage, O supremely magnanimous one, this I consider to be the best boon.

(31-32)

नहि धर्माभिरक्तानां लोके किञ्चन दुर्लभम् ।
पुनः प्रजापतिः प्रीतो विभीषणमुवाच ह ॥ ३३ ॥

'There is nothing in the world which those who are devoted to righteousness find difficult to obtain.' The Prajāpati, being pleased, further said to Vibhiṣaṇa as follows:

(33)

धर्मिष्ठस्त्वं यथा वत्स तथा चैतद् भविष्यति ।
यस्माद् राक्षसयोनौ ते जातस्यामित्रनाशन ॥ ३४ ॥

नाधर्मे जायते बुद्धिरमरत्वं ददामि ते ।
इत्युक्त्वा कुम्भकर्णाय वरं दातुमवस्थितम् ॥ ३५ ॥
प्रजापतिं सुराः सर्वे वाक्यं प्राञ्जलयोऽब्रुवन् ।
न तावत् कुम्भकर्णाय प्रदातव्यो वरस्त्वया ॥ ३६ ॥
जानीषे हि यथा लोकांस्त्रासयत्येष दुर्मतिः ।
नन्दनेऽप्सरसः सप्त महेन्द्रानुचरा दश ॥ ३७ ॥
अनेन भक्षिता ब्रह्मन्मृषयो मानुषास्तथा ।
अलब्धवरपूर्वेण यत् कृतं राक्षसेन तु ॥ ३८ ॥
यद्येष वरलब्धः स्याद् भक्षयेद् भुवनत्रयम् ।
वरव्याजेन मोहोऽस्मै दीयताममितप्रभ ॥ ३९ ॥

'My son, since you are exceedingly virtuous, it shall be so; O destroyer of your foes, since your mind is not inclined to unrighteousness, even though you are born in the family of Rākṣasas, I make you immortal.' "When after saying this to Vibhiṣaṇa, the Prajāpati was standing ready to grant a boon to Kumbhakarna, all the gods with folded hands said to him: 'No boon at all should be granted by you to Kumbhakarna; for you know how this evil-minded fellow is causing terror in all the three worlds. Seven celestial nymphs (Apsarās) in the Nandana Vana (pleasure-garden of Indra), ten attendants of the mighty Indra as also seers and human beings have been devoured by him, O Brahmā! When so much havoc has been done by this Rākṣasa even when he had received no boons, he will devour all the three worlds if boons are granted to him. Under the pretext of granting boons to him, let a spell of delusion be cast on him, O god of limitless lustre! (34—39)

लोकानां स्वस्ति चैवं स्याद् भवेदस्य च सम्मतिः ।
एवमुक्तः सुरैर्ब्रह्माचिन्तयत् पद्मसम्भवः ॥ ४० ॥

'The welfare of the world will thus be assured and honour conferred on him.' "Addressed thus by the gods, Brahmā, the lotus-born, thought of Goddess Saraswatī, his consort.

(40)

चिन्तिता चोपतस्थेऽस्य पार्श्वे देवी सरस्वती ।
प्राञ्जलिः सा तु पार्श्वस्था प्राह वाक्यं सरस्वती ॥ ४१ ॥

"Thought of by him, Goddess Saraswatī came and stood by his side. Standing by his side, she spoke with folded hands as follows: (41)

इयमस्म्यागता देव किं कार्यं करवाण्यहम्।
प्रजापतिस्तु तां प्राप्तां प्राह वाक्यं सरस्वतीम् ॥ ४२ ॥

‘Having arrived I am here, O Lord! What shall I do?’ To Saraswatī, who had come, the Prajāpati for his part, said: (42)

वाणि त्वं राक्षसेन्द्रस्य भव वाग्देवतेप्सिता।
तथेत्युक्त्वा प्रविष्टा सा प्रजापतिरथाब्रवीत् ॥ ४३ ॥

‘O goddess of speech, as the gods desire, you become the speech in the mouth of the chief of ogres, Kumbhakarna.’ Saying ‘Be it so’, she entered the mouth of Kumbhakarna. Then the Prajāpati said to the latter: (43)

कुम्भकर्ण महाबाहो वरं वरय यो मतः।
कुम्भकर्णस्तु तद्वाक्यं श्रुत्वा वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ४४ ॥

‘O mighty-armed Kumbhakarna, ask the boon of your choice.’ Hearing these words, Kumbhakarna said as follows: (44)

स्वप्तुं वर्षाण्यनेकानि देवदेव ममेप्सितम्।
एवमस्त्विति तं चोक्त्वा प्रायाद् ब्रह्मा सुरैः समम् ॥ ४५ ॥

‘O god of gods, I desire to sleep for

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे दशमः सर्गः ॥ १० ॥

Thus ends Canto Ten in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकादशः सर्गः

Canto XI

Kubera listens to the ultimatum of Rāvaṇa, leaves Laṅkā at the command of his father and proceeds to Kailāsa to live there. The Rākṣasas occupy Laṅkā and Rāvaṇa is installed as its ruler

सुमाली वरलब्धांस्तु ज्ञात्वा चैतान् निशाचरान्।
उदतिष्ठद् भयं त्यक्त्वा सानुगः स रसातलात् ॥ १ ॥

“Again, coming to know that the aforesaid Rākṣasas had obtained boons from Brahmā, Sumālī shedding his fear, rose up from the netherworld with many years.’ Having said ‘Be it so’, Brahmā left with the gods. (45)

देवी सरस्वती चैव राक्षसं तं जहौ पुनः।
ब्रह्मणा सह देवेषु गतेषु च नभःस्थलम् ॥ ४६ ॥
विमुक्तोऽसौ सरस्वत्या स्वां संज्ञां च ततो गतः।
कुम्भकर्णस्तु दुष्टात्मा चिन्तयामास दुःखितः ॥ ४७ ॥

Goddess Saraswatī also left the Rākṣasa. When the gods alongwith Brahmā had ascended to the heavens, and Saraswatī had left him, the evil-minded Kumbhakarna came to himself and thought sorrowfully: (46-47)

ईदृशं किमिदं वाक्यं ममाद्य वदनाच्च्युतम्।
अहं व्यामोहितो देवैरिति मन्ये तदागतैः ॥ ४८ ॥

‘How did words like these come out of my lips? I think I have been deceived by the gods who came at that time.’ (48)

एवं लब्धवराः सर्वे भ्रातरो दीप्ततेजसः।
श्लेष्मातकवनं गत्वा तत्र ते न्यवसन् सुखम् ॥ ४९ ॥

“The brothers of shining lustre, having obtained boons in this manner, went to a forest of Śleṣmātaka trees (Cordia myxora) and lived there happily.” (49)

his followers. (1)

मारीचश्च प्रहस्तश्च विरूपाक्षो महोदरः।
उदतिष्ठन् सुसंरब्धाः सचिवास्तस्य रक्षसः ॥ २ ॥

Mārīca and Prahasta, Virūpākṣa and Mahodara, the ministers of that Rākṣasa, also rose up with great fury. (2)

सुमाली सचिवैः सार्धं वृतो राक्षसपुङ्गवैः ।
अभिगम्य दशग्रीवं परिष्वज्येदमब्रवीत् ॥ ३ ॥

Sumālī accompanied by his ministers and surrounded by other Rākṣasa chieftains, came to Daśagrīva and, embracing him, spoke as follows: (3)

दिष्ट्या ते वत्स सम्प्राप्तश्चिन्तितोऽयं मनोरथः ।
यस्त्वं त्रिभुवनश्रेष्ठाल्लब्धवान् वरमुत्तमम् ॥ ४ ॥

‘Child, since you have secured from the great personality of the three worlds, Brahmā, the best of boons, you have fortunately obtained what you were cherishing in your mind. (4)

यत्कृते च वयं लङ्कां त्यक्त्वा याता रसातलम् ।
तद्गतं नो महाबाहो महद्विष्णुकृतं भयम् ॥ ५ ॥

‘The great fear inspired in us by Viṣṇu, for which we had to leave Laṅkā and enter the netherworld is now gone, O mighty-armed one! (5)

असकृत् तद्भयाद् भग्नाः परित्यज्य स्वमालयम् ।
विद्रुताः सहिताः सर्वे प्रविष्टाः स्म रसातलम् ॥ ६ ॥

‘Dispirited and scared away by fear of Viṣṇu, we all had on many occasions to leave our home, Laṅkā, and enter the netherworld alongwith our followers. (6)

अस्मदीया च लङ्केयं नगरी राक्षसोषिता ।
निवेशिता तव भ्रात्रा धनाध्यक्षेण धीमता ॥ ७ ॥

‘The city of Laṅkā which has been occupied by your intelligent half-brother, Kubera, the lord of wealth, really belongs to us and was inhabited by ogres. (7)

यदि नामात्र शक्यं स्यात् साम्ना दानेन वानघ ।
तरसा वा महाबाहो प्रत्यानेतुं कृतं भवेत् ॥ ८ ॥

‘If, O sinless and mighty-armed one, it could be taken back by sweet reasonableness or by gift or by force, our work will have been accomplished. (8)

त्वं च लङ्केश्वरस्तात भविष्यसि न संशयः ।
त्वया राक्षसवंशोऽयं निमग्नोऽपि समुद्धृतः ॥ ९ ॥

‘Nay, without doubt you will be the ruler of Laṅkā, O dear one! The line of Rākṣasas which had sunk to the grove, has again been lifted up by you. (9)

सर्वेषां नः प्रभुश्चैव भविष्यसि महाबल ।
अथाब्रवीद् दशग्रीवो मातामहमुपस्थितम् ॥ १० ॥

‘O ogre of extraordinary might, you will become the overlord of all of us.’ Daśagrīva then said to his maternal grandfather, who had come in person: (10)

वित्तेशो गुरुरस्माकं नार्हसे वक्तुमीदृशम् ।
साम्ना हि राक्षसेन्द्रेण प्रत्याख्यातो गरीयसा ॥ ११ ॥
किञ्चिन्नाह तदा रक्षो ज्ञात्वा तस्य चिकीर्षितम् ।
कस्यचित् त्वथ कालस्य वसन्तं रावणं ततः ॥ १२ ॥
उक्तवन्तं तथा वाक्यं दशग्रीवं निशाचरः ।
प्रहस्तः प्रश्रितं वाक्यमिदमाह सकारणम् ॥ १३ ॥

‘You ought not to speak in this strain; for the lord of wealth is our elder brother.’ ‘The great Rākṣasa, being rebuked in gentle words by the ruler of the ogres, did not say anything further, knowing his (Daśagrīva’s) intention. After sometime the ogre Prahasta addressed the following humble and well-reasoned words to Rāvaṇa, who was still there and who had spoken in the aforesaid manner: (11—13)

दशग्रीव महाबाहो नार्हसे वक्तुमीदृशम् ।
सौभ्रात्रं नास्ति शूराणां शृणु चेदं वचो मम ॥ १४ ॥

‘O mighty-armed Daśagrīva, you ought not to speak like this; there is no such thing as brotherly feeling among heroes. Nay, listen to my following words: (14)

अदितिश्च दितिश्चैव भगिन्यौ सहिते हि ते ।
भार्ये परमरूपिण्यौ कश्यपस्य प्रजापतेः ॥ १५ ॥

‘The sisters, Aditi and Diti, both highly beautiful, are the mutually loving wives of Kaśyapa, a lord of creation. (15)

अदितिर्जनयामास देवांस्त्रिभुवनेश्वरान् ।
दितिस्त्वजनयद् दैत्यान् कश्यपस्यात्मसम्भवान् ॥ १६ ॥

‘Aditi bore the gods, the lords of the worlds; Diti gave birth to the Daityas, both being the progeny of Kaśyapa. (16)

दैत्यानां किल धर्मज्ञ पुरेयं सवनार्णवा।
सपर्वता मही वीर तेऽभवन् प्रभविष्णवः ॥ १७ ॥

‘This earth (filled) with its forests, seas and mountains belonged of yore to the Daityas; for they were all powerful. (17)

निहत्य तांस्तु समरे विष्णुना प्रभविष्णुना।
देवानां वशमानीतं त्रैलोक्यमिदमव्ययम् ॥ १८ ॥

‘After killing them in war, all these three worlds were for their part brought under the lasting sway of the gods by the powerful Viṣṇu. (18)

नैतदेको भवानेव करिष्यति विपर्ययम्।
सुरासुरैराचरितं तत् कुरुष्व वचो मम ॥ १९ ॥

‘You are not the only one who will act in opposition to a brother; this was done in the past by the gods and demons alike. Hence, do as I say.’ (19)

एवमुक्तो दशग्रीवः प्रहृष्टेनान्तरात्मना।
चिन्तयित्वा मुहूर्तं वै बाढमित्येव सोऽब्रवीत् ॥ २० ॥

‘Having been addressed thus, Daśagrīva, pleased at heart, thought for a while and then said, ‘All right’. (20)

स तु तेनैव हर्षेण तस्मिन्नहनि वीर्यवान्।
वनं गतो दशग्रीवः सह तैः क्षणदाचरैः ॥ २१ ॥

‘With the same joy, the valiant Daśagrīva went to the forest the very day accompanied by the Rākṣasas. (21)

त्रिकूटस्थः स तु तदा दशग्रीवो निशाचरः।
प्रेषयामास दौत्येन प्रहस्तं वाक्यकोविदम् ॥ २२ ॥

‘Stationed on Mount Trikūṭa, Daśagrīva, the Rākṣasa, sent Prahasta, skilled in the art of expression, as a messenger, saying: (22)

प्रहस्त शीघ्रं गच्छ त्वं ब्रूहि नैर्ऋतपुङ्गवम्।
वचसा मम वित्तेषां सामपूर्वमिदं वचः ॥ २३ ॥

‘O Prahasta, go quickly and convey to the lord of riches, the foremost of ogres, these words, as coming from me, in a polite manner: (23)

इयं लङ्का पुरी राजन् राक्षसानां महात्मनाम्।
त्वया निवेशिता सौम्य नैतद् युक्तं तवानघ ॥ २४ ॥

‘This city of Laṅkā, O king, which belonged to the mighty Rākṣasas, has been occupied by you. O gentle and sinless one, this is not proper for you. (24)

तद् भवान् यदि नो ह्यद्य दद्यादतुलविक्रम।
कृता भवेन्मम प्रीतिधर्मश्चैवानुपालितः ॥ २५ ॥

‘If you, O hero of peerless strength, could give it back to us now, you will at once have pleased me and done the right thing.’ (25)

स तु गत्वा पुरीं लङ्कां धनदेन सुरक्षिताम्।
अब्रवीत् परमोदारं वित्तपालमिदं वचः ॥ २६ ॥

‘Proceeding to Laṅkā, well-protected by Kubera, Prahasta addressed the following words to the highly magnanimous lord of wealth: (26)

प्रेषितोऽहं तव भ्रात्रा दशग्रीवेण सुव्रत।
त्वत्समीपं महाबाहो सर्वशास्त्रभृतां वर ॥ २७ ॥

‘O pious and best among all those who bear arms, I have been sent by Daśagrīva, your half-brother, to your presence, O mighty-armed one! (27)

तच्छ्रूयतां महाप्राज्ञ सर्वशास्त्रविशारद।
वचनं मम वित्तेश यद् ब्रवीति दशाननः ॥ २८ ॥

‘O lord of wealth, learned in all the Śāstras and highly intelligent, listen to my submission, which is precisely what Daśagrīva says: (28)

इयं किल पुरी रम्या सुमालिप्रमुखैः पुरा।
भुक्तपूर्वा विशालाक्ष राक्षसैर्भीमविक्रमैः ॥ २९ ॥

‘This charming city, O large-eyed one, was previously ruled over by Rākṣasas of terrible might, of whom Sumālī was the foremost. (29)

तेन विज्ञाप्यते सोऽयं साम्प्रतं विश्रवात्मज।
तदेषा दीयतां तात याचतस्तस्य सामतः ॥ ३० ॥

‘O son of Viśravā, this requisition is being made by him now. Let it be given back to him who is asking for it in a peaceful manner.' (30)

प्रहस्तादपि संश्रुत्य देवो वैश्रवणो वचः ।
प्रत्युवाच प्रहस्तं तं वाक्यं वाक्यविदां वरः ॥ ३१ ॥

“Hearing these words from Prahasta, god Vaiśravaṇa, the best of speakers, replied as follows to Prahasta: (31)

दत्ता ममेयं पित्रा तु लङ्का शून्या निशाचरैः ।
निवेशिता च मे रक्षो दानमानादिभिर्गुणैः ॥ ३२ ॥

“This city of Laṅkā evacuated by the Rākṣasas, was given to me by my father. It then came to be peopled by me by inducements of gifts and honour etc. (32)

ब्रूहि गच्छ दशग्रीवं पुरी राज्यं च यन्मम ।
तत्राप्येतन्महाबाहो भुङ्क्ष्व राज्यमकण्टकम् ॥ ३३ ॥
अविभक्तं त्वया सार्धं राज्यं यच्चापि मे वसु ।
एवमुक्त्वा धनाध्यक्षो जगाम पितुरन्तिकम् ॥ ३४ ॥

“Go and tell Daśagrīva, “my city and kingdom as well belong to you. My kingdom as well as all my wealth stands undivided with you. Enjoy it (with me) without any fear of rivalry.” Having spoken thus, the lord of wealth sought the presence of his father. (33-34)

अभिवाद्य गुरुं प्राह रावणस्य यदीप्सितम् ।
एष तात दशग्रीवो दूतं प्रेषितवान् मम ॥ ३५ ॥
दीयतां नगरी लङ्का पूर्वं रक्षोगणोषिता ।
मयात्र यदनुष्ठेयं तन्ममाचक्ष्व सुव्रत ॥ ३६ ॥

Paying respects to his father, he conveyed Daśagrīva's desire in the following words: ‘Father, Daśagrīva has just sent an emissary to me saying: “Let Laṅkā, which was previously occupied by the Rākṣasas, be given back to me. Please tell me, O pious one, what I should do in this connection.” (35-36)

ब्रह्मर्षिस्त्वेवमुक्तोऽसौ विश्रवा मुनिपुङ्गवः ।
प्राञ्जलिं धनदं प्राह शृणु पुत्र वचो मम ॥ ३७ ॥

“Being addressed thus, Viśravā, the Brahmarṣi, the best of sages, told the lord of wealth, who was standing with joined palms, ‘My son, listen to my words. (37)

दशग्रीवो महाबाहुर्कृतवान् मम संनिधौ ।
मया निर्भर्त्सितश्चासीद् बहुशोक्तः सुदुर्मतिः ॥ ३८ ॥
स क्रोधेन मया चोक्तो ध्वंससे च पुनः पुनः ।
श्रेयोऽभियुक्तं धर्म्यं च शृणु पुत्र वचो मम ॥ ३९ ॥

‘Daśagrīva, the mighty-armed, said the same thing in my presence also. I rebuked him and exhorted that highly evil-minded fellow in several ways. In anger I repeatedly said, You shall be destroyed. Son, listen to my words which will do you good and which are consonant with Dharma. (38-39)

वरप्रदानसम्भूढो मान्यामान्यं सुदुर्मतिः ।
न वेत्ति मम शापाच्च प्रकृतिं दारुणां गतः ॥ ४० ॥

‘This most evil-minded fellow, deluded as he is by the boons that have been granted to him, does not distinguish between people to be respected and those not to be respected. Again, by my curse he is evil-minded by nature. (40)

तस्माद् गच्छ महाबाहो कैलासं धरणीधरम् ।
निवेशय निवासार्थं त्यक्त्वा लङ्कां सहानुगः ॥ ४१ ॥

‘Hence, O mighty-armed one, leave Laṅkā and proceed to Mount Kailāsa with your followers and people it for your residence. (41)

तत्र मन्दाकिनी रम्या नदीनामुत्तमा नदी ।
काञ्चनैः सूर्यसंकाशैः पङ्कजैः संवृतोदका ॥ ४२ ॥
कुमुदैरुत्पलैश्चैव अन्यैश्चैव सुगन्धिभिः ।
तत्र देवाः सगन्धर्वाः साप्सरोरगकिंनराः ॥ ४३ ॥
विहारशीलाः सततं रमन्ते सर्वदाश्रिताः ।
नहि क्षमं तवानेन वैरं धनद रक्षसा ॥ ४४ ॥
जानीषे हि यथानेन लब्धः परमको वरः ॥ ४५ ॥

‘The Mandākini, the best of rivers, whose waters are covered all over with lotus flowers of golden hue and bright like the sun, as also with white water-lilies, blue lotuses and other flowers of sweet fragrance, flows there. Gods with Gandharvas, Apsarās, Nāgas and Kinnaras, all of a sportive nature, always resort to that place and constantly revel there. Since you know how he (Daśagrīva) has obtained an excellent boon, it is not advisable for you to antagonize him.' (42—45)

एवमुक्तो गृहीत्वा तु तद्वचः पितृगौरवात्।
सदारपुत्रः सामात्यः सवाहनधनो गतः ॥ ४६ ॥

Told thus and following his advice out of respect for his father, Kubera left the place with his wife and sons, his ministers, his vehicles and his wealth. (46)

प्रहस्तोऽथ दशग्रीवं गत्वा वचनमब्रवीत्।
प्रहृष्टात्मा महात्मानं सहामात्यं सहानुजम् ॥ ४७ ॥
शून्या सा नगरी लङ्का त्यक्त्वैनां धनदो गतः।
प्रविश्य तां सहास्माभिः स्वधर्मं तत्र पालय ॥ ४८ ॥

“Prahasta, overjoyed, sought the mighty Daśagrīva, who was being attended by his ministers and brothers and said, ‘Kubera has left the city of Laṅkā and has gone away. It is now vacant. Entering it now in our company, discharge your duty there.’” (47-48)

एवमुक्तो दशग्रीवः प्रहस्तेन महाबलः।
विवेश नगरीं लङ्कां भ्रातृभिः सबलानुगैः ॥ ४९ ॥

Told thus by Prahasta, Rāvaṇa of great strength entered Laṅkā along with his brothers, forces and other followers. (49)

धनदेन परित्यक्तां सुविभक्तमहापथाम्।
आरुरोह स देवारिः स्वर्गं देवाधिपो यथा ॥ ५० ॥

That enemy of the gods stepped into Laṅkā—whose main streets were well laid out, and which had been evacuated by the god of riches—just as Indra ascended heaven (50)

स चाभिषिक्तः क्षणदाचरैस्तदा
निवेशयामास पुरीं दशाननः।
निकामपूर्णां च बभूव सा पुरी
निशाचरैर्नीलबलाहकोपमैः ॥ ५१ ॥

Consecrated by the Rākṣasas as its ruler, Daśagrīva peopled that city. It was soon filled to capacity with Rākṣasas, dark as clouds. (51)

धनेश्वरस्त्वथ पितृवाक्यगौरवा- न्यवेशयच्छशिविमले गिरौ पुरीम्।
स्वलंकृतैर्भवनवरैर्विभूषितां
पुरंदरस्येव तदाऽमरावतीम् ॥ ५२ ॥

Out of respect for his father's word, Kubera built on the hill, white as the moon, a city adorned with well-decorated mansions even as Indra laid out Amarāvati in heaven. (52)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकादशः सर्गः ॥ ११ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eleven in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वादशः सर्गः

Canto XII

The marriage of Śūrpaṇakhā, of Rāvaṇa and his brothers and the birth of Meghanāda

राक्षसेन्द्रोऽभिषिक्तस्तु भ्रातृभिः सहितस्तदा।
ततः प्रदानं राक्षस्या भगिन्याः समचिन्तयत् ॥ १ ॥

“After his consecration as the ruler of Laṅkā, Rāvaṇa took counsel with his brothers regarding the marriage of his sister, a Rākṣasī. (1)

स्वसारं कालकेयाय दानवेन्द्राय राक्षसीम्।
ददौ शूर्पणखां नाम विद्युज्जिह्वाय राक्षसः ॥ २ ॥

“The Rākṣasa gave away his sister, the ogress Śūrpaṇakhā in marriage to Vidyujjihva, chief of the Dānavas and son of Kālakā. (2)

अथ दत्त्वा स्वयं रक्षो मृगयामटते स्म तत्।
तत्रापश्यत् ततो राम मयं नाम दितेः सुतम् ॥ ३ ॥

“After giving her away, the Rākṣasa went about sporting in the forest and saw there, O Rāma, Maya, son of Diti. (3)

कन्यासहायं तं दृष्ट्वा दशग्रीवो निशाचरः।
अपृच्छत् को भवानेको निर्मनुष्यमृगे वने ॥ ४ ॥
अनया मृगशावाक्ष्या किमर्थं सह तिष्ठसि।
मयस्तदाब्रवीद् राम पृच्छन्तं तं निशाचरम् ॥ ५ ॥

“Seeing him accompanied by his daughter, Daśagrīva, the Rākṣasa, inquired of him: ‘Who are you and why do you stay in this forest, devoid of human beings and animals, in the company of this girl whose eyes resemble a doe’s?’ O Rāma, Maya then replied to the inquisitive Rākṣasa: (4-5)

श्रूयतां सर्वमाख्यास्ये यथावृत्तमिदं तव।
हेमा नामाप्सरास्तात श्रुतपूर्वा यदि त्वया ॥ ६ ॥

‘I will narrate all the events as they took place. Please listen. There was an Apsarā by name Hemā. You might have heard of her. (6)

दैवतैर्मम सा दत्ता पौलोमीव शतक्रतोः।
तस्यां सक्तमना ह्यासं दशवर्षशतान्यहम् ॥ ७ ॥

‘Just as Paulomi, the daughter of Pulomā, was given in marriage to Indra, even so Hemā was given to me by the gods in marriage. I was deeply attached to her and lived with her for thousands of years. (7)

सा च दैवतकार्येण गता वर्षाश्चतुर्दश।
तस्याः कृते च हेमायाः सर्वं हेममयं पुरम् ॥ ८ ॥
वज्रवैदूर्यचित्रं च मायया निर्मितं मया।
तत्राहमवसं दीनस्तया हीनः सुदुःखितः ॥ ९ ॥

‘It is now fourteen years since she departed to serve the purpose of the gods. For the sake of Hemā, I created this city entirely made of gold by my magical powers and decked it with diamonds and cat’s-eye gems. Bereaved of her, I lived there, dispirited and extremely desolate. (8-9)

तस्माद् पुराद् दुहितरं गृहीत्वा वनमागतः।
इयं ममात्मजा राजंस्तस्याः कुक्षौ विवर्धिता ॥ १० ॥

‘From that city I came to the forest taking my daughter with me, O king. This is my daughter who grew in her (Hemā’s) womb. (10)

भर्तारमनया सार्धमस्याः प्राप्तोऽस्मि मार्गितुम्।
कन्यापितृत्वं दुःखं हि सर्वेषां मानकांक्षिणाम् ॥ ११ ॥

‘I have come in her company in search of a husband for her; for, to be the father of an unmarried girl is a headache to all parents who hanker after reputation. (11)

कन्या हि द्वे कुले नित्यं संशये स्थाप्य तिष्ठति।
पुत्रद्वयं ममाप्यस्यां भार्यायां सम्बभूव ह ॥ १२ ॥

‘An unmarried girl throws into jeopardy the reputation of two families. Of her (Hemā) two sons, too, were born to me. (12)

मायावी प्रथमस्तात दुन्दुभिस्तदनन्तरः।
एवं ते सर्वमाख्यातं याथातथ्येन पृच्छतः ॥ १३ ॥

‘Of them Māyāvī was the first and Dundubhi, the second. To you who have questioned me, O dear one, I have narrated everything exactly according to facts. (13)

त्वामिदानीं कथं तात जानीयां को भवानिति।
एवमुक्तं तु तद् रक्षो विनीतमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ १४ ॥
अहं पौलस्त्यतनयो दशग्रीवश्च नामतः।
मुनेर्विश्रवसो यस्तु तृतीयो ब्रह्मणोऽभवत् ॥ १५ ॥

‘Now, how can I know you? Who are you?’ “Questioned thus, the Rākṣasa humbly said: ‘I am a grandson of Pulastya and a son of sage Viśravā, who is third in descent from Brahmā himself. I go by the name of Daśagrīva.’ (14-15)

एवमुक्तस्तदा राम राक्षसेन्द्रेण दानवः।
महर्षेस्तनयं ज्ञात्वा मयो हर्षमुपागतः ॥ १६ ॥

“Spoken to thus, O Rāma, by the lord of the Rākṣasas and coming to know that he was a son of an eminent sage, Viśravā, Maya, the Dānava, became glad. (16)

दातुं दुहितरं तस्मै रोचयामास तत्र वै ।
 करेण तु करं तस्या ग्राहयित्वा मयस्तदा ॥ १७ ॥
 प्रहसन् प्राह दैत्येन्द्रो राक्षसेन्द्रमिदं वचः ।
 इयं ममात्मजा राजन् हेमयाप्सरसा धृता ॥ १८ ॥
 कन्या मन्दोदरी नाम पत्न्यर्थं प्रतिगृह्यताम् ।
 बाढमित्येव तं राम दशग्रीवोऽभ्यभाषत ॥ १९ ॥

Even in that place he resolved to give his daughter to him. Causing her hand to be grasped by his, Maya, the chief of the Daityas, addressed the following words to the chief of the Rākṣasas loudly laughing: 'O king, this my daughter, was brought up by Hemā, the Apsarā; the name of the maiden is Mandodarī; have her as your wife. To him, O Rāma, Daśagrīva said, 'All right'.

(17—19)

प्रज्वाल्य तत्र चैवाग्निमकरोत् पाणिसंग्रहम् ।
 स हि तस्य मयो राम शापाभिज्ञस्तपोधनात् ॥ २० ॥
 विदित्वा तेन सा दत्ता तस्य पैतामहं कुलम् ।
 अमोघां तस्य शक्तिं च प्रददौ परमाद्भुताम् ॥ २१ ॥
 परेण तपसा लब्धां जघ्निवाँल्लक्ष्मणं यया ।
 एवं स कृत्वा दारान् वै लङ्काया ईश्वरः प्रभुः ॥ २२ ॥
 गत्वा तु नगरीं भार्ये भ्रातृभ्यां समुपाहरत् ।
 वैरोचनस्य दौहित्रीं वज्रज्वालेति नामतः ॥ २३ ॥
 तां भार्या कुम्भकर्णस्य रावणः समकल्पयत् ।
 गन्धर्वराजस्य सुतां शैलूषस्य महात्मनः ॥ २४ ॥
 सरमां नाम धर्मज्ञां लेभे भार्या विभीषणः ।
 तीरे तु सरसो वै तु संजज्ञे मानसस्य हि ॥ २५ ॥

'Then kindling a fire, he married her.' 'Though Maya knew that he (Daśagrīva) was under a curse from Viśravā (who was rich in austerities), still, he gave his daughter knowing as he did his descent from Brahmā (the grandfather of the universe). Maya also gave him a most wonderful and infallible javelin obtained by him through hard Tapas and with this he struck Lakṣmaṇa. Having thus married, the mighty lord of Laṅkā went to his city and secured a wife each for his (two) brothers, Rāvaṇa decided upon the grand-daughter (daughter's daughter) of Bali (son of Virocana), Vajrajwālā by name, as the wife of Kumbhakarna. Vibhiṣaṇa obtained as his wife, Saramā, daughter of the noble Gandharva king, Śailūṣa, who knew what is right. She was born on the bank of the Mānasa lake.

(20—25)

सरस्तदा मानसं तु ववृधे जलदागमे ।
 मात्रा तु तस्याः कन्यायाः स्नेहेनाक्रन्दितं वचः ॥ २६ ॥
 सरो मा वर्धयस्वेति ततः सा सरमाभवत् ।
 एवं ते कृतदारा वै रेमिरे तत्र राक्षसाः ॥ २७ ॥
 स्वां स्वां भार्यामुपादाय गन्धर्वा इव नन्दने ।
 ततो मन्दोदरी पुत्रं मेघनादमजीजनत् ॥ २८ ॥

"The Mānasa lake was then swelling due to the monsoon. 'O lake, do not overflow', (सरो मा वर्धयत) cried the mother of that child out of affection. Hence her child came to be known as Saramā. Having thus married, the three Rākṣasas spent a pleasant time there each in the company of his wife, even as the Gandharvas did in the Nandana grove (the pleasure-garden of Indra). Then Mandodarī gave birth to her son, Meghanāda.

(26—28)

स एष इन्द्रजिन्नाम युष्माभिरभिधीयते ।
 जातमात्रेण हि पुरा तेन रावणसूनुना ॥ २९ ॥
 रुदता सुमहान् मुक्तो नादो जलधरोपमः ।
 जडीकृता च सा लङ्का तस्य नादेन राघव ॥ ३० ॥

"He is the same who is called Indrajit by all of you. Crying as soon as he was born, this son of Rāvaṇa, made a great noise resembling the rumbling of clouds. Laṅkā was stunned by his roar, O Rāghava!

(29-30)

पिता तस्याकरोन्नाम मेघनाद इति स्वयम् ।
 सोऽवर्धत तदा राम रावणान्तःपुरे शुभे ॥ ३१ ॥
 रक्ष्यमाणो वरस्त्रीभिश्छन्नः काष्ठैरिवानलः ।
 मातापित्रोर्महाहर्षं जनयन् रावणात्मजः ॥ ३२ ॥

"Hence his father himself named him Meghanāda. Causing great delight to his mother and father, and being well taken care of by excellent women, that son of Rāvaṇa grew up in the beautiful gynaeceum of Rāvaṇa, O Rāma, like fire concealed under pieces of wood.” (31-32)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे द्वादशः सर्गः ॥ १२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twelve in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रयोदशः सर्गः

Canto XIII

Kumbhakarṇa goes to sleep in the mansion built at the command of Rāvaṇa; Rāvaṇa's transgressions; Kubera sends a messenger to pull him up; the messenger is put to death by the enraged Rāvaṇa

अथ लोकेश्वरोत्सृष्टा तत्र कालेन केनचित् ।
निद्रा समभवत् तीव्रा कुम्भकर्णस्य रूपिणी ॥ १ ॥

“Now after sometime deep sleep, as sent by Brahmā (the lord of the universe), seized Kumbhakarṇa in the form of yawning etc., in Laṅkā. (1)

ततो भ्रातरमासीनं कुम्भकर्णोऽब्रवीद् वचः ।
निद्रा मां बाधते राजन् कारयस्व ममालयम् ॥ २ ॥

“Thereupon Kumbhakarṇa spoke as follows to his elder brother, who was seated beside him: ‘O king, sleep is troubling me; have a mansion built for me.’ (2)

विनियुक्तास्ततो राज्ञा शिल्पिनो विश्वकर्मवत् ।
विस्तीर्णं योजनं स्निग्धं ततो द्विगुणमायतम् ॥ ३ ॥
दर्शनीयं निराबाधं कुम्भकर्णस्य चक्रिरे ।
स्फटिकैः काञ्चनैश्चित्रैः स्तम्भैः सर्वत्र शोभितम् ॥ ४ ॥

“Ordered by the king, architects as good as Viśwakarmā (the architect of gods) built for Kumbhakarṇa a lovely mansion, one Yojana (ten miles) in width and twice as much in length. It had a beautiful appearance and was free from disturbance. It was adorned on all sides with lovely columns of crystal, as well as of gold. (3-4)

वैदूर्यकृतसोपानं किङ्किणीजालकं तथा ।
दान्ततोरणविन्यस्तं वज्रस्फटिकवेदिकम् ॥ ५ ॥
मनोहरं सर्वसुखं कारयामास राक्षसः ।
सर्वत्र सुखदं नित्यं मेरोः पुण्यां गुहामिव ॥ ६ ॥

“The stairways were made of cat's-eye gems. Its lattice windows were fringed with tiny bells. Its portals were made of ivory. It contained daises built of crystal and diamond. It was not only soul-captivating but the Rākṣasa (Rāvaṇa) provided it with all amenities and made every part of it comfortable in all seasons. It resembled a holy cave of Mount Meru. (5-6)

तत्र निद्रां समाविष्टः कुम्भकर्णो महाबलः ।
बहून्यब्दसहस्राणि शयानो न च बुध्यते ॥ ७ ॥

“Buried in slumber, the very mighty Kumbhakarṇa lay asleep there, and did not wake up for many thousand years. (7)

निद्राभिभूते तु तदा कुम्भकर्णे दशाननः ।
देवर्षियक्षगन्धर्वान् संजघ्ने हि निरङ्कुशः ॥ ८ ॥

“While Kumbhakarṇa was thus overpowered by sleep, Daśānana destroyed the gods, the Ṛṣis, the Yakṣas and the Gandharvas without restraint of any kind. (8)

उद्यानानि विचित्राणि नन्दनादीनि यानि च ।
तानि गत्वा सुसंकुद्धो भिनत्ति स्म दशाननः ॥ ९ ॥

“The highly enraged Daśānana overran the Nandana grove (the pleasure-garden of Indra) and other beautiful gardens and laid them waste. (9)

नदीं गज इव क्रीडन् वृक्षान् वायुरिव क्षिपन् ।
नगान् वज्र इवोत्सृष्टो विध्वंसयति राक्षसः ॥ १० ॥

“Like an elephant at play, the Rākṣasa dissipated the waters of rivers, broke trees as a tempest, and cleaved mountains like the thunderbolt of Indra. (10)

तथावृत्तं तु विज्ञाय दशग्रीवं धनेश्वरः ।
कुलानुरूपं धर्मज्ञो वृत्तं संस्मृत्य चात्मनः ॥ ११ ॥
सौभ्रात्रदर्शनार्थं तु दूतं वैश्रवणस्तदा ।
लङ्कां सम्प्रेषयामास दशग्रीवस्य वै हितम् ॥ १२ ॥

“Coming to know of the misdeeds of Daśagrīva, and bearing in mind the conduct befitting his family, Vaiśravaṇa, who knew what is right, sent a messenger to Laṅkā to show his brotherly love and specially to promote the good of Rāvaṇa. (11-12)

स गत्वा नगरीं लङ्कामाससाद विभीषणम् ।
मानितस्तेन धर्मेण पृष्टश्चागमनं प्रति ॥ १३ ॥
पृष्ट्वा च कुशलं राज्ञो ज्ञातीनां च विभीषणः ।
सभायां दर्शयामास तमासीनं दशाननम् ॥ १४ ॥

“Reaching the city of Laṅkā, he (the messenger) went up to Vibhiṣaṇa, who welcomed him according to the rules of propriety, made inquiries regarding his visit, the king (Kubera) and his kinsfolk, asked him the reason for his coming and then showed him Daśānana who was sitting in the assembly. (13-14)

स दृष्ट्वा तत्र राजानं दीप्यमानं स्वतेजसा ।
जयेति वाचा सम्पूज्य तूष्णीं समभिवर्तत ॥ १५ ॥

“Seeing the king there, effulgent in his own lustre, he greeted him in the words ‘Be victorious!’ and then stood silent. (15)

स तत्रोत्तमपर्यङ्के वरास्तरणशोभिते ।
उपविष्टं दशग्रीवं दूतो वाक्यमथाब्रवीत् ॥ १६ ॥

“Then addressing Daśagrīva, who was seated on an excellent couch overspread with beautiful bedsheets, the messenger spoke the following words: (16)

राजन् वदामि ते सर्वं भ्राता तव यदब्रवीत् ।
उभयोः सदृशं वीर वृत्तस्य च कुलस्य च ॥ १७ ॥

“O king, I will tell you all that your brother has said. It is in keeping with good conduct and the traditions of the family. (17)

साधु पर्याप्तमेतावत् कृत्यश्चारित्रसंग्रहः ।
साधु धर्मे व्यवस्थानं क्रियतां यदि शक्यते ॥ १८ ॥

“‘Quite enough of what you have done so long; establish yourself fully, if possible, in better ways. (18)

दृष्टं मे नन्दनं भग्नमृषयो निहताः श्रुताः ।
देवतानां समुद्योगस्त्वत्तो राजन् मया श्रुतः ॥ १९ ॥

“‘I have seen the Nandana grove, the pleasure-garden of Indra, laid waste by you. I have heard of the Ṛṣis who were killed by you. I have also heard of the preparations of the gods against you. (19)

निराकृतश्च बहुशस्त्वयाहं राक्षसाधिप ।
सापराधोऽपि बालो हि रक्षितव्यः स्वबान्धवैः ॥ २० ॥

“‘O leader of the Rākṣasas, you have repeatedly disregarded me; still it is the duty of relations to save the youngsters even though they misbehave. (20)

अहं तु हिमवत्पृष्ठं गतो धर्ममुपासितुम् ।
रौद्रं व्रतं समास्थाय नियतो नियतेन्द्रियः ॥ २१ ॥

“‘Having undertaken to observe in pursuance of Dharma, a rather fierce vow, I once went to the slopes of the Himālayas with my mind and senses fully under control. (21)

तत्र देवो मया दृष्ट उमया सहितः प्रभुः ।
सव्यं चक्षुर्मया दैवात् तत्र देव्यां निपातितम् ॥ २२ ॥
का न्वेषेति महाराज न खल्वन्येन हेतुना ।
रूपं चानुपमं कृत्वा रुद्राणी तत्र तिष्ठति ॥ २३ ॥

“‘There I happened to see the almighty Lord Śiva in the company of Umā. Rudrāṇī (the consort of Rudra) stood there, in her incomparable charm. By chance I cast my left eye on the Devī; my object, O monarch, was just to know who she was and nothing else. (22-23)

देव्या दिव्यप्रभावेण दग्धं सव्यं ममेक्षणम् ।
रेणुध्वस्तामिव ज्योतिः पिङ्गलत्वमुपागतम् ॥ २४ ॥

“‘My left eye got scorched, while the other assumed a grey colour as though soiled by dust, through the supernatural powers of the Devī. (24)

ततोऽहमन्यद् विस्तीर्णं गत्वा तस्य गिरेस्तटम् ।
तूष्णीं वर्षशतान्यष्टौ समधारं महाव्रतम् ॥ २५ ॥

“Then I went to another spacious plateau of the Himālayas and observed silently the great vow for eight hundred years. (25)

समाप्ते नियमे तस्मिंस्तत्र देवो महेश्वरः ।

ततः प्रीतेन मनसा ग्राह वाक्यमिदं प्रभुः ॥ २६ ॥

“When I had completed the observance of that vow, the great Lord Śiva appeared there and, pleased at heart, addressed the following words to me: (26)

प्रीतोऽस्मि तव धर्मज्ञ तपसानेन सुव्रत ।

मया चैतद् व्रतं चीर्णं त्वया चैव धनाधिप ॥ २७ ॥

“O Suvrata (one who has successfully observed a vow) and Dharmajña (one who knows Dharma), I am pleased with the Tapas that you have just performed. This was first observed by me and again by you, O lord of riches! (27)

तृतीयः पुरुषो नास्ति यश्चरेद् व्रतमीदृशम् ।

व्रतं सुदुष्करं ह्येतन्मयैवोत्पादितं पुरा ॥ २८ ॥

“There is no third person who can observe such a vow. I originated this vow in the past. It is very difficult to observe. (28)

तत्सखित्वं मया सौम्य रोचयस्व धनेश्वर ।

तपसा निर्जितश्चैव सखा भव ममानघ ॥ २९ ॥

“Therefore, be pleased to make friends with me, O lord of wealth; I have been conquered by you through your austerities, O sinless one. (29)

देव्या दग्धं प्रभावेण यच्च सव्यं तवेक्षणम् ।

पैङ्गल्यं यदवाप्तं हि देव्या रूपनिरीक्षणात् ॥ ३० ॥

एकाक्षपिङ्गलीत्येव नाम स्थास्यति शाश्वतम् ।

एवं तेन सखित्वं च प्राप्यानुज्ञां च शङ्करात् ॥ ३१ ॥

आगतेन मया चैवं श्रुतस्ते पापनिश्चयः ।

तदधर्मिष्ठसंयोगान्निवर्त कुलदूषणात् ॥ ३२ ॥

“Since your left eye was burnt and the other was turned grey by the supernatural powers of the Devī for just gazing on her beauty, you will be known as Ekākṣaṅgingali (one who has his one eye turned grey) forever. When having thus secured friendship with Lord Śaṅkara and obtained his leave, I returned, I heard of your sinful resolve. Therefore refrain from this unrighteous conduct which tarnishes the reputation of the family. (30—32)

चिन्त्यते हि वधोपायः सर्षिसङ्घैः सुरैस्तव ।

एवमुक्तो दशग्रीवः कोपसंरक्तलोचनः ॥ ३३ ॥

हस्तान् दन्तांश्च सम्पिष्य वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ।

विज्ञातं ते मया दूत वाक्यं यत् त्वं प्रभाषसे ॥ ३४ ॥

“The gods alongwith the hosts of Ṛṣis are considering the way of encompassing your destruction.’ Hearing these words, Daśagrīva wrung his hands and ground his teeth and, his eyes red with anger, spoke as follows: ‘O messenger, I understand the words which you utter. (33-34)

नैव त्वमसि नैवासौ भ्रात्रा येनासि चोदितः ।

हितं नैष ममैतद्धि ब्रवीति धनरक्षकः ॥ ३५ ॥

“You will not live nor that brother by whom you have been ordered to speak thus. What the lord of wealth says is not to my good. (35)

महेश्वरसखित्वं तु मूढः श्रावयते किल ।

नैवेदं क्षमणीयं मे यदेतद् भाषितं त्वया ॥ ३६ ॥

“That fool evidently tells me of his friendship with Lord Maheśvara. I will not tolerate what you have said. (36)

यदेतावन्मया कालं दूत तस्य तु मर्षितम् ।

न हन्तव्यो गुरुर्ज्येष्ठो मयायमिति मन्यते ॥ ३७ ॥

“In the belief that an elder brother is not to be killed, I have put up with all the insults that he has heaped on me, O envoy! (37)

तस्य त्विदानीं श्रुत्वा मे वाक्यमेषा कृता मतिः ।

त्रीँल्लोकानपि जेष्यामि बाहुवीर्यमुपाश्रितः ॥ ३८ ॥

“But after hearing these words of his, I have made up my mind to conquer all the three worlds relying on the strength of my arms. (38)

एतन्मुहूर्तमेवाहं तस्यैकस्य तु वै कृते।
चतुरो लोकपालांस्तान् नयिष्यामि यमक्षयम् ॥ ३९ ॥

“This very moment I will send the four Dikpālas (guardians of the four directions) to the abode of Yama just on his account.” (39)

एवमुक्त्वा तु लङ्केशो दूतं खड्गेन जघ्निवान्।
ददौ भक्षयितुं ह्येनं राक्षसानां दुरात्मनाम् ॥ ४० ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे त्रयोदशः सर्गः ॥ १३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirteen in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्दशः सर्गः

Canto XIV

An attack by Rāvaṇa and his ministers on the Yakṣas and the defeat (of the latter)

ततः स सचिवैः सार्धं षड्भिर्नित्यबलोद्धतः।
महोदरप्रहस्ताभ्यां मारीचशुकसारणैः ॥ १ ॥
धूम्राक्षेण च वीरेण नित्यं समरगङ्घिना।
वृतः सम्प्रययौ श्रीमान् क्रोधाल्लोकान् दहन्निव ॥ २ ॥

“Accompanied and surrounded by his six ministers—Mahodara and Prahasta, Mārīca, Śuka, Sāraṇa and the hero Dhūmrākṣa, who ever thirsted for battle the glorious Rāvaṇa, who was always proud of his might, set out as if to consume the worlds with his anger. (1-2)

पुराणि स नदीः शैलान् वनान्युपवनानि च।
अतिक्रम्य मुहूर्तेन कैलासं गिरिमागमत् ॥ ३ ॥

“Marching across cities, rivers, hills, forests and groves, he reached Mount Kailāsa in an hour or so. (3)

संनिविष्टं गिरौ तस्मिन् राक्षसेन्द्रं निशम्य तु।
युद्धेप्सुं तं कृतोत्साहं दुरात्मानं समन्त्रिणम् ॥ ४ ॥

यक्षा न शेकुः संस्थातुं प्रमुखे तस्य रक्षसः।
राज्ञो भ्रातेति विज्ञाय गता यत्र धनेश्वरः ॥ ५ ॥

“Saying this, the lord of Lāṅkā struck down the messenger with his sword and gave the corpse to be eaten by evil-minded Rākṣasas. (40)

ततः कृतस्वस्त्ययनो रथमारुह्य रावणः।
त्रैलोक्यविजयाकांक्षी ययौ यत्र धनेश्वरः ॥ ४१ ॥

“Then, after getting Brāhmaṇas to read out benedictory hymns after presentation of offerings with a view to conquering the three worlds, Rāvaṇa ascended his chariot and drove to the abode of the lord of wealth.” (41)

“Hearing of the wicked king of the Rākṣasas encamped on the mountain with his ministers, eager for battle and active, the Yakṣas were unable to make a stand against the ogre, knowing that he was a brother of the lord of wealth, they sought the abode of the latter. (4-5)

ते गत्वा सर्वमाचख्युर्भ्रातुस्तस्य चिकीर्षितम्।
अनुज्ञाता ययुर्हृष्टा युद्धाय धनदेन ते ॥ ६ ॥

“Going to him, they told him all about the intentions of his brother. Permitted by the lord of wealth, they set out joyously to give battle. (6)

ततो बलानां संक्षोभो व्यवर्धत इवोदधेः।
तस्य नैर्ऋतराजस्य शैलं संचालयन्निव ॥ ७ ॥

“Then there arose an excitement in the forces of the king of the Nairṛtas. It was like the agitation of the sea and it seemed to shake the hill. (7)

ततो युद्धं समभवद् यक्षराक्षससंकुलम्।
व्यथिताश्चाभवन्तत्र सचिवा राक्षसस्य ते ॥ ८ ॥

“Between the Yakṣas and the Rākṣasas then started a thick fight in which the said ministers of the Rākṣasa felt alarmed. (8)

स दृष्ट्वा तादृशं सैन्यं दशग्रीवो निशाचरः ।
हर्षनादान् बहून् कृत्वा स क्रोधादभ्यधावत ॥ ९ ॥

“Seeing his army in that plight, the Rākṣasa, Daśagrīva, rushed out in anger raising many shouts of encouragement. (9)

ये तु ते राक्षसेन्द्रस्य सचिवा घोरविक्रमाः ।
तेषां सहस्रमेकैको यक्षाणां समयोधयत् ॥ १० ॥

“The ministers of the king of the Rākṣasas were terribly valiant. Each one of them for his part fought with a thousand Yakṣas. (10)

ततो गदाभिर्मुसलैरसिभिः शक्तितोमरैः ।
हन्यमानो दशग्रीवस्तत्सैन्यं समगाहत ॥ ११ ॥

“Under an attack of clubs, pestles, swords, javelins and iron clubs, Rāvaṇa entered the enemy’s army. (11)

स निरुच्छ्वासवत् तत्र वध्यमानो दशाननः ।
वर्षद्विरिव जीमूतैर्धाराभिरवरुध्यत ॥ १२ ॥

“Being struck with volleys of arrows by the Yakṣas as though with torrents of raining clouds, Daśānana was held up and was unable even to breathe, as it were. (12)

न चकार व्यथां चैव यक्षशस्त्रैः समाहतः ।
महीधर इवाम्भोदैर्धाराशतसमुक्षितः ॥ १३ ॥

“Just as a mountain is not shaken even though drenched by clouds with hundreds of torrents, even so he (Daśagrīva) did not feel tormented though wounded by the weapons shot by the Yakṣas. (13)

स महात्मा समुद्यम्य कालदण्डोपमां गदाम् ।
प्रविवेश ततः सैन्यं नयन् यक्षान् यमक्षयम् ॥ १४ ॥

“Lifting up a club, resembling the rod of Death (Kāla-daṇḍa), the gigantic Daśagrīva thereupon entered the army, dispatching the Yakṣas to the abode of Yama. (14)

स कक्षमिव विस्तीर्णं शुष्केन्धनमिवाकुलम् ।
वातेनाग्निरिवादीप्तो यक्षसैन्यं ददाह तत् ॥ १५ ॥

“Like a fire ablaze on account of the wind, he burnt the aforesaid army of the Yakṣas, which was spread out as grass and concentrated like dried wood. (15)

तैस्तु तत्र महामात्यैर्महोदरशुकादिभिः ।
अल्पावशेषास्ते यक्षाः कृता वातैरिवाम्बुदाः ॥ १६ ॥

“By those great ministers, Mahodara, Śuka and others, the Yakṣas were reduced largely in number even as clouds are dispersed by the winds. (16)

केचित् समाहता भग्नाः पतिताः समरे क्षितौ ।
ओष्ठांश्च दशनैस्तीक्ष्णैरदशन् कुपिता रणे ॥ १७ ॥

“Some of them, badly mutilated when struck in the battle, fell on the ground, while others in anger bit their lips with their sharp teeth on the battlefield. (17)

श्रान्ताश्चान्योन्यमालिङ्ग्य भ्रष्टशस्त्रा रणाजिरे ।
सीदन्ति च तदा यक्षाः कूला इव जलेन ह ॥ १८ ॥

“Just like the bank of a river eroded by water, some of the Yakṣas, exhausted and embracing one another, sank down on the battlefield, their weapons fallen down. (18)

हतानां गच्छतां स्वर्गं युध्यतामथ धावताम् ।
प्रेक्षतामृषिसङ्घानां न बभूवन्तरं दिवि ॥ १९ ॥

“The atmosphere was thickly crowded with those who, having lost their lives, were proceeding to heaven, with those who were still fighting, with those who were running away and with the host of Ṛṣis witnessing the fight. (19)

भग्नास्तु तान् समालक्ष्य यक्षेन्द्रास्तु महाबलान् ।
धनाध्यक्षो महाबाहुः प्रेषयामास यक्षकान् ॥ २० ॥

“Seeing those exceptionally mighty leaders of the Yakṣas put to flight, the mighty-armed lord of wealth sent other mighty Yakṣas. (20)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे राम विस्तीर्णबलवाहनः ।
प्रेषितो न्यपतद् यक्षो नाम्ना संयोधकण्टकः ॥ २१ ॥

“In the meantime, O Rāma, a Yakṣa, Saṁyodhakaṇṭaka by name, with a huge army and a vast number of mounts and vehicles, sallied forth having been sent by the lord of wealth. (21)

तेन चक्रेण मारीचो विष्णुनेव रणे हतः ।
पतितो भूतले शैलात् क्षीणपुण्य इव ग्रहः ॥ २२ ॥

“Struck by him in battle with a discus as by Lord Viṣṇu, Mārica fell on the ground from the mountain like a star when the merit responsible for its stay in heaven is exhausted. (22)

ससंज्ञस्तु मुहूर्तेन स विश्रम्य निशाचरः ।
तं यक्षं योधयामास स च भग्नः प्रदुद्बुव ॥ २३ ॥

“Recovering his consciousness in an hour or so, and having rested awhile, that Rākṣasa fought once more the aforesaid Yakṣa, who having been defeated, took to his heels. (23)

ततः काञ्चनचित्राङ्गं वैदूर्यरजतोक्षितम् ।
मर्यादां प्रतिहाराणां तोरणान्तरमाविशत् ॥ २४ ॥

“Then Rāvaṇa entered the portals plated all over with gold and inlaid with cat’s-eye gems and silver and which marked the last line guarded by gate-keepers. (24)

तं तु राजन् दशग्रीवं प्रविशन्तं निशाचरम् ।
सूर्यभानुरिति ख्यातो द्वारपालो न्यवारयत् ॥ २५ ॥

“A gate-keeper, Sūryabhānu by name, stopped Daśagrīva, the Rākṣasa, while he was entering the portal. (25)

स वार्यमाणो यक्षेण प्रविवेश निशाचरः ।
यदा तु वारितो राम न व्यतिष्ठत् स राक्षसः ॥ २६ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे चतुर्दशः सर्गः ॥ १४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fourteen in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चदशः सर्गः

Canto XV

Defeat of Māṇibhadra and Kubera; Rāvaṇa takes hold of the Puṣpaka

ततस्ताँल्लक्ष्य वित्रस्तान् यक्षेन्द्रांश्च सहस्रशः ।
धनाध्यक्षो महायक्षं माणिभद्रमथाब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

ततस्तोरणमुत्पाट्य तेन यक्षेण ताडितः ।
रुधिरं प्रस्रवन् भाति शैलो धातुस्रवैरिव ॥ २७ ॥

“The Rākṣasa, however, made good his entry though stopped by the Yakṣa. When, however, O Rāma, the Rākṣasa did not stop, though prevented by the Yakṣa, he was then struck by the Yakṣa, with a post which he pulled out from the portal. Bleeding profusely, Daśagrīva looked like a hill with streams of molten ochre flowing from it. (26-27)

स शैलशिखराभेण तोरणेन समाहतः ।
जगाम न क्षतिं वीरो वरदानात् स्वयम्भुवः ॥ २८ ॥

“Though struck with the door-post resembling the crest of a hill, the hero (Daśagrīva) could not be slain, thanks to the boons granted to him by Brahmā (the self-born creator). (28)

तेनैव तोरणेनाथ यक्षस्तेनाभिताडितः ।
नादृश्यत तदा यक्षो भस्मीकृततनुस्तदा ॥ २९ ॥

“Struck back with the same door-post by him, the Yakṣa was seen no more, his body having been reduced to powder. (29)

ततः प्रदुद्बुवुः सर्वे दृष्ट्वा रक्षःपराक्रमम् ।
ततो नदीर्गुहाश्चैव विविशुर्भयपीडिताः ।
त्यक्तप्रहरणाः श्रान्ता विवर्णवदनास्तदा ॥ ३० ॥

“Seeing the might of the Rākṣasa, all began to run. Exhausted and pale, stricken with fear as they were, they threw away their weapons and entered the rivers or the caves.” (30)

रावणं जहि यक्षेन्द्र दुर्वृत्तं पापचेतसम् ।
शरणं भव वीराणां यक्षाणां युद्धशालिनाम् ॥ २ ॥

एवमुक्तो महाबाहुर्माणिभद्रः सुदुर्जयः ।
 वृतो यक्षसहस्रैस्तु चतुर्भिः समयोधयत् ॥ ३ ॥
 ते गदामुसलप्रासैः शक्तितोमरमुद्गरैः ।
 अभिघ्नन्तस्तदा यक्षा राक्षसान् समुपाद्रवन् ॥ ४ ॥
 कुर्वन्तस्तुमुलं युद्धं चरन्तः श्येनवल्लघु ।
 बाढं प्रयच्छ नेच्छामि दीयतामिति भाषिणः ॥ ५ ॥
 ततो देवाः सगन्धर्वा ऋषयो ब्रह्मवादिनः ।
 दृष्ट्वा तत् तुमुलं युद्धं परं विस्मयमागमन् ॥ ६ ॥

Then the gods, Gandharvas and Ṛṣis who were exponents of the Vedas, were greatly surprised to witness that fierce fight. (6)

यक्षाणां तु प्रहस्तेन सहस्रं निहतं रणे ।
 महोदरेण चानिन्द्यं सहस्रमपरं हतम् ॥ ७ ॥

Prahasta on his part killed in the battle a thousand Yakṣas and Mahodara killed another thousand who were irreproachable heroes. (7)

क्रुद्धेन च तदा राजन् मारीचेन युयुत्सुना ।
 निमेषान्तरमात्रेण द्वे सहस्रे निपातिते ॥ ८ ॥

O king, by the enraged Mārīca, eager for battle, two thousand more Yakṣas were killed in the twinkling of an eye. (8)

क्व च यक्षार्जवं युद्धं क्व च मायाबलाश्रयम् ।
 रक्षसां पुरुषव्याघ्र तेन तेऽभ्यधिका युधि ॥ ९ ॥

Altogether incomparable, O tiger among men, were the straight warfare of the Yakṣas and the deceitful warfare of the Rākṣasas. Hence the Rākṣasas had the upper hand in conflict. (9)

धूम्राक्षेण समागम्य माणिभद्रो महारणे ।
 मुसलेनोरसि क्रोधात् ताडितो न च कम्पितः ॥ १० ॥

Closing with Dhūmrākṣa in the great struggle, Māṇibhadra was furiously struck in the breast with a pestle by the former, but he did not budge. (10)

ततो गदां समाविध्य माणिभद्रेण राक्षसः ।
 धूम्राक्षस्ताडितो मूर्ध्नि विह्वलः स पपात ह ॥ ११ ॥

Then Māṇibhadra whirled his club and struck the Rākṣasa, Dhūmrākṣa, on the head; he fell down confused. (11)

धूम्राक्षं ताडितं दृष्ट्वा पतितं शोणितोक्षितम् ।
 अभ्यधावत् संग्रामे माणिभद्रं दशाननः ॥ १२ ॥

Seeing Dhūmrākṣa struck and fallen bathed in blood, Daśānana rushed towards Māṇibhadra in the battle. (12)

संकुद्धमभिधावन्तं माणिभद्रो दशाननम् ।
 शक्तिभिस्ताडयामास तिसृभिर्यक्षपुङ्गवः ॥ १३ ॥

Seeing the enraged Daśānana rushing towards him, Māṇibhadra, the best of Yakṣas, struck him with three javelins. (13)

ताडितो माणिभद्रस्य मुकुटे प्राहरद् रणे ।
 तस्य तेन प्रहारेण मुकुटं पार्श्वमागतम् ॥ १४ ॥

When struck on the field of battle Rāvaṇa dealt a blow at Māṇibhadra's diadem; as a result of that blow of Rāvaṇa, Māṇibhadra's diadem turned to one side. (14)

ततः प्रभृति यक्षोऽसौ पार्श्वमौलिरभूत् किल ।
 तस्मिन्स्तु विमुखीभूते माणिभद्रे महात्मनि ।
 संनादः सुमहान् राजन्तस्मिन् शैले व्यवर्धत ॥ १५ ॥

From that day onward Māṇibhadra, the Yakṣa, came to be known as Pārśwamauli (one whose diadem has turned to one side). When the colossal Māṇibhadra turned his face away (from the battlefield), there arose, O king, a great clamour of the Rākṣasas on that hill. (15)

ततो दूरात् प्रददृशे धनाध्यक्षो गदाधरः ।
 शुक्रप्रौष्ठपदाभ्यां च पद्मशङ्खसमावृतः ॥ १६ ॥

There came to view from afar the lord of wealth, who was holding a club and was accompanied by Śukra and Prauṣṭhapada, his two ministers, and by the deities presiding over two of his treasures, Padma and Śaṅkha. (16)

स दृष्ट्वा भ्रातरं संख्ये शापाद् विभ्रष्टगौरवम् ।
 उवाच वचनं धीमान् युक्तं पैतामहे कुले ॥ १७ ॥

Seeing on the battlefield his brother (Rāvaṇa) who had lost his sense of respect (for elders) by reason of the curse, that wise man tendered the following advice worthy of the House of Brahmā (the grandfather of the universe): (17)

यन्मया वार्यमाणस्त्वं नावगच्छसि दुर्मतेः।

पश्चादस्य फलं प्राप्य ज्ञास्यसे निरयं गतः ॥ १८ ॥

“O fool, though being warned by me, you do not listen; you will, however, come to your senses later when, as a result of your misdeeds, you go to hell. (18)

यो हि मोहाद् विषं पीत्वा नावगच्छति दुर्मतिः।

स तस्य परिणामान्ते जानीते कर्मणः फलम् ॥ १९ ॥

“The fool who, out of delusion, drinks poison and does not recognize it as such, will come to know the result of that action when he reaps its fruit. (19)

दैवतानि न नन्दन्ति धर्मयुक्तेन केनचित्।

येन त्वमीदृशं भावं नीतस्तच्च न बुद्ध्यसे ॥ २० ॥

“The gods will not be pleased even with an act which is righteous in your eyes. Deluded by that displeasure (of the gods) you have been led to this violence; yet you do not understand that. (20)

मातरं पितरं विप्रमाचार्यं चावमन्यते।

स पश्यति फलं तस्य प्रेतराजवशं गतः ॥ २१ ॥

“He who insults his mother, father, teacher and a Brāhmaṇa will reap the consequence when he has fallen under the sway of Yama (the king of the departed). (21)

अध्रुवे हि शरीरे यो न करोति तपोऽर्जनम्।

स पश्चात् तप्यते मूढो मृतो गत्वाऽऽत्मनो गतिम् ॥ २२ ॥

“The fool who does not practise austerities with his transient body will repent when he meets with his destiny after death. (22)

धर्माद् राज्यं धनं सौख्यमधर्माद् दुःखमेव च।

तस्माद् धर्मं सुखार्थाय कुर्यात् पापं विसर्जयेत् ॥ २३ ॥

From virtue follow sovereignty, wealth and happiness; misery alone results from unrighteousness. Hence to secure happiness

one should practise virtue and abjure sin. (23)

पापस्य हि फलं दुःखं तद् भोक्तव्यमिहात्मना।

तस्मादात्मापघातार्थं मूढः पापं करिष्यति ॥ २४ ॥

“The fruit of sin is misery and it must be reaped by the sinner himself; hence a fool commits sin for his own destruction. (24)

कस्यचिन्न हि दुर्बुद्धेश्छन्दतो जायते मतिः।

यादृशं कुरुते कर्म तादृशं फलमश्नुते ॥ २५ ॥

“Sense does not dawn on an evil-minded man of its own accord. As he sows so he reaps. (25)

ऋद्धि रूपं बलं पुत्रान् वित्तं शूरत्वमेव च।

प्राप्नुवन्ति नरा लोके निर्जितं पुण्यकर्मभिः ॥ २६ ॥

“People attain in this world prosperity, personality, strength, sons, wealth and valour as earned by their meritorious deeds. (26)

एवं निरयगामी त्वं यस्य ते मतिरीदृशी।

न त्वां समभिभाषिष्येऽसद्वृत्तेष्वेव निर्णयः ॥ २७ ॥

“Thus you will go to hell since your mind is disposed to evil. I shall speak to you no more. This is the rule laid down in regard to men of bad conduct.” (27)

एवमुक्तास्ततस्तेन तस्यामात्याः समाहताः।

मारीचप्रमुखाः सर्वे विमुखा विप्रदद्भुवुः ॥ २८ ॥

Admonished in such words and hit hard by Kubera, the ministers of Rāvaṇa, headed by Mārīca, thereupon lost their enthusiasm and fled. (28)

ततस्तेन दशग्रीवो यक्षेन्द्रेण महात्मना।

गदयाभिहतो मूर्ध्नि न च स्थानात् प्रकम्पितः ॥ २९ ॥

Then Rāvaṇa was struck on the head by the noble leader of the Yakṣas with his club, but he did not budge from his position. (29)

ततस्तौ राम निघ्नन्तौ तदान्योन्यं महामृधे।

न विह्वलौ न च श्रान्तौ तावुभौ यक्षराक्षसौ ॥ ३० ॥

The Yakṣa and the Rākṣasa thereafter exchanged blows in the course of the great conflict, but, O Rāma, neither of them felt afflicted or exhausted. (30)

आग्नेयमस्त्रं तस्मै स मुमोच धनदस्तदा ।
राक्षसेन्द्रो वारुणेन तदस्त्रं प्रत्यवारयत् ॥ ३१ ॥

“The lord of wealth then shot at Rāvaṇa an Āgneyāstra (a missile presided over by the god of fire), which missile the king of the Rākṣasas countered with a Vāruṇāstra, a missile presided over by Varuṇa, the god of water. (31)

ततो मायां प्रविष्टोऽसौ राक्षसीं राक्षसेश्वरः ।
रूपाणां शतसाहस्रं विनाशाय चकार च ॥ ३२ ॥

“Then the king of the Rākṣasas fell back upon conjuring tricks natural to ogres and assumed myriads of forms to bring about the destruction of the Yakṣas. (32)

व्याघ्रो वराहो जीमूतः पर्वतः सागरो द्रुमः ।
यक्षो दैत्यस्वरूपी च सोऽदृश्यत दशाननः ॥ ३३ ॥

“He, Daśānana, appeared as a tiger, a boar, a cloud, a hill, a sea, a tree, a Yakṣa and a Daitya. (33)

बहूनि च करोति स्म दृश्यन्ते न त्वसौ ततः ।
प्रतिगृह्य ततो राम महदस्त्रं दशाननः ॥ ३४ ॥

जघान मूर्ध्नि धनदं व्याविद्ध्य महतीं गदाम् ।
एवं स तेनाभिहतो विह्वलः शोणितोक्षितः ॥ ३५ ॥

कृत्तमूल इवाशोको निपपात धनाधिपः ।
ततः पद्मादिभिस्तत्र निधिभिः स तदा वृतः ॥ ३६ ॥

धनदोच्छ्वासितस्तैस्तु वनमानीय नन्दनम् ।
निर्जित्य राक्षसेन्द्रस्तं धनदं हृष्टमानसः ॥ ३७ ॥

पुष्पकं तस्य जग्राह विमानं जयलक्षणम् ।
काञ्चनस्तम्भसंवीतं वैदूर्यमणितोरणम् ॥ ३८ ॥

मुक्ताजालप्रतिच्छन्नं सर्वकालफलद्रुमम् ।
मनोजवं कामगमं कामरूपं विहंगमम् ॥ ३९ ॥

मणिकाञ्चनसोपानं तप्तकाञ्चनवेदिकम् ।
देवोपवाह्यमक्षय्यं सदा दृष्टिमनःसुखम् ॥ ४० ॥

बह्वश्वर्यं भक्तिचित्रं ब्रह्मणा परिनिर्मितम् ।
निर्मितं सर्वकामैस्तु मनोहरमनुत्तमम् ॥ ४१ ॥

न तु शीतं न चोष्णं च सर्वर्तुसुखदं शुभम् ।
स तं राजा समारुह्य कामगं वीर्यनिर्जितम् ॥ ४२ ॥

जितं त्रिभुवनं मेने दर्पोत्सेकात् सुदुर्मतिः ।
जित्वा वैश्रवणं देवं कैलासात् समवातरत् ॥ ४३ ॥

“Nay, he appeared in many guises but he could not be seen. Then seizing hold of a mighty weapon, a huge club, and whirling it, Daśānana struck the lord of wealth on the head, O Rāma ! Knocked senseless when struck by him in this way and bathed in blood, the lord of wealth fell on the ground like an Aśoka tree cut at the root. Surrounded there at that time by the deities presiding over the treasures like Padma and others, the aforesaid lord of riches was brought to the Nandana grove and restored to his senses. Having vanquished the said lord of wealth, the king of the Rākṣasas, pleased at heart, seized his aerial car, the Puṣpaka, as a token of his victory.

“The aerial car was furnished with pillars made of gold; its portals were made of cat’s-eye gems; it was hung with nets of pearls and planted with trees bearing fruit in all the seasons; it had the speed of the mind; it could go wherever one wanted to go; it could assume any form as desired; it had stairways of gems and gold and daises of refined gold; it was a celestial vehicle and was not subject to wear and tear; it was a perpetual joy to the eyes and the mind; it contained numerous curios of art; it looked picturesque with its compartments and had been constructed by Viśwakarmā, the architect of gods; it was provided with all objects of desire, was soul-captivating and unsurpassed in charm; it was neither too cool nor too hot; it was comfortable in all seasons and was splendid. Ascending the car, which had been won by his prowess and which could go wherever he wanted to go, that most evil-minded king thought in the height of his arrogance that he had conquered all the three worlds. Having vanquished God Vaiśravaṇa (Kubera), he descended from Kailāsa. (34—43)

स तेजसा विपुलमवाप्य तं जयं
 प्रतापवान् विमलकिरीटहारवान्।
 राजा वै परमविमानमास्थितो
 निशाचरः सदसि गतो यथानलः ॥ ४४ ॥ “Having scored that great victory by dint of his valour and seated in his excellent aerial car, that glorious ranger of the night, who wore a brilliant diadem on his head and a necklace of pearls on his breast, shone like fire in a sacrificial hall.” (44)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे पञ्चदशः सर्गः ॥ १५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifteen in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षोडशः सर्गः

Canto XVI

Nandīśwara curses Rāvaṇa; Lord Śaṅkara curbs the pride of Rāvaṇa, who obtains a sword from Lord Śaṅkara

स जित्वा धनदं राम भ्रातरं राक्षसाधिपः।
 महासेनप्रसूतिं तद् ययौ शरवणं महत् ॥ १ ॥

“Having vanquished his brother, Kubera, the king of the Rākṣasas sought the well-known thicket of reeds ‘Śaravaṇa’ where Lord Kārtikeya was born, O Rāma ! (1)

अथापश्यद् दशग्रीवो रौक्मं शरवणं महत्।
 गभस्तिजालसंवीतं द्वितीयमिव भास्करम् ॥ २ ॥

“Now Daśagrīva saw the large golden-hued expanse of reeds bright like a second sun surrounded by rays. (2)

स पर्वतं समारुह्य कंचिद् रम्यवनान्तरम्।
 प्रेक्षते पुष्पकं तत्र राम विष्टम्भितं तदा ॥ ३ ॥

“Ascending a mountain clothed with a lovely grove, he found the Puṣpaka brought to a standstill on that spot on that occasion,
 O Rāma! (3)

विष्टब्धं किमिदं कस्मान्नागमत् कामगं कृतम्।
 अचिन्तयद् राक्षसेन्द्रः सचिवैस्तैः समावृतः ॥ ४ ॥

“Surrounded by his aforesaid ministers, the king of the Rākṣasas reflected, “How has this aerial car, which had been designed in such a way as to be able to follow its master’s will, been rendered motionless?
 Why does it not move? (4)

किंनिमित्तमिच्छया मे नेदं गच्छति पुष्पकम्।
 पर्वतस्योपरिष्ठस्य कर्मेदं कस्यचिद् भवेत् ॥ ५ ॥

“What may be the reason for the Puṣpaka not proceeding according to my wishes? It must be the act of someone who resides on this hill.” (5)

ततोऽब्रवीत् तदा राम मारीचो बुद्धिकोविदः।
 नेदं निष्कारणं राजन् पुष्पकं यन्न गच्छति ॥ ६ ॥

“O Rāma, the astute Mārīca thereupon said on that occasion: ‘O king, it cannot be without a reason that this aerial car, Puṣpaka, does not move. (6)

अथवा पुष्पकमिदं धनदानान्यवाहनम्।
 अतो निस्पन्दमभवद् धनाध्यक्षविनाकृतम् ॥ ७ ॥

“‘Maybe, the aerial car, Puṣpaka, will not carry anyone other than Kubera, the god of riches. Therefore, even as it has been disunited from him, it has become motionless.’ (7)

इति वाक्यान्तरे तस्य करालः कृष्णपिङ्गलः।
 वामनो विकटो मुण्डी नन्दी ह्रस्वभुजो बली ॥ ८ ॥
 ततः पार्श्वमुपागम्य भवस्यानुचरोऽब्रवीत्।
 नन्दीश्वरो वचश्चेदं राक्षसेन्द्रमशङ्कितः ॥ ९ ॥

“Interrupting his speech, and approaching him, Nandīśwara, an attendant of Lord Śiva, dreadful, of yellowish dark complexion, dwarfish, misshapen, with his head clean shaved, of short arms and very strong, and ever full of joy, fearlessly spoke the following words to the king of the Rākṣasas: (8-9)

निर्वर्तस्व दशग्रीव शैले क्रीडति शंकरः ।
 सुपर्णनागयक्षाणां देवगन्धर्वरक्षसाम् ॥ १० ॥
 सर्वेषामेव भूतानामगम्यः पर्वतः कृतः ।
 इति नन्दिवचः श्रुत्वा क्रोधात् कम्पितकुण्डलः ॥ ११ ॥
 रोषात् तु ताम्रनयनः पुष्पकादवरुह्य सः ।
 कोऽयं शङ्कर इत्युक्त्वा शैलमूलमुपागतः ॥ १२ ॥

“Turn back, O Daśagrīva ! Lord Śaṅkara is sporting on this hill; hence it has been rendered inaccessible even to Suparṇas, Nāgas, Yakṣas, gods, Gandharvas and Rākṣasas, nay, to all created beings.’ Hearing these words of Nandī and alighting from the Puṣpaka, and his earrings shaking on account of his wrath and his eyes coppery through indignation, Rāvaṇa sought the foot of the hill, saying, ‘Who is this Śaṅkara?’ (10—12)

सोऽपश्यन्नन्दिनं तत्र देवस्यादूरतः स्थितम् ।
 दीप्तं शूलमवष्टभ्य द्वितीयमिव शङ्करम् ॥ १३ ॥

“There he beheld Nandī standing near the Lord, holding a flaming pike and appearing like a second Śaṅkara. (13)

तं दृष्ट्वा वानरमुखमवज्ञाय स राक्षसः ।
 प्रहासं मुमुचे तत्र सतोय इव तोयदः ॥ १४ ॥

“Seeing him endowed with the head of a monkey, and disregarding him, the said Rākṣasa laughed loudly thundering like a cloud laden with water. (14)

तं क्रुद्धो भगवान् नन्दी शङ्करस्यापरा तनुः ।
 अब्रवीत् तत्र तद् रक्षो दशाननमुपस्थितम् ॥ १५ ॥

“Provoked to anger, the divine Nandī, an alter ego of Lord Śaṅkara, spoke to the said ogre, Daśānana, who was standing there closeby: (15)

यस्माद् वानररूपं मामवज्ञाय दशानन ।
 अशनीपातसंकाशमपहासं प्रमुक्तवान् ॥ १६ ॥
 तस्मान्मद्वीर्यसंयुक्ता मद्रूपसमतेजसः ।
 उत्पत्स्यन्ति वधार्थं हि कुलस्य तव वानराः ॥ १७ ॥

“‘O Daśānana, since, deriding me in my monkey-form, you burst into a loud laughter resembling a stroke of lightning, therefore, monkeys will be born to destroy your race. They will possess my valour; they will have a lustrous form like mine. (16-17)

नखदंष्ट्रायुधाः क्रूर मनःसम्पातरंहसः ।
 युद्धोन्मत्ता बलोद्भक्ताः शैला इव विसर्पिणः ॥ १८ ॥

“‘They will have claws and teeth for their weapons; they will have the speed of the mind; they will be frantic in fight; they will be proud of their might; they will look like moving mountains, O cruel one! (18)

ते तव प्रबलं दर्पमुत्सेधं च पृथग्विधम् ।
 व्यपनेष्यन्ति सम्भूय सहामात्यसुतस्य च ॥ १९ ॥

“‘Gathering together, they will take away your excessive arrogance and pride of physical superiority alongwith that of your ministers and sons. (19)

किं त्विदानीं मया शक्यं हन्तुं त्वां हे निशाचर ।
 न हन्तव्यो हतस्त्वं हि पूर्वमेव स्वकर्मभिः ॥ २० ॥

“‘O Rākṣasa, I can kill you even now; but you shall not be killed inasmuch as you are already killed by your own misdeeds.’ (20)

इत्युदीरितवाक्ये तु देवे तस्मिन् महात्मनि ।
 देवदुन्दुभयो नेदुः पुष्पवृष्टिश्च खाच्च्युता ॥ २१ ॥

“When that high-souled divine being uttered these words, the kettledrums of the gods for their part sounded and a shower of flowers fell from the heavens. (21)

अचिन्तयित्वा स तदा नन्दिवाक्यं महाबलः ।
 पर्वतं तु समासाद्य वाक्यमाह दशाननः ॥ २२ ॥

“Not minding the utterance of Nandī, and approaching the hill, Daśānana, that very mighty ogre, however, said on that occasion: (22)

पुष्पकस्य गतिश्छिन्ना यत्कृते मम गच्छतः ।

तमिमं शैलमुन्मूलं करोमि तव गोपते ॥ २३ ॥

“O master of a bull, I shall pull up by the roots this hill on whose account the course of Puṣpaka in which I was travelling has been arrested. (23)

केन प्रभावेण भवो नित्यं क्रीडति राजवत् ।

विज्ञातव्यं न जानीते भयस्थानमुपस्थितम् ॥ २४ ॥

“By virtue of what power does Śiva continually sport like a king? He does not seem to understand what should be known to him, viz., that danger has come to him.’ (24)

एवमुक्त्वा ततो राम भुजान् विक्षिप्य पर्वते ।

तोलयामास तं शीघ्रं स शैलः समकम्पत ॥ २५ ॥

“Having said so, O Rāma, he put his hands below the hill and lifted it up in no time so that, the hill shook violently. (25)

चालनात् पर्वतस्यैव गणा देवस्य कम्पिताः ।

चचाल पार्वती चापि तदाश्लिष्टा महेश्वरम् ॥ २६ ॥

“By the shaking of the hill the attendants of the Lord trembled; Pārvaṭī also slipped and clung to Maheśwara at that moment. (26)

ततो राम महादेवो देवानां प्रवरो हरः ।

पादाङ्गुष्ठेन तं शैलं पीडयामास लीलया ॥ २७ ॥

“Then, O Rāma, Mahādeva, the foremost of the gods, also known as Hara, the Destroyer, sportively pressed the hill with His great toe. (27)

पीडितास्तु ततस्तस्य शैलस्तम्भोपमा भुजाः ।

विस्मिताश्चाभवन्तत्र सचिवास्तस्य रक्षसः ॥ २८ ॥

“His (Daśānana’s) arms, which resembled pillars supporting the hill, were then crushed; and the ministers of the Rākṣasa standing there were surprised. (28)

रक्षसा तेन रोषाच्च भुजानां पीडनात् तथा ।

मुक्तो विरावः सहसा त्रैलोक्यं येन कम्पितम् ॥ २९ ॥

“When his arms were thus crushed, the Rākṣasa in fury raised a cry all of a sudden. All the three worlds were shaken by it. (29)

मेनिरे वज्रनिष्पेषं तस्यामात्या युगक्षये ।

तदा वर्त्मसु चलिता देवा इन्द्रपुरोगमाः ॥ ३० ॥

“His ministers took it to be a crash of thunder, which takes place at the end of the world-period. At that time even the gods, with Indra at their head, stumbled on their way. (30)

समुद्राश्चापि संक्षुब्धाश्चलिताश्चापि पर्वताः ।

यक्षा विद्याधराः सिद्धाः किमेतदिति चाब्रुवन् ॥ ३१ ॥

“Even the oceans became turbulent and the mountains also shook; nay, the Yakṣas, Vidyādhara and Siddhas cried out, “What is this?” (31)

तोषयस्व महादेवं नीलकण्ठमुमापतिम् ।

तमृते शरणं नान्यं पश्यामोऽत्र दशानन ॥ ३२ ॥

“‘Propitiate Mahādeva, the blue-necked God, and the husband of Umā; O Daśānana, we do not see any protector other than Him. (32)

स्तुतिभिः प्रणतो भूत्वा तमेव शरणं ब्रज ।

कृपालुः शङ्करस्तुष्टः प्रसादं ते विधास्यति ॥ ३३ ॥

“‘In all humility seek refuge in Him by singing His praises. Śaṅkara is compassionate and will become gracious to you when gratified.’ (33)

एवमुक्तस्तदामात्यैस्तुष्टाव वृषभध्वजम् ।

सामभिविधेयैः स्तोत्रैः प्रणम्य स दशाननः ।

संवत्सरसहस्रं तु रुदतो रक्षसो गतम् ॥ ३४ ॥

“Respectfully bowing to Him when advised thus by his ministers, Daśānana glorified the God, whose standard bears the ensign of a bull, by singing psalms from the Sāmaveda and other hymns. A thousand years elapsed while the Rākṣasa went on crying in this manner. (34)

ततः प्रीतो महादेवः शैलाग्रे विष्टितः प्रभुः ।

मुक्त्वा चास्य भुजान् राम प्राह वाक्यं दशाननम् ॥ ३५ ॥

“Relieving his hands of the pressure, when pleased with his eulogy, while remaining seated on a peak of the hill, Lord

Mahādeva, O Rāma, then spoke to Daśānana as follows: (35)

प्रीतोऽस्मि तव वीरस्य शौटीर्याच्च दशानन ।
शैलाक्रान्तेन यो मुक्तस्त्वया रावः सुदारुणः ॥ ३६ ॥
यस्माल्लोकत्रयं चैतद् रावितं भयमागतम् ।
तस्मात् त्वं रावणो नाम नाम्ना राजन् भविष्यसि ॥ ३७ ॥

“O Daśānana, I am pleased with your manliness, a hero as you are, as well as with your encomium. Since the denizens of all the three worlds were set acrying, seized as they were with fear by the fierce cry which was set forth by you when you were crushed by the hill. Therefore, O king, you will go by the name of Rāvaṇa. (36-37)

देवता मानुषा यक्षा ये चान्ये जगतीतले ।
एवं त्वामभिधास्यन्ति रावणं लोकरावणम् ॥ ३८ ॥

“The gods, human beings, Yakṣas and whatever other beings exist on the earth's surface will, henceforth call you by the name of Rāvaṇa because you thus set the world acrying. (38)

गच्छ पौलस्त्य विस्रब्धं पथा येन त्वमिच्छसि ।
मया चैवाभ्यनुज्ञातो राक्षसाधिप गम्यताम् ॥ ३९ ॥

“O grandson of Pulastya, proceed without fear by whichever path you wish to take. Permitted by Me, O suzerain lord of ogres, you may go.’ (39)

एवमुक्तस्तु लङ्केशः शम्भुना स्वयमब्रवीत् ।
प्रीतो यदि महादेव वरं मे देहि याचतः ॥ ४० ॥

“When spoken to in these words by Lord Śambhu Himself, the king of Laṅkā said, ‘O Mahādeva, if you are pleased with me, kindly vouchsafe a boon to me, who beg for the same. (40)

अवध्यत्वं मया प्राप्तं देवगन्धर्वदानवैः ।
राक्षसैर्गुह्यकैर्नागैर्ये चान्ये बलवत्तराः ॥ ४१ ॥

“I have already secured immunity from death at the hands of gods, Gandharvas and Dānavas, Rākṣasas, Guhyakas, Nāgas and others who are mightier than these. (41)

मानुषान् न गणे देव स्वल्पास्ते मम सम्मताः ।
दीर्घमायुश्च मे प्राप्तं ब्रह्मणस्त्रिपुरान्तक ॥ ४२ ॥
वाञ्छितं चायुषः शेषं शस्त्रं त्वं च प्रयच्छ मे ।
एवमुक्तस्ततस्तेन रावणेन स शङ्करः ॥ ४३ ॥
ददौ खड्गं महादीप्तं चन्द्रहासमिति श्रुतम् ।
आयुषश्चावशेषं च ददौ भूतपतिस्तदा ॥ ४४ ॥

“‘I do not reckon the human beings, O Lord, because they are regarded by me as very insignificant. A boon of long life has been secured by me from Brahmā, O destroyer of Tripura ! Give me the remaining lease of life sought by me and give me also a weapon.’ Requested thus by the aforesaid Rāvaṇa, the well-known Lord Śaṅkara gifted to him the highly shining sword known as Candrahāsa. The Lord of spirits granted to him also the remaining lease of life on that occasion. (42—44)

दत्त्वोवाच ततः शम्भुर्नावज्ञेयमिदं त्वया ।
अवज्ञातं यदि हि ते मामेवैष्यत्यसंशयः ॥ ४५ ॥
“Bestowing it on him, He said, ‘This sword is not to be despised by you; if it is disregarded by you, it shall doubtless return to me.’ (45)

एवं महेश्वरेणैव कृतनामा स रावणः ।
अभिवाद्य महादेवमारुरोहाथ पुष्पकम् ॥ ४६ ॥

“Having thus been named by the supreme Deity Śiva, greeting Mahādeva, the said Rāvaṇa re-ascended Puṣpaka. (46)

ततो महीतलं राम पर्यक्रामत रावणः ।
क्षत्रियान् सुमहावीर्यान् बाधमानस्ततस्ततः ॥ ४७ ॥

“Thereafter, O Rāma, Rāvaṇa ranged over the earth's surface oppressing Kṣatriyas possessed of exceeding valour here and there. (47)

केचित् तेजस्विनः शूराः क्षत्रिया युद्धदुर्मदाः ।
तच्छासनमकुर्वन्तो विनेशुः सपरिच्छदाः ॥ ४८ ॥

“Disobeying his command some valiant Kṣatriyas, who were full of martial ardour and ferocious in battle, perished alongwith their followers. (48)

अपरे दुर्जयं रक्षो जानन्तः प्राज्ञसम्मताः ।
जिताः स्म इत्यभाषन्त राक्षसं बलदर्पितम् ॥ ४९ ॥ “Others, who were recognized as prudent, and who knew the Rākṣasa to be difficult to conquer, submitted to the ogre, who was proud of his strength, ‘We stand vanquished.’ ” (49)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे षोडशः सर्गः ॥ १६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixteen in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तदशः सर्गः

Canto XVII

Vedavati, daughter of a Brahmarṣi, insulted by Rāvaṇa, pronounces a curse on him and enters the fire. She appears as Sītā in another birth

अथ राजन् महाबाहुर्विचरन् पृथिवीतले ।
हिमवद्वनमासाद्य परिचक्राम रावणः ॥ १ ॥

“While ranging over the earth’s surface, the mighty-armed Rāvaṇa, O king, arrived at a forest in the region of the Himālayas and was roving in it. (1)

तत्रापश्यत् स वै कन्यां कृष्णाजिनजटाधराम् ।
आर्षेण विधिना चैनां दीप्यन्तीं देवतामिव ॥ २ ॥

“There he saw a maiden, wearing the skin of a black antelope and matted locks, rich in austerities befitting a Ṛṣi (a seer of Vedic Mantras) and glowing like a deity. (2)

स दृष्ट्वा रूपसम्पन्नां कन्यां तां सुमहाव्रताम् ।
काममोहपरीतात्मा पप्रच्छ प्रहसन्निव ॥ ३ ॥

“Seeing her, endowed with comeliness and observing a great vow, and overpowered by infatuation born of lust, Rāvaṇa asked her as though laughing: (3)

किमिदं वर्तसे भद्रे विरुद्धं यौवनस्य ते ।
नहि युक्ता तवैतस्य रूपस्यैवं प्रतिक्रिया ॥ ४ ॥

“‘O blessed one, what are you doing here? It is incompatible with your youth. Such a conduct fits ill with one of your beauty. (4)

रूपं तेऽनुपमं भीरु कामोन्मादकरं नृणाम् ।
न युक्तं तपसि स्थातुं निर्गतो ह्येष निर्णयः ॥ ५ ॥

“‘O Bhīru (one who easily gets afraid), your unrivalled beauty generates madness born of lust in the minds of men. It is not proper for you to perform Tapas; this is the conclusion which has emerged from my mind. (5)

कस्यासि किमिदं भद्रे कश्च भर्ता वरानने ।
येन सम्भुज्यसे भीरु स नरः पुण्यभाग् भुवि ॥ ६ ॥

“‘O auspicious one, to whom do you belong? What are you doing here? Who is your husband, O lady with a comely face? He who enjoys you, O timid one, is indeed a very fortunate person in this world. (6)

पृच्छतः शंस मे सर्वं कस्य हेतोः परिश्रमः ।
एवमुक्ता तु सा कन्या रावणेन यशस्विनी ॥ ७ ॥
अब्रवीद् विधिवत् कृत्वा तस्यातिथ्यं तपोधना ।
कुशध्वजो नाम पिता ब्रह्मर्षिरमितप्रभः ॥ ८ ॥

“‘Relate everything to me, who am inquisitive. For whose sake is all this effort?’ Questioned thus by Rāvaṇa, that illustrious maiden, whose wealth was Tapas, played the host according to rule and then said, ‘My father’s name is Kuśadhwaṇa. He was a Brahmarṣi endowed with immense lustre. (7-8)

बृहस्पतिसुतः श्रीमान् बुद्ध्या तुल्यो बृहस्पतेः ।
 तस्याहं कुर्वतो नित्यं वेदाभ्यासं महात्मनः ॥ १॥
 सम्भूता वाङ्मयी कन्या नाम्ना वेदवती स्मृता ।
 ततो देवाः सगन्धर्वा यक्षराक्षसपन्नगाः ॥ १० ॥
 ते चापि गत्वा पितरं वरणं रोचयन्ति मे ।
 न च मां स पिता तेभ्यो दत्तवान् राक्षसेश्वर ॥ ११ ॥

“That glorious sage was a son of Bṛhaspati and equal to him in respect of intelligence. Of that magnanimous soul, who was always engaged in reciting the Vedas,
 I was born as an incarnation of the Vedas.
 I am, therefore, known as Vedavatī. O king of the Rākṣasas, gods with Gandharvas, Yakṣas, Rākṣasas and Pannagas (Nāgas) approached my father and sought my hand in marriage; but my aforesaid father did not give me to any of them. (9—11)

कारणं तद् वदिष्यामि निशामय महाभुज ।
 पितुस्तु मम जामाता विष्णुः किल सुरेश्वरः ॥ १२ ॥
 अभिप्रेतस्त्रिलोकेशस्तस्मान्नान्यस्य मे पिता ।
 दातुमिच्छति तस्मै तु तच्छ्रुत्वा बलदर्पितः ॥ १३ ॥
 शम्भुर्नाम ततो राजा दैत्यानां कुपितोऽभवत् ।
 तेन रात्रौ शयानो मे पिता पापेन हिंसितः ॥ १४ ॥

“O mighty-armed one, I will tell you the reason behind it. Please listen. Viṣṇu, the Lord of gods and the Ruler of the three worlds, indeed was acceptable to my father as a son-in-law. My father would not give me to anyone other than Him. Hearing this,
 Śambhu, the king of the Daityas, who was proud of his might, became angry. While asleep at night, my father was killed by that sinful one. (12—14)

ततो मे जननी दीना तच्छरीरं पितुर्मम ।
 परिष्वज्य महाभागा प्रविष्टा हव्यवाहनम् ॥ १५ ॥

“Thereupon my mother, of great merit, who had become very depressed, entered the fire, taking that body of my father in her arms. (15)

ततो मनोरथं सत्यं पितुर्नारायणं प्रति ।
 करोमीति तमेवाहं हृदयेन समुद्वहे ॥ १६ ॥

“Thenceforward I have installed
 Nārāyaṇa in my heart so that I may implement the desire of my father with regard to
 Him. (16)

इति प्रतिज्ञामारुह्य चरामि विपुलं तपः ।
 एतत् ते सर्वमाख्यातं मया राक्षसपुङ्गव ॥ १७ ॥

“Having taken this vow, I am performing severe Tapas; O best of Rākṣasas, I have told you all this. (17)

नारायणो मम पतिर्न त्वन्यः पुरुषोत्तमात् ।
 आश्रये नियमं घोरं नारायणपरीप्सया ॥ १८ ॥

“Nārāyaṇa is my husband and no one other than that Puruṣottama. Desiring to secure the hand of Nārāyaṇa I am observing this hard penance. (18)

विज्ञातस्त्वं हि मे राजन् गच्छ पौलस्त्यनन्दन ।
 जानामि तपसा सर्वं त्रैलोक्ये यद्धि वर्तते ॥ १९ ॥

“O king, by dint of my Tapas I know everything that exists in the three worlds. I have come to know who you are. You may go, O son of Viśravā! (19)

सोऽब्रवीद् रावणो भूयस्तां कन्यां सुमहाव्रताम् ।
 अवरुह्य विमानाग्रात् कन्दर्पशरपीडितः ॥ २० ॥

“Descending from the aerial car, Rāvaṇa, who was smitten with darts of love, spoke again to that maiden, who was observing a great vow: (20)

अवलिसासि सुश्रोणि यस्यास्ते मतिरीदृशी ।
 वृद्धानां मृगशावाक्षि भ्राजते पुण्यसंचयः ॥ २१ ॥

“O lady of shapely limbs, you are presumptuous in that you have made such a resolve. Your endeavour to acquire merit through Tapas befits only old women, O lady possessing the eyes of a fawn ! (21)

त्वं सर्वगुणसम्पन्ना नार्हसे वक्तुमीदृशम् ।
 त्रैलोक्यसुन्दरी भीरु यौवनं तेऽतिवर्तते ॥ २२ ॥

“You, who are endowed with all good qualities, ought not to speak like this. You are beautiful in all the three worlds, O timid one, your youth is passing away. (22)

अहं लङ्कापतिर्भद्रे दशग्रीव इति श्रुतः।
तस्य मे भव भार्या त्वं भुङ्क्ष्व भोगान् यथासुखम् ॥ २३ ॥

“O blessed one, I am the king of Laṅkā, known as Daśagrīva. Become my wife and enjoy all sense-delights as it suits your pleasure. (23)

कश्च तावदसौ यं त्वं विष्णुरित्यभिभाषसे।
वीर्येण तपसा चैव भोगेन च बलेन च ॥ २४ ॥
स मया नो समो भद्रे यं त्वं कामयसेऽङ्गने।
इत्युक्तवति तस्मिंस्तु वेदवत्यथ साब्रवीत् ॥ २५ ॥
मा मैवमिति सा कन्या तमुवाच निशाचरम्।
त्रैलोक्याधिपतिं विष्णुं सर्वलोकनमस्कृतम् ॥ २६ ॥
त्वदृते राक्षसेन्द्रान्यः कोऽवमन्येत बुद्धिमान्।
एवमुक्तस्तथा तत्र वेदवत्या निशाचरः ॥ २७ ॥
मूर्धजेषु तदा कन्यां कराग्रेण परामृशत्।
ततो वेदवती क्रुद्धा केशान् हस्तेन साच्छिनत् ॥ २८ ॥

“By the way, who is that whom you speak of as Viṣṇu? He whom you wish to secure, O good lady, is not equal to me in valour, Tapas, enjoyment and strength.’ When he had spoken thus, the aforesaid Vedavati for her part thereupon replied as follows: ‘Don’t speak thus, don’t speak thus!’ She told the ranger of the night, ‘What sensible man, other than you, O king of the Rākṣasas, will speak thus disparagingly of Viṣṇu, who is the lord of the three worlds and who is universally respected.’ Spoken to in these words on that spot by the aforesaid Vedavati, the Rākṣasa then seized hold of the maiden by her hair with his hand. Provoked to anger, Vedavati cut off her hair with her hand. (24—28)

असिर्भूत्वा करस्तस्याः केशांश्छिन्नांस्तदाकरोत्।
सा ज्वलन्तीव रोषेण दहन्तीव निशाचरम् ॥ २९ ॥
उवाचाग्रिं समाधाय मरणाय कृतत्वर।
धर्षितायास्त्वयानार्य न मे जीवितमिष्यते ॥ ३० ॥

“Getting transformed her hand into sword, she then cut off her hair. Hastening to put an end to her life, she kindled a fire. Burning, as it were, with anger, she spoke to the Rākṣasa as if she would burn him: ‘Insulted by you, O ignoble man, I no longer desire to live. (29-30)

रक्षस्तस्मात् प्रवेक्ष्यामि पश्यतस्ते हुताशनम्।
यस्मात् तु धर्षिता चाहं त्वया पापात्मना वने ॥ ३१ ॥
तस्मात् तव वधार्थं हि समुत्पत्स्ये ह्यहं पुनः।
नहि शक्यः स्त्रिया हन्तुं पुरुषः पापनिश्चयः ॥ ३२ ॥

“‘I will, therefore, enter the fire before your very eyes, O ogre ! As I have been insulted in this forest by you, O sinner, therefore, I will be born again for your destruction. It is not possible for a woman to kill a man of sinful resolve. (31-32)

शापे त्वयि मयोत्पृष्टे तपसश्च व्ययो भवेत्।
यदि त्वस्ति मया किञ्चित् कृतं दत्तं हुतं तथा ॥ ३३ ॥
तस्मात् त्वयोनिजा साध्वी भवेयं धर्मिणः सुता।
एवमुक्त्वा प्रविष्टा सा ज्वलितं जातवेदसम् ॥ ३४ ॥

“‘And if I pronounce a curse on you, my reserve of Tapas will be lost. If I have done anything meritorious or have given gifts or tended the sacred fire, I will surely appear as Ayonijā (not born of the womb), the pious daughter of a virtuous man.’ Having said thus, she entered the kindled fire. (33-34)

पपात च दिवो दिव्या पुष्पवृष्टिः समन्ततः।
पुनरेव समुद्भूता पद्मे पद्मसमप्रभा ॥ ३५ ॥

“Nay, a rain of celestial flowers fell from the heaven on all sides. She appeared again from a lotus with the radiance of a lotus. (35)

तस्मादपि पुनः प्राप्ता पूर्ववत् तेन रक्षसा।
कन्यां कमलगर्भाभां प्रगृह्य स्वगृहं ययौ ॥ ३६ ॥

“As on the previous occasion, she was again taken hold of by the Rākṣasa from her birth-place. Taking hold of the maiden, who had the lustre of the interior of a lotus, he went home. (36)

प्रगृह्य रावणस्वेतां दर्शयामास मन्त्रिणे।
लक्षणज्ञो निरीक्ष्यैव रावणं चैवमब्रवीत् ॥ ३७ ॥

“Taking her by the hand, Rāvaṇa showed her to his minister. Scanning her very features, the minister, who was well-versed in physiognomy, said to Rāvaṇa: (37)

गृहस्थैषा हि सुश्रोणी त्वद्वधायैव दृश्यते।

एतच्छ्रुत्वार्षावे राम तां प्रचिक्षेप रावणः ॥ ३८ ॥

“If this woman of shapely limbs stays in your house, she will prove to be your destroyer.’ Hearing this, O Rāma, Rāvaṇa threw her into the sea. (38)

सा चैव क्षितिमासाद्य यज्ञायतनमध्यगा।

राज्ञो हलमुखोत्कृष्टा पुनरप्युत्थिता सती ॥ ३९ ॥

“Reaching the shore she came to the middle of a sacrificial ground. Dug out by the ploughshare of the king, Janaka, she came up again. (39)

सैषा जनकराजस्य प्रसूता तनया प्रभो।

तव भार्या महाबाहो विष्णुस्त्वं हि सनातनः ॥ ४० ॥

“O Lord, the same Vedavatī reborn as the daughter of King Janaka, is Your wife now. O mighty-armed Lord, You are indeed Viṣṇu, the ancient one. (40)

पूर्वं क्रोधहतः शत्रुर्ययासौ निहतस्तया।

उपाश्रयित्वा शैलाभस्तव वीर्यममानुषम् ॥ ४१ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे सप्तदशः सर्गः ॥ १७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventeen in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टादशः सर्गः

Canto XVIII

Marutta’s discomfiture at the hands of Rāvaṇa; Indra and the other gods confer boons on the peacock and other birds

प्रविष्टायां हुताशं तु वेदवत्यां स रावणः।

पुष्पकं तु समारुह्य परिचक्राम मेदिनीम् ॥ १ ॥

“Ascending the Puṣpaka, when Vedavatī had entered the fire, Rāvaṇa ranged the earth once more. (1)

ततो मरुत्तं नृपतिं यजन्तं सह दैवतैः।

उशीरबीजमासाद्य ददर्श स तु रावणः ॥ २ ॥

“Falling back upon Your superhuman prowess, the same lady by whom Your mountain-like enemy was consumed by her wrath, in her former birth, actually killed him. (41)

एवमेषा महाभागा मर्त्येषूत्पत्स्यते पुनः।

क्षेत्रे हलमुखोत्कृष्टे वेद्यामग्निशिखोपमा ॥ ४२ ॥

“In this manner this highly meritorious lady will continue to appear again among mortals (in the following cycles), drawn out by a ploughshare in a furrowed field, like a fire on an altar. (42)

एषा वेदवती नाम पूर्वमासीत् कृते युगे।

त्रेतायुगमनुप्राप्य वधार्थं तस्य रक्षसः ॥ ४३ ॥

उत्पन्ना मैथिलकुले जनकस्य महात्मनः।

सीतोत्पन्ना तु सीतेति मानुषैः पुनरुच्यते ॥ ४४ ॥

“She who was known as Vedavatī in her former birth in Kṛtayuga, appeared again in the Tretāyuga as a daughter of the high-souled Janaka in the line of the kings of Mithilā for bringing about the destruction of that Rākṣasa. Since she came out of a furrow (Sītā), she is called ‘Sītā’ by human beings.” (43-44)

“Reaching Uśirabija, Rāvaṇa for his part saw king Marutta performing a sacrifice in the company of gods. (2)

संवर्तो नाम ब्रह्मर्षिः साक्षाद् भ्राता बृहस्पतेः।

याजयामास धर्मज्ञः सर्वैर्देवगणैर्वृतः ॥ ३ ॥

“Surrounded by the hosts of gods, a Brahmarṣi, Saṁvarta by name, a brother of Sage Bṛhaspati himself and a knower of Dharma, was conducting the sacrifice. (3)

दृष्ट्वा देवास्तु तद् रक्षो वरदानेन दुर्जयम्।
तिर्यग्योनिं समाविष्टास्तस्य धर्षणभीरवः ॥ ४ ॥

“Seeing that Rākṣasa, who was hard to vanquish on account of the boons (granted to him), the gods, afraid of his attack, took cover in the bodies of animals. (4)

इन्द्रो मयूरः संवृत्तो धर्मराजस्तु वायसः।
कृकलासो धनाध्यक्षो हंसश्च वरुणोऽभवत् ॥ ५ ॥

“Indra became a peacock; Yama, a crow; Kubera, a chameleon and Varuṇa, a swan. (5)

अन्वेष्वपि गतेष्वेवं देवेष्वरिनिषूदन।
रावणः प्राविशद् यज्ञं सारमेय इवाशुचिः ॥ ६ ॥

“In this manner when the other gods too had transformed themselves, O scourge of Your foes, Rāvaṇa entered the sacrificial ground like an unclean dog. (6)

तं च राजानमासाद्य रावणो राक्षसाधिपः।
प्राह युद्धं प्रयच्छेति निर्जितोऽस्मीति वा वद ॥ ७ ॥

“Approaching the king, Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of the Rākṣasas, said, ‘Give battle to me or admit that you stand vanquished.’ (7)

ततो मरुत्तो नृपतिः को भवानित्युवाच तम्।
अवहासं ततो मुक्त्वा रावणो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ८ ॥

“Thereupon King Marutta said to him: ‘Who are you?’ Uttering a derisive laugh, Rāvaṇa then spoke the following words: (8)

अकुतूहलभावेन प्रीतोऽस्मि तव पार्थिव।
धनदस्यानुजं यो मां नावगच्छसि रावणम् ॥ ९ ॥

“‘I am pleased with your equanimity, O king, who do not know me as Rāvaṇa, a younger (half-) brother of Kubera. (9)

त्रिषु लोकेषु कोऽन्योऽस्ति यो न जानाति मे बलम्।
भ्रातरं येन निर्जित्य विमानमिदमाहृतम् ॥ १० ॥

‘Who else is there in the three worlds, who does not know my might who snatched away this aerial car, after vanquishing my said brother?’ (10)

ततो मरुत्तः स नृपस्तं रावणमथाब्रवीत्।
धन्यः खलु भवान् येन ज्येष्ठो भ्राता रणे जितः ॥ ११ ॥

“Thereupon the aforesaid King Marutta forthwith answered Rāvaṇa (as follows) ‘You are praiseworthy, indeed, in that you conquered in combat your own elder brother. (11)

न त्वया सदृशः श्लाघ्यस्त्रिषु लोकेषु विद्यते।
कं त्वं प्राक् केवलं धर्मं चरित्वा लब्धवान् वरम् ॥ १२ ॥

“‘In all the three worlds there is no one who is as praiseworthy as you. Practising what unique virtue did you secure boons in the past? (12)

श्रुतपूर्वं हि न मया भाषसे यादृशं स्वयम्।
तिष्ठेदानीं न मे जीवन् प्रतियास्यसि दुर्मते ॥ १३ ॥

“‘Nothing like what you say has been heard of by me before. O evil-minded one, tarry awhile; now you will not get back alive. (13)

अद्य त्वां निशितैर्बाणैः प्रेषयामि यमक्षयम्।
ततः शरासनं गृह्य सायकांश्च नराधिपः ॥ १४ ॥
रणाय निर्ययौ क्रुद्धः संवर्तो मार्गमावृणोत्।
सोऽब्रवीत् स्नेहसंयुक्तं मरुत्तं तं महानृषिः ॥ १५ ॥

“‘With my sharp arrows I will dispatch you to the abode of Yama, the god of death.’ Seizing hold of his bow and arrows, the king thereupon rushed in anger for combat, but Saṁvarta blocked his way. That great sage addressed the following loving words to the said Marutta: (14-15)

श्रोतव्यं यदि मद्वाक्यं सम्प्रहारो न ते क्षमः।
माहेश्वरमिदं सत्रमसमाप्तं कुलं दहेत् ॥ १६ ॥

“‘If you heed my advice, an encounter is not advisable for you. If left unfinished, this sacrifice, which is intended to propitiate Maheśvara, will consume your race. (16)

दीक्षितस्य कुतो युद्धं क्रोधित्वं दीक्षिते कुतः।
संशयश्च जये नित्यं राक्षसश्च सुदुर्जयः ॥ १७ ॥

“‘An encounter is out of the question for one who stands consecrated for a sacrificial performance, and temper is also out of the question for such a one; moreover, victory is uncertain in a battle and the Rākṣasa is very hard to vanquish.’” (17)

स निवृत्तो गुरोर्वाक्यान्मरुतः पृथिवीपतिः ।
विसृज्य सशरं चापं स्वस्थो मखमुखोऽभवत् ॥ १८ ॥

Bowing to his preceptor's remonstrance, King Marutta withdrew; throwing away his bow and arrows, he became self-poised and addressed himself to the performance of the sacrifice. (18)

ततस्तं निर्जितं मत्वा घोषयामास वै शुकः ।
रावणो जयतीत्युच्चैर्हर्षान्नादं विमुक्तवान् ॥ १९ ॥

Taking him to be vanquished, Śuka thereupon raised in glee a shout in a high pitch, saying, “Rāvaṇa has triumphed !” (19)

तान् भक्षयित्वा तत्रस्थान् महर्षीन् यज्ञमागतान् ।
वितृप्तो रुधिरैस्तेषां पुनः सम्प्रययौ महीम् ॥ २० ॥

Having devoured the celebrated and great sages who had come to the sacrifice and who were still there, and fully sated with their blood, Rāvaṇa ranged the earth once more. (20)

रावणे तु गते देवाः सेन्द्राश्चैव दिवौकसः ।
ततः स्वां योनिमासाद्य तानि सत्त्वानि चाब्रुवन् ॥ २१ ॥

When Rāvaṇa had left, the gods and other denizens of heaven including Indra resumed their original form and spoke to these animals. (21)

हर्षात् तदाब्रवीदिन्द्रो मयूरं नीलबर्हिणम् ।
प्रीतोऽस्मि तव धर्मज्ञ भुजङ्गाद्धि न ते भयम् ॥ २२ ॥

In joy Indra then said to the peacock with a blue tail: “O knower of Dharma, I am pleased with you; there will be no fear for you from the snakes. (22)

इदं नेत्रसहस्रं तु यत् तद् बर्हे भविष्यति ।
वर्षमाणे मयि मुदं प्राप्स्यसे प्रीतिलक्षणाम् ॥ २३ ॥

Spots resembling these thousand eyes

(of mine) will appear in your tail. Nay, when I send down a shower of rain, you will rejoice as a token of love (you cherish for me).” (23)

एवमिन्द्रो वरं प्रादान्मयूरस्य सुरेश्वरः ॥ २४ ॥

In this way, Indra, the ruler of gods, conferred boons on the peacock. (24)

नीलाः किल पुरा बर्हा मयूराणां नराधिप ।
सुराधिपाद् वरं प्राप्य गताः सर्वेऽपि बर्हिणः ॥ २५ ॥

Formerly the tails of peacocks were plain blue alone, O suzerain lord of men; after obtaining boons from the lord of the gods, the whole body of the peacocks left. (25)

धर्मराजोऽब्रवीद् राम प्राग्वंशे वायसं प्रति ।
पक्षिस्तवास्मि सुप्रीतः प्रीतस्य वचनं शृणु ॥ २६ ॥

Yama, O Rāma! said to the crow perched on the Prāgvaṁśa* in front of him: “O bird, I am greatly pleased with you; listen to my words which I am addressing to you out of gratification: (26)

यथान्ये विविधै रोगैः पीड्यन्ते प्राणिनो मया ।
ते न ते प्रभविष्यन्ति मयि प्रीते न संशयः ॥ २७ ॥

‘As I am pleased with you, the various diseases with which other living beings are tormented by me, shall have no effect on you. There is no doubt about this. (27)

मृत्युतस्ते भयं नास्ति वरान् मम विहङ्गम ।
यावत् त्वां न वधिष्यन्ति नरास्तावद् भविष्यसि ॥ २८ ॥

‘In consequence of the boon granted by me, O bird, there is no fear for you from Death. You will live so long as people do not kill you. (28)

ये च मद्विषयस्था वै मानवाः क्षुधयार्दिताः ।
त्वयि भुक्ते सुतृप्तास्ते भविष्यन्ति सबान्धवाः ॥ २९ ॥

‘When you have been fed, the people who are in my domain and who are afflicted with hunger, will feel perfectly sated alongwith their relations.’ (29)

वरुणस्त्वब्रवीद्धंसं गङ्गातोयविचारिणम् ।
श्रूयतां प्रीतिसंयुक्तं वचः पत्ररथेश्वर ॥ ३० ॥

* A shed constructed for the dwelling of the sacrificer and his wife to the east of the sacrificial hall.

Varuṇa for his part said to the swan, swimming about in the waters of the Gaṅgā: “O ruler of birds, listen to my words full of love. (30)

वर्णो मनोरमः सौम्यश्चन्द्रमण्डलसंनिभः ।

भविष्यति तवोदग्रः शुद्धफेनसमप्रभः ॥ ३१ ॥

‘Your colour will be pleasing to the mind and delightful like that of the orb of the pure moon. It will be white as foam and it will be unique to you. (31)

मच्छरीरं समासाद्य कान्तो नित्यं भविष्यसि ।

प्राप्त्यसे चातुलां प्रीतिमेतन्मे प्रीतिलक्षणम् ॥ ३२ ॥

‘Coming into contact with water (which constitutes my body), you will ever look charming and enjoy unequalled delight. This will be a mark of my pleasure.’ (32)

हंसानां हि पुरा राम न वर्णः सर्वपाण्डुरः ।

पक्षा नीलाग्रसंवीताः क्रोडाः शष्पाग्रनिर्मलाः ॥ ३३ ॥

“O Rāma, in the past the colour of swans was not white all over the body; their wings were dark at the tips, while their breasts were dark-brown like the tips of the panic grass.” (33)

अथाब्रवीद् वैश्रवणः कृकलासं गिरौ स्थितम् ।

हैरण्यं सम्प्रयच्छामि वर्णं प्रीतिस्तवाप्यहम् ॥ ३४ ॥

‘Then Kubera (son of Viśravā) said to the chameleon, which was resting on a rock: “Pleased with you too, I will confer on you a golden hue. (34)

सद्रव्यं च शिरो नित्यं भविष्यति तवाक्षयम् ।

एष काञ्चनको वर्णो मत्प्रीत्या ते भविष्यति ॥ ३५ ॥

‘Your head will always have the imperishable golden colour. Due to my pleasure, your dark colour will be transformed into a golden hue.’ (35)

एवं दत्त्वा वरांस्तेभ्यस्तस्मिन् यज्ञोत्सवे सुराः ।

निवृत्ते सह राज्ञा ते पुनः स्वभवनं गताः ॥ ३६ ॥

Having granted boons in this manner to the aforesaid animals, the gods, at the completion of the sacrificial ceremony, returned each to his abode alongwith their king, Indra. (36)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डेऽष्टादशः सर्गः ॥ १८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighteen in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनविंशः सर्गः

Canto XIX

Rāvaṇa kills Anaraṇya and receives a curse from him

अथ जित्वा मरुत्तं स प्रययौ राक्षसाधिपः ।
नगराणि नरेन्द्राणां युद्धकाङ्क्षी दशाननः ॥ १ ॥

Having conquered Marutta, and thirsting for combat, the notorious Daśānana, the suzerain lord of the Rākṣasas, now sought the capital cities of kings. (1)

समासाद्य तु राजेन्द्रान् महेन्द्रवरुणोपमान् ।
अब्रवीद् राक्षसेन्द्रस्तु युद्धं मे दीयतामिति ॥ २ ॥

निर्जिताः स्मेति वा ब्रूत एष मे हि सुनिश्चयः ।

अन्यथा कुर्वतामेवं मोक्षो नैवोपपद्यते ॥ ३ ॥

Approaching the King of kings, who compared with the mighty Indra (the ruler of gods) and Varuṇa (the god presiding over the waters), Rāvaṇa (the ruler of ogres) actually said to them: “Give me battle or declare that you are defeated. This is my ultimatum to you. No escape is possible for those who act otherwise.” (2-3)

ततस्त्वभीरवः प्राज्ञाः पार्थिवा धर्मनिश्चयाः ।

मन्त्रयित्वा ततोऽन्योन्यं राजानः सुमहाबलाः ॥ ४ ॥

निर्जिताः स्मेत्यभाषन्त ज्ञात्वा वरबलं रिपोः ।
 दुष्यन्तः सुरथो गाधिर्गयो राजा पुरुरवाः ॥ ५ ॥
 एते सर्वेऽबुवंस्तात निर्जिताः स्मेति पार्थिवाः ।
 अथायोध्यां समासाद्य रावणो राक्षसाधिपः ॥ ६ ॥
 सुगुप्तामनरण्येन शक्रेणैवामरावतीम् ।
 स तं पुरुषशार्दूलं पुरंदरसमं बले ॥ ७ ॥
 प्राह राजानमासाद्य युद्धं देहीति रावणः ।
 निर्जितोऽस्मीति वा ब्रूहि त्वमेवं मम शासनम् ॥ ८ ॥

Consulting one another, the kings for their part, though fearless, highly intelligent, exceedingly mighty and pious of resolve, and recognizing the enemy's strength which he had derived from boons, then admitted that they stood defeated. Duṣyanta, Suratha, Gādhī, Gaya and King Purūravā—all these monarchs, O beloved Rāma, said, 'We are defeated.' Then, duly reaching Ayodhyā, well-protected by Anaraṇya, as Amarāvati is by Indra, and approaching the monarch, who was a tiger among men and equal to Indra in might, the notorious Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of the Rākṣasas, said to him, "Give me fight or say 'I stand defeated.' Such is my mandate." (4—8)

अयोध्याधिपतिस्तस्य श्रुत्वा पापात्मनो वचः ।
 अनरण्यस्तु संक्रुद्धो राक्षसेन्द्रमथाब्रवीत् ॥ ९ ॥

Enraged to hear the command of that sinful-minded fellow, Anaraṇya, the king of Ayodhyā, now said to the king of the Rākṣasas: (9)

दीयते द्वन्द्वयुद्धं ते राक्षसाधिपते मया ।
 संतिष्ठ क्षिप्रमायत्तो भव चैवं भवाम्यहम् ॥ १० ॥

"O king of the Rākṣasas, I allow you to fight a duel with me, tarry awhile and get ready quickly; I am also getting ready." (10)

अथ पूर्वं श्रुतार्थेन निर्जितं सुमहद् बलम् ।
 निष्क्रामत् तन्नेन्द्रस्य बलं रक्षोवधोद्यतम् ॥ ११ ॥

Since Anaraṇya had previous information, he had gathered a huge force. Intent on killing the Rākṣasa, the said army of the king sallied forth. (11)

नागानां दशसाहस्रं वाजिनां नियुतं तथा ।
 रथानां बहुसाहस्रं पत्तीनां च नरोत्तम ॥ १२ ॥
 महीं संछाद्य निष्क्रान्तं सपदातिरथं रणे ।
 ततः प्रवृत्तं सुमहद् युद्धं युद्धविशारद ॥ १३ ॥
 अनरण्यस्य नृपते राक्षसेन्द्रस्य चाद्भुतम् ।
 तद् रावणबलं प्राप्य बलं तस्य महीपतेः ॥ १४ ॥
 प्राणशयत तदा सर्वं हव्यं हुतमिवानले ।
 युद्ध्वा च सुचिरं कालं कृत्वा विक्रममुत्तमम् ॥ १५ ॥
 प्रज्वलन्तं तमासाद्य क्षिप्रमेवावशेषितम् ।
 प्राविशत् संकुलं तत्र शलभा इव पावकम् ॥ १६ ॥

O jewel among men, ten thousand elephants and a lakh of horses, nay, several thousands of chariots as well as of foot-soldiers then came out on the battlefield, entirely covering the land, inclusive of foot-soldiers and chariots. Then ensued, O warrior skilled in warfare, a very fierce battle between King Anaraṇya, and the king of the Rākṣasas. Encountering the forces of Rāvaṇa, and having fought for a pretty long time and exhibited supreme valour, the entire army of that ruler of the earth was fully consumed like oblations poured into a sacrificial fire. Attenuated in no time on coming in contact with the inflamed Rāvaṇa, the army perished in a body like moths on entering fire. (12—16)

सोऽपश्यत् तन्नेन्द्रस्तु नश्यमानं महाबलम् ।
 महार्णवं समासाद्य वनापगशतं यथा ॥ १७ ॥

That aforesaid monarch, for his part saw that huge army perishing like hundreds of streams full of water disappearing on reaching the ocean. (17)

ततः शक्रधनुःप्रख्यं धनुर्विस्फारयन् स्वयम् ।
 आससाद नरेन्द्रस्तं रावणं क्रोधमूर्च्छितः ॥ १८ ॥

Then beside himself with rage and twanging his bow, resembling the bow of Indra, the king came up to the notorious Rāvaṇa. (18)

अनरण्येन तेऽमात्या मारीचशुकसारणाः ।
 प्रहस्तसहिता भग्ना व्यद्रवन्त मृगा इव ॥ १९ ॥

The said ministers, Mārīca, Śuka and Sāraṇa alongwith Prahasta, were badly beaten by Anaraṇya and fled like deer. (19)

ततो बाणशतान्यष्टौ पातयामास मूर्धनि।

तस्य राक्षसराजस्य इक्ष्वाकुकुलनन्दनः॥ २०॥

Thereupon Anaraṇya (the delight of Ikṣwāku's race) shot eight hundred arrows on the head of the king of the Rākṣasas. (20)

तस्य बाणाः पतन्तस्ते चक्रिरे न क्षतं क्वचित्।

वारिधारा इवाभ्रेभ्यः पतन्त्यो गिरिमूर्धनि॥ २१॥

Though falling on the head of Rāvaṇa, the aforesaid arrows of Anaraṇya did not cause any injury anywhere any more than torrents of water falling from clouds on the top of a hill. (21)

ततो राक्षसराजेन क्रुद्धेन नृपतिस्तदा।

तलेनाभिहतो मूर्ध्नि स रथान्निपपात ह॥ २२॥

Then, struck on the head by the enraged king of the Rākṣasas with his palm, the aforesaid king fell from the chariot: so the tradition goes. (22)

स राजा पतितो भूमौ विह्वलः प्रविवेपितः।

वज्रदग्ध इवारण्ये सालो निपतितो यथा॥ २३॥

Confused and completely shaken, the said king fell on the ground like a sal tree struck by lightning in a forest. (23)

तं प्रहस्याब्रवीद् रक्ष इक्ष्वाकुं पृथिवीपतिम्।

किमिदानीं फलं प्राप्तं त्वया मां प्रति युध्यता॥ २४॥

Making fun of that ruler of Ikṣwāku's dynasty, Rāvaṇa said, "What have you gained by encountering me, on this occasion? (24)

त्रैलोक्ये नास्ति यो द्वन्द्वं मम दद्यान्नराधिप।

शङ्के प्रसक्तो भोगेषु न शृणोषि बलं मम॥ २५॥

"There is none in all the three worlds who can give battle to me, O Lord of men! Deeply addicted (as you were) to sense-enjoyments, I imagine, you did not hear of my might." (25)

तस्यैवं ब्रुवतो राजा मन्दासुर्वाक्यमब्रवीत्।

किं शक्यमिह कर्तुं वै कालो हि दुरतिक्रमः॥ २६॥

To him who was speaking thus, the king, whose life was sinking, replied as follows: "What can be done by me now? For, death is inviolable, indeed. (26)

नह्यहं निर्जितो रक्षस्त्वया चात्मप्रशंसिना।

कालेनैव विपन्नोऽहं हेतुभूतस्तु मे भवान्॥ २७॥

"Surely, I have not been vanquished by you, O ogre, who are indulging in self-praise; I stand destroyed by Fate alone and you are a mere instrument in the hands of Death. (27)

किं त्विदानीं मया शक्यं कर्तुं प्राणपरिक्षये।

नह्यहं विमुखी रक्षो युद्धयमानस्त्वया हतः॥ २८॥

"What can be done by me precisely at this moment when my life is coming to an end? Thank God, I have not been averse to fighting, O ogre, and have been killed while fighting. (28)

इक्ष्वाकुपरिभावित्वाद् वचो वक्ष्यामि राक्षस।

यदि दत्तं यदि हुतं यदि मे सुकृतं तपः।

यदि गुप्ताः प्रजाः सम्यक् तदा सत्यं वचोऽस्तु मे॥ २९॥

"Since you have insulted the race of Ikṣwāku, I shall pronounce a curse (on you), O ogre! If a gift has ever been bestowed, an oblation has ever been poured into the sacred fire, and austerities have been practised well and if the people have been well protected by me, let my words prove to be true. (29)

उत्पत्स्यते कुले ह्यस्मिन्निक्ष्वाकूणां महात्मनाम्।

रामो दाशरथिर्नाम स ते प्राणान् हरिष्यति॥ ३०॥

"Indeed, in this race of high-souled Ikṣwākus will be born a son of Daśaratha, Śrī Rāma by name; He will take your life". (30)

ततो जलधरोदग्रस्ताडितो देवदुन्दुभिः।

तस्मिन्नुदाहृते शापे पुष्पवृष्टिश्च खाच्युता॥ ३१॥

When that curse was pronounced, the kettledrum of the gods was sounded at a high pitch like the roar of thunder and an abundance—of flowers were showered from the heavens. (31)

ततः स राजा राजेन्द्र गतः स्थानं त्रिविष्टपम् ।
स्वर्गते च नृपे तस्मिन् राक्षसः सोऽपसर्पत ॥ ३२ ॥
Then that king, O ruler of rulers, ascended to the realm of heaven. And when the said king ascended to heaven, the ogre left. (32)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकोनविंशः सर्गः ॥ १९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Nineteenth in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

विंशः सर्गः

Canto XX

Rāvaṇa is pulled up by Nārada; at his suggestion he seeks the abode of Yama for combat; Nārada's curiosity on that account

ततो वित्रासयन् मर्त्यान् पृथिव्यां राक्षसाधिपः ।
आससाद घने तस्मिन् नारदं मुनिपुङ्गवम् ॥ १ ॥

While terrorizing the mortals on the earth, Rāvaṇa (the suzerain lord of the ogres) met Nārada one day in the midst of clouds while coursing in the heavens. (1)

तस्याभिवादनं कृत्वा दशग्रीवो निशाचरः ।
अब्रवीत् कुशलं पृष्ट्वा हेतुमागमनस्य च ॥ २ ॥

Having greeted him and made inquiries regarding his welfare, Daśagrīva, the Rākṣasa, asked him the reason of his visit to the terrestrial region. (2)

नारदस्तु महातेजा देवर्षिरमितप्रभः ।
अब्रवीन्मेघपृष्ठस्थो रावणं पुष्पके स्थितम् ॥ ३ ॥

Sailing on a cloud, Nārada, the Devarṣi of immeasurable effulgence, said to Rāvaṇa who was seated in his aerial car, the Puṣpaka: (3)

राक्षसाधिपते सौम्य तिष्ठ विश्रवसः सुत ।
प्रीतोऽस्म्यभिजनोपेत विक्रमैरुजितैस्तव ॥ ४ ॥

“O suzerain lord of the Rākṣasas and son of Viśravā, O my friend, of noble descent, wait awhile; I am pleased with your noble exploits. (4)

विष्णुना दैत्यघातैश्च गन्धर्वोरगधर्षणैः ।
त्वया समं विमर्दैश्च भृशं हि परितोषितः ॥ ५ ॥

“Indeed, I stand highly gratified by Lord
Viṣṇu through encounters killing the Daityas and equally by you through conflicts overcoming the Gandharvas and Nāgas. (5)

किञ्चिद् वक्ष्यामि तावत् तु श्रोतव्यं श्रोष्यसे यदि ।
तन्मे निगदतस्तात समाधिं श्रवणे कुरु ॥ ६ ॥

“I, however, O friend, shall presently tell you something which is worth listening to, if you are willing to listen. Pray, concentrate on listening as I speak, O dear son! (6)

किमयं वध्यते तात त्वयावध्येन दैवतैः ।
हत एव ह्ययं लोको यदा मृत्युवशं गतः ॥ ७ ॥

“What for is this world of mortals being destroyed by you, who cannot be killed even by the gods, O my child? For this world stands virtually destroyed in that it is in the grip of Death. (7)

देवदानवदैत्यानां यक्षगन्धर्वराक्षसाम् ।
अवध्येन त्वया लोकः क्लेष्टुं योग्यो न मानुषः ॥ ८ ॥

“The world of humans does not deserve to be tormented by you, who cannot be killed even by the gods, the Dānavas and the Daityas, much less by the Yakṣas, the Gandharvas and the Rākṣasas. (8)

नित्यं श्रेयसि सम्पूढं महद्भिर्व्यसनैर्वृतम् ।
हन्यात् कस्तादृशं लोकं जराव्याधिशतैर्युतम् ॥ ९ ॥

“Who would destroy people who are utterly ignorant of their higher interests, are surrounded by major calamities and who are subject to old age and hundreds of diseases? (9)

तैस्तैरनिष्टोपगमैरजस्रं यत्र कुत्र कः ।
मतिमान् मानुषे लोके युद्धेन प्रणयी भवेत् ॥ १० ॥

“What wise man would love to sow destruction through warfare in the world of human beings, which is constantly afflicted with adverse contingencies here, there and everywhere? (10)

क्षीयमाणं दैवहतं क्षुत्पिपासाजरादिभिः ।
विषादशोकसम्पूढं लोकं त्वं क्षपयस्व मा ॥ ११ ॥

“Pray! do not destroy people who are being preyed upon by hunger, thirst, old age, and so on, doomed as they are by Fate, and stand bewildered by melancholy and sorrow. (11)

पश्य तावन्महाबाहो राक्षसेश्वर मानुषम् ।
मूढमेवं विचित्रार्थं यस्य न ज्ञायते गतिः ॥ १२ ॥

“O mighty-armed lord of the Rākṣasas, just look at this world of human beings, who though ignorant are yet addicted to diverse pursuits and to whom what is in store for them is not known. (12)

क्वचिद् वादित्रनृत्यादि सेव्यते मुदितैर्जनैः ।
रुद्यते चापरैरार्तैर्धाराश्रुनयनाननैः ॥ १३ ॥

“At places instrumental music and dance etc., is enjoyed by men full of delight, while others in distress are crying with tears streaming from their eyes and along their faces. (13)

मातापितृसुतस्त्रेहभार्याबन्धुमनोरमैः ।
मोहितोऽयं जनो ध्वस्तः क्लेशं स्वं नावबुध्यते ॥ १४ ॥

“Deluded by fondness for their mother, father and son, and airy projects relating to their wife and other relatives, and fallen from virtue, man does not foresee his own suffering. (14)

तत्किमेवं परिक्लिश्य लोकं मोहनिराकृतम् ।
जित एव त्वया सौम्य मर्त्यलोको न संशयः ॥ १५ ॥

“Therefore, what will you gain by harassing as you do this world of mortals which is already undone by delusion? O friend, the world of mortals stands already conquered by you; there is no doubt about it. (15)

अवश्यमेभिः सर्वैश्च गन्तव्यं यमसादनम् ।
तन्निगृह्णीष्व पौलस्त्य यमं परपुरंजय ॥ १६ ॥

“All these beings need must seek the abode of Yama; therefore, O scion of Pulastya, subdue Yama, O conqueror of hostile cities! (16)

तस्मिञ्जिते जितं सर्वं भवत्येव न संशयः ।
एवमुक्तस्तु लङ्केशो दीप्यमानं स्वतेजसा ॥ १७ ॥
अब्रवीन्नारदं तत्र सम्प्रहस्याभिवाद्य च ।
महर्षे देवगन्धर्वविहार समरप्रिय ॥ १८ ॥
अहं समुद्यतो गन्तुं विजयार्थं रसातलम् ।
ततो लोकत्रयं जित्वा स्थाप्य नागान् सुरान् वशे ॥ १९ ॥

समुद्रममृतार्थं च मथिष्यामि रसालयम् ।
अथाब्रवीद् दशग्रीवं नारदो भगवानृषिः ॥ २० ॥
क्व खल्विदानीं मार्गेण त्वयेहान्येन गम्यते ।
अयं खलु सुदुर्गम्यः प्रेतराजपुरं प्रति ॥ २१ ॥
मार्गो गच्छति दुर्धर्षं यमस्यामित्रकर्शन ।
स तु शारदमेघाभं हासं मुक्त्वा दशाननः ॥ २२ ॥
उवाच कृतमित्येव वचनं चेदमब्रवीत् ।
तस्मादेवमहं ब्रह्मन् वैवस्वतवधोद्यतः ॥ २२ ॥
गच्छामि दक्षिणामाशां यत्र सूर्यात्मजो नृपः ।

मया हि भगवन् क्रोधात् प्रतिज्ञातं रणार्थिना ॥ २४ ॥
अवजेष्यामि चतुरो लोकपालानिति प्रभो ।
तदिह प्रस्थितोऽहं वै पितृराजपुरं प्रति ॥ २५ ॥
प्राणिसंकलेशकर्तारं योजयिष्यामि मृत्युना ।
एवमुक्त्वा दशग्रीवो मुनिं तमभिवाद्य च ॥ २६ ॥
प्रययौ दक्षिणामाशां प्रविष्टः सह मन्त्रिभिः ।
नारदस्तु महातेजा मुहूर्तं ध्यानमास्थितः ॥ २७ ॥
चिन्तयामास विप्रेन्द्रो विधूम इव पावकः ।
येन लोकास्त्रयः सेन्द्राः क्लिश्यन्ते सचराचराः ॥ २८ ॥
क्षीणे चायुषि धर्मेण स कालो जेष्यते कथम् ।
स्वदत्तकृतसाक्षी यो द्वितीय इव पावकः ॥ २९ ॥
लब्धसंज्ञा विचेष्टन्ते लोका यस्य महात्मनः ।
यस्य नित्यं त्रयो लोका विद्रवन्ति भयार्दिताः ॥ ३० ॥

तं कथं राक्षसेन्द्रोऽसौ स्वयमेव गमिष्यति ।
 यो विधाता च धाता च सुकृतं दुष्कृतं तथा ॥ ३१ ॥
 त्रैलोक्यं विजितं येन तं कथं विजयिष्यते ।
 अपरं किं तु कृत्वैवं विधानं संविधास्यति ॥ ३२ ॥

“When he is conquered, all stands automatically conquered : there is no doubt about it.” Heartily laughing and greeting Nārada, who was flaming with effulgence, when spoken to in these words, the king of Laṅkā for his part, replied to him as follows: “O great Ṛṣi, who find delight in the company of the gods and the Gandharvas, who are fond of witnessing a conflict, I am fully prepared to proceed to the nether world known as Rasātala with a view to conquering it. Then after conquering all the three worlds and placing the Nāgas and the gods under my yoke, I will churn up the ocean, which is the seat of nectar, for nectar.” The revered Sage Nārada then said to Daśagrīva: “Where, then, are you proceeding to along a different path? Indeed, this path which is extremely difficult to tread, leads to the city of Yama (the king of the departed), O scourge of your foes, who are so difficult to assail.” Uttering a laugh resembling the rumbling of an autumnal cloud, the notorious Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) said: “It is as good as accomplished!” and added the following: “Resolved to make short work of Yama (son of the sun-god), O Brāhmaṇa, I accordingly proceed to the southern quarter, where its ruler, the son of the sun-god resides. Thirsting for an encounter, O Revered Sir, I have actually taken a vow in rage that I shall conquer the four guardians of the world, my lord ! Having now actually set out on my journey to the city of Yama (the king of the departed), I shall accordingly put an end to the torment of living beings.”

Having spoken as above, and greeted the aforesaid sage, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) departed and entered the southern quarter, accompanied by his ministers. Plunged in meditation for a while, Nārada, the foremost of Brāhmaṇas, who was clothed with great effulgence like a smokeless fire, for his part reflected as follows: “How will Death (the Time-Spirit), by whom all the three worlds including the mobile and immobile creation as well as Indra (their ruler) are afflicted in accordance with righteousness when their life has come to an end, be conquered (by Rāvaṇa)? How will that ruler of the ogres approach of his own accord that exalted soul who is like a second fire in brilliance, who is aware of the gifts as well as of the doings of all creatures, through whose energy all created beings derive their consciousness and varied activity and before whom all the three worlds ever recoil fear-stricken? How will Rāvaṇa subjugate him who is the sustainer of the universe and the dispenser of the fruit of their good and evil deeds and by whom all the three worlds stand subjugated? Again, after adopting such a course of conduct (viz., subjugating Yama), what other order will he establish? (17—32).

कौतूहलं समुत्पन्नो यास्यामि यमसादनम् ।
 विमर्दं द्रष्टुमनयोऽयमराक्षसयोः स्वयम् ॥ ३३ ॥

“Curiosity having been aroused in me, I shall personally seek the abode of Yama (the god of retribution) in order to witness the encounter of these two heroes, Yama and the ogre, Rāvaṇa.” (33)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे विंशः सर्गः ॥ २० ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXI

Rāvaṇa invades the domain of Yama and destroys the forces of Yama

एवं संचिन्त्य विप्रेन्द्रो जगाम लघुविक्रमः ।
आख्यातुं तद् यथावृत्तं यमस्य सदनं प्रति ॥ १ ॥

Having contemplated thus, Nārada (the foremost of Brāhmaṇas), swift of pace, proceeded towards the domain of Yama in order to relate the story as it came to be. (1)

अपश्यत् स यमं तत्र देवमग्निपुरस्कृतम् ।
विधानमनुतिष्ठन्तं प्राणिनो यस्य यादृशम् ॥ २ ॥

There he saw god Yama, with the (all-witnessing) fire placed before him and dealing out justice to every living being according to the nature of its doing. (2)

स तु दृष्ट्वा यमः प्राप्तं महर्षिं तत्र नारदम् ।
अब्रवीत् सुखमासीनमर्घ्यमावेद्य धर्मतः ॥ ३ ॥

Offering water to wash his hands with according to the rules of conduct on seeing the eminent Sage Nārada arrived there, Yama for his part said to him when he was seated comfortably: (3)

कच्चित् क्षेमं नु देवर्षे कच्चिद् धर्मो न नश्यति ।
किमागमनकृत्यं ते देवगन्धर्वसेवित ॥ ४ ॥

“O celestial sage, waited upon by gods and Gandharvas, I hope all is well (with you). I hope righteousness is not wanting. What may be the object of your visit?” (4)

अब्रवीत् तु तदा वाक्यं नारदो भगवानृषिः ।
श्रूयतामभिधास्यामि विधानं च विधीयताम् ॥ ५ ॥

The revered Sage Nārada for his part then replied as follows: “Listen, I shall presently tell you the object of my visit. And let the necessary remedial measures be taken. (5)

एष नाम्ना दशग्रीवः पितृराज निशाचरः ।
उपयाति वशं नेतुं विक्रमैस्त्वां सुदुर्जयम् ॥ ६ ॥

“O King of the Manes, the ranger of the night, Daśagrīva by name, is presently coming here to subdue you, even though you are hard to vanquish, by his exploits. (6)

एतेन कारणेनाहं त्वरितो ह्यागतः प्रभो ।
दण्डप्रहरणस्याद्य तव किं नु भविष्यति ॥ ७ ॥

“For this very reason I have come here with all speed, my lord ! I wonder what is going to happen to you now, who hold the rod of punishment for your weapon.” (7)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे दूरादंशुमन्तमिवोदितम् ।
ददृशुर्दीप्तमायान्तं विमानं तस्य रक्षसः ॥ ८ ॥

In the meantime they saw from a distance the aerial car of that ogre, bright like the rising sun, approaching. (8)

तं देशं प्रभया तस्य पुष्पकस्य महाबलः ।
कृत्वा वितिमिरं सर्वं समीपमभ्यवर्तत ॥ ९ ॥

Dispelling the darkness of that entire region by the brilliance of the aforesaid Puṣpaka, that very mighty ogre (Rāvaṇa) arrived near. (9)

सोऽपश्यत् स महाबाहुर्दशग्रीवस्ततस्ततः ।
प्राणिनः सुकृतं चैव भुञ्जानांश्चैव दुष्कृतम् ॥ १० ॥

That mighty-armed ogre, Daśagrīva, saw everywhere living beings reaping the fruit of their good as well as of their evil deeds. (10)

अपश्यत् सैनिकांश्चास्य यमस्यानुचरैः सह ।
यमस्य पुरुषैरुग्रैर्घोररूपैर्भयानकैः ॥ ११ ॥

ददर्श वध्यमानांश्च क्लिश्यमानांश्च देहिनः ।
क्रोशतश्च महानादं तीव्रनिष्टनतत्परान् ॥ १२ ॥

He also saw the soldiers of Yama alongwith his attendants. He also perceived embodied souls being struck and tortured by Yama's violent and fierce servants of hideous aspect, and screaming with a bellowing sound and emitting shrill cries. (11-12)

कृमिभिर्भक्ष्यमाणांश्च सारमेयैश्च दारुणैः ।
 श्रोत्रायासकरा वाचो वदतश्च भयावहाः ॥ १३ ॥
 संतार्यमाणान् वैतरणीं बहुशः शोणितोदकाम् ।
 वालुकासु च तप्तासु तप्यमानान् मुहुर्मुहुः ॥ १४ ॥
 असिपत्रवने चैव भिद्यमानानधार्मिकान् ।
 रौरवे क्षारनद्यां च क्षुरधारासु चैव हि ॥ १५ ॥
 पानीयं याचमानांश्च तृषितान् क्षुधितानपि ।
 शवभूतान् कृशान् दीनान् विवर्णान् मुक्तमूर्धजान् ॥ १६ ॥
 मलपङ्कधरान् दीनान् रुक्षांश्च परिधावतः ।
 ददर्श रावणो मार्गे शतशोऽथ सहस्रशः ॥ १७ ॥

On the way Rāvaṇa saw in hundreds and thousands people being eaten up by worms and fierce dogs and uttering words painful to the ear and causing fright, others being made to cross many times the Vaitaraṇī, the river which flowed with blood, still others suffering pain while being made to tread again and again on burning sands; many more unrighteous souls being split in a grove with sword-like sharp leaves; others being immersed in streams of brackish waters and made to tread on razor blades; others seized with thirst and hunger and begging for water; others no better than corpses, emaciated, wretched and pale, their hair in disarray, bearing dirt and mud on their bodies, helpless and running hither and thither unanointed. (13—17)

कांश्चिच्च गृहमुख्येषु गीतवादित्रनिःस्वनैः ।
 प्रमोदमानानद्राक्षीद् रावणः सुकृतैः स्वकैः ॥ १८ ॥

Rāvaṇa, also saw some people feeling delighted in the best of houses with the sound of vocal and instrumental music by virtue of their own meritorious deeds. (18)

गोरसं गोप्रदातारो ह्यन्नं चैवान्नदायिनः ।
 गृहांश्च गृहदातारः स्वकर्मफलमश्नतः ॥ १९ ॥
 सुवर्णमणिमुक्ताभिः प्रमदाभिरलंकृतान् ।
 धार्मिकानपरांस्तत्र दीप्यमानान् स्वतेजसा ॥ २० ॥
 ददर्श स महाबाहू रावणो राक्षसाधिपः ।
 ततस्तान् भिद्यमानांश्च कर्मभिर्दुष्कृतैः स्वकैः ॥ २१ ॥
 रावणो मोचयामास विक्रमेण बलाद् बली ।
 प्राणिनो मोक्षितास्तेन दशग्रीवेण रक्षसा ॥ २२ ॥

सुखमापुर्मुहूर्तं ते ह्यतर्कितमचिन्तितम् ।
 प्रेतेषु मुच्यमानेषु राक्षसेन महीयसा ॥ २३ ॥
 प्रेतगोपाः सुसंकुब्धा राक्षसेन्द्रमभिद्रवन् ।
 ततो हलहलाशब्दः सर्वदिग्भ्यः समुत्थितः ॥ २४ ॥
 धर्मराजस्य योधानां शूराणां सम्प्रधावताम् ।
 ते प्रासैः परिधैः शूलैर्मुसलैः शक्तितोमरैः ॥ २५ ॥
 पुष्पकं समधर्षन्त शूराः शतसहस्रशः ।
 तस्यासनानि प्रासादान् वेदिकास्तोरणानि च ॥ २६ ॥
 पुष्पकस्य बभञ्जुस्ते शीघ्रं मधुकरा इव ।
 देवनिष्ठानभूतं तद् विमानं पुष्पकं मृधे ॥ २७ ॥
 भज्यमानं तथैवासीदक्षयं ब्रह्मतेजसा ।
 असंख्या सुमहत्यासीत् तस्य सेना महात्मनः ॥ २८ ॥
 शूराणामग्रयातृणां सहस्राणि शतानि च ।
 ततो वृक्षैश्च शैलैश्च प्रासादानां शतैस्तथा ॥ २९ ॥
 ततस्ते सचिवास्तस्य यथाकामं यथाबलम् ।
 अयुध्यन्त महावीराः स च राजा दशाननः ॥ ३० ॥

Rāvaṇa, the mighty-armed suzerain lord of the Rākṣasas, saw those, who had gifted cows, drinking milk; others who had gifted food eating food; and still others who had gifted houses residing in houses as the reward of their meritorious doings, and other pious souls decked with gold, gems and pearls and shining in their own lustre in the company of youthful women. By dint of his prowess the mighty Rāvaṇa forcibly liberated those who were being tortured because of their own sinful deeds. The aforesaid living beings liberated by the said ogre, Daśagrīva, enjoyed for a while happiness which was altogether unexpected and unthought of. While the departed were being liberated in this way by the exceptionally mighty Rāvaṇa, the guardians of the dead rushed at the king of the Rākṣasas highly enraged. A great clamour then distinctly arose from all sides among the valiant soldiers of Yama (the king who deals out justice), who ran with all speed (to check the disorder). The said heroes duly assailed the Puṣpaka in hundreds and thousands with spears, iron bars, pikes, pestles, javelins and iron clubs. Like black bees they rapidly demolished the seats, the mansions, the daides and the portals of the Puṣpaka. Though being demolished in combat, that aerial car, the Puṣpaka, which was the seat of gods remained intact by the power of Brahmā, imperishable as it was. The army of that high-souled god was a very huge one; it was past counting; of the heroes who formed the advance guard there were hundreds and thousands. Thereupon the aforesaid ministers of Rāvaṇa, who were all great heroes, as well as the notorious King Rāvaṇa, fought each according to his will and strength with trees and mountains as well as with hundreds of house-tops. (19—30)

ते तु शोणितदिग्धाङ्गाः सर्वशस्त्रसमाहताः ।

अमात्या राक्षसेन्द्रस्य चक्रुरायोधनं महत् ॥ ३१ ॥

Though all their limbs were smeared with blood, and lacerated by all kinds of weapons, the ministers of Rāvaṇa put forth a major conflict. (31)

अन्योन्यं ते महाभागा जघ्नुः प्रहरणैर्भृशम् ।

यमस्य च महाबाहो रावणस्य च मन्त्रिणः ॥ ३२ ॥

Those glorious ministers of Yama as well as those of Rāvaṇa, O mighty-armed one, struck each of the other party violently with weapons. (32)

अमात्यांस्तांस्तु संत्यज्य यमयोधा महाबलाः ।

तमेव चाभ्यधावन्त शूलवर्षैर्दशाननम् ॥ ३३ ॥

Leaving alone the said ministers, the exceptionally mighty soldiers of Yama for their part attacked the notorious Rāvaṇa himself with a shower of arrows. (33)

ततः शोणितदिग्धाङ्गाः प्रहारैर्जर्जरीकृतः ।

फुल्लाशोक इवाभाति पुष्पके राक्षसाधिपः ॥ ३४ ॥

Shattered by the adversaries' blows and his limbs smeared with blood, the suzerain lord of the Rākṣasas in the Puṣpaka thereupon looked like an Aśoka tree in flower. (34)

स तु शूलगदाप्रासाञ्छक्तितोमरसायकान् ।

मुसलानि शिलावृक्षान् मुमोचास्त्रबलाद् बली ॥ ३५ ॥

That mighty warrior for his part hurled pikes, clubs and spears, javelins, iron clubs and arrows, pestles, rocks and trees by dint of his knowledge of mystic missiles. (35)

तरूणां च शिलानां च शस्त्राणां चातिदारुणम् ।

यमसैन्येषु तद् वर्ष पपात धरणीतले ॥ ३६ ॥

That most formidable shower of trees and rocks and weapons too fell on the troops of Yama standing on the ground. (36)

तांस्तु सर्वान् विनिर्भिद्य तदस्त्रमपहत्य च ।

जघ्नुस्ते राक्षसं घोरमेकं शतसहस्रशः ॥ ३७ ॥

Having destroyed all those weapons and repelled the mystic missile itself, they (the soldiers of Yama) struck that redoubtable single warrior, Rāvaṇa, in their hundreds of thousands. (37)

परिवार्य च तं सर्वे शैलं मेघोत्करा इव ।

भिन्दिपालैश्च शूलैश्च निरुद्धवासमपोथयन् ॥ ३८ ॥

Surrounding him even as masses of clouds would encircle a hill, they assailed him with Bhindipālas and darts so as to suffocate him. (38)

विमुक्तकवचः क्रुद्धः सिक्तः शोणितविस्त्रवैः ।

ततः स पुष्पकं त्यक्त्वा पृथिव्यामवतिष्ठत ॥ ३९ ॥

His armour having been severed, nay, bathed in streams of blood and, leaving the Puṣpaka, Rāvaṇa, who was provoked to anger, stood on the ground. (39)

ततः स कार्मुकी बाणी समरे चाभिवर्धत ।

लब्धसंज्ञो मुहूर्तेन क्रुद्धस्तस्थौ यथान्तकः ॥ ४० ॥

Regaining his consciousness in a short while, and furnished with his bow and arrows, he thereupon rose in spirit on the battlefield and stood enraged like Death. (40)

ततः पाशुपतं दिव्यमस्त्रं संधाय कार्मुके ।

तिष्ठ तिष्ठेति तानुक्त्वा तच्चापं व्यपकर्षत ॥ ४१ ॥

Then fitting the divine missile presided over by Lord Śiva to his bow, and saying: "Wait, wait!", he stretched the bow-string. (41)

आकर्णात् स विकृष्याथ चापमिन्द्रारिराहवे ।

मुमोच तं शरं क्रुद्धस्त्रिपुरे शंकरो यथा ॥ ४२ ॥

Stretching the bow-string up to his ear, that enemy of Indra forthwith shot the said
arrow in rage even as Śaṅkara did at Tripura.
(42)

तस्य रूपं शरस्यासीत् सधूमज्वालमण्डलम्।
वनं दहिष्यतो घर्मे दावाग्रेरिव मूर्च्छतः ॥ ४३ ॥

With its circle of smoke and flames the said arrow looked like a sylvan fire growing in summer in order to consume a wood.
(43)

ज्वालामाली स तु शरः क्रव्यादानुगतो रणे।
मुक्तो गुल्मान् दुर्मांश्चापि भस्म कृत्वा प्रधावति ॥ ४४ ॥

Having reduced bushes as well as trees to ashes, when discharged, that arrow for its part with its crown of flames coursed through the field of battle followed by carnivorous animals. (44)

ते तस्य तेजसा दग्धाः सैन्या वैवस्वतस्य तु।
रणे तस्मिन् निपतिता माहेन्द्रा इव केतवः ॥ ४५ ॥

Consumed by the blaze of that shaft, the troops of Yama (son of the sun-god) for their part fell on the battlefield like the standards of the mighty Indra. (45)

ततस्तु सचिवैः सार्धं राक्षसो भीमविक्रमः।
ननाद सुमहानादं कम्पयन्निव मेदिनीम् ॥ ४६ ॥

Thereupon the ogre of terrible prowess for his part with his ministers uttered a great roar convulsing the earth, as it were. (46)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकविंशः सर्गः ॥ २१ ॥

*Thus ends Canto Twenty-one in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki,
the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.*

द्वाविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXII

Duel between Yama and Rāvaṇa; Yama holds back, at the intervention of Brahmā, his rod of destruction which was raised to make short work of Rāvaṇa; the triumphant Rāvaṇa leaves the domain of Yama

स तस्य तु महानादं श्रुत्वा वैवस्वतः प्रभुः।
शत्रुं विजयिनं मेने स्वबलस्य च संक्षयम् ॥ १ ॥

Hearing that great roar of Rāvaṇa, Lord Yama (son of the sun-god) for his part concluded the enemy to have got the upper hand and that his own forces having perished.
(1)

स हि योधान् हतान् मत्वा क्रोधसंरक्तलोचनः।
अब्रवीत् त्वरितः सूतं रथो मे उपनीयताम् ॥ २ ॥

Assuming that his own soldiers had been killed, his eyes blood-red with anger, Yama hastily said to his charioteer, 'Let my chariot be brought.'
(2)

तस्य सूतस्तदा दिव्यमुपस्थाप्य महारथम्।
स्थितः स च महातेजा अध्यारोहत तं रथम् ॥ ३ ॥

Having brought his huge celestial car, the charioteer stood before him and that god of exceeding energy, ascended the said chariot. (3)

प्रासमुद्गरहस्तश्च मृत्युस्तस्याग्रतः स्थितः।
येन संक्षिप्यते सर्वं त्रैलोक्यमिदमव्ययम् ॥ ४ ॥

Nay, with a lance and mallet in his hand, the god of death by whom all these three worlds, which are imperishable (in the sense that they spring up and disappear in regular succession) are destroyed, stood in front of him (Yama). (4)

कालदण्डस्तु पार्श्वस्थो मूर्तिमानस्य चाभवत्।
यमप्रहरणं दिव्यं तेजसा ज्वलदग्निवत् ॥ ५ ॥

Kāladanḍa, the rod of universal destruction, the celestial weapon of Yama, stood at his side in a personal form, blazing with effulgence like a fire. (5)

तस्य पाश्वर्षेषु निश्छिद्राः कालपाशाः प्रतिष्ठिताः ।

पावकस्पर्शसंकाशः स्थितो मूर्तश्च मुद्गरः ॥ ६ ॥

On all his (four) sides were installed the nooses of Death which had no rents or holes and there also stood in a personal form a mallet whose impact was like that of fire. (6)

ततो लोकत्रयं क्षुब्धमकम्पन्त दिवौकसः ।

कालं दृष्ट्वा तथा क्रुद्धं सर्वलोकभयावहम् ॥ ७ ॥

Beholding the Time-Spirit, the terror of all the three worlds, thus provoked to anger, all the three worlds thereupon felt agitated and the denizens of heaven began to tremble. (7)

ततस्त्वचोदयत् सूतस्तानश्वान् रुचिरप्रभान् ।

प्रययौ भीमसंनादो यत्र रक्षःपतिः स्थितः ॥ ८ ॥

Then the charioteer urged on those steeds which were possessed of a bright lustre, and the chariot advanced with a terrible noise to the spot where the king of ogres stood. (8)

मुहूर्तेन यमं ते तु हया हरिहयोपमाः ।

प्रापयन् मनसस्तुल्या यत्र तत् प्रस्तुतं रणम् ॥ ९ ॥

In an instant those horses, which resembled those of Indra and were quick as thought, brought, Yama to the spot where the battle was already going on. (9)

दृष्ट्वा तथैव विकृतं रथं मृत्युसमन्वितम् ।

सचिवा राक्षसेन्द्रस्य सहसा विप्रदुद्रुवुः ॥ १० ॥

Beholding the said chariot, which was occupied by the god of death and was equally hideous, the ministers of Rāvaṇa (the king of ogres) at once took to their heels. (10)

लघुसत्त्वतया ते हि नष्टसंज्ञा भयार्दिताः ।

नेह योद्धुं समर्थाः स्म इत्युक्त्वा प्रययुर्दिशः ॥ ११ ॥

Having lost their consciousness, stricken as they were with fear, because of their meagre strength, they actually fled in different directions, unable to fight at this juncture. (11)

स तु तं तादृशं दृष्ट्वा रथं लोकभयावहम् ।

नाक्षुभ्यत दशग्रीवो न चापि भयमाविशत् ॥ १२ ॥

Even on seeing such a chariot, which was causing fright to the world, that ten-headed monster, Rāvaṇa, however, did not feel agitated nor did fear enter his mind. (12)

स तु रावणमासाद्य व्यसृजच्छक्तितोमरान् ।

यमो मर्माणि संक्रुद्धो रावणस्य न्यकृन्तत ॥ १३ ॥

Approaching Rāvaṇa, full of rage, Yama for his part hurled javelins and iron clubs and pierced his vulnerable parts. (13)

रावणस्तु ततः स्वस्थः शरवर्षं मुमोच ह ।

तस्मिन् वैवस्वतरथे तोयवर्षमिवाम्बुदः ॥ १४ ॥

Rāvaṇa, however, who was self-poised, they say, let fly a hail of arrows on that chariot of Yama (son of the sun-god) as a cloud would pour a shower. (14)

ततो महाशक्तिशतैः पात्यमानैर्महोरसि ।

नाशक्रोत् प्रतिकर्तुं स राक्षसः शल्यपीडितः ॥ १५ ॥

The said ogre, who felt afflicted by the darts while hundreds of huge javelins were being hurled on his mighty breast, was thereupon unable to hit back. (15)

एवं नानाप्रहरणैर्यमेनामित्रकर्षिणा ।

सप्तरात्रं कृतः संख्ये विसंज्ञो विमुखो रिपुः ॥ १६ ॥

In this way, in the course of a conflict which raged for seven nights continuously the enemy was rendered unconscious and averse to fighting by Yama, the scourge of his foes, who fought with various weapons. (16)

तदाऽऽसीत् तुमुलं युद्धं यमराक्षसयोर्द्वयोः ।

जयमाकांक्षतोर्वीर समरेष्वनिवर्तिनोः ॥ १७ ॥

Then ensued, O hero, a tumultuous duel between the two warriors, Yama and the ogre (Rāvaṇa), both seeking victory and both not retreating in combat. (17)

ततो देवाः सगन्धर्वाः सिद्धाश्च परमर्षयः ।

प्रजापतिं पुरस्कृत्य समेतास्तद्राजाजिरे ॥ १८ ॥

Thereupon gods, accompanied by Gandharvas, Siddhas and the highest Ṛṣis, assembled on that battlefield, placing Prajāpati, the creator, at their head. (18)

संवर्त इव लोकानां युध्यतोरभवत् तदा ।

राक्षसानां च मुख्यस्य प्रेतानामीश्वरस्य च ॥ १९ ॥

While Rāvaṇa (the foremost of the Rākṣasas) and Yama (the lord of the departed) were contending with each other on that occasion, the dissolution of the world appeared imminent. (19)

राक्षसेन्द्रोऽपि विस्फार्य चापमिन्द्राशनिप्रभम् ।

निरन्तरमिवाकाशं कुर्वन् बाणांस्ततोऽसृजत् ॥ २० ॥

Stretching his bow, which shone like the thunderbolt of Indra, Rāvaṇa (the ruler of ogres) thereupon discharged arrows, filling the entire space, as it were. (20)

मृत्युं चतुर्भिर्विशिखैः सूतं सप्तभिरार्दयत् ।

यमं शतसहस्रेण शीघ्रं मर्मस्वताडयत् ॥ २१ ॥

He struck the god of Death with four arrows and the charioteer with seven; with a hundred thousand arrows he swiftly pierced Yama in his vital parts. (21)

ततः क्रुद्धस्य वदनाद् यमस्य समजायत ।

ज्वालामाली सनिश्वासः सधूमः कोपपावकः ॥ २२ ॥

Then arose from the mouth of the angered Yama, the fire of anger with a crown of flames, accompanied by breath and smoke. (22)

तदाश्चर्यमथो दृष्ट्वा देवदानवसंनिधौ ।

प्रहर्षितौ सुसंरब्धौ मृत्युकालौ बभूवतुः ॥ २३ ॥

Beholding that marvel in the presence of the gods and the demons, the god of death and Kāla (the Time-Spirit), who were highly enraged were filled with great enthusiasm for the contest. (23)

ततो मृत्युः क्रुद्धतरो वैवस्वतमभाषत ।

मुञ्च मां समरे यावद्धन्मीमं पापराक्षसम् ॥ २४ ॥

Feeling greatly angered, the god of death said to Vaivaswata Yama (son of the sun-god): "Leave me alone on the field of battle till I make short work of this sinful ogre. (24)

नैषा रक्षो भवेदद्य मर्यादा हि निसर्गतः ।

हिरण्यकशिपुः श्रीमान् नमुचिः शम्बरस्तथा ॥ २५ ॥

निसन्दिधूमकेतुश्च बलिवैरोचनोऽपि च ।

शम्भुर्दैत्यो महाराजो वृत्रो बाणस्तथैव च ॥ २६ ॥

राजर्षयः शास्त्रविदो गन्धर्वाः समहोरगाः ।

ऋषयः पन्नगा दैत्या यक्षाश्च ह्यप्सरोगणाः ॥ २७ ॥

युगान्तपरिवर्ते च पृथिवी समहार्णवा ।

क्षयं नीता महाराज सपर्वतसरिद्रुमा ॥ २८ ॥

"The ogre would not survive today (on closing with me); such is the natural law. The glorious Hiraṇyakaśipu, Namuci and Śambara, Nisandi and Dhūmaketu as well as Bali, son of Virocana, the giant Śambhu, the great king Vṛtra as well as Vāṇa, royal sages versed in the scriptures, Gandharvas and mighty Nāgas, seers of Vedic Mantras, serpents, (other) giants, Yakṣas as well as hosts of celestial nymphs, nay, (even) this earth including the ocean, mountains, rivers and trees was brought to an end by me, O great king, at the end of the world-cycle. (25—28)

एते चान्ये च बहवो बलवन्तो दुरासदाः ।

विनिपन्ना मया दृष्टाः किमुतायं निशाचरः ॥ २९ ॥

"These above named as well as numerous other mighty warriors, who were difficult to approach were utterly destroyed as soon as seen by me, to say nothing of this ranger of the night. (29)

मुञ्च मां साधु धर्मज्ञ यावदेनं निहन्यहम् ।

नहि कश्चिन्मया दृष्टो बलवानपि जीवति ॥ ३० ॥

"Leave me perfectly alone, O knower of what is right, till I make short work of this fellow. None who is seen by me, however mighty he may be, can survive. (30)

बलं मम न खल्वेतन्मर्यादैषा निसर्गतः ।

स दृष्टो न मया काल मुहूर्तमपि जीवति ॥ ३१ ॥

“Seen by me, O Time-Spirit, this fellow will not survive even for a short while. This indeed is no power of mine; such, however, is the natural law.” (31)

तस्यैवं वचनं श्रुत्वा धर्मराजः प्रतापवान्।
अब्रवीत् तत्र तं मृत्युं त्वं तिष्ठैनं निहन्यहम्॥ ३२॥

Hearing this utterance of Death, the glorious Yama (the Lord of Justice), on that occasion said to the celebrated god of death, “You stand alone, I will kill this fellow.” (32)

ततः संरक्तनयनः क्रुद्धो वैवस्वतः प्रभुः।
कालदण्डममोघं तु तोलयामास पाणिना॥ ३३॥
यस्य पाशवेषु निहिताः कालपाशाः प्रतिष्ठिताः।
पावकाशनिसंकाशो मुद्गरो मूर्तिमान् स्थितः॥ ३४॥
दर्शनादेव यः प्राणान् प्राणिनामपि कर्षति।
किं पुनः स्पृशमानस्य पात्यमानस्य वा पुनः॥ ३५॥

Thereupon Lord Yama (son of the sun-god) for his part, his eyes blood-red with anger, lifted with his hand his unfailing rod of punishment, on the four sides of which were installed the snares of destruction and there also stood in a personal form a mallet brilliant as a fire and the thunderbolt, and which extracts the life out of living beings by its very sight, much more of the one who is touched or dashed down by it. (33—35)

स ज्वालापरिवारस्तु निर्दहन्निव राक्षसम्।
तेन स्पृष्टो बलवता महाप्रहरणोऽस्फुरत्॥ ३६॥

Touched by that mighty god, Yama, that great weapon for its part with its circle of flames shone as if it were going to consume the ogre. (36)

ततो विदुद्गुः सर्वे तस्मात् त्रस्ता रणाजिरे।
सुराश्च क्षुब्धिताः सर्वे दृष्ट्वा दण्डोद्यतं यमम्॥ ३७॥

Afraid of him, all the ogres on the battlefield fled from that place. Seeing Yama with his rod of punishment uplifted, all the gods too felt disturbed through fear. (37)

तस्मिन् प्रहर्तुकामे तु यमे दण्डेन रावणम्।
यमं पितामहः साक्षाद् दर्शयित्वेदमब्रवीत्॥ ३८॥

Manifesting himself personally when

Yama for his part was inclined to smite Rāvaṇa with his rod, Brahmā (the grandfather of the entire creation) spoke to him as follows: (38)

वैवस्वत महाबाहो न खल्वमितविक्रम।
न हन्तव्यस्त्वयैतेन दण्डेनैष निशाचरः॥ ३९॥

“O mighty-armed son of the sun-god, O god with immeasurable prowess, surely this ranger of the night is not to be killed by you with this rod. (39)

वरः खलु मयैतस्मै दत्तस्त्रिदशपुङ्गव।
स त्वया नानृतः कार्यो यन्मया व्याहृतं वचः॥ ४०॥

“Indeed, a boon has been conferred on this ogre by me, O bull among the gods! That boon, the pledge which has been given by me, ought not to be rendered void. (40)

यो हि मामनृतं कुर्याद् देवो वा मानुषोऽपि वा।
त्रैलोक्यमनृतं तेन कृतं स्यान्नात्र संशयः॥ ४१॥

“By him, be he a man or a god, who proved me to be a liar, all the three worlds indeed would be accused of lying; there is no doubt about it. (41)

क्रुद्धेन विप्रमुक्तोऽयं निर्विशेषं प्रियाप्रिये।
प्रजाः संहरते रौद्रो लोकत्रयभयावहः॥ ४२॥

If discharged by you in anger, this terrible weapon, which is the terror of all the three worlds will destroy all created beings, regardless of those who are dear to you or otherwise. (42)

अमोघो ह्येष सर्वेषां प्राणिनाममितप्रभः।
कालदण्डो मया सृष्टः पूर्वं मृत्युपुरस्कृतः॥ ४३॥

“Indeed, this rod of destruction of immeasurable splendour, which is unfailing in relation to all beings, and is attended with death, was created by me of yore. (43)

तन्न खल्वेष ते सौम्य पात्यो रावणमूर्धनि।
नहस्मिन् पतिते कश्चिन्मुहूर्तमपि जीवति॥ ४४॥

“Therefore, O gentle one, this rod must not be hurled on Rāvaṇa’s head by you; for, in the event of its falling, none will survive even for a little while. (44)

यदि ह्यस्मिन् निपतिते न प्रियेतैष राक्षसः ।

प्रियते वा दशग्रीवस्तदाप्युभयतोऽनृतम् ॥ ४५ ॥

“In both cases—even if this ten-headed ogre dies or fails to die in the event of this rod falling on him, falsity of my boons will be the result. (45)

तन्निवर्तय लङ्केशाद् दण्डमेतं समुद्यतम् ।

सत्यं च मां कुरुष्वद्य लोकांस्त्वं यद्यवेक्षसे ॥ ४६ ॥

“Hence turn aside this uplifted rod from the king of Laṅkā, and thereby vindicate my truthfulness today if you have regard for the worlds.” (46)

एवमुक्तस्तु धर्मात्मा प्रत्युवाच यमस्तदा ।

एष व्यावर्तितो दण्डः प्रभविष्णुर्हि नो भवान् ॥ ४७ ॥

Spoken to in these words, the pious-minded Yama for his part then said in reply: “The rod stands diverted hereby, since you are our master. (47)

किं त्विदानीं मया शक्यं कर्तुं रणगतेन हि ।

न मया यद्ययं शक्यो हन्तुं वरपुरस्कृतः ॥ ४८ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे द्वाविंशः सर्गः ॥ २२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-two in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रयोविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXIII

Rāvaṇa makes friends with the Nivātakavacas, kills the Kālakeyas and vanquishes the sons of Varuṇa

ततो जित्वा दशग्रीवो यमं त्रिदशपुङ्गवम् ।

रावणस्तु रणश्लाघी स्वसहायान् ददर्श ह ॥ १ ॥

Having conquered Yama, the foremost of gods, Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, for his part who boasted of his fighting, then saw his associates in war : so the tradition goes. (1)

ततो रुधिरसिक्ताङ्गं प्रहारैर्जर्जरीकृतम् ।

रावणं राक्षसा दृष्ट्वा विस्मयं समुपागमन् ॥ २ ॥

“If this fellow who stands protected by your boon cannot be killed by me, what can be accomplished by me now by continuing on the field of battle ! (48)

एष तस्मात् प्रणश्यामि दर्शनादस्य रक्षसः ।

इत्युक्त्वा सरथः साश्वस्तत्रैवान्तरधीयत ॥ ४९ ॥

“I, therefore, hereby disappear from the view of this ogre.” Saying so he disappeared then and there—chariot, horses and all. (49)

दशग्रीवस्तु तं जित्वा नाम विश्राव्य चात्मनः ।

आरुह्य पुष्पकं भूयो निष्क्रान्तो यमसादनात् ॥ ५० ॥

Having conquered Yama, and proclaimed his name, and remounting the Puṣpaka, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed, monster) emerged from the domain of Yama. (50)

स तु वैवस्वतो देवैः सह ब्रह्मपुरोगमैः ।

जगाम त्रिदिवं हृष्टो नारदश्च महामुनिः ॥ ५१ ॥

God Yama (son of the sun-god) for his part, as well as the eminent sage Nārada joyously rose to heaven alongwith the gods headed by Brahmā. (51)

Thereupon the ogres felt amazed to see Rāvaṇa bathed all over with blood and shattered by blows. (2)

जयेन वर्धयित्वा च मारीचप्रमुखास्ततः ।

पुष्पकं भेजिरे सर्वे सान्त्विता रावणेन तु ॥ ३ ॥

Having felicitated him on his victory, and reassured by him in their turn, all the ministers headed by Mārīca then remounted the Puṣpaka. (3)

ततो रसातलं रक्षः प्रविष्टः पयसां निधिम् ।
दैत्योरगगणाध्युष्टं वरुणेन सुरक्षितम् ॥ ४ ॥

In order to reach Rasātala (the penultimate subterranean region) the ogre then entered the ocean (the repository of waters) inhabited by giants and the hosts of Nāgas (semi-divine beings having the face of a man and the tail of a serpent) and duly protected by Varuṇa (the god of water). (4)

स तु भोगवतीं गत्वा पुरीं वासुकिपालिताम् ।
कृत्वा नागान् वशे हृष्टो ययौ मणिमयीं पुरीम् ॥ ५ ॥

Proceeding to the city of Bhogavatī, ruled by Vāsuki (the ruler of the Nāgas) and having subdued the Nāgas, he for his part joyously went to the city of Maṇimayī (made of gems). (5)

निवातकवचास्तत्र दैत्या लब्धवरा वसन् ।
राक्षसस्तान् समागम्य युद्धाय समुपाह्वयत् ॥ ६ ॥

In that city lived a race of giants, known as the Nivātakavacas, who had obtained boons (from Brahmā). Approaching them, the ogre challenged them to a combat. (6)

ते तु सर्वे सुविक्रान्ता दैतेया बलशालिनः ।
नानाप्रहरणास्तत्र प्रहृष्टा युद्धदुर्मदाः ॥ ७ ॥

The said mighty sons of Diti for their part, who were all exceedingly valiant, were armed with all sorts of weapons and were ferocious in combat, were transported with joy on getting this god-sent opportunity for fighting. (7)

शूलैस्त्रिशूलैः कुलिशैः पट्टिशासिपरश्वधैः ।
अन्योन्यं बिभिदुः क्रुद्धा राक्षसा दानवास्तथा ॥ ८ ॥

Provoked to anger, the ogres as well as the Dānavas pierced each his opponent with pikes, tridents, thunderbolts, sharp-edged spears, swords and battle-axes. (8)

तेषां तु युध्यमानानां साग्रः संवत्सरो गतः ।
न चान्यतरतस्तत्र विजयो वा क्षयोऽपि वा ॥ ९ ॥

When they were fighting thus, more than a year actually elapsed and there was neither victory nor defeat for any of the two sides. (9)

ततः पितामहस्तत्र त्रैलोक्यगतिरव्ययः ।
आजगाम द्रुतं देवो विमानवरमास्थितः ॥ १० ॥

Seated in his excellent aerial car, the immortal Lord Brahmā, the refuge of the three worlds, then hurriedly came there. (10)

निवातकवचानां तु निवार्य रणकर्म तत् ।
वृद्धः पितामहो वाक्यमुवाच विदितार्थवत् ॥ ११ ॥

Stopping the said bellicose activity of the Nivātakavacas, the ancient grandfather (of the creation) for his part spoke the following explicit words to them: (11)

नह्ययं रावणो युद्धे शक्यो जेतुं सुरासुरैः ।
न भवन्तः क्षयं नेतुमपि सामरदानवैः ॥ १२ ॥

“Neither can this Rāvaṇa be got the better of in a conflict jointly by the gods and the demons nor can you be exterminated by the Dānavas including the gods. (12)

राक्षसस्य सखित्वं च भवद्भिः सह रोचते ।
अविभक्ताश्च सर्वार्थाः सुहृदां नात्र संशयः ॥ १३ ॥

“Nay, the friendship of the ogre with you finds favour with me. All blessings are held in common by friends: there is no doubt about it.” (13)

ततोऽग्निसाक्षिकं सख्यं कृतवांस्तत्र रावणः ।
निवातकवचैः सार्धं प्रीतिमानभवत् तदा ॥ १४ ॥

Thereupon Rāvaṇa concluded an alliance with the Nivātakavacas in the presence of the sacred fire then and there and was much pleased. (14)

अर्चितस्तैर्यथान्यायं संवत्सरमथोषितः ।
स्वपुरान्निर्विशेषं च प्रियं प्राप्तो दशाननः ॥ १५ ॥

Honoured by them according to the rules of propriety, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) then stayed there for a year and enjoyed pleasures indistinguishable from those of his own city. (15)

तत्रोपधार्य मायानां शतमेकं समाप्तवान् ।
सलिलेन्द्रपुरान्वेषी भ्रमति स्म रसातलम् ॥ १६ ॥

There he duly learnt a hundred conjuring tricks after carefully observing them. Then he ranged Rasātala (the penultimate celestial region) in search of the city of Varuṇa. (16)

ततोऽश्मनगरं नाम कालकेयैरधिष्ठितम्।

गत्वा तु कालकेयांश्च हत्वा तत्र बलोत्कटान् ॥ १७ ॥

शूर्पणख्याश्च भर्तारमसिना प्राच्छिनत् तदा।

श्यालं च बलवन्तं च विद्युज्जिह्वं बलोत्कटम् ॥ १८ ॥

जिह्वया संलिहन्तं च राक्षसं समरे तदा।

तं विजित्य मुहूर्तेन जघ्ने दैत्यांश्चतुःशतम् ॥ १९ ॥

Reaching the city named Aśmanagara, inhabited by the Kālakeyas, and making short work there of the latter, who were proud of their might, Rāvaṇa for his part thereupon cut to pieces with his sword then and there, his mighty brother-in-law Vidyujjihva, the husband of his sister, Śūrpaṇakhā, who was proud of his strength and was going to lick the ogre to death then and there on the battlefield. Having conquered him, Rāvaṇa exterminated four hundred of the Daityas in less than an hour. (17—19)

ततः पाण्डुरमेघाभं कैलासमिव भास्वरम्।

वरुणस्यालयं दिव्यमपश्यद् राक्षसाधिपः ॥ २० ॥

Thereupon the suzerain lord of the ogres saw the heavenly abode of Varuṇa (the god of water) which looked like a white cloud and shone like Mount Kailāsa. (20)

क्षरन्तीं च पयस्तत्र सुरभिं गामवस्थिताम्।

यस्याः पयोऽभिनिष्पन्दात् क्षीरोदो नाम सागरः ॥ २१ ॥

ददर्श रावणस्तत्र गोवृषेन्द्रवरारणिम्।

यस्माच्चन्द्रः प्रभवति शीतरश्मिर्निशाकरः ॥ २२ ॥

यं समाश्रित्य जीवन्ति फेनपाः परमर्षयः।

अमृतं यत्र चोत्पन्नं स्वधा च स्वधभोजनाम् ॥ २३ ॥

Rāvaṇa also saw stationed there the cow of plenty pouring out milk (from her teats) called Surabhi, the mother of the foremost of bulls (the mount of Lord Śiva), from the flow of whose milk comes into existence the ocean named Kṣīroda (the ocean of milk) from which springs up the moon of cool rays—who ushers in the night—nay, on which depend the highest Ṛṣis (the seers of Vedic Mantras) living on the froth of milk and in which appears nectar (the food of the immortals) and Swadhā, the food of the manes. (21—23)

यां ब्रुवन्ति नरा लोके सुरभिं नाम नामतः।

प्रदक्षिणं तु तां कृत्वा रावणः परमाद्भुताम्।

प्रविवेश महाघोरं गुप्तं बहुविधैर्बलैः ॥ २४ ॥

Walking clockwise round that most wonderful cow, whom human beings on this mortal plane speak of by the name of Surabhi, Rāvaṇa for his part deeply penetrated into the exceedingly formidable domain of Varuṇa (the god of water), protected by troops of various kinds. (24)

ततो धाराशताकीर्णं शारदाभ्रनिभं तदा।

नित्यप्रहृष्टं ददृशे वरुणस्य गृहोत्तमम् ॥ २५ ॥

Thereupon he saw on that occasion the excellent dwelling of Varuṇa, surrounded by hundreds of waterfalls, shining like an autumnal cloud and always highly delightful. (25)

ततो हत्वा बलाध्यक्षान् समरे तैश्च ताडितः।

अब्रवीच्च ततो योधान् राजा शीघ्रं निवेद्यताम् ॥ २६ ॥

Having thereupon struck down the generals of Varuṇa's army on the battlefield and struck in turn by them, Rāvaṇa then said to the former's warriors: "Let your ruler be speedily notified (in the following words): (26)

युद्धार्थी रावणः प्राप्तस्तस्य युद्धं प्रदीयताम्।

वद वा न भयं तेऽस्ति निर्जितोऽस्मीति साञ्जलिः ॥ २७ ॥

'Seeking an encounter, Rāvaṇa has arrived at your door; battle may be given to him or admit with joined palms that you stand defeated. Then there is no fear for you.' (27)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे क्रुद्धा वरुणस्य महात्मनः।

पुत्राः पौत्राश्च निष्क्रामन् गौश्च पुष्कर एव च ॥ २८ ॥

In the meantime provoked to anger, issued forth the sons and grandsons of the high-souled Varuṇa as well as their two generals, Gau and Puṣkara. (28)

ते तु तत्र गुणोपेता बलैः परिवृताः स्वकैः ।

युक्त्वा स्थान् कामगमानुद्यद्भास्करवर्चसः ॥ २९ ॥

Having harnessed their chariots, which were able to move wherever one liked and which shone like the rising sun, they, for their part, adorned as they were with all virtues appeared on the field of battle, surrounded by their troops. (29)

ततो युद्धं समभवद् दारुणं रोमहर्षणम् ।

सलिलेन्द्रस्य पुत्राणां रावणस्य च धीमतः ॥ ३० ॥

Then ensued a fierce struggle, which caused one's hair to stand on end, between the sons of Varuṇa, the god of water, and the clever Rāvaṇa. (30)

अमात्यैश्च महावीर्यैर्दशग्रीवस्य रक्षसः ।

वारुणं तद् बलं सर्वं क्षणेन विनिपातितम् ॥ ३१ ॥

And the whole of that army of Varuṇa was exterminated in an instant by the ministers of the ten-headed ogre, who were endowed with extraordinary valour. (31)

समीक्ष्य स्वबलं संख्ये वरुणस्य सुतास्तदा ।

अर्दिताः शरजालेन निवृत्ता रणकर्मणः ॥ ३२ ॥

Perceiving their army destroyed in battle, the sons of Varuṇa, who were overwhelmed by a shower of arrows, retreated from the conflict. (32)

महीतलगतास्ते तु रावणं दृश्य पुष्पके ।

आकाशमाशु विविशुः स्यन्दनैः शीघ्रगामिभिः ॥ ३३ ॥

Seeing Rāvaṇa seated in the Puṣpaka car, even though they stood on the ground, they rose quickly to the skies in their fast-moving chariots. (33)

महदासीत् ततस्तेषां तुल्यं स्थानमवाप्य तत् ।

आकाशयुद्धं तुमुलं देवदानवयोरिव ॥ ३४ ॥

On their attaining that position of equality, a tumultuous and fierce struggle then raged in the air between them, which resembled the fight between the gods and the Dānavas. (34)

ततस्ते रावणं युद्धे शरैः पावकसंनिभैः ।

विमुखीकृत्य संहृष्टा विनेदुर्विविधान् रवान् ॥ ३५ ॥

Having forced Rāvaṇa by their fiery shafts to turn his face away from the battle, they (the sons of Varuṇa) thereupon felt transported with joy and raised various kinds of shouts. (35)

ततो महोदरः क्रुद्धो राजानं वीक्ष्य धर्षितम् ।

त्यक्त्वा मृत्युभयं वीरो युद्धाकांक्षी व्यलोकयत् ॥ ३६ ॥

Provoked to anger on perceiving the king of ogres overpowered, and shedding all fear of death, the valiant Mahodara looked round, seeking an encounter. (36)

तेन ते वारुणा युद्धे कामगाः पवनोपमाः ।

महोदरेण गदया हयास्ते प्रययुः क्षितिम् ॥ ३७ ॥

Struck by the said Mahodara with a mace, on the battlefield, those well-known steeds of Varuṇa (yoked to the chariot of his sons), who could move according to the will of their master and were fleet as the wind, came to the ground. (37)

तेषां वरुणसूनूनां हत्वा योधान् हयांश्च तान् ।

मुमोचाशु महानादं विरथान् प्रेक्ष्य तान् स्थितान् ॥ ३८ ॥

Having killed the soldiers of the sons of Varuṇa as well as their aforesaid horses and perceiving them deprived of their chariots, he (Mahodara) soon raised a great roar. (38)

ते तु तेषां रथाः साश्वाः सह सारथिभिर्वरैः ।

महोदरेण निहताः पतिताः पृथिवीतले ॥ ३९ ॥

Destroyed by Mahodara, the aforesaid chariots of the sons of Varuṇa for their part fell on the ground alongwith their horses and expert drivers. (39)

ते तु त्यक्त्वा स्थान् पुत्रा वरुणस्य महात्मनः ।

आकाशे विष्ठिताः शूराः स्वप्रभावान् विव्यथुः ॥ ४० ॥

Leaving their chariots, those heroic sons of the high-souled Varuṇa for their part stood firmly in the air by virtue of their divine power and did not feel afflicted. (40)

धनूंषि कृत्वा सज्जानि विनिर्भिद्य महोदरम् ।

रावणं समरे क्रुद्धाः सहिताः समवारयन् ॥ ४१ ॥

Having strung their bows, and pierced

Mahodara, they collectively surrounded Rāvaṇa on the field of battle, full of anger as they were. (41)

सायकैश्चापविभ्रष्टैर्वज्रकल्पैः सुदारुणैः ।
दारयन्ति स्म संक्रुद्धा मेघा इव महागिरिम् ॥ ४२ ॥

Filled with rage, they began to pierce Rāvaṇa with fierce shafts, hard as adamant, shot from their bows, even as clouds would lash a hill. (42)

ततः क्रुद्धो दशग्रीवः कालाग्निरिव मूर्च्छितः ।
शरवर्षं महाघोरं तेषां मर्मस्वपातयत् ॥ ४३ ॥

Provoked to anger, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster), who resembled the swollen fire of dissolution, showered an exceedingly formidable hail of shafts on their vital parts. (43)

मुसलानि विचित्राणि ततो भल्लशतानि च ।
पट्टिशांश्चैव शक्तीश्च शतघ्नीर्महतीरपि ॥ ४४ ॥
पातयामास दुर्धर्षस्तेषामुपरि विष्टितः ।
अपविद्धास्तु ते वीरा विनिष्येतुः पदातयः ॥ ४५ ॥
ततस्तेनैव सहसा सीदन्ति स्म पदातिनः ।
महापङ्कमिवासाद्य कुञ्जराः षष्टिहायनाः ॥ ४६ ॥

Firmly established in his chariot, Rāvaṇa (who was difficult to overpower) then hurled on them pestles of various kinds, hundreds of lances, sharp-edged spears and javelins too as well as huge Śataghñis (stones studded with iron spikes and four Tālas in length). * Though pierced through and through, these valiant foot-soldiers rushed forth. The foot-soldiers, however, were reduced to straits due to that very hail of weapons as sixty-year old elephants would be on entering an extensive morass. (44—46)

सीदमानान् सुतान् दृष्ट्वा विह्वलान् स महाबलः ।
ननाद रावणो हर्षान्महानम्बुधरो यथा ॥ ४७ ॥

Seeing those sons of Varuṇa suffering and distracted, the notorious Rāvaṇa, who was endowed with extraordinary might, thundered in joy like a huge cloud. (47)

ततो रक्षो महानादान् मुक्त्वा हन्ति स्म वारुणान् ।
नानाप्रहरणोपेतैर्धारापातैरिवाम्बुदः ॥ ४८ ॥

Emitting great shouts, the ogre thereupon began to strike the sons of Varuṇa with various weapons in hand as a cloud would lash trees with torrents. (48)

ततस्ते विमुखाः सर्वे पतिता धरणीतले ।
रणात् स्वपुरुषैः शीघ्रं गृहाण्येव प्रवेशिताः ॥ ४९ ॥

They all thereupon fell to the ground and, thus they were speedily taken from the battlefield to their homes by their own men. (49)

तानब्रवीत् ततो रक्षो वरुणाय निवेद्यताम् ।
रावणं त्वब्रवीन्मन्त्री प्रहासो नाम वारुणः ॥ ५० ॥
गतः खलु महाराजो ब्रह्मलोकं जलेश्वरः ।
गान्धर्वं वरुणः श्रोतुं यं त्वमाह्वयसे युधि ॥ ५१ ॥

The ogre then said to them, “Let my presence be announced to Varuṇa.” A counsellor of Varuṇa, Prahāsa by name, however, made the following reply to Rāvaṇa: “The great king Varuṇa, the ruler of the waters, whom you are challenging to a combat, has, really speaking, gone to Brahmaloka (the domain of Brahmā) to listen to the music of Gandharvas (celestial musicians). (50-51)

तत् किं तव यथा वीर परिश्रम्य गते नृपे ।
ये तु संनिहिता वीराः कुमारस्ते पराजिताः ॥ ५२ ॥

“When the king has gone out, O hero, what will you gain by exerting yourself in vain? As for his valiant sons, who were present here, they already stand vanquished by you.” (52)

राक्षसेन्द्रस्तु तच्छ्रुत्वा नाम विश्राव्य चात्मनः ।
हर्षान्नादं विमुञ्चन् वै निष्क्रान्तो वरुणालयात् ॥ ५३ ॥

Hearing this and proclaiming his name, Rāvaṇa, the king of ogres, for his part made good his exit from the domain of Varuṇa, shouting through joy. (53)

आगतस्तु पथा येन तेनैव विनिवृत्य सः ।
लङ्कामभिमुखो रक्षो नभस्तलगतो ययौ ॥ ५४ ॥

Returning by the same route by which he had come, the said ogre rose into the heavens and proceeded towards Laṅkā.* (54)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे त्रयोविंशः सर्गः ॥ २३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-three in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्विंशः सर्गः

Canto XXIV

Lament of the celestial damsels and other ladies forcibly carried off by Rāvaṇa and the curse pronounced by them; Rāvaṇa consoles his wailing sister, Śūrpaṇakhā and sends her to the Daṇḍaka forest with Khara

निवर्तमानः संहृष्टो रावणः स दुरात्मवान् ।
जह्रे पथि नरेन्द्रर्षिदेवदानवकन्यकाः ॥ १ ॥

While returning home, highly rejoiced, the said Rāvaṇa of perverse soul bore away on the way the virgin daughters of kings, Ṛṣis (the seers of Vedic Mantras), gods and Dānavas. (1)

दर्शनीयां हि यां रक्षः कन्यां स्त्रीं वाथ पश्यति ।
हत्वा बन्धुजनं तस्या विमाने तां रुरोध सः ॥ २ ॥

Killing the kinsfolk of the maiden or woman whom he actually found to be comely, the ogre would forthwith shut her up in his aerial car. (2)

एवं पन्नगकन्याश्च राक्षसासुरमानुषीः ।
यक्षदानवकन्याश्च विमाने सोऽध्यरोपयत् ॥ ३ ॥

In this manner he lifted into his aerial car virgin daughters of Nāgas, nay, those of ogres, demons and human beings as well as those of Yakṣas and Dānavas. (3)

ता हि सर्वाः समं दुःखान्मुचुर्बाष्पजं जलम् ।
तुल्यमग्न्यर्चिषां तत्र शोकाग्निभयसम्भवम् ॥ ४ ॥

Full of agony they all synchronously shed tears, which, springing as they did from the fire of grief and born as they were of fear, compared with the sparks of fire on that occasion. (4)

ताभिः सर्वानवद्याभिर्नदीभिरिव सागरः ।
आपूरितं विमानं तद् भयशोकाशिवाश्रुभिः ॥ ५ ॥

Even as an ocean is filled on all sides with streams, that aerial car was filled by all those irreproachable girls with their inauspicious tears born of fear and grief. (5)

नागगन्धर्वकन्याश्च महर्षितनयाश्च याः ।
दैत्यदानवकन्याश्च विमाने शतशोऽरुदन् ॥ ६ ॥

Virgin daughters of Nāgas, Gandharvas, as also the daughters of eminent Ṛṣis as well as the Daitya and Dānava maidens who had collected in the aerial car wailed in their hundreds. (6)

दीर्घकेश्यः सुचावर्ङ्ग्यः पूर्णचन्द्रनिभाननाः ।
पीनस्तनतटा मध्ये वज्रवेदिसमप्रभाः ॥ ७ ॥

रथकूबरसंकाशैः श्रोणिदेशैर्मनोहराः ।
स्त्रियः सुराङ्गनाप्रख्या निष्टप्तकनकप्रभाः ॥ ८ ॥

* Some recensions of the Rāmāyaṇa contain five interpolated cantos after canto XXIII, giving a detail description of Rāvaṇa's expedition culminating in the conquest of the four quarters. To avoid prolixity the cantos have not been incorporated in our text.

शोकदुःखभयत्रस्ता विह्वलाश्च सुमध्यमाः ।
 तासां निःश्वासवातेन सर्वतः सम्प्रदीपितम् ॥ ९ ॥
 अग्निहोत्रमिवाभाति संनिरुद्धाग्निं पुष्पकम् ।
 दशग्रीववशं प्राप्तास्तास्तु शोकाकुलाः स्त्रियः ॥ १० ॥
 दीनवक्त्रेक्षणाः श्यामा मृग्यः सिंहवशा इव ।
 काचिच्चिन्तयती तत्र किं नु मां भक्षयिष्यति ॥ ११ ॥
 काचिद् दध्यौ सुदुःखार्ता अपि मां मारयेदयम् ।
 इति मातृः पितृन् स्मृत्वा भर्तृन् भ्रातृस्तथैव च ॥ १२ ॥
 दुःखशोकसमाविष्टा विलेपुः सहिताः स्त्रियः ।
 कथं नु खलु मे पुत्रो भविष्यति मया विना ॥ १३ ॥

The women had long tresses and exceptionally graceful limbs; their faces shone like the full moon; having fully developed breasts, they gleamed at their waist like an altar made of diamonds; they captivated the mind by means of their hips resembling the pole of a chariot, looked like celestial ladies, possessed the brilliance of refined gold, had elegant waists, were stricken with grief, sorrow and fear and were distracted. Set ablaze on all sides by their sighs, the Puṣpaka looked like a sacrificial pit in which the sacred fire has been deposited. Fallen under the sway of Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster), the aforesaid youthful women for their part, who were stricken with grief and looked dejected from their countenance and eyes, resembled a female deer fallen into the clutches of a lion. One of them thought, "Will this fellow actually devour me?" Sore stricken with sorrow, another thought, "Will this fellow kill me?" Thinking of their mothers, fathers, husbands and even so of their brothers, overpowered as they were by sorrow and grief, the women lamented in a body as follows: "How, I wonder, will my son actually fare without me?" (7—13)

कथं माता कथं भ्राता निमग्नाः शोकसागरे ।
 हा कथं नु करिष्यामि भर्तुस्तस्मादहं विना ॥ १४ ॥

"How will my mother and brother, completely submerged in an ocean of grief get on? Oh, how shall I do without that husband of mine? (14)

मृत्यो प्रसादयामि त्वां नय मां दुःखभागिनीम् ।
 किं नु तद् दुष्कृतं कर्म पुरा देहान्तरे कृतम् ॥ १५ ॥
 एवं स्म दुःखिताः सर्वाः पतिताः शोकसागरे ।
 न खल्विदानीं पश्यामो दुःखस्यास्यान्तमात्मनः ॥ १६ ॥

"Death, I seek your favour; pray, bear me away whose lot is 'affliction'. What I wonder, may be the misdeed which was perpetrated by me in some previous existence in another body, due to which we have all sunk into an ocean of grief, stricken with sorrow. Indeed, we see no end to our misery any more. (15-16)

अहो धिङ्मानुषं लोकं नास्ति खल्वधमः परः ।
 यद् दुर्बला बलवता भर्तारो रावणेन नः ॥ १७ ॥
 सूर्येणोदयता काले नक्षत्राणीव नाशिताः ।
 अहो सुबलवद् रक्षो बधोपायेषु रज्यते ॥ १८ ॥

"Oh, fie on this human world; surely, there is no other world viler than this, in that our imbecile husbands were destroyed by the mighty Rāvaṇa even as stars are made to disappear by the sun rising in time. Ah, the exceedingly mighty ogre takes delight in contriving the means of destruction. (17-18)

अहो दुर्वृत्तमास्थाय नात्मानं वै जुगुप्सते ।
 सर्वथा सदृशस्तावद् विक्रमोऽस्य दुरात्मनः ॥ १९ ॥

"Ah, though holding fast to evil conduct, he does not feel disgusted with himself; the prowess of this evil-minded fellow is for that matter entirely becoming of him. (19)

इदं त्वसदृशं कर्म परदाराभिमर्शनम् ।
 यस्मादेष परक्यासु रमते राक्षसाधमः ॥ २० ॥
 तस्माद् वै स्त्रीकृतेनैव बधं प्राप्स्यति दुर्मतिः ।
 सतीभिर्वरनारीभिरेवं वाक्येऽभ्युदीरिते ॥ २१ ॥
 नेदुर्दुन्दुभयः खस्थाः पुष्पवृष्टिः पपात च ।
 शप्तः स्त्रीभिः स तु समं हतौजा इव निष्प्रभः ॥ २२ ॥
 पतिव्रताभिः साध्वीभिर्बभूव विमना इव ।
 एवं विलपितं तासां शृण्वन् राक्षसपुङ्गवः ॥ २३ ॥
 प्रविवेश पुरीं लङ्कां पूज्यमानो निशाचरैः ।
 एतस्मिन्नन्तरे घोरा राक्षसी कामरूपिणी ॥ २४ ॥

सहसा पतिता भूमौ भगिनी रावणस्य सा।
तां स्वसारं समुत्थाप्य रावणः परिसान्त्वयन् ॥ २५ ॥
अब्रवीत् किमिदं भद्रे वक्तुकामासि मां हृतम्।
सा बाष्पपरिरुद्धाक्षी रक्ताक्षी वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ २६ ॥

“This act of laying his hands on others’ wives, however, is quite unworthy of him. Since this wretch among the ogres takes delight in the wives of others, hence the evil-minded fellow will undoubtedly meet his death through the sighs of a woman alone.” When such an imprecation was pronounced by those virtuous and noble women, kettle-drums sounded in the heavens and a shower of flowers fell on the earth. Cursed by virtuous women devoted to their husband, Rāvaṇa for his part, lost his lustre like one whose vigour had been destroyed and felt disconsolate, as it were. Hearing their lament, Rāvaṇa (a bull among the ogres) penetrated deep into the city of Laṅkā, acclaimed by the rangers of the night. In the meantime the notorious sister of Rāvaṇa, a formidable ogress, who could change her form at will, suddenly came and dropped down on the ground. Consoling his sister in everyway after lifting her up, he said, “O blessed one, what is it you want to say to me so urgently?” With eyes bloodshot and covered with tears she replied as follows: (20—26)

कृतास्मि विधवा राजंस्त्वया बलवता बलात्।
एते राजंस्त्वया वीर्याद् दैत्या विनिहता रणे ॥ २७ ॥
कालकेया इति ख्याताः सहस्राणि चतुर्दश।
प्राणेभ्योऽपि गरीयान् मे तत्र भर्ता महाबलः ॥ २८ ॥
सोऽपि त्वया हतस्तात रिपुणा भ्रातृगन्धिना।
त्वयास्मि निहता राजन् स्वयमेव हि बन्धुना ॥ २९ ॥

“By you, mighty as you are, O king, I have been forcibly made a widow. Daityas known as the Kālakeyas, and numbering fourteen thousand, were exterminated, O king, by you the other day in combat by dint of prowess. My exceptionally mighty husband too, who was dearer to me than life itself, was also killed among others by you, O

dear one, my so-called brother, who acted as an enemy. In this way, I myself stand virtually destroyed by you, my kinsman, O king! (27—29)

राजन् वैधव्यशब्दं च भोक्ष्यामि त्वत्कृतं ह्यहम्।
ननु नाम त्वया रक्ष्यो जामाता समरेष्वपि ॥ ३० ॥

“Nay, I shall actually enjoy the title of widow bestowed by you, O king ! Did my husband (who was your son-in-law, I being your younger sister, and, as such a daughter to you) not deserve to be spared by you even in conflicts? (30)

स त्वया निहतो युद्धे स्वयमेव न लज्जसे।
एवमुक्तो दशग्रीवो भगिन्या क्रोशमानया ॥ ३१ ॥
अब्रवीत् सान्त्वयित्वा तां सामपूर्वमिदं वचः।
अलं वत्से रुदित्वा ते न भेतव्यं च सर्वशः ॥ ३२ ॥

“He was, on the contrary, killed by you in an encounter with yourself. Yet you do not feel remorseful.” Comforting her through appeasement when reproached in these words by his wailing sister, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) replied to her as follows: “Have done with weeping, my child; you should not be afraid of anyone. (31-32)

दानमानप्रसादैस्त्वां तोषयिष्यामि यत्नतः।
युद्धप्रमत्तो व्याक्षिप्तो जयाकांक्षी क्षिपन् शरान् ॥ ३३ ॥
नाहमज्ञासिषं युध्यन् स्वान् परान् वापि संयुगे।
जामातरं न जाने स्म प्रहरन् युद्धदुर्मदः ॥ ३४ ॥

“I shall particularly gratify you by means of gifts, politeness and favours. Intoxicated in war and distracted, longing as I did for victory, I went on raining arrows and was unable to distinguish between my own people and others in combat while fighting. While striking, fierce as I was in combat, I failed to recognize my own son-in-law. (33-34)

तेनासौ निहतः संख्ये मया भर्ता तव स्वसः।
अस्मिन् काले तु यत् प्राप्तं तत् करिष्यामि ते हितम् ॥ ३५ ॥

“Hence, O sister, your aforesaid husband was killed by me on the field of battle. However, I shall do to you whatever good turn is called for at the present moment. (35)

भ्रातुरैश्वर्ययुक्तस्य खरस्य वस पार्श्वतः ।
 चतुर्दशानां भ्राता ते सहस्राणां भविष्यति ॥ ३६ ॥
 प्रभुः प्रयाणे दाने च राक्षसानां महाबलः ।
 तत्र मातृष्वसेयस्ते भ्रातायं वै खरः प्रभुः ॥ ३७ ॥
 भविष्यति तवादेशं सदा कुर्वन् निशाचरः ।
 शीघ्रं गच्छत्वयं वीरो दण्डकान् परिरक्षितुम् ॥ ३८ ॥

“Live under the protection of your cousin, Khara, who has been endowed with rulership. Your aforesaid exceptionally mighty cousin will have the power to dispatch at will and provide subsistence to fourteen thousand ogres. Your aforesaid cousin (born of your mother’s own sister), Khara, is competent to do this and will ever continue to do your bidding. Let this hero proceed with all speed to guard the Daṇḍaka forest closely. (36—38)

दूषणोऽस्य बलाध्यक्षो भविष्यति महाबलः ।
 तत्र ते वचनं शूरः करिष्यति सदा खरः ॥ ३९ ॥

“The exceptionally mighty Dūṣaṇa will be the commander of his forces. Living there, the valiant Khara will ever do your bidding. (39)

रक्षसां कामरूपाणां प्रभुरेष भविष्यति ।
 एवमुक्त्वा दशग्रीवः सैन्यमस्यादिदेश ह ॥ ४० ॥
 चतुर्दश सहस्राणि रक्षसां वीर्यशालिनाम् ।
 स तैः परिवृतः सर्वै रक्षसैर्घोरदर्शनैः ॥ ४१ ॥
 आगच्छत खरः शीघ्रं दण्डकानकुतोभयः ।
 स तत्र कारयामास राज्यं निहतकण्टकम् ।
 सा च शूर्पणखा तत्र न्यवसद् दण्डके वने ॥ ४२ ॥

“He will be the ruler of ogres capable of changing their form at will.” Having spoken as aforesaid, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster), ordered fourteen thousand of valiant ogres to form the army of Khara, so the tradition goes. Surrounded by all those fierce-looking ogres, the notorious Khara, who had no fear from any quarter, arrived with all speed in the Daṇḍaka forest. There he established his undisputed rulership. The said Śūrpaṇakhā too lived in the same Daṇḍaka forest. (40—42)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे चतुर्विंशः सर्गः ॥ २४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-four in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXV

Meghanāda attains success through sacrifices; Vibhīṣaṇa describes to Rāvaṇa the evil consequences of bearing away others’ wives; after consoling Kumbhīnaśī, Rāvaṇa, accompanied by Madhu, invades the realm of the gods

स तु दत्त्वा दशग्रीवो बलं घोरं खरस्य तत् ।
 भगिनीं स समाश्वास्य हृष्टः स्वस्थतरोऽभवत् ॥ १ ॥

Having handed over to Khara the command of that formidable army and having consoled his sister, Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, for his part felt rejoiced and at ease. (1)

ततो निकुम्भिला नाम लङ्कोपवनमुत्तमम् ।
 तद् राक्षसेन्द्रो बलवान् प्रविवेश सहानुगः ॥ २ ॥

There was an excellent grove in Laṅkā, Nikumbhilā by name. Accompanied by his followers, the mighty ruler of ogres penetrated deep into it. (2)

ततो यूषशताकीर्णं सौम्यचैत्योपशोभितम् ।
 ददर्श विष्ठितं यज्ञं श्रिया सम्प्रज्वलन्निव ॥ ३ ॥

Flaming, as it were, with splendour, he saw standing there a sacrificial hall, closely set with hundreds of sacrificial posts and adorned with a sanctuary of good omen. (3)

ततः कृष्णाजिनधरं कमण्डलुशिखाध्वजम्।
ददर्श स्वसुतं तत्र मेघनादं भयावहम् ॥ ४ ॥

Then he beheld there his son, Meghanāda, wearing a black deerskin and a tuft of hair on his crown and holding a Kamaṇḍalu (a pot made of the shell of a poisonous coconut) and a staff and inspiring fear. (4)

तं समासाद्य लङ्केशः परिष्वज्याथ बाहुभिः।
अब्रवीत् किमिदं वत्स वर्तसे ब्रूहि तत्त्वतः ॥ ५ ॥

Approaching him and folding him in his arms, the ruler of Laṅkā, forthwith said to him, "Child, what is it you are doing? Speak truly." (5)

उशना त्वब्रवीत् तत्र यज्ञसम्पत्समृद्धये।
रावणं राक्षसश्रेष्ठं द्विजश्रेष्ठो महातपाः ॥ ६ ॥

In order to ensure the success of the sacrificial performance (which would have been jeopardized if the sacrificer broke his vow of silence), Uśanā (the preceptor of the demons and Daityas, who was evidently conducting the sacrifice), the foremost of the twice-born and a great ascetic, for his part spoke as follows to Rāvaṇa, the foremost of ogres, on that occasion: (6)

अहमाख्यामि ते राजन् श्रूयतां सर्वमेव तत्।
यज्ञास्ते सप्त पुत्रेण प्राप्तास्ते बहुविस्तराः ॥ ७ ॥

"I shall tell you everything, Your Majesty, please listen to it. Seven well-known sacrifices rich in numerous details have been performed by your son. (7)

अग्निष्टोमोऽश्वमेधश्च यज्ञो बहुसुवर्णकः।
राजसूयस्तथा यज्ञो गोमेधो वैष्णवस्तथा ॥ ८ ॥
माहेश्वरे प्रवृत्ते तु यज्ञे पुम्भिः सुदुर्लभे।
वरांस्ते लब्धवान् पुत्रः साक्षात् पशुपतेरिह ॥ ९ ॥

"Six sacrifices named Agniṣṭoma and Aśwamedha, the Bahusuvāṇaka sacrifice, Rājasūya, Gomedha and the sacrifice intended to propitiate Lord Viṣṇu, had been performed; and when the sacrifice intended to propitiate Lord Maheśwara, which is exceedingly difficult for the mortals to accomplish, commenced, your son received boons personally from Lord Śiva (the ruler of embodied souls in bondage, who are no better than beasts) here, on this very ground (8-9)

कामगं स्यन्दनं दिव्यमन्तरिक्षचरं ध्रुवम्।
मायां च तामसीं नाम यया सम्पद्यते तमः ॥ १० ॥

"He also received from Him a lasting heavenly car which could course in the air according to the will of its master, as well as a conjuring trick named Tāmasī Māyā by which darkness could be occasioned in the enemy's ranks. (10)

एतया किल संग्रामे मायया राक्षसेश्वर।
प्रयुक्तया गतिः शक्या नहि ज्ञातुं सुरासुरैः ॥ ११ ॥

"By means of this conjuring trick, when employed in a conflict, O ruler of ogres, the movement of the employer cannot be known either by the gods or the demons. (11)

अक्षयाविषुधी बाणैश्चापं चापि सुदुर्जयम्।
अस्त्रं च बलवद् राजन् शत्रुविध्वंसनं रणे ॥ १२ ॥

"A pair of inexhaustible quivers full of arrows, as also a bow exceedingly difficult to resist and a powerful missile capable of exterminating the foe have also been secured by him, O king ! (12)

एतान् सर्वान् वराँल्लब्ध्वा पुत्रस्तेऽयं दशानन।
अद्य यज्ञसमामौ च त्वां दिदृक्षन् स्थितो ह्यहम् ॥ १३ ॥

"Having secured all these boons, indeed, O Rāvaṇa, this son of yours, stands here eager to see you at the completion of his sacrificial performance, and so do I." (13)

ततोऽब्रवीद् दशग्रीवो न शोभनमिदं कृतम्।
पूजिताः शत्रवो यस्माद् द्रव्यैरिन्द्रपुरोगमाः ॥ १४ ॥

Thereupon Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) said, "This was not done well in that my enemies, whose leader is Indra, have been worshipped by means of offerings. (14)

एहीदानीं कृतं यद्धि सुकृतं तन्न संशयः ।
आगच्छ सौम्य गच्छामः स्वमेव भवनं प्रति ॥ १५ ॥

“Come now; that which has actually been done, has been done well: there is no doubt about it. Come, O my good child ! let us return to our abode.” (15)

ततो गत्वा दशग्रीवः सपुत्रः सविभीषणः ।
स्त्रियोऽवतारयामास सर्वास्ता बाष्पगद्गदाः ॥ १६ ॥
लक्षिण्यो रत्नभूताश्च देवदानवरक्षसाम् ।
तस्य तासु मतिं ज्ञात्वा धर्मात्मा वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ १७ ॥

Moving from that place with his son (Meghanāda) and Vibhiṣaṇa, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) caused to descend from the Pushpak all those women whose throats were choked with tears, nay, who were endowed with propitious bodily marks and were veritable jewels among the ladies of gods, Dānavas and ogres. Coming to know the mind of Rāvaṇa with regard to them, Vibhiṣaṇa, whose mind was set on virtue, spoke to him as follows: (16-17)

ईदृशैस्त्वं समाचारैर्यशोऽर्थकुलनाशनैः ।
धर्षणं प्राणिनां ज्ञात्वा स्वमतेन विचेष्टसे ॥ १८ ॥

“Acting according to your own sweet will, you knowingly commit offence against living beings through such practices, which ruin your fame and fortune and bring a blot on your family.” (18)

ज्ञातींस्तान् धर्षयित्वेमास्त्वयाऽऽनीता वराङ्गनाः ।
त्वामतिक्रम्य मधुना राजन् कुम्भीनसी हता ॥ १९ ॥

“Having overpowered their relations, these excellent women have been borne away by you; nay, disregarding you, O king, your own cousin Kumbhīnasī has been borne away by Madhu.” (19)

रावणस्त्वब्रवीद् वाक्यं नावगच्छामि किं त्विदम् ।
कोऽयं यस्तु त्वयाऽऽख्यातो मधुरित्येव नामतः ॥ २० ॥

Rāvaṇa, however, observed as follows: “I am not aware as to how this happened. Who actually is this fellow who has been spoken of by you by the name of Madhu?” (20)

विभीषणस्तु संकुद्धो भ्रातरं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
श्रूयतामस्य पापस्य कर्मणः फलमागतम् ॥ २१ ॥

Filled with rage, Vibhiṣaṇa for his part replied as follows to his (eldest) brother: “Listen, the fruit of your present sinful deed has appeared in the shape of the abduction of your own cousin.” (21)

मातामहस्य योऽस्माकं ज्येष्ठो भ्राता सुमालिनः ।
माल्यवानिति विख्यातो वृद्धः प्राज्ञो निशाचरः ॥ २२ ॥
पिता ज्येष्ठो जनन्या नो ह्यस्माकं चार्यकोऽभवत् ।
तस्य कुम्भीनसी नाम दुहितुर्दुहिताभवत् ॥ २३ ॥

“The aged and sagacious ranger of the night, widely known by the name of Mālyavān, who is the eldest brother of our maternal grandfather, Sumālī, is the eldest uncle of our mother, Kaikāsī, and as such worthy of our respect. He had a daughter’s daughter, Kumbhīnasī by name.” (22-23)

मातृष्वसुरथास्माकं सा च कन्यानलोद्धवा ।
भवत्यस्माकमेवैषा भ्रातृणां धर्मतः स्वसा ॥ २४ ॥

“Nay, being daughter of our mother’s sister, born as she is of Analā (our mother’s own younger sister), she no doubt stands virtually and rightly in the relation of a sister to us all brothers.” (24)

सा हता मधुना राजन् राक्षसेन बलीयसा ।
यज्ञप्रवृत्ते पुत्रे तु मयि चान्तर्जलोषिते ॥ २५ ॥
कुम्भकर्णो महाराज निद्रामनुभवत्यथ ।
निहत्य राक्षसश्रेष्ठानमात्यानिह सम्पतान् ॥ २६ ॥

“While your son, Meghanāda, for his part was engaged in a sacrifice, Your Majesty, and I lay submerged in water doing Tapas, while Kumbhakarna was enjoying sleep, O great king, she was borne away by the ogre Madhu of superior might, after killing our ministers, the foremost of ogres, who were held in high esteem here, O king ! (25-26)

धर्षयित्वा हता सा तु गुप्ताप्यन्तःपुरे तव ।
श्रुत्वापि तन्महाराज क्षान्तमेव हतो न सः ॥ २७ ॥
यस्मादवश्यं दातव्या कन्या भर्त्रे हि भ्रातृभिः ।
तदेतत् कर्मणो ह्यस्य फलं पापस्य दुर्मतेः ॥ २८ ॥

अस्मिन्नेवाभिसम्प्राप्तं लोके विदितमस्तु ते ।
 विभीषणवचः श्रुत्वा राक्षसेन्द्रः स रावणः ॥ २९ ॥
 दौरात्त्येनात्मनोद्धूतस्तप्ताम्भा इव सागरः ।
 ततोऽब्रवीद् दशग्रीवः क्रुद्धः संरक्तलोचनः ॥ ३० ॥

“Though kept under watch in your gynaeceum, she was borne away after overpowering her. Even on hearing of it, O great monarch, the insult was pocketed by us—the fellow was not killed; for a maiden needs must be given away to a husband by her brothers. Let it be known to you that this is surely the fruit of your sinful deeds as well of your perverse mind, reaped in this very existence.” Looking like an ocean with turbulent waters when wrought up through viciousness practised by himself on hearing the speech of Vibhiṣaṇa, his eyes bloodshot through anger, that ten-headed monster, Rāvaṇa, the king of ogres, spoke as follows:

(27—30)

कल्प्यतां मे रथः शीघ्रं शूराः सज्जीभवन्तु नः ।
 भ्राता मे कुम्भकर्णश्च ये च मुख्या निशाचराः ॥ ३१ ॥
 वाहनान्यधिरोहन्तु नानाप्रहरणायुधाः ।
 अद्य तं समरे हत्वा मधुं रावणनिर्भयम् ॥ ३२ ॥
 सुरलोकं गमिष्यामि युद्धाकाङ्क्षी सुहृद्वृतः ।
 अक्षौहिणीसहस्राणि चत्वार्यग्र्याणि रक्षसाम् ॥ ३३ ॥
 नानाप्रहरणान्याशु निर्ययुर्युद्धाकाङ्क्षिणाम् ।
 इन्द्रजित् त्वग्रतः सैन्यात् सैनिकान् परिगृह्य च ॥ ३४ ॥
 जगाम रावणो मध्ये कुम्भकर्णश्च पृष्ठतः ।
 विभीषणश्च धर्मात्मा लङ्कायां धर्ममाचरन् ॥ ३५ ॥

“Let my chariot be harnessed speedily and let our heroes get ready, let my brother, Kumbhakarna, and whoever other leading rangers of the night there are, get into their vehicles armed with all kinds of weapons. After killing in combat today the notorious Madhu, who is not afraid even of Rāvaṇa, i.e., myself, and accompanied by friends, I shall proceed to the realm of gods seeking an encounter with them.” Four thousand Akṣauhiṇīs of picked ogres, thirsting for combat and armed with all kinds of weapons, sallied forth with all speed. Nay, taking troops with him, Indrajit for his part marched at the head of the army; Rāvaṇa rode in the centre and Kumbhakarna in the rear. The pious-minded Vibhiṣaṇa stayed behind in Laṅkā practising virtues. (31—35)

शेषाः सर्वे महाभागा ययुर्मधुपुरं प्रति ।
 खरैरुष्ट्रैर्हयैर्दीप्तैः शिशुमारैर्महोरगैः ॥ ३६ ॥
 राक्षसाः प्रययुः सर्वे कृत्वाऽऽकाशं निरन्तरम् ।
 दैत्याश्च शतशस्त्रत्र कृतवैराश्च दैवतैः ॥ ३७ ॥
 रावणं प्रेक्ष्य गच्छन्तमन्वगच्छन् हि पृष्ठतः ।
 स तु गत्वा मधुपुरं प्रविश्य च दशाननः ॥ ३८ ॥
 न ददर्श मधुं तत्र भगिनीं तत्र दृष्टवान् ।
 सा च प्रह्लाञ्जलिर्भूत्वा शिरसा चरणौ गता ॥ ३९ ॥
 तस्य राक्षसराजस्य त्रस्ता कुम्भीनसी तदा ।
 तां समुत्थापयामास न भेतव्यमिति ब्रुवन् ॥ ४० ॥
 रावणो राक्षसश्रेष्ठः किं चापि करवाणि ते ।
 साब्रवीद् यदि मे राजन् प्रसन्नस्त्वं महाभुज ॥ ४१ ॥
 भर्तारं न ममेहाद्य हन्तुमर्हसि मानद ।
 नहीदृशं भयं किञ्चित् कुलस्त्रीणामिहोच्यते ॥ ४२ ॥

All the rest, who were highly fortunate, set out towards the city of Madhu. All the ogres marched on the back of donkeys, camels, excited horses, dolphins and huge serpents, leaving no space in the sky. Nay, perceiving Rāvaṇa on the march, Daityas in their hundreds who bore enmity to the gods, actually followed at his heels. Reaching the city of Madhu and entering it, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) saw his sister there but did not find Madhu. Nay, joining her palms as a token of submission, alarmed as she was, the said Kumbhīnāsī fell at the feet of that ruler of ogres with her head touching them on that occasion. Saying, “You ought not to be afraid,” Rāvaṇa, the foremost of ogres, lifted her up and added, “What shall I do for you?” She replied, “If you are pleased with me, O mighty-armed monarch, you ought not to kill my husband here today, O bestower of honour! For nothing is said to be so dreadful as the death of a husband in the eyes of ladies of noble birth in this world. (36—42)

भयानामपि सर्वेषां वैधव्यं व्यसनं महत्।
सत्यवाग् भव राजेन्द्र मामवेक्षस्व याचतीम् ॥ ४३ ॥

“Of all dreaded things widowhood is a great misfortune. Be true to your word, O ruler of rulers ! Have regard for me who am supplicating you. (43)

त्वयाप्युक्तं महाराज न भेतव्यमिति स्वयम्।
रावणस्त्वब्रवीदधृष्टः स्वसारं तत्र संस्थिताम् ॥ ४४ ॥

“An assurance has been given by you, of your own accord, O great king, in the following words: ‘You ought not to be afraid.’” Feeling rejoiced, Rāvaṇa, however, spoke as follows to his sister, standing there: (44)

क्व चासौ तव भर्ता वै मम शीघ्रं निवेद्यताम्।
सह तेन गमिष्यामि सुरलोकं जयाय हि ॥ ४५ ॥

“Nay, let it be made known to me without delay where your husband actually is. I shall proceed with him to the realm of gods without doubt for the sake of conquest. (45)

तव कारुण्यसौहार्दान्निवृत्तोऽस्मि मधोर्वधात्।
इत्युक्ता सा समुत्थाप्य प्रसुप्तं तं निशाचरम् ॥ ४६ ॥
अब्रवीत् सम्प्रहृष्टेव राक्षसी सा पतिं वचः।
एष प्राप्तो दशग्रीवो मम भ्राता महाबलः ॥ ४७ ॥

“Out of compassion and goodwill for you I have desisted from the destruction of Madhu.” Having awakened that ranger of the night, who was fast asleep, when reassured in these words and transported with joy as it were, the aforesaid ogress Kumbhīnāsī, spoke as follows to her husband: “Here stands my exceptionally mighty brother, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) arrived. (46-47)

सुरलोकजयाकाङ्क्षी साहाय्ये त्वां वृणोति च।
तदस्य त्वं सहायार्थं सबन्धुर्गच्छ राक्षस ॥ ४८ ॥

“Desirous of conquering the realm of gods, he asks you for help. Therefore, accompanied by your kinsmen, go out for help, O ogre! (48)

स्निग्धस्य भजमानस्य युक्तमर्थाय कल्पितुम्।
तस्यास्तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा तथेत्याह मधुर्वचः ॥ ४९ ॥

“It is advisable for you to do your best in the interest of one who is affectionate to you and loves you as a son-in-law.” Hearing the aforesaid advice, Madhu replied as follows: “So be it.” (49)

ददर्श राक्षसश्रेष्ठं यथान्यायमुपेत्य सः।
पूजयामास धर्मेण रावणं राक्षसाधिपम् ॥ ५० ॥

He saw Rāvaṇa, the foremost of ogres, and approaching him according to propriety, paid respects to the suzerain lord of ogres in accordance with the prescribed code of conduct. (50)

प्राप्य पूजां दशग्रीवो मधुवेश्मनि वीर्यवान्।
तत्र चैकां निशामुष्य गमनायोपचक्रमे ॥ ५१ ॥

Receiving attention in the abode of Madhu and having stayed there for one night, the powerful Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) got ready to leave for the realm of gods. (51)

ततः कैलासमासाद्य शैलं वैश्रवणालयम्।
राक्षसेन्द्रो महेन्द्राभः सेनामुपनिवेशयत् ॥ ५२ ॥

Having reached Mount Kailāsa, the abode of Kubera (son of Viśravā), Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, who resembled the mighty Indra, encamped his army there. (52)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे पञ्चविंशः सर्गः ॥ २५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-five in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षड्विंशः सर्गः

Canto XXVI

Rāvaṇa violates the celestial nymph Rambhā and receives a terrible curse from Nalakūbara

स तु तत्र दशग्रीवः सह सैन्येन वीर्यवान् ।
अस्तं प्राप्ते दिनकरे निवासं समरोचयत् ॥ १ ॥

The sun having set, that powerful ten-headed monster for his part chose to encamp there with his army. (1)

उदिते विमले चन्द्रे तुल्यपर्वतवर्चसि ।
प्रसुप्तं सुमहत् सैन्यं नानाप्रहरणायुधम् ॥ २ ॥

When the cloudless moon, equal in splendour to the mountain on which it appeared, had risen, the huge army, equipped with various arms, lay fast asleep. (2)

रावणस्तु महावीर्यो निषण्णः शैलमूर्धनि ।
स ददर्श गुणांस्तत्र चन्द्रपादपशोभितान् ॥ ३ ॥

Resting on the top of the hill, the exceptionally powerful and notorious Rāvaṇa for his part surveyed the charms of the mountain brought into relief by the moon and the trees. (3)

कर्णिकारवनैर्दीप्तैः कदम्बबकुलैस्तथा ।
पद्मिनीभिश्च फुल्लाभिर्मन्दाकिन्या जलैरपि ॥ ४ ॥

चम्पकाशोकपुंनागमन्दारतरुभिस्तथा ।
चूतपाटललोध्रैश्च प्रियङ्गवर्जुनकेतकैः ॥ ५ ॥

तगरैर्नारिकेलैश्च प्रियालपनसैस्तथा ।
एतैरन्यैश्च तरुभिरुद्भासितवनान्तरे ॥ ६ ॥

किन्नरा मदनेनार्ता रक्ता मधुरकण्ठिनः ।
समं सम्प्रजगुर्यत्र मनस्तुष्टिविवर्धनम् ॥ ७ ॥

On that mountain—whose forest recesses were adorned with brilliant Karṇikāra groves as also Kadamba and Vakula trees, lotus ponds full of the waters of the Mandākinī and spotted with full blown flowers, Campaka, Aśoka, Punnāga and Mandāra trees and with mango, Pāṭala, and Lodhra as well as with Priyaṅgu, Arjuna and Ketaka, Tagara, coconut, Priyāla, Panasa (bread-fruit) and other trees—love-stricken and sweet-throated Kinnaras beautifully sang with emotion in concert melodies which intensified the delight of one's mind. (4—7)

विद्याधरा मदक्षीबा मदरक्तान्तलोचनाः ।
योषिद्भिः सह संक्रान्ताश्चिक्रीडुर्जहृषुश्च वै ॥ ८ ॥

Intoxicated with drink, the corners of their eyes reddened by drunkenness, Vidyādharas (celestial artistes) mingled with their consorts actually sported and made merry. (8)

घण्टानामिव संनादः शुश्रुवे मधुरस्वनः ।
अप्सरोगणसङ्घानां गायतां धनदालये ॥ ९ ॥

Like the ringing of bells, the sweet melody of troupes of celestial nymphs singing in the mansion of Kubera (the bestower of riches) was heard. (9)

पुष्पवर्षाणि मुञ्चन्तो नगाः पवनताडिताः ।
शैलं तं वासयन्तीव मधुमाधवगन्धिनः ॥ १० ॥

Raining showers of flowers when shaken by the winds, trees, bearing the fragrance of all vernal flowers, were perfuming the said mountain, as it were. (10)

मधुपुष्परजःपृक्तं गन्धमादाय पुष्कलम् ।
प्रववौ वर्धयन् कामं रावणस्य सुखोऽनिलः ॥ ११ ॥

Wafting the copious fragrance mixed with the pollen as well as the honey of flowers, a delightful breeze gently blew inflaming the concupiscence of Rāvaṇa. (11)

गेयात् पुष्पसमृद्ध्या च शैत्याद् वायोर्गिरिगुणात् ।
प्रवृत्तायां रजन्यां च चन्द्रस्योदयेन च ॥ १२ ॥

रावणः स महावीर्यः कामस्य वशमागतः ।
विनिःश्वस्य विनिःश्वस्य शशिनं समवैक्षत ॥ १३ ॥

By reason of the music, the wealth of blossom, the coolness of the wind, the charm of the hill and the rising of the moon, now that the night had commenced, the aforesaid Rāvaṇa, who was exceptionally powerful, fell a prey to concupiscence. Sighing again and again, he gazed at the moon. (12-13)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे तत्र दिव्याभरणभूषिता ।
 सर्वाप्सरोवरा रम्भा पूर्णचन्द्रनिभानना ॥ १४ ॥
 दिव्यचन्दनलिमाङ्गी मन्दारकृतमूर्धजा ।
 दिव्योत्सवकृतारम्भा दिव्यपुष्पविभूषिता ॥ १५ ॥
 चक्षुर्मनोहरं पीनं मेखलादामभूषितम् ।
 समुद्रहन्ती जघनं रतिप्राभृतमुत्तमम् ॥ १६ ॥
 कृतैर्विशेषकैराद्वैः षडर्तुकुसुमोद्भवैः ।
 बभावन्त्यतमेव श्रीः कान्तिश्रीद्युतिकीर्तिभिः ॥ १७ ॥
 नीलं सतोयमेघाभं वस्त्रं समवगुण्ठिता ।
 यस्या वक्त्रं शशिनिभं भुवौ चापनिभे शुभे ॥ १८ ॥
 ऊरू करिकराकारौ करौ पल्लवकोमलौ ।
 सैन्यमध्येन गच्छन्ती रावणेनोपलक्षिता ॥ १९ ॥

In the meantime appeared there Rambhā, the foremost of all celestial nymphs, decked with celestial jewels, whose face resembled the full moon, whose limbs were smeared with ethereal sandal-paste, whose tresses were adorned with heavenly Mandāra flowers, who had just commenced her journey to revel in a heavenly joy and was adorned with heavenly flowers, who was distinguished by soul-captivating eyes and fleshy hips decked with a girdle, which she carried as an excellent gift of love as it were, and who, what with wet ornaments made of flowers of all the six seasons, and what with her splendour, elegance, brilliance and fame, shone like another Śrī (the goddess of fortune); whose face shone like the moon, whose beautiful eyebrows resembled two bows, whose thighs were shaped like the trunk of an elephant and whose hands were soft like tender leaves, and who, wearing as she did, a blue sari resembling a rainy cloud, was perceived by Rāvaṇa while passing through his army. (14—19)

तां समुत्थाय गच्छन्तीं कामबाणवशं गतः ।
 करे गृहीत्वा लज्जन्तीं स्मयमानोऽभ्यभाषत ॥ २० ॥

Springing on his feet, and holding her by the hand as she was wending her way blushing, Rāvaṇa, who had fallen a prey to the darts of love, then smilingly spoke to her (as follows): (20)

क्व गच्छसि वरारोहे कां सिद्धिं भजसे स्वयम् ।
 कस्याभ्युदयकालोऽयं यस्त्वां समुपभोक्ष्यते ॥ २१ ॥

“Where are you going, O lady of lovely limbs? Whose cherished object are you seeking to accomplish by yourself? Whose is the hour of good fortune approaching, who is going to enjoy you? (21)

त्वदाननरसस्याद्य पद्मोत्पलसुगन्धिनः ।
 सुधामृतरसस्येव कोऽद्य तृप्तिं गमिष्यति ॥ २२ ॥

“Who will be sated today by quaffing the nectar of nectars in the shape of the sweetness of your lips bearing the fragrance of the lotus and the lily? (22)

स्वर्णकुम्भनिभौ पीनौ शुभौ भीरु निरन्तरौ ।
 कस्योरःस्थलसंस्पर्शं दास्यतस्ते कुचाविमौ ॥ २३ ॥

“To whose bosom are these fully developed, beautiful and closely set breasts of yours, resembling a pair of gold pitchers, going to give their blessed touch, O timid one? (23)

सुवर्णचक्रप्रतिमं स्वर्णदामचितं पृथु ।
 अध्यारोक्ष्यति कस्तेऽद्य जघनं स्वर्गरूपिणम् ॥ २४ ॥

“Who is going to bestride today your broad hips resembling a disc of gold, encircled by a girdle of gold and which is heaven incarnate? (24)

मद्विशिष्टः पुमान् कोऽद्य शक्रो विष्णुरथाश्विनौ ।
 मामतीत्य हि यच्च त्वं यासि भीरु न शोभनम् ॥ २५ ॥

“What male is superior to me today—be he Indra (the ruler of gods), Lord Viṣṇu (the Protector of the universe) or the Aśvins (the twin-born gods who are the physicians of gods)? Nay, it is surely not good that you are passing by me, O timid one! (25)

विश्रम त्वं पृथुश्रोणि शिलातलमिदं शुभम् ।
 त्रैलोक्ये यः प्रभुश्चैव मदन्यो नैव विद्यते ॥ २६ ॥

“Rest awhile on this lovely rock, O lady of shapely hips! Nay, he who lords it over the three worlds is certainly no other than myself. (26)

तदेवं प्राञ्जलिः प्रह्वो याचते त्वां दशाननः ।
भर्तुर्भर्ता विधाता च त्रैलोक्यस्य भजस्व माम् ॥ २७ ॥

With joined palms Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, who is the master of the lords of the three worlds as well as their sustainer, submissively supplicates you in this way. Pray, therefore accept me.” (27)

एवमुक्ताब्रवीद् रम्भा वेपमाना कृताञ्जलिः ।
प्रसीद नार्हसे वक्तुमीदृशं त्वं हि मे गुरुः ॥ २८ ॥

Shaking, when spoken to in these words, Rambhā replied with joined palms, “Be gracious to me; you ought not to speak in this strain, since you are my elder. (28)

अन्येभ्योऽपि त्वया रक्ष्या प्राप्नुयां धर्षणं यदि ।
तद्धर्मतः स्नुषा तेऽहं तत्त्वमेतद् ब्रवीमि ते ॥ २९ ॥

“I stand in the relation of a daughter-in-law to you from the legal point of view: I tell you this truth. Hence I deserve to be protected by you even from others if I suffer violence at their hands.” (29)

अथाब्रवीद् दशग्रीवश्चरणाधोमुखीं स्थिताम् ।
रोमहर्षमनुप्राप्तां दृष्टमात्रेण तां तदा ॥ ३० ॥

Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, then said to Rambhā, who stood with her face downcast, her eyes focussed on her feet, and experienced horripilation at his mere sight: (30)

सुतस्य यदि मे भार्या ततस्त्वं हि स्नुषा भवेः ।
बाढमित्येव सा रम्भा प्राह रावणमुत्तरम् ॥ ३१ ॥

“If you are my son’s wife, then only you can be my daughter-in-law.” “Indeed!” said the celebrated Rambhā in reply to Rāvaṇa. (31)

धर्मतस्ते सुतस्याहं भार्या राक्षसपुङ्गव ।
पुत्रः प्रियतरः प्राणैर्भर्तुर्वैश्रवणस्य ते ॥ ३२ ॥

“I am lawfully the wife of your son, O bull among the ogres! He is a son of your brother, Kubera (son of Viśravā), dearer to him than his own life. (32)

विख्यातस्त्रिषु लोकेषु नलकूबर इत्ययम् ।
धर्मतो यो भवेद् विप्रः क्षत्रियो वीर्यतो भवेत् ॥ ३३ ॥
क्रोधाद् यश्च भवेदग्निः क्षान्त्या च वसुधासमः ।
तस्यास्मि कृतसंकेता लोकपालसुतस्य वै ॥ ३४ ॥

“He is widely known in all the three worlds as Nalakūbara. I have actually made an appointment to meet that son of a guardian of the world, who is a Brāhmaṇa from the legal point of view (sprung as he is from the loins of a Brāhmaṇa) but who is a Kṣatriya in respect of valour, nay, who is a fire in wrath but a compeer of Mother Earth in forbearance. (33-34)

तमुद्दिश्य तु मे सर्वं विभूषणमिदं कृतम् ।
यथा तस्य हि नान्यस्य भावो मां प्रति तिष्ठति ॥ ३५ ॥

“All this decoration has been made by me for his sake alone. Precisely as his heart is set on me as on none else, my heart too is set on him alone. (35)

तेन सत्येन मां राजन् मोक्तुमर्हस्यरिंदम ।
स हि तिष्ठति धर्मात्मा मां प्रतीक्ष्य समुत्सुकः ॥ ३६ ॥

“Since that pious-minded soul stands eagerly waiting for me, O scourge of your foes, you should let me go, O king, on the basis of this truth. (36)

तत्र विघ्नं तु तस्येह कर्तुं नार्हसि मुञ्च माम् ।
सद्भिराचरितं मार्गं गच्छ राक्षसपुङ्गव ॥ ३७ ॥

“Certainly you ought not to thwart this purpose of his; therefore leave me. Walk in the path trodden by the virtuous, O bull among the ogres. (37)

माननीयो मम त्वं हि पालनीया तथास्मि ते ।
एवमुक्तो दशग्रीवः प्रत्युवाच विनीतवत् ॥ ३८ ॥

“Inasmuch as you deserve to be honoured by me, I likewise deserve to be protected by you.” Spoken to in these words by her, Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, replied like a humble man as follows: (38)

स्नुषास्मि यदवोचस्त्वमेकपत्नीष्वयं क्रमः ।
 देवलोकस्थितिरियं सुराणां शाश्वती मता ॥ ३९ ॥
 पतिरप्सरसां नास्ति न चैकस्त्रीपरिग्रहः ।
 एवमुक्त्वा स तां रक्षो निवेश्य च शिलातले ॥ ४० ॥
 कामभोगाभिसंरक्तो मैथुनायोपचक्रमे ।
 सा विमुक्ता ततो रम्भा भ्रष्टमाल्यविभूषणा ॥ ४१ ॥
 गजेन्द्राक्रीडमथिता नदीवाकुलतां गता ।
 लुलिताकुलकेशान्ता करवेपितपल्लवा ॥ ४२ ॥
 पवनेनावधूतेव लता कुसुमशालिनी ।
 सा वेपमाना लज्जन्ती भीता करकृताञ्जलिः ॥ ४३ ॥
 नलकूबरमासाद्य पादयोर्निपपात ह ।
 तदवस्थां च तां दृष्ट्वा महात्मा नलकूबरः ॥ ४४ ॥
 अब्रवीत् किमिदं भद्रे पादयोः पतितासि मे ।
 सा वै निःश्वसमाना तु वेपमाना कृताञ्जलिः ॥ ४५ ॥
 तस्मै सर्वं यथातत्त्वमाख्यातुमुपचक्रमे ।
 एष देव दशग्रीवः प्राप्तो गन्तुं त्रिविष्टपम् ॥ ४६ ॥
 तेन सैन्यसहायेन निशेयं परिणामिता ।
 आयान्ती तेन दृष्ट्वास्मि त्वत्सकाशमरिन्दम ॥ ४७ ॥

“The plea which you have given in the words, ‘I am your daughter-in-law’ holds good in the case of those who have only one husband. Celestial nymphs have no husband nor are gods committed to a single wife; such is the eternal law obtaining in the realm of gods.” Saying so and laying her on the rock, the ogre, who was excessively fond of gratifying his lust, started copulating with her. Her ornaments of flowers having fallen off in the course of the embrace, Rambhā felt disturbed in mind like a river ruffled by the sport of a lordly elephant, and was then let go by Rāvaṇa. With the ends of her tresses dishevelled and tossed about, and her hands, resembling tender leaves, shaken, she looked like a creeper laden with flowers and shaken by the wind. Approaching Nalakūbara with joined palms, she fell at his feet, trembling with fear and feeling abashed. Nay, seeing her reduced to that condition, the magnanimous Nalakūbara said, “Blessed one, how is it that you have fallen at my feet?” Trembling and breathing hard, she for her part actually proceeded with joined palms to relate to him everything according to facts as follows: “Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) has arrived on his way to heaven, my lord! The night has been spent by him in the company of his army here. While coming to your presence, O scourge of your foes, I was caught sight of by him. (39—47)

गृहीता तेन पृष्टास्मि कस्य त्वमिति रक्षसा ।
 मया तु सर्वं यत् सत्यं तस्मै सर्वं निवेदितम् ॥ ४८ ॥
 “Seizing hold of me, that ogre inquired of me, ‘To whom do you belong?’ For my part, all that was true was related by me to him. (48)

काममोहाभिभूतात्मा नाश्रौषीत् तद् वचो मम ।
 याच्यमानो मया देव स्नुषा तेऽहमिति प्रभो ॥ ४९ ॥
 तत् सर्वं पृष्ठतः कृत्वा बलात् तेनास्मि धर्षिता ।
 एवं त्वमपराधं मे क्षन्तुमर्हसि सुव्रत ॥ ५० ॥

“His mind being overpowered by infatuation born of lust, he, however, would not listen to that plea of mine. Disregarding all that, O adorable one, even though he was being appealed to by me in the words: ‘I am your daughter-in-law’, I was violated by him perforce, my lord! You ought to condone my fault committed in such circumstances, O god of commendable vows! (49-50)

नहि तुल्यं बलं सौम्य स्त्रियाश्च पुरुषस्य हि ।
 एतच्छ्रुत्वा तु संक्रुद्धस्तदा वैश्रवणात्मजः ॥ ५१ ॥
 धर्षणां तां परां श्रुत्वा ध्यानं सम्प्रविवेश ह ।
 तस्य तत् कर्म विज्ञाय तदा वैश्रवणात्मजः ॥ ५२ ॥
 मुहूर्तात् क्रोधताम्राक्षस्तोयं जग्राह पाणिना ।
 गृहीत्वा सलिलं सर्वमुपस्पृश्य यथाविधि ॥ ५३ ॥
 उत्ससर्ज तदा शापं राक्षसेन्द्राय दारुणम् ।
 अकामा तेन यस्मात् त्वं बलात् भद्रे प्रधर्षिता ॥ ५४ ॥
 तस्मात् स युवतीमन्यां नाकामामुपयास्यति ।
 यदा ह्यकामां कामार्तो धर्षयिष्यति योषितम् ॥ ५५ ॥
 मूर्धा तु सप्तधा तस्य शकलीभविता तदा ।
 तस्मिन्नुदाहृते शापे ज्वलिताग्निसमप्रभे ॥ ५६ ॥

देवदुन्दुभयो नेदुः पुष्पवृष्टिश्च खाच्च्युता ।
पितामहमुखाश्चैव सर्वे देवाः प्रहर्षिताः ॥ ५७ ॥

“A woman’s strength and that of a man are in no way equal. I beg you to forgive this offence of mine.” Nalakūbara (son of Kubera) for his part was enraged to hear this. Hearing of that great outrage, he then went into a trance: so the tradition goes (in order to verify the truth of the allegation). Having come to know of his aforesaid act after a short while, Nalakūbara (son of Kubera), his eyes inflamed with anger, then took water in his left hand. Holding the water in his hand and sprinkling with it all his sense-organs with due ceremony, he pronounced on that occasion the following terrible curse on Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres: “Since, O blessed lady, you stand violated by him perforce, unwilling as you were, he shall no longer be able to approach for sexual intercourse any other young woman who is unwilling to accept him. When, however, stricken with love, he will violate a woman who is unwilling to approach him, his head will actually be split into seven pieces that very moment.”

When the aforesaid imprecation, which resembled a lighted fire, was uttered, the kettle-drums of gods sounded and an abundance of flowers were showered from the heavens. Nay, all the gods headed by Brahmā (the grandfather of the entire creation) were transported with joy. (51—57)

ज्ञात्वा लोकगतिं सर्वा तस्य मृत्युं च रक्षसः ।

ऋषयः पितरश्चैव प्रीतिमापुरनुत्तमाम् ॥ ५८ ॥

On coming to know in its entirety the fate of the world as well as of the ogre’s death, Ṛṣis (the seers of Vedic Mantras) as well as the manes experienced unsurpassed joy. (58)

श्रुत्वा तु स दशग्रीवस्तं शापं रोमहर्षणम् ।

नारीषु मैथुनीभावं नाकामास्वभ्यरोचयत् ॥ ५९ ॥

Hearing of the aforesaid execration, which caused his hair to stand on end, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) shunned any inclination to copulate with women who were unwilling to approach him. (59)

तेन नीताः स्त्रियः प्रीतिमापुः सर्वाः पतिव्रताः ।

नलकूबरनिर्मुक्तं शापं श्रुत्वा मनःप्रियम् ॥ ६० ॥

All the ladies who were devoted to their husband and had been borne away by him experienced joy on hearing of the curse pronounced by Nalakūbara, which was pleasing to their mind. (60)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे षड्विंशः सर्गः ॥ २६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-six in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXVII

Rāvaṇa, accompanied by his army, invades the realm of Indra; Indra invokes the help of Lord Viṣṇu; Viṣṇu dismisses Indra with a vow to kill Rāvaṇa; encounter of the ogres with the gods; Sumālī is killed by Vasu

कैलासं लङ्घयित्वा तु ससैन्यबलवाहनः ।
आससाद महातेजा इन्द्रलोकं दशाननः ॥ १ ॥

Getting beyond Kailāsa, accompanied by the might of his army and vehicles, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) for his part, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, reached the realm of Indra, the ruler of gods. (1)

तस्य राक्षससैन्यस्य समन्तादुपयास्यतः ।

देवलोके बभौ शब्दो भिद्यमानार्णवोपमः ॥ २ ॥

The tumult of the army of the ogres advancing on all sides resounded in the realm of gods like the roar of the sea while it was being churned. (2)

श्रुत्वा तु रावणं प्राप्तमिन्द्रश्चलित आसनात्।
देवानथाब्रवीत् तत्र सर्वानेव समागतान्॥ ३॥
आदित्यांश्च वसून् रुद्रान् साध्यांश्च समरुद्रणान्।
सज्जा भवत युद्धार्थं रावणस्य दुरात्मनः॥ ४॥

Shaken from his royal seat on hearing of Rāvaṇa having arrived, Indra, the ruler of gods, for his part forthwith said to all the gods assembled there—the twelve sons of Aditi and the eight Vasus, the eleven Rudras and the Sādhyas including the forty-nine Maruts, wind-gods, “Get ready to give battle to the evil-minded Rāvaṇa.” (3-4)

एवमुक्तास्तु शक्रेण देवाः शक्रसमा युधि।
संनह्य सुमहासत्त्वा युद्धश्रद्धासमन्विताः॥ ५॥
स तु दीनः परित्रस्तो महेन्द्रो रावणं प्रति।
विष्णोः समीपमागत्य वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह॥ ६॥

Putting on armour when commanded thus by Indra, the gods, who were equals of Indra in war, and were endowed with exceptional valour, were seized with martial fervour. Seeking the presence of Lord Viṣṇu, the mighty Indra for his part; who was greatly afraid of Rāvaṇa and felt dejected, submitted as follows, they say: (5-6)

विष्णो कथं करिष्यामि रावणं राक्षसं प्रति।
अहोऽतिबलवद् रक्षो युद्धार्थमभिवर्तते॥ ७॥

“How shall I deal with the ogre, Rāvaṇa, O Lord Viṣṇu? Alas, the very mighty ogre stands at my door seeking an encounter. (7)

वरप्रदानाद् बलवान् न खल्वन्येन हेतुना।
तत् तु सत्यं वचः कार्यं यदुक्तं पद्मयोनिना॥ ८॥

“Indeed he has grown mighty by virtue of the bestowal of boons and for no other reason. That word, which has been uttered by Brahmā (the lotus-born), has, however, to be carried into effect. (8)

तद् यथा नमुचिर्वृत्रो बलिर्नरकशम्बरौ।
त्वद्बलं समवष्टभ्य मया दग्धास्तथा कुरु॥ ९॥

“Therefore, even as leaning on Your might I exterminated the demons, Namuci, Vṛtra, Bali, Naraka and Śambara, lend me Your strength likewise. (9)

नह्यन्यो देवदेवेश त्वदृते मधुसूदन।
गतिः परायणं चापि त्रैलोक्ये सचराचरे॥ १०॥

“Indeed, there is no refuge, no ultimate resort either, other than You, O Ruler of the adored of gods, in all the three worlds comprising the mobile and the immobile creation, O Destroyer of the demon Madhu! (10)

त्वं हि नारायणः श्रीमान् पद्मनाभः सनातनः।
त्वयेमे स्थापिता लोकाः शक्रश्चाहं सुरेश्वरः॥ ११॥

“Indeed, You are the glorious and eternal Nārāyaṇa, who has a lotus sprung from His navel. By You were these worlds set up as well as I, Indra, as the ruler of gods. (11)

त्वया सृष्टमिदं सर्वं त्रैलोक्यं सचराचरम्।
त्वामेव भगवन् सर्वे प्रविशन्ति युगक्षये॥ १२॥

“By You were evolved all these three worlds including the animate and inanimate creation. In You alone, O Lord, enter all at the end of the world-cycle. (12)

तदाचक्ष्व यथातत्त्वं देवदेव मम स्वयम्।
असिचक्रसहायस्त्वं योत्स्यसे रावणं प्रति॥ १३॥

“Therefore, tell me Yourself, O God of gods, the way in which victory may woo me or whether, equipped with Your sword and discus, You will wage war against Rāvaṇa.” (13)

एवमुक्तः स शक्रेण देवो नारायणः प्रभुः।
अब्रवीन् परित्रासः कर्तव्यः श्रूयतां च मे॥ १४॥

Spoken to in these words by Indra, the said almighty Lord Nārāyaṇa replied as follows: “No apprehension need be entertained by you. And let My advice be heard by you. (14)

न तावदेष दुष्टात्मा शक्यो जेतुं सुरासुरैः ।
हन्तुं चापि समासाद्य वरदानेन दुर्जयः ॥ १५ ॥

“This wicked soul can in no case be conquered by gods and demons, combined, much less can he be killed on encountering him, hard to conquer as he is by virtue of the boon conferred on him by Brahmā. (15)

सर्वथा तु महत् कर्म करिष्यति बलोत्कटः ।
राक्षसः पुत्रसहितो दृष्टमेतन्निर्गतः ॥ १६ ॥

“Accompanied by his son, the ogre for his part, intoxicated as he is with power, will perform feats which will be mighty in every way: this has been intuitively perceived by Me. (16)

यत् तु मां त्वमभाषिष्ठा युध्यस्वेति सुरेश्वर ।
नाहं तं प्रतियोक्त्यामि रावणं राक्षसं युधि ॥ १७ ॥

“As regards what you have said to Me, viz., ‘Fight’, O ruler of gods, I will not encounter the ogre Rāvaṇa in combat. (17)

नाहत्वा समरे शत्रुं विष्णुः प्रतिनिवर्तते ।
दुर्लभश्चैव कामोऽद्य वरगुप्ताद्धि रावणात् ॥ १८ ॥

“Viṣṇu does not, as a rule, retreat without killing His enemy in combat. And the ambition of scoring a victory is difficult to realize against Rāvaṇa, who stands protected by a boon today. (18)

प्रतिजाने च देवेन्द्र त्वत्समीपे शतक्रतो ।
भवितास्मि यथास्याहं रक्षसो मृत्युकारणम् ॥ १९ ॥

“I, however, O ruler of gods, solemnly declare in your presence, O Indra (who is presupposed to have performed in his previous lives a hundred Aśwamedha sacrifices as a condition precedent for attaining that office), that I shall prove to be the cause of the death of this ogre when the time comes for it. (19)

अहमेव निहन्तास्मि रावणं सपुरःसरम् ।
देवता नन्दयिष्यामि ज्ञात्वा कालमुपागतम् ॥ २० ॥

“I Myself shall kill Rāvaṇa including those marching ahead of him on coming to know of his end having arrived and thereby bring joy to gods. (20)

एतत् ते कथितं तत्त्वं देवराज शचीपते ।
युद्ध्यस्व विगतत्रासः सुरैः सार्धं महाबल ॥ २१ ॥

“Thus truth has been revealed to you, O king of gods and husband of Śacī. Completely rid of fear, fight alongwith gods, O very mighty god!” (21)

ततो रुद्राः सहादित्या वसवो मरुतोऽश्विनौ ।
संनद्धा निर्ययुस्तूर्णं राक्षसानभितः पुरात् ॥ २२ ॥

Clad in armour, the Rudras accompanied by the sons of Aditi, the Vasus, the wind-gods, the two Aświns (the twin-born physicians of gods) thereupon sallied forth from the city of gods with all speed to meet the ogres. (22)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे नादः शुश्रुवे रजनीक्षये ।
तस्य रावणसैन्यस्य प्रयुद्धस्य समन्ततः ॥ २३ ॥

In the meantime at the close of the night was heard on all sides the tumult of the Rākṣasa army, whose method of fighting was superior to that of the gods. (23)

ते प्रबुद्धा महावीर्या अन्योन्यमभिवीक्ष्य वै ।
संग्राममेवाभिमुखा अभ्यवर्तन्त हृष्टवत् ॥ २४ ॥

Perceiving one another when fully awakened, the ogres, who were endowed with extraordinary valour, advanced, full of joy with their faces turned towards the battlefield alone. (24)

ततो दैवतसैन्यानां संक्षोभः समजायत ।
तदक्षयं महासैन्यं दृष्ट्वा समरमूर्धनि ॥ २५ ॥

On seeing that huge and imperishable army in the forefront of battle, a great confusion was sown among the ranks of the gods. (25)

ततो युद्धं समभवद् देवदानवरक्षसाम् ।
घोरं तुमुलनिर्ह्रादं नानाप्रहरणोद्यतम् ॥ २६ ॥

Then ensued a grim fight between the gods, on the one hand, and the Dānavas and ogres, on the other, amidst a tumultuous roar and a flourish of weapons of every kind. (26)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे शूरा राक्षसा घोरदर्शनाः ।
 युद्धार्थं समवर्तन्त सचिवा रावणस्य ते ॥ २७ ॥
 मारीचश्च प्रहस्तश्च महापाशर्वमहोदरौ ।
 अकम्पनो निकुम्भश्च शुकः सारण एव च ॥ २८ ॥
 संह्लादो धूमकेतुश्च महादंष्ट्रो घटोदरः ।
 जम्बुमाली महाह्लादो विरूपाक्षश्च राक्षसः ॥ २९ ॥
 सुप्तघ्नो यज्ञकोपश्च दुर्मुखो दूषणः खरः ।
 त्रिशिराः करवीराक्षः सूर्यशत्रुश्च राक्षसः ॥ ३० ॥
 महाकायोऽतिकायश्च देवान्तकनरान्तकौ ।
 एतैः सर्वैः परिवृतो महावीर्यैर्महाबलः ॥ ३१ ॥
 रावणस्यार्यकः सैन्यं सुमाली प्रविवेश ह ।
 स दैवतगणान् सर्वान् नानाप्रहरणैः शितैः ॥ ३२ ॥
 व्यध्वंसयत् समं क्रुद्धो वायुर्जलधरानिव ।
 तद् दैवतबलं राम हन्यमानं निशाचरैः ॥ ३३ ॥
 प्रणुनं सर्वतो दिग्भ्यः सिंहुनुन्ना मृगा इव ।
 एतस्मिन्नन्तरे शूरो वसूनामष्टमो वसुः ॥ ३४ ॥
 सावित्र इति विख्यातः प्रविवेश रणाजिरम् ।
 सैन्यैः परिवृतो हृष्टैर्नानाप्रहरणोद्यतैः ॥ ३५ ॥
 त्रासयन् शत्रुसैन्यानि प्रविवेश रणाजिरम् ।
 तथादित्यौ महावीर्यौ त्वष्टा पूषा च तौ समम् ॥ ३६ ॥
 निर्भयौ सह सैन्येन तदा प्राविशतां रणे ।
 ततो युद्धं समभवत् सुराणां सह राक्षसैः ॥ ३७ ॥
 क्रुद्धानां रक्षसां कीर्तिं समरेष्वनिवर्तिनाम् ।
 ततस्ते राक्षसाः सर्वे विबुधान् समरे स्थितान् ॥ ३८ ॥
 नानाप्रहरणैर्घोरैर्जघ्नुः शतसहस्रशः ।
 देवाश्च राक्षसान् घोरान् महाबलपराक्रमान् ॥ ३९ ॥
 समरे विमलैः शस्त्रैरुपनिन्युर्यमक्षयम् ।
 एतस्मिन्नन्तरे राम सुमाली नाम राक्षसः ॥ ४० ॥
 नानाप्रहरणैः क्रुद्धस्तत्सैन्यं सोऽभ्यवर्तत ।
 स दैवतबलं सर्वं नानाप्रहरणैः शितैः ॥ ४१ ॥
 व्यध्वंसयत् संक्रुद्धो वायुर्जलधरं यथा ।
 ते महाबाणवर्षैश्च शूलप्रासैः सुदारुणैः ॥ ४२ ॥
 हन्यमानाः सुराः सर्वे न व्यतिष्ठन्त संहताः ।
 ततो विद्राव्यमाणेषु दैवतेषु सुमालिना ॥ ४३ ॥
 वसूनामष्टमः क्रुद्धः सावित्रो वै व्यवस्थितः ।
 संवृतः स्वैरथानीकैः प्रहरन्तं निशाचरम् ॥ ४४ ॥

विक्रमेण महातेजा वारयामास संयुगे ।
 ततस्तयोर्महद् युद्धमभवल्लोमहर्षणम् ॥ ४५ ॥
 सुमालिनो वसोश्चैव समरेष्वनिवर्तिनोः ।
 ततस्तस्य महाबाणैर्वसुना सुमहात्मना ॥ ४६ ॥
 निहतः पन्नगरथः क्षणेन विनिपातितः ।
 हत्वा तु संयुगे तस्य रथं बाणशतैश्चितम् ॥ ४७ ॥
 गदां तस्य वधार्थाय वसुर्जग्राह पाणिना ।
 ततः प्रगृह्य दीप्ताग्रां कालदण्डोपमां गदाम् ॥ ४८ ॥
 तां मूर्ध्नि पातयामास सावित्रो वै सुमालिनः ।
 सा तस्योपरि चोल्काभा पतन्ती विबभौ गदा ॥ ४९ ॥
 इन्द्रप्रमुक्ता गर्जन्ती गिराविव महाशनिः ।
 तस्य नैवास्थि न शिरो न मांसं ददृशे तदा ॥ ५० ॥
 गदया भस्मतां नीतं निहतस्य रणाजिरे ।
 तं दृष्ट्वा निहतं संख्ये राक्षसास्ते समन्ततः ॥ ५१ ॥
 व्यद्रवन् सहिताः सर्वे क्रोशमानाः परस्परम् ।
 विद्राव्यमाणा वसुना राक्षसा नावतस्थिरे ॥ ५२ ॥

In the meantime turned up for an encounter the notorious ministers of Rāvaṇa, valiant ogres of grim aspect—Mārica and Prahasṭa as well as Mahāpārśwa and Mahodara, Akampana and Nikumbha, Śuka and Sāraṇa, Saṁhrāda and Dhūmaketu, Mahādamaṣṭra, Ghaṭodara, Jambumālī, Mahāhrāda and the ogre Virūpākṣa, Suptaghna and Yajñakopa, Durmukha, Dūṣaṇa, Khara, Triśirā, Karavīrākṣa and the ogre Sūryaśatru, Mahākāya and Atikāya, Devāntaka and Narāntaka. Surrounded by all these ogres of extraordinary valour, the very mighty Sumālī, Rāvaṇa's maternal grandfather, they say, duly entered the field of battle. Provoked to anger, he drove away all at once with his various sharp weapons all the celestial hosts even as a tempest scatters clouds. Being hit, O Rāma, by the rangers of the night, that army of gods fled in all directions like the deer chased by a lion. In the meantime a heroic Vasu, the eighth among the Vasus, widely known by the name of Sāvitra, duly entered the field of battle. Surrounded by exultant troops, equipped with every kind of weapon, he duly entered the battlefield, inspiring terror in the enemy ranks. Two highly valiant and intrepid sons of Aditi, Twaṣṭā and Pūṣā, likewise entered together the field of battle with their army at that very moment. Then ensued the conflict with ogres and the gods, who were jealous of the glory of the ogres, who never retreated in battles. Then all the ogres began to hit in hundreds of thousands the gods present on the battlefield with their formidable weapons of various kinds. The gods too with their stainless weapons dispatched to the abode of Death the terrible ogres who were endowed with extraordinary might and prowess. Provoked to anger, in the meantime, O Rāma, the notorious ogre, Sumālī by name, equipped with every kind of weapon, rushed upon the army of gods. Full of rage, he with his whetted weapons of various kinds exterminated the entire army of the gods even as a hurricane would disperse the clouds. Being lashed with hails of mighty arrows, as well as with pikes and spears, none of the aforesaid gods could stand united. Provoked to anger while the gods were being put to flight by Sumālī, Sāvitra, the eighth among the Vasus, however, stood firm. Nay, surrounded by his own troops, the god, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, stayed by dint of his prowess the ranger of the night, who was acting on the offensive in the battle. Then followed a great conflict, which caused one's hair to stand on end, between the two warriors, Sumālī and the Vasu, who never retreated in battles.

Hit with mighty arrows, the chariot of Sumālī, which was drawn by serpents, was overthrown in an instant by the exceptionally high-souled Vasu. Having destroyed in the course of the struggle the chariot of Sumālī, which was covered with hundreds of arrows, the Vasu picked up a mace in his hand to make short work of the ogre. Grasping tightly the mace, which with its flaming had resembled the rod of Death, Sāvitra actually brought it down on the head of Sumālī. Descending on the ogre, the mace in question which shone like a meteor, flashed like a mighty thunderbolt hurled with a crash by Indra (the ruler of gods) on a mountain. Having been reduced to ashes by the mace, neither the bones nor the head nor the flesh of the ogre who was killed could be seen on the field of battle. Seeing him killed in battle, all the ogres in a body fled in every direction calling out one another. Being put to flight by the Vasu, the ogres could not stand. (27—52)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे सप्तविंशः सर्गः ॥ २७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-seven in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टाविंशः सर्गः

Canto XXVIII

A duel between Meghanāda and Jayanta (Indra's son); Jayanta is removed to another place by Pulomā (his maternal grandfather); the appearance of Indra (the ruler of gods) on the field of battle; the destruction of the Rākṣasa army by the Rudras and the wind-gods; a duel between Indra and Rāvaṇa

सुमालिनं हतं दृष्ट्वा वसुना भस्मसात्कृतम् ।

स्वसैन्यं विद्रुतं चापि लक्षयित्वादितं सुरैः ॥ १ ॥

ततः स बलवान् क्रुद्धो रावणस्य सुतस्तदा ।

निवर्त्य राक्षसान् सर्वान् मेघनादो व्यवस्थितः ॥ २ ॥

Provoked to anger on seeing Sumālī killed and reduced to ashes by the Vasu, and on perceiving his army, too, put to flight when hard-pressed by the gods, nay, rallying all the ogres, the notorious Meghanāda, the mighty son of Rāvaṇa, firmly thereupon took his stand on the battlefield at that time. (1-2)

स रथेनाग्निवर्णेन कामगेन महारथः ।
अभिदुद्राव सेनां तां वनान्यग्निरिव ज्वलन् ॥ ३ ॥

Seated in his chariot which shone like fire and which coursed according to his will, that great car-warrior darted towards that army of gods as a blazing fire would rush towards forests. (3)

ततः प्रविशतस्तस्य विविधायुधधारिणः ।
विदुद्रुवुर्दिशः सर्वा दर्शनादेव देवताः ॥ ४ ॥

At his very sight, as he entered the field carrying every kind of weapon on his person, the gods then fled in all directions. (4)

न बभूव तदा कश्चिद् युयुत्सोरस्य सम्मुखे ।
सर्वानाविद्ध्य वित्रस्तांस्ततः शक्रोऽब्रवीत् सुरान् ॥ ५ ॥

None could stand before him at that time, pugnacious as he was. Admonishing all the terrified gods, Indra then said to them: (5)

न भेतव्यं न गन्तव्यं निवर्तध्वं रणे सुराः ।
एष गच्छति पुत्रो मे युद्धार्थमपराजितः ॥ ६ ॥

“You should not be afraid, nor should you run away; return to the battlefield, O gods! Here goes my son, who is invincible, for an encounter.” (6)

ततः शक्रसुतो देवो जयन्त इति विश्रुतः ।
रथेनाद्भुतकल्पेन संग्रामे सोऽभ्यवर्तत ॥ ७ ॥

The celebrated son of Indra, the god widely known by the name of Jayanta, thereupon appeared on the battlefield in a chariot of marvellous workmanship. (7)

ततस्ते त्रिदशाः सर्वे परिवार्य शचीसुतम् ।
रावणस्य सुतं युद्धे समासाद्य प्रजघ्निरे ॥ ८ ॥

Surrounding Jayanta (Śaci's son) and duly approaching Meghanāda (son of Rāvaṇa) on the battlefield, all the aforesaid gods thereupon began to strike him with violence. (8)

तेषां युद्धं समभवत् सदृशं देवरक्षसाम् ।
महेन्द्रस्य च पुत्रस्य राक्षसेन्द्रसुतस्य च ॥ ९ ॥

A well-matched contest now ensued between the aforesaid gods and ogres as well as between the son of the mighty Indra and the son of Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres. (9)

ततो मातलिपुत्रस्य गोमुखस्य स रावणिः ।
सारथेः पातयामास शरान् कनकभूषणान् ॥ १० ॥

Thereupon the said son of Rāvaṇa shot shafts decked with gold on the charioteer, Gomukha, son of Mātali, Indra's charioteer. (10)

शचीसुतश्चापि तथा जयन्तस्तस्य सारथिम् ।
तं चापि रावणिः क्रुद्धः समन्तात् प्रत्यविध्यत ॥ ११ ॥

Nay, the son of Śaci, Jayanta, too likewise wounded the charioteer of Meghanāda and, provoked to anger, the son of Rāvaṇa too wounded Jayanta on every side. (11)

स हि क्रोधसमाविष्टो बली विस्फारितेक्षणः ।
रावणिः शक्रतनयं शरवर्षैरवाकिरत् ॥ १२ ॥

Possessed with anger, that mighty son of Rāvaṇa, with dilated eyes actually covered the son of Indra with showers of shafts. (12)

ततो नानाप्रहरणाञ्छितधारान् सहस्रशः ।
पातयामास संक्रुद्धः सुरसैन्येषु रावणिः ॥ १३ ॥

Filled with rage, the son of Rāvaṇa then let fly on the celestial troops every kind of sharp-edged weapon in thousands. (13)

शतघ्नीमुसलप्रासगदाखड्गपरश्वधान् ।
महान्ति गिरिशृङ्गाणि पातयामास रावणिः ॥ १४ ॥

The son of Rāvaṇa also hurled Śataghñīs, pestles, spears, clubs, swords and battle-axes and huge crags on the celestial army. (14)

ततः प्रव्यथिताः लोकाः संजज्ञे च तमस्ततः ।

तस्य रावणपुत्रस्य शत्रुसैन्यानि निघ्नतः ॥ १५ ॥

As a result of the conjuring tricks of Meghanāda (son of Rāvaṇa) who was busy exterminating enemy battalions, darkness then prevailed on all sides and the worlds, including their inhabitants, felt greatly distressed in consequence. (15)

ततस्तद् दैवतबलं समन्तात् तं शचीसुतम् ।

बहुप्रकारमस्वस्थमभवच्छरपीडितम् ॥ १६ ॥

Afflicted by the arrows, the said army of the gods, rallying round the celebrated son of Śacī felt ill at ease in many ways. (16)

नाभ्यजानन्त चान्योन्यं रक्षो वा देवताथवा ।

तत्र तत्र विपर्यस्तं समन्तात् परिधावत ॥ १७ ॥

The belligerents could not distinguish one from the other; be it an ogre or a god, everyone was thrown into disorder on every side, everyone ran helter-skelter. (17)

देवा देवान् निजघ्नुस्ते राक्षसान् राक्षसास्तथा ।

सम्मूढास्तमसाच्छन्ना व्यद्रवन्परे तथा ॥ १८ ॥

Getting confounded, enveloped as they were in darkness, the gods struck the gods and the ogres struck the ogres, while others took to their heels. (18)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे वीरः पुलोमा नाम वीर्यवान् ।

दैत्येन्द्रस्तेन संगृह्य शचीपुत्रोऽपवाहितः ॥ १९ ॥

In the meantime there appeared on the battlefield a powerful hero, Pulomā by name, a ruler of the Daityas. Seizing hold of Jayanta, he for his part bore him away from the battle-field. (19)

संगृह्य तं तु दौहित्रं प्रविष्टः सागरं तदा ।

आर्यकः स हि तस्यासीत् पुलोमा येन सा शची ॥ २० ॥

Taking hold of his aforesaid daughter's son, he for his part then dived into the sea (in the depths of which he lived); for Pulomā, by whom (Jayanta's mother) Śacī had been begotten, was Jayanta's maternal grandfather. (20)

ज्ञात्वा प्रणाशं तु तदा जयन्तस्याथ देवताः ।

अग्रहृष्टास्ततः सर्वा व्यथिताः सम्प्रदुद्रुवुः ॥ २१ ॥

Coming to know of Jayanta's disappearance, on that occasion, the gods for their part forthwith felt cheerless and, stricken with affliction, all then took to their heels. (21)

रावणिस्त्वथ संक्रुद्धो बलैः परिवृतः स्वकैः ।

अभ्यधावत देवांस्तान् मुमोच च महास्वनम् ॥ २२ ॥

Surrounded by his forces, the son of Rāvaṇa full of rage, for his part forthwith rushed on the aforesaid gods and raised a loud cry. (22)

दृष्ट्वा प्रणाशं पुत्रस्य दैवतेषु च विद्रुतम् ।

मातलिं चाह देवेशो रथः समुपनीयताम् ॥ २३ ॥

Nay, seeing the disappearance of his son and the stampede among the gods, the ruler of the gods said to his charioteer, Mātali: "Let my chariot be brought near." (23)

स तु दिव्यो महाभीमः सज्ज एव महारथः ।

उपस्थितो मातलिना बाह्यमानो महाजवः ॥ २४ ॥

Being driven by Mātali for its part, that celestial, exceedingly formidable, and duly equipped huge chariot, which moved very fast, stood near. (24)

ततो मेघा रथे तस्मिंस्तडित्त्वन्तो महाबलाः ।

अग्रतो वायुचपला नेदुः परमनिःस्वनाः ॥ २५ ॥

Thereupon above that chariot and at its head very powerful clouds riven by lightning and set in motion by the wind thundered with a great noise. (25)

नानावाद्यानि बाद्यन्त गन्धर्वाश्च समाहिताः ।

ननृतुश्चाप्सरःसङ्घा निर्याते त्रिदशेश्वरे ॥ २६ ॥

When the ruler of gods sallied forth, Gandharvas (celestial musicians) played on different kinds of musical instruments in a chorus and bebies of celestial nymphs danced. (26)

रुद्रैर्वसुभिरादित्यैरश्विभ्यां समरुद्रणैः ।

वृतो नानाप्रहरणैर्निर्ययौ त्रिदशाधिपः ॥ २७ ॥

The suzerain lord of the gods sallied forth, surrounded by the eleven Rudras, the eight Vasus, the twelve sons of Aditi, accompanied by the hosts of the wind-gods, equipped with all kinds of weapons, and the two Aświns. (27)

निर्गच्छतस्तु शक्रस्य परुषः पवनो ववौ।
भास्करो निष्प्रभश्चैव महोल्काश्च प्रपेदिरे ॥ २८ ॥

As Indra set out, a piercing wind began to blow, the sun too was shorn of its splendour and huge meteors fell. (28)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे शूरो दशग्रीवः प्रतापवान्।
आरुरोह रथं दिव्यं निर्मितं विश्वकर्मणा ॥ २९ ॥
पन्नगैः सुमहाकायैर्वेष्टितं लोमहर्षणैः।
येषां निःश्वासवातेन प्रदीप्तमिव संयुगे ॥ ३० ॥

In the meantime the heroic and mighty Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, ascended his heavenly chariot, fashioned by Viśwakarmā (the artisan of heaven) and hung about by exceptionally gigantic serpents which caused one's hair to stand on end and due to the wind of whose exhalations the chariot appeared on the battlefield to be in flames. (29-30)

दैत्यैर्निशाचरैश्चैव स रथः परिवारितः।
समराभिमुखो दिव्यो महेन्द्रं सोऽभ्यवर्तत ॥ ३१ ॥

The chariot in question was surrounded by Daityas and night-stalkers. Advancing towards the battlefield, that celestial car stood in front of the mighty Indra. (31)

पुत्रं तं वारयित्वा तु स्वयमेव व्यवस्थितः।
सोऽपि युद्धाद् विनिष्क्रम्य रावणिः समुपाविशत् ॥ ३२ ॥

Keeping back his notorious son, Rāvaṇa for his part firmly took his stand on the field of battle himself. Issuing out of the battlefield, the said son of Rāvaṇa too sat quietly in his chariot. (32)

ततो युद्धं प्रवृत्तं तु सुराणां राक्षसैः सह।
शस्त्राणि वर्षतां तेषां मेघानामिव संयुगे ॥ ३३ ॥

Then started anew the struggle with the ogres of the aforesaid gods, raining weapons on the battlefield like clouds pouring rain. (33)

कुम्भकर्णस्तु दुष्टात्मा नानाप्रहरणोद्यतः।
नाज्ञायत तदा राजन् युद्धं केनाभ्यपद्यत ॥ ३४ ॥

The evil-minded Kumbhakarna for his part, who carried various uplifted weapons, did not know at that moment with whom he entered into combat, O king! (34)

दन्तैः पादैर्भुजैर्हस्तैः शक्तितोमरमुद्गरैः।
येन तेनैव संकुद्धस्ताडयामास देवताः ॥ ३५ ॥

Full of rage he struck the gods with any weapon that came to hand—with his teeth, feet, arms, hands, javelins, iron clubs and mallets. (35)

स तु रुद्रैर्महाघोरैः संगम्याथ निशाचरः।
प्रयुद्धस्तैश्च संग्रामे क्षतः शस्त्रैर्निरन्तरम् ॥ ३६ ॥

Standing at close quarters with the fierce Rudras, the said ogre, Kumbhakarna, forthwith entered into a hard struggle with them on the battlefield and was wounded by them with weapons so as to leave no space intact. (36)

बभौ शस्त्राचिततनुः कुम्भकर्णः क्षरन्नसृक्।
विद्युत्स्तनितनिर्घोषो धारावानिव तोयदः ॥ ३७ ॥

Covered all over with arrows and dripping with blood, Kumbhakarna shone like a cloud accompanied by lightning and thunder and raining torrentially. (37)

ततस्तद् राक्षसं सैन्यं प्रयुद्धं समरुद्गणैः।
रणे विद्रावितं सर्वं नानाप्रहरणैस्तदा ॥ ३८ ॥

Engaged in a hard struggle with the gods armed with all kinds of weapons and assisted by the wind-gods, the whole of that army of the ogres was put to flight on the battlefield. (38)

केचिद् विनिहताः कृत्ताश्चेष्टन्ति स्म महीतले।
वाहनेष्ववसक्ताश्च स्थिता एवापरे रणे ॥ ३९ ॥

Some were killed, while others, who had been cut down, rolled about on the ground; while still others remained stuck to their mounts on the field of battle. (39)

रथान् नागान् खरानुष्टान् पन्नगांस्तुरगांस्तथा ।
शिंशुमारान् वराहांश्च पिशाचवदनानपि ॥ ४० ॥
तान् समालिङ्ग्य बाहुभ्यां विष्टब्धाः केचिदुत्थिताः ।
देवैस्तु शस्त्रसंभिन्ना मग्निरे च निशाचराः ॥ ४१ ॥

Some rangers of the night lay motionless clasping firmly with their arms their respective chariots, elephants, donkeys, camels, serpents and horses, dolphins and boars as well as other animals with heads of goblins; while others, who had recovered from their unconsciousness, were torn asunder by the gods and died. (40-41)

चित्रकर्म इवाभाति सर्वेषां रणसम्प्लवः ।
निहतानां प्रसुप्तानां राक्षसानां महीतले ॥ ४२ ॥

The slaughter on the battlefield of all the ogres who lay killed on the earth's surface, appeared like a marvel. (42)

शोणितोदकनिष्पन्दा काकगृध्रसमाकुला ।
प्रवृत्ता संयुगमुखे शस्त्रग्राहवती नदी ॥ ४३ ॥

At the forefront of the battle flowed a river which carried blood for water, was crowded with crows and vultures and had weapons which had the appearance of alligators. (43)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे क्रुद्धो दशग्रीवः प्रतापवान् ।
निरीक्ष्य तु बलं सर्वं दैवतैर्विनिपातितम् ॥ ४४ ॥

In the meantime the glorious Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) for his part was provoked to anger on perceiving his entire army destroyed by the gods. (44)

स तं प्रतिविगाह्याशु प्रवृद्धं सैन्यसागरम् ।
त्रिदशान् समरे निघ्नन् शक्रमेवाभ्यवर्तत ॥ ४५ ॥

Diving deep in no time into that swollen sea of the army of the gods, he ran up to Indra himself, killing the gods in combat on the way. (45)

ततः शक्रो महच्चापं विस्फार्य सुमहास्वनम् ।
यस्य विस्फारनिर्घोषैः स्तनन्ति स्म दिशो दश ॥ ४६ ॥

Indra thereupon stood pulling the string of his mighty bow, which gave forth a thunderous sound and with the twang of which resounded all the ten directions. (46)

तद् विकृष्य महच्चापमिन्द्रो रावणमूर्धनि ।
पातयामास स शरान् पावकादित्यवर्चसः ॥ ४७ ॥

Bending that great bow, the aforesaid Indra let fall on the head of Rāvaṇa arrows vying with fire and the sun in respect of brilliance. (47)

तथैव च महाबाहुर्दशग्रीवो निशाचरः ।
शक्रं कार्मुकविभ्रष्टैः शरवर्षैरवाकिरत् ॥ ४८ ॥

The mighty-armed ogre, Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, too covered Indra with showers of arrows shot from his bow. (48)

प्रयुध्यतोरथ तयोर्बाणवर्षैः समन्ततः ।
नाज्ञायत तदा किञ्चित् सर्वं हि तमसा वृतम् ॥ ४९ ॥

When the two warriors were fighting hard in this manner, raining arrows on all sides, everything was actually enveloped in darkness forthwith and nothing could be seen at that moment. (49)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डेऽष्टाविंशः सर्गः ॥ २८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-eight in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनत्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXIX

Rāvaṇa carves his way through the army of the gods; the gods try to capture him; Meghanāda captures Indra by employing conjuring tricks and coming out victorious returns to Laṅkā with his army

ततस्तमसि संजाते सर्वे ते देवराक्षसाः ।
अयुद्धयन्त बलोन्मत्ताः सूदयन्तः परस्परम् ॥ १ ॥

When darkness supervened, all the aforesaid gods and ogres, intoxicated as they were with their might, still continued to fight, killing one another. (1)

ततस्तु देवसैन्येन राक्षसानां बृहद् बलम् ।
दशांशं स्थापितं युद्धे शेषं नीतं यमक्षयम् ॥ २ ॥

Barely one-tenth of the huge army of the ogres was, however, eventually allowed by the celestial host to stand on the battlefield; the rest was dispatched by the gods to the abode of Death. (2)

तस्मिस्तु तामसे युद्धे सर्वे ते देवराक्षसाः ।
अन्योन्यं नाभ्यजानन्त युद्धयमानाः परस्परम् ॥ ३ ॥

In that battle which was actually fought in darkness, none of the gods and the ogres, who took part in it, recognized one another while contending one with the other. (3)

इन्द्रश्च रावणश्चैव रावणिश्च महाबलः ।
तस्मिस्तमोजालवृते मोहमीयुर्न ते त्रयः ॥ ४ ॥

In that battlefield shrouded in a mass of darkness, Indra and Rāvaṇa as well as the exceedingly mighty Meghanāda (son of Rāvaṇa) the aforesaid three alone did not fall a prey to delusion. (4)

स तु दृष्ट्वा बलं सर्वं रावणो निहतं क्षणात् ।
क्रोधमभ्यगमत् तीव्रं महानादं च मुक्तवान् ॥ ५ ॥

Beholding his whole army destroyed in an instant, the aforesaid Rāvaṇa for his part flew into violent anger and emitted a great roar. (5)

क्रोधात् सूतं च दुर्धर्षः स्यन्दनस्थमुवाच ह ।
परसैन्यस्य मध्येन यावदन्तो नयस्व माम् ॥ ६ ॥

In his fury, they say, the ogre, who was so difficult to overcome, spoke as follows to his charioteer, who was still on the chariot: "Take me through the enemy ranks to the place where the other end exists. (6)

अद्यैतान् त्रिदशान् सर्वान् विक्रमैः समरे स्वयम् ।
नानाशस्त्रमहासारैर्नयामि यमसादनम् ॥ ७ ॥

"This very day through feats of valour I shall myself dispatch in combat all the gods to the abode of Death by thick showers of all kinds of weapons. (7)

अहमिन्द्रं वधिष्यामि धनदं वरुणं यमम् ।
त्रिदशान् विनिहत्याशु स्वयं स्थास्याम्यथोपरि ॥ ८ ॥

"I shall kill Indra, Kubera (the bestower of riches), Varuṇa (the god of water) and Yama (the god of retribution): nay, having destroyed the aforesaid gods in no time, I shall then abide in heaven myself. (8)

विषादो नैव कर्तव्यः शीघ्रं वाहय मे रथम् ।
द्विः खलु त्वां ब्रवीम्यद्य यावदन्तं नयस्व माम् ॥ ९ ॥

"Despondency should not be had recourse to in any case; drive my chariot without loss of time; indeed I repeat it to you today, take me to the other end of the army. (9)

अयं स नन्दनोद्देशो यत्र वर्तावहे वयम् ।
नय मामद्य तत्र त्वमुदयो यत्र पर्वतः ॥ १० ॥

"The place where we stand just now is a part of the Nandana grove, Indra's pleasure-garden; take me today to the place where the Udaya (eastern) mountain is. (The celestial host extended from the Nandana grove to the Udaya mountain)." (10)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा तुरगान् स मनोजवान्।
आदिदेशाथ शत्रूणां मध्येनैव च सारथिः ॥ ११ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid command of Rāvaṇa, the said charioteer forthwith drove the horses, which were swift as thought, right through the enemy ranks. (11)

तस्य तं निश्चयं ज्ञात्वा शक्रो देवेश्वरस्तदा।
रथस्थः समरस्थस्तान् देवान् वाक्यमथाब्रवीत् ॥ १२ ॥

Coming to know of this resolve of Rāvaṇa, Indra, the ruler of gods, seated in his chariot on the battlefield, forthwith spoke as follows on that occasion to the gods present on the battlefield: (12)

सुराः शृणुत मद्वाक्यं यत् तावन्मम रोचते।
जीवन्नेव दशग्रीवः साधु रक्षो निगृह्यताम् ॥ १३ ॥

“O gods, listen to my words; what finds favour with me just at this moment is that the ten-headed ogre had better be captured even while alive. (13)

एष ह्यतिबलः सैन्ये रथेन पवनौजसा।
गमिष्यति प्रवृद्धोर्मिः समुद्र इव पर्वणि ॥ १४ ॥

“In his chariot, which has the speed of the wind, this very mighty ogre will actually rush through our army like the sea with its swollen waves on the day of the full moon. (14)

नह्येष हन्तुं शक्योऽद्य वरदानात् सुनिर्भयः।
तद् ग्रीह्यामहे रक्षो यत्ता भवत संयुगे ॥ १५ ॥

“He cannot be killed this day in that he has grown utterly fearless due to the conferment of a boon on him by Brahmā; hence we shall capture the ogre; be prepared for this on the field of battle. (15)

यथा बलौ निरुद्धे च त्रैलोक्यं भुज्यते मया।
एवमेतस्य पापस्य निरोधो मम रोचते ॥ १६ ॥

“Even as the three worlds are being ruled over by me only because of the demon Bali having been taken captive by Lord Viṣṇu, the incarceration of this sinful ogre finds favour with me likewise.” (16)

ततोऽन्यं देशमास्थाय शक्रः संत्यज्य रावणम्।
अयुध्यत महाराज राक्षसांस्त्रासयन् रणे ॥ १७ ॥

Having said so and leaving Rāvaṇa alone, and moving to a different place, Indra fought there causing terror to the ogres on the field of battle, O monarch. (17)

उत्तरेण दशग्रीवः प्रविवेशानिवर्तकः।
दक्षिणेन तु पार्श्वेन प्रविवेश शतक्रतुः ॥ १८ ॥

Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster), who never retreated from the battlefield, penetrated into the army of gods from the northern side; while Indra (who is supposed to have performed a hundred horse-sacrifices in his past lives as a condition precedent for obtaining the office of Indra) made his way into the army of ogres from the southern side. (18)

ततः स योजनशतं प्रविष्टो राक्षसाधिपः।
देवतानां बलं सर्वं शरवर्षैरवाकिरत् ॥ १९ ॥

Having penetrated a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles) deep, the suzerain lord of ogres covered the entire army of gods with showers of arrows. (19)

ततः शक्रो निरीक्ष्याथ प्रणष्टं तु स्वकं बलम्।
न्यवर्तयदसम्भ्रान्तः समवृत्य दशाननम् ॥ २० ॥

Surrounding Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) on perceiving his own army completely destroyed, Indra for his part, who was not the least agitated, thereupon forthwith compelled Rāvaṇa to retreat. (20)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे नादो मुक्तो दानवराक्षसैः।
हा हताः स्म इति ग्रस्तं दृष्ट्वा शक्रेण रावणम् ॥ २१ ॥

In the meantime, on seeing Rāvaṇa overcome by Indra, an outcry was raised by the Dānavas and the ogres, saying: “Alas, we are all undone?” (21)

ततो रथं समास्थाय रावणिः क्रोधमूर्च्छितः।
तत् सैन्यमतिसंकुद्धः प्रविवेश सुदारुणम् ॥ २२ ॥

Taking his seat in a chariot, Meghanāda, son of Rāvaṇa, who felt greatly enraged, may, who was beside himself with anger, then penetrated deep into the fierce army of gods. (22)

तां प्रविश्य महामायां प्राप्तां पशुपतेः पुरा।
प्रविवेश सुसंरब्धस्तत् सैन्यं समभिद्रवत्॥ २३॥

Taking cover under the mighty power of illusion obtained by him in the past as a boon from Lord Śiva, he penetrated deep into the army of gods in fury and completely dispersed the army of gods. (23)

स सर्वा देवतास्त्यक्त्वा शक्रमेवाभ्यधावत्।
महेन्द्रश्च महातेजा नापश्यच्च सुतं रिपोः॥ २४॥

Leaving all the other gods alone, he rushed on Indra himself; but the mighty Indra, though endowed with extraordinary energy, could not perceive the enemy's son. (24)

विमुक्तकवचस्तत्र वध्यमानोऽपि रावणिः।
त्रिदशैः सुमहावीर्यैर्न चकार च किञ्चन॥ २५॥

His armour having fallen off on the battlefield, while he was being struck by the gods, who were endowed with exceptional prowess, the son of Rāvaṇa did not entertain the least fear. (25)

स मातलिं समायान्तं ताडयित्वा शरोत्तमैः।
महेन्द्रं बाणवर्षेण भूय एवाभ्यवाकिरत्॥ २६॥

Having hit Mātali, who was advancing, with the best of arrows, he then covered the mighty Indra with a shower of arrows. (26)

ततस्त्यक्त्वा रथं शक्रो विससर्ज च सारथिम्।
ऐरावतं समारुह्य मृगयामास रावणिम्॥ २७॥

Leaving the chariot, Indra thereupon dismissed the charioteer and, duly mounting the elephant, Airāvata, he began to search for Meghanāda (son of Rāvaṇa). (27)

स तत्र मायाबलवानदृश्योऽथान्तरिक्षगः।
इन्द्रं मायापरिक्षिप्तं कृत्वा स प्राद्रवच्छ्रैः॥ २८॥

Confounding Indra by means of his Māyā (conjuring tricks) while remaining invisible and moving in the air, endowed as he was with the power of Māyā, the notorious Meghanāda assailed him with arrows. (28)

स तं यदा परिश्रान्तमिन्द्रं जज्ञेऽथ रावणिः।
तदैर्न मायया बद्ध्वा स्वसैन्यमभितोऽनयत्॥ २९॥

Having bound Indra by dint of Māyā the moment he came to know of the former having been worn out, Meghanāda (son of Rāvaṇa) forthwith took him to the flank of his army. (29)

तं तु दृष्ट्वा बलात् तेन नीयमानं महारणात्।
महेन्द्रममराः सर्वे किं नु स्यादित्यचिन्तयन्॥ ३०॥

Seeing him, the mighty Indra, being borne away by force from the great fight, all the gods for their part wondered what was actually going to happen. (30)

दृश्यते न स मायावी शक्रजित् समितिंजयः।
विद्यावानपि येनेन्द्रो माययापहतो बलात्॥ ३१॥

“The notorious Meghanāda, the conqueror of Indra”, they added, “who is an adept in conjuring tricks and has come out victorious in battle and by whom Indra, though skilled in dispelling Māyā, has been borne away by force by dint of conjuring tricks, cannot be perceived.” (31)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे क्रुद्धाः सर्वे सुरगणास्तदा।
रावणं विमुखीकृत्य शरवर्षैरवाकिरन्॥ ३२॥

In the meantime, compelling Rāvaṇa to turn his face away (from the field of battle), all the hosts of gods, who were provoked to anger, then covered him with showers of shafts. (32)

रावणस्तु समासाद्य आदित्यांश्च वसून्स्तदा।
न शशाक स संग्रामे योद्धुं शत्रुभिरर्दितः॥ ३३॥

Having duly reached the twelve sons of Aditi and the eight Vasus on that occasion, Rāvaṇa failed to encounter them on the field of battle, hard pressed as he was by the enemies. (33)

स तं दृष्ट्वा परिम्लानं प्रहारैर्जर्जरीकृतम्।
रावणिः पितरं युद्धेऽदर्शनस्थोऽब्रवीदिदम्॥ ३४॥

Seeing his father languid and shattered by blows in the encounter, Meghanāda (son of Rāvaṇa) spoke to him as follows, remaining invisible all the while: (34)

आगच्छ तात गच्छामो रणकर्म निवर्तताम् ।
जितं नो विदितं तेऽस्तु स्वस्थो भव गतज्वरः ॥ ३५ ॥

“Come, dear father, we retire. Let the act of fighting come to an end. Let our victory be known to you. Be at ease and free from anxiety. (35)

अयं हि सुरसैन्यस्य त्रैलोक्यस्य च यः प्रभुः ।
स गृहीतो देवबलाद् भग्नदर्पाः सुराः कृताः ॥ ३६ ॥

“Since the yonder Indra, who was till now the master of the army of gods as well as the lord of all the three worlds, has been captured from the midst of the army of gods, the vanity of the gods has thereby been crushed. (36)

यथेष्टं भुङ्क्ष्व लोकांस्त्रीन् निगृह्यारातिमोजसा ।
वृथा किं ते श्रमेणेह युद्धमद्य तु निष्फलम् ॥ ३७ ॥

“Having captured the enemy by dint of your might, rule all the three worlds as you please; what will you gain by needlessly exerting yourself any more; fighting is now fruitless.” (37)

ततस्ते दैवतगणा निवृत्ता रणकर्मणः ।
तच्छ्रुत्वा रावणेर्वाक्यं शक्रहीनाः सुरा गताः ॥ ३८ ॥

Hearing the aforesaid observation of Meghanāda (son of Rāvaṇa), the hosts of gods thereupon desisted from the act of fighting and, deprived of Indra, left for heaven. (38)

अथ रणविगतः स उत्तमौजा-
स्त्रिदशरिपुः प्रथितो निशाचरेन्द्रः ।

स्वसुतवचनमादृतः प्रियं तत्
समनुनिशम्य जगाद चैव सूनुम् ॥ ३९ ॥

Listening with deference to that agreeable counsel of his son, Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, that notorious enemy of gods, who was endowed with surpassing might, retired from the field of battle and spoke to his son as follows: (39)

अतिबलसदृशैः पराक्रमैस्त्वं
मम कुलवंशविवर्धनः प्रभो ।
यदयमतुल्यबलस्त्वयाद्य वै
त्रिदशपतिस्त्रिदशाश्च निर्जिताः ॥ ४० ॥

“You are the promoter of my race, my powerful son, in that the yonder ruler of gods, who was endowed with unequalled might, as well as the other gods, have been actually conquered by you today through exploits which were becoming of your superior might. (40)

नय रथमधिरोष्य वासवं
नगरमितो ब्रज सेनया वृतस्त्वम् ।
अहमपि तव पृष्ठतो द्रुतं
सह सचिवैरनुयामि हृष्टवत् ॥ ४१ ॥

“Placing Indra in the chariot, take him to the city of Laṅkā and, surrounded by your army, depart you from this region. Accompanied by my ministers, I too will follow at your heels with all speed joyfully.” (41)

अथ स बलवृतः सवाहन-
स्त्रिदशपतिं परिगृह्य रावणिः ।
स्वभवनमधिगम्य वीर्यवान्
कृतसमरान् विससर्ज राक्षसान् ॥ ४२ ॥

Having reached his own abode followed by his army and conveyances and taking with him the ruler of gods, the powerful son of Rāvaṇa dismissed the ogres, who had carried on the operations. (42)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकोनत्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ २९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Twenty-nine in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXX

Brahmā grants boons to Indrajit and prevails on him to release Indra from captivity; nay, reminding the latter of his past sin, Brahmā asks him to perform a sacrifice to propitiate Lord Viṣṇu; at the conclusion of the said sacrifice Indra returns to heaven

जिते महेन्द्रेऽतिबले रावणस्य सुतेन वै ।
प्रजापतिं पुरस्कृत्य ययुर्लङ्कां सुरास्तदा ॥ १ ॥

Placing Brahmā, the lord of created beings, at their head, when the mighty Indra, who was endowed with surpassing strength, had been actually conquered by Meghanāda (son of Rāvaṇa), the gods then proceeded to Laṅkā. (1)

तत्र रावणमासाद्य पुत्रभ्रातृभिरावृतम् ।
अब्रवीद् गगने तिष्ठन् सामपूर्वं प्रजापतिः ॥ २ ॥

Approaching Rāvaṇa, surrounded by his sons and brothers, Brahmā (the lord of created beings), while remaining in the air, spoke (as follows) in conciliatory tones: (2)

वत्स रावण तुष्टोऽस्मि पुत्रस्य तव संयुगे ।
अहोऽस्य विक्रमौदार्यं तव तुल्योऽधिकोऽपि वा ॥ ३ ॥

“Dear Rāvaṇa, I am pleased with your son’s bearing on the battlefield. Wonderful is the greatness of his prowess. He is thus your equal or even superior to you. (3)

जितं हि भवता सर्वं त्रैलोक्यं स्वेन तेजसा ।
कृता प्रतिज्ञा सफला प्रीतोऽस्मि ससुतस्य ते ॥ ४ ॥

“By dint of your own energy all the three worlds have actually been conquered by you and your vow stands fulfilled. I am accordingly pleased with you as well as with your son. (4)

अयं च पुत्रोऽतिबलस्तव रावण वीर्यवान् ।
जगतीन्द्रजित्दिव्येव परिख्यातो भविष्यति ॥ ५ ॥

“This son of yours, O Rāvaṇa, is exceedingly mighty and powerful, and will henceforth be widely known in the world by the name of Indrajit, the conqueror of Indra. (5)

बलवान् दुर्जयश्चैव भविष्यत्येव राक्षसः ।
यं समाश्रित्य ते राजन् स्थापितास्त्रिदशा वशे ॥ ६ ॥

“This ogre, relying on whom, O king, you have brought the gods under your subjugation, will surely become powerful and difficult to conquer. (6)

तन्मुच्यतां महाबाहो महेन्द्रः पाकशासनः ।
किं चास्य मोक्षणार्थाय प्रयच्छन्तु दिवौकसः ॥ ७ ॥

“Therefore, let the mighty Indra, the tamer of the demon Pāka, be set free. Again, what should the gods (lit., denizens of heaven) pay to you in consideration for his liberation?” (7)

अथाब्रवीन्महातेजा इन्द्रजित् समितिञ्जयः ।
अमरत्वमहं देव वृणे यद्वेष मुच्यते ॥ ८ ॥

Indrajit, who was victorious in battle and was endowed with extraordinary energy, thereupon replied, “I seek immortality from you, O lord, if he is set free.” (8)

ततोऽब्रवीन्महातेजा मेघनादं प्रजापतिः ।
नास्ति सर्वामरत्वं हि कस्यचित् प्राणिनो भुवि ॥ ९ ॥

चतुष्पदां खेचराणामन्येषां च महौजसाम् ।
श्रुत्वा पितामहेनोक्तमिन्द्रजित् प्रभुणाव्ययम् ॥ १० ॥

अथाब्रवीत् स तत्रस्थं मेघनादो महाबलः ।
श्रूयतां या भवेत् सिद्धिः शतक्रतुविमोक्षणे ॥ ११ ॥

Thereupon Brahmā (the lord of created beings), who was endowed with extraordinary energy, replied as follows to Meghanāda: “There is no immunity from death at the hands of any for any living being whatsoever on earth, for a bird or a quadruped or for other created beings, though endowed with extraordinary might.” Hearing the observation made by Lord Brahmā (the grandfather of the creation), the exceptionally mighty

Meghanāda, the notorious conqueror of Indra, forthwith replied to the imperishable Brahmā, who was standing there: "The alternative consummation which may be acceptable to me in consideration for the release of Indra (who is pre-supposed to have performed a hundred horse-sacrifices as a condition precedent for attaining Indrahood) may be known from me. (9—11)

ममेष्टं नित्यशो हव्यैर्मन्त्रैः सम्पूज्य पावकम् ।
संग्राममवर्तुं च शत्रुनिर्जयकाङ्क्षिणः ॥ १२ ॥
अश्वयुक्तो रथो मह्यमुत्तिष्ठेत् तु विभावसोः ।
तत्स्थस्यामरता स्यान्मे एष मे निश्चितो वरः ॥ १३ ॥

"What is sought by me is that whenever, seeking the utter discomfiture of my enemies, I wish to engage in a fight after duly propitiating the sacred fire through oblations daily while chanting the sacred texts, a huge chariot harnessed to steeds should emerge from the sacred fire before me and immunity from death should be insured for me so long as I remain seated in that chariot. This is the avowed boon sought by me. (12-13)

तस्मिन् यद्यसमाप्ते च जप्यहोमे विभावसौ ।
युध्येयं देव संग्रामे तदा मे स्याद् विनाशनम् ॥ १४ ॥

"If, O lord, I should engage in fight on the battlefield before the muttering of prayers, and the pouring of oblations into the sacred fire is completed, my death should take place then and then alone. (14)

सर्वो हि तपसा देव वृणोत्यमरतां पुमान् ।
विक्रमेण मया त्वेतदमरत्वं प्रवर्तितम् ॥ १५ ॥

"Every person, O lord, seeks immortality through askesis alone. By me, however, such immunity from death is being sought through prowess." (15)

एवमस्त्विति तं चाह वाक्यं देवः पितामहः ।
मुक्तश्चेन्द्रजिता शक्रो गताश्च त्रिदिवं सुराः ॥ १६ ॥

Lord Brahmā now gave him the assurance: "Be it so!" Nay, Indra was set at liberty by Indrajit, and the gods returned to heaven. (16)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे राम दीनो भ्रष्टामरद्युतिः ।
इन्द्रश्चिन्तापरीतात्मा ध्यानतत्परतां गतः ॥ १७ ॥

In the meanwhile, O Rāma, the wretched Indra, whose divine lustre had disappeared, and whose mind was plunged in thought, was lost in contemplation. (17)

तं तु दृष्ट्वा तथा भूतं प्राह देवः पितामहः ।
शतक्रतो किमु पुरा करोति स्म सुदुष्कृतम् ॥ १८ ॥

Seeing him in that (wretched) plight, Lord Brahmā (the grandfather of the entire creation) said, "O Indra, why did you perpetrate a heinous sin in the past? (18)

अमरेन्द्र मया बुद्ध्या प्रजाः सृष्टास्तथा प्रभो ।
एकवर्णाः समाभाषा एकरूपाश्च सर्वशः ॥ १९ ॥

"Created beings were so evolved by me in my wisdom, O ruler of gods, that they had the same complexion, the same voice and the same form in every way, O king! (19)

तासां नास्ति विशेषो हि दर्शने लक्षणेऽपि वा ।
ततोऽहमेकाग्रमनास्ताः प्रजाः समचिन्तयम् ॥ २० ॥

"There was no difference whatsoever in their appearance or even in their distinguishing marks. Hence with a concentrated mind I duly thought of introducing differences in those created beings. (20)

सोऽहं तासां विशेषार्थं स्त्रियमेकां विनिर्ममे ।
यद् यत् प्रजानां प्रत्यङ्गं विशिष्टं तत् तदुद्धृतम् ॥ २१ ॥

"As such in order to make a distinction between them, I evolved a woman. Whatever was striking in every limb of the created beings was reproduced in her. (21)

ततो मया रूपगुणैरहल्या स्त्री विनिर्मिता ।
हलं नामेह वैरूप्यं हल्यं तत्प्रभवं भवेत् ॥ २२ ॥

"With those features and excellences was created by me, the woman Ahalyā. 'Hala' stands here for ugliness and the reproachability following from it is 'Halya'. (22)

यस्या न विद्यते हल्यं तेनाहल्येति विश्रुता ।
अहल्येत्येव च मया तस्या नाम प्रकीर्तितम् ॥ २३ ॥

“The woman was widely known as ‘Ahalyā’ in that there was no reproachability in her. Nay, ‘Ahalyā’ itself was proclaimed by me as her name. (23)

निर्मितायां च देवेन्द्र तस्यां नार्यां सुरर्षभ।
भविष्यतीति कस्यैषा मम चिन्ता ततोऽभवत् ॥ २४ ॥

“On that woman having been evolved, O ruler of gods, and a jewel among the gods, the thought now haunted me: ‘Whose partner should she be?’ (24)

त्वं तु शक्र तदा नारीं जानीषे मनसा प्रभो।
स्थानाधिकतया पत्नी ममैषेति पुरंदर ॥ २५ ॥

“You, however, O mighty Indra, the destroyer of citadels, began to entertain the thought in your mind about that woman: ‘She must be my consort in view of the superiority of my position.’ (25)

सा मया न्यासभूता तु गौतमस्य महात्मनः।
न्यस्ता बहूनि वर्षाणि तेन निर्यातिता च ह ॥ २६ ॥

“She was, however, kept by me as a sacred trust in the charge of the high-souled, Sage Gautama, for many years, and was eventually returned by him. (26)

ततस्तस्य परिज्ञाय महास्थैर्यं महामुनेः।
ज्ञात्वा तपसि सिद्धिं च पत्न्यर्थं स्पर्शिता तदा ॥ २७ ॥

“Having then tested the extraordinary self-control of that eminent sage and coming to know of the successful conclusion of his austerities, I gave her away to him for being taken to wife on that occasion : (27)

स तया सह धर्मात्मा रमते स्म महामुनिः।
आसन्निराशा देवास्तु गौतमे दत्तया तया ॥ २८ ॥

“That eminent and pious-minded sage lived happily with her; on her having been given away to Gautama, however, the gods became despondent. (28)

त्वं क्रुद्धस्त्विह कामात्मा गत्वा तस्याश्रमं मुनेः।
दृष्ट्वांश्च तदा तां स्त्रीं दीप्तमग्निशिखामिव ॥ २९ ॥

“Proceeding to the hermitage of that sage, angry as you were at this, your mind given over to lust, you saw at that time the said woman bright like a tongue of fire. (29)

सा त्वया धर्षिता शक्र कामार्तेन समन्युना।
दृष्टस्त्वं स तदा तेन आश्रमे परमर्षिणा ॥ ३० ॥

“She, O Indra, was violated by you, love-stricken as you were and full of anger. Nay, you were seen on that occasion by the eminent Ṛṣi (a seer of Vedic Mantras) in his hermitage. (30)

ततः क्रुद्धेन तेनासि शप्तः परमतेजसा।
गतोऽसि येन देवेन्द्र दशाभागविपर्ययम् ॥ ३१ ॥

“Thereupon you were execrated in the following words by that supremely powerful sage who was provoked to anger, due to which, O ruler of gods, you had to undergo a reversal of fortune: (31)

यस्मान्मे धर्षिता पत्नी त्वया वासव निर्भयात्।
तस्मात् त्वं समरे शक्र शत्रुहस्तं गमिष्यसि ॥ ३२ ॥

“‘Since my wife, O chief of the Vasus, was audaciously violated by you, therefore, O Indra, you will fall into the hands of your enemy in war. (32)

अयं तु भावो दुर्बुद्धे यस्त्वयेह प्रवर्तितः।
मानुषेष्वपि लोकेषु भविष्यति न संशयः ॥ ३३ ॥

‘The way of life which you for your part have introduced into this world, O god of perverse intellect, will gain ground even among human beings: there is no doubt about it. (33)

तत्रार्थं तस्य यः कर्ता त्वय्यर्थं निपतिष्यति।
न च ते स्थावरं स्थानं भविष्यति न संशयः ॥ ३४ ॥

‘On him who perpetrates such a sin, only one-half of it will fall to his lot and the other half will accrue to you. Nor will your position be stable: there is no doubt about it. (34)

यश्च यश्च सुरेन्द्रः स्याद् ध्रुवः स न भविष्यति।
एष शापो मया मुक्त इत्यसौ त्वां तदाब्रवीत् ॥ ३५ ॥

‘Whosoever comes to be the ruler of gods shall not endure. This is the curse pronounced by me.' This is what he said to you at that time. (35)

तां तु भार्या सुनिर्भर्त्स्य सोऽब्रवीत् सुमहातपाः ।
दुर्विनीते विनिध्वंस ममाश्रमसमीपतः ॥ ३६ ॥

“Severely reproaching his aforesaid wife, the sage for his part, who was practising rigorous austerities, said, ‘O impudent woman, live unseen in the precincts of my hermitage. (36)

रूपयौवनसम्पन्ना यस्मात् त्वमनवस्थिता ।
तस्माद् रूपवती लोके न त्वमेका भविष्यति ॥ ३७ ॥

‘Since you have proved inconstant, though rich in comeliness and youth, you will accordingly no longer be the only comely woman. (37)

रूपं च ते प्रजाः सर्वा गमिष्यन्ति न संशयः ।
यत् तदेकं समाश्रित्य विभ्रमोऽयमुपस्थितः ॥ ३८ ॥

‘Nay, all created beings shall henceforth undoubtedly share your comeliness inasmuch as this perversity (occasioned by concupiscence) appeared in the mind of Indra due to that singular comeliness of yours.’ (38)

तदाप्रभृति भूयिष्ठं प्रजा रूपसमन्विता ।
सा तं प्रसादयामास महर्षि गौतमं तदा ॥ ३९ ॥

From that time onwards the creation was mostly endowed with comeliness. Ahalyā at that time sought to propitiate that eminent seer of Vedic Mantras as follows: (39)

अज्ञानाद् धर्षिता विप्र त्वदरूपेण दिवौकसा ।
न कामकाराद् विप्रर्षे प्रसादं कर्तुमर्हसि ॥ ४० ॥

‘I was unwittingly violated by the god (lit., a denizen of heaven) appearing in your guise, and not according to my own free will, O Brahmarṣi; you ought, therefore, to extend your grace to me.’ (40)

अहल्यया त्वेवमुक्तः प्रत्युवाच स गौतमः ।
उत्पत्स्यति महातेजा इक्ष्वाकूणां महारथः ॥ ४१ ॥
रामो नाम श्रुतो लोके वनं चाप्युपयास्यति ।
ब्राह्मणार्थं महाबाहुर्विष्णुर्मानुषविग्रहः ॥ ४२ ॥

Supplicated in these words by Ahalyā, the celebrated Gautama for his part replied as follows: ‘Among the scions of Ikṣvākū will be born a mighty-armed great car-warrior, endowed with extraordinary energy, known in the world by the name of Rāma, and he will proceed to the forest for the sake of a Brāhmaṇa (Sage Viśwāmitra). He will be no other than Lord Viṣṇu in human semblance. (41-42)

तं द्रक्ष्यसि यदा भद्रे ततः पूता भविष्यसि ।
स हि पावयितुं शक्तस्त्वया यद् दुष्कृतं कृतम् ॥ ४३ ॥

‘When you will see him, O blessed one, then you will get purified; for he alone is able to eradicate the misdeed that has been done by you. (43)

तस्यातिथ्यं च कृत्वा वै मत्समीपं गमिष्यसि ।
वत्स्यसि त्वं मया सार्धं तदा हि वरवर्णिनि ॥ ४४ ॥

‘Nay, after offering hospitality to him, you shall surely return to my presence. Then only, O lady of fair complexion, you will continue to live with me.’ (44)

एवमुक्त्वा तु विप्रर्षिराजगाम स्वमाश्रमम् ।
तपश्चचार सुमहत् सा पत्नी ब्रह्मवादिनः ॥ ४५ ॥

Having spoken as aforesaid, that Brahmarṣi (a seer of Vedic Mantras) re-entered his hermitage, while the said consort of that teacher of the Vedas practised exceptionally rigid austerities. (45)

शापोत्सर्गाद्धि तस्येदं मुनेः सर्वमुपस्थितम् ।
तत् स्मर त्वं महाबाहो दुष्कृतं यत् त्वया कृतम् ॥ ४६ ॥

“All this has followed in consequence of the utterance of a curse by that sage. Recall (now), O mighty-armed one, the misdeed which was committed by you. (46)

तेन त्वं ग्रहणं शत्रोर्यातो नान्येन वासव ।
शीघ्रं वै यज यज्ञं त्वं वैष्णवं सुसमाहितः ॥ ४७ ॥

“Through that curse alone and for no other reason, O Indra, did you fall into the clutches of your enemy. Therefore, perform you with full attention without delay the sacrifice intended to propitiate Lord Viṣṇu. (47)

पावितस्तेन यज्ञेन यास्यसे त्रिदिवं ततः ।

पुत्रश्च तव देवेन्द्र न विनष्टो महारणे ॥ ४८ ॥

“Purified by that sacrifice you shall return to heaven from the sacrificial ground itself. Your son, too, O ruler of gods, was not destroyed in the great conflict. (48)

नीतः संनिहितश्चैव आर्यकेण महोदधौ ।

एतच्छ्रुत्वा महेन्द्रस्तु यज्ञमिष्ट्वा च वैष्णवम् ॥ ४९ ॥

पुनस्त्रिदिवमाक्रामदन्वशासच्च देवराट् ।

एतदिन्द्रजितो नाम बलं यत् कीर्तितं मया ॥ ५० ॥

“He was borne away by his maternal grandfather, Pulomā, and has been lodged near him in the ocean.” Hearing this, and having performed a sacrifice intended to propitiate Lord Viṣṇu, the mighty Indra, the ruler of gods, re-ascended to heaven and ruled as before. Such was the might of Indrajit, which has been recounted by me. (49-50)

निर्जितस्तेन देवेन्द्रः प्राणिनोऽन्ये तु किं पुनः ।

आश्चर्यमिति रामश्च लक्ष्मणश्चाब्रवीत् तदा ॥ ५१ ॥

अगस्त्यवचनं श्रुत्वा वानरा राक्षसास्तदा ।

विभीषणस्तु रामस्य पार्श्वस्थो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ५२ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे त्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३० ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकत्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXI

Rāvaṇa goes to Māhiṣmatī; unable to find its ruler, Arjuna, he takes a dip in the holy Narmadā and offers worship to Lord Śiva

ततो रामो महातेजा विस्मयात् पुनरेव हि ।

उवाच प्रणतो वाक्यमगस्त्यमृषिसत्तमम् ॥ १ ॥

In surprise indeed Śrī Rāma, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, once more thereupon submissively addressed the following words to Agastya, the foremost of sages: (1)

भगवन् राक्षसः कूरो यदाप्रभृति मेदिनीम् ।

पर्यटत् किं तदा लोकाः शून्या आसन् द्विजोत्तम ॥ २ ॥

By him was conquered the ruler of gods himself. What wonder, then, if other living beings were so conquered? Hearing the narration of Agastya, Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa too exclaimed as also the monkeys and the ogres present on that occasion: “Wonderful!” Vibhiṣaṇa for his part who sat beside Śrī Rāma, spoke as follows: (51-52)

आश्चर्यं स्मारितोऽस्म्यद्यत् तद् दृष्टं पुरातनम् ।

अगस्त्यं त्वब्रवीद् रामः सत्यमेतच्छ्रुतं च मे ॥ ५३ ॥

“I have been put in mind today of the past miracle which was witnessed by me.” Śrī Rāma too said to Sage Agastya, “This is quite true. Nay, it was heard by me even before from Vibhiṣaṇa.” (53)

एवं राम समुद्भूतो रावणो लोककण्टकः ।

सपुत्रो येन संग्रामे जितः शक्रः सुरेश्वरः ॥ ५४ ॥

Thus, O Rāma, was born Rāvaṇa, who with his son was a thorn in the side of the worlds, by whom was conquered Indra, the ruler of gods, in an encounter. (54)

“Ever since, O revered sir, the cruel ogre, Rāvaṇa, ranged over the earth, were the people (on earth) devoid of manliness at that time, O jewel among the twiceborn? (2)

राजा वा राजमात्रो वा किं तदा नात्र कश्चन ।

धर्षणं यत्र न प्राप्तो रावणो राक्षसेश्वरः ॥ ३ ॥

“Was there no Kṣatriya king or non-Kṣatriya ruler at that time on the earth, since Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, did not meet with any rebuff? (3)

उताहो हतवीर्यास्ते बभूवुः पृथिवीक्षितः।
बहिष्कृता वरास्त्रैश्च बहवो निर्जिता नृपाः ॥ ४ ॥

“Or, was it that the said rulers of the earth were lacking in manliness or that they were deprived of good weapons, so that many rulers of men were conquered by him?” (4)

राघवस्य वचः श्रुत्वा अगस्त्यो भगवानृषिः।
उवाच रामं प्रहसन् पितामह इवेश्वरम् ॥ ५ ॥

Hearing the question of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), the glorious Sage Agastya laughingly replied to Śrī Rāma even as Brahmā would to Lord Śiva: (5)

इत्येवं बाधमानस्तु पार्थिवान् पार्थिवर्षभ।
चचार रावणो राम पृथिवीं पृथिवीपते ॥ ६ ॥

“In this way, O jewel among the rulers of the earth, did Rāvaṇa range over the world harassing the kings, O lord of the earth! (6)

ततो माहिष्मतीं नाम पुरीं स्वर्गपुरीप्रभाम्।
सम्प्राप्तो यत्र सांनिध्यं सदासीद् वसुरेतसः ॥ ७ ॥

“Thereupon he reached the city named Māhiṣmatī, which possessed the splendour of Amarāvati (the city of Indra) where there was the constant presence of the god of fire. (7)

तुल्य आसीन्नृपस्तस्य प्रभावाद् वसुरेतसः।
अर्जुनो नाम यत्राग्निः शरकुण्डेशयः सदा ॥ ८ ॥

“A king, Arjuna by name, who was a compeer of the god of fire in effulgence through the latter’s grace, ruled in that city, where the sacred fire remained ever enshrined in a pit covered with sacred Kuśa grass.” (8)

तमेव दिवसं सोऽथ हैहयाधिपतिर्बली।
अर्जुनो नर्मदां रन्तुं गतः स्त्रीभिः सहेश्वरः ॥ ९ ॥

“The same day Arjuna, that mighty and powerful lord of the Haihayas, had just gone to the Narmadā to sport with his womenfolk. (9)

तमेव दिवसं सोऽथ रावणस्तत्र आगतः।
रावणो राक्षसेन्द्रस्तु तस्यामात्यानपृच्छत् ॥ १० ॥

“The notorious Rāvaṇa arrived there that very day. Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, for his part spoke to his (Arjuna’s) ministers as follows: (10)

क्वार्जुनो नृपतिः शीघ्रं सम्यगाख्यातुमर्हथ।
रावणोऽहमनुप्राप्तो युद्धेप्सुर्नृवरेण ह ॥ ११ ॥

‘Where is king Arjuna? You ought to point this out accurately without delay. I, Rāvaṇa, have come seeking a trial of strength with Arjuna, the foremost of human kings. (11)

ममागमनमप्यग्रे युष्माभिः संनिवेद्यताम्।
इत्येवं रावणेनोक्तास्तेऽमात्याः सुविपश्चितः ॥ १२ ॥
अब्रुवन् राक्षसपतिमसांनिध्यं महीपतेः।
श्रुत्वा विश्रवसः पुत्रः पौराणामर्जुनं गतम् ॥ १३ ॥
अपसृत्यागतो विन्ध्यं हिमवत्संनिभं गिरिम्।
स तमभ्रमिवाविष्टमुद्भ्रान्तमिव मेदिनीम् ॥ १४ ॥
अपश्यद् रावणो विन्ध्यमालिखन्तिमिवाम्बरम्।
सहस्रशिखरोपेतं सिंहाध्युषितकन्दरम् ॥ १५ ॥

“Let my arrival be duly made known to him in advance by you.’ Spoken to as aforesaid by Rāvaṇa, the said ministers (of Arjuna), who were all very wise, told the ruler of ogres of the king’s absence from the capital. Withdrawing from that place on hearing, from the mouth of the citizens, of Arjuna having left the city, Rāvaṇa (son of Viśravā) sought the Vindhya mountain, which closely resembled the Himālayas in height. “Rāvaṇa saw the Vindhya mountain which having penetrated into the clouds as it were and having as though burst forth from the earth, seemed to scrape the skies. It had thousands of peaks, and its caves were infested with lions. (12—15)

प्रपातपतितैः शीतैः साद्रहासमिवाम्बुभिः।
देवदानवगन्धर्वैः साप्सरोग्भिः सकिंनरैः ॥ १६ ॥
स्वस्त्रीभिः क्रीडमानैश्च स्वर्गभूतं महोच्छ्रयम्।
नदीभिः स्यन्दमानाभिः स्फटिकप्रतिमं जलम् ॥ १७ ॥
फणाभिश्चलजिह्वाभिरनन्तमिव विष्ठितम्।
उत्क्रामन्तं दरीवन्तं हितवत्संनिभं गिरिम् ॥ १८ ॥

पश्यमानस्ततो विन्ध्यं रावणो नर्मदां ययौ।

चलोपलजलां पुण्यां पश्चिमोदधिगामिनीम् ॥ १९ ॥

“With cool waters fallen from the hills, it seemed to utter a horse-laugh. With gods, Dānavas and Gandharvas, accompanied by Apsarās (celestial nymphs) and Kinnaras, and sporting with their womenfolk, the mountain, which was exceptionally high, had turned into heaven. With its rivers carrying crystal-clear waters the mountain stood rooted like the serpent-god Śeṣa with his thousand hoods distinguished by restless tongues. Beholding the Vindhya mountain, which was moving upwards, as it were, which abounded in caves and closely resembled the Himalayan range, Rāvaṇa sought the holy river Narmadā, whose waters flowed over a bed of rocks and which ran towards the western sea. (16—19)

महिषैः सृमरैः सिंहैः शार्दूलर्क्षगजोत्तमैः।

उष्णाभितप्तैस्तृषितैः संक्षोभितजलाशयाम् ॥ २० ॥

चक्रवाकैः सकारण्डैः सहंसजलकुक्कुटैः।

सारसैश्च सदा मत्तैः कूजद्भिः सुसमावृताम् ॥ २१ ॥

“The ponds forming a part of the river were ruffled by buffaloes, young deer, lions, bears and lordly elephants scorched by heat, and seized with thirst and the river was thickly crowded with ruddy geese accompanied by wild ducks, swans and water-fowls as well as with cranes ever in heat and screaming. (20-21)

फुल्लद्रुमकृतोत्तंसां चक्रवाकयुगस्तनीम्।

विस्तीर्णपुलिनश्रोणीं हंसावलिसुमेखलाम् ॥ २२ ॥

“The river had trees in blossom for its diadem, a pair of Cakrawāka birds for its breasts, extensive sandy banks for its hips, rows of swans for its lovely girdle. (22)

पुष्परेण्वनुलिप्ताङ्गीं जलफेनामलांशुकाम्।

जलावगाहमुस्पर्शां फुल्लोत्पलशुभेक्षणाम् ॥ २३ ॥

“It had its limbs powdered with the pollen of flowers, it had the foam for its immaculate robe; a dip into its waters constituted its thrilling contact and it had full-blown lotuses for its charming eyes. (23)

पुष्पकादवरुह्याशु नर्मदां सरितां वराम्।

इष्टामिव वरां नारीमवगाह्य दशाननः ॥ २४ ॥

स तस्याः पुलिने रम्ये नानामुनिनिषेविते।

उपोपविष्टः सचिवैः सार्धं राक्षसपुङ्गवः ॥ २५ ॥

“Quickly alighting from the Puṣpaka car, and taking a dip in the Narmadā, the foremost of rivers, which thus resembled an excellent and agreeable woman, that ten-headed bull among the ogres, sat down in the company of his ministers on its lovely bank, frequented by sages. (24-25)

प्रख्याय नर्मदां सोऽथ गङ्गेयमिति रावणः।

नर्मदादर्शने हर्षमाप्तवान् स दशाननः ॥ २६ ॥

“Complimenting the Narmadā in the words ‘Here is the holy Gaṅgā,’ the notorious Rāvaṇa, that ten-headed monster, forthwith experienced delight at the sight of the Narmadā. (26)

उवाच सचिवांस्तत्र सलीलं शुकसारणौ।

एष रश्मिसहस्रेण जगत् कृत्वेव काञ्चनम् ॥ २७ ॥

तीक्ष्णतापकरः सूर्यो नभसो मध्यमास्थितः।

मामासीनं विदित्वैव चन्द्रायति दिवाकरः ॥ २८ ॥

“He playfully said to his ministers, as well as to Śuka and Sāraṇa ‘Having turned the world golden-coloured as it were by its myriad rays, the yonder sun, the maker of the day, which should generate intense heat, its position being located in mid heavens, has grown cool as the moon merely on perceiving me seated on this spot. (27-28)

नर्मदाजलशीतश्च सुगन्धिः श्रमनाशनः।

मद्भयादनिलो ह्येष वात्यसौ सुसमाहितः ॥ २९ ॥

“Cooled by its contact with the waters of the Narmadā, fragrant and relieving fatigue, this breeze is blowing softly indeed due to fear of me. (29)

इयं वापि सरिच्छ्रेष्ठा नर्मदा नर्मवर्धिनी।

नक्रमीनविहंगोर्मिः सभयेवाङ्गना स्थिता ॥ ३० ॥

“Bearing crocodiles, fishes and birds on its waves, this Narmadā, the foremost of rivers, too, which heightens my merriment, looks like a timid girl. (30)

तद्भवन्तः क्षताः शस्त्रैर्नृपैरिन्द्रसमैर्युधि ।
चन्दनस्य रसेनेव रुधिरेण समुक्षिताः ॥ ३१ ॥

“You stand pierced with weapons by kings vying with Indra on the field of battle and bathed in blood as though sprinkled all over with the sap of a red sandal tree. (31)

ते यूयमवगाहध्वं नर्मदां शर्मदां शुभाम् ।
सार्वभौममुखा मत्ता गङ्गामिव महागजाः ॥ ३२ ॥

“As such take you a dip in the lovely and delightful Narmadā even as huge elephants (guarding the quarters) in rut—Sārvabhauma and others—take a dip in the Gaṅgā. (32)

अस्यां स्नात्वा महानद्यां पाप्मनो विप्रमोक्ष्यथ ।
अहमप्यद्य पुलिने शरदिन्दुसमप्रभे ॥ ३३ ॥

पुष्पोपहारं शनकैः करिष्यामि कपर्दिनः ।
रावणेनैवमुक्तास्तु प्रहस्तशुकसारणाः ॥ ३४ ॥

समहोदरधूम्राक्षा नर्मदां विजगाहिरे ।
राक्षसेन्द्रगजैस्तैस्तु क्षोभिता नर्मदा नदी ॥ ३५ ॥

वामनाञ्जनपद्माद्यैर्गङ्गा इव महागजैः ।
ततस्ते राक्षसाः स्नात्वा नर्मदायां महाबलाः ॥ ३६ ॥

उत्तीर्य पुष्पाण्याजहुर्बल्यर्थं रावणस्य तु ।
नर्मदापुलिने हृद्ये शुभ्राभ्रसदृशप्रभे ॥ ३७ ॥

राक्षसैस्तु मुहूर्तेन कृतः पुष्पमयो गिरिः ।
पुष्पेषूपहृतेष्वेवं रावणो राक्षसेश्वरः ॥ ३८ ॥

अवतीर्णो नदीं स्नातुं गङ्गामिव महागजः ।
तत्र स्नात्वा च विधिवज्जप्त्वा जप्यमनुत्तमम् ॥ ३९ ॥

नर्मदासलिलात् तस्मादुत्तार स रावणः ।
ततः क्लिन्नाम्बरं त्यक्त्वा शुक्लवस्त्रसमावृतः ॥ ४० ॥

“Bathing in this great river, you will be completely rid of your sin. I too shall presently offer flowers slowly to Lord Śiva (who wears matted locks on His head) on this sandy bank, shining like the autumnal moon.” Commanded in these words by Rāvaṇa, Prahasta, Śuka and Sāraṇa for their part, accompanied by Mahodara and Dhūmrākṣa, took a dip in the Narmadā. The river Narmadā for its part was ruffled by those elephants of Rāvaṇa (the ruler of ogres) even as the Gaṅgā by the mighty elephants (guarding the quarters), Vāmana, Añjana, Padma and others. Emerging after taking a dip in the Narmadā, these exceptionally mighty ogres for their part fetched flowers for Rāvaṇa’s worship of Lord Śiva. On the delightful sandy bank of the Narmadā, shining like a white cloud, a mountain of flowers was raised in less than an hour by the ogres. When flowers had been collected in this way, Rāvaṇa, the king of ogres, descended into the river to bathe even as a huge elephant would into the Gaṅgā.

Having bathed in the river and muttered the most excellent text, the Gāyatrī Mantra, with due ceremony, the notorious Rāvaṇa came out of the well-known waters of the Narmadā. Then putting off the wet clothes, he was duly covered with a white robe. (33—40)

रावणं प्राञ्जलिं यान्तमन्वयुः सर्वराक्षसाः ।
तद्गतीवशमापन्ना मूर्तिमन्त इवाचलाः ॥ ४१ ॥

Like incarnate mountains swayed by his motion, all the other ogres followed him even as he proceeded with joined palms to offer flowers to Lord Śiva. (41)

यत्र यत्र च याति स्म रावणो राक्षसेश्वरः ।
जाम्बूनदमयं लिङ्गं तत्र तत्र स्म नीयते ॥ ४२ ॥

Wherever Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, went, a golden emblem of Lord Śiva was borne there. (42)

वालुकावेदिमध्ये तु तल्लिङ्गं स्थाप्य रावणः ।
अर्चयामास गन्धैश्च पुष्पैश्चामृतगन्धिभिः ॥ ४३ ॥

Placing the said emblem in the middle of an altar of sand, Rāvaṇa for his part worshipped it with sandal-pastes (of various kinds) and flowers, of undying fragrance. (43)

ततः सतामार्तिहरं परं वरं
वरप्रदं चन्द्रमयूखभूषणम् ।

समर्चयित्वा स निशाचरो जगौ
प्रसार्य हस्तान् प्रणनर्त चाग्रतः ॥ ४४ ॥

Having duly worshipped the supreme and most excellent Lord Śiva (who bears moonbeams on His head as an ornament), the reliever of the agony of the virtuous and the bestower of boons, the said ranger of the night sang and, stretching his arms gaily danced before Him. (44)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकत्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-one in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्वात्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXII

The flow of the Narmadā gets intercepted by the arms of Arjuna; the heap of flowers collected for Rāvaṇa's worship of Lord Śiva is swept away by the reversed current; the encounter of Rāvaṇa and the other ogres with Arjuna; Arjuna captures Rāvaṇa and bears him away to his city

नर्मदापुलिने यत्र राक्षसेन्द्रः स दारुणः ।
पुष्पोपहारं कुरुते तस्माद् देशाददूरतः ॥ १ ॥
अर्जुनो जयतां श्रेष्ठो माहिष्मत्याः पतिः प्रभुः ।
क्रीडते सह नारीभिर्नर्मदातोयमाश्रितः ॥ २ ॥

Not far from the place where, on the sandy bank of the Narmadā, the dread king of ogres was offering flowers to Lord Śiva, Arjuna, the powerful ruler of Māhiṣmatī and the foremost of conquerors, was sporting with his womenfolk in the waters of the Narmadā. (1-2)

तासां मध्यगतो राजा रराज च तदार्जुनः ।
करेणूनां सहस्रस्य मध्यस्थ इव कुञ्जरः ॥ ३ ॥

Standing in their midst, King Arjuna shone at the moment like an elephant in the midst of a thousand of she-elephants. (3)

जिज्ञासुः स तु बाहूनां सहस्रस्योत्तमं बलम् ।
रुरोध नर्मदावेगं बाहुभिर्वहुभिर्वृतः ॥ ४ ॥

Seeking to know the maximum strength of his thousand arms, Arjuna for his part, who was endowed with numerous arms, blocked the Narmadā. (4)

कार्तवीर्यभुजासक्तं तज्जलं प्राप्य निर्मलम् ।
कूलोपहारं कुर्वाणं प्रतिस्त्रोतः प्रधावति ॥ ५ ॥

Reaching Rāvaṇa, who was offering flowers to Lord Śiva on a sandy bank of the Narmadā, when held up by the arms of Arjuna (son of Kṛtavīrya), the transparent waters of the Narmadā began to flow rapidly upstream. (5)

समीननक्रमकरः सपुष्पकुशसंस्तरः ।
स नर्मदाम्भसो वेगः प्रावृट्काल इवाबभौ ॥ ६ ॥

The vehemence of the Narmadā, flowing as it did with its fishes, crocodiles and alligators as also with its flowers and layers of sacred Kuśa grass (spread out at a sacrifice), looked as it did during the monsoon. (6)

स वेगः कार्तवीर्येण सम्प्रेषित इवाम्भसः ।
पुष्पोपहारं सकलं रावणस्य जहार ह ॥ ७ ॥

That rapid flow of water, as though impelled by Arjuna (son of Kṛtavīrya), they say, swept away all the flowers that had been collected for being offered to Lord Śiva by Rāvaṇa. (7)

रावणोऽर्धसमाप्तं तमुत्सृज्य नियमं तदा ।
नर्मदां पश्यते कान्तां प्रतिकूलां यथा प्रियाम् ॥ ८ ॥

Leaving the observance when it was only half-way through, Rāvaṇa looked at the

Narmadā as if one would look upon one's beloved wife turned refractory. (8)

पश्चिमेन तु तं दृष्ट्वा सागरोद्गारसन्निभम् ।
वर्धन्तमम्भसो वेगं पूर्वामाशां प्रविश्य तु ॥ १ ॥
ततोऽनुद्भ्रान्तशकुनां स्वभावे परमे स्थिताम् ।
निर्विकाराङ्गनाभासामपश्यद् रावणो नदीम् ॥ १० ॥

Surveying the rapid flow of water from the west gathering force on entering the east like the flood-tide in a sea, Rāvaṇa for his part found the river existing in its absolutely natural state, as was evident from the fact that the birds did not feel the least bewildered and thus resembling a lady free from agitation. (9-10)

सव्येतरकराङ्गुल्या ह्यशब्दास्यो दशाननः ।
वेगप्रभवमन्वेष्टुं सोऽदिशच्छुकसारणौ ॥ ११ ॥

Without uttering a word with his mouth, that ten-headed monster directed with a finger of his right hand Śuka and Sāraṇa to seek out the cause of the rapid flow. (11)

तौ तु रावणसंदिष्टौ भ्रातरौ शुकसारणौ ।
व्योमान्तरगतौ वीरौ प्रस्थितौ पश्चिमामुखौ ॥ १२ ॥

Commanded by Rāvaṇa, the two heroic brothers, Śuka and Sāraṇa, set out with their faces turned towards the west, coursing through the airspace. (12)

अर्धयोजनमात्रं तु गत्वा तौ रजनीचरौ ।
पश्येतां पुरुषं तोये क्रीडन्तं सहयोषितम् ॥ १३ ॥
बृहत्सालप्रतीकाशं तोयव्याकुलमूर्धजम् ।
मदरक्तान्तनयनं मदव्याकुलचेतसम् ॥ १४ ॥

नदीं बाहुसहस्रेण रुन्धन्तमरिमर्दनम् ।
गिरिं पादसहस्रेण रुन्धन्तमिव मेदिनीम् ॥ १५ ॥
बालानां वरनारीणां सहस्रेण समावृतम् ।
समदानां करेणूनां सहस्रेणेव कुञ्जरम् ॥ १६ ॥

Advancing half a Yojana (four miles) only, the aforesaid rangers of the night saw sporting with women in the waters a man resembling a huge sal tree, his hair tossed about in the waters, the corners of his eyes red through inebriety and his mind distracted through intoxication, and capable of crushing his enemy, blocking the river with his thousand arms, even as a mountain would block the earth with its thousand offshoots, and surrounded by a thousand comely young women like an elephant surrounded by a thousand she-elephants in rut. (13—16)

तमद्भुततरं दृष्ट्वा राक्षसौ शुकसारणौ ।
संनिवृत्तावुपागम्य रावणं तमथोचतुः ॥ १७ ॥

Beholding that highly prodigious man, the ogres, Śuka and Sāraṇa turned back and, approaching Rāvaṇa, spoke to him as follows: (17)

बृहत्सालप्रतीकाशः कोऽप्यसौ राक्षसेश्वर ।
नर्मदां रोधवद् रुद्ध्वा क्रीडापयति योषितः ॥ १८ ॥

'Blocking the Narmadā like a dyke, O ruler of ogres, an unknown person, resembling an enormous sal tree, is providing amusement to women. (18)

तेन बाहुसहस्रेण संनिरुद्धजला नदी ।
सागरोद्गारसंकाशानुद्गारान् सृजते मुहुः ॥ १९ ॥

'With its waters blocked by him with his thousand arms, the river is repeatedly disgorging volumes of water resembling the flood-tide in a sea.' (19)

इत्येवं भाषमाणौ तौ निशम्य शुकसारणौ ।
रावणोऽर्जुन इत्युक्त्वा स ययौ युद्धलालसः ॥ २० ॥

Saying "So it is!" Arjuna, on hearing the aforesaid Śuka and Sāraṇa speaking as above, the notorious Rāvaṇa sallied forth, thirsting for an encounter. (20)

अर्जुनाभिमुखे तस्मिन् रावणे राक्षसाधिपे ।
चण्डः प्रवाति पवनः सनादः सरजस्तथा ॥ २१ ॥

When Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, set forth with his face directed towards Arjuna, the wind blew furiously with a noise and dust. (21)

सकृदेव कृतो रावः सरक्तपृष्ठतो घनैः ।
महोदरमहापार्श्वधूम्राक्षशुकसारणैः ॥ २२ ॥

संवृतो राक्षसेन्द्रस्तु तत्रागाद् यत्र चार्जुनः ।
अदीर्घेणैव कालेन स तदा राक्षसो बली ॥ २३ ॥

तं नर्मदाहृदं भीममाजगामाञ्जनप्रभः ।
 स तत्र स्त्रीपरिवृतं वासिताभिरिव द्विपम् ॥ २४ ॥
 नरेन्द्रं पश्यते राजा राक्षसानां तदार्जुनम् ।
 स रोषाद् रक्तनयनो राक्षसेन्द्रो बलोद्धतः ॥ २५ ॥
 इत्येवमर्जुनामात्यानाह गम्भीरया गिरा ।
 अमात्याः क्षिप्रमाख्यात हैहयस्य नृपस्य वै ॥ २६ ॥
 युद्धार्थं समनुप्राप्तो रावणो नाम नामतः ।
 रावणस्य वचः श्रुत्वा मन्त्रिणोऽथार्जुनस्य ते ॥ २७ ॥
 उत्तस्थुः सायुधास्तं च रावणं वाक्यमब्रुवन् ।
 युद्धस्य कालो विज्ञातः साधु भो साधु रावण ॥ २८ ॥
 यः क्षीबं स्त्रीगतं चैव योद्धुमुत्सहसे नृपम् ।
 स्त्रीसमक्षगतं यत् त्वं योद्धुमुत्सहसे नृप ॥ २९ ॥
 वासितामध्यगं मत्तं शार्दूल इव कुञ्जरम् ।
 क्षमस्वाद्य दशग्रीव उष्यतां रजनी त्वया ।
 युद्धे श्रद्धा तु यद्यस्ति श्वस्तात समरेऽर्जुनम् ॥ ३० ॥

A peal of thunder was emitted by the clouds with drops of blood. Nay, protected by Mahodara, Mahāpārśwa, Dhūmrākṣa, Śuka and Sāraṇa, the ruler of ogres for his part arrived at the place where Arjuna was sporting. In a short time that mighty ogre, who shone as antimony, reached the frightful pool forming part of the Narmadā. There the king of ogres saw at that moment King Arjuna surrounded by women as an elephant by she-elephants. His eyes red through anger, that ruler of ogres, who was arrogant by reason of his might, spoke as follows to the ministers of Arjuna in a deep tone: "O ministers, make it known quickly to the king of the Haihayas that a warrior, Rāvaṇa by name, has actually come to him for an encounter." Hearing the challenge of Rāvaṇa, the aforesaid ministers of Arjuna forthwith sprang on their feet, armed with weapons, and submitted as follows to the notorious Rāvaṇa: "Well! The time suitable for a trial of strength is indeed well-known to you, O Rāvaṇa, in that you feel inclined to enter into a combat with a prince who is drunk and in the company of women! Since, O king, you seek to fight with one who stands in the presence of womenfolk, even as a tiger would seek to fight with an elephant in rut standing in the midst of she-elephants. Have patience today, O ten-headed monster, and let the night be spent here by you; if there is keenness in you for a combat, fight Arjuna tomorrow, O dear friend! (22—30)

यदि वापि त्वरा तुभ्यं युद्धतृष्णासमावृता ।
 निपात्यास्मान् रणे युद्धमर्जुनेनोपयास्यसि ॥ ३१ ॥

"If, however, you are in a hurry, O warrior seized with a thirst for combat, you will have an opportunity for an encounter with Arjuna only after overthrowing us in combat." (31)

ततस्तै रावणामात्यैरमात्यास्ते नृपस्य तु ।
 सूदिताश्चापि ते युद्धे भक्षिताश्च बुभुक्षितैः ॥ ३२ ॥

The aforesaid ministers of King Arjuna for their part were thereupon killed in combat and devoured by the said ministers of Rāvaṇa who were all seized with hunger. (32)

ततो हलहलाशब्दो नर्मदातीरगो बभौ ।
 अर्जुनस्यानुयात्राणां रावणस्य च मन्त्रिणाम् ॥ ३३ ॥

An uproar then arose on the bank of the Narmadā among the followers of King Arjuna and the ministers of Rāvaṇa. (33)

इषुभिस्तोमरैः प्रासैस्त्रिशूलैर्वज्रकर्षणैः ।
 सरावणानर्दयन्तः समन्तात् समभिद्रुताः ॥ ३४ ॥

The ministers of Arjuna rushed on all sides hitting the intruders including Rāvaṇa with arrows, iron-clubs, lances and tridents which tore up the skin like the thunderbolt. (34)

हैहयाधिपयोधानां वेग आसीत् सुदारुणः ।
 सनक्रमीनमकरसमुद्रस्येव निःस्वनः ॥ ३५ ॥

The onrush of the warriors of the king of the Haihayas was fierce like the roar of a sea infested with crocodiles, fishes and alligators. (35)

रावणस्य तु तेऽमात्याः प्रहस्तशुकसारणाः ।
 कार्तवीर्यबलं क्रुद्धा निहन्ति स्म स्वतेजसा ॥ ३६ ॥

Provoked to anger, the aforesaid ministers of Rāvaṇa—Prahasta, Śuka and

Sāraṇa, however, began to exterminate the army of Arjuna (son of Kṛtavīrya) with their might. (36)

अर्जुनाय तु तत्कर्म रावणस्य समन्त्रिणः ।

क्रीडमानाय कथितं पुरुषैर्भयविह्वलैः ॥ ३७ ॥

The aforesaid doing of Rāvaṇa accompanied by his ministers was, however, reported to the sporting Arjuna by his men, who were beside themselves through fear. (37)

श्रुत्वा न भेतव्यमिति स्त्रीजनं स तदार्जुनः ।

उत्तार जलात् तस्माद् गङ्गातोयादिवाञ्छनः ॥ ३८ ॥

Saying to the womenfolk, "You need not be afraid," on hearing the report, the celebrated Arjuna then emerged from the waters of the Narmadā even as Añjana (one of the elephants guarding the quarters) would emerge from waters of the Gaṅgā. (38)

क्रोधदूषितनेत्रस्तु स तदार्जुनपावकः ।

प्रज्वाल महाघोरो युगान्त इव पावकः ॥ ३९ ॥

His eyes coloured through anger, the fiery Arjuna flared up like the most dreadful fire at the end of a world-cycle. (39)

स तूर्णतरमादाय वरहेमाङ्गदो गदाम् ।

अभिदुद्राव रक्षांसि तमांसीव दिवाकरः ॥ ४० ॥

Seizing hold with all speed of a mace, Arjuna, who was adorned with a pair of excellent golden armlets, drove away the ogres even as the sun would dispel darkness. (40)

बाहुविक्षेपकरणां समुद्यम्य महागदाम् ।

गारुडं वेगमास्थाय आपपातैव सोऽर्जुनः ॥ ४१ ॥

Holding up his huge mace, which could be spun with one's arms, and assuming the speed of Garuḍa (the king of birds), the celebrated Arjuna immediately rushed on the ogres. (41)

तस्य मार्गं समारुद्ध्य विन्ध्योऽर्कस्येव पर्वतः ।

स्थितो विन्ध्य इवाकम्प्यः प्रहस्तो मुसलायुधः ॥ ४२ ॥

Barring his path, even as the Vindhya mountain intercepted the orbit of the sun of yore, Prahasta stood unshakable like the Vindhya, pestle in hand. (42)

ततोऽस्य मुसलं घोरं लोहबद्धं मदोद्धतः ।

प्रहस्तः प्रेषयन् क्रुद्धो ररास च यथान्तकः ॥ ४३ ॥

Inflated with arrogance and provoked to anger, Prahasta thereupon hurled the dreadful copper-bound pestle at Arjuna and roared like Death. (43)

तस्याग्रे मुसलस्याग्रिशोकापीडसंनिभः ।

प्रहस्तकरमुक्तस्य बभूव प्रदहन्निव ॥ ४४ ॥

At the tip of the pestle shot by the hand of Prahasta appeared a fire resembling the point of an Aśoka flower, which seemed to consume its Target. (44)

आधावमानं मुसलं कार्तवीर्यस्तदार्जुनः ।

निपुणं वञ्चयामास गदया गतविक्लवः ॥ ४५ ॥

Not the least perplexed, Arjuna, son of Kṛtavīrya, at that time completely confronted the pestle, which was coming with great speed, by means of his mace. (45)

ततस्तमभिदुद्राव सगदो हैहयाधिपः ।

भ्रामयाणो गदां गुर्वी पञ्चबाहुशतोच्छ्रयाम् ॥ ४६ ॥

Whirling his massive mace, which was thrown with five hundred arms, the king of the Haihayas, who was still armed with a mace, thereupon rushed on Prahasta. (46)

ततो हतोऽतिवेगेन प्रहस्तो गदया तदा ।

निपपात स्थितः शैलो वज्रिवज्रहतो यथा ॥ ४७ ॥

Struck with great vehemence by the mace at that time, Prahasta, who stood erect, thereupon fell prostrate like a hill struck by the thunderbolt of Indra, the wielder of the thunderbolt. (47)

प्रहस्तं पतितं दृष्ट्वा मारीचशुकसारणाः ।

समहोदरधूम्राक्षा अपसृष्टा रणाजिरात् ॥ ४८ ॥

Seeing Prahasta fallen, Mārica, Śuka and Sāraṇa alongwith Mahodara and Dhūmrākṣa slipped away from the field of battle. (48)

अपक्रान्तेष्वमात्येषु प्रहस्ते च निपातिते।
रावणोऽभ्यद्रवत् तूर्णमर्जुनं नृपसत्तमम् ॥ ४९ ॥

The ministers having fled away and Prahasta having been struck down, Rāvaṇa rushed with all speed towards Arjuna, the foremost of kings. (49)

सहस्रबाहोस्तद् युद्धं विंशद्बाहोश्च दारुणम्।
नृपराक्षसयोस्तत्र आरब्धं रोमहर्षणम् ॥ ५० ॥

Then commenced a fierce fight, which caused one's hair to stand on end, between the thousand-armed king and the twenty-armed ogre. (50)

सागराविव संक्षुब्धौ चलमूलाविवाचलौ।
तेजोयुक्ताविवादित्यौ प्रदहन्ताविवानलौ ॥ ५१ ॥
बलोद्धतौ यथा नागौ वासितार्थे यथा वृषौ।
मेघाविव विनर्दन्तौ सिंहाविव बलोत्कटौ ॥ ५२ ॥
रुद्रकालाविव क्रुद्धौ तौ तदा राक्षसांर्जुनौ।
परस्परं गदां गृह्य ताडयामासतुर्भृशम् ॥ ५३ ॥

Seizing hold of a mace each, the ogre and King Arjuna, who looked at that time like two seas which were greatly ruffled, two mountains with moving bases, a pair of suns full of martial ardour, a couple of blazing fires, two elephants intoxicated with might, two bulls contending for a cow in heat, two thundering clouds, two lions proud of their might, like Rudra, the god of destruction, and Kāla, the Time-Spirit, provoked to anger, struck each other violently. (51—53)

वज्रप्रहारानचला यथा घोरां विषेहिरे।
गदाप्रहारांस्तौ तत्र सेहाते नरराक्षसौ ॥ ५४ ॥

Even as the mountains withstood the formidable strokes of lightning at the beginning of creation, so did the two warriors, the human being, Arjuna, and the ogre, Rāvaṇa, endure the blows of each other's mace. (54)

यथाशनिरवेभ्यस्तु जायतेऽथ प्रतिश्रुतिः।
तथा तयोर्गदापोथैर्दिशः सर्वाः प्रतिश्रुताः ॥ ५५ ॥

Even as reverberations emanate from the peals of thunder, so did all the quarters resound with the clashes of their maces. (55)

अर्जुनस्य गदा सा तु पात्यमानाऽहितोरसि।
काञ्चनाभं नभश्चक्रे विद्युत्सौदामनी यथा ॥ ५६ ॥

While being directed against the enemy's breast, the well-known mace of Arjuna for its part rendered it golden even as a flash of lightning makes the sky assume a golden hue. (56)

तथैव रावणेनापि पात्यमाना मुहुर्मुहुः।
अर्जुनोरसि निर्भाति गदोल्केव महागिरौ ॥ ५७ ॥

Being repeatedly directed against the breast of Arjuna by Rāvaṇa too, his mace likewise shone brightly like a meteor descending on a huge mountain. (57)

नार्जुनः खेदमायाति न राक्षसगणेश्वरः।
सममासीत् तयोर्युद्धं यथा पूर्वं बलीन्द्रयोः ॥ ५८ ॥

Neither Arjuna nor the ruler of the hordes of ogres grew weary. Well-matched was their duel as that which took place between Bali and Indra of yore. (58)

शृङ्गैरिव वृषायुध्यन् दन्ताग्रैरिव कुञ्जरौ।
परस्परं विनिघ्नन्तौ नरराक्षससत्तमौ ॥ ५९ ॥

Striking each other violently with full force, the foremost of human beings as well as the jewel among the ogres fought even as a pair of bulls would do with their horns, or two elephants with their tusks. (59)

ततोऽर्जुनेन क्रुद्धेन सर्वप्राणेन सा गदा।
स्तनयोरन्तरे मुक्ता रावणस्य महोरसि ॥ ६० ॥

The said mace was then hurled with all his strength by the enraged Arjuna on the mighty chest of Rāvaṇa. (60)

वरदानकृतत्राणे सा गदा रावणोरसि।
दुर्बलेव यथावेगं द्विधाभूतापतत् क्षितौ ॥ ६१ ॥

Though hurled with full force on the breast of Rāvaṇa, which was protected by the bestowal of boons by Brahmā, the said mace fell on the ground, broken in two as though it were of meagre strength. (61)

स त्वर्जुनप्रयुक्तेन गदाघातेन रावणः।
अपासर्पद् धनुर्मात्रं निषसाद् च निष्टनन् ॥ ६२ ॥

Under the blow of the mace directed by Arjuna, however, the notorious Rāvaṇa receded a bow's length and sank down crying. (62)

स विह्वलं तदालक्ष्य दशग्रीवं ततोऽर्जुनः ।
सहस्रोत्पत्य जग्राह गरुत्मानिव पन्नगम् ॥ ६३ ॥

Springing forward all of a sudden on seeing Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) confused at that time, Arjuna thereupon caught hold of him as Garuḍa (the king of birds) would seize a serpent. (63)

स तु बाहुसहस्रेण बलाद् गृह्य दशाननम् ।
बबन्ध बलवान् राजा बलिं नारायणो यथा ॥ ६४ ॥

Forcibly laying hold of Rāvaṇa with his thousand arms, the mighty king bound him even as Lord Nārāyaṇa in His descent as Vāmana bound Bali. (64)

बध्यमाने दशग्रीवे सिद्धचारणदेवताः ।
साध्वीति वादिनः पुष्पैः किरन्त्यर्जुनमूर्धनि ॥ ६५ ॥

While Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) was being bound, the Siddhas (a class of semi-divine beings credited with supernatural powers by virtue of their very birth), Cāraṇas (celestial bards) and gods (witnessing the scene from the skies) covered the airspace over the head of Arjuna with flowers, saying "Well done!" (65)

व्याघ्रो मृगमिवादाय मृगराडिव कुञ्जरम् ।
राससं हैहयो राजा हर्षादम्बुदवन्मुहुः ॥ ६६ ॥

Having captured Rāvaṇa even as a tiger would seize a deer or a lion would lay hold of an elephant, King Arjuna (the ruler of the Haihayas) thundered like a cloud again and again. (66)

प्रहस्तस्तु समाश्वस्तो दृष्ट्वा बद्धं दशाननम् ।
सहसा राक्षसः क्रुद्धो ह्यभिदुद्राव हैहयम् ॥ ६७ ॥

Provoked to anger on seeing Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) bound, when fully restored to consciousness, the ogre Prahasta for his part rapidly rushed headlong on Arjuna. (67)

नक्तंचराणां वेगस्तु तेषामापततां बभौ ।
उद्धूत आतपापाये पयोदानामिवाम्बुधौ ॥ ६८ ॥

The onrush of those assailing night-rangers grew in violence as that of clouds appearing on the sea at the end of summer. (68)

मुञ्चमुञ्चेति भाषन्तस्तिष्ठतिष्ठेति चासकृत् ।
मुसलानि च शूलानि सोत्ससर्ज तदा रणे ॥ ६९ ॥

The ogres rushed forth, repeatedly crying "Hurl the weapon! Hurl the weapon" and "Stay awhile, Stay awhile" and he (Prahasta) hurled pestles and darts on the battlefield. (69)

अप्राप्तान्येव तान्याशु असम्भ्रान्तस्तदार्जुनः ।
आयुधान्यमरारीणां जग्राहारिनिषूदनः ॥ ७० ॥

Not at all confused, Arjuna, the destroyer of his foes, at that time speedily took hold of those weapons of the enemies of gods even before they reached him. (70)

ततस्तैरेव रक्षांसि दुर्धरैः प्रवरायुधैः ।
भित्त्वा विद्रावयामास वायुरम्बुधरानिव ॥ ७१ ॥

Piercing the ogres with those very weapons, which were most excellent and difficult even to hold, Arjuna drove them away even as the wind disperses clouds. (71)

राक्षसांस्त्रासयामास कार्तवीर्यार्जुनस्तदा ।
रावणं गृह्य नगरं प्रविवेश सुहृद्वृतः ॥ ७२ ॥

Arjuna, son of Kṛtavīrya, frightened the ogres at that time. Nay taking Rāvaṇa and surrounded by his friends, he entered the city. (72)

स कीर्यमाणः कुसुमाक्षतोत्करै-
द्विजैः सपौरैः पुरुहूतसंनिभः ।

ततोऽर्जुनः स्वां प्रविवेश तां पुरीं
बलिं निगृह्येव सहस्रलोचनः ॥ ७३ ॥

Being covered with heaps of flowers and unbroken grains of rice by Brāhmaṇas (the twice-born) and other citizens on capturing Rāvaṇa, Arjuna, who closely resembled Indra (who is invoked by many), thereupon entered his well-known city even as Indra (the thousand-eyed god) entered his city after capturing Bali. (73)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे द्वात्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-two in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रयस्त्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXIII

Pulastya secures the deliverance of Rāvaṇa from the bondage of Arjuna

रावणग्रहणं तत् तु वायुग्रहणसंनिभम् ।
ततः पुलस्त्यः शुश्राव कथितं दिवि दैवतैः ॥ १ ॥

Pulastya thereupon heard as narrated by the gods in heaven the story of Rāvaṇa's aforesaid capture, which was much like capturing the air. (1)

ततः पुत्रकृतस्नेहात् कम्पमानो महधृतिः ।
माहिष्मतीपतिं द्रष्टुमाजगाम महानृषिः ॥ २ ॥

Feeling commiseration (for Rāvaṇa) due to affection for his son (grandson), though highly self-possessed, the great Ṛṣi (seer of Vedic Mantras) came all the way to see the ruler of Māhiṣmatī. (2)

स वायुमार्गमास्थाय वायुतुल्यगतिर्द्विजः ।
पुरीं माहिष्मतीं प्राप्तो मनःसम्पातविक्रमः ॥ ३ ॥

Travelling by the aerial route, the Brāhmaṇa, whose speed equalled that of the wind, reached the city of Māhiṣmatī with the swiftness of thought. (3)

सोऽमरावतिसंकाशां हृष्टपुष्टजनावृताम् ।
प्रविवेश पुरीं ब्रह्मा इन्द्रस्येवामरावतीम् ॥ ४ ॥

Like Brahmā entering Amarāvati, the city of Indra, he penetrated deep into the city, which was crowded with happy and prosperous people and which closely resembled Amarāvati. (4)

पादचारमिवादित्यं निष्पतन्तं सुदुर्दृशम् ।
ततस्ते प्रत्यभिज्ञाय अर्जुनाय न्यवेदयन् ॥ ५ ॥

Recognizing the sage, who looked like the sun-god coming on foot, extremely difficult as he was to gaze on, even while he was descending from the heavens, the counsellors of Arjuna thereupon reported his arrival to him. (5)

पुलस्त्य इति विज्ञाय वचनाद्बैहयाधिपः ।
शिरस्यञ्जलिमाधाय प्रत्युद्वच्छत् तपस्विनम् ॥ ६ ॥

Placing his joined palms above his head on coming to know from their report that he was no other than Sage Pulastya, Arjuna
(the suzerain lord of the Haihayas) went forward to meet the ascetic. (6)

पुरोहितोऽस्य गृह्यार्घ्यं मधुपर्कं तथैव च ।
पुरस्तात् प्रययौ राज्ञः शक्रस्येव बृहस्पतिः ॥ ७ ॥

Taking with him Arghya (water to wash one's hands with) as well as Madhuparka (a mixture of honey and curds), his family-priest preceded the king even as Sage Bṛhaspati, the preceptor of gods, would walk ahead of Indra. (7)

ततस्तमृषिमायान्तमुद्यन्तमिव भास्करम् ।
अर्जुनो दृश्य सम्भ्रान्तो ववन्देन्द्र इवेश्वरम् ॥ ८ ॥

Overawed to see the aforesaid Ṛṣi
(the seer of Vedic Mantras) coming like the rising sun, Arjuna thereupon saluted him even as Indra, the ruler of gods, would salute the Supreme (Brahma). (8)

स तस्य मधुपर्कं गां पाद्यमर्घ्यं निवेद्य च ।
पुलस्त्यमाह राजेन्द्रो हर्षगद्गदया गिरा ॥ ९ ॥

Having offered Madhuparka, a cow and water to wash his feet and hands (respectively) with, Arjuna, the king of kings, submitted as follows to Sage Pulastya in a voice choked with delight: (9)

अद्यैवममरावत्या तुल्या माहिष्मती कृता।

अद्याहं तु द्विजेन्द्र त्वां यस्मात् पश्यामि दुर्दृशम् ॥ १० ॥

“Māhiṣmatī has in this way been placed on a par with Amarāvati (the city of Indra) this day in that I see today, O prince of the twice-born, you, who are really so difficult to behold. (10)

अद्य मे कुशलं देव अद्य मे कुशलं व्रतम्।

अद्य मे सफलं जन्म अद्य मे सफलं तपः ॥ ११ ॥

यत् ते देवगणैर्वन्द्यौ वन्देऽहं चरणौ तव।

इदं राज्यमिमे पुत्रा इमे दारा इमे वयम्।

ब्रह्मन् किं कुर्मि किं कार्यमाज्ञापयतु नो भवान् ॥ १२ ॥

“Prosperity attends on me today, O revered one! My vow too stands fulfilled today; my birth too stands consummated today and my askesis too have borne fruit today in that I salute your holy feet, which deserve to be saluted by gods. This kingdom, these sons and these consorts of mine, nay, even ourselves stand at your service. What should we do? Pray, command us what should be done by us.” (11-12)

तं धर्मेऽग्निषु पुत्रेषु शिवं पृष्ट्वा च पार्थिवम्।

पुलस्त्योवाच राजानं हैहयानां तथार्जुनम् ॥ १३ ॥

Having inquired of the king about his welfare concerning religious practices, sacrificial fires and sons, Sage Pulastya spoke as follows to Arjuna, the ruler of the Haihayas: (13)

नरेन्द्राम्बुजपत्राक्ष पूर्णचन्द्रनिभानन।

अतुलं ते बलं येन दशग्रीवस्त्वया जितः ॥ १४ ॥

“Matchless is your might by dint of which Rāvaṇa stands conquered by you, O ruler of men whose eyes resemble the lotus-petals and whose countenance shines as the full moon. (14)

भयाद् यस्योपतिष्ठेतां निष्पन्दौ सागरानिलौ।

सोऽयं मृधे त्वया बद्धः पौत्रो मे रणदुर्जयः ॥ १५ ॥

“That very grandson of mine, who was hard to conquer, and for fear of whom the ocean as well as the wind stood motionless in attendance, was made captive by you on the battlefield. (15)

पुत्रकस्य यशः पीतं नाम विश्रावितं त्वया।

मद्वाक्याद् याच्यमानोऽद्य मुञ्च वत्स दशाननम् ॥ १६ ॥

“The glory of my beloved child stands swallowed up by you and your own name has been made widely known by you. Being solicited by me today, pray, set my child, Rāvaṇa, free at my intercession.” (16)

पुलस्त्याज्ञां प्रगृह्योचे न किञ्चन वचोऽर्जुनः।

मुमोच वै पार्थिवेन्द्रो राक्षसेन्द्रं प्रहृष्टवत् ॥ १७ ॥

Arjuna did not utter a word in reply. Bowing to the command of Pulastya, however, the king of kings joyously set free the ruler of ogres. (17)

स तं प्रमुच्य त्रिदशारिमर्जुनः

प्रपूज्य दिव्याभरणस्त्रगम्बरैः।

अहिंसकं सख्यमुपेत्य साग्निकं

प्रणम्य तं ब्रह्मसुतं गृहं ययौ ॥ १८ ॥

Having unconditionally released the enemy of gods and duly honoured him with celestial ornaments, garlands and raiment, nay, contracted with him in the presence of fire an alliance which involved no destruction to each other and, respectfully bowing down to the aforesaid son of Brahmā (the creator), the celebrated Arjuna entered his palace. (18)

पुलस्त्येनापि संत्यक्तो राक्षसेन्द्रः प्रतापवान्।

परिष्वक्तः कृतातिथ्यो लज्जमानो विनिर्जितः ॥ १९ ॥

Though unconditionally released by Arjuna after being hospitably treated, and lovingly embraced by his grandfather, Pulastya, the glorious Rāvaṇa felt shy due to his having been utterly vanquished. (19)

पितामहसुतश्चापि पुलस्त्यो मुनिपुङ्गवः।

मोचयित्वा दशग्रीवं ब्रह्मलोकं जगाम ह ॥ २० ॥

Having secured the deliverance of

Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster), they say, Pulastya too, (a mind-born) son of Brahmā (the grandfather of the entire creation) and the foremost of ascetics, went back to the realm of Brahmā (the creator). (20)

एवं स रावणः प्राप्तः कार्तवीर्यात् प्रधर्षणम्।
पुलस्त्यवचनाच्चापि पुनर्मुक्तो महाबलः ॥ २१ ॥

In this way the notorious and highly powerful Rāvaṇa sustained defeat at the hands of Arjuna (son of Kṛtavīrya) and was then also set at liberty once more at the intercession of Pulastya. (21)

एवं बलिभ्यो बलिनः सन्ति राघवनन्दन।
नावज्ञा हि परे कार्या य इच्छेच्छ्रेय आत्मनः ॥ २२ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे त्रयस्त्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-three in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुस्त्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXIV

Rāvaṇa's humiliation at the hands of Vālī; Rāvaṇa makes friends with him

अर्जुनेन विमुक्तस्तु रावणो राक्षसाधिपः।
चचार पृथिवीं सर्वामनिर्विण्णस्तथा कृतः ॥ १ ॥

Having been set free by Arjuna, and thus rendered free from all causes of despondency, Rāvaṇa, the suzerain lord of ogres, for his part ranged over the entire globe. (1)

राक्षसं वा मनुष्यं वा शृणुते यं बलाधिकम्।
रावणस्तं समासाद्य युद्धे ह्वयति दर्पितः ॥ २ ॥

Approaching whomsoever he heard of as superior in might, irrespective of whether he was an ogre or a human being, Rāvaṇa, full of arrogance, challenged him to a duel. (2)

ततः कदाचित् किष्किन्धां नगरीं वालिपालिताम्।
गत्वाऽऽह्वयति युद्धाय वालिनं हेममालिनम् ॥ ३ ॥

Making his way to the city of Kiṣkindhā,

Thus, O delight of the scions of Raghu, there are warriors mightier than the mighty; hence by him who seeks his own welfare no disrespect should be shown to his enemy. (22)

ततः स राजा पिशिताशनानां
सहस्रबाहोरुपलभ्य मैत्रीम्।
पुनर्नृपाणां कदनं चकार
चकार सर्वा पृथिवीं च दर्पात् ॥ २३ ॥

Having secured the alliance of Arjuna (the thousand-armed prince), the said king of ogres (lit., flesh-eaters) resumed the destruction of rulers of men and arrogantly ranged over the entire globe. (23)

ruled over by Vālī, on a certain day, he then challenged Vālī, who was adorned with a gold necklace, to a duel. (3)

ततस्तु वानरामात्यास्तारस्तारापिता प्रभुः।
उवाच वानरो वाक्यं युद्धप्रेप्सुमुपागतम् ॥ ४ ॥

Thereupon Tāra, a minister of Vālī (the chief of monkeys), Suśeṇa (father of Tārā, Vālī's consort), Aṅgada (the Crown prince) and Sugrīva (the junior monkey chief) spoke as follows to Rāvaṇa, who had come seeking combat: (4)

राक्षसेन्द्र गतो वाली यस्ते प्रतिबलो भवेत्।
कोऽन्यः प्रमुखतः स्थातुं तव शक्तः प्लवङ्गमः ॥ ५ ॥

“Vālī, O ruler of ogres, who may be a match for you, has gone out. What other monkey is capable of standing before you? (5)

चतुर्थ्योऽपि समुद्रेभ्यः संध्यामन्वास्य रावण ।
इदं मुहूर्तमायाति वाली तिष्ठ मुहूर्तकम् ॥ ६ ॥

“After saying his Sandhyā prayers on the shore of all the four oceans, O Rāvaṇa, Vālī must be returning this very hour. Pray, wait awhile. (6)

एतानस्थिचयान् पश्य य एते शङ्खुपाण्डुराः ।
युद्धार्थिनामिमे राजन् वानराधिपतेजसा ॥ ७ ॥

Behold these heaps of bones, which are white as a conch. These are the bones of those who sought combat with Vālī and were crushed by the might of Vālī, the suzerain lord of monkeys, O King! (7)

यद्दामृतरसः पीतस्त्वया रावण राक्षस ।
तदा वालिनमासाद्य तदन्तं तव जीवितम् ॥ ८ ॥

“Or, even if the drink of immortality has been imbibed by you, O Rāvaṇa, your life will have reached its end the moment you encounter Vālī, O ogre! (8)

पश्येदानीं जगच्चित्रमिमं विश्रवसः सुत ।
इदं मुहूर्तं तिष्ठस्व दुर्लभं ते भविष्यति ॥ ९ ॥

“Presently behold this marvel of the world, O son of Viśravā! Wait till this hour. Your life will be difficult to retain any more. (9)

अथवा त्वरसे मर्तुं गच्छ दक्षिणसागरम् ।
वालिनं द्रक्ष्यसे तत्र भूमिष्ठमिव पावकम् ॥ १० ॥

“Or, if you are in a hurry to breathe your last, proceed to the southern sea. There you will see Vālī like the god of fire staying on earth.” (10)

स तु तारं विनिर्भर्त्य रावणो लोकरावणः ।
पुष्पकं तत् समारुह्य प्रययौ दक्षिणार्णवम् ॥ ११ ॥

Severely scolding Tāra, the notorious Rāvaṇa, who made people cry, flew to the southern sea, getting on his well-known Puṣpaka car. (11)

तत्र हेमगिरिप्रख्यं तरुणार्कनिभाननम् ।
रावणो वालिनं दृष्ट्वा संध्योपासनतत्परम् ॥ १२ ॥

पुष्पकादवरुह्याथ रावणोऽञ्जनसंनिभः ।
ग्रहीतुं वालिनं तूर्णं निःशब्दपदमव्रजत् ॥ १३ ॥

Alighting from the Puṣpaka on seeing Vālī, who resembled a mountain of gold and whose countenance shone like the newly risen sun, absorbed in saying the Sandhyā prayers, Rāvaṇa who had the hue of collyrium, proceeded hastily with silent steps in order to capture him. (12-13)

यदृच्छया तदा दृष्टो वालिनापि स रावणः ।
पापाभिप्रायकं दृष्ट्वा चकार न तु सम्भ्रमम् ॥ १४ ॥

By chance the notorious Rāvaṇa too was espied by Vālī. The latter, however, did not feel perturbed even on seeing him of sinful intent. (14)

शशमालक्ष्य सिंहो वा पन्नगं गरुडो यथा ।
न चिन्तयति तं वाली रावणं पापनिश्चयम् ॥ १५ ॥

Vālī did not feel worried even on perceiving Rāvaṇa of sinful resolve any more than a lion would on seeing a hare or Garuḍa (the king of birds) on seeing a serpent. (15)

जिघृक्षमाणमायान्तं रावणं पापचेतसम् ।
कक्षावलम्बिनं कृत्वा गमिष्ये त्रीन् महार्णवान् ॥ १६ ॥

(Vālī said to himself:) “Pressing in my arm-pit the sinful-minded Rāvaṇa as soon as he approaches with intent to catch hold of me and leaving him hanging there, I shall visit the three remaining oceans too. (16)

द्रक्ष्यन्त्यरिं ममाङ्गस्थं स्तंसदूरकराम्बरम् ।
लम्बमानं दशग्रीवं गरुडस्येव पन्नगम् ॥ १७ ॥

“People will see my enemy, Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster), hanging from my arm-pit with his thighs, hands and raiment dangling, like a serpent in the claws of Garuḍa.” (17)

इत्येवं मतिमास्थाय वाली मौनमुपास्थितः ।
जपन् वै नैगमान् मन्त्रांस्तस्थौ पर्वतराडिव ॥ १८ ॥

Making up his mind thus, Vālī remained standing like the king of mountains, silently repeating Vedic Mantras. (18)

तावन्योन्यं जिघृक्षन्तौ हरिराक्षसपार्थिवौ ।
प्रयत्नवन्तौ तत् कर्म ईहतुर्बलदर्पितौ ॥ १९ ॥

Each seeking to lay his hands on the other, the two warriors, the king of monkeys and the lord of ogres, both conceited by reason of their might, strove diligently to accomplish that end. (19)

हस्तग्राहं तु तं मत्वा पादशब्देन रावणम्।
पराङ्मुखोऽपि जग्राह वाली सर्पमिवाण्डजः ॥ २० ॥

Concluding from his footfalls Rāvaṇa to be ready to catch hold of himself, Vālī, though having his back turned upon him, caught hold of him even as Garuḍa (a bird) would seize a serpent. (20)

ग्रहीतुकामं तं गृह्य रक्षसामीश्वरं हरिः।
खमुत्पपात वेगेन कृत्वा कक्षावलम्बिनम् ॥ २१ ॥

Having captured the said ruler of ogres, who sought to capture Vālī, and pressing him in his arm-pit and leaving him hanging there, Vālī, monkey-chief, sprang up with speed in the airspace. (21)

तं च पीडयमानं तु वितुदन्तं नखैर्मुहुः।
जहार रावणं वाली पवनस्तोयदं यथा ॥ २२ ॥

Even though Rāvaṇa repeatedly oppressed and pinched Vālī with his nails, the latter bore away Rāvaṇa just as the wind would sweep away a cloud. (22)

अथ ते राक्षसामात्या ह्रियमाणे दशानने।
मुमोक्षयिष्वो वालिं खमाणा अभिद्रुताः ॥ २३ ॥

While Rāvaṇa, the ten-headed monster, was being borne away, the said ministers of Rāvaṇa forthwith rushed upon Vālī, with a view to securing his release, emitting loud cries. (23)

अन्वीयमानस्तैर्वाली भ्राजतेऽम्बरमध्यगः।
अन्वीयमानो मेघौघैरम्बरस्थ इवांशुमान् ॥ २४ ॥

Being pursued by them in mid heavens, Vālī shone like the sun being followed by multitudes of clouds in space. (24)

तेऽशक्नुवन्तः सम्प्राप्तुं वालिनं राक्षसोत्तमाः।
तस्य बाहूरुवेगेन परिश्रान्ता व्यवस्थिताः ॥ २५ ॥

Failing to approach Vālī, the aforesaid jewels among the ogres stood exhausted

by the onrush of his hands and thighs. (25)

वालिमार्गादपाक्रामन् पर्वतेन्द्रापि गच्छतः।
किं पुनर्जीवनप्रेप्सुर्बिभ्रद् वै मांसशोणितम् ॥ २६ ॥

Even the foremost of mountains receded from the path of Vālī as he rushed forth, what wonder, then, that one having a body composed of flesh and blood and seeking to live should do so. (26)

अपक्षिगणसम्पातान् वानरेन्द्रो महाजवः।
क्रमशः सागरान् सर्वान् संध्याकालमवन्दत ॥ २७ ॥

Vālī (the ruler of monkeys), who moved with extraordinary speed, paid homage to the goddess presiding over the morning and evening twilights reaching one after another the four seas which could not be visited even by flocks of fast-moving birds. (27)

सम्पूज्यमानो यातस्तु खचरैः खचरोत्तमः।
पश्चिमं सागरं वाली आजगाम सरावणः ॥ २८ ॥

Being duly honoured on the way by winged creatures, Vālī, the foremost of those moving in the air, reached the western sea with Rāvaṇa tightly held in his armpit. (28)

तस्मिन् संध्यामुपासित्वा स्नात्वा जप्त्वा च वानरः।
उत्तरं सागरं प्रायाद् वहमानो दशाननम् ॥ २९ ॥

After taking a plunge in it, saying his Sandhyā prayers and muttering the sacred formula, the monkey moved to the northern sea carrying the ten-headed monster tucked in his armpit. (29)

बहुयोजनसाहस्रं वहमानो महाहरिः।
वायुवच्च मनोवच्च जगाम सह शत्रुणा ॥ ३० ॥

Carrying him across many thousands of Yojanas, the mighty monkey moved with his adversary with the speed of the wind and thought. (30)

उत्तरे सागरे संध्यामुपासित्वा दशाननम्।
वहमानोऽगमद् वाली पूर्वं वै स महोदधिम् ॥ ३१ ॥

Having said his Sandhyā prayers at the northern ocean, the said Vālī actually proceeded to the eastern sea, carrying Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster). (31)

तत्रापि संध्यामन्वास्य वासविः स हरीश्वरः ।
किष्किन्धामभितो गृह्य रावणं पुनरागमत् ॥ ३२ ॥

Having said his Sandhyā prayers there also, the aforesaid Vālī (sprung from the loins of Indra), the ruler of monkeys, returned to the precincts of Kiṣkindhā, taking with him Rāvaṇa held in his armpit. (32)

चतुर्ध्वपि समुद्रेषु संध्यामन्वास्य वानरः ।
रावणोद्ब्रह्मनश्रान्तः किष्किन्धोपवनेऽपतत् ॥ ३३ ॥

Having said his Sandhyā prayers at all the four seas, the monkey chief (Vālī), who had been worn out on account of carrying Rāvaṇa all the way, landed in a park adjoining Kiṣkindhā. (33)

रावणं तु मुमोचाथ स्वकक्षात् कपिसत्तमः ।
कुतस्त्वमिति चोवाच प्रहसन् रावणं मुहुः ॥ ३४ ॥

Vālī (the foremost of monkeys) for his part disengaged Rāvaṇa from his armpit, and loudly laughing again and again, questioned Rāvaṇa as follows: "Whence are you?" (34)

विस्मयं तु महद् गत्वा श्रमलोलनिरीक्षणः ।
राक्षसेन्द्रो हरीन्द्रं तमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ३५ ॥

Feeling great surprise, his eyes rolling on account of weariness, the ruler of ogres replied as follows to the aforesaid ruler of monkeys: (35)

वानरेन्द्र महेन्द्राभ राक्षसेन्द्रोऽस्मि रावणः ।
युद्धेप्सुरिह सम्प्राप्तः स चाद्यासादितस्त्वया ॥ ३६ ॥

"I am Rāvaṇa, the ruler of ogres, O king of monkeys, a compeer of the mighty Indra, come here seeking an encounter with you and I was consequently captured by you today. (36)

अहो बलमहो वीर्यमहो गाम्भीर्यमेव च ।
येनाहं पशुवद् गृह्य भ्रामितश्चतुरोऽर्णवान् ॥ ३७ ॥

"Astounding is the strength, marvellous is the prowess and wonderful is the profundity too in you, by whom, after seizing me I was taken like an animal round the four seas! (37)

एवमश्रान्तवद् वीर शीघ्रमेव च वानर ।
मां चैवोद्ब्रह्मानस्तु कोऽन्यो वीरो भविष्यति ॥ ३८ ॥

"What other hero would carry me so unweariedly and fast as you did, O valiant monkey? (38)

त्रयाणामेव भूतानां गतिरेषा प्लवङ्गम ।
मनोऽनिलसुपर्णानां तव चात्र न संशयः ॥ ३९ ॥

"Such a marvellous speed exists in three created entities alone—the mind, the wind-god and Garuḍa (lit., the bird with beautiful wings) as well as in you: there is no doubt about it, O monkey! (39)

सोऽहं दृष्टबलस्तुभ्यमिच्छामि हरिपुङ्गव ।
त्वया सह चिरं सख्यं सुस्निग्धं पावकाग्रतः ॥ ४० ॥

"Having witnessed your might, O jewel among the monkeys, I seek to enter into an enduring and exceedingly loving friendship with you in the presence of fire. (40)

दाराः पुत्राः पुरं राष्ट्रं भोगाच्छादनभोजनम् ।
सर्वमेवाविभक्तं नौ भविष्यति हरीश्वर ॥ ४१ ॥

"Our consorts, sons, cities, kingdoms, luxuries, raiment and food—all will be jointly held by us two, O lord of monkeys!" (41)

ततः प्रज्वालयित्वाग्निं तावुभौ हरिराक्षसौ ।
भ्रातृत्वमुपसम्पन्नौ परिष्वज्य परस्परम् ॥ ४२ ॥

Then, lighting a fire, both the said warriors, the monkey chief and the lord of ogres, entered into fraternity, after embracing each other. (42)

अन्योन्यं लम्बितकरौ ततस्तौ हरिराक्षसौ ।
किष्किन्धां विशतुर्हृष्टौ सिंहौ गिरिगुहामिव ॥ ४३ ॥

With their hands clasped together, the two warriors, the monkey chief and the king of ogres, thereupon joyously entered Kiṣkindhā like two lions entering a rock cavern. (43)

स तत्र मासमुषितः सुग्रीव इव रावणः ।
अमात्यैरागतैर्नीतस्त्रैलोक्योत्सादनार्थिभिः ॥ ४४ ॥

Rāvaṇa lived there for a month like Sugrīva. He was then led away by his ministers who had come and who were desirous of exterminating the three worlds. (44)

एवमेतत् पुरा वृत्तं वालिना रावणः प्रभो।
धर्षितश्च वृत्तश्चापि भ्राता पावकसंनिधौ ॥ ४५ ॥

This is how it happened in the past, how Rāvaṇa, my lord, was overpowered by

Vāli and was then accepted as a brother in the presence of fire. (45)

बलमप्रतिमं राम वालिनोऽभवदुत्तमम्।
सोऽपि त्वया विनिर्दग्धः शलभो वह्निना यथा ॥ ४६ ॥

Matchless and unsurpassed was the strength of Vāli. Even he was consumed by You as a moth is consumed by fire. (46)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे चतुस्त्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-four in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चत्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXV

The descent of Hanumān; he rushes against the sun, the planet Rāhu and Airāvata (the mount of Indra) even as an infant; he is rendered unconscious as the result of a stroke of lightning by Indra; the entire creation gets suffocated due to the displeasure of the wind-god; the gods under the leadership of Brahmā seek the presence of the wind-god to pacify him

अपृच्छत तदा रामो दक्षिणाशाश्रयं मुनिम्।
प्राञ्जलिर्विनयोपेत इदमाह वचोऽर्थवत् ॥ १ ॥

Śrī Rāma then questioned the sage having his abode in the southern quarter; and full of humility, with joined palms, He addressed the following significant words to him: (1)

अतुलं बलमेतद् वै वालिनो रावणस्य च।
न त्वेताभ्यां हनुमता समं त्विति मतिर्मम ॥ २ ॥

“Incomparable indeed was the aforesaid might of Vāli and Rāvaṇa. The might of the aforesaid two warriors was, however, not equal to the strength of Hanumān: such indeed is my opinion. (2)

शौर्यं दाक्ष्यं बलं धैर्यं प्राज्ञता नयसाधनम्।
विक्रमश्च प्रभावश्च हनूमति कृतालयाः ॥ ३ ॥

“Heroism, deligence, strength, firmness, sagacity, prudence and prowess and power have taken up their abode in Hanumān. (3)

दृष्ट्वैव सागरं वीक्ष्य सीदन्तीं कपिवाहिनीम्।
समाश्वास्य महाबाहुर्योजनानां शतं प्लुतः ॥ ४ ॥

“Perceiving the army of the monkeys sinking into despondency at the very sight of the sea, and reassuring it, the mighty-armed Hanumān leapt across the sea covering a hundred Yojanas (or eight hundred miles). (4)

धर्षयित्वा पुरीं लङ्कां रावणान्तःपुरं तदा।
दृष्ट्वा सम्भाषिता चापि सीता ह्याश्वासिता तथा ॥ ५ ॥

“After overpowering the ogress presiding over the city of Laṅkā and stealing into the gynaeceum of Rāvaṇa, Sītā was discovered and spoken to as well and actually comforted by him. (5)

सेनाग्रगा मन्त्रिसुताः किंकरा रावणात्मजः।
एते हनुमता तत्र एकेन विनिपातिताः ॥ ६ ॥

The leaders of Rāvaṇa’s army the sons of his counsellors, his own servants and his son—all these were struck down there by Hanumān single-handed. (6)

भूयो बन्धाद् विमुक्तेन भाषयित्वा दशाननम् ।
लङ्का भस्मीकृता येन पावकेनेव मेदिनी ॥ ७ ॥

“Then, after speaking to Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster), when he was entirely free from bondage, Laṅkā was reduced to ashes by him even as the terrestrial globe by the fire of dissolution. (7)

न कालस्य न शक्रस्य न विष्णोर्वित्तपस्य च ।
कर्माणि तानि श्रूयन्ते यानि युद्धे हनूमतः ॥ ८ ॥

“Feats similar to those which were performed in war by Hanūmān are not known to have been performed either by Kāla (the Time-Spirit) or by Indra or again by the god of fire or Kubera, the lord of riches. (8)

एतस्य बाहुवीर्येण लङ्का सीता च लक्ष्मणः ।
प्राप्ता मया जयश्चैव राज्यं मित्राणि बान्धवाः ॥ ९ ॥

“By the prowess of his arms alone were Laṅkā and victory attained and Sītā, Lakṣmaṇa, sovereignty, friends and kinsfolk too regained by me. (9)

हनूमान् यदि मे न स्याद् वानराधिपतेः सखा ।
प्रवृत्तिमपि को वेत्तुं जानक्याः शक्तिमान् भवेत् ॥ १० ॥

“If Hanūmān, the friend of Sugrīva (the suzerain lord of monkeys), were not with Me, who else would have been able to get the news about Sītā (Janaka’s daughter)? (10)

किमर्थं वाली चैतेन सुग्रीवप्रियकाम्यया ।
तदा वैरे समुत्पन्ने न दग्धो वीरुधो यथा ॥ ११ ॥

“I wonder wherefore, when hostility sprang up between Sugrīva and Vālī, Vālī was not consumed as a tree by fire by Hanumān, with a desire to please Sugrīva. (11)

नहि वेदितवान् मन्ये हनूमानात्मनो बलम् ।
यद् दृष्टवाङ्गीवितेष्टं क्लिश्यन्तं वानराधिपम् ॥ १२ ॥

“I think Hanūmān was not conscious of his own might in that he simply watched

Sugrīva (now the supreme ruler of the monkeys), who was dearer to him than his life, suffering hardships in exile. (12)

एतन्मे भगवन् सर्वं हनूमति महामुने ।
विस्तरेण यथातत्त्वं कथयामरपूजित ॥ १३ ॥

“Tell me, Revered Sir, in extenso according to facts all this about Hanūmān, O great sage, adored by gods! (13)

राघवस्य वचः श्रुत्वा हेतुयुक्तमृषिस्ततः ।
हनूमतः समक्षं तमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १४ ॥

Hearing this reasonable submission of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), the seer of Vedic Mantras thereupon replied to him as follows in the presence of Hanūmān: (14)

सत्यमेतद् रघुश्रेष्ठ यद् ब्रवीषि हनूमति ।
न बले विद्यते तुल्यो न गतौ न मतौ परः ॥ १५ ॥

“What you say regarding Hanūmān is true, O jewel among the Raghus! None else is equal to him in might, speed or intelligence. (15)

अमोघशपैः शापस्तु दत्तोऽस्य मुनिभिः पुरा ।
न वेत्ता हि बलं सर्वं बली सन्नरिमर्दन ॥ १६ ॥

“An imprecation was, however, pronounced on him in the past by ascetics whose curse never went in vain, that, though mighty he would not be aware of his entire strength, O scourge of your enemies! (16)

बाल्येऽप्येतेन यत् कर्म कृतं राम महाबल ।
तन्न वर्णयितुं शक्यमिति बाल्यतयास्यते ॥ १७ ॥

“It is not possible to recount the feat which was performed by him even in his very childhood, O Rāma, who are endowed with extraordinary might! Hence he remained ignorant of his might as a child. (17)

यदि वास्ति त्वभिप्रायः संश्रोतुं तव राघव ।
समाधाय मतिं राम निशामय वदाम्यहम् ॥ १८ ॥

“If, however, you have a mind to listen, O scion of Raghu, hearken, O Rāma, after concentrating your mind, I proceed to narrate. (18)

सूर्यदत्तवरस्वर्णः सुमेरुर्नाम पर्वतः ।

यत्र राज्यं प्रशास्त्यस्य केसरी नाम वै पिता ॥ १९ ॥

“There is a mountain, Sumeru by name, rendered golden by virtue of a boon bestowed on it by the sun-god, where reigns Hanumān’s father, Kesarī by name, they say. (19)

तस्य भार्या बभूवेष्टा अञ्जनेति परिश्रुता ।

जनयामास तस्यां वै वायुरात्मजमुत्तमम् ॥ २० ॥

Kesarī’s beloved wife was widely known by the name of Añjanā. The wind-god procreated an excellent son through her, they say. (20)

शालिशूकनिभाभासं प्रासूतेमं तदाञ्जना ।

फलान्याहर्तुकामा वै निष्क्रान्ता गहनेचरा ॥ २१ ॥

“Añjanā then gave birth to Hanumān, who possessed the hue of paddy awns. Desiring to get excellent fruits, the belle actually went out into the forest. (21)

एष मातुर्वियोगाच्च क्षुधया च भृशार्दितः ।

रुरोद शिशुरत्यर्थं शिशुः शरवणे यथा ॥ २२ ॥

“Due to separation from his mother and sore stricken with hunger, the babe cried aloud as did Kārtikeya in the thicket of reeds (where he was born). (22)

तदोद्यन्तं विवस्वन्तं जपापुष्पोत्करोपमम् ।

ददर्श फललोभाच्च ह्युत्पपात रविं प्रति ॥ २३ ॥

“That very moment he espied the rising sun having the hue of a heap of Japā (China rose) flowers and in his eager desire to get at it, thinking it to be a fruit, he sprang towards the sun. (23)

बालार्काभिमुखो बालो बालार्क इव मूर्तिमान् ।

ग्रहीतुकामो बालार्कं प्लवतेऽम्बरमध्यगः ॥ २४ ॥

“With his face turned towards the sun, the babe, which looked like the rising sun incarnate, continued to shoot up in mid heavens with intent to catch hold of the rising sun. (24)

एतस्मिन् प्लवमाने तु शिशुभावे हनूमति ।

देवदानवयक्षाणां विस्मयः सुमहानभूत् ॥ २५ ॥

“While the yonder Hanumān in his childlike simplicity was shooting up in this manner, the gods, Dānavas and Yakṣas felt extremely astonished. (25)

नाप्येवं वेगवान् वायुर्गुरुडो न मनस्तथा ।

यथायं वायुपुत्रस्तु क्रमतेऽम्बरमुत्तमम् ॥ २६ ॥

They said to themselves: ‘Neither the wind-god nor Garuḍa (the king of birds, the mount of Lord Viṣṇu), nor even the mind moves so swiftly as does this son of the wind-god course through the high skies. (26)

यदि तावच्छिशोरस्य ईदृशो गतिविक्रमः ।

यौवनं बलमासाद्य कथं वेगो भविष्यति ॥ २७ ॥

“When such is his speed and prowess as a mere babe, what will be his speed when he has attained the vigour of youth?’ (27)

तमनुप्लवते वायुः प्लवन्तं पुत्रमात्मनः ।

सूर्यदाहभयाद् रक्षंस्तुषारचयशीतलः ॥ २८ ॥

“Cool to the touch like a mass of snow, the wind-god too followed his son in his flight, protecting him from the danger of getting scorched by the sun. (28)

बहुयोजनसाहस्रं क्रमन्नेव गतोऽम्बरम् ।

पितुर्बलाच्च बाल्याच्च भास्कराभ्याशमागतः ॥ २९ ॥

“Shooting up through the heavens for many thousands of Yojanas by virtue of his father’s might and his own childlike simplicity, he drew near to the sun. (29)

शिशुरेष त्वदोषज्ञ इति मत्वा दिवाकरः ।

कार्यं चास्मिन् समायत्तमित्येवं न ददाह सः ॥ ३० ॥

“Realizing that he was a mere innocent child and also that a great purpose (of Śrī Rāma) waited to be accomplished by him, the said sun-god did not consume him. (30)

यमेव दिवसं ह्येष ग्रहीतुं भास्करं प्लुतः ।

तमेव दिवसं राहुर्जिघृक्षति दिवाकरम् ॥ ३१ ॥

“Rāhu (the demon who is traditionally believed to devour the orb of the sun during an eclipse) sought to seize the sun the same day on which Hanumān actually sprang in the sky to catch hold of the sun. (31)

अनेन च परामृष्टो राहुः सूर्यरथोपरि।
अपक्रान्तस्ततस्त्रस्तो राहुश्चन्द्रार्कमर्दनः ॥ ३२ ॥

“Nay, Rāhu was laid hands on by Hanumān on the solar chariot. Thereupon Rāhu, the scourge of the sun-god and the moon-god, slipped away from that place, frightened. (32)

इन्द्रस्य भवनं गत्वा सरोषः सिंहिकासुतः।
अब्रवीद् भुक्कुटिं कृत्वा देवं देवगणैर्वृतम् ॥ ३३ ॥

“Knitting his eyebrows after proceeding to the abode of Indra, Rāhu (son of Simhikā) angrily spoke as follows to the deity surrounded by hosts of gods: (33)

बुभुक्षापनयं दत्त्वा चन्द्रार्कौ मम वासव।
किमिदं तत् त्वया दत्तमन्यस्य बलवृत्रहन् ॥ ३४ ॥

“‘Having allotted to me the moon and the sun as a means of appeasing my hunger, O Indra, how is it that my aforesaid share has been given over by you to another, O destroyer of the demons Bala and Vṛtra? (34)

अद्याहं पर्वकाले तु जिघृक्षुः सूर्यमागतः।
अथान्यो राहुरासाद्य जग्राह सहसा रविम् ॥ ३५ ॥

“‘Today at the conjunction of the moonless night and the new moon day I for my part came to lay hold of the sun. Meanwhile, approaching the sun, another Rāhu seized it all at once.’ (35)

स राहोर्वचनं श्रुत्वा वासवः सम्भ्रमान्वितः।
उत्पपातासनं हित्वा उद्वहन् काञ्चनीं स्रजम् ॥ ३६ ॥

“Leaving his seat on hearing the grievance of Rāhu, Indra, full of awe, sprang on his feet, holding up his gold necklace. (36)

ततः कैलासकूटाभं चतुर्दन्तं मदस्त्रवम्।
शृङ्गारधारिणं प्रांशुं स्वर्णघण्टाद्वहासिनम् ॥ ३७ ॥
इन्द्रः करीन्द्रमारुह्य राहुं कृत्वा पुरःसरम्।
प्रायाद् यत्राभवत् सूर्यः सहानेन हनूमता ॥ ३८ ॥

“Mounting Airāvata (the king of elephants), who was tall like a peak of Mount Kailāsa, was distinguished by four tusks, nay, who (being in heat) was exuding temple-juice, was richly decorated, and was uttering a horse-laugh in the form of the ringing of a gold bell, and placing Rāhu before him, Indra marched to the spot where the sun-god was with the yonder Hanūmān. (37-38)

अथातिरभसेनागाद् राहुरुत्सृज्य वासवम्।
अनेन च स वै दृष्टः प्रधावन् शैलकूटवत् ॥ ३९ ॥

“Meanwhile, leaving Indra behind, Rāhu advanced with great speed and he was actually seen by Hanumān running fast like a mountain-peak in motion. (39)

ततः सूर्यं समुत्सृज्य राहुं फलमवेक्ष्य च।
उत्पपात पुनर्व्योमं ग्रहीतुं सिंहिकासुतम् ॥ ४० ॥

“Leaving the sun and visualizing Rāhu to be a fruit, Hanumān thereupon again bounded in the skies to take hold of the son of Simhikā. (40)

उत्सृज्यार्कमिमं राम प्रधावन्तं प्लवङ्गमम्।
अवेक्ष्यैवं परावृत्तो मुखशेषः पराङ्मुखः ॥ ४१ ॥

“Clearly perceiving this monkey, Hanumān, running with all speed towards him leaving the sun alone, O Rāma, Rāhu, who had such huge proportions and of whom the head alone remained* retraced his steps with his face turned in the opposite direction. (41)

* We are told in VIII. ix of Śrīmad Bhāgavata how the demon Rāhu had surreptitiously placed himself between the sun-god and the moon-god in the row of gods while nectar was being doled out to the latter by the Lord in the form of an enchanting damsel and the sun-god and the moon-god pointed this out to the Lord, who lopped off the head of the demon with His discus. The head, however, was immortalised by quaffing nectar and assails the sun-god and the moon-god, bearing enmity towards them (verse 24—26).

इन्द्रमाशंसमानस्तु त्रातारं सिंहिकासुतः ।

इन्द्र इन्द्रेति संत्रासान्मुहुर्मुहुर्भाषत ॥ ४२ ॥

“Looking forward to Indra as his protector, Rāhu (the son of Sirṁhikā) for his part repeatedly cried out in his terror ‘Indra!’ ‘Indra!’ (42)

राहोर्विक्रोशमानस्य प्रागेवालक्षितं स्वरम् ।

श्रुत्वेन्द्रोवाच मा भैषीरहमेनं निषूदये ॥ ४३ ॥

“Hearing the voice of the screaming Rāhu, which was already known to him, Indra said, ‘Don’t be afraid, I shall presently make short work of him.’ (43)

ऐरावतं ततो दृष्ट्वा महत्तदिदमित्यपि ।

फलं तं हस्तिराजानमभिदुद्राव मारुतिः ॥ ४४ ॥

“Espying after that Airāvata and taking the king of elephants too to be some enormous fruit, Hanumān, son of the wind-god, rushed at him. (44)

तथास्य धावतो रूपमैरावतजिघृक्षया ।

मुहूर्तमभवद् घोरमिन्द्राग्न्योरिव भास्वरम् ॥ ४५ ॥

“Nay, the form of Hanumān, even as he was rushing at Airāvata with intent to catch hold of him, turned for a while fearful and splendid like those of Indra and the god of fire. (45)

एवमाधावमानं तु नातिकुब्धः शचीपतिः ।

हस्तान्तादतिमुक्तेन कुलिशेनाभ्यताडयत् ॥ ४६ ॥

“Though not highly provoked, Indra (the consort of Śacī) struck Hanumān, who was rushing towards him, with the thunderbolt hurled from the extremities of his hand. (46)

ततो गिरौ पपातैष इन्द्रवज्राभिताडितः ।

पतमानस्य चैतस्य वामा हनुरभज्यत ॥ ४७ ॥

“Hit by the thunderbolt of Indra, Hanumān thereupon fell on a mountain; and as he fell his left jaw was broken. (47)

तस्मिंस्तु पतिते चापि वज्रताडनविह्वले ।

चुक्रोधेन्द्राय पवनः प्रजानामहिताय सः ॥ ४८ ॥

“Nay, Hanumān for his part having fallen and getting confused too under the stroke of the thunderbolt, the celebrated wind-god got angry with Indra to the detriment of created beings. (48)

प्रचारं स तु संगृह्य प्रजास्वन्तर्गतः प्रभुः ।

गुहां प्रविष्टः स्वसुतं शिशुमादाय मारुतः ॥ ४९ ॥

“Withdrawing his movement in the form of respiration, though abiding in all living beings, the celebrated and all-powerful wind-god penetrated deep into a cave, taking his infant son with him. (49)

विण्मूत्राशयमावृत्य प्रजानां परमार्तिकृत् ।

रुरोध सर्वभूतानि यथा वर्षाणि वासवः ॥ ५० ॥

“Causing extreme suffering to created beings by obstructing their bowels and bladder, the wind-god rendered all created beings motionless even as Indra holds up the rains. (50)

वायुप्रकोपाद् भूतानि निरुच्छ्वासानि सर्वतः ।

संधिभिर्भिद्यमानैश्च काष्ठभूतानि जज्ञिरे ॥ ५१ ॥

“Due to the wrath of the wind-god living beings everywhere felt choked and turned stiff like wood, as it were, due to their joints getting disrupted. (51)

निःस्वाध्यायवषट्कारं निष्क्रियं धर्मवर्जितम् ।

वायुप्रकोपात् त्रैलोक्यं निरयस्थमिवाभवत् ॥ ५२ ॥

“Bereft of study of the Vedas and sacrificial performances, and devoid of rituals and the practice of virtue as a result of the displeasure of the wind-god, all the three worlds felt as if they had sunk into hell. (52)

ततः प्रजाः सगन्धर्वाः सदेवासुरमानुषाः ।

प्रजापतिं समाधावन् दुःखिताश्च सुखेच्छया ॥ ५३ ॥

“Feeling afflicted, all created beings including the Gandharvas (celestial musicians), gods, demons and human beings hurried to Brahmā (the lord of creation) with intent to obtain relief. (53)

ऊचुः प्राञ्जलयो देवा महोदरनिभोदराः ।

त्वया तु भगवन् सृष्टाः प्रजा नाथ चतुर्विधाः ॥ ५४ ॥

“With bloated bellies resembling the bellies of those suffering from the disease of dropsy, the gods submitted with joined palms: 'By you, indeed, O lord! our master, the four types of created beings 1. viviparous, 2. oviparous, 3. the sweat-born and 4. those sprouting from the earth were evolved. (54)

त्वया दत्तोऽयमस्माकमायुषः पवनः पतिः ।
सोऽस्मान् प्राणेश्वरो भूत्वा कस्मादेशोऽद्य सत्तम ॥ ५५ ॥
रुरोध दुःखं जनयन्नन्तःपुर इव स्त्रियः ।
तस्मात् त्वां शरणं प्राप्ता वायुनोपहता वयम् ॥ ५६ ॥

“The wind-god was bestowed on us by you as the lord of our lives. Wherefore, O prince of the virtuous, has he, even though being the controller of our vital breaths, suffocated us today, even as a king would confine his womenfolk in a gynaeceum, thereby causing affliction to us? Afflicted by the wind-god, we have accordingly sought you as our shelter. (55-56)

वायुसंरोधजं दुःखमिदं नो नुद दुःखहन् ।
एतत् प्रजानां श्रुत्वा तु प्रजानाथः प्रजापतिः ॥ ५७ ॥
कारणादिति चोक्त्वासौ प्रजाः पुनरभाषत ।
यस्मिंश्च कारणे वायुश्चक्रोध च रुरोध च ॥ ५८ ॥
प्रजाः शृणुध्वं तत् सर्वं श्रोतव्यं चात्मनः क्षमम् ।
पुत्रस्तस्यामरेशेन इन्द्रेणाद्य निपातितः ॥ ५९ ॥
राहोर्वचनमास्थाय ततः स कुपितोऽनिलः ।
अशरीरः शरीरेषु वायुश्चरति पालयन् ॥ ६० ॥

“Pray, relieve this suffering of ours caused by the obstruction of the wind, O allayer of suffering!”

“Hearing this petition of the created beings, and saying, ‘This has happened due to some reason’, the lord of creation, the protector of all created beings, for his part continued as follows: ‘Hear, O created beings, for what reason the wind-god got angry and held up his movement; all that deserves to be listened to by you and is justifiable too. In response to the appeal of Rāhu, the son of the wind-god has been struck down today by Indra, the ruler of gods; hence the said wind-god got angry. Going without a body, the wind-god moves in all bodies preserving them. (57—60)

शरीरं हि विना वायुं समतां याति दारुभिः ।
वायुः प्राणः सुखं वायुर्वायुः सर्वमिदं जगत् ॥ ६१ ॥

“Devoid of the wind, a body attains similarity to blocks of wood. Air is life, air is happiness, the air constitutes all this universe (61)

वायुना सम्परित्यक्तं न सुखं विन्दते जगत् ।
अद्यैव च परित्यक्तं वायुना जगदायुषा ॥ ६२ ॥

“Entirely devoid of the air, the world does not attain happiness. The world has just now been forsaken by the wind, which is its very life. (62)

अद्यैव ते निरुच्छ्वासाः काष्ठकुड्योपमाः स्थिताः ।
तद् यामस्तत्र यत्रास्ते मारुतो रुक्प्रदो हि नः ।
मा विनाशं गमिष्याम अप्रसाद्यादितेः सुताः ॥ ६३ ॥

“Being unable to breathe, all created beings stand no better than the blocks of wood or walls. Therefore, we shall actually proceed to that place where the wind-god who is causing pain to us, is present; let us not go to ruin by not placating him, O sons of Aditi!’ (63)

ततः प्रजाभिः सहितः प्रजापतिः
सदेवगन्धर्वभुजङ्गगुह्यकैः ।
जगाम तत्रास्यति यत्र मारुतः
सुतं सुरेन्द्राभिहतं प्रगृह्य सः ॥ ६४ ॥

“Accompanied by all created beings including gods, the Gandharvas (celestial musicians), serpents and Guhyakas (Yakṣas), Brahmā (the lord of creation) thereupon moved to the place where the said wind-god sat, taking hold of his son who had been struck down by Indra. (64)

ततोऽर्कवैश्वानरकाञ्चनप्रभं
सुतं तदोत्सङ्गतं सदागतेः ।
चतुर्मुखो वीक्ष्य कृपामथाकरोत्
सदेवगन्धर्वऋषियक्षराक्षसैः ॥ ६५ ॥

“Perceiving at that time the son of the wind-god (who is perpetually in motion), radiant as the sun, fire and gold, in his lap, Brahmā (the four-faced god) accompanied by Gandharvas, Ṛṣis (the seers of Vedic Mantras), Yakṣas and ogres, including gods, thereupon immediately took pity on the child.” (65)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे पञ्चत्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-five in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षट्त्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXVI

After bringing Hanumān back to life, Brahmā and other gods grant boons of various kinds in his favour. The wind-god takes him to Añjanā.

Due to a curse pronounced on him by some Ṛṣis, Hanumān remains unconscious of his might. Śrī Rāma permits Agastya and other sages to depart after requesting them to be present at the sacrifice to be performed by Him

ततः पितामहं दृष्ट्वा वायुः पुत्रवधार्दितः ।
शिशुकं तं समादाय उत्तस्थौ धातुरग्रतः ॥ १ ॥

“On seeing Brahmā (the grandfather of the entire creation, which is evolved by his ten mind-born sons), the wind-god, who was tormented by the death of his son, stood in front of the creator, bearing that child in his arms. (1)

चलकुण्डलमौलिस्त्रक् तपनीयविभूषणः ।
पादयोर्न्यपतद् वायुस्त्रिरुपस्थाय वेधसे ॥ २ ॥

“Standing thrice submissively before the creator, the wind-god with swinging earrings, nay, adorned with a diadem and garland, and ornaments of gold, fell at the former’s feet. (2)

तं तु वेदविदा तेन लम्बाभरणशोभिना ।
वायुमुत्थाप्य हस्तेन शिशुं तं परिमृष्टवान् ॥ ३ ॥

“Lifting up the wind-god, Brahmā (the knower of the Vedas) stroked that child with his long, outstretched and adorned hand. (3)

स्पृष्टमात्रस्ततः सोऽथ सलीलं पद्मजन्मना ।
जलसिक्तं यथा सस्यं पुनर्जीवितमाप्तवान् ॥ ४ ॥

“The moment Hanumān was sportingly touched by Brahmā (the lotus-born), he thereupon forthwith came back to life like a crop which has been watered. (4)

प्राणवन्तमिमं दृष्ट्वा प्राणो गन्धवहो मुदा ।
चचार सर्वभूतेषु संनिरुद्धं यथा पुरा ॥ ५ ॥

“Seeing Hanumān restored to life, the wind-god, constituting the vital breath of the entire creation, began once more to circulate inwardly as before in all creatures. (5)

मरुद्गोधाद् विनिर्मुक्तास्ताः प्रजा मुदिताऽभवन् ।
शीतवातविनिर्मुक्ताः पद्मिन्य इव साम्बुजाः ॥ ६ ॥

“Completely freed from the obstruction caused by the wind-god, all those created beings became joyful again like lakes spotted with lotus flowers when rid of cold winds. (6)

ततस्त्रियुग्मस्त्रिककुत् त्रिधामा त्रिदशार्चितः ।
उवाच देवता ब्रह्मा मारुतप्रियकाम्यया ॥ ७ ॥

“Thereupon Brahmā, who is endowed with three pairs of divine properties (viz., glory and prowess, power and wealth, wisdom and dispassion), who appears in three forms (viz., Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Śiva), who has

His abode in all the three worlds, and who is worshipped by all the gods (lit., those who pass through only three stages in life, viz., infancy, boyhood and prime of youth) spoke as follows to the gods with intent to oblige the wind-god: (7)

भो महेन्द्राग्निरुणा महेश्वरधनेश्वराः ।
जानतामपि वः सर्वं वक्ष्यामि श्रूयतां हितम् ॥ ८ ॥

“O mighty Indra, Agni (the god of fire), Varuṇa (the god presiding over the waters), Lord Śiva (the Supreme Ruler) and Kubera (the god of riches) to you, even though you know everything, I will tell you what is conducive to your good; please listen. (8)

अनेन शिशुना कार्यं कर्तव्यं वो भविष्यति ।
तद् ददध्वं वरान् सर्वे मारुतस्यास्य तुष्टये ॥ ९ ॥

“Your purpose shall be accomplished by this infant. Therefore, grant him boons all of you with a view to the appeasement of the wind-god.” (9)

ततः सहस्रनयनः प्रीतियुक्तः शुभाननः ।
कुशेशयमयीं मालामुत्क्षेप्येदं वचोऽब्रवीत् ॥ १० ॥

“Taking off his wreath of lotus flowers and placing it round the neck of Hanumān, Indra (the thousand-eyed god), who had a charming countenance, uttered the following words: (10)

मत्करोत्सृष्टवज्रेण हनुरस्य यथा हतः ।
नाम्ना वै कपिशार्दूलो भविता हनुमानिति ॥ ११ ॥

“Inasmuch as the chin of this infant was broken by the thunderbolt hurled from my hand, this tiger among the monkeys will surely go by the name of Hanumān. (11)

अहमस्य प्रदास्यामि परमं वरमद्भुतम् ।
इतः प्रभृति वज्रस्य ममावध्यो भविष्यति ॥ १२ ॥

“I hereby grant him the supreme and wonderful boon that from this day onwards he will be invulnerable to my thunderbolt.” (12)

मार्तण्डस्त्वब्रवीत् तत्र भगवांस्तिमिरापहः ।
तेजसोऽस्य मदीयस्य ददामि शक्तिकां कलाम् ॥ १३ ॥

“The glorious sun-god, the dispeller of darkness, for his part said on that occasion, ‘I bestow upon him a hundredth part of my brilliance. (13)

यदा च शास्त्राण्यध्येतुं शक्तिरस्य भविष्यति ।
तदास्य शास्त्रं दास्यामि येन वाग्मी भविष्यति ।
न चास्य भविता कश्चित् सदृशः शास्त्रदर्शने ॥ १४ ॥

“Again, when the ability to study the Śāstras (the various branches of learning) appears in him, then I shall impart to him the knowledge of the Śāstras, whereby he will become a good speaker. Nay, none shall vie with him in the knowledge of the Śāstras.” (14)

वरुणश्च वरं प्रादान्नास्य मृत्युर्भविष्यति ।
वर्षायुतशतेनापि मत्पाशादुदकादपि ॥ १५ ॥

“Nay, Varuṇa conferred on him the boon that his death will not occur even in millions of years from his noose or from water either. (15)

यमो दण्डादवध्यत्वमरोगत्वं च दत्तवान् ।
वरं ददामि संतुष्ट अविषादं च संयुगे ॥ १६ ॥
गदेयं मामिका नैनं संयुगेषु वधिष्यति ।
इत्येवं धनदः प्राह तदा होकाक्षिपिङ्गलः ॥ १७ ॥

“Yama granted him invulnerability to his rod and freedom from ailment. Then Kubera (the bestower of riches), who was brown of one eye, actually said, ‘Highly pleased, I grant him the boon that this mace of mine shall not cause his death in conflicts and further vouchsafe him unweariness in war.’ (16-17)

मत्तो मदायुधानां च अवध्योऽयं भविष्यति ।
इत्येवं शङ्करेणापि दत्तोऽस्य परमो वरः ॥ १८ ॥

“The supreme boon that ‘This child shall be immune from death at My hands as well as from death caused by My weapons’ was bestowed on him by Lord Śaṅkara, the Bestower of happiness. (18)

विश्वकर्मा च दृष्ट्वेमं बालसूर्योपमं शिशुम् ।
शिल्पिनां प्रवरः प्रादाद् वरमस्य महामतिः ॥ १९ ॥

“Nay, beholding that infant, who vied with the rising sun, the highly intelligent Viśwakarmā, the foremost among the builders, granted him the following boon: (19)

मत्कृतानि च शस्त्राणि यानि दिव्यानि तानि च ।
तैरवध्यत्वमापन्नश्चिरजीवी भविष्यति ॥ २० ॥

‘Having acquired invulnerability to celestial weapons that have been forged by me as well as to those which exist in my mind, he shall be long-lived.’ (20)

दीर्घायुश्च महात्मा च ब्रह्मा तं प्राब्रवीद् वचः ।
सर्वेषां ब्रह्मदण्डानामवध्योऽयं भविष्यति ॥ २१ ॥

“Brahmā made the following augury concerning the infant: ‘This infant shall be long-lived and magnanimous and shall be invulnerable to all rods of punishment connected with Brahmā (the creator) or to the imprecations pronounced by the Brāhmaṇas.’ (21)

ततः सुराणां तु वरैर्दृष्ट्वा ह्येनमलङ्कृतम् ।
चतुर्मुखस्तुष्टमना वायुमाह जगद्गुरुः ॥ २२ ॥

“Gratified to see the infant enriched by the boons granted by the gods, Brahmā (the four-faced god), the teacher of the world, spoke to the wind-god as follows: (22)

अमित्राणां भयकरो मित्राणामभयंकरः ।
अजेयो भविता पुत्रस्तव मारुत मारुतिः ॥ २३ ॥

“‘Your son, Hanumān, O wind-god, will prove to be a terror to his foes, will vouchsafe immunity from fear to his friends and will prove invincible. (23)

कामरूपः कामचारी कामगः प्लवतां वरः ।
भवत्यव्याहतगतिः कीर्तिमांश्च भविष्यति ॥ २४ ॥

“‘This jewel among the monkeys shall be able to change his form at will, and go wheresoever he pleases at the speed of his choice; his movements will remain unimpeded and everywhere he shall turn out glorious. (24)

रावणोत्सादनार्थानि रामप्रीतिकराणि च ।
रोमहर्षकराण्येव कर्ता कर्माणि संयुगे ॥ २५ ॥

“‘In the war he shall accomplish feats intended to uproot Rāvaṇa, pleasing to Śrī Rāma and causing one’s hair to stand on end.’ (25)

एवमुक्त्वा तमामन्त्र्य मारुतं त्वमरैः सह ।
यथागतं ययुः सर्वे पितामहपुरोगमाः ॥ २६ ॥

“Saying so and taking leave of the well-known wind-god, all the petitioners including the gods, with Brahmā (the grandfather of the entire creation) at their head, returned even as they had come. (26)

सोऽपि गन्धवहः पुत्रं प्रगृह्य गृहमानयत् ।
अञ्जनायास्तमाख्याय वरदत्तं विनिर्गतः ॥ २७ ॥

“Taking his son with him, the wind-god (the wafter of smells), brought the child home and, telling Añjanā of the child having been granted boons by the gods, departed. (27)

प्राप्य राम वरानेष वरदानबलान्वितः ।
जवेनात्मनि संस्थेन सोऽसौ पूर्ण इवार्णवः ॥ २८ ॥

“Having obtained boons from the gods, and enriched by the strength which accrued from the bestowal of boons, O Rāma, this celebrated Hanumān replete with his native velocity, resembled the ocean. (28)

तरसा पूर्यमाणोऽपि तदा वानरपुङ्गवः ।
आश्रमेषु महर्षीणामपराध्यति निर्भयः ॥ २९ ॥

“Overflowing with vigour, Hanumān (a bull among the monkeys) fearlessly began to offend even against the sanctity of the hermitages of eminent Ṛṣis seers of Vedic Mantras at that time. (29)

स्रुग्भाण्डान्यग्निहोत्राणि वल्कलानां च संचयान् ।
भग्नविच्छिन्नविध्वस्तान् संशान्तानां करोत्ययम् ॥ ३० ॥

“He broke the sacrificial ladles and vessels, interrupted the pouring of oblations into the sacred fires and tore to shreds the piles of bark belonging to the perfectly tranquil ascetics living in the hermitages. (30)

एवंविधानि कर्माणि प्रावर्तत महाबलः ।
सर्वेषां ब्रह्मदण्डानामवध्यः शम्भुना कृतः ॥ ३१ ॥

जानन्त ऋषयः सर्वे सहन्ते तस्य शक्तिः ।
 तथा केसरिणा त्वेष वायुना सोऽञ्जनीसुतः ॥ ३२ ॥
 प्रतिषिद्धोऽपि मर्यादां लङ्घयत्येव वानरः ।
 ततो महर्षयः क्रुद्धा भृगवङ्गिरसवंशजाः ॥ ३३ ॥
 शेषुरेनं रघुश्रेष्ठ नातिक्रुद्धातिमन्यवः ।
 बाधसे यत् समाश्रित्य बलमस्मान् प्लवङ्गम् ॥ ३४ ॥
 तद् दीर्घकालं वेत्तासि नास्माकं शापमोहितः ।
 यदा ते स्मार्यते कीर्तिस्तदा ते वर्धते बलम् ॥ ३५ ॥

“Hanumān, who was endowed with extraordinary might, freely indulged in such pranks. Knowing that he had been rendered immune by Brahmā (the source of happiness) from death caused by all kinds of curses pronounced by Brāhmaṇas, all those Ṛṣis (seers of Vedic Mantras), put up with them because of the power derived from the boons. Even though prohibited by Kesari (Añjanā's husband and Hanumān's foster-father) as well as by the wind-god, the yonder monkey, the son of Añjanā, for his part continued to exceed the bounds of propriety. Provoked to anger, the eminent sages, born in the line of Bhṛgu and Aṅgīrā (the mind-born sons of Brahmā), who were really speaking neither enraged nor highly indignant, thereupon cursed him as follows, O jewel among Raghus:

“Bewitched by our imprecation, you will remain unconscious for a long time of the power, banking on which you are harassing us, O monkey! You will become aware of your mighty prowess when someone reminds you of your glory.” (31—35)

ततस्तु हृततेजौजा महर्षिवचनौजसा ।
 एषोऽऽश्रमाणि तान्येव मृदुभावं गतोऽचरत् ॥ ३६ ॥

“Deprived of the knowledge of his energy and vigour by the strength of the execration pronounced by the eminent sages, Hanumān, for his part, thereupon ranged over those very hermitages in a placid mood. (36)

अथर्क्षरजसो नाम वालिसुग्रीवयोः पिता ।
 सर्ववानरराजासीत् तेजसा इव भास्करः ॥ ३७ ॥

“At that time, the father of Vālī and Sugrīva, Rkṣarajā by name, who resembled the sun in splendour, was the ruler of all the monkeys. (37)

स तु राज्यं चिरं कृत्वा वानराणां महेश्वरः ।
 ततस्त्वर्क्षरजा नाम कालधर्मेण योजितः ॥ ३८ ॥

“Having ruled for a long time, that suzerain lord of the monkeys, Rkṣarajā by name, for his part, was subjected to the natural law of Time. (38)

तस्मिन्नस्तमिते चाथ मन्त्रिभिर्मन्त्रकोविदैः ।
 पित्र्ये पदे कृतो वाली सुग्रीवो वालिनः पदे ॥ ३९ ॥

“He having met his death, Vālī was forthwith installed in the position of his father and Sugrīva in the position of Vālī (the Crown prince) by his counsellors, who were expert in counselling. (39)

सुग्रीवेण समं त्वस्य अद्वैधं छिद्रवर्जितम् ।
 आबाल्यं सख्यमभवदनिलस्याग्निना यथा ॥ ४० ॥

“From his very boyhood Vālī developed with Sugrīva an unwarying and unbroken brotherhood, similar to that of the wind with fire. (40)

एष शापवशादेव न वेद बलमात्मनः ।
 वालिसुग्रीवयोर्वैरं यदा राम समुत्थितम् ॥ ४१ ॥
 न ह्येष राम सुग्रीवो भ्राम्यमाणोऽपि वालिना ।
 देव जानाति न ह्येष बलमात्मनि मारुतिः ॥ ४२ ॥

“By reason of that very curse, Hanumān was not conscious of his might. When hostility arose between Vālī and Sugrīva, O Rāma, neither the yonder Sugrīva, even while he was being forced to wander from place to place, O Lord Rāma, nor this son of the wind-god, Hanumān, was actually aware of the strength which existed in him. (41-42)

ऋषिशापाहृतबलस्तदैव कपिसत्तमः ।
 सिंहः कुञ्जररुद्धो वा आस्थितः सहितो रणे ॥ ४३ ॥

“Deprived of the knowledge of his own might by the curse of the sages, Hanumān, the foremost of monkeys, remained standing by the side of Sugrīva during that very period like a lion kept back by an elephant, in the course of the latter's combat with Vālī. (43)

पराक्रमोत्साहमतिप्रताप-

सौशील्यमाधुर्यनयानयैश्च ।

गाम्भीर्यचातुर्यसुवीर्यधैर्यै-

हंनूमतः कोऽप्यधिकोऽस्ति लोके ॥ ४४ ॥

“Who is there in the world superior to Hanumān in respect of prowess, energy, extraordinary glory, amiability, sweetness of temper and the knowledge of what is prudent or otherwise, as well as of profundity, cleverness, extraordinary virility and firmness? (44)

असौ पुनर्व्याकरणं ग्रहीष्यन्

सूर्योन्मुखः प्रष्टुमनाः कपीन्द्रः ।

उद्यद्गिरेरस्तगिरिं जगाम

ग्रन्थं महद्भारयनप्रमेयः ॥ ४५ ॥

“With his face turned towards the sun-god with a view to learn grammar and desiring to put questions to him, (in order to remove his doubts) the yonder chief of monkeys, of immeasurable energy, journeyed from the hill where the sun rises to the hill where it sets, with intent to master the great work on grammar. (45)

ससूत्रवृत्त्यर्थपदं महार्थं

ससंग्रहं सिद्ध्यति वै कपीन्द्रः ।

नह्यस्य कश्चित् सदृशोऽस्ति शास्त्रे

वैशारदे छन्दगतौ तथैव ॥ ४६ ॥

“Hanumān (the chief of monkeys) has mastered the great gloss on the aphorisms including the aphorisms of grammar as well as the Vṛtti (comment), the Vārtika (annotation) on the aphorisms and also the monographs on the subject. Indeed there is none like him in the knowledge of other branches of learning as well as in prosody. (46)

सर्वासु विद्यासु तपोविधाने

प्रस्पृधतेऽयं हि गुरुं सुराणाम् ।

सोऽयं नवव्याकरणार्थवेत्ता

ब्रह्मा भविष्यत्यपि ते प्रसादात् ॥ ४७ ॥

“He actually rivals Sage Bṛhaspati (the preceptor of gods) in all the branches of learning as well as in the practice of austerities. Well-versed in the subject-matter of the nine systems of grammar, the yonder Hanumān shall prove to be a very Brahṁā by Your grace. (47)

प्रवीविवक्षोरिव

सागरस्य

लोकान् दिधक्षोरिव पावकस्य ।

लोकक्षयेष्वेव

यथान्तकस्य

हनूमतः स्थास्यति कः पुरस्तात् ॥ ४८ ॥

“Who can stand face to face with Hanumān, who resembles the ocean threatening (at the time of final dissolution) to corrode the earth or the fire which (at the end of the world-period) is out to consume the universe and who resembles Death on the occasion of the destruction of the world? (48)

एषेव चान्ये च महाकपीन्द्राः

सुग्रीवमैन्दद्विविदाः सनीलाः ।

सतारतारेयनलाः

सरम्भा-

स्वत्कारणाद् राम सुरैर्हि सृष्टाः ॥ ४९ ॥

“Like him, other great leaders of monkeys too, viz., Sugrīva, Mainda and Dwivida including Nīla, Tāra, Aṅgada (son of Tārā) and Nala as also Rambha were actually procreated by the gods for your sake, O Rāma! (49)

गजो गवाक्षो गवयः सुदंष्ट्रो

मैन्दः प्रभो ज्योतिमुखो नलश्च ।

एते च ऋक्षाः सह वानरेन्द्रै-

स्वत्कारणाद् राम सुरैर्हि सृष्टाः ॥ ५० ॥

“Nay, alongwith the aforesaid leaders of monkeys, Gaja, Gavākṣa, Gavaya, Sudamṣṭra, Mainda, Prabha, Jyotimukha and Nala—these bears too were actually procreated by the gods for your sake only, O Rāma! (50)

तदेतत् कथितं सर्वं यन्मां त्वं परिपृच्छसि।
हनूमतो बालभावे कर्मैतत् कथितं मया ॥ ५१ ॥

“All that you asked me has hereby been related by me. The feats performed by Hanumān in his childhood have also been recounted by me.” (51)

श्रुत्वागस्त्यस्य कथितं रामः सौमित्रिरेव च।
विस्मयं परमं जग्मुर्वानरा राक्षसैः सह ॥ ५२ ॥

Hearing the tale of Agastya, Śrī Rāma as well as Lakṣmaṇa, as also the monkeys alongwith the ogres experienced great wonder. (52)

अगस्त्यस्त्वब्रवीद् रामं सर्वमेतच्छ्रुतं त्वया।
दृष्टः सम्भाषितश्चासि राम गच्छामहे वयम् ॥ ५३ ॥

Agastya for his part said to Śrī Rāma, “All this has been listened to by You. You have also been seen and spoken to by us, O Rāma! We now depart.” (53)

श्रुत्वैतद् राघवो वाक्यमगस्त्यस्योग्रतेजसः।
प्राञ्जलिः प्रणतश्चापि महर्षिमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ ५४ ॥

Hearing this statement of Agastya of formidable lustre, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) submissively replied as follows with joined palms to the great sage: (54)

अद्य मे देवतास्तुष्टाः पितरः प्रपितामहाः।
युष्माकं दर्शनादेव नित्यं तुष्टाः सबान्धवाः ॥ ५५ ॥

“The gods, the eternal manes as well as the souls of My departed ancestors are pleased with Me today. As for ourselves we stand ever gratified with our kinsfolk through your very sight. (55)

विज्ञाप्यं तु ममैतद्धि यद् वदाम्यागतस्पृहः।
तद् भवद्विर्मम कृते कर्तव्यमनुकम्पया ॥ ५६ ॥

“Here is something actually worth bringing to your notice. Seized with a longing, that which I submit to you must be carried out by you out of compassion to Me. (56)

पौरजानपदान् स्थाप्य स्वकार्येष्वहमागतः।
क्रतूनहं करिष्यामि प्रभावाद् भवतां सताम् ॥ ५७ ॥

“After appointing the citizens as well as the people of the countryside to their respective duties, now that I have returned from My exile in the forest, I intend to perform sacrifices through the goodwill of saintly persons like you. (57)

सदस्या मम यज्ञेषु भवन्तो नित्यमेव तु।
भविष्यथ महावीर्या ममानुग्रहकांक्षिणः ॥ ५८ ॥

“Longing, as you do, to bless Me, you, for your part, who are endowed with extraordinary prowess born of asceticism, should constantly act as superintending priests at My sacrificial performances. (58)

अहं युष्मान् समाश्रित्य तपोनिर्धूतकल्मषान्।
अनुगृहीतः पितृभिर्भविष्यामि सुनिर्वृतः ॥ ५९ ॥

“Fully depending on you, who have shaken off all sins through asceticism, I shall be blessed by My ancestors and feel exceedingly happy. (59)

तदागन्तव्यमनिशं भवद्विरिह संगतैः।
अगस्त्याद्यास्तु तच्छ्रुत्वा ऋषयः संशितव्रताः ॥ ६० ॥

एवमस्त्विति तं प्रोच्य प्रयातुमुपचक्रमुः।
एवमुक्त्वा गताः सर्वे ऋषयस्ते यथागतम् ॥ ६१ ॥

“You all should always come here in a body at the time when the sacrifice has commenced.”

Hearing the aforesaid request and saying “Amen” to Him, the sages of rigid vows, the foremost of whom was Agastya, began to depart. Saying so, all the aforesaid sages left as they came. (60-61)

राघवश्च तमेवार्थं चिन्तयामास विस्मितः।
ततोऽस्तं भास्करो याते विसृज्य नृपवानरान् ॥ ६२ ॥

संध्यामुपास्य विधिवत् तदा नरवरोत्तमः।
प्रवृत्तायां रजन्यां तु सोऽन्तःपुरचरोऽभवत् ॥ ६३ ॥

Śrī Rāma too pondered in amazement over that very subject of performing sacrifices. Having seen off the assembled kings and monkeys on the sun having set, and performed the Sandhyā devotions with due ceremony, Śrī Rāma, the foremost of jewels among men, for His part retired into the gynaeceum when the night had set in. (62-63)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे षट्त्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-six in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तत्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXVII

Śrī Rāma sits in court with His courtiers

अभिषिक्ते तु काकुत्स्थे धर्मेण विदितात्मनि ।
व्यतीता या निशा पूर्वा पौराणां हर्षवर्धिनी ॥ १ ॥

Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha), who understood the nature of the soul, having been consecrated on the throne of Ayodhyā in accordance with the prescribed rule, the first night, which enhanced the delight of the citizens of Ayodhyā, passed. (1)

तस्यां रजन्यां व्युष्टायां प्रातर्नृपतिबोधकाः ।
वन्दिनः समुपातिष्ठन् सौम्या नृपतिवेश्मनि ॥ २ ॥

The said night having ended, the following morning the gentle bards who were charged with the duty of waking the king assembled at the royal palace. (2)

ते रक्तकण्ठिनः सर्वे किन्नरा इव शिक्षिताः ।
तुष्टुवुर्नृपतिं वीरं यथावत् सम्प्रहर्षिणः ॥ ३ ॥

Sweet-voiced as they were and trained in the art of singing like the Kinnaras (celestial minstrels), they all, full of excessive joy, began duly to extol the heroic king as follows: (3)

वीर सौम्य प्रबुध्यस्व कौसल्याप्रीतिवर्धन ।
जगद्धि सर्वं स्वपिति त्वयि सुप्ते नराधिप ॥ ४ ॥

“Awake, O gentle hero, the enhancer of the delight of mother Kausalyā! Indeed the whole world remains buried in sleep while you are asleep, O suzerain lord of men! (4)

विक्रमस्ते यथा विष्णो रूपं चैवाश्विनोरिव ।
बुद्ध्या बृहस्पतेस्तुल्यः प्रजापतिसमो ह्यसि ॥ ५ ॥

“Your prowess is like that of Lord Viṣṇu, and your comeliness is like that of the twin-born Aświns, the physicians of gods. You are a compeer of Sage Bṛhaspati (the preceptor of gods) in intelligence, and in ruling over the people you are the equal to Brahmā, the lord of creation. (5)

क्षमा ते पृथिवीतुल्या तेजसा भास्करोपमः ।
वेगस्ते वायुना तुल्यो गाम्भीर्यमुदधेरिव ॥ ६ ॥

“Your forbearance is unshaken like the earth; in glory you are a compeer of the sun. Your onrush vies with the wind, while your profundity is like that of the deep ocean. (6)

अप्रकम्यो यथा स्थाणुश्चन्द्रे सौम्यत्वमीदृशम् ।
नेदृशाः पार्थिवाः पूर्वं भवितारो नराधिप ॥ ७ ॥

“You are unshakable in conflict like Lord Śiva such delightfulness as exists in you is found in the moon. Kings such as you, never existed in the past nor will they be hereafter, O suzerain lord of human beings! (7)

यथा त्वमसि दुर्धर्षो धर्मनित्यः प्रजाहितः ।
न त्वां जहाति कीर्तिश्च लक्ष्मीश्च पुरुषर्षभ ॥ ८ ॥

“You are difficult to overpower in the true sense of the term, constant as you are in virtue and friendly to the people. Nay, glory does not forsake you, much less fortune, O jewel among men! (8)

श्रीश्च धर्मश्च काकुत्स्थ त्वयि नित्यं प्रतिष्ठितौ ।
एताश्चान्याश्च मधुरा वन्दिभिः परिकीर्तिताः ॥ ९ ॥

“Fortune and piety are constantly established in you, O Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha)!” These and other sweet encomia too were chanted by the bards. (9)

सूताश्च संस्तवैर्दिव्यैर्बोधयन्ति स्म राघवम्।
स्तुतिभिः स्तूयमानाभिः प्रत्यबुध्यत राघवः ॥ १० ॥

Panegyrists too woke up Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) by means of wonderful panegyrics. Śrī Rāma awoke while praises were being sung. (10)

स तद्विहाय शयनं पाण्डुराच्छादनास्तृतम्।
उत्तस्थौ नागशयनाद्धरिर्नारायणो यथा ॥ ११ ॥

Quitting his well-known couch overspread with a bed covered by a white sheet, he got up as would Lord Nārāyaṇa, the Destroyer of sins, from His couch consisting of a serpent (Śeṣa). (11)

तमुत्थितं महात्मानं प्रह्लाः प्राञ्जलयो नराः।
सलिलं भाजनैः शुभ्रैरुपतस्थुः सहस्रशः ॥ १२ ॥

Attendants in thousands bowing with joined palms brought water in shining ewers for the use of the high-souled monarch who had just risen. (12)

कृतोदकः शुचिर्भूत्वा काले हुतहुताशनः।
देवागारं जगामाशु पुण्यमिक्ष्वाकुसेवितम् ॥ १३ ॥

Having bathed and getting thus purified and having propitiated the sacred fire through oblations in time, he repaired with quick steps to the holy temple of the Ikṣvākus. (13)

तत्र देवान् पितॄन् विप्रानर्चयित्वा यथाविधि।
बाह्यकक्षान्तरं रामो निर्जगाम जनैर्वृतः ॥ १४ ॥

Having duly worshipped there the gods, the manes and the Brāhmaṇas, Śrī Rāma, surrounded by men, sought the interior of the outer chamber. (14)

उपतस्थुर्महात्मानो मन्त्रिणः सपुरोहिताः।
वसिष्ठप्रमुखाः सर्वे दीप्यमाना इवाग्रयः ॥ १५ ॥

Like blazing fires, all the high-souled counsellors including priests, Vasiṣṭha being the foremost among them, presented themselves. (15)

क्षत्रियाश्च महात्मानो नानाजनपदेश्वराः।
रामस्योपाविशन् पार्श्वे शक्रस्येव यथामराः ॥ १६ ॥

Magnanimous Kṣatriyas, rulers of various parts of the country, sat at the side of Śrī Rāma even as gods would by Indra. (16)

भरतो लक्ष्मणश्चात्र शत्रुघ्नश्च महायशाः।
उपासांचक्रिरे हृष्टा वेदास्त्रय इवाध्वरम् ॥ १७ ॥

Like the three Vedas (R̥gveda, Yajurveda and Sāmaveda) waiting upon a sacrificial performance, Bharata, Lakṣmaṇa as also Śatrughna of great renown waited, full of joy, on Śrī Rāma. (17)

याताः प्राञ्जलयो भूत्वा किंकरा मुदिताननाः।
मुदिता नाम पार्श्वस्था बहवः समुपाविशन् ॥ १८ ॥

With joined palms and a cheerful countenance many a servant known by the class name of Muditas walked and sat comfortably at his side. (18)

वानराश्च महावीर्या विंशतिः कामरूपिणः।
सुग्रीवप्रमुखा राममुपासन्ते महौजसः ॥ १९ ॥

Nay, endowed with great prowess and extraordinary strength the twenty monkeys*, Sugrīva being the foremost among them, who were able to change their form at will, sat at the side of Śrī Rāma. (19)

विभीषणश्च रक्षोभिश्चतुर्भिः परिवारितः।
उपासते महात्मानं धनेशमिव गुह्यकः ॥ २० ॥

Like a Yakṣa attending on Kubera (the god of riches), Vibhiṣaṇa, surrounded by four ogres (his ministers), waited on the high-souled Śrī Rāma. (20)

तथा निगमवृद्धाश्च कुलीना ये च मानवाः।
शिरसा वन्द्य राजानमुपासन्ते विचक्षणाः ॥ २१ ॥

Bowing with their heads bent low, sagacious human beings too, who were

* Sugrīva, Aṅgada, Hanumān, Jāmbavān, Suṣeṇa, Tāra, Nīla, Nala, Mainda, Dwivida, Kumuda, Śarabha, Śatabali, Gandhamādana, Gaja, Gavākṣa, Gavaya, Dhūmra, Rambha and Jyotimukha are the names of the principal monkeys (and bears) present at Ayodhyā at that time.

superior in the knowledge of the Vedas and of noble descent also, likewise sat at his side. (21)

तथा परिवृतो राजा श्रीमद्भिर्ऋषिभिर्वैः ।

राजभिश्च महावीर्यैर्वानरैश्च सराक्षसैः ॥ २२ ॥

The king was similarly surrounded by glorious and eminent Ṛṣis (seers of Vedic Mantras) as well as by kings endowed with extraordinary prowess and the aforesaid monkeys alongwith the ogres. (22)

यथा देवेश्वरो नित्यमृषिभिः समुपास्यते ।

अधिकस्तेन रूपेण सहस्राक्षाद् विरोचते ॥ २३ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे सप्तत्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-seven in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टात्रिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXVIII

Śrī Rāma grants leave to Kings—Janaka, Yudhājit, Pratardana and others to proceed to their respective dominions

एवमास्ते महाबाहुर्हन्यहनि राघवः ।
प्रशासत् सर्वकार्याणि पौरजानपदेषु च ॥ १ ॥

In this way the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) continued from day to day to administer all the affairs of the citizens as well as of the people of the outlying districts. (1)

ततः कतिपयाहःसु वैदेहं मिथिलाधिपम् ।

राघवः प्राञ्जलिर्भूत्वा वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ २ ॥

Then after some days Śrī Rāma with joined palms addressed the following submission to King Janaka, ruler of the Videha territory, and the suzerain lord of Mithilā, so the tradition goes: (2)

Just as Indra, the ruler of gods, is duly waited upon by Ṛṣis everyday, Śrī Rāma shone brightly even more than Indra (the thousand-eyed god) in that seemingly human form. (23)

तेषां समुपविष्टानां तास्ताः सुमधुराः कथाः ।

कथ्यन्ते धर्मसंयुक्ताः पुराणजैर्महात्मभिः ॥ २४ ॥

In their presence when they were all comfortably seated, different stories, exceedingly sweet and full of piety, were recited by high-souled persons well-versed in the Purāṇas.* (24)

भवान् हि गतिरव्यग्रा भवता पालिता वयम् ।
भवतस्तेजसोग्रेण रावणो निहतो मया ॥ ३ ॥

“You indeed are our permanent support; we stand fostered by you. By virtue of the formidable prowess alone, born of your austerities, was Rāvaṇa killed by me. (3)

इक्ष्वाकूणां च सर्वेषां मैथिलानां च सर्वशः ।

अतुलाः प्रीतयो राजन् सम्बन्धकपुरोगमाः ॥ ४ ॥

“Bonds of affection which have followed from a matrimonial alliance and stand unequalled have existed between all the Ikṣvākus, on the one hand, and all the rulers of Mithilā, on the other, O king! (4)

* Some editions of the Vālmiki-Rāmāyaṇa have inserted between Cantos XXXVII and XXXVIII five Cantos as interpolated detailing the descent of Vālī and Sugrīva and the story of Rāvaṇa's expedition to Śvetadwīpa (an abode of Lord Viṣṇu) as narrated by Sage Agastya. But, since mention is made of the departure of Agastya in the previous Canto, the insertion of these Cantos at the end of Canto XXXVII appeared to us unwarranted. We have, therefore, omitted the said interpolated Cantos.

तद् भवान् स्वपुरं यातु रत्नान्यादाय पार्थिव।
भरतश्च सहायार्थं पृष्ठतश्चानुयास्यति ॥ ५ ॥

“Accepting the valuable presents, which are being respectfully offered by me, therefore, proceed you to your own city, O king Bharata and alongwith him Śatrughna too will follow at your heels for escorting you.” (5)

स तथेति ततः कृत्वा राघवं वाक्यमब्रवीत्।
प्रीतोऽस्मि भवता राजन् दर्शनेन नयेन च ॥ ६ ॥

Saying ‘Amen’, King Janaka thereupon made the following reply to Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu: “I feel gratified, O king, with your sight and polity.” (6)

यान्येतानि तु रत्नानि मदर्थं संचितानि वै।
दुहित्रे तान्यहं राजन् सर्वाण्येव ददामि वै ॥ ७ ॥

“I for my part hereby bestow all these valuable presents which have been actually got together for my sake, O king, on my daughter, Empress Sītā.” (7)

एवमुक्त्वा तु काकुत्स्थं जनको हृष्टमानसः।
प्रययौ मिथिलां श्रीमांस्तमनुज्ञाय राघवम् ॥ ८ ॥

Having spoken as above to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha) and taking leave of the said scion of Raghu, the glorious King Janaka proceeded to Mithilā, delighted in mind. (8)

ततः प्रयाते जनके केकयं मातुलं प्रभुम्।
राघवः प्राञ्जलिर्भूत्वा विनयाद् वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ९ ॥

Janaka having departed, Śrī Rāma with joined palms submitted in all humility as follows to his maternal uncle, the Kekaya king, Yudhājit: (9)

इदं राज्यमहं चैव भरतश्च सलक्ष्मणः।
आयत्तस्त्वं हि नो राजन् गतिश्च पुरुषर्षभ ॥ १० ॥

“This kingdom of Ayodhyā, myself, as also Bharata and Śatrughna, including Lakṣmaṇa, are at your disposal; nay, you are our very mainstay, O king, a jewel among men! (10)

राजा हि वृद्धः संतापं त्वदर्थमुपयास्यति।
तस्माद् गमनमद्यैव रोचते तव पार्थिव ॥ ११ ॥

“The king, being aged, will feel afflicted on your account; hence, O king, your leaving this very day for your city finds favour with me. (11)

लक्ष्मणेनानुयात्रेण पृष्ठतोऽनुगमिष्यते।
धनमादाय बहुलं रत्नानि विविधानि च ॥ १२ ॥

“You will be followed by Lakṣmaṇa marching at your heels, taking with him abundant wealth and precious stones of various kinds for you.” (12)

युधाजित् तु तथेत्याह गमनं प्रति राघव।
रत्नानि च धनं चैव त्वय्येवाक्षय्यमस्त्विति ॥ १३ ॥

Yudhājit for his part said, “Be it so!” with reference to his departure, adding, “O scion of Raghu, let the precious stones as well as the gold remain eternally with you.” (13)

प्रदक्षिणं च राजानं कृत्वा केकयवर्धनः।
रामेण च कृतः पूर्वमभिवाद्य प्रदक्षिणम् ॥ १४ ॥
लक्ष्मणेन सहायेन प्रयातः केकयेश्वरः।
हतेऽसुरे यथा वृत्रे विष्णुना सह वासवः ॥ १५ ॥

Nay, having walked clockwise as a mark of respect around the king, Śrī Rāma, the king of the Kekayas, who was also the promoter of the Kekayas, nay, who had already been circumambulated clockwise by Śrī Rāma after greeting him, departed with Lakṣmaṇa as his escort, even as Indra did (for Amarāvati) on the demon Vṛtra having been killed, with Lord Viṣṇu descended as his younger brother. (14-15)

तं विसृज्य ततो रामो वयस्यमकुतोभयम्।
प्रतर्दनं काशिपतिं परिष्वज्येदमब्रवीत् ॥ १६ ॥

Having sent him away and embraced his friend Pratardana, the ruler of Kāśī, who was a friend and who entertained no fear from any quarter, Śrī Rāma then spoke as follows to him: (16)

दर्शिता भवता प्रीतिर्दर्शितं सौहृदं परम्।
उद्योगश्च त्वया राजन् भरतेन कृतः सह॥ १७॥

“Endeavour was made by you in co-operation with Bharata in my coronation*, O king, and affection and great amity was thereby shown by you. (17)

तद् भवानद्य काशेय पुरीं वाराणसीं व्रज।
रमणीयां त्वया गुप्तां सुप्राकारां सुतोरणाम्॥ १८॥

“Therefore, O king of Kāśī, return you today to the enchanting city of Vārāṇasī, which stands enclosed with a strong wall provided with magnificent gateways and protected by you.” (18)

एतावदुक्त्वा चोत्थाय काकुत्स्थः परमासनात्।
पर्यष्वजत धर्मात्मा निरन्तरमुरोगतम्॥ १९॥

Having spoken as above, and rising from his magnificent throne, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha), whose mind was set on righteousness, tightly clasped Pratardana, who had clung to his bosom. (19)

विसर्जयामास तदा कौसल्याप्रीतिवर्धनः।
राघवेण कृतानुज्ञः काशेयो ह्यकुतोभयः॥ २०॥
वाराणसीं ययौ तूर्णं राघवेण विसर्जितः।
विसृज्य तं काशिपतिं त्रिशतं पृथिवीपतीन्॥ २१॥
प्रहसन् राघवो वाक्यमुवाच मधुराक्षरम्।
भवतां प्रीतिरव्यग्रा तेजसा परिरक्षिता॥ २२॥

Śrī Rāma (who enhanced the joy of Kausalyā) then bid farewell to the king of Kāśī. Permitted by Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), the ruler of Kāśī, who actually entertained fear from none, proceeded with all speed to Vārāṇasī when sent off by Śrī Rāma. Having sent away the said ruler of Kāśī, Śrī Rāma laughingly spoke in sweet accents as follows to the three hundred princes assembled there:

“Your unflinching devotion to Me stands vindicated by your glory. (20—22)

धर्मश्च नियतो नित्यं सत्यं च भवतां सदा।
युष्माकं चानुभावेन तेजसा च महात्मनाम्॥ २३॥

हतो दुरात्मा दुर्बुद्धी रावणो राक्षसाधमः।
हेतुमात्रमहं तत्र भवतां तेजसा हतः॥ २४॥
रावणः सगणो युद्धे सपुत्रामात्यबान्धवः।
भवन्तश्च समानीता भरतेन महात्मना॥ २५॥
श्रुत्वा जनकराजस्य काननात् तनयां हताम्।
उद्युक्तानां च सर्वेषां पार्थिवानां महात्मनाम्॥ २६॥
कालोऽप्यतीतः सुमहान् गमनं रोचयाम्यतः।
प्रत्युचुस्तं च राजानो हर्षेण महता वृताः॥ २७॥

“Virtue is constant and truthfulness too ever exists invariably in you. Nay, through the majesty and glory alone of you, exalted souls, was the evil-minded and perverse Rāvaṇa, the vilest among the ogres, killed. I was a mere instrument in encompassing his death. Truly speaking, Rāvaṇa with his followers, as also his sons, ministers and kinsfolk—was made short work of through your glory alone. You too were called together by the high-souled Bharata on hearing of Sītā (the daughter of king Janaka) having been borne away from the forest. Nay, a pretty long time has gone by while all of you high-souled kings have been zealously active all these days in my interest. Hence I deem it proper that you should depart.”

Nay, filled with great joy, the kings answered him thus: (23—27)

दिष्ट्या त्वं विजयी राम स्वराज्येऽपि प्रतिष्ठितः।
दिष्ट्या प्रत्याहता सीता दिष्ट्या शत्रुः पराजितः॥ २८॥

“By our good luck, O Rāma, you have come out victorious and also stand secure in your own sovereignty. By our good fortune Sītā has been recovered and, thank God, the enemy has been vanquished. (28)

एष नः परमः काम एषा नः प्रीतिरुत्तमा।
यत् त्वां विजयिनं राम पश्यामो हतशात्रवम्॥ २९॥

“This was our highest ambition, and this constitutes our greatest satisfaction, that we see you having killed your enemy and come out victorious, O Rāma. (29)

एतत् त्वय्युपपन्नं च यदस्मांस्त्वं प्रशंससे।
प्रशंसार्हं न जानीमः प्रशंसां वक्तुमीदृशीम् ॥ ३० ॥

“Nay, it is but proper for you that you compliment us, O king worthy of tribute! We, however, do not know how to pay such a compliment. (30)

आपृच्छामो गमिष्यामो हृदिस्थो नः सदा भवान्।
वर्तामहे महाबाहो प्रीत्यात्र महता वृताः ॥ ३१ ॥

“We now take leave of you and shall depart. Even as you ever remain enshrined in our heart, so filled with great devotion to you, we too may abide in the heart of yours,

O mighty-armed one! (31)

भवेच्च ते महाराज प्रीतिरस्मासु नित्यदा।
बाढमित्येव राजानो हर्षेण परमान्विताः ॥ ३२ ॥
ऊचुः प्राञ्जलयः सर्वे राघवं गमनोत्सुकाः।
पूजितास्ते च रामेण जग्मुर्देशान् स्वकान् स्वकान् ॥ ३३ ॥

“And let your affection ever be for us, O monarch!” Answered by Śrī Rāma in the words “All right!”, all the kings, transported with joy and ready to depart, said to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) with joined palms, “We are leaving”. Nay, honoured by Śrī Rāma, they all returned to their respective territories. (32-33)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे अष्टात्रिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-eight in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XXXIX

The princes send presents to Śrī Rāma, who after accepting them distributes them to His friends, the monkeys, the bears and the ogres; and they all sojourn happily with Him

ते प्रयाता महात्मानः पार्थिवास्ते प्रहृष्टवत्।
गजवाजिसहस्रौघैः कम्पयन्तो वसुंधराम् ॥ १ ॥

Those well-known and high-souled princes joyously departed, shaking the earth with their contingents consisting of thousands of elephants and horses. (1)

अक्षौहिण्यो हि तत्रासन् राघवार्थे समुद्यताः।
भरतस्याज्ञयानेकाः प्रहृष्टबलवाहनाः ॥ २ ॥

More than one Akṣauhiṇī (or units of army, consisting of 21,870 elephants, the same number of chariots, 65,610 horses and 109,350 infantry) stood garrisoned there under the orders of Bharata, fully equipped for the sake of Śrī Rāma (in his conflict with Rāvaṇa, if need be) and full of highly delighted troops and mounts. (2)

ऊचुस्ते च महीपाला बलदर्पसमन्विताः।
न राम रावणं युद्धे पश्यामः पुरतः स्थितम् ॥ ३ ॥

Nay, fully possessed with pride of might, the aforesaid kings said to one another, “We do not see Śrī Rāma and Rāvaṇa standing face to face on the field of battle. (3)

भरतेन वयं पश्चात् समानीता निरर्थकम्।
हता हि राक्षसाः क्षिप्रं पार्थिवैः स्युर्न संशयः ॥ ४ ॥

“We were uselessly brought together by Bharata when the war was over. The ogres would have surely been killed in no time by the kings had they been summoned in time; there is no doubt about it. (4)

रामस्य बाहुवीर्येण रक्षिता लक्ष्मणस्य च।
सुखं पारे समुद्रस्य युध्येम विगतज्वराः ॥ ५ ॥

“Protected by the might of arms of Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa we could have fought at ease on the other side of the sea (dividing the island of Laṅkā from the mainland), free from anxiety.” (5)

एताश्चान्याश्च राजानः कथास्तत्र सहस्रशः ।
कथयन्तः स्वराज्यानि जग्मुर्हर्षसमन्विताः ॥ ६ ॥

Saying these and other things in thousands on the way, the kings returned to their respective dominions, full of joy. (6)

स्वानि राज्यानि मुख्यानि ऋद्धानि मुदितानि च ।
सम्बृद्धनधान्यानि पूर्णानि वसुमन्ति च ॥ ७ ॥
यथापुराणि ते गत्वा रत्नानि विविधान्यथ ।
रामस्य प्रियकामार्थमुपहारं नृपा ददुः ॥ ८ ॥
अश्वान् यानानि रत्नानि हस्तिनश्च मदोत्कटान् ।
चन्दनानि च मुख्यानि दिव्यान्याभरणानि च ॥ ९ ॥
मणिमुक्ताप्रवालांस्तु दास्यो रूपसमन्विताः ।
अजाविकं च विविधं रथांस्तु विविधान् बहून् ॥ १० ॥

Duly reaching their own well-known kingdoms, which were prosperous and happy, with plentiful gold and grains, self-contained and full of treasures, and then to their respective cities, the aforesaid rulers of men forthwith bestowed on the escorts accompanying them as representatives of Śrī Rāma by way of so many presents for the gratification of Śrī Rāma, valuable things of various kinds, horses, vehicles, precious stones and elephants excited by passion, also excellent pieces of sandalwood and brilliant ornaments, gems, pearls and coral, nay, servant-maids richly endowed with comeliness, she-goats and sheep of different species and numerous chariots of every description. (7—10)

भरतो लक्ष्मणश्चैव शत्रुघ्नश्च महाबलः ।
आदाय तानि रत्नानि स्वां पुरीं पुनरागताः ॥ ११ ॥

Taking the aforesaid valuable presents, Bharata as well as Lakṣmaṇa and Śatrughna, who was endowed with extraordinary might, returned to their own city, Ayodhyā. (11)

आगम्य च पुरीं रम्यामयोध्यां पुरुषर्षभाः ।
तानि रत्नानि चित्राणि रामाय समुपानयन् ॥ १२ ॥

Nay, reaching the delightful city of Ayodhyā, the jewels among men handed those wonderful objects to Śrī Rāma. (12)

प्रतिगृह्य च तत् सर्वं रामः प्रीतिसमन्वितः ।
सुग्रीवाय ददौ राज्ञे महात्मा कृतकर्मणे ॥ १३ ॥
विभीषणाय च ददौ तथान्येभ्योऽपि राघवः ।
राक्षसेभ्यः कपिभ्यश्च यैर्वृतो जयमाप्तवान् ॥ १४ ॥

Accepting all that, the high-souled Śrī Rāma, a scion of Raghu, full of joy bestowed them on King Sugrīva, who had done his duty to Śrī Rāma, as well as on Vibhīṣaṇa and on other monkeys and ogres, surrounded by whom He had scored a victory over Rāvaṇa. (13-14)

ते सर्वे रामदत्तानि रत्नानि कपिराक्षसाः ।
शिरोभिर्धारयामासुर्भुजेषु च महाबलाः ॥ १५ ॥

All the aforesaid monkeys and ogres, who were endowed with extraordinary might, wore the precious stones bestowed on them by Śrī Rāma, on their heads as well as around their arms. (15)

हनूमन्तं च नृपतिरिक्ष्वाकूणां महारथः ।
अङ्गदं च महाबाहुमङ्कमारोप्य वीर्यवान् ॥ १६ ॥
रामः कमलपत्राक्षः सुग्रीवमिदमब्रवीत् ।
अङ्गदस्ते सुपुत्रोऽयं मन्त्री चाप्यनिलात्मजः ॥ १७ ॥
सुग्रीवमन्त्रिते युक्तौ मम चापि हिते रतौ ।
अर्हन्तौ विविधां पूजां त्वत्कृते वै हरीश्वर ॥ १८ ॥

Placing Hanūmān and Aṅgada too in His lap, Śrī Rāma, the powerful king of the Ikṣvākus, a great chariot-warrior, whose eyes resembled the petals of a lotus, spoke as follows to Sugrīva: “This Aṅgada, your worthy son (nephew) and your minister, the son of the wind-god, too, O Sugrīva, the lord of monkeys, who have both remained engaged in giving counsel to you and have been devoted to My interests, too, actually merit every kind of honour.” (16—18)

इत्युक्त्वा व्यवमुच्याद्वाद् भूषणानि महायशाः ।
स बबन्ध महार्हाणि तदाङ्गदहनूमतोः ॥ १९ ॥

Saying so, and taking off ornaments of great value from His body, the illustrious One fastened them on the person of Āṅgada and Hanumān. (19)

आभाष्य च महावीर्यान् राघवो यूथपर्षभान् ।
नीलं नलं केसरिणं कुमुदं गन्धमादनम् ॥ २० ॥
सुषेणं पनसं वीरं मैन्दं द्विविदमेव च ।
जाम्बवन्तं गवाक्षं च विनतं धूम्रमेव च ॥ २१ ॥
बलीमुखं प्रजङ्घं च संनादं च महाबलम् ।
दरीमुखं दधिमुखमिन्द्रजानुं च यूथपम् ॥ २२ ॥
मधुरं श्लक्ष्णया वाचा नेत्राभ्यामापिबन्निव ।
सुहृदो मे भवन्तश्च शरीरं भ्रातरस्तथा ॥ २३ ॥
युष्माभिरुद्धृतश्चाहं व्यसनात् काननौकसः ।
धन्यो राजा च सुग्रीवो भवद्भिः सुहृदां वरैः ॥ २४ ॥
एवमुक्त्वा ददौ तेभ्यो भूषणानि यथार्हतः ।
वज्राणि च महार्हाणि सस्वजे च नरर्षभः ॥ २५ ॥

Nay, sweetly accosting the foremost of His troop-commanders, who were all endowed with extraordinary prowess, viz., Nila, Nala, Kesarī, Kumuda, Gandhamādana, Suṣeṇa, Panasa, the valiant Mainda as well as Dwivida, Jāmbavān and Gavākṣa, Vinata and Dhūmra too, Balimukha and Prajaṅgha, as well as the exceptionally mighty Sannāda, Darimukha, Dadhimukha and the troop-commander Indrajānu in a soft tone, as though He would drink them up with His eyes, and saying, "you are My friends, nay, My other self, as also My brothers. By you alone was I delivered from misfortune, O dwellers in the woods! Nay, King Sugrīva is blessed because of you, the foremost among his friends," Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), the foremost of human beings, bestowed on them, according to their deserts, ornaments and diamonds of great value and embraced them. (20—25)

ते पिबन्तः सुगन्धीनि मधूनि मधुपिङ्गलाः ।
मांसानि च सुमृष्टानि मूलानि च फलानि च ॥ २६ ॥

The monkeys (who were reddish brown as honey) stayed there, quaffing fragrant honeys, and subsisting on royal dishes, roots and fruits. (26)

एवं तेषां निवसतां मासः साग्रो ययौ तदा ।
मुहूर्तमिव ते सर्वे रामभक्त्या च मेनिरे ॥ २७ ॥

More than a month elapsed on that occasion while they stayed at Ayodhyā as aforesaid. Nay, because of their devotion to Śrī Rāma, they all felt it to be less than an hour. (27)

रामोऽपि रेमे तैः सार्धं वानरैः कामरूपिभिः ।
राक्षसैश्च महावीर्यैर्ऋक्षैश्चैव महाबलैः ॥ २८ ॥

Śrī Rāma too spent his time happily in the company of those aforesaid monkeys, who could change their form at will, as also with the ogres, who were endowed with extraordinary prowess, as well as with bears who were exceptionally mighty. (28)

एवं तेषां ययौ मासो द्वितीयः शिशिरः सुखम् ।
वानराणां प्रहृष्टानां राक्षसानां च सर्वशः ॥ २९ ॥
इक्ष्वाकुनगरे रम्ये परां प्रीतिमुपासताम् ।
रामस्य प्रीतिकरणैः कालस्तेषां सुखं ययौ ॥ ३० ॥

In this way the second month, Phālguna, of the extreme cold season also passed happily with the monkeys and the ogres, who felt highly rejoiced in every way and enjoyed supreme gratification through the hospitality of Śrī Rāma. Their time passed merrily in the delightful city of the Ikṣvākus. (29-30)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकोनचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ३९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Thirty-nine in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XL

Śrī Rāma sends back the monkeys, the bears and ogres to their respective abodes

तथा स्म तेषां वसतामृक्षवानररक्षसाम् ।
राघवस्तु महातेजाः सुग्रीवमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Of the aforesaid bears, monkeys and ogres sojourning with Him, Śrī Rāma for his part, who was endowed with extraordinary energy, spoke as follows to Sugrīva: (1)
गम्यतां सौम्य किष्किन्धां दुराधर्षा सुरासुरैः ।
पालयस्व सहामात्यै राज्यं निहतकण्टकम् ॥ २ ॥

“Return, O gentle one, to Kiṣkindhā, which cannot easily be assailed by the gods and the demons alike; and rule with your ministers the kingdom, all of whose enemies have been exterminated. (2)

अङ्गदं च महाबाहो प्रीत्या परमया युतः ।
पश्य त्वं हनुमन्तं च नलं च सुमहाबलम् ॥ ३ ॥

“Nay, regard you with supreme affection, O mighty-armed one, Aṅgada and Hanumān as also the exceptionally mighty Nala. (3)

सुषेणं श्वशुरं वीरं तारं च बलिनां वरम् ।
कुमुदं चैव दुर्धर्षं नीलं चैव महाबलम् ॥ ४ ॥
वीरं शतबलिं चैव मैन्दं द्विविदमेव च ।
गजं गवाक्षं गवयं शरभं च महाबलम् ॥ ५ ॥
ऋक्षराजं च दुर्धर्षं जाम्बवन्तं महाबलम् ।
पश्य प्रीतिसमायुक्तो गन्धमादनमेव च ॥ ६ ॥
ऋषभं च सुविक्रान्तं प्लवङ्गं च सुपाटलम् ।
केसरिं शरभं शुम्भं शङ्खचूडं महाबलम् ॥ ७ ॥

“Replete with love, cast your look on your father-in-law, the heroic Suṣeṇa and Tāra, the foremost of the mighty, as well as on Kumuda, who is so difficult to assail as also on Nila, who is endowed with extraordinary might, on the valiant Śatabali, as also on Mainda as well as on Dwivida, Gaja, Gavākṣa, Gavaya and the exceptionally mighty Śarabha, on the very mighty Jāmbavān, the king of bears, who is so difficult to assail, as also on Gandhamādana, and on the highly valiant Rṣabha and on the monkey Supātala, on Kesari, Śarabha, Śumbha and on the exceptionally mighty Śaṅkhacūḍa. (4—7)

ये ये च सुमहात्मानो मदर्थे त्यक्तजीविताः ।
पश्य त्वं प्रीतिसंयुक्तो मा चैषां विप्रियं कृथाः ॥ ८ ॥

“Nay, full of affection, cast your eyes on all the high-souled monkeys who risked their lives for My sake. Never do anything displeasing to them.” (8)

एवमुक्त्वा च सुग्रीवमाश्लिष्य च पुनः पुनः ।
विभीषणमुवाचाथ रामो मधुरया गिरा ॥ ९ ॥

Having spoken as aforesaid to Sugrīva and embraced him again and again, Śrī Rāma then spoke as follows to Vibhīṣaṇa in a sweet tone: (9)

लङ्कां प्रशाधि धर्मेण धर्मज्ञस्त्वं मतो मम ।
पुरस्य राक्षसानां च भ्रातुर्वैश्रवणस्य च ॥ १० ॥

“Rule Laṅkā with righteousness; you are held to be a knower of what is right by Me, by the city of Laṅkā, by the ogres as a whole and by your eldest brother, Kubera, son of Viśravā. (10)

मा च बुद्धिमधर्मे त्वं कुर्या राजन् कथंचन ।
बुद्धिमन्तो हि राजानो ध्रुवमश्नन्ति मेदिनीम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Nay, never set your mind in any case on unrighteousness, O king! Prudent kings do rule the earth firmly. (11)

अहं च नित्यशो राजन् सुग्रीवसहितस्त्वया ।
स्मर्तव्यः परया प्रीत्या गच्छ त्वं विगतज्वरः ॥ १२ ॥

“Nay, alongwith Sugrīva I should be constantly cherished in memory by you with supreme affection, O king! Depart you free from anxiety.” (12)

रामस्य भाषितं श्रुत्वा ऋक्षवानरराक्षसाः ।

साधुसाध्विति काकुत्स्थं प्रशशंसुः पुनः पुनः ॥ १३ ॥

Hearing the speech of Śrī Rāma, the bears, monkeys and ogres repeatedly applauded Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha), saying: "Well said! Excellent!! (13)

तव बुद्धिर्महाबाहो वीर्यमद्भुतमेव च ।

माधुर्यं परमं राम स्वयम्भोरिव नित्यदा ॥ १४ ॥

"Wonderful is Your wisdom, O mighty-armed one, and your prowess too. Your supreme geniality too, O Rāma, ever vies with that of Brahmā (the self-born)." (14)

तेषामेवं ब्रुवाणानां वानराणां च रक्षसाम् ।

हनूमान् प्रणतो भूत्वा राघवं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ १५ ॥

Remaining inclined while the monkeys and ogres were speaking as aforesaid, Hanūmān submitted as follows to Śrī Rāma: (15)

स्नेहो मे परमो राजंस्त्वयि तिष्ठतु नित्यदा ।

भक्तिश्च नियता वीर भावो नान्यत्र गच्छतु ॥ १६ ॥

"May my supreme affection for You stand forever, O Lord! May my devotion be constant to You, O valiant prince! Let not my love be diverted to anyone else. (16)

यावद् रामकथा वीर चरिष्यति महीतले ।

तावच्छरीरे वत्स्यन्तु प्राणा मम न संशयः ॥ १७ ॥

"May life continue in my body without doubt so long as Your story remains current on the surface of the earth, O heroic Śrī Rāma! (17)

यच्चैतच्चरितं दिव्यं कथा ते रघुनन्दन ।

तन्ममाप्सरसो राम श्रावयेयुर्नरर्षभ ॥ १८ ॥

"Let the celestial nymphs, O Rāma, recount to me in musical notes, O jewel among the human beings, that which passes as Your divine life exploits, Your story, O delight of the Raghus! (18)

तच्छ्रुत्वाहं ततो वीर तव चर्यामृतं प्रभो ।

उत्कण्ठां तां हरिष्यामि मेघलेखामिवानिलः ॥ १९ ॥

"Imbibing with my ears the nectar in the form of Your lifestory, My heroic lord, I shall thereby be able to allay my longing for Your sight even as the wind disperses a line of clouds." (19)

एवं ब्रुवाणं रामस्तु हनूमन्तं वरासनात् ।

उत्थाय सस्वजे स्नेहाद् वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ २० ॥

Rising from his excellent seat, Śrī Rāma hugged with affection Hanūmān while he was submitting as above, and made the following reply: so the tradition goes: (20)

एवमेतत् कपिश्रेष्ठ भविता नात्र संशयः ।

चरिष्यति कथा यावदेषा लोके च मामिका ॥ २१ ॥

तावत् ते भविता कीर्तिः शरीरेऽप्यसवस्तथा ।

लोका हि यावत्स्थास्यन्ति तावत् स्थास्यन्ति मे कथाः ॥ २२ ॥

"So shall it be, O prince of monkeys; there is no doubt about it. Your fame will endure and life too will continue in your body so long as this story of Mine will remain current in the world. Nay, My stories will surely abide so long as the worlds will last. (21-22)

एकैकस्योपकारस्य प्राणान् दास्यामि ते कपे ।

शेषस्येहोपकाराणां भवाम ऋणिनो वयम् ॥ २३ ॥

"I would give up My life for every single service rendered by you here and we shall remain in debt to you for the rest of your services, O monkey! (23)

मदङ्गे जीर्णतां यातु यत् त्वयोपकृतं कपे ।

नरः प्रत्युपकाराणामापत्स्वायाति पात्रताम् ॥ २४ ॥

"Let My obligation to you stand in My heart forever, O monkey! (Let there be no occasion for Me to repay your services); for one deserves to be requited for services rendered only when one is in straits." (24)

ततोऽस्य हारं चन्द्राभं मुच्य कण्ठात् स राघवः ।

वैदूर्यतरलं कण्ठे बबन्ध च हनूमतः ॥ २५ ॥

Taking off from his neck a string of pearls, shining as the moon, with a cat's-eye gem in the centre, the celebrated Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) then fastened it about the neck of the said Hanūmān. (25)

तेनोरसि निबद्धेन हारेण महता कपिः ।

रराज हेमशैलेन्द्रश्चन्द्रेणाक्रान्तमस्तकः ॥ २६ ॥

With that big necklace fastened on his breast, the monkey shone as the lordly Mount Meru (the golden mountain) with its summit topped over by the moon. (26)

श्रुत्वा तु राघवस्यैतदुत्थायोत्थाय वानराः ।

प्रणम्य शिरसा पादौ निर्जग्मुस्ते महाबलाः ॥ २७ ॥

Rising one after another on hearing this speech of Śrī Rāma, and bowing down at his feet with their heads bent low, the aforesaid monkeys of extraordinary might for their part departed. (27)

सुग्रीवः स च रामेण निरन्तरमुरोगतः ।

विभीषणश्च धर्मात्मा सर्वे ते बाष्पविक्लवाः ॥ २८ ॥

The celebrated Sugrīva as well as the pious-minded Vibhīṣaṇa were tightly clasped to his bosom by Śrī Rāma; all the monkeys were overcome with emotions and shed tears. (28)

सर्वे च ते बाष्पकलाः साश्रुनेत्रा विचेतसः ।

सम्मूढा इव दुःखेन त्यजन्तो राघवं तदा ॥ २९ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे चत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४० ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLI

The arrival in Ayodhyā of the aerial car Puṣpaka sent by Kubera; its disappearance after receiving honours and blessings from Śrī Rāma; Bharata's description of the unique glory of Śrī Rāma's rule

विसृज्य च महाबाहुर्ऋक्षवानरराक्षसान् ।

भ्रातृभिः सहितो रामः प्रमुमोद सुखं सुखी ॥ १ ॥

After sending away the bears, the monkeys and the ogres, the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma, who was ever happy, intrinsically felt highly rejoiced alongwith his brothers. (1)

While leaving Śrī Rāma at that time, they all spoke indistinctly, their throats being choked with tears; nay, their eyes too were full of tears, they felt confused and stupefied as it were through agony. (29)

कृतप्रसादास्तेनैवं राघवेण महात्मना ।

जग्मुः स्वं स्वं गृहं सर्वे देही देहमिव त्यजन् ॥ ३० ॥

Having been favoured with gifts as aforesaid by that high-souled scion of Raghu, they returned each to his home, (feeling agonized) even as an embodied soul would, while leaving the body (tenanted by it). (30)

ततस्तु ते राक्षसऋक्षवानराः

प्रणम्य रामं रघुवंशवर्धनम् ।

वियोगजाश्रुप्रतिपूर्णलोचनाः

प्रतिप्रयातास्तु यथा निवासिनः ॥ ३१ ॥

Having respectfully bowed down to Śrī Rāma, the promoter of Raghu's race, the said ogres, bears and monkeys for their part returned to their respective abodes with their eyes full of tears (born of their separation from Śrī Rāma). (31)

अथापराहसमये भ्रातृभिः सह राघवः ।

शुश्राव मधुरां वाणीमन्तरिक्षान्महाप्रभुः ॥ २ ॥

सौम्य राम निरीक्षस्व सौम्येन वदनेन माम् ।

कुबेरभवनात् प्राप्तं विद्धि मां पुष्पकं प्रभो ॥ ३ ॥

After sometime in the afternoon the mighty Lord Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), heard, alongwith his brothers, a sweet voice coming from the sky as follows: “Dear Rāma, look on me with affection beaming from your face; know me, O Lord, to be the Puṣpaka, come from the mansion of Kubera. (2-3)

तव शासनमाज्ञाय गतोऽस्मि भवनं प्रति।
उपस्थातुं नरश्रेष्ठ स च मां प्रत्यभाषत॥ ४॥

“Obeying Your command, O best of men, I went home to wait on him (Kubera), but he said to me: (4)

निर्जितस्त्वं नरेन्द्रेण राघवेण महात्मना।
निहत्य युधि दुर्धर्षं रावणं राक्षसेश्वरम्॥ ५॥

“‘Having killed in battle the unassailable Rāvaṇa, the king of the Rākṣasas, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), the high-souled king of men, has won possession over you. (5)

ममापि परमा प्रीतिर्हिते तस्मिन् दुरात्मनि।
रावणे सगणे चैव सपुत्रे सहबान्धवे॥ ६॥

“‘A great delight has fallen to my lot too on that wicked Rāvaṇa having been killed alongwith his hosts, with his sons and other relations. (6)

स त्वं रामेण लङ्कायां निर्जितः परमात्मना।
वह सौम्य तमेव त्वमहमाज्ञापयामि ते॥ ७॥

“‘As such you have been won in Laṅkā by Śrī Rāma, who is the Highest Being. O gentle one! You carry Him indeed: I command you. (7)

परमो ह्येष मे कामो यत् त्वं राघवनन्दनम्।
वहेर्लोकस्य संयानं गच्छस्व विगतज्वरः॥ ८॥

“‘It is my highest desire that you serve as a carriage of Śrī Rāma (the delight of Raghu’s race) who is the support of the entire world: go without qualms.’ (8)

सोऽहं शासनमाज्ञाय धनदस्य महात्मनः।
त्वत्सकाशमनुप्राप्तो निर्विशङ्कः प्रतीच्छ माम्॥ ९॥

“I, who was ordered thus, have come to your presence abiding by the command of the high-souled Kubera; accept me kindly without any hitch. (9)

अधृष्यः सर्वभूतानां सर्वेषां धनदाज्ञया।
चराम्यहं प्रभावेण तवाज्ञां परिपालयन्॥ १०॥

“By virtue of my power I am unassailable by the entire range of created beings. By Kubera’s order I shall move through all the spheres carrying out your behest.” (10)

एवमुक्तस्तदा रामः पुष्पकेण महाबलः।
उवाच पुष्पकं दृष्ट्वा विमानं पुनरागतम्॥ ११॥

Thus addressed by Puṣpaka, Śrī Rāma of great strength then spoke as follows, casting a benign look on the aerial car known as Puṣpaka, which had come back: (11)

यद्येवं स्वागतं तेऽस्तु विमानवर पुष्पक।
आनुकूल्याद् धनेशस्य वृत्तदोषो न नो भवेत्॥ १२॥

“If it is so, you are welcome, O Puṣpaka, the best of aerial cars! On account of this favour of Kubera, the charge of unfair dealing will not be laid at our doors.” (12)

लाजैश्चैव तथा पुष्पैर्धूपैश्चैव सुगन्धिभिः।
पूजयित्वा महाबाहू राघवः पुष्पकं तदा॥ १३॥

Having worshipped Puṣpaka after that with fried grains of rice and flowers as well as incenses and also sandal-pastes, the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), spoke as follows: (13)

गम्यतामिति चोवाच आगच्छ त्वं स्मरे यदा।
सिद्धानां च गतौ सौम्य मा विषादेन योजय॥ १४॥

“Depart for the present. You should come whenever I recall you. Vanishing in thin air, the dwelling place of the Siddhas, be not oppressed by grief at my separation. (14)

प्रतिघातश्च ते मा भूद् यथेष्टं गच्छतो दिशः।
एवमस्त्विति रामेण पूजयित्वा विसर्जितम्॥ १५॥

अभिप्रेतां दिशं तस्मात् प्रायात् तत् पुष्पकं तदा।
एवमन्तर्हिते तस्मिन् पुष्पके सुकृतात्मनि॥ १६॥

भरतः प्राञ्जलिर्वाक्यमुवाच रघुनन्दनम्।
विबुधात्मनि दृश्यन्ते त्वयि वीर प्रशासति॥ १७॥

अमानुषाणि सत्त्वानि व्याहृतानि मुहुर्मुहुः।
अनामयश्च मर्त्यानां साग्रे मासो गतो ह्ययम्॥ १८॥

जीर्णानामपि सत्त्वानां मृत्युर्नायाति राघव।
अरोगप्रसवा नार्यो वपुष्मन्तो हि मानवाः ॥ १९ ॥

“May no obstruction hinder you as you wander in all directions at your sweet will.”
“So be it”, replied Puṣpaka. Then Puṣpaka, which had been asked to go, after having been worshipped by Śrī Rāma, proceeded from there in the direction of its choice.

On Puṣpaka, an embodiment of virtues, having thus gone out of sight, Bharata, with joined palms, addressed Śrī Rāma, the delight of the Raghus, in the following words: “Beings which do not claim their descent in Adam’s line, speak again and again like men, under your reign, O valiant One, having a divine soul! Only more than a month has elapsed since you took the sceptre in your hand, O Rāghava! and mortals have become strangers to disease, death does not overtake even men worn out with age, women undergo no labour-pains during parturition and human beings are well-built indeed. (15—19)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-one in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्विचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLII

Recreation of Śrī Rāma and Śrī Sītā in the Aśoka-grove; the enceinte Śrī Sītā expresses her desire to visit penance-groves and Śrī Rāma accords His consent

स विसृज्य ततो रामः पुष्पकं हेमभूषितम्।
प्रविवेश महाबाहुरशोकवनिकां तदा ॥ १ ॥
चन्दनागुरुचूतैश्च तुङ्गकालेयकैरपि।
देवदारुवनैश्चापि समन्तादुपशोभिताम् ॥ २ ॥
चम्पकाशोकपुंनागमधूकपनसासनैः ।
शोभितां पारिजातैश्च विधूमज्ज्वलनप्रभैः ॥ ३ ॥

Then after dismissing Puṣpaka, decked with gold, the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma entered

हर्षश्चाभ्यधिको राजञ्जनस्य पुरवासिनः।
काले वर्षति पर्जन्यः पातयन्नमृतं पयः ॥ २० ॥
“An abundance of joy has fallen to the lot of every citizen dwelling in the town, O king! Pouring down nectarean water clouds rain at the proper time. (20)

वाताश्चापि प्रवान्त्येते स्पर्शयुक्ताः सुखाः शिवाः।
ईदृशो नश्चिरं राजा भवेदिति नरेश्वरः ॥ २१ ॥

“Even the very winds which blow here are capable of giving a delightful touch, and are pleasing and healthful. People living both in the cities and in the country, arriving in the capital, declare, ‘May such a sovereign be our ruler for long’, O king!” (21)

कथयन्ति पुरे राजन् पौरजानपदास्तथा।
एता वाचः सुमधुरा भरतेन समीरिताः।
श्रुत्वा रामो मुदा युक्तो बभूव नृपसत्तमः ॥ २२ ॥

Hearing these exquisitely honeyed words beautifully uttered by Bharata, Śrī Rāma, the best of kings, became thrilled with joy. (22)

the Aśoka-grove, which was rendered beautiful all around by the sandal, eaglewood (Aguru) and mango trees, so also by cocoanut, red-sandal and deodar groves too. It was graced by Campaka (Campā Campāka), Aśoka, Punnāgas, Madhūka, jack and Asana* trees, also by Pārijāta trees which looked like a blaze of fire without smoke. (1—3)

* Also know as Sājā, its latin name is Terminalia tamanosu.

लोधनीपार्जुनैर्नागैः सप्तपर्णातिमुक्तकैः ।
मन्दारकदलीगुल्मलताजालसमावृताम् ॥ ४ ॥

It was abounded in Lodhra, Nipa, Arjuna, Nāga, Saptaparnā, Atimuktaka, Mandāra, plantain trees, bushes and a network of creepers. (4)

प्रियङ्गुभिः कदम्बैश्च तथा च बकुलैरपि ।
जम्बूभिर्दाडिमैश्चैव कोविदारैश्च शोभिताम् ॥ ५ ॥

It was rendered by splendid Priyaṅgu, Kadamba and also by Bakula and pomegranate, Jambū (the rose-apple) and Kovidāra trees. (5)

सर्वदा कुसुमै रम्यैः फलवद्भिर्मनोरमैः ।
दिव्यगन्धरसोपेतैस्तरुणाङ्कुरपल्लवैः ॥ ६ ॥
तथैव तरुभिर्दिव्यैः शिल्पिभिः परिकल्पितैः ।
चारुपल्लवपुष्पाढ्यैर्मत्तभ्रमरसंकुलैः ॥ ७ ॥
कोकिलैर्भृङ्गाजैश्च नानावर्णैश्च पक्षिभिः ।
शोभितां शतशश्चित्रां चूतवृक्षावतंसकैः ॥ ८ ॥

It was embellished by such lovely trees ever laden with fascinating flowers and fruits and tender sprouts and whorl of leaves full of celestial fragrance and juice, as were reared with care by divine gardeners, enriched by beautiful leaves and flowers and thronged by intoxicated bees, and rendered variegated by multi-coloured birds like Kokilas and Bhṛṅgarājas which served as ornaments to the hundreds of the mango trees. (6—8)

शातकुम्भनिभाः केचित् केचिदग्निशिखोपमाः ।
नीलाञ्जननिभाश्चान्ये भान्ति तत्र स्म पादपाः ॥ ९ ॥

There in the Aśoka-grove some trees had golden brilliance, some glistened like the flames of fire and yet others shone with the splendour of dark collyrium. (9)

सुरभीणि च पुष्पाणि माल्यानि विविधानि च ।
दीर्घिका विविधाकाराः पूर्णाः परमवारिणा ॥ १० ॥
माणिक्यकृतसोपानाः स्फाटिकान्तरकुट्टिमाः ।
फुल्लपद्मोत्पलवनाश्चक्रवाकोपशोभिताः ॥ ११ ॥
दात्यूहशुकसंघुष्टा हंससारसनादिताः ।
तरुभिः पुष्पशबलैस्तीरजैरुपशोभिताः ॥ १२ ॥

There were fragrant flowers, blossoms of various kinds and also ponds of different shapes full of excellent water, which had flights of steps made of rubies ending in crystal platforms under water; which had masses of blooming lotuses and water-lilies; which were graced by Cakravāka birds, which resounded with the cries of water-hens and parrots; which were resonant with the cackling of swans and cranes and which were adorned with trees growing on their banks and wearing a motley appearance due to their being laden with flowers. (10—12)

प्राकारैर्विविधाकारैः शोभिताश्च शिलातलैः ।
तत्रैव च वनोद्देशे वैदूर्यमणिसंनिभैः ॥ १३ ॥
शाद्वलैः परमोपेतां पुष्पितद्रुमकाननम् ।
तत्र संघर्षजातानां वृक्षाणां पुष्पशालिनाम् ॥ १४ ॥
प्रस्तराः पुष्पशबला नभस्तारागणैरिव ।
नन्दनं हि यथेन्द्रस्य ब्राह्मं चैत्ररथं यथा ॥ १५ ॥

They were also bedecked with fences of various shapes and stone-slabs. Just there in that part of the woodland the grassy glades resembling the hue of Vaidurya (cat's-eye) splendidly beautified the Aśokavanikā which had a multitude of trees ladden with flowers. There the stone-slabs, which were placed under the trees and served as couches, looked variegated due to flowers fallen from the trees as the sky with the stars. The lay-out of Śrī Rāma's grove was like that of the Nandana garden of Indra and the Caitraratha garden of Kubera raised by Brahmā. (13—15)

तथाभूतं हि रामस्य काननं संनिवेशनम् ।
बह्वासनगृहोपेतां लतागृहसमावृताम् ॥ १६ ॥
अशोकवनिकां स्फीतां प्रविश्य रघुनन्दनः ।
आसने च शुभाकारे पुष्पप्रकरभूषिते ॥ १७ ॥
कुथास्तरणसंस्तीर्णे रामः संनिषसाद ह ।
सीतामादाय हस्तेन मधु मैरेयकं शुचि ॥ १८ ॥
पाययामास काकुत्स्थः शचीमिव पुरंदरः ।
मांसानि च सुमृष्टानि फलानि विविधानि च ॥ १९ ॥

रामस्याभ्यवहारार्थं किंकरास्तूर्णमाहरन्।
उपानृत्यंश्च राजानं नृत्यगीतविशारदाः ॥ २० ॥

Having entered the large Aśokavanikā, which had dwellings provided with a number of seats and was surrounded by bowers, Śrī Rāma, the delight of Raghus, seated Himself on a fine-shaped couch decorated with clusters of flowers and over which a carpet was spread out. Taking in his hand the pure nectar of flowers as intoxicating as the 'Maireyaka' wine, Śrī Rāma (a descendant of Kakutstha) made Śrī Sītā drink it, just as Indra does Śacī. Attendants speedily brought well-cooked edibles (fit for the royalty) and a variety of fruits for Śrī Rāma's repast. A troupe of celestial nymphs and Nāga damsels adept in singing and dancing and surrounded by Kinnarīs danced before the king. (16—20)

अप्सरोरगसंघाश्च किंनरीपरिवारिताः।
दक्षिणा रूपवत्यश्च स्त्रियः पानवशं गताः ॥ २१ ॥
उपानृत्यन्त काकुत्स्थं नृत्यगीतविशारदाः।
मनोऽभिरामा रामास्ता रामो रमयतां वरः ॥ २२ ॥
रमयामास धर्मात्मा नित्यं परमभूषिताः।
स तया सीतया सार्धमासीनो विरराज ह ॥ २३ ॥
अरुन्धत्या इवासीनो वसिष्ठ इव तेजसा।
एवं रामो मुदा युक्तः सीतां सुरसुतोपमाम् ॥ २४ ॥

Under the influence of intoxicating drinks courteous and beautiful women, who were expert in dancing and singing danced before Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha). These mind-fascinating belles were always adorned with ornaments. Pious-souled Śrī Rāma, the foremost among those who delighted others, made them rejoice. Seated in the company of the celebrated Sītā, He shone with splendour like Vasiṣṭha seated alongwith Arundhatī. (21—24)

रमयामास वैदेहीमहन्यहनि देववत्।
तथा तयोर्विहरतोः सीताराघवयोश्चिरम् ॥ २५ ॥

अत्यक्रामच्छुभः कालः शैशिरो भोगदः सदा।
प्राप्तयोर्विविधान् भोगानतीतः शिशिरागमः ॥ २६ ॥

Śrī Rāma, steeped in joy like gods, afforded delight thus day after day to the daughter of Videha (Janaka) Śrī Sītā, who resembled a divine damsel. In this way while both Śrī Sītā and Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghus) revelled for long, the auspicious winter season which always provides enjoyment came to an end. When the Couple had relished a variety of enjoyments, the advent of another* winter became an event of the past. (25-26)

पूर्वाह्णे धर्मकार्याणि कृत्वा धर्मेण धर्मवित्।
शेषं दिवसभागार्धमन्तःपुरगतोऽभवत् ॥ २७ ॥
सीतापि देवकार्याणि कृत्वा पौर्वाह्निकानि वै।
श्वश्रूणामकरोत् पूजां सर्वासामविशेषतः ॥ २८ ॥

Having performed the religious duties as enjoined by Virtue in the first half of the day, Śrī Rāma (the knower of Virtue) remained in the gynaeceum for the remaining half of the day. Śrī Sītā too, having performed all duties relating to gods, enjoined to be done in the forepart of the day, respectfully waited upon all the mothers-in-law without any distinction. (27-28)

अभ्यगच्छत् ततो रामं विचित्राभरणाम्बरा।
त्रिविष्टपे सहस्राक्षमुपविष्टं यथा शची ॥ २९ ॥

Afterwards, wearing multicoloured ornaments and garments, she would visit Śrī Rāma, even as Śacī did Indra (the thousand-eyed god) seated in heaven. (29)

दृष्ट्वा तु राघवः पत्नीं कल्याणेन समन्विताम्।
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे साधुसाध्विति चाब्रवीत् ॥ ३० ॥
अब्रवीच्च वरारोहां सीतां सुरसुतोपमाम्।
अपत्यलाभो वैदेहि त्वय्ययं समुपस्थितः ॥ ३१ ॥

On seeing His Consort bearing auspicious marks of pregnancy, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghus) became immeasurably

* Śrī Govindarāja in his commentary states that winter season is indication of one year end, thus two years were spent in enjoyment after coronation.

happy and exclaimed as follows: "Very fine! Very fine!!" and he said to Śrī Sītā of beautiful hips and resembling a heavenly damsel, "O Sītā, Princess of Videha, now the time of having a child has arrived. (30-31)

किमिच्छसि वरारोहे कामः किं क्रियतां तव ।
स्मितं कृत्वा तु वैदेही रामं वाक्यमथाब्रवीत् ॥ ३२ ॥
तपोवनानि पुण्यानि द्रष्टुमिच्छामि राघव ।
गङ्गातीरोपविष्टानामृषीणामुग्रतेजसाम् ॥ ३३ ॥
फलमूलाशिनां देव पादमूलेषु वर्तितुम् ।
एष मे परमः कामो यन्मूलफलभोजिनाम् ॥ ३४ ॥
अप्येकरात्रिं काकुत्स्थ निवसेयं तपोवने ।
तथेति च प्रतिज्ञातं रामेणाक्लिष्टकर्मणा ।
विस्त्रब्धा भव वैदेहि श्वो गमिष्यस्यसंशयम् ॥ ३५ ॥

"O lovely lady, which desire of yours should be fulfilled." Then, with a smile, Vaidehī replied to Śrī Rāma in the following words: "O Rāghava ! I wish to visit the holy penance-groves and to stay O Lord ! at the feet of sages, endowed with an overwhelming effulgence living on the banks of the Gaṅgā, and living only on fruits and edible roots. This is my greatest wish that I should stay even for one night in the penance-grove of those who live only on fruits and edible roots, O scion of Kakutstha!" "Be it so", thus it was promised by Śrī Rāma, who was unwearied in action. He further said, "O Vaidehī, rest assured, you will undoubtedly go tomorrow." (32—35)

एवमुक्त्वा तु काकुत्स्थो मैथिलीं जनकात्मजाम् ।
मध्यकक्षान्तरं रामो निर्जगाम सुहृद्वृतः ॥ ३६ ॥

Having addressed these words to the Princess of Mithilā, the daughter of King Janaka, Śrī Rāma, a scion of Kakutstha, surrounded by friends went inside the middle chamber. (36)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे द्विचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-two in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLIII

Bhadra apprises Śrī Rāma of the ugly remarks made by the citizens about Śrī Sītā

तत्रोपविष्टं राजानमुपासन्ते विचक्षणाः ।
कथानां बहुरूपाणां हास्यकाराः समन्ततः ॥ १ ॥

Wise and witty narrators used to sit around the king reciting various kinds of stories. (1)

विजयो मधुमत्तश्च काश्यपो मङ्गलः कुलः ।
सुराजिः कालियो भद्रो दन्तवक्त्रः सुमागधः ॥ २ ॥
एते कथा बहुविधाः परिहाससमन्विताः ।
कथयन्ति स्म संहृष्टा राघवस्य महात्मनः ॥ ३ ॥

Vijaya, Madhumatta, Kāśyapa, Maṅgala, Kula, Surāji, Kāliya, Bhadra, Dantavaktra and Sumāgadha used to narrate with great delight various kinds of humorous stories to the high-souled Rāma. (2-3)

ततः कथायां कस्यांचिद् राघवः समभाषत ।
काः कथा नगरे भद्र वर्तन्ते विषयेषु च ॥ ४ ॥

After sometime, during the course of the narration of a certain story, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) enquired: "Bhadra ! What are the talks of the town and the kingdom? (4)

मामाश्रितानि कान्याहुः पौरजानपदा जनाः ।
किं च सीतां समाश्रित्य भरतं किं च लक्ष्मणम् ॥ ५ ॥
किं नु शत्रुघ्नमुद्दिश्य कैकेयीं किं नु मातरम् ।
वक्तव्यतां च राजानो वने राज्ये व्रजन्ति च ॥ ६ ॥

“What are the people of the town and the country talking about me and about Sītā, Bharata and Lakṣmaṇa and what indeed about Śatrughna and mother Kaikeyī? Kings are criticized in the forests and in the kingdom.” (5-6)

एवमुक्ते तु रामेण भद्रः प्राञ्जलिरब्रवीत् ।
स्थिताः शुभाः कथा राजन् वर्तन्ते पुरवासिनाम् ॥ ७ ॥

On being thus questioned by Śrī Rāma, Bhadra with his palms joined together replied: “O King ! Elegant are the talks of the citizens.” (7)

अमुं तु विजयं सौम्य दशग्रीववधार्जितम् ।
भूयिष्ठं स्वपुरे पौरैः कथ्यन्ते पुरुषर्षभ ॥ ८ ॥

“O gentle one, the best of men ! It is indeed the conquest gained by killing Rāvaṇa (the ten-headed monster) which is being mainly talked about by the citizens in the town.” (8)

एवमुक्तस्तु भद्रेण राघवो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
कथयस्व यथातत्त्वं सर्वं निरवशेषतः ॥ ९ ॥
शुभाशुभानि वाक्यानि कान्याहुः पुरवासिनः ।
श्रुत्वेदानीं शुभं कुर्या न कुर्यामशुभानि च ॥ १० ॥

Having been thus replied to by Bhadra, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) spoke the following words: “Leaving nothing, tell me everything exactly as it is. What are the good and ill words that the citizens speak? Now after having heard, I shall practise what is good and refrain from evil actions.” (9-10)

कथयस्व च विस्त्रब्धो निर्भयं विगतज्वरः ।
कथयन्ति यथा पौराः पापा जनपदेषु च ॥ ११ ॥

“Tell me with confidence and without fear and mental anguish, what ill the people in the town and in the country are speaking about me?” (11)

राघवेणैवमुक्तस्तु भद्रः सुरुचिरं वचः ।
प्रत्युवाच महाबाहुं प्राञ्जलिः सुसमाहितः ॥ १२ ॥

On being thus spoken to by Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), Bhadra on his part with a composed mind and with palms joined together replied to the mighty-armed Śrī Rāma in these pleasing words! (12)

शृणु राजन् यथा पौराः कथयन्ति शुभाशुभम् ।
चत्वरापणरथ्यासु वनेषूपवनेषु च ॥ १३ ॥

“O King ! Listen how the citizens talk good and ill words about you at the crossroads, in the markets, on the streets, in the forests and in the groves.” (13)

दुष्करं कृतवान् रामः समुद्रे सेतुबन्धनम् ।
अश्रुतं पूर्वकैः कैश्चिद् देवैरपि सदानवैः ॥ १४ ॥

“By constructing a bridge across the sea, Śrī Rāma has performed a difficult feat, unheard of as having been accomplished by former kings and even by gods and demons.” (14)

रावणाश्च दुराधर्षो हतः सबलवाहनः ।
वानराश्च वशं नीता ऋक्षाश्च सह राक्षसैः ॥ १५ ॥

“Besides, Rāvaṇa, difficult to be vanquished, was killed alongwith his army and mounts. The Vānara and the Ṛkṣa alongwith the Rākṣasas were brought under control.” (15)

हत्वा च रावणं संख्ये सीतामाहृत्य राघवः ।
अमर्षं पृष्ठतः कृत्वा स्ववेश्म पुनरानयत् ॥ १६ ॥

“Having killed Rāvaṇa in battle and fetched Śrī Sītā, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) took her into His house again, renouncing anger or remorse (caused by the polluting touch of Rāvaṇa).” (16)

कीदृशं हृदये तस्य सीतासम्भोगजं सुखम् ।
अङ्गमारोप्य तु पुरा रावणेन बलाद्धृताम् ॥ १७ ॥
लङ्कामपि पुरा नीतामशोकवनितां गताम् ।
रक्षसां वशमापन्नां कथं रामो न कुत्स्यति ॥ १८ ॥
अस्माकमपि दारेषु सहनीयं भविष्यति ।
यथा हि कुरुते राजा प्रजास्तमनुवर्तते ॥ १९ ॥

“What must be the pleasure in his heart born out of conjugation with Śrī Sītā? Why does not Śrī Rāma censure her, who formerly had been forcibly carried away by Rāvaṇa, placing her in his lap and even taken to Laṅkā, first, who went into the Aśoka grove and remained under the control of the Rākṣasas. Such conduct of our wives shall have to be suffered by us also, since whatever a king does, the subjects follow.' (17—19)

एवं बहुविधा वाचो वदन्ति पुरवासिनः।
नगरेषु च सर्वेषु राजन् जनपदेषु च ॥ २० ॥

"Thus, O King, the citizens of all the towns and the countryside pass remarks in so many ways." (20)

तस्यैवं भाषितं श्रुत्वा राघवः परमार्तवत्।
उवाच सुहृदः सर्वान् कथमेतद् वदन्तु माम् ॥ २१ ॥

Having heard this statement of his, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) as if stricken with grief spoke to all the friends, "Tell me how it is." (21)

सर्वे तु शिरसा भूमावभिवाद्य प्रणम्य च।
प्रत्यूचू राघवं दीनमेवमेतन् संशयः ॥ २२ ॥

"Bending respectfully so low as to touch the ground by the head, and saluting, all of them—each a picture of pity—replied, on their part, to Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu), 'No doubt, this is so.'" (22)

श्रुत्वा तु वाक्यं काकुत्स्थः सर्वेषां समुदीरितम्।
विसर्जयामास तदा वयस्यान् शत्रुसूदनः ॥ २३ ॥

Having heard then the words spoken by all of them, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha), the exterminator of enemies dismissed the friends at that time. (23)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे त्रिचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-three in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुश्चत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLIV

On being sent for by Him all the brothers present themselves before Śrī Rāma

विसृज्य तु सुहृद्वर्गं बुद्ध्या निश्चित्य राघवः।
समीपे द्वाःस्थमासीनमिदं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Then, having sent away the group of friends and having made up His mind through intellect, Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) spoke these words to the door-keeper seated nearby: (1)

शीघ्रमानय सौमित्रिं लक्ष्मणं शुभलक्षणम्।
भरतं च महाभागं शत्रुघ्नमपराजितम् ॥ २ ॥

"Bring immediately Sumitrā's son, Lakṣmaṇa, endowed with auspicious marks, the highly illustrious Bharata and the unconquered Śatrughna." (2)

रामस्य वचनं श्रुत्वा द्वाःस्थो मूर्ध्नि कृताञ्जलिः।
लक्ष्मणस्य गृहं गत्वा प्रविवेशानिवारितः ॥ ३ ॥

Having heard Śrī Rāma's order the door-keeper placed his hands with palms joined together on the forehead (as a mark of respect) and having set forth to Lakṣmaṇa's residence entered the same unhindered. (3)

उवाच सुमहात्मानं वर्धयित्वा कृताञ्जलिः।
द्रष्टुमिच्छति राजा त्वां गम्यतां तत्र मा चिरम् ॥ ४ ॥

Wishing prosperity to the eminently high-souled Lakṣmaṇa and with his palms joined together he said, "The King desires to see you. Go there, do not delay." (4)

बाढमित्येव सौमित्रिः कृत्वा राघवशासनम्।
प्राद्रवद् रथमारुह्य राघवस्य निवेशनम् ॥ ५ ॥

"Very well !" Having said so and having received the command of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) Lakṣmaṇa (the son of Sumitrā) mounting a chariot drove speedily to the palace of Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu). (5) प्रयान्तं लक्ष्मणं दृष्ट्वा द्वाःस्थो भरतमन्तिकात् । उवाच भरतं तत्र वर्धयित्वा कृताञ्जलिः ॥ ६ ॥ विनयावनतो भूत्वा राजा त्वां द्रष्टुमिच्छति । भरतस्तु वचः श्रुत्वा द्वाःस्थाद् रामसमीरितम् ॥ ७ ॥ उत्पपातासनात् तूर्णं पदभ्यामेव महाबलः । दृष्ट्वा प्रयान्तं भरतं त्वरमाणः कृताञ्जलिः ॥ ८ ॥ शत्रुघ्नभवनं गत्वा ततो वाक्यमुवाच ह । एहागच्छ रघुश्रेष्ठ राजा त्वां द्रष्टुमिच्छति ॥ ९ ॥ गतो हि लक्ष्मणः पूर्वं भरतश्च महायशः । श्रुत्वा तु वचनं तस्य शत्रुघ्नः परमासनात् ॥ १० ॥ शिरसा बन्ध धरणीं प्रययौ यत्र राघवः । द्वाःस्थस्त्वागम्य रामाय सर्वानेव कृताञ्जलिः ॥ ११ ॥ निवेदयामास तथा भ्रातृन् स्वान् समुपस्थितान् । कुमारानागताञ्छ्रुत्वा चिन्ताव्याकुलितेन्द्रियः ॥ १२ ॥ अवाङ्मुखो दीनमना द्वाःस्थं वचनमब्रवीत् । प्रवेशय कुमारांस्त्वं मत्समीपं त्वरान्वितः ॥ १३ ॥

Having seen Lakṣmaṇa departing, the door-keeper went to Bharata and there having wished prosperity and having bowed down with humility with his palms joined together said to Bharata, "The King desires to see you." On hearing from the door-keeper the message sent by Śrī Rāma, the mighty Bharata sprang up from his seat and hurriedly left on foot. Then having beheld Bharata going away, the door-keeper moving speedily to the palace of Śatrughna, said with his palms joined together: "Come, come along, O best of the Raghus! The king desires to see you. Lakṣmaṇa has left earlier and the celebrated Bharata too." Now, hearing his words Śatrughna got down from his throne and paying obeisance to the earth with his head, reached where Śrī Rāma (a scion of Raghu) was. Then having come back, the door-keeper with his palms joined together informed Śrī Rāma that all His brothers were duly present, as ordered.

Having heard that the princes have come, Śrī Rāma, His senses agitated due to anxiety, His mind distressed and His face downcast gave the following command to the door-keeper: "Immediately, send in the princes to me. (6—13)

एतेषु जीवितं मह्यमेते प्राणाः प्रिया मम । आज्ञासास्तु नरेन्द्रेण कुमाराः शुक्लवाससः ॥ १४ ॥ प्रह्लाः प्राञ्जलयो भूत्वा विविशुस्ते समाहिताः । ते तु दृष्ट्वा मुखं तस्य सग्रहं शशिनं यथा ॥ १५ ॥ संध्यागतमिवादित्यं प्रभया परिवर्जितम् । बाष्पपूर्णं च नयने दृष्ट्वा रामस्य धीमतः । हतशोभं यथा पद्मं मुखं वीक्ष्य च तस्य ते ॥ १६ ॥ ततोऽभिवाद्य त्वरिताः पादौ रामस्य मूर्धभिः । तस्थुः समाहिताः सर्वे रामस्त्वश्रूण्यवर्तयत् ॥ १७ ॥

"My life rests on them. These dear ones constitute my very life-breath." Then ordered by the king, these princes of steady mind, clad in white entered, bowing down with their palms joined together. Having beheld His face like the eclipsed moon and like the evening sun shorn of brilliance, having also seen the sagacious Śrī Rāma's eyes full of tears and having glanced at His face looking like a withered lotus, they all hurriedly bowed down their head in salutation at the feet of Śrī Rāma and became transfixed attentively, while Śrī Rāma shed tears. (14—17)

तान् परिष्वज्य बाहुभ्यामुत्थाप्य च महाबलः । आसनेष्वासतेत्युक्त्वा ततो वाक्यं जगाद ह ॥ १८ ॥ भवन्तो मम सर्वस्वं भवन्तो जीवितं मम । भवद्भिश्च कृतं राज्यं पालयामि नरेश्वराः ॥ १९ ॥

Then having them embraced between his arms and lifting them up, asked them to take their seats, the mighty Śrī Rāma verily made the following statement: "O guardians of the people, you constitute all my possessions. You are my very life. I am simply looking after the kingdom carved out by you. (18-19)

भवन्तः कृतशास्त्रार्था बुद्ध्या च परिनिष्ठिताः । सम्भूय च मदर्थोऽयमन्वेष्टव्यो नरेश्वराः ॥ २० ॥

तथा वदति काकुत्स्थे अवधानपरायणाः ।
उद्विग्नमनसः सर्वे किं नु राजाभिधास्यति ॥ २१ ॥

“You have practised the teachings of the scriptures. You have a mature intellect.
This problem of mine deserves to be deliberated upon by you all together, O guardians of the people !” On being told thus by Śrī Rāma (a scion of Kakutstha) they all became attentive and mentally agitated to learn what the King would say.

(20-21)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे चतुश्चत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४४ ॥

*Thus ends Canto Forty-four in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki,
the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.*

पञ्चचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLV

Annoyed with the ill-report about Sītā, Śrī Rāma orders Lakṣmaṇa to take Sītā away in the forest and leave her in the vicinity of Vālmīki-Āśrama

तेषां समुपविष्टानां सर्वेषां दीनचेतसाम् ।
उवाच वाक्यं काकुत्स्थो मुखेन परिशुष्यता ॥ १ ॥

The scion of Kakutstha bearing an emaciated face, spoke thus to them (his brothers), who had taken their seats with dejected minds. (1)

सर्वे शृणुत भद्रं वो मा कुरुध्वं मनोऽन्यथा ।
पौराणां मम सीतायां यादृशी वर्तते कथा ॥ २ ॥

“Listen to me, all of you, may all be well with you, intend not to do otherwise as I narrate the tale that circulates among my citizens with regard to Sītā. (2)

पौरापवादः सुमहांस्तथा जनपदस्य च ।
वर्तते मयि बीभत्सा सा मे मर्माणि कृन्तति ॥ ३ ॥

“The ill-report that circulates among my fellow-citizens and countrymen is indeed of great significance. That calumny of mine verily eats up my vitals. (3)

अहं किल कुले जात इक्ष्वाकूणां महात्मनाम् ।
सीतापि सत्कुले जाता जनकानां महात्मनाम् ॥ ४ ॥

“I am born in the line of great IKṣwākus and Sītā too comes from the noble family of the high-souled Janakas. (4)

जानासि त्वं यथा सौम्य दण्डके विजने वने ।
रावणेन हता सीता स च विध्वंसितो मया ॥ ५ ॥

“You surely know, O good ones, how Sītā was taken away by Rāvaṇa from the lonely forest and how I vanquished him. (5)

तत्र मे बुद्धिरुत्पन्ना जनकस्य सुतां प्रति ।
अत्रोषितामिमां सीतामानयेयं कथं पुरीम् ॥ ६ ॥

“So, on that account it dawned on me then that I could on no account bring Sītā to this city, who had dwelt in Laṅkā with Rāvaṇa.
(6)

प्रत्ययार्थं ततः सीता विवेश ज्वलनं तदा ।
प्रत्यक्षं तव सौमित्रे देवानां हव्यवाहनः ॥ ७ ॥

“To convince me Sītā at that time entered the fire : before you, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā)! Fire-god, the bearer of oblations to gods, (7)

अपापां मैथिलीमाह वायुश्चाकाशगोचरः ।
चन्द्रादित्यौ च शंसेते सुराणां संनिधौ पुरा ॥ ८ ॥

ऋषीणां चैव सर्वेषामपापां जनकात्मजाम् ।
एवं शुद्धसमाचारा देवगन्धर्वसंनिधौ ॥ ९ ॥

लङ्काद्वीपे महेन्द्रेण मम हस्ते निवेशिता ।
अन्तरात्मा च मे वेत्ति सीतां शुद्धां यशस्विनीम् ॥ १० ॥

“declared that Sītā was free from sins, so also Vāyu, who dwells in the sky, so also proclaimed the two—sun and moon before the gods, Sītā free from sins before all the R̥ṣis. In Laṅkā Sītā, Pure of conduct, has been handed over to me by Mahendra (the lord of gods), in the presence of the gods and the Gandharvas and my inner conscience bears testimony to her purity and nobility. (8—10)

ततो गृहीत्वा वैदेहीमयोध्यामहमागतः ।
अयं तु मे महान् वादः शोकश्च हृदि वर्तते ॥ ११ ॥
पौरापवादः सुमहांस्तथा जनपदस्य च ।
अकीर्तिर्यस्य गीयेत लोके भूतस्य कस्यचित् ॥ १२ ॥

“Then having accepted Sītā, I have come to Ayodhyā, but (this is) now the people censure me, and it pains my heart. The censure is indeed great as it circulates among the citizens and the countrymen. After all the person whose infamy is a subject of common talk in the public, (11-12)

पतत्येवाधमाल्लोकान् यावच्छब्दः प्रकीर्त्यते ।
अकीर्तिर्निन्द्यते देवैः कीर्तिलोकेषु पूज्यते ॥ १३ ॥

“as long as the word of infamy circulates, so long one does fall in the lower regions (hell). Infamy is abhorred even by the gods and fame gains credence in the world. (13)

कीर्त्यर्थं तु समारम्भः सर्वेषां सुमहात्मनाम् ।
अप्यहं जीवितं जह्यां युष्मान् वा पुरुषर्षभाः ॥ १४ ॥
अपवादभयाद् भीतः किं पुनर्जनकात्मजाम् ।
तस्माद् भवन्तः पश्यन्तु पतितं शोकसागरे ॥ १५ ॥

“Indeed, all great souls endeavour for fame, O heroes among men, afraid of ill-report, I can even give up my life or all of you together, O bull among men; how much it is incumbent to leave Sītā. All of you see me submerged in the ocean of sorrow. (14-15)

नहि पश्याम्यहं भूतं किञ्चिद् दुःखमतोऽधिकम् ।
श्वस्त्वं प्रभाते सौमित्रे सुमन्त्राधिष्ठितं रथम् ॥ १६ ॥
आरुह्य सीतामारोप्य विषयान्ते समुत्सृज ।
गङ्गायास्तु परे पारे वाल्मीकेस्तु महात्मनः ॥ १७ ॥
आश्रमो दिव्यसंकाशस्तमसातीरमाश्रितः ।
तत्रैतां विजने देशे विसृज्य रघुनन्दन ॥ १८ ॥

शीघ्रमागच्छ सौमित्रे कुरुष्व वचनं मम ।
न चास्मि प्रतिवक्तव्यः सीतां प्रति कथंचन ॥ १९ ॥

“I do not see any greater misfortune than this, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) ascending the chariot driven by Sumantra, and made sitting Sītā therein leave her beyond the confines of the kingdom. On the other side of the Gaṅgā, the hermitage of the great sage Vālmīki, which looks like celestial abode on the river Tamasā. There in that hermitage, O Lakṣmaṇa, (a scion of Raghu) leaving her (Sītā), come here soon. Do what I say, and remember: I am not to be told with regard to leaving Sītā. (16—19)

तस्मात् त्वं गच्छ सौमित्रे नात्र कार्या विचारणा ।
अप्रीतिर्हि परा मह्यं त्वयैतत् प्रतिवारिते ॥ २० ॥
शापिता हि मया यूयं पादाभ्यां जीवितेन च ।
ये मां वाक्यान्तरे ब्रूयुरनुनेतुं कथंचन ॥ २१ ॥
अहिता नाम ते नित्यं मदभीष्टविघातनात् ।
मानयन्तु भवन्तो मां यदि मच्छासने स्थिताः ॥ २२ ॥
इतोऽद्य नीयतां सीतां कुरुष्व वचनं मम ।
पूर्वमुक्तोऽहमनया गङ्गातीरेऽहमाश्रमान् ॥ २३ ॥
पश्येयमिति तस्याश्च कामः संवर्त्यतामयम् ।
एवमुक्त्वा तु काकुत्स्थो बाष्पेण पिहितेक्षणः ॥ २४ ॥
संविवेश स धर्मात्मा भ्रातृभिः परिवारितः ।
शोकसंविग्रहद्वयो निशश्वास यथा द्विपः ॥ २५ ॥

“Therefore, O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), go soon and carry out my behest. Any resistance on your part will cause me extreme displeasure. I swear to you by my feet and also my life that whosoever speaks out to pacify me in any manner while I speak, shall always be inimical to me as he will shatter all that I desire. If you are prone to be at my command, then show respect to me, take away Sītā from here, this very day, do what I say, ‘I wish to behold the hermitage on the bank of the Gaṅgā’, thus she had told me formerly, now fulfil this desire of her. Thus saying the descendant of Kakutstha, Śrī Rāma, the noble one with

His eyes closed, taking leave of His brothers entered His own apartment with his heart agitated by sorrow, deeply sighed as an elephant. (20—25)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे पञ्चचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-fifth in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षट्चत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto LVI

Lakṣmaṇa proceeds to the forest, alongwith Sītā in order to leave her in the vicinity of Vālmiki's Āśrama and reaches on the bank of Gaṅgā

ततो रजन्यां व्युष्टायां लक्ष्मणो दीनचेतनः ।
सुमन्त्रमब्रवीद् वाक्यं मुखेन परिशुष्यता ॥ १ ॥

Then as the night passed away, Lakṣmaṇa agitated in mind and bearing an emaciated face spoke thus to Sumantra: (1)

सारथे तुरगान् शीघ्रान् योजयस्व रथोत्तमे ।
स्वास्तीर्णं राजवचनात् सीतायाश्चासनं शुभम् ॥ २ ॥

'O Charioteer, yoke the speedy horses to the best chariot and equip it with the splendid seat for Sītā, as ordered by the King. (2)

सीता हि राजवचनादाश्रमं पुण्यकर्मणाम् ।
मया नेया महर्षीणां शीघ्रमानीयतां रथः ॥ ३ ॥

'Sītā has to be taken to the hermitage of the pious sages at the command of the king; please do not delay in bringing the chariot.' (3)

सुमन्त्रस्तु तथेत्युक्त्वा युक्तं परमवाजिभिः ।
रथं सुरुचिरप्रख्यं स्वास्तीर्णं सुखशय्यया ॥ ४ ॥
आनीयोवाच सौमित्रिं मित्राणां मानवर्धनम् ।
रथोऽयं समनुप्राप्तो यत्कार्यं क्रियतां प्रभो ॥ ५ ॥

"It shall be as you say !", replying thus Sumantra, after having brought the chariot yoked with the best horses, beautifully shaped and well-equipped with comfortable seats, spoke thus again to lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), the giver of greater honour to his friends: 'The chariot is ready, O Lord, kindly do the needful.' (4-5)

एवमुक्तः सुमन्त्रेण राजवेश्मनि लक्ष्मणः ।
प्रविश्य सीतामासाद्य व्याजहार नरर्षभः ॥ ६ ॥
त्वया किलैष नृपतिर्वरं वै याचितः प्रभुः ।
नृपेण च प्रतिज्ञातमाज्ञसश्चाश्रमं प्रति ॥ ७ ॥

Thus spoken to by Sumantra, Lakṣmaṇa, the foremost of men, after having entered in the palace approached Sītā and said to her: "By you, O lady, the king (our Lord Śrī Rāma) was enquired with regard to seeing the hermitages. The king has approved and ordered me to take you to the hermitages. (6-7)

गङ्गातीरे मया देवि ऋषीणामाश्रमान् शुभान् ।
शीघ्रं गत्वा तु वैदेहि शासनात् पार्थिवस्य नः ॥ ८ ॥
अरण्ये मुनिभिर्जुष्टे अपनेया भविष्यसि ।
एवमुक्ता तु वैदेही लक्ष्मणेन महात्मना ॥ ९ ॥
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे गमनं चाप्यरोचयत् ।
वासांसि च महार्हाणि रत्नानि विविधानि च ॥ १० ॥
गृहीत्वा तानि वैदेही गमनायोपचक्रमे ।
इमानि मुनिपत्नीनां दास्याम्याभरणान्यहम् ॥ ११ ॥
वस्त्राणि च महार्हाणि धनानि विविधानि च ।
सौमित्रिस्तु तथेत्युक्त्वा रथमारोप्य मैथिलीम् ॥ १२ ॥
प्रययौ शीघ्रतुरगं रामस्याज्ञामनुस्मरन् ।
अब्रवीच्च तदा सीता लक्ष्मणं लक्ष्मिवर्धनम् ॥ १३ ॥
अशुभानि बहून्येव पश्यामि रघुनन्दन ।
नयनं मे स्फुरत्यद्य गात्रोत्कम्पश्च जायते ॥ १४ ॥

हृदयं चैव सौमित्रे अस्वस्थमिव लक्ष्ये।
औत्सुक्यं परमं चापि अधृतिश्च परा मम॥ १५॥

“O Lady, Sītā, the daughter of the king of Videha, you shall be taken to the holy hermitages of the Ṛsis and placed in the forest inhabited by the ascetics, in all haste at the bidding of our Lord.” Thus addressed by the noble Lakṣmaṇa, Sītā (the daughter of the king of Videha) was highly pleased and agreed to depart, Sītā (the daughter of the king of Videha) taking with her those costly garments and gems, said “I shall distribute these garments and costly gems of various types to the spouses of the ascetics.” Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) fully approved of her desire and having seated Sītā (the daughter of the king of Mithilā) in the chariot, keeping in mind the order of Śrī Rāma drove on with speedy horses. Then Sītā addressed to Lakṣmaṇa, the enhancer of prosperity thus :

“O Lakṣmaṇa (the descendant of Raghu). I see ill-omens in abundance, my right eye throbs and my limbs shiver: O Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā), my heart seems to be distressed, great anxiety (regarding the city or Śrī Rāma) ails me and my forbearance fails completely. (8—15).

शून्यामेव च पश्यामि पृथिवीं पृथुलोचन।
अपि स्वस्ति भवेत् तस्य भ्रातुस्ते भ्रातृवत्सल॥ १६॥
श्वश्रूणां चैव मे वीर सर्वासामविशेषतः।
पुरे जनपदे चैव कुशलं प्राणिनामपि॥ १७॥

“O the big-eyed and lover of brothers Lakṣmaṇa, the earth seems a void (deprived of all happiness), may all be well with your brother; and welfare be with all my mothers-in-law too in equal measure and so be it with all beings in the town and country.” (16-17)

इत्यञ्जलिकृता सीता देवता अभ्ययाचत।
लक्ष्मणोऽर्थं ततः श्रुत्वा शिरसा वन्द्य मैथिलीम्॥ १८॥
शिवमित्यब्रवीद्दृष्टो हृदयेन विशुष्यता।
ततो वासमुपागम्य गोमतीतीर आश्रमे॥ १९॥

प्रभाते पुनरुत्थाय सौमित्रिः सूतमब्रवीत्।
योजयस्व रथं शीघ्रमद्य भागीरथीजलम्॥ २०॥
शिरसा धारयिष्यामि त्रियम्बक इवौजसा।
सोऽश्वान् विचारयित्वा तु रथे युक्तान् मनोजवान्॥ २१॥
आरोहस्वेति वैदेहीं सूतः प्राञ्जलिरब्रवीत्।
सा तु सूतस्य वचनादारुरोह रथोत्तमम्॥ २२॥
सीता सौमित्रिणा सार्धं सुमन्त्रेण च धीमता।
आससाद विशालाक्षी गङ्गां पापविनाशिनीम्॥ २३॥

Thus Sītā prayed to the gods with folded hands; Lakṣmaṇa then hearing this and paying homage to Sītā (the daughter of the Lord of the Mithilā), with his head bending and with a lingering heart said: “All is well” as if he was pleased (to say so), Having approached the residence in the Āśrama on the banks of the Gomatī, he slept and at the break of dawn, Lakṣmaṇa (the son of Sumitrā), waking up again addressed the Charioteer thus: “You yoke the chariot soon, I shall bear the waters of Gaṅgā on my head as the Lord Śiva (the three-eyed god) with prowess.” The Charioteer having made the horses yoked to the chariot who had a speed equal to that of the mind, with folded hands asked Sītā (the daughter of the Lord of Mithilā) to ascend the chariot and she ascended the beautiful chariot as requested. Sītā of larger eyes together with Lakṣmaṇa (son of Sumitrā) and the wise Sumantra reached the Gaṅgā, the dispeller of all sins. (18—23)

अथार्धदिवसे गत्वा भागीरथ्या जलाशयम्।
निरीक्ष्य लक्ष्मणो दीनः प्ररुरोद महास्वनः॥ २४॥

After spending half a day (on reaching Gaṅgā) and looking at the streams of Bhāgīrathī the agitated Lakṣmaṇa cried making a loud noise. (24)

सीता तु परमायत्ता दृष्ट्वा लक्ष्मणमातुरम्।
उवाच वाक्यं धर्मज्ञा किमिदं रुद्यते त्वया॥ २५॥
जाह्नवीतीरमासाद्य चिराभिलषितं मम।
हर्षकाले किमर्थं मां विषादयसि लक्ष्मण॥ २६॥

The well composed Sītā knower of good conduct seeing Lakṣmaṇa so agitated uttered thus: “Why do you cry, having come to the banks of Gaṅgā (the daughter of Jahnu) where to come was only desire felt since long, (surely) at this hour of joy; O Lakṣmaṇa, do not make me depressed. (25-26)

नित्यं त्वं रामपाश्वेषु वर्तसे पुरुषर्षभ।
कच्चिद् विनाकृतस्तेन द्विरात्रं शोकमागतः ॥ २७ ॥

“You remain always at the side of Rāma, O best of men; is it that separated as you are from him for just two nights, you are grieved. (27)

ममापि दयितो रामो जीवितादपि लक्ष्मण।
न चाहमेवं शोचामि मैवं त्वं बालिशो भव ॥ २८ ॥

“Śrī Rāma for me too, is dearer even than my life, but no sorrow comes to me, so please act not as a foolish one. (28)

तारयस्व च मां गङ्गां दर्शयस्व च तापसान्।
ततो मुनिभ्यो वासांसि दास्याम्याभरणानि च ॥ २९ ॥
ततः कृत्वा महर्षीणां यथार्हमभिवादनम्।
तत्र चैकां निशामुष्य यास्यामस्तां पुरीं पुनः ॥ ३० ॥

“Take me across the Gaṅgā, and show me the ascetics. I shall give to the ascetics the garments and the ornaments and then having thus done homage to the great Ṛṣi according to their position, and spending only a night there, we shall again return to Ayodhyā. (29-30),

ममापि पद्मपत्राक्षं सिंहोरस्कं कृशोदरम्।
त्वरते हि मनो द्रष्टुं रामं रमयतां वरम् ॥ ३१ ॥

“My heart too, urges me on to see that one of lotus-eyed, the lion breasted one, with a slender waist, the best of those that please all” (31)

तस्यास्तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा प्रमृज्य नयने शुभे।
नाविकानाह्वयामास लक्ष्मणः परवीरहा।
इयं स सज्जा नौश्चेति दाशाः प्राञ्जलयोऽब्रुवन् ॥ ३२ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa, the destroyer of the heroes among foes, hearing these words of her, he wiped his eyes dry summoned the boatmen. The ferry-men with folded hands replied thus: “This boat is already made to depart” (32).

तितीर्षुर्लक्ष्मणो गङ्गां शुभां नावमुपारुहत्।
गङ्गां संतारयामास लक्ष्मणस्तां समाहितः ॥ ३३ ॥

Desiring to cross the holy Gaṅgā, Lakṣmaṇa ascended the boat, and fully composed, he made her cross the Gaṅgā. (33)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे षट्चत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-six in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLVII

Carrying Sītā across the Gaṅgā, Lakṣmaṇa laments agony and talks with a heavy heart thinking of her future

अथ नावं सुविस्तीर्णा नैषादीं राघवानुजः।
आरुरोह समायुक्तां पूर्वमारोष्य मैथिलीम् ॥ १ ॥

Then Lakṣmaṇa (the younger brother of Rāma) ascended the boat brought by Niṣāda, which was spacious and well-furnished, seating Sītā (the princess of Mithilā) first. (1)

सुमन्त्रं चैव सरथं स्थीयतामिति लक्ष्मणः।
उवाच शोकसंतप्तः प्रयाहीति च नाविकम् ॥ २ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa struck with grief ordered

Sumantra to stay with the chariot on the other banks of the Gaṅgā and told the ferryman to steer the boat. (2)

ततस्तीरमुपागम्य भागीरथ्याः स लक्ष्मणः ।
उवाच मैथिलीं वाक्यं प्राञ्जलिर्बाष्पसंवृतः ॥ ३ ॥

Then on reaching the other bank of the Gaṅgā, Lakṣmaṇa with folded hands and face covered with tears, uttered the following words: (3)

हृदतं मे महच्छल्यं यस्मादार्येण धीमता ।
अस्मिन्निमित्ते वैदेहि लोकस्य वचनीकृतः ॥ ४ ॥

“My heart is pierced by a mighty dart as I have been entrusted to carry this task (so cruel) and (made) worthy of censure (by people). (4)

श्रेयो हि मरणं मेऽद्य मृत्युर्वा यत्परं भवेत् ।
न चास्मिन्नीदृशे कार्ये नियोज्यो लोकनिन्दिते ॥ ५ ॥

“A death like torture or even death would have been preferred by me. But I should not have been employed in such a task deserving popular condemnation. (5)

प्रसीद च न मे पापं कर्तुमर्हसि शोभने ।
इत्यञ्जलिकृतो भूमौ निपपात स लक्ष्मणः ॥ ६ ॥

“I beg of you, do not consider this as my fault, O auspicious one.” Saying these words with folded hands Lakṣmaṇa fell on the ground before Sītā. (6)

रुदन्तं प्राञ्जलिं दृष्ट्वा काङ्क्षन्तं मृत्युमात्मनः ।
मैथिली भृशसंविग्रा लक्ष्मणं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ७ ॥
किमिदं नावगच्छामि ब्रूहि तत्त्वेन लक्ष्मण ।
पश्यामि त्वां न च स्वस्थमपि क्षेमं महीपतेः ॥ ८ ॥
शापितोऽसि नरेन्द्रेण यत् त्वं संतापमागतः ।
तद् ब्रूयाः संनिधौ मह्यमहमाज्ञापयामि ते ॥ ९ ॥

Seeing Lakṣmaṇa crying with folded hands and wishing for his death, the daughter of the lord of Mithilā (Sītā) deeply perturbed said to Lakṣmaṇa: “I do not know what this is, speak out the truth. It seems you are not well, nor is the king, Śrī Rāma, happy. You are indeed sworn by the king as you seem to be in agony, so narrate the fact before me, this is my command.” (7—9)

वैदेह्या चोद्यमानस्तु लक्ष्मणो दीनचेतनः ।
अवाङ्मुखो बाष्पगलो वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ १० ॥

Urged by Sītā (the daughter of the Lord of Videha,) Lakṣmaṇa on his part, with an agitated mind, and face downward with tears choking his throat spoke out (against his wish). (10)

श्रुत्वा परिषदो मध्ये ह्यपवादं सुदारुणम् ।
पुरे जनपदे चैव त्वत्कृते जनकात्मजे ॥ ११ ॥
रामः संतप्तहृदयो मां निवेद्य गृहं गतः ।
न तानि वचनीयानि मया देवि तवाग्रतः ॥ १२ ॥

“O daughter of Janaka (Sītā), hearing the most painful ill-report circulating among the citizens and countrymen, in the presence of the courtiers, Śrī Rāma struck with grief, conveying to me the report, entered the inner apartment. The shameful words that pierced the heart of the king in anger are not indeed to be uttered before you, and hence I refrain from uttering them. (11—12)

यानि राज्ञा हृदि न्यस्तान्यमर्षात्पृष्ठतः कृतः ।
सा त्वं त्यक्ता नृपतिना निर्दोषा मम संनिधौ ॥ १३ ॥
पौरापवादभीतेन ग्राह्यं देवि न तेऽन्यथा ।
आश्रमान्तेषु च मया त्यक्तव्या त्वं भविष्यसि ॥ १४ ॥
राज्ञः शासनमादाय तथैव किल दौर्हृदम् ।
तदेतज्जाह्नवीतीरे ब्रह्मर्षीणां तपोवनम् ॥ १५ ॥
पुण्यं च रमणीयं च मा विषादं कृथाः शुभे ।
राज्ञो दशरथस्यैव पितुर्मे मुनिपुङ्गवः ॥ १६ ॥
सखा परमको विप्रो वाल्मीकिः सुमहायशाः ।
पादच्छायामुपागम्य सुखमस्य महात्मनः ।
उपवासपरैकाग्रा वस त्वं जनकात्मजे ॥ १७ ॥
पतिव्रतात्वमास्थाय रामं कृत्वा सदा हृदि ।
श्रेयस्ते परमं देवि तथा कृत्वा भविष्यति ॥ १८ ॥

“You have been forsaken by the king afraid of the ill-report circulating among the citizens, although you were proved to be free from blamishes by the gods even in my presence; you should not take it otherwise. You are to be left near the hermitage by me. Bearing in mind the orders of the king and the desire of the pregnant woman (that has to be fulfilled). Do not be dejected, here is that beautiful and holy penance-grove of the Brahmarṣis, (where dwells) the famous Brahmarṣi Vālmiki, who was a close friend of my father, king Daśaratha and is the foremost among ascetics, approaching him for shelter, do dwell observing fasts and attached to Rāma. Keeping your loyalty to your husband and placing Śrī Rāma in your heart forever, O Lady, in this manner your greater welfare shall be achieved.” (13—18)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे सप्तचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-seven in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टचत्वारिंशः सर्गः

Canto XLVIII

Sītā's plaintive utterance, Her message to Śrī Rāma,
Lakṣmaṇa's departure and the wail of Sītā

लक्ष्मणस्य वचः श्रुत्वा दारुणं जनकात्मजा ।
परं विषादमागम्य वैदेही निपपात ह ॥ १ ॥

Sītā (the daughter of the lord of Videhas) hearing the dreadful words of Lakṣmaṇa fell on the ground in utter despondency. (1)

सा मुहूर्तमिवासंज्ञा बाष्पपर्याकुलेक्षणा ।
लक्ष्मणं दीनया वाचा उवाच जनकात्मजा ॥ २ ॥

That daughter of Janaka, Sītā, swooned away as if for a moment and then with tears filled in her eyes, spoke these miserable words to Lakṣmaṇa. (2)

मामिकेयं तनुनूनं सृष्टा दुःखाय लक्ष्मण ।
धात्रा यस्यास्तथा मेऽद्य दुःखमूर्तिः प्रदृश्यते ॥ ३ ॥

“This mortal frame of mine was indeed created by the creator for sorrow, O Lakṣmaṇa, and hence seems today the very embodiment of sorrow. (3)

किं नु पापं कृतं पूर्वं को वा दारैर्वियोजितः ।
याहं शुद्धसमाचारा त्यक्ता नृपतिना सती ॥ ४ ॥

“What sin was committed by me, who indeed was separated from his spouse, that I should be forsaken by the king, although of good conduct. (4)

पुराहमाश्रमे वासं रामपादानुवर्तिनी ।
अनुरुध्यापि सौमित्रे दुःखे च परिवर्तिनी ॥ ५ ॥

सा कथं ह्याश्रमे सौम्य वत्स्यामि विजनीकृता ।
आख्यास्यामि च कस्याहं दुःखं दुःखपरायणा ॥ ६ ॥

किं नु वक्ष्यामि मुनिषु कर्म चासत्कृतं प्रभो ।
कस्मिन् वा कारणे त्यक्ता राघवेण महात्मना ॥ ७ ॥

“Formerly, following the foot-steps of Rāma, I have even requested Rāma for residence in the hermitages, although I was in misery. Now then how can I live in the hermitage all alone : O Lord, what shall I say; when enquired by the ascetics, about my misdoings, or about what caused the great scion of the Raghu to forsake me. (5—7)

न खल्वद्यैव सौमित्रे जीवितं जाह्नवीजले ।
त्यजेयं राजवंशस्तु भर्तुर्मे परिहास्यते ॥ ८ ॥

“I cannot give up my life (drowning myself) in the waters of the daughter of Jahnu (Gaṅgā) for by that the royal family of my husband will be broken (in succession for the descendant to be born will perish). (8)

यथाज्ञं कुरु सौमित्रे त्यज्य मां दुःखभागिनीम् ।
निदेशे स्थीयतां राज्ञः शृणु चेदं वचो मम ॥ ९ ॥

“O son of Sumitrā, do as you are ordered to do, forsake me, the miserable one, obey the orders of the king, but listen to what I say now: (9)

श्वश्रूणामविशेषेण प्राञ्जलिप्रग्रहेण च।
शिरसा वन्द्य चरणौ कुशलं ब्रूहि पार्थिवम्॥ १० ॥

“Ask after the welfare of the mothers-in-law, without discrimination and also of the king with folded hands and courteously. (10)

शिरसाभिनतो ब्रूयाः सर्वासामेव लक्ष्मण।
वक्तव्यश्चापि नृपतिर्धर्मेषु सुसमाहितः॥ ११ ॥

“Speak to all of them O Lakṣmaṇa, with your head bent downwards and indeed communicate this to the king, who is so well-placed in righteousness. (11)

जानासि च यथा शुद्धा सीता तत्त्वेन राघव।
भक्त्या च परया युक्ता हिता च तव नित्यशः॥ १२ ॥

‘O scion of the Raghu, you know full well, how, in fact, Sītā is pure and full of devotion and always concerned about your welfare. (12)

अहं त्यक्ता च ते वीर अयशोभीरुणा जने।
यच्च ते वचनीयं स्यादपवादः समुत्थितः॥ १३ ॥
मया च परिहर्तव्यं त्वं हि मे परमा गतिः।
वक्तव्यश्चैव नृपतिर्धर्मेषु सुसमाहितः॥ १४ ॥

‘By you, afraid of infamy, am I forsaken, O powerful one. That censure of yours and the curse that befalls you, shall indeed be averted by me, as you are my only resort.’
“The following should be communicated to the king embeded in righteousness. (13–14)

यथा भ्रातृषु वर्तेशास्तथा पौरैषु नित्यदा।
परमो ह्येष धर्मस्ते तस्मात् कीर्तिरनुत्तमा॥ १५ ॥

“‘Treat citizens like your brothers always. This is the greatest Dharma. It will provide you the unparalleled fame. (15)

यत्तु पौरजने राजन् धर्मेण समवाप्नुयात्।
अहं तु नानुशोचामि स्वशरीरं नरर्षभ॥ १६ ॥

“‘What can you achieve through the impartial and rightful treatment to the citizens will be the best fruit for you. I am not bothered about my body, O best among men. (16)

यथापवादं पौराणां तथैव रघुनन्दन।
पतिर्हि देवता नार्याः पतिर्बन्धुः पतिर्गुरुः॥ १७ ॥

“‘Just as it was necessary for you to rectify the public censure, in the same way wives also have some duties; husband is everything to a wife—a god, the family, the preceptor. (17)

प्राणैरपि प्रियं तस्माद् भर्तुः कार्यं विशेषतः।
इति मद्वचनाद् रामो वक्तव्यो मम संग्रहः॥ १८ ॥
निरीक्ष्य माद्य गच्छ त्वमृतुकालातिवर्तिनीम्।
एवं ब्रुवन्त्यां सीतायां लक्ष्मणो दीनचेतनः॥ १९ ॥
शिरसा वन्द्य धरणीं व्याहर्तुं न शशाक ह।
प्रदक्षिणं च तां कृत्वा रुदन्नेव महास्वनः॥ २० ॥
ध्यात्वा मुहूर्तं तामाह किं मां वक्ष्यसि शोभने।
दृष्टपूर्वं न ते रूपं पादौ दृष्टौ तवानघे॥ २१ ॥
कथमत्र हि पश्यामि रामेण रहितां वने।
इत्युक्त्वा तां नमस्कृत्य पुनर्नावमुषारुहत्॥ २२ ॥
आरुरोह पुनर्नावं नाविकं चाभ्यचोदयत्।
स गत्वा चोत्तरं तीरं शोकभारसमन्वितः॥ २३ ॥
सम्पूढ इव दुःखेन रथमध्यारुहद् द्रुतम्।
मुहुर्मुहुः परावृत्य दृष्ट्वा सीतामनाथवत्॥ २४ ॥

“‘Therefore, a wife has to propitiate her husband even at the cost of her life.’ All this you must tell briefly what I have said. You have seen with your own eyes that I am in the family way.”

The dejected, Lakṣmaṇa on hearing Sītā having said so paid homage to the earth by his head and failed to speak, and going round her, loudly crying, contemplated for a moment, (and with great effort) addressed her thus : “O auspicious one, O faultless one, your body is not seen by me, as your feet alone were the object of my vision till now. Oh how shall I behold you, separated from Rāma, dwelling in this forest.” Thus saying to her and bowing to her, Lakṣmaṇa, approached and ascended the boat and urged the ferryman to steer the boat, then having reached the Northern banks, burdened by the weight of sorrow, went up the chariot in haste, bewildered as he was, and looking with his back turned at Sītā langouring on the other banks; as if she was an orphan, Lakṣmaṇa speeded on. (18—24)

चेष्टन्तीं परतीरस्थां लक्ष्मणः प्रययावथ ।
दूरस्थं रथमालोक्य लक्ष्मणं च मुहुर्मुहुः ।
निरीक्ष्यमाणां तूद्विग्रां सीतां शोकः समाविशत् ॥ २५ ॥
सा दुःखभारावनता यशस्विनी
यशोधरा नाथमपश्यती सती ।

रुरोद सा बर्हिणनादिते वने

महास्वनं दुःखपरायणा सती ॥ २६ ॥

Sorrow, however, overpowered her who saw the chariot going away, and tried to catch a glimpse of Lakṣmaṇa again and again, and was perturbed. Buried in grief the noble one, not seeing any protector she cried in the forest, resounded by the sound of peacocks. (25-26)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डेऽष्टचत्वारिंशः सर्गः ॥ ४८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-eight in Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto XLIX

Hearing Sītā's crying, from young ascetics sage Vālmīki approaches her and carries her to his hermitage

सीतां तु रुदतीं दृष्ट्वा ते तत्र मुनिदारकाः ।
प्राद्रवन् यत्र भगवानास्ते वाल्मीकिरुग्रधीः ॥ १ ॥

The young sons of the ascetics there (in the hermitage of Vālmīki), beholding Sītā sobbing, ran out to where the blessed Vālmīki of great wisdom was. (1)

अभिवाद्य मुनेः पादौ मुनिपुत्रा महर्षये ।
सर्वे निवेदयामासुस्तस्यास्तु रुदितस्वनम् ॥ २ ॥

Saluting the great ascetic (Vālmīki) by touching his feet, they informed as they had heard the sound of Sītā crying. (2)

अदृष्टपूर्वा भगवन् कस्याप्येषा महात्मनः ।
पत्नी श्रीरिव सम्मोहाद् विरौति विकृतानना ॥ ३ ॥
भगवन् साधु पश्येस्त्वं देवतामिव खाच्च्युताम् ।
नद्यास्तु तीरे भगवन् वरस्त्री कापि दुःखिता ॥ ४ ॥
दृष्टास्माभिः प्ररुदिता दृढं शोकपरायणा ।
अनर्हा दुःखशोकाभ्यामेका दीना अनाथवत् ॥ ५ ॥
न ह्येनां मानुषीं विद्मः सत्क्रियास्याः प्रयुज्यताम् ।
आश्रमस्याविदूरे च त्वामियं शरणं गता ॥ ६ ॥
त्रातारमिच्छते साध्वी भगवंस्त्रातुमर्हसि ।
तेषां तु वचनं श्रुत्वा बुद्ध्या निश्चित्य धर्मवित् ॥ ७ ॥

तपसा लब्धचक्षुष्मान् प्राद्रवद् यत्र मैथिली ।
तं प्रयान्तमभिप्रेत्य शिष्या ह्येनं महामतिम् ॥ ८ ॥
तं तु देशमभिप्रेत्य किञ्चित् पद्भ्यां महामतिः ।
अर्घ्यमादाय रुचिरं जाह्नवीतीरमागमत् ।
ददर्श राघवस्येष्टां सीतां पत्नीमनाथवत् ॥ ९ ॥

“A noble lady, never seen by us before, spouse of some noble one, resembling to the Goddess of wealth (Śrī), cries loudly with distorted face in despair near the banks of the river, she is grieved. We saw her crying, overwhelmed by sorrow as she is. She does not deserve so much suffering sire, nor she should remain like an orphan. We do not feel that she may be from humans. Please sir, solace her in a befitting manner. She is not far from the Āśrama seeking refuge from you, she is in need of a guardian; behoves you to protect her.”

Hearing their words, Vālmīki the foremost of the sages, knowing already everything by virtue of asceticism stepped rapidly towards her and reached where Sītā, the daughter of the king Janaka was sobbing and as he strode forward, the disciples of the great wise sage followed him. Walking barefooted and carrying Arghya in his hands, the sage Vālmiki reached the shore of the Gaṅgā and beheld Sītā, the consort of Śrī Rāma, lamenting there helplessly. (3—9)

तां सीतां शोकभारार्ता वाल्मीकिर्मुनिपुङ्गवः ।

उवाच मधुरां वाणीं ह्लादयन्निव तेजसा ॥ १० ॥

Vālmiki, the foremost of the ascetics, spoke these sweet words to Sītā, pained by sorrow, delighting her as if with his powerful effulgence. (10)

स्नुषा दशरथस्य त्वं रामस्य महिषी प्रिया ।

जनकस्य सुता राज्ञः स्वागतं ते पतिव्रते ॥ ११ ॥

“You are the daughter-in-law of Daśaratha and the beloved queen of Rāma and also the daughter of the king Janaka. Welcome to you, O chaste lady! (11)

आयान्ती चासि विज्ञाता मया धर्मसमाधिना ।

कारणं चैव सर्वं मे हृदयेनोपलक्षितम् ॥ १२ ॥

“I knew through my subtle eyes that you were coming. The causes also thereof are known to me in my heart. (12)

तव चैव महाभागे विदितं मम तत्त्वतः ।

सर्वं च विदितं मह्यं त्रैलोक्ये यद्धि वर्तते ॥ १३ ॥

“O fortunate one, your purity is known to me. All that exist in the three worlds is known to me. (13)

अपापां वेद्मि सीते ते तपोलब्धेन चक्षुषा ।

विस्रब्धा भव वैदेहि साम्प्रतं मयि वर्तसे ॥ १४ ॥

“Yes, indeed, with my inner eye acquired through penance, I have perceived that you are sinless. Be composed, O daughter of the lord Videha, you are now in my charge. (14)

आश्रमस्याविदूरे मे तापस्यस्तपसि स्थिताः ।

तास्त्वां वत्से यथा वत्सं पालयिष्यन्ति नित्यशः ॥ १५ ॥

“Not very far from the hermitage are the female ascetics engaged in penances. They, O child, shall always look after you as a child. (15)

इदमर्घ्यं प्रतीच्छ त्वं विस्रब्धा विगतज्वरा ।

यथा स्वगृहमभ्येत्य विषादं चैव मा कृथाः ॥ १६ ॥

“Accept this ablution and be calm and free from all maladies. As if you are entering your own home, so do not be despondent.” (16)

श्रुत्वा तु भाषितं सीता मुनेः परममद्भुतम् ।

शिरसा वन्द्य चरणौ तथेत्याह कृताञ्जलिः ॥ १७ ॥

Hearing this most wonderful utterance of the ascetic, doing homage to him with her head and with folded hands Sītā said: “Be it so.” (17)

तं प्रयान्तं मुनिं सीता प्राञ्जलिः पृष्ठतोऽन्वगात् ।

तं दृष्ट्वा मुनिमायान्तं वैदेह्या मुनिपत्नयः ।

उपाजग्मुर्मुदा युक्ता वचनं चेदमब्रुवन् ॥ १८ ॥

Sītā with folded hands followed the ascetic, Vālmiki, as he went to his cottage and the spouses of the ascetics seeing him coming, together with the daughter of the Lord of Videha, proceeded to receive them and spoke thus with joy: (18)

स्वागतं ते मुनिश्रेष्ठ चिरस्यागमनं च ते ।

अभिवादयामस्त्वां सर्वा उच्यतां किं च कुर्महे ॥ १९ ॥

“Welcome O greatest of the ascetics, we salute you for your arrival is delayed. Tell us now what we should do.” (19)

तासां तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा वाल्मीकिरिदमब्रवीत् ।

सीतेयं समनुप्राप्ता पत्नी रामस्य धीमतः ॥ २० ॥

स्नुषा दशरथस्यैषा जनकस्य सुता सती ।

अपापा पतिना त्यक्ता परिपाल्या मया सदा ॥ २१ ॥

Being thus addressed, Vālmiki replied to them thus: “The wife of Rāma has come to us; the daughter-in-law of Daśaratha, formerly the daughter of Janaka, this one, Sītā, is guiltless and being forsaken by her husband, shall always be under my charge. (20-21)

इमां भवत्यः पश्यन्तु स्नेहेन परमेण हि ।

गौरवान्मम वाक्याच्च पूज्या वोऽस्तु विशेषतः ॥ २२ ॥

“O ladies, look upon her, Sītā, with the greatest of affection : the honour that you show to me, give the same attention to that lady, she indeed is worthy of respect from you all in particular.” (22)

मुहुर्मुहुश्च वैदेहीं परिदाय महायशाः ।
स्वमाश्रमं शिष्यवृतः पुनरायान्महातपाः ॥ २३ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकोनपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ४९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Forty-nine in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto L

Dialogue between Lakṣmaṇa and Sumantra

दृष्ट्वा तु मैथिलीं सीतामाश्रमे सम्प्रवेशिताम् ।
संतापमगमद् घोरं लक्ष्मणो दीनचेतनः ॥ १ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa agitated in mind seeing Sītā being ushered into the hermitage fell into deep sorrow. (1)

अब्रवीच्च महातेजाः सुमन्त्रं मन्त्रसारथिम् ।
सीतासंतापजं दुःखं पश्य रामस्य सारथे ॥ २ ॥

The mighty Lakṣmaṇa also spoke thus to the charioteer, who drove with skill: “O Charioteer, consider the great grief of Śrī Rāma resulting from the separation of Sītā. (2)

ततो दुःखतरं किं नु राघवस्य भविष्यति ।
पत्नीं शुद्धसमाचारां विसृज्य जनकात्मजाम् ॥ ३ ॥

“What greater grief could there be for Śrī Rāma (the scion of Raghu) than that caused by banishing his own wife, the daughter of Janaka, so pure of conduct. (3)

व्यक्तं दैवादहं मन्ये राघवस्य विनाभवम् ।
वैदेह्या सारथे नित्यं दैवं हि दुरतिक्रमम् ॥ ४ ॥

“This separation of Rāma from Sītā is truly the effect of Destiny. Fate is indeed inexorable at all times. (4)

यो हि देवान् सगन्धर्वान्सुरान् सह राक्षसैः ।
निहन्याद् राघवः क्रुद्धः स दैवं पर्युपासते ॥ ५ ॥

“Is it not surprising that Rāma (the scion of Raghu), who in anger could extirpate

Thus after handing over Sītā to the female ascetics again and again, the Ṛṣi, of great fame, and performer of great penances, Vālmiki, surrounded by his disciples returned again to his hermitage. (23)

the gods alongwith the Gandharvas, as also the Asuras with the Rākṣasas, should submit to fate. (5)

पुरा रामः पितुर्वाक्याद् दण्डके विजने वने ।
उषित्वा नव वर्षाणि पञ्च चैव महावने ॥ ६ ॥

“Having passed fourteen years in the dense forest of Daṇḍaka, formerly ordered by the father (Śrī Rāma was in misery). (6)

ततो दुःखतरं भूयः सीताया विप्रवासनम् ।
पौराणां वचनं श्रुत्वा नृशंसं प्रतिभाति मे ॥ ७ ॥

“It seems to me, it pained him more to banish Sītā once again, hearing the cruel words of the citizens. (7)

को नु धर्माश्रयः सूत कर्मण्यस्मिन् यशोहरे ।
मैथिलीं समनुप्राप्तः पौरैर्हीनार्थवादिभिः ॥ ८ ॥

“What religious merit has accrued to him from this ignoble act to Sītā on account of the citizens speaking ill of her (Sītā).” (8)

एता वाचो बहुविधाः श्रुत्वा लक्ष्मणभाषिताः ।
सुमन्त्रः श्रद्धया प्राज्ञो वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ ९ ॥

Hearing such words of different kinds, spoken by Lakṣmaṇa, Sumantra, the wise one, on his part spoke thus: (9)

न संतापस्त्वया कार्यः सौमित्रे मैथिलीं प्रति ।
दृष्टमेतत् पुरा विप्रैः पितुस्ते लक्ष्मणाग्रतः ॥ १० ॥

“You should not be grieved for Maithili on this account, O Lakṣmaṇa as this was already foreseen by the Brāhmaṇas (Astrologers) in the presence of your father. (10)

भविष्यति दृढं रामो दुःखप्रायो विसौख्यभाक् ।
प्राप्स्यते च महाबाहुर्विप्रयोगं प्रियैर्दुतम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Rāma shall inevitably be engulfed in sorrow and shall also be bereft of happiness; He shall meet soon with separation from His dear ones. (11)

त्वां चैव मैथिलीं चैव शत्रुघ्नभरतौ तथा ।
स त्यजिष्यति धर्मात्मा कालेन महता महान् ॥ १२ ॥

“The pious one with nobility shall, with the lapse of a large period, leave you, Maithili and even Śatrughna and Bharata; such was the prediction. (12)

इदं त्वयि न वक्तव्यं सौमित्रे भरतेऽपि वा ।
राज्ञा वो व्याहृतं वाक्यं दुर्वासा यदुवाच ह ॥ १३ ॥

“That which was pronounced by Durvāsā before the king, was not to be disclosed to you (son of Sumitrā) or Bharata. (13)

महाजनसमीपे च मम चैव नरर्षभ ।
ऋषिणा व्याहृतं वाक्यं वसिष्ठस्य च संनिधौ ॥ १४ ॥

“O bull among men, the words of prediction were uttered by the Ṛṣi Durvāsā in the hearing of the great king, Daśaratha, and also before me and even Vasiṣṭha. (14)

ऋषेस्तु वचनं श्रुत्वा मामाह पुरुषर्षभः ।
सूत न क्वचिदेवं ते वक्तव्यं जनसंनिधौ ॥ १५ ॥

“Hearing the words of the Ṛṣi Durvāsā, the foremost among men, Daśaratha, said to me, ‘O charioteer, nowhere among my men should this be divulged by you.’ (15)

तस्याहं लोकपालस्य वाक्यं तत्सुसमाहितः ।

नैव जात्वनृतं कुर्यामिति मे सौम्य दर्शनम् ॥ १६ ॥

“I shall not ever falsify the statement of the king, O courteous one, it is my firm resolve. (16)

सर्वथैव न वक्तव्यं मया सौम्य तवाग्रतः ।

यदि ते श्रवणे श्रद्धा श्रूयतां रघुनन्दन ॥ १७ ॥

“In no case I should have revealed the secret before you even if you were eager to know. O scion of Raghu listen to me. (17)

यद्यप्यहं नरेन्द्रेण रहस्यं श्रावितं पुरा ।

तथाप्युदाहरिष्यामि दैवं हि दुरतिक्रमम् ॥ १८ ॥

“Though formerly the secret that was not to be divulged was communicated to me, yet I will say: ‘Fate indeed is inevitable.’ (18)

येनेदमीदृशं प्राप्तं दुःखं शोकसमन्वितम् ।

न त्वया भरतस्याग्रे शत्रुघ्नस्यापि संनिधौ ॥ १९ ॥

“By that fate this pain with sorrow has befallen : Do not mention it before Bharata or even Śatrughna.” (19)

तच्छ्रुत्वा भाषितं तस्य गम्भीरार्थपदं महत् ।

तथ्यं ब्रूहीति सौमित्रिः सूतं तं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ २० ॥

Thus hearing this statement being spoken in highly meaningful words, Lakṣmaṇa the son of Sumitrā, said to the charioteer “Please speak the truth.” (20)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे पञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५० ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LI

On his way to Ayodhyā Sumantra narrates the account of Bhṛgu's curse which he heard from Durvāsā and tells Lakṣmaṇa some future events to console him

तथा संचोदितः सूतो लक्ष्मणेन महात्मना ।
तद् वाक्यमृषिणा प्रोक्तं व्याहर्तुमुपचक्रमे ॥ १ ॥

Thus instigated by noble Lakṣmaṇa, the charioteer set himself to speak out what had been uttered by the Ṛṣi, Durvāsā: (1)

पुरा नाम्ना हि दुर्वासा अत्रेः पुत्रो महामुनिः ।
वसिष्ठस्याश्रमे पुण्ये वार्षिक्यं समुवास ह ॥ २ ॥

“In former days, a great ascetic by name Durvāsā, the son of Atri, stayed at the hermitage of Vasiṣṭha in the four months of the rainy season. (2)

तमाश्रमं महातेजाः पिता ते सुमहायशाः ।
पुरोहितं महात्मानं दिदृक्षुरगमत् स्वयम् ॥ ३ ॥

“Your father, possessed of great power and mighty fame, came in person to that hermitage to see the noble priest, Vasiṣṭha. (3)

स दृष्ट्वा सूर्यसंकाशं ज्वलन्तमिव तेजसा ।
उपविष्टं वसिष्ठस्य सव्यपार्श्वे महामुनिम् ॥ ४ ॥
तौ मुनी तापसश्रेष्ठौ विनीतो ह्यभ्यवादयत् ।
स ताभ्यां पूजितो राजा स्वागतेनासनेन च ॥ ५ ॥
पाद्येन फलमूलैश्च उवास मुनिभिः सह ।
तेषां तत्रोपविष्टानां तास्ताः सुमधुराः कथाः ॥ ६ ॥

“Having seen the great ascetic, Durvāsā, radiant with brilliance as the sun glowing with effulgence, seated on the left side of Vasiṣṭha, he performed salutation courteously to the two great ascetics, who excelled all other ascetics in penance. The King, on the other hand, was honoured by them with words, of welcome, the offering of seat, ablution to wash the feet and also fruits and roots, and thus he stayed with them for some time. At mid-day, when the great Ṛṣis assembled together, sweet tales were narrated. (4—6)

बभूवुः परमर्षीणां मध्यादित्यगतेऽहनि ।
ततः कथायां कस्यांचित् प्राञ्जलिः प्रग्रहो नृपः ॥ ७ ॥
उवाच तं महात्मानमत्रेः पुत्रं तपोधनम् ।
भगवन् किंप्रमाणेन मम वंशो भविष्यति ॥ ८ ॥
किमायुश्च हि मे रामः पुत्राश्चान्ये किमायुषः ।
रामस्य च सुता ये स्युस्तेषामायुः कियद् भवेत् ॥ ९ ॥
काम्यया भगवन् ब्रूहि वंशस्यास्य गतिं मम ।
तच्छ्रुत्वा व्याहतं वाक्यं राज्ञो दशरथस्य तु ॥ १० ॥
दुर्वासाः सुमहातेजा व्याहर्तुमुपचक्रमे ।
शृणु राजन् पुरा वृत्तं तदा देवासुरे युधि ॥ ११ ॥
दैत्याः सुरैर्भर्त्यमाना भृगुपत्नीं समाश्रिताः ।
तया दत्ताभयास्तत्र न्यवसन्नभयास्तदा ॥ १२ ॥

“Then in course of conversation, the king with his hands folded spoke thus to that great son of Atri, rich in penances: ‘Sir, for how long will my family continue, to what age will Rāma reach and how long will the other sons live? So also, what shall be the duration of the life of the son of Rāma? Sir, I wish you may predict the future course of my family.’

“Thus hearing words spoken by the king, Daśaratha, the mighty Durvāsā began to speak. ‘Listen to me, O king. In the ancient times, it so happened that the sons of Diti (the Daityas) conquered by the gods, approached the wife of Bhṛgu and having been granted security by her, dwelt there (at the hermitage of Bhṛgu) fearlessly. (7—12)

तया परिगृहीतांस्तान् दृष्ट्वा क्रुद्धः सुरेश्वरः ।
चक्रेण शितधारेण भृगुपत्न्याः शिरोऽहरत् ॥ १३ ॥

“The Lord of the Devas, Viṣṇu, angered

at seeing them thus protected by her, severed the head of the spouse of Bhṛgu with his discus. (13)

ततस्तां निहतां दृष्ट्वा पत्नीं भृगुकुलोद्भवः ।
शशाप सहसा क्रुद्धो विष्णुं रिपुकुलार्दनम् ॥ १४ ॥
यस्मादवध्यां मे पत्नीमवधीः क्रोधमूर्च्छितः ।
तस्मात् त्वं मानुषे लोके जनिष्यसि जनार्दन ॥ १५ ॥

“Then the scion of the Bhṛgu family seeing his spouse thus done to death, with rage, in haste cursed Viṣṇu, the destroyer of His enemies (the Daityas) thus: ‘As you have killed my spouse who did not deserve to be killed, infatuated as you are with anger, so you will take birth in the mortal world O remover of mortal woes. (14-15)

तत्र पत्नीवियोगं त्वं प्राप्स्यसे बहुवार्षिकम् ।
शापाभिहतचेतास्तु स्वात्मना भावितोऽभवत् ॥ १६ ॥
अर्चयामास तं देवं भृगुः शापेन पीडितः ।
तपसाऽऽराधितो देवो ह्यब्रवीद् भक्तवत्सलः ॥ १७ ॥
लोकानां सम्प्रियार्थं तु तं शापं गृह्यमुक्तवान् ।
इति शप्तो महातेजा भृगुणा पूर्वजन्मनि ॥ १८ ॥
इहागतो हि पुत्रत्वं तव पार्थिवसत्तम ।
राम इत्यभिधिख्यातस्त्रिषु लोकेषु मानद ॥ १९ ॥

‘Then in your mortal existence you will meet with separation from your spouse for many years.’ By this curse, afflicted in mind Bhṛgu was, however impelled as if by the indweller to request him to accept the curse. Being in pain by the curse, Bhṛgu worshipped that God, Viṣṇu, and the God affectionate to his devotees, thus worshipped, spoke thus: ‘For the welfare of the world this curse will be accepted by Me.’ Thus cursed by Bhṛgu, He (Viṣṇu) has become here your son, O best among kings, and has been named Rāma, revered in the three worlds. (16—19)

तत् फलं प्राप्स्यते चापि भृगुशापकृतं महत् ।
अयोध्यायाः पती रामो दीर्घकालं भविष्यति ॥ २० ॥
सुखिनश्च समृद्धाश्च भविष्यन्त्यस्य येऽनुगाः ।
दशवर्षसहस्राणि दशवर्षशतानि च ॥ २१ ॥

रामो राज्यमुपासित्वा ब्रह्मलोकं गमिष्यति ।
समृद्धैश्चाश्वमेधैश्च इष्ट्वा परमदुर्जयः ॥ २२ ॥
राजवंशांश्च बहुशो बहून् संस्थापयिष्यति ।
द्वौ पुत्रौ तु भविष्येते सीतायां राघवस्य तु ॥ २३ ॥

“The fruit of that curse (separation from Sītā) He will bear. Rāma will be the Lord of Ayodhyā for a long time and all those who follow Him shall be happy and prosperous. Having resided in His kingdom for eleven thousand years, He the invincible one will proceed to Brahmaloaka, after having performed many costly Aśvamedhas and He will establish many royal families. Two sons of the scion of Raghu will be born of Sītā; (20—23)

स सर्वमखिलं राज्ञो वंशस्याह गतागतम् ।
आख्याय सुमहातेजास्तूष्णीमासीन्महामुनिः ॥ २४ ॥

“That great and powerful ascetic, Durvāsā, having thus narrated the future course of the royal family of Śrī Rāma extensively, became silent. (24)

तूष्णींभूते तदा तस्मिन् राजा दशरथो मुनौ ।
अभिवाद्य महात्मानौ पुनरायात् पुरोत्तमम् ॥ २५ ॥

“Then as the ascetic stopped speaking, Daśaratha having saluted both the great ones (Vasiṣṭha and Durvāsā) returned again to Ayodhyā, the best of the cities. (25)

एतद् वचो मया तत्र मुनिना व्याहृतं पुरा ।
श्रुतं हृदि च निक्षिप्तं नान्यथा तद् भविष्यति ॥ २६ ॥

“These words spoken by the ascetic formerly, I have heard and taken to heart. It shall not be otherwise. (26)

सीतायाश्च ततः पुत्रावभिषेक्ष्यति राघवः ।
अन्यत्र न त्वयोध्यायां मुनेस्तु वचनं यथा ॥ २७ ॥

“The scion of Raghu will thereafter coronate the two sons of Sītā, but not at Ayodhyā, however, as predicted by the ascetic. (27)

एवं गते न संतापं कर्तुमर्हसि राघव ।
सीतार्थे राघवार्थे वा दृढो भव नरोत्तम ॥ २८ ॥

“This being so, there is no cause to despair about Sītā and Rāma, the scion of Raghu, O best among men, be firm.” (28)

श्रुत्वा तु व्याहृतं वाक्यं सूतस्य परमाद्भुतम् ।
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे साधु साध्विति चाब्रवीत् ॥ २९ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa felt great relief and was pleased to hear the charioteer speak such wonderful things. He cried out. “Excellent !

You have said well”.

(29)

ततः संवदतोरेवं सूतलक्ष्मणयोः पथि ।
अस्तमर्के गते वासं केशिन्यां तावथोषतुः ॥ ३० ॥

Then, the setting sun descended on the mountain, while the charioteer and Lakṣmaṇa were thus conversing; they prepared for night halt on the banks of the Keśinī river. (30)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-one in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi, and the oldest epic.

द्विपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LII

Lakṣmaṇa meets Śrī Rāma in the Royal chamber and comforts Him

तत्र तां रजनीमुष्य केशिन्यां रघुनन्दनः ।
प्रभाते पुनरुत्थाय लक्ष्मणः प्रययौ तदा ॥ १ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa the descendant of Raghu, having spent the night on the banks of the Keśinī river, awoke at break of dawn and proceeded on his way to Ayodhyā. (1)

ततोऽर्धदिवसे प्राप्ते प्रविवेश महारथः ।
अयोध्यां रत्नसम्पूर्णां हृष्टपुष्टजनावृताम् ॥ २ ॥

When half the day was elapsed (lit., at noon) the great warrior Lakṣmaṇa entered the city. (2)

सौमित्रिस्तु परं दैन्यं जगाम सुमहामतिः ।
रामपादौ समासाद्य वक्ष्यामि किमहं गतः ॥ ३ ॥

‘What shall I say when I approach and touch Śrī Rāma’s feet—contemplating thus Lakṣmaṇa was much agitated. (3)

तस्यैवं चिन्तयानस्य भवनं शशिसंनिभम् ।
रामस्य परमोदारं पुरस्तात् समदृश्यत ॥ ४ ॥

While he (Lakṣmaṇa) was thus thinking, the apartment of Śrī Rāma soothing to the (Lakṣmaṇa’s) eye as the moon, came in sight. (4)

राज्ञस्तु भवनद्वारि सोऽवतीर्य नरोत्तमः ।
अवाङ्मुखो दीनमनाः प्रविवेशानिवारितः ॥ ५ ॥

That best of the men alighting from the chariot at the doorway of the apartment of Śrī Rāma, entered unobstructed, highly agitated and with the face downcast. (5)

स दृष्ट्वा राघवं दीनमासीनं परमासने ।
नेत्राभ्यामश्रुपूर्णाभ्यां ददर्शाग्रजमग्रतः ॥ ६ ॥

With eyes full of tears, he (Lakṣmaṇa) saw Śrī Rāma, the scion of Raghu, his elder brother, downcast and seated on the throne before him. (6)

जग्राह चरणौ तस्य लक्ष्मणो दीनचेतनः ।
उवाच दीनया वाचा प्राञ्जलिः सुसमाहितः ॥ ७ ॥

Mentally agitated Lakṣmaṇa touched the feet of his elder brother; somehow being composed he spoke woefully with folded hands thus: (7)

आर्यस्याज्ञां पुरस्कृत्य विसृज्य जनकात्मजाम् ।
गङ्गातीरे यथोद्दिष्टे वाल्मीकेराश्रमे शुभे ॥ ८ ॥
तत्र तां च शुभाचारामाश्रमान्ते यशस्विनीम् ।
पुनरप्यागतो वीर पादमूलमुपासितुम् ॥ ९ ॥

“Keeping foremost the order of Your noble feet, leaving Sitā, the daughter of Janaka, so pure of conduct and famed among the wives devoted to their husbands, at the holy hermitage of Vālmiki on the banks of the Gaṅgā, as directed, I have returned once again to serve at the feet of yours, the heroic one, Śrī Rāma. (8-9)

मा शुचः पुरुषव्याघ्र कालस्य गतिरीदृशी।
त्वद्विधा नहि शोचन्ति बुद्धिमन्तो मनस्विनः ॥ १० ॥

“Please do not grieve being separated from Sitā; O tiger among men, such is decreed by Destiny. The wise and able ones like you do not feel dejected. (10)

सर्वे क्षयान्ता निचयाः पतनान्ताः समुच्छ्रयाः।
संयोगा विप्रयोगान्ता मरणान्तं च जीवितम् ॥ ११ ॥
तस्मात् पुत्रेषु दारेषु मित्रेषु च धनेषु च।
नातिप्रसङ्गः कर्तव्यो विप्रयोगो हि तैर्ध्रुवम् ॥ १२ ॥

“All accumulations end in attenuation, all elevations would end in fall, all forms of union would end in separation, and this life would end in death; therefore, interim attachment to sons, spouses, friends, or even riches is not proper, for separation from them is certain. (11-12)

शक्तस्त्वमात्मनाऽऽत्मानं विनेतुं मनसा मनः।
लोकान् सर्वाश्च काकुत्स्थ किं पुनः शोकमात्मनः ॥ १३ ॥

“You are indeed capable of controlling yourself or your mind through itself and also all the worlds, O scion of Kakutstha, what then is this sorrow for yourself. (13)

नेदृशेषु विमुह्यन्ति त्वद्विधाः पुरुषर्षभाः।
अपवादः स किल ते पुनरेष्यति राघव ॥ १४ ॥

यदर्थं मैथिली त्यक्ता अपवादभयानृप।
सोऽपवादः पुरे राजन् भविष्यति न संशयः ॥ १५ ॥

“The bulls among men, like you, are not infatuated on such matters, for the ill-report will veritably come back to be associated with you. O Rāma (a scion of Raghu), that ill-report shall again circulate in the city, without doubt, for which you have forsaken Sitā, O king. (14-15)

स त्वं पुरुषशार्दूल धैर्येण सुसमाहितः।
त्यजेमां दुर्बलां बुद्धिं संतापं मा कुरुष्व ह ॥ १६ ॥

“O tiger among men, it behoves you that you with fortitude set aside this mental weakness and do not indeed be grieved.” (16)

एवमुक्तः स काकुत्स्थो लक्ष्मणेन महात्मना।
उवाच परया प्रीत्या सौमित्रिं मित्रवत्सलः ॥ १७ ॥

Thus spoken to by the noble Lakṣmaṇa, the scion of Kakutstha, so affectionate to friends, Śrī Rāma spoke to the son of Sumitrā in great joy. (17)

एवमेतन्नरश्रेष्ठ यथा वदसि लक्ष्मण।
परितोषश्च मे वीर मम कार्यानुशासने ॥ १८ ॥

“O best among men Lakṣmaṇa, it is as you say, and O heroic one, in the carrying out my orders, lies my satisfaction. (18)

निवृत्तिश्चागता सौम्य संतापश्च निराकृतः।
भवद्वाक्यैः सुरुचिरैरनुनीतोऽस्मि लक्ष्मण ॥ १९ ॥

Peace is attained, O Lakṣmaṇa, and grief has been averted by sweet words uttered by you and I am again my own self.” (19)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे द्विपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-two in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LIII

Śrī Rāma narrates the story of king Nṛga, who was cursed for not attending to his subjects, and instructs Lakṣmaṇa, to perform obligatory duties towards citizens

लक्ष्मणस्य तु तद् वाक्यं निशम्य परमाद्भुतम् ।
सुप्रीतश्चाभवद् रामो वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ १ ॥

Hearing those most striking words of Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma was highly pleased and spoke in the following manner: (1)

दुर्लभस्त्वीदृशो बन्धुरस्मिन् काले विशेषतः ।
यादृशस्त्वं महाबुद्धिर्मम सौम्य मनोऽनुगः ॥ २ ॥

“A kinsman as faithful and wise as you, O courteous one, is difficult to be found, specially at this time. (2)

यच्च मे हृदये किञ्चिद् वर्तते शुभलक्षण ।
तन्निशामय च श्रुत्वा कुरुष्व वचनं मम ॥ ३ ॥

“O noble one! bearing auspicious marks, whatever is passing in my mind, I shall say: listen to it and do as I say. (3)

चत्वारो दिवसाः सौम्य कार्यं पौरजनस्य च ।
अकुर्वाणस्य सौमित्रे तन्मे मर्माणि कृन्तति ॥ ४ ॥

Our full four days, O lovely one, have passed, and the duties towards citizens have not been attended to, O son of Sumitrā, that negligence eats as if my vitals. (4)

आहूयन्तां प्रकृतयः पुरोधा मन्त्रिणस्तथा ।
कार्यार्थिनश्च पुरुषाः स्त्रियो वा पुरुषर्षभ ॥ ५ ॥

“Let all my subjects be called, so also the priest and the counsellors, and even men or women too seeking their business. (5)

पौरकार्याणि यो राजा न करोति दिने दिने ।
संवृते नरके घोरे पतितो नात्र संशयः ॥ ६ ॥

“The king, who does not perform the daily duties to his subjects falls undoubtedly into the dreadful Samvṛta (airless) hell. (6)

श्रूयते हि पुरा राजा नृगो नाम महायशाः ।
बभूव पृथिवीपालो ब्राह्मण्यः सत्यवाक् शुचिः ॥ ७ ॥

“In the days of yore, there was a king, Nṛga by name, of high fame, protector of the earth, devoted to Brāhmaṇas, truth-speaking and pure of heart and conduct. (7)

स कदाचिद् गवां कोटीः सवत्साः स्वर्णभूषिताः ।
नृदेवो भूमिदेवेभ्यः पुष्करेषु ददौ नृपः ॥ ८ ॥

“That king, at one time gave away millions of cows ornamented with gold and accompanied with calves to Brāhmaṇas (the gods on earth) at the holy pilgrim-centre of Puṣkara. (8)

ततः सङ्गाद् गता धेनुः सवत्सा स्पर्शितानघ ।
ब्राह्मणस्याहिताग्नेस्तु दरिद्रस्योऽञ्जवर्तिनः ॥ ९ ॥

“A cow with its calf belonging to a poor Brāhmaṇa, who had laid the sacrificial fire and subsisted on gleanings, was also touched among the assemblage of cows by that king, for gift given away. (9)

स नष्टां गां क्षुधार्तो वै अन्विषंस्तत्र तत्र ह ।
नापश्यत् सर्वराष्ट्रेषु संवत्सरगणान् बहून् ॥ १० ॥

“Afflicted by hunger, he (the Brāhmaṇa) roamed about all the provinces in quest of the missing cow for many years, and yet could not find it (the cow). (10)

ततः कनखलं गत्वा जीर्णवत्सां निरामयाम् ।
ददृशे तां स्विकां धेनुं ब्राह्मणस्य निवेशने ॥ ११ ॥

“Then reaching Kanakhala* he saw his own cow in good health accompanied by a full grown calf, in the abode of a Brāhmaṇa. (11)

अथ तां नामधेयेन स्वकेनोवाच ब्राह्मणः ।
आगच्छ शबलेत्येवं सा तु शुश्राव गौः स्वरम् ॥ १२ ॥

“The Brāhmaṇa then called the cow by the name given to her by himself thus: “O Śābalā! come. That cow too heard the voice of the Brāhmaṇa. (12)

तस्य तं स्वरमाज्ञाय क्षुधार्तस्य द्विजस्य वै ।
अन्वगात् पृष्ठतः सा गौर्गच्छन्तं पावकोपमम् ॥ १३ ॥

“Responding indeed to that call of the hungry Brāhmaṇa, who was like the sacred fire, the cow followed him, as he went. (13)

योऽपि पालयते विप्रः सोऽपि गामन्वगाद् द्रुतम् ।
गत्वा च तमृषिं चष्टे मम गौरिति सत्वरम् ॥ १४ ॥

“The Brāhmaṇa, who had looked after the cow, too followed the cow in haste and approaching the Ṛṣi at once declared: “This is my cow.” (14)

स्पर्शिता राजसिंहेन मम दत्ता नृगेण ह ।
तयोर्ब्राह्मणयोर्वादो महानासीद् विपश्चितोः ॥ १५ ॥

“The other Brāhmaṇa on the other hand said, ‘This cow is touched and given to me by Nṛga, the lion among kings’. Thus great dispute arose between the two learned Brāhmaṇas. (15)

विवदन्तौ ततोऽन्योन्यं दातारमभिजग्मतुः ।
तौ राजभवनद्वारि न प्राप्तौ नृगशासनम् ॥ १६ ॥

“Quarrelling among themselves, the two Brāhmaṇas approached the donor (Nṛga); both waited at the gate of the Royal palace, but could not gain entry into the palace on Nṛga’s orders. (16)

अहोरात्राण्यनेकानि वसन्तौ क्रोधमीयतुः ।
ऊचतुश्च महात्मानौ तावुभौ द्विजसत्तमौ ॥ १७ ॥

क्रुद्धौ परमसंतप्तौ वाक्यं घोराभिसंहितम् ।
अर्थिनां कार्यसिद्ध्यर्थं यस्मात्त्वं नैषि दर्शनम् ॥ १८ ॥

अदृश्यः सर्वभूतानां कृकलासो भविष्यसि ।
बहुवर्षसहस्राणि बहुवर्षशतानि च ॥ १९ ॥

“Spending many days and nights staying there, both good Brāhmaṇas were enraged, and in rage, being totally anguished spoke out these dreadful words: ‘As you fail to appear before us to fulfil the demands of those, who seek business, you shall attain the form of a lizard and remain invisible to all beings for many thousands and hundreds of years. (17—19)

श्वभ्रे त्वं कृकलीभूतो दीर्घकालं निवत्स्यसि ।
उत्पत्स्यते हि लोकेऽस्मिन् यदूनां कीर्तिवर्धनः ॥ २० ॥

“‘You will stay inside the pit as a lizard. In this world, there will be born God Viṣṇu in human form, known as Vāsudeva (the son of Vasudeva), who will add to the fame of the line of the Yadus. (20)

वासुदेव इति ख्यातो विष्णुः पुरुषविग्रहः ।
स ते मोक्षयिता शापाद् राजंस्तस्माद् भविष्यसि ॥ २१ ॥

कृता च तेन कालेन निष्कृतिस्ते भविष्यति ।
भारावतरणार्थं हि नरनारायणावुभौ ॥ २२ ॥

उत्पत्स्येते महावीर्यौ कलौ युग उपस्थिते ।
एवं तौ शापमुत्सृज्य ब्राह्मणौ विगतज्वरौ ॥ २३ ॥

तां गां हि दुर्बलां वृद्धां ददतुर्ब्राह्मणाय वै ।
एवं स राजा तं शापमुपभुङ्क्ते सुदारुणम् ॥ २४ ॥

कार्यार्थिनां विमर्दो हि राज्ञां दोषाय कल्पते ।
तच्छीघ्रं दर्शनं मह्यमभिवर्तन्तु कार्यिणः ॥ २५ ॥

“‘He will release you from the curse. O king! henceforth, you will be a lizard and after a long time, your deliverance shall take place as pronounced. Both Nara and Nārāyaṇa will be born in Kali Age to deliver beings of this world from the weight of sin.’ Thus pronouncing the curse, both Brāhmaṇas, free from affliction now, gave away at last that weak and old cow to another Brāhmaṇa.”

“Thus that king fell under the curse so terrible. Negligence towards a dispute among those who come with plaint, indeed constitutes a fault for the king. Therefore, please, do not neglect men with plaint and seeking my presence. (21—25)

सुकृतस्य हि कार्यस्य फलं नावैति पार्थिवः ।
तस्माद् गच्छ प्रतीक्षस्व सौमित्रे कार्यवाञ्छनः ॥ २६ ॥

“The king does not attain the fruits of the good deeds. Hence wait upon the men who seek business, O son of Sumitrā.” (26)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे त्रिपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५३ ॥

Thus ends the Canto Fifty-three in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुःपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LIV

King Nṛga gets a cosy pit prepared for himself, entrusts the kingdom to his son and enters the pit and suffers the consequences of curse

रामस्य भाषितं श्रुत्वा लक्ष्मणः परमार्थवित् ।
उवाच प्राञ्जलिर्वाक्यं राघवं दीप्ततेजसम् ॥ १ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa, the knower of truth, on hearing the words of Śrī Rāma, spoke thus to Rāma, a scion of Raghu, glowing with effulgence, with folded hands: (1)

अल्पापराधे काकुत्स्थ द्विजाभ्यां शाप ईदृशः ।
महान् नृगस्य राजर्षेर्यमदण्ड इवापरः ॥ २ ॥

“O scion of Kakutstha, a curse so harsh was pronounced by the Brāhmaṇas on Nṛga, the Ṛṣi among kings, for committing a minor fault, as if it was another rod of Yama (for punishment). (2)

श्रुत्वा तु पापसंयुक्तमात्मानं पुरुषर्षभ ।
किमुवाच नृगो राजा द्विजौ क्रोधसमन्वितौ ॥ ३ ॥

“On hearing himself proclaimed guilty, O bull among men, what King Nṛga said to the two Brāhmaṇas, full of rage.” (3)

लक्ष्मणेनैवमुक्तस्तु राघवः पुनरब्रवीत् ।
शृणु सौम्य यथा पूर्वं स राजा शापविक्षतः ॥ ४ ॥
अथाध्वनि गतौ विप्रौ विज्ञाय स नृपस्तदा ।
आहूय मन्त्रिणः सर्वान् नैगमान् सपुरोधसः ॥ ५ ॥
तानुवाच नृगो राजा सर्वाश्च प्रकृतीस्तथा ।
दुःखेन सुसमाविष्टः श्रूयतां मे समाहिताः ॥ ६ ॥

Thus told by Lakṣmaṇa, the scion of Raghu said: “O courteous one, listen to me, As said the king shattered by the curse after having known from the report that both the Brāhmaṇas were on their way to their abode, the king filled with misery, calling the counsellors together with the priest and also all his subjects, told them: ‘Listen to me with attention. (4—6)

नारदः पर्वतश्चैव मम दत्त्वा महद्भयम् ।
गतौ त्रिभुवनं भद्रौ वायुभूतावनिन्दितौ ॥ ७ ॥

कुमारोऽयं वसुर्नाम स चेहाद्याभिषिच्यताम् ।
श्वभ्रं च यत् सुखस्पर्शं क्रियतां शिल्पिभिर्मम ॥ ८ ॥
यत्राहं संक्षयिष्यामि शापं ब्राह्मणनिःसृतम् ।
वर्षघ्नमेकं श्वभ्रं तु हिमघ्नमपरं तथा ॥ ९ ॥

‘The two divine sages, Nārada and Parvata—blessed and free from taint, have departed for the third world (the world of Brahṁā,) as if with the wind, after having caused great fear to me. The prince named Vasu be coronated here and now; a pit quite comfortable be dug out by my artisans, where I shall get the curse pronounced by the Brahmaṇas, gone through. May the artisans dig out a pit that shall afford shelter from rain and cold. (7—9)

ग्रीष्मघ्नं तु सुखस्पर्शमेकं कुर्वन्तु शिल्पिनः ।
फलवन्तश्च ये वृक्षाः पुष्पवत्यश्च या लताः ॥ १० ॥
विरोप्यन्तां बहुविधाश्छायावन्तश्च गुल्मिनः ।
क्रियतां रमणीयं च श्वभ्राणां सर्वतोदिशम् ॥ ११ ॥

‘May the artisans create another pit that shall afford shelter during summer. May the trees laden with fruits, and creepers blossoming with flowers, be sown around the pit and also bushes of all kinds. May the pits be made lovely on all sides. (10-11)

सुखमत्र वसिष्यामि यावत्कालस्य पर्ययः ।
पुष्पाणि च सुगन्धीनि क्रियन्तां तेषु नित्यशः ॥ १२ ॥
परिवार्य यथा मे स्युरध्यर्धं योजनं तथा ।
एवं कृत्वा विधानं स संनिवेश्य वसुं तदा ॥ १३ ॥
धर्मनित्यः प्रजाः पुत्र क्षत्रधर्मेण पालय ।
प्रत्यक्षं ते तथा शापो द्विजाभ्यां मयि पातितः ॥ १४ ॥
नरश्रेष्ठ सरोषाभ्यामपराधेऽपि तादृशे ।
मा कृथास्त्वनुसन्तापं मत्कृते हि नरर्षभ ॥ १५ ॥
कृतान्तः कुशलः पुत्र येनास्मि व्यसनीकृतः ।
प्राप्तव्यान्येव प्राप्नोति गन्तव्यान्येव गच्छति ॥ १६ ॥

लब्धव्यान्येव लभते दुःखानि च सुखानि च ।

पूर्वे जात्यन्तरे वत्स मा विषादं कुरुष्व ह ॥ १७ ॥

“I shall dwell in the pits till the period of curse lasts. May the fragrant flowers be planted, so that they cover one and half Yojanas around me always.” Having ordered thus he (Nṛga) then placing Vasu on the throne said: “O son, abiding always in Dharma (Royal Conduct), protect your subjects according to the law and suzerainty. O best among men, you know how it was in your presence that the curse was pronounced on me by the two Brāhmaṇas in anger, even for a fault so meagre. So, O bull among men, do not repent for me; O son, fate, indeed, is powerful, that has put me in such misery. One attains that only which is pre-ordained to be attainable by him; proceeds only to that place, which is his pre-ordained destination; gains only that which is pre-ordained for him to obtain; similarly, all forms of happiness and sorrows that result from former birth verily, therefore, do not be dejected.” (12—17)

एवमुक्त्वा नृपस्तत्र सुतं राजा महायशः ।

श्वभ्रं जगाम सुकृतं वासाय पुरुषर्षभ ॥ १८ ॥

“Having addressed thus his son, the famous king Nṛga entered to dwell in the well-constructed pit, O bull among men. (18)

एवं प्रविश्येव नृपस्तदानीं

श्वभ्रं महद्रत्नविभूषितं तत् ।

सम्पादयामास तदा महात्मा

शापं द्विजाभ्यां हि रुषा विमुक्तम् ॥ १९ ॥

“Thus, having entered the huge pit, adorned with jewels, the high-souled king did undergo the consequence of the curse pronounced angrily by the two Brāhmaṇas.” (19)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे चतुःपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-four in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LV

King Nimi and sage Vasiṣṭha leave their bodies as a result of mutual curse

एष ते नृगशापस्य विस्तरोऽभिहितो मया ।

यद्यस्ति श्रवणे श्रद्धा शृणुष्वेहापरां कथाम् ॥ १ ॥

“Thus I have narrated to you in detail the story of the curse pronounced on Nṛga. If you are interested in hearing more of such stories, then do listen now to another story. (1)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण सौमित्रिः पुनरब्रवीत् ।

तृप्तिराश्चर्यभूतानां कथानां नास्ति मे नृप ॥ २ ॥

Thus asked by Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa again said, “O king! I do not feel contented by listening to such wonderful stories.” (2)

लक्ष्मणेनैवमुक्तस्तु राम इक्ष्वाकुनन्दनः ।

कथां परमधर्मिष्ठां व्याहर्तुमुपचक्रमे ॥ ३ ॥

Having been thus told by Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma, a source of delight to the Ikṣvāku family, began narrating the highly moral story. (3)

आसीद् राजा निमिर्नाम इक्ष्वाकूणां महात्मनाम् ।

पुत्रो द्वादशमो वीर्ये धर्मे च परिनिष्ठितः ॥ ४ ॥

“O Lakṣmaṇa (the joy of Sumitrā) there was a king named Nimi, who was the twelfth among the sons of Ikṣvāku. He was eminently full of prowess and highly religious. (4)

स राजा वीर्यसम्पन्नः पुरं देवपुरोपमम् ।
निवेशयामास तदा अभ्याशे गौतमस्य तु ॥ ५ ॥

“The powerful king founded a city, like the city of the gods, near the hermitage of Gautama. (5)

पुरस्य सुकृतं नाम वैजयन्तमिति श्रुतम् ।
निवेशं यत्र राजर्षिर्निमिश्रक्रे महायशाः ॥ ६ ॥

“Vaijayanta was the good and famous name given to the city after the name of Indra's palace, where the highly renowned sage-like king built his abode. (6)

तस्य बुद्धिः समुत्पन्ना निवेश्य सुमहापुरम् ।
यजेयं दीर्घसत्रेण पितुः प्रह्लादयन् मनः ॥ ७ ॥

“After founding the big city it occurred to him that he should perform a long term sacrifice that would make his father happy. (7)

ततः पितरमामन्त्र्य इक्ष्वाकुं हि मनोः सुतम् ।
वसिष्ठं वरयामास पूर्वं ब्रह्मर्षिसत्तमम् ॥ ८ ॥
अनन्तरं स राजर्षिर्निमिरिक्ष्वाकुनन्दनः ।
अत्रिमङ्गिरसं चैव भृगुं चैव तपोनिधिम् ॥ ९ ॥

“Then, having obtained the permission of his father, Ikṣvāku, son of Manu, the sage-like king Nimi, a source of delight to Ikṣvāku, first of all chose Vasiṣṭha, the best of Brahmarṣis, as his principal priest.
Subsequently he invited Atri, Āngirā and Bhṛgu, who had austerities for their treasure. (8-9)

तमुवाच वसिष्ठस्तु निमिं राजर्षिसत्तमम् ।
वृतोऽहं पूर्वमिन्द्रेण अन्तरं प्रतिपालय ॥ १० ॥

“But Vasiṣṭha said to Nimi, the best of sage-like kings, “I have already been chosen by Indra, so please wait for sometime until Indra's sacrifice concludes.” (10)

अनन्तरं महाविप्रो गौतमः प्रत्यपूरयत् ।
वसिष्ठोऽपि महातेजा इन्द्रयज्ञमथाकरोत् ॥ ११ ॥

“Later on (after Vasiṣṭha had left) the great Brāhmaṇa Gautama undertook the task of officiating as principal priest, at Nimi's sacrifice. And majestic Vasiṣṭha officiated as priest at Indra's sacrifice. (11)

निमिस्तु राजा विप्रांस्तान् समानीय नराधिपः ।
अयजद्विमवत्पाश्वे स्वपुरस्य समीपतः ।
पञ्चवर्षसहस्राणि राजा दीक्षामथाकरोत् ॥ १२ ॥ “Inviting the Brāhmaṇas (viz., Atri and others) king Nimi, the lord of men, however, performed the sacrifice near his city

Vaijayanta, in the vicinity of the Himālayas.
The King took the initiation of sacrifice for five thousand years. (12)

इन्द्रयज्ञावसाने तु वसिष्ठो भगवानृषिः ।
सकाशमागतो राज्ञो हौत्रं कर्तुमनिन्दितः ॥ १३ ॥
तदन्तरमथापश्यद् गौतमेनाभिपूरितम् ।
क्रोपेन महताविष्टो वसिष्ठो ब्रह्मणः सुतः ॥ १४ ॥

“After the conclusion of Indra's sacrifice the blameless, holy sage Vasiṣṭha came back to king Nimi) to act as priest.
He found that the intervening period (set by Vasiṣṭha for the king to wait) was taken up by Gautama. At this Vasiṣṭha, son of Brahmā, was very much annoyed. (13—14)

स राज्ञो दर्शनाकाङ्क्षी मुहूर्तं समुपाविशत् ।
तस्मिन्महनि राजर्षिर्निद्रयापहतो भृशम् ॥ १५ ॥
ततो मन्युर्वसिष्ठस्य प्रादुरासीन्महात्मनः ।
अदर्शनेन राजर्षेर्व्याहर्तुमुपचक्रमे ॥ १६ ॥

“In order to meet the king, he sat there for sometime. That day, however, the king was very much overtaken by sleep. Being unable to meet the king, the high-souled Vasiṣṭha became angry and began addressing the king as follows: (15-16)

यस्मात् त्वमन्यं वृतवान् मामवज्ञाय पार्थिव ।
चेतनेन विनाभूतो देहस्ते पार्थिवैव्यति ॥ १७ ॥

“O King! since, disregarding me, you chose someone else as officiating priest your body will be devoid of consciousness.” (17)

ततः प्रबुद्धो राजा तु श्रुत्वा शापमुदाहृतम् ।
ब्रह्मयोनिमथोवाच स राजा क्रोधमूर्च्छितः ॥ १८ ॥

“On waking up the king heard about the curse pronounced by the sage and infatuated by wrath, the king said to Vasiṣṭha, the son of Brahmā. (18)

अजानतः शयानस्य क्रोधेन कलुषीकृतः ।

उक्तवान् मम शापाग्निं यमदण्डमिवापरम् ॥ १९ ॥

“Defiled by anger you pronounced a fire-like curse, like a second staff of Yama on me, who was asleep, unaware of your arrival. (19)

तस्मात् तवापि ब्रह्मर्षे चेतनेन विनाकृतः ।

देहः स सुचिरप्रख्यो भविष्यति न संशयः ॥ २० ॥

“Therefore, O Brahmarṣi! This ever handsome body of your’s also undoubtedly be devoid of consciousness.” (20)

इति रोषवशादुभौ तदानी-

मन्योन्यं शपितौ नृपद्विजेन्द्रौ ।

सहसैव

बभूवतुर्विदेहौ

तत्तुल्याधिगतप्रभाववन्तौ

॥ २१ ॥

Thus the great king and the great Brāhmaṇa, who cursed each other immediately became devoid of their physical body. (21)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे पञ्चपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-five in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षट्पञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LVI

At the instance of Brahmā Vasiṣṭha enters the semen of Varuṇa; Varuṇa places his semen in a pitcher near Urvaśī; as a consequence of Mitra’s curse Urvaśī lives with king Purūravā on the earth and bears him a son

रामस्य भाषितं श्रुत्वा लक्ष्मणः परवीरहा ।

उवाच प्राञ्जलिर्भूत्वा राघवं दीप्ततेजसम् ॥ १ ॥

On hearing Śrī Rāma’s speech, Lakṣmaṇa, the destroyer of his brave enemies, said with folded hands to splendidous Śrī Rāma. (1)

निक्षिप्य देहौ काकुत्स्थ कथं तौ द्विजपार्थिवौ ।

पुनर्देहेन संयोगं जग्मतुर्देवसम्मतौ ॥ २ ॥

“O descendant of Kākutstha! How were the two, viz., the Brāhmaṇa (Vasiṣṭha) and the king, who were honoured by gods, again embodied?” (2)

लक्ष्मणेनैवमुक्तस्तु राम इक्ष्वाकुनन्दनः ।

प्रत्युवाच महातेजा लक्ष्मणं पुरुषर्षभः ॥ ३ ॥

Thus asked by Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma, the foremost among men, a source of delight of the Ikṣvāku endowed with great splendour, replied to Lakṣmaṇa. (3)

तौ परस्परशापेन देहमुत्सृज्य धार्मिकौ ।

अभूतां नृपविप्रर्षी वायुभूतौ तपोधनौ ॥ ४ ॥

“The two viz., the sage-like king and the Brāhmaṇa whose austerities made for their treasure and who had cursed each other, assumed the form of air after their death. (4)

अशरीरः शरीरस्य कृतेऽन्यस्य महामुनिः ।

वसिष्ठस्तु महातेजा जगाम पितुरन्तिकम् ॥ ५ ॥

“The highly majestic hermit Vasiṣṭha, who was without a physical body, approached his father with a view to getting another body. (5)

सोऽभिवाद्य ततः पादौ देवदेवस्य धर्मवित् ।

पितामहमथोवाच वायुभूत इदं वचः ॥ ६ ॥

“Then Vasiṣṭha, with his airy form, and who knew the essence of Dharma, after bowing respectfully to the feet of Brahmā, said the following words to the Grandsire: (6)

भगवन् निमिशापेन विदेहत्वमुपागमम्।
देवदेव महादेव वायुभूतोऽहमण्डज ॥ ७ ॥

“O God of gods! Born from the Cosmic Egg! As a result of Nimi’s curse, I have become devoid of physical body and have assumed an airy form. (7)

सर्वेषां देहहीनानां महद् दुःखं भविष्यति।
लुप्यन्ते सर्वकार्याणि हीनदेहस्य वै प्रभो ॥ ८ ॥
देहस्यान्यस्य सद्भावे प्रसादं कर्तुमर्हसि।
तमुवाच ततो ब्रह्मा स्वयंभूरमितप्रभः ॥ ९ ॥
मित्रावरुणजं तेज आविश त्वं महायशः।
अयोनिजस्त्वं भविता तत्रापि द्विजसत्तम।
धर्मेण महता युक्तः पुनरेष्यसि मे वशम् ॥ १० ॥

“All beings, without a physical body will suffer. Since O Lord! All the activities of a person, who is without physical body, come to a standstill. So be pleased so that I could get a new physical body.” Then self-born Brahmā endowed with infinite splendour said to him, “O highly renowned one! You enter the semen dropped by Mitra and Varuṇa, O best of Brāhmaṇa! There also you will not be born from the womb and endowed with religious merit. You will again come and remain under my control i.e., you will be born as my son.” (8—10)

एवमुक्तस्तु देवेन अभिवाद्य प्रदक्षिणम्।
कृत्वा पितामहं तूर्णं प्रययौ वरुणालयम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Thus told by god Brahmā, and after bowing to him and circumambulating to his right, Vasiṣṭha immediately left for the abode of the god Varuṇa. (11)

तमेव कालं मित्रोऽपि वरुणत्वमकारयत्।
क्षीरोदेन सहोपेतः पूज्यमानः सुरेश्वरैः ॥ १२ ॥

“At that time god Mitra was also sharing the position (status) of Varuṇa, living with the king of the sea of milk and received homage from kings of gods. (12)

एतस्मिन्नेव काले तु उर्वशी परमाप्सराः।
यदृच्छया तमुद्देशमागता सखिभिर्वृता ॥ १३ ॥

“Meanwhile Apsarā Urvaśī, the eminent of the celestial nymphs, accidentally arrived there, accompanied by her nymph friends. (13)

तां दृष्ट्वा रूपसम्पन्नां क्रीडन्तीं वरुणालये।
तदाविशत् परो हर्षो वरुणं चोर्वशीकृते ॥ १४ ॥

“On beholding her, who was sporting in the sea of milk, Varuṇa was thrilled with joy on seeing Urvaśī. (14)

स तां पद्मपलाशाक्षीं पूर्णचन्द्रनिभाननाम्।
वरुणो वरयामास मैथुनायाप्सरोवराम् ॥ १५ ॥

“Varuṇa invited her, the eminent Apsarā, whose eyes were large like the leaf of a lotus and whose face was beautiful like the full moon, for union. (15)

प्रत्युवाच ततः सा तु वरुणं प्राञ्जलिः स्थिता।
मित्रेणाहं वृता साक्षात् पूर्वमेव सुरेश्वर ॥ १६ ॥

“On this she replied to Varuṇa, with folded hands: ‘Sureśwara! I have already been chosen by god Mitra himself.’ (16)

वरुणस्त्वब्रवीद् वाक्यं कन्दर्पशरपीडितः।
इदं तेजः समुत्स्रक्ष्ये कुम्भेऽस्मिन् देवनिर्मिते ॥ १७ ॥
एवमुत्सृज्य सुश्रोणि त्वय्यहं वरवर्णिनि।
कृतकामो भविष्यामि यदि नेच्छसि सङ्गमम् ॥ १८ ॥

Tormented by the arrows of cupid, Varuṇa said the following words: In your presence I cast my semen into this pitcher made by gods, O Pretty woman, having beautiful hips! Thus having dropped my semen, I shall get my desire fulfilled in case you do not desire our physical union. (17-18)

तस्य तल्लोकनाथस्य वरुणस्य सुभाषितम्।
उर्वशी परमप्रीता श्रुत्वा वाक्यमुवाच ह ॥ १९ ॥

“On hearing these sweet words of Varuṇa, the Lord of the western Region known as Varuṇa-Loka, Urvaśī became very happy and said the following words: (19)

काममेतद् भवत्वेवं हृदयं मे त्वयि स्थितम्।

भावश्चाप्यधिकं तुभ्यं देहो मित्रस्य तु प्रभो ॥ २० ॥

“‘Be it so. My heart is set on you. I love you more, but, O Lord! my physical body belongs to Mitra.’ (20)

उर्वश्या एवमुक्तस्तु रेतस्तन्महदद्भुतम्।

ज्वलदग्निसमप्रख्यं तस्मिन् कुम्भे न्यवासृजत् ॥ २१ ॥

“Thus told by Urvaśī, Varuṇa dropped his mighty wonderful semen, which was like a flame of burning fire, into the pitcher. (21)

उर्वशी त्वगमत् तत्र मित्रो वै यत्र देवता।

तां तु मित्रः सुसंकुद्ध उर्वशीमिदमब्रवीत् ॥ २२ ॥

“Urvaśī left for the place where god Mitra was waiting for her. Mitra was infuriated and said to Urvaśī: (22)

मयाभिमन्त्रिता पूर्वं कस्मात् त्वमवसर्जिता।

पतिमन्यं वृतवती किमर्थं दुष्टचारिणि ॥ २३ ॥

“‘You were first invited by me. O impious woman! Why did you forsake me and chose someone else? (23)

अनेन दुष्कृतेन त्वं मत्क्रोधकलुषीकृता।

मनुष्यलोकमास्थाय कंचित् कालं निवत्स्यसि ॥ २४ ॥

“‘Defiled by my anger on account of this sin of yours, you will live for sometime in the world of the mortals. (24)

बुधस्य पुत्रो राजर्षिः काशिराजः पुरुरवाः।

तमभ्यागच्छ दुर्बुद्धे स ते भर्ता भविष्यति ॥ २५ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे षट्पञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-six in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

“‘O Evil-minded one! There is a Rājarsi Purūravā, son of Budha and king of Kāśī. Go to him. He will be your husband.’ (25)

ततः सा शापदोषेण पुरुरवसमभ्यगात्।

प्रतिष्ठाने पुरुरवं बुधस्यात्मजमौरसम् ॥ २६ ॥

“Then as an evil consequence of the curse she went to Budha’s legitimate son, Purūravā, who ruled in the city of Pratiṣṭhāna. (26)

तस्य जज्ञे ततः श्रीमानायुः पुत्रो महाबलः।

नहुषो यस्य पुत्रस्तु बभूवेन्द्रसमद्युतिः ॥ २७ ॥

“From her a majestic son named Āyu endowed with great prowess, was born to him, whose son was Nahuṣa and whose majesty was like that of Indra. (27)

वज्रमुत्सृज्य वृत्राय श्रान्तेऽथ त्रिदिवेश्वरे।

शतं वर्षसहस्राणि येनेन्द्रत्वं प्रशासितम् ॥ २८ ॥

“When Indra vacated his post after hurling his thunderbolt on Vṛtra, Nahuṣa, ruled as Indra for a hundred thousand years. (28)

सा तेन शापेन जगाम भूमिं

तदोर्वशी चारुदती सुनेत्रा।

बहूनि वर्षाण्यवसच्च सुभूः

शापक्षयादिन्द्रसदो ययौ च ॥ २९ ॥

“Thus, following the curse, Urvaśī, who had beautiful teeth and eyes went to the region of the earth and the beautiful woman lived there for several years and when the duration of the curse was over, she repaired to the abode of Indra.” (29)

सप्तपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LVII

Sage Vasiṣṭha is re-incarnated and king Nimi resides in the eye-lids of living beings

तां श्रुत्वा दिव्यसंकाशां कथामद्भुतदर्शनाम् ।
लक्ष्मणः परमप्रीतो राघवं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

On hearing that charming and wonderful story, Lakṣmaṇa became very happy and addressed the following words to Śrī Rāma, a descendant of Raghu: (1)

निक्षिप्तदेहौ काकुत्स्थ कथं तौ द्विजपार्थिवौ ।
पुनर्देहेन संयोगं जग्मतुर्देवसम्मतौ ॥ २ ॥

“O Descendant of Kākutstha! How is it that the Brāhmaṇa Vasiṣṭha and the king Nimi, who were revered even by the gods, again became embodied after having left their body?” (2)

तस्य तद् भाषितं श्रुत्वा रामः सत्यपराक्रमः ।
तां कथां कथयामास वसिष्ठस्य महात्मनः ॥ ३ ॥

On hearing the speech of Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma, who was endowed with true valour, narrated the story of the high-souled Vasiṣṭha. (3)

यः स कुम्भो रघुश्रेष्ठ तेजःपूर्णो महात्मनोः ।
तस्मिंस्तेजोमयौ विप्रौ सम्भूतावृषिसत्तमौ ॥ ४ ॥

“O best among the Raghus! the two brilliant Brāhmaṇas were born from the pitcher which was filled with the lustre (semen) of those two high-souled ones (viz., Mitra and Varuṇa). They were the most eminent sages. (4)

पूर्वं समभवत् तत्र अगस्त्यो भगवानृषिः ।
नाहं सुतस्तवेत्युक्त्वा मित्रं तस्मादपाक्रमत् ॥ ५ ॥

“Out of pitcher the first to be born was the illustrious sage Agastya, ‘I am not only your son,’ thus addressing Mitra he left. (5)

तद्धि तेजस्तु मित्रस्य उर्वश्याः पूर्वमाहितम् ।
तस्मिन् समभवत् कुम्भे तत्तेजो यत्र वारुणम् ॥ ६ ॥

“It was Mitra’s lustre which was deposited first in the presence of Urvaśī. There in that pitcher Varuṇa’s lustre was also added to it. (6)

कस्यचित् त्वथ कालस्य मित्रावरुणसम्भवः ।
वसिष्ठस्तेजसा युक्तो जज्ञे इक्ष्वाकुदैवतम् ॥ ७ ॥

“After sometime from the luster of Mitra and Varuṇa was born the majestic Vasiṣṭha, who became the family-priest of the Ikṣvākus. (7)

तमिक्ष्वाकुर्महातेजा जातमात्रमनिन्दितम् ।
वव्रे पुरोधसं सौम्य वंशस्यास्य हिताय नः ॥ ८ ॥

“O gentle one! No sooner was the blameless Vasiṣṭha born than the most brilliant Ikṣvāku chose him as priest for the welfare of our (the line of Sun or Raghus) family. (8)

एवं त्वपूर्वदेहस्य वसिष्ठस्य महात्मनः ।
कथितो निर्गमः सौम्य निमेः शृणु यथाभवत् ॥ ९ ॥

“O gentle one! Thus I have narrated the account of the birth of the high-souled Vasiṣṭha embodied anew. Now listen to what happened to Nimi. (9)

दृष्ट्वा विदेहं राजानमृषयः सर्व एव ते ।
तं च ते याजयामासुर्यज्ञदीक्षां मनीषिणः ॥ १० ॥

“On seeing that the king was dead, all the wise sages took the initiation for the sacrifice and concluded the sacrifice. (10)

तं च देहं नरेन्द्रस्य रक्षन्ति स्म द्विजोत्तमाः ।
गन्धैर्माल्यैश्च वस्त्रैश्च पौरभृत्यसमन्विताः ॥ ११ ॥

“The eminent Brāhmaṇas or Brāhmarṣis alongwith the citizens and servants preserved the body of the king, together with perfumes, garlands and garments. (11)

ततो यज्ञे समाप्ते तु भृगुस्तत्रेदमब्रवीत् ।
आनयिष्यामि ते चेतस्तुष्टोऽस्मि तव पार्थिव ॥ १२ ॥

“After the conclusion of the sacrifice, Bhṛgu addressed, ‘O King! I am pleased with you. I shall restore your soul (consciousness).’ (12)

सुप्रीताश्च सुराः सर्वे निमेश्चेतस्तदाब्रुवन् ।
वरं वरय राजर्षे क्व ते चेतो निरूप्यताम् ॥ १३ ॥

“All the gods were also very much pleased and thus addressed the King, ‘O sage-king! Ask for a boon. Where should your soul (consciousness) be made to reside?’ (13)

एवमुक्तः सुरैः सर्वैर्निमेश्चेतस्तदाब्रवीत् ।
नेत्रेषु सर्वभूतानां वसेयं सुरसत्तमाः ॥ १४ ॥

“On being thus told by all the gods, the spirit of Nimi said, ‘O Best of gods! Let me dwell on the eye-lids of all living beings.’ (14)

बाढमित्येव विबुधा निमेश्चेतस्तदाब्रुवन् ।
नेत्रेषु सर्वभूतानां वायुभूतश्चरिष्यसि ॥ १५ ॥

“The gods said to Nimi’s spirit: ‘Very well! You will dwell (move about) on the eye-lids of all the living beings in the form of air.’ (15)

त्वत्कृते च निमिष्यन्ति चक्षूंषि पृथिवीपते ।
वायुभूतेन चरता विश्रामार्थं मुहुर्मुहुः ॥ १६ ॥

“O Lord of the earth! In order to provide rest to you, who would be ever moving about in the form of air, living beings shall blink their eyes frequently.’ (16)

एवमुक्त्वा तु विबुधाः सर्वे जग्मुर्यथागतम् ।
ऋषयोऽपि महात्मानो निमेर्देहं समाहरन् ॥ १७ ॥

अरणिं तत्र निक्षिप्य मथनं चकुरोजसा ।
मन्त्रहोमैर्महात्मानः पुत्रहेतोर्निमेस्तदा ॥ १८ ॥
अरण्यां मथ्यमानायां प्रादुर्भूतो महातपाः ।
मथनान्मिथिरित्याहुर्जननाज्जनकोऽभवत् ॥ १९ ॥
यस्माद् विदेहात् सम्भूतो वैदेहस्तु ततः स्मृतः ।
एवं विदेहराजश्च जनकः पूर्वकोऽभवत् ।
मिथिर्नाम महातेजास्तेनायं मैथिलोऽभवत् ॥ २० ॥

“Having said thus, all the gods left as they had come. The high-souled sages held Nimi’s body and started churning Araṇi vigorously. In order that a son should be born to Nimi, when the high-souled ones were subjecting the fire-producing wood to friction and performing ‘oblation’ and reciting hymns a son was born called Mithi, by the great ascetics. He was called Videha as he was born of ‘Videha’. He was called Mithi, having been born from friction. He was called Janaka, since he was born in a mysterious manner. Thus at first the illustrious Janaka was also called Mithi, and hence the dynasty of Janaka was called Maithila (Dynasty). (17—20)

इति सर्वमशेषतो मया
कथितं सम्भवकारणं तु सौम्य ।
नृपपुङ्गवशापजं द्विजस्य
द्विजशापाच्च यदद्भुतं नृपस्य ॥ २१ ॥

“O Gentle-one! I have thus fully narrated the circumstances leading to the birth of Brāhmaṇa Vasiṣṭha as a result of the curse of Nimi, the foremost among kings and of king Nimi as a result of the curse of Brāhmaṇa Vasiṣṭha.” (21)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे सप्तपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-seven in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टपञ्चाशः सर्गः

Canto LVIII

Śukrācārya curses king Yayāti

एवं ब्रुवति रामे तु लक्ष्मणः परवीरहा ।
प्रत्युवाच महात्मानं ज्वलन्तमिव तेजसा ॥ १ ॥
महद्भुतमाश्चर्यं विदेहस्य पुरातनम् ।
निर्वृत्तं राजशार्दूल वसिष्ठस्य मुनेश्च ह ॥ २ ॥

Thus spoken to by Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa, the destroyer of the heroes among foes, spoke thus to the noble one, Śrī Rāma, lustrous with vigour: 'O Lion among kings, that which took place to Vasiṣṭha, Videha, who had no mortal frame in ancient times, was indeed surprising and caused great wonder. (1-2)

निमिस्तु क्षत्रियः शूरो विशेषेण च दीक्षितः ।
न क्षमं कृतवान् राजा वसिष्ठस्य महात्मनः ॥ ३ ॥

"The Kṣatriya king Nimi, the brave and well-initiated one, on his part did not behave properly, by not forgiving the noble Vasiṣṭha." (3)

एवमुक्तस्तु तेनायं रामः क्षत्रियपुङ्गवः ।
उवाच लक्ष्मणं वाक्यं सर्वशास्त्रविशारदम् ॥ ४ ॥

Thus addressed to by him (Lakṣmaṇa), the foremost among the Kṣatriyas, Śrī Rāma uttered the following words to Lakṣmaṇa, who was well-versed in all the Śāstras. (4)

रामो रमयतां श्रेष्ठो भ्रातरं दीप्ततेजसम् ।
न सर्वत्र क्षमा वीर पुरुषेषु प्रदृश्यते ॥ ५ ॥

Śrī Rāma the best among those who cause pleasure to others, spoke to his brother illuminated with vigour: "O brave one, forgiveness is not found among all kinds of men. (5)

सौमित्रे दुःसहो रोषो यथा क्षान्तो ययातिना ।
सत्त्वानुगं पुरस्कृत्य तन्निबोध समाहितः ॥ ६ ॥

"O son of Sumitrā, listen with attention as to how the unbearable rage was mitigated by Yayāti, resorting to a device, where the Sattva Guṇa was predominant. (6)

नहुषस्य सुतो राजा ययातिः पौरवर्धनः ।
तस्य भार्याद्वयं सौम्य रूपेणाप्रतिमं भुवि ॥ ७ ॥

"There was a king Yayāti, the son of Nahuṣa, the bringer of prosperity to the citizens. His two spouses were paragons of unequal beauty, indeed. (7)

एका तु तस्य राजर्षेर्नाहुषस्य पुरस्कृता ।
शर्मिष्ठा नाम दैतेयी दुहिता वृषपर्वणः ॥ ८ ॥

"One of these, the daughter of Vṛṣaparvā, the grand-daughter of Diti, Śarmiṣṭhā by name was held in great esteem by the Ṛṣi among Kings, Nahuṣa. (8)

अन्या तूशनसः पत्नी ययातेः पुरुषर्षभ ।
न तु सा दयिता राज्ञो देवयानी सुमध्यमा ॥ ९ ॥

"The other, the daughter of Uśanā, the wife of Yayāti, Devayānī by name. O bull among men, was not loved by the King, although she possessed a beautiful form. (9)

तयोः पुत्रौ तु सम्भूतौ रूपवन्तौ समाहितौ ।
शर्मिष्ठाजनयत् पूरुं देवयानी यदुं तदा ॥ १० ॥

"Two sons were born to them, who were handsome and devoted. Śarmiṣṭhā begot Pūru; while Devayānī gave birth to Yadu. (10)

पूरुस्तु दयितो राज्ञो गुणैर्मातृकृतेन च ।
ततो दुःखसमाविष्टो यदुर्मातरमब्रवीत् ॥ ११ ॥

भार्गवस्य कुले जाता देवस्याक्लिष्टकर्मणः ।
सहसे हृद्गतं दुःखमवमानं च दुःसहम् ॥ १२ ॥

"Pūru was the beloved of the King, by his own merits and also due to being the progeny of his mother. Consequently, Yadu being in grief addressed his mother thus: 'Born in the family of the Bhārgava (son of Bhrgu), the lord of unwearied action, you bear up with mental sorrow and unbearable insult. (11-12)

आवां च सहितौ देवि प्रविशाव हुताशनम् ।
राजा तु रमतां सार्धं दैत्यपुत्र्या बहुक्षपाः ॥ १३ ॥

‘O mother, we shall enter the fire together, may the King enjoy himself with the daughter of the son of Diti for many nights. (13)

यदि वा सहनीयं ते मामनुज्ञातुमर्हसि।
क्षम त्वं न क्षमिष्येऽहं मरिष्यामि न संशयः ॥ १४ ॥

‘If, however, you consider it as endurable by you, allow me to depart. You may bear up with it, but I cannot bear. I shall die without hesitation.’ (14)

पुत्रस्य भाषितं श्रुत्वा परमार्तस्य रोदतः।
देवयानी तु संक्रुद्धा सस्मार पितरं तदा ॥ १५ ॥

Hearing the words of her son, who was full in tears due to great agony, Devayānī in rage remembered her Father. (15)

इङ्गितं तदभिज्ञाय दुहितुर्भार्गवस्तदा।
आगतस्त्वरितं तत्र देवयानी स्म यत्र सा ॥ १६ ॥

Knowing the feelings of his daughter, the son of Bhṛgu (Ācārya Śukra) came in haste there where Devayānī was staying. (16)

दृष्ट्वा चाप्रकृतिस्थां तामग्रहष्टामचेतनाम्।
पिता दुहितरं वाक्यं किमेतदिति चाब्रवीत् ॥ १७ ॥

Finding Devayānī not in her normal state and almost unconscious with pain and unhappy, the father (Bhārgava) Śukra enquired the daughter as to what had caused her such grief. (17)

पृच्छन्तमसकृत् तं वै भार्गवं दीप्ततेजसम्।
देवयानी तु संक्रुद्धा पितरं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ १८ ॥
अहमग्निं विषं तीक्ष्णमपो वा मुनिसत्तम।
भक्षयिष्ये प्रवेक्ष्ये वा न तु शक्ष्यामि जीवितुम् ॥ १९ ॥

Devayānī in anger said thus to her father, the son of Bhṛgu who was mentally roused and had asked her several times the cause of her anger. ‘O Best among the ascetics, I shall indeed enter fire or water or take strong poison. It is indeed not possible for me to live. (18-19)

न मां त्वमवजानीषे दुःखितामवमानिताम्।
वृक्षस्यावज्ञया ब्रह्मंश्छिद्यन्ते वृक्षजीविनः ॥ २० ॥

‘You do not know how I am pained and insulted, O Brāhmaṇa. Having no tender feelings for the tree, its leaves and flowers are cut and destroyed. (20)

अवज्ञया च राजर्षिः परिभूय च भार्गव।
मय्यवज्ञां प्रयुङ्क्ते हि न च मां बहु मन्यते ॥ २१ ॥

‘The Ṛṣi among Kings, causing insult to me, ignores me and does not look upon me as one worthy of consideration.’ (21)

तस्यास्तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा कोपेनाभिपरीवृतः।
व्याहर्तुमुपचक्राम भार्गवो नहुषात्मजम् ॥ २२ ॥

Hearing these words of Devayānī, before himself, the son of Bhṛgu was highly enraged and he uttered curse to the son of Nahuṣa: (22)

यस्मान्मामवजानीषे नाहुष त्वं दुरात्मवान्।
वयसा जरया जीर्णः शैथिल्यमुपयास्यसि ॥ २३ ॥

‘O son of Nahuṣa, O ignoble one, as you insult me, so you shall lose all your organ power, and become weakened by old age.’ (23)

एवमुक्त्वा दुहितरं समाश्वास्य स भार्गवः।
पुनर्जगाम ब्रह्मर्षिर्भवनं स्वं महायशाः ॥ २४ ॥

Thus having uttered the curse and consoled his daughter, that son of Bhṛgu, the Brāhmaṇa Ṛṣi, the famous one, departed to his abode. (24)

स एवमुक्त्वा द्विजपुङ्गवाग्रयः
सुतां समाश्वास्य च देवयानीम्।

पुनर्ययौ सूर्यसमानतेजा
दत्त्वा च शापं नहुषात्मजाय ॥ २५ ॥

The best among the twice-born, thus said and consoled Devayānī, he with sunlike lustre, repaired pronouncing curse on Yayāti, the son of Nahuṣa. (25)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डेऽष्टपञ्चाशः सर्गः ॥ ५८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-eight in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LIX

King Yayāti borrows youth from his son Pūru, in exchange for his own old age. Satisfied after a long time with the enjoyment of the objects of pleasure, he returns his youth to Pūru and consecrates him king and pronounces curse on Yadu

श्रुत्वा तूशनसं क्रुद्धं तदार्तो नहुषात्मजः ।
जरां परमिकां प्राप्य यदुं वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the words of Uśanā uttered in rage, the penitent son of Nahuṣa, Yayāti, then possessed of ripe old age said to Yadu:

यदो त्वमसि धर्मज्ञो मदर्थं प्रतिगृह्यताम् ।
जरा परमिका पुत्र भोगे रंस्ये महायशः ॥ २ ॥

‘O Yadu, my son of a great fame, you are righteous, accept for my sake my old age, may I enjoy the objects of desire. (2)

न तावत् कृतकृत्योऽस्मि विषयेषु नरर्षभ ।
अनुभूय तदा कामं ततः प्राप्स्याम्यहं जराम् ॥ ३ ॥

‘I have not been satisfied with the pleasure of senses. O bull among men, having experienced the joy of senses, I shall again attain my old age’ (3)

यदुस्तद्वचनं श्रुत्वा प्रत्युवाच नरर्षभम् ।
पुत्रस्ते दयितः पूरुः प्रतिगृह्णातु वै जराम् ॥ ४ ॥

Hearing these words of Yayāti, Yadu replied to the bull among men (Yayāti), ‘Pūru is your dear son, may he accept the old age. (4)

बहिष्कृतोऽहमर्थेषु संनिकर्षाच्च पार्थिव ।
प्रतिगृह्णातु वै राजन् यैः सहाशनासि भोजनम् ॥ ५ ॥

‘O King, I have been deprived of the objects of desire and wealth and also your company. He alone among men with whom you take your food, can accept it.’ (5)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा राजा पूरुमथाब्रवीत् ।
इयं जरा महाबाहो मदर्थं प्रतिगृह्यताम् ॥ ६ ॥

Hearing these words spoken by him,

Yayāti, the king then said to Pūru: ‘O one of long-arms, please accept this old age.’ (6)

नाहुषेणैवमुक्तस्तु पूरुः प्राञ्जलिरब्रवीत् ।
धन्योऽस्म्यनुगृहीतोऽस्मि शासनेऽस्मि तव स्थितः ॥ ७ ॥

Thus requested by Yayāti, the son of Nahuṣa, Pūru with folded hands said: ‘I am fortunate and feel obliged to you, I am at your command.’ (7)

पूरोर्वचनमाज्ञाय नाहुषः परया मुदा ।
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे जरां संक्रामयच्च ताम् ॥ ८ ॥

Having heard the word of Pūru, the son of Nahuṣa, Yayāti, was highly pleased, and transferred that old age to him. (8)

ततः स राजा तरुणः प्राप्य यज्ञान् सहस्रशः ।
बहुवर्षसहस्राणि पालयामास मेदिनीम् ॥ ९ ॥

Then the youthful king, having performed a thousandfold sacrifices ruled over the earth for many thousand years. (9)

अथ दीर्घस्य कालस्य राजा पूरुमथाब्रवीत् ।
आनयस्व जरां पुत्र न्यासं निर्यातयस्व मे ॥ १० ॥

Then after a long time the king spoke thus to Pūru: ‘O dear son, bring forth my old age, return that which was deposited in you as trust. (10)

न्यासभूता मया पुत्र त्वयि संक्रामिता जरा ।
तस्मात् प्रतिगृहीष्यामि तां जरां मा व्यथां कृथाः ॥ ११ ॥

‘O son! the old age which was in the form of deposit, was transferred to you; therefore, now I shall take back my old age, do not feel pained. (11)

प्रीतश्चास्मि महाबाहो शासनस्य प्रतिग्रहात् ।
त्वां चाहमभिषेक्ष्यामि प्रीतियुक्तो नराधिपम् ॥ १२ ॥

‘O one of long-arms, I am pleased by your acceptance of my command, I shall also consecrate you with joy as a ruler of the subjects among men.’ (12)

एवमुक्त्वा सुतं पूरुं ययातिर्नहुषात्मजः ।
देवयानीसुतं क्रुद्धो राजा वाक्यमुवाच ह ॥ १३ ॥
राक्षसस्त्वं मया जातः क्षत्ररूपो दुरासदः ।
प्रतिहंसि ममाज्ञां त्वं प्रजार्थे विफलो भव ॥ १४ ॥

Thus having spoken to his son Pūru, Yayāti, the son of Nahuṣa, in anger uttered these words to the son of Devayānī: ‘By me, you are born a Rākṣasa (demon) in the form of Kṣatriya. As you defy my orders you lose chance to rule over the subjects. (13-14)

पितरं गुरुभूतं मां यस्मात् त्वमवमन्यसे ।
राक्षसान् यातुधानांस्त्वं जनयिष्यसि दारुणान् ॥ १५ ॥

‘As thou showest disrespect to me, your father and preceptor, you will create the cruel Rākṣasas and Yātudhānas (evil spirits). (15)

न तु सोमकुलोत्पन्ने वंशे स्थास्यति दुर्मतेः ।
वंशोऽपि भवतस्तुल्यो दुर्विनीतो भविष्यति ॥ १६ ॥

‘Your progeny will not belong to the family originating from the race of Soma, the moon. O evil-minded one, your family will also be wicked as you are.’ (16)

तमेवमुक्त्वा राजर्षिः पूरुं राज्यविवर्धनम् ।
अभिषेकेण सम्पूज्य आश्रमं प्रविवेश ह ॥ १७ ॥

Thus admonishing Yadu then, honouring Pūru, the enhancer of the royal suzerainty with consecration, entered the other Āśrama (Vānaprastha). (17)

ततः कालेन महता दिष्टान्तमुपजग्मिवान् ।
त्रिदिवं स गतो राजा ययातिर्नहुषात्मजः ॥ १८ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकोनषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ५९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Fifty-nine in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

Then after a long time approaching his destiny as desired, the king Yayāti (the son of Nahuṣa) departed to heaven. (18)

पूरुश्चकार तद् राज्यं धर्मेण महता वृतः ।
प्रतिष्ठाने पुरवरे काशिराज्ये महायशाः ॥ १९ ॥

Pūru the mighty one ruled with great righteousness in the famous city of Pratiṣṭhāna in the kingdom of Kāśī. (19)

यदुस्तु जनयामास यातुधानान् सहस्रशः ।
पुरे क्रौञ्चवने दुर्गे राजवंशबहिष्कृतः ॥ २० ॥

Yadu produced Yātudhānas (evil beings) in thousands, in the forest of Krauñcavana, difficult to traverse, banished as he was from the royal family. (20)

एष तूशनसा मुक्तः शापोत्सर्गो ययातिना ।
धारितः क्षत्रधर्मेण यं निमिश्चक्षमे न च ॥ २१ ॥

This is how the mighty curse that was uttered by Uśanā, which fell on Yayāti, was borne by him according to the code of conduct of the Kṣatriyas, and which Nimi could not forbear. (21)

एतत् ते सर्वमाख्यातं दर्शनं सर्वकारिणाम् ।
अनुवर्तमहे सौम्य दोषो न स्याद् यथा नृगे ॥ २२ ॥

“All this has been narrated to you; we shall grant audience to all who come for action, so that we do not commit the fault that was committed by the king, Nrga.” (22)

इति कथयति रामे चन्द्रतुल्याननेन
प्रविरलतरतारं व्योम जज्ञे तदानीम् ।

अरुणकिरणरक्ता दिग् बभौ चैव पूर्य
कुसुमरसविमुक्तं वस्त्रमागुण्ठितेव ॥ २३ ॥

As Rāma with moon-like face narrated this, the sky with fading stars appeared. The eastern quarter shone with red rays as if enveloped with a red garment. (23)

प्रक्षिप्तः सर्गः १

Interpolated Canto 1

A dog arrives at the Royal palace-gate with a request,
Śrī Rāma orders for ushering

ततः प्रभाते विमले कृत्वा पौर्वाह्निकीं क्रियाम् ।
धर्मासनगतो राजा रामो राजीवलोचनः ॥ १ ॥
राजधर्मानवेक्षन् वै ब्राह्मणैर्नैगमैः सह ।
पुरोधसा वसिष्ठेन ऋषिणा कश्यपेन च ॥ २ ॥

Thereafter in the bright morning Śrī Rāma, of lotus-like eye having performed forenoon rites, took his seat in the Royal Council-chamber alongwith the Brāhmaṇas, who were masters of the Vedas, the priest Vasiṣṭha and the sage Kaśyapa, in order to look into the royal business. (1-2)

मन्त्रिभिर्व्यवहारज्ञैस्तथान्यैर्धर्मपाठकैः ।
नीतिज्ञैरथ सभ्यैश्च राजभिः सा सभा वृता ॥ ३ ॥

The royal council (assembly) consisted of ministers, knowers of common practices, legal procedures and other teachers of laws who recite scriptures, diplomats (statesmen), kings and other members of the council. (3)

सभा यथा महेन्द्रस्य यमस्य वरुणस्य च ।
शुशुभे राजसिंहस्य रामस्याक्लिष्टकर्मणः ॥ ४ ॥

The assembly of Śrī Rāma, the chief of kings and unwearied in actions looked graceful like the assembly of Indra, Yama and Varuṇa. (4)

अथ रामोऽब्रवीत् तत्र लक्ष्मणं शुभलक्षणम् ।
निर्गच्छ त्वं महाबाहो सुमित्रानन्दवर्धन ॥ ५ ॥
कार्यार्थिनश्च सौमित्रे व्याहर्तुं त्वमुपाक्रम ।
रामस्य भाषितं श्रुत्वा लक्ष्मणः शुभलक्षणः ॥ ६ ॥
द्वारदेशमुपागम्य कार्यिणश्चाह्वयत् स्वयम् ।
न कश्चिदब्रवीत् तत्र मम कार्यमिहाद्य वै ॥ ७ ॥

Then Śrī Rāma said to Lakṣmaṇa, who was seated there and who was characterised by auspicious marks, 'O Long-armed Lakṣmaṇa! go out and call by turn those, who have come with some business'. Having listened to Śrī Rāma's order, Lakṣmaṇa endowed with auspicious marks, going to the palace-gate himself called those who had come with some request. None there came forward saying that he had some request to make. (5—7)

नाधयो व्याधयश्चैव रामे राज्यं प्रशासति ।
पक्वसस्या वसुमती सर्वौषधिसमन्विता ॥ ८ ॥
न बालो प्रियते तत्र न युवा न च मध्यमः ।
धर्मेण शासितं सर्वं न च बाधा विधीयते ॥ ९ ॥
दृश्यते न च कार्यार्थी रामे राज्यं प्रशासति ।
लक्ष्मणः प्राञ्जलिर्भूत्वा रामायैवं न्यवेदयत् ॥ १० ॥

During the reign of Śrī Rāma no one was offended by either physical or mental ailment. The earth abounded in all kinds of plants and fully ripe agricultural produce. Thus in His kingdom neither any child nor any young man nor any middle-aged person died. Everything was administered according to 'Dharma' (moral law). No hindrance was ever put. While Śrī Rāma ruled over the kingdom no one was seen coming with any request with folded hands, Lakṣmaṇa communicated all this to Him. (8—10)

अथ रामः प्रसन्नात्मा सौमित्रिमिदमब्रवीत् ।
भूय एव तु गच्छ त्वं कार्यिणः प्रविचारय ॥ ११ ॥
सम्यक्प्रणीतया नीत्या नाधर्मो विद्यते क्वचित् ।
तस्माद् राजभयात् सर्वे रक्षन्तीह परस्परम् ॥ १२ ॥
बाणा इव मया मुक्ता इह रक्षन्ति मे प्रजाः ।
तथापि त्वं महाबाहो प्रजा रक्षस्व तत्परः ॥ १३ ॥

Then the gracious-minded Śrī Rāma addressed the following words to Lakṣmaṇa, "Go again and find out about those who have come with some request." When the state policy is formulated properly and executed well, unrighteousness does not prevail anywhere. Therefore all persons protect one another due to the fear from the king (due to the apprehension of royal punishment). My officers protect the subjects like arrows shot by Me. Even then, O long-armed one! protect the subjects righteously. (11—13)

एवमुक्तस्तु सौमित्रिर्निर्जगाम नृपालयात्।
अपश्यद् द्वारदेशे वै श्वानं तावदवस्थितम् ॥ १४ ॥
तमेव वीक्षमाणं वै विक्रोशन्तं मुहुर्मुहुः।
दृष्ट्वाथ लक्ष्मणस्तं वै स पप्रच्छाथ वीर्यवान् ॥ १५ ॥
किं ते कार्यं महाभाग ब्रूहि विस्रब्धमानसः।
लक्ष्मणस्य वचः श्रुत्वा सारमेयोऽभ्यभाषत ॥ १६ ॥

Thus told by Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa went out of the royal palace and saw a dog at the gate, which stood there looking at him and repeatedly barking. On seeing him, then the valiant Lakṣmaṇa asked—‘O Illustrious one! Tell me fearlessly your problem.’ On hearing Lakṣmaṇa’s words the dog replied thus: (14—16)

सर्वभूतशरण्याय रामायाक्लिष्टकर्मणे।
भयेष्वभयदात्रे च तस्मै वक्तुं समुत्सहे ॥ १७ ॥

‘I can dare tell Śrī Rāma, who is a refuge to all living beings, who is ever unwearied in action and ensures protection whenever there is occasion for fear.’ (17)

एतच्छ्रुत्वा च वचनं सारमेयस्य लक्ष्मणः।
राघवाय तदाख्यातुं प्रविवेशालयं शुभम् ॥ १८ ॥
निवेद्य रामस्य पुनर्निर्जगाम नृपालयात्।
वक्तव्यं यदि ते किञ्चित् तत्त्वं ब्रूहि नृपाय वै ॥ १९ ॥

On hearing the dog’s speech, Lakṣmaṇa entered the auspicious royal palace in order to communicate the same to Śrī Rāma and after informing Him, Lakṣmaṇa came out of the royal palace and said to the dog, “If you have to say something, then tell the king about it.” (18-19)

लक्ष्मणस्य वचः श्रुत्वा सारमेयोऽभ्यभाषत।
देवागारे नृपागारे द्विजवेश्मसु वै तथा ॥ २० ॥
वह्निः शतक्रतुश्चैव सूर्यो वायुश्च तिष्ठति।
नात्र योग्यास्तु सौमित्रे योनीनामधमा वयम् ॥ २१ ॥

Having heard Lakṣmaṇa’s speech the dog said, ‘Agni (the Fire-god), Indra, Sūrya (the sun-god) and Vāyu (the wind-god) are present in the temples, the royal abode and the houses of Brāhmaṇas. O Lakṣmaṇa! we, of the lowest origin, are unfit to go there. (20-21)

प्रवेष्टुं नात्र शक्ष्यामि धर्मो विग्रहवान् नृपः।
सत्यवादी रणपटुः सर्वसत्त्वहिते रतः ॥ २२ ॥

‘I shall not be able to enter there (the royal palace). King Śrī Rāma is ‘Dharma.’ He speaks the truth, He is adept in battle-fighting and is devoted to doing good to all the people. (22)

षाड्गुण्यस्य पदं वेत्ति नीतिकर्ता स राघवः।
सर्वज्ञः सर्वदर्शी च रामो रमयतां वरः ॥ २३ ॥

‘Śrī Rāma knows the appropriate time for the petitioners—practice of the six Guṇas. He dispenses justice. He is omniscient, He sees all things. Śrī Rāma is foremost among those who delight others. (23)

स सोमः स च मृत्युश्च स यमो धनदस्तथा।
वह्निः शतक्रतुश्चैव सूर्यो वै वरुणस्तथा ॥ २४ ॥

‘He is Soma, He is Death. He is Yama (God of Death). He is Kubera, Agni and Indra, and He is Sūrya, the sun, and Varuṇa. (24)

तस्य त्वं ब्रूहि सौमित्रे प्रजापालः स राघवः।
अनाज्ञप्तस्तु सौमित्रे प्रवेष्टुं नेच्छ्याम्यहम् ॥ २५ ॥

‘Śrī Rāma is the protector of the subjects. O Lakṣmaṇa! tell Him, “Without permission, I do not want to enter the royal palace.’ (25)

आनृशंस्यान्महाभागः प्रविवेश महाद्युतिः।
नृपालयं प्रविश्याथ लक्ष्मणो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ २६ ॥

On hearing this, the illustrious and glorious Lakṣmaṇa having entered the royal abode out of compassion said the following words: (26)

श्रूयतां मम विज्ञाप्यं कौसल्यानन्दवर्धन।
यन्मयोक्तं महाबाहो तव शासनजं विभो ॥ २७ ॥

श्वः वै ते तिष्ठते द्वारि कार्यार्थी समुपागतः ।
लक्ष्मणस्य वचः श्रुत्वा रामो वचनमब्रवीत् ।
सम्प्रवेशय वै क्षिप्रं कार्यार्थी योऽत्र तिष्ठति ॥ २८ ॥

‘O Śrī Rāma! listen to what I have to say. O delighter of Kausalyā! O long-armed one! O lord! According to what you had commanded, I called on those who have come with some business. A dog, which has come with a request is standing at your palace-gate.’ After hearing Lakṣmaṇa’s speech, Śrī Rāma said: “Let it enter quickly, the one standing there with some request.” (27-28)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे प्रक्षिप्तः सर्गः ॥ १ ॥

Thus ends the Interpolated Canto One in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

प्रक्षिप्तः सर्गः २

Interpolated Canto II

Śrī Rāma does justice to the dog and makes the Brāhmaṇa ‘Kulapati’ (a ‘Mahanta’) of Kalañjara. The dog points out the evils associated with being Kulapati

श्रुत्वा रामस्य वचनं लक्ष्मणस्त्वरितस्तदा ।
श्वानमाहूय मतिमान् राघवाय न्यवेदयत् ॥ १ ॥
दृष्ट्वा समागतं श्वानं रामो वचनमब्रवीत् ।
विवक्षितार्थं मे ब्रूहि सारमेय न ते भयम् ॥ २ ॥

On hearing Śrī Rāma’s speech, the wise Lakṣmaṇa, after hurriedly calling the dog, informed Śrī Rāma about its (the dog’s) arrival, and presented him before Śrī Rāma. Having seen the dog that had come, Śrī Rāma said to him, ‘O dog! Tell me what you have to say, you need not fear at all.’ (1-2)
अथापश्यत् तत्रस्थं रामं श्वः भिन्नमस्तकः ।
ततो दृष्ट्वा स राजानं सारमेयोऽब्रवीद् वचः ॥ ३ ॥

Thereafter the dog whose skull was shattered saw Śrī Rāma seated there. Having seen the king, the dog addressed the following speech: (3)

राजैव कर्ता भूतानां राजा चैव विनायकः ।
राजा सुमेषु जागर्ति राजा पालयति प्रजाः ॥ ४ ॥

“The king is the creator of all living beings and the king is the leader of men. The king remains awake, when others are asleep. The king protects the subjects. (4)

नीत्या सुनीतया राजा धर्मं रक्षति रक्षितः ।
यदा न पालयेद् राजा क्षिप्रं नश्यन्ति वै प्रजाः ॥ ५ ॥

“The king, who is the protector of all, protects Dharma by pursuing right policy. When the king does not protect, the subjects perish soon. (5)

राजा कर्ता च गोप्ता च सर्वस्य जगतः पिता ।
राजा कालो युगं चैव राजा सर्वमिदं जगत् ॥ ६ ॥

“The king is the creator, protector and father of the entire world. The king is the time (sets the trend of the times) and the ‘Yuga’ (a particular age of the world). The king is the whole world. (6)

धारणाद् धर्ममित्याहुर्धर्मेण विधृताः प्रजाः ।
यस्माद् धारयते सर्वं त्रैलोक्यं सचराचरम् ॥ ७ ॥

“They call it ‘Dharma’, for it sustains the world. The created beings are sustained by ‘Dharma’. Since it supports the three worlds together with all the movable and immovable things. (7)

धारणाद् विद्विषां चैव धर्मेणारञ्जयन् प्रजाः ।
तस्माद् धारणमित्युक्तं स धर्म इति निश्चयः ॥ ८ ॥

“He sustains even his enemies, puts them on the right path and delights his subjects by 'Dharma'. Therefore, he (his rule) is known as 'Dharma'. (8)

एष राजन् परो धर्मः फलवान् प्रेत्य राघव।
नहि धर्माद् भवेत् किञ्चिद् दुष्प्रापमिति मे मतिः ॥ ९ ॥

"This act of 'Dhāraṇa' or sustaining is 'Dharma'—this is the conclusion. O king Śrī Rāma, this is the highest 'Dharma' which yields reward after death. My view is that nothing is unattainable by 'Dharma'. (9)

दानं दया सतां पूजा व्यवहारेषु चार्जवम्।
एष राम परो धर्मो रक्षणात् प्रेत्य चेह च ॥ १० ॥

"Charity, compassion, honouring noble men, straight-forwardness in behaviour, O Rāma! this is the 'Dharma' in this life and the life hereafter that accrues from protecting the subjects. (10)

त्वं प्रमाणं प्रमाणानामसि राघव सुव्रत।
विदितश्चैव ते धर्मः सद्भिराचरितस्तु वै ॥ ११ ॥
धर्माणां त्वं परं धाम गुणानां सागरोपमः।
अज्ञानाच्च मया राजन्नुक्तस्त्वं राजसत्तम ॥ १२ ॥
प्रसादयामि शिरसा न त्वं क्रोद्धुमिहार्हसि।
शुनः स वचनं श्रुत्वा राघवो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ १३ ॥

"O Rāma, strict observer of vows! You are the authority par-excellence. You are conversant with the 'Dharma', which is practised by good people. You are the supreme abode of 'Dharmas' (Duties) and an ocean of virtues, as it were. I spoke out of my ignorance. Bowing my head, I pray, You should not get angry on this account." (11—13)

किं ते कार्यं करोम्यद्य ब्रूहि विस्त्रब्ध मा चिरम्।
रामस्य वचनं श्रुत्वा सारमेयोऽब्रवीदिदम् ॥ १४ ॥
धर्मेण राष्ट्रं विन्देत धर्मैणैवानुपालयेत्।
धर्माच्छरण्यतां याति राजा सर्वभयापहः ॥ १५ ॥

On this Śrī Rāma told the dog: "Tell me fearlessly what I should do for you. Do not delay," On hearing Rāma's speech, the dog addressed the following words: 'The king should acquire territory by 'Dharma' and should protect it by 'Dharma.' The king comes to be recognized as a refuge and dispels all fear. (14-15)

इदं विज्ञाय यत् कृत्यं श्रूयतां मम राघव।
भिक्षुः सर्वार्थसिद्धश्च ब्राह्मणावसथे वसन् ॥ १६ ॥

"Having realized this, O Rāma! listen to what you have to do for me. There is a mendicant, named Sarvārthasiddha, who lives in the house of a Brāhmaṇa. Without any cause he struck at me! sinless though I was." (16)

तेन दत्तः प्रहारो मे निष्कारणमनागसः।
एतच्छ्रुत्वा तु रामेण द्वाःस्थः सम्प्रेषितस्तदा ॥ १७ ॥
आनीतश्च द्विजस्तेन सर्वसिद्धार्थकोविदः।
अथ द्विजवरस्तत्र रामं दृष्ट्वा महाद्युतिः ॥ १८ ॥
किं ते कार्यं मया राम तद् ब्रूहि त्वं ममानघ।
एवमुक्तस्तु विप्रेण रामो वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ १९ ॥
त्वया दत्तः प्रहारोऽयं सारमेयस्य वै द्विज।
किं तवापकृतं विप्र दण्डेनाभिहतो यतः ॥ २० ॥
क्रोधः प्राणहरः शत्रुः क्रोधो मित्रमुखो रिपुः।
क्रोधो ह्यसिर्महातीक्ष्णः सर्वं क्रोधोऽपकर्षति ॥ २१ ॥
तपते यजते चैव यच्च दानं प्रयच्छति।
क्रोधेन सर्वं हरति तस्मात् क्रोधं विसर्जयेत् ॥ २२ ॥
इन्द्रियाणां प्रदुष्टानां हयानामिव धावताम्।
कुर्वीत धृत्या सारथ्यं संहत्येन्द्रियगोचरम् ॥ २३ ॥

On hearing this, Śrī Rāma sent the gatekeeper, who brought the learned Brāhmaṇa Sarvārthasiddha by name. Thus the eminent Brāhmaṇa, endowed with splendour seeing Śrī Rāma there asked him, 'O sinless Śrī Rāma! Tell me what do you want me to do for you?'

Thus told by the Brāhmaṇa, Śrī Rāma addressed the following words, 'O Brāhmaṇa! You hurt the dog. What ill did it do to you, for which you struck it with a stick? Anger is a deadly enemy, anger is a friend-faced enemy. Anger is a highly sharp sword. Anger takes away everything, destroys all virtues. Whichever sacrifices a person performs and whatever in charity he gives, all that he destroys by anger. Therefore, one should give up anger and control like a charioteer, one's senses, running forth towards their objects like very wicked horses, after turning them away from their objects (17—23)

मनसा कर्मणा वाचा चक्षुषा च समाचरेत्।
श्रेयो लोकस्य चरतो न द्वेष्टि न च लिप्यते ॥ २४ ॥
न तत् कुर्यादसिस्तीक्ष्णः सर्पो वा व्याहतः पदा।
अरिर्वा नित्यसंकुद्धो यथाऽऽत्मा दुरनुष्ठितः ॥ २५ ॥
विनीतविनयस्यापि प्रकृतिर्न विधीयते।
प्रकृतिं गूहमानस्य निश्चयेन कृतिर्धुवा ॥ २६ ॥

“A man should do good to the people around himself by thought, by action and by speech. He should not hurt anybody. No sin, therefore, will attach to him. The harm, which is wrought by evil thoughts, are not done by a sharp sword or a serpent trampled by foot or an ever wrathful enemy. One who has learnt discipline, even his temperament cannot be changed. Even if someone conceals his evil nature, it is surely betrayed by his action. (24—26)

एवमुक्तः स विप्रो वै रामेणाक्लिष्टकर्मणा।
द्विजः सर्वार्थसिद्धस्तु अब्रवीद् रामसंनिधौ ॥ २७ ॥

Thus asked by Śrī Rāma, who was unwearied in actions, the Brāhmaṇa Sarvārthasiddha said this in Śrī Rāma's presence: (27)

मया दत्तप्रहारोऽयं क्रोधेनाविष्टचेतसा।
भिक्षार्थमटमानेन काले विगतभैक्षके ॥ २८ ॥
रथ्यास्थितस्त्वयं श्वा वै गच्छ गच्छेति भाषितः।
अथ स्वैरेण गच्छंस्तु रथ्यान्ते विषमं स्थितः ॥ २९ ॥

“While I was going about for begging food the appropriate time for begging had passed, I was overpowered by anger, so I beat it. The dog, which was standing on the road (blocking my way) was asked by me to move away. Not moving at all, it stood in the middle of the road in an odd manner. (28-29)

क्रोधेन क्षुधयाविष्टस्ततो दत्तोऽस्य राघव।
प्रहारो राजराजेन्द्र शाधि मामपराधिनम् ॥ ३० ॥
त्वया शस्तस्य राजेन्द्र नास्ति मे नरकाद्भयम्।
अथ रामेण सम्पृष्टाः सर्व एव सभासदः ॥ ३१ ॥

‘Overtaken by hunger, O Rāma! I beat it angrily. O King of kings! Punish me, a guilty person, O chief of kings! Having been punished by you, I would not be afraid of hell.’ Thereafter Śrī Rāma asked all the members of the assembly, ‘What should be done to him, and what punishment should be meted out to him? For, if proper punishment is given to the guilty, the subjects are protected.’ (30-31)

किं कार्यमस्य वै ब्रूत दण्डो वै कोऽस्य पात्यताम्।
सम्यक्प्रणिहिते दण्डे प्रजा भवति रक्षिता ॥ ३२ ॥
भृग्वाङ्गिरसकुत्साद्या वसिष्ठश्च सकाश्यपः।
धर्मपाठकमुख्याश्च सचिवा नैगमास्तथा ॥ ३३ ॥
एते चान्ये च बहवः पण्डितास्तत्र संगताः।
अवध्यो ब्राह्मणो दण्डैरिति शास्त्रविदो विदुः ॥ ३४ ॥

Bhṛgu, Aṅgirā, Kutsa and others, Vasiṣṭha alongwith Kāśyapa, eminent teachers of laws, ministers and interpreters of the Vedas—these and many other scholars were present there. All of them—the masters of scriptures and those who were well-versed in state-affairs told Śrī Rāma that a Brāhmaṇa is not to be awarded capital punishment, it is declared by experts in scriptures. (32—34)

ब्रुवते राघवं सर्वे राजधर्मेषु निष्ठिताः।
अथ ते मुनयः सर्वे राममेवाब्रुवंस्तदा ॥ ३५ ॥
राजा शास्ता हि सर्वस्य त्वं विशेषेण राघव।
त्रैलोक्यस्य भवान् शास्ता देवो विष्णुः सनातनः ॥ ३६ ॥

Then all the hermits addressed Śrī Rāma in following words, “A King holds sway over everyone. O Śrī Rāma! Specially You, who is the eternal god Viṣṇu, are the ruler of the three worlds.” (35-36)

एवमुक्ते तु तैः सर्वैः श्वा वै वचनमब्रवीत्।
यदि तुष्टोऽसि मे राम यदि देवो वरो मम ॥ ३७ ॥
प्रतिज्ञातं त्वया वीर किं करोमीति विश्रुतम्।
प्रयच्छ ब्राह्मणस्यास्य कौलपत्यं नराधिप ॥ ३८ ॥
कालञ्जरे महाराज कौलपत्यं प्रदीयताम्।
एतच्छ्रुत्वा तु रामेण कौलपत्येऽभिषेचितः ॥ ३९ ॥

When all of them had addressed thus, the dog said as follows: "If you are pleased with me, O Rāma, and if you are to bestow on me a boon, then listen to me, O Valiant One! You asked me what you should do for me, and promised (to do what I would request you to do). So make him O King! a 'Kulapati' as promised by you. Your Majesty! make him 'Kulapati' of Kālanjara." On hearing this Śrī Rāma consecrated him as a Kulapati.

(37—39)

प्रययौ ब्राह्मणो हृष्टो गजस्कन्धेन सोऽर्चितः ।
अथ ते रामसचिवाः स्मयमाना वचोऽब्रुवन् ॥ ४० ॥
वरोऽयं दत्त एतस्य नायं शापो महाद्युते ।
एवमुक्तस्तु सचिवै रामो वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ४१ ॥
न यूयं गतितत्त्वज्ञाः श्वा वै जानाति कारणम् ।
अथ पृष्टस्तु रामेण सारमेयोऽब्रवीदिदम् ॥ ४२ ॥
अहं कुलपतिस्तत्र आसं शिष्टान्नभोजनः ।
देवद्विजातिपूजायां दासीदासेषु राघव ॥ ४३ ॥
संविभागी शुभरतिर्देवद्रव्यस्य रक्षिता ।
विनीतः शीलसम्पन्नः सर्वसत्त्वहिते रतः ॥ ४४ ॥
सोऽहं प्राप्त इमां घोरामवस्थामधमां गतिम् ।
एवं क्रोधान्वितो विप्रस्त्यक्तधर्माहिते रतः ॥ ४५ ॥
क्रुद्धो नृशंसः परुष अविद्वान्श्चाप्यधार्मिकः ।
कुलानि पातयत्येव सप्त सप्त च राघव ॥ ४६ ॥

Thus honoured, the happy Brāhmaṇa went away riding on elephant-back. Then the ministers smilingly with astonishment, said to Śrī Rāma, "He has been given a boon. O resplendent one. This is not a curse." Thus told by the ministers Śrī Rāma said: "You do not know the truth about the course of actions. The dog knows the reason (and will tell why the Brāhmaṇa has been made Kulapati)." On being asked thus by Śrī Rāma, the dog addressed the following speech: "I, In my previous birth, was the Kulapati of the same place, Kālanjara Maṭha. Partaking of the remains of sacrificial food, O Rāma ! I would be engaged in worshipping gods and Brāhmaṇas and gave to the male and maid-servants their due. I had a love for good things. I would protect the property dedicated to gods. I was modest and well-behaved and was engaged in doing good to all living beings. Even then I have been reduced to this wretched state and the lowest position. O Rāma! therefore such a Brāhmaṇa, who is irascible, who has given up his 'Dharma' and who is engaged in harming others, who is hot-tempered, ruthless, harsh, foolish (ignorant) and irreligious will lead to the downfall of fourteen generations.

(40—46)

तस्मात् सर्वास्ववस्थासु कौलपत्यं न कारयेत् ।
यमिच्छेन्नरकं नेतुं सपुत्रपशुबान्धवम् ॥ ४७ ॥
देवेष्वधिष्ठितं कुर्याद् गोषु च ब्राह्मणेषु च ।
ब्रह्मस्वं देवताद्रव्यं स्त्रीणां बालधनं च यत् ॥ ४८ ॥
दत्तं हरति यो भूय इष्टैः सह विनश्यति ।
ब्राह्मणद्रव्यमादत्ते देवानां चैव राघव ॥ ४९ ॥
सद्यः पतति घोरे वै नरकेऽवीचिसंज्ञके ।
मनसापि हि देवस्वं ब्रह्मस्वं च हरेत्तु यः ॥ ५० ॥
निरयान्निरयं चैव पतत्येव नराधमः ।
तच्छ्रुत्वा वचनं रामो विस्मयोत्फुल्ललोचनः ॥ ५१ ॥
श्वाप्यगच्छन्महातेजा यत एवागतस्ततः ।
मनस्वी पूर्वजात्या स जातिमात्रोऽपदूषितः ।
वाराणस्यां महाभागः प्रायं चोपविवेश ह ॥ ५२ ॥

"Therefore, one should not in any circumstances become a Kulapati. Only, he should be made to look after gods, cows and the Brāhmaṇas, whom one would wish to condemn to go to hell alongwith sons, cattle and relatives. One who takes away the property of the Brāhmaṇas, gods, women and children and takes back again what has been given away in charity, perishes alongwith one's all dear ones. O Śrī Rāma! One who takes away the property belonging to the Brāhmaṇas and the gods, soon goes to the fearful hell known as 'Avīci' one who takes away even mentally the property belonging to the gods and the Brāhmaṇas, goes down from one hell to another." On hearing the speech of the dog, the eyes of Śrī Rāma opened widely due to wonder, the dog, too possessed of lustre, went to place from where it had come. It was a high minded soul in its former birth but on being born as a dog it has been spoiled. The illustrious one sought death by abstaining from taking food in Vārāṇasī. (47—52)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे प्रक्षिप्तः सर्गः ॥ २ ॥

Thus ends Interpolated Canto Two in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LX

Sages, living on the bank of Yamunā, terrorised by Asura Lavaṇa approach Śrī Rāma, in order to make a complaint. Śrī Rāma receives them with honour and enquires about the cause of their arrival

तयोः संवदतोरेवं रामलक्ष्मणयोस्तदा ।
वासन्तिकी निशा प्राप्ता न शीता न च घर्मदा ॥ १ ॥

Thus, as the day passed by with Śrī Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa conversing among themselves, the vernal night appeared, which was neither cold nor hot. (1)

ततः प्रभाते विमले कृतपूर्वाह्निकक्रियः ।
अभिचक्राम काकुत्स्थो दर्शनं पौरकार्यवित् ॥ २ ॥

After dawn in the morning, which was a clear one, having performed the morning duties, Śrī Rāma the scion of Kākutstha approached the place where he could see his subjects, desirous to know the activities of the citizens. (2)

ततः सुमन्त्रस्त्वागम्य राघवं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
एते प्रतिहता राजन् द्वारि तिष्ठन्ति तापसाः ॥ ३ ॥

Then Sumantra, the charioteer, having come near Śrī Rāma, the scion of Raghus, spoke thus: 'O King! Some ascetics, not permitted to enter, stand in need at the entrance door, (3)

भार्गवं च्यवनं चैव पुरस्कृत्य महर्षयः ।
दर्शनं ते महाराज चोदयन्ति कृतत्वरः ॥ ४ ॥
प्रीयमाणा नरव्याघ्र यमुनातीरवासिनः ।
तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा रामः प्रोवाच धर्मवित् ॥ ५ ॥
प्रवेशयन्तां महाभागा भार्गवप्रमुखा द्विजाः ।
राज्ञस्त्वाज्ञां पुरस्कृत्य द्वाःस्थो मूर्ध्ना कृताञ्जलिः ॥ ६ ॥

प्रवेशयामास तदा तापसान् सुदुरासदान् ।
शतं समधिकं तत्र दीप्यमानं स्वतेजसा ॥ ७ ॥
प्रविष्टं राजभवनं तापसानां महात्मनाम् ।
ते द्विजाः पूर्णकलशैः सर्वतीर्थाम्बुसत्कृतैः ॥ ८ ॥
गृहीत्वा फलमूलं च रामस्याभ्याहरन् बहु ।
प्रतिगृह्य तु तत् सर्वं रामः प्रीतिपुरस्कृतः ॥ ९ ॥
तीर्थोदकानि सर्वाणि फलानि विविधानि च ।
उवाच च महाबाहुः सर्वानेव महामुनीन् ॥ १० ॥

'O Tiger among men, Śrī Rāma, great Ṛṣis, who dwell at the banks of the Yamunā, and rejoice among themselves, placing Cyavana, the Bhārgava (son of Bhṛgu) at their head, implore us in haste for your audience'.

Hearing him say so, Śrī Rāma the righteous one spoke: 'Please let the Brāhmaṇas, headed by Bhārgava, enter.' The charioteer then went near the door. Accepting the orders of the King, made the ascetics, who were unapproachable, enter: More than a hundred holy ascetics, glowing with their own lustre, entered the palace. Those Brāhmaṇas accompanied with pitchers full and sanctified with the waters of all the Tirthas (pilgrimages), and with many fruits and roots offered them to Śrī Rāma. Accepting them, Śrī Rāma was pleased excessively getting the sacred waters of the Tirthas and all kinds of fruits, He,

Śrī Rāma, of long arms, then addressed all the great ascetics thus: (4—10)

इमान्यासनमुख्यानि यथार्हमुपविश्यताम् ।
रामस्य भाषितं श्रुत्वा सर्व एव महर्षयः ॥ ११ ॥
बृसीषु रुचिराख्यासु निषेदुः काञ्चनीषु ते ।
उपविष्टानृषींस्तत्र दृष्ट्वा परपुरंजयः ।
प्रयतः प्राञ्जलिर्भूत्वा राघवो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ १२ ॥

“These are the special seats, please be seated as it suits you”. Hearing the words of Śrī Rāma all the great Ṛṣis seated themselves on the lovely golden cushions. Seeing them thus seated, the conqueror of the strongholds of enemies, the scion of the Raghus, serenely with joined hands uttered these words: (11-12)

किमागमनकार्यं वः किं करोमि समाहितः ।
आज्ञाप्योऽहं महर्षीणां सर्वकामकरः सुखम् ॥ १३ ॥

‘For what purpose do you come here, what should I perform for you. I am at your command. I shall happily perform all that is desired by you. (13)

इदं राज्यं च सकलं जीवितं च हृदि स्थितम् ।
सर्वमेतद् द्विजार्थं मे सत्यमेतद् ब्रवीमि वः ॥ १४ ॥

‘This kingdom, my entire life, and even what dwells in my heart, all that is for the Brāhmaṇas, I speak to you the truth’. (14)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे षष्ठितमः सर्गः ॥ ६० ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा साधुकारो महानभूत् ।
ऋषीणामुग्रतपसां यमुनातीरवासिनाम् ॥ १५ ॥
ऊचुश्चैव महात्मानो हर्षेण महता वृताः ।
उपपन्नं नरश्रेष्ठ तवैव भुवि नान्यतः ॥ १६ ॥

Hearing these words of Śrī Rāma and His prolonged proclamation, the Ṛṣis, who were performing right penances and dwelling on the banks of the Yamunā, arose. In great joy the noble ones said: ‘O best among men, this befits you alone in this world, and none other. (15-16)

बहवः पार्थिवा राजन्नतिक्रान्ता महाबलाः ।
कार्यस्य गौरवं मत्वा प्रतिज्ञां नाभ्यरोचयन् ॥ १७ ॥

‘Many powerful kings have gone by, who looking at the greatness of our task, never desired to promise to fulfil them. (17)

त्वया पुनर्ब्राह्मणगौरवादियं
कृता प्रतिज्ञा ह्यनवेक्ष्य कारणम् ।
ततश्च कर्ता ह्यसि नात्र संशयो
महाभयात् त्रातुमृषींस्त्वमर्हसि ॥ १८ ॥

‘Respecting Brāhmaṇas you made promise, without having a second thought about the task. No doubt, therefore you will dispell all fears that haunt Ṛṣis.’ (18)

एकषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXI

The sages inform Śrī Rāma about the boon obtained by the Asura, Madhu, and the might, and atrocities perpetrated by Lavaṇāsura and appeal to Śrī Rāma to dispell their fear

ब्रुवद्भिरेवमृषिभिः काकुत्स्थो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
किं कार्यं ब्रूत मुनयो भयं तावदपैतु वः ॥ १ ॥

As the Ṛṣis spoke thus, Śrī Rāma the scion of Kakutstha said: ‘O ascetics, speak out the task that I should perform, so as your fear may be dispelled’. (1)

तथा ब्रुवति काकुत्स्थे भार्गवो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
भयानां शृणु यन्मूलं देशस्य च नरेश्वर ॥ २ ॥

When the scion of Kakutstha spoke these words, Bhārgava replied: 'O best among men! hark ! what causes fear to us and the country. (2)

पूर्वं कृतयुगे राजन् दैतेयः सुमहामतिः ।
लोलापुत्रोऽभवज्ज्येष्ठो मधुर्नाम महासुरः ॥ ३ ॥

'Formerly, in the Kṛtayuga, O king ! In Kṛtayuga, Madhu from the Daitya clan, the wise and great Asura was the eldest son of Lolā. (3)

ब्रह्मण्यश्च शरण्यश्च बुद्ध्या च परिनिष्ठितः ।
सुरैश्च परमोदारैः प्रीतिस्तस्यातुलाभवत् ॥ ४ ॥

"He was respectful to Brāhmaṇas and was also a source of refuge and well-composed of mind. His relations with the very gracious gods were incomparably cordial. (4)

स मधुर्वीर्यसम्पन्नो धर्मं च सुसमाहितः ।
बहुमानाच्च रुद्रेण दत्तस्तस्याद्भुतो वरः ॥ ५ ॥

"That Madhu, although possessed of might, was well-established in the path of righteousness; and was given by Rudra, Mahādeva, a wonderful boon, because of his respect for the Devas. (5)

शूलं शूलाद् विनिष्कृष्य महावीर्यं महाप्रभम् ।
ददौ महात्मा सुप्रीतो वाक्यं चैतदुवाच ह ॥ ६ ॥

"The great Mahādeva produced a most powerful and luminous trident from his own trident, being excessively pleased, gave it to him and said these words: (6)

त्वयायमतुलो धर्मो मत्प्रसादकरः कृतः ।
प्रीत्या परमया युक्तो ददाम्यायुधमुत्तमम् ॥ ७ ॥

"By your unparalleled right conduct, you have earned my pleasure: so highly pleased, I give you this excellent weapon. (7)

यावत् सुरैश्च विप्रैश्च न विरुध्येर्महासुर ।
तावच्छूलं तवेदं स्यादन्यथा नाशमेष्यति ॥ ८ ॥

"As long as you do not oppose the Brāhmaṇas and the gods (Devas), this trident of yours will retain its power, otherwise it will perish. (8)

यश्च त्वामभियुञ्जीत युद्धाय विगतज्वरः ।
तं शूलो भस्मसात्कृत्वा पुनरेष्यति ते करम् ॥ ९ ॥

"Whosoever fearlessly encounters you in battle, the trident will reduce him to ashes and return to your hand." (9)

एवं रुद्राद् वरं लब्ध्वा भूय एव महासुरः ।
प्रणिपत्य महादेवं वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ १० ॥

"Thus having obtained the boon from Lord Śiva, the great Asura on his part made obeisance to Mahādeva and also said: (10)

भगवन् मम वंशस्य शूलमेतदनुत्तमम् ।
भवेत् तु सततं देव सुराणामीश्वरो ह्यसि ॥ ११ ॥

'O Lord, may this unparalleled trident, belong to my race forever. O God, You are the Lord of the all dieties.' (11)

तं ब्रुवाणं मधुं देवः सर्वभूतपतिः शिवः ।
प्रत्युवाच महादेवो नैतदेवं भविष्यति ॥ १२ ॥

The Mahādeva, Śiva, the Lord of all, replied to Madhu, 'This cannot be so. (12)

मा भूत् ते विफला वाणी मत्प्रसादकृता शुभा ।
भवतः पुत्रमेकं तु शूलमेतद् भविष्यति ॥ १३ ॥

"Though the sentence uttered by me out of pleasure, however, will not go in vain for you: this trident will belong to one of your sons. (13)

यावत् करस्थः शूलोऽयं भविष्यति सुतस्य ते । अवध्यः सर्वभूतानां शूलहस्तो भविष्यति ॥ १४ ॥

"As long as this trident will remain in the hand of your son, he will be unassailable by all beings." (14)

एवं मधुर्वरं लब्ध्वा देवात् सुमहद्भुतम् ।
भवनं सोऽसुरश्रेष्ठः कारयामास सुप्रभम् ॥ १५ ॥

"Thus having obtained the great and wonderful boon from Mahādeva, Madhu, the greatest among the Asuras, got a palace full of brilliance built. (15)

तस्य पत्नी महाभागा प्रिया कुम्भीनसीति या ।
विश्वावसोरपत्यं साप्यनलायां महाप्रभा ॥ १६ ॥

'His dear wife, the famous beautiful

Kumbhinasī, the daughter of Viśvāvasu, was born from Analā. (16)

तस्याः पुत्रो महावीर्यो लवणो नाम दारुणः ।
बाल्यात्प्रभृति दुष्टात्मा पापान्येव समाचरत् ॥ १७ ॥

‘Her son, the powerful and cruel one, Lavaṇa by name, was wicked since childhood and performed only evil deeds. (17)

तं पुत्रं दुर्विनीतं तु दृष्ट्वा क्रोधसमन्वितः ।
मधुः स शोकमापेदे न चैनं किञ्चिदब्रवीत् ॥ १८ ॥

‘Seeing this son so wicked, Madhu was enraged and grieved, but did not say to him anything. (18)

स विहाय इमं लोकं प्रविष्टो वरुणालयम् ।
शूलं निवेश्य लवणे वरं तस्मै न्यवेदयत् ॥ १९ ॥

‘He entered the ocean, leaving this world, handing over the trident to Lavaṇa and conveying him the power of the boon. (19)

स प्रभावेण शूलस्य दौरात्येनात्मनस्तथा ।
संतापयति लोकांस्त्रीन् विशेषेण च तापसान् ॥ २० ॥

‘He (Lavaṇa) by the power of the trident and with his wickedness, caused much trouble to the three worlds, especially the ascetics. (20)

एवंप्रभावो लवणः शूलं चैव तथाविधम् ।
श्रुत्वा प्रमाणं काकुत्स्थ त्वं हि नः परमा गतिः ॥ २१ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-one in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्विषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXII

Rāma enquires of the sages regarding Lavaṇa’s way of living and dispatches Śatrughna with a view to kill Lavaṇa

तथोक्ते तानृषीन् रामः प्रत्युवाच कृताञ्जलिः ।
किमाहारः किमाचारो लवणः क्व च वर्तते ॥ १ ॥

When the Ṛṣis had thus spoken to Him, Śrī Rāma with folded hands replied: ‘What

‘So mighty is Lavaṇa and such is the trident. O scion of Kakutstha. Now you have heard; so it is up to you to do what is necessary, you are our ultimate resort. (21)

बहवः पार्थिवा राम भयार्तैर्ऋषिभिः पुरा ।
अभयं याचिता वीर त्रातारं न च विद्महे ॥ २२ ॥

‘Formerly many kings, O powerful one, were approached for protection by the Ṛṣis frightened, but we did not find any protector. (22)

ते वयं रावणं श्रुत्वा हतं सबलवाहनम् ।
त्रातारं विद्महे तात नान्यं भुवि नराधिपम् ।
तत् परित्रातुमिच्छामो लवणाद् भयपीडितान् ॥ २३ ॥

‘So now, having heard of Rāvaṇa killed alongwith his army, O dear one, we do not consider any other king on this earth as protector, and thus we desire protection for those who are persecuted by Lavaṇa. (23)

इति राम निवेदितं तु ते
भयजं कारणमुत्थितं च यत् ।
विनिवारयितुं भवान् क्षमः
कुरु तं काममहीनविक्रम ॥ २४ ॥

‘Thus, we have conveyed to you, O Rāma of unfailing power, that fear and cause of that fear. We know, you can ward off that; do something.’ (24)

does he (Lavaṇa) take as his food, of what conduct is he and where does he stay?’ (1)

राघवस्य वचः श्रुत्वा ऋषयः सर्व एव ते ।
ततो निवेदयामासुर्लवणो ववृधे यथा ॥ २ ॥

Hearing these words of Śrī Rāma, all those Ṛṣis then conveyed to Him how Lavaṇa fared. (2)

आहारः सर्वसत्त्वानि विशेषेण च तापसाः।
आचारो रौद्रता नित्यं वासो मधुवने तथा ॥ ३ ॥

His food comprises all beings, specially ascetics. His conduct is full of cruelty, every moment. His residence is in Madhuvana. (3)

हत्वा बहुसहस्राणि सिंहव्याघ्रमृगाण्डजान्।
मानुषांश्चैव कुरुते नित्यमाहारमाह्निकम् ॥ ४ ॥

Having killed many thousands of lions, tigers, deers and birds and also human beings, he makes his daily meals of them. (4)

ततोऽन्तराणि सत्त्वानि खादते स महाबलः।
संहारे समनुप्राप्ते व्यादितास्य इवान्तकः ॥ ५ ॥

Then all other types of beings too, the mighty Lavaṇa devours as if he was Death, with open mouth at the time. (5)

तच्छ्रुत्वा राघवो वाक्यमुवाच स महामुनीन्।
घातयिष्यामि तद् रक्षो व्यपगच्छतु वो भयम् ॥ ६ ॥

Hearing this, the scion of Raghu (Śrī Rāma) said to the great ascetics: 'I shall kill that Rākṣasa, may your fears be dispelled.' (6)

प्रतिज्ञाय तथा तेषां मुनीनामुग्रतेजसाम्।
स भ्रातृन् सहितान् सर्वानुवाच रघुनन्दनः ॥ ७ ॥

Thus having promised to the ascetics, possessed of great vigour, that descendant of the Raghus, Śrī Rāma, spoke to his brothers altogether. (7)

को हन्ता लवणं वीरः कस्यांशः स विधीयताम्।
भरतस्य महाबाहोः शत्रुघ्नस्य च धीमतः ॥ ८ ॥

'Who the brave shall kill Lavaṇa, to whom shall Lavaṇa be assigned, to long-armed Bharata or Śatrughna, the wise one?' (8)

राघवेणैवमुक्तस्तु भरतो वाक्यमब्रवीत्।
अहमेनं वधिष्यामि ममांशः स विधीयताम् ॥ ९ ॥

When Śrī Rāma spoke thus, Bharata said: 'I shall kill him. Kindly assign him to me'. (9)

भरतस्य वचः श्रुत्वा धैर्यशौर्यसमन्वितम्।
लक्ष्मणावरजस्तस्थौ हित्वा सौवर्णमासनम् ॥ १० ॥
शत्रुघ्नस्त्वब्रवीद् वाक्यं प्रणिपत्य नराधिपम्।
कृतकर्मा महाबाहुर्मध्यमो रघुनन्दन ॥ ११ ॥

Hearing the words of Bharata, (Śatrughna) younger brother of Lakṣmaṇa, stood up leaving his golden seat. Having bowed to the King, Śrī Rāma, Śatrughna said: The middle one, Bharata, among us, possessed of long arms, O descendant of Raghu, has already performed his share. (10-11)

आर्येण हि पुरा शून्या त्वयोध्या परिपालिता।
सन्तापं हृदये कृत्वा आर्यस्यागमनं प्रति ॥ १२ ॥

'He protected Ayodhyā in your absence undergoing so much mental agony, awaiting your arrival. (12)

दुःखानि च बहूनीह अनुभूतानि पार्थिव।
शयानो दुःखशय्यासु नन्दिग्रामे महायशाः ॥ १३ ॥
फलमूलाशनो भूत्वा जटी चीरधरस्तथा।
अनुभूयेदृशं दुःखमेष राघवनन्दनः ॥ १४ ॥

'Here many sufferings were endured by him, O king: sleeping on uncomfortable bed in the Nandigrāma, this noble one consuming only fruits and roots, with matted hair, and dress of bark, has greatly experienced sorrow, O descendant of the Raghus. (13-14)

प्रेष्ये मयि स्थिते राजन् न भूयः क्लेशमाप्नुयात्।
तथा ब्रुवति शत्रुघ्ने राघवः पुनरब्रवीत् ॥ १५ ॥

'While I, the servant, am available, Bharata should not again be put to trouble. After Śatrughna said so, Śrī Rāma, the scion of the Raghus again spoke these words: (15)

एवं भवतु काकुत्स्थ क्रियतां मम शासनम्।
राज्ये त्वामभिषेक्ष्यामि मधोस्तु नगरे शुभे ॥ १६ ॥
निवेशय महाबाहो भरतं यद्यवेक्षसे।
शूरस्त्वं कृतविद्यश्च समर्थश्च निवेशने ॥ १७ ॥
नगरं यमुनाजुष्टं तथा जनपदान् शुभान्।
यो हि वंशं समुत्पाद्य पार्थिवस्य निवेशने ॥ १८ ॥

न विधत्ते नृपं तत्र नरकं स हि गच्छति।
स त्वं हत्वा मधुसुतं लवणं पापनिश्चयम् ॥ १९ ॥
राज्यं प्रशाधि धर्मेण वाक्यं मे यद्यवेक्षसे।
उत्तरं च न वक्तव्यं शूर वाक्यान्तरे मम ॥ २० ॥

“Be it so, O Śatrughna (descendant of Kakutstha), carry out my orders, I shall consecrate you on the holy kingdom of Madhu. Establish the throne. Bharata be here. O one of long arms, if you consider it proper, You are brave and proficient, and also have the ability to establish a new city. Founding a city close to Yamunā, and many provinces of auspicious fame, one who having reduced a royal house in that very city, does not install a king there, indeed goes to hell. Therefore, you, having killed Lavaṇa, the son of Madhu, possessed of evil designs, rule over that kingdom. If you follow my words, then, O brave one, carry on the administration righteously, without making any argument or disobeying me.’ (16—20)

बालेन पूर्वजस्याज्ञा कर्तव्या नात्र संशयः।
अभिषेकं च काकुत्स्थ प्रतीच्छस्व ममोद्यतम्।
वसिष्ठप्रमुखैर्विप्रैर्विधिमन्त्रपुरस्कृतम् ॥ २१ ॥

The elders must be obeyed by youngers there is no doubt about it. Please approve of the consecration, to be performed by me, accompanied by the Mantras, sacred chants of the Brāhmaṇas headed by Śrī Vasiṣṭha, in prescribed manner. (21)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे द्विषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-two in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXIII

Rāma coronates Śatrughna as a king and explains to him the way to safeguard himself against Lavaṇa’s lance

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण परां ब्रीडामुपागमत्।
शत्रुघ्नो वीर्यसम्पन्नो मन्दं मन्दमुवाच ह ॥ १ ॥

After Śrī Rāma said so, the mighty Śatrughna felt very much ashamed and spoke gently: (1)

अधर्मं विद्य काकुत्स्थ अस्मिन्नर्थे नरेश्वर।
कथं तिष्ठत्सु ज्येष्ठेषु कनीयानभिषिच्यते ॥ २ ॥

‘O king, the descendent of Kakutstha, this transaction seems to me as against Dharma, how can a junior be consecrated on the throne, superseding the elders? (2)

अवश्यं करणीयं च शासनं पुरुषर्षभ।
तव चैव महाभाग शासनं दुरतिक्रमम् ॥ ३ ॥

‘On the other hand, your orders must be carried out at any cost as it is impossible to supersede them. (3)

त्वत्तो मया श्रुतं वीर श्रुतिभ्यश्च मया श्रुतम्।
नोत्तरं हि मया वाच्यं मध्यमे प्रतिजानति ॥ ४ ॥

‘I have heard from you, as well as from the Śrutis, O brave one! that I should not have said anything after the middle brother, Bharata, had already taken a vow. (4)

व्याहृतं दुर्वचो घोरं हन्तास्मि लवणं मृधे।
तस्यैवं मे दुरुक्तस्य दुर्गतिः पुरुषर्षभ ॥ ५ ॥

‘It is most unfortunate that I have said something improper: ‘I will kill Lavaṇa in battle’. I think I have been put in this unenviable position as a result of my saying so. (5)

उत्तरं नहि वक्तव्यं ज्येष्ठेनाभिहिते पुनः।
अधर्मसहितं चैव परलोकविवर्जितम् ॥ ६ ॥

सोऽहं द्वितीयं काकुत्स्थ न वक्ष्यामीति चोत्तरम् ।
मा द्वितीयेन दण्डो वै निपतेन्मयि मानद ॥ ७ ॥

‘When the elder one says something, the younger should not make a reply. Violation would be against the norms of Dharma and spoil the other world. Therefore, O Kakutstha, I will not speak anything again. O giver of respect, may I not be importuned for the punishment second time. (6-7)

कामकारो ह्यहं राजंस्तवास्मि पुरुषर्षभ ।
अधर्मं जहि काकुत्स्थ मत्कृते रघुनन्दन ॥ ८ ॥

‘O king, the best among persons and delighter of Raghus, I will follow your wishes but whatever wrongful happens in it from me, you please destroy it. I shall act according to your desire, O bull among men. Please leave out for my sake that which is unlawful, O scion of Kakutstha, descendant of the Raghus!’ (8)

एवमुक्ते तु शूरेण शत्रुघ्नेन महात्मना ।
उवाच रामः संहृष्टो भरतं लक्ष्मणं तथा ॥ ९ ॥

After these words being uttered by the wise and the brave Śatrughna, Śrī Rāma was pleased and He spoke to Bharata and Lakṣmaṇa: (9)

सम्भारानभिषेकस्य आनयध्वं समाहिताः ।
अद्यैव पुरुषव्याघ्रमभिषेक्ष्यामि राघवम् ॥ १० ॥

‘Bring forth all the requisites of consecration, this very day. I shall consecrate the scion of the Raghus, the tiger among men, Śatrughna. (10)

पुरोधसं च काकुत्स्थ नैगमानृत्विजस्तथा ।
मन्त्रिणश्चैव तान् सर्वानानयध्वं ममाज्ञया ॥ ११ ॥

‘By my orders, call all of them, the chief priest, Vasiṣṭha, the townsmen, and other priests and also the councillors.’ (11)

राज्ञः शासनमाज्ञाय तथाकुर्वन्महारथाः ।
अभिषेकसमारम्भं पुरस्कृत्य पुरोधसम् ॥ १२ ॥

Following the orders of the king, the great warriors, brought the necessary pūjā materials for the consecration, making the chief priest Vasiṣṭha play the prominent role. (12)

प्रविष्टा राजभवनं राजानो ब्राह्मणास्तथा ।
ततोऽभिषेको ववृधे शत्रुघ्नस्य महात्मनः ॥ १३ ॥

The Kings and the Brāhmaṇas entered the royal palace; thus the consecration of the noble Śatrughna went on. (13)

सम्प्रहर्षकरः श्रीमान् राघवस्य पुरस्य च ।
अभिषिक्तस्तु काकुत्स्थो बभौ चादित्यसंनिभः ॥ १४ ॥

अभिषिक्तः पुरा स्कन्दः सेन्द्रैरिव दिवौकसैः ।
अभिषिक्ते तु शत्रुघ्ने रामेणाक्लिष्टकर्मणा ॥ १५ ॥

पौराः प्रमुदिताश्चासन् ब्राह्मणाश्च बहुश्रुताः ।
कौसल्या च सुमित्रा च मङ्गलं केकयी तथा ॥ १६ ॥

चक्रुस्ता राजभवने याश्चान्या राजयोषितः ।
ऋषयश्च महात्मानो यमुनातीरवासिनः ॥ १७ ॥

हतं लवणमाशंसुः शत्रुघ्नस्याभिषेचनात् ।
ततोऽभिषिक्तं शत्रुघ्नमङ्कमारोप्य राघवः ।

उवाच मधुरां वाणीं तेजस्तस्याभिपूरयन् ॥ १८ ॥

The venerable scion of Kakutstha, when consecrated, shown as the sun and brought great joy to the descendant of Raghu (Rāma) and also to the citizens, as Skanda (Kārtikeya) when consecrated in the old days by the gods together with Indra. As Śatrughna was consecrated by Śrī Rāma, the citizens were happy and so also the learned Brāhmaṇas. Kausalyā, Sumitrā, Kaikeyī and all other king mothers performed auspicious acts in the royal palace. The noble Ṛṣis dwelling on the banks of the Yamunā were confident that Lavaṇa was as if dead due to the consecration of Śatrughna.

Then the scion of the Raghus, Śrī Rāma, placing Śatrughna on His lap uttered these sweet words enhancing his power. (14—18)

अयं शरस्त्वमोघस्ते दिव्यः परपुरंजयः ।
अनेन लवणं सौम्य हन्तासि रघुनन्दन ॥ १९ ॥

‘I give you this divine arrow, which is unfailing and conquers the foes, O descendant of Raghu. O handsome one, you will kill Lavaṇa with this arrow. (19)

सृष्टः शरोऽयं काकुत्स्थ यदा शेते महार्षवे ।
स्वयंभूरजितो दिव्यो यं नापश्यन् सुरासुराः ॥ २० ॥

‘This arrow was created O scion of Kakutstha, when the self-born unconquerable God, Viṣṇu, was reclining in the great ocean, whom the gods and the demons could not see. (20)

अदृश्यः सर्वभूतानां तेनायं हि शरोत्तमः ।
सृष्टः क्रोधाभिभूतेन विनाशार्थं दुरात्मनोः ॥ २१ ॥
मधुकैटभयोर्वीर विघाते सर्वरक्षसाम् ।
स्रष्टुकामेन लोकांस्त्रींस्तौ चानेन हतौ युधि ॥ २२ ॥
तौ हत्वा जनभोगार्थं कैटभं तु मधुं तथा ।
अनेन शरमुख्येन ततो लोकांश्चकार सः ॥ २३ ॥

‘Therefore, this one, the best among arrows, is invisible to all beings, this was created by angry Viṣṇu, desirous of the destruction of the two wicked ones, Madhu and Kaiṭabha, and creation of the three worlds after the two and the other Rākṣasas were killed with this arrow. (21—23)

नायं मया शरः पूर्वं रावणस्य वधार्थिना ।
मुक्तः शत्रुघ्न भूतानां महान् ह्यसौ भवेदिति ॥ २४ ॥

‘This arrow was not shot by me formerly even to kill Rāvaṇa (the king of the Rākṣasas), O Śatrughna, for that would have caused the great destruction of other beings too. (24)

यच्च तस्य महच्छूलं त्र्यम्बकेण महात्मना ।
दत्तं शत्रुविनाशाय मधोरायुधमुत्तमम् ॥ २५ ॥
तत् संनिक्षिप्य भवने पूज्यमानं पुनः पुनः ।
दिशः सर्वाः समासाद्य प्राप्नोत्याहारमुत्तमम् ॥ २६ ॥

‘The great trident, the best among weapons, that was given to Madhu by the mighty three-eyed Lord Śiva for the purpose of destroying the foes; placing that honourable weapon at home, Lavaṇa proceeding to all quarters repeatedly acquires the best of his food. (25-26)

यदा तु युद्धमाकाङ्क्षन् कश्चिदेनं समाह्वयेत् ।
तदा शूलं गृहीत्वा तु भस्म रक्षः करोति हि ॥ २७ ॥

‘Whenever, desirous of struggle one per chance challenges him, then the Rākṣasa, Lavaṇa, taking hold of this trident reduces him indeed to ashes. (27)

स त्वं पुरुषशार्दूल तमायुधविनाकृतम् ।
अप्रविष्टं पुरं पूर्वं द्वारि तिष्ठ धृतायुधः ॥ २८ ॥

‘So you, O lion among men, accompanied with the weapon (arrow), stay at the eastern gate, and fight with him, dispossessed of the weapon (trident) and unable to enter the city. (28)

अप्रविष्टं च भवनं युद्धाय पुरुषर्षभ ।
आह्वयेथा महाबाहो ततो हन्तासि राक्षसम् ॥ २९ ॥

‘O one of long arms ! Challenge him to fight before he has entered his residence; then you shall kill the Rākṣasa. (29)

अन्यथा क्रियमाणे तु ह्यवध्यः स भविष्यति ।
यदि त्वेवं कृतं वीर विनाशमुपयास्यति ॥ ३० ॥

‘If it is not so done, then, indeed, he will be unassailable, but if this is so done, then, O brave one, Lavaṇa will be destroyed. (30)

एतत् ते सर्वमाख्यातं शूलस्य च विपर्ययः ।
श्रीमतः शितिकण्ठस्य कृत्यं हि दुरतिक्रमम् ॥ ३१ ॥

‘Thus, all has been narrated to you, and also the warding off of the trident, the doings of the blue-throated Śiva are indeed difficult to overcome.’ (31)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे त्रिषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-three in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुःषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXIV

Śatrugṇha dispatches his army in compliance with Śrī Rāma's order in advance and he himself proceeds after a month

एवमुक्त्वा च काकुत्स्थं प्रशस्य च पुनः पुनः ।
पुनरेवापरं वाक्यमुवाच रघुनन्दनः ॥ १ ॥

Having thus spoken to the scion of Kakutstha and eulogizing him again and again, the descendant of the Raghus, Śrī Rāma, spoke again to him: (1)

इमान्यश्वसहस्राणि चत्वारि पुरुषर्षभ ।
स्थानां द्वे सहस्रे च गजानां शतमुत्तमम् ॥ २ ॥
अन्तरापणवीथ्यश्च नानापण्योपशोभिताः ।
अनुगच्छन्तु काकुत्स्थं तथैव नटनर्तकाः ॥ ३ ॥

'These four thousand of horses, two thousand chariots and a hundred of the best elephants, the rows of stalls (inside the city), laden with goods for sale and purchase, may follow you O Śatrugṇha, the scion of Kakutstha and so also the actors and dancers. O Śatrugṇha, O bull among men, having taken a lac of pure gold-coins well-equipped with wealth and carriers (elephants and horses), you proceed to Madhurā. (2-3)

हिरण्यस्य सुवर्णस्य नियुतं पुरुषर्षभ ।
आदाय गच्छ शत्रुघ्न पर्याप्तधनवाहनः ॥ ४ ॥
बलं च सुभृतं वीर हृष्टतुष्टमनुद्धतम् ।
सम्भाषासम्प्रदानेन रञ्जयस्व नरोत्तम ॥ ५ ॥

'O brave one, keep the army that is well-formed, in such good cheer that its constituents are happy and satisfied, and not arrogant, with your good words. (4-5)

न ह्यर्थास्तत्र तिष्ठन्ति न दारा न च बान्धवाः ।
सुप्रीतो भृत्यवर्गस्तु यत्र तिष्ठति राघव ॥ ६ ॥

'There (at the encounter) neither wealth nor spouse, nor even relatives are at your side, as the servants when kept happy. (6)

अतो हृष्टजनाकीर्णां प्रस्थाप्य महतीं चमूम् ।
एक एव धनुषाणिर्गच्छ त्वं मधुनो वनम् ॥ ७ ॥

'Thus, having dispatched the mighty army full of happy men, you alone, with bow in your hand, can go to the forest of Madhu. (7)

यथा त्वां न प्रजानाति गच्छन्तं युद्धकाङ्क्षिणम् ।
लवणस्तु मधोः पुत्रस्तथा गच्छेरशङ्कितम् ॥ ८ ॥

'You should go in a manner in which the son of Madhu, Lavaṇa does not know that you are going to him for an encounter. (8)

न तस्य मृत्युरन्योऽस्ति कश्चिद्धि पुरुषर्षभ ।
दर्शनं योऽभिगच्छेत स वध्यो लवणेन हि ॥ ९ ॥

'O bull among men, there is indeed no other way in which Lavaṇa would die, whosoever goes to attack him, is killed by Lavaṇa, indeed. (9)

स ग्रीष्म अपयाते तु वर्षारत्र उपागते ।
हन्यास्त्वं लवणं सौम्य स हि कालोऽस्य दुर्मतेः ॥ १० ॥

'Thus when summer is passed, and the rainy season comes, you should kill Lavaṇa. O graceful one, that is the time of death for this wicked one. (10)

महर्षीस्तु पुरस्कृत्य प्रयान्तु तव सैनिकाः ।
यथा ग्रीष्मावशेषेण तरेयुर्जाह्नवीजलम् ॥ ११ ॥

'Your warriors may proceed with the great Ṛṣis at their head, so that by the end of the summer season, they may cross the Gaṅgā, the daughter of Jāhnu. (11)

तत्र स्थाप्य बलं सर्वं नदीतीरे समाहितः ।
अग्रतो धनुषा सार्धं गच्छ त्वं लघुविक्रम ॥ १२ ॥

'Then having stationed your army at the banks there, O one of speedy steps, you go ahead carefully alone with the bow.' (12)

एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण शत्रुघ्नस्तान् महाबलान् ।
सेनामुख्यान् समानीय ततो वाक्यमुवाच ह ॥ १३ ॥

Thus being spoken to by Śrī Rāma, Śatrugṇha, having gathered together the brave chiefs of the army spoke thus to them: (13)

एते वो गणिता वासा यत्र तत्र निवत्स्यथ ।
स्थातव्यं चाविरोधेन यथा बाधा न कस्यचित् ॥ १४ ॥

‘These are the decided places where you can dwell, according to your liking; wherever you are stay amicably.’ (14)

तथा तांस्तु समाज्ञाप्य प्रस्थाप्य च महद्बलम् ।
कौसल्यां च सुमित्रां च कैकेयीं चाभ्यवादयत् ॥ १५ ॥

Thus ordering them and despatching the mighty army, he made obeisance to Kausalyā, Sumitrā and Kaikeyī. (15)

रामं प्रदक्षिणीकृत्य शिरसाभिप्रणम्य च ।
लक्ष्मणं भरतं चैव प्रणिपत्य कृताञ्जलिः ॥ १६ ॥
पुरोहितं वसिष्ठं च शत्रुघ्नः प्रयतात्मवान् ।

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे चतुःषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-four in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXV

Sage Vālmīki narrates to Śatrughna the story of Kalmāṣapāda, son of Sudāsa

प्रस्थाप्य च बलं सर्वं मासमात्रोषितः पथि ।
एक एवाशु शत्रुघ्नो जगाम त्वरितं तदा ॥ १ ॥

Despatching the entire army, residing for a month only in Ayodhyā on his way, Śatrughna alone proceeded in haste. (1)

द्विरात्रमन्तरे शूर उष्य राघवनन्दनः ।
वाल्मीकेराश्रमं पुण्यमगच्छद् वासमुत्तमम् ॥ २ ॥

After spending two nights on the way, Śatrughna, descendant of the Raghus, reached the holy hermitage of Vālmīki, the best of the places to dwell. (2)

सोऽभिवाद्य महात्मानं वाल्मीकिं मुनिसत्तमम् ।
कृताञ्जलिरथो भूत्वा वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ ३ ॥

रामेण चाभ्यनुज्ञातः शत्रुघ्नः शत्रुतापनः ।
प्रदक्षिणमथो कृत्वा निर्जगाम महाबलः ॥ १७ ॥

Paying salutation to Śrī Rāma with his head and going round Him, and falling at the feet of Lakṣmaṇa and Bharata, and the chief priest Vasiṣṭha, Śatrughna of pious mind, the torturer of the foes, the mighty one going round Śrī Rāma again, departed. (16-17)

प्रस्थाप्य सेनामथ सोऽग्रतस्तदा
गजेन्द्रवाजिप्रवरौघसंकुलाम् ।

उवास मासं तु नरेन्द्रपार्श्वत-
स्त्वथ प्रयातो रघुवंशवर्धनः ॥ १८ ॥

Sending ahead the army then, full of elephants and horses, he himself lived there with Śrī Rāma for a month and then he too started. (18)

Śatrughna after saluting him with folded hands spoke these words to Vālmīki, the best among the ascetics: (3)

भगवन् वस्तुमिच्छामि गुरोः कृत्यादिहागतः ।
श्वः प्रभाते गमिष्यामि प्रतीचीं वारुणीं दिशम् ॥ ४ ॥

‘Sir, I desire to stay here; I have come for a mighty purpose. I shall go tomorrow morning to the west, the quarter of Varuṇa.’ (4)

शत्रुघ्नस्य वचः श्रुत्वा प्रहस्य मुनिपुङ्गवः ।
प्रत्युवाच महात्मानं स्वागतं ते महायशः ॥ ५ ॥

Having heard those words of Śatrughna, the best among the ascetics, Vālmīki, said cheerfully to him (Śatrughna), the noble one:

“Welcome to thee, O famous one. (5)

स्वमाश्रममिदं सौम्य राघवाणां कुलस्य वै।
आसनं पाद्यमर्घ्यं च निर्विशङ्कः प्रतीच्छ मे ॥ ६ ॥

“O gracious one, this hermitage is indeed your own, the family of the descendants of Raghu. Accept without hesitation the Pādyā (ablutions of the foot), Arghya and the seat offered by me.” (6)

प्रतिगृह्य तदा पूजां फलमूलं च भोजनम्।
भक्षयामास काकुत्स्थस्तृप्तिं च परमां गतः ॥ ७ ॥

Accepting then the homage and the fruits and the roots, the scion of Kakutstha, took the food and was fully satisfied. (7)

स भुक्त्वा फलमूलं च महर्षिं तमुवाच ह।
पूर्वा यज्ञविभूतीयं कस्याश्रमसमीपतः ॥ ८ ॥

Having taken the fruits and the roots, he (Śatrughna) said to that great Ṛṣi: ‘To whom belong all these accoutrements of sacrifice that are seen on the eastern side, close to the hermitage’ (8)

तत् तस्य भाषितं श्रुत्वा वाल्मीकिर्वाक्यमब्रवीत्।
शत्रुघ्न शृणु यस्येदं बभूवायतनं पुरा ॥ ९ ॥

Hearing these words of Śatrughna, Vālmiki spoke out: “O Śatrughna! listen as to whom this place of sacrifice belonged formerly. (9)

युष्माकं पूर्वको राजा सुदासस्तस्य भूपतेः।
पुत्रो वीरसहो नाम वीर्यवानतिधार्मिकः ॥ १० ॥

“Among your ancestors there was Saudāsa, and of that king, was a son named Virasaha, who was very brave and extremely pious. (10)

स बाल एव सौदासो मृगयामुपचक्रमे।
चञ्चूर्यमाणं ददृशे स शूरो राक्षसद्वयम् ॥ ११ ॥

“Although young, yet valiant Saudāsa went out for hunting in forest and saw two Rākṣasas roaming about. (11)

शार्दूलरूपिणौ घोरौ मृगान् बहुसहस्रशः।
भक्षमाणावसंतुष्टौ पर्याप्तिं नैव जग्मतुः ॥ १२ ॥

“Those two Rākṣasas assuming the dreadful shape of the lion and devouring many thousands of animals, yet they were still unsatiated. (12)

स तु तौ राक्षसौ दृष्ट्वा निर्मृगं च वनं कृतम्।
क्रोधेन महताविष्टो जघानैकं महेषुणा ॥ १३ ॥

“Seeing those two Rākṣasas and the forest devoid of animals, he, Saudāsa, was enraged and killed one of them with a mighty shaft. (13)

विनिपात्य तमेकं तु सौदासः पुरुषर्षभः।
विज्वरो विगतामर्षो हतं रक्षो ह्युदैक्षत ॥ १४ ॥

“Having killed one of the Rākṣasas the bull among men, Saudāsa, without worry and anger looked at the slain Rākṣasa. (14)

निरीक्षमाणं तं दृष्ट्वा सहायं तस्य रक्षसः।
सन्तापमकरोद् घोरं सौदासं चेदमब्रवीत् ॥ १५ ॥
यस्मादनपराधं तं सहायं मम जञ्जिवान्।
तस्मात् तवापि पापिष्ठ प्रदास्यामि प्रतिक्रियाम् ॥ १६ ॥

“Having seen the dead Rākṣasa, his comrade was greatly pained and said to Saudāsa: ‘As you have killed that Rākṣasa, a friend of mine, who was not at all guilty, so O sinful one, I shall take my revenge on you.” (15-16)

एवमुक्त्वा तु तद् रक्षस्तत्रैवान्तरधीयत।
कालपर्याययोगेन राजा मित्रसहोऽभवत् ॥ १७ ॥

Having said so, that Rākṣasa disappeared. After the lapse of some time, Mitrāsaha (Virāsaha) became the king of Ayodhyā. (17)

राजापि यजते यज्ञमस्याश्रमसमीपतः।
अश्वमेधं महायज्ञं तं वसिष्ठोऽप्यपालयत् ॥ १८ ॥

The king also performed the great sacrifice, the Aśvamedha (horse-sacrifice) near the hermitage and Vasiṣṭha also participated in that sacrifice. (18)

तत्र यज्ञो महानासीद् बहुवर्षगणायुतः।
समृद्धः परया लक्ष्म्या देवयज्ञसमोऽभवत् ॥ १९ ॥

The great sacrifice lasted for many years and was comparable with the sacrifice of the gods being performed with great pomp. (19)

अथावसाने यज्ञस्य पूर्ववैरमनुस्मरन् ।
वसिष्ठरूपी राजानमिति होवाच राक्षसः ॥ २० ॥

Now at the end of this sacrifice, the Rākṣasa in the form of Vasiṣṭha remembering the former enmity spoke to the king. (20)

अद्य यज्ञावसानान्ते सामिषं भोजनं मम ।
दीयतामतिशीघ्रं वै नात्र कार्या विचारणा ॥ २१ ॥

‘At the conclusion of the last part of the sacrifice, give me immediately my food consisting of flesh, and do not ponder over this.’ (21)

तच्छ्रुत्वा व्याहृतं वाक्यं रक्षसा ब्रह्मरूपिणा ।
सूदान् संस्कारकुशलानुवाच पृथिवीपतिः ॥ २२ ॥

Hearing those words, spoken by Rākṣasa in the form of Brāhmaṇa Vasiṣṭha, the king spoke to the expert cooks: (22)

हविष्यं सामिषं स्वादु यथा भवति भोजनम् ।
तथा कुरुत शीघ्रं वै परितुष्येद् यथा गुरुः ॥ २३ ॥

‘Prepare soon such food possessed of flesh, fatty and worthy of offering, so that our preceptor, Vasiṣṭha, is satisfied.’ (23)

शासनात् पार्थिवेन्द्रस्य सूदः सम्भ्रान्तमानसः ।
तच्च रक्षः पुनस्तत्र सूदवेषमथाकरोत् ॥ २४ ॥

The chief of the cooks was perturbed in mind at the orders of the king; then that Rākṣasa soon took the form of the cook. (24)

स मानुषमथो मांसं पार्थिवाय न्यवेदयत् ।
इदं स्वादु हविष्यं च सामिषं चान्नमाहृतम् ॥ २५ ॥

He brought human flesh to the king and said: “This tasteful food, possessed of flesh, has been brought by me.” (25)

स भोजनं वसिष्ठाय पत्न्या सार्धमुपाहरत् ।
मदयन्त्या नरश्रेष्ठ सामिषं रक्षसा हृतम् ॥ २६ ॥

That best among men (Virasaha) together with his wife Madayantī offered this food possessed of flesh brought by the Rākṣasa to Vasiṣṭha. (26)

ज्ञात्वा तदामिषं विप्रो मानुषं भाजनं गतम् ।
क्रोधेन महताविष्टो व्याहर्तुमुपचक्रमे ॥ २७ ॥
यस्मात् त्वं भोजनं राजन् ममैतद् दातुमिच्छसि ।
तस्माद् भोजनमेतत् ते भविष्यति न संशयः ॥ २८ ॥

Knowing human flesh to have been brought as food, the Brāhmaṇa (Vasiṣṭha) possessed of great anger ventured to speak thus: ‘O king as you desire to give such food to me, so no doubt this shall be your food’. (27-28)

ततः क्रुद्धस्तु सौदासस्तोयं जग्राह पाणिना ।
वसिष्ठं शमुमारेभे भार्या चैनमवारयत् ॥ २९ ॥

Then Saudāsa enraged by this, took up a hand-full of water and was on the point of cursing Vasiṣṭha; his wife, however, checked him. (29)

राजन् प्रभुर्यतोऽस्माकं वसिष्ठो भगवानृषिः ।
प्रतिशप्तुं न शक्तस्त्वं देवतुल्यं पुरोधसम् ॥ ३० ॥

‘As the holy Ṛṣi Vasiṣṭha is our venerable preceptor and a chief priest comparable to the gods, O king! so you cannot curse him in return.’ (30)

ततः क्रोधमयं तोयं तेजोबलसमन्वितम् ।
व्यसर्जयत धर्मात्मा ततः पादौ सिषेच च ॥ ३१ ॥

Then the pious Saudāsa employed the water held in his hand, which was infused with anger and his spiritual power and sprinkled his feet with it. (31)

तेनास्य राजस्तौ पादौ तदा कल्माषतां गतौ ।
तदाप्रभृति राजासौ सौदासः सुमहायशाः ॥ ३२ ॥
कल्माषपादः संवृत्तः ख्यातश्चैव तथा नृपः ।
स राजा सह पत्न्या वै प्रणिपत्य मुहुर्मुहुः ।
पुनर्वसिष्ठं प्रोवाच यदुक्तं ब्रह्मरूपिणा ॥ ३३ ॥

By it (this sprinkling) the feet of the king became variegated in colour, and thence the king by name Saudāsa, became famous as Kalmāṣapāda (with feet of dark-variegated colour), and was so known. That King with his wife falling at the feet of Vasiṣṭha again and again repeated to Vasiṣṭha what was uttered by the Rākṣasa, in the form of a Brāhmaṇa. (32-33)

तच्छ्रुत्वा पार्थिवेन्द्रस्य रक्षसा विकृतं च तत् ।
पुनः प्रोवाच राजानं वसिष्ठः पुरुषर्षभम् ॥ ३४ ॥

After having heard what the King said and knowing the food being contaminated by the Rākṣasa, Vasiṣṭha again spoke to Saudāsa, the bull among men: (34)

मया रोषपरीतेन यदिदं व्याहृतं वचः ।
नैतच्छब्दं वृथा कर्तुं प्रदास्यामि च ते वरम् ॥ ३५ ॥
‘These words that have been uttered by me in anger, cannot be rendered ineffective, I will, however, grant you a boon. (35)

कालो द्वादशवर्षाणि शापस्यान्तो भविष्यति ।
मत् प्रसादाच्च राजेन्द्र अतीतं न स्मरिष्यसि ॥ ३६ ॥
The curse will come to an end after twelve years and by my grace, you will not remember the past.” (36)

एवं स राजा तं शापमुपभुज्यारिसूदनः ।
प्रतिलेभे पुना राज्यं प्रजाश्रैवान्वपालयत् ॥ ३७ ॥

Thus that King, the extirpator of enemies, having borne that curse, regained his kingdom and protected his subjects. (37)

तस्य कल्माषपादस्य यज्ञस्यायतनं शुभम् ।
आश्रमस्य समीपेऽस्य यन्मां पृच्छसि राघव ॥ ३८ ॥

‘Of that Kalmāṣapāda is this holy place of sacrifice, near the hermitage about which you asked me’. (38)

तस्य तां पार्थिवेन्द्रस्य कथां श्रुत्वा सुदारुणाम् ।
विवेश पर्णशालायां महर्षिमभिवाद्य च ॥ ३९ ॥

Having heard this dreadful story of that king Kalmāṣapāda, Śatrughna saluted the great Ṛṣi and entered the hutment. (39)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे पञ्चषष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-five in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious-Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षट्षष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXVI

Birth of two sons to Sītā, Vālmiki makes arrangement for their protection.

Śatrughna is happy over this and leaves for the bank of the Yamunā

यामेव रात्रिं शत्रुघ्नः पर्णशालां समाविशत् ।
तामेव रात्रिं सीतापि प्रसूता दारकद्वयम् ॥ १ ॥

During that night Śatrughna entered the arbour. The same very night Sītā gave birth to two sons. (1)

ततोऽर्धरात्रसमये बालका मुनिदारकाः ।
वाल्मीकेः प्रियमाचख्युः सीतायाः प्रसवं शुभम् ॥ २ ॥

At midnight, the young ascetics spoke to sage Vālmiki about the auspicious motherhood of Sītā, which news very much pleased him: (2)

भगवन् रामपत्नी सा प्रसूता दारकद्वयम् ।
ततो रक्षां महातेजः कुरु भूतविनाशिनीम् ॥ ३ ॥

‘Sir, the wife of Rāma has given birth to two sons. So, O powerful one, make the protecting rites that destroy the ill spirits of the nether world.’ (3)

तेषां तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा महर्षिः समुपागमत् ।
बालचन्द्रप्रतीकाशौ देवपुत्रौ महौजसौ ॥ ४ ॥

Hearing these words from them, the great sage went there and saw the two sons, who were like sons of the gods and were as effulgent as the moon. (4)

जगाम तत्र हृष्टात्मा ददर्श च कुमारकौ ।
भूतघ्नीं चाकरोत् ताभ्यां रक्षां रक्षोविनाशिनीम् ॥ ५ ॥

The sage went there joyfully and looked at the two sons and made the sacrament for both of them that kills the inauspicious Bhūtas and destroys the Rākṣasa. (5)

कुशमुष्टिमुपादाय लवं चैव तु स द्विजः ।

वाल्मीकिः प्रददौ ताभ्यां रक्षां भूतविनाशिनीम् ॥ ६ ॥

That Brāhmaṇa Vālmīki took the handful of Kuśa and Lava (the lower portion of the Kuśa grass) and preparing the totemic device, handed it over to them, the protective symbol that kills the Bhūtas. (6)

यस्तयोः पूर्वजो जातः स कुशैर्मन्त्रसत्कृतैः ।

निर्माजनीयस्तु तदा कुश इत्यस्य नाम तत् ॥ ७ ॥

‘He who of the two was born first should be cleansed with the Kuśas purified by chants and then his name will be ‘Kuśa.’ (7)

यश्चावरो भवेत् ताभ्यां लवेन सुसमाहितः ।

निर्माजनीयो वृद्धाभिर्लवेति च स नामतः ॥ ८ ॥

‘Who happens to be born later, should be cleansed carefully with Lava by the old women and will be known by the name of Lava. (8)

एवं कुशलवौ नाम्ना तावुभौ यमजातकौ ।

मत्कृताभ्यां च नामभ्यां ख्यातियुक्तौ भविष्यतः ॥ ९ ॥

‘Thus these twins named Kuśa and Lava will become famous bearing the names given by me.’ (9)

तां रक्षां जगृहस्तां च मुनिहस्तात् समाहिताः ।

अकुर्वन्श्च ततो रक्षां तयोर्विगतकल्मषाः ॥ १० ॥

Then the old women of Āśrama pure in mind took with care the totemic device from the hands of the sage and performed the protective rites of the twins. (10)

तथा तां क्रियमाणां च वृद्धाभिर्गोत्रनाम च ।

संकीर्तनं च रामस्य सीतायाः प्रसवौ शुभौ ॥ ११ ॥

अर्धरात्रे तु शत्रुघ्नः शुश्राव सुमहत् प्रियम् ।

पर्णशालां ततो गत्वा मातर्दिष्ट्येति चाब्रवीत् ॥ १२ ॥

While in this manner (the symbolic protection) was being performed by the old women, Śatrughna at midnight heard the joyful Gotra and name of Śrī Rāma and also the news of delivery of the two sons by Sītā and then having entered the arbour of Sītā said, ‘O mother, by the grace of God two sons are born to you.’ (11-12)

तदा तस्य प्रहृष्टस्य शत्रुघ्नस्य महात्मनः ।

व्यतीता वार्षिकी रात्रिः श्रावणी लघुविक्रमा ॥ १३ ॥

Then the night of the rainy season of the month of Śrāvaṇa (full moon) passed swiftly with noble Śatrughna enjoying himself. (13)

प्रभाते सुमहावीर्यः कृत्वा पौर्वाहिकीं क्रियाम् ।

मुनिं प्राञ्जलिरामन्त्र्य ययौ पश्चान्मुखः पुनः ॥ १४ ॥

At break of dawn, having performed the morning ablutions, he (Śatrughna) taking leave of the sage with folded hands, started forth to the western direction. (14)

स गत्वा यमुनातीरं सप्तरात्रोषितः पथि ।

ऋषीणां पुण्यकीर्तीनामाश्रमे वासमभ्ययात् ॥ १५ ॥

Reaching the banks of the Yamunā, and having spent seven nights on the way he (Śatrughna) made for his stay in the hermitages of the sages of holy fame. (15)

स तत्र मुनिभिः सार्धं भार्गवप्रमुखैर्नृपः ।

कथाभिरभिरूपाभिर्वासं चक्रे महायशाः ॥ १६ ॥

He, the famous one, dwelt there with the sages among whom Bhārgava was the foremost, taking part in talks proper to the occasion. (16)

स काञ्चनाद्यैर्मुनिभिः समेतै

रघुप्रवीरो रजनीं तदानीम् ।

कथाप्रकारैर्बहुभिर्महात्मा

विरामयामास नरेन्द्रसूनुः ॥ १७ ॥

This way the mightiest among Raghus and great souled Śatrughna in the company of sages like Cyavana passed that night through hearing various religious tales. (17)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे षट्षष्टितमः सर्गः ॥ ६६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-six in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तषष्टितमः सर्गः

Canto LXVII

The sage Cyavana apprises Śatrughna of the power of Lavaṇa's lance and narrates the events connected with the slaying of king Māndhātā

अथ रात्र्यां प्रवृत्तायां शत्रुघ्नो भृगुनन्दनम् ।
पप्रच्छ च्यवनं विप्रं लवणस्य यथाबलम् ॥ १ ॥
शूलस्य च बलं ब्रह्मन् के च पूर्वं विनाशिताः ।
अनेन शूलमुख्येन द्वन्द्वयुद्धमुपागताः ॥ २ ॥

Then as the night appeared, Śatrughna asked the Brāhmaṇa, Cyavana, son of Bhṛgu the exact might of Lavaṇa, and the power of the trident also. He enquired, 'O Brāhmaṇa, who were killed by this special trident having entered into a duel with Lavaṇa.' (1-2)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा शत्रुघ्नस्य महात्मनः ।
प्रत्युवाच महातेजाश्च्यवनो रघुनन्दनम् ॥ ३ ॥

Hearing these words of the noble Śatrughna, the mighty Cyavana said in reply to the scion of the Raghus: (3)

असंख्येयानि कर्माणि यान्यस्य रघुनन्दन ।
इक्ष्वाकुवंशप्रभवे यद् वृत्तं तच्छृणुष्व मे ॥ ४ ॥

'Among the innumerable doings of this Lavaṇa listen to me that which took place in the context of the originator of the family of Ikṣvāku (Māndhātā). (4)

अयोध्यायां पुरा राजा युवनाश्वसुतो बली ।
मान्धाता इति विख्यातस्त्रिषु लोकेषु वीर्यवान् ॥ ५ ॥

'In the old days, there was a powerful king, the son of Yuvanāśva, known as Māndhātā, noted for his might in the three worlds. (5)

स कृत्वा पृथिवीं कृत्स्नां शासने पृथिवीपतिः ।
सुरलोकमितो जेतुमुद्योगमकरोन्पुः ॥ ६ ॥

'Having ruled over the entire earth, that king, lord of the earth, embarked on a conquest of the world of the gods from here, the earth. (6)

इन्द्रस्य च भयं तीव्रं सुराणां च महात्मनाम् ।
मान्धातरि कृतोद्योगे देवलोकजिगीषया ॥ ७ ॥

'Great fear overcame Indra and other mighty gods, when Māndhātā prepared to fight with a desire to conquer the world of gods. (7)

अर्धासनेन शक्रस्य राज्यार्धेन च पार्थिवः ।
वन्द्यमानः सुरगणैः प्रतिज्ञामध्यरोहत ॥ ८ ॥

Propitiated by the host of gods, Māndhātā, the king, having vowed to take one half of Indra's kingdom and the other half of earthly sovereignty, went up to raid heaven. (8)

तस्य पापमभिप्रायं विदित्वा पाकशासनः ।
सान्त्वपूर्वमिदं वाक्यमुवाच युवनाश्वजम् ॥ ९ ॥

'Indra, the conqueror of Pāka Daitya, having known his evil intentions, uttered these conciliatory words to the progeny of Yuvanāśva. (9)

राजा त्वं मानुषे लोके न तावत् पुरुषर्षभ ।
अकृत्वा पृथिवीं वश्यां देवराज्यमिहेच्छसि ॥ १० ॥

'O bull among men, Māndhātā, you are still not established as a king in the mortal worlds, and you desire the kingdom of the gods here without subjugating the earth. (10)

यदि वीर समग्रा ते मेदिनी निखिला वशे ।
देवराज्यं कुरुष्वेह सभृत्यबलवाहनः ॥ ११ ॥

'O brave one, if the entire earth is indeed under your sway then you may rule over the kingdom of the gods together with your attendants, army and carriers. (11)

इन्द्रमेवं ब्रुवाणं तं मान्धाता वाक्यमब्रवीत् ।
क्व मे शक्र प्रतिहतं शासनं पृथिवीतले ॥ १२ ॥

Māndhātā said to Indra: 'O Indra, where does my rule over the earth is obstructed'? (12)

तमुवाच सहस्राक्षो लवणो नाम राक्षसः ।
मधुपुत्रो मधुवने न तेऽऽज्ञां कुरुतेऽनघ ॥ १३ ॥

The thousand-eyed Indra told him, 'O sinless one, the son of Madhu, the Rākṣasa Lavaṇa by name, does not obey your orders.'
(13)

तच्छ्रुत्वा विप्रियं घोरं सहस्राक्षेण भाषितम् ।
व्रीडितोऽवाङ्मुखो राजा व्याहर्तुं न शशाक ह ॥ १४ ॥

Having heard the dreadful unpleasant words, conveyed by Indra, the King put to shame with face downcast, could not speak.
(14)

आमन्त्र्य तु सहस्राक्षं प्रायात् किञ्चिदवाङ्मुखः ।
पुनरेवागमच्छ्रीमानिमं लोकं नरेश्वरः ॥ १५ ॥

Taking leave of the thousand-eyed god,
with his face turned somewhat downwards, the lord of the mortals proceeded and came back again to this world. (15)

स कृत्वा हृदयेऽमर्षं सभृत्यबलवाहनः ।
आजगाम मधोः पुत्रं वशे कर्तुमरिंदमः ॥ १६ ॥

That king, the destroyer of foes, with anger in his heart and together with his attendants and carriers came to bring the son of Madhu, Lavaṇa, under his sway. (16)

स काङ्क्षमाणो लवणं युद्धाय पुरुषर्षभः ।
दूतं सम्प्रेषयामास सकाशं लवणस्य सः ॥ १७ ॥

Desirous to fight with Lavaṇa, the bull among men, Māndhātā, sent a messenger to Lavaṇa. (17)

स गत्वा विप्रियाण्याह बहूनि मधुनः सुतम् ।
वदन्तमेवं तं दूतं भक्षयामास राक्षसः ॥ १८ ॥

He, the messenger, having approached the son of Madhu, said many unpleasant words; the Rākṣasa devoured that messenger while he was speaking thus.
(18)

चिरायमाणे दूते तु राजा क्रोधसमन्वितः ।
अर्दयामास तद् रक्षः शरवृष्ट्या समन्ततः ॥ १९ ॥

The messenger, on being late in returning, the King possessed of anger, inflicted injury on the Rākṣasa by shower of arrows on all sides. (19)

ततः प्रहस्य तद् रक्षः शूलं जग्राह पाणिना ।
वधाय सानुबन्धस्य मुमोचायुधमुत्तमम् ॥ २० ॥

Then that Rākṣasa laughed and took the trident in his hand and released the best among weapons, the trident, for the purpose of slaying Māndhātā with all his followers. (20)

तच्छूलं दीप्यमानं तु सभृत्यबलवाहनम् ।
भस्मीकृत्वा नृपं भूयो लवणस्यागमत् करम् ॥ २१ ॥

That enflamed trident on its part, having rendered to ashes the king together with his attendant, army and carriers—came back to the hand of Lavaṇa. (21)

एवं स राजा सुमहान् हतः सबलवाहनः ।
शूलस्य तु बलं सौम्य अप्रमेयमनुत्तमम् ॥ २२ ॥

Thus that great King was killed together with his army and carriers, O gracious one, the power of the trident is impossible to fathom. (22)

श्वः प्रभाते तु लवणं वधिष्यसि न संशयः ।
अगृहीतायुधं क्षिप्रं ध्रुवो हि विजयस्तव ॥ २३ ॥

Tomorrow morning, you shall soon kill Lavaṇa while he is without the weapon, there is no doubt that your victory is certain. (23)

लोकानां स्वस्ति चैवं स्यात् कृते कर्मणि च त्वया ।
एतत् ते सर्वमाख्यातं लवणस्य दुरात्मनः ॥ २४ ॥
शूलस्य च बलं घोरमप्रमेयं नरर्षभ ।
विनाशश्चैव मान्धातुर्यत्नेनाभूच्च पार्थिव ॥ २५ ॥

By you performing this deed the welfare of the worlds will be achieved. Thus all has been narrated to you, O bull among men, about the might of the wicked Lavaṇa and the unfathomable dreadful power of the trident, O king Māndhātā; Lavaṇa perished due to his own misdeeds. (24-25)

त्वं श्वः प्रभाते लवणं महात्मन्
वधिष्यसे नात्र तु संशयो मे ।
शूलं विना निर्गतमामिषार्थं
ध्रुवो जयस्ते भविता नरेन्द्र ॥ २६ ॥

Tomorrow morning you will slay Lavaṇa

I have no doubt, O noble one, when he will proceed for flesh, having not the trident with him, victory shall be yours, O king of men. (26)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे सप्तषष्ठितमः सर्गः ॥ ६७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-seven in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टषष्ठितमः सर्गः

Canto LXVIII

Lavaṇa goes out in search of food. Śatrughna stays at the citygate awaiting return of Lavaṇa and has an angry exchange of words with the latter

कथां कथयतां तेषां जयं चाकाङ्क्षतां शुभम् ।

व्यतीता रजनी शीघ्रं शत्रुघ्नस्य महात्मनः ॥ १ ॥

The night passed away quickly while staying at the hermitage of Cyavana, the noble Śatrughna conversing with Cyavana and other sages, who wished for his holy victory (against Lavaṇa). (1)

ततः प्रभाते विमले तस्मिन् काले स राक्षसः ।
निर्गतस्तु पुराद् वीरो भक्ष्याहारप्रचोदितः ॥ २ ॥

Then in the morning when it was dawn, that Rākṣasa, Lavaṇa, the heroic one, went out of his city impelled by the desire to bring his food. (2)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे वीरः शत्रुघ्नो यमुनां नदीम् ।
तीर्त्वा मधुपुरद्वारि धनुष्यागिरतिष्ठत ॥ ३ ॥

In the meantime, Śatrughna, the brave one, having crossed the Yamunā, stood at the gates of the city of Madhu, with bow in his hand. (3)

ततोऽर्धदिवसे प्राप्ते क्रूरकर्मा स राक्षसः ।
आगच्छद् बहुसाहस्रं प्राणिनां भारमुद्वहन् ॥ ४ ॥

Then at midday that Rākṣasa, Lavaṇa, the evil-doer returned bearing the load of many thousand creatures. (4)

ततो ददर्श शत्रुघ्नं स्थितं द्वारि धृतायुधम् ।
तमुवाच ततो रक्षः किमनेन करिष्यसि ॥ ५ ॥

Then the Rākṣasa saw Śatrughna armed with the bow, standing at the gate and said to him: 'What will you do with this weapon? (5)

ईदृशानां सहस्राणि सायुधानां नराधम ।
भक्षितानि मया रोषात् कालेनानुगतो ह्यसि ॥ ६ ॥

'Many thousands of men like you accompanied with weapons, O wretched one, have been devoured by me in anger. Death seems to have come nearer to you. (6)

आहारश्चाप्यसम्पूर्णो ममायं पुरुषाधम ।
स्वयं प्रविष्टोऽद्य मुखं कथमासाद्य दुर्मते ॥ ७ ॥

'O vile one, my food is yet incomplete, having come, you enter my mouth of your own accord?' (7)

तस्यैवं भाषमाणस्य हसतश्च मुहुर्मुहुः ।
शत्रुघ्नो वीर्यसम्पन्नो रोषादश्रूण्यवासृजत् ॥ ८ ॥

While the Rākṣasa spoke thus and laughing, the heroic Śatrughna broke in tears with anger. (8)

तस्य रोषाभिभूतस्य शत्रुघ्नस्य महात्मनः ।
तेजोमया मरीच्यस्तु सर्वगात्रैर्विनिष्पतन् ॥ ९ ॥

Fiery rays issued forth from all the limbs of the noble and angry Śatrughna. (9)

उवाच च सुसंकुब्धः शत्रुघ्नः स निशाचरम् ।
योद्धुमिच्छामि दुर्बुद्धे द्वन्द्वयुद्धं त्वया सह ॥ १० ॥

Highly enraged, Śatrughna then addressed the demon, who roamed about thus at right, 'O evil one, I wish to have a duel with you. (10)

पुत्रो दशरथस्याहं भ्राता रामस्य धीमतः ।

शत्रुघ्नो नाम शत्रुघ्नो वधाकाङ्क्षी तवागतः ॥ ११ ॥

'I am the son of (King) Daśaratha, and the brother of the wise Śrī Rāma, the extirpator of foes, Śatrughna by name. I have come with a desire to kill you. (11)

तस्य मे युद्धकामस्य द्वन्द्वयुद्धं प्रदीयताम् ।

शत्रुस्त्वं सर्वभूतानां न मे जीवन् गमिष्यसि ॥ १२ ॥

'So give the duel to me, who desires to fight with you! You are the enemy of all beings; with me alive here you shall not escape.' (12)

तस्मिंस्तथा ब्रुवाणे तु राक्षसः प्रहसन्निव ।

प्रत्युवाच नरश्रेष्ठं दिष्ट्या प्राप्तोऽसि दुर्मते ॥ १३ ॥

When Śatrughna had spoken thus, that Rākṣasa, Lavaṇa, replied to the best among men, as if laughing: 'O wicked one, it is my good luck that you have come within my reach. (13)

मम मातृष्वसुर्भाता रावणो नाम राक्षसः ।

हतो रामेण दुर्बुद्धे स्त्रीहेतोः पुरुषाधम ॥ १४ ॥

'O insensate one, the Rākṣasa Rāvaṇa the brother of my maternal aunt, was killed by Rāma for the sake of a woman. (14)

तच्च सर्वं मया क्षान्तं रावणस्य कुलक्षयम् ।

अवज्ञां पुरतः कृत्वा मया यूयं विशेषतः ॥ १५ ॥

All I had forgiven, the destruction of the family of Rāvaṇa, and ignoring specially you. (15)

निहताश्च हि ते सर्वे परिभूतास्तृणं यथा ।

भूताश्चैव भविष्याश्च यूयं च पुरुषाधमाः ॥ १६ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डेऽष्टषष्ठितमः सर्गः ॥ ६८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-eight in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

'But now all of you, that have been born or will be born and even you vile ones, will be swept away by me like straws. (16)

तस्य ते युद्धकामस्य युद्धं दास्यामि दुर्मते ।

तिष्ठ त्वं च मुहूर्तं तु यावदायुधमानये ॥ १७ ॥

'I shall indeed give you a fight, who wish it, O fool of vicious intellect. Just wait for a moment, while I bring my weapon (trident). (17)

ईप्सितं यादृशं तुभ्यं सज्जये यावदायुधम् ।

तमुवाचाशु शत्रुघ्नः क्व मे जीवन् गमिष्यसि ॥ १८ ॥

'I am going to be equipped with the weapon with which I desire to kill you.' At this Śatrughna at once spoke out: 'Where will you go as long as I am alive? (18)

स्वयमेवागतः शत्रुर्न मोक्तव्यः कृतात्मना ।

यो हि विक्लवया बुद्ध्या प्रसरं शत्रवे दिशेत् ।

स हतो मन्दबुद्धिः स्याद् यथा कापुरुषस्तथा ॥ १९ ॥

'The enemy that has come of his own accord does not deserve to be set free by one disciplined in mind. Whoever with unsettled mind gives freedom to a foe to disappear, that weak-minded one indeed would be killed as a coward. (19)

तस्मात् सुदृष्टं कुरु जीवलोकं

शरैः शितैस्त्वां विविधैर्नयामि ।

यमस्य गेहाभिमुखं हि पापं

रिपुं त्रिलोकस्य च राघवस्य ॥ २० ॥

'You, therefore, have a good look at this world of mortals, O wicked one! I shall carry you to Yama's abode with many sharp arrows, O foe of the three worlds and also of Raghu's family.' (20)

एकोनसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXIX

Duel fight between Śatrughna and Lavaṇa,
Śatrughna kills Lavaṇa

तच्छ्रुत्वा भाषितं तस्य शत्रुघ्नस्य महात्मनः।
क्रोधमाहारयत् तीव्रं तिष्ठ तिष्ठेति चाब्रवीत्॥ १ ॥

Hearing these words of the noble Śatrughna, Lavaṇa became extremely angry and said: 'Wait for a moment'. (1)

पाणौ पाणिं च निष्पिष्य दन्तान् कटकटाय्य च।
लवणो रघुशार्दूलमाह्वयामास चासकृत्॥ २ ॥

Rubbing his one hand with the other, and making a rattling sound with his teeth, Lavaṇa challenged the lion among Raghus many times. (2)

तं ब्रुवाणं तथा वाक्यं लवणं घोरदर्शनम्।
शत्रुघ्नो देवशत्रुघ्न इदं वचनमब्रवीत्॥ ३ ॥

To that Lavaṇa of fearful appearance, speaking thus, Śatrughna, the killer of the enemies of the gods, said these words: (3)

शत्रुघ्नो न तदा जातो यदान्ये निर्जितास्त्वया।
तदद्य बाणाभिहतो ब्रज त्वं यमसादनम्॥ ४ ॥

'Śatrughna was not born, when others were conquered by you in battle, so go to the abode of Yama today, killed by my arrow. (4)

ऋषयोऽप्यद्य पापात्मन् मया त्वां निहतं रणे।
पश्यन्तु विप्रा विद्वांसस्त्रिदशा इव रावणम्॥ ५ ॥

'O sinful one, may the sages too see you killed in encounter today, also the learned Brāhmaṇas, as the gods saw Rāvaṇa killed. (5)

त्वयि मद्भाणनिर्दग्धे पतितेऽद्य निशाचर।
पुरे जनपदे चापि क्षेममेव भविष्यति॥ ६ ॥

'Today there will be peace indeed in the city and province, as you, the demon roaming about at night are slain by my arrow and lie prostrate on the ground and burnt. (6)

अद्य मद्बाहुनिष्क्रान्तः शरो वज्रनिभाननः।
प्रवेक्ष्यते ते हृदयं पद्ममंशुरिवार्कजः॥ ७ ॥

'Today, the arrow, whose fore-point resembles the thunderbolt, released by my hand, shall enter your heart as the ray of the sun enters in the lotus.' (7)

एवमुक्तो महावृक्षं लवणः क्रोधमूर्च्छितः।
शत्रुघ्नोरसि चिक्षेप स च तं शतधाच्छिनत्॥ ८ ॥

Being thus spoken, Lavaṇa enraged with anger threw a mighty tree on the breast of Śatrughna; but Śatrughna cut it thousand-fold with arrows. (8)

तद् दृष्ट्वा विफलं कर्म राक्षसः पुनरेव तु।
पादपान् सुबहून् गृह्य शत्रुघ्नायासृजद् बली॥ ९ ॥

Thus seeing his action fruitless, the powerful Rākṣasa again taking hold of many trees hurled them at Śatrughna. (9)

शत्रुघ्नश्चापि तेजस्वी वृक्षानापततो बहून्।
त्रिभिश्चतुर्भिरेकैकं चिच्छेद नतपर्वभिः॥ १० ॥

The brave Śatrughna too, tore asunder each one coming upon him, by three or four arrows of flatterend ends. (10)

ततो बाणमयं वर्षं व्यसृजद् राक्षसोपरि।
शत्रुघ्नो वीर्यसम्पन्नो विव्यथे न स राक्षसः॥ ११ ॥

Thus, Śatrughna then possessed of great might, let loose a shower of arrows on the Rākṣasa; however, the Rākṣasa was not troubled. (11)

ततः प्रहस्य लवणो वृक्षमुद्यम्य वीर्यवान्।
शिरस्यभ्यहनच्छूरं स्वस्ताङ्गः स मुमोह वै॥ १२ ॥

Then the powerful Lavaṇa laughed, and lifting a tree attacked the brave one, Śatrughna, on the head; Śatrughna went into a swoon with the bodily joints loosened. (12)

तस्मिन् निपतिते वीरे हाहाकारो महानभूत्।
ऋषीणां देवसंघानां गन्धर्वाप्सरसां तथा ॥ १३ ॥

So, as the brave Śatrughna fell, long cries of 'Hā' emanated from the sages, the host of the gods, the Gandharvas and Apsarās (the celestial beings). (13)

तमवज्ञाय तु हतं शत्रुघ्नं भुवि पातितम्।
रक्षो लब्धान्तरमपि न विवेश स्वमालयम् ॥ १४ ॥

Ignoring Śatrughna, fallen on the ground whom he took killed, the Rākṣasa did not enter his residence, although given time to do so. (14)

नापि शूलं प्रजग्राह तं दृष्ट्वा भुवि पातितम्।
ततो हत इति ज्ञात्वा तान् भक्षान् समुदावहत् ॥ १५ ॥

Nor even did he, Lavaṇa, take up the trident seeing him (Śatrughna) lying on the ground, and then considering him, Śatrughna, dead, carried again his provisions. (15)

मुहूर्ताल्लब्धसंज्ञस्तु पुनस्तस्थौ धृतायुधः।
शत्रुघ्नो वै पुरद्वारि ऋषिभिः सम्प्रपूजितः ॥ १६ ॥

Gaining consciousness in a moment, Śatrughna, adored by the sages, stood up and waited at the door of the city of Madhu, weapon in his hand. (16)

ततो दिव्यममोघं तं जग्राह शरमुत्तमम्।
ज्वलन्तं तेजसा घोरं पूरयन्तं दिशो दश ॥ १७ ॥

वज्राननं वज्रवेगं मेरुमन्दरसंनिभम्।
नतं पर्वसु सर्वेषु संयुगेष्वपराजितम् ॥ १८ ॥

असृक्चन्दनदिग्धाङ्गं चारुपत्रं पतत्रिणम्।
दानवेन्द्राचलेन्द्राणामसुराणां च दारुणम् ॥ १९ ॥

तं दीप्तमिव कालाग्निं युगान्ते समुपस्थिते।
दृष्ट्वा सर्वाणि भूतानि परित्रासमुपागमन् ॥ २० ॥

Then Śatrughna took hold of the arrow: the divine and excelling others, flaming with brilliance and filling the ten quarters with its brilliance, shaped like the thunderbolt in front, resembling the thunderbolt in speed, equalling Meru and Mandara mountains, flat shaped, invincible in all encounters, smeared with red sandal-like blood, beautiful as the winged bird, dreadful for the lord of the Dānavas and also the mountains, resembling as if the fire of destruction kindled at the time of final dissolution. Seeing it, all beings were very much frightened. (17—20)

सदेवासुरगन्धर्व मुनिभिः साप्सरोगणम्।
जगद्धि सर्वमस्वस्थं पितामहमुपस्थितम् ॥ २१ ॥

The whole world, together with the Devas, Asuras and Gandharvas and the sages, was in discomfort and all approached Pitāmaha (Brahmā). (21)

उवाच देवदेवेशं वरदं प्रपितामहम्।
देवानां भयसम्मोहो लोकानां संक्षयं प्रति ॥ २२ ॥

They narrated to the god of the gods, Prapitāmaha Brahmā, the bewilderment of the gods with fear regarding the security of the worlds. (22)

कच्चिल्लोकक्षयो देव सम्प्राप्तो वा युगक्षयः।
नेदृशं दृष्टपूर्वं च न श्रुतं प्रपितामह ॥ २३ ॥

'O lord ! is the destruction of the world at hand or has the end of the universe approached? O grand sire, never before has such a condition of the world been seen or heard.' (23)

तेषां तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा ब्रह्मा लोकपितामहः।
भयकारणमाचष्ट देवानामभयंकरः ॥ २४ ॥

Hearing their words, Brahmā the grandfather of the worlds, protector of the gods, revealed the cause of the fear of the gods. (24)

उवाच मधुरां वाणीं शृणुध्वं सर्वदेवताः।
वधाय लवणस्याजौ शरः शत्रुघ्नधारितः ॥ २५ ॥

He said in a sweet voice: 'All the gods listen to me; the arrow has been held by Śatrughna for the slaying of Lavaṇa in encounter. (25)

तेजसा तस्य सम्पूढाः सर्वे स्म सुरसत्तमाः।
एष पूर्वस्य देवस्य लोककर्तुः सनातनः ॥ २६ ॥

शरस्तेजोमयो वत्सा येन वै भयमागतम्।
एष वै कैटभस्यार्थे मधुनश्च महाशरः ॥ २७ ॥

सृष्टो महात्मना तेन वधार्थे दैत्ययोस्तयोः।
एक एव प्रजानाति विष्णुस्तेजोमयं शरम् ॥ २८ ॥

'All the great gods are bewildered at the power of that arrow ! O my children, this is the eternal powerful arrow of the former God, the creator of the world, Viṣṇu, due to which the gods are in fear; this mighty arrow was created for the destruction of those two sons of Diti, Madhu and Kaiṭabha; Viṣṇu alone knows well about this powerful arrow. (26—28)

एषा एव तनुः पूर्वा विष्णोस्तस्य महात्मनः ।
इतो गच्छत पश्यध्वं वध्यमानं महात्मना ॥ २९ ॥
रामानुजेन वीरेण लवणं राक्षसोत्तमम् ।
तस्य ते देवदेवस्य निशम्य वचनं सुराः ॥ ३० ॥
आजगम्यत्र युध्येते शत्रुघ्नलवणावुभौ ।
तं शरं दिव्यसंकाशं शत्रुघ्नकरधारितम् ॥ ३१ ॥
ददृशुः सर्वभूतानि युगान्ताग्रिमिवोत्थितम् ।
आकाशमावृतं दृष्ट्वा देवैर्हि रघुनन्दनः ॥ ३२ ॥
सिंहनादं भृशं कृत्वा ददर्श लवणं पुनः ।
आहूतश्च पुनस्तेन शत्रुघ्नेन महात्मना ॥ ३३ ॥

‘This arrow is the ancient form of the noble Viṣṇu; go from here, O my children, and witness Lavaṇa being killed by the noble and heroic Śatrughna, the younger brother of Śrī Rāma.’

The gods hearing the words of the God of gods, came to the place where both Śatrughna and Lavaṇa were engaged in fighting; all beings witnessed that divine arrow borne by Śatrughna in his hand, as if it was the fire that broke out at the time of universal destruction. Seeing the sky filled with the gods, Śatrughna, again having roared like a lion, looked at Lavaṇa; he (Lavaṇa) was again challenged by the noble Śatrughna. (29—33)

लवणः क्रोधसंयुक्तो युद्धाय समुपस्थितः ।
आकर्णात् स विकृष्याथ तद् धनुर्धन्विनां वरः ॥ ३४ ॥
स मुमोच महाबाणं लवणस्य महोरसि ।
उरस्तस्य विदार्याशु प्रविवेश रसातलम् ॥ ३५ ॥
गत्वा रसातलं दिव्यः शरो विबुधपूजितः ।
पुनरेवागमत् तूर्णमिक्ष्वाकुकुलनन्दनम् ॥ ३६ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकोनसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ६९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Sixty-nine in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

Lavaṇa filled with anger appeared to give him (Śatrughna) the fight. He, Śatrughna, the best among archers, then having stretched that bow up to his ear, shot the arrow at the mighty chest of Lavaṇa. That divine arrow descended to the nether-world breaking open Lavaṇa's chest, and having gone there, being worshipped by the gods, came back quickly again to Śatrughna, the descendant of the family of Ikṣvāku. (34—36)

शत्रुघ्नशरनिर्भिन्नो लवणः स निशाचरः ।
पपात सहसा भूमौ वज्राहत इवाचलः ॥ ३७ ॥

That demon Lavaṇa being struck by the arrow of Śatrughna, fell on the ground all at once like the mountain struck by the thunderbolt. (37)

तच्च शूलं महद् दिव्यं हते लवणराक्षसे ।
पश्यतां सर्वदेवानां रुद्रस्य वशमन्वगात् ॥ ३८ ॥

On the Rākṣasa Lavaṇa being killed, that mighty divine arrow too, came back to the quiver of Rudra as all the gods looked on. (38)

एकेषुपातेन भयं निपात्य
लोकत्रयस्यास्य रघुप्रवीरः ।
विनिर्बभावुत्तमचापबाण-
स्तमः प्रणुद्येव सहस्ररश्मिः ॥ ३९ ॥
ततो हि देवा ऋषिपन्नगाश्च
प्रपूजिरे ह्यप्सरसश्च सर्वाः ।
दिष्ट्या जयो दाशरथेरवास-
स्त्यक्त्वा भयं सर्प इव प्रशान्तः ॥ ४० ॥

Then the champion of Raghus, Śatrughna, felled with one arrow the terror of three worlds, shone forth as the sun dispelling the darkness. All gods, sages, serpents paid homage to him and Apsarās hailed the fearless victory of the son of Śrī Daśaratha, the serpent laid to rest. (39-40)

सप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXX

Having obtained a boon from the gods and after founding Madhupurī, in the twelfth year, Śatrughna decides to meet Śrī Rāma

हते तु लवणे देवाः सेन्द्राः साग्रिपुरोगमाः ।
ऊचुः सुमधुरां वाणीं शत्रुञ्च शत्रुतापनम् ॥ १ ॥

After Lavaṇa was killed, the gods, together with Indra and Agni as their head, spoke these sweet words to Śatrughna, the tormentor of the foes. (1)

दिष्ट्या ते विजयो वत्स दिष्ट्या लवणराक्षसः ।
हतः पुरुषशार्दूल वरं वरय सुव्रत ॥ २ ॥

‘O lion among men, by good fortune, victory is yours and the Rākṣasa is dead,
O! of a noble vow! ask us for a boon. (2)

वरदास्तु महाबाहो सर्व एव समागताः ।
विजयाकाङ्क्षिणस्तुभ्यममोघं दर्शनं हि नः ॥ ३ ॥

‘All desirous of your victory are intending to grant boon to you. We have come; our presence here will not be fruitless.’ (3)

देवानां भाषितं श्रुत्वा शूरो मूर्ध्नि कृताञ्जलिः ।
प्रत्युवाच महाबाहुः शत्रुञ्चः प्रयतात्मवान् ॥ ४ ॥

Hearing the words of the gods,
Śatrughna, the long-armed one, disciplined in mind, keeping his folded hands on his head replied thus : (4)

इयं मधुपुरी रम्या मधुरा देवनिर्मिता ।
निवेशं प्राप्नुयाच्छीघ्रमेष मेऽस्तु वरः परः ॥ ५ ॥

‘This city of Madhu, Madhurā by name, built by the gods, may become the capital soon. This is the only boon that I desire: (5)

तं देवाः प्रीतमनसो बाढमित्येव राघवम् ।
भविष्यति पुरी रम्या शूरसेना न संशयः ॥ ६ ॥

The gods said: ‘So be it’ O scion of the Raghus: This beautiful city will be Śūrasenā indeed, possessed of an army of brave men, there is no doubt about it.’ (6)

ते तथोक्त्वा महात्मानो दिवमारुरुहुस्तदा ।
शत्रुघ्नोऽपि महातेजास्तां सेनां समुपानयत् ॥ ७ ॥

Thus saying the holy gods then ascended to heaven. Śatrughna too, the powerful one, brought back the army from the banks of the Gaṅgā. (7)

सा सेना शीघ्रमागच्छच्छ्रुत्वा शत्रुघ्नशासनम् ।
निवेशनं च शत्रुघ्नः श्रावणेन समारभत् ॥ ८ ॥

That army came soon, hearing the news of the death of Lavaṇa at the hands of Śatrughna and commenced the establishment of the capital in the month of Śrāvaṇa (roughly corresponding to July-August). (8)

सा पुरा दिव्यसंकाशा वर्षे द्वादशमे शुभे ।
निविष्टः शूरसेनानां विषयश्चाकुतोभयः ॥ ९ ॥

That holy country was established as the territory of the Śūrasenas, in the course of twelve years, as there was no cause for fear. (9)

क्षेत्राणि सस्ययुक्तानि काले वर्षति वासवः ।
अरोगवीरपुरुषा शत्रुघ्नभुजपालिता ॥ १० ॥

The fields were full with grains, Indra
(the rain-god) brought forth rain in time, the warriors, protected by Śatrughna, were free of disease. (10)

अर्धचन्द्रप्रतीकाशा यमुनातीरशोभिता ।
शोभिता गृहमुख्यैश्च चत्वरापणवीथिकैः ।
चातुर्वर्ण्यसमायुक्ता नानावाणिज्यशोभिता ॥ ११ ॥

That city, shaped like the half-moon, beautified by the banks of the Yamunā, was also embellished with special mansions and quadrangular market-place. It was inhabited by the four Varṇas (castes) and abounded in all forms of merchandise and trade. (11)

यच्च तेन पुरा शुभ्रं लवणेन कृतं महत् ।
तच्छेभ्यति शत्रुघ्नो नानावर्णोपशोभिताम् ॥ १२ ॥
आरामैश्च विहारैश्च शोभमानां समन्ततः ।
शोभितां शोभनीयैश्च तथा न्यैर्देवमानुषैः ॥ १३ ॥

The white mansion that was formerly built by Lavaṇa, Śatrughna further beautified with pictures of various colours, looking beautiful on all sides with rest-houses and Vihāras, and that city was adorned with human and celestial embellishments. (12-13)

तां पुरीं दिव्यसंकाशां नानापण्योपशोभिताम्।
नानादेशगतैश्चापि वणिग्भिरुपशोभिताम् ॥ १४ ॥
तां समृद्धां समृद्धार्थः शत्रुघ्नो भरतानुजः।
निरीक्ष्य परमप्रीतः परं हर्षमुपागमत् ॥ १५ ॥

The prosperous Śatrughna, the younger brother of Bharata, having seen the city, divine in appearance, filled with all forms of merchandise and inhabited by traders coming from various countries, was much pleased. (14-15)

तस्य बुद्धिः समुत्पन्ना निवेश्य मधुरां पुरीम्।
रामपादौ निरीक्षेऽहं वर्षे द्वादश आगते ॥ १६ ॥

Then at the commencement of the twelfth year, having established the city Madhurā, he thought 'I shall see the feet of Śrī Rāma.' (16)

ततः स ताममरपुरोपमां पुरीं
निवेश्य वै विविधजनाभिसंवृताम्।
नराधिपो रघुपतिपाददर्शने
दधे मतिं रघुकुलवंशवर्धनः ॥ १७ ॥

Then establishing that city, resembling a celestial one, Śatrughna filling it with men of various types, the enhancer of Raghu's family, considered it appropriate to see Śrī Rāma's feet. (17)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे सप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७० ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXI

Śatrughna, accompanied by a few soldiers, proceeds to Ayodhyā, on the way listening Śrī Rāma's glory being sung at Ṛṣi Vālmiki's Āśrama and getting pleasantly surprised

ततो द्वादशमे वर्षे शत्रुघ्नो रामपालिताम्।
अयोध्यां चकमे गन्तुमल्पभृत्यबलानुगः ॥ १ ॥

Then in the twelfth year Śatrughna, followed by a few attendants and the army, desired to proceed to Ayodhyā, ruled over by Śrī Rāma. (1)

ततो मन्त्रिपुरोगांश्च बलमुख्यान् निवर्त्य च।
जगाम ह्यमुख्येन स्थानां च शतेन सः ॥ २ ॥

Then making the army-chiefs and the councillors to retreat, he (Śatrughna) proceeded riding on a special horse, accompanied by a hundred chariots. (2)

स गत्वा गणितान् वासान् सप्ताष्टौ रघुनन्दनः।
वाल्मीकाश्रममागत्य वासं चक्रे महायशाः ॥ ३ ॥

Śatrughna, the descendant of the Raghus, possessed of fame, halting at seven to eight places on the way, reached the hermitage of Vālmiki and dwelt there. (3)

सोऽभिवाद्य ततः पादौ वाल्मीकेः पुरुषर्षभः।
पाद्यमर्घ्यं तथातिथ्यं जग्राह मुनिहस्ततः ॥ ४ ॥

Having paid obeisance at the feet of sage Vālmiki, the famous Śatrughna accepted ablutions, offerings and hospitality from the sage. (4)

बहुरूपाः सुमधुराः कथास्तत्र सहस्रशः।
कथयामास स मुनिः शत्रुघ्नाय महात्मने ॥ ५ ॥

The sage, Vālmiki, narrated to the noble Śatrughna sweet tales of various themes. (5)

उवाच च मुनिर्वाक्यं लवणस्य वधाश्रितम् ।
सुदुष्करं कृतं कर्म लवणं निघ्नता त्वया ॥ ६ ॥

Referring to the killing of Lavaṇa, the sage said: 'By killing Lavaṇa, a difficult task has been accomplished by you. (6)

बहवः पार्थिवाः सौम्य हताः सबलवाहनाः ।
लवणेन महाबाहो युध्यमाना महाबलाः ॥ ७ ॥

'O gracious one, of long-arms, many powerful kings, together with their army and carriers had been killed by Lavaṇa, when they came in encounter with him. (7)

स त्वया निहतः पापो लीलया पुरुषर्षभ ।
जगतश्च भयं तत्र प्रशान्तं तव तेजसा ॥ ८ ॥

'O Bull among men, that evil one has been killed by you with ease, and by your prowess, the fright of worlds due to him has been dispelled. (8)

रावणस्य वधो घोरो यत्नेन महता कृताः ।
इदं च सुमहत्कर्म त्वया कृतमयत्नतः ॥ ९ ॥

'The dreadful killing of Rāvaṇa by Śrī Rāma was achieved with great effort; this great task of killing Lavaṇa was performed by you without effort. (9)

प्रीतिश्चास्मिन् परा जाता देवानां लवणे हते ।
भूतानां चैव सर्वेषां जगतश्च प्रियं कृतम् ॥ १० ॥

'On Lavaṇa being killed, the gods are highly pleased. This admirable deed for all beings and the world has been performed by you. (10)

तच्च युद्धं मया दृष्टं यथावत् पुरुषर्षभ ।
सभायां वासवस्याथ उपविष्टेन राघव ॥ ११ ॥

'That encounter with Lavaṇa was indeed seen by me, as it ensued, while I was sitting in the assembly of Vāsava (Indra), O bull among men. (11)

ममापि परमा प्रीतिर्हृदि शत्रुघ्न वर्तते ।
उपाघ्रास्यामि ते मूर्ध्नि स्नेहस्यैषा परा गतिः ॥ १२ ॥

'My heart too, O Śatrughna, is filled with joy; I shall smell the crown of your head as this is the highest course of affection.' (12)

इत्युक्त्वा मूर्ध्नि शत्रुघ्नमुपाघ्राय महामतिः ।
आतिथ्यमकरोत् तस्य ये च तस्य पदानुगाः ॥ १३ ॥

Thus saying and smelling the crown of the head of Śatrughna, the wise one, Vālmiki, offered hospitality to him and all those who followed him. (13)

स भुक्तवान् नरश्रेष्ठो गीतमाधुर्यमुत्तमम् ।
शुश्राव रामचरितं तस्मिन् काले यथाक्रमम् ॥ १४ ॥
तन्त्रीलयसमायुक्तं त्रिस्थानकरणान्वितम् ।
संस्कृतं लक्षणोपेतं समतालसमन्वितम् ॥ १५ ॥

That jewel among men, Śatrughna, took the food offered by Vālmiki; then heard the deeds of Śrī Rāma, as they were performed by Him at that time melodiously, accompanied with the sound of the lute with proper beats and the three musical tunes manifested at proper beats, and at proper places, in Sanskrit, and according to the rules of music and also with the beat of drums at proper intervals. (14-15)

शुश्राव रामचरितं तस्मिन् काले पुरा कृतम् ।
तान्यक्षराणि सत्यानि यथावृत्तानि पूर्वशः ॥ १६ ॥

Śatrughna heard the deeds of Śrī Rāma as they were performed formerly, those words (comprising the song) were true and narrated as per the deeds performed in sequence. (16)

श्रुत्वा पुरुषशार्दूलो विसंज्ञो बाष्पलोचनः ।
स मुहूर्तमिवासंज्ञो विनिःश्वस्य मुहुर्मुहुः ॥ १७ ॥

Having heard the story duly sung, the lion among men, Śatrughna, with tears in his eyes, was rendered unconscious, and fell into a swoon immediately taking deep sighs repeatedly. (17)

तस्मिन् गीते यथावृत्तं वर्तमानमिवाशृणोत् ।
पदानुगाश्च ये राज्ञस्तां श्रुत्वा गीतिसम्पदम् ॥ १८ ॥
अवाङ्मुखाश्च दीनाश्च ह्याश्चर्यमिति चाब्रुवन् ।
परस्परं च ये तत्र सैनिकाः सम्बभाषिरे ॥ १९ ॥

Śatrughna heard the deeds sung as if they were performed in the present. The warriors, who followed him, on hearing the rich song, were overwhelmed and speechless, indeed, and exclaimed to each other—‘How wonderful it is’. (18-19)

किमिदं क्व च वर्तामः किमेतत् स्वप्नदर्शनम् ।
अर्थो यो नः पुरा दृष्टस्तमाश्रमपदे पुनः ॥ २० ॥

‘What is this, where are we, have we been in a dream, that thing, which we had seen formerly, we see again in the hermitage. (20)

शृणुमः किमिदं स्वप्ने गीतबन्धनमुत्तमम् ।
विस्मयं ते परं गत्वा शत्रुघ्नमिदमब्रुवन् ॥ २१ ॥

‘Do we hear in dream this beautifully composed song’ filled with great surprise, they said to Śatrughna: (21)

साधु पृच्छ नरश्रेष्ठ वाल्मीकिं मुनिपुङ्गवम् ।
शत्रुघ्नस्त्वब्रवीत् सर्वान् कौतूहलसमन्वितान् ॥ २२ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-one in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्विसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXII

After taking leave from Vālmiki, Śatrughna meets Śrī Rāma and others at Ayodhyā and after staying there for a week, leaves again for Madhupurī

तं शयानं नरव्याघ्रं निद्रा नाभ्यागमत् तदा ।
चिन्तयानमनेकार्थं रामगीतमनुत्तमम् ॥ १ ॥

Śatrughna, a tiger among men, could not sleep in the night ruminating over the song of Rāma’s deeds, full of meaning. (1)

तस्य शब्दं सुमधुरं तन्त्रीलयसमन्वितम् ।
श्रुत्वा रात्रिर्जगामाशु शत्रुघ्नस्य महात्मनः ॥ २ ॥

Night passed away for the noble Śatrughna quickly, hearing the melodious sound of the song accompanied with that of the Vīṇā (lute) with proper beats. (2)

तस्यां रजन्यां व्युष्टायां कृत्वा पौर्वाह्निकक्रमम् ।
उवाच प्राञ्जलिर्वाक्यं शत्रुघ्नो मुनिपुङ्गवम् ॥ ३ ॥

सैनिका न क्षमोऽस्माकं परिप्रष्टुमिहेदृशः ।
आश्चर्याणि बहूनीह भवन्त्यस्याश्रमे मुनेः ॥ २३ ॥
न तु कौतूहलाद् युक्तमन्वेष्टुं तं महामुनिम् ।
एवं तद् वाक्यमुक्त्वा तु सैनिकान् रघुनन्दनः ।
अभिवाद्य महर्षिं तं स्वं निवेशं ययौ तदा ॥ २४ ॥

‘Please ask Vālmiki, O best among men, who composed this song? Śatrughna on his part, told all the warriors filled with surprise: ‘Here I am not able to ask Vālmiki in this manner, many wonders exist here in this hermitage of the sage, it is not proper to go and question the great sage out of curiosity.’ Thus having spoken to the warriors, the scion of the Raghus then having saluted the great sage, started for his apartment. (22—24)

After the night had ended, Śatrughna with folded hands said to Vālmiki, the best among sages, having performed the morning duties: (3)

भगवन् द्रष्टुमिच्छामि राघवं रघुनन्दनम् ।
त्वयानुज्ञातुमिच्छामि सहैभिः संशितव्रतैः ॥ ४ ॥

‘Sir, I wish to see Śrī Rāma, the scion of the Raghus, with your permission and also that of these sages, firmly adhering to their vows.’ (4)

इत्येवं वादिनं तं तु शत्रुघ्नं शत्रुसूदनम् ।
वाल्मीकिः सम्परिष्वज्य विससर्ज स राघवम् ॥ ५ ॥

Thus talking, Vālmiki embraced

Śatrughna, the extirpator of foes, the scion of the Raghus, and let him go. (5)

सोऽभिवाद्य मुनिश्रेष्ठं रथमारुह्य सुप्रभम्।
अयोध्यामगमत् तूर्णं राघवोत्सुकदर्शनः ॥ ६ ॥

Saluting Vālmīki, the best among sages, he, Śatrughna, ascending the shining chariot, went on speedily to Ayodhyā, eager to see the scion of the Raghus, Śrī Rāma. (6)

स प्रविष्टः पुरीं रम्यां श्रीमानिक्ष्वाकुनन्दनः।
प्रविवेश महाबाहुयत्र रामो महाद्युतिः ॥ ७ ॥

The descendant of Ikṣvāku, the prosperous one, Śatrughna, reached the city, Ayodhyā, and entered the king's palace where Śrī Rāma, the illustrious one, was. (7)

स रामं मन्त्रिमध्यस्थं पूर्णचन्द्रनिभाननम्।
पश्यन्मरमध्यस्थं सहस्रनयनं यथा ॥ ८ ॥
सोऽभिवाद्य महात्मानं ज्वलन्तमिव तेजसा।
उवाच प्राञ्जलिर्भूत्वा रामं सत्यपराक्रमम् ॥ ९ ॥

Seeing Śrī Rāma with a face like full moon, seated among the councillors like Indra among the gods, and as if enflamed with vigour, Śatrughna with folded hands spoke to resplendant one after saluting Him: (8-9)

यदाज्ञप्तं महाराज सर्वं तत् कृतवानहम्।
हतः स लवणः पापः पुरी चास्य निवेशिता ॥ १० ॥

'All that you ordered me to do, I have done; the evil Lavaṇa has been killed and the city, Madhupurī, has been reinstituted. (10)

द्वादशैतानि वर्षाणि त्वां विना रघुनन्दन।
नोत्सहेयमहं वस्तुं त्वया विरहितो नृप ॥ ११ ॥

'These twelve years I have spent without you. O king, I cannot now live afar, separated from you. (11)

स मे प्रसादं काकुत्स्थ कुरुष्वामितविक्रम।
मातृहीनो यथा वत्सो न चिरं प्रवसाम्यहम् ॥ १२ ॥

'O scion of the Kakutsthas, possessed of unmitigated power, give me thy favour, I cannot live without you for long, like a child separated from its mother.' (12)

एवं ब्रुवाणं शत्रुञ्च परिष्वज्येदमब्रवीत्।
मा विषादं कृथाः शूर नैतत् क्षत्रियचेष्टितम् ॥ १३ ॥

Then the scion of the Kakutsthas, Śrī Rāma, embraced him, Śatrughna, who spoke thus and said: 'O brave one, do not lose heart, this does not become a Kṣatriya. (13)

नावसीदन्ति राजानो विप्रवासेषु राघव।
प्रजा च परिपाल्या हि क्षात्रधर्मेण राघव ॥ १४ ॥

'O descendant of Raghu, Śatrughna, the Kings staying away from their kingdom are not disheartened; the subjects are indeed to be protected as laid down among duties for the Kṣatriya. (14)

काले काले तु मां वीर अयोध्यामवलोकितुम्।
आगच्छ त्वं नरश्रेष्ठ गन्तासि च पुरं तव ॥ १५ ॥

'O brave one, come from time to time again to Ayodhyā to see me. O best among men, you should go to your city, the city of Madhurā. (15)

ममापि त्वं सुदयितः प्राणैरपि न संशयः।
अवश्यं करणीयं च राज्यस्य परिपालनम् ॥ १६ ॥

'You indeed are dearer to me than my life, there is no doubt. But for you looking after your territory is indeed obligatory. (16)

तस्मात् त्वं वस काकुत्स्थ सप्तरात्रं मया सह।
ऊर्ध्वं गन्तासि मधुरां सभृत्यबलवाहनः ॥ १७ ॥

'Therefore, O scion of the Kakutsthas, stay with me for seven nights and then you should proceed to Madhurā with attendants, army and carriers.' (17)

रामस्यैतद् वचः श्रुत्वा धर्मयुक्तं मनोऽनुगम्।
शत्रुञ्चो दीनया वाचा बाढमित्येव चाब्रवीत् ॥ १८ ॥

Hearing these words of Śrī Rāma, spoken rightfully and in accordance with his Dharma, Śatrughna in a depressed tone spoke 'So be it.' (18)

सप्तरात्रं च काकुत्स्थो राघवस्य यथाज्ञया।
उष्य तत्र महेष्वासो गमनायोपचक्रमे ॥ १९ ॥

As desired by the descendant of Raghu, Śrī Rāma, Śatrughna, the mighty one, made himself ready to depart, having spent seven nights there. (19)

आमन्त्र्य तु महात्मानं रामं सत्यपराक्रमम्।
भरतं लक्ष्मणं चैव महारथमुपारुहत् ॥ २० ॥

Taking leave of the noble Śrī Rāma of true valour, and also Bharata and Lakṣmaṇa, he ascended the marvellous chariot. (20)

दूरं पद्भ्यामनुगतो लक्ष्मणेन महात्मना।
भरतेन च शत्रुघ्नो जगामाशु पुरीं तदा ॥ २१ ॥

Followed by the noble Lakṣmaṇa and Bharata on foot, for a long distance, Śatrughna sped in haste to the city, Madhupurī. (21)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे द्विसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-two in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXIII

A Brāhmaṇa arrives at the palace-gate, carrying the dead body of his son, and laments blaming the king for the death of the child

प्रस्थाप्य तु स शत्रुघ्नं भ्रातृभ्यां सह राघवः।
प्रमुमोद सुखी राज्यं धर्मेण परिपालयन् ॥ १ ॥

Having despatched Śatrughna, the descendant of Raghu, Śrī Rāma, together with the two brothers lived happily and contented, ruling rightfully over his kingdom.

(1)

ततः कतिपयाहःसु वृद्धो जानपदो द्विजः।
मृतं बालमुपादाय राजद्वारमुपागमत् ॥ २ ॥

Then after a few days an old Brāhmaṇa citizen of Ayodhyā, carrying his dead son's body, appeared at the royal gate.

(2)

रुदन् बहुविधा वाचः स्नेहदुःखसमन्वितः।
असकृत् पुत्रपुत्रेति वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ ३ ॥
किं नु मे दुष्कृतं कर्म पुरा देहान्तरे कृतम्।
यदहं पुत्रमेकं तु पश्यामि निधनं गतम् ॥ ४ ॥

Filled with affection and sorrow, and crying, pronounced these words (exclamations) repeatedly 'O son ! O son ! What evil deed have I committed in my former birth that I should see my only son dead.

(3-4)

अप्राप्तयौवनं बालं पञ्चवर्षसहस्रकम्।
अकाले कालमापन्नं मम दुःखाय पुत्रक ॥ ५ ॥

'O son, you have met with death untimely, having not reached adolescence and being a child of merely five thousand days (less than fourteen years) which leads to my sorrow.(5)

अल्पैरहोभिर्निधनं गमिष्यामि न संशयः।
अहं च जननी चैव तव शोकेन पुत्रक ॥ ६ ॥

'O son, I, alongwith your mother, shall meet with death in a few days, there is no doubt about it.

(6)

न स्मराम्यनृतं ह्युक्तं न च हिंसां स्मराम्यहम्।
सर्वेषां प्राणिनां पापं न स्मरामि कदाचन ॥ ७ ॥

'I do not remember having spoken untruth, nor, even ever having committed sinful acts with regard to all beings.

(7)

केनाद्य दुष्कृतेनायं बाल एव ममात्मजः।
अकृत्वा पितृकार्याणि गतो वैवस्वतक्षयम् ॥ ८ ॥

'Due to what evil deed, my own son, although a child, has gone away to the abode of Yama, the son of Vivasvān, without having performed the paternal rites (our last rites).

(8)

नेदृशं दृष्टपूर्वं मे श्रुतं वा घोरदर्शनम्।
मृत्युरप्राप्तकालानां रामस्य विषये ह्ययम् ॥ ९ ॥

‘I have neither seen nor heard of such untimely death, of immature type, in the territory of Śrī Rāma. (9)

रामस्य दुष्कृतं किञ्चिन्महदस्ति न संशयः ।
यथा हि विषयस्थानां बालानां मृत्युरागतः ॥ १० ॥

‘There is no doubt that there must have been some evil deed performed by Śrī Rāma due to which indeed death meets the children in his territory. (10)

न ह्यन्यविषयस्थानां बालानां मृत्युतो भयम् ।
स राजञ्जीवयस्वैनं बालं मृत्युवशं गतम् ॥ ११ ॥

‘There is no fear of death for the children in other territories. So, O king, bring back to life this child, possessed by death. (11)

राजद्वारि मरिष्यामि पत्या सार्धमनाथवत् ।
ब्रह्महत्यां ततो राम समुपेत्य सुखी भव ॥ १२ ॥

‘At the very royal gate, I shall lay down my life with my wife, like an orphan, O Śrī Rāma; you be happy having committed the sin of killing a Brāhmaṇa. (12)

भ्रातृभिः सहितो राजन् दीर्घमायुरवाप्स्यसि ।
उषिताः स्म सुखं राज्ये तवास्मिन् सुमहाबल ॥ १३ ॥

‘You will attain longlife with your brothers: till now we have lived happily in your kingdom, O mighty one. (13)

इदं तु पतितं तस्मात् तव राम वशे स्थितान् ।
कालस्य वशमापन्नाः स्वल्पं हि नहि नः सुखम् ॥ १४ ॥

‘This death of my son has befallen on me. Therefore, O Śrī Rāma, staying under you we are under the sway of death, and there is little chance of happiness now. (14)

सम्प्रत्यनाथो विषय इक्ष्वाकूणां महात्मनाम् ।
रामं नाथमिहासाद्य बालान्तकरणं ध्रुवम् ॥ १५ ॥

‘Presently the reign of the noble Ikṣvākus is rendered orphan; now having accepted Śrī Rāma as the master, in whose reign certainly children’s death will occur. (15)

राजदोषैर्विपद्यन्ते प्रजा ह्यविधिपालिताः ।
असद्वृत्ते हि नृपतावकाले म्रियते जनः ॥ १६ ॥

‘The subjects, who are not protected rightfully, perish on account of the faults of the kings; when the king is not rightful, the people die untimely. (16)

यद् वा पुरेष्वयुक्तानि जना जनपदेषु च ।
कुर्वते न च रक्षास्ति तदा कालकृतं भयम् ॥ १७ ॥

‘Whatever impropriety is committed by men in towns and provinces, and if there is no protection from them, then there is indeed such untimely destruction by death. (17)

सुव्यक्तं राजदोषो हि भविष्यति न संशयः ।
पुरे जनपदे चापि तथा बालवधो ह्ययम् ॥ १८ ॥

‘Both in the towns and provinces it is clear that there must have been some fault in the king, there is no doubt, due to which this death of my son has occurred.’ (18)

एवं बहुविधैर्वाक्यैरुपरुध्य मुहुर्मुहुः ।
राजानं दुःखसंतप्तः सुतं तमुपगूहति ॥ १९ ॥

Thus making such pitiful utterances again and again and keeping in check the King, inflicted by sorrow, he embraced the dead child repeatedly. (19)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे त्रिसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-three in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Rṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुःसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXIV

Nārada told Śrī Rāma the cause of the death of Brāhmaṇa's son as an unauthorized practice of penance by a Śūdra

तथा तु करुणं तस्य द्विजस्य परिदेवनम् । शुश्राव राघवः सर्वं दुःखशोकसमन्वितम् ॥ १ ॥

The scion of the Raghus, Śrī Rāma, heard all the pitiful lamentations of that Brāhmaṇa, full of pain and sorrow. (1)

स दुःखेन च संतप्तो मन्त्रिणस्तानुपाह्वयत् ।
वसिष्ठं वामदेवं च भ्रातृंश्च सह नैगमान् ॥ २ ॥

Inflicted by pain He, Śrī Rāma, called His councillors, Vasiṣṭha and Vāmadeva and also his brothers, together with the citizens. (2)

ततो द्विजा वसिष्ठेन सार्धमष्टौ प्रवेशिताः ।
राजानं देवसंकाशं वर्धस्वेति ततोऽब्रुवन् ॥ ३ ॥

Then eight Brāhmaṇas together with Vasiṣṭha were made to appear before the King comparable with the gods, and they said 'victory to you.' (3)

मार्कण्डेयोऽथ मौद्गल्यो वामदेवश्च काश्यपः ।
कात्यायनोऽथ जाबालिर्गौतमो नारदस्तथा ॥ ४ ॥

Mārkaṇḍeya, Maudgalya, Vāmadeva, Kaśyapa, Kātyāyana, Jābāli, Gautama and Nārada were made to enter. (4)

एते द्विजर्षभाः सर्वे आसनेषूपवेशिताः ।
महर्षीन् समनुप्राप्तानभिवाद्य कृताञ्जलिः ॥ ५ ॥
मन्त्रिणो नैगमाश्चैव यथार्हमनुकूलतः ।

तेषां समुपविष्टानां सर्वेषां दीप्ततेजसाम् ॥ ६ ॥
राघवः सर्वमाचष्टे द्विजोऽयमुपरोधते ।

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा राज्ञो दीनस्य नारदः ॥ ७ ॥
प्रत्युवाच शुभं वाक्यमृषीणां संनिधौ स्वयम् ।

शृणु राजन् यथाकाले प्राप्तो बालस्य संक्षयः ॥ ८ ॥
श्रुत्वा कर्तव्यतां राजन् कुरुष्व रघुनन्दन ।

पुरा कृतयुगे राजन् ब्राह्मणा वै तपस्विनः ॥ ९ ॥
अब्राह्मणस्तदा राजन् न तपस्वी कथंचन ।

तस्मिन् युगे प्रज्वलिते ब्रह्मभूते त्वनावृते ॥ १० ॥
These excellent Brāhmaṇas were all provided with seats. The councillors and citizens all were suitably seated after all those effulgent ones had taken their seats. The descendant of Raghu, Śrī Rāma, having saluted the great sages with folded hands, conveyed to them: 'This Brāhmaṇa obstructs the royal gate. Nārada hearing those words of the King in grief, replied with these opportune words in the presence of the sages; 'Listen, O King, how the death of child has taken place untimely. Hearing what I say, O king, descendant of Raghu, do what requires to be done. In the Kṛtayuga formerly the Brāhmaṇas alone were performers of austerities; no non-Brāhmaṇas ever practised austerities in that Yuga, inflamed by penances, and dominated by Brāhmaṇa, and also there was no prevalence of ignorance. All were born immortal ones and also possessed of distant vision; then came the Tretāyuga for men possessed of mortal frame. (5—10).

अमृत्यवस्तदा सर्वे जज्ञिरे दीर्घदर्शिनः ।
ततस्त्रेतायुगं नाम मानवानां वपुष्मताम् ॥ ११ ॥
क्षत्रिया यत्र जायन्ते पूर्वेण तपसान्विताः ।
वीर्येण तपसा चैव तेऽधिकाः पूर्वजन्मनि ॥ १२ ॥

'In Tretā, strongly built Kṣatriyas were dominant and practised austere penance. But those of Kṛtayuga were certainly superior in merit to those who belonged to Tretā (11-12)

मानवा ये महात्मानस्तत्र त्रेतायुगे युगे ।
ब्रह्म क्षत्रं च तत् सर्वं यत् पूर्वमवरं च यत् ॥ १३ ॥
युगयोरुभयोरासीत् समवीर्यसमन्वितम् ।
अपश्यन्तस्तु ते सर्वे विशेषमधिकं ततः ॥ १४ ॥

'In Kṛtayuga Brāhmaṇas were superior and Kṣatriyas were inferior in the merits of austerity and effulgence but in Tretā both became equal and at par. (13-14)

स्थापनं चक्रिरे तत्र चातुर्वर्ण्यस्य सम्मतम् ।
तस्मिन् युगे प्रज्वलिते धर्मभूते ह्यनावृते ॥ १५ ॥
अधर्मः पादमेकं तु पातयत् पृथिवीतले ।
अधर्मेण हि संयुक्तस्तेजो मन्दं भविष्यति ॥ १६ ॥

‘Tretā is dominated by Varṇāśrama Dharma. But here itself irreligion had stepped in even though on one foot, yet hereafter gradually there will be decline in Dharma. (15-16)

आमिषं यच्च पूर्वेषां राजसं च मलं भृशम् ।
अनृतं नाम तद् भूतं पादेन पृथिवीतले ॥ १७ ॥

‘The Rājasika acts like agriculture was known to be low (अनृत) and was supposed to be not recommendable. The same act in the form of a foot of irreligion was firmly rooted on the earth in Tretā. (17)

अनृतं पातयित्वा तु पादमेकमधर्मतः ।
ततः प्रादुष्कृतं पूर्वमायुषः परिनिष्ठितम् ॥ १८ ॥

‘This way by establishing one of his fruit in the shape of falsehood, the irreligion limited the life span of beings in Tretā in comparison to Satyayuga. (18)

पातिते त्वनृते तस्मिन्धर्मेण महीतले ।
शुभायेवाचरँल्लोकः सत्यधर्मपरायणः ॥ १९ ॥

‘Therefore in order to save themselves from the evil effect of falsehood, one foot of irreligion, people who were dedicated to truthful conduct scrupulously practised fully auspicious deeds. (19)

त्रेतायुगे च वर्तन्ते ब्राह्मणाः क्षत्रियाश्च ये ।
तपोऽतप्यन्त ते सर्वे शुश्रूषामपरे जनाः ॥ २० ॥
स्वधर्मः परमस्तेषां वैश्यशूद्रं तदागमत् ।
पूजां च सर्ववर्णानां शूद्राश्चकुर्विशेषतः ॥ २१ ॥

‘Yet in Tretā only Brāhmaṇas and Kṣatriyas engaged themselves in observing penance. The rest of the people did servicing (like production and manual labour) out of these four categories the Vaiśyas and Śūdras got as their share—the service as their own Dharma. Śūdras particularly served and adored the other three castes. (20-21)

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे तेषामधर्मे चानृते च ह ।
ततः पूर्वं पुनर्ह्यसमगमनृपसत्तम ॥ २२ ॥

‘O best among the kings, in the meanwhile the Tretā approaches its end, the Vaiśyas and Śūdras indulge in irreligion through falsehood as one of its feet. Then Brāhmaṇas and Kṣatriyas suffer more and more deterioration. (22)

ततः पादमधर्मस्य द्वितीयमवतारयत् ।
ततो द्वापरसंख्या सा युगस्य समजायत ॥ २३ ॥

‘Then unrighteousness placed on the earth its second foot, and by that the third Yuga was counted as Dvāpara (given to two feet). (23)

तस्मिन् द्वापरसंख्ये तु वर्तमाने युगक्षये ।
अधर्मश्चानृतं चैव ववृधे पुरुषर्षभ ॥ २४ ॥

‘With the coming into existence of the Dvāparayuga, unrighteousness and Anṛta (अनृत) flourished, O bull among men. (24)

अस्मिन् द्वापरसंख्याने तपो वैश्यान् समाविशत् ।
त्रिभ्यो युगेभ्यस्त्रीन् वर्णान् क्रमाद् वै तप आविशत् ॥ २५ ॥

‘In this Yuga, known as Dvāpara, penance entered the Vaiśya, thus through the three Yugas penance entered the three Varṇas (classes) successively. (25)

त्रिभ्यो युगेभ्यस्त्रीन् वर्णान् धर्मश्च परिनिष्ठितः ।
न शूद्रो लभते धर्मं युगतस्तु नरर्षभ ॥ २६ ॥

‘Righteousness was established in these three Yugas resorting to the three Varṇas (classes), the Śūdra could not attain the right of penance in these Yugas, O bull among men. (26)

हीनवर्णो नृपश्रेष्ठ तप्यते सुमहत्तपः ।
भविष्यच्छूद्रयोऽन्यां हि तपश्चर्या कलौ युगे ॥ २७ ॥

‘O best among kings, one belonging to lower caste performs severe penances. In the future Kali age the performance of penance will go to Śūdra. (27)

अधर्मः परमो राजन् द्वापरे शूद्रजन्मनः ।
स वै विषयपर्यन्ते तव राजन् महातपाः ॥ २८ ॥

‘Even in Dvāpara, penance by a Śūdra is taken to be great irreligion. (Now in Tretā surely) some Śūdra is engaged in severe penance in some frontier province—the wretched one. (28)

अद्य तप्यति दुर्बुद्धिस्तेन बालवधो ह्ययम् ।
यो ह्यधर्ममकार्यं वा विषये पार्थिवस्य तु ॥ २९ ॥
करोति चाश्रीमूलं तत्पुरे वा दुर्मतिर्नरः ।
क्षिप्रं च नरकं याति स च राजा न संशयः ॥ ३० ॥

‘This infantile death is the result of the same. If some one practises Adharma in the territory of a King, it causes a great loss to the state prosperity and the king goes to hell; there is no doubt about it. (29-30)

अधीतस्य च तप्तस्य कर्मणः सुकृतस्य च ।
षष्ठं भजति भागं तु प्रजा धर्मेण पालयन् ॥ ३१ ॥

षड्भागस्य च भोक्तसौ रक्षते न प्रजाः कथम् ।
स त्वं पुरुषशार्दूल मार्गस्व विषयं स्वकम् ॥ ३२ ॥
दुष्कृतं यत्र पश्येथास्तत्र यत्नं समाचर ।
एवं चेद् धर्मवृद्धिश्च नृणां चायुर्विवर्धनम् ।
भविष्यति नरश्रेष्ठ बालस्यास्य च जीवितम् ॥ ३३ ॥

‘Righteously ruling over the subjects, the king shares one sixth portion of the merit that accrues due to pious deeds performed by study and penance, why should partaker of one sixth not protect the subjects? So you, O lion among kings, investigate your territory. Wherever you see unrighteous actions done, then make efforts to put them right; thus righteousness and long life will prevail among men, O best among men, and also the child will come back to life.’ (31—33)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे चतुःसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-four in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXV

Śrī Rāma goes round in the aerial celestial car Puṣpaka of Kubera, in order to trace out unrighteousness in his kingdom, but finding no trace of it anywhere, He proceeds to the south and comes across a Śūdra practising penance

नारदस्य तु तद् वाक्यं श्रुत्वामृतमयं यथा ।
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे लक्ष्मणं चेदमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Hearing those nectar-like words of Nārada, Śrī Rāma was highly pleased and spoke thus to Lakṣmaṇa: (1)

गच्छ सौम्य द्विजश्रेष्ठं समाश्वासय सुव्रत ।
बालस्य च शरीरं तत् तैलद्रोण्यां निधापय ॥ २ ॥

‘O gracious one, go and console the best among Brāhmaṇas, and place the body of the dead child in an oil tub. (2)

गन्धैश्च परमोदारैस्तैलैश्च सुसुगन्धिभिः ।
यथा न क्षीयते बालस्तथा सौम्य विधीयताम् ॥ ३ ॥

‘O gracious one, provide it (the tub) with lasting and fragrant oils, so that the body of the child may not decompose. (3)

यथा शरीरो बालस्य गुप्तः सन् क्लिष्टकर्मणः ।
विपत्तिः परिभेदो वा न भवेच्च तथा कुरु ॥ ४ ॥

‘Make arrangements to preserve the body of the child, the innocent one, so that it may not get decomposed and the limbs are not disjointed.’ (4)

एवं संदिश्य काकुत्स्थो लक्ष्मणं शुभलक्षणम् ।
मनसा पुष्पकं दध्यावागच्छेति महायशाः ॥ ५ ॥

Having thus told the auspicious

Lakṣmaṇa, the scion of the Kakutsthās, Śrī Rāma summoned mentally Puṣpaka: 'Come O famous one.' (5)

इङ्गितं स तु विज्ञाय पुष्पको हेमभूषितः ।
आजगाम मुहूर्तेन समीपे राघवस्य वै ॥ ६ ॥

Puṣpaka, adorned with gold, taking the hint came at once near the descendant of Raghu, Śrī Rāma. (6)

सोऽब्रवीत् प्रणतो भूत्वा अयमस्मि नराधिप ।
वश्यस्तव महाबाहो किंकरः समुपस्थितः ॥ ७ ॥

The Puṣpaka spoke bending down, to Śrī Rāma: 'O King of long arms, here I am, your servant, at your command.' (7)

भाषितं रुचिरं श्रुत्वा पुष्पकस्य नराधिपः ।
अभिवाद्य महर्षीन् स विमानं सोऽध्यरोहत ॥ ८ ॥

Hearing these appealing words of the Puṣpaka, the king, Śrī Rāma, having saluted the great sages, ascended the plane. (8)

धनुर्गृहीत्वा तूणी च खड्गं च रुचिरप्रभम् ।
निक्षिप्य नगरे चैतौ सौमित्रिभरतावुभौ ॥ ९ ॥
प्रायात् प्रतीचीं हरितं विचिन्वंश्च ततस्ततः ।
उत्तरामगमच्छ्रीमान् दिशं हिमवतावृताम् ॥ १० ॥

Taking His bow and quiver and a dazzling sword, and leaving both Lakṣmaṇa and Bharata in the city, He went looking here and there to the western direction full of greenery and then proceeded to the northern direction covered by the snow-clad mountain, Himālaya. (9-10)

अपश्यमानस्तत्रापि स्वल्पमप्यथ दुष्कृतम् ।
पूर्वामपि दिशं सर्वामथापश्यन्नराधिपः ॥ ११ ॥

Seeing not the slightest unrighteous thing done there, then He, Śrī Rāma, scanned also the whole eastern region. (11)

प्रविशुद्धसमाचारामादर्शतलनिर्मलाम् ।
पुष्पकस्थो महाबाहुस्तदापश्यन्नराधिपः ॥ १२ ॥
दक्षिणां दिशमाक्रामत् ततो राजर्षिनन्दनः ।
शैवलस्योत्तरे पार्श्वे ददर्श सुमहत्सरः ॥ १३ ॥

The King, Śrī Rāma, then seated on the Puṣpaka, saw the southern quarter, where conduct was the purest, and which was as clear as the base of mirror, He saw on the northern side of the Śaivala mountain a great lake. (12-13)

तस्मिन् सरसि तप्यन्तं तापसं सुमहत्तपः ।
ददर्श राघवः श्रीमाँल्लम्बमानमधोमुखम् ॥ १४ ॥

In that lake the descendant of Raghu, the noble one, saw an ascetic performing great penances, while suspended with head turned downward. (14)

राघवस्तमुपागम्य तप्यन्तं तप उत्तमम् ।
उवाच च नृपो वाक्यं धन्यस्त्वमसि सुव्रत ॥ १५ ॥

The son of Raghu, the kind one, Śrī Rāma, having approached that ascetic, performing great penances, said to him: 'O performer of vows, you are great. (15)

कस्यां योन्यां तपोवृद्ध वर्तसे दृढविक्रम ।
कौतूहलात् त्वां पृच्छामि रामो दाशरथिर्हाम् ॥ १६ ॥

'O powerful one, aged through penances, to which caste do you belong, I ask you out of curiosity. I am Rāma, son of King Daśaratha. (16)

कोऽर्थो मनीषितस्तुभ्यं स्वर्गलाभोऽपरोऽथवा ।
वराश्रयो यदर्थं त्वं तपस्यन्तैः सुदुश्चरम् ॥ १७ ॥

'What object is desired by you to be obtained as boon, is it the attainment of the heaven or some other object, for which you perform penances, difficult to be performed by others? (17)

यमाश्रित्य तपस्तप्तं श्रोतुमिच्छामि तापस ।
ब्राह्मणो वासि भद्रं ते क्षत्रियो वासि दुर्जयः ।
वैश्यस्तृतीयो वर्णो वा शूद्रो वा सत्यवाग् भव ॥ १८ ॥

'For which object have you practised penances, that I want to hear, O ascetic? Are you a Brāhmaṇa? O good man, may welfare be with you, are you a Kṣatriya difficult to overcome, or belonging to the third caste, a Vaiśya, or a Śūdra? Please speak out the truth.' (18)

इत्येवमुक्तः स नराधिपेन
अवाक्शिरा दाशरथाय तस्मै ।

उवाच जातिं नृपपुङ्गवाय
यत्कारणं चैव तपःप्रयत्नः ॥ १९ ॥
Thus enquired by the King, the son of Daśaratha, King of Kings, that ascetic spoke of his own caste and reason for practising the penances.' (19)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे पञ्चसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-five in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षट्सप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXVI

Śrī Rāma kills Śambūka for which gods laud Him. Sage Agastya welcomes Śrī Rāma and presents a celestial ornament to Him

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा रामस्याक्लिष्टकर्मणः ।
अवाक्शिरास्तथाभूतो वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ १ ॥

Hearing those words of Śrī Rāma capable of doing anything with ease, remaining with the head downwards, he (the ascetic) replied: (1)

शूद्रयोऽन्यां प्रजातोऽस्मि तप उग्रं समास्थितः ।
देवत्वं प्रार्थये राम सशरीरो महायशः ॥ २ ॥

'O famous one, I am born in the line of the Śūdra caste, and have resorted to great penance. I desire godhood, O Śrī Rāma, with this body. (2)

न मिथ्याहं वदे राम देवलोकजिगीषया ।
शूद्रं मां विद्धि काकुत्स्थ शम्बूकं नाम नामतः ॥ ३ ॥

'I do not speak untruth as I wish to conquer the world of the gods, know me as Śūdra, Śambūka by name, O scion of the Kakutsthas, Śrī Rāma.' (3)

भाषतस्तस्य शूद्रस्य खड्गं सुरुचिरप्रभम् ।
निष्कृष्य कोशाद् विमलं शिरश्चिच्छेद राघवः ॥ ४ ॥

On this the descendant of Raghu, taking out dazzling sword from its sheath, chopped off the head of the Śūdra, while he was speaking thus. (4)

तस्मिञ्शूद्रे हते देवाः सेन्द्राः साग्निपुरोगमाः ।
साधुसाध्विति काकुत्स्थं ते शशंसुर्मुहुर्मुहुः ॥ ५ ॥

On the Śūdra being killed, the gods headed by Agni together with Indra repeatedly praised the scion of the Kakutsthas saying:

'Well done.' (5)

पुष्पवृष्टिर्महत्यासीद् दिव्यानां सुसुगन्धिनाम् ।
पुष्पाणां वायुमुक्तानां सर्वतः प्रपपात ह ॥ ६ ॥

A shower of very fragrant divine flowers, carried by the wind, fell from all sides. (6)

सुप्रीताश्चाब्रुवन् रामं देवाः सत्यपराक्रमम् ।
सुरकार्यमिदं देव सुकृतं ते महामते ॥ ७ ॥

The gods highly pleased said to Śrī Rāma of true valour: 'O king, O wise one,
you have done this wonderful job for gods.
(7)

गृहाण च वरं सौम्य यं त्वमिच्छस्यरिंदम ।
स्वर्गभाङ् नहि शूद्रोऽयं त्वत्कृते रघुनन्दन ॥ ८ ॥

'Take whatever boon you desire, O
Subjugator of foes, due to your good deed this Śūdra will not attain heaven, O descendant of Raghu'. (8)

देवानां भाषितं श्रुत्वा रामः सत्यपराक्रमः ।
उवाच प्राञ्जलिर्वाक्यं सहस्राक्षं पुरंदरम् ॥ ९ ॥

Hearing the words of the gods, Śrī Rāma of true valour spoke to Indra the destroyer of enemy fortresses thus: (9)

यदि देवाः प्रसन्ना मे द्विजपुत्रः स जीवतु ।
दिशन्तु वरमेतं मे ईप्सितं परमं मम ॥ १० ॥

"If the gods are pleased, may that son of the Brāhmaṇa come back to life, grant me this boon, this is the best and most coveted boon for me. (10)

ममापचाराद् बालोऽसौ ब्राह्मणस्यैकपुत्रकः ।

अप्राप्तकालः कालेन नीतो वैवस्वतक्षयम् ॥ ११ ॥

“The only child of the Brāhmaṇa was taken to the abode of Yama, the son of Vivasvān, untimely due to my some wrongful doing. (11)

तं जीवयत भद्रं वो नानृतं कर्तुमर्हथ ।

द्विजस्य संश्रुतोऽर्थो मे जीवयिष्यामि ते सुतम् ॥ १२ ॥

“So please bring the child to life again, may welfare be with you. ‘I shall bring your child back to life,’ thus I have promised to the Brāhmaṇa. May my words not be untrue.” (12)

राघवस्य तु तद् वाक्यं श्रुत्वा विबुधसत्तमाः ।

प्रत्यूचू राघवं प्रीता देवाः प्रीतिसमन्वितम् ॥ १३ ॥

Hearing these words of Śrī Rāma, the best among the gods, highly pleased, replied to the descendant of Raghu: (13)

निर्वृतो भव काकुत्स्थ सोऽस्मिन्नहनि बालकः ।

जीवितं प्राप्तवान् भूयः समेतश्चापि बन्धुभिः ॥ १४ ॥

‘Be contended, O Scion of Kakutstha, that child has come back to life and joined his kinsmen. (14)

यस्मिन् मुहूर्ते काकुत्स्थ शूद्रोऽयं विनिपातितः ।

तस्मिन् मुहूर्ते बालोऽसौ जीवेन समयुज्यत ॥ १५ ॥

‘The moment the Śūdra was killed, that very moment this child came to life. (15)

स्वस्ति प्राप्नुहि भद्रं ते साधु याम नरर्षभ ।

अगस्त्यस्याश्रमपदं द्रष्टुमिच्छाम राघव ॥ १६ ॥

‘Hail to Thee, we wish your welfare; now we may proceed, O bull among men, O descendant of Raghu, we wish to see the hermitage of Agastya. (16)

तस्य दीक्षा समाप्ता हि ब्रह्मर्षेः सुमहाद्युतेः ।

द्वादशं हि गतं वर्षं जलशय्यां समासतः ॥ १७ ॥

‘The brilliant one, the initiation (vow) of that Ṛṣi (sage) among Brāhmaṇas, Agastya, has come to an end, twelfth year he has passed observing the vow of sleeping on the water. (17)

काकुत्स्थ तद् गमिष्यामो मुनिं समभिनन्दितुम् ।

त्वं चापि गच्छ भद्रं ते द्रष्टुं तमृषिसत्तमम् ॥ १८ ॥

‘Therefore, O scion of Kakutstha, we shall go to applaud the sage, you too should go to see that great sage; we wish your welfare!’ (18)

स तथेति प्रतिज्ञाय देवानां रघुनन्दनः ।

आरुरोह विमानं तं पुष्पकं हेमभूषितम् ॥ १९ ॥

‘The descendant of the Raghus, Śrī Rāma, having promised to do so, ascended the chariot, Puṣpaka, ornamented with gold. (19)

ततो देवाः प्रयातास्ते विमानैर्बहुविस्तरैः ।

रामोऽप्यनुजगामाशु कुम्भयोनेस्तपोवनम् ॥ २० ॥

Then the gods proceeded on spacious Vimānas, planes : Śrī Rāma too followed them soon to the hermitage of the pitcher-born, Agastya. (20)

दृष्ट्वा तु देवान् सम्प्राप्तानगस्त्यस्तपसां निधिः ।

अर्चयामास धर्मात्मा सर्वास्तानविशेषतः ॥ २१ ॥

Seeing the gods arrived, Agastya, the repository of penances, the holy one, worshipped all of them without discrimination. (21)

प्रतिगृह्य ततः पूजां सम्पूज्य च महामुनिम् ।

जग्मुस्ते त्रिदशा हृष्टा नाकपृष्ठं सहानुगाः ॥ २२ ॥

Accepting the worship and adoring the great sage, Agastya, the gods highly pleased went away to the upper-most heaven together with their followers. (22)

गतेषु तेषु काकुत्स्थः पुष्पकादवरुह्य च ।

ततोऽभिवादयामास अगस्त्यमृषिसत्तमम् ॥ २३ ॥

After the gods had departed, the scion of Kakutstha descending from Puṣpaka, made obeisance to the great sage, Agastya. (23)

सोऽभिवाद्य महात्मानं ज्वलन्तमिव तेजसा ।

आतिथ्यं परमं प्राप्य निषसाद नराधिपः ॥ २४ ॥

Śrī Rāma paid obeisance to the noble sage, effulgent with the Tapa of austerity and having received the best hospitality, took his seat. (24)

तमुवाच महातेजाः कुम्भयोनिर्महातपाः ।
स्वागतं ते नरश्रेष्ठ दिष्ट्या प्राप्तोऽसि राघव ॥ २५ ॥

Agastya, the sage of great penances, said to Śrī Rāma : 'Welcome to you, best among men, O descendant of Raghu, it is my fortune that you have come. (25)

त्वं मे बहुमतो राम गुणैर्बहुभिरुत्तमैः ।
अतिथिः पूजनीयश्च मम राजन् हृदि स्थितः ॥ २६ ॥

"By your excellent virtues you are worthy of adoration as my honoured guest, O king, you always dwell in my heart. (26)

सुरा हि कथयन्ति त्वामागतं शूद्रघातिनम् ।
ब्राह्मणस्य तु धर्मेण त्वया जीवापितः सुतः ॥ २७ ॥

"The gods say that You have come here after killing the Śūdra and by your righteous act, (of killing the Śūdra) You have thus restored to life the son of the Brāhmaṇa. (27)

उष्यतां चेह रजनीं सकाशे मम राघव ।
प्रभाते पुष्पकेण त्वं गन्तासि पुरमेव हि ॥ २८ ॥
त्वं हि नारायणः श्रीमांस्त्वयि सर्वं प्रतिष्ठितम् ।
त्वं प्रभुः सर्वदेवानां पुरुषस्त्वं सनातनः ॥ २९ ॥

"Stay one night with me, O descendant of Raghu, You are Nārāyaṇa (the abode of all souls), and all is established in You. You are lord of all the gods, the eternal Puruṣa, You may, indeed, go back to your city at dawn. (28-29)

इदं चाभरणं सौम्य निर्मितं विश्वकर्मणा ।
दिव्यं दिव्येन वपुषा दीप्यमानं स्वतेजसा ॥ ३० ॥

"This divine ornament glowing with its own divine lustre, O gracious one, has been made by Viśvakarmā (the divine artisan). (30)

प्रतिगृह्णीष्व काकुत्स्थ मत्प्रियं कुरु राघव ।
दत्तस्य हि पुनर्दाने सुमहत् फलमुच्यते ॥ ३१ ॥

"Please accept this, O scion of

Kakutstha, for my pleasure, a gift when offered again constitutes great merit. (31)

भरणे हि भवाञ्शक्तः फलानां महतामपि ।
त्वं हि शक्तस्तारयितुं सेन्द्रानपि दिवौकसः ॥ ३२ ॥
तस्मात् प्रदास्ये विधिवत् तत् प्रतीच्छ नराधिप ।
अथोवाच महात्मानमिक्ष्वाकूणां महारथः ॥ ३३ ॥
रामो मतिमतां श्रेष्ठः क्षत्रधर्ममनुस्मरन् ।
प्रतिग्रहोऽयं भगवन् ब्राह्मणस्याविगर्हितः ॥ ३४ ॥

"You are worthy of wearing this ornament. You indeed are capable of giving precious gifts, and also protecting the gods together with Indra. Therefore, duly I give this to you, please accept it."

The wisest among the wise, the great charioteer of Ikṣvāku dynasty, Śrī Rāma while aware of his Kṣatriya duties, asked the Mahātmā : "Sir, accepting donation is not prohibited only for Brāhmaṇas. (32—34)

क्षत्रियेण कथं विप्र प्रतिग्राह्यं भवेत् ततः ।
प्रतिग्रहो हि विप्रेन्द्र क्षत्रियाणां सुगर्हितः ॥ ३५ ॥
ब्राह्मणेन विशेषेण दत्तं तद् वक्तुमर्हसि ।
एवमुक्तस्तु रामेण प्रत्युवाच महानृषिः ॥ ३६ ॥

"O best among the Brāhmaṇas, it is strictly prohibited for the Kṣatriya to accept any charitable gift. It is more so in case a Brāhmaṇa is the donor. Kindly explain." Having been thus enquired by Śrī Rāma, the great sage Agastya said in reply: (35-36)

आसन् कृतयुगे राम ब्रह्मभूते पुरायुगे ।
अपार्थिवाः प्रजाः सर्वाः सुराणां तु शतक्रतुः ॥ ३७ ॥

"O Śrī Rāma! In the times during the Satyayuga, an age of Brahma, all the subjects were without a king. Later on Indra was declared as king of gods. (37)

ताः प्रजा देवदेवेशं राजार्थं समुपाद्रवन् ।
सुराणां स्थापितो राजा त्वया देव शतक्रतुः ॥ ३८ ॥
प्रयच्छास्मासु लोकेश पार्थिवं नरपुङ्गवम् ।
यस्मै पूजां प्रयुञ्जाना धूतपापाश्चरेमहि ॥ ३९ ॥

Then people went to god Brahmā in order to have a king and prayed to him, 'O

Lord, you have appointed Indra as king of gods. Similarly, for us also provide a worthy man as our king, so that worshipping him we could move about in the world, becoming free of sins. (38-39)

न वसामो विना राज्ञा एष नो निश्चयः परः ।
ततो ब्रह्मा सुरश्रेष्ठो लोकपालान् सवासवान् ॥ ४० ॥
समाहूयाब्रवीत् सर्वास्तेजोभागान् प्रयच्छत ।
ततो ददुर्लोकपालाः सर्वे भागान् स्वतेजसः ॥ ४१ ॥

‘We shall not live without a king, This is our supreme decision.’ Then Brahmā, the highest god, after calling the guardians of regions alongwith Indra, said: ‘All of you give me a portion of your authority.’ Then all the guardians gave away a portion of their power. (40-41)

अक्षुपच्च ततो ब्रह्मा यतो जातः क्षुपो नृपः ।
तं ब्रह्मा लोकपालानां समांशैः समयोजयत् ॥ ४२ ॥

‘Then Brahmā sneezed, whence was born king Kṣupa. Brahmā invested him with the entire might of the guardians (of regions given away by them). (42)

ततो ददौ नृपं तासां प्रजानामीश्वरं क्षुपम् ।
तत्रैन्द्रेण च भागेन महीमाज्ञापयन्नृपः ॥ ४३ ॥

Then he made Kṣupa the ruling king of the people. Kṣupa after becoming king ruled the earth by virtue of the portion of the might given by Indra. (43)

वारुणेन तु भागेन वपुः पुष्यति पार्थिवः ।
कौबेरेण तु भागेन वित्तपाभां ददौ तदा ॥ ४४ ॥
यस्तु याम्योऽभवद् भागस्तेन शास्ति स्म स प्रजाः ।
तत्रैन्द्रेण नरश्रेष्ठ भागेन रघुनन्दन ॥ ४५ ॥

प्रतिगृहीष्व भद्रं ते तारणार्थं मम प्रभो ।
तद् रामः प्रतिजग्राह मुनेस्तस्य महात्मनः ॥ ४६ ॥
दिव्यमाभरणं चित्रं प्रदीप्तमिव भास्करम् ।
प्रतिगृह्य ततो रामस्तदाभरणमुत्तमम् ॥ ४७ ॥
आगमं तस्य दीप्तस्य प्रष्टुमेवोपचक्रमे ।
अत्यद्भुतमिदं दिव्यं वपुषा युक्तमद्भुतम् ॥ ४८ ॥
कथं वा भवता प्राप्तं कुतो वा केन वाऽऽहृतम् ।
कौतूहलतया ब्रह्मन् पृच्छामि त्वां महायशः ॥ ४९ ॥
आश्चर्याणां बहूनां हि निधिः परमको भवान् ।
एवं ब्रुवति काकुत्स्थे मुनिर्वाक्यमथाब्रवीत् ॥ ५० ॥
शृणु राम यथावृत्तं पुरा त्रेतायुगे युगे ॥ ५१ ॥

The king nourished the people by the portion of power given to him by Varuṇa. By the portion of the mighty Kubera, he then, lent to the people the glory of Kubera, the Lord of riches. By the portion of Yama he devised punishment to the people as and when they committed sin(s).

‘O Śrī Rāma, the foremost among men! (as king, you are also invested with the might of the guardians of regions). For my deliverance accept this ornament through the portion (of the might) of Indra, O Lord ! Prosperity be unto you !’ Then Śrī Rāma accepted the divine ornament, bright like the sun, given by the high-souled hermit, and asked about his acquisition of the ornament. ‘O Eminent Brāhmaṇa ! How and from where did you acquire this divine and wonderful ornament? I am asking this out of curiosity, as you are a great repository of wonders.’ After Śrī Rāma enquired of, the sage said to Śrī Rāma, ‘Listen, O Śrī Rāma, what happened in the old Tretā age.’ (44—51)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे षट्सप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-six in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXVII

Sage Agastya narrates the story of the king Śveta, who after eating corpse acquires heaven

पुरा त्रेतायुगे राम बभूव बहुविस्तरम् ।
समन्ताद् योजनशतं विमृगं पक्षिवर्जितम् ॥ १ ॥

“O Śrī Rāma! In the former Tretāyuga there was a forest, extending to hundred Yojanas, where there were neither animals nor birds. (1)

तस्मिन् निर्मानुषेऽरण्ये कुर्वाणस्तप उत्तमम् ।
अहमाक्रमितुं सौम्य तदरण्यमुपागमम् ॥ २ ॥

“In that forest, uninhabited by men, I practised askesis, which was the best of penances, O gracious one ! I set my foot to know all about the forest. (2)

तस्य रूपमरण्यस्य निर्देष्टुं न शशाक ह ।
फलमूलैः सुखास्वादैर्बहुरूपैश्च पादपैः ॥ ३ ॥

“I could not indeed specify the beauty of that forest with its tasty fruits and roots and groves of various types. (3)

तस्यारण्यस्य मध्ये तु सरो योजनमायतम् ।
हंसकारण्डवाकीर्णं चक्रवाकोपशोभितम् ॥ ४ ॥

“In the midst of the forest was a lake, one Yojana wide; filled with swans and ducks and beautified with Cakrawāka birds. (4)

पद्मोत्पलसमाकीर्णं समतिक्रान्तशैवलम् ।
तदाश्चर्यमिवात्यर्थं सुखास्वादमनुत्तमम् ॥ ५ ॥

अरजस्कं तदक्षोभ्यं श्रीमत्पक्षिगणायुतम् ।
तस्मिन् सरःसमीपे तु महद्द्भुतमाश्रमम् ॥ ६ ॥
पुराणं पुण्यमत्यर्थं तपस्विजनवर्जितम् ।
तत्राहमवसं रात्रिं नैदाघीं पुरुषर्षभ ॥ ७ ॥

“The lake was full of lotuses and water-lilies with no trace of moss, it was a great wonder, enjoyable and excelled by none, it was clear like crystal and calm and inhabited by innumerable lovely birds. Near that lake there was a strong, brilliant, wonderful hermitage, old and extremely holy; but not inhabited by the ascetics: There O bull among men ! I dwelt one summer night.

(5—7)

प्रभाते कल्यमुत्थाय सरस्तदुपचक्रमे ।
अथापश्यं शवं तत्र सुपुष्टमरजः क्वचित् ॥ ८ ॥

“Rising in the early morning for day-break-duties I reached the lake and then saw there a corpse (dead body) plump and spotless shining in the water. (8)

तिष्ठन्तं परया लक्ष्म्या तस्मिन्स्तोयाशये नृप ।

तमर्थं चिन्तयानोऽहं मुहूर्तं तत्र राघव ॥ ९ ॥

विष्ठितोऽस्मि सरस्तीरं किं न्विदं स्यादिति प्रभो ।

अथापश्यं मुहूर्तात् तु दिव्यमद्भुतदर्शनम् ॥ १० ॥

विमानं परमोदारं हंसयुक्तं मनोजवम् ।

अत्यर्थं स्वर्गिणं तत्र विमाने रघुनन्दन ॥ ११ ॥

उपास्तेऽप्सरसां वीर सहस्रं दिव्यभूषणम् ।

गायन्ति काश्चिद् रम्याणि वादयन्ति तथापराः ॥ १२ ॥

मृदङ्गवीणापणवान् नृत्यन्ति च तथापराः ।

अपराश्चन्द्ररश्म्याभैर्हमदण्डैर्महाधनैः ॥ १३ ॥

दोधूयुर्वदनं तस्य पुण्डरीकनिभेक्षणाः ।

ततः सिंहासनं हित्वा मेरुकूटमिवांशुमान् ॥ १४ ॥

पश्यतो मे तदा राम विमानादवरुह्य च ।

तं शवं भक्षयामास स स्वर्गीं रघुनन्दन ॥ १५ ॥

Pondering over it lying with all its beauty inside the lake, I, for a moment, O descendant of Raghu, stood apart and thought: O lord, what could this be. Then all at once I saw a divine and wonderful spacious chariot yoked by swans and having the speed of mind; O scion of Raghus! I saw a denizen of the heaven on that chariot, thousands of divinely ornamented nymphs served him, some were singing, others were melodiously playing on the Mṛdaṅga (drum), lute and Paṇava (symbol), and others were dancing; Some other with lotus-like eyes fanned his face with expensive chowries with gold-handles and the lustre comparable with the rays of the moon; Then raising himself up from the throne, as the sun rises on the summits of Meru mountain, he, the denizen of heaven getting down from the chariot ate up the corpse, while I looked on, O descendant of Raghu. (9—15)

ततो भुक्त्वा यथाकामं मांसं बहु सुपीवरम्।
अवतीर्य सरः स्वर्गीं संस्पृष्टमुपचक्रमे ॥ १६ ॥

“Then having consumed to his satisfaction, the flesh rich in fat, the celestial being, going down the lake performed ablutions. (16)

उपस्पृश्य यथान्यायं स स्वर्गीं रघुनन्दन।
आरोढुमुपचक्राम विमानवरमुत्तमम् ॥ १७ ॥

“Having sipped water (in ablution) in the prescribed way that celestial being, O descendant of Raghu, got ready to ascend the excellent chariot. (17)

तमहं देवसंकाशमारोहन्तमुदीक्ष्य वै।
अथाहमब्रुवं वाक्यं तमेव पुरुषर्षभ ॥ १८ ॥

“Seeing him, who was like a god, ascending the chariot, I, on my part, spoke to him these words: ‘O bull among men ! Who are you? O god-like one, O gracious one, You should tell me why you ate this loathsome food, looked down upon by others. (18)

को भवान् देवसंकाश आहारश्च विगर्हितः।
त्वयेदं भुज्यते सौम्य किमर्थं वक्तुमर्हसि ॥ १९ ॥
कस्य स्यादीदृशो भाव आहारो देवसम्मतः।
आश्चर्यं वर्तते सौम्य श्रोतुमिच्छामि तत्त्वतः।
नाहमौपधिकं मन्ये तव भक्ष्यमिमं शवम् ॥ २० ॥

“‘You possess ethereal beauty. Sir, whose food could be this; therefore, O gracious one, I am wonder-struck. I wish to know the facts. I do not consider this corpse as your food in expediency.’ (19-20)

इत्येवमुक्तः स नरेन्द्र नाकी
कौतूहलात् सूनृतया गिरा च।
श्रुत्वा च वाक्यं मम सर्वमेतत्
सर्वं तथा चाकथयन्ममेति ॥ २१ ॥

“Thus spoken to out of curiosity and also in well-chosen words, the celestial one, O King, having heard me, narrated all that I had enquired.” (21)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे सप्तसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-seven in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टसप्ततितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXVIII

King Śveta tells Agastya the reason as to why he had to eat the condemned food and recounts his conversation with Brahmā, He gives Agastya a divine ornament and gets freed from hunger and thirst

श्रुत्वा तु भाषितं वाक्यं मम राम शुभाक्षरम्।
प्राञ्जलिः प्रत्युवाचेदं स स्वर्गीं रघुनन्दन ॥ १ ॥

Hearing the words comprised of holy syllables spoken by me, O descendant of Raghu, Śrī Rāma, the celestial being, with folded hands replied thus: (1)

शृणु ब्रह्मन् पुरा वृत्तं ममैतत् सुखदुःखयोः।
अनतिक्रमणीयं च यथा पृच्छसि मां द्विज ॥ २ ॥

“O Brāhmaṇa ! listen to what happened formerly, that could not be resisted and which is the cause of my pleasure and sorrow, as you desire to know it. (2)

पुरा वैदर्भको राजा पिता मम महायशः।
सुदेव इति विख्यातस्त्रिषु लोकेषु वीर्यवान्॥ ३ ॥

“In the old days, my father Vaidarbha of great fame was possessed of great power and was known in the three worlds by the name of Sudeva. (3)

तस्य पुत्रद्वयं ब्रह्मन् द्वाभ्यां स्त्रीभ्यामजायत।
अहं श्वेत इति ख्यातो यवीयान् सुरथोऽभवत्॥ ४ ॥

“Two sons were born to him from his two wives. I, the elder one, was known as Śweta, while my younger brother was known as Suratha. (4)

ततः पितरि स्वर्गाते पौरा मामभ्यषेचयन्।
तत्राहं कृतवान् राज्यं धर्म्यं च सुसमाहितः॥ ५ ॥

“On my father having attained heaven, the citizens consecrated me. And I ruled righteously, with care. (5)

एवं वर्षसहस्राणि समतीतानि सुव्रत।
राज्यं कारयतो ब्रह्मन् प्रजा धर्मेण रक्षतः॥ ६ ॥

“O Brāhmaṇa, observer of vows, thus a thousand years passed by, with my ruling over the kingdom and protecting my subjects. (6)

सोऽहं निमित्ते कस्मिंश्चिद् विज्ञातायुर्द्विजोत्तम।
कालधर्मं हृदि न्यस्य ततो वनमुपागमम्॥ ७ ॥

सोऽहं वनमिदं दुर्गं मृगपक्षिविवर्जितम्।
तपश्चर्तुं प्रविष्टोऽस्मि समीपे सरसः शुभे॥ ८ ॥

“So, O best among Brāhmaṇas, knowing from some men about the span of my life, keeping in mind the approach of death, I came and entered this forest near the beautiful lake, difficult to enter and with no animals or birds residing therein to perform penances. (7-8)

भ्रातरं सुरथं राज्ये अभिषिच्य महीपतिम्।
इदं सरः समासाद्य तपस्तप्तं मया चिरम्॥ ९ ॥

“Having consecrated Suratha as the king, and reaching this lake, I performed penances for long. (9)

सोऽहं वर्षसहस्राणि तपस्त्रीणि महावने।
तप्त्वा सुदुष्करं प्राप्तो ब्रह्मलोकमनुत्तमम्॥ १० ॥

“Practising severe austerities for three thousand years in this great forest, I obtained the world of Brahmā (heaven) excelling all other worlds. (10)

तस्येमे स्वर्गभूतस्य क्षुत्पिपासे द्विजोत्तम।
बाधेते परमोदार ततोऽहं व्यथितेन्द्रियः॥ ११ ॥

“Having reached the heaven, O best among Brāhmaṇas, great hunger and thirst pained me and my senses were badly afflicted. (11)

गत्वा त्रिभुवनश्रेष्ठं पितामहमुवाच ह।
भगवन् ब्रह्मलोकोऽयं क्षुत्पिपासाविवर्जितः॥ १२ ॥

“Then approaching Brahmā the best in the three worlds, I said, ‘Sir, this world of Brahmā is free from hunger and thirst. (12)

कस्यायं कर्मणः पाकः क्षुत्पिपासानुगो ह्यहम्।
आहारः कश्च मे देव तप्ते ब्रूहि पितामह॥ १३ ॥

“‘As a consequence of which actions I am afflicted by hunger and thirst? What my food is, O God? O Brahmā! please tell me that’. (13)

पितामहस्तु मामाह तवाहारः सुदेवज।
स्वादूनि स्वानि मांसानि तानि भक्षय नित्यशः॥ १४ ॥

“On this Brahmā told me, ‘O son of Sudeva, your food is your own tasty flesh, eat that for ever. (14)

स्वशरीरं त्वया पुष्टं कुर्वता तप उत्तमम्।
अनुप्तं रोहते श्वेत न कदाचिन्महामते॥ १५ ॥

“You have well-nourished your own body performing the best of penances. That which is not sown, shall never sprout O wise one. (15)

दत्तं न तेऽस्ति सूक्ष्मोऽपि तप एव निषेवसे।
तेन स्वर्गगतो वत्स बाध्यसे क्षुत्पिपासया॥ १६ ॥

“You have not given even the smallest thing in charity, and have only practised great penances. Therefore, having reached heaven hunger and thirst afflict you. (16)

स त्वं सुपुष्टमाहारैः स्वशरीरमनुत्तमम्।
भक्षयित्वामृतरसं तेन वृत्तिर्भविष्यति ॥ १७ ॥

“As you eat your own body, well-nourished by edibles, full of the flavour of nectar; therefore, by that (eating flesh) you will live. (17)

यदा तु तद्वनं श्वेत अगस्त्यः स महानृषिः।
आगमिष्यति दुर्धर्षस्तदा कृच्छ्राद् विमोक्ष्यसे ॥ १८ ॥

“When the great and unconquerable sage Agastya will come to that forest, O Śweta, you will be delivered of this trouble. (18)

स हि तारयितुं सौम्य शक्तः सुरगणानपि।
किं पुनस्त्वां महाबाहो क्षुत्पिपासावशं गतम् ॥ १९ ॥

“O gracious one, Agastya is capable of delivering even the host of gods, what to say of you, afflicted with hunger and thirst, O long-armed one! (19)

सोऽहं भगवतः श्रुत्वा देवदेवस्य निश्चयम्।
आहारं गहितं कुर्मि स्वशरीरं द्विजोत्तम ॥ २० ॥

“Thus having learnt of the decision of the god of the gods, Brahmā, O best among men, I make food of my own body. (20)

बहून् वर्षगणान् ब्रह्मन् भुज्यमानमिदं मया।
क्षयं नाभ्येति ब्रह्मर्षे तृप्तिश्चापि ममोत्तमा ॥ २१ ॥

“O Brāhmaṇa, this body does not exhaust, although enjoyed by me for many years, and O Ṛṣi! I am fully quenched too. (21)

तस्य मे कृच्छ्रभूतस्य कृच्छ्रादस्माद् विमोक्ष्य।
अन्येषां न गतिर्ह्यत्र कुम्भयोनिमृते द्विजम् ॥ २२ ॥

“So deliver me—troubled one, from the difficulty. None other than Agastya, the pitcher-born ascetic, has power to do so. (22)

इदमाभरणं सौम्य तारणार्थं द्विजोत्तम।
प्रतिगृह्णीष्व भद्रं ते प्रसादं कर्तुमर्हसि ॥ २३ ॥

“O gracious one, best among Brāhmaṇas, accept this ornament for wearing, may welfare be with you. Please favour me by accepting this. (23)

इदं तावत् सुवर्णं च धनं वस्त्राणि च द्विज।
भक्ष्यं भोज्यं च ब्रह्मर्षे ददात्याभरणानि च ॥ २४ ॥

“All this gold, wealth, apparel, edibles and enjoyables, O Ṛṣi among Brāhmaṇas, I offer you as also the ornaments. (24)

सर्वान् कामान् प्रयच्छामि भोगांश्च मुनिपुङ्गव।
तारणे भगवन् मह्यं प्रसादं कर्तुमर्हसि ॥ २५ ॥

“All desirables and enjoyables also I surrender to you. I deserve to be favoured by you by releasing me of troubles.” (25)

तस्याहं स्वर्गिणो वाक्यं श्रुत्वा दुःखसमन्वितम्।
तारणायोपजग्राह तदाभरणमुत्तमम् ॥ २६ ॥

‘Having heard these words full of sorrow from the celestial one, I accepted this wonderful ornament for releasing him. (26)

मया प्रतिगृहीते तु तस्मिन्नाभरणे शुभे।
मानुषः पूर्वको देहो राजर्षेर्विननाश ह ॥ २७ ॥

प्रणष्टे तु शरीरेऽसौ राजर्षिः परया मुदा।
तृप्तः प्रमुदितो राजा जगाम त्रिदिवं सुखम् ॥ २८ ॥

‘As soon as I accepted that auspicious ornament, the former body of the Ṛṣi among kings (Śweta) vanished and the Ṛṣi among kings, extremely happy and satisfied, went to the heaven. (27-28)

तेनेदं शक्रतुल्येन दिव्यमाभरणं मम।
तस्मिन्निमित्ते काकुत्स्थ दत्तमद्भुतदर्शनम् ॥ २९ ॥

‘By him (Śweta) equal to Indra, this divine ornament, of wonderful form, was given to me, O scion of Kakutstha, for that purpose.’ (29)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डेऽष्टसप्ततितमः सर्गः ॥ ७८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-eight in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनाशीतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXIX

Reign of king Daṇḍa, a son of Ikṣvāku

तदद्भुततमं वाक्यं श्रुत्वागस्त्यस्य राघवः ।
गौरवाद् विस्मयाच्चैव भूयः प्रष्टुं प्रचक्रमे ॥ १ ॥

Hearing that most wonderful and marvellous story, narrated by Agastya, Śrī Rāma asked him again, full of dismay and reverence. (1)

भगवंस्तद् वनं घोरं तपस्तप्यति यत्र सः ।
श्वेतो वैदर्भको राजा कथं तदमृगद्विजम् ॥ २ ॥

“Sir, how was that fearful forest, where the Vaidarbha king Śweta was performing penances, devoid of animals and birds. (2)

तद् वनं स कथं राजा शून्यं मनुजवर्जितम् ।
तपश्चर्तुं प्रविष्टः स श्रोतुमिच्छामि तत्त्वतः ॥ ३ ॥

“I wish to know in detail how that king entered that forest, which was barren and uninhabited by men, to perform penances.” (3)

रामस्य वचनं श्रुत्वा कौतूहलसमन्वितम् ।
वाक्यं परमतेजस्वी वक्तुमेवोपचक्रमे ॥ ४ ॥

Hearing the words of Śrī Rāma uttered out of curiosity, the highly powerful one, Agastya, spoke thus: (4)

पुरा कृतयुगे राम मनुर्दण्डधरः प्रभुः ।
तस्य पुत्रो महानासीदिक्ष्वाकुः कुलनन्दनः ॥ ५ ॥

“In the former Kṛtayuga, Manu (Vaivasvata) was the king. His son, a joy to his family, was the famous Ikṣvāku. (5)

तं पुत्रं पूर्वकं राज्ये निक्षिप्य भुवि दुर्जयम् ।
पृथिव्यां राजवंशानां भव कर्तेत्युवाच तम् ॥ ६ ॥

“Placing the first son, Ikṣvāku, unconquerable on the earth, incharge of the kingdom, Manu said to him: ‘Be the progenitor of all royal families.’ (6)

तथैव च प्रतिज्ञातं पितुः पुत्रेण राघव ।
ततः परमसंतुष्टो मनुः पुत्रमुवाच ह ॥ ७ ॥

“Then, O descendant of Raghu, the son promised to do so and being fully satisfied Manu addressed him thus. (7)

प्रीतोऽस्मि परमोदार कर्ता चासि न संशयः ।
दण्डेन च प्रजा रक्ष मा च दण्डमकारणे ॥ ८ ॥

“O noble one, I am pleased, you will be the forerunner of all royal families, there is no doubt. By punishment as a sign of authority protect the subjects; do not mete out unnecessary punishments. (8)

अपराधिषु यो दण्डः पात्यते मानवेषु वै ।
स दण्डो विधिवन्मुक्तः स्वर्गं नयति पार्थिवम् ॥ ९ ॥

“That form of punishment, which is meted out to the guilty men, being given in proper manner, leads the king to heaven. (9)

तस्माद् दण्डे महाबाहो यत्नवान् भव पुत्रक ।
धर्मो हि परमो लोके कुर्वतस्ते भविष्यति ॥ १० ॥

“Therefore, O dear son of long arms, make efforts to mete out punishment according to prescriptions in the Śāstras. Resorting to just punishment properly, you will attain great righteousness.” (10)

इति तं बहु संदिश्य मनुः पुत्रं समाधिना ।
जगाम त्रिदिवं हृष्टो ब्रह्मलोकं सनातनम् ॥ ११ ॥

Thus, having instructed him, Manu, pleased with himself, went to the eternal abode of Brahmā through Samādhi (trance). (11)

प्रयाते त्रिदिवं तस्मिन्निक्ष्वाकुरमितप्रभः ।
जनयिष्ये कथं पुत्रानिति चिन्तापरोऽभवत् ॥ १२ ॥

When Manu had left for heaven, Ikṣvāku of unlimited brilliance, fell to thinking, ‘How shall I produce sons?’ (12)

कर्मभिर्बहुरूपैश्च तैस्तैर्मनुसुतस्तदा ।
जनयामास धर्मात्मा शतं देवसुतोपमान् ॥ १३ ॥

Through true actions of many types, then the son of Manu, the pious one, procreated the hundred sons, comparable with the sons of the gods. (13)

तेषामवरजस्तात सर्वेषां रघुनन्दन।
मूढश्चाकृतविद्यश्च न शुश्रूषति पूर्वजान् ॥ १४ ॥
नाम तस्य च दण्डेति पिता चक्रेऽल्पमेधसः।
अवश्यं दण्डपतनं शरीरेऽस्य भविष्यति ॥ १५ ॥

The youngest one of them, was ignorant, and illiterate and did not serve his elders. His father gave him, dull-witted son, the name 'Daṇḍa', thinking that physical punishment shall certainly be the fate of this one (son). (14-15)

अपश्यमानस्तं देशं घोरं पुत्रस्य राघव।
विन्ध्यशैवलयोर्मध्ये राज्यं प्रादादरिदम ॥ १६ ॥

"Not seeing any territory fully fearful, the father gave him the kingdom situated between the Vindhya and Śaivala mountains. (16)

स दण्डस्तत्र राजाभूद् रम्ये पर्वतरोधसि।
पुरं चाप्रतिमं राम न्यवेशयदनुत्तमम् ॥ १७ ॥

"That Daṇḍa became the king of that territory situated at the foot of the mountains and established a city unmatched and the best (among the cities). (17)

पुरस्य चाकरोन्नाम मधुमन्तमिति प्रभो।
पुरोहितं तूशनसं वरयामास सुव्रतम् ॥ १८ ॥

"Daṇḍa named the city Madhumanta, O lord, and chose as his chief priest Uśanā, rich in vows. (18)

एवं स राजा तद् राज्यमकरोत् सपुरोहितः।
प्रहृष्टमनुजाकीर्णं देवराजो यथा दिवि ॥ १९ ॥

"Thus that king, Daṇḍa, ruled over that kingdom together with the chief priest, the Kingdom being filled with joyful men as the king of gods rules in the heaven. (19)

ततः स राजा मनुजेन्द्रपुत्रः
सार्धं च तेनोशनसा तदानीम्।
चकार राज्यं सुमहान्महात्मा
शक्रो दिवीवोशनसा समेतः ॥ २० ॥

"Then that King, Daṇḍa, the grandson of Manu, together with Uśana of great fame, ruled as a highly pious king, like Indra ruling over the gods." (20)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकोनाशीतितमः सर्गः ॥ ७९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Seventy-nine in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अशीतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXX

The story of Daṇḍakavana. King Daṇḍa violates the chastity of Bhārgava's daughter and is cursed by him

एतदाख्याय रामाय महर्षिः कुम्भसम्भवः।
अस्यामेवापरं वाक्यं कथायामुपचक्रमे ॥ १ ॥

Having thus narrated the story of Ikṣvāku to Śrī Rāma, the great sage, Agastya, the pitcher-born one, began to narrate another story connected with the same. (1)

ततः स दण्डः काकुत्स्थ बहुवर्षगणायुतम्।
अकरोत् तत्र दान्तात्मा राज्यं निहतकण्टकम् ॥ २ ॥

"Then, O scion of Kakutstha, that Daṇḍa, the self-controlled one, ruled over that kingdom there, uprooting all foes, for successively ten thousand years. (2)

अथ काले तु कस्मिंश्चिद् राजा भार्गवमाश्रमम्।
रमणीयमुपाक्रामच्चैत्रे मासि मनोरमे ॥ ३ ॥

Then at one time the king, Daṇḍa, went to the beautiful hermitage of sage

Bhārgava (Śukra), in the enjoyable month of Caitra. (3)

तत्र भार्गवकन्यां स रूपेणाप्रतिमां भुवि।
विचरन्तीं वनोद्देशे दण्डोऽपश्यदनुत्तमाम् ॥ ४ ॥

There Daṇḍa saw the daughter of Bhārgava, a paragon of beauty, roaming about in the forest. (4)

स दृष्ट्वा तां सुदुर्मैथा अनङ्गशरपीडितः।
अभिगम्य सुसंविग्नां कन्यां वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ५ ॥

Having seen her, that wicked minded Daṇḍa, dull-witted, one afflicted by the arrows of cupid, greatly agitated approached the daughter of Bhārgava and said: (5)

कुतस्त्वमसि सुश्रोणि कस्य वासि सुता शुभे।
पीडितोऽहमनङ्गेन पृच्छामि त्वां शुभानने ॥ ६ ॥

‘O one of beautiful hips and loins, wherefrom do you hail, O beautiful one ! whose daughter you are? O of auspicious face, afflicted as I am by cupid, I ask you.’ (6)

तस्य त्वेवं ब्रुवाणस्य मोहोन्मत्तस्य कामिनः।
भार्गवी प्रत्युवाचेदं वचः सानुनयं त्विदम् ॥ ७ ॥

When he said so, blinded by the sexual urge and madly infatuated as he was, the daughter of Bhārgava replied thus courteously: (7)

भार्गवस्य सुतां विद्धि देवस्याक्लिष्टकर्मणः।
अरजां नाम राजेन्द्र ज्येष्ठामाश्रमवासिनीम् ॥ ८ ॥

‘Know me as the daughter of the lord Bhārgava, unwearied in action, named Arajā, the eldest one residing in the hermitage. (8)

मा मां स्पृश बलाद् राजन् कन्या पितृवशा ह्यहम्।
गुरुः पिता मे राजेन्द्र त्वं च शिष्यो महात्मनः ॥ ९ ॥

‘Do not touch me by force, I am under the control of my father, O best among kings. My father is your preceptor and you are the pupil of that noble one. (9)

व्यसनं सुमहत् क्रुद्धः स ते दद्यान्महातपाः।
यदि वान्यन्मया कार्यं धर्मदृष्टेन सत्यथा ॥ १० ॥
वरयस्व नरश्रेष्ठ पितरं मे महाद्युतिम्।
अन्यथा तु फलं तुभ्यं भवेद् घोराभिसंहितम् ॥ ११ ॥

‘Enraged, he (Bhārgava), the performer of great penances, shall cause you much grief. If, however, for something other than mere passion, you desire me, then ask my hand following the righteous path from my father, O best among men; otherwise you will meet with frightful consequences. (10-11)

क्रोधेन हि पिता मेऽसौ त्रैलोक्यमपि निर्देहेत्।
दास्यते चानवद्याङ्गं तव मा याचितः पिता ॥ १२ ॥

‘In anger my father would burn up the three worlds O one of perfect limbs. He will give me to you if asked for.’ (12)

एवं ब्रुवाणामरजां दण्डः कामवशं गतः।
प्रत्युवाच मदोन्मत्तः शिरस्याधाय चाञ्जलिम् ॥ १३ ॥

To Arajā speaking thus, Daṇḍa under the power of cupid, intoxicated with passion, replied folding his hands over his head: (13)

प्रसादं कुरु सुश्रोणि न कालं क्षेप्तुमर्हसि।
त्वत्कृते हि मम प्राणा विदीर्यन्ते वरानने ॥ १४ ॥

‘Please favour me, O one of beautiful hips and loins, do not delay, O beautiful one, my vital breaths are shattering on your account. (14)

त्वां प्राप्य तु वधो वापि पापं वापि सुदारुणम्।
भक्तं भजस्व मां भीरु भजमानं सुविह्वलम् ॥ १५ ॥

‘By possessing you, let there be my death, or a great sin committed, accept me, devoted to you and asking for you, highly agitated.’ (15)

एवमुक्त्वा तु तां कन्यां दोर्भ्यां प्राप्य बलाद् बली।
विस्फुरन्तीं यथाकामं मैथुनायोपचक्रमे ॥ १६ ॥

Thus saying, he, Daṇḍa, the strong one, seizing the trembling daughter of Bhārgava between his arms by force, he raped her. (16)

तमनर्थं महाघोरं दण्डः कृत्वा सुदारुणम्।
नगरं प्रयावाशु मधुमन्तमनुत्तमम् ॥ १७ ॥

Having committed that terrible heinous crime, he went back soon to the unparalleled Madhumanta. (17)

अरजापि रुदन्ती सा आश्रमस्याविदूरतः ।
 प्रतीक्षते सुसंत्रस्ता पितरं देवसंनिभम् ॥ १८ ॥
 That Arajā too, remained weeping near the hermitage, and in great fright waited for her father, who was just like a god. (18)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डेऽशीतितमः सर्गः ॥ ८० ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighty in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकाशीतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXI

End of king Daṇḍa, his family and kingdom, as a result of Śukra's curse

स मुहूर्तादुपश्रुत्य देवर्षिरमितप्रभः ।
 स्वमाश्रमं शिष्यवृतः क्षुधार्तः संन्यवर्तत ॥ १ ॥

Having heard the account of Arajā that gracious divine Ṛṣi Bhārgava came back at once to his hermitage surrounded by his pupils, although bitten by hunger. (1)

सोऽपश्यदरजां दीनां रजसा समभिप्लुताम् ।
 ज्योत्स्नामिव ग्रहग्रस्तां प्रत्यूषे न विराजतीम् ॥ २ ॥

He saw the pitiable Arajā covered with semen, as the full-moon at dawn faded out due to being eclipsed. (2)

तस्य रोषः समभवत् क्षुधार्तस्य विशेषतः ।
 निर्दहन्निव लोकांस्त्रीन् शिष्यांश्चैतदुवाच ह ॥ ३ ॥

Anger flared up in him, specially as he was bitten by hunger, as if to burn the three worlds, and he said to his pupils: (3)

पश्यध्वं विपरीतस्य दण्डस्याविदितात्मनः ।
 विपत्तिं घोरसंकाशां क्रुद्धादग्निशिखामिव ॥ ४ ॥

“See how this performer of action contrary to good conduct, and ignorant one meets with severe calamities produced by me in anger, and comparable with the flames of fire. (4)

क्षयोऽस्य दुर्मतेः प्राप्तः सानुगस्य दुरात्मनः ।
 यः प्रदीप्तां हुताशस्य शिखां वै स्पष्टमर्हति ॥ ५ ॥

“Destruction is the fate of that dull-witted one who wishes to touch the flames of the kindled fire. (5)

यस्मात् स कृतवान् पापमीदृशं घोरसंहितम् ।
 तस्मात् प्राप्स्यति दुर्मेधाः फलं पापस्य कर्मणः ॥ ६ ॥

“As he has committed this heinous crime, so this dull-witted one will get the fruit of his sin. (6)

सप्तरात्रेण राजासौ सपुत्रबलवाहनः ।
 पापकर्मसमाचारो वधं प्राप्स्यति दुर्मतिः ॥ ७ ॥

“In seven nights, this king, the dull-witted one, with his sons, army and carriers, and of sinful conduct, shall meet with death. (7)

समन्ताद् योजनशतं विषयं चास्य दुर्मतेः ।
 धक्ष्यते पांसुवर्षेण महता पाकशासनः ॥ ८ ॥

“For a hundred Yojanas all round, the territory of this dull-witted one, the extirpator of Pāka, Indra shall burn up with a shower of dust. (8)

सर्वसत्त्वानि यानीह स्थावराणि चराणि च ।
 महता पांसुवर्षेण विलयं सर्वतोऽगमन् ॥ ९ ॥

“All beings, stationary and moving, that are here, will perish due to this heavy shower
 of dust. (9)

दण्डस्य विषयो यावत् तावत् सर्वं समुच्छ्रयम् ।
 पांसुवर्षमिवालक्ष्यं सप्तरात्रं भविष्यति ॥ १० ॥

“After seven nights, the prosperous territory of Daṇḍa will entirely disappear alongwith the shower of dust.” (10)

इत्युक्त्वा क्रोधताम्राक्षस्तमाश्रमनिवासिनम् ।
जनं जनपदान्तेषु स्थीयतामिति चाब्रवीत् ॥ ११ ॥

Thus speaking to the inhabitants of the hermitage, he, Bhārgava, possessed of red eyes with rage said to them again, ‘stay at the outskirts of this territory.’ (11)

श्रुत्वा तूशनसो वाक्यं सोऽऽश्रमावसथो जनः ।
निष्क्रान्तो विषयात् तस्मात् स्थानं चक्रेऽथ बाह्यतः ॥ १२ ॥

Hearing these words of Uśanā, the Āśrama-dwellers, went out of his territory and made place for themselves elsewhere. (12)

स तथोक्त्वा मुनिजनमरजामिदमब्रवीत् ।
इहैव वस दुर्मेधे आश्रमे सुसमाहिता ॥ १३ ॥

Having thus spoken to the ascetics, Bhārgava then addressed Arajā, “O dull-witted, you will stay in this Āśrama, conscious of your duties. (13)

इदं योजनपर्यन्तं सरः सुरुचिरप्रभम् ।
अरजे विज्वरा भुङ्क्ष्व कालश्चात्र प्रतीक्ष्यताम् ॥ १४ ॥

“O Arajā, free from worry, enjoy this lake of beautiful form and extending to a Yojana, and also wait for some time. (14)

त्वत्समीपे च ये सत्त्वा वासमेध्यन्ति तां निशाम् ।
अवध्याः पांसुवर्षेण ते भविष्यन्ति नित्यदा ॥ १५ ॥

“Those beings, who will come to stay near you for a night, will be unassailable forever by the shower of dust.” (15)

श्रुत्वा नियोगं ब्रह्मर्षेः सारजा भार्गवी तदा ।
तथेति पितरं प्राह भार्गवं भृशदुःखिता ॥ १६ ॥

“On hearing the command of the Brahmarṣi, Arajā, the daughter of Bhṛgu, despite being very much pained said to her father “Very well.” (16)

इत्युक्त्वा भार्गवो वासमन्यत्र समकारयत् ।
तच्च राज्यं नरेन्द्रस्य सभृत्यबलवाहनम् ॥ १७ ॥
समाहाद् भस्मसाद् भूतं यथोक्तं ब्रह्मादिना ।
तस्यासौ दण्डविषयो विन्ध्यशैवलयोर्नृप ॥ १८ ॥
शमो ब्रह्मर्षिणा तेन वैधर्म्यं सहिते कृते ।
ततः प्रभृति काकुत्स्थ दण्डकारण्यमुच्यते ॥ १९ ॥

“Having said this, Bhṛgu took up his abode elsewhere. That kingdom of the chief of the kings alongwith his servants, the army and the vehicles, was reduced to ashes within seven days, as was declared by the Brahmvādī Bhṛgu. This kingdom of Daṇḍa lying between the Vindhya and the Śaivala mountains, was cursed by the Brahmarṣi, since Daṇḍa had acted unrighteously. Since then, O descendant of Kakutstha, it has been called Daṇḍakāraṇya. (17—19)

तपस्विनः स्थिता ह्यत्र जनस्थानमतोऽभवत् ।
एतत् ते सर्वमाख्यातं यन्मां पृच्छसि राघव ॥ २० ॥

“Since ascetics came and inhabited here it has been known as ‘Janasthāna’, O Rāma ! I have told you everything about what you enquired of me. (20)

संध्यामुपासितुं वीर समयो ह्यतिवर्तते ।
एते महर्षयः सर्वे पूर्णकुम्भाः समन्ततः ॥ २१ ॥
कृतोदका नरव्याघ्र आदित्यं पर्युपासते ।
स तैर्ब्राह्मणमभ्यस्तं सहितैर्ब्रह्मवित्तमैः ।
रविरस्तंगतो राम गच्छेदकमुपस्पृश ॥ २२ ॥

“O Valiant one ! The time for the performance of Sandhyā is passing. All these great sages, O foremost among men ! after having finished their bath, are worshipping the sun, with their respective pitcher filled with water. The sun, having accepted the worship in the form of recitation of Vedic hymns by the knowers of Brahma, has set in. You also go and take bath and sip water and perform Sandhyā.” (21-22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकाशीतितमः सर्गः ॥ ८१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighty-one in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्व्यशीतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXII

Śrī Rāma leaves Agastya's hermitage and starts for Ayodhyā

ऋषेर्वचनमाज्ञाय रामः संध्यामुपासितुम् ।
उपाक्रमत् सरः पुण्यमप्सरोगणसेवितम् ॥ १ ॥

Having heard with reverence the words of the sage, Agastya, Śrī Rāma approached the holy lake inhabited by the host of Apsarās, for performing his evening adoration. (1)

तत्रोदकमुपस्पृश्य संध्यामन्वास्य पश्चिमाम् ।
आश्रमं प्राविशद् रामः कुम्भयोनेर्महात्मनः ॥ २ ॥

Having sipped the water there and performed the evening Pūjā, Śrī Rāma entered the hermitage of Agastya, the holy pitcher-born one. (2)

तस्यागस्त्यो बहुगुणं कन्दमूलं तथौषधम् ।
शाल्यादीनि पवित्राणि भोजनार्थमकल्पयत् ॥ ३ ॥

Agastya offered to him for food radish of good quality and also purified rice and other edibles. (3)

स भुक्तवान् नरश्रेष्ठस्तदन्नममृतोपमम् ।
प्रीतश्च परितुष्टश्च तां रात्रिं समुपाविशत् ॥ ४ ॥

That best among men, Śrī Rāma, enjoyed that food comparable with nectar, was highly pleased and satisfied. He spent that night together with the sage. (4)

प्रभाते काल्यमुत्थाय कृत्वाऽऽह्निकमरिंदमः ।
ऋषिं समुपचक्राम गमनाय रघूत्तमः ॥ ५ ॥

Śrī Rāma, the best among the Raghus, the tamer of foes, getting up at dawn and having performed the morning daily rites, approached the sage to beg leave of him and to depart. (5)

अभिवाद्याब्रवीद् रामो महर्षिं कुम्भसम्भवम् ।
आपृच्छे स्वां पुरीं गन्तुं मामनुज्ञातुमर्हसि ॥ ६ ॥

Having saluted the great sage, born of the pitcher, Agastya, Śrī Rāma said to him: 'I beg leave of you to depart to my own capital; may you permit me to do so. (6)

धन्योऽस्म्यनुगृहीतोऽस्मि दर्शनेन महात्मनः ।
द्रष्टुं चैवागमिष्यामि पावनार्थमिहात्मनः ॥ ७ ॥

'I am fortunate having been favoured by seeing you. I shall come again to see you, O holy one, for purification of myself.' (7)

तथा वदति काकुत्स्थे वाक्यमद्भुतदर्शनम् ।
उवाच परमप्रीतो धर्मनेत्रस्तपोधनः ॥ ८ ॥

While Rāma spoke in this marvellous manner, the great ascetic possessed of virtuous vision was highly pleased and said : (8)

अत्यद्भुतमिदं वाक्यं तव राम शुभाक्षरम् ।
पावनः सर्वभूतानां त्वमेव रघुनन्दन ॥ ९ ॥

'O Rāma, your speech of auspicious syllables is indeed wonderful, O descendant of Raghu, you are the purifier of all beings. (9)

मुहूर्तमपि राम त्वां येऽनुपश्यन्ति केचन ।
पाविताः स्वर्गभूताश्च पूज्यास्ते त्रिदिवेश्वरैः ॥ १० ॥

'The few who see you even for a moment, are purified, and attain heaven, and are worshipped by the lord of heaven (gods). (10)

ये च त्वां घोरचक्षुर्भिः पश्यन्ति प्राणिनो भुवि ।
हतास्ते यमदण्डेन सद्यो निरयगामिनः ॥ ११ ॥

"Those beings on earth, who see you with inimical eyes, they are instantly struck by the rod of Yama and descend to hell. (11)

ईदृशस्त्वं रघुश्रेष्ठ पावनः सर्वदेहिनाम् ।
भुवि त्वां कथयन्तो हि सिद्धिमेष्यन्ति राघव ॥ १२ ॥

'O best among the Raghus, in this manner you are the purifier of all mortals, O scion of Raghu. The one describing Your sports (Līlās) on earth shall attain perfection. (12)

त्वं गच्छारिष्टमव्यग्रः पन्थानमकुतोभयम् ।
प्रशाधि राज्यं धर्मेण गतिर्हि जगतो भवान् ॥ १३ ॥
'You go with pleasure on your path unagitated and without fear and rule over your Kingdom righteously; you are the resort of this world.'

(13)

एवमुक्तस्तु मुनिना प्राञ्जलिः प्रग्रहो नृपः ।
अभ्यवादयत प्राज्ञस्तमृषिं सत्यशीलिनम् ॥ १४ ॥

Thus spoken to by the sage, the king with folded and outstretched hands, the wise one, saluted that sage of truthful conduct. (14)

अभिवाद्य ऋषिश्रेष्ठं तांश्च सर्वास्तपोधनान् ।
अध्यारोहत् तदव्यग्रः पुष्पकं हेमभूषितम् ॥ १५ ॥

Saluting the best among sages, Agastya, and all other great ascetics, he ascended that Puṣpaka, ornamented with gold.

(15)

तं प्रयान्तं मुनिगणा आशीर्वादैः समन्ततः ।
अपूजयन् महेन्द्राभं सहस्राक्षमिवामराः ॥ १६ ॥

The host of sages on all sides honoured him with blessings as the gods honour Indra, the thousand-eyed one.

(16)

खस्थः स ददृशे रामः पुष्पके हेमभूषिते ।
शशी मेघसमीपस्थो यथा जलधरागमे ॥ १७ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे द्व्यशीतितमः सर्गः ॥ ८२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighty-two in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अश्वीतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXIII

Śrī Rāma abandons the proposal of performing Rājasūya sacrifice at the instance of Bharata

तच्छ्रुत्वा भाषितं तस्य रामस्याक्लिष्टकर्मणः ।
द्वाःस्थः कुमारवाहूय राघवाय न्यवेदयत् ॥ १ ॥

Having heard the words of Śrī Rāma, who was unwearied in performance,
the door-keeper called the two princes

The well-composed Śrī Rāma on the Puṣpaka, ornamented with gold, looked like the moon near the cloud at the approach of the rainy season.

(17)

ततोऽर्धदिवसे प्राप्ते पूज्यमानस्ततस्ततः ।
अयोध्यां प्राप्य काकुत्स्थो मध्यकक्षामवातरत् ॥ १८ ॥

Then, by the advent of midday, being honoured here and there, and having reached Ayodhyā, the scion of Kakutstha descended in the middle of the city.

(18)

ततो विसृज्य रुचिरं पुष्पकं कामगामिनम् ।
विसर्जयित्वा गच्छेति स्वस्ति तेऽस्त्विति च प्रभुः ॥ १९ ॥

Then leaving the beautiful Puṣpaka, moving at will, He said: 'Leaving me, go to Kubera, O powerful one; may welfare be with thee.'

(19)

कक्षान्तरस्थितं क्षिप्रं द्वाःस्थं रामोऽब्रवीद् वचः ।
लक्ष्मणं भरतं चैव गत्वा तौ लघुविक्रमौ ।
ममागमनमाख्याय शब्दापयत मा चिरम् ॥ २० ॥

Then Śrī Rāma hurriedly ordered the door-keeper in the other apartment : 'Go to Lakṣmaṇa and Bharata, those two of swift valour, and having conveyed to them my arrival, call them here, do not delay.'

(20)

and they reported to the scion of Raghu.

(1)

दृष्ट्वा तु राघवः प्राप्तावुभौ भरतलक्ष्मणौ ।
परिष्वज्य ततो रामो वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ २ ॥

The scion of the Raghus seeing both the princes arrived, embraced them and then spoke to them these words : (2)

कृतं मया यथा तथ्यं द्विजकार्यमनुत्तमम् ।
धर्मसेतुमथो भूयः कर्तुमिच्छामि राघवौ ॥ ३ ॥

“I have done the service to the Brāhmaṇa as expected. Now I want to perform Rājasūya—the outer limit of piety, O brothers. (3)

अक्षयश्चाव्ययश्चैव धर्मसेतुर्मतो मम ।
धर्मप्रवचनं चैव सर्वपापप्रणाशनम् ॥ ४ ॥

“In my opinion the bridge of righteousness is imperishable and unchangeable; the discourse on righteousness destroys all sins. (4)

युवाभ्यामात्मभूताभ्यां राजसूयमनुत्तमम् ।
सहितो यष्टुमिच्छामि तत्र धर्मस्तु शाश्वतः ॥ ५ ॥

“Together with both of you, who are dear to me as myself, I wish to perform the excellent Rājasūya. Therein resides eternal righteousness. (5)

इष्ट्वा तु राजसूयेन मित्रः शत्रुनिबर्हणः ।
सुहुतेन सुयज्ञेन वरुणत्वमुपागमत् ॥ ६ ॥

“The killer of foes, Mitra, attained the position of Varuṇa, having performed the Rājasūya with proper offerings and sacrifice. (6)

सोमश्च राजसूयेन इष्ट्वा धर्मेण धर्मवित् ।
प्राप्तश्च सर्वलोकेषु कीर्तिं स्थानं च शाश्वतम् ॥ ७ ॥

“The knower of Dharma (Law), Soma, having performed the Rājasūya, righteously, attained fame and eternal place in all the worlds. (7)

अस्मिन्नहनि यच्छ्रेयश्चिन्त्यतां तन्मया सह ।
हितं चायतियुक्तं च प्रयतौ वक्तुमर्हथः ॥ ८ ॥

“Reflect on what is the best this day together with me, you two active ones should tell me what is good for the world and also what is proper for the future.” (8)

श्रुत्वा तु राघवस्यैतद् वाक्यं वाक्यविशारदः ।
भरतः प्राञ्जलिर्भूत्वा वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ ९ ॥

Hearing these words of the scion of Raghus, Śrī Rāma, Bharata, proficient in speaking, spoke thus, folding his hands: (9)

त्वयि धर्मः परः साधो त्वयि सर्वा वसुंधरा ।
प्रतिष्ठिता महाबाहो यशश्चामितविक्रम ॥ १० ॥

“O righteous one, in you is established the highest form of righteousness, this entire earth and all fame, O one of long arms and possessing uncomparable valour. (10)

महीपालाश्च सर्वे त्वां प्रजापतिमिवामराः ।
निरीक्षन्ते महात्मानं लोकनाथं यथा वयम् ॥ ११ ॥

“All kings like us, look upon Thee, O holy one, the lord of worlds as the gods look upon Prajāpati. (11)

पुत्राश्च पितृवद् राजन् पश्यन्ति त्वां महाबल ।
पृथिव्यां गतिभूतोऽसि प्राणिनामपि राघव ॥ १२ ॥

“O King, O Raghunandana of mighty strength, all kings regard you as sons look to their fathers. You are the resort of this world and also of all beings, O scion of Raghu. (12)

स त्वमेवविधं यज्ञमाहर्तासि कथं नृप ।
पृथिव्यां राजवंशानां विनाशो यत्र दृश्यते ॥ १३ ॥

“How, O king, you being so, wish to perform the Rājasūya sacrifice, in which there shall be the destruction of royal families on earth. (13)

पृथिव्यां ये च पुरुषा राजन् पौरुषमागताः ।
सर्वेषां भविता तत्र संक्षयः सर्वकोपजः ॥ १४ ॥

“O King, those men, who on this earth are possessed of valour, all of them will be destroyed in that Yajña due to the anger of all. (14)

सर्वं पुरुषशार्दूल गुणैरतुलविक्रम ।
पृथिवीं नार्हसे हन्तुं वशे हि तव वर्तते ॥ १५ ॥

“O lion among men, possessed of unparalleled valour, accompanied with merits, it befits you not to destroy this earth, all indeed are under your sway.” (15)

भरतस्य तु तद् वाक्यं श्रुत्वा मृतमयं यथा ।
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे रामः सत्यपराक्रमः ॥ १६ ॥

उवाच च शुभं वाक्यं कैकेय्यानन्दवर्धनम् ।
प्रीतोऽस्मि परितुष्टोऽस्मि तवाद्य वचनेऽनघ ॥ १७ ॥

Hearing these nectar-like words of Bharata, Śrī Rāma of true valour was extremely pleased and said these auspicious words to the enhancer of the joy of Kaikeyī, Bharata: 'I am pleased and satisfied today at what you say, O sinless one. (16-17)

इदं वचनमक्लीबं त्वया धर्मसमागतम्।
व्याहृतं पुरुषव्याघ्र पृथिव्याः परिपालनम्॥ १८ ॥

'These words spoken by you are potent and accompanied by righteousness. O tiger among men, as they relate to the protection of the earth. (18)

एष्यदस्मदभिप्रायाद् राजसूयात् क्रतूत्तमात्।
निवर्तयामि धर्मज्ञ तव सुव्याहृतेन च॥ १९ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे त्र्यशीतितमः सर्गः ॥ ८३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighty-three in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुरशीतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXIV

Lakṣmaṇa advises Śrī Rāma to perform Aśvamedha sacrifice and narrates the story of Indra and Vṛtra. Vṛtra's penance and Indra's appeal to Viṣṇu to kill him

तथोक्तवति रामे तु भरते च महात्मनि।
लक्ष्मणोऽथ शुभं वाक्यमुवाच रघुनन्दनम्॥ १ ॥

When Śrī Rāma and the noble Bharata had spoken thus, Lakṣmaṇa addressed these auspicious words to Śrī Rāma: (1)

अश्वमेधो महायज्ञः पावनः सर्वपाप्मनाम्।
पावनस्तव दुर्धर्षो रोचतां रघुनन्दन॥ २ ॥

"O descendant of Raghu, the great sacrifice, Aśvamedha, is the purifier of all sins and shall be your purifier, although difficult to perform, if you so please. (2)

श्रूयते हि पुरावृत्तं वासवे सुमहात्मनि।
ब्रह्महत्यावृतः शक्रो हयमेधेन पावितः॥ ३ ॥

"The legend about the very noble Vāsava (Indra) is heard, that Indra tainted

'I refrain, after what you have said, from the performance of the excellent sacrifice, Rājasūya, that was our intention, O Knower of Dharma (Law). (19)

लोकपीडाकरं कर्म न कर्तव्यं विचक्षणैः।
बालानां तु शुभं वाक्यं ग्राह्यं लक्ष्मणपूर्वज।
तस्माच्छृणोमि ते वाक्यं साधु युक्तं महाबल॥ २० ॥

'That action is not to be undertaken by the wise which causes pain to the worlds, O elder brother of Lakṣmaṇa. The words even of the young ones are worthy of acceptance if they are carrier of good. Therefore, I have listened to your sagacious talk, O mighty one; you have spoken so well.' (20)

by the sin of the killing of Brāhmaṇa was purified by the Horse-sacrifice. (3)

पुरा किल महाबाहो देवासुरसमागमे।
वृत्रो नाम महानासीद् दैतेयो लोकसम्मतः॥ ४ ॥

"In the ancient times, O one of long arms, in the struggle that ensued between the gods and demons, there happened to be the mighty Vṛtra, son of Diti, honoured by the worlds. (4)

विस्तीर्णो योजनशतमुच्छ्रितस्त्रिगुणं ततः।
अनुरागेण लोकांस्त्रीन् स्नेहात् पश्यति सर्वतः॥ ५ ॥

"A hundred Yojanas horizontally and thrice in height, he out of affection for three worlds, looked on all beings with compassion. (5)

धर्मज्ञश्च कृतज्ञश्च बुद्ध्या च परिनिष्ठितः ।
शशास पृथिवीं स्फीतां धर्मेण सुसमाहितः ॥ ६ ॥

“Righteous and dutiful and well-composed in mind, he ruled over this wide earth righteously with great care. (6)

तस्मिन् प्रशासति तदा सर्वकामदुघा मही ।
रसवन्ति प्रसूनानि मूलानि च फलानि च ॥ ७ ॥

“In his reign the earth yielded all such desirable and flavoured things, as flowers, roots and fruits. (7)

अकृष्टपच्या पृथिवी सुसम्पन्ना महात्मनः ।
स राज्यं तादृशं भुङ्क्ते स्फीतमद्भुतदर्शनम् ॥ ८ ॥

“The earth belonging to him yielded forth fruits without being ploughed. He ruled over that sort of kingdom, prosperous with wonderful appearance. (8)

तस्य बुद्धिः समुत्पन्ना तपः कुर्यामनुत्तमम् ।
तपो हि परमं श्रेयः सम्मोहमितरत् सुखम् ॥ ९ ॥

“It arose in his mind: ‘I shall perform the penance unequalled, penance is indeed the highest form of welfare; all other forms of happiness are out of illusions.’ (9)

स निक्षिप्य सुतं ज्येष्ठं पौरैषु मधुरेश्वरम् ।
तप उग्रं समातिष्ठत् तापयन् सर्वदेवताः ॥ १० ॥

“Leaving his eldest son, Madhureśwara, as in-charge of the citizens, he performed frightful penances, tormenting all gods. (10)

तपस्तप्यति वृत्रे तु वासवः परमार्तवत् ।
विष्णुं समुपसंक्रम्य वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ ११ ॥

“On Vṛtra performing penances, Vāsava (Indra) being highly afraid, approaching Viṣṇu spoke thus, indeed. (11)

तपस्यता महाबाहो लोकाः सर्वे विनिर्जिताः ।
बलवान् स हि धर्मात्मा नैनं शक्ष्यामि शासितुम् ॥ १२ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे चतुरशीतितमः सर्गः ॥ ८४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighty-four in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

“‘O one of long arms, all the worlds have been conquered by him performing penances, he is righteous and powerful, I cannot subdue him. (12)

यद्यसौ तप आतिष्ठेद् भूय एव सुरेश्वर ।
यावल्लोका धरिष्यन्ति तावदस्य वशानुगाः ॥ १३ ॥

“‘If again he performs penances, all beings of the worlds will be under him. (13)

तं चैनं परमोदारमुपेक्षसि महाबल ।
क्षणं हि न भवेद् वृत्रः क्रुद्धे त्वयि सुरेश्वर ॥ १४ ॥

“‘O powerful one, you are overlooking this demon, O lord of the gods, if you are in anger, Vṛtra will not stand even for a moment. (14)

यदा हि प्रीतिसंयोगं त्वया विष्णो समागतः ।
तदाप्रभृति लोकानां नाथत्वमुपलब्धवान् ॥ १५ ॥

“‘Ever since you patronised him, he has attained supremacy over the worlds. (15)

स त्वं प्रसादं लोकानां कुरुष्व सुसमाहितः ।
त्वत्कृतेन हि सर्वं स्यात् प्रशान्तमरुजं जगत् ॥ १६ ॥

“So, have mercy on the worlds now; by your favour, indeed, this world will be free from pain. (16)

इमे हि सर्वे विष्णो त्वां निरीक्षन्ते दिवौकसः ।
वृत्रघातेन महता तेषां साह्यं कुरुष्व ह ॥ १७ ॥

“These denizens of heaven (gods) look upon Thee, O Viṣṇu, please help them by killing the mighty Vṛtra. (17)

त्वया हि नित्यशः साह्यं कृतमेषां महात्मनाम् ।
असह्यमिदमन्येषामगतीनां गतिर्भवान् ॥ १८ ॥

“By you forever succour was given to the noble ones i.e., gods. For others these ignoble Asuras are unbearable. You, Sir, are the resort of those who have no shelter.” (18)

पञ्चाशीतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXV

Viṣṇu's lustre enters Indra's body and his thunderbolt, Indra kills Vṛtra with his thunderbolt and is guilty of killing a Brāhmaṇa and as a consequence has to go to the region of darkness

लक्ष्मणस्य तु तद् वाक्यं श्रुत्वा शत्रुनिर्हणः ।
वृत्रघातमशेषेण कथयेत्याह सुव्रत ॥ १ ॥

Hearing those words of Lakṣmaṇa, the extirpator of foes, Śrī Rāma, said: 'O observer of vows, narrate in totality the killing of Vṛtra.' (1)

राघवेणैवमुक्तस्तु सुमित्रानन्दवर्धनः ।
भूय एव कथां दिव्यां कथयामास सुव्रतः ॥ २ ॥

Being thus spoken to by the scion of Raghu, Śrī Rāma, the enhancer of the joy of Sumitrā, Lakṣmaṇa, the observer of vows, narrated the divine story of the killing of Vṛtra again. (2)

सहस्राक्षवचः श्रुत्वा सर्वेषां च दिवौकसाम् ।
विष्णुर्देवानुवाचेदं सर्वानिन्द्रपुरोगमान् ॥ ३ ॥

'Having heard the words of the thousand-eyed one, Indra, and also of all the gods, Viṣṇu spoke thus to all the gods headed by Indra. (3)

पूर्वं सौहृदबद्धोऽस्मि वृत्रस्येह महात्मनः ।
तेन युष्मत्प्रियार्थं हि नाहं हन्मि महासुरम् ॥ ४ ॥

'Formerly I was attached affectionately to Vṛtra here and thus for your good indeed
I am not killing the great Asura. (4)

अवश्यं करणीयं च भवतां सुखमुत्तमम् ।
तस्मादुपायमाख्यास्ये सहस्राक्षो वधिष्यति ॥ ५ ॥

'That which leads to your great happiness, has indeed to be performed:
Therefore, I shall tell you the means by which Vṛtra will be killed; the thousand-eyed one, Indra, will kill Vṛtra. (5)

त्रेधाभूतं करिष्यामि आत्मानं सुरसत्तमाः ।
तेन वृत्रं सहस्राक्षो वधिष्यति न संशयः ॥ ६ ॥

'O best among gods, I shall divide myself threefold, by that the thousand-eyed one, Indra, will indeed kill Vṛtra. There is no doubt about it. (6)

एकांशो वासवं यातु द्वितीयो वज्रमेव तु ।
तृतीयो भूतलं यातु तदा वृत्रं हनिष्यति ॥ ७ ॥

'One part of mine may go to Vāsava (Indra), the second part may enter the thunderbolt and third, the earth; then Indra shall kill Vṛtra.' (7)

तथा ब्रुवति देवेशे देवा वाक्यमथाब्रुवन् ।
एवमेतन्न संदेहो यथा वदसि दैत्यहन् ॥ ८ ॥

On the lord of gods, Viṣṇu, speaking thus, the gods then said: 'This is as You say, there is no doubt, O killer of the Daityas, sons of Diti. (8)

भद्रं तेऽस्तु गमिष्यामो वृत्रासुरवधैषिणः ।
भजस्व परमोदार वासवं स्वेन तेजसा ॥ ९ ॥

'Let welfare be with You, we shall now depart desiring the killing of the Asura, Vṛtra.
O extremely liberal one, Viṣṇu, may you bestow Vāsava with your power.' (9)

ततः सर्वे महात्मानः सहस्राक्षपुरोगमाः ।
तदरण्यमुपाक्रामन् यत्र वृत्रो महासुरः ॥ १० ॥

Then all the noble ones headed by the thousand-eyed god, Indra, went to that forest where the great Asura, Vṛtra, was. (10)

तेऽपश्यंस्तेजसा भूतं तप्यन्तमसुरोत्तमम् ।
पिबन्तमिव लोकांस्त्रीन् निर्दहन्तमिवाम्बरम् ॥ ११ ॥

They saw the mighty Asura possessed of his own power performing penance, as if drinking the three worlds and burning up the sky. (11)

दृष्ट्वैव चासुरश्रेष्ठं देवास्त्रासमुपागमन् ।
कथमेनं वधिष्यामः कथं न स्यात् पराजयः ॥ १२ ॥

On seeing the best of Asuras, gods were frightened, and thought 'how shall we kill him, and how indeed we shall not be conquered by him?' (12)

तेषां चिन्तयतां तत्र सहस्राक्षः पुरंदरः ।
वज्रं प्रगृह्य पाणिभ्यां प्राहिणोद् वृत्रमूर्धनि ॥ १३ ॥

While the gods were thus contemplating, the thousand-eyed one, the destroyer of fortress, Indra, taking hold of the thunderbolt with both of his hands, hurled it at the head of Vṛtra. (13)

कालाग्निनेव घोरेण दीप्तेनेव महार्चिषा ।
पतता वृत्रशिरसा जगत् त्रासमुपागमत् ॥ १४ ॥

When the head of Vṛtra struck by the thunderbolt, blazing like fire of destruction and inflamed by its own lustre, fell down, it simultaneously terrified the whole universe. (14)

असम्भाव्यं वधं तस्य वृत्रस्य विबुधाधिपः ।
चिन्तयानो जगामाशु लोकस्यान्तं महायशाः ॥ १५ ॥

The lord of the gods, possessed of fame, Indra, thinking that the killing of Vṛtra was not proper, fled soon to the ends of the earth out of fear. (15)

तमिन्द्रं ब्रह्महत्याऽऽशु गच्छन्तमनुगच्छति ।
अपतच्चास्य गात्रेषु तमिन्द्रं दुःखमाविशत् ॥ १६ ॥

The slaughter of a Brāhmaṇa pursued
Indra, fleeing fast and pervaded his limbs;
sorrow came upon Indra. (16)

हतारयः प्रणष्टेन्द्रा देवाः साग्निपुरोगमाः ।
विष्णुं त्रिभुवनेशानं मुहुर्मुहुरपूजयन् ॥ १७ ॥

With their foe killed, and bereft of Indra, the gods, with Agni at their head, worshipped Viṣṇu, the lord of the three worlds again and again. (17)

त्वं गतिः परमेशान पूर्वजो जगतः पिता ।
रक्षार्थं सर्वभूतानां विष्णुत्वमुपजग्मिवान् ॥ १८ ॥

'O mightiest of all, you are the resort, and being born first, the father of this earth, you assumed the form of Viṣṇu for the protection of all beings. (18)

हतश्चायं त्वया वृत्रो ब्रह्महत्या च वासवम् ।
बाधते सुरशार्दूल मोक्षं तस्य विनिर्दिश ॥ १९ ॥

'By you Vṛtra is killed; the slaughter of a Brāhmaṇa afflicts Vāsava (Indra), O lion among gods. Kindly arrange for his deliverance.' (19)

तेषां तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा देवानां विष्णुरब्रवीत् ।
मामेव यजतां शक्रः पावयिष्यामि वज्रिणम् ॥ २० ॥

Hearing those words of the gods, Viṣṇu said "Let Indra worship me, I shall purify the carrier of the thunderbolt. (20)

पुण्येन हयमेधेन मामिष्ट्वा पाकशासनः ।
पुनरेष्यति देवानामिन्द्रत्वमकुतोभयः ॥ २१ ॥

"Having propitiated me through the holy Aśvamedha, the humbler of Pāka, Indra, shall again attain the position of Indra among the gods, without fear from anywhere." (21)

एवं संदिश्य तां वाणीं देवानां चामृतोपमाम् ।
जगाम विष्णुर्देवेशः स्तूयमानस्त्रिविष्टपम् ॥ २२ ॥

Thus pronouncing those nectar-like words before the gods, the lord of the gods, Viṣṇu, being eulogized by the gods,
proceeded to heaven. (22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे पञ्चाशीतितमः सर्गः ॥ ८५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighty-five in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षडशीतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXVI

Indra is freed from the sin of Brahmahatyā as a result of performing Aśvamedha

तदा वृत्रवधं सर्वमखिलेन स लक्ष्मणः ।
कथयित्वा नरश्रेष्ठः कथाशेषं प्रचक्रमे ॥ १ ॥
ततो हते महावीर्ये वृत्रे देवभयंकरे ।
ब्रह्महत्यावृतः शक्रः संज्ञां लेभे न वृत्रहा ॥ २ ॥

That Lakṣmaṇa, having narrated the whole episode of the slaying of Vṛtra, proceeded to describe the remaining part of the story. On, Vṛtra of mighty power, a terror to the gods, being killed, Indra, the killer of Vṛtra, afflicted by the sin of Brāhmaṇa-slaughter, became unconscious. (1-2)

सोऽन्तमाश्रित्य लोकानां नष्टसंज्ञो विचेतनः ।
कालं तत्रावसत् कंचिद् वेष्टमान इवोरगः ॥ ३ ॥

Deprived of consciousness, he (Indra) went beyond the border of the world, where he remained for sometime as if writhing like a snake. (3)

अथ नष्टे सहस्राक्षे उद्विग्नमभवज्जगत् ।
भूमिश्च ध्वस्तसंकाशा निःस्नेहा शुष्ककानना ॥ ४ ॥
निःस्त्रोतसस्ते सर्वे तु हृदाश्च सरितस्तथा ।
संक्षोभश्चैव सत्त्वानामनावृष्टिकृतोऽभवत् ॥ ५ ॥

The thousand-eyed one, Indra, having disappeared, the world was agitated, and the earth lost its form, moisture and the forestations, all lakes and rivulets dried up, commotion prevailed among beings due to draught. (4-5)

क्षीयमाणे तु लोकेऽस्मिन् सम्भ्रान्तमनसः सुराः ।
यदुक्तं विष्णुना पूर्वं तं यज्ञं समुपानयन् ॥ ६ ॥

When the world was tottering, the gods agitated in mind, started the sacrifice that had been mentioned by Viṣṇu formerly. (6)

ततः सर्वे सुरगणाः सोपाध्यायाः सहर्षिभिः ।
तं देशं समुपाजग्मुर्यत्रेन्द्रो भयमोहितः ॥ ७ ॥

Then all hosts of gods, together with the preceptors and the sages, approached the place where Indra was hiding, quite unconscious due to fear. (7)

ते तु दृष्ट्वा सहस्राक्षमावृतं ब्रह्महत्याया ।
तं पुरस्कृत्य देवेशमश्वमेधं प्रचक्रिरे ॥ ८ ॥

Having seen the thousand-eyed one possessed by the sin of Brāhmaṇa-slaughter, the gods performed the Aśvamedha with their Lord, Indra, at their head. (8)

ततोऽश्वमेधः सुमहान् महेन्द्रस्य महात्मनः ।
ववृते ब्रह्महत्यायाः पावनार्थं नरेश्वर ॥ ९ ॥

Then, O lord of men, Śrī Rāma, the mighty Aśvamedha yajña came to be performed for the purification of the noble Mahendra (Indra) from the Brahma-hatyā. (9)

ततो यज्ञे समाप्ते तु ब्रह्महत्या महात्मनः ।
अभिगम्याब्रवीद् वाक्यं क्व मे स्थानं विधास्यथ ॥ १० ॥

Then as the sacrifice, Aśvamedha, came to an end, Brahma hatyā (in person) of the noble Indra approached the gods and said : 'Where would you give me place?' (10)

ते तामूचुस्ततो देवास्तुष्टाः प्रीतिसमन्विताः ।
चतुर्थी विभजात्मानमात्मनैव दुरासदे ॥ ११ ॥

Then the gods satisfied, happily said to her (the Brahma-hatyā), 'O one difficult to reach, divide yourself four-fold.' (11)

देवानां भाषितं श्रुत्वा ब्रह्महत्या महात्मनाम् ।
संदधौ स्थानमन्यत्र वरयामास दुर्वसा ॥ १२ ॥

Having heard the words of the noble gods, Brahma-hatyā (in person) split itself, and staying with difficulty in Indra's person, chose shelter elsewhere. (12)

एकेनांशेन वत्स्यामि पूर्णोदासु नदीषु वै ।
चतुरो वार्षिकान् मासान् दर्पघ्नी कामचारिणी ॥ १३ ॥

'By one part, I shall stay for four months of the rainy season, shattering the pride of sinful ones and moving at will in the rivers swollen with water. (13)

भूम्यामहं सर्वकालमेकेनांशेन सर्वदा।

वसिष्यामि न संदेहः सत्येनैतद् ब्रवीमि वः ॥ १४ ॥

By another part, I shall stay for all times on earth, there is no doubt, I speak out the truth to you all. (14)

योऽयमंशस्तृतीयो मे स्त्रीषु यौवनशालिषु।

त्रिरात्रं दर्पपूर्णासु वसिष्ये दर्पघातिनी ॥ १५ ॥

By the part which is my third one, I shall stay for three nights every month in the proud and youthful women, destroying their pride. (15)

हन्तारो ब्राह्मणान् ये तु मृषापूर्वमदूषकान्।

तांश्चतुर्थेन भागेन संश्रयिष्ये सुरर्षभाः ॥ १६ ॥

Those who kill innocent Brāhmaṇas on false pleas, them I shall attack by the fourth part, O bulls among gods.' (16)

प्रत्यूचुस्तां ततो देवा यथा वदसि दुर्वसे।

तथा भवतु तत् सर्वं साधयस्व यदीप्सितम् ॥ १७ ॥

Then the gods replied : 'O one of painful stay, may all that be as you say, do as you like.' (17)

ततः प्रीत्यान्विता देवाः सहस्राक्षं ववन्दिरे।

विज्वरः पूतपाप्मा च वासवः समपद्यत ॥ १८ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे षडशीतितमः सर्गः ॥ ८६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighty-six in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्ताशीतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXVII

Śrī Rāma narrates to Lakṣmaṇa the story of King Ila

तच्छ्रुत्वा लक्ष्मणेनोक्तं वाक्यं वाक्यविशारदः।

प्रत्युवाच महातेजाः प्रहसन् राघवो वचः ॥ १ ॥

Having heard the words spoken by Lakṣmaṇa, the mighty scion of Raghu, knower of the import of words, replied

Then the gods fully pleased saluted the thousand-eyed one, Vāsava (Indra), since he was now carefree and purified from sin. (18)

प्रशान्तं च जगत् सर्वं सहस्राक्षे प्रतिष्ठिते।

यज्ञं चाद्भुतसंकाशं तदा शक्रोऽभ्यपूजयत् ॥ १९ ॥

On Indra being established again, the whole world was rendered calm, then Indra worshipped through the wonderful sacrifice, Aśvamedha. (19)

ईदृशो ह्यश्वमेधस्य प्रभावो रघुनन्दन।

यजस्व सुमहाभाग हयमेधेन पार्थिव ॥ २० ॥

O descendant of Raghu, this is the results from Aśvamedha. So, O fortunate one, O King, perform the Aśvamedha sacrifice. (20)

इति लक्ष्मणवाक्यमुत्तमं

नृपतिरतीव मनोहरं महात्मा।

परितोषमवाप हृष्टचेताः

स निशम्येन्द्रसमानविक्रमौजाः ॥ २१ ॥

Having heard the beautiful and charming words of Lakṣmaṇa, the king Śrī Rāmacandra, a great soul and equal to Indra in might and valour, was very much pleased and fully satisfied. (21)

smilingly to him:

(1)

एवमेव नरश्रेष्ठ यथा वदसि लक्ष्मण।

वृत्रघातमशेषेण वाजिमेधफलं च यत् ॥ २ ॥

“O best among men, Lakṣmaṇa, it is as you say, all that you say about the killing of Vṛtra and also the fruit of the horse-sacrifice. (2)

श्रूयते हि पुरा सौम्य कर्दमस्य प्रजापतेः ।
पुत्रो बाह्मीश्वरः श्रीमानिलो नाम सुधार्मिकः ॥ ३ ॥

“O gracious one, it is heard that in the former days there was prosperous and pious Ila, ruler of Bāhlika and the son of the Prajāpati Kardama. (3)

स राजा पृथिवीं सर्वां वशे कृत्वा महायशाः ।
राज्यं चैव नरव्याघ्र पुत्रवत् पर्यपालयत् ॥ ४ ॥

“That King of high fame, having brought under his sway the whole earth, protected the kingdom like his son O tiger among men, Lakṣmaṇa. (4)

सुरैश्च परमोदारैर्देतेयैश्च महाधनैः ।
नागराक्षसगन्धर्वैर्यक्षैश्च सुमहात्मभिः ॥ ५ ॥
पूज्यते नित्यशः सौम्य भयार्ते रघुनन्दन ।
अबिभ्यंश्च त्रयो लोकाः सरोषस्य महात्मनः ॥ ६ ॥

“He was honoured always, O gracious one, by the liberal gods and the wealthy sons of Diti, and also by the Nāgas, Rākṣasas, Gandharvas and even the noble Yakṣas, possessed of fear. The three worlds were frightened when the powerful one was in rage. (5-6)

स राजा तादृशोऽप्यासीद् धर्मे वीर्ये च निष्ठितः ।
बुद्ध्या च परमोदारो बाह्मीकेशो महायशाः ॥ ७ ॥

“That king, lord of Bāhlika, of high fame, although so proficient in righteousness and valour, was very liberal at heart. (7)

स प्रचक्रे महाबाहुर्मृगायां रुचिरे वने ।
चैत्रे मनोरमे मासे सभृत्यबलवाहनः ॥ ८ ॥

“That one of long arms went out to hunt in a beautiful forest together with his attendants, army and carriers in the charming month of Caitra. (8)

प्रजघ्ने स नृपोऽरण्ये मृगान् शतसहस्रशः ।
हत्वैव तृप्तिर्नाभूच्च राज्ञस्तस्य महात्मनः ॥ ९ ॥

“The King killed hundreds and thousands of animals in the forest. Having killed them, however, the noble king was not satisfied. (9)

नानामृगाणामयुतं वध्यमानं महात्मना ।
यत्र जातो महासेनस्तं देशमुपचक्रमे ॥ १० ॥

“By that noble one were killed ten thousand animals of many species, he reached the place, where Mahāsenā (Kārtikeya) was born. (10)

तस्मिन् प्रदेशे देवेशः शैलराजसुतां हरः ।
रमयामास दुर्धर्षः सर्वैरनुचरैः सह ॥ ११ ॥

In that place the Lord of gods, the unconquerable Hara (Śiva), living with His attendants dallied with the daughter of the lord of mountains, Pārvatī. (11)

कृत्वा स्त्रीरूपमात्मानमुमेशो गोपतिध्वजः ।
देव्याः प्रियचिकीर्षुः संस्तस्मिन् पर्वतनिर्झरे ॥ १२ ॥

Assuming himself the form of a woman, desiring to please the Devī Pārvatī, the lord, having the bull as emblem, stayed near that hilly stream: (12)

यत्र यत्र वनोद्देशे सत्त्वाः पुरुषवादिनः ।
वृक्षाः पुरुषनामानस्ते सर्वे स्त्रीजना भवन् ॥ १३ ॥

Whatever masculine beings were there in the forest, all of them and even the trees' masculine names were changed in the form of female beings. (13)

यच्च किञ्चन तत् सर्वं नारीसंज्ञं बभूव ह ।
एतस्मिन्नन्तरे राजा स इलः कर्दमात्मजः ॥ १४ ॥

निघ्नन् मृगसहस्राणि तं देशमुपचक्रमे ।
स दृष्ट्वा स्त्रीकृतं सर्वं सव्यालमृगपक्षिणम् ॥ १५ ॥

आत्मानं स्त्रीकृतं चैव सानुगं रघुनन्दन ।
तस्य दुःखं महच्चासीद् दृष्ट्वाऽऽत्मानं तथागतम् ॥ १६ ॥

Whatever there was, was rendered feminine. In the meantime that King Ila, the son of Kardama, killing thousands of animals reached that place, and seeing all reptiles, animals and birds rendered feminine, and also himself together with his followers turned into feminine, he felt great sorrow, specially seeing himself in that form. (14—16)

उमापतेश्च तत् कर्म ज्ञात्वा त्रासमुपागमत् ।
 ततो देवं महात्मानं शितिकण्ठं कपर्दिनम् ॥ १७ ॥
 जगाम शरणं राजा सभृत्यबलवाहनः ।
 ततः प्रहस्य वरदः सह देव्या महेश्वरः ॥ १८ ॥
 प्रजापतिसुतं वाक्यमुवाच वरदः स्वयम् ।
 उत्तिष्ठोत्तिष्ठ राजर्षे कार्दमेय महाबल ॥ १९ ॥
 पुरुषत्वमृते सौम्य वरं वरय सुव्रत ।
 ततः स राजा शोकार्तः प्रत्याख्यातो महात्मना ॥ २० ॥

Knowing that it was wrought by the lord of Umā, Śiva, he was afraid. Then the King together with the army and carriers sought refuge in the mighty lord, the blue-throated and skull-adorned one; the great lord Śiva, giver of boons, together with goddess Pārvati, himself spoke to the son of Prajāpati: 'Arise, O Ṛṣi among Kings, O mighty one, son of Kardama, performer of vows, gracious one, barring manhood ask for any boon'. Then that King being thus rebuffed, was afflicted by sorrow. (17—20)

स्त्रीभूतोऽसौ न जग्राह वरमन्यं सुरोत्तमात् ।
 ततः शोकेन महता शैलराजसुतां नृपः ॥ २१ ॥
 प्रणिपत्य उमां देवीं सर्वेणैवान्तरात्मना ।
 ईशे वराणां वरदे लोकानामसि भामिनी ॥ २२ ॥
 अमोघदर्शने देवि भज सौम्येन चक्षुषा ।
 हृद्गतं तस्य राजर्षेर्विज्ञाय हरसंनिधौ ॥ २३ ॥
 प्रत्युवाच शुभं वाक्यं देवी रुद्रस्य सम्मता ।
 अर्धस्य देवो वरदो वरार्धस्य तव ह्यहम् ॥ २४ ॥

Having become a woman, he did not ask for any other boon from the Lord of the gods, Śiva. Then in great sorrow, the King paying obeisance to the daughter of the lord of mountains, Pārvati, with all his heart, said: 'O goddess of boons, giver of boons, you are the loveliest woman of the worlds.

O goddess whose vision is fruitful, with your benevolent eye favour me. Knowing what was in the mind of the Ṛṣi among kings, Ila, She spoke these auspicious words approved by Lord Śiva in his presence: 'The giver of one half of the boon is the Lord and that of the other half I am the giver. (21—24)

तस्मादर्थं गृहाण त्वं स्त्रीपुंसोर्यावदिच्छसि ।
 तदद्भुततरं श्रुत्वा देव्या वरमनुत्तमम् ॥ २५ ॥
 सम्प्राहृष्टमना भूत्वा राजा वाक्यमथाब्रवीत् ।
 यदि देवि प्रसन्ना मे रूपेणाप्रतिमा भुवि ॥ २६ ॥
 मासं स्त्रीत्वमुपासित्वा मासं स्यां पुरुषः पुनः ।
 ईप्सितं तस्य विज्ञाय देवी सुरुचिरानना ॥ २७ ॥
 प्रत्युवाच शुभं वाक्यमेवमेव भविष्यति ।
 राजन् पुरुषभूतस्त्वं स्त्रीभावं न स्मरिष्यसि ॥ २८ ॥
 स्त्रीभूतश्च परं मासं न स्मरिष्यसि पौरुषम् ।
 एवं स राजा पुरुषो मासं भूत्वाथ कार्दमिः ।
 त्रैलोक्यसुन्दरी नारी मासमेकमिलाभवत् ॥ २९ ॥

'Therefore, accept half of the period as a woman and the other half as man for as long as you desire.' Hearing this most wonderful and excellent boon being granted by the goddess, highly pleased the king then said: 'O goddess, possessed of loveliness, uncomparable on this earth, if thou art pleased with me, I may remain as man for a month, and a woman for the other,' The goddess of lovely face, having known the desire of the king, replied in these auspicious words : 'Thus will it be; O king, becoming a man you shall not remember your woman-hood. Becoming a woman too you shall not remember your manhood'. Thus that King, son of Kardama, became a man for one month and a most beautiful lady in the next, i.e., one month Ila and one month Ilā. (25—29)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे सप्ताशीतितमः सर्गः ॥ ८७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighty-seven in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टाशीतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXVIII

Ilā and Budha see each other, Budha gives the name Kimpuruṣīs to her and her companions and asks them to take their abode on the foot of the mountain

तां कथामैलसम्बद्धां रामेण समुदीरिताम् ।
लक्ष्मणो भरतश्चैव श्रुत्वा परमविस्मितौ ॥ १ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa and Bharata were extremely wonderstruck, after hearing the story of Ilā, narrated by Śrī Rāma. (1)

तौ रामं प्राञ्जली भूत्वा तस्य राज्ञो महात्मनः ।
विस्तरं तस्य भावस्य तदा पप्रच्छतुः पुनः ॥ २ ॥

Both of them again asked Śrī Rāma with folded hands to delineate in detail the story of Ilā and also his double form: (2)

कथं स राजा स्त्रीभूतो वर्तयामास दुर्गतिः ।
पुरुषः स यदा भूतः कां वृत्तिं वर्तयत्यसौ ॥ ३ ॥

‘Being formed into a woman, how did the king fare in misery, and when he was changed into a male, what was his way of life.’ (3)

तयोस्तद् भाषितं श्रुत्वा कौतूहलसमन्वितम् ।
कथयामास काकुत्स्थस्तस्य राज्ञो यथागतम् ॥ ४ ॥

Hearing the words of the two, spoken out of curiosity, Śrī Rāma, the scion of Kakutstha narrated the story of that king as was traditionally handed down: (4)

तमेव प्रथमं मासं स्त्री भूत्वा लोकसुन्दरी ।
ताभिः परिवृता स्त्रीभिर्वैऽस्य पूर्वं पदानुगाः ॥ ५ ॥

‘Becoming a lady matchlessly beautiful for the first month, (he) was surrounded by those (women), who formerly followed him in their masculine form. (5)

तत्काननं विगाह्याशु विजहे लोकसुन्दरी ।
द्रुमगुल्मलताकीर्णं पद्भ्यां पद्मदलेक्षणा ॥ ६ ॥

‘The feminine bea She the unparalleled beauty of the worlds having penetrated that forest full of trees, chesters and creepers, roamed on foot, possessed of eyes like lotus-petals. (6)

वाहनानि च सर्वाणि संत्यक्त्वा वै समन्ततः ।
पर्वताभोगविवरे तस्मिन् रेमे इला तदा ॥ ७ ॥

‘Leaving aside all carriers, Ilā then sported on in that cavity of the great mountain. (7)

अथ तस्मिन् वनोद्देशे पर्वतस्याविदूरतः ।
सरः सुरुचिरप्रख्यं नानापक्षिगणायुतम् ॥ ८ ॥

‘Then in that forest, not far from the mountain, was a pond beautiful in appearance, abided by many groups of birds. (8)

ददर्श सा इला तस्मिन् बुधं सोमसुतं तदा ।
ज्वलन्तं स्वेन वपुषा पूर्णं सोममिवोदितम् ॥ ९ ॥
तपन्तं च तपस्तीव्रमम्भोमध्ये दुरासदम् ।
यशस्करं कामकरं तारुण्ये पर्यवस्थितम् ॥ १० ॥

‘Ilā then saw in that lake Budha, the son of Soma (moon), quite youthful, effulgent with his own brilliant form as if (he was) the moon arisen. He was performing severe penance inside the waters of the lake, producing fame and fulfilling desires. (9-10)

सा तं जलाशयं सर्वं क्षोभयामास विस्मिता ।
सह तैः पूर्वपुरुषैः स्त्रीभूतै रघुनन्दन ॥ ११ ॥

‘O descendant of Raghu, fully amazed, she stirred up the entire lake together with those former men changed into women. (11)

बुधस्तु तां समीक्ष्यैव कामबाणवशं गतः ।
नोपलेभे तदात्मानं स चचाल तदाम्भसि ॥ १२ ॥

‘Budha on seeing her, came under the influence of the arrow of cupid, he could not control himself and moved in the waters. (12)

इलां निरीक्षमाणस्तु त्रैलोक्यादधिकां शुभाम् ।
चित्तं समभ्यतिक्रामत् का न्वियं देवताधिका ॥ १३ ॥

‘Perceiving Ilā, who was more auspicious than any other in the three worlds, it came to his mind: ‘Who indeed is She, lovelier than a goddess. (13)

न देवीषु न नागीषु नासुरीष्वप्सरःसु च।
दृष्टपूर्वा मया काचिद् रूपेणानेन शोभिता ॥ १४ ॥

‘I have not seen formerly any woman possessed of such beauty among the goddesses, the female Nāgas, the wives of Asuras or even the Apsarās. (14)

सदृशीयं मम भवेद् यदि नान्यपरिग्रहः।
इति बुद्धिं समास्थाय जलात् कूलमुपागमत् ॥ १५ ॥

‘If not wedded to another, she may be favourable to me. Thus thinking, Budha came out of the waters on the bank of the lake. (15)

आश्रमं समुपागम्य ततस्ताः प्रमदोत्तमाः।
शब्दापयत धर्मात्मा ताश्चैनं च ववन्दिरे ॥ १६ ॥

‘Reaching the hermitage, he, the noble one, called those beautiful women, and they all also saluted him. (16)

स ताः पप्रच्छ धर्मात्मा कस्यैषा लोकसुन्दरी।
किमर्थमागता चैव सर्वमाख्यात मा चिरम् ॥ १७ ॥

‘He, the noble one, then enquired of those women, thus : ‘To whom belongs this feminine beauty of the worlds? Why has she come, please let me know fully without delay?’ (17)

शुभं तु तस्य तद् वाक्यं मधुरं मधुराक्षरम्।
श्रुत्वा स्त्रियश्च ताः सर्वा ऊचुर्मधुरया गिरा ॥ १८ ॥

Hearing those words of his, spoken with sweet syllables, all those women replied in sweet tones: (18)

अस्माकमेषा सुश्रोणी प्रभुत्वे वर्तते सदा।
अपतिः काननान्तेषु सहास्माभिश्चरत्यसौ ॥ १९ ॥

‘This woman of beautiful limbs always commands us, is unmarried and roams about in the forest alongwith us.’ (19)

तद् वाक्यमाव्यक्तपदं तासां स्त्रीणां निशम्य च।
विद्यामावर्तनीं पुण्यामावर्तयत स द्विजः ॥ २० ॥

‘Having heard the words of unmanifest syllables of those women, that Brāhmaṇa (Budha) recited the holy Āvartanī Vidyā Stotra or chantings. (20)

सोऽर्थं विदित्वा सकलं तस्य राज्ञो यथा तथा।
सर्वा एव स्त्रियस्ताश्च बभाषे मुनिपुङ्गवः ॥ २१ ॥

Having thus known the whole account of that king, as it had happened, the great ascetic then spoke to all those women: (21)

अत्र किंपुरुषीर्भूत्वा शैलरोधसि वत्स्यथ।
आवास्तु गिरावस्मिन् शीघ्रमेव विधीयताम् ॥ २२ ॥

‘Beside at the foot of this mountain as Kimpuruṣis, find out your residence soon of this mountain. (22)

मूलपत्रफलैः सर्वा वर्तयिष्यथ नित्यदा।
स्त्रियः किंपुरुषान्नाम भर्तृन् समुपलप्स्यथ ॥ २३ ॥

‘Subsist always on roots, leaves and fruits all of you women, and obtain Kimpuruṣas as husbands.’ (23)

ताः श्रुत्वा सोमपुत्रस्य स्त्रियः किंपुरुषीकृताः।
उपासांचक्रिरे शैलं वध्वस्ता बहुलास्तदा ॥ २४ ॥

Then those women hearing the words of the son of Soma, changed into Kimpuruṣis, resided near the mountain in a large number. (24)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डेऽष्टाशीतितमः सर्गः ॥ ८८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighty-eight in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनवतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXIX

Union of Budha and Ilā and birth of Purūravā

श्रुत्वा किंपुरुषोत्पत्तिं लक्ष्मणो भरतस्तथा ।
आश्चर्यमिति च ब्रूतामुभौ रामं जनेश्वरम् ॥ १ ॥

Having heard the account of the origin of Kimpuruṣas, Lakṣmaṇa and Bharata said to Śrī Rāma the king: 'O Lord, how wonderful it is!'

अथ रामः कथामेतां भूय एव महायशाः ।
कथयामास धर्मात्मा प्रजापतिसुतस्य वै ॥ २ ॥

Then Śrī Rāma, the noble one, continued to narrate the story of Ilā, the son of Prajāpati:

सर्वास्ता विद्रुता दृष्ट्वा किन्नरीर्ऋषिसत्तमः ।
उवाच रूपसम्पन्नां तां स्त्रियं प्रहसन्निव ॥ ३ ॥

'Seeing that all the female Kinnaras (Kimpuruṣas) had departed, the great sage, Budha, said to that beautiful woman, Ilā, as if laughing:

सोमस्याहं सुदयितः सुतः सुरुचिरानने ।
भजस्व मां वरारोहे भक्त्या स्निग्धेन चक्षुषा ॥ ४ ॥

'O one of beautiful face, I am the beloved son of Soma, the moon-god; kindly look at me with love and own me.'

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा शून्ये स्वजनवर्जिते ।
इला सुरुचिरप्रख्यं प्रत्युवाच महाप्रभम् ॥ ५ ॥

'Having heard those words of Budha, Ilā, left by her friends, alone, spoke to the beautiful and lustrous one, Budha:

अहं कामचरी सौम्य तवास्मि वशवर्तिनी ।
प्रशाधि मां सोमसुत यथेच्छसि तथा कुरु ॥ ६ ॥

'O son of Soma, although free to move at will, I am now at your command, order me and do as you like.'

तस्यास्तदद्भुतप्रख्यं श्रुत्वा हर्षमुपागतः ।
स वै कामी सह तया रेमे चन्द्रमसः सुतः ॥ ७ ॥

Hearing these wonderful words of her,

Ilā, that lover, Budha, the son of the moon, was highly pleased and dallied with her. (7)

बुधस्य माधवो मासस्तामिलां रुचिराननाम् ।
गतो रमयतोऽत्यर्थं क्षणवत् तस्य कामिनः ॥ ८ ॥

While Budha was dallying with Ilā of beautiful face, the spring season passed away just like a moment.

अथ मासे तु सम्पूर्णे पूर्णेन्दुसदृशाननः ।
प्रजापतिसुतः श्रीमान् शयने प्रत्यबुध्यत ॥ ९ ॥

After the lapse of a month, Ilā the prosperous son of Prajāpati, having a face comparable to the full moon, woke up in bed.

सोऽपश्यत् सोमजं तत्र तपन्तं सलिलाशये ।
ऊर्ध्वबाहुं निरालम्बं तं राजा प्रत्यभाषत ॥ १० ॥

He saw that son of Soma was performing penance in that lake, with his hand raised upwards and without any support and addressed him thus:

भगवन् पर्वतं दुर्गं प्रविष्टोऽस्मि सहानुगः ।
न च पश्यामि तत् सैन्यं क्व नु ते मामका गताः ॥ ११ ॥

'Sir, I entered the impenetrable forest with my attendants for hunting; I do not, however, see my army, where they have gone, they who belonged to me.'

तच्छ्रुत्वा तस्य राजर्षेर्नष्टसंज्ञस्य भाषितम् ।
प्रत्युवाच शुभं वाक्यं सान्त्वयन् परया गिरा ॥ १२ ॥

Having heard those words of the bull among Kings, who had lost his consciousness formerly, he, Budha, replied to him in very auspicious words, consoling him:

अश्मवर्षेण महता भृत्यास्ते विनिपातिताः ।
त्वं चाश्रमपदे सुप्तो वातवर्षभयादितः ॥ १३ ॥

'Your servants were killed by a hail storm; you, however, filled with fear of wind and rain fell asleep in the hermitage. (13)

समाश्वसिहि भद्रं ते निर्भयो विगतज्वरः ।
फलमूलाशनो वीर निवसेह यथासुखम् ॥ १४ ॥

‘Do not feel fear or worry. Be consoled and well. O brave one, live here happily, consuming fruits and roots.’ (14)

स राजा तेन वाक्येन प्रत्याश्वस्तो महामतिः ।
प्रत्युवाच ततो वाक्यं दीनो भृत्यजनक्षयात् ॥ १५ ॥

The King possessed of wisdom having regained confidence by those words, replied auspiciously, feeling grieved on the perishing of his attendants. (15)

त्यक्ष्याम्यहं स्वकं राज्यं नाहं भृत्यैर्विनाकृतः ।
वर्तयेयं क्षणं ब्रह्मन् समनुज्ञातुमर्हसि ॥ १६ ॥

‘I shall forsake my kingdom, having lost my attendants; I shall not subsist even for a moment, O Brāhmaṇa, you should advise me : what to do. (16)

सुतो धर्मपरो ब्रह्मन् ज्येष्ठो मम महायशाः ।
शशबिन्दुरिति ख्यातः स मे राज्यं प्रपत्स्यते ॥ १७ ॥

‘My righteous and famous son, O best among Brāhmaṇas, is well-known by the name of Śaśabindu. He shall possess my kingdom. (17)

नहि शक्ष्याम्यहं हित्वा भृत्यदारान् सुखान्वितान् ।
प्रतिवक्तुं महातेजः किञ्चिदप्यशुभं वचः ॥ १८ ॥

‘Having lost my attendants and spouses, who were happy, O powerful one, I shall not be able to say anything inauspicious.’ (18)

तथा ब्रुवति राजेन्द्रे बुधः परममद्भुतम् ।
सान्त्वपूर्वमथोवाच वासस्त इह रोचताम् ॥ १९ ॥

When the king said so, Budha said in a very pleasing manner consoling him, ‘O king, you may stay here in the Āśrama happily.’ (19)

न संतापस्त्वया कार्यः कार्दमेय महाबल ।
संवत्सरोषितस्येह कारयिष्यामि ते हितम् ॥ २० ॥

‘O mighty one, son of Kardama, you should not be grieved. I shall do well to you, after you have passed a year here.’ (20)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा बुधस्याक्लिष्टकर्मणः ।
वासाय विदधे बुद्धिं यदुक्तं ब्रह्मवादिना ॥ २१ ॥

Hearing those amiable words of that Budha, unwearied in performance, the king contemplated, residing there as advised by the discourses on Brahma by Budha. (21)

मासं स स्त्री तदा भूत्वा रमयत्यनिशं सदा ।
मासं पुरुषभावेन धर्मबुद्धिं चकार सः ॥ २२ ॥

Then he, there becoming a woman, dallied constantly for ever for a month; and as a man he contemplated righteous performance for a month. (22)

ततः सा नवमे मासि इला सोमसुतात् सुतम् ।
जनयामास सुश्रोणी पुरूरवसमूर्जितम् ॥ २३ ॥

Then that Ilā begot a powerful son, Purūravā in the ninth month, by Budha, the son of Soma. (23)

जातमात्रे तु सुश्रोणी पितुर्हस्ते न्यवेशयत् ।
बुधस्य समवर्णं च इला पुत्रं महाबलम् ॥ २४ ॥

That one of beautiful loins, Ilā, handed over her son possessed of great power, and similar to his father, Budha, in appearance, to his father as he was born. (24)

बुधस्तु पुरुषीभूतं स वै संवत्सरान्तरम् ।
कथाभी रमयामास धर्मयुक्ताभिरात्मवान् ॥ २५ ॥

For the remaining months in the completion of a year, Budha, self-possessed, however, pleased him during the months when he turned into a male, with stories full of righteous actions. (25)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकोननवतितमः सर्गः ॥ ८९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Eighty-nine in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

नवतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXX

Ilā attains manhood as a result of performing Aśvamedha

तथोक्तवति रामे तु तस्य जन्म तदद्भुतम् ।
 उवाच लक्ष्मणो भूयो भरतश्च महायशाः ॥ १ ॥
 इला सा सोमपुत्रस्य संवत्सरमथोषिता ।
 अकरोत् किं नरश्रेष्ठ तत्त्वं शंसितुमर्हसि ॥ २ ॥

On Śrī Rāma describing Purūravā's wonderful birth, Lakṣmaṇa and Bharata, the famous one, said again : 'O best among men, please tell us what Ilā did after staying a year with the son of Soma (Budha).'
 (1-2)

तयोस्तद् वाक्यमाधुर्यं निशम्य परिपृच्छतोः ।
 रामः पुनरुवाचेमां प्रजापतिसुते कथाम् ॥ ३ ॥

Hearing those sweet words of those two, Lakṣmaṇa and Bharata, who eagerly asked him, Śrī Rāma again described the story of the son of Prajāpati, Ila. (3)

पुरुषत्वं गते शूरे बुधः परमबुद्धिमान् ।
 संवर्त परमोदारमाजुहाव महायशाः ॥ ४ ॥

When Ila, had regained manhood for a month, the very wise one and possessed of fame, Budha, invited the very noble Saṁvarta Ṛṣi. (4)

च्यवनं भृगुपुत्रं च मुनिं चारिष्टनेमिनम् ।
 प्रमोदनं मोदकरं ततो दुर्वाससं मुनिम् ॥ ५ ॥

He also invited Cyavana, the son of Bhṛgu, and the sage Ariṣṭanemi, the humorous Pramodana, Modakara and also the sage Durvāsā. (5)

एतान् सर्वान् समानीय वाक्यज्ञस्तत्त्वदर्शनः ।
 उवाच सर्वान् सुहृदो धैर्येण सुसमाहितान् ॥ ६ ॥

Budha, skilled in conversation and truthful, addressed them all, who were friendly to him and were full of patience. (6)

अयं राजा महाबाहुः कर्मस्य इलः सुतः ।
 जानीतैनं यथाभूतं श्रेयो ह्यत्र विधीयताम् ॥ ७ ॥

That king of long arms is Ila, the son of

Kardama : know what happened to him, do whatever is good for him here.' (7)

तेषां संवदतामेव द्विजैः सह महात्मभिः ।
 कर्मस्तु महातेजास्तदाश्रममुपागमत् ॥ ८ ॥

While the Brāhmaṇas conversed with the sages, Kardama, the mighty one, came to that hermitage. (8)

पुलस्त्यश्च क्रतुश्चैव वषट्कारस्तथैव च ।
 ओङ्कारश्च महातेजास्तदाश्रममुपागमन् ॥ ९ ॥

Pulastya, Kratu and also Vaṣaṭkāra, Ōṁkāra, the mighty one, too entered the hermitage. (9)

ते सर्वे हृष्टमनसः परस्परसमागमे ।
 हितैषिणो बाल्हिपतेः पृथग्वाक्यान्यथाब्रुवन् ॥ १० ॥

All those, happy at meeting each other, desirous of doing good to the lord of Bāhlika, then spoke separately. (10)

कर्मस्त्वब्रवीद् वाक्यं सुतार्थं परमं हितम् ।
 द्विजाः शृणुत मद्वाक्यं यच्छ्रेयः पार्थिवस्य हि ॥ ११ ॥

Kardama, on his part, said that was best for his son, 'O Brāhmaṇas, listen to me, which shall be for the welfare of the King. (11)

नान्यं पश्यामि भैषज्यमन्तरा वृषभध्वजम् ।
 नाश्वमेधात् परो यज्ञः प्रियश्चैव महात्मनः ॥ १२ ॥

'I do not see any other cure except the pleasure of Rudra with the bull as emblem and no sacrifice other than the Aśvamedha is dearer to Śiva, the noble one. (12)

तस्माद् यजामहे सर्वे पार्थिवार्थे दुरासदम् ।
 कर्मनैवमुक्तास्तु सर्व एव द्विजर्षभाः ॥ १३ ॥

'Therefore, all of us, bulls among Brāhmaṇas, will perform a Yajña for the sake of the king'. (13)

रोचयन्ति स्म तं यज्ञं रुद्रस्याराधनं प्रति ।
 संवर्तस्य तु राजर्षिः शिष्यः परपुरंजयः ॥ १४ ॥

मरुत्त इति विख्यातस्तं यज्ञं समुपाहरत्।
ततो यज्ञो महानासीद् बुधाश्रमसमीपतः ॥ १५ ॥

They (Brāhmaṇas) approved of that sacrifice indeed for the appeasement of God Rudra (Śiva). A Ṛṣi among kings, well-known as Marutta, destroyer of enemies, who was the pupil of Saṁvarta, made necessary arrangements for that sacrifice. A great sacrifice was performed close to the hermitage of Budha. (14-15)

रुद्रश्च परमं तोषमाजगाम महायशाः।
अथ यज्ञे समाप्ते तु प्रीतः परमया मुदा ॥ १६ ॥
उमापतिर्द्विजान् सर्वानुवाच इलसंनिधौ।
प्रीतोऽस्मि हयमेधेन भक्त्या च द्विजसत्तमाः ॥ १७ ॥

The mighty Rudra was extremely pleased at the completion of the sacrifice. Śiva, the lord of Umā, pleased and happy, spoke to all of them in the presence of Ilā: 'O best among Brāhmaṇas, I am pleased by the horse-sacrifice performed with devotion. (16-17)

अस्य बाह्मिपतेश्चैव किं करोमि प्रियं शुभम्।
तथा वदति देवेशे द्विजास्ते सुसमाहिताः ॥ १८ ॥
प्रसादयन्ति देवेशं यथा स्यात् पुरुषस्त्विवा।
ततः प्रीतो महादेवः पुरुषत्वं ददौ पुनः ॥ १९ ॥

'What good and auspicious act may I do for the lord of Bāhlika.' On the lord of gods speaking thus, those Brāhmaṇas, well-composed, propitiated the lord of gods, Śiva, in a manner that Ilā may turn into a man'.

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे नवतितमः सर्गः ॥ ९० ॥

Thus ends Canto Ninety in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

Then pleased, the great lord Śiva granted to Ilā perpetual manhood again. (18-19)

इलायै सुमहातेजा दत्त्वा चान्तरधीयत।
निवृत्ते हयमेधे च गते चादर्शनं हरे ॥ २० ॥
यथागतं द्विजाः सर्वे तेऽगच्छन् दीर्घदर्शिनः।
राजा तु बाह्मिमुत्सृज्य मध्यदेशे ह्यनुत्तमम् ॥ २१ ॥
निवेशयामास पुरं प्रतिष्ठानं यशस्करम्।
शशबिन्दुश्च राजर्षिर्बाह्मिं परपुरंजयः ॥ २२ ॥

'The powerful Śiva, having granted manhood to Ilā, disappeared; and the horse-sacrifice being completed and Hara having disappeared, all the farsighted Brāhmaṇas went away as they came. The king, Ilā, leaving Bāhlika established the famous and unequalled Pratiṣṭhāna in the central region; Śaśabindu too the conqueror of fortresses of enemies re-established Bāhlika. (20—22)

प्रतिष्ठाने इलो राजा प्रजापतिसुतो बली।
स काले प्राप्तवाँल्लोकमिलो ब्राह्ममनुत्तमम् ॥ २३ ॥

'At Pratiṣṭhāna, the king, son of Prajāpati the powerful one, Ilā in time attained the world of Brahmā. (23)

ऐलः पुरुरवा राजा प्रतिष्ठानमवाप्तवान्।
ईदृशो ह्यश्वमेधस्य प्रभावः पुरुषर्षभौ।
स्त्रीभूतः पौरुषं लेभे यच्चान्यदपि दुर्लभम् ॥ २४ ॥

The king, Purūravā, son of Ilā, obtained Pratiṣṭhāna, such is the power of Aśvamedha, O bull among men, one who was formerly a woman, achieved manhood—all that was difficult to obtain. (24)

एकनवतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXXI

Preparation for Aśvamedha by the order of Śrī Rāma

एतदाख्याय काकुत्स्थो भ्रातृभ्याममितप्रभः।

लक्ष्मणं पुनरेवाह धर्मयुक्तमिदं वचः ॥ १ ॥

Having narrated to his brothers, Śrī Rāma, with unlimited splendour, again spoke these righteous words to Lakṣmaṇa: (1)

वसिष्ठं वामदेवं च जाबालिमथ काश्यपम् ।
द्विजांश्च सर्वप्रवरानश्वमेधपुरस्कृतान् ॥ २ ॥
एतान् सर्वान् समानीय मन्त्रयित्वा च लक्ष्मण ।
हयं लक्षणसम्पन्नं विमोक्ष्यामि समाधिना ॥ ३ ॥

‘O Lakṣmaṇa, after having brought together all the sages e.g., Vasiṣṭha, Vāmadeva, Jābāli, Kāśyapa, and all Brāhmaṇas belonging to all Pravaras (R̥ṣi ancestors) and proficient in the performance of the Aśvamedha and also consulting them, I shall let loose a horse, with auspicious marks, carefully.’ (2-3)

तद् वाक्यं राघवेणोक्तं श्रुत्वा त्वरितविक्रमः ।
द्विजान् सर्वान् समाहूय दर्शयामास राघवम् ॥ ४ ॥

Hearing those words of the descendant of Raghu, Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa of speedy gait, calling all Brāhmaṇas presented them to the scion of Raghu. (4)

ते दृष्ट्वा देवसंकाशं कृतपादाभिवन्दनम् ।
राघवं सुदुराधर्ममाशीर्भिः समपूजयन् ॥ ५ ॥

Having seen him, who was like a god, and had adored their feet, they honoured Śrī Rāma, the invincible, with blessings. (5)

प्राञ्जलिः स तदा भूत्वा राघवो द्विजसत्तमान् ।
उवाच धर्मसंयुक्तमश्वमेधाश्रितं वचः ॥ ६ ॥

Then folding his hands in salutation, the scion of Raghu, spoke to the best Brāhmaṇas about Aśvamedha, full of righteousness. (6)

तेऽपि रामस्य तच्छ्रुत्वा नमस्कृत्वा वृषध्वजम् ।
अश्वमेधं द्विजाः सर्वे पूजयन्ति स्म सर्वशः ॥ ७ ॥

All those Brāhmaṇas too having heard (the intention) of Śrī Rāma paying obeisance to Mahādeva, the god with the bull as His emblem, spoke very high of Aśvamedha. (7)

स तेषां द्विजमुख्यानां वाक्यमद्भुतदर्शनम् ।
अश्वमेधाश्रितं श्रुत्वा भृशं प्रीतोऽभवत् तदा ॥ ८ ॥

Having heard the wonderful words of the leading Brāhmaṇas, related to the Aśvamedha, he was extremely pleased. (8)

विज्ञाय कर्म तत् तेषां रामो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ।
प्रेषयस्व महाबाहो सुग्रीवाय महात्मने ॥ ९ ॥
यथा महद्भिर्हरिभिर्बहुभिश्च वनौकसाम् ।
सार्धमागच्छ भद्रं ते अनुभोक्तुं महोत्सवम् ॥ १० ॥

Knowing their intention to perform that sacrifice, Śrī Rāma spoke to Lakṣmaṇa : ‘O one of long arms, send for the noble Sugrīva, alongwith several great monkeys and other denizens of the forest, to enjoy this great ceremony; may welfare be with them. (9-10)

विभीषणश्च रक्षोभिः कामगैर्बहुभिर्वृतः ।
अश्वमेधं महायज्ञमायात्वतुलविक्रमः ॥ ११ ॥

‘May Vibhiṣaṇa, too, possessed of great power, come to the great sacrifice, Aśvamedha, accompanied by the Rākṣasas (demons) moving at will. (11)

राजानश्च महाभागा ये मे प्रियचिकीर्षवः ।
सानुगाः क्षिप्रमायान्तु यज्ञं भूमिनिरीक्षकाः ॥ १२ ॥

‘All those kings of great fortune, who are desirous of my welfare, will come soon with attendants to see the ground of Aśvamedha. (12)

देशान्तरगता ये च द्विजा धर्मसमाहिताः ।
आमन्त्रयस्व तान् सर्वानश्वमेधाय लक्ष्मण ॥ १३ ॥

ऋषयश्च महाबाहो आहूयन्तां तपोधनाः ।
देशान्तरगताः सर्वे सदाराश्च द्विजातयः ॥ १४ ॥

‘O Lakṣmaṇa, invite all those Brāhmaṇas, who have migrated to other countries, are devoted to righteousness, on the occasion of Aśvamedha. O one of long arms, invite the sages rich in penance, and all the Brāhmaṇas staying abroad together with their spouses. (13-14)

तथैव तालावचरास्तथैव नटनर्तकाः ।
यज्ञवाटश्च सुमहान् गोमत्या नैमिषे वने ॥ १५ ॥

आज्ञाप्यतां महाबाहो तद्धि पुण्यमनुत्तमम् ।
शान्तयश्च महाबाहो प्रवर्तन्तां समन्ततः ॥ १६ ॥

‘So also call the dancers with symbols, the actors and other dancers, make the great sacrificial place to be ready. O one of long arms, in the Naimiṣa forest on the banks of the Gomatī, that Naimiṣa forest is extremely holy; may propitiatory rites for averting evil be performed on all sides. (15-16)

शतशश्चापि धर्मज्ञाः क्रतुमुख्यमनुत्तमम् ।
अनुभूय महायज्ञं नैमिषे रघुनन्दन ॥ १७ ॥
तुष्टः पुष्टश्च सर्वोऽसौ मानितश्च यथाविधि ।
प्रतियास्यति धर्मज्ञ शीघ्रमामन्त्र्यतां जनः ॥ १८ ॥

‘O one of long arms, descendant of Raghu, may righteous persons in thousands be satisfied, seeing the great sacrifice, the best among rites, Aśvamedha. O knower of righteousness, do invite all people soon, they will return satisfied, well-fed and honoured in the proper manner. (17-18)

शतं वाहसहस्राणां तण्डुलानां वपुष्मताम् ।
अयुतं तिलमुद्गस्य प्रयात्वग्रे महाबल ॥ १९ ॥
चणकानां कुलित्थानां माषाणां लवणस्य च ।
अतोऽनुरूपं स्नेहं च गन्धं संक्षिप्तमेव च ॥ २० ॥

‘O mighty one, Lakṣmaṇa, may hundred thousand carriers carry unbroken rice, and ten thousand of them carry sesame and beans, grains, pulses, black gram a little and salt; and in proportionate quantity, lubricants and fragrant materials. (19—20)

सुवर्णकोट्यो बहुला हिरण्यस्य शतोत्तराः ।
अग्रतो भरतः कृत्वा गच्छत्वग्रे समाधिना ॥ २१ ॥
अन्तरापणवीथ्यश्च सर्वे च नटनर्तकाः ।
सूदा नार्यश्च बहवो नित्यं यौवनशालिनः ॥ २२ ॥
भरतेन तु सार्धं ते यान्तु सैन्यानि चाग्रतः ।
नैगमान् बालवृद्धांश्च द्विजांश्च सुसमाहितान् ॥ २३ ॥
कर्मान्तिकान् वर्धकिनः कोशाध्यक्षांश्च नैगमान् ।
मम मातृस्तथा सर्वाः कुमारान्तःपुराणि च ॥ २४ ॥
काञ्चनीं मम पत्नीं च दीक्षायां ज्ञांश्च कर्मणि ।
अग्रतो भरतः कृत्वा गच्छत्वग्रे महायशाः ॥ २५ ॥

‘May Bharata proceed carrying coins in many hundred millions of gold and silver, carefully. Many rows of mobile markets, all actors and dancers, cooks, many damsels possessed of eternal charm, may they accompany Bharata; the citizens, both young and aged ones, Brāhmaṇas in front leading the march, the labourers, carpenters, treasurers and knowers of Veda, all my mothers (Kaikeyī with Sumitrā and Kausalyā), the spouses of the princes (Bharata etc.) ‘the gold statue of my wife, Sitā, and the knowers of the consecration ceremony, may Bharata possessed of great fame proceed.’ (21—25)

उपकार्या महार्हाश्च पार्थिवानां महौजसाम् ।
सानुगानां नरश्रेष्ठो व्यादिदेश महाबलः ॥ २६ ॥

The powerful, Śrī Rāma, possessed of great power ordered to be built many costly dwellings for the powerful kings, together with their attendants. (26)

अन्नपानानि वस्त्राणि अनुगानां महात्मनाम् ।
भरतः स तदा यातः शत्रुघ्नसहितस्तदा ॥ २७ ॥

He also ordered for the provision of food and drinks for the noble ones, who followed them (kings). Bharata then proceeded together with Śatrughna. (27)

वानराश्च महात्मानः सुग्रीवसहितास्तदा ।
विप्राणां प्रवराः सर्वे चक्रुश्च परिवेषणम् ॥ २८ ॥

The noble monkeys, together with Sugrīva and the select Brāhmaṇas, then served the food. (28)

विभीषणश्च रक्षोभिः स्त्रीभिश्च बहुभिवृतः ।
ऋषीणामुग्रतपसां पूजां चक्रे महात्मनाम् ॥ २९ ॥

Vibhiṣaṇa together with the Rākṣasas and many women, received with honour the noble Ṛṣis of great penances. (29)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकनवतितमः सर्गः ॥ ९१ ॥

Thus ends Canto Ninety-one in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्विनवतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXXII

Significance of donation and honour in the Aśvamedha Yajña of Śrī Rāma

तत् सर्वमखिलेनाशु प्रस्थाप्य भरताग्रजः ।
हयं लक्षणसम्पन्नं कृष्णासारं मुमोच ह ॥ १ ॥

Dispatching all objects for performance of Yajña, the elder brother of Bharata, Śrī Rāma, let loose a horse, mostly black (like the spotted deer), possessed of auspicious marks. (1)

ऋत्विग्भिर्लक्ष्मणं सार्धमश्वे च विनियुज्य च ।
ततोऽभ्यगच्छत् काकुत्स्थः सह सैन्येन नैमिषम् ॥ २ ॥

Entrusting Lakṣmaṇa together with the priests to look after the horse, the scion of Kakutstha proceeded to Naimiṣa with his army. (2)

यज्ञवाटं महाबाहुर्दृष्ट्वा परममद्भुतम् ।
प्रहर्षमतुलं लेभे श्रीमानिति च सोऽब्रवीत् ॥ ३ ॥

That one of long arms, Śrī Rāma, seeing the most wonderful place of performance of the sacrifice, Aśvamedha, was highly pleased and exclaimed: 'This indeed is auspicious.' (3)

नैमिषे वसतस्तस्य सर्व एव नराधिपाः ।
अनिन्युरुपहारांश्च तान् रामः प्रत्यपूजयत् ॥ ४ ॥

While Śrī Rāma was residing in Naimiṣa, all other kings brought presents for him, and He reciprocated their benevolence by honouring them. (4)

अन्नपानादिवस्त्राणि सर्वोपकरणानि च ।
भरतः सहशत्रुघ्नो नियुक्तो राजपूजने ॥ ५ ॥

Food and drinks, clothes and all other requirements were provided for them. Bharata and Śatrughna were charged with the duty of honouring the kings. (5)

वानराश्च महात्मानः सुग्रीवसहितास्तदा ।
परिवेषणं च विप्राणां प्रयताः सम्प्रचक्रिरे ॥ ६ ॥

The noble monkeys alongwith Sugriva then served scrupulously clean and purified food to Brāhmaṇas attentively. (6)

विभीषणश्च रक्षोभिर्बहुभिः सुसमाहितः ।
ऋषीणामुग्रतपसां किंकरः समपद्यत ॥ ७ ॥

Vibhiṣaṇa with many ogres offered their services to the Ṛṣis rich in austerities. (7)

उपकार्या महार्हाश्च पार्थिवानां महात्मनाम् ।
सानुगानां नरश्रेष्ठो व्यादिदेश महाबलः ॥ ८ ॥

The mighty one, best of kings Śrī Rāma ordered to be built costly dwellings for the noble kings as also for their followers. (8)

एवं सुविहितो यज्ञो ह्यश्वमेधो ह्यवर्तत ।
लक्ष्मणेन सुगुप्ता सा हयचर्या प्रवर्तत ॥ ९ ॥

Thus the Aśvamedha Yajña was well-begun; the ambulation of the horse, protected by Lakṣmaṇa, was commended well. (9)

ईदृशं राजसिंहस्य यज्ञप्रवरमुत्तमम् ।

नान्यः शब्दोऽभवत् तत्र हयमेधे महात्मनः ॥ १० ॥

छन्दतो देहि देहीति यावत् तुष्यन्ति याचकाः ।

तावत् सर्वाणि दत्तानि क्रतुमुख्ये महात्मनः ॥ ११ ॥

विविधानि च गौडानि खाण्डवानि तथैव च ।

न निःसृतं भवत्योष्ठाद् वचनं यावदर्थिनाम् ॥ १२ ॥

तावद् वानररक्षोभिर्दत्तमेवाभ्यदृश्यत ।

न कश्चिन्मलिनो वापि दीनो वाप्यथवा कृशः ॥ १३ ॥

तस्मिन् यज्ञवरे राज्ञो हृष्टपुष्टजनावृते ।

ये च तत्र महात्मानो मुनयश्चिरजीविनः ॥ १४ ॥

नास्मरंस्तादृशं यज्ञं दानौघसमलंकृतम् ।

यः कृत्यवान् सुवर्णेन सुवर्णं लभते स्म सः ॥ १५ ॥

वित्तार्थी लभते वित्तं रत्नार्थी रत्नमेव च ।

हिरण्यानां सुवर्णानां रत्नानामथ वाससाम् ॥ १६ ॥

अनिशं दीयमानानां राशिः समुपदृश्यते ।

न शक्रस्य न सोमस्य यमस्य वरुणस्य च ॥ १७ ॥

ईदृशो दृष्टपूर्वो न एवमूचुस्तपोधनाः ।

सर्वत्र वानरास्तस्थुः सर्वत्रैव च राक्षसाः ॥ १८ ॥

In this manner the great sacrifice of the lion among kings, Śrī Rāma, was performed; in that horse-sacrifice undertaken by Śrī Rāma, the noble one, no other sound was heard excepting cries of "Go on distributing till the needy ones are satisfied." In that grand sacrifice of the noble one, were given various articles of jellys and also sugar. The monkeys and Rākṣasas were seen distributing food among those who begged for food till words of satisfaction did not come out of their lips.

There was no one unclean, poor or emaciated in that great horse-sacrifice of the king, surrounded by happy and well-nourished beings. Those noble ascetics, long-lived ones, who came there, could not recall a sacrifice of that type so enriched with fabulous gifts and donations, who felt satisfied with gifts of gold, indeed; he who desired wealth, received it and one wishing gems also received them; Heaps of silver, gold, gems and garments being distributed constantly was seen in that sacrifice; 'we have not seen such a sacrifice performed formerly by Indra, Soma, Yama or Varuṇa thus said the sages rich in austerities. At all corners, there stood monkeys and demons; they distributed liberally among the suppliants, who desired clothes, wealth and food. (10—18)

वासोधनान्कामेभ्यः पूर्णहस्ता ददुर्भृशम् ।
ईदृशो राजसिंहस्य यज्ञः सर्वगुणान्वितः ।
संवत्सरमथो साग्रं वर्तते न च हीयते ॥ ११ ॥

Such a sacrifice of the lion among kings, possessed of all merits, went on for more than a year unobstructed. (19)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे द्विनवतितमः सर्गः ॥ १२ ॥

Thus ends Canto Ninety-two in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

त्रिनवतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXIII

Arrival of sage Vālmīki with Lava and Kuśa in the Horse-sacrifice of Śrī Rāma and He orders Kuśa and Lava for singing the Rāmāyaṇa

वर्तमाने तथाभूते यज्ञे च परमाद्भुते ।
सशिष्य आजगामाशु वाल्मीकिर्भगवानृषिः ॥ १ ॥

While that most wonderful sacrifice was going on, the venerable sage Vālmīki with his pupils came there soon. (1)

स दृष्ट्वा दिव्यसंकाशं यज्ञमद्भुतदर्शनम् ।
एकान्त ऋषिवाहानां चकार उटजान् शुभान् ॥ २ ॥
शकटांश्च बहून् पूर्णान् फलमूलांश्च शोभनान् ।
वाल्मीकिवाटे रुचिरे स्थापयन्नविदूरतः ॥ ३ ॥

Ṛṣi Vālmīki saw the divine and astounding sacrifice. Vālmīki got his hut raised in the vicinity of other cottages of seers. They were all wonderful to look at. A number of carts, full of food-grains, lovely roots and fruits, were provided near his hut, not far from the sacrificial ground. (2-3)

आसीत् सुपूजितो राजा मुनिभिश्च महात्मभिः ।
वाल्मीकिः सुमहातेजा न्यवसत् परमात्मवान् ॥ ४ ॥

The self-controlled Vālmīki of great lustre was respected by the king, Śrī Rāma and other hermits and great souls staying there. (4)

स शिष्यावब्रवीद् हृष्टौ युवां गत्वा समाहितौ ।
कृत्स्नं रामायणं काव्यं गायतां परया मुदा ॥ ५ ॥

Vālmīki addressed the two cheerful pupils thus; 'Go and carefully sing the entire poem, Rāmāyaṇa, most joyfully. (5)

ऋषिवाटेषु पुण्येषु ब्राह्मणावसथेषु च ।
रथ्यासु राजमार्गेषु पार्थिवानां गृहेषु च ॥ ६ ॥

‘Sing in the holy huts of sages, in the dwellings of Brāhmaṇas, on the by-ways and highways and also in the residences of the kings,’ (6)

रामस्य भवनद्वारि यत्र कर्म च कुर्वते ।
ऋत्विजामग्रतश्चैव तत्र गेयं विशेषतः ॥ ७ ॥

‘At the entrance of the apartment of Śrī Rāma and also where the ritual is being performed, and specially before the priests, this poem is to be sung. (7)

इमानि च फलान्यत्र स्वादूनि विविधानि च ।
जातानि पर्वताग्रेषु आस्वाद्यास्वाद्य गायताम् ॥ ८ ॥

‘These tasty fruits of many varieties have grown on the tops of the mountains. Enjoying them again and again, sing the poem. (8)

न यास्यथः श्रमं वत्सौ भक्षयित्वा फलान्यथ ।
मूलानि च सुमृष्टानि न रागात् परिहास्यथः ॥ ९ ॥

‘O you two, dear ones, having eaten the fruits and also the roots well-ruled, you shall not tire and not deviate from the Rāga (musical notes). (9)

यदि शब्दापयेद् रामः श्रवणाय महीपतिः ।
ऋषीणामुपविष्टानां यथायोग्यं प्रवर्तताम् ॥ १० ॥

‘If Śrī Rāma calls you to hear your song, then perform the singing of the poem in front of the sages seated, to the best of your ability. (10)

दिवसे विंशतिः सर्गा गेया मधुरया गिरा ।
प्रमाणैर्बहुभिस्तत्र यथोद्दिष्टं मया पुरा ॥ ११ ॥

‘Twenty cantoes are to be sung in a day in a melodious voice, as instructed by me with different number of verses as instructed by me earlier. (11)

लोभश्चापि न कर्तव्यः स्वल्पोऽपि धनवाञ्छया ।
किं धनेनाश्रमस्थानां फलमूलाशिनं सदा ॥ १२ ॥

‘Do not be greedy even in the least with desire for wealth; of what use is wealth to dwellers of hermitages and subsisting always on fruits and roots? (12)

यदि पृच्छेत् स काकुत्स्थो युवां कस्येति दारकौ ।
वाल्मीकेरथ शिष्यौ द्वौ ब्रूतमेवं नराधिपम् ॥ १३ ॥

‘If that scion of Kakutstha asks you: “whose sons are you two, then say to the king thus “We are the two disciples of Vālmiki”. (13)

इमास्तन्त्रीः सुमधुराः स्थानं वापूर्वदर्शनम् ।
मूर्च्छयित्वा सुमधुरं गायतां विगतज्वरौ ॥ १४ ॥

‘Playing on these lutes, emitting sweet sounds, and wonderfully divided according to musical notes, sing sweetly, having no worry. (14)

आदिप्रभृति गेयं स्यान्न चावज्ञाय पार्थिवम् ।
पिता हि सर्वभूतानां राजा भवति धर्मतः ॥ १५ ॥

‘This Rāmāyaṇa has to be sung from the beginning; do nothing disrespectful to the king; the king is the father of all beings, according to the law. (15)

तद् युवां हृष्टमनसौ श्वः प्रभाते समाहितौ ।
गायतं मधुरं गेयं तन्त्रीलयसमन्वितम् ॥ १६ ॥

‘Therefore, you two, with a cheerful mind and attentively sing tomorrow morning the sweet song, accompanied with the lute and keeping proper tune and rhythm. (16)

इति संदिश्य बहुशो मुनिः प्राचेतसस्तदा ।
वाल्मीकिः परमोदारस्तूष्णीमासीन्महामुनिः ॥ १७ ॥

Having thus instructed many times, the son of Pracetā, the great sage Vālmiki, the most large-hearted one, then became silent. (17)

संदिष्टौ मुनिना तेन तावुभौ मैथिलीमुतौ ।
तथैव करवावेति निर्जग्मतुरिन्दमौ ॥ १८ ॥

Thus instructed by that sage, both those two sons of Maithilī (Sītā), the subduer of foes, saying ‘we shall do as you say’ went out. (18)

तामद्भुतां तौ हृदये कुमारौ
निवेश्य वाणीमृषिभाषितां तदा ।

समुत्सुकौ तौ सुखमूषतुर्निशां
यथाश्विनौ भार्गवनीतिसंहिताम् ॥ १९ ॥

Then keeping the wonderful words of the sage Vālmiki, the two young children, Lava and Kuśa, eager to sing slept with ease like the two Aśwanikumāras having learnt the teachings of Śukra. (19)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे त्रिनवतितमः सर्गः ॥ १३ ॥

Thus ends Canto Ninety-three in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुर्नवतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXXIV

Śrī Rāma hears the sweet singing of the Rāmāyaṇa by Lava and Kuśa in his assembly

तौ रजन्यां प्रभातायां स्नातौ हुतहुताशनौ ।
यथोक्तमृषिणा पूर्वं सर्वं तत्रोपगायताम् ॥ १ ॥
तां स शुश्राव काकुत्स्थः पूर्वाचार्यविनिर्मिताम् ।
अपूर्वा पाठ्यजातिं च गेयेन समलंकृताम् ॥ २ ॥

As the night passed and the day approached, both Kuśa and Lava having taken their bath and made offerings to the fire, sang the poem there, as instructed by the sage Vālmiki. That scion of Kakutstha heard that musical recitation accompanied with musical notes, unheard of before, composed as per the cadences set by former great masters of music. (1-2)

प्रमाणैर्बहुभिर्बद्धां तन्त्रीलयसमन्विताम् ।
बालाभ्यां राघवः श्रुत्वा कौतूहलपरोऽभवत् ॥ ३ ॥

The descendant of Raghu, Śrī Rāma, hearing that song, set to the proper time and tune and accompanied by the playing of the lute by the two boys, was amazed. (3)

अथ कर्मान्तरे राजा समाहूय महामुनीन् ।
पार्थिवांश्च नरव्याघ्रः पण्डितान् नैगमांस्तथा ॥ ४ ॥
पौराणिकान् शब्दविदो ये वृद्धाश्च द्विजातयः ।
स्वराणां लक्षणज्ञांश्च उत्सुकान् द्विजसत्तमान् ॥ ५ ॥
लक्षणज्ञांश्च गांधर्वांश्च नैगमांश्च विशेषतः ।
पादाक्षरसमासज्ञांश्छन्दःसु परिनिष्ठितान् ॥ ६ ॥
कलामात्राविशेषज्ञाञ्ज्यौतिषे च परं गतान् ।
क्रियाकल्पविदश्चैव तथा कार्यविशारदान् ॥ ७ ॥

भाषाज्ञानिङ्गितज्ञांश्च नैगमांश्चाप्यशेषतः ।
हेतूपचारकुशलान् हैतुकांश्च बहुश्रुतान् ॥ ८ ॥
छन्दोविदः पुराणज्ञान् वैदिकान् द्विजसत्तमान् ।
चित्रज्ञान् वृत्तसूत्रज्ञान् गीतनृत्यविशारदान् ॥ ९ ॥
शास्त्रज्ञान् नीतिनिपुणान् वेदान्तार्थप्रबोधकान् ।
एतान् सर्वान् समानीय गातारौ समवेशयत् ॥ १० ॥

Then in the midst of the performance of the Aśvamedha Yajña, the king, Śrī Rāma, the tiger among men, having called, the great ascetics, the other kings and the learned citizens, the specialists in the Purāṇas, and also those aged Brāhmaṇas who were proficient in the knowledge of words, and also those best among Brāhmaṇas, who were curious to hear the Rāmāyaṇa and knew the specialities of musical notes, the knowers of auspicious marks, the musicians, all citizens, the knowers of the relation between the syllables of stanza and were proficient in metres; those who excelled in art only, and those well-versed in astrology, knowers of ritual performances, and also those specializing in the details of the ritual and those skilled in suggesting remedial forms of ritual, the logicians and also the erudite ones, the verifiers and knowers of the Purāṇas, the Vedas, the best among Brāhmaṇas, knowers of the Citra (forms of the Kāvya), knowers of the Sūtras on righteous conduct

(Dharmasūtras) and also experts in vocal music and dance, and bringing all of them together, made the two singers sit in the assembly of all these. (4—10)

तेषां संवदतां तत्र श्रोतॄणां हर्षवर्धनम्।
गेयं प्रचक्रतुस्तत्र तावुभौ मुनिदारकौ ॥ ११ ॥

Those two sons of the sage (Lava and Kuśa) then started singing, causing more joy to audience who were talking among themselves. (11)

ततः प्रवृत्तं मधुरं गान्धर्वमतिमानुषम्।
न च तृप्तिं ययुः सर्वे श्रोतारो गेयसम्पदा ॥ १२ ॥

Then continued the super-human music; all hearing it were not satiated by its musical culture and desired to hear more of it. (12)

हृष्टा मुनिगणाः सर्वे पार्थिवाश्च महौजसः।
पिबन्त इव चक्षुर्भिः पश्यन्ति स्म मुहुर्मुहुः ॥ १३ ॥

The hosts of sages were in joy and also the mighty kings, seeing again and again the two boys as if they would drink them up through their eyes. (13)

ऊचुः परस्परं चेदं सर्व एव समाहिताः।
उभौ रामस्य सदृशौ बिम्बाद् बिम्बमिवोत्थितौ ॥ १४ ॥

They looked attentively and said to each other: 'Both are similar to Śrī Rāma as a reflection of the original object. (14)

जटिलौ यदि न स्यातां न वल्कलधरौ यदि।
विशेषं नाधिगच्छामो गायतो राघवस्य च ॥ १५ ॥

'If they were not bearing matted hair or not dressed in bark-garments, we could not differentiate between those two singers and the descendant of Raghu, the king, Śrī Rāma. (15)

एवं प्रभाषमाणेषु पौरजानपदेषु च।
प्रवृत्तमादितः पूर्वसर्गं नारददर्शितम् ॥ १६ ॥

While the citizens and townsmen talked in this way, the first canto attributed to Nārada was sung from the beginning. (16)

ततः प्रभृति सर्गाश्च यावद् विंशत्यगायताम्।
ततोऽपराहसमये राघवः समभाषत ॥ १७ ॥

श्रुत्वा विंशतिसर्गास्तान् भ्रातरं भ्रातृवत्सलः।
अष्टादश सहस्राणि सुवर्णस्य महात्मनोः ॥ १८ ॥
प्रयच्छ शीघ्रं काकुत्स्थ यदन्यदभिकांक्षितम्।
ददौ स शीघ्रं काकुत्स्थो बालयोर्वै पृथक् पृथक् ॥ १९ ॥

From then on, they sang till the twenty cantos were completed. Then in the evening Śrī Rāma, the descendant of Raghu, affectionate to his brothers after hearing the twenty cantos, spoke to his brother: "Give to these two noble ones soon, eighteen thousand gold coins, and whatever else they ask for." The scion of Kakutstha, Bharata, at once began to give it to those two boys separately. (17—19)

दीयमानं सुवर्णं तु नागृहीतां कुशीलवौ।
ऊचतुश्च महात्मानौ किमनेनेति विस्मितौ ॥ २० ॥

The two—Kuśa and Lava, the noble ones, did not accept the gold coins being given to them and they said in surprise: 'Of what use are these to us.' (20)

वन्येन फलमूलेन निरतौ वनवासिनौ।
सुवर्णेन हिरण्येन किं करिष्यावहे वने ॥ २१ ॥

'We reside in the forest and subsist daily on fruits and roots. What shall we do with gold and silver coins in the forest.' (21)

तथा तयोः प्रब्रुवतोः कौतूहलसमन्विताः।
श्रोतारश्चैव रामश्च सर्व एव सुविस्मिताः ॥ २२ ॥

Thus as both of them spoke, those who heard them together with Śrī Rāma, too, were surprised and filled with curiosity. (22)

तस्य चैवागमं रामः काव्यस्य श्रोतुमुत्सुकः।
पप्रच्छ तौ महातेजास्तावुभौ मुनिदारकौ ॥ २३ ॥

Desirous to know the composer of that poem, Śrī Rāma, the mighty one, asked both of those two ascetics: (23)

किं प्रमाणमिदं काव्यं का प्रतिष्ठा महात्मनः।
कर्ता काव्यस्य महतः क्व चासौ मुनिपुङ्गवः ॥ २४ ॥

"How long is this poem? What is the object of the noble one, Vālmiki? Where is the composer of this poem, the best among ascetics.” (24)

पृच्छन्तं राघवं वाक्यमूचतुर्मुनिदारकौ ।
वाल्मीकिर्भगवान् कर्ता सम्प्राप्तो यज्ञसंविधम् ।
येनेदं चरितं तुभ्यमशेषं सम्प्रदर्शितम् ॥ २५ ॥

The two sons of ascetic said to the scion of Raghu, ‘The venerable sage Vālmiki is the composer who has come to this place of performance. By this poem he has revealed the whole life’s account to you. (25)

संनिबद्धं हि श्लोकानां चतुर्विंशत्सहस्रकम् ।
उपाख्यानशतं चैव भार्गवेण तपस्विना ॥ २६ ॥

‘Twenty-four thousand Ślokas (verses) with a hundred legends have been composed by the ascetic, Bhārgava Vālmiki, the brother of Bhṛgu. (26)

आदिप्रभृति वै राजन् पञ्चसर्गशतानि च ।
काण्डानि षट्कृतानीह सोत्तराणि महात्मना ॥ २७ ॥
कृतानि गुरुणास्माकमृषिणा चरितं तव ।
प्रतिष्ठा जीवितं यावत् तावत् सर्वस्य वर्तते ॥ २८ ॥

‘From the beginning, O King, five hundred cantos with six Kāṇḍas (parts) together with the Uttara (best Kāṇḍa) have been composed by the noble one, our preceptor, sage Vālmiki, keeping in mind your life’s deeds which will continue till all beings live. (27-28)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे चतुर्नवतितमः सर्गः ॥ ९४ ॥

Thus ends Canto Ninety-four in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चनवतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXXV

Śrī Rāma despatches an envoy to sage Vālmiki. The envoy meets the sage.

Śrī Sītā takes an oath of absolute purification

रामो बहून्यहान्येव तद् गीतं परमं शुभम् ।
शुश्राव मुनिभिः सार्धं पार्थिवैः सह वानरैः ॥ १ ॥

For many days Śrī Rāma, together with the ascetics, kings and monkeys, heard

यदि बुद्धिः कृता राजन् श्रवणाय महारथ ।
कर्मान्तरे क्षणीभूतस्तच्छृणुष्व सहानुजः ॥ २९ ॥

‘O king, the great chariot-warrior, if you have a mind to hear it, then in between this performance of Yajña, listen joyfully together with your brothers.’ (29)

बाढमित्यब्रवीद् रामस्तौ चानुज्ञाप्य राघवम् ।
प्रहृष्टौ जग्मतुः स्थानं यत्रास्ते मुनिपुङ्गवः ॥ ३० ॥

“Be it so” said Śrī Rāma, and the two taking leave (of Śrī Rāma), went cheerfully to the place where the great sage was staying. (30)

रामोऽपि मुनिभिः सार्धं पार्थिवैश्च महात्मभिः ।
श्रुत्वा तद् गीतिमाधुर्यं कर्मशालामुपागमत् ॥ ३१ ॥

Śrī Rāma too with the ascetics and the noble kings, having heard the sweet song, approached the place of performance. (31)

शुश्राव तत्ताललयोपपन्नं
सर्गान्वितं सुस्वरशब्दयुक्तम् ।
तन्त्रीलयव्यञ्जनयोगयुक्तं
कुशीलवाभ्यां परिगीयमानम् ॥ ३२ ॥

The song set into Chandas with proper words, embettered by proper beats and time, sung by Kuśa and Lava with lute in harmony, was heard by the scion of the Kakutsthas, Śrī Rāma. (32)

that wonderful song of holy content. (1)
तस्मिन् गीते तु विज्ञाय सीतापुत्रौ कुशीलवौ ।
तस्याः परिषदो मध्ये रामो वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ २ ॥
Having known through that song, Lava and Kuśa as the sons of Sītā, Śrī Rāma spoke in that assembly of sages, kings and monkeys. (2)

दूतान् शुद्धसमाचारानाहूयात्मनीषया ।
मद् वचो ब्रूत गच्छध्वमितो भगवतोऽन्तिके ॥ ३ ॥

Having called envoys of pure conduct, and contemplating inwardly, said to them: "Go to the venerable Ṛṣi Vālmiki and convey to him my words ! (3)

यदि शुद्धसमाचारा यदि वा वीतकल्मषा ।
करोत्विहात्मनः शुद्धिमनुमान्य महामुनिम् ॥ ४ ॥

"If she (Sītā) is pure of conduct, if any of the sins do not dwell in her, then may she prove her purity here at the bidding of the great sage Vālmiki. (4)

छन्दं मुनेश्च विज्ञाय सीतायाश्च मनोगतम् ।
प्रत्ययं दातुकामायास्ततः शंसत मे लघु ॥ ५ ॥

"Having known the wish of the sage and Sītā's willingness to give proof of her purity, let me know at once. (5)

श्वः प्रभाते तु शपथं मैथिली जनकात्मजा ।
करोतु परिषन्मध्ये शोधनार्थं ममैव च ॥ ६ ॥

"Let Maithili (Sītā), the daughter of Janaka, take oath in front of this assembly to remove blemishes from me also tomorrow morning." (6)

श्रुत्वा तु राघवस्यैतद् वचः परममद्भुतम् ।
दूताः सम्प्रययुर्बाढं यत्र वै मुनिपुङ्गवः ॥ ७ ॥

Hearing these wonderful words of Śrī Rāma, the descendant of Raghu, envoys nodding ascent, went to the place where the great sage Vālmiki stayed. (7)

ते प्रणम्य महात्मानं ज्वलन्तममितप्रभम् ।
ऊचुस्ते रामवाक्यानि मृदूनि मधुराणि च ॥ ८ ॥

Having saluted the noble one of inimitable lustre and resplendent, they spoke the words of Śrī Rāma, soft and sweet. (8)

तेषां तद् भाषितं श्रुत्वा रामस्य च मनोगतम् ।
विज्ञाय सुमहातेजा मुनिर्वाक्यमथाब्रवीत् ॥ ९ ॥

Having heard their words, and knowing the intention of Śrī Rāma, the very powerful sage spoke thus: (9)

एवं भवतु भद्रं वो यथा वदति राघवः ।
तथा करिष्यते सीता दैवतं हि पतिः स्त्रियाः ॥ १० ॥

"So be it, welfare be with you, Sītā will do as desired by Śrī Rāma, as husband is indeed a god for the wife." (10)

तथोक्ता मुनिना सर्वे राजदूता महौजसम् ।
प्रत्येत्य राघवं सर्वं मुनिवाक्यं बभाषिरे ॥ ११ ॥

Thus spoken to by the sage, all the royal envoys, coming back, repeated all that the sage had said, to mighty Rāma. (11)

ततः प्रहृष्टः काकुत्स्थः श्रुत्वा वाक्यं महात्मनः ।
ऋषींस्त्र समेतांश्च राज्ञश्चैवाभ्यभाषत ॥ १२ ॥

Then Śrī Rāma, the scion of Kakutstha, highly pleased on hearing the words of Vālmiki, the noble one, addressed the sages and also the kings assembled there: (12)

भगवन्तः सशिष्या वै सानुगाश्च नराधिपाः ।
पश्यन्तु सीताशपथं यश्चैवान्योऽपि कांक्षते ॥ १३ ॥

'Venerable sages, with pupils and kings with attendants or anyone else, so desiring, may witness the oath-taking of Sītā. (13)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा राघवस्य महात्मनः ।
सर्वेषामृषिमुख्यानां साधुवादो महानभूत् ॥ १४ ॥

Hearing those words of the noble descendant of Raghu, all the chief sages exclaimed 'well done.' (14)

राजानश्च महात्मानं प्रशंसन्ति स्म राघवम् ।
उपपन्नं नरश्रेष्ठ त्वय्येव भुवि नान्यतः ॥ १५ ॥

The noble kings praised indeed the descendant of Raghu thus: 'O best among men, this behoves you only, and no one else.' (15)

एवं विनिश्चयं कृत्वा श्वोभूत इति राघवः ।
विसर्जयामास तदा सर्वास्ताञ्छत्रसूदनः ॥ १६ ॥

Thus deciding that the oath-taking shall take place tomorrow, then the descendant of Raghu, the extirpator of foes, discharged the assembly. (16)

इति सम्प्रविचार्य राजसिंहः
श्वोभूते शपथस्य निश्चयम्।

विससर्ज मुनीन् नृपांश्च सर्वान्

स महात्मा महतो महानुभावः ॥ १७ ॥

That lion among kings, the great and magnanimous one, deciding the oath to take place next day, allowed all noble ones to leave. (17)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे पञ्चनवतितमः सर्गः ॥ ९५ ॥

Thus ends Canto Ninety-five in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षण्णवतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXVI

The Sage Vālmīki supports purity of Sītā

तस्यां रज्यां व्युष्टायां यज्ञवाटं गतो नृपः।
ऋषीन् सर्वान् महातेजाः शब्दापयति राघवः ॥ १ ॥
वसिष्ठो वामदेवश्च जाबालिरथ काश्यपः।
विश्वामित्रो दीर्घतमा दुर्वासाश्च महातपाः ॥ २ ॥
पुलस्त्योऽपि तथा शक्तिर्भार्गवश्चैव वामनः।
मार्कण्डेयश्च दीर्घायुर्मौद्गल्यश्च महायशाः ॥ ३ ॥
गर्गश्च च्यवनश्चैव शतानन्दश्च धर्मवित्।
भरद्वाजश्च तेजस्वी अग्निपुत्रश्च सुप्रभः ॥ ४ ॥
नारदः पर्वतश्चैव गौतमश्च महायशाः।
कात्यायनः सुयज्ञश्च ह्यगस्त्यस्तपसां निधिः ॥ ५ ॥
एते चान्ये च बहवो मुनयः संशितव्रताः।
कौतूहलसमाविष्टाः सर्व एव समागताः ॥ ६ ॥
राक्षसाश्च महावीर्या वानराश्च महाबलाः।
सर्व एव समाजग्मुर्महात्मानः कुतूहलात् ॥ ७ ॥

As the night passed, the King, Śrī Rāma, the powerful one, going to the place of sacrifice, reckoned all the sages—Vasiṣṭha, Vāmadeva, Jābāli and Kāśyapa, Viśvāmitra, Dīrghatamā, the great ascetic Durvāsā, also Pulastya and Śakti, Bhārgava, Vāmana, Markaṇḍeya the long-lived one, the famous Maudgalya, Garga, Cyavana, the religious Śātānanda, the splendidous Bharadvāja, the son of Agni, the lustrous one, Nārada, Parvata, the most famous Gautama all these sages and other ascetics of austere vows, filled with curiosity, came, and also the most powerful Rākṣasas and monkeys. (1—7)

क्षत्रिया ये च शूद्राश्च वैश्याश्चैव सहस्रशः।
नानादेशगताश्चैव ब्राह्मणाः संशितव्रताः ॥ ८ ॥

All Kṣatriyas and Śūdras, and thousands of Vaiśyas, noble ones, came out of curiosity. (8)

ज्ञाननिष्ठाः कर्मनिष्ठा योगनिष्ठास्तथापरे।
सीताशपथवीक्षार्थं सर्व एव समागताः ॥ ९ ॥

Brāhmaṇas coming from all places, well-versed in vows came to witness the oath-taking of Sītā. (9)

तदा समागतं सर्वमश्मभूतमिवाचलम्।
श्रुत्वा मुनिवरस्तूर्णं ससीतः समुपागमत् ॥ १० ॥

Then coming to know that all those who came were rendered motionless as stone, the great sage Vālmiki came soon after, accompanied by Sītā. (10)

तमृषिं पृष्ठतः सीता अन्वगच्छद्वाङ्मुखी।
कृताञ्जलिर्बाष्पकला कृत्वा रामं मनोगतम् ॥ ११ ॥

Sītā followed the sage, with face downcast and hands folded, inarticulate due to tears, keeping Śrī Rāma in the heart. (11)

तां दृष्ट्वा श्रुतिमायान्तीं ब्रह्माणमनुगामिनीम्।
वाल्मीकेः पृष्ठतः सीतां साधुवादो महानभूत् ॥ १२ ॥

Seeing Sītā approaching after Vālmīki as the Śruti (Vedas) follows Brahmā (creator). There was great uproar of appreciation. (12)

ततो हलहलाशब्दः सर्वेषामेवमाबभौ।
दुःखजन्मविशालेन शोकेनाकुलितात्मनाम् ॥ १३ ॥

Then the sound of Halahalā (sighs of sorrow) arose among all those who were agitated by great sorrow arising out of suffering. (13)

साधु रामेति केचित् तु साधु सीतेति चापरे।
उभावेव च तत्रान्ये प्रेक्षकाः सम्प्रचुकुशुः ॥ १४ ॥

Some said: 'Well done' Śrī Rāma, while others said: 'Well done' Śrī Sītā. There all observers praised both of them, Śrī Rāma and Śrī Sītā. (14)

ततो मध्ये जनौघस्य प्रविश्य मुनिपुङ्गवः।
सीतासहायो वाल्मीकिरिति होवाच राघवम् ॥ १५ ॥

Then in the midst of that assembly of men the great sage entering, accompanied by Sītā, spoke thus to the descendant of Raghu: (15)

इयं दाशरथे सीता सुव्रता धर्मचारिणी।
अपवादात् परित्यक्ता ममाश्रमसमीपतः ॥ १६ ॥

'O son of Daśaratha, this pious Sītā of righteous conduct was left by you near my hermitage out of fear of censure by folks. (16)

लोकापवादभीतस्य तव राम महाव्रत।
प्रत्ययं दास्यते सीता तामनुज्ञातुमर्हसि ॥ १७ ॥

'O Rāma, possessed of great vows, Sītā will give assurance of her good conduct before you as you are afraid of public censure, please permit her to do so. (17)

इमौ तु जानकीपुत्रावुभौ च यमजातकौ।
सुतौ तवैव दुर्धर्षौ सत्यमेतद् ब्रवीमि ते ॥ १८ ॥

'These twin sons of Sītā are indeed your sons, difficult to conquer by foes, this is the truth, I tell you. (18)

प्रचेतसोऽहं दशमः पुत्रो राघवनन्दन।
न स्मराम्यनृतं वाक्यमिमौ तु तव पुत्रकौ ॥ १९ ॥

'O descendant of Raghu, I am the tenth son of Pracetā (Varuṇa). I do not remember having spoken untruth. These twins are verily your sons. (19)

बहुवर्षसहस्राणि तपश्चर्या मया कृता।
नोपाशनीयां फलं तस्या दुष्टेयं यदि मैथिली ॥ २० ॥

'I have practised penances for many thousand years—may I not obtain the fruits thereof, if Maithilī (Sītā) is wicked of conduct. (20)

मनसा कर्मणा वाचा भूतपूर्वं न किल्बिषम्।
तस्याहं फलमश्नामि अपापा मैथिली यदि ॥ २१ ॥

'No sin has been committed by me in my earlier life through mind, speech or action; may I gain the fruit of this sinless conduct if Sītā is sinless. (21)

अहं पञ्चसु भूतेषु मनःषष्ठेषु राघव।
विचिन्त्य सीता शुद्धेति जग्राह वननिर्झरे ॥ २२ ॥

'Rāghava, through deep meditation I came to the conclusion that all ingredients like five gross elements and mind etc., subtle elements in Sītā are in their purest form. And it is only then that I took her from the bank of the river in the forest to my hermitage. (22)

इयं शुद्धसमाचारा अपापा पतिदेवता।
लोकापवादभीतस्य प्रत्ययं तव दास्यति ॥ २३ ॥

'This sinless, pure of conduct, Sītā, looking upon her husband as the only god, shall give assurance to you, afraid as you are of censure by public. (23)

तस्मादियं नरवरात्मज शुद्धभावा
दिव्येन दृष्टिविषयेण मया प्रविष्टा।

लोकापवादकलुषीकृतचेतसा या
त्यक्ता त्वया प्रियतमा विदितापि शुद्धा ॥ २४ ॥

'Therefore, this one O! son of king Daśaratha, forsaken by you for fear of public censure, I have known her through divine vision to be of pure conduct and devoted to you even though you already knew that she was chaste.' (24)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे षण्णवतितमः सर्गः ॥ ९६ ॥

Thus ends Canto Ninety-six in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्तनवतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXVII

Sītā takes oath and enters in netherworld

वाल्मीकिनैवमुक्तस्तु राघवः प्रत्यभाषत ।
प्राञ्जलिर्जगतो मध्ये दृष्ट्वा तां वरवर्णिनीम् ॥ १ ॥

Thus spoken to by Vālmiki, the scion of Raghu, replied with folded hands, seeing the beautiful complexioned one, Sītā, within the sight of everybody: (1)

एवमेतन्महाभाग यथा वदसि धर्मवित् ।
प्रत्ययस्तु मम ब्रह्मंस्तव वाक्यैरकल्मषैः ॥ २ ॥
'O holy one, this is as you say, O knower of law, O Brāhmaṇa, by your guiltless words, I am assured. (2)

प्रत्ययश्च पुरा वृत्तो वैदेह्याः सुरसंनिधौ ।
शपथश्च कृतस्तत्र तेन वेश्म प्रवेशिता ॥ ३ ॥

'Sītā, the daughter of Videha, has already assured us of her pure conduct in front of the gods, and taken oath and then she was allowed to enter the apartment. (3)

लोकापवादो बलवान् येन त्यक्ता हि मैथिली ।
सेयं लोकभयाद् ब्रह्मन्पापेत्यभिजानता ।
परित्यक्ता मया सीता तद् भवान् क्षन्तुमर्हति ॥ ४ ॥

'The censure by people is great, due to which Maithilī (Sītā) was forsaken. This Sītā, O Brāhmaṇa, was forsaken by me due to fear of censure, although knowing that she was sinless, so please forgive me. (4)

जानामि चेमौ पुत्रौ मे यमजातौ कुशीलवौ ।
शुद्धायां जगतो मध्ये मैथिल्यां प्रीतिरस्तु मे ॥ ५ ॥

'I know these two are my sons, the twins, Kuśa and Lava, and yet let her chastity be acknowledged by the world and my love in her reinstated.' (5)

अभिप्रायं तु विज्ञाय रामस्य सुरसत्तमाः ।
सीतायाः शपथे तस्मिन् महेन्द्राद्या महौजसः ॥ ६ ॥

Knowing the intention of Śrī Rāma, the great gods, all of them came in connection with the oath-taking of Sītā. (6)

पितामहं पुरस्कृत्य सर्व एव समागताः ।
आदित्या वसवो रुद्रा विश्वेदेवा मरुद्गणाः ॥ ७ ॥
साध्याश्च देवाः सर्वे ते सर्वे च परमर्षयः ।
नागाः सुपर्णाः सिद्धाश्च ते सर्वे हृष्टमानसाः ॥ ८ ॥

Having Brahmā at their head, the Ādityas, Vasus, Rudras, Viśvadevas, the hosts of Maruts, all the Sādhyas gods, all great sages, the Nāgas, Suparṇas and the Siddhas, all came joyfully. (7-8)

सीताशपथसम्भ्रान्ताः सर्व एव समागताः ।
दृष्ट्वा देवानृषींश्चैव राघवः पुनरब्रवीत् ॥ ९ ॥

Seeing all the gods and sages, who came out of respect for the scion of Raghu, again said: 'O best among men, my faith is gained by the guiltless words of the sage, Vālmiki'. (9)

प्रत्ययो मे सुरश्रेष्ठ ऋषिवाक्यैरकल्मषैः ।
शुद्धायां जगतो मध्ये वैदेह्यां प्रीतिरस्तु मे ॥ १० ॥

'May my love for Sītā, sinless in the eyes of all, be all out.' (10)

ततो वायुः शुभः पुण्यो दिव्यगन्धो मनोरमः ।

तं जनौघं सुरश्रेष्ठो ह्लादयामास सर्वतः ॥ ११ ॥

Then the holy and pure wind-god blew emitting divine fragrance, caused joy to all on all sides. (11)

तदद्भुतमिवाचिन्त्यं निरैक्षन्त समाहिताः ।

मानवाः सर्वराष्ट्रेभ्यः पूर्वं कृतयुगे यथा ॥ १२ ॥

That wonderful and unconceivable happening as used to be in Kṛtayuga was seen by all men coming from various countries. (12)

सर्वान् समागतान् दृष्ट्वा सीता काषायवासिनी ।

अब्रवीत् प्राञ्जलिर्वाक्यमधोदृष्टिरवाङ्मुखी ॥ १३ ॥

Sitā wearing a brown garment, having seen all of them arrived, with folded hands, keeping her gaze downwards and face cast down, said: (13)

यथाहं राघवादन्यं मनसापि न चिन्तये ।

तथा मे माधवी देवी विवरं दातुमर्हति ॥ १४ ॥

‘As I have not contemplated about anyone other than the scion of Raghu even in mind, so the goddess Mādhavī, the earth-goddess, may provide space to me to enter. (14)

मनसा कर्मणा वाचा यथा रामं समर्चये ।

तथा मे माधवी देवी विवरं दातुमर्हति ॥ १५ ॥

‘As I worship Śrī Rāma, in mind, speech and action, so the spouse of Mādhava (the earth-goddess Mādhavī) may grant space to me to enter. (15)

यथैतत् सत्यमुक्तं मे वेद्मि रामात् परं न च ।

तथा मे माधवी देवी विवरं दातुमर्हति ॥ १६ ॥

‘As I have spoken the truth that I do not know anyone except Śrī Rāma, so the earth-goddess may grant space to me.’ (16)

तथा शपन्त्यां वैदेह्यां प्रादुरासीत् तदद्भुतम् ।

भूतलादुत्थितं दिव्यं सिंहासनमनुत्तमम् ॥ १७ ॥

ध्रियमाणं शिरोभिस्तु नागैरमितविक्रमैः ।

दिव्यं दिव्येन वपुषा दिव्यरत्नविभूषितैः ॥ १८ ॥

Then, while Sitā, the daughter of Videha, was taking oath, a divine throne, of wonderful beauty arose from the earth, borne on the head by very powerful Nāgas (serpents) adorned with divine ornaments, and looking divine in form sprang up. (17-18)

तस्मिंस्तु धरणी देवी बाहुभ्यां गृह्य मैथिलीम् ।

स्वागतेनाभिनन्द्यैनामासने चोपवेशयत् ॥ १९ ॥

On that throne, the earth-goddess, welcoming her with words of welcome, and taking her by her hands made Sitā be seated on the seat. (19)

तामासनगतां दृष्ट्वा प्रविशन्तीं रसातलम् ।

पुष्पवृष्टिरविच्छिन्ना दिव्या सीतामवाकिरत् ॥ २० ॥

Seeing Sitā thus seated, entering the netherworld, a divine shower of flowers in succession covered Sitā. (20)

साधुकारश्च सुमहान् देवानां सहसोत्थितः ।

साधुसाध्विति वै सीते यस्यास्ते शीलमीदृशम् ॥ २१ ॥

एवं बहुविधा वाचो ह्यन्तरिक्षगताः सुराः ।

व्याजहुर्हृष्टमनसो दृष्ट्वा सीताप्रवेशनम् ॥ २२ ॥

All of a sudden loud shouts of ‘well-done’ arose from the gods “Well done,” Well done, O Sitā, who are of such conduct’—thus and other words of approbation were uttered by the gods, happy in mind seeing Sitā’s entry into the netherworld. (21-22)

यज्ञवाटगताश्चापि मुनयः सर्व एव ते ।

राजानश्च नरव्याघ्रा विस्मयान्नोपरेमिरे ॥ २३ ॥

All ascetics and kings, tigers among men, that had come to the place of great event, continued to acclaim Sitā out of amazement. (23)

अन्तरिक्षे च भूमौ च सर्वे स्थावरजङ्गमाः ।

दानवाश्च महाकायाः पाताले पन्नगाधिपाः ॥ २४ ॥

In the firmament, on earth all movable and stationary beings, the mighty sons of Danu (devils) and overlords of serpents acclaimed. (24)

केचिद् विनेदुः संहृष्टाः केचिद् ध्यानपरायणाः ।

केचिद् रामं निरीक्षन्ते केचित् सीतामचेतसः ॥ २५ ॥

Some uttered hurrahs of joy, other fixed their gaze on Sītā, while others looked at Śrī Rāma, although in meditation. (25)

सीताप्रवेशनं दृष्ट्वा तेषामासीत् समागमः ।

तन्मूर्तमिवात्यर्थं समं सम्मोहितं जगत् ॥ २६ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे सप्तनवतितमः सर्गः ॥ ९७ ॥

Thus ends Canto Ninety-seven in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टनवतितमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXVIII

Śrī Rāma becomes enveloped by grief at Sītā's departure.

Brahmā informs Him that Sītā will again be reunited with Him in the Heaven

रसातलं प्रविष्टायां वैदेह्यां सर्ववानराः ।

चुकुशुः साधुसाध्वीति मुनयो रामसंनिधौ ॥ १ ॥

When Sītā had entered the netherworld, all the monkeys and the ascetics exclaimed 'well-done' in the presence of Śrī Rāma. (1)

दण्डकाष्ठमवष्टभ्य बाष्पव्याकुलितेक्षणः ।

अवाक्शिरा दीनमना रामो ह्यासीत् सुदुःखितः ॥ २ ॥

Propping himself on the wooden stick, with his eyes afflicted by tears, head downcast in mental agony, Śrī Rāma was indeed very much grieved. (2)

स रुदित्वा चिरं कालं बहुशो बाष्पमुत्सृजन् ।

क्रोधशोकसमाविष्टो रामो वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ३ ॥

Weeping long and shedding tears in profusion, possessed of both anger and sorrow, he said: (3)

अभूतपूर्वं शोकं मे मनः स्पष्टमिवेच्छति ।

पश्यतो मे यथा नष्टा सीता श्रीरिव रूपिणी ॥ ४ ॥

'A sorrow unexperienced before, is about to overpower mind as Sītā the goddess of wealth—incarnate disappeared just before my eyes. (4)

सादर्शनं पुरा सीता लङ्कां पारे महोदधेः ।

ततश्चापि मयाऽऽनीता किं पुनर्वसुधातलात् ॥ ५ ॥

Sītā disappeared formerly, being carried

All had assembled to witness the submersion of Sītā into the netherworld; that moment all the world was as if stupefied. (26) to Laṅkā across the ocean; I brought her back from there; what to say of bringing her back from the Earth. He spoke: (5)

वसुधे देवि भवति सीता निर्यात्यतां मम ।

दर्शयिष्यामि वा रोषं यथा मामवगच्छसि ॥ ६ ॥

'O goddess of Earth, venerable one, please return to me Sītā or else I shall show my anger as you know me (my might). (6)

कामं श्वश्रूर्मैव त्वं त्वत्सकाशात् तु मैथिली ।

कर्षता फालहस्तेन जनकेनोद्धृता पुरा ॥ ७ ॥

'You indeed are my mother-in-law; Maithilī (Sītā) was taken out of you formerly by Janaka while ploughing field with a golden plough. (7)

तस्मान्निर्यात्यतां सीता विवरं वा प्रयच्छ मे ।

पाताले नाकपृष्ठे वा वसेयं सहितस्तया ॥ ८ ॥

'Therefore, either return Sītā or else grant space to me. I will stay with her in the netherworld or in heaven. (8)

आनय त्वं हि तां सीतां मत्तोऽहं मैथिलीकृते ।

न मे दास्यसि चेत् सीतां यथारूपां महीतले ॥ ९ ॥

सपर्वतवनां कृत्स्नां विधमिष्यामि ते स्थितिम् ।

नाशयिष्याम्यहं भूमिं सर्वमापो भवन्त्वह ॥ १० ॥

'Please bring that Sītā; I have gone mad for her; if you will not give back to me

Sitā as she was on this earth, I shall put you to ruin, with the mountains and forests ruined entirely; I shall destroy the whole earth—may the waters flood over the entire earth.’ (9-10)

एवं ब्रुवाणे काकुत्स्थे क्रोधशोकसमन्विते।

ब्रह्मा सुरगणैः सार्धमुवाच रघुनन्दनम् ॥ ११ ॥

On being thus spoken by the scion of Kākutstha, overtaken by anger and sorrow, Brahmā together with the gods spoke to the descendant of Raghu: (11)

राम राम न संतापं कर्तुमर्हसि सुव्रत।

स्मर त्वं पूर्वकं भावं मन्त्रं चामित्रकर्शन ॥ १२ ॥

‘O Rāma, O Śrī Rāma, possessor of good vows, please do not be grieved, recall your previous form and advice to the gods, O destroyer of foes. (12)

न खलु त्वां महाबाहो स्मारयेयमनुत्तमम्।

इमं मुहूर्तं दुर्धर्षं स्मर त्वं जन्म वैष्णवम् ॥ १३ ॥

‘I do not dare remind you of your former form, O one of long arms, but pray to you to remember at this moment, O one, difficult to conquer, your incarnation pertaining to Viṣṇu. (13)

सीता हि विमला साध्वी तव पूर्वपरायणा।

नागलोकं सुखं प्रायात् त्वदाश्रयतपोबलात् ॥ १४ ॥

‘The pure and noble Sitā, devoted to yourself as before, has gone to the netherworld (Nāgaloka both netherworld and also the world of Viṣṇu) by the power of penances in the form of complete surrender to you. (14)

स्वर्गे ते संगमो भूयो भविष्यति न संशयः।

अस्यास्तु परिषन्मध्ये यद् ब्रवीमि निबोध तत् ॥ १५ ॥

‘Your union with her will again take place in heaven, listen to what I say in the midst of this assembly. (15)

एतदेव हि काव्यं ते काव्यानामुत्तमं श्रुतम्।

सर्वं विस्तरतो राम व्याख्यास्यति न संशयः ॥ १६ ॥

‘This poem, Rāmāyaṇa, dedicated to you, that you have heard is the best among all poems, O Rāma; it shall describe everything in detail, there is no doubt. (16)

जन्मप्रभृति ते वीर सुखदुःखोपसेवनम्।

भविष्यदुत्तरं चेह सर्वं वाल्मीकिना कृतम् ॥ १७ ॥

‘In this poem all has been described by Vālmiki, all happiness and sorrow that you have experienced from your birth, and also what you will experience in future. (17)

आदिकाव्यमिदं राम त्वयि सर्वं प्रतिष्ठितम्।

नह्यन्योऽर्हति काव्यानां यशोभाग् राघवादृते ॥ १८ ॥

‘This first and foremost poem, O Rāma, is entirely based on you. No one other than you will be possessed of fame to be described as hero by the poem. (18)

श्रुतं ते पूर्वमेतद्धि मया सर्वं सुरैः सह।

दिव्यमद्भुतरूपं च सत्यवाक्यमनावृतम् ॥ १९ ॥

‘I have heard all this formerly, together with the gods, all wonderful and possessed of true statements with nothing concealed. (19)

स त्वं पुरुषशार्दूल धर्मेण सुसमाहितः।

शेषं भविष्यं काकुत्स्थ काव्यं रामायणं शृणु ॥ २० ॥

‘So you, O lion among men, scion of Kākutsthas should carefully listen to the remaining portion of the poem, Rāmāyaṇa dealing with happenings of the future. (20)

उत्तरं नाम काव्यस्य शेषमत्र महायशः।

तच्छृणुष्व महातेज ऋषिभिः सार्धमुत्तमम् ॥ २१ ॥

‘The remaining part of this poem, O famous one, is known as Uttarakāṇḍa; O powerful one, listen to it, possessed of excellence, with the sages. (21)

न खल्वन्येन काकुत्स्थ श्रोतव्यमिदमुत्तमम्।

परम ऋषिणा वीर त्वयैव रघुनन्दन ॥ २२ ॥

O Scion of Kākutstha, this best portion is indeed not to be heard by anyone else, composed by the great great sage, O brave, it is to be heard only by you.’ (22)

एतावदुक्त्वा वचनं ब्रह्मा त्रिभुवनेश्वरः।

जगाम त्रिदिवं देवो देवैः सह सबान्धवैः ॥ २३ ॥

Having spoken this much, Brahmā, the lord of the three worlds, went to heaven together with other gods. (23)

ये च तत्र महात्मान ऋषयो ब्राह्मलौकिकाः ।
ब्रह्मणा समनुज्ञाता न्यवर्तन्त महौजसः ॥ २४ ॥
उत्तरं श्रोतुमनसो भविष्यं यच्च राघवे ।
ततो रामः शुभां वाणीं देवदेवस्य भाषिताम् ॥ २५ ॥
श्रुत्वा परमतेजस्वी वाल्मीकिमिदमब्रवीत् ।
भगवन् श्रोतुमनस ऋषयो ब्राह्मलौकिकाः ॥ २६ ॥
भविष्यदुत्तरं यन्मे श्वोभूते सम्प्रवर्तताम् ।
एवं विनिश्चयं कृत्वा सम्प्रगृह्य कुशीलवौ ॥ २७ ॥
तं जनौघं विसृज्याथ पर्णशालामुपागमत् ।
तामेव शोचतः सीता सा व्यतीता च शर्वरी ॥ २८ ॥

The noble and splendrous sages belonging to the world of Brahmā, being ordered by Brahmā, returned, having a mind to hear what will happen to the scion of Raghu thereafter in the future. Then the most powerful Śrī Rāma after hearing the holy words spoken by the God of gods, Brahmā, said to Vālmīki. 'Sir the Uttarakāṇḍa pertaining to what will happen to me in future, that the sages of the world of Brahmā desire to hear, may be described tomorrow.' Thus having decided, taking hold to Kuśa and Lava, He (Śrī Rāma) leaving that assembly of men, went to his harbour—and as he kept thinking of Sītā, that night passed. (24—28)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डेऽष्टनवतितमः सर्गः ॥ ९८ ॥

Thus ends Canto Ninety-eight in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकोनशततमः सर्गः

Canto LXXXIX

Śrī Rāma enters Ayodhyā in grief for Sītā and afterwards performs Ten-thousand Horse-sacrifices. Passing away of His mothers and brothers

रजन्यां तु प्रभातायां समानीय महामुनीन् ।
गीयतामविशङ्काभ्यां रामः पुत्रावुवाच ह ॥ १ ॥

After the night had passed, dawn came, Rāma said to the two sons, calling all the great sages, "Sing unhesitatingly". (1)

ततः समुपविष्टेषु महर्षिषु महात्मसु ।
भविष्यदुत्तरं काव्यं जगतुस्तौ कुशीलवौ ॥ २ ॥

Then after the great and noble sages had taken their seats, the twin Kuśa and Lava sang the poem relating to the Uttarakāṇḍa, dealing with events of the future: (2)

प्रविष्टायां तु सीतायां भूतलं सत्यसम्पदा ।
तस्यावसाने यज्ञस्य रामः परमदुर्मनाः ॥ ३ ॥
अपश्यमानो वैदेहीं मेने शून्यमिदं जगत् ।
शोकेन परमायस्तो न शान्तिं मनसागमत् ॥ ४ ॥

"On Sītā entering the netherworld through the efficacy of truth, Śrī Rāma was much agitated at the conclusion of the sacrifice and considered this earth as a void. Not being able to see Sītā and being terribly afflicted by sorrow, he had no peace of mind. (3-4)

विसृज्य पार्थिवान् सर्वानृक्षवानरराक्षसान् ।
जनौघं विप्रमुख्यानां वित्तपूर्वं विसृज्य च ॥ ५ ॥
एवं समाप्य यज्ञं तु विधिवत् स तु राघवः ।
ततो विसृज्य तान् सर्वान् रामो राजीवलोचनः ॥ ६ ॥
हृदि कृत्वा तदा सीतामयोध्यां प्रविवेश ह ।
इष्टयज्ञो नरपतिः पुत्रद्वयसमन्वितः ॥ ७ ॥

Leaving all kings, the bears and monkeys, and also the great assembly of the chief Brāhmaṇas, giving them precious gifts, Lotus-eyed Rāma, after finishing the sacrifice, alongwith his two sons, Sītā in his heart, entered Ayodhyā. (5—7)

न सीतायाः परां भार्यां वव्रे स रघुनन्दनः ।
यज्ञे यज्ञे च पत्यर्थं जानकी काञ्चनीभवत् ॥ ८ ॥

That descendant of Raghu did not take as wife any one other than Sītā and at every sacrifice (Aśvamedha) the gold image of the daughter of Janaka served as the queen. (8)

दशवर्षसहस्राणि वाजिमेधानथाकरोत् ।
वाजपेयान् दशगुणांस्तथा बहुसुवर्णकान् ॥ ९ ॥

Then He, Śrī Rāma, performed horse-sacrifices and Vājapeya sacrifices ten times that number, full with the distribution of gold coins, for ten thousand years. (9)

अग्निष्टोमातिरात्राभ्यां गोसवैश्च महाधनैः ।
ईजे क्रतुभिरन्यैश्च स श्रीमानाप्तदक्षिणैः ॥ १० ॥

That prosperous one, Śrī Rāma, performed many Gosavas with the Agniṣṭoma and the Atirātra and also other sacrifices, giving donations in plenty. (10)

एवं स कालः सुमहान् राज्यस्थस्य महात्मनः ।
धर्मे प्रयतमानस्य व्यतीयाद् राघवस्य च ॥ ११ ॥

Thus that period of Śrī Rāma elapsed, the descendant of Raghu, acting righteously, ruling over His Kingdom. (11)

ऋक्षवानररक्षांसि स्थिता रामस्य शासने ।
अनुरञ्जन्ति राजानो ह्यहन्यहनि राघवम् ॥ १२ ॥

The bears, monkeys and demons obeyed the command of the descendant of Raghu, the Kings paid tributes to Him day by day. (12)

काले वर्षति पर्जन्यः सुभिक्षं विमला दिशः ।
हृष्टपुष्टजनाकीर्णं पुरं जनपदास्तथा ॥ १३ ॥

The clouds rained timely, the harvest was good and the quarters shone clearly, and the towns and cities were full of happy, well-fed and healthy persons in His reign. (13)

नाकाले म्रियते कश्चिन्न व्याधिः प्राणिनां तथा ।
नानर्थो विद्यते कश्चिद् रामे राज्यं प्रशासति ॥ १४ ॥

No one died prematurely, no physical ailment was suffered by living beings, no calamity took place as Śrī Rāma ruled over his Kingdom. (14)

अथ दीर्घस्य कालस्य राममाता यशस्विनी ।
पुत्रपौत्रैः परिवृता कालधर्ममुपागमत् ॥ १५ ॥

After a long lapse of time the mother of Rāma, Kausalyā of great fame, surrounded by her son and grandsons, succumbed to the law of time. (15)

अन्वियाय सुमित्रा च कैकेयी च यशस्विनी ।
धर्मं कृत्वा बहुविधं त्रिदेवे पर्यवस्थिता ॥ १६ ॥

Sumitrā and the Kaikeyī also followed her, performing various charitable deeds, and praiseworthy, were established in heaven. (16)

सर्वाः प्रमुदिताः स्वर्गे राज्ञा दशरथेन च ।
समागता महाभागाः सर्वधर्मं च लेभिरे ॥ १७ ॥

All happy and righteous ones, united with Daśaratha in heaven, attained the fruit of all religious performances. (17)

तासां रामो महादानं काले काले प्रयच्छति ।
मातृणामविशेषेण ब्राह्मणेषु तपस्विषु ॥ १८ ॥

Śrī Rāma made great donations for his mothers, Kausalyā, Kaikeyī, Sumitrā, without any difference, to the Brāhmaṇa ascetics. (18)

पित्र्याणि ब्रह्मरत्नानि यज्ञान् परमदुस्तरान् ।
चकार रामो धर्मात्मा पितॄन् देवान् विवर्धयन् ॥ १९ ॥

Śrī Rāma, the noble one, donated the most cherished things to Brāhmaṇas and performed the sacrifices most difficult to accomplish, to add to the glory of his ancestors and the gods. (19)

एवं वर्षसहस्राणि बहून्यथ ययुः सुखम् ।
यज्ञैर्बहुविधं धर्मं वर्धयानस्य सर्वदा ॥ २० ॥

Many a thousand years passed while (religion) by performing various sacrifices.
Śrī Rāma upraised the course of Dharma (20)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकोनशततमः सर्गः ॥ ९९ ॥

Thus ends Canto Ninety-nine in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

शततमः सर्गः

Canto C

Gārgya comes with a token gift of pleasure to Śrī Rāma; Bharata proceeds towards the territory of the Gandharvas with his sons and army on the order of Śrī Rāma

कस्यचित् त्वथ कालस्य युधाजित् केकयो नृपः ।
स्वगुरुं प्रेषयामास राघवाय महात्मने ॥ १ ॥
गार्ग्यमङ्गिरसः पुत्रं ब्रह्मर्षिममितप्रभम् ।
दश चाश्वसहस्राणि प्रीतिदानमनुत्तमम् ॥ २ ॥
कम्बलानि च रत्नानि चित्रवस्त्रमथोत्तमम् ।
रामाय प्रददौ राजा शुभान्याभरणानि च ॥ ३ ॥

After some time, the King of Kekaya,
Yudhājī, sent his preceptor, Brāhmaṇa Gārgya, the son of Āngirā, possessed of inimitable lustre to Śrī Rāma, the noble descendant of Raghu. The King presented a gift of ten thousand horses as a token of affection and also blankets and precious gems, and garments of various kinds and brilliant ornaments.

(1—3)

श्रुत्वा तु राघवो धीमान् महर्षिं गार्ग्यमागतम् ।
मातुलस्याश्वपतिनः प्रहितं तन्महाधनम् ॥ ४ ॥
प्रत्युद्गम्य च काकुत्स्थः क्रोशमात्रं सहानुजः ।
गार्ग्यं सम्पूजयामास यथा शक्रो बृहस्पतिम् ॥ ५ ॥

Having heard that the great sage Gārgya had come, bringing with him the rich gifts sent by the maternal uncle, Aśvapati,
Śrī Rama, alongwith his brothers, welcomed
Gārgya at a distance of two miles in advance, and honoured Gārgya as Indra honours Brhaspati.

(4-5)

तथा सम्पूज्य तमृषिं तद् धनं प्रतिगृह्य च ।
पृष्ट्वा प्रतिपदं सर्वं कुशलं मातुलस्य च ॥ ६ ॥
उपविष्टं महाभागं रामः प्रष्टुं प्रचक्रमे ।
किमाह मातुलो वाक्यं यदर्थं भगवानिह ॥ ७ ॥
प्राप्तो वाक्यविदां श्रेष्ठः साक्षादिव बृहस्पतिः ।
रामस्य भाषितं श्रुत्वा महर्षिः कार्यविस्तरम् ॥ ८ ॥
वक्तुमद्भुतसंकाशं राघवायोपचक्रमे ।
मातुलस्ते महाबाहो वाक्यमाह नरर्षभः ॥ ९ ॥
युधाजित् प्रीतिसंयुक्तं श्रूयतां यदि रोचते ।
अयं गन्धर्वविषयः फलमूलोपशोभितः ॥ १० ॥
सिन्धोरुभयतः पार्श्वे देशः परमशोभनः ।
तं च रक्षन्ति गन्धर्वाः सायुधा युद्धकोविदाः ॥ ११ ॥
शैलूषस्य सुता वीर तिस्रः कोट्यो महाबलाः ।
तान् विनिर्जित्य काकुत्स्थ गन्धर्वनगरं शुभम् ॥ १२ ॥
निवेशय महाबाहो स्वे पुरे सुसमाहिते ।
अन्यस्य न गतिस्तत्र देशः परमशोभनः ।
रोचतां ते महाबाहो नाहं त्वामहितं वदे ॥ १३ ॥

Thus having honoured that sage and accepting the gifts, he enquired of the welfare of his maternal uncle. Śrī Rāma asked the holy one when he had seated himself thus:
'What has my maternal uncle said for which O Venerable Sir, best among the knowers of Śāstras, like Brhaspti himself, you have come.' Having heard the words of Śrī Rāma, the great sage began to speak in detail the wondrous purpose to the descendant of Raghu: 'O one of long arms, bull among men, your maternal uncle Yudhājit has said pleasingly, listen if it appeals to you. The territory of the Gandharvas, rich with fruits and roots, is a region most beautiful on both sides of the Sindhu river, that is protected by the Gandharvas, the experts in war, possessed of arms, the powerful three million sons of Śailūṣa, O brave one. Having conquered them, O scion of Kakutstha, merge the holy city of the Gandharvas in your own kingdom, which no one else can do. May it please you to occupy it, O one of long arms; I do not say this against your interests.' (6—13)

तच्छ्रुत्वा राघवः प्रीतो महर्षेर्मातुलस्य च।
उवाच बाढमित्येव भरतं चान्ववैक्षत ॥ १४ ॥

Having heard this, Śrī Rāma the descendant of Raghu, being pleased with what the sage and his maternal uncle said: 'So shall it be' and looked at Bharata. (14)

सोऽब्रवीद् राघवः प्रीतः साञ्जलिप्रग्रहो द्विजम्।
इमौ कुमारौ तं देशं ब्रह्मर्षे विचरिष्यतः ॥ १५ ॥
भरतस्यात्मजौ वीरौ तक्षः पुष्कल एव च।
मातुलेन सुगुप्तौ तु धर्मेण सुसमाहितौ ॥ १६ ॥

That descendant of Raghu was pleased and with folded hands courteously said: 'O Ṛṣi among Brāhmaṇas, these two brave sons (of Bharata) Takṣa and Puṣkala will go to that region, well-protected by my maternal uncle and observing religious norms. (15-16)

भरतं चाग्रतः कृत्वा कुमारौ सबलानुगौ।
निहत्य गन्धर्वसुतान् द्वे पुरे विभजिष्यतः ॥ १७ ॥

'Keeping Bharata ahead, the two sons together with their army and attendants, will divide the two regions having killed the sons of the Gandharva, Śailūṣa. (17)

निवेश्य ते पुरवरे आत्मजौ संनिवेश्य च।
आगमिष्यति मे भूयः सकाशमतिधार्मिकः ॥ १८ ॥

'Establishing those two cities and foresetting his two sons there, this most pious one, Bharata, will again return to me.' (18)

ब्रह्मर्षिमेवमुक्त्वा तु भरतं सबलानुगम्।
आज्ञापयामास तदा कुमारौ चाभ्यषेचयत् ॥ १९ ॥
नक्षत्रेण च सौम्येन पुरस्कृत्याङ्गिरःसुतम्।
भरतः सह सैन्येन कुमाराभ्यां विनिर्ययौ ॥ २० ॥

Thus having spoken to the Brāhmaṇas, he (Rāma) ordered Bharata to proceed with his army and attendants, and also consecrated the two sons on an auspicious day with the holy star, putting the son of Aṅgirā at their head, Bharata with his army and his sons proceeded. (19-20)

सा सेना शक्रयुक्तेव नगरान्निर्ययावथ।
राघवानुगता दूरं दुराधर्षा सुरैरपि ॥ २१ ॥

Then that army went out of the royal city Ayodhyā like the army of Indra, followed by the descendant of Raghu for a long distance—the army that was difficult to conquer even by the gods. (21)

मांसाशिनश्च ये सत्त्वा रक्षांसि सुमहान्ति च।
अनुजग्मुर्हि भरतं रुधिरस्य पिपासया ॥ २२ ॥

The flesh-eaters and the mighty Rākṣasas followed Bharata out of thirst for blood. (22)

भूतग्रामाश्च बहवो मांसभक्षाः सुदारुणाः।
गन्धर्वपुत्रमांसानि भोक्तुकामाः सहस्रशः ॥ २३ ॥

Hosts of Bhūtas (demons), eaters of flesh, the terrible ones, desirous of devouring the flesh of the sons of the Gandharva, followed in thousands. (23)

सिंहव्याघ्रवराहाणां खेचराणां च पक्षिणाम्।
बहूनि वै सहस्राणि सेनाया ययुरग्रतः ॥ २४ ॥

Lions, tigers, bears and the sky-roving birds, thousands in number went to herald the army. (24)

अध्यर्धमासमुषिता पथि सेना निरामया।
हृष्टपुष्टजनाकीर्णा केकयं समुपागमत् ॥ २५ ॥

Having spent one and half months on the way, the army, hale and hearty, bearing happy and well-fed men, reached Kekaya territory. (25)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे शततमः सर्गः ॥ १०० ॥

Thus ends Canto Hundred in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CI

Bharata and Yudhājit reach the city of the Gandharva, their fight with Gandharvas, latter are defeated. Bharata installs Takṣa on Takṣaśilā and Puṣkala on Puṣkalāvata and return to Ayodhyā

श्रुत्वा सेनापतिं प्राप्तं भरतं केकयाधिपः ।
युधाजिद् गार्ग्यसहितं परां प्रीतिमुपागमत् ॥ १ ॥

Yudhājī, the king of Kekaya, having heard of the arrival of Bharata as the Commander-in-chief of his army, was highly pleased together with Gārgya. (1)

स निर्ययौ जनौघेन महता केकयाधिपः ।
त्वरमाणोऽभिचक्राम गन्धर्वान् कामरूपिणः ॥ २ ॥

He, the lord of Kekaya, and Bharata set out accompanied by a large army and quickly reached the capital of the Gandharvas. (2)

भरतश्च युधाजिच्च समेतौ लघुविक्रमैः ।
गन्धर्वनगरं प्राप्तौ सबलौ सपदानुगौ ॥ ३ ॥

Bharata and Yudhājī accompanied by the rapid action warriors reached the city of Gandharvas with the army and attendants. (3)

श्रुत्वा तु भरतं प्राप्तं गन्धर्वास्ते समागताः ।
योद्धुकामा महावीर्या व्यनदंस्ते समन्ततः ॥ ४ ॥

Those Gandharvas, possessed of great power, and desirous of war came out, shouting war cries every where. (4)

ततः समभवद्युद्धं तुमुलं लोमहर्षणम् ।
सप्तरात्रं महाभीमं न चान्यतरयोर्जयः ॥ ५ ॥

Then there ensued a great battle enough to cause horripilation for seven nights in a terrible form, and yet none came out victorious. (5)

खड्गशक्तिधनुर्ग्राहा नद्यः शोणितसंस्त्रवाः ।
नृकलेवरवाहिन्यः प्रवृत्ताः सर्वतोदिशम् ॥ ६ ॥

Rivers with streams of blood, having crocodiles in the form of swords, arrows and bows, and carrying the corpses of men, gushed forth on all sides. (6)

ततो रामानुजः क्रुद्धः कालस्यास्त्रं सुदारुणम् ।
संवर्तं नाम भरतो गन्धर्वेष्वभ्यचोदयत् ॥ ७ ॥

Then Bharata, the brother of Śrī Rāma, highly enraged directed the most terrible weapon of death, Saṁvarta by name, towards the Gandharvas. (7)

ते बद्धाः कालपाशेन संवर्तेन विदारिताः ।
क्षणेनाभिहतास्तेन तिस्रः कोट्यो महात्मना ॥ ८ ॥

Struck by the mighty Saṁvarta, as if bound by the noose of death, they the Gandharvas, three million in number, perished in a moment. (8)

तद् युद्धं तादृशं घोरं न स्मरन्ति दिवौकसः ।
निमेषान्तरमात्रेण तादृशानां महात्मनाम् ॥ ९ ॥

Even the gods did not remember a battle so fierce in which those mighty Gandharvas were killed in a moment. (9)

हतेषु तेषु सर्वेषु भरतः केकयीसुतः ।
निवेशयामास तदा समृद्धे द्वे पुरोत्तमे ॥ १० ॥
तक्षं तक्षशिलायां तु पुष्कलं पुष्कलावते ।
गन्धर्वदेशे रुचिरे गान्धारविषये च सः ॥ ११ ॥

On all of the Gandharvas being killed, Bharata, the son of Kaikeyī, founded there two great and prosperous cities and he installed Takṣa on Takṣaśilā in the Gandharva-Deśa and Puṣkala on Puṣkalāvata in the territory of Gāndhāras. (10-11)

धनरत्नौघसंकीर्णे काननैरुपशोभिते ।
अन्योन्यसंघर्षकृते स्पर्धया गुणविस्तरैः ॥ १२ ॥
उभे सुरुचिरप्रख्ये व्यवहारैरकिल्बिषैः ।
उद्यानयानसम्पूर्णे सुविभक्तान्तरापणे ॥ १३ ॥
उभे पुरवरे रम्ये विस्तरैरुपशोभिते ।
गृहमुख्यैः सुरुचिरैर्विमानैर्बहुभिर्वृते ॥ १४ ॥
शोभिते शोभनीयैश्च देवायतनविस्तरैः ।
तालैस्तमालैस्तिलकैर्बकुलैरुपशोभिते ॥ १५ ॥
निवेश्य पञ्चभिर्वर्षैर्भरतो राघवानुजः ।
पुनरायान्महाबाहुरयोध्यां केकयीसुतः ॥ १६ ॥

Having fully established the two above—named cities, filled with wealth and gems, beautified by gardens, trying each other to excel through competitive spirit, both extremely lovely and rich with fresh business, abounding in pleasant groves and carrier vehicles and well-planned with markets, both great cities, beautifully decorated with mansions and many lovely Vimānas (palaces), adorned with attractive temples of worship, made lovely with the Tālas, Tamālas, Tilaka and Vakula trees. In five years, Bharata the younger brother of Śrī Rāma, the descendant of Raghus, possessed of long arms, the son of Kaikeyī, returned to Ayodhyā. (12—16)

सोऽभिवाद्य महात्मानं साक्षाद्धर्ममिवापरम् ।
राघवं भरतः श्रीमान् ब्रह्माणमिव वासवः ॥ १७ ॥
शशंस च यथावृत्तं गन्धर्ववधमुत्तमम् ।
निवेशनं च देशस्य श्रुत्वा प्रीतोऽस्य राघवः ॥ १८ ॥

Having bowed to Śrī Rāma, the noble descendant of Raghu, who was as if he were another Dharma (Law)—incarnate, as Indra bows to Brahmā, the graceful Bharata narrated to him how the great battle with the Gandharvas was fought and how were founded the two cities, too. Hearing him, Śrī Rāma, the descendant of Raghu, was highly pleased. (17-18)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०१ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and one in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

द्व्यधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CII

Coronation of Aṅgada and Candraketu by Bharata, and Lakṣmaṇa as per order of Śrī Rāma in the territory of Kārupatha

तच्छ्रुत्वा हर्षमापेदे राघवो भ्रातृभिः सह ।
वाक्यं चाद्भुतसंकाशं भ्रातृन् प्रोवाच राघवः ॥ १ ॥

Hearing this account of Bharata, Śrī Rāma, together with his brothers, was pleased and said to Lakṣmaṇa these words of wonderful content: (1)

इमौ कुमारौ सौमित्रे तव धर्मविशारदौ ।
अद्भुतश्चन्द्रकेतुश्च राज्यार्थं दृढविक्रमौ ॥ २ ॥

‘O son of Sumitrā, Lakṣmaṇa, your these two sons are knower of Dharma (Law and righteousness)—named Aṅgada and Candraketu, possessed of firm fortitude, for the protection of their kingdoms. (2)

इमौ राज्येऽभिषेक्ष्यामि देशः साधु विधीयताम् ।
रमणीयो ह्यसम्बाधो रमेतां यत्र धन्विनौ ॥ ३ ॥

‘I shall consecrate these two, find out a suitable region, that is enjoyable and where the two archers may remain happily without being obstructed. (3)

न राज्ञां यत्र पीडा स्यान्नाश्रमाणां विनाशनम् ।
स देशो दृश्यतां सौम्य नापराध्यामहे यथा ॥ ४ ॥

‘O gracious one, find out that place, where the kings are not tormented and the hermitages are well-protected and we may not be at fault later on.’ (4)

तथोक्तवति रामे तु भरतः प्रत्युवाच ह ।
अयं कारुपथो देशो रमणीयो निरामयः ॥ ५ ॥
निवेश्यतां तत्र पुरमङ्गदस्य महात्मनः ।
चन्द्रकेतोः सुरुचिरं चन्द्रकान्तं निरामयम् ॥ ६ ॥

On Śrī Rāma saying thus, Bharata replied: ‘This region known as Kārupatha is indeed beautiful and free from all ills. Establish there the city under the noble Aṅgada and also a region known as Candrakānta free from sorrow, for Candraketu, the noble one.’
(5-6)

तद् वाक्यं भरतेनोक्तं प्रतिजग्राह राघवः ।
तं च कृत्वा वशे देशमङ्गदस्य न्यवेशयत् ॥ ७ ॥

This statement of Bharata was accepted by Śrī Rāma, descendant of Raghu and having brought that territory Kārupatha under him, he established the city there for Aṅgada. (7)

अङ्गदीया पुरी रम्याप्यङ्गदस्य निवेशिता ।
रमणीया सुगुप्ता च रामेणाक्लिष्टकर्मणा ॥ ८ ॥

The city that was bestowed by Śrī Rāma on Aṅgada was beautiful indeed and well-protected on all sides. (8)

चन्द्रकेतोश्च मल्लस्य मल्लभूम्यां निवेशिता ।
चन्द्रकान्तेति विख्याता दिव्या स्वर्गपुरी यथा ॥ ९ ॥

For the wrestler Candraketu, the city well-known as Candrakāntā in Malla country was established as the divine city in heaven. (9)

ततो रामः परां प्रीतिं लक्ष्मणो भरतस्तथा ।
ययुर्युद्धे दुराधर्षा अभिषेकं च चक्रिरे ॥ १० ॥

Then Śrī Rāma, Lakṣmaṇa and Bharata, all difficult to conquer in war, were highly pleased and performed the coronation of Aṅgada and Candraketu. (10)

अभिषिच्य कुमारौ द्वौ प्रस्थाप्य सुसमाहितौ ।
अङ्गदं पश्चिमां भूमिं चन्द्रकेतुमुदङ्मुखम् ॥ ११ ॥

Having consecrated and sent Aṅgada to the western region and Candraketu northwards, both firm in mind, they were well pleased. (11)

अङ्गदं चापि सौमित्रिर्लक्ष्मणोऽनुजगाम ह ।
चन्द्रकेतोस्तु भरतः पार्ष्णिग्राहो बभूव ह ॥ १२ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa, the son of Sumitrā, too, followed Aṅgada and Bharata on his part followed Candraketu as the rear guard. (12)

लक्ष्मणस्त्वङ्गदीयायां संवत्सरमथोषितः ।
पुत्रे स्थिते दुराधर्षे अयोध्यां पुनरागमत् ॥ १३ ॥

Having stayed for one full year in the city of Aṅgada, when his son, difficult to conquer was well-established, Lakṣmaṇa came back again to Ayodhyā. (13)

भरतोऽपि तथैवोष्य संवत्सरमतोऽधिकम् ।
अयोध्यां पुनरागम्य रामपादावुपास्त सः ॥ १४ ॥

Bharata too, having spent a year and more, in the same manner returned to Ayodhyā and worshipped the feet of Śrī Rāma. (14)

उभौ सौमित्रिभरतौ रामपादावनुव्रतौ ।
कालं गतमपि स्नेहान्न जज्ञातेऽतिधार्मिकौ ॥ १५ ॥

Both—the son of Sumitrā (Lakṣmaṇa) and Bharata, the most noble ones, ardently attached to the feet of Śrī Rāma, were oblivious of the lapse of time due to the deep affection of Śrī Rāma. (15)

एवं वर्षसहस्राणि दश तेषां ययुस्तदा ।
धर्मे प्रयतमानानां पौरकार्येषु नित्यदा ॥ १६ ॥

Thus, ten thousand years passed with Śrī Rāma, Bharata and Lakṣmaṇa striving always to perform tasks for the citizens and always ready to follow Dharma. (16)

विहृत्य कालं परिपूर्णमानसाः

श्रिया वृता धर्मपुरे च संस्थिताः ।

त्रयः समिद्धाहुतिदीप्ततेजसो

हुताग्रयः साधुमहाध्वरे त्रयः ॥ १७ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे द्व्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०२ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and two in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CIII

Śrī Rāma's virtuous rule. An ascetic approaches Him for a private talk

कस्यचित् त्वथ कालस्य रामे धर्मपुरे स्थिते ।

कालस्तापसरूपेण राजद्वारमुपागमत् ॥ १ ॥

After sometime, while Śrī Rāma was engaged in virtuous deeds, Death in the form of an ascetic appeared at the royal gate. (1)

सोऽब्रवील्लक्ष्मणं वाक्यं धृतिमन्तं यशस्विनम् ।

मां निवेदय रामाय सम्प्राप्तं कार्यगौरवात् ॥ २ ॥

He spoke to courageous and glorious Lakṣmaṇa, who was standing at the door thus: 'I have come here for a great purpose, you report my arrival to Śrī Rāma. (2)

दूतो ह्यतिबलस्याहं महर्षेरमितौजसः ।

रामं दिदृक्षुरायातः कार्येण हि महाबल ॥ ३ ॥

'I am the messenger of the sage Atibala, possessed of great power and have come desiring to see Śrī Rāma with a purpose, O mighty one.' (3)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा सौमित्रिस्त्वरयान्वितः ।

न्यवेदयत रामाय तापसं तं समागतम् ॥ ४ ॥

Having heard the words of the ascetic, the son of Sumitrā, Lakṣmaṇa, at once reported the arrival of that ascetic to Śrī Rāma ! (4)

जयस्व राजधर्मेण उभौ लोकौ महाद्युते ।

दूतस्त्वां द्रष्टुमायातस्तपसा भास्करप्रभः ॥ ५ ॥

With desires all fulfilled, established in the city of virtue, full of prosperity, the three brothers radiated effulgence like the three great sacrificial fires, inflamed by oblations well poured. (17)

'O one possessed of great power, be victorious over both the worlds: a messenger, who is as lustrous as the sun, due to austerities, has come to see you.' (5)

तद् वाक्यं लक्ष्मणोक्तं वै श्रुत्वा राम उवाच ह ।

प्रवेश्यतां मुनिस्तात महौजास्तस्य वाक्यधृक् ॥ ६ ॥

Śrī Rāma on his part hearing the words of Lakṣmaṇa said: 'O dear, let the messenger possessed of great vigour, who carries the message of his patron, enter.' (6)

सौमित्रिस्तु तथेत्युक्त्वा प्रावेशयत तं मुनिम् ।

ज्वलन्तमेव तेजोभिः प्रदहन्तमिवांशुभिः ॥ ७ ॥

Then the son of Sumitrā, Lakṣmaṇa, also having said, 'It shall be as you say', He presented before Rāma, the great ascetic as if enveloped with effulgence and burning others with his beams. (7)

सोऽभिमन्य रघुश्रेष्ठं दीप्यमानं स्वतेजसा ।

ऋषिर्मधुरया वाचा वर्धस्वेत्याह राघवम् ॥ ८ ॥

That sage having approached the best among the descendants of Raghus, glowing with his splendour said in a sweet voice, 'Hail to Thee.' (8)

तस्मै रामो महातेजाः पूजामर्घ्यपुरोगमाम् ।

ददौ कुशलमव्यग्रं प्रष्टुं चैवोपचक्रमे ॥ ९ ॥

The powerful Śrī Rāma worshipped him with offerings of Arghya and then began to ask him about his welfare. (9)

पृष्ठश्च कुशलं तेन रामेण वदतां वरः।
आसने काञ्चने दिव्ये निषसाद महायशाः ॥ १० ॥

The famous ascetic, the best among speakers, being thus enquired about his welfare by Śrī Rāma, seated himself on the beautiful golden seat. (10)

तमुवाच ततो रामः स्वागतं ते महामते।
प्रापयस्व च वाक्यानि यतो दूतस्त्वमागतः ॥ ११ ॥

Then Śrī Rāma said to him, 'Welcome to you, O one of great wisdom. Please do convey the message of him from whom you have come as messenger.' (11)

चोदितो राजसिंहेन मुनिर्वाक्यमभाषत।
द्वन्द्वे ह्येतत् प्रवक्तव्यं हितं वै यद्यवेक्षसे ॥ १२ ॥

Impelled by Śrī Rāma, the lion among kings, the ascetic said: 'My message is to be conveyed only between two of us secretly, if you keep the common interest in mind. (12)

यः शृणोति निरीक्षेद् वा स वध्यो भविता तव।
भवेद् वै मुनिमुख्यस्य वचनं यद्यवेक्षसे ॥ १३ ॥

'If you pay heed to the words of the chief of the ascetics, the intruder who sees us or hears our talk must be sentenced to death. (13)

तथेति च प्रतिज्ञाय रामो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत्।
द्वारि तिष्ठ महाबाहो प्रतिहारं विसर्जय ॥ १४ ॥

Saying "So shall it be", Śrī Rāma said to Lakṣmaṇa, "Go, and stand at the door; O one of long arms and dismiss the door-attendant. (14)

स मे वध्यः खलु भवेद् वाचं द्वन्द्वसमीरितम्।
ऋषेर्मम च सौमित्रे पश्येद् वा शृणुयाच्च यः ॥ १५ ॥

He shall indeed be killed who sees or hears the words spoken between two of us.' (15)

ततो निक्षिप्य काकुत्स्थो लक्ष्मणं द्वारि संग्रहम्।
तमुवाच मुने वाक्यं कथयस्वेति राघवः ॥ १६ ॥

Then placing Lakṣmaṇa, who could catch of the meaning of Śrī Rāma's word at the door, the descendant of Raghu said to that ascetic, 'O ascetic, speak what you have to say. (16)

तत् ते मनीषितं वाक्यं येन वासि समाहितः।
कथयस्वाविशङ्कस्त्वं ममापि हृदि वर्तते ॥ १७ ॥

Do speak out the intention of that one by whom you have been sent without any hesitation. I am eager to know what you have got to say. (17)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे त्र्यधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०३ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and three in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

चतुरधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CIV

The Ascetic conveys the message of Brahmā to Śrī Rāma

शृणु राजन् महासत्त्व यदर्थमहमागतः।
पितामहेन देवेन प्रेषितोऽस्मि महाबल ॥ १ ॥

'Hear, O King of great prowess, the purpose for which I have come, O powerful one, I have been sent by the god Brahmā. (1)

तवाहं पूर्वके भावे पुत्रः परपुरंजय।
मायासम्भावितो वीर कालः सर्वसमाहरः ॥ २ ॥

‘In the primeval form, O brave one, destroyer of the forts of enemies, at the time of creation I was your son, in the form of Time brought forth by your Māyā (the illusory power), and the destroyer of all. (2)

पितामहश्च भगवानाह लोकपतिः प्रभुः ।
समयस्ते कृतः सौम्य लोकान् सम्परिरक्षितुम् ॥ ३ ॥

‘Our lord, the master of all worlds, the venerable Brahmā has said: ‘O gracious one, you have promised formerly for the protection of the worlds and that has been fulfilled. (3)

संक्षिप्य हि पुरा लोकान् मायया स्वयमेव हि ।
महार्णवे शयानोऽप्सु मां त्वं पूर्वमजीजनः ॥ ४ ॥

‘Prior to creation, you yourself by your Māyā having merged all the worlds in you reposing on the great ocean, had created me (Brahmā) first. (4)

भोगवन्तं ततो नागमनन्तमुदकेशयम् ।
मायया जनयित्वा त्वं द्वौ च सत्त्वौ महाबलौ ॥ ५ ॥
मधुं च कैटभं चैव ययोरस्थिचयैर्वृता ।
इयं पर्वतसम्बाधा मेदिनी चाभवत् तदा ॥ ६ ॥

‘Then having created by your Māyā the thousand-hooded Ananta (serpent) lying on the waters, you created the two powerful beings, Madhu and Kaiṭabha by the heaps of bones of whom this earth was crowded and covered with mountains, and then became the earth, Medinī, (having fatness-fertility). (5-6)

पद्मे दिव्येऽर्कसंकाशे नाभ्यामुत्पाद्य मामपि ।
प्राजापत्यं त्वया कर्म मयि सर्वं निवेशितम् ॥ ७ ॥

‘Creating from Your navel, two divine lotus, having the lustre of the sun, and from it myself, the work ordained for Prajāpati (creator) was entrusted to me. (7)

सोऽहं संन्यस्तभारो हि त्वामुपास्य जगत्पतिम् ।
रक्षां विधत्स्व भूतेषु मम तेजस्करो भवान् ॥ ८ ॥

‘So I, having been entrusted with the task of creation, by worshipping you, I request you: Lord! protect all creatures as you only bestow power upon me. (8)

ततस्त्वमसि दुर्धर्षात् तस्माद् भावात् सनातनात् ।
रक्षां विधास्यन् भूतानां विष्णुत्वमुपजग्मिवान् ॥ ९ ॥

‘Due to that prayer for the protection of the beings on earth, you took the form of Viṣṇu, from that ethereal eternal form. (9)

अदित्यां वीर्यवान् पुत्रो भ्रातृणां वीर्यवर्धनः ।
समुत्पन्नेषु कृत्येषु तेषां साहाय्य कल्पसे ॥ १० ॥

‘From Aditi (the mother of the gods), you were born as the brave son, Vāmana, the Divine Dwarf adding to the valour of your brothers (the gods) and extended help to them whenever the occasion demanded. (10)

स त्वं वित्रास्यमानासु प्रजासु जगतां वर ।
रावणस्य वधाकाङ्क्षी मानुषेषु मनोऽदधाः ॥ ११ ॥
दशवर्षसहस्राणि दशवर्षशतानि च ।
कृत्वा वासस्य नियमं स्वयमेवात्मना पुरा ॥ १२ ॥

‘O best in the world, You had set your mind on having a human form, desirous to kill Rāvaṇa, when the human beings were being extirpated, you yourself fixed the span of your stay among the mortals for ten thousand and ten hundred years formerly. (11-12)

स त्वं मनोमयः पुत्रः पूर्णायुर्मानुषेष्विह ।
कालोऽयं ते नरश्रेष्ठ समीपमुपवर्तितुम् ॥ १३ ॥

‘You were thus a mind-born son of Daśaratha. The span of your stay on earth as human being is complete and now it is time for you to come back to us. (13)

यदि भूयो महाराज प्रजा इच्छस्युपासितुम् ।
वस वा वीर भद्रं ते एवमाह पितामहः ॥ १४ ॥

‘If, O brave one, you desire again to serve men, then dwell as you wish, may welfare be with Thee, thus Brahmā said.’ (14)

अथ वा विजिगीषा ते सुरलोकाय राघव ।
सनाथा विष्णुना देवा भवन्तु विगतज्वराः ॥ १५ ॥

‘If, however, O descendant of Raghu, there is the desire in you to protect the gods, then let the gods have Viṣṇu as their Lord.’ (15)

श्रुत्वा पितामहेनोक्तं वाक्यं कालसमीरितम्।

राघवः प्रहसन् वाक्यं सर्वसंहारमब्रवीत् ॥ १६ ॥

Having heard, the words of Brahmā spoken by Death, Śrī Rāma said laughingly to the destroyer of all, the Death: (16)

श्रुत्वा मे देवदेवस्य वाक्यं परममद्भुतम्।

प्रीतिर्हि महती जाता तवागमनसम्भवा ॥ १७ ॥

‘Hearing the words so full of wonder, of the god of gods (Brahmā), fills me with great pleasure born out of your visit. (17)

त्रयाणामपि लोकानां कार्यार्थं मम सम्भवः।

भद्रं तेऽस्तु गमिष्यामि यत एवाहमागतः ॥ १८ ॥

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे चतुरधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०४ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and four in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

पञ्चाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CV

Durvāsā appears before Śrī Rāma and desires to take food. After eating, he departs. Śrī Rāma remembers the words of Death, and is wonderstruck

तथा तयोः संवदतोर्दुर्वासा भगवानृषिः।

रामस्य दर्शनाकाङ्क्षी राजद्वारमुपागमत् ॥ १ ॥

Thus while the two (Śrī Rāma and Death) were conversing, the venerable sage, Durvāsā, desirous of seeing Śrī Rāma appeared at the royal gate. (1)

सोऽभिगम्य तु सौमित्रिमुवाच ऋषिसत्तमः।

रामं दर्शय मे शीघ्रं पुरा मेऽर्थोऽतिवर्तते ॥ २ ॥

The great sage approaching Lakṣmaṇa (the son of Sumitrā) said: ‘Let me see Śrī Rāma at once, for, the purpose for which I have come is being lost.’ (2)

मुनेस्तु भाषितं श्रुत्वा लक्ष्मणः परवीरहा।

अभिवाद्य महात्मानं वाक्यमेतदुवाच ह ॥ ३ ॥

Lakṣmaṇa the killer of the enemy heroes, on hearing words of the ascetic, spoke after

‘To carry out the work of the three worlds is the purpose of my birth as human being, may welfare be with you; I will go now to heaven, wherefrom I came. (18)

हृद्गतो ह्यसि सम्प्राप्तो न मे तत्र विचारणा।

मया हि सर्वकृत्येषु देवानां वशवर्तिना।

स्थातव्यं सर्वसंहार यथा ह्याह पितामहः ॥ १९ ॥

‘You have come as my heart desired, so there is nothing for me to ponder over. O destroyer of all, I have to stay at will of gods for performing all their deeds as Brahmā has said.’ (19)

having saluted the noble one, Durvāsā: (3)

किं कार्यं ब्रूहि भगवन् को ह्यर्थः किं करोम्यहम्।

व्यग्रो हि राघवो ब्रह्मन् मुहूर्तं परिपाल्यताम् ॥ ४ ॥

‘Sir, what has to be done for you for what purpose you have come? What should I do? The descendant of Raghu is now indeed busy, O Brāhmaṇa, wait for a moment.’ (4)

तच्छ्रुत्वा ऋषिशार्दूलः क्रोधेन कलुषीकृतः।

उवाच लक्ष्मणं वाक्यं निर्दहन्निव चक्षुषा ॥ ५ ॥

Having heard this, Durvāsā, the lion among sages, darkened by rage said to Lakṣmaṇa, as if burning all by his eyes: (5)

अस्मिन् क्षणे मां सौमित्रे रामाय प्रतिवेदय।

अस्मिन् क्षणे गां सौमित्रे न निवेदयसे यदि।

विषयं त्वां पुरं चैव शपिष्ये राघवं तथा ॥ ६ ॥

भरतं चैव सौमित्रे युष्माकं या च संततिः ।
न हि शक्ष्याम्यहं भूयो मन्युं धारयितुं हृदि ॥ ७ ॥
‘Inform about me at this very moment
Śrī Rāma, O son of Sumitrā, If you do not do so, I shall curse this city, you, this territory, Bharata and also Rāma and even this city’s progeny, I am indeed unable to contain my anger inside me anymore. (6-7)

तच्छ्रुत्वा घोरसंकाशं वाक्यं तस्य महात्मनः ।
चिन्तयामास मनसा तस्य वाक्यस्य निश्चयम् ॥ ८ ॥

Hearing those dreadful words of the Mahātmā (Durvāsā), Lakṣmaṇa thought in his mind the real purport of his (Durvāsā) words. (8)

एकस्य मरणं मेऽस्तु मा भूत् सर्वविनाशनम् ।
इति बुद्ध्या विनिश्चित्य राघवाय न्यवेदयत् ॥ ९ ॥
‘Let me die alone, let not all others perish’ deciding thus he reported the arrival of Durvāsā to Śrī Rāma. (9)

लक्ष्मणस्य वचः श्रुत्वा रामः कालं विसृज्य च ।
निःसृत्य त्वरितो राजा अत्रेः पुत्रं ददर्श ह ॥ १० ॥ Hearing the words of Lakṣmaṇa, the king Śrī Rāma disposing Death, came out in haste and saw the son of Atri (Durvāsā). (10)

सोऽभिवाद्य महात्मानं ज्वलन्तमिव तेजसा ।
किं कार्यमिति काकुत्स्थः कृताञ्जलिरभाषत ॥ ११ ॥
Having saluted him the noble one, enflamed with effulgence, Śrī Rāma, the descendant of Kakutstha, with folded hands said: ‘What has to be done by me.’ (11)

तद् वाक्यं राघवेणोक्तं श्रुत्वा मुनिवरः प्रभुः ।
प्रत्याह रामं दुर्वासाः श्रूयतां धर्मवत्सल ॥ १२ ॥
अद्य वर्षसहस्रस्य समाप्तिर्मम राघव ।
सोऽहं भोजनमिच्छामि यथासिद्धं तवानघ ॥ १३ ॥

Hearing these words spoken by Śrī Rāma, Durvāsā replied: ‘O one of loving piety, listen, the thousand years of my vow of keeping fast has ended today, so I want cooked food, whatsoever may be ready.’
(12-13)

तच्छ्रुत्वा वचनं राजा राघवः प्रीतमानसः ।
भोजनं मुनिमुख्याय यथासिद्धमुपाहरत् ॥ १४ ॥

Hearing these words Śrī Rāma the king, with gratified mind, offered food readily available. (14)

स तु भुक्त्वा मुनिश्रेष्ठस्तदन्नममृतोपमम् ।
साधु रामेति सम्भाष्य स्वमाश्रममुपागमत् ॥ १५ ॥

Durvāsā the best among ascetics, having consumed that food like nectar, ‘saying appreciatory words to Śrī Rāma’, went away to his hermitage. (15)

तस्मिन् गते मुनिवरे स्वाश्रमं लक्ष्मणाग्रजः ।
संस्मृत्य कालवाक्यानि ततो दुःखमुपागमत् ॥ १६ ॥

After Durvāsā was gone to his hermitage, Rāma remembering the utterances of Kāla became sad. (16)

दुःखेन च सुसंतप्तः स्मृत्वा तद्घोरदर्शनम् ।
अवाङ्मुखो दीनमना व्याहर्तुं न शशाक ह ॥ १७ ॥

Thinking of terrible sorrow that would be ensued from the separation of a brother like Lakṣmaṇa, Rāma was tormented to the extreme. With his down cast face and a miserable heart he could not speak a word.
(17)

ततो बुद्ध्या विनिश्चित्य कालवाक्यानि राघवः ।
नैतदस्तीति निश्चित्य तूष्णीमासीन्महायशाः ॥ १८ ॥

Considering pros and cons of the utterances of Kāla, Rāma came to the conclusion that now nothing will remain, he kept silent. (18)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे पञ्चाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०५ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and five in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

षडधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CVI

Lakṣmaṇa departs and goes to heaven
alongwith his body

अवाङ्मुखमथो दीनं दृष्ट्वा सोममिवाप्लुतम् ।
राघवं लक्ष्मणो वाक्यं हृष्टो मधुरमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Seeing the descendant of Raghu, Śrī Rāma, speechless and in sorrow like the moon eclipsed by Rāhu, Lakṣmaṇa cheerfully spoke to him in sweet accents: (1)

न संतापं महाबाहो मदर्थं कर्तुमर्हसि ।
पूर्वनिर्माणबद्धा हि कालस्य गतिरीदृशी ॥ २ ॥

‘O one of long arms, you should not feel grieved for me, because bound by former actions, this is the law of time (Death). (2)

जहि मां सौम्य विस्रब्धं प्रतिज्ञां परिपालय ।
हीनप्रतिज्ञाः काकुत्स्थ प्रयान्ति नरकं नराः ॥ ३ ॥

‘Give me death award, O gracious one, and confidently keep your word, O scion of Kakutstha; those men who do not keep their promises do go to Hell. (3)

यदि प्रीतिर्महाराज यद्यनुग्राह्यता मयि ।
जहि मां निर्विशङ्कस्त्वं धर्मं वर्धय राघव ॥ ४ ॥

‘O King, descendant of Raghu, kill me without hesitation if you have love for and are favourable to me, and promote righteousness.’ (4)

लक्ष्मणेन तथोक्तस्तु रामः प्रचलितेन्द्रियः ।
मन्त्रिणः समुपानीय तथैव च पुरोधसम् ॥ ५ ॥
अब्रवीच्च तदा वृत्तं तेषां मध्ये स राघवः ।
दुर्वोसोऽभिगमं चैव प्रतिज्ञां तापसस्य च ॥ ६ ॥

Thus spoken to by Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma with his senses disturbed, summoned his councillors and also priests, and said in their midst, what had happened, i.e., the arrival of Durvāsā and also the promise made in accordance with the condition laid down by the ascetic. (5-6)

तच्छ्रुत्वा मन्त्रिणः सर्वे सोपाध्यायाः समासत ।
वसिष्ठस्तु महातेजा वाक्यमेतदुवाच ॥ ७ ॥

Hearing these words all the councillors together with the preceptors kept mum. Then Vasiṣṭha, the powerful one, however, said thus: (7)

दृष्टमेतन्महाबाहो क्षयं ते रोमहर्षणम् ।
लक्ष्मणेन वियोगश्च तव राम महायशः ॥ ८ ॥

‘O one of long arms, this end of yours was foreseen by me, which causes horripilation and also separation from Lakṣmaṇa, O Śrī Rāma, possessed of glory. (8)

त्यजैनं बलवान् कालो मा प्रतिज्ञां वृथा कृथाः ।
प्रतिज्ञायां हि नष्टायां धर्मो हि विलयं व्रजेत् ॥ ९ ॥

‘Leave him, Lakṣmaṇa. Time (Death) is indeed too powerful, do not give up your promise, for, it being given up, righteousness will perish. (9)

ततो धर्मे विनष्टे तु त्रैलोक्यं सचराचरम् ।
सदेवर्षिगणं सर्वं विनश्येत् तु न संशयः ॥ १० ॥

‘With righteousness gone, the three worlds, both moving and stationary, indeed the hosts of divine sages, shall perish, there is no doubt. (10)

स त्वं पुरुषशार्दूल त्रैलोक्यस्याभिपालनात् ।
लक्ष्मणेन विना चाद्य जगत् स्वस्थं कुरुष्व ह ॥ ११ ॥

‘Therefore, O lion among men, separated from Lakṣmaṇa today, you, on your part, restore normalcy to this earth with the protection of the three worlds.’ (11)

तेषां तत् समवेतानां वाक्यं धर्मार्थसंहितम् ।
श्रुत्वा परिषदो मध्ये रामो लक्ष्मणमब्रवीत् ॥ १२ ॥

Hearing these words full of righteous import, spoken by those assembled,

Śrī Rāma said to Lakṣmaṇa in the midst of that assembly: (12)

विसर्जये त्वां सौमित्रे मा भूद् धर्मविपर्ययः ।
त्यागो वधो वा विहितः साधूनां ह्युभयं समम् ॥ १३ ॥

‘I leave you, O son of Sumitrā (Lakṣmaṇa), may not the cause of righteousness suffer; desertion or slaying—both are the same to the pious ones.’ (13)

रामेण भाषिते वाक्ये बाष्पव्याकुलितेन्द्रियः ।
लक्ष्मणस्त्वरितं प्रायात् स्वगृहं न विवेश ह ॥ १४ ॥

On Śrī Rāma speaking thus, Lakṣmaṇa, with his eyes filled with tears, went out in haste and did not enter his apartment. (14)

स गत्वा सरयूतीरमुपस्पृश्य कृताञ्जलिः ।
निगृह्य सर्वस्रोतांसि निःश्वासं न मुमोच ह ॥ १५ ॥

Having reached the banks of the Sarayū, he performed ablutions, restraining

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे षडधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०६ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and six in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

सप्ताधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CVII

According to the counsel of Sage Vasiṣṭha, Śrī Rāma considers to take citizens with Him and crowns Kuśa and Lava on the kingdoms of South and North Kosala

विसृज्य लक्ष्मणं रामो दुःखशोकसमन्वितः ।
पुरोधसं मन्त्रिणश्च नैगमांश्चेदमब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥

Having discharged Lakṣmaṇa, Śrī Rāma full of agony and sorrow, spoke thus to the priests, councillors and citizens: (1)

अद्य राज्येऽभिषेक्ष्यामि भरतं धर्मवत्सलम् ।
अयोध्यायाः पतिं वीरं ततो यास्याम्यहं वनम् ॥ २ ॥

‘I shall consecrate the brave one, Bharata, given to piety in this kingdom as the lord of Ayodhyā this very day and then depart to the forest. (2)

all senses and holding his breath. (15)

अनिःश्वसन्तं युक्तं तं सशक्राः साप्सरोगणाः ।
देवाः सर्षिगणाः सर्वे पुष्पैरभ्यकिरन्तदा ॥ १६ ॥

The gods, together with Indra, the Apsarās and all sages sprinkled flowers on him, who was performing the Yoga of restraining senses. (16)

अदृश्यं सर्वमनुजैः सशरीरं महाबलम् ।
प्रगृह्य लक्ष्मणं शक्रस्त्रिदिवं संविवेश ह ॥ १७ ॥

Taking hold of Lakṣmaṇa alive and invisible to men, Indra entered the heaven alongwith him. (17)

ततो विष्णोश्चतुर्भागमागतं सुरसत्तमाः ।
हृष्टाः प्रमुदिताः सर्वे पूजयन्ति स्म राघवम् ॥ १८ ॥

Then all the great gods, pleased at seeing the fourth part of Viṣṇu coming back to heaven, honoured indeed the descendant of Raghu, Lakṣmaṇa. (18)

प्रवेशयत सम्भारान् मा भूत् कालात्ययो यथा ।
अद्यैवाहं गमिष्यामि लक्ष्मणेन गतां गतिम् ॥ ३ ॥

‘All the necessities for consecration may be brought without delay. I shall tread on the path that Lakṣmaṇa has gone this very day.’ (3)

तच्छ्रुत्वा राघवेणोक्तं सर्वाः प्रकृतयो भृशम् ।
मूर्धभिः प्रणता भूमौ गतसत्त्वा इवाभवन् ॥ ४ ॥

Hearing these words of the descendant of Raghu, all subjects prostrated on the ground and were almost rendered as if lifeless. (4)

भरतश्च विसंज्ञोऽभूच्छ्रुत्वा राघवभाषितम् ।
राज्यं विगर्हयामास वचनं चेदमब्रवीत् ॥ ५ ॥

Bharata too became almost unconscious on hearing the words of the descendant of Raghu, Śrī Rāma, and spoke ill of kingship and then said: (5)

सत्येनाहं शपे राजन् स्वर्गभोगेन चैव हि ।
न कामये यथा राज्यं त्वां विना रघुनन्दन ॥ ६ ॥

‘I swear, by the truth and heavenly enjoyments, O descendant of Raghu, I do not desire kingship without you. (6)

इमौ कुशीलवौ राजन्भिषिच्य नराधिप ।
कोशलेषु कुशं वीरमुत्तरेषु तथा लवम् ॥ ७ ॥

‘O King, consecrate Kuśa in the territory of south Kosala and Lava in the Uttara Kosala territory. (7)

शत्रुघ्नस्य च गच्छन्तु दूतास्त्वरितविक्रमाः ।
इदं गमनमस्माकं शीघ्रमाख्यातु मा चिरम् ॥ ८ ॥

‘May messengers of speedy gait go to Śatrughna, and convey soon the news of our departure, may there be no delay’. (8)

तच्छ्रुत्वा भरतेनोक्तं दृष्ट्वा चापि ह्यधोमुखान् ।
पौरान् दुःखेन संतप्तान् वसिष्ठो वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ९ ॥

Having heard the words spoken by Bharata and also seen the citizens with faces downcast and afflicted by pain, Vasiṣṭha said: (9)

वत्स राम इमाः पश्य धरणिं प्रकृतीर्गताः ।
ज्ञात्वैषामीप्सितं कार्यं मा चैषां विप्रियं कृथाः ॥ १० ॥

‘O Child Śrī Rāma, see the subjects lying prostrate on the ground, you should act after knowing their desire; do not do something disliked by them.’ (10)

वसिष्ठस्य तु वाक्येन उत्थाप्य प्रकृतीजनम् ।
किं करोमीति काकुत्स्थः सर्वान् वचनमब्रवीत् ॥ ११ ॥

Impelled by the words of Vasiṣṭha, the descendant of Kakutstha made the subjects rise, and said to all of them ‘What may I do. (11)

ततः सर्वाः प्रकृतयो रामं वचनमब्रुवन् ।
गच्छन्तमनुगच्छामो यत्र राम गमिष्यसि ॥ १२ ॥

Then all the subjects said to Śrī Rāma: ‘O Śrī Rāma, we shall follow you wherever you go. (12)

पौरैषु यदि ते प्रीतिर्यदि स्नेहो ह्यनुत्तमः ।
सपुत्रदाराः काकुत्स्थ समं गच्छाम सत्यथम् ॥ १३ ॥

‘If you are pleased with the citizens and do bear great affection for them, then, O descendant of Kakutstha, we shall proceed on the right path simultaneously (the way to heaven), together with our progeny and spouses. (13)

तपोवनं वा दुर्गं वा नदीमम्भोनिधिं तथा ।
वयं ते यदि न त्याज्याः सर्वान्नो नय ईश्वर ॥ १४ ॥

‘Take all of us to the forest, unnavigable land or river or the ocean, O lord, if we are not to be deserted by you. (14)

एषा नः परमा प्रीतिरेष नः परमो वरः ।
हृद्गता नः सदा प्रीतिस्तवानुगमने नृप ॥ १५ ॥

‘This is what we most desire, O King, in following you lies the pleasure of our life.’ (15)

पौराणां दृढभक्तिं च बाढमित्येव सोऽब्रवीत् ।
स्वकृतान्तं चान्ववेक्ष्य तस्मिन्नहनि राघवः ॥ १६ ॥

कोशलेषु कुशं वीरमुत्तरेषु तथा लवम् ।
अभिषिच्य महात्मानावुभौ रामः कुशीलवौ ॥ १७ ॥

अभिषिक्तौ सुतावङ्के प्रतिष्ठाप्य पुरे ततः ।
परिष्वज्य महाबाहुर्मूर्ध्न्युपाघ्राय चासकृत् ॥ १८ ॥

स्थानां तु सहस्राणि नागानामयुतानि च ।
दशायुतानि चाश्वानामेकैकस्य धनं ददौ ॥ १९ ॥

Seeing the firm devotion of the citizens, He, Śrī Rāma, said, ‘so be it. Visualizing the end of his earthly sojourn that very day, the descendant of Raghu, Śrī Rāma, having coronated both the noble ones Kuśa in the south Kośala territory and Lava in the Uttara Kośala territory, then seating them in his lap, embracing them, smelling their heads more than once and establishing them as kings, gave to each a thousand chariots, ten thousand elephants and hundred thousand horses. (16—19)

बहुरत्नौ बहुधनौ हृष्टपुष्टजनावृतौ ।
स्वे पुरे प्रेषयामास भ्रातरौ तौ कुशीलवौ ॥ २० ॥

He (Śrī Rāma) sent the two brothers, Kuśa and Lava to their respective kingdoms, with many gems and a lot of wealth and full of happy and prosperous men. (20)

अभिषिच्य ततो वीरौ प्रस्थाप्य स्वपुरे तदा ।
दूतान् सम्प्रेषयामास शत्रुघ्नाय महात्मने ॥ २१ ॥

Then, having coronated both of them and establishing them in their own kingdom, caused messengers to be sent to the noble Śatrughna. (21)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे सप्ताधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०७ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and seven in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

अष्टाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CVIII

Śrī Rāma decides to go to heaven with his brothers, monkeys and bears.
He advises Vibhīṣaṇa, Hanumān, Jāmbavān, Mainda, and Dwivida to remain on the earth

ते दूता रामवाक्येन चोदिता लघुविक्रमाः ।
प्रजग्मुर्मधुरां शीघ्रं चक्रुर्वासं न चाध्वनि ॥ १ ॥

Then the messengers of speedy gait, receiving the orders of Śrī Rāma, went to Madhurā with all haste and did not halt on the way. (1)

ततस्त्रिभिरहोरात्रैः सम्प्राप्य मधुरामथ ।
शत्रुघ्नाय यथातत्त्वमाचख्युः सर्वमेव तत् ॥ २ ॥
लक्ष्मणस्य परित्यागं प्रतिज्ञां राघवस्य च ।
पुत्रयोरभिषेकं च पौरानुगमनं तथा ॥ ३ ॥

Then after three days and nights, having reached Madhurā, they (the messengers) narrated all that had happened exactly; the desertion of Lakṣmaṇa, and the determination of Śrī Rāma, the descendant of Raghu, on the consecration of the two sons (of Śrī Rāma) and the citizens following Him. (2-3)

कुशस्य नगरी रम्या विन्ध्यपर्वतरोधसि ।
कुशावतीति नाम्ना सा कृता रामेण धीमता ॥ ४ ॥
श्रावस्तीति पुरी रम्या श्राविता च लवस्य ह ।
अयोध्यां विजनां कृत्वा राघवो भरतस्तथा ॥ ५ ॥
स्वर्गस्य गमनोद्योगं कृतवन्तौ महारथौ ।
एवं सर्वं निवेद्याशु शत्रुघ्नाय महात्मने ॥ ६ ॥

विरेमुस्ते ततो दूतास्त्वर राजेति चाबुवन् ।
तच्छ्रुत्वा घोरसंकाशं कुलक्षयमुपस्थितम् ॥ ७ ॥
प्रकृतीस्तु समानीय काञ्चनं च पुरोधसम् ।
तेषां सर्वं यथावृत्तमब्रवीद् रघुनन्दनः ॥ ८ ॥

That beautiful city of Kuśa at the foot of the Vindhya mountain, was named Kuśāvati by the wise Śrī Rāma and that beautiful city of Lava, Śrāvastī, was also made famous. Thus after having rendered Ayodhyā desolate, the descendant of Raghu, Śrī Rāma and Bharata, the two great warriors, have made themselves ready to go to heaven. Having thus narrated all events to the noble Śatrughna, those messengers then stopped narrating and said: 'O king, make haste', having heard the terrible news of his family coming to an end, the descendant of Raghu, calling all his subjects and the priest Kāñcana, spoke to them all that had happened. (4—8)

आत्मनश्च विपर्यासं भविष्यं भ्रातृभिः सह ।
ततः पुत्रद्वयं वीरः सोऽभ्यषिञ्चन्नराधिपः ॥ ९ ॥
सुबाहुर्मधुरां लेभे शत्रुघाती च वैदिशम् ।
द्विधा कृत्वा तु तां सेनां माधुरीं पुत्रयोर्द्वयोः ।
धनं च युक्तं कृत्वा वै स्थापयामास पार्थिवः ॥ १० ॥

He also communicated his approaching death with his brothers. Śatrughna then consecrated his two sons. Subāhu obtained Madhurā, while Śatrughātī, Vidiśa (Bhelsa). Having divided the army of Madhurā into two and making them possessed of wealth, the king, Śatrughna, established his two sons there. (9-10)

सुबाहुं मधुरायां च वैदिशे शत्रुघातिनम्।
ययौ स्थाप्य तदायोध्यां रथेनैकेन राघवः॥११॥

Having established Subāhu in Madhurā (Mathurā) and Śatrughātī in Vidiśa, the descendant of Raghu, Śatrughna, went to Ayodhyā by a chariot, alone. (11)

स ददर्श महात्मानं ज्वलन्तमिव पावकम्।
सूक्ष्मक्षौमाम्बरधरं मुनिभिः सार्धमक्षयैः॥१२॥

He saw Śrī Rāma, the noble one, as though the fire in flames, dressed in fine silken garments sitting together with the immortal sages. (12)

सोऽभिवाद्य ततो रामं प्राञ्जलिः प्रयतेन्द्रियः।
उवाच वाक्यं धर्मज्ञं धर्ममेवानुचिन्तयन्॥१३॥

Having saluted Śrī Rāma, with folded hands and his senses in control, contemplating on the law of righteousness, he, Śatrughna, spoke to him, the knower of Dharma: (13)

कृत्वाभिषेकं सुतयोर्द्वयो राघवनन्दन।
तवानुगमने राजन् विद्धि मां कृतनिश्चयम्॥१४॥

‘O descendant of Raghu, know me as one having decided to follow you after having coronated my two sons. (14)

न चान्यदद्य वक्तव्यमतो वीर न शासनम्।
विह्वयमानमिच्छामि मद्विधेन विशेषतः॥१५॥

‘No word other than that of consent is to be spoken by you, O brave one ! I do not wish that your orders be transgressed by one like me, in particular.’ (15)

तस्य तां बुद्धिमक्लीबां विज्ञाय रघुनन्दनः।
बाढमित्येव शत्रुघ्नं रामो वाक्यमुवाच ह॥१६॥

Knowing that potent desire (of Śatrughna), the descendant of Raghu, said ‘Indeed, may it be so, O Śatrughna’. (16)

तस्य वाक्यस्य वाक्यान्ते वानराः कामरूपिणः।

ऋक्षराक्षससङ्घाश्च समापेतुरनेकशः॥१७॥

As he finished his sentence, the monkeys, who could change their form according to their will, and also the bears and Rākṣasas in great number arrived there. (17)

सुग्रीवं ते पुरस्कृत्य सर्व एव समागताः।

तं रामं द्रष्टुमनसः स्वर्गायाभिमुखं स्थितम्॥१८॥

Having put Sugrīva at their head, came all of them wishing to see Śrī Rāma on his way to heaven. (18)

देवपुत्रा ऋषिसुता गन्धर्वाणां सुतास्तथा।

रामक्षयं विदित्वा ते सर्व एव समागताः॥१९॥

Knowing that the end of the earthly sojourn of Śrī Rāma has arrived, the sons of gods, the sons of sages and also the sons of the Gandharvas came. (19)

ते राममभिवाद्योचुः सर्वे वानरराक्षसाः।

तवानुगमने राजन् सम्प्राप्ताः स्म समागताः॥२०॥

यदि राम विनास्माभिर्गच्छेस्त्वं पुरुषोत्तम।

यमदण्डमिवोद्यम्य त्वया स्म विनिपातिताः॥२१॥

एतस्मिन्नन्तरे रामं सुग्रीवोऽपि महाबलः।

प्रणम्य विधिवद् वीरं विज्ञापयितुमुद्यतः॥२२॥

They said: ‘O King, we have come to follow you, O Śrī Rāma, the best among men, if you will go without us, then indeed we will take it as having been killed as if by you by the rod of Yama. In this midst, the powerful Sugrīva also having saluted the brave one, Śrī Rāma, properly, became eager to convey his wish and said: (20—22)

अभिषिच्याद्गदं वीरमागतोऽस्मि नरेश्वर।

तवानुगमने राजन् विद्धि मां कृतनिश्चयम्॥२३॥

‘O king of men, having coronated the brave Aṅgada (son of Vālī) on the throne, I have come. Know me, O king, as one having decided to follow you.’ (23)

तस्य तद् वचनं श्रुत्वा रामो रमयतां वरः ।
वानरेन्द्रमथोवाच मैत्रं तस्यानुचिन्तयन् ॥ २४ ॥

Hearing him so saying, Rāma, the best among rejoicers, having in consideration his friendship spoke to Sugrīva: (24)

सखे शृणुष्व सुग्रीव न त्वयाहं विनाकृतः ।
गच्छेयं देवलोकं वा परमं वा पदं महत् ॥ २५ ॥

‘Listen to me, my friend, I do not intend to go without you, to supreme beatitude or even to my Sāketadhāma.’ (25)

तैरेवमुक्तः काकुत्स्थो बाढमित्यब्रवीत् स्मयन् ।
विभीषणमथोवाच राक्षसेन्द्रं महायशाः ॥ २६ ॥

Thus spoken to by them, the descendant of Kakutstha, smiled and said, ‘so be it,’ then the famous one spoke to Vibhīṣaṇa: (26)

यावत् प्रजा धरिष्यन्ति तावत् त्वं वै विभीषण ।
राक्षसेन्द्र महावीर्यं लङ्कास्थः स्वं धरिष्यसि ॥ २७ ॥

‘As long as the subjects will stay alive, so long you will stay in person as king of Laṅkā. (27)

यावच्चन्द्रश्च सूर्यश्च यावत् तिष्ठति मेदिनी ।
यावच्च मत्कथा लोके तावद् राज्यं तवास्त्वह ॥ २८ ॥

‘As long as the sun and the moon stay, and as long as this earth remains in this world, as long as my tales exist in the world, so long may your rule be. (28)

शासितश्च सखित्वेन कार्यं ते मम शासनम् ।
प्रजाः संरक्ष धर्मेण नोत्तरं वक्तुमर्हसि ॥ २९ ॥

‘Out of friendship you are commanded by me, the orders are to be carried out by you; protect the subjects righteously; please do not make any reply. (29)

किंचान्यद् वक्तुमिच्छामि राक्षसेन्द्र महाबल ।
आराधय जगन्नाथमिक्ष्वाकुकुलदैवतम् ॥ ३० ॥

‘O best among Rākṣasas, this much more I wish to say, O mighty one, worship Jagannātha (Viṣṇu) the presiding deity of the Ikṣvāku-family. (30)

आराधनीयमनिशं देवैरपि सवासवैः ।
तथेति प्रतिजग्राह रामवाक्यं विभीषणः ॥ ३१ ॥

‘Viṣṇu is to be worshipped always even by the gods, together with Indra.’ Saying thus: “It shall be so” Vibhīṣaṇa the king of the Rākṣasas, accepted in obedience the words of Śrī Rāma. (31)

राजा राक्षसमुख्यानां राघवाज्ञामनुस्मरन् ।
तमेवमुक्त्वा काकुत्स्थो हनूमन्तमथाब्रवीत् ॥ ३२ ॥

जीविते कृतबुद्धिस्त्वं मा प्रतिज्ञां वृथा कृथाः ।
मत्कथाः प्रचरिष्यन्ति यावल्लोके हरीश्वर ॥ ३३ ॥

तावद् रमस्व सुग्रीतो मदवाक्यमनुपालयन् ।
एवमुक्तस्तु हनुमान् राघवेण महात्मना ॥ ३४ ॥

वाक्यं विज्ञापयामास परं हर्षमवाप च ।
यावत् तव कथा लोके विचरिष्यति पावनी ॥ ३५ ॥

तावत् स्थास्यामि मेदिन्यां तवाज्ञामनुपालयन् ।
जाम्बवन्तं तथोक्त्वा तु वृद्धं ब्रह्मसुतं तदा ॥ ३६ ॥

मैन्दं च द्विविदं चैव पञ्च जाम्बवता सह ।
यावत् कलिश्च सम्प्राप्तस्तावज्जीवत सर्वदा ॥ ३७ ॥

Vibhīṣaṇa kept in mind the orders of the descendant of Raghu. Having spoken to Vibhīṣaṇa, the descendant of Kakutstha then spoke to Hanumān: ‘You have made up your mind to live on this earth, so do not let your resolve go in vain. O best among monkeys, as long as my tales circulate on this earth, so long live happily, in compliance with my words.’ Thus spoken to by Śrī Rāma, the noble descendant of Raghu, Hanumān was highly pleased and said to him: ‘As long as your divine tale will circulate on this earth, so long shall I stay here on earth, carrying out your orders.’ Saying thus to the son of Brahmā, the aged Jāmbavān, Śrī Rāma instructed Mainda and Dvīvida also to stay alongwith Jāmbavān (including Vibhīṣaṇa and Hanumān five in all) on earth till Kali approaches. (32—37)

तानेवमुक्त्वा काकुत्स्थः सर्वास्तानृक्षवानरान् ।
उवाच बाढं गच्छध्वं मया सार्धं यथोदितम् ॥ ३८ ॥

Speaking thus to them, Śrī Rāma addressed the rest of bears and monkeys and said: 'All right, you all accompany me as stipulated'. (38)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डेऽष्टाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०८ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and eight in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

नवाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CIX

Śrī Rāma ascends heaven with the citizens of Kosala

प्रभातायां तु शर्वर्या पृथुवक्षा महायशाः।
रामः कमलपत्राक्षः पुरोधसमथाब्रवीत् ॥ १ ॥
अग्निहोत्रं व्रजत्वग्रे दीप्यमानं सह द्विजैः।
वाजपेयातपत्रं च शोभमानं महापथे ॥ २ ॥

When the night passed and the morning appeared, the broad-breasted Rāma possessed of fame and having lotus-like eyes, then spoke to the chief-priest: 'May the Agnihotra (performed by me) go in front, enkindled with the Brāhmaṇas, and the Vājapeya umbrella too, with all its beauty on this final journey.' (1-2)

ततो वसिष्ठस्तेजस्वी सर्वं निरवशेषतः।
चकार विधिवद् धर्मं महाप्रास्थानिकं विधिम् ॥ ३ ॥

Then the effulgent Vasiṣṭha performed all the rites connected with the final departure as enjoined by the Śāstras. (3)

ततः सूक्ष्माम्बरधरो ब्रह्मावर्तयन् परम्।
कुशान् गृहीत्वा पाणिभ्यां सरयूं प्रययावथ ॥ ४ ॥

Then, donning fine garments, and reciting the chants connected with the Supreme Brahma, taking the Kuśa grass in his hands, he, Śrī Rāma, went to Sarayū. (4)

अव्याहरन् क्वचित् किञ्चिन्निश्चेष्टो निःसुखः पथि।
निर्जगाम गृहात् तस्माद् दीप्यमानो यथांशुमान् ॥ ५ ॥

Not speaking any word anywhere, devoid of all action, without comfort, he went out of the mansion, lustrous as the sun. (5)

रामस्य दक्षिणे पाश्वे सपद्मा श्रीरुपाश्रिता।
सव्येऽपि च मही देवी व्यवसायस्तथाग्रतः ॥ ६ ॥
शरा नानाविधाश्चापि धनुरायत्तमुत्तमम्।
तथायुधाश्च ते सर्वे ययुः पुरुषविग्रहाः ॥ ७ ॥

On the right side of Śrī Rāma, was the lotus-seated Śrī and on the left was the goddess Earth, and the Power of resolutions personified went ahead. Many types of arrows, the wonderful well-strong bow and all his other weapons went in human forms. (6-7)

वेदा ब्राह्मणरूपेण गायत्री सर्वरक्षिणी।
ओङ्कारोऽथ वषट्कारः सर्वे राममनुव्रताः ॥ ८ ॥

The Vedas in the form of Brāhmaṇas, the (prayer) Gāyatrī, protector of all the Ōṃkāra, and the Vaṣaṭkāra, all followed Śrī Rāma. (8)

ऋषयश्च महात्मानः सर्व एव महीसुराः।
अन्वगच्छन् महात्मानं स्वर्गद्वारमपावृतम् ॥ ९ ॥

The noble sages and all Brāhmaṇas followed the noble one to the gates of heaven which were held open. (9)

तं यान्तमनुगच्छन्ति ह्यन्तःपुरचराः स्त्रियः।
सर्वद्वालदासीकाः सर्वर्षवरकिंकराः ॥ १० ॥

The women residing in female apartments, together with the old men and young boys and also the eunuchs and servants followed him as he went on. (10)

सान्तःपुरश्च भरतः शत्रुघ्नसहितो ययौ।
रामं गतिमुपागम्य साग्रिहोत्रमनुव्रताः ॥ ११ ॥

Bharata and Śatrughna, accompanied with the ladies of gynaeceum, went forth and having approached Śrī Rāma, the resort of all followed Him together with the Agnihotra. (11)

ते च सर्वे महात्मानः साग्रिहोत्राः समागताः।
सपुत्रदाराः काकुत्स्थमनुजगुर्मुहामतिम् ॥ १२ ॥

All of the noble ones, together with the Agnihotra assembled and with their sons and spouses followed the scion of Kakutstha. (12)

मन्त्रिणो भृत्यवर्गाश्च सपुत्रपशुबान्धवाः।
सर्वे सहानुगा राममन्वगच्छन् प्रहृष्टवत् ॥ १३ ॥

The councillors, the servants, altogether with their sons, cattle and kinsmen, with their followers followed Śrī Rāma as if in pleasure. (13)

ततः सर्वाः प्रकृतयो हृष्टपुष्टजनावृताः।
गच्छन्तमनुगच्छन्ति राघवं गुणरञ्जिताः ॥ १४ ॥

Then all subjects, comprising happy and well-nourished men, followed the descendant of Raghu on his way, devoted to him due to his qualities.* (14)

ततः सस्त्रीपुमांसस्ते सपक्षिपशुबान्धवाः।
राघवस्यानुगाः सर्वे हृष्टा विगतकल्मषाः ॥ १५ ॥

Then all males and females with the birds, animals and kinsmen, free from blemish followed the scion of Raghu. (15)

स्नाताः प्रमुदिताः सर्वे हृष्टपुष्टाश्च वानराः।
दृढं किलकिलाशब्दैः सर्वं राममनुव्रतम् ॥ १६ ॥

All monkeys, happy and well-fed, having taken their dip in the Sarayū, with their sounds of Kila-kilā, being closely attached to Śrī Rāma, followed. (16)

न तत्र कश्चिद् दीनो वा व्रीडितो वापि दुःखितः।
हृष्टं समुदितं सर्वं बभूव परमाद्भुतम् ॥ १७ ॥

There was no one poor or ashamed or pained, they all were happy: all this was extraordinary. (17)

द्रष्टुकामोऽथ निर्यान्तं रामं जानपदो जनः।
यः प्राप्तः सोऽपि दृष्ट्वैव स्वर्गायानुगतो जनः ॥ १८ ॥

The citizens that came desiring of seeing Śrī Rāma departing, they too followed him to the heaven by merely seeing him. (18)

ऋक्षवानररक्षांसि जनाश्च पुरवासिनः।
आगच्छन् परया भक्त्या पृष्ठतः सुसमाहिताः ॥ १९ ॥

The bears, monkeys and Rākṣasas, the townsmen stood behind with firm resolve out of devotion to Śrī Rāma. (19)

यानि भूतानि नगरेऽप्यन्तर्धानगतानि च।
राघवं तान्यनुययुः स्वर्गाय समुपस्थितम् ॥ २० ॥

Those Bhūtas (evil spirits) who dwelt there invisibly, (they also) followed the descendant of Raghu on his journey to heaven. (20)

यानि पश्यन्ति काकुत्स्थं स्थावराणि चराणि च।
सर्वाणि रामगमने अनुजगुर्हि तान्यपि ॥ २१ ॥

All stationary and moving objects, who saw the scion of Kakutstha, wishing best of him, followed him departing. (21)

नोच्छ्वसत् तदयोध्यायां सुसूक्ष्ममपि दृश्यते।
तिर्यग्योनिगताश्चैव सर्वे राममनुव्रताः ॥ २२ ॥

No sensible being, even of the smallest size could be seen in Ayodhyā, even sub-human species, not following devotedly Śrī Rāma. (22)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे नवाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १०९ ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and nine in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

* The author of Bhāgavata also recalls—सत्यैः स्पृष्टोऽभिदृष्टो वा संविष्टोऽनुगतोऽपि वा। कोसलास्ते ययुः स्थानं यत्र गच्छन्ति योगिनः ॥

दशाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CX

Śrī Rāma enters alive the divine lustre of Viṣṇu alongwith his brothers; others go to Santānika world

अध्यर्थयोजनं गत्वा नदीं पश्यान्मुखाश्रिताम् ।
सरयूं पुण्यसलिलां ददर्श रघुनन्दनः ॥ १ ॥

Śrī Rāma the descendant of Raghu, going one and a half Yojana westward saw the river Sarayū full with holy waters. (1)

तां नदीमाकुलावर्ता सर्वत्रानुसरन् नृपः ।
आगतः सप्रजो रामस्तं देशं रघुनन्दनः ॥ २ ॥

Following that river stirred up by whirlpools, all along its course, King Śrī Rāma, the descendant of Raghu, together with the subjects reached a particular place. (2)

अथ तस्मिन् मुहूर्ते तु ब्रह्मा लोकपितामहः ।
सर्वैः परिवृतो देवैर्ऋषिभिश्च महात्मभिः ॥ ३ ॥
आययौ यत्र काकुत्स्थः स्वर्गाय समुपस्थितः ।
विमानशतकोटीभिर्दिव्याभिरभिसंवृतः ॥ ४ ॥

At that moment, Brahmā, the grandfather of the world, accompanied by all the gods, high sages and noble ones, came to the place where the scion of Kakutstha was ready to depart to heaven. He, the scion of Kakutstha, was surrounded by divine chariots in millions. (3-4)

दिव्यतेजोवृतं व्योम ज्योतिर्भूतमनुत्तमम् ।
स्वयंप्रभैः स्वतेजोभिः स्वर्गिभिः पुण्यकर्मभिः ॥ ५ ॥

The sky was full with unparalleled lustre, it was flooded with an unearthly light emitted by the residents of heaven, the meritorious and self-luminous. (5)

पुण्या वाता ववुश्चैव गन्धवन्तः सुखप्रदाः ।
पपात पुष्पवृष्टिश्च देवैर्मुक्ता महौघवत् ॥ ६ ॥

The holy fragrant winds blew which gave comfort to all. A shower of flowers was poured by the gods on Śrī Rāma, of great prosperity. (6)

तस्मिंस्तूर्यशतैः कीर्णै गन्धर्वाप्सरसंकुले ।
सरयूसलिलं रामः पद्भ्यां समुपचक्रमे ॥ ७ ॥

Then, at that time, when hundreds of instruments were being sounded and the place was full of Gandharvas and Apsarās, Śrī Rāma set on entering the waters of the Sarayū on foot. (7)

ततः पितामहो वाणीं त्वन्तरिक्षादभाषत ।
आगच्छ विष्णो भद्रं ते दिष्ट्या प्राप्तोऽसि राघव ॥ ८ ॥

Then Brahmā spoke from the heaven, 'O Viṣṇu come, may welfare be with you, O descendant of Raghu, luckily you have come back. (8)

भ्रातृभिः सह देवाभैः प्रविशस्व स्विकां तनुम् ।
यामिच्छसि महाबाहो तां तनुं प्रविश स्विकाम् ॥ ९ ॥
वैष्णवीं तां महातेजो यद्वाऽऽकाशं सनातनम् ।
त्वं हि लोकगतिर्देव न त्वां केचित् प्रजानते ॥ १० ॥
ऋते मायां विशालाक्षीं तव पूर्वपरिग्रहाम् ।
त्वामचिन्त्यं महद् भूतमक्षयं चाजरं तथा ।
यामिच्छसि महातेजस्तां तनुं प्रविश स्वयम् ॥ ११ ॥

'With your brothers equal to gods, enter your own form, O one of long arms, or take to the form you wish, O one of great power, assume the form of Viṣṇu, or the eternal sky, O God, you are the resort of the worlds, no one knows you well except the big-eyed Māyā, that was your former spouse, Sītā. You, the incomprehensible, the imperishable and undecaying one, whichever form you desire, enter that yourself, O powerful one.' (9—11)

पितामहवचः श्रुत्वा विनिश्चित्य महामतिः ।
विवेश वैष्णवं तेजः सशरीरः सहानुजः ॥ १२ ॥

Hearing the words of Brahmā, the very wise Śrī Rāma decided and entered into the Viṣṇu's form alive alongwith his brothers. (12)

ततो विष्णुमयं देवं पूजयन्ति स्म देवताः ।
साध्या मरुद्गणाश्चैव सेन्द्राः साग्निपुरोगमाः ॥ १३ ॥

Then the gods, indeed, worshipped the God that was Viṣṇu in form, so also the Sādhya, the hoots of Maruts, with Indra and Agni leading as their head. (13)

ये च दिव्या ऋषिगणा गन्धर्वाप्सरसश्च याः ।
सुपर्णनागयक्षाश्च दैत्यदानवराक्षसाः ॥ १४ ॥
सर्वं पुष्टं प्रमुदितं सुसम्पूर्णमनोरथम् ।
साधुसाध्विति तैर्देवैस्त्रिदिवं गतकल्मषम् ॥ १५ ॥

All those divine sages and also the Gandharvas and Apsarās, Suparṇas, the Nāgas and the Yakṣas, the sons of Diti, the demons and the Rākṣasas (ogres) were stout and happy and had their desires fulfilled—so the gods uttered ‘well done’ seeing the three-worlds blemishless. (14-15)

अथ विष्णुर्महातेजाः पितामहमुवाच ह ।
एषां लोकं जनौघानां दातुमर्हसि सुव्रत ॥ १६ ॥

Then the powerful Viṣṇu (Rāma) spoke to Brahmā, ‘O accomplisher of vows, you should grant to these hosts of men also the ‘loka’, ethereal spheres. (16)

इमे हि सर्वे स्नेहान्मामनुयाता यशस्विनः ।
भक्ता हि भजितव्याश्च त्यक्तात्मानश्च मत्कृते ॥ १७ ॥

‘All of these renowned beings have followed me due to their extreme affection for me. My devotees, who forsook their mundane comforts, are indeed worthy of my favour.’ (17)

तच्छ्रुत्वा विष्णुवचनं ब्रह्मा लोकगुरुः प्रभुः ।
लोकान् सांतानिकान् नामयास्यन्तीमे समागताः ॥ १८ ॥

Having heard these words of Lord Viṣṇu, Brahmā, the lord and preceptor of the three worlds, said: ‘All these who have come here will go to the world named Santānaka. (18)

यच्च तिर्यगतं किञ्चित् त्वामेवमनुचिन्तयत् ।
प्राणांस्त्यक्ष्यति भक्त्या तत् संतानेषु निवत्स्यति ॥ १९ ॥
सर्वैर्ब्रह्मगुरैर्युक्ते ब्रह्मलोकादनन्तरे ।
वानराश्च स्विक्कां योनिमृक्षाश्चैव तथा ययुः ॥ २० ॥

‘That animal which will breathe last thinking of you in this manner will leave its mortal frame and shall reside in Santānaka due to devotion to you. They will reside in the world of Santānaka, close to the world of Brahmā and replete with all the merits of Brahmā. The monkeys and the bears also entered their primeval forms (godhood). (19-20)

येभ्यो विनिःसृताः सर्वे सुरेभ्यः सुरसम्भवाः ।
तेषु प्रविविशे चैव सुग्रीवः सूर्यमण्डलम् ॥ २१ ॥

‘All those monkeys and bears born of gods entered into that form of the god from which they had sprung; among them Sugrīva entered the orb of the sun. (21)

पश्यतां सर्वदेवानां स्वान् पितृन् प्रतिपेदिरे ।
तथा ब्रुवति देवेशे गोप्रतारमुपागताः ॥ २२ ॥

‘They united with their ancestors, watched by all the gods. Speaking thus, all approached Gopratāra (a ford on the bank of the Sarayū). (22)

भेजिरे सरयूं सर्वे हर्षपूर्णाश्रुविकल्पाः ।
अवगाह्याप्सु यो यो वै प्राणांस्त्यक्त्वा प्रहृष्टवत् ॥ २३ ॥
मानुषं देहमुत्सृज्य विमानं सोऽध्यरोहत ।
तिर्यग्योनिगतानां च शतानि सरयूजलम् ॥ २४ ॥
सम्प्राप्य त्रिदिवं जग्मुः प्रभासुरवपूंषि तु ।
दिव्या दिव्येन वपुषा देवा दीप्ता इवाभवन् ॥ २५ ॥

‘They entered the Sarayū agitated by tears of joy. Whoever took bath in the waters of the Sarayū, they after leaving their bodies happily and discarding the human forms, ascended the divine chariot. Those, in animal form in hundreds, having come in touch with the waters of the Sarayū, went to heaven and with lustrous bodies, became divine with divine forms and as lustrous as the gods. (23—25)

गत्वा तु सरयूतोयं स्थावराणि चराणि च ।
प्राप्य तत्तोयविकलेदं देवलोकमुपागमन् ॥ २६ ॥

‘Even the moving animals and stationary objects, having bathed in the waters of the Sarayū went to the world of gods. (26)

तस्मिन् येऽपि समापन्ना ऋक्षवानरराक्षसाः ।
तेऽपि स्वर्गं प्रविविशुर्देहान् निक्षिप्य चाम्भसि ॥ २७ ॥

‘Those bears, monkeys, and Rākṣasas, who took their bath in that Sarayū, they also attained heaven, casting their bodies in the waters of Sarayū. (27)

ततः समागतान् सर्वान् स्थाप्य लोकगुरुर्दिवि ।
हृष्टैः प्रमुदितैर्देवैर्जगाम त्रिदिवं महत् ॥ २८ ॥

‘Then the preceptor of all worlds, Brahmā, established all of them who came to heaven and then went to the highest heaven with the extremely happy gods.’ (28)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे दशाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ ११० ॥

Thus ends Canto One hundred and ten in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

एकादशाधिकशततमः सर्गः

Canto CXI

Mention of the consequences of listening to and reading of the Rāmāyaṇa

एतावदेतदाख्यानं सोत्तरं ब्रह्मपूजितम् ।
रामायणमिति ख्यातं मुख्यं वाल्मीकिना कृतम् ॥ १ ॥

This much is the account together with the Uttarakāṇḍa, recognised by even Brahmā, known as the Rāmāyaṇa and composed by the sage, Vālmiki. (1)

ततः प्रतिष्ठितो विष्णुः स्वर्गलोके यथा पुरा ।
येन व्याप्तमिदं सर्वं त्रैलोक्यं सचराचरम् ॥ २ ॥

Then, after all had gone to heaven, Śrī Rāma established in heaven as Viṣṇu as before, and by whom these three worlds, with the moving and the stationary bodies are pervaded. (2)

ततो देवाः सगन्धर्वाः सिद्धाश्च परमर्षयः ।
नित्यं शृण्वन्ति संहृष्टाः काव्यं रामायणं दिवि ॥ ३ ॥

Therefore, the gods, with the Gandharvas, the Siddhas and great sages listen to the epic Rāmāyaṇa in heaven always, with pleasure. (3)

इदमाख्यानमायुष्यं सौभाग्यं पापनाशनम् ।
रामायणं वेदसमं श्राद्धेषु श्रावयेद् बुधः ॥ ४ ॥

This legend, the Rāmāyaṇa, is the giver of longevity, the enhancer of fortune and the dispeller of sins and is equal to the Vedas and the wise should cause it to be heard in the funeral rites. (4)

अपुत्रो लभते पुत्रमधनो लभते धनम् ।
सर्वपापैः प्रमुच्येत पादमण्यस्य यः पठेत् ॥ ५ ॥

The sonless one obtains a son, the poor gets wealth by hearing it. He who reads even a quarter of this Rāmāyaṇa is freed from all sins. (5)

पापान्यपि च यः कुर्यादहन्यहनि मानवः ।
पठत्येकमपि श्लोकं पापात् स परिमुच्यते ॥ ६ ॥

The man, who commits sins everyday, is also freed from sins if he reads even one Śloka (verse) of the Rāmāyaṇa daily. (6)

वाचकाय च दातव्यं वस्त्रं धेनुहिरण्यकम् ।
वाचके परितुष्टे तु तुष्टाः स्युः सर्वदेवताः ॥ ७ ॥

Cloth, cow and gold should be offered to one who recites Rāmāyaṇa; if the reciter is satisfied, all the gods would be pleased. (7)

एतदाख्यानमायुष्यं पठन् रामायणं नरः ।
सपुत्रपौत्रो लोकेऽस्मिन् प्रेत्य चेह महीयते ॥ ८ ॥

The man reading this life-giving legend enjoys pleasures with sons and grandsons and becomes honoured in the other world also. (8)

रामायणं गोविसर्गे मध्याह्ने वा समाहितः।
सायाह्ने वापराह्णे च वाचयन् नावसीदति॥१॥

Reciting the Rāmāyaṇa attentively in the morning, at midday, or afternoon, or evening, such a one suffers no pain. (9)

अयोध्यापि पुरी रम्या शून्या वर्षगणान् बहून्।
ऋषभं प्राप्य राजानं निवासमुपयास्यति॥१०॥

The beautiful Ayodhyā remaining desolate for many many years after Śrī Rāma's departure for Supreme Abode, will again be inhabited during the reign of the king, Rṣabha. (10)

एतदाख्यानमायुष्यं सभविष्यं सहोत्तरम्।
कृतवान् प्रचेतसः पुत्रस्तद् ब्रह्माप्यन्वमन्यत॥११॥

This life-giving legend, Rāmāyaṇa, with the Bhaviṣya (account of future events) and the Uttarakāṇḍa, was composed by the son of Pracetā (Vālmīki) and it was approved as true by Brahṁā. (11)

अश्वमेधसहस्रस्य वाजपेयायुतस्य च।
लभते श्रवणादेव सर्गस्यैकस्य मानवः॥१२॥

A man gets the awards of performing one thousand Aśwamedha and ten thousand Vājpeya sacrifices merely by hearing even one single canto of this Rāmāyaṇa. (12)

प्रयागादीनि तीर्थानि गङ्गाद्याः सरितस्तथा।
नैमिषादीन्यरण्यानि कुरुक्षेत्रादिकान्यपि॥१३॥

गतानि तेन लोकेऽस्मिन् येन रामायणं श्रुतम्।
हेमभारं कुरुक्षेत्रे ग्रस्ते भानौ प्रयच्छति॥१४॥

यश्च रामायणं लोके शृणोति सदृशाबुधौ।
सम्यक्श्रद्धासमायुक्तः शृणुते राघवीं कथाम्॥१५॥

सर्वपापात् प्रमुच्येत विष्णुलोकं स गच्छति।
आदिकाव्यमिदं त्वार्षं पुरा वाल्मीकिना कृतम्॥१६॥

यः शृणोति सदा भक्त्या स गच्छेद् वैष्णवीं तनुम्।
पुत्रदाराश्च वर्धन्ते सम्पदः संततिस्तथा॥१७॥

He is supposed to have visited all the holy places like Prayāga etc., and all the rivers like Gaṅgā, the forests like Naimiṣāranya* and Kṣetras like Kurukṣetra, in the world, who has listened to Rāmāyaṇa. One who gives two thousand Palas of gold at Kurukṣetra during sun-eclipse and the other who hears Rāmāyaṇa, both are equal in inheriting virtues. He who listens the story of Rāma is freed from all sins and goes to the world of Viṣṇu. This is the first and the foremost epic, composed in the ages of remote past by the sage Vālmīki. He who listens to it everyday, attains the form of Viṣṇu, is blessed with wife, his progenies and wealth are multiplied and he prospers. (13—17)

सत्यमेतद् विदित्वा तु श्रोतव्यं नियतात्मभिः।
गायत्र्याश्च स्वरूपं तद् रामायणमनुत्तमम्॥१८॥

One should listen to it, taking it to be true, with tranquil mind. The Rāmāyaṇa is the unsurpassed form of Gāyatrī. (18)

यः पठेच्छृणुयान्नित्यं चरितं राघवस्य ह।
भक्त्या निष्कल्मषो भूत्वा दीर्घमायुरवाप्नुयात्॥१९॥

He who narrates or listens always the story of Śrī Rāma with reverence and devoutly, becomes sinless and attains a (very) long life. (19)

चिन्तयेद् राघवं नित्यं श्रेयः प्राप्तुं य इच्छति।
श्रावयेदिदमाख्यानं ब्राह्मणेभ्यो दिने दिने॥२०॥

He who wants to secure bliss, should contemplate on Śrī Rāma and should narrate the story before Brāhmaṇas, day by day. (20)

यस्त्विदं रघुनाथस्य चरितं सकलं पठेत्।
सोऽसुक्षये विष्णुलोकं गच्छत्येव न संशयः॥२१॥

He who reads this whole story of Śrī Rāma undoubtedly shall attain the world of Viṣṇu at the end of his life. (21)

पिता पितामहस्तस्य तथैव प्रपितामहः।
तत्पिता तत्पिता चैव विष्णुं यान्ति न संशयः॥२२॥

His father, grandfather and great grandfather and even the fathers of these attain the body of Viṣṇu. (22)

चतुर्वर्गप्रदं नित्यं चरितं राघवस्य तु।
तस्माद् यत्नवता नित्यं श्रोतव्यं परमं सदा ॥ २३ ॥

The recitation, hearing of exploits of Śrī Rāma bestow four objects—Kāma—the gratification of desire, Artha—acquisition of wealth, Dharma—discharge of duty and Mokṣa—final emancipation. So one should listen Rāmāyaṇa carefully and diligently. (23)

शृण्वन् रामायणं भक्त्या यः पादं पदमेव वा।
स याति ब्रह्मणः स्थानं ब्रह्मणा पूज्यते सदा ॥ २४ ॥

Listening even a syllable or quarter of verse of the Rāmāyaṇa with reverence, one attains the world of Brahmā and is regarded and honoured there by Brahmā. (24)

एवमेतत् पुरावृत्तमाख्यानं भद्रमस्तु वः।
प्रव्याहरत विस्त्रब्धं बलं विष्णोः प्रवर्धताम् ॥ २५ ॥

Thus recite this historical narrative with full faith. May all be well with you and enhance power of Lord Viṣṇu (Śrī Rāma). (25)

इत्यार्षे श्रीमद्रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये उत्तरकाण्डे एकादशाधिकशततमः सर्गः ॥ १११ ॥

Thus ends Canto one hundred and eleven in the Uttarakāṇḍa of the glorious Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki, the work of a Ṛṣi and the oldest epic.

॥ उत्तरकाण्डं सम्पूर्णम् ॥

॥ श्रीमद्वाल्मीकीयरामायणं सम्पूर्णम् ॥

THE END OF UTTARAKĀṇḌA

THE END OF THE RĀMĀYAṆA OF VĀLMĪKI